Wisconsin Dry Senator Beaten by Blaine, LaFollette

Man; Bass Badly Defeated in New Hampshire.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 8.—United States Senator George H. Moses, conspicuous opponent of the League of Nations and the World Court, today stood as a winner by a 15,000 majority of the New Hampshire Republican senatorial renomination.

Returns from 261 out of 294 towns and wards gave Senator Moses, 32,859; former Governor Robert F. Bass, 15,492; Judge James W. Remick, 869.

Former Governor Bass, a son-in-law of Charles Sumner Bird, the ex-Bull Moose leader of Massachusetts, avowed friendliness toward the World Court, charged that while Senator Moses voted for the Volstead act he was not a true "dry" that he was not an out-and-out Coolidge man and had voted against farm relief measures.

Robert C. Murchie, of Concord, won the Democratic senatorial nomination over Albert W. Noone, of Peterborough.

Governor John G. Winant seeking to break the custom of a one term for a governor and whose name was often linked with that of ex-Governor Bass, was defeated in the Republican primary by Huntley N. Spaulding. The vote of 261 towns and wards out of 294 gave Spaulding, 27,055; Winant 23,633.

Blaine Beats Lenroot
Madison, Wis., Sept. 8.—Riding on the crest of Wisconsin's flood tide of anti-prohibition sentiment, Gov. John J. Blaine, "wet" and anti-World Court senatorial candidate, apparently was being swept to victory today.

Returns from yesterday's primary compiled up to ten o'clock today, gave Blaine a lead of almost 11,000 over Senator Irvin L. Lenroot, who made his campaign on issues adherence to the court and rigid enforcement of prohibition.

The nomination of Fred R. Zimmerman, insurgent progressive, for governor, is assured over H. L. Eikens, LaFollette progressive.

Odell Wins in Nevada
Reno, Nev., Sept. 8.—Senator Tasker L. Odde today was practically assured the nomination for United States Senator on the Republican ticket. With approximately $5 per cent of the returns complete, he was leading his opponent, Mayor E. E. Roberts, by almost two to one. The latest returns gave Odde 7,060 votes to 3,635 for Roberts.

Raymond T. Baker, former director of mines and husband of the former Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt apparently had won the senatorial nomination on the Democratic ticket.

In Arizona
Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 8.—Gov. G. W. P. Hunt, running for nomination for governor on the Democratic ticket, had apparently won the right today for the sixth consecutive time.

Senator Cameron was unopposed for the Republican senatorial nomination, while Congressman Carl Hayden apparently had insured victory in the contest for the Democratic nomination.

THROW 54 HORSESHOE RINGERS ON $5,000 BET

Chicago, Sept. 8.—"Five grand they can," said William Hale "Big Bill" Thompson, former mayor of Chicago.

The wager was made on the ancient and honorable game of horseshoes. Thompson bet Blatchford that Hansford Jackson and his brother Carroll, champions of Cook County, could throw fifty ringers in a fifty point game.

The contest was held last night at Rainbo Gardens. The Jacksons threw 54 ringers and won the game, 54 to 46. Fifteen hundred fans watched the match.

COOLIDGE STATES MEXICAN POLICY

Definitely Announces Hands Off; Puts O. K. on Calles as Creator of Good Order.

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Sept. 8.—The United States government will continue its "hands off" policy in Mexico, President Coolidge definitely announced today, following a long conference with Ambassador James R. Sheffield.

The President indicated that diplomatic relations between the two governments are very harmonious.

The Mexican government has already made many concessions in the matter of the land laws, it was officially stated, and while some problems remain to be settled there is every probability that they will be adjusted amicably.

No American Injuries
There has been no sacrifice of American life or disrespect for American property rights resulting from the contest there between the church, it was said. The administration yet regards that as a domestic matter in which it has no concern.

It was stated that the Mexican government is regarded as having brought good order out of the chaos that existed during the successive revolutions. Most of the complaints that are received by the government are not of indignities that have been suffered by American citizens, it was said, but of prospective losses that may be suffered under the land laws.

Ambassador Sheffield will return to Mexico to carry on his policies with the enthusiastic backing of President Coolidge and the state department, it was announced.

"STAND FAST," URGES MEXICAN EPISCOPATE

Issues Pastoral Letter to All Catholics Calling on Them to "Win or Die."

Mexico City, Sept. 8.—Mexico's religious controversy will continue indefinitely.

This view was generally expressed here today following the issuance of a pastoral letter by the Catholic Episcopate, urging all Catholics to stand fast.

"Imitate the true lovers of liberty who have known how to stand in the breach until they died or win," said the letter.

The letter praises priests and laymen alike for setting an example of discipline to the world. It urges the rank and file not "to try God's patience" by demanding victory within a fixed time.

The government has shown no signs of relenting in its policy.

RORABACK'S MURDER

Pittsfield Man Arrested for Shooting to Death of Great Barrington Park Manager.

SACCO-VANZETTI CASE, 6 YEARS OLD, REVIVED

Notorious Murder Trial, on Eve of New Hearing, Reviewed; New Fight on for Retrial.

Boston, Sept. 8.—On April 15, 1920, Frederick Parmenter, a paymaster, and Alexander Berardelli, his guard, were walking through the streets of South Braintree, Mass., carrying a payroll of $15,776.

As they rounded a corner, someone shot and killed them and robbed them of the money.

The echoes of those shots have not died out yet, though six years have passed. They have had repercussions in almost every country on earth and the end is not yet. The case has attracted more attention throughout the world than any criminal proceedings in history.

For this murder Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, professed "radicals" and labor agitators, were arrested and brought to trial. Immediately radicalism arrayed itself against conservatism, crying that the accused were being tried and judged for their beliefs rather than for any connection with the murder.

Conflicting Testimony.
The men were convicted. One hundred and sixty witnesses gave testimony which conflicted at one important point after another. Vanzetti already had been found guilty of an attempted murder and holdup. At the trial his sympathizers cried "Prejudice!" Sacco was a confessed draft evader. His friends fearing the basis of inflated patriotism and crying that the department of justice was hounding all radicals to death, also shouted "Prejudice!"

The conviction carried with it the death penalty. Bitter feeling was stirred up. It extended beyond (Continued on Page 2.)

NEW HAVEN HAS FOGGY CHAPTER OF CRIMES

Perhaps Holdup, Perhaps Attempt and Perhaps Drug Addicts Raid, All of an Evening.

New Haven, Sept. 8.—A hold-up, a new attempt and a burglary, all in the central section here last evening are occupying the detective bureau today. Joseph Curley, manager of a shoe store at 80 Church street, reported being forced to part with $138 at the point of a gun in his store at 7:30 p. m. W. A. Sturtevant, a radio dealer at 41 E. Street, reported being visited at 6 p. m. by a stranger who acted suspiciously but suddenly departed when a machine drove up to the store door. Dr. Nelson C. Ludington's office at 1252 Chapel street was upset between 7 and 8 p. m. $15 in cash was stolen and many drawers ransacked.

Police believe the Ludington burglary was the work of narcotic thieves. The store hold-up story is being investigated, for Church street was crowded at the time and Sturtevant reported the affair to clerks in an adjoining store instead of to a policeman at a fixed post nearby.

Sturtevant was cleaning out his cash register when a man whom he describes as "apparently an Italian," entered. The visitor edged his way toward Sturtevant, hand in his coat pocket, when a machine drove up and the visitor left the store and ran down the street.

CELEBRATES HER 100TH BIRTHDAY BY FLYING

Bay State Woman Takes 15 Minute Flight at Portland, Me., in a Seaplane.

Portland, Me., Sept. 8.—"Grandma" Almatia Bennett, of Chilopce Falls, Mass., today celebrated her one hundredth birthday by flying over the Forest City in a seaplane piloted by Harry Jones, formerly an army flier.

The centenarian waved her hand merrily to spectators on the beach as the seaplane took off, circled over the city for ten or fifteen minutes and greeted the crowd upon her return with the remark that she "enjoyed every moment of my trip and wasn't a bit afraid at any time."

Mrs. Bennett made a similar flight at Bangor on her 94th birthday.

HUNDREDS AT RITES FOR DEAD EDITOR

Charles Hopkins Clark Laid at Rest This Afternoon in Spring Grove.

