SCOLD RADDING AFTER HEARING ON STREET ROW

Police Commission Warns Officer Not to be Hasty With Respectable Citizens; Must Stop Rowdyism.

An argument five weeks old between Patrolman Aaron Radding of the Manchester police department and Paul Ballsieper of Prospect street a well known local young man was threshed out before the Board of Police Commissioners last night. Ballsieper had brought the matter before the commission so that he might be vindicated in the eyes of the public, and not classed as a rowdy. He believed he had been treated unjustly by the patrolman.

The hearing last night had all the earmarks of an interesting court trial. There were witnesses, cross-examinations, testimony that was corroborative, and some that was not, and there was a verdict. Patrolman Radding and Ballsieper were before the board first. Ballsieper was asked to relate his story of the street argument.

It seems that Ballsieper had taken some of his boy friends to an out of town dance. Returning at about midnight the rendezvous was a down town restaurant. Here the gathering aimed itself in an argument about "fast cars." It was late. The air was chilled, even though it was the middle of summer, and voices carried far.

Patrolman Radding, covering his Main street beat did not take a liking to the argument, or rather, the noise that was being made. The fellows in the group didn't realize they were talking loudly nor were they admonished in a friendly spirit, they said. Radding walked into the group, seemed to single out Ballsieper, told him that out the loud talking, and like a snap of the finger, things happened.

Happened quickly. Ballsieper resented being picked on—told Radding so—Radding swung his club—Ballsieper ducked—caught Radding's arms, and aimed him against a window. Radding was resisting an officer. Ballsieper let go—Radding pulled his gun—waved his stick—and then retreated to call for police assistance.

Ballsieper said he was excited, but believed he had caused the trouble with a night stick breezing past his left ear for no good reason. He said he could not understand why the patrolman had singled him out, nor could he understand the act of drawing a gun. "I didn't remember anyone insinuating that 'now is a good time to get him'—that being Patrolman Radding's explanation of the gun play.

At head quarters. Later the police car with Sergeant Crockett driving arrived on the scene and was given a chance of settling the argument. The street so a group went to the station to explain to Captain Schendel, who was on the desk. In the police headquarters Ballsieper told his story. Radding interrupted. He was told to keep quiet until the story had been told. Another time he called the complainant a liar with a vicious two word preface.

Ballsieper's witnesses were called. In the order of their appearance on this stage they were Sam McAdams, Herbert Flavel, Paul Clune, and John Patterson. Their stories followed the theme of the one Ballsieper had told. Their testimony, given individually, with no one listening but the commission, seemed to coincide and were expected considering the fracas was five weeks old. McAdams admitted he had said, "Go get him," when Radding hit Ballsieper with his club, but meant only that Ballsieper should be protected from the patrolman's club.

TWENTY-YEAR OLD HEN HATCHES 14 CHICKS

London, Sept. 1.—Notwithstanding the fact that all poultry experts say that the domestic hen "is too old at three," a twenty-year-old hen has just hatched a brood of fourteen chicks at Heppershall, Bedfordshire. Mother and family are all doing well.

PROMOTE ROBERTS TO REGULAR RANK

Supernumerary Patrolman Commended for Good Work in Police Dept.

Albert R. Roberts, a supernumerary patrolman in the Manchester police department for nearly two years, is today a regular on the force. Roberts was given the promotion last evening by the Board of Police Commissioners.

Patrolman A. R. Roberts

The patrolman was recommended for promotion by Chief Samuel Gordon. Chief Gordon said that since being connected with the department Roberts had conducted himself in an excellent manner. He has been exacting and courteous, and seems to be able to enforce the law without causing friction.

Robert's promotion carries with it an advance in pay and a nine day vacation with pay. The patrolman thanked the commission and Chief Gordon, and Commissioners Dewey, Murphy and Rogers and Chief Gordon congratulated Roberts and urged him to keep up the good work.

K. OF C. HEAD SCORES CALLES TO COOLIDGE

Supreme Knight Wants "Good Officers," Not Intervention in Mexico, He Explains.

White Pine Camp, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The Knights of Columbus of this country today placed their appeal for the use of the American government's "good offices" in ameliorating the conditions which now oppress the Mexican people squarely before President Coolidge. James A. Flaherty, supreme knight accompanied by all the supreme officers, made the request. He did not suggest what form these "good offices" should take, but he roundly condemned the Calles regime in Mexico, and even went back as far as the Carranza administration in his complaint.

Flaherty denied that the Knights of Columbus sought intervention. He said the order offices in intervention and non-interference in Mexican affairs from now on, because it was the belief of American Catholics that just as soon as Washington abandoned all interest in Mexico the Calles administration would fall.

"We came here," said Flaherty, "merely seeking the sympathetic action of the United States in any way which will be helpful. We called attention to the existence of the embargo on the shipping of arms into Mexico, but we did not ask that it be lifted."

Flaherty criticized the action of President Wilson in recognizing Carranza and of the Harding-Coolidge administration in supplying Oregon with munitions of war and permitting him to move his troops through American territory.

COOLIDGE MAN WINS ON COURT IN CALIFORNIA

Sen. Shortridge Sweeps the G. O. P. Primaries on Issue of Adherence; Dry Runs a Bad Third.

San Francisco, Sept. 1.—United States Senator Samuel M. Shortridge who based his campaign for renomination largely on his advocacy of the Coolidge administration, has won the Republican nomination by a large majority over Judge Robert Clarke, of Los Angeles, who campaigned as a foe of the World Court.

Congressman Walter Lineberger, "a dry" whose candidacy in the measure injected that issue in the primary campaign, was a poor third. In one of the hottest gubernatorial primary campaigns in the history of the state Gov. Friend W. Richardson has been defeated for renomination on the Republican ticket by a margin of between 20,000 and 30,000 votes on the face of incomplete returns.

Incumbent Lt. Governor J. Winant, C. C. Young, present lieutenant-governor and foe of the Richardson administration, is the apparent victor in this race with Rex D. Goodell a poor third.

Strictly state issues were involved in this campaign. Although at an early hour today Richardson headquarters maintained late returns would pull the governor through for renomination by a comfortable margin. Lieut. Gov. Young issued a statement thanking the people of the state for the nomination.

MINISTER HELD FOR KILLING MOONSHINER

Heads Raid in Which Fleeing Man Is Slain; Faces Murder Charge.

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 1.—Faced with a first degree murder charge, Rev. George S. Seely, pastor of the Orting Free Methodist church and editor of the Orting "Oracle," was held today without bail in the Pierce County Jail as an aftermath of a dry raid which he is alleged to have led, in which Emilio Matsumoto, alleged moonshiner, was slain.

Three federal dry agents arrested also by Pierce county authorities on murder charges, obtained their release through federal court intervention in Seattle but are under $5,000 bail each pending the trial of Matsumoto in federal court of murder charges by the Pierce county authorities.

Matsumoto was shot in the back when he fled at the raiding party approached a still hidden in the woods near Orting. William E. Hjelte, said to have been a companion of Matsumoto, is being held as a material witness in the case.

MEXICAN CATHOLICS INSIST ON WITHDRAWAL

No Settlement Possible Until Present Legislation Is Annulled, Says Diaz.

Mexico City, Sept. 1.—"The Catholic Church will not accept any arrangement short of withdrawal of the religious legislation which makes Church life impossible and we see no prospect of settlement," declared Bishop Pascual Diaz, spokesman for the Episcopalate, today, in issuing a denial of reports circulated here that the religious controversy between the Church and government was approaching a settlement.

With both houses under the control of the Calles administration, the Mexican congress meets today. Foremost among the matters to be discussed by the congress is the religious controversy. The government is ready to submit legislation supporting the current regulations.

HARLEM HIVE FIRE TAKES TOLL OF NINE

Six Burned to Death in Tenement, Three Who Leaped Are Dying.

New York, Sept. 1.—Six persons were burned to death and three others who leaped to the street are dying following a three-alarm fire in a five-story tenement in Harlem today.

None of the dead, all of whom were Negroes, has been identified. The bodies were found in apartments on the fourth and fifth floors where they were trapped when the stairs were burned away.

