

MAY TRY FOUR IN HALL CASE IN TWO WEEKS

Widow and Three Kinsmen Indicted in 10 Minutes; Henry Stevens Jailed; Gorsline Perjury Case.

Somerville, N. J., Sept. 16.—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, Henry de la Bruyere Carpenter, "Willie" Stevens and Henry Stevens were indicted yesterday for the murder of Rev. Dr. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills on the night of September 14, 1922.

The April term of the Somerset County Grand Jury, hastily convened in a surprise move by the prosecution, brought in indictments within ten minutes, after hearing twenty-seven witnesses during the day. It was reported that the vote was unanimous.

Henry Stevens, who lives at LaVallette, and only recently has been linked with the crime, was arrested last night on a bench warrant issued by Judge Frank L. Cleary.

Other Trial Possible.

After his indictment, detectives had gone at once to the fishing hamlet, fifty miles away, and took Mrs. Hall's second brother into custody at 8 o'clock. He was first taken to Toms River, the Ocean County seat, and then brought here to the Somerset County jail, where his kinsmen are imprisoned.

Confident of winning convictions, Special Prosecutor Simpson today planned to rush the trial, which may start the first week in October.

The four defendants will plead to the murder indictments before Justice Charles W. Parker in Somerville at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. At the same time he probably will announce the time of the trial.

Henry Stevens, the fourth of the wealthy Stevens family, is said to be arrested. It is said will demand an early hearing and release on bail.

Gorsline Perjury Charge.

Prosecutor Francis Bergen said he planned to seek an indictment for perjury on Monday against Ralph Gorsline, New Brunswick church vestryman, who admitted before the grand jury that he heard the shots that killed Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills. Gorsline denied for four years being near the Phillips farm the night of the murders. He gave as his reason his desire to protect the reputation of Miss Catherine Rastall, who was with him.

The April grand jury is being held over by Supreme Court Justice Parker until Tuesday for the purpose of considering indictments of two persons for perjury. Who the other person is was not learned.

May Not Jail Widow.

It appeared doubtful today that Mrs. Hall will be re-arrested and placed in jail with her kinsmen. Senator Simpson, it was intimated, will apply for a large increase in Mrs. Hall's present bail of $15,000.

Mrs. Hall received word of her indictment with the least alarm that has been characteristic of her during the four years that have elapsed since the murder.

"The only statement we have to make at this time is that we welcome the opportunity to prove our innocence in court," said Pfeiffer, her counsel.

Curious Discrepancy.

The authorities admitted being puzzled over the testimony before the grand jury yesterday of two surprise witnesses, John Stillwell and the hearing that bore Rev. Mr. Hall's body to the cemetery, declared that he saw three deep scratches on Mrs. Hall's face when she lifted her veil at the side of the grave.

Mrs. Mary Demarest, on the other hand, said that Barbara Tough, the Hall maid, had represented her mistress at the burial, disguised in Mrs. Hall's clothes. The authorities therefore are faced with the question: did Stillwell see scratches on Barbara Tough's face, or was Mrs. Demarest mistaken about the masquerade?

Hits Henry's Alibi.

Mrs. Demarest also stated that she had seen Henry Stevens in New Brunswick on the morning following the killings, near the Hall home. This story, which is in contradiction of Stevens' alibi story, is credited with being the deciding factor in causing his indictment.

"None of the six witnesses named by Stevens supported his alibi under oath," Prosecutor Simpson said. "None of them could say under oath that on September 14, 1922, they saw Stevens at LaVallette."

"Foreign" Jury.

Prosecutor Simpson, after a conference in Jersey City with Chief Justice William E. Gummere and Justice Parker, announced that he had completed arrangements to go before the Supreme Court next Thursday to ask for a "foreign" jury trial of the four defendants.

This means that if his request is granted a jury impelled from residents of some other county will hear the case.

"PIED PIPER'S" POISON KILLS DOGS AND CATS

Fitchburg, Mass., Sept. 16.—Rex Keep, "Pied Piper" of Syracuse, N. Y., and F. R. Brigham, health board agent, who are engaged in freeing the city of rats, today had a warning from J. M. O'Neill, dog constable, to place their poisoned meat in pipes not large enough for cats and dogs to crawl through. A dozen dogs and an equal number of cats have been affected, some of them dying.

MYSTERY SHROUDS YOUTH'S INJURIES

Erwin Walsh in Hospital With Concussion of Brain; Auto May Have Hit Him.

LATEST BULLETIN

Late this afternoon, Chief Samuel G. Gordon announced that the mystery had been solved by Sergeant William Barron. Two men are under arrest and will face trial in court tomorrow. Frank Hornburger, 34 South Whitney street, Hartford, will be charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and also with evading responsibility. William Douse, who lives in the Trotter Block, will face trial with him. Both were in the Ford touring car that struck the Walsh boy.

Believed to have been struck by an automobile, Erwin Walsh, 16, of 188 Spencer street, is in the Memorial hospital badly injured. The injured ankle and leg has not been found. Police found evidence that the boy had been struck near the Spencer home about 9 o'clock last night but the boy was unable to tell what had struck him.

Concussion of Brain.

Today when questioned by hospital officials, Walsh said he thought an automobile struck him but was not sure. Walsh is suffering from a concussion of the brain, an injured ankle and numerous bruises. His condition is not regarded as serious, hospital authorities report.

Crawls Into Home.

The first that became known of the accident was a 10-30 last night when the boy crawled into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Miller, with whom he lives on Spencer street. Walsh was semi-conscious and his face and clothing were covered with blood. He was unable to give a coherent story as to what had happened.

Mr. Miller hurried the injured lad to a local doctor's office where it was found he was suffering from a concussion of the brain. Removal to the hospital was advised immediately.

Police Notified.

When the police were notified, Captain Herman Schendel conducted a personal investigation. With the Miller, he traced a trail of footprints from the home to a point near the Spencer home. Here the boy's cap and a can of tobacco were found lying in the road. Although it was impossible to learn further particulars as to the nature of the accident at the time, police are continuing their investigation and an arrest may follow.

Boy Don't Remember

It is possible that when Walsh recovers he will remember more of the particulars which now are a mystery.

Mr. Miller told The Herald today, he was puzzled over the accident. He is of the opinion an automobile struck the boy but says that when Walsh came home all he remembered was: "Don't know, don't remember."

ADMINISTRATION NOT FOR FRANCE PILGRIMAGE

Government Influence Exerted Against Legion Plan; Feared Debt Sentiment.

Washington, Sept. 16.—That the administration is using its influence unofficially, of course, but energetically, to prevent the long-planned pilgrimage of the American Legion to France in 1927, is no longer made a secret.

In accordance with this drive against the proposed pilgrimage— which is to be decided one way or the other at the Legion's national convention in Philadelphia—many government officials who have been in Europe this summer are returning full of advice against the undertaking.

Just what is the administration's animus in the matter has not been made clear, but it is whispered that there is a growing fear that if the pilgrimage is held many Legionnaires will return convinced to the idea of debt cancellation.

COMM. KEENEY, G. A. R. VETERAN, IS DEAD HERE

Head of Drake Post for Last 15 Years Dies from Effects of Kick from Cow; Six More Vets Here.

Commander Maranthon Henry Keeney, head of the Drake Post, No. 4, G. A. R., for over fifteen years, is dead.

Death came at 6:35 last night at the Memorial hospital where he has been confined since August 12, when he sustained a fractured right hip. Commander Keeney was 83 years old.

The Funeral.

The funeral will be held from his late home Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of the South Methodist church, will officiate. Burial will be in the West cemetery. It is expected that it will be a Grand Army funeral. Arrangements are not entirely completed.

Was Well Known.

Commander Keeney was exceptionally well known. He was born here on August 9, 1843, and had lived here all of his life except the nine months he served in the Civil War. He was a son of Chauncey and Mary Keeney and was the sole survivor of his family.

War Record.

At the age of 19, Mr. Keeney enlisted in Company H, 16th Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, under the late Colonel Frank W. Cheney. He was the only Manchester living Civil War veteran who was wounded in the war. He was wounded in Maryland, being shot through the arm.

Was a Farmer.

After his service in the Civil War, Commander Keeney returned to Manchester and made his home with his mother. He engaged in farm work on Keeney street. On Jan. 11, 1879, he was married to Miss Susan F. Belknap, of North Coventry. Ten children were born of the union. Seven are living.

Survivors are: Irving E. Keeney, William E. Keeney, Jesse M. Keeney, Loren A. Keeney, of Manchester; Warren B. Keeney, of Hartford; Mrs. Sylvia McLaughlin and Mrs. Lura M. Hutchinson, both of Manchester. Ten grandchildren also survive Commander Keeney.

Result of Injuries.

Commander Keeney's death was brought about by his recent injury which resulted in his being taken to the hospital. Commander Keeney was rounding up a herd of cows on his farm trying to get them into the barn because a thundershower was approaching. In the rush, one of the cows struck the aged Civil War veteran and fractured his hip. He was carried into the house by relatives and that night removed to the local hospital where he had failed gradually.

Six of 234.

With the passing of Commander Keeney, Manchester has but six survivors of the Drake Post, No. 4, living here. When the post was first organized there were 234 members but now there are but nine living, six of whom, reside in Manchester.

The remaining six are: Chauncey B. Ellisworth, aged 85, Marble street.
O. W. Prentice, aged 84, South Main street.
Jared Pearl, aged 82, Main street.
Lucius Pinney, aged 81, Prospect street.
George M. Barber, aged 81, Gardner street.
George Coppings, aged 81, Oakland street.