Hartford, Sept. 8.—Charles Hopkins Clark, dean of Connecticut newspaperdom, was laid to rest in Spring Grove cemetery here this afternoon in the presence of hundreds of his friends. Men of all walks of life gathered at the cemetery for the final services, while in the procession to the cemetery from Asylum Avenue Congregational church hundred paid their respects to Hartford's dead leader.

Rev. Warren S. Archibald, pastor of South Congregational church, conducted the funeral services and those of interment.

Attorney Howard Mansfield, of New York, a classmate at Yale of Mr. Clark, was still on his way from Maine at the time of the funeral services. All the other honorary pallbearers were present and walked down the church aisle beside the body of their friend. Active bearers were men of long connection with the Hartford Courant staff, including Harry I. Horton, Frederick W. Turner, Bertrand H. Turner, Theodore C. Wallen, Walter S. G. Harris and John Sudarsky.

Honorary bearers were Colonel Norris G. Osborn, of New Haven; Charles F. Brooker, of Ansonia; former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, of Southington; Senator George P. McLean, of Simsbury; L. Lee, of Granby; Frank B. Noyes, of Washington; John H. Perry, of Southport; J. Henry Roraback, of Canaan; Melville E. Stone, of Cheshire; Dr. F. S. Dennis and Adolph S. Ochs, of New York; and Judge E. B. Bennett, Louis R. Cheney, H. H. Conland, Edward M. Day, A. A. Welch and Edward Milligan, of Hartford.

The church on Asylum hill was filled to capacity.

Bridgeport, Sept. 8.—Edward K. Nicholson, representing interests that secured a conservator for Stanley Y. Beach, wealthy inventor and author, will appeal a recent New York State decision that the courts of Connecticut had no right to appoint a conservator over Mr. Beach because the state courts had no jurisdiction in the matter.

Manufacturers Studying War Work as Preparedness Measure

New Haven, Sept. 8.—The United States government is organizing a smooth-functioning group to turn out ammunition and ordnance "should we be so unfortunate as to become engaged in another war." Plans to eliminate the confusion that occurred in the late war were described at the gathering of members of the American Society of American Engineers here today by Brig.-General C. L. H. Ruggles, U. S. A., who is assistant chief of ordnance for the army.

During the late war, General Ruggles said, "due to the lack of a trained reserve, it was necessary to place in positions of responsibility temporary officers with little conception of the requirements of

ALCOHOL FLOOD POURS OUT OF U. S. STORAGE

142,754,000 Gallons Will Be Legally Withdrawn in 1926 Against 16,000,000 in 1913; Much for Bootleg

Washington, Sept. 8.—Despite the fact that America is legally dry, 142,754,000 gallons of grain alcohol will be withdrawn from government warehouses this year, ostensibly for industrial and medical purposes, if averages for the first five months continue.

On the same basis the output of all legal distilleries in the United States for the year will be 164,378,000 gallons.

Commerce department statistics today disclosed withdrawal of 50,481,000 gallons for the first five months of 1926 and a production of 67,402,000 gallons for the same period.

In 1913 withdrawals for denaturing amounted to only 16,056,000 gallons. The figure jumped to 45,373,000 gallons in 1921 and to a record 177,812,000 gallons in 1925, when the use of denatured alcohol for bootlegging purposes reached its maximum.

Distilleries produced 200,280,000 gallons of pure alcohol in 1925, compared to 73,482,000 gallons in 1921 and 78,072,000 gallons in 1913, the last normal pre-prohibition year.

The gigantic leap in withdrawals and production is attributed primarily to the extensive redistribution of industrial alcohol for bootlegging purposes. No estimate was available of illegal withdrawals such as through theft and forged permits, but these were said at the treasury to be heavy.

RUSSIA THREATENS CHINA WITH A WAR

New Note on Railroad Attacks Taken as Warning of Conflict by Soviets.

Moscow, Sept. 8.—Foreign Minister Tchitcherine has sent a new note to the Chinese government warning that relations between Russia and China have been again strained and that there may be danger of a break as the consequence of Chang Tso Lin's attacks against the eastern railroad.

M. Tchitcherine's note declares China has grossly violated the treaty with Russia in a manner which is "unqualifiedly intolerable." He points out that the Chinese government has created serious difficulties for future relations and concludes by stating that the Soviet union expects a speedy reply from China indicating that urgent measures have been taken to correct the situation.

"Serious Situation."
The Soviet press interprets the Chinese situation as most serious. "If the storm breaks in Manchuria it will certainly involve other countries," said Ivestina. "The workers of the world will face a terrible danger of war."

"We want peace but warn of danger."
Ivestina declares that British and Japanese imperialists are urging Chang Tso Lin on and appeals to the British Trades Union Congress to urge the British government to avoid a Manchurian war.

Hears Cantonese Retire.
London, Sept. 8.—The Cantonese army is retiring to Chang-Sha in anticipation of an impending attack upon their line of communications by Marshal Sun-Chuan-Fang, a Central News dispatch from Shanghai said today.

The Cantonese artillery directed fire at several foreign concessions in Hankow, but the damage was slight.

Advices from Hong Kong stated that unless the Cantonese succeed in capturing Wu Chang within five days, they will be compelled to retreat.

Eight Cantonese airplanes were reported to have bombed the Han-Yang arsenal and to have dropped handbills urging the people to revolt against General Wu. Pei-Fu. An attack against the rear of the enemy is apparently being planned by the Cantonese.

20 YEARS THEIR BUTLER MURDERS 2 SPINSTERS.

London, Sept. 8.—For twenty years a butler at Burghill Court, the mansion of the Woodhouse family near Hereford, Charles Houghton is today in jail, charged with the murder of his mistresses, the Misses Eleanor and May Woodhouse.

Then while the sisters were decorating their home with flowers he shot them, then attempted to cut his throat.

BUCKNER OUTLINES DAUGHERTY CHARGE

Tells Jury How Metals Co. Property Was Turned Back in 72 Hour Deal.

New York, Sept. 8.—United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner today opened the government's case against Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney-general and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian.

The two men are charged with "defrauding the government of their unprejudiced and unbiased services" through the return of $7,000,000 in assets to the American Metals Company, a German-owned concern, for consideration of $441,000 in cash and Liberty bonds.

As the federal jury, chosen yesterday, seated themselves in the box, Buckner approached a blackboard, chalk in hand, and started to explain the case.

His first step "was to write down, in a clear hand, the various foreign names which will appear frequently during the trial. He then explained that "the date of the declaration of war by the United States, April 6, 1917, is an important date in this case," as it was after that date that the "trading with the enemy" act was passed.

Under this act Colonel Miller was appointed by President Harding as alien property custodian. His job was to seize and hold any property in the United States owned by enemy aliens, and to act as its trustee until it should be disposed of by Congress.

The act also provided that should any seizure be made by mistake, the President then and hold any property in the United States owned by enemy aliens, and to act as its trustee until it should be disposed of by Congress.

Buckner then digressed to speak of Jess Smith, friend of Daugherty's, who was named in the first indictment, but who committed suicide in 1923.

Lived on Government
This man, "a country merchant," as Buckner called him, "lived on the bounty of the government through the influence of Daugherty," the government prosecutor declared.

Although Smith was never employed by the government, he stated, he had a room in a government building, and received $4 a day from the government for his support. Also, Smith traveled at the expense of the United States, Buckner told the jury.

LEAGUE GREET'S GERMANY WITH GLAD TUMULT

Slight Opposition Fades and Assembly Votes in Teuton Nation With Thunder of Applause.

Geneva, Sept. 8.—Germany was received back into the councils of the nations today. The League of Nations Assembly, in an enthusiastic session, unanimously voted for the admission of Germany as a member.

At the same time the League surmounted a crisis when it disposed of the difficult problem of reorganization of the League Council by voting a permanent seat to Germany and increasing the number of non-permanent seats from six to nine.

The vote was taken by roll-call and as each delegate answered in the affirmative there was thunderous applause.

Opposition Dissolves.
During the early part of the morning session there had been some opposition to the linking of the question of Germany's entrance into the League and the reorganization of the League Council, but this opposition dissolved as by magic when the issue came to a vote.

Only one cloud hung over the proceedings and that was the threat of withdrawal by Spain, in protest against the League's refusal to grant her demand for a permanent seat in the League Council with that of non-permanent seats. Both questions were presented to the assembly as a single motion for balloting. He criticized with severity the "steam-roller tactics" employed by the big powers.

