

REFUGEE TREK FROM FLORIDA IS UNDER WAY

960 Homeless Start for Jacksonville to Be Aided to Reach Their Friends in Other States.

West Palm Beach, Sept. 23.— Jacksonville today will receive 960 homeless women and children, with a handful of old and disabled men, and aid in returning them to friends and relatives in all parts of the country.

The Seaboard Air Line, working in cooperation with J. W. Young, Hollywood developer, brought the refugees here by bus and truck to be transferred to their trains and sent, free of charge, northward to homes of their relatives.

Pensacola Loss $3,000,000
Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 23.—This city, shut off from the outside world for three days while the West Indian hurricane lashed the gulf coast, resumed business as usual today while preparations were made to repair the havoc.

With no lives lost, and none reported injured, Pensacola considered itself lucky that it weathered the hurricane with less than $3,000,000 damage, most of which was done to wharves, docks, telephone, railroad and power companies.

Pensacola received ample warning of the coming of the hurricane and made its preparations accordingly. Business was suspended at the first rise in the wind, people shut themselves in their houses and awaited for the gale to pass.

In less than two hours after the storm passed, citizens had drained the water from their streets. Very little private property was destroyed, although a few small houses were unroofed.

A relief train despatched from Tallahassee turned back when it was found that Pensacola needed no help.

Puts Loss at $1,500,000
Washington, Sept. 23.—No deaths or serious personal injuries have been reported, but property damage in Pensacola, a vicinity is very extensive, the Pensacola naval air station advised the navy department today in a brief radio dispatch.

An unofficial message to the navy estimated the property damage at approximately $1,500,000 in Pensacola alone.

Governor Talks Bravely
Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 23.—"Florida will stand by her own." This statement was made today by Gov. John G. Martin as, tired and careworn from his trip back to the state capital at Tallahassee where official state plans for help will be formulated.

With the exception of the Moorehaven and Clewiston districts immediate needs are being cared for but money for rehabilitation is needed at once, Martin said.

FLORIDA FRUIT CROP LOSS OVER $5,000,000

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 23.—Florida's fruit crop loss from the hurricane will be between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000, according to a preliminary survey of the State Marketing Bureau, L. N. Rhodes, marketing commission said today.

The average loss is ten per cent of the crop. The crop has been cut 1,200,000 boxes of grapefruit and 500,000 boxes of oranges.

In some districts the fruit crop loss has been reported as ninety per cent.

U. S. MAY ABANDON PARLEY AT GENEVA

Gibson's Speech, Throwing Over 4 Months Work, Backed by State Dept.

Washington, Sept. 23.—The belief that America's delegates to the Geneva conference on disarmament are preparing to withdraw was strengthened here today.

Unqualified approval was given in official quarters to the speech made yesterday by the chief of the American delegation, Minister Hugh S. Gibson, in which he bluntly told the League Powers that the conference was getting nowhere and as matters stood the whole thing looked like a waste of time.

Whether actual withdrawal of American delegates will follow this admission remains to be seen. Secretary of State Kellogg has thus far contented himself with merely saying that America's delegates would remain at Geneva so long as there is any prospect of success.

Talks of Steam Roller.
Gibson, in his speech, pointed out that the commission has in effect "steam-rollered" minority views and failed even to present to the general conference any views that differed from the majority.

"Our military commission," said Gibson "appears consistently to have approached questions from both the political and military points of view and the American delegation cannot but feel that this has led to confusion. The American delegation believes this situation should be corrected by specific directions to the effect that we desire to receive replies to questions that are based on expert technical information without regard to political or economic considerations."

To Start All Over.
Gibson then suggested that all the reports formulated by this commission be returned with specific instructions to do the work over again. This was tantamount to saying that four months of work is utterly useless, and that a fresh start must be made if the conference is to get anywhere.

The State Department made public the text of Gibson's speech with evident approval, virtually serving notice that the American government is getting tired sitting in a conference where the question of real disarmament is merely being made the football of European politics and old world jealousies.

HELD FOR MURDER OF MAN SHE WEPT OVER

Companion of Dead Gunman; Accused, Is Wife of New York Business Man.

New York, Sept. 23.—Three months ago the body of a murdered man was found, riddled with bullets, on the floor of a stolen automobile which had stood unnoticed for six hours at Broadway and 135th street. The body was identified as that of Charles Cassey, 25, gunman and robber. Two days later an attractive dark woman who said she was Mrs. Cassey called at the morgue and claimed the body, sobbed over it and had it buried in Calvary cemetery.