Leap, Fatally Injured. Two women, one with a baby in her arms, leaped to the street and are dying in Harlem hospital. They are Mrs. Mamie Rambo, 37, Negro, who jumped with her two-year-old daughter, Deviline, from a window of the fifth story apartment, fracturing their skulls, and Mary Allen, 27, who jumped from a fourth-story window into a subway excavation in front of the tenement. Her right leg was amputated at the hospital.

Police believe the dead include Margerie Rambo, 7, and Edward Rambo, one month old, children of Mrs. Rambo. Isaac Rambo, 5, was rescued by his father.

Using aerial and scaling ladders, firemen carried between thirty and forty persons to safety from upper floors. The caving in of the tenement's roof endangered the lives of the firemen. After the blaze was under control, it was necessary to use ladders inside the building to recover the bodies from the upper floors. The origin of the fire was unknown.

36 DROWNED IN FLOODS NEAR BARCELONA, SPAIN

Barcelona, Spain, Sept. 1.—Thirty-six persons are known to have been drowned in floods that have swept surrounding villages. A postal train, running between Barcelona and Valencia, was derailed near Tortosa because of the flood and seventeen of the third class passengers killed and thirty-six injured.

U. S. Will Talk Debts, Not Recognition, With Soviets

Washington, Sept. 1.—The American government is entirely willing to discuss with Soviet Russia the question of Russian debts in this country, both public and private, if assured that the negotiations are undertaken in good faith by the Moscow regime. Recognition, however, is another matter, and will not be seriously considered by the Washington government until Russia meets the conditions laid down three years ago by Secretary of State Hughes. This was the position taken today by administration spokesmen toward yesterday's announcement in Moscow that Soviet Russia would be willing to send a "debt commission" to Washington if assured that such a mission would be well received and treated here. Treasury officials were interested, but somewhat skeptical over the dispatches.

BETTIS, HERO OF AIR CRASH, DIES OF HURTS

Army Ace Who Crawled for Miles in Mountains After Fall, Succumbs as Recovery Was Expected.

Washington, Sept. 1.—Lieut. Cyrus K. Bettis, ex-aviator, who crashed into a fog-obscured mountain near Bellefonte, Pennsylvania, last week, died at Walter Reed hospital this morning at 9:05 o'clock.

Lieut. Bettis had been thought to be recovering from the injuries he received in the crash until last night, when his condition suddenly took a turn for the worse. In addition to internal injuries he suffered a broken leg and both his jaws were fractured.

Mother Summoned. Pending the arrival of the dead flyer's mother from Port Huron, Mich., no funeral arrangements will be made. She is reported enroute here, having been summoned by army authorities last night.

Suffered From Orescretion. The death of the aviator was in no small part attributed to the terrific strain he underwent in making his way from the obscure spot in the mountains where he crashed to a highway, some five miles away, where passing motorists found him and took him to Bellefonte hospital. Despite his broken bones and internal injuries he crawled over rough country, through underbrush and woods, to a point where he could hope for help.

The War Department sent a hospital plane to Bellefonte to bring him to Walter Reed hospital here, where the army specialists could treat him.

Won Pulitzer Trophy. Bettis was not only considered one of the best pilots in the army air service, but was one of the most popular as well. He first sprang into prominence by winning the Pulitzer trophy at Baltimore last year from Lieut. Al Williams, the navy's crack flyer.

Fell Week Ago. Bellefonte, Pa., Sept. 1.—Lieut. Cyrus K. Bettis, whose world reputation as an army aviator, crashed in the Allegheny Mountains 15 miles east of her in a fog last week.

Lieut. Bettis, with two other army aviators, left the Sequoyia terminal at Philadelphia on Monday, a week ago, to fly to Selkridge Field, Miss. The others made the trip safely, but Bettis became lost in the fog and his plane was wrecked.

The flyer crawled from the wreckage and dragged himself over a mountain trail in search of aid. It was five hours before two boys heard him calling for help and took him to a farmhouse, where he spent the night.

The next day Bettis was removed to the Bellefonte hospital, where it was believed his injuries would not prove fatal. Later he was taken to Walter Reed hospital in Washington in an airplane, it being one of the few instances on record where an airplane was pressed into service as an ambulance in peace-time.

HORTA BADLY HIT BUT NOT IN RUINS

Many Buildings But Slightly Damaged by Quake; Prob- ably Under 20 Dead.

Lisbon, Sept. 1.—Relief work and efforts to check up on the damage done in Horta, Fayal Island, by earthquakes yesterday, are in progress today.

The full extent of the damage is still undetermined and the number of casualties is indefinite. The more conservative estimates fix the dead at not more than twenty, and possibly less than this. The number of injured is estimated at more than 200. One report today placed the number of dead as low as six, while another number given was ten.

Horta was seriously damaged, but it seems probable that early reports that the city was in ruins were exaggerated.

Some Slight Damage. A report received from the governor of Fayal stated that every building in Horta was damaged, but in many instances the damage was comparatively slight.

The damage done was not confined to the town of Horta alone, but buildings throughout the island of Fayal were either badly damaged or entirely ruined.

Relief work and reconstruction is reported progressing in an orderly fashion and it is not anticipated that there will be any need for aid, other than that which the Portuguese government will give.

Enough Doctors. Local physicians in Horta are reported to be able to handle the situation, although Red Cross relief is being sent. The hospitals are reported not to have been so seriously damaged as to cause their being greatly hampered in their work.

Although panics followed the tremors it is reported that the town of Horta is now going about the work of rescue and reconstruction in a more normal manner.

The tremors came just before mid-day when many of the inhabitants were working in the fields or in the open, and it is believed that this has kept the list of casualties down.

"Fifty Victims." The governor of the Azores cabled a report to the Portuguese government stating that there were fifty victims in the disaster, but it was not clear whether he meant that there were fifty killed or fifty killed and injured.

Troops have been called out in Fayal and are guarding property which has been abandoned by its owners in their flight.

Relief is being dispatched from other islands in the Azores and a relief ship which has been sent out.

MAY EXCLUDE FONCK IN FLIGHT TO PARIS

However, Peace Parley Is Be- ing Held in New York this Afternoon

New York, Sept. 1.—With open friction recorded between Capt. Rene Fonck, French ace, and his backers in the proposed New York-to-Paris aeroplane flight, a "peace conference" is to be held this afternoon in an attempt to prevent postponement of the project.

The controversy revolves about the protest of Capt. Homer M. Berry, U. S. A., reserve flyer, that he has been ignored by Fonck after being promised the position of assistant pilot in the proposed flight.

Col. H. E. Hartney, vice president of the Argonauts, who won the Sikorsky plane Fonck plans to use, has taken Capt. Berry's side. Berry is one of the charter members of the Argonauts company.

14 WOUNDED IN BLOODY RIOTS AT MANVILLE

Soldiers Today Face Strikers In R. I. Town; State Police Fire on Mob That Shoots And Stones.

Manville, R. I., Sept. 1.—Two companies of state militia marched into Manville today and were posted on guard behind barbed wire entanglements and machine guns, near the mill of the Manville-Jencks company, where 1,700 textile operatives are on strike.

The militiamen were summoned as a result of a series of disturbances that came to a climax during the night when blood was shed during a pitched battle between state police and deputy sheriffs and strikers and their sympathizers.

Before the militia was called, the troopers and deputies, with tear gas bombs and riot guns, had weathered an attack of rocks, bricks and shotguns and still held a bridge leading to the mill, the connecting link between Manville and Cumberland. People here contend that the bridge is a public highway and can not legally be closed.

Fourteen Injured. Fourteen persons were injured before the battle subsided—seven strikers or sympathizers, one a bystander, two deputy sheriffs, two state troopers and two mill executives.

Last night's trouble began at 8:30 o'clock when a crowd assembled in three at the bridgehead and assailed troopers posted there with abuse and stones. A sympathizer tried to force his way across the bridge and was thrust back. The crowd then rushed the barricade, and the state police hurled tear bombs into the mass, driving it back.

A little later the troopers fired their first volley from heavy service revolvers, and one man was carried away bleeding. Shortly afterward another young man was shot. Aram Auclair, who was shot in the chin, is a nephew of Mayor Adelard Soucy of Woonsocket.