The formal induction of Germany into the League is tentatively set for Friday, as the German delegates to the League are expected to leave Berlin today.

Following the vote on the admission of Germany and the increasing of the non-permanent council seats, the Assembly adjourned the morning session.

German Notified.
Sir Eric Drummond, secretary of the League, immediately telegraphed to Foreign Minister Stresemann informing him of the action the assembly had taken and inviting Germany to send a delegation to Geneva.

Doctor Nansen, head of the Norwegian delegation, at the opening of the assembly protested against the linking of the question of Germany's election to a permanent seat in the League Council with that of non-permanent seats. Both questions were presented to the assembly as a single motion for balloting. He criticized with severity the "steam-roller tactics" employed by the big powers.

The Netherlands delegates echoed Nansen's protest. M. Motta, representing the committee on re-organization of the Council, pleaded for a spirit of conciliation and declared that "dark clouds have gathered on our horizon but now the light of peace and justice is rising."

Following this plea the Assembly proceeded to vote and the opposition disappeared.

Delegates Appointed
Berlin, Sept. 8.—President Hindenburg today authorized the appointment of a German delegation to the League of Nations.

The president signed the appointments in Bavaria, where he is on a vacation, and dispatched the documents to Berlin by special messenger.

The German delegation is headed by Foreign Minister Stresemann and includes Ministers Von Schubert and Gauss. The delegation is expected to leave for Geneva tonight.

A violent newspaper war for and against the nation's entrance into the League is being waged. "Germany has been defeated again," the nationalists charge, declaring that the Reich's delegation will find upon arriving in Geneva that the significance and structure of the League Council will have been changed, and that therefore, the primary and most vital condition of Locarno had been ignored.

The Democratic and Socialist press accused the Nationalists of being "trouble-makers" and of ruining Germany's prestige even prior to her entrance.

Sunday School Board Enthusiastic Over Proposed Activities.

Plans for an entire year were adopted by the first meeting of the Sunday school board of the South Methodist church last night when 40 members of the organization attended. The meeting was presided over by Rev. Joseph Cooper and Robert W. Wilson acted as secretary.

A program of activities which will embrace practically every week from now until July of next year was presented by Miss Mabel M. Pollard, director of religious education and was enthusiastically approved by the board. In the program are several special days which will be observed by the Sunday school with pageants or demonstrations.

Big Pageant. One of the principal events of the year will be the Biblical drama, "The Dream of Queen Esther," which will be presented by a cast of the Sunday school on November 9 and 10. The committee which will have charge of this is composed of Thomas Prentice, John Winterbottom, Raymond Smith and Chris Glenney on the business end with the following in charge of general arrangements: Robert W. Wilson, Albert E. Holman, Dorothy Hanson, Sterling Lippincott.

PRESIDENT OLANDER VISITS VASA LODGE

High Official Comes Here from Chicago to Help Observe 30th Anniversary.

Supreme Grand President Oscar Olander of Chicago was a visitor at the 30th anniversary observation of Scandia Lodge, Order of Vasa, which was held in Orange hall last night. The lodge will be 30 years old on September 18 but the observation was put ahead to coincide with the visit of the supreme president.

About 175 members of the lodge were present, among them the grand officers of the state of Connecticut. The president of the Connecticut lodge is Henning A. Johnson of this town and the secretary is Theodore A. Anderson, also of Manchester. All of the visiting officers spoke.

The Order of the Vasa now numbers more than 75,000 members throughout the United States and Manchester's membership is 460. There are 480 lodges in the country and to date sick benefits to the total of $3,000,000 have been paid. A total of $250,000 was paid in benefits last year.

Scandia lodge is headed this year by Emil Anderson and Edwin Swanson is secretary. The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of this state will be held in Bridgeport on September 25. All past presidents of Scandia lodges, of which there are 32, are privileged to attend but the official delegates have not yet been picked.

JOVANOWITZ HERE ON A SHORT VISIT

Long Haired and Bearded Local Man Is an Actor in "The Miracle."

John Jovanowitz, the "Man of Mystery" who fits to Manchester every once in a while, is in town again. He is the man who looks like "Christus" in the "Passion Play" and although his name is known to very few he has only a half dozen personal friends in town, his appearance is known to almost every man, woman and child in town.

He wears his hair long and has a brown beard. In these days of smooth shaven faces he is noticeable in any crowd.

John came to Manchester yesterday and will leave either tonight or tomorrow morning and then Manchester folks will not see him for nearly a year as he is on tour with a big theatrical company "The Miracle" that opens up next week in Philadelphia.

Speaks to Reporter. While this unusual character was buying a key in a Main street hardware store in the South and yesterday afternoon he was interviewed. "I am only in town for a few hours," he said. "I must get back to my company in New York as we are preparing to go to Philadelphia. It takes a lot of work to prepare as there are about 700 members in the cast."

Mr. Jovanowitz was asked how he got the job; what part he played and whether his beard and long hair had anything to do with him obtaining the position.

Saw an Ad. I saw an ad in a New York newspaper that hundreds were wanted for a big production. I went to the director and was referred to the casting director. He put me aside and told me to come the next week. Understand there were thousands of men and women seeking jobs in the play and the casting director was just picking out types.

"I went round the next week and the crowd was smaller. Again I was picked, this time by Doctor Rheinbart, the noted director from Germany."

Beard No Help. "Do not think that I was in the cast yet. My beard and long hair may have had something to do with it but not everything, by a long shot. Doctor Rheinbart is a realist. Of course any actor could get a wig and false whiskers and make up just the same as I look now but this German professor wanted more than false whiskers and makeup. There is little makeup among all of the 700 persons in the cast."

"After I was picked I was trained. I had to walk and gesture and even feel like a person who lived in the Thirteenth Century. That is not as easy as it sounds. To forget the present and imagine that you are living hundreds of years ago while you are on the stage is a difficult accomplishment. The directors and their were dozens of persons, tried to put us into the skins of persons long dead. Weeks and weeks of rehearsals followed with scores thrown out of the cast, but I made the grade."

Little Speaking. "You know The Miracle is not a speaking play. There is some singing in it but it is mostly pantomime and you know that pantomime is the most difficult kind of acting. To show how thorough the play is, every one of the members of what you could call a 'mob' in the movies has been individually trained. It is not a case of a director with a megaphone shouting to a lot of soldiers to advance like they do in the movies.

"Finally the head director, Doctor Rheinbart, said we were all right and after a few dress rehearsals the play was given and you know what a tremendous success it turned out to be."

One of Mob. The local man was asked what part he played in the big production.

"Oh, I'm just one of hundreds of men and women who come out on the stage, that's all."

For those who have not read about "The Miracle" it may be well to explain that the play cost over $500,000 before it was presented. It costs $20,000 to make over the theater before the play could be presented. Mr. Jovanowitz then explained that his company would only play in five cities for almost a year's run. This is most unusual until you hear further details.

Long Stops. "You see," he explained, "we must go only to the largest cities and must have guarantees that we can play there nightly for at least two months. The expenses makes that necessary. When we pick out a theater it must be the biggest one in the city. Next, the management must make that whole theater over which will cost many thousands of dollars. The whole interior of the theater must be transformed into a large cathedral. When you enter it you imagine that you are going into a church, not a theater. Much of the action is in the theater itself just as if you were in a church and saw these things in the aisles and among the pews. It is really the most realistic and most stupendous production ever staged. Morris Gest, the man who gambled on its success, sunk more than a half million into it before the first performance. But, my son, he had his money returned to him a hundredfold."

The local actor will start for Philadelphia next week. After several months there he will go with his company to Chicago. Next will be Kansas City and then will follow San Francisco and Los Angeles. Only a few stops but long ones.

"I will be back to Manchester some time next summer," he said as he walked away.

'COUNTRY STORE NITE' AT STATE TOMORROW

Two Feature Pictures, "Good and Naughty" and "The Better Man," on Same Program.

Tomorrow evening the State theatre will have its regular "Country Store Nite." Not only will there be the usual large number of groceries but there will also be a surprise night. Just what the surprises will be will not be given away now; that would spoil the fun.

"Country Store" is growing in popularity every week. At the last country store night there were over two thousand people present. Be sure to come tomorrow night and get your share of the gifts.