Late yesterday the woman was arrested charged with the murder of Cassey. She is known as Mabel Joyce and had lived with Cassey. She is said to have a husband, who is a New York business man, and a four year old child.

It is believed that Cassey was killed in a fight during a wild party at the Cassey apartment.

FIGHT FOR FAIR JURY IN HALL MURDER OPENS

Simpson Asks N. J. Supreme Court for Order—Governor Moore Quizzes Former Prosecutors.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 23.—Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson's battle here today for a "foreign" jury to try the Hall-Mills murder case was preceded by an important conference in the offices of Gov. Harry A. Moore.

The governor questioned former Prosecutor Stryker and former special Prosecutor Wilbur A. Mott, who conducted the first investigation of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills four years ago, and sought detailed information regarding the management of the case.

Simpson's motion for a "foreign" jury is bitterly opposed by counsel for Mrs. Frances S. Hall, her brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, and her cousin, Henry Carpenter, all of whom are charged with the crime, and under indictment.

Three Judges on Bench.
Simpson appeared to make his formal application at 11:30. His purpose in requesting a jury drawn from some other county is that he fears a local jury would be prejudiced through acquaintance with the defendants or their friends.

On the bench were Supreme Court Justice Parker, who is to preside at the trial, and Justices Kaish and Katzenbach.

The defense was represented by Robert H. McCarter, former attorney-general of New Jersey and several associate counsel.