Boy a Victim. At 9:30 o'clock the troopers fired another volley of six or seven shots and one of them struck a boy in the leg and a third person, a man, was reported to have been struck. The boy was carried to a store in a state of collapse.

Casualties in the early clashes were Aram Auclair, 20, shot in jaw; Michael Mamaka, 17, shot in leg; George Chaplin, 32, Central Falls grocer, shot in shoulder; John Ryanski, Cumberland striker, shot in hand; Lieut. Baird, state police, foot injured by thrown stone.

Later Deputy Sheriff Percy Butterfield of Providence was struck in the nose by buckshot when two alleged strike sympathizers fired over the heads of the crowd from a vantage point on the hill behind.

Today, with the soldiers, armed with rifles, barring the public highway bridge to the mill, with barbed wire entanglements thrown up and with leaders of the 1,700 textile strikers protesting that they will demand redress for the shooting by state troopers and deputy sheriffs, the strike situation was at fever heat.

The protest was carried to Governor Aram J. Potliver, who declared that he had not sanctioned the calling out of the troops but was investigating the battle at the bridge.

Crowds gathered near the barbed wire entanglements today and were evidently in an angry mood over the closing of a public highway.

The soldiers had orders not to fire unless an extreme emergency arose but a squad was in constant duty at a fire hose in the center of the bridge.

Mayor Adelard Soucy, of Woonsocket, whose nephew was shot last night, declared the young man was hit by a bullet half a mile from the mill.

Condemnation of violence was voiced by State Senator Russell H. Handy and Rev. Eustace Magnan, both of whom braved bullets to check the disorders.

A mass meeting of the strikers was called to discuss ways and means of carrying on the strike.

TELEPHONE RATES ARE RE-ADJUSTED

Long Distance Charges Lowered—Subscribers' Privileges Greater

A general readjustment of long distance telephone rates, an extension of the periods when the low evening and night rates apply and an extension, also, of the subscriber's privilege of reversing charges, was announced today by the Southern New England Telephone Company to take effect October 1.

There will be a substantial reduction on calls to all points 150 or more miles distant and the greater the distance called, the greater is the reduction.

New Rates Here.

For example, from Manchester to Pittsburgh the basic station-to-station rate will be $2.00 instead of $2.50; to Chicago $3.50 instead of $4.95; to San Francisco $11.50 instead of $16.75.

A few rates for distances between 24 and 110 miles, as well as some of the lowest rates, will be readjusted to make the schedule consistent throughout, but in these cases the increase of the basic station-to-station rate will be only five cents.

One of the interesting changes from the public's viewpoint is that by which one and a half hours have been added to the reduced rate period. Reduced rates on station-to-station calls will begin at 7 p. m., instead of 8:30 p. m., as formerly.

Between 7 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. the discount will be approximately 25 per cent of the day station-to-station rates, and from 8:30 p. m. to 4:30 a. m., about 50 per cent of the day rates. These discounts will apply where the day station-to-station rate is 40 cents or more, with a minimum reduced rate of 35 cents. Because of the unsatisfactory service conditions which it brought about, the existing midnight discount is discontinued.

Lowest Rates at Eight-Thirty.

Under the new schedule station-to-station calls may be made at substantial reductions as early as 7 p. m., and persons wishing to take advantage of the lowest rates of the 24 hours may make their calls any time after 8:30 p. m. Thus, although the midnight discount is discontinued, the longer reduced rate period and the substantial reductions applying in basic rates to distant points mean that this change will make little difference in the cost of night calls.

By this move the company expects to improve service by eliminating complications at midnight which have resulted in delays and put a heavy burden on its facilities and employees. At the metropolitan centers, such as New York, it has meant retaining a large force of young women operators to care for a sudden and short-lived burst of traffic. During much of the time the operators kept on duty in anticipation of this temporary rush have had little to do, then a short period in which they have been entirely too busy to give the best service, and following that a sharp tapering off in business at an early morning hour.

Reversal Privilege Extended.

Another change that will be welcomed is the extension of the privilege of reversing charges to include practically all station-to-station calls, whether placed during the day, evening or night—where the rate is 25 cents or more, with a few exceptions. In the last few years the use of long distance service has been increasing constantly and many situations now arise where the reversal of charges is of advantage to the customer who calls for a certain number. Hence this privilege is an added convenience and saving to the public.

While this rate readjustment includes small increases on some short distance calls, the rate reductions on calls over the longer distances will result in a net saving of about $8,000,000 a year to telephone users in the country as a whole.

STATE FAIR PROMISES TO BE BEST ONE YET

From all indications the 1926 Connecticut State Fair will be the greatest in its history. Every department will be gilt edged in one way or another.

While this rate readjustment includes small increases on some short distance calls, the rate reductions on calls over the longer distances will result in a net saving of about $8,000,000 a year to telephone users in the country as a whole.

A sensational surprise will be offered in the form of "Dare Devil Vee", a European act which is making its first American tour this season. Vee is known in the old country as "The man who flirts with death." Standing erect on the rear end of a speeding automobile he leaps in the air and, with the speed of a catapult, lands on the track directly in front of the grandstand. Up to the present no one has seemed anxious to copy or imitate Vee's original act.

ONLY TWO CHANGES IN BUCKLAND DIST.

Only two alterations were made in property valuations as recorded by the Board of Assessors during the special session of the Board of Relief in the Seventh school district last night in the Buckland school.

John Jeffery was credited with $200 worth of property in the Seventh District that he did not possess and William Donahue had his automobile marked down twice.

The Board of Relief was in session for an hour. Twelve property owners came in to look over the books, but only two changes were found necessary to make. Both were trivial.

KIDDIE REVUE OPENS AT STATE TOMORROW

Long Awaited Production Will Be Presented Tomorrow Friday, and Saturday.

At last the time has come for the presentation for three days of the State theatre's Kiddie Revue. The biggest and most important event of the summer theatrical season will get under way at tomorrow's matinee and evening performances. The large company of performers of Manchester's own youngsters will take the spotlight to show their parents, relatives, friends and the theatre-going public in general what they can do in the way of theatrics. Do not fail to be there to give them a big hand. You will never regret seeing this show. It will be a revelation to you and a surprise beyond your power to express yourself as you will want to do.

For over a month the cast for the revue has been rehearsing daily. You cannot begin to imagine even after you will have seen the production, the great amount of hours and hours of work that have been spent to bring the show to that fine point of finesse that characterizes a smooth, finished performance. Therefore, come to the State and give the kiddies your whole-hearted support.

Myrtle Muir, the conquestish and appealing little leading lady of the revue gives such a performance as no one would believe a girl of her age could do. She dances, sings and acts in a manner that seems to be token years of training. That fact is, however, she, as well as the other principals and members of the cast, have had little or no training in theatrics except what she and the others have received under Jack Sanson's directing for this revue.

The other principals in the cast, all of whom take their parts in a really astonishing manner, are Billy Shea, Manchester's tiniest singer; Dorothy Eurricio, who plays opposite Billy Shea; Edna Fradin, Dorothy Wirtalla and Dorothy Guert, a very capable and charming dancing trio; Eleanor Schieldge, another good dancer; Joseph Excellente, of Charleston fame, who now proves that he is not a bad singer; Pauline Reale, who looks as though she would run Gall Gurd out of the business; Betty Foreman, a little singer and dancer who will capture your heart; Ada Robinson, another thoroughly capable singer and little Miss Custer, Charlestonist, who is only three years of age.

The revue is in three acts. Special scenery, stage settings and lighting effects will all tend to give them a lavish appearance. The story of each act deals with—but that's giving it all away. You'll just have to come and see for yourself.

Then there is a big jazz orchestra entirely made up of local musicians under the direction of Tom Trant. It's a first class jazz band taken right out of Manchester. And we don't mean maybe, either.

Along with the revue will be a pleasant moving picture diversion. It's an F. B. O. production entitled, "Bigger Than Barnum's." It's a production tingling with the romance of the sawdust, the glitter of the gasoline lamps, the roar of the lions and the lure of adventure. It is by far the greatest epic of the circus ever filmed. Featured in the cast are Ralph Lewis, Viola Dana, George O'Hara and Ralph Ince, who directed the picture besides playing a part.