With the country store there will be a double feature bill of quality. Pola Negri's latest offering, "Good and Naughty" is one of the features. This picture starts right off with a punch that fairly bristles with polite humor. The film was directed by Malcolm St. Clair.

"That's why. "Good and Naughty" is an excellent satire. It combines brilliant comedy in which the hearty laughter is mingled with superb drama. Just imagine pretty Pola in a dirty smock working by the day as an assistant girl! But that's so. However, before the picture is over, Miss Negri blossoms forth more beautiful than ever before, and takes all the men in sight at one swoop. The film is greatly entertaining and should please everyone.

STUDY WAR INDUSTRY AS PREPAREDNESS STEP

But today "the manufacturers who have agreed to make ordnance material are showing an excellent spirit of co-operation, and as a result of the shop plans for ordnance work being made by them we are receiving much constructive criticism of our drawings, specifications and inspection methods."

"For the most part, district organizations are being recruited from experienced men who live in those districts and who know personally most of the manufacturers with whom they will be dealing in case of an emergency."

Study at Proving Grounds. "Many of these men from the district organizations are preparing themselves for ordnance work by spending some time each year at the proving ground or at some of the government arsenals, familiarizing themselves with ordnance department methods of manufacture, procurement and inspection."

"In addition to these men, who for the most part will act in time of war as district executives in charge of various ordnance activities, we have also enrolled in the reserve corps a selected body of men who are qualifying themselves by experience to act as inspectors. At the ammunition arsenals we have facilities for producing a considerable quantity of ammunition, and in an emergency these facilities would be operated to capacity."

The State theatre orchestra under the direction of Samuel Kaplan will present a special musical arrangement with the picture. The orchestra will appear at both matinee and evening performances.

Such Flavor

as this comes only in real Quaker Oats

THE price you pay for substitutes is the same as for the genuine Quaker Oats. The difference is in the flavor. And flavor, above all things, is important in oats.

That rich and tasty Quaker flavor is the result of some 50 years' milling experience. Once you taste it, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

That is why millions demand the Quaker brand—why you should accept no other.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates, and vitamins and "bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently "balanced" food.

THE HEAVIES.

In a little more than two weeks Mr. Jack Dempsey, so-called, and Mr. Gene Tunney, so-called, will batter at each other in the Sesqui-centennial lot at Philadelphia, each in the earnest hope that he will be able to smack the other sufficiently hard to keep him from arising from the canvas carpet of the ring before the referee counts ten.

As to the ability of Mr. Dempsey to so mistreat Mr. Tunney or of Mr. Tunney to so deal with Mr. Dempsey many hundreds of thousands of words have already been printed, probably some millions more will be. And for every word that is printed there will have been, by the day of the battle, enough spoken words uttered on street corner and in clubroom, in street car and in speakeasy, over the cigar counter and over the cracker barrel, in the factory and in the business office, in camp and on farm and wherever two or three of the male animal are gathered together, to set the windows in Mars jingling.

Wisecrackers without number have a perfect line on the outcome of the bout. They know to a nicety who will win and just why and how. They have it all figured down to a mathematical certainty. Experts are paid fine big sums for forecasting in minute detail the circumstances of the fight-to-be. This one knows for a positive fact that Dempsey is not as good as he was in 1919—that one knows that he is better. One initiate sees precisely where Tunney's superior generalship and brain is bound to give him victory—another can't be fooled by any such blarney, for he knows full well that the fighter can lick the boxer.

We wish to go on record in this matter, for it seems to be a matter of transcendent importance in the view of the American people, and we feel constrained to have opinions on matter like that.

Our opinion is that if Mr. Tunney hits Mr. Dempsey hard enough in the right place and does it first, he will win. And that if Mr. Dempsey hits Mr. Tunney hard, enough and in the right place and does it first he will win.

Having in the days of our youth sat at many a ringside and seen many a fighter pass into the ten second dream that suffices to remove his halo, if he has been wearing one, or to destroy his hope of acquiring one, if he has been but a seeker, we have developed an enormous cynicism concerning the science of the ring, particularly where heavyweights are concerned.

All things being equal enough to make the match anything but a set-up, given two strong, hard punching, physically sound young or youngish men each unafraid of a wallop, and it is hardly more than just a sheer luck-and-chance matter who comes out at the top of the heap.

Not one time in ten can a prize fighter tell you—if it happens to be a truthful person as even some prize fighters are—how, where or when he hit his opponent the punch that knocked him out, after it is all over. These long and learned discussions of the so-called fine points of the game are great stuff for the propaganda, for advertising. But they are nineteen-twentieths bunk. And there isn't an experienced sports writer in America who doesn't know it. There are no fine points. All there are is wallop and luck. And the forecaster has one chance in two.

THE LEAGUE.

The withdrawal of Spain from the League of Nations is a loss more sentimental in its quality than either materially or strategically important. In her tattered demagogic hauteur, her ridiculously exaggerated pride, she is a difficult quantity to get along with, at best. Least progressive of all the nations of continental Europe—and internationally the least important of all except the tiniest states—Spain suffers from delusions of grandeur. That she should put her high and mighty dignity before any and all considerations of her own welfare and that of the rest of Europe is quite in keeping with her history and her apparently immutable national character. That her resignation from the League should come at almost exactly the moment of an internal upheaval that threatened to overthrow her government and oust her playboy king is in itself a commentary of her mental and moral instability and unfitness for such serious appreciations as underlie the League.

Yet it is quite true that in this country the sulky withdrawal of Spain will be received by a considerable number of people with more than a little satisfaction. Every difficulty that the League encounters is so received. For the life of us we cannot understand this attitude on the part of Americans.

Grant that the League is no place for the United States, that we did well to keep out of it—why on earth, nevertheless, should we of America begrudge it success or desire its collapse? Grant that it is a highly imperfect machine—does not the commonest fairness demand our admission that it is the best and only machine in sight for the prevention of new wars and for the promotion of international comity, so far as Europe at least is concerned?

Perhaps it is the true destiny of the League of Nations that it shall eventually resolve itself into a European rather than a world-wide sodality, and perhaps Spain's action in withdrawal makes for, rather than against such a condition; for it must be remembered that Spain was the mother country of most of the South American states now members of the League and there is an impression that some of these may follow the parent lead. If some probably all, eventually.

The entry of Germany of course compensates many times over for the departure of Spain, so far as the European aspect of the League is concerned, and in that aspect the body is entering today on a new phase.

Spain has more pride than brains; Germany has more brains than pride. It is a good swap for the League, if the League's ultimate work shall prove to be the reinforcement and consolidation of Europe's position in world politics and world economics—which it very likely will be.

At all events the folks who are inclined to giggle over Spain's withdrawal, as perhaps the first step in the breakup of the League—quite forgetting that without the League or something similar the whole continent would probably be wrapped in the flames of war inside two years—may be giggling a bit ahead of time.

PRIMARIES.

As this is written it appears that LaFolletteism in Wisconsin and Moseism in New Hampshire have both triumphed in the senatorial primaries. With the former, New England is not greatly concerned, for it is the confidently expected which has happened. In the case of Senator Moses, however, there is much of puzzlement.

There is not the slightest question that the Republicans of the Granite state have been much disgusted with the cavalier attitude of Moses as to support of the Coolidge policies, and a year or two ago the state rang with threats of what the party would do to the senator when he sought re-nomination. Ex-Governor Bass, on the other hand, had the confidence of the people there in very great degree, and campaigned on a straight Coolidge platform. All conditions seemed ripe for the downfall of Moses. Yet he seems to have won easily.

Perhaps the outcome may be attributed to two causes. One is the intensive personal organization that Moses has built up—he is the champion handshaker and baby kisser of the United States senate. The other is the utterly abject way in which he promised infallible support to President Coolidge hereafter.

Whatever the reason for New Hampshire's change of heart in its resolution to larrup Moses "next time," it seems to have thrown away the opportunity to exchange a mediocre senator for a first class one.

DAUGHERTY.

Former Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty, first man in the history of the United States to serve in a President's cabinet and then stand trial on a criminal charge, faces court and jury in New York, accused of having taken a bribe. Accusation and indictment are very far indeed from being proof of guilt. Daugherty is absolutely entitled to that presumption of innocence which still runs, despite the circumstances that a grand jury decided that the evidence justified and demanded a trial.