TO IGNORE MINISTERS' PROTEST ON BIG FIGHT

Secretaries Kellogg and Hoover Merely Guards of U. S. Sesqui Funds.

Washington, Sept. 16.—There is little likelihood that Secretaries Kellogg or Hoover will take any action on the protest of the ministerial association in Philadelphia against the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

The protest was sent to President Coolidge, who referred it to the cabinet officers as members of the Sesqui-Centennial commission.

It was pointed out today that Kellogg and Hoover were merely administrators of federal funds in the Sesqui-Centennial and had no authority over the amusements staged at the exhibition.

MEX. POLICE LOCATE ROSENTHAL BANDITS

Mexico City, Sept. 16.—Stragling members of the bandit gang that kidnaped Jacob Rosenthal of Woodmere, N. Y., on Sunday, have been captured by the police and questioned. Information gained from these captured bandits has given the police reason to believe that they have the kidnapers located and that Rosenthal will be released shortly.

TANK LEAK BALKS HOP-OFF TO FRANCE

One Rivet Among Thousands Breaks, So Flight Has to Be Postponed a Day.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Captain Rene Fonck's New York to Paris airplane flight, scheduled to start at dawn today, was postponed indefinitely because of a leak in the giant Sikorsky plane's main gasoline tank. The flight may be attempted tomorrow morning if weather conditions improve and repairs are completed by that time.

After workmen had frantically searched for the leak, it was discovered that one of the 20,000 rivets in the gas tank had snapped and dropped out. From the tiny hole thus made, gasoline was running at the rate of more than ten gallons an hour.

The postponement disappointed several thousand spectators who had gathered to view the take-off in the longest non-stop flight ever attempted by an airplane.

Fonck Was All Ready

When Fonck approached the plane, beaming happily at the thought of speedily being on his way to Paris, he saw five or six workmen slashing away at the silver gray fabric on the near side of the right hand motor.

For a moment it was feared that under the terrific weight of 2,290 gallons of gasoline, weighing more than 13,000 pounds, a seam might have burst in the tanks.

The difficulty of repairing the tank was manifest, and Captain Fonck, as he noticed the heavy mist which gathered around the field, reluctantly called the flight off for the day.

ITALY APOLOGIZES FOR CONSULATE ATTACKS

But Poincare Refuses to Expel Listed Italian Anti-Fascists from France.

Paris, Sept. 16.—The Italian government has expressed regrets for demonstrations before the French consulates in Livorno and Trieste, the foreign office announced today.

Bartolomeo Avezano, Italian ambassador to France, was again conferred with Premier Poincare and it is said he presented a list of alleged anti-Fascists living in France and asked their expulsion. It is understood that Premier Poincare refused to take such action.

Eastman Hunted by Rhino But Laughs at Injury Report

Nairobi, Africa, Sept. 16.—We all escaped being run down or hurt. Both the elephant and the rhino got away. It was too bad, as I would have liked to have that elephant."

Eastman declared he never was in better health and laughed cheerfully at the reports that he had been injured.

The Eastman party made three hunting trips since arriving here last April. On their last trip they bagged seven lions, a buffalo and a rhinoceros.

The majority of the party are returning to Kenya after a rest but Eastman will leave for England. He plans to arrive in New York late in October.

FIVE SHIPS SEEK "LOYAL CITIZEN"

No Word Heard of Missing Freighter or Crew Since Tuesday Afternoon.

New York, Sept. 16.—Storm-tossed areas of the Atlantic are today being searched by five ships, it is believed, for signs of the British freighter Loyal Citizen.

The freighter has not been heard from since Tuesday afternoon, following receipt of a wireless message here that she was filling rapidly and that the crew were about to take to the lifeboats.

A severe storm is believed to be raging in the area, 200 miles southwest of Bermuda and nearly 600 miles from the Florida coast.

The Dutch tanker Denhar had found the position given by the Loyal Citizen when sending out her S O S call.

The Denhar also reported that four other ships were in the vicinity searching for the freighter or her crew.

The capsized lifeboat may indicate that the crew of thirty on board the Loyal Citizen left the boat as she sank. A snip the size of the freighter usually carries two lifeboats, one of which would have held the entire crew.

BAY STATE DEMOCRATS FACE PECULIAR SNARL

Candidate Nominated by Error Won't Quit Unless State Chairman Does.

Boston, Sept. 16.—Democratic leaders of Massachusetts had a queering primary tangle to unravel today. Harry J. Dooley, young Boston lawyer, after announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant-governor, withdrew in favor of Joseph E. Ely, of Westfield.

But the withdrawal came after the ballots had been printed, and despite Dooley's urging to voters to cast their ballots for Ely, the Boston attorney was nominated.

Dooley has until 5 p. m. tomorrow to refuse to run allowing the Democratic state committee to place Ely's name on the ballot.

Today Dooley let it be known that he would not step out until Charles H. McCue, chairman of the Democratic state committee, quits that office. McCue had opposed the Dooley nomination and Dooley retired in the interest of harmony.

Mrs. Lulu Doane of Boston, formerly a Main street resident, is the guest of Judge and Mrs. W. S. Hyde.

DEMOCRATS STRADDLE ON RUM; DOLAN LOSES IN A NEW FIGHT

Manchester Party Leader in Jangle With Spellacy When He Balks at Scheme to Get Him Off Central Committee But Finally Withdraws.

New Haven, Sept. 16.—The hope of proceeding through the Democratic state convention harmoniously was badly shattered last evening in Music hall when an old issue, in which the state organization of the party was again attacked by Dr. Edward G. Dolan, of Manchester, was drawn into the heated discourse at the closing of the convention. In terms that aroused the majority of the 814 delegates and a few hundred spectators in the gallery, Dr. Dolan directed his verbal attacks on the machine in a manner that brought much cheering and howling from the floor.

Dr. Dolan in the course of his remarks referred to the doings in Madison Square Garden at the National convention, and asked the convention why Franklin D. Roosevelt had asked him in the last National convention to assume the leadership of the Connecticut delegation, the powers which he claimed had been in the hands of such men as Thomas J. Spellacy, Homer Cummings and David E. Fitzgerald. Dr. Dolan shouted to the gathering that it was a case of what was to be considered, and he flayed those who attempted to disrupt the organization of the state.

Fitch Cuts Figure.

Bernard J. Fitch of Hamden, who two years ago tried to have the state convention endorse Al Smith as a presidential candidate was one of the conspicuous figures in the opening of the arguments of the evening which dealt with the adjustment of difficulties in the Fourth and 12th senatorial districts where it is claimed the convention was called illegally. Mr. Fitch was a delegate of the 12th district while Dr. Dolan was state central committeeman of the Fourth district.

With the senatorial district matters, the final issue of the evening and the one that was responsible for the heated arguments of the evening, a motion by Thomas Bracken of Branford to have the matter referred to the respective districts was carried.

The motion of Mr. Bracken according to records of Secretary A. Sidney Lynch was that the two district questions be referred to the meetings of the district delegations last night, but this was doubted.

"Senator Reed is one of our greatest citizens, he is a champion of the constitution and of American institutions," Evans said.

"But he is wet," it was suggested.

"He's a great American just the same," Evans replied.

Evans declared Borah was "available" because he was "one of our greatest living Americans." The ruler of the "lavish empire" also on the presidential horizon. Evans said.

"He's a great American just the same," Evans replied.

Governor Vic Donahey and former Senator Albee Pomeroy are also on the presidential horizon," Evans said, if they win their elections in Ohio this fall.

DURKIN ADMITS KING CHECK TO DAUGHERTY

Says One Was Made Out Without Notation Being Put on the Stub.

New York, Sept. 16.—Checks made out by the late John T. King, Connecticut politician, to Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney-general of the United States, were closely delved into today at the trial of Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, formerly alien property custodian, who are accused of conspiracy in connection with the return to foreign interests of a $7,000,000 claim for a property seized during the world war.

King's private secretary, John D. Durkin, was called to the stand for re-direct examination by United States Attorney Buckner. Buckner has been attempting to link Daugherty with the $441,000 fee which Richard Merton, German metal financier, testified he paid King to help him put the claim through the offices of Daugherty and Miller.

Durkin admitted King had made out a check to Daugherty without making any notation on the stub in the checkbook. Buckner had passed the checkbook exhibit to the witness.

Previously Durkin had told how he personally deposited for King the $49,000 check received from Merton as a "retainer."

He also had told of two checks for $2,500 each, drawn in 1922 by King in Daugherty's favor.

Durkin later testified that two checks were drawn by King in favor of Jess Smith, comrade of Daugherty, one for $4,143.50 and the other for $3,900.

KLAN PUTS O. K. ON J. REED AND BORAH

Imperial Wizard Declares for Either Missouri Democrat or Idaho Republican.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The names of Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, and Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, were proposed today as "available for the presidential election" by Dr. Hiram W. Evans, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan.

Evans in an interview endorsed both Reed and Borah as "first class, upstanding Americans," whom Klansmen would be glad to support. He served notice today that the Klan would take an "active part" in all future elections, particularly the November congressional election and two years hence in the presidential campaign.

Al Smith "No Chance."

As anticipated, Evans declared Gov. Al Smith, of New York, had "no chance" to win the presidency. In fact, he said, he was sure that Klansmen would desert the Democratic party, going into the Republican ranks if Smith were nominated by the Democrats.

"Senator Reed is one of our greatest citizens, he is a champion of the constitution and of American institutions," Evans said.

"But he is wet," it was suggested.

"He's a great American just the same," Evans replied.