There will also be an "Our Gang" comedy entitled "Buried Treasure." All this is for the regular picture prices; there will be no advance in prices.

The State presents for the first time tonight First National's great drama, "Mistakes." Featured in it are Doris Kenyon and Warner Baxter. If you have not seen it yet, do not fail to do so tonight.

OPEN FORUM

THE OTHER SIDE

Editor, The Herald: "The Manchester Herald" are given so much which antagonizes the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, the good people of our town might be pleased to read the following which was received by me on August 23. It explains itself.

United States Senate Committee on the Judiciary
Your communication supporting the cause of prohibition was received by me as chairman of the sub-committee of the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate empowered to conduct the wet and dry hearings.

The hearings are now over and the report has been made.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD F. PHREANER,
Manchester, Conn.,
August 31, 1926.

It is the opinion of this committee that the Eighteenth Amendment to the United States constitution is both morally right and economically wise.

It is the duty of every officer, Legislative, Executive and Judicial to aid in its enforcement. The hearings have strengthened my beliefs. Because of the thousands of communications received it was found necessary to print this reply.

Very truly yours,
RICE W. MEANS,
Chairman sub-committee of the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.
Denver, Colorado.

The foregoing are the exact words received from Mr. Means by me.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD F. PHREANER,

Announcing Important Changes in Toll and Long Distance
Telephone Service
Effective October 1, 1926

Reduction in Rates
To points 150 miles or more distant, the rates will be substantially reduced. The greater the distance, the greater the reduction.

The following figures illustrate the reductions in basic station-to-station rates:

From	To	Present Rate	Rate Effective October 1
Manchester	Pittsburgh	$ 2.50	$ 2.00
	Chicago	4.95	3.60
	San Francisco	16.75	11.50

Reductions comparable to these will be effective from all other exchanges in this Company's territory.

Some rates for distances between 24 and 110 miles, as well as a few of the lowest rates, will be adjusted to make the schedule consistent throughout, but in these cases the increase of the basic station-to-station rate will be only five cents.

Collect Charges on Station-to-Station Calls
Heretofore the reversal of charges has been available only on person-to-person calls. As a further convenience to the public, this privilege will be extended, with a few exceptions, to station-to-station calls where the rate is 25 cents or more.

Longer Reduced-Rate Period
Reduced rate hours for station-to-station calls will begin at 7 P. M. instead of 8:30 P. M., as formerly. Between 7 and 8:30 P. M. the discount will be approximately 25 percent of the day station-to-station rates. From 8:30 P. M. to 4:30 A. M., the discount will be about 50 percent of the day rates. These discounts will apply where the day station-to-station rate is 40 cents or more, with a minimum reduced rate of 35 cents. Because of the unsatisfactory service conditions which it brought about, the existing midnight discount will be discontinued.

The net result of these rate changes will be a saving to the telephone users of the United States of approximately $3,000,000 a year. The service changes are made in the interests of public convenience and to furnish still better toll and long distance service.

SETBACK FOR WOMEN

The Ferguson episode in Texas has been an unfortunate affair in its relationship to the part played, and to be played, by women in the governmental affairs of this country.

It happens to exactly fall in with the dour predictions of anti-suffragists that Mrs. Ferguson has never been anything but a stalking horse for her crude and none too conscientious husband.

Of course it is ridiculous to suppose that there are not many thousands of women in the United States not only as politically intelligent as their men folks but quite as independent—not at all to be dominated by the male will.

It would almost seem as if this result were the one sought by Mrs. Ferguson, for by extending clemency to an almost endless array of criminals she has furnished still more ammunition to the anti-woman political element.

That the Ferguson case is an ammunition against a certain form of feminine political preference is true. It is a serious commentary on the sentimental succession of the woman to the husband's job.

Just the same the women have got to live down "Ma" Ferguson.

INFILTRATION

There is such a thing as honor in politics. If the time ever comes when that factor is eliminated from the political life of this nation, then God help America.

Dr. Gilbert O. Nations, Prohibition candidate for President in 1920, is one of those who believes in candid, honorable methods for the achievement of reform.

Infiltration is a trick fostered by the German empire when it was planning world control. It has since been adopted by Soviet Russia.

If, as dry advocates maintain, the people of this country are for prohibition, and if the dry leaders have any faith in the people, then the obvious thing to be done, in support of the prohibitory laws, is to beat the drum of enforcement, rally to the dry standard all believers in Volsteadism, organize the dry army regularly and openly, and fight the war to a finish, against both the old parties, neither of which are essentially dry or ever will be dry.

If the majority of the people in this country believe that America's business prosperity, the profitable employment of her labor, her world relations, the question of taxation, the maintenance of world peace, the whole vast business of keeping the national machinery running, are of less account than the enforcement of a single sumptuary law, then the party for them to elevate to power is a prohibition party, untrammelled by any pledge or obligation to keep the country going.

THE BAKER IDEA

We can see no reason for the bewildering of Washington politicians over the Newton Baker article advocating remission, by the United States, of the European war debts.

What they lose sight of is the fact that Baker is out of politics, probably out definitely and for all time. And they also lose sight of the fact that he was a man of ideas before he ever was a politician.

Such an advocate is much more likely to be lynched than to be elected to anything by any section of the American polity.

Baker, quite beyond question, had delivered himself of this idea of calling off the uncollectable foreign debts merely to get the thing off his chest, with possibly the added hope that perhaps a word from him may contribute somewhat to keeping the germ of the idea alive in a few dozen American minds.

His recent offering on the subject of the tariff was a case in point. The tariff is an excellent thing, just now, for Democrats to discuss. At worst they risk nothing by doing it and they may gain votes by it.

As all men know, industrial eastern Republicanism likes the present high tariff, because it protects the industries.

As everybody knows further, agricultural western Republicanism wants the tariff lowered, on the ground that it doesn't protect farm products but does make the farmers pay excessive prices for everything they have to buy.

Nobody doubts that the industrial folk will do their best to hang on to protection, but it's clear that they should make as little noise about it as possible, lest they enrage the farmers into voting the other way or turning insurgent.

Now along comes Senator Butler with the remark that the tariff not only isn't too high, but, so far as his particular industry—textiles—is concerned, it isn't high enough.

The suggestion made by the movie mentor is for twenty vaults, each with a capacity for a thousand reels of film, to be included in the plans now, with space for thirty more similar vaults to be added in the future.

The general character of the films to be preserved will suggest itself to anybody. The precise selections to be made are something safe enough to trust to the judgment of any first class librarian or museum director.

By far the most important in existence at present, from the historical point of view, are the war pictures and those of Presidents and other outstanding personages who have passed away since the motion camera began to register living personalities. And from that point plain common sense can easily go on to determine just what films are and are not essential for preservation.

NICARAGUA

The presence of American marines in Nicaragua has become so normal a condition to the people of that always distracted little country that it seems impossible for them to adjust themselves to freedom from outside monitoring.

The marines were down there for a long, long time—so long that the job of policing Nicaragua had become one traditional through several generations—or at least enlistments—of marine personnel. And then, a little while ago, the devils came away at last and left the Nicaraguans to their own devices. In two shakes of a lamb's tail they were at the revolution business again. And so an American ship once more had to pop into Bluefields and the same old marines had to go ashore and take over the same old job again. If they hadn't, the ins and the outs, between them, would almost certainly have shot the town all to pieces.

It isn't supposed to be our business, this keeping of Latin American peoples from eating each other up. But we have, in the Panama Canal, a pretty big stake in the Central American situation. We can take no chances of people down that way running amuck, with the always present chance that their lunacies may extend as far as our costly and delicate ditch. Explosive tempers and explosive chemicals alike must be kept at a safe distance from that streak of water. If they can't guarantee safety from these things, down there, why, the marines will have to keep on doing it. And they don't mind.

LITTLE LEADERS

America's reservations on the protocol of the World Court have now been accepted by seven nations. They are Albania, Cuba, Greece, Liberia, Uruguay, Luxemburg and the San Dominican Republic. Not, perhaps a very imposing array as to size or influence, but important in their geographical distribution and as constituting about a seventh of the whole number which must pass upon the reservations.