And so, by the same token, is the court entitled to the benefit of open-minedness on the part of the public. Doubtless there are many citizens who will shrug their shoulders over the prospects in the Daugherty trial and ask cynically, "What chance, even if he were a hundred times guilty?"

As a matter of fact there is no slightest reason why the Daugherty trial should not be exactly fair. There is no reason in any influential quarter for wish to protect him if he be guilty—none for "railroading" him if he be innocent.

Whatever ties of sentiment there may have been between Daugherty and a previous administration are without effect with regard to this one. The "Ohio crowd" is as remote from all present sources of power as the Jeff Davis crowd. Daugherty must stand on his own feet.

WOW!

It surely is the height of something when some of Jim Clarkin's ball bunglers speak airily of newcomers on their field as "rookies."

IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 8.—The epidemic of itching feet that has settled over this land and set it to dancing night and day, shows no signs of waning.

On the contrary, the coming winter is expected by Broadway, that barometer of national gaiety, to be the dancingest of all.

Even during the warm days the dance demand was such that prim and aristocratic old hostesses which long had scorned to supply jazz to its guests, slyly added roof gardens and put up signs "on with the dance."

Lunch time, once a period for small talk and rest, now is made hideous with the wall of the saxophone. One after another, the Broadway and near-Broadway eating places come out with notices of "luncheon dances." The Chinese chop suey houses came under the spell, such was the crowd response, that competition made necessary the surrender to the inevitable.

And now comes the last blow—not even the moving picture shows are to be immune. The newest and largest of the film palaces makes the unobtrusive announcement that a dance orchestra will be stationed in a roof garden dance hall for those who wish to "hoof" a little. This, it is further announced, will solve the problem of what to do with the crowd that invariably stands sourly in the lobby waiting for the next show. They now may go up and dance while waiting.

It's a sad season, indeed, that doesn't give birth to a fad in wearing apparel.

Just now New York is witnessing a flare-back to the very gay hot band, but with a new twist to it. The fashion is, among collegiate young men, and their elders to wear bands revealing the college colors, the fraternity insignia, or identification with some lodge or society.

Thus, if you are Harvard '26, you will blaze the crimson; if you are Etta Kappa Flop you will have the proper blue stripes and green triangles; or the golden vis-zags of the Oriental Order of Smelts, and so forth. And "everybody's" doing it. Which reminds me—what ever became of the beaded watch bob?

Or those little rugs that came in cigarette packages and made such "wonderful" pillows? And peg-top pants?

Speaking of styles—the latest thing in high-class bootlegging is to carry your stock in a false top

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

Flying Fish

BY AUSTIN H. CLARK Smithsonian Institution Do flying fish really fly? Thousands of people every year ask this simple question. In fact it is always being discussed, and has always been under discussion ever since man first satled the seas. Every sailor knows that flying fishes wings move, for he has seen them move and heard them hum. Nothing but the fish could move them, and therefore the sailor says that the fish does move them and consequently flies after the manner of a bird.

Others say the flying fishes do not fly because they cannot. The muscles about the base of the wing-like fins, though large and strong, are merely used to keep the wings extended and serve no other purpose.

Pure Theory The sailor retorts that this is pure theory and not to be considered in the light of the observed fact that the wings are actually moved. Both sides support their views with all sorts of arguments from the realms of biology, anatomy and marine mythology, and the discussion always comes to rest exactly where it started. In their contentions both sides are partly right. It has been shown that flying fishes fly so far that their flight cannot be explained on the basis of the original impetus alone.

Fins Move No one who has ever seen them at close quarters can doubt the movement of their fins. Therefore, while flying-fishes are mainly gliders, their flight to some extent is aided by the movement of their fins. Flying-fishes are found in the warm seas everywhere. There are about 50 different kinds. Most of them are about a foot in length or rather less, but some kinds are a foot and a half long.

They often fly aboard ships when the sea is rough, and especially at night. Once on a very stormy trip from Japan to Honolulu numbers came aboard, mostly at night. Our sailors were always on the lookout for them, as they are excellent as food.

If you cut a flying fish open in the dark its insides gleam with phosphorescent light coming from the numerous little luminous creatures of the sea which it has eaten.

PACKING THE TRUNK Hal Cochran's DAILY POEM

We're packin' our trunk, 'cause we're goin' away, and I'll tell you, there's heaps to be done. Mom thinks it's hard work, 'cause she figures that way. But me an' the kids think it's fun. We've laid the things out that 'er gonna be packed. A long printed list's on the table. My gosh, you should see all the clothes that 'er stacked. We're takin' as much as we're able. We've given the two kids a draw in the trunk. That's all the space mother could find. And, after they've packed it up full of their junk, the rest of their things stay behind.

Course mother needs all of the rest of the space for dresses, for knickknacks and such. She's made out her list and each thing has its place. Oh, no, she's not takin' so much.

And me? Well, you know, I am only a man. I figure in lastly, I guess. The best I can do, is the best that I can. I'll send all my things by express.

Good Music Assured Next Christmas through our Annual CHRISTMAS CLUB

For many years now each Christmas has found more Manchester homes with good music. These families have not left the selection of their musical instrument until the last minute—and then found that there were too many other little things to buy—but have wisely started the payments on their selection early in the fall. Then when Christmas came around they had their instrument to enjoy, but without making a big lump sum deposit on it!

Watkins' Christmas Club plan will help you, too, to have the instrument of your choice in your home next Christmas. $1 down and weekly deliveries an Orthophonic Victrola or Piano. Orthophonic Victrolas from $95 up.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

COMPETITION IN WORDS

One who goes into the market to buy a motor car today is naturally confused. He has read the words best and greatest so often that they have ceased to be convincing. Where all is best, he reflects, there can be no best. Thousand-dollar cars have been described to him in ten-thousand dollar language. And vice versa. He finds himself the target in a war of adjectives; the helpless victim in a gigantic competition of words. And so he is forced to rely on chance—the advice of friends—or his own limited experience. Dodge Brothers, Inc. have never participated in this verbal competition. They are content with the position they have long maintained in the far more vital competition of honest value. They have continued steadily to improve their product, not only in comfort and beauty, but basically—beneath the body and hood where fundamental values lie. Yet they have not unduly stressed each betterment that has marked the steady progress of their motor car toward a higher perfection. And when economic conditions or greater sales have permitted them to reduce prices without reducing quality, they have announced the fact without excessive emphasis. Unexaggerated truth is not spectacular. But in the long run, implicit public confidence has been Dodge Brothers reward, and this they propose to preserve forever by continuing to build just a little better than they tell.

shortage. This has about been made up now, but the builders don't invest much of their own money. They bought real estate on tick. They built on tick. Then, on their properties, they slapped a mortgage and a second mortgage and frequently a third one. They had to pay interest on an accumulation of debts and mortgages and make a profit or themselves into the bargain. All this comes out of the tenants. Twelve fifty per week, to say nothing of $9. per room, is considerably less than half the present average rental for comfortable quarters in the capital. Yet investors on a legitimate business basis reckon they can make money at it. However, it's no wonder the thought scares the over-extended landlords. It would knock the underpinning from beneath present rentals.

One trouble has been that Washington has grown too fast, and during the war no building was done. There was a housing

Washington, Sept. 8.—Capitalists who build apartment houses to let out at "reasonable rentals" are setting a mighty bad example, Washington real estate men, builders and landlords think. They're protesting vigorously to Secretary of Commerce Hoover who is sponsoring such a suggestion here. He's hearing from elsewhere, too—from the landlord class throughout pretty much the whole country. Let a rent reduction epidemic break out in some one spot and it's liable to spread indefinitely—that's what the landlords are afraid of. In fact it's spreading now. It started in New York, and already its first symptoms have appeared in Washington. It may sweep the nation. In no other city, probably, are high rentals more burdensome than here, because of the great number of poorly paid government workers—poorly paid in proportion to the present cost of living. These people are not the type who can live in a shack in an alley. They need at least presentable quarters. Before the war they could pay for them and have a little left over. Today, the rent paid, precious little is left to live on. This has worried all the higher officials of the administration, and especially the thrifty Secretary Hoover. Consequently, when somebody—Hoover refuses to reveal identities—proposed to him to put up a modern apartment house, to rent at from $9 to $12.50 per room, he was delighted. "It can't be done," cried Washington landlords. In reply, Hoover pointed to the fact that it has been done in New York and pays 6 to 8 per cent dividends. "It can't be done at Washington prices of real estate," argued the landlords. Whereat Hoover grinned, thinking of New York real estate prices. "Besides," he added, "the idea is that an apartment house like this is a public utility, and real estate can be condemned for public utilities." At this the realtors, builders and landlords shuddered, in unison. Hoover sent out a questionnaire to government workers, asking them what they thought of the scheme. They thought highly of it. Hoover then remarked that there seemed to be no reason why it should be confined to government workers—perhaps the general public would like to get in on it. Current comment hints that this notion, too, is popular.