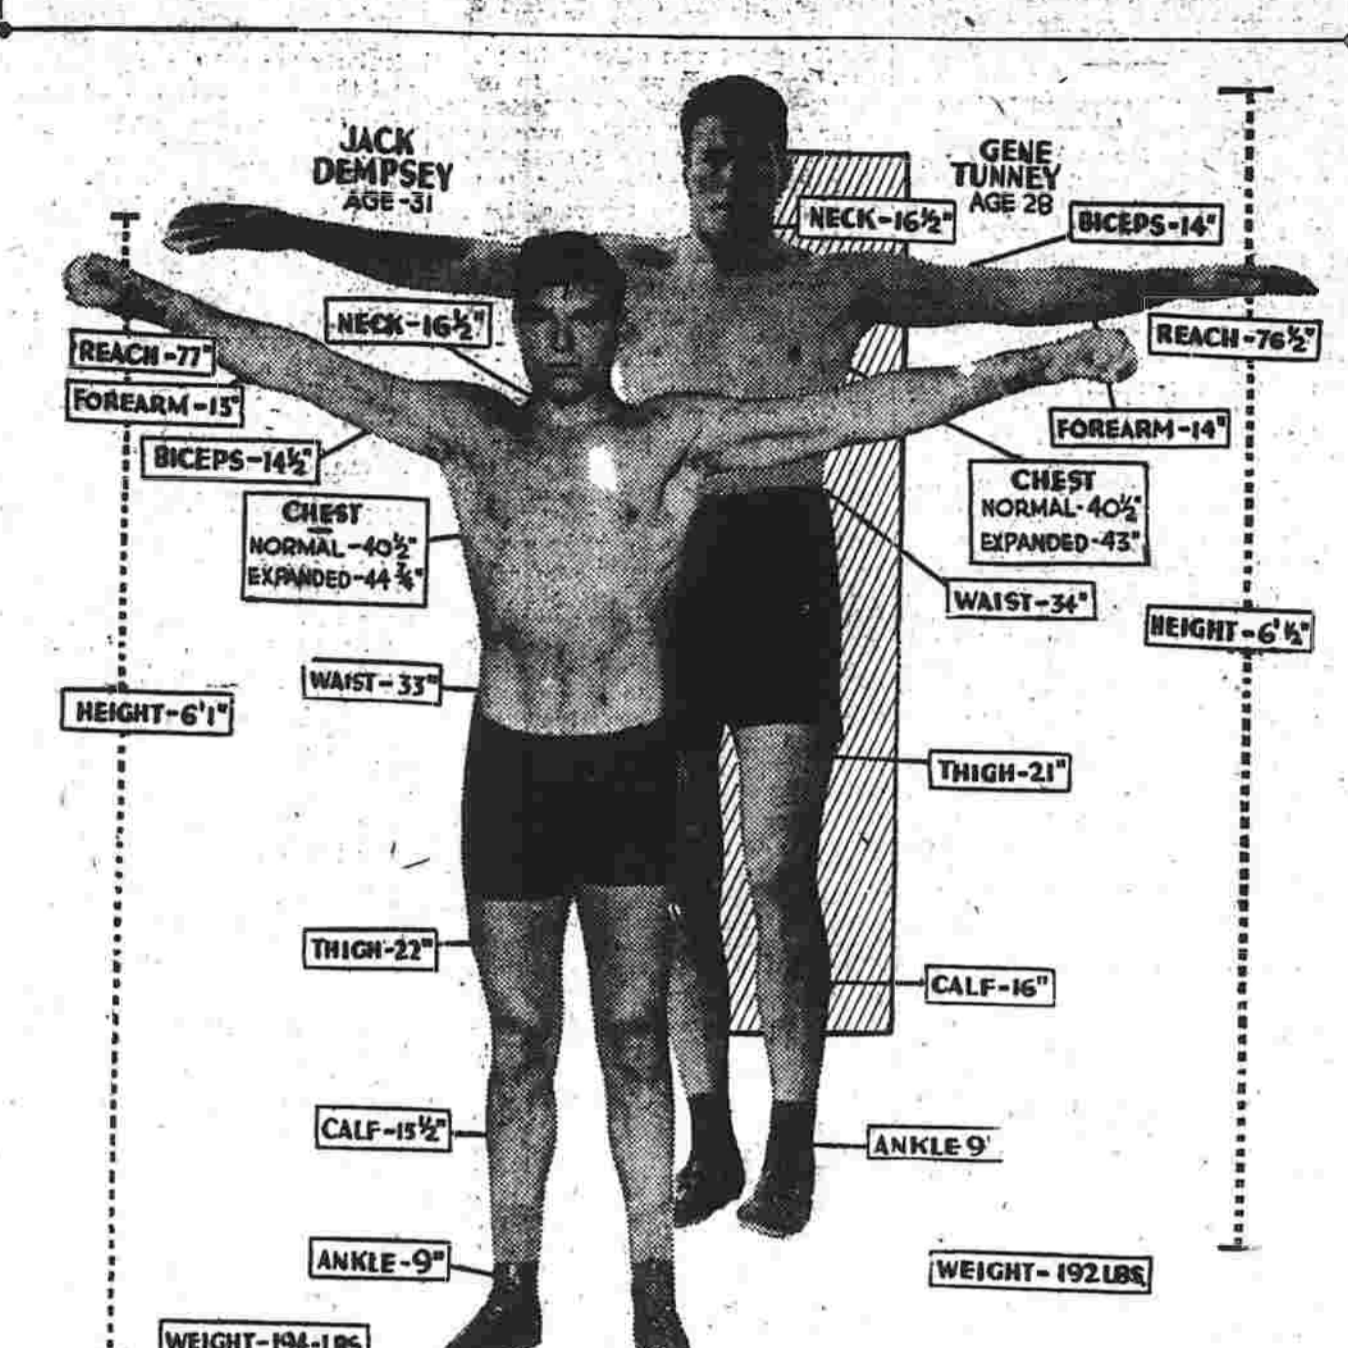

The prosecution introduced affidavits by Prosecutor Bergen and Inspector John W. Underwood which maintained that the local attitude regarding the renewed investigation was "lukewarm."

Underwood further stated that Sheriff Tunison, who is a member of the 1922 grand jury which failed to indict, had failed to assist the prosecution, and had even refused Simpson the use of his telephone on the day when the indictments were returned this month.

He added that many citizens of Somerset county were "openly hostile" to the investigation.

Decision on the application was deferred for two days.

THE GLADIATORS

Here's how Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney will stack up in the heavyweight championship battle at Philadelphia tonight.

The chart shows but slight difference in the physical makeups of the two contenders. For instance, their necks, biceps, forearms, waists, thighs, calves and ankles run pretty even. Dempsey has a larger chest expansion though each has a "normal" of 40 1-2 inches.

Jack has a slight edge in reach, boasting 77 inches to 76 1-2 for Tunney, which advantage means little or less, however. In height Dempsey is also one-half inch taller.

Tunney weighs 190 pounds, Dempsey 194.

Dempsey is three years older than the challenger, being 31.

Summed up, Dempsey and Tunney are two of the "evenest" contenders, from the measurement standpoint, that ever battled for the world's heavyweight championship. As far as physiques are concerned they'll offer an exceedingly fitting contrast to the famous Jeffries-Fitzsimmons and Jeffries-Sharkey titanic tussles of other days, and the Dempsey-Willard clash of seven years ago.