The subject is to be taken up at a general meeting of the League to be held at the end of this month at Geneva. It is our bet that the reservations will finally be accepted, without reference back to the United States, despite the gloomy forecasts that have been made. In which case the little fellows will have led the way, for once.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Sept. 1.—Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts is not a very talkative politician. This is fortunate, because, when he does say something political, it generally is something that would have been, politically, far better left unsaid.

His recent offering on the subject of the tariff was a case in point. The tariff is an excellent thing, just now, for Democrats to discuss. At worst they risk nothing by doing it and they may gain votes by it.

As all men know, industrial eastern Republicanism likes the present high tariff, because it protects the industries.

As everybody knows further, agricultural western Republicanism wants the tariff lowered, on the ground that it doesn't protect farm products but does make the farmers pay excessive prices for everything they have to buy.

Nobody doubts that the industrial folk will do their best to hang on to protection, but it's clear that they should make as little noise about it as possible, lest they enrage the farmers into voting the other way or turning insurgent.

Now along comes Senator Butler with the remark that the tariff not only isn't too high, but, so far as his particular industry—textiles—is concerned, it isn't high enough.

The most elementary kind of political good judgment warns that this sort of observation is calculated to make a western farmer as mad as a hatter.

The farmer—his is a Republican farmer, mind—complains, in effect, that the tariff's robbing him.

To which the chairman of the Republican national committee, from whom the Republican farmer might fairly expect a little sympathy, replies, "Well, I'm in favor of still more of it."

The commerce department deals with the situation a great deal more tactfully. It's giving out figures to prove that the farmer's mistaken—that he actually does benefit by the tariff, only he doesn't realize it—that he's in hard luck, for reasons over which nobody has any control, but that he'd be in a lot worse luck if it weren't for protection.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 1.—The "characters" of Wall street are quite well known to those who pass their days in the financial center as are the world-famed ma-nates.

And there's Ted, the booth-boy. Or Theodore as he prefers it. His real name is Tony Something-or-other, for he's an Italian and his shoe-shining stand decorates the building at No. 1 Wall street.

He boasted of having Ulysses Grant as a customer when the former president and Civil War hero was in the banking business. He has a boot-shining acquaintance with Charles Evans Hughes and George F. Baker, the financial king is an old customer.

Yet it is not recorded that all the magnates of Wall street were more liberal than the transient figures of Broadway, or elsewhere.

Certainly none of the street's "characters" seem to have made enough to retire. Nor is it recorded that many of them made fortunes from "tips" on the market.

Yet, for years, Theodore has hoped to get enough money together to see Italy once more. Whether or not he might have succeeded is conjectural.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

Macrurid

By AUSTIN H. CLARK Smithsonian Institute Deep down in the dark cool depths of all the oceans, 600 feet and deeper, there live in great abundance fishes of this general type known as macrurids with large heads and more or less slender bodies tapering slowly to sharp pointed tails.

There are many different kinds of these, mostly rather small, but many reaching a yard in length and a few six feet or more. These are very common on our coasts, but we rarely see them as we do not fish at the depths at which they live, and if we caught one we should scarcely try to eat it.

Let's sing a song of highest praise for men who write our tunes these days. When orchestra or organ plays these tunes we get the hip hoorays.

A Remarkable Author

AT THE age of 18 Anne Austin was left alone with her baby daughter. Today she is 30 and her daughter is 12. During that time she has earned her own and her daughter's living by writing fiction—both serials and short stories—for magazines. In addition she has herself edited several magazines of national circulation and has written a great many non-fiction articles.

Her daughter, Elizabeth Benson, at the age of nine, was tested for her intelligence and found to possess the mental age of a girl of 19. This fall she enters college—at 12!

Anne Austin had not only the ambition and ability to make her mark as a successful author, but she had the time to rear her child as a perfect specimen of health and a person of phenomenal mental attainment.

Story of Life and Love

THE HERALD naturally is glad to announce Anne Austin's first newspaper serial, SAINT AND SINNER. It is a story of life and love, of the tribulations of a human, honest-to-goodness American family.

But principally it is the story of two sisters—of Faith Lane, patient, lovable family drudge, who thought of everyone but herself—of Cherry Lane, selfish, man-mad, flighty, who put self above all.

You will meet these characters in the first chapter of SAINT AND SINNER, and follow them from day to day with breathless interest. You will meet other great characters, too—Jim Lane, the patient, plodding father; "Long" Lane, the slick-haired "sheik"; Mrs. Lane, the complaining, martyred invalid; Joy Lane, the irrepressible child.

And splendid Bob Hathaway, whom both Faith and Cherry come to love; George Pruitt, the wealthy artist; Albert Ettleson, the drummer, who thought he was another Don Juan.

OPPORTUNE HITTING FEATURES AS SHAMROCKS TRIM CRESCENTS

Make All of Their Five Hits Figure In Defeating Hartford Nine 4 to 1; Mantelli Stars; Rockville Here Thursday.

Hits at opportune moments speeded victory for the Shamrocks last night in their game with the Hartford Crescents. The score was 4 to 1.

The Shamrocks made but five hits as did their opponents but the former contributed its base knocks when they meant runs. In fact every one of the Shamrocks' five hits figured entirely in the scoring. In the first inning Mantelli and Brennan clouted the ball into safe territory and the Shamrocks hopped into a one-run lead. In the second the visitors clipped in two of their hits with a local error and tied the score.

From then on until the last inning there was no more scoring. In the sixth, however, the Shamrocks made three runs on hits by Mantelli, Brennan and Graff together with a free pass to first.

This settled the ball game beyond any matter of doubt. McLaughlin was in good form and the visitors found even more puzzling as the game progressed. He fanned six batters and did not issue a single base on balls. Tepper was not as effective.

Tomorrow evening the All-Rockville nine will play here in the final twilight game of the season. The box score last night:

DIAMOND DISPUTES DECIDED

When is the infield fly not operative with runners on first and second and less than two out?

There is only one situation that makes an exception of the infield fly rule. It deals with a bunt in an effort to sacrifice.

When there are runners on first and second or first, second and third and less than two out, any attempt to bunt which results in a fair fly ball shall not be regarded as an infield fly.

At such times the infield is usually all out of position in an effort to create a defense for the bunt and at such times it is the intent that the infielders must actually make the play on the ball.

In such a situation the batsman is not automatically out, the ball must be caught.

TUNNEY GOES TO QUAKER CITY LIKE A CONQUEROR

New York, Sept. 1.—Gene Tunney, challenger for the heavyweight title, arrived in town early today, bound for Philadelphia. Marines from the Philadelphia navy yard plan to meet Tunney at Broad street station and escort him to the offices of Mayor Kendrick. After paying his respects to the latter Tunney will visit the stadium. Later Tunney will be whisked by automobile to his new training quarters at Stroudsburg, Pa. where he will remain until the morning of the fight.

LONGWOOD TENNIS

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 1.—The first match in the third round of the United States doubles championship today brought together William T. Tilden 11, and Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., and the Pacific coast champions, Phil Neer and James Davies.

The second match found Cochet and Brugnon, the French Davis cup team, opposing R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards, the present holders of the national double title.

ONLY 37 JOBS THAT WOMEN DON'T HOLD TODAY

"Weaker Sex" Succeeds In Almost Every Line Of Work Known To Man

Miss Mary Dillon

Mrs. Oliver Harriman

Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy

Three nationally famous women who are among those backing the Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries to be held in New York.

New York.—Of the hundreds of varied occupations followed by man, woman today has established herself in all but 37.

This is the statement broadcast in advance of the Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries, to be held here next month.

There are no women miners, electrical engineers, nor pilots of locomotives—yet! But there are women cigarmakers, butchers, deep sea divers, orchestra leaders and factory superintendents. On treacherous sea a captain.

Women today do nearly everything men can do—and lots of things that men can't, say leaders of the exposition. And they are planning to prove it with exhibits of women's work from all over the world.

Twenty foreign countries, including Iceland, Persia, China and Finland, will be represented, as well as the United States.

Laura Lee Rogers, professional nomenclator. Have you something to sell? Miss Rogers will give you a good, snappy, up-to-date trade name for it, one that will put your advertising across with the public.