A THOUGHT

For there shall be no reward to the evil man; the candle of the wicked shall be put out.—Prov. 24:20.

Never let man imagine that he can pursue a good end by evil means, without sinning against his own soul. Any other issue is doubtful; the evil effect on himself is certain.—Southey.

Tunney Kayed Gibbons; Dempsey Won Decision

By JOE WILLIAMS.

(Copyright, N. E. A. Service)

With Carpenter out of the way Tommy Gibbons loomed as the next logical note in the bombastic ballyhoo that was to carry Gene Tunney to the front as Dempsey's foremost challenger.

Already Tunney had done something Gibbons couldn't do; he had stopped the Frenchman, Gibbons in addition to representing a stern fighting test was replete with unusual ballyhoo material. The ring still knew him as the only man who had gone 15 rounds with the champion.

Earlier in the respective careers of Gibbons and Tunney there had been a time when the St. Paul Irishman scouted at Tunney's ring abilities.

I remember asking Tommy what he thought of Tunney as a fighter a few years ago when there was talk of sending the ex-marine against Harry Wills, the giant Negro.

Tommy answered as a satirist rather than a critic. "Well, I'll say this for him. He uses better English than any fighter in the game."

Later on when Tommy began to feel himself slipping and the record showed Tunney was advancing by swift, sure strides, Gibbons ceased to be a scoffer.

When Jimmy De Forrest went to St. Paul to sign Gibbons for a Tunney match to be held at the Polo Grounds in New York he was not greeted by what you might expect call an enthusiastic battler teeming with eagerness to decorate the dotted line.

A piece of shrewd managerial strategy sponsored by Billy Gibson crept insidiously into the proceedings at this stage. By what appeared to be an insignificant coincidence (but what was in actuality a carefully worked plan) Tunney was matched to fight Greb in Tommy's home town at the same time De Forrest called on Gibbons.

Tunney and Greb had previously fought four times. This was to be their fifth meeting. Greb had handled Tunney handily in their first two fights, but in the next two Tunney had displayed unmistakable marks of superiority.

On the night of their fifth fight Gibbons occupied a ringside seat. He was there to see how much Tunney had advanced and what he (Gibbons) would have to do in order to win if he ultimately signed with De Forrest.

Gibbons' original thought was to turn Tunney loose from the opening gong and win by such a convincing margin that the assembled critics would launch a ballyhoo of their own accord and force Gibbons into a match with Tunney.

With this in mind Tunney opened up energetically against the Pittsburgh freak and battered him around the ring practically as he pleased for four rounds.

At the end of the fourth Tunney, sitting in his corner, remarked to Gibson: "I can knock Greb out tonight. I'm hitting harder than ever and I seem to be faster. He isn't getting away from any of my leads."

Gibson had sensed this, too. He probably had sensed it before Tunney. Many years of experience in the corner behind the sharpshooting Leonard had given him a remarkable intuition in this respect.

Hugmen Now Have Lead of Seven Games; White Sox Sweep Detroit.

YANKS 4, RED SOX
New York, Sept. 8.—Boston's seventeenth straight defeat stretched the Yankees' lead over Cleveland to seven games as the Hugmen triumphed four to two. Shocker was hit freely but put on the brakes quickly when the bases became populated.

POOCH DONOVAN SAYS TUNNEY "TELEGRAPHS."
Stroudsburg, Pa., Sept. 8.—Placidity has gone from the face of Gene Tunney. He snarls a bit now as he performs his task. He wrinkles his forehead, draws down his brows, and sniffs and curts his upper lip up over his teeth and gums as he walks into his sparring mates both hands blazing.

Pooch Donovan, Harvard trainer, looked over Tunney and was impressed by him. "He is in better shape than Dempsey," declared Donovan, "but he has one serious fault, namely, the telegraphing of punches. He's a fine fighter, though."

DEMPSEY-WILLS AFTER TUNNEY GO

At Least Jack, His Manager and Western Promoter Are Ready to Sign.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 8.—Jack Dempsey will meet Harry Wills in the long awaited battle of the ages at Tia Juana within a matter of months, according to a story which broke within the champion's training camp today.

There are only two factors that stand between the two greatest heavyweights of the modern era. They are the signature of Wills to a Dempsey contract and the possibility, however vague, that the champion might miff his chance against Gene Tunney on the night of September 23.

According to Gene Normille, manager or what not of the heavy-weight champion, the second possibility has a stronger chance than the first. Normille says that Wills has set a prohibitive price on his head, so to speak.

Wants Too Much.
"He wants $300,000 as I understand it," the champion's manager declared. "That's entirely too much for any challenger. We are fair enough, when it comes to that, but if Wills wants nothing but a shot at the title, as he has been claiming, he will sign up for whatever he can get. Every challenger has done that since time immemorial."

"We are willing to give Wills a better price than any challenger has received to date. Dempsey took his almost for nothing because he felt he could win and earn his money afterward.

"If Wills is sincere, he will feel the same way. If not, we can only assume that he is after the loser's end."

Normille talked only after some persuasive conversation from the writer. He intimated that he preferred to await the arrival of James Coffroth, from the West, before committing himself either one way or the other. Coffroth was the Tex Richard of his day, which was the day of the old championship battles in California. Incidentally, it might be mentioned that Normille is one of Coffroth's very bright young men.

Everybody Agreeable.
Therefore, if Normille says that Dempsey is willing, one might very well judge that not only the champion but the promoter is amenable to the proposition. The only thing missing is the challenger and if all he wants is a fight with the champion, that fight is here.

This, at least, was the story in the Dempsey camp this morning. Maybe Wills has a better proposition he can propound to the New York State Athletic commission. Maybe Normille is merely talking to hear his teeth rattle. Anyhow, I would say off-hand that a proposition from Jim Coffroth, if made, would be a better bet than any that might come from Niles, Mich., any palau.

THE PENNANT RACES

The Cardinals lead Cincinnati by two games this morning in the National League race; Pittsburgh, four and one-half games behind St. Louis, is now menaced by the Cubs, who defeated the Reds yesterday while the Pirates were losing to St. Louis.

The Yankees increased their lead to seven full games by leading the Red Sox while Cleveland lost to the Browns for the second game in succession. The Yanks clutch the flag by winning thirteen of their remaining contests, even if the Indians should win all their nineteen games.

Wills has looked into everything else. It might pay him to look into this one.

Over two billion smoked a month!

-natural tobacco taste has the "call" these days!

Men have certainly made their preference clear!

REMEMBER just a few years back you saw but few Chesterfields?

Mighty different today! You see them everywhere! But it's not that fact, but the reason, that's the interesting thing.

Natural tobacco taste—a taste secured by matching one fine variety against another, a taste which retains tobacco character—that's why Chesterfield is America's fastest-growing cigarette, and has been for four consecutive years. Not much doubt nowadays about what smokers want!

Pretty Girls, 1926 Model, In Pre-Viewing Of Charms

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS.

New York, Sept. 8.—The Broadway manner and the Fifth Avenue gown seem to be generally regarded as final aids to nature's charms. So when the aspirants to the Miss America title set out for Atlantic City, most of them bought tickets via New York. And while the beauties were looking at the metropolis, the metropolitans followed them around. This enables the observer here to witness pre-showings of the most likely specimens of pulchritude and to give a waiting world some advance tips on the fall beauty market.