Evans declared Borah was "available" because he was "one of our greatest living Americans." The ruler of the "lavish empire" also on the presidential horizon. Evans said.

"He's a great American just the same," Evans replied.

Governor Vic Donahey and former Senator Albee Pomeroy are also on the presidential horizon," Evans said, if they win their elections in Ohio this fall.

ON SACCO-VANZETTI

May Be Held Up Till End of Court Term in October Judge Intimates.

Dedham, Mass., Sept. 16.—Probability of obtaining an early decision in the motion for a new trial for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted payroll messenger slayers, was remote today as the hearing went into its fourth day.

With argument of William G. Thompson, counsel for the defense, less than half completed, Judge Webster Thayer indicated that he would hold the decision in abeyance for several days and probably until the present term of court is concluded in October.

In the event Judge Thayer should refuse to grant the convicted men a new trial, an appeal will be made to the state Supreme Court on the evidence in the present hearing, it is believed. Failure there will likely mean that an effort will be made to reach the United States Supreme Court on technicalities arising in the first trial of the two men.

RIOTERS IN ENGLAND STONE MINE "SAFETIES"

Mob Men Engaged in Maintenance Work in Collieries Till Police Act.

Doncaster, Eng., Sept. 16.—Police reserves were summoned today to break up demonstrations against safety-men, working in collieries near here.

A mob of 2,000 men and women, singing "The Red Flag," marched on the collieries and staged a demonstration against the workers. The safety-men took refuge in an ambulance and escaped, although the rioters hurled stones.

The police finally dispersed the mob.

State Body Declares for Repeal and for Enforcement; Names Judge R. U. Tyler for Senator, C. G. Morris for Governor Without Opposition.

New Haven, Sept. 16.—"The eighteenth amendment, while legally incorporated in the federal constitution, has no place in the 'memor' of our government. It is an indefensible curtailment of personal liberty. We believe it should be repealed and we pledge ourselves and our candidates to this end. But in taking this stand we do not countenance non-enforcement. While prohibition is the law it is the duty of the government to enforce it. Respect for law is liberty."

So declared the Democratic state convention, assembled here today to choose its ticket to contest the election of November 2, when, at 10:45 A. M., its resolutions committee had adopted a platform on which to base its campaign. The platform also declared the return of the saloon.

In addition, the platform went extensively into the matter of continuing legislation passed by the 1925 state legislature, especially those acts which "forced legislation upon our cities."

Longer for Referendum.

When the resolutions committee convened this morning it was learned the sub-committee on drafting had split during the night on the liquor plank; two members, William E. Thomas of Waterbury, and Milo R. Waters of Norwich, standing for the repeal of the 18th amendment, two others, Miss Martha Moore of New Haven and Professor K. M. Williamson of Middletown advocating strict law enforcement, while the sub-committee chairman, ex-Congressman Augustine Lonergan of Hartford, agreed with neither faction and suggested a state referendum on the prohibition question.

Professor Williamson offered a law enforcement plank to the full committee this morning.

Mr. Thomas replied that prohibition had become a state issue and that the voters were competent to govern themselves and wanted prohibition amendment repealed.

When Mr. Lonergan suggested a plank for a referendum on the prohibition issue, former Mayor David E. Fitzgerald of New Haven objected.

"Enough Straddling"

"We have been straddling long enough on this prohibition matter," said Mr. Fitzgerald. "I myself am somewhat to blame but at any rate the people want their delegates to take a definite stand and go through with it, without trying to cater to one element or another. The state referendum idea would be a rebuke to United States senator. The people want the amendment repealed."

The Lonergan plank was rejected and then the committee adopted an amendment offered by Professor Williamson, reading: "We oppose the repeal of the saloon."

Tyler and Morris.

Rollin U. Tyler of Haddam and Charles M. Morris, New Haven banker and promoter were nominated for senator and governor respectively. The rest of the state ticket is a following of the convention.

Milo R. Waters of Norwich, for lieutenant governor.

David Richman of New Haven, for secretary of state.

Peter M. Kennedy of Waterbury for state treasurer.

J. Francis Browne of Enfield, for comptroller.

Frederick M. McCarthy of Ansonia, for attorney general.

All the nominations were made by acclamation.

Old State Officers

The Democratic state central committee, meeting here this afternoon, returned their officers for another two years. The session was brief and uneventful. An expected protest by Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, of Columbia, did not materialize. The officers are James Walsh, of Meriden, chairman; A. Sidney Lynch, of West Haven, secretary; and Fred P. Holt, of Hartford, treasurer.

KICK OVER CHANGE IS NOW UNDER WAY

Selectmen and C. of C. Appoint R. V. Treat to Draw Up Protest to Conn. Co.

Chairman Robert V. Treat of the Board of Selectmen was authorized last night to name a special sub-committee from the joint committees from the Board of Selectmen and the Chamber of Commerce to write a questionnaire to General Manager Punderford of the Connecticut Company in protest against the removal of the car barns from Manchester to Hartford.

The special session last evening of the two committees was held last evening in the Hall of Records. Superintendent Scott of Hartford and Assistant General Manager Bennett of New Haven were in attendance. They discussed the Connecticut Company's side of the proposition with the two committees. It was said by them that there would be no necessity of eighty families removing from Manchester to Hartford when the change is made.

In regard to losing out on the bidding for runs, it was the opinion of the Connecticut Company officials that there was little danger of Manchester trolleyrun loss. It is expected that the reply from General Manager Punderford will be available for the joint committees when they convene again next Wednesday evening.

Managers told the joint committees that the Connecticut Company's plan to remove the car barns to Hartford came about recently but after much consideration and investigation. He said engineers had condemned the car barns as unfit for use in winter and underwriters had also condemned the heating plant. Manager Scott said the Connecticut Company had found it would be impossible to make suitable alterations without the expenditure of at least $40,000 and possibly $50,000. This money would do the Connecticut Company more good if spent on the central location in Hartford, Manager Scott said.

First Resignation. The first effect of the news of the removal of the car barns to Hartford became known today with the information that Edward Hogan, for five years a conductor for the Connecticut Company, has resigned, effective Saturday.

Hogan lives on Mill street, is married and owns property. He gave up his job and accepted another with the Royal Typewriter Company of Hartford because of the danger of having to move to Hartford. This is the first break among the Manchester trolleyrun men, naturally, have been greatly worried over the matter.

YOUNG ARDEN'S SLAYERS BELIEVED TO BE CAUGHT. Elkton, Md., Sept. 16.—With Wilson Edie, negro in jail here today and Walter White, arrested by a posse of farmers and authorities in a corn field in Cecil county, about 16 miles from here, police believe they have the two masked men who killed Walter "Red" Harden of Chester, Pa. and attacked two girls, companions, Florence Scott, 14, and Anna Kiensky, 17, last Friday near Chester. Webb's wife was also taken into custody and brought here.

DRIVES DRUNK, WRECKS 2 CARS, INJURES DOCTOR. Greenwich, Sept. 16.—Philip G. Vipe, a local butcher, was in court today to answer a charge of operating his car while he was under the influence of liquor. Dr. C. A. Howgate is in hospital. The car operated by Vipe last evening crashed into one driven by David Bailey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and then struck another driven by Frank Marino, of Greenwich, wrecking both. Dr. Howgate was riding with Vipe.

TOWN'S OFFICIALS ARE MOVING TODAY

All But Three Are in New City Hall—To Be Settled Down Within Week.

Manchester's town officials are making themselves acquainted with new surroundings today. All but three of the officials are in the new City Hall. The others expect to occupy their respective offices within a couple of weeks more.

The main work of moving started yesterday. At present the Engineering Department, Board of Health, Building Inspector, Board of Assessors and Selectmen's Office have been removed into the new building and their respective representatives are in operation there.

The Town Clerk's Office and Judge of Probate and Tax Collector's apartments have not yet been vacated in the Hall of Records but will be as soon as suitable arrangements can be made.

The apartment into which Tax Collector George H. Howe will have his new office is not quite finished and his moving awaits the completion of the office.

Meanwhile data pertaining to these three departments remains in the Hall of Records as do the books of the Assessors. This will not be moved until the last minute.

WAR AGAINST CIVILIAN IS FEAR OF CHEMISTS

This is the second of a series of articles by Israel Klein, science editor of NEA Service and The Herald, relating the part chemistry is taking in the welfare and progress of the world.

BY ISRAEL KLEIN, Science Editor, NEA Service. Great factor for peace that chemistry is striving to be, it may bring about the most deadly warfare that mankind has experienced.

A chemical war against the civilian. Every Scientific and Industrial Research and one of the most broad minded scientists in the world.

Sir James sees this chemical war ahead of us and fears there is no way of avoiding it, except through the co-operation of nations.

Every chemical factory, he points out, is a potential arsenal—yet it is essential for the progress and welfare of countries in peace time.

"In the course of a few hours," he declares, "the chemical factories of every nation can be transferred into plants for the production of high explosives and gases.

Power in Chemicals. "Fortis may be demolished. Warships may be sunk. Armies may be disbanded. But the chemical factory must always remain a source of potential destruction.

"Give a country a good airplane and airship service and a good chemical outfit—and you have the most disastrous war machine that has ever been put to use.

"Every government regards this very seriously, for it suggests a war against which there may be little means of defense.

"The gas-trained soldier is well protected against the poisons of such warfare. But how about the civilian at home?"

Armies, in fact, may be of no use in a future war, Sir James believes, except to pilot airplanes and ships, or provide means of defense for the civilians. For the last war has evolved gases so fatal that no soldier dare tread the ground where these were scattered.