Louise Rice, graphologist. Write your troubles to Miss Rice. She will study your handwriting and tell you how to keep a husband or why it's so hard for you to buy a hat.

Rose O'Neill, creator of the Kewpie doll. Mary Dillon, president of the Brooklyn Gas Company. Kevah Griggs, astrologer, whom senators and business men consult.

There will be a woman undertaker, one who cures stammering, another who makes a living buying and selling autographs.

A woman who makes a business of staging children's parties for busy or inexperienced mothers, will be present. The owner of a roofing factory, head of a varnish concern, president of a gas appliance firm—all women—will attend.

This in addition to women sculptors, photographers, watchmakers, dress designers and social workers. Mrs. Oliver Harriman is in charge of the exposition. Assisting her will be Miss Dillon, Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy, Mrs. Otto Kahn, Miss Elizabeth Marbury, Mrs. Charles Sabin and Mrs. Charles Tiffany.

young girls to his room. Maybe it's the same man. Mamie can find her own jobs.

I smiled to myself as I thought my ruse did not work. I was trying to help Mamie out in her dilemma and had only made matters worse.

"Oh, mother, please don't pay so much attention to those sensational newspaper stories," cried Mamie, impatiently.

"I'm capable of taking care of my own affairs, if I weren't, God knows I wouldn't be here now."

"What's that shameful thing you are saying to your mother, Mamie Ryley? I've heard enough from you."

I said "good-bye" for I knew if Mrs. Ryley started, she'd keep it up indefinitely. I went down stairs hurriedly thinking that the mothers and daughters of today were as far apart as East and West.

Good Nature and Good Health

FEEL LIKE A LEMON? THEN TRY EATING ONE

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and Hygeia, the Health Association

The virtues of the lemon have been somewhat obscured of recent years by the unusual advertising accorded to the merits of the grapefruit and the orange.

The tributes to the latter members of the citrus family are well merited, sweetness and richness in vitamins.

Oranges contain considerable amounts of vitamins A, B and C. They are alkaline in their reaction in the body, and therefore have a certain tendency to overcome unusual acidity.

From the nutritive standpoint the orange is a most desirable fruit. Children studied in the University of Chicago were given from twenty to twenty-three ounces of orange juice daily.

Their gains in weight when this substance was added to the diet were greater than could be accounted for by the calories of food taken as orange in addition to the usual diet.

Bone Builders. It was found that the amount of calcium retained in the body was greater when oranges formed a part of the food than when they were absent. Besides, more than three times as much phosphorus was retained in the body when orange juice was added to the diet.

No External Benefit. It thus prevents more than adequate reason for its existence by its virtues as a constituent of one of the most popular and healthful of summer drinks and as a garnish and a flavor on the table.

The astute manufacturers of cosmetics have overlooked a natural interest in this fruit. All sorts of preparations are offered for the beautification of the skin and the hair, with the claim that they have special qualifications because of their content of lemon juice.

Unfortunately, there is not the slightest good evidence that lemon juice is of any value in the beautification of the human form, except taken internally to promote the general nutrition of the system.

than when it was absent. It will be remembered that calcium or lime, and phosphorus, are bone building substances. The lemon has had to overcome the disadvantage of a sour and sometimes acrid flavor which does not appeal to as many persons as does that of the orange. It has had to contend also with the ridicule ever since it occurred to some inspired comedian to connect it with a re-stature of disdain.

Nevertheless, the lemon has a great deal in its favor. Both the juice and the peel of the lemon contain vitamins. Both vitamins A and B have been found by several experts in considerable amounts in the rind of the fresh lemon.

It thus prevents more than adequate reason for its existence by its virtues as a constituent of one of the most popular and healthful of summer drinks and as a garnish and a flavor on the table.

The astute manufacturers of cosmetics have overlooked a natural interest in this fruit. All sorts of preparations are offered for the beautification of the skin and the hair, with the claim that they have special qualifications because of their content of lemon juice.

A WOMAN'S DAY ABROAD

By Allene Sumner

Brussels, Belgium.—If you aspired for a wedding "as is a wedding" you will trek with your orange blossoms to the fair city of Brussels with its world-famed marriage hall.

Likewise, if you grow avaricious of this thing called matrimony, you will hie you with blood in your eye and a smart lawyer to the same fair city.

But you will gaze at your wrist-watch and mark the times well. If you wish to hear ye merrie, merrie wedding bells, you will go to Brussels at nine in the morning, and if you hark to lend your ears to the world and his wife that hereafter you eat your liver and bacon alone, you will go to Brussels at four in the afternoon.

Seriously, the marriage and divorce hall of Brussels is one of the most interesting things my duenna and self have seen in all Europe.

It burst upon us unexpectedly. We had fared us forth to the historic medieval Hotel de Ville, the finest specimen of lacy Gothic architecture in all Europe.

And you had just passed "neath an old portico, dripping with ivy, when we saw a mist of wedding veil floating through a door ahead.

We tried to follow the veil, but some of those blue coats and brass buttons which abound in this continent stopped us.

The King's daughter must be having a civil marriage," thought we, felled, going in another door to see some old Flemish tapestries instead.

We looked out of the window. More brides. Dozens of them. We looked in a window and saw seven varieties of official high hats shaking blinds with 57 more veils.

The plot thickened. But light dawned. We came to an open door leading into a hall of cathedral vastness.

A sign proclaimed it "The Chamber of Marriages."

To our surprise no gold buttons sooted us back, no velvet thought we, felled, going in another door to see some old Flemish tapestries instead.

And there the brides were—dozens and hundreds of them—brides in misty tulle and satin—widow brides in the black of mourning not yet put off. Old women brides with grizzled heads and gnarled hands.

And bridegrooms too; boy grooms and widower grooms and a horde of "sugar daddy" grooms. One out of every six brides, it seemed, was on the arm of one who seemed already to have lived his three score year and ten.

Brass buttons explained Brussels's marriage hall. Every marriage in the city must have its civic ceremony on Saturday morning. Five hundred of them some Saturdays. They stood in line for hours sometimes.

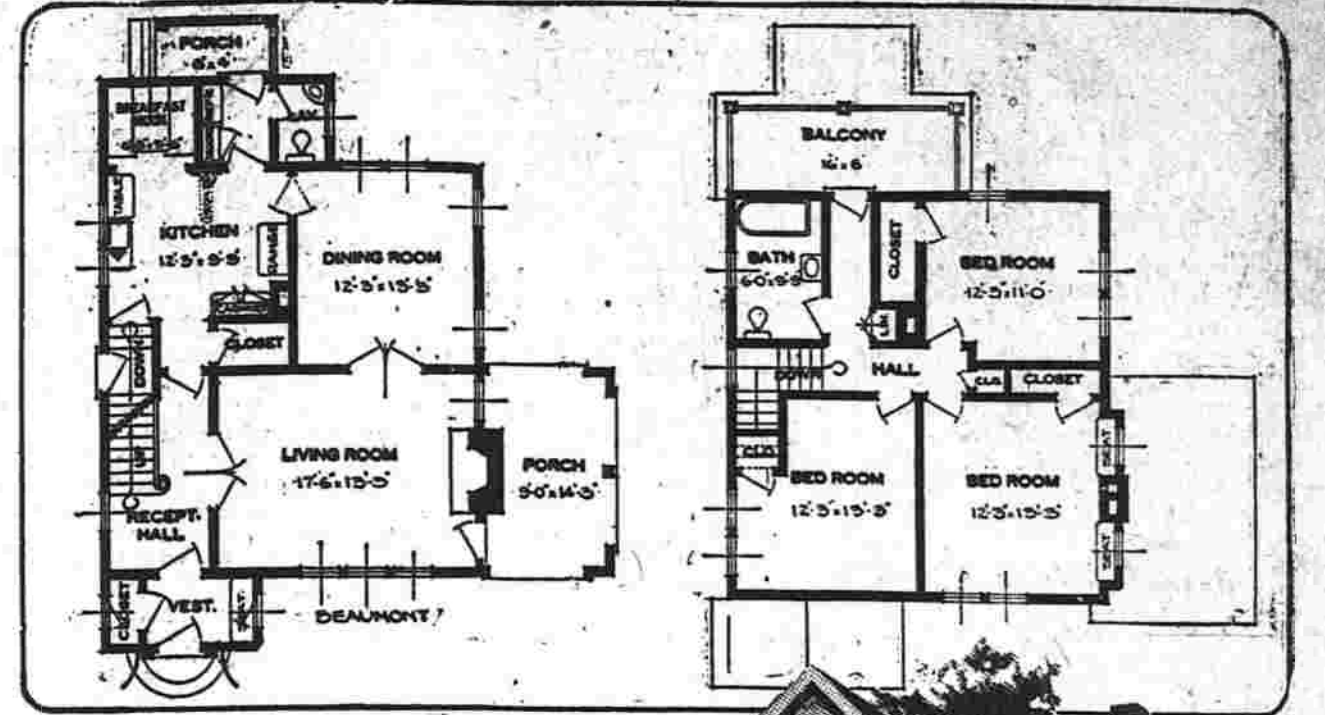

And at four o'clock the divorcees! The divorce line nearly as long as the marriage line.