Feminine Bob. Advance models indicate that Anita Loos' hunch about blondes has been taken seriously. Blue eyes predominate, and while hair shades from palest ash to deepest raven, through Tinn and chestnut, there seems to be a preference and an earnest striving for molten gold effects. Most of the hair is short. In spite of the fact that Miss America's crown has never, up to the present time, caused any uneasy moments to a cropped head. The prevalent bob, however, is not the severe boyish bob, but a thoroughly feminine one which are of the peaches and cream variety. However, since makeup has become such a fine art, one can no longer rely upon beauty going even skin deep. Smiles are positively the rage. No beauty is without one, and this reveals the necessity for perfect teeth—at least within the radius of the exposure. Vamp Is Gone. Figures are slim and boyish. Legs are worn very straight this year, tapered into small ankles. Truly, the bulky calf is passe and the grand piano no longer serves as a model of leg construction. Much variety is displayed in the region of the knees, and a dimple advantageously set is certainly no handicap, but the knee cap should not be too knobby. The advance models run to height rather than breadth, and there are above five feet and six inches than below it. This may mean the passing of the baby vamp. No particular portion of the country seems to be showing any new models this season, and there are no startling innovations in line or coloring, but there has been a careful, consistent improvement in points, and on the whole the 1926 crop of beauties is a credit to the nation.

THE BEAUTY DOCTOR

BY NINON.

Stretching exercise demonstrated by Virginia Magee. CONDITION—Rounded or "humped" shoulders. DIAGNOSIS—This comes from lack of exercise and the inability to relax properly. If you sit all day at a desk, and do not practice corrective exercises, a curved shoulder line is very apt to be the result. TREATMENT—You must relax, and relieve the strain you are putting on your shoulder muscles. Try this—you can do it at your desk if you like. In a seated position, raise both your arms out straight in front of you, stretching toward an imaginary object just without your reach, but do not bend your body. Then relax and let your arms fall limply in your lap. Do this a number of times. In time you can relax completely.

FRESH AIR IS TREATMENT FOR BENZINE POISONING. By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene the Health Magazine

Benzine is widely used in the home and in industry because it will dissolve rubber and gum fats and resins of various kinds. It is involved in the blending of motor fuels. It is used in chemical industries for extracts of oils and dyes, and in the manufacture of paints, varnishes and stains, and of paint and varnish removers. In the artificial leather manufacture, in sanitary can manufacture and in dry cleaning, benzol or benzene is constantly employed, because of its solvent properties. In the manufacture of rubber tires, it forms an important constituent of rubber cement. It is not surprising, since it is so poisonous and so widely used, that it produces cases of disease in considerable numbers.

Small Doses In some instances employees are acutely asphyxiated through entering tanks which contained benzol, but most of the cases concern persons who are gradually poisoned by small doses of the benzene inhaled during the course of their work. Medical literature supplies the records of hundreds of cases of chronic poisoning with this substance. A study of these cases indicates that the condition occurs with great frequency in cold weather, when ventilation is reduced by closing of windows and doors.

Young girls are especially predisposed to serious symptoms following the inhaling of benzene, as are also pregnant women. A person who is becoming gradually poisoned with this substance is likely to complain first of headache, dizziness, loss of appetite, ready fatigue and general weakness. Later, there may be nausea and vomiting and sensations of chilliness, with bleeding from the nose and mouth or other mucous membranes. Sometimes bloody spots appear beneath the skin. Affects Nerves If the course is very gradual the nervous system may also be affected and serious disturbances of sensation and locomotion may develop. The significant change in the body is the manner in which the benzene attacks the blood. The number of white blood cells begin to decrease and simultaneously there is a breaking up of the red blood cells. Just as soon as this condition is diagnosed the person should change his employment, preferably to open-air work, since the important factor is to remove him from contact with the poison. The physician will treat the severe cases of poison by rest, fresh air and sunshine, and by food substances planned particularly to build up the blood system. If the case is extremely severe, it is sometimes desirable to transfer blood so as to supply the deficiency promptly.

WHY NOT MAKE ALL THE OLD DOLLS NEW?

A few of the hundreds of dolls collected by the National Thanksgiving Doll Offering Committee.

Where is Susan Ellen now, do you suppose? You remember Susan Ellen—that golden-haired doll you loved as a child, that could move her arms, go to sleep, and had three dresses all her own. Perhaps you called her Elizabeth Evangeline. Some do. Where is she now, do you suppose? In the attic rag-bag? Back on the hall closet-shelf? Or locked away in an old trunk with the Calico Cat and that book of illustrated fairy stories? Wherever Susan Ellen is, she's needed again. If Susan Ellen were carefully repaired, dressed in fresh clothes, done up in a neat package, and sent to some orphan asylum, she would make some orphan mighty happy. In New York an organization of society women has started a nationwide movement to make use of discarded dolls in this manner. The organization proposes the distribution of the dolls take place on Thanksgiving Day. "Clubs and civic organizations everywhere, we hope, will adopt

Her Own Way A Story of a Girl of Today

JUDY SPEAKS OUT. I was furiously angry. "In the first place, I cannot understand what you mean by 'encouragement of your poor friend.' I am only treating him as I would treat any other man who is interesting and apparently interested in me. I deny absolutely that there is any reason for treating Mr. Meredith any differently. "It does not necessarily follow that he has intentions which are serious, or that I have designs. I think your intimations are insulting."

"Mr. Meredith, Miss Dean, is a very wealthy man." "I cannot understand where that concerns me," I answered quickly. "Perhaps, however, it concerns you more. You seem to be afraid that something will interfere with your expedition into the wilds of Africa."

"As far as I am concerned, you need have no fear as I think this expedition would be a great help in bringing John Meredith into his own, especially if accompanied by the right companions."

"This made the man in front of me wince, but he quickly recovered himself and said: "Were you thinking of joining the expedition, Miss Dean, or are you going to Europe as planned?" "Just at present it looks as though I were going to do neither. However, you know, a woman sometimes changes her mind."

"I left him and followed Joan into the house, where she had followed her brother when he turned away. When I reached the door I turned and said distinctly: "The whole trouble with John is that you and all the other sycophants about him have completely robbed him of his assurance so that he is completely dependent upon all of you. Whether or not this has been done through disinterested motives, remains to be seen."

"I only know this, that his sister told me this very afternoon that while she realized this, she seemed powerless to remove the shackles. "However, I shall forgive you for what you have said to me if you can help make John Meredith keep on forgetting himself and build up his assurance to a point where he will be strong enough in the future to overcome any false and silly idea of self-consciousness and take standing any annoyance or real hurt that might come to him."

Home Place Editorials Style Extremes Are Ugly

by Olive Roberts Barton.

King George did protest at the races in England about the scanty attire of the women. Immediately there was a grand rush among the socially elect to the empire to dressmakers and to shops. Maidens sat up nights letting down hems, stitching, chiffon into sleeves and necks, and making over their mistresses' wardrobes generally, so they would be less offensive to royal eyes.

It probably will never be decided, the relation between dress and morals. Absolute freedom in dress is more vulgar than immoral, if it comes to cases, but aside from the question of ethics, extremes are ugly. French dressmakers pull the strings and women are the puppets who dance. Artistic dressmakers set the styles, and what artist is ever hesitant about the nude? In the old days, designers considered the dress. It was a thing of beauty and built to last for ever. The person who wore it was more or less an animated dummy with head atop, feet—at least toes—showing, and hands!

Lately, dressmakers have included in the picture a bit, quite a large bit, of the human anatomy as well. Dresses are not made to eclipse the wearer, but to subtly accentuate the charm of the owner.

But the question of rivalry plays a part, in their efforts to outdo each other, some of the couturiers have allowed extreme to substitute itself for originality. And women accept the decisions of the powers that be, and wear what they are told. If Madam So-and-So has desisted it, that is the last word for them.

Extreme in anything is never good taste. Big sleeves were gilly—lustre ridiculous, enormous hoopskirts and petticoats horrible. Anything that distorts or accentuates the figure is bad style and bad taste—and extremes usually do both.

Metaphors King George may have protested, not always because of the courage of modern styles, but because his long suffering eyes could no longer endure a style that makes the average figure ugly.

BOY HALTS TRAFFIC.

London.—London Bridge wasn't falling down, but it was all tied up when little Danny Riordan, 6, got his head stuck between two railings on the balustrade the other day. It took a strong police force, two fire engines, a motor ambulance, a police tug and auxiliary boats, three doctors, a squad of workmen with scaffolding, hack saws, hammers and cold chisels, etc., to get him out. They even used vaseline. A chisel finally did the work.

GLOBE HOLLOW POOL WELL PATRONIZED

In One Week Over 3,000 Persons Used It—Other Playground Activities.