Deadly No Man's Land. There is one chemical—a late product of the war—that could incapacitate a soldier if he dropped it happened to be picked up by the state central committee by notifying the chairman of the various town committees, which he claimed was within the rule of the party and added that in his opinion 60 per cent. of the delegates had not been notified by individual notice.

It was at the juncture that Dr. Dolan injected the national question into the evening's arguments when he said that it was a question of whether McAdoo or Smith would run the state of Connecticut so he had when he went to New York he supported Al Smith and did not once vote for McAdoo.

John W. Murphy, chairman of the local town committee, arose to a point of order and a shout came from the opposite side of the hall to the effect that the "old machine" was slipping.

Dr. Dolan today took the floor and declared that "no man is bigger than his party." For the sake of success and harmony, he would not inject a contest on the convention floor today.

BOY SWALLOWS POISON YEARS AGO, SICK NOW

As the result of accidentally swallowing some potash water three years ago, Clarence Baldwin, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Baldwin of Buckland, is now facing the possibility of an operation to save his life. He is ill at his home and the attending physician has advised his removal to the Memorial hospital.

The case of the Baldwin boy is unusual. According to the story told by the mother, the child was playing about "in house and somehow the bottle of potash got into his possession. He drank some of it. As a result his throat was badly burned. The child was not taken to the hospital at the time but was given medical care at the home.

The injury, however, has caused the walls of the stomach to contract and the mother says the child has been unable to eat solid substances and has had to live on fluids. He recently became worse following an attempt to eat an apple and it was necessary to call a doctor yesterday.

No Cause For Alarm. When questioned about the case today the attending physician said there was no cause for immediate alarm. However, he said that while the child was not seriously ill at present, it would be only a question of time before the child would have to have an operation.

The doctor said the boy was in fairly good health but added that the child, who is five years old, did not have the strength or endurance of an ordinary boy of his age. At the hospital, he said, it would be possible to perform a minor operation that would make the boy normal.

MARVEL INVENTION TO PREVENT RUST IN LOCOMOTIVES

Philadelphia Engineer Has Device That Will Save Millions of Dollars Every Year.

BY ISRAEL KLEIN, Science Editor, NEA Service. Millions of dollars annually will be saved by the invention of a compact high-powered water heater that is expected to keep the boilers of locomotives almost entirely free from rust.

This invention, with a width of only eight inches, is as powerful as a stationary heating plant four feet wide. With a force of 2600 horsepower, it throws a fine film of the cold water from the tender into jet of exhaust steam, heating the boiler tubes and coming into contact with the iron of the tubes, produced from oxide or iron hydrate. These chemical compounds are always found where corrosion is pronounced.

Thus the main purpose of McBride was to keep the free oxygen of the water from the boiler pipes. And his chief problem was the design of the heater into so compact a unit that it could be installed at the side of the locomotive and still be as powerful as any large water heater of the stationary type.

Heretofore, oxygen reaching the boiler tubes and coming into contact with the iron of the tubes, produced from oxide or iron hydrate. These chemical compounds are always found where corrosion is pronounced.

This feedwater heater gets rid of most of this oxygen. "This feedwater heater mixes exhaust steam and the cold water from the tender by direct contact," explains D. R. Colema, head of the railway department of the Worthington plant. This will save an item in operation expenses which often amounts to large figures for the railways.

CROWDS TURN OUT AT STORE OPENING

Thousands Jam Their Way Into the Fintex Stores on Asylum Street, Hartford, Today.

Today Hartford bears witness to the exemplary fulfillment of that time-honored adage, that insists that great oaks from little acorns grow.

Thousands jammed their way into the new Fintex Clothing Store at 65 Asylum street, another link forged in a chain of distinctive men's stores that not only have elected esteem everywhere, but have gained and held a reputation that argues well for the continued success of the Fintex enterprises.

The crowds came out of sheer curiosity for the Fintex stores represent the triumph of an idea and a conception of value-giving such as the clothing world had never hitherto known. And judging by the spoken reactions, they went away convinced that they had become privy to the secrets of Fintex superiority and success.

Remarkable Growth

For those who believe in an oak springs from an acorn, a magic wand had fan-ed the growth of Fintex as a national institution will reveal disquieting facts. Fintex has blossomed into its present prominence through the sheer power of its founder, to analyze public taste and demands and to satisfy both in no uncertain fashion.

There was not the usual uphill struggle. Fintex won its battle almost at its inception. No sooner was introduced than it became popular. It combined the quality, style and price that men everywhere demanded. It bridged a yawning gap between serviceable wearing apparel and popular price. It filled the need of the hour—men's clothes that resembled costlier garments at a price far below the other.

Small Beginning

Fintex, like most institutions that have come to take their place in American life, sprang from small beginnings, a clear-cut, even if small monument to the dreams and business ideals of its founders. That was more than 25 years ago. Since that time it has swept on, leaving no stone unturned in the path to greater service. Its reward was growth, phenomenal but steady growth until today it stands as one of the greatest clothing institutions in the country, an institution that has left and is leaving an indelible impression on the minds of Mr. America. Its fame grew and spread and in its wake, Fintex followed with steady march, intent enough to house it. Hartford's is the newest store in the great Fintex chain and has been acclaimed one of the most beautiful as it represents the ideal of continuing progress.

When one comes to examine the reasons for the steady growth and increasing popularity of Fintex one finds that they are rooted in ideas at once unique and practical; ideas that strike a popular chord and elect the wholehearted response popularity deserves.

Fintex is synonymous with one price. It knows no graduation of prices. Whatever the garment, suit, topcoat or overcoat; whatever the style and material, the price is one, low because of the methods of Fintex operation and sales.

Their Own Factory

All Fintex clothing is made in the mammoth Fintex factory, owned and controlled by Fintex. Fintex clothes are designed by Fintex designers, hand-tailored by Fintex tailors and sold direct to the consumer in stores owned and operated by Fintex. It is all one large institution, an institution characterized by efficiency, direct manufacture and direct selling. It is thus that Fintex is able to concentrate on one price; to concentrate on individual, distinctive styles; to concentrate on faultless tailoring.

Fintex originates, and in originating asks no more. Fashioning its own garments in its own factory and selling them in its own stores, it is able to render a service that cannot be duplicated—a service that combines high quality and distinctive styles with serviceable fabrics at a popular price. Fintex studies the individual needs of its patrons and strives to meet them according to the highest and most valuable standards.

Is Seasonable

Unlike several other institutions the Fintex institution is seasonal in its activities. With the approach of each season, every Fintex store is fully equipped with the latest styles and color peculiar to that particular season. What leftovers there may be give way to new, fresh garments, direct from the Fintex factory, and tailored according to the best and most reliable dictates of fashion. Thus patrons are assured of the newest styles, the newest models, the newest materials.

In recent years, due to the steadily increasing improvements and innovations made by Fintex, that quality peculiar to Fintex clothes has come to be known as Master Quality, a quality originated and built by Fintex master craftsmen in its own factory. It is a quality that was rendered possible only by the enormous volume of the Fintex stores and the great public response to Fintex.

Master Quality has arrived only after long years of planning, study and desire to give the best at the lowest possible price. It has been acclaimed wherever it has been introduced, and Hartford was introduced to it today in the beautiful Fintex store.

Public Appreciative

It was evident at the opening that Hartford manhood appreciates distinctive clothes and recognizes individuality, quality and value. Such a combination for satisfaction as Fintex clothes offer had never been seen in Hartford until today and those who saw it revealed in what they saw. They saw serviceability and distinctiveness in the Fintex woollens; smart, up-to-date styling, and outstanding quality. What is more, what they saw was priced at one level, a level attainable by every man who demands the best at a popular price for the only difference between Fintex clothes and costlier garments is the price.

Hartford welcomes Fintex since it knows that it has a legitimate place to fill in the hearts of its men. It welcomes the addition of its wonderful store, and hopes its success will be as great, if not greater than the other Fintex stores.

VAUDEVILLE SEASON OPENS AT STATE TODAY

Five Select Acts, and Feature Picture Make Up Bill for Today, Tomorrow and Saturday.

Vaudeville will be back at the State Theater beginning today. This is welcome news to all Manchester theater goers who have been patiently waiting for the opening of the new season.

A most excellent bill has been arranged for the opening performance. Five acts of select vaudeville, all guaranteed by the State management to be of the very best quality obtainable, will be presented.

The first one will be Chester and Leon Earl in "The Greatest of All Aerial Acts." What these two artists can do to the air is hardly worth mentioning.

Following this act will come McDonald and Oakes in a singing and dancing specialty. Both are artists in dancing and singing. Wait until you see them—they'll make you shout "Great!"

For the third act there is Harry Goodwin and Company in a comedy specialty known as "A Striking Affair." In this act six talented people take part. They certainly know how to bring out the laughs.

Then comes Kemper and Hayward in another rib-tickling comedy sketch. These two are famous the country over for the quality of their mirth provoking act.

For the headliner, the State presents "The Hickford Family" in a musical revue. This is a most versatile family of musicians and entertainers. The mother, father, two daughters, and son have appeared in every first class theater from coast to coast. Young Harry Hickford who is only seventeen years of age, has been acclaimed by music critics to be a master pianist. With youth, personality, and ability, this act is a credit to any theater anywhere.

There you have it—a vaudeville bill without par anywhere. Who could ask for a better assortment of entertaining features than the above program of well balanced acts?

But that is not all—there will be a fine feature picture. The beautiful Corinne Griffith will be featured in her latest and best photoplay, "Into Her Kingdom."