New Beauty Cream Becomes Popular

You will be enthusiastic over a new French Process Cream for whitening and beautifying the skin. It is so pure and different from other creams. Women say they see a great improvement in their complexions after the first application. If you want smoother, brighter and younger skin, use MELLO-GLO Cream. It's wonderful.

SHINGLED HOUSE HAS CHARM

There is a charm and refinement about a shingled house that many other dwellings lack. The suggestion of quiet rusticity, subtly conveyed, makes the house an inviting haven to return to from the heat and bustle of the city.

Several other features distinguish this design. The doorway, with its small, wrought iron handrails, might have come from old Salem of the 18th Century. The porch is shaded and made cool by the arching sides.

There is a let the housewife note—ample closet space, both upstairs and down. There is a breakfast nook, as well as a first floor lavatory.

Compactness is the keynote of the upper floor design, although roominess is by no means sacrificed.

Be Yourself.

by Olive Roberts Barton.

A woman went to a psycho analyst "just for fun." He told her a few things about herself that made her furious, but take it for what it's worth, it set her to thinking.

After a while she decided to take his advice and see if anything happened. They did—several things.

The canary didn't turn pink, nor did the plumber come when she phoned the first time; no, the miracles were far greater. One was that she seemed suddenly to have friends—real friends, the other was that her health came back and she had almost no headaches.

It is not necessary to rush off to the nearest psycho analyst, good friends. I can save you your feelings and five dollars, or is it ten? I shall tell you one thing the gentleman said to her. He said: "Good lady, you are not sincere. You are acting out of character all your waking hours." Then he translated his mystic words. He told her that when she disliked a person, she put on a smile and tried to outdo herself in being nice to them; that at heart she disliked society; yet because it was smart to be seen at certain places, she went to things she abhorred day after day, week in and out.

"You are a mistif, Madame," said he. "Not that I advocate kissing our enemies when we meet them, but I do advocate trying to like them, honestly. Then your actions and your feelings will match. If you cannot like them, avoid them. If you are in an environment or have work you do not like, change it, if possible, to things you do like. Do not go on living out of character."

That is not hard to understand. Nerves stretching to do things they hate wear us out. Moreover we are insincere and people are quick to detect it. "All the world's a stage, and men and women merely players," is too true. Too many people are acting a part. A maid once said to me, "I think in German and talk in English." A school girl said, "I use slang but I never think it."

What goes on in our minds has too often no relation to our acts.

DIAGNOSIS.—Caused by loosening muscles and degenerating tissues.

TREATMENT.—You need some astringent to tighten the skin. After cleansing your skin thoroughly with a good cleansing cream, go over the surface with a piece of sterilized cotton dipped in witch hazel. Another excellent astringent is made by adding a little lemon juice to cold alum water. Both remedies are used by actresses after they remove their stage make-up.

Her Own Way. A Story of a Girl of Today

GOOD-BYE TO MAMIE.

I ought to have been glad to get rid of Jerry Hathaway so easily, but I was not. Instead I, too, was ready to cry as I turned away from the telephone.

I had hardly hung up the receiver when the front doorbell jingled and in a few moments Mrs. Ryley came bounding up stairs fairly bursting with excitement and curiosity.

"There's a wonderful car in front of our house and a man in uniform is at the door saying that the beautiful lady inside the car wants to know if you're ready to go with her, Judy."

She got all this out before she noticed that I was packed ready to leave.

"What's the matter here?" she asked quickly. "You and Mamie haven't had a spat, have you?"

"Mother," said Mamie, before I could answer, "Judy and I are best friends than ever, but she has had a splendid position offered her as companion to Miss Meredith and she is going to live in her home."