Jeffries, it will be recalled, outweighed Fitzsimmons by 40 pounds or so while he towered several inches above the stocky Sharkey. Dempsey conceded close to 80 pounds on the giant Willard at Toledo as well as several inches in height.

SCENT TRICKERY IN NEW HAVEN 'BUST'

Creditors Trailing $60,000 in Furniture to Stores in Half Dozen Cities.

New Haven, Sept. 23.—Investigation into the affairs of the Scharmett Furniture Co., of Derby, being conducted by the United States Court here following the filing of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against the firm, widening its scope today and will involve stores and individuals in New York City, Syracuse, Danbury, Bridgeport and New Haven.

Owners of a well-known Danbury furniture store was summoned before Referee C. E. Hoadley today to show their connections with the Derby firm.

Creditors of the Scharmett Furniture Company are seeking more than $60,000 worth of furniture shipped to the company, they say, a short time before the bankruptcy petition was filed.

Out-of-town firms are being examined to determine if they have any of the furniture supposed to be missing. The Scharmett Furniture Company is estimated to owe over $120,000 and to have about $40,000 in assets.

The Hospital Linen Auxiliary members have decided to continue their rummage sale in the store corner Eldridge and Main streets tomorrow afternoon.

DRENKERS "OUT" AS DRY AGENTS

No More Sousing for Prohibition Officers—Except in Getting Evidence.

Washington, Sept. 23.—Only total abstainers will be allowed to hold places in the Federal Prohibition Service. All persons now in the service who take a convivial drink now and then will be dropped and future appointees will be required to give a pledge that they will abstain from the use of liquor as long as they are in office. The dry service must be "dry" in fact as well as in name.

This, in substance, is a rule of conduct laid down for the prohibition unit in the talk by General Lincoln C. Andrews, head of the Federal Enforcement Service, and with twenty-three regional administrators.

There will be one exception to the rule imposing "bone-dry" restrictions on prohibition agents. The ban will not operate against the "poor devils," as they were described by General Andrews, who are required to present whiskey as evidence to a court and who must be able to state that they have tasted the liquor.

"It is sad to contemplate," said General Andrews gravely, "that anyone must be compelled to drink whiskey in view of the fact that the product now available is of the most atrocious quality. Only those who impinge on the performance of duty will be exempted from the rule imposing total abstinence on the force as a whole."

PARSONS GATHER FOR PARLEY, SPORT

260 Clergy, Guests at Choate School, Play Golf and Baseball.

Wallingford, Sept. 23.—Practically every Episcopal clergyman in the Diocese of Connecticut is here today to participate in a conference under the guidance of Right Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, bishop of the diocese, at Choate school. Entire expenses are being borne by George C. St. John, headmaster of the school, who is expected to be ordained to the Episcopal ministry during the coming winter.

Other candidates for holy orders in the diocese also are Mr. St. John's guests.

Group Conferences
When the first morning session of the conference opened today, there were about 260 clergymen present. Most of these were here last evening when Rt. Rev. John G. Murray, presiding bishop of the church, formally opened the conference.

Following three group conferences this morning the clergymen were to have dinner and an afternoon of sports in which golf and baseball are to be the features. The conference will close at noon tomorrow.

RICH MAN TRIES TO GET JAIL TERM RESCINDED

Greenwich Judge Tells Lawyer, However, That All Look Alike in His Court.

Greenwich, Sept. 23.—Harold L. Knapp, counsel for Irving M. Austin, prominent resident and real estate dealer, who two weeks ago was sentenced to a thirty-day jail term and fined $182 and costs on five counts, appeared before Judge James R. Mead in town court here today and asked the judge to reconsider the jail sentence and the fine as far as the charge of operating a car while under the influence of liquor is concerned.

Judge Mead told Attorney Knapp that the statutes made no distinction between a poor man and a rich one but that he would take under consideration the penalty imposed on all liquor charges.

130,000 THROUGHT TO SEE DEMPSEY-TUNNEY FIGHT

HERE'S THE MENU OF TONIGHT'S WALLOWFEST

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—Tex Rickard, promoter, said today that he hoped to start the first bout at the Sequi stadium tonight promptly at eight o'clock, eastern daylight saving time. Here is the order of the bouts:

Monte Munn vs. Hughey Clements, six rounds.
Bob Lawson vs. George Godfrey, six rounds.
Tommy Loughran vs. Jim Delaney of St. Paul, six rounds.
Knute Hansen vs. Jack De Mave, six rounds.
Harry Persson vs. Sergeant Jack Adams, six rounds.
Jack Dempsey vs. Gene Tunney, ten rounds.