Russia, despotic, colorful, mysterious as it was before those dark days of the Bolshevik revolution that resulted in the entire annihilation of the Romanoff family, and the overthrowing of the government which for 400 years has been ruled by an iron hand, is the background for Corinne's latest screen play. It is a highly dramatic story of the Grand Duchess Taliana. She comes into her royal powers to the throbbing beats of drums and bugles, but learns that all happiness is not to be found in the realms of what men call royal glory. When a little baby comes into her life, the Duchess finds that there is a greater call of real happiness in the father of baby than there is in the sickle acclamations of the people who in time determine the extent of royal power. When your heart knows the limit of romance and joy, your eyes will be on Corinne Griffith in "Into Her Kingdom."

The admission prices for vaudeville performances will be: Matinee, 15 cents for children, 35 cents for adults. Evening: Orchestra, 50 cents, balcony, 35 cents, and children, 20 cents.

Matinee will be at 2:15, and in the evening the feature picture will be shown, together with short film subjects at 7 o'clock, while the vaudeville will be presented at 8:30. The feature picture will be repeated following the vaudeville. On Saturday showings will be continuous.

CAMP MEETING WOODS

Editor, The Evening Herald:

Years ago just west of Bolton Center, near where the road runs from the Center to the Notch stood a toll gate known as the "White Gate". Half a mile west of there on the road to South Manchester, camp meetings were held in 1836 1838 and 1847 on land owned by Jabez I. White, and later owned by Dr. C. L. Sumner. Hence the name "Camp Meeting Woods."

A camp meeting was once held in this town in the woods on the north side of Charter Oak street, opposite the Rogers Co. paper mills.

MORE ABOUT CAMP MEETINGS

Editor, The Evening Herald:

In answer to the letter in last night's Herald asking about "Camp Meeting Woods" I will say that the reason for calling the road from Highland Park to Bolton, "Camp Meeting Road" was that years ago the Methodists in this district very often held their meetings in that vicinity. It is perhaps more than eighty years ago since the Methodists met at that place. People who know the camp meeting woods are aware of the fine spring of water there. Good water was essential to camp meetings.

In those days the majority of the people were farmers. The camp meetings were always held after the haying was over. The farmers would load their wagons with such household goods as were necessary and with their oxen would start for the camp meeting. They came from miles around.

There was also at one time a camp meeting site in the woods near Charter Oak street in the neighborhood of the Rogers paper mill. There is there today a splendid spring in the meadows just south of Charter Oak street.

Also years ago the Methodists used to meet annually in the vicinity of Long Tom Hill.

HALL-MILLS.

Indictment of four members of the Stevens tribe for the Hall-Mills murder by a grand jury whose foreman was notoriously a Stevens partisan assures that there is to be a trial, at last, in that fantastic tragedy.

Conditions are such that it seems fair to assume that a genuine effort will be made to convict, and that if the accused quartette are really guilty they will be so found and punished. The forces of justice appear to be in the ascendant for the time being at least.

But in the view of the American public conviction of the principals of this cold blooded crime is hardly more than a necessary step in the more important matter of uncovering the snarl of corruption that apparently brought about the suppression of a prosecution at the time of the original inquiry. The real meat in the Hall-Stevens murder cocoon is whether or not there was debauchery of the legal machinery of the state in the interest of criminals of wealth, by the use of their wealth.

It is upon that aspect of the case that the very great public interest in the affair rests. The American people, regrettably enough, are extremely well accustomed to murders and more or less hardened to them. They are not yet used to seeing well-to-do murderers laugh at the law solely because they are well-to-do. They are anxious to see whether so abominable a condition can be stopped before it becomes common practice. For that reason the Hall-Mills murder trial will be regarded, throughout the east, as in some ways the most important ever held in the United States.

TOM BERGNER.

Not for a long time has there been reported a criminal case so convincingly disclosing the thinness of the ice on which thousands of merely irresponsible youngsters are traveling as that of young Tom Bergner of Brooklyn.

Tom is twenty-three. He belongs to a good family and has always lived at home—a good home in a good part of the big residential city. He was a regular boy—made a good record at High school, at business college; won a medal as a high school sprinter; served two years, with credit, in a Brooklyn national guard regiment. A perfectly normal boy.

He worked faithfully with his father in the restaurant business till the father sold out, retired. Then the boy got a job as a salesman and had to have a car. He borrowed the money for the car and made good on the job. Then the concern made him a collector—and he spent a little of the money he collected, because he was going to be married and was furnishing a home—and there was the car and all. He had to pay that money back to the firm, of course. He worried about that. And then the stick-up idea came silding into his head. Just once! It would be easy. He would get clean out of his troubles—and stay out. Some time he could send back the money from the stick-up, anonymously.

He tried it—and got ten dollars. That didn't help much, so he tried it again. He wasn't a very good picker of stick-up plants. He held up seven places in just a few days—and altogether got only about a hundred dollars.

Then he was caught. He faces twenty years; under the Baumes law it could be life. Probably he will get ten anyhow. There won't be any wedding. There won't be anything any more, probably, for young Tom Bergner.

The case is impressive because Tom was so very much just the ordinary young fellow. There are about ten million young fellows in this country who ought to know—and think—about this Brooklyn boy.

FIGHTS.

Would that some of the belligerency of the Connecticut Democracy could be transfused into the veins of the sporting gentlemen who aspire to obtain or retain pugilistic laurels. On the one hand we have prize fighters scornful to even consider such a thought as slapping each other down in the ring for anything less than sums running into six figures. On the other hand we witness the edifying spectacle of Connecticut's Democrats flying at each other's throats with all the ferocity of pit bulldogs or game cocks, every time that there is a gathering of the party—and all with nothing in the world at stake but the grand and glorious feeling that comes from being in a fine big fight, best of all if you succeed in pounding the other fellow into insensibility, next best if you are pounded into insensibility yourself.

The way to get an honest to goodness "heavy" battle that would be worth the admission pins would be to bring Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney to Connecticut, endow them with citizenship here and with membership in the Democratic party and make them delegates to a state convention. Then adjourn to the Sesqui stadium and you'd have a fight as was a fight—without paying Tex Rickard or the fighters a nickel.

SLENDER THREADS.

On what slender threads hang the lives of men who engage in such enterprises as the Paris-New York fight has received a startling demonstration. That fight was to have started at dawn today. Everything, seemingly, was in readiness as far as human forethought could anticipate. Then, at almost the moment of the start it was discovered that one little rivet out of the thousands in the gasoline tank, had snapped and that the fuel was leaking out. So the flight was postponed.

Any one of ten thousand things may happen—in mid-ocean—to bring disaster to such an adventure. The stark courage of men who engage in such undertakings, with their experienced eyes wide open to the multiplicity of the perils they face, is past the understanding of the average human.

Yet there are plenty of people, who have never been nearer to an airplane than they must be to get a ground view of one flying, who will calmly predict that "commercial" aviation between America and Europe is a mere matter of details to be arranged presently, presenting no more difficulties than a little financing and making out of time cards.

An airplane that breaks a strut or develops a pipe line leak in the middle of the Atlantic air is a long way from home, and its occupants are bad insurance risks. And it is our conception that it will be longer than the day after tomorrow before air traffic puts the surface liners out of business. Meantime, we can and will earnestly hope that Capt. Fonck and his valorous companions, when they do start, will land safely on the other side. But it's the devil of a trip.

THE MAGIC TOUCH.

When you come to think of it Judge Raymond A. Johnson must have a magic recipe for corralling votes, else how could he possibly have come out a winner in the Tuesday primary? The police court judge who can serve for six years and then go before the voters without coming out of the contest—whatever it may be—peeled to the arteries is a wonder.

Jones bumps his automobile into Smith's and Smith is dumped out and gets a sprained ankle. Jones is haled into court and fined say $25 for reckless driving. Thereafter he is a mortal enemy of the judge. Also Smith is an equally mortal enemy of the judge because he did not fine Jones ten thousand dollars and send him to jail for twenty years into the bargain.

In the course of six years the number of Joneses and Smiths who appear in any police court, either as offenders or offended against, while it does not often include the entire voting list of a community, amounts to a sinister proportion of said roster of citizenry. And every last one of them goes out sore at the judge. Even those who are acquitted retain a grudge because the judge didn't order their dismissal on sight without hearing the case, while the complainants against them are invariably fit to be tied.

Being a judge of a police court is all right, and being a candidate for elective office is all right, but the individual who can mix the two and get away with it is a wiz. Wherefore, register awe for Judge Johnson.

GAGGED.

We agree with the good people of Luton, England, that the Prince of Wales ought to wear a straw hat.

Making straw hats is the business of Luton, and if it weren't for the American trade Luton would go definitely on the bum, because there are not enough straw hats worn in England, by Englishmen, any more, to pay for the coal to keep Luton's fingers from freezing while they are making the hats. Yet if Wales were to come out in a Luton hat next year you couldn't see Englishmen for the dust they would make trampling on each other in the hat shops seeking straws.

Yet we don't know that there is any way we Americans can officially interfere in this situation, even by means of good advice. For there is Calvin Coolidge and this country's second—if not first—important industry. What has Calvin Coolidge ever done personally to encourage patronage of the bootlegging industry? Let him who would pluck the mote from his brother's eye, etc.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 16.—The manner in which lunchers gallop their food in the "quick and hasty" is one of the sights of New York. In one of these places located on Madison Avenue in the mid-Porties and catering almost entirely to salad and sandwich eating girl workers, 6,000 persons are served, the manager informs me.