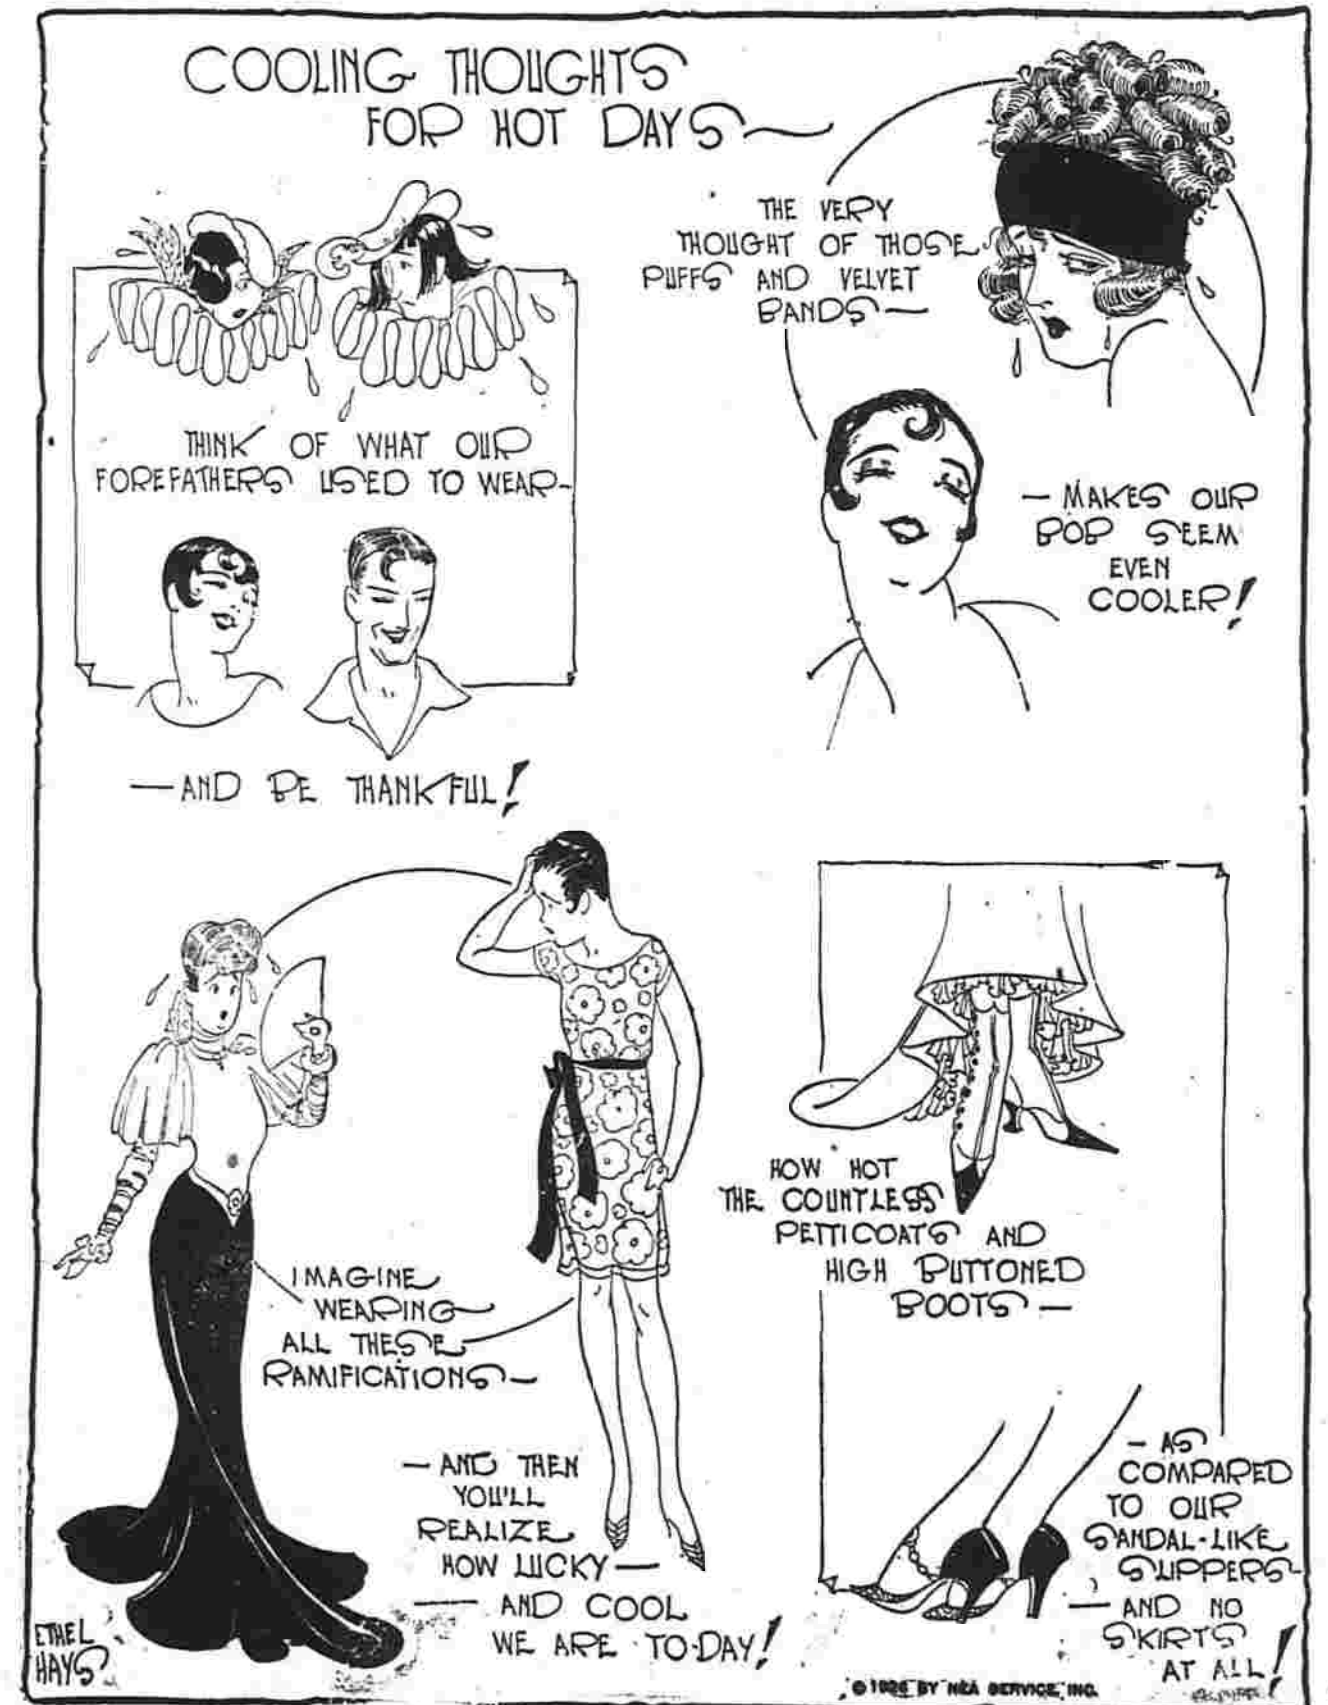

"It's too bad, Mamie Ryley, that yourself could not be landing one of these fine jobs," said her mother jealously. "You know you're getting little enough for your services in your present place."

Immediately I had a hunch, and before Mamie could speak, I said: "Mrs. Ryley, I think I have a job for Mamie as well as myself, here is a young society man in town who thinks he can write books and he wants a secretary."

"Well, you needn't get it for my daughter," said Mrs. Ryley, up in arms immediately. "I won't have a daughter of mine working around one of those writers. Why, I read in the paper last night that a man had used that very excuse to lure

DETOUR IS HELPING SO. END BUSINESS

Tourists are Seeing the Town For the First Time—Merchants Are Happy.

The detour caused by the Center street improvement whereby autos from neighboring towns and cities are shunted through the heart of the business section in the South End has had such a tremendous effect on business that today the merchants are making it the main topic for conversation.

This morning a group of businessmen at the post office were talking about it. It is likely that signs will be placed at the Center with invitations to strangers to see the rest of the town. A movement also will be placed on foot to have the Hartford Road route improved and induce people to use that way.

Business Better
Said one man:
"Ever since Center street was closed to through traffic my business started to improve. It was a steady growth. For a time I did not understand what caused it until I noticed that most of the increased trade came from strangers. Last night, for instance, we had shoppers from New Britain, Hartford, and as far as Middletown. Now these people did not just drop in. They had evidently been here before and looked over our stock and then decided to come back later to buy as our goods are not bought immediately like in other lines."

Another Speaks
"I have been hearing about this all week. As soon as two or more business men get together they talk about the increase of business since the cars are being detoured. There is no use of arguing. Our own is not advertised enough. This detour is proving it. Folks come in daily and say: 'Never knew you had business places like this. Passed through the town hundreds of times and never knew there was a business section other than what I saw at the Center.' I am in favor of a sign at the Center. It might be a selfish wish but I hope they never finish that Center street improvement."

Well Advertised
Out side of the effect on business it is true that many strange cars stop in town on their way through these days. Men employed around the mills report an unusual number of visitors these days looking at the various factories. The Willimantic buses also must take the detour and that helps too, as the passengers are given a sight of what a really progressive little town Manchester is. With the buses going through on regular schedules and an almost constant stream of cars going in opposite directions filled for the most part by tourists, the town is getting more advertising than it has had in years.

Mrs. William Powers of 1 Walnut street was removed to the Memorial hospital last evening to undergo an operation for varicose veins.

MENAMARA—LENIHAN

George E. McNamara of the McNamara Drug company of Manchester and Miss Josephine C. Lenihan, daughter of Mrs. Mary Lenihan of 95 Central avenue, East Hartford, were married this morning at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's church in that place. The ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. Dennis S. Baker. The church was tastefully decorated with palms and garden flowers.

During the ceremony Ralph Mixer, violinist, played and Frank J. Barrett sang.

The attendants were Miss Mary J. Lenihan, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid and Thomas J. McNamara of New Haven, brother of the bridegroom as best man.

The bride's gown was of peach georgette trimmed with pearls. She wore a hat to match and a corsage bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaid wore flesh georgette with large hat and carried an arm bouquet of Mrs. Aaron Ward roses.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Elm Tree Inn, Farmington. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. McNamara left on a motor trip to Canada, the bride wearing an ensemble of white broadcloth with black hat.

The bride until recently was in the employ of the post office department at Hartford and her associates made her a gift of $150 in gold.

On their return from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. McNamara will live on Branford street, this town.

OAKLAND STREET RESIDENCE CHANGES OWNERSHIP

Mrs. Carrie A. Braley has sold her residence on Oakland street to Albert Homewood of Rocky Hill. Mr. Homewood who has retired, plans to move to his newly acquired property this week, occupying the upper flat. His daughter, Mrs. Hayden L. Griswold of Hamilton street, this town, will move to the lower-floor of the house.

The property was formerly known as the Hutchinson place and was thoroughly remodeled by Mr. and Mrs. Willis Braley. Mr. Braley was a son of Mrs. Hutchinson by a former marriage. After her husband's death, Mrs. Braley who is a well known masseuse and nurse, conducted a sanitarium there. Later she converted the house into a modern two-flat abode. She is now making her home with relatives in Hingham, Mass., and will probably locate permanently there.

The sale was made through the Robert J. Smith agency.

Several days ago it was announced in The Herald that a boy had been born to Mr. and Mrs. Emil Johnson of 40 Clinton street. It should have been announced that it was a girl.