The summer program of the Recreation Centers covered the 4 at the East Side and West Side playgrounds, and will continue until September 11 at the outdoor swimming pool at Globe Hollow.

In addition to a daily program of activities held each day on the playgrounds from 9:30 a. m. until dark there were swimming classes for girls in the East Side Recreation Center pool twice weekly for eight weeks; woodwork classes held in the workshop at the Barnard school, and basketry classes held at the West Side Recreation Center. The program was arranged to provide out of door recreation for children and adults during the summer weeks. That the program was successful is evidenced by the numbers who took advantage of the opportunities offered them. All activities were under trained supervision.

The average weekly attendance at the East Side playground, for the ten week season, was 1352 and at the West Side 1504. There were 104 boys between the ages of 10 and 16 registered for the woodwork classes. Fifty girls joined the basketry classes. Sixteen girls were taught to play tennis on the West Side playground and ten women beginners were given lessons in this sport. There were 139 girls in the playground swimming classes held at the Recreation Center.

The attendance at Globe Hollow is dependent upon the weather. The largest weekly attendance for the season was for the week of July 26. The attendance for that week was 3363. The average aggregate attendance for the entire season was 2713.

Four band concerts were given at the West Side playground to audiences ranging from 1500 to 3000. At each concert athletic events and competitions were held. A Doll Show and Pet Show were two special events for the children held during the season. The closing affair was a Playground Carnival held at the East Side on Sept. 2. At this time the children demonstrated some of the dances and gymnastic feats they had learned on the playgrounds.

The season has been one of the most successful in the history of the South Manchester playgrounds. With one additional playground, which should be located near the Center, the South End would be able to boast of a model playground system.

Arriving at the hall he found the meeting was only a ruse of the officers and members to insure his attendance, and the main object of the get-together was to show their appreciation for his efficient services.

Charles A. Sweet who arranged the affair, in a fitting speech, in behalf of his associates in the club, presented to Mr. Strong a purse containing forty dollars. Mr. Strong responded, warmly thanking the men for their generous gift and the good will which prompted it, and Mr. Sweet for his prominent part in the pleasant surprise.

Walter H. Hibbard provided piano selections and played for chorus singing, after which the men adjourned to the lunch room on the ground floor where all were generously served with peach short-cake with whipped cream.

Mr. L. B. Perry and son Lawrence, Jr., who have been spending the past two weeks at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Robshaw, have returned to their home in Concord.

CHICKEN HALTS ALL TRAFFIC IN SOUTH END

She was walking along Main street in the South End yesterday afternoon. In her right hand she carried just an ordinary paper bag, just such a bag as one would imagine held a few bars of soap and some groceries that the good housewife was carrying home.

As the woman neared Quin's drug store, persons near her noticed suspicious movements within the bag. Suddenly there was a squawk, the bottom of the bag was raised and out dropped a big live Plymouth Rock hen.

Then things happened. The street which a moment before was filled with men, women and children sauntering along quietly, became the scene of much excitement. The hen started to run, and a big man running around loose, is hard to explain, but women ran in stores and doorways to escape it.

The children shouted in glee as they chased the hen. Men tried to catch it and failed ignominiously. The hen started to cross the street and traffic stopped. It had to stop as the street was filled with men and children pursuing the hen.

"Catch it," shouted the crowd. Windows in office buildings were filled with stenographers and clerks watching the fun.

The hen started to chase back to the sidewalks and into Hess's store where the clerks succeeded in cornering it and capturing it.

The hen was returned to the woman. Its legs were again tied and a new paper bag was procured. She proceeded to her home and Main street again resumed the even tenor of its way.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB'S SECRETARY HONORED

Julius L. Strong, secretary of the Manchester Improvement Club for over a year, was prevailed upon to attend a special meeting of the club in the Balch and Brown building last evening, although it was on the eve of his marriage to Miss Ethel Brindle of Marble street.

Arriving at the hall he found the meeting was only a ruse of the officers and members to insure his attendance, and the main object of the get-together was to show their appreciation for his efficient services.

Charles A. Sweet who arranged the affair, in a fitting speech, in behalf of his associates in the club, presented to Mr. Strong a purse containing forty dollars. OUR NEW CITY HALL IS NOT YET READY

May Take Week Longer Before Officials Can Move Into Building.

Although it has been published that the new officials would move into the new City Hall today, a visit to the municipal building, this morning showed that it will be a week or more before the place will be ready for occupancy.

The engineering department will probably move in first and a room is being made ready for it. This is being done so that the unsightly building at the rear of the City Hall may be torn down as quickly as possible.

There is still much finishing work to do. The electric lights will be installed although men from the electric light company were putting in wires from the street this morning. Painters are still at work and the plumbers have the fixtures to install in the lavatories. Also there are many odds and ends still to be completed before the town officials can move in.

The filing cabinets and desks are ready to be put into place as soon as the rooms are finished.

Outside, the cement walk leading to the street has been completed, the unsightly fence has been torn down and men are at work taking away the big piles of dirt and grading for the lawns.

When the city hall is completed it will be worth the time of any citizen to inspect it. A drummer who hits every town and city in the state walked through the building this morning and gave it as his opinion that our City Hall was as fine a building as he ever saw in his trips.

DOG ATTACKS GIRL, BITES HER BADLY

North End Girl Treated by Doctor—Not Certain What Dog Was Responsible.

A small but vicious dog owned by Frank Yankowski of 93 North street, is on trial for his life. Tuesday night while little Florence Tracy, 8-year-old, of North Main street, was on her way down North street to a bakery on Kerry street, a dog attacked her. The frightened girl ran home and was later treated by a local physician for lacerations of the chest.

A neighbor is reported to have seen a dog run into a nearby house. He also states the same dog bit another child in the leg recently.

Dog Warden F. A. Kraus was notified and he "placed the dog under arrest." He said today that no signs of rabies had developed but that the dog was unusually vicious.

"If it can be proved that the dog is the one which attacked the Tracy girl, I will have to kill it," he concluded.

'SPARROWS' TO FEATURE CIRCLE OPENING SUNDAY

Latest Mary Pickford Picture Coming Here for Four Days Beginning Sunday Night.

For four days next week beginning Sunday night, September 12, the Circle theatre will have its grand re-opening. The feature attraction for the re-opening will be Mary Pickford's latest and greatest film masterpiece, "Sparrows." This picture has been hailed by all the movie critics all over the country as Mary's greatest film.

A large, beautifully toned, three-manual Austin pip organ has been installed in the Circle. It is one of the finest instruments that can be installed in a theatre. It's known as an orchestral organ—that is it not only has a large and selective set of pipes, but it has other attachments such as church bells, drums, cymbals and other facilities for interpreting motion pictures.

"Sparrows" tells a grippingly absorbing story of adventures on a small queer farm in the southern swamp country. It is a highly dramatic picture, and the action is fast from the very start. Sharply contrasting comedy reliefs only serve to emphasize the film's sheer suspense and tense moments. In the story Mary Pickford, as "Mama Mollie," a twelve year old girl, battles desperately for her retinue of poor orphans against harsh cruelty of the baby farm keeper. It's a story that tugs at heartstrings, brings out smiles, and pumps out gasps.

The new prices for all performances at the Circle will be as follows: matinees, 10 and 15 cents, evenings, 10 and 25 cents.

MANCHESTER HOST TO HINDU DOCTOR

Dr. Paru Sees Friends Here; Leaves for Baltimore College.

Manchester has had an unusual visitor during the past two weeks. She is Dr. Paru, a Brahmin who has been connected with the Guntur hospital in the presidency of Madras in India for the past 12 years. She was a guest of Dr. Anna Kugler of 35 Hamlin street, head of that hospital for 43 years but who is now retired.

Dr. Paru left yesterday for John Hopkins University in Baltimore where she will continue her education. She is a graduate of the University of Madras and since her graduation has been connected with the United Lutheran mission work in India. Dr. Kugler was her superior in the Guntur hospital but Dr. Paru now has a hospital of her own in another city there.

The Hindu woman has never seen snow nor had she seen silk machinery. She was taken through the Cheney mills during her stay here and expressed surprise at the way the silk cloth is manufactured. In her own country all the operations from first to last are done by hand.

It is possible that Dr. Paru will return to this town when she finishes her course at John Hopkins.