To accommodate this number in the required time, almost military precision is required in service. Only the most hard-bolled can loiter a moment after the meal has been consumed. The hostesses and attendants begin to strip off the table cloths and pull back the chairs the moment a diner has taken his last sip of demi tasse. The portions are regulated with amazing accuracy. Four experts view each plate before it leaves the kitchen. Their trained eyes detect the slightest deviation from the standardized helping and they stand ready with spoon and knife to remove so little as half a spoonful.

This, the manager tells me, is necessary if the established efficiency is to be maintained. And the chances are that 60 per cent of the diners come from towns where the inn keepers would blush if they felt their guests were going away hungry.

It has been said that the best place in the world to start an argument is Columbus circle. This spot, as is quite generally known, is supposed to be the most trafficked place in America. But on the northwest arc, particularly after sundown, thwarted debaters of all ages gather in "thresh things out" much as the boys gathered around Simpkins' country store at the Four Corners.

No stranger is denied a voice in the argument and oftentimes as many as 15 or 20 groups may be seen going to it simultaneously. The debates are entirely impersonal and any injection of personalities results in the outing of the belligerent.

One Sunday night not so long ago I witnessed a dozen or more goings to it repeatedly, in spite of a drizzling rain, on the subject of weather or not an only child has a better chance than one of a large family. Long about midnight, again passing the spot, I noticed they were still at it. And the drizzling rain was still falling.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Sept. 16.—New York state is worrying the Republican congressional campaign managers considerably. Their party there is split wide open.

They have until Sept. 22—the date of the Republican state convention—to put it together again, but they seem to be making very little progress toward doing so. On the other hand, the Democrats, while divided nationally, don't appear to be divided at all, so far as New York state is concerned.

And New York state, of all states, is the most important politically, only object to losing Senator Wadsworth, but if they do lose him,

Senator Wadsworth

Republican chances in the state in 1928 will be anything but improved and no party can well spare New York's 48 electoral votes in a presidential fight.

Senator Wadsworth, though his party managers want him re-elected, gets the blame for the awkward position in which the New York Republicans find themselves.

Wadsworth always was considered rather moist, but he voted for the Volstead act, and if he hadn't said anything about the wet-and-dry issue, dry New York Republicans probably wouldn't have bolted him in the coming senatorial contest.

It looked to him, however, as if the Democrats were sure to put up a wet against him at their convention, Sept. 27. It was his opinion that, in a clash between an out-and-out wet and even a pussy-foot candidate, New York state would elect the wet, so he made up his mind not to let anybody outdo him in wetness.

That's what split his party. Wadsworth will be renominated Sept. 22 all right. Everybody concedes that he'll have a majority in the Republican convention, but it won't be unanimous, by a long shot. The dries will bolt and put up F. W. Cristman as an independent dry Republican.

If Cristman would draw equally from Democrats and Republicans this wouldn't be so bad from a Republican standpoint.

Whereas, however, there is a good sized up-state dry element in the New York Republican party, among the Democrats, whose strength is in New York City, the dries are a negligible consideration. That the latter will nominate a wet—even if it isn't Al Smith—is a foregone conclusion. As between Republicans and Democrats, New York state always is doubtful. With all the Democrats voting one way and the Republicans dividing their votes between two candidates, there can't be any reasonable doubt concerning the outcome.

Then the next step. Say, for the sake of argument, that Al Smith carries the state of New York for the Senate. His prestige and the eastern wet's prestige, within the ranks of the Democracy, will be increased enormously. If Smith was strong in the 1924 Democratic national convention, his strength will be doubled in the convention of 1928.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY MARY VAUX WALCOTT

Smithsonian Institution Snow we associate with winter, flowers with summer; yet in this picture we see flowers coming up and blossoming right through the snow. These flowers, found in the mountain regions of the west, are called glacier-lilies. They are much like our common trout-lilies or adonis' tongues and, like them, are bright yellow.

They blossom first in the low lands and follow the melting snow up the mountain sides, often ten coming right up through it. They continue blooming until early in September, and it sometimes happens that the flowers get covered up by the early snowfalls the flowers stay under the snow all of the autumn. When this happens summer it melts away there the winter, and when in the following flowers are just as if they had recently come out.

DAILY POEM

THE MADE OUT

It's kinda strange, but the scenes do change as the seasons swing about. The bright wears down and the dark comes 'roun', when the summer's fadin' out. The blossoms fair that perfume the air hang their heads as the days grow chill. The stems bend low. Nature lets them go in the frost that comes to kill. The atmosphere doesn't seem so clear. There are heavy clouds on high. You can feel the call of the coming fall, when the summer's passin' by. It's the brisk and keen air that kills the green. Makes the great outdoors seem dead. Things that once were bright, sorta drift from sight. There's a somberness instead. 'Yes, we bid goodby, an' we sorta sigh, but the future's not so black. We can always know that, though summers go, they are always coming back.

POE'S STORIES: Hop-Frog (2)

Between Hop-Frog and Trippetta a beautiful friendship grew. The girl was much puffed by the court because of her grace and beauty, but Hop-Frog was made the butt of all sorts of jokes. Even his name was a joke among the king's seven ministers because of his infirmity. Trippetta often helped and consoled him.

On some grand state occasion the king had decided to give a masquerade. He called upon Hop-Frog and Trippetta for ideas.

Although liquor crazed Hop-Frog, and he refused to drink it, the king ordered him to drink, that he might "refresh his ingenuity."

The king made Hop-Frog drink until the dwarf was nearly crazed. Trippetta, pale as death, pleaded with the king to spare her friend the insanity that liquor wrought in him. The king pushed her away and dashed the contents of his goblet into her face. The eyes of Hop-Frog gleamed with a sinister light. (Continued.)

WAPPING

Harry Piles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Piles left Wednesday afternoon for Suffield, Mass. where he is to attend school this year.

The town school board held their first meeting at Wapping school hall on Tuesday evening, in one of the school rooms.

Wapping Grange held their regular meeting in the school hall on Tuesday evening with nearly sixty present, it being home exercises night. They listened to a very interesting address by Miss Stillingworth of Hartford, who illustrated her talk about "Health" by the use of lantern slides. The address was followed by an instrumental duet by Mrs. H. Adams and Mrs. Edward P. Collins, a reading by Mrs. Arthur Sharp, recitation by Mrs. Asher A. Collins and a piano and violin by the Misses Martha and Eleanor Houghton, who responded to an encore. Following this there was a supper of roast beef, baked beans, salads, rolls, coffee and pie and these, prepared by the ladies as their forfeits for being beaten in the recent contest, by the brothers of Wapping Grange.

The High school class of girls in the Federated Sunday school will hold its next meeting and social at the home of Miss Helen Lane, on next Saturday evening under the leadership of their teacher, Mrs. Albert E. Stiles of Pleasant Valley.

Mrs. Robert Daly of Rye street, sister of Thomas Burgess of this place, who has been sick at her home, is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Simonds and two children, Barbara and Raymond Jr., spent the day Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Frink.

Fred G. Easton, Mrs. Lida B. Huntley, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Huntley, and Mr. Charles Prescott, all of Springfield, Mass., were guests on Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frink.

DOUBLE BILL AT CIRCLE TODAY AND TOMORROW

"Cat's Pajamas" and "Havoc" Make Up Unusually Good Double Feature.

For today and tomorrow the Circle Theater presents a fine double feature program. "Havoc," a vivid picture of a mighty drama, will be the first feature. As a stage play, "Havoc" made a tremendous hit in London, New York and Paris. As a picture it is even better.

In "Havoc" are featured two of Fox Productions' greatest stars—George O'Brien and Madge Bellamy. War make wreak havoc on an entire universe, but a group of unscrupulous women may do as much damage to men as a score of wars. That, in a nutshell, is the story of "Havoc." Two men whose lifelong friendship is ruined by their love for a selfish woman, drift apart after having been constant chums for years. One of them becomes a captain, and by circumstances, the other became a lieutenant in the same military company. Then the fun starts, as they say, and it's some picture after that, you can be sure.

The other picture will be a Famous Players-Lasky feature length comedy, "The Cat's Pajamas." O. Boy! What a wow this picture is! It's just one grand roar of laughter from beginning to end. Did you ever see a cat on "a bat"? Oh, it's just too funny to express in so many words; you've just got to see it.

In "The Cat's Pajamas" are featured, of all play-ers, the charming Betty Bronson and the temperamental Ricardo Cortez. Perhaps you will say that these actors could never take part in a good comedy and be really funny. But they do just that. In fact they're so very funny that they are making those "comedians" who do nothing else but try to think up new gags to make people laugh, green with jealousy.

Would you check your cat with a clock room attendant, just as if he were a garmen? Maybe you would after seeing this picture. It's "The Cat's Pajamas."

On Saturday, there will be another good double feature bill. Hoot Gibson will be featured in his latest production, "The Man in the Saddle." Hoot is as ever, and better now than ever, a likeable, lovable, dumbbell with an amazing genius for getting into all kinds of trouble.

The other picture will be an enchanting romance and a sure-fire comedy, "Footloose Widows." It is a hilarious story of the deluxe adventures of a pair of husband-hunting gold diggers, or in other words, something very young man should know about women. "Footloose Widows" is a smart, brightly complicated, swift, and surprising comedy-drama. (Quite a string of adjectives, but they're all deserved.) In this film are featured Louise Fazenda, Jacqueline Logan, Jason Robards, and Arthur Hoyt.

RUSHING WORK ON CENTER ST.

Highway Dept. Doubles Its Force to Complete Job;
Progress to Date.

The State Highway Department has doubled its force of workmen in effort to complete the Center street work before winter sets in, it was stated today.

Two concrete mixers are now in action filling in the concrete in the roadway on the south side of the street. It was said this morning by an official of the department that the south side of the street will probably be completed in a month. At present it is completed as far as Roosevelt street and both trolley and automobile traffic is using the new roadway to that point.

Concrete Work.
The two concrete mixers will finish their work of filling the base of the road by next Tuesday night. Then there will be a two weeks' delay necessary in order to allow the cement to "set." Two weeks more of work will complete the asphalt coating.

Today the steam shovel of the Connecticut Company started work at the Adams street end of the north trolley track, the south track having been entirely completed.

State's Part.
As soon as the trolley company's shovel gets a sufficient start, the state department will send its steam shovel to start on the north side of the roadway. The steam shovels made a headway of about 500 feet a day while the concrete mixers average 400 feet per day.

CLUB of Boston

Each Member Famous

The club is composed of Norman Arnold, first tenor, who was leading tenor of the Boston English Opera Company—co-recitalist with Schumann-Heink, Fritz Kreisler and Percy Grainger. He is soloist at the New Old South Church of Boston and has sung in concerts in all parts of the United States and Canada.

Roy Harlow's speaking voice is, of course, familiar to the radio audience, as he has been announcer during the broadcast periods. He has enjoyed a rich experience in Light Opera with Raymond Hitchcock and George Cohan, and is in addition the composer, writer and producer of the famous Filene Shows. To him goes much of the credit of giving a personality to this group which removes it from the routine quartets so often a trying part of entertainment programs. Mr. Harlow is the second tenor.

Walter Kidder, baritone, is said to be New England's best. He has sung with all principal oratorio societies and in concert work. He is soloist at Elliot Church, Newton.

Cameron Steele's bass voice is one of extraordinary depth and sonority, and, coupled with his light opera experience, makes him a valued member of the group. It would be less than just to omit mention of his ability as a teller of stories particularly of Scottish origin.

The Following Three Concerts

Will be given by Seventeen specially selected artists. This concert will be conducted by Henri Du Bois, famous French organist. This will be Monsieur Du Bois' first American appearance. The guest artist of these three concerts will be Edyuadya Gehrman, famous solo basso of the Vienna Opera.

SUSPENDED FOR LIFE

CHARLEY 'PHIL' ROSENBERG

Above is pictured Charles (Phil) Rosenberg, of New York, former holder of the bantamweight championship of the world, who has just been suspended for life by the Illinois Athletic Commission in order "to protect boxing." With Rosenberg into oblivion went his manager, Harry Segal, and all the boxers who had trained with Rosenberg in preparation for the scheduled title match for tonight with Bud Taylor, of Terre Haute, Ind. The latter is now acclaimed as the world champion. The boxing commission in handing down its decision said Segal and Rosenberg ignored rules pertaining to forfeits "after our commission was considered enough to grant several days of grace." It furthermore charges that an attempt was made to inject political influence into the selecting of a referee.

Tennis Talks

By ART CARLSON.

MANUELA LONSO

No. 5 in 1925 Ranking

Spain's greatest tennis player is Manuel Alonso.

If that country possessed another player, or two of his caliber, it might cause considerably more trouble in yearly Davis cup competition. As it is, Spain doesn't get very far because one chap cannot successfully carry the entire burden.

Last year Alonso was placed 5th in the national rankings. He was rated right behind America's "Big Four," Tilden, Johnston, Richards and Williams. Somewhat of a racketeer!

Alonso reached the fourth round in the national championships in 1925. He then encountered the capable Bill Johnston, playing top-notch tennis. The Californian whipped the foreigner three out of four sets, Alonso taking a thrilling second set, 8-6.

To reach the fourth clash Alonso beat Arthur Shaw, a stepping-stone, Hadi, the Jap, and Alfred Chapin, a youngster, who bids fair to go a long way in national competition. While a good performer, Alonso is still quite a stretch behind titular possibilities. He isn't in the Tilden-Johnston-Richards class by any means. True, he's coming along nicely.

Alonso plays a flashy, aggressive game. He's interesting to watch, being bold on the order of Dick Williams. The Spaniard is essentially a baseliner. He possesses magnificent forehand and backhand drives that are so speedy and well-placed that he sweeps through most players that confine their activities to the net.

Alonso often follows his forehand with a flourish that is purely lost motion. This and his smashing are weak in comparison with his ground game.

Alonso is a fairly good doubles player, but his inclination to be a bit too individual hampers team play.

EDDIE CHANDLER

National Interscholastic Champion California has perhaps turned out more high class tennis stars than any other section.

A list of far western products that have gone quite a distance in the game would include Maurice McLaughlin, Tom Bundy, "Peck" Griffin, Bill Johnston, the Kinseys, Cranston Holman, Helen Willis, Mary Browne, Elizabeth Ryan and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy. These are just few that come to mind. There have been many others.

The latest sensation from the Pacific slope is Eddie Chandler, more affectionately referred to as "Bud" around the University of California campus where he's a student.

Chandler has come to the front at a rapid rate. In 1925 and 1926 he copped the national interscholastic crown from a field which included the cream of the "rah-rah" players.

On each occasion Chandler met the redoubtable Cranston Holman in the finals. Holman, you'll recall, was considered one of the best college pastimes developed in the west in seasons. Holman, you'll further recall, sprang into national prominence a year ago when he defeated Bill Tilden in an exhibition match at Detroit.

But Chandler, playing superb tennis from start to finish, took Holman's measure twice, much to the surprise of the Holman faction.

Since winning his second championship (Chandler, by the way, was the first to take the title two years in succession since Chace of Yale did it in 1894-95), the Californian has competed in several eastern tournaments.

In one he encountered Tilden and was handed a real trimming. In others, he made impressive showings.

Chandler will enter his first national competition this season at Forest Hills. True, the title isn't likely to "overdo" any of the boys' titular honors, but he should survive the early rounds. He will, at least, get considerable experience out of the jamboree which should stand him in good stead in future classics.

Within the next few seasons you are apt to hear quite a bit about Eddie Chandler. It would be well to keep the name in mind.

Local Sport Chatter

The news that "Farmer" Jones of Hebron has signed with the New Haven Eastern League team for 1927 is of especial interest to local players and fans. Jones has played against Manchester teams on several occasions. He first really came into prominence in this locality when he pitched against the old Atlas nine several years ago. He also saw service for the Red-men last year.

Coach Kelly is giving his S. M. H. S. grid candidates daily workouts and according to reports is making fine progress of shaping the team into a football eleven that it is hoped will make a commendable showing this season. The first game is not far in the offing.

Haggerty of the Willmantic West Ends must have some punch. The case charging assault against him was again continued in court yesterday morning for a week. Recently it was postponed because Ruel, the one pressing the charges had not sufficiently recovered to appear in court. The altercation took place Sunday in a ball game at Recreation Park. Haggerty struck Ruel and knocked him out for a half an hour.

The North Ends will hold an important meeting and practice tonight at the playgrounds. Coach Ray Moonan wishes the following men to report: G. Wilson, Crockett, Waddell, Krol, Evans, McKneena, Sacher's brothers, Mitchell, Powers, Galus, Chatter, Magnuson, E. Wilson, Taylor and Hamilton.

Ten Rounds With Dempsey

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Dempsey Really Hates Two Fighters; They Are Fred Fulton and Harry Wills.

When the layman tosses a set of belligerent knuckles at his neighbor he does so because he has become provoked to a point of fury. It's hard for him to understand the impersonal feeling professional nose-busters bring to their business.

It's particularly hard for him to understand the strange contrasting emotions of Jack Dempsey, mild-mannered out of the ring, yet a snarling savage in action. Dempsey leaps to the attack with a ferocity that seems born of a deep understanding of hostility.

Yet Dempsey says he has fought only once against an opponent whom he took an axe to the teeth in battering to the floor. The man was Fred Fulton the collapsible St. Paul heavyweight.

Fulton had put Dempsey on the toaster, calling him a faker, a product of the ballyhoo and a candidate for the heavyweight crown whose pretensions were as false as a three-dollar blue white diamond.

"I socked that baby a beauty!" chuckled Dempsey. "I fainted him out on an opening with my left and then popped him with my right and he went down like a load of hard coal."

Less Than Two Minutes "I didn't even stop to look at him when he went down. I knew when that punch landed he was through for the night. I had put everything I had into it. If I ever hit anybody harder it wasn't because I meant to."

The fight Dempsey refers to took place in 1918 and Fulton was counted out in the first round after less than two minutes of fighting.

The only other fighter in the business Dempsey hates is—you guessed it, Harry Wills. He may not admit openly but he detests the septua-lued gent only slightly less enthusiastically than a picknicker does red ants and showers.

I've never been able to decide in my own mind whether Dempsey is giving Wills the run-around on account of fear or what. Last spring he told me he would never let Wills make a dime by fighting him.

Then in the next gut of lung breeze he said he'd welcome a chance to punch Wills around in a private rough-house fight.

"Some day I'll get him in the same position that Jim Jeffries got Jack Johnson and I'll see what he'll do."

I didn't know what position this was so Dempsey told me how Johnson had drifted into Jeff's saloon out in Frisco back in 1908 or thereabouts and Jeff, dared the Negro to go down in the basement and fight with bare fists.

Dempsey indicated he would welcome that kind of a battle with Wills. I thought this was a lot of okra soup at the time but his subsequent action in asking Wills to cover $150,000 and to battle on a winner-take-all basis gives it a note of sincerity.

Like the Famous Bull Oddly enough, one of the fighters Dempsey likes best is Firpo, the bull, and this in spite of the fact the bull horned him clear over the ropes and had easily been his most embarrassing moment.

"It was fun fighting that guy," Dempsey says. "It was fun because he could hit and he was always trying to hit. That put it up to me to get him quick and to be careful about how I got him. There was a spirit of high adventure in that fight that I liked."

Another of Dempsey's favorites is Georges Carpentier. He lauds him as a "swell fellow" and "nobody's sucker in the ring."

Joe Ward is the only one of his opponents he ever felt sorry for. "I still have mind-aches of old Joe sitting on his stool at Toledo with his eyes closed and his lip split," says Dempsey. "I hated to look at him."

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

Battling Nelson and Ad Wolgast each held the lightweight championship two years. Nelson ruled during 1908-1910 and Wolgast from 1910 to 1912.

Nelson came to the title by defeating Joe Gans, knocking the colored boy out in the seventeenth round. It was their second of three meetings. Gans winning the first on a foul in 42 rounds.

Wolgast took the crown from Nelson in 1910 and held it until Willie Ritchie held it out on feet against him in the sixteenth session hit Ritchie below the belt.

NEW "BIG THREE"

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 16.—A new "big three" in football, composed of Army, Navy and Notre Dame, will be operating next season. Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's famous maker of football machines, announced here today.

Rockne said the Notre Dame-Navy annual mixups will start in 1927, with the Notre Dame-Army and Army-Navy classics continuing as before.

BECOMES A FOOTBALL STAR BECAUSE OF WIFE'S CHEERING

New Orleans, Sept. 16.—When Tulane University's football team takes the field for the 1926 season, there'll be one rooster in the stands to whom victory or defeat will mean more than it does to any player on the team.

She's Mrs. Harry Gamble, the captain's wife, and Harry Gamble is the only married-grid leader in all the varsity battle fronts this year.

It's a genuine football romance—that of the Gambles. In 1925 Harry Gamble, referred to as the "Tom Shells" of southern football, stigmatized the opening of the gridiron campaign by a quiet elopement with Miss Gretchen Bush, New Orleans debutante and one of the leading beauties of the social season.

That year, with his girl bride in the stands, Harry Gamble played like a demon. Not an inch was gained against his end all season. And while Harry was starting out on the field of play, Mrs. Harry was yelling herself hoarse in the Tulane cheering section.

"I had to play football with the wife watching the show," grins Harry. "I'll have to do the same this year, too."

"And of course, I'll be at every game," returns Mrs. Gamble. "I couldn't stand it if I missed one. I play the game just as hard in the stands as Harry does on the field—and I think I'm more tired than he is when it's over."

Coach Clark Shaughnessy in speaking of Gamble, his married captain, says: "He plays a better game since he got married. If I ever get a bad Tulane team—a poor one, I mean—I think I shall hold 11 weddings and make them champions."

Iceman's Job Is Not Only Magnet To College Stars

(By ART CARLSON)

Summer vacation! It means anything but that to the college football aspirant during the vacation just over.

July-August period was taken up with various jobs that helped to put the aspiring gridder in first-class physical condition.

True, a little loose change was made on the side, but the main reason for sidestepping the easy life at some summer resort or on a fishing jaunt was to "prep" for the big grid.

The job of toting ice, made famous by "Red" Grange, the Wheaton wizard, called a majority of the boys. Grange's ice-carrying activities have spread far and wide. Other footballers before him (Eddie Tryon of Colgate, for one) played the iceman's role—but with less notoriety.

Almost every college and university had students listed with the ice-hauling brigade this summer. There were a few lads, however, that took to other forms of equally as beneficial employment.

For instance, there's Bennie Oosterbaan, Michigan's famous All-American end and a life guard at one of the beaches on Lake Michigan.

Bennie, an expert swimmer, knows equally well how to grab bathers out of the water and forward passes out of the ozone. With Oosterbaan was "Flop" Flora, another Michigan star.

Ade Schumaker, halfback at Northwestern, has been putting in his vacation at the new Purple stadium. Ade's been "rassing" huge scantlings, pushing wheelbarrows, and in general, doing various labor ing jobs around the big football plant. Melvin Drake, another Northwestern man has been doubling with him. Down in Florida several Georgia Tech grid aspirants have been helping build a new golf course as a means of getting into shape for the approaching season. Kenneth Thrash, one of the "Golden Tornado's" best bets, says he's in better condition than he's been in some time. It's a rarity to go right now. Even Bill Fincher, line coach and famous Tech player of a few years ago, got into "laboring" clothes with the rest of the boys.

Perhaps the most unusual summer job however, was that of Herman Cohen, another Northwestern football star. "Duke", as he's known around the Evanston campus, was an honest-to-goodness traffic cop on the streets of Evanston within seeing distance of the college campus.

Cohen, incidentally, has developed into one of the best "jiggers" in the police force there. He's kept the autoists toned down and prevented traffic tieups at one of the town's busiest intersections in a manner becoming the oldest veteran on the staff.

These are only a few of the summer stunts of college football aspirants.

SAINT and SINNER by Anne Austin

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE THE LANES are an average American family. There is MRS. LANE, fat, middle-aged, sickly.

Lane patted the girl's shoulder. "It was real sweet of you to let Cherry have her chance at Bob Hathaway, him being so smitten with her and all.

Cherry and Junior—nicknamed Long Lane—have both lost their jobs, and Cherry sets out to find a new one, driving downtown with CHESTER HART, Faith's own "steady," whom Cherry has succeeded in "ramping."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

THANKS very much," Faith said, smiling, her eyes looking steadily into Bob Hathaway's.

But the eager relief with which Bob Hathaway turned to Cherry made her feel faint with anger and humiliation. When the two had gone, Cherry's light, musical laugh blended with the rich basso of his own.

"Oh, yes, I remember now. I sent Joy for them. That little Stegar girl was here Saturday and the children wanted to have a tea party. The Stegars are awful high-toned folks."

"Thank you for the loveliest drive, Bob," she whispered.

Charge slips," Faith answered. "From a drawer of the library table she took out the clipped sheets of bills, and began to check them with frowning intentness."

Eighteen dollars and sixty cents for groceries for one week! And that didn't include the butcher's bill and the dairy bill.

"Mother, here's a charge of twenty cents for cookies on the tenth. Let's see, that was Saturday, wasn't it? I didn't buy any cakes—"

"Oh, yes, I remember now. I sent Joy for them. That little Stegar girl was here Saturday and the children wanted to have a tea party. The Stegars are awful high-toned folks."

"Who was that?" her mother called out impatiently, when Faith had seated herself again at the table, to go on with her work.

"He didn't give his name," Faith replied guardedly. "He wanted to speak to Cherry."

"My land, I never saw a girl as popular as she is," Mrs. Lane chuckled. Faith took the pin out of the dairy's charge slips and scanned them quickly.

"What's the total damages, Faith?" her father's voice was anxious under its attempt at jocularity. "Grocer, butcher and dairy, $31.58. Faith told him apologetically, "I'll try to keep it down to twenty-five this week, but we'll have to skimp all week to make up for tonight's company dinner."

Good Nature and Good Health

TAKE HIS TEMPERATURE, PULSE AND RESPIRATION

By MORRIS FISHER, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene the Health Magazine

A nurse who is caring regularly for a patient is likely to be interested especially in three facts—his temperature, his pulse rate, and his rate of breathing.

The normal pulse for a healthy person is about 72 per minute. This may vary from 65 to 90 or more in some instances, and still not be the reason for worry or distress.

The breathing rate is from 18 to 20 respirations per minute, and the normal temperature 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit, when taken by mouth.

Taking Temperature. When the temperature is taken under the arm, it is likely to be nearer 97.6 on the thermometer.

When the temperature is to be taken by mouth, the thermometer is placed between the closed lips and under the tongue.

The thermometer should be held under the tongue for two or three minutes before the reading can be considered accurate.

Her Own Way. A Story of a Girl of Today

JOHN'S TRIBUTE.

John Meredith sighed. I hadn't answered him as he would have liked me to.

"I expect you are right, Judy. You have shown me that if instead of being so cowardly and self-contained I had stayed in town at my mother's home and taken my medicine standing, it would have been much better for everyone concerned."

"I certainly would have kept my sister from the great sorrow she is going through. But Judy, I have one excuse, I was very young, merely a child when I had to make my great decision, yet I am ashamed of all those years that I was skulking behind my crippled arm and leg, while I left Joan to the temptations of the world after our mother died."

"If I had only someone like you then, to show me the right way, I would have seen what a weakening and coward I was."

"Judy dear, Judy, you have taught me more of life in the comparatively few hours that I have known you than I have learned in all the years that have gone before."

"Oh, I don't want to lose you now, just when I have found you."

"Don't worry, Judy, you won't lose me."

I knew I had to be flippant for if I was not, I should break down and sob.

"When I was a very little girl, my mother told me that nothing would go out of my life that something better would not come into it. That may be a sophistry or false philosophy but it has been a great comfort to me."

"If I go out of your life, John, I am sure someone else will come into it who will make you happy."

As I said this, my heart grew heavy, for I was beginning to feel that no one could come into my life who would make me happy.

"However," I continued gravely, "you know, John dear, there are many other things that you must find and keep and the greatest of all these is to find and keep yourself."

While we had been talking, I had an uneasy feeling that Mr. Symington had been hovering about near, and I was greatly relieved when I heard him walk across the drawing room and enter the hall where we were standing.

"I know by his expression that he was consumed with curiosity as to just what his friend and patron had been saying to me—just what we had been talking about."