Max Baer, New Orleans, and Yale Okun, New York, six rounds.

The preliminaries will be run off as rapidly as possible, it was announced. Rickard hopes to start the main event between 9:30 and 10 P. M.

PRISON BREAK TRY MAY COST DECADE

Ferrone Likely to Have Ten Years Added to Term; Davis Sentence Tuesday.

Hartford, Sept. 23.—State prison convicts who suffered an unusually strong urge to leave the institution at Wethersfield this summer will be numerous in superior court here before Judge John K. Banks finishes the September term of the court.

Lawrence Ferrone, who with Edward Slattery was caught working their way out of the prison this week, was taken back to the prison today after a brief appearance before Judge Banks, who continued his case until the next day.

Earl T. Davis, prison guard who has pleaded guilty to accepting a bribe in connection with the unsuccessful attempt of Ferrone and Slattery, will receive his sentence from Judge Banks here next Tuesday afternoon.

Notable Spectators.
It will be a sports spectacle without precedent. The great throng, packed into the vast horseshoe of concrete, will be the biggest gathering that ever witnessed a sports event anywhere in the world. It will be a cosmopolitan crowd—millionaires and hardy toilers, cabinet members and ward politicians, highbrows and lowbrows, reformers and bootleggers, society women, railroad presidents, burglars, judges and just plain dyed-in-the-wool fight fans.

Some of those who are here or who are scheduled to come are Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of War Dwight W. Davis, Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, Governor Len Small of Illinois, Governor Ritchie of Maryland, Charles M. Schwab, Otto H. Kahn, James A. Stillman, Florenz Ziegfeld and William S. Hart.

This morning special trains and coaches rattled into Philadelphia one after another, disgorging their cargoes of humanity. Specials came from as far west as San Francisco.

Kearns Bets on Dempsey.
Betting odds here today were generally two to one that the champion would retain his title. Some were offering as high as three to one. There was not a great deal of Tunney money in sight. Jack Kearns, former manager of Dempsey who is now using every means to annoy the champion as the hour for the fight approaches, said he would like to bet $100,000 on Dempsey at odds of two and one-half to one.

Injunction Falls.
One of the court actions—that have been started in an effort to stop the fight—was decided today. Three common pleas court judges deliberated on a cumbersome mass of evidence submitted to them in court yesterday by attorneys for B. C. Clements, of Chicago, who alleges Dempsey broke a contract to fight Harry Willis under his direction and subsequently accepted Tex Rickard's offer to fight Tunney here. Clements sought an injunction to stop tonight's fight.

The judges finally refused to grant the injunction. Thus the last obstacle in the way of holding the fight was removed.

Rickard anticipated little difficulty in selling the 14,000 tickets that remain unsold.

Clements had previously obtained a similar injunction in courts of Indiana. In their opinion, Judges Bartlett, McDevitt and Taulane set forth that this restraining order "had no force or effect upon the defendants who were not within that jurisdiction."

CITADEL FILLED TO HEAR ABRAMS

Former Commandant Opens Three Day Campaign; Interesting Speaker.

The Salvation Army citadel was filled to the doors last evening at the opening service of the three days' campaign to be conducted by Commandant Abrams, the Hebrew evangelist, had been privileged to pay a return visit.

His topic last evening was the "Passover or the Lord's Last Supper," which was illustrated by chart and emblem. The speaker handled his subject in a masterly way, and new light was brought on this old-time custom. He showed how the day of preparation was observed when the head of the house followed by his sons went through the house into every room, with a lighted candle, small broom, a box searching for leaven, and the head of the house would sweep the leaven into the box. When every room had been visited the box would be wrapped in a towel and placed outside the door, and the next day it would be burned. This represented that everything that was unclean must be removed before the passover could be eaten.

BRIDGE PARTY HELD AT COMMUNITY CLUB

The first bridge of the fall season was held at the "White House" last evening. The two large rooms, just east of the entrance were used for the players and were prettily decorated with gladioli from the Nickerson Gardens.

Mrs. Charles B. Loomis captured ladies' first prize, a beautiful Boston fern, while Mrs. George House took consolation, a bridge score booklet. For the gentlemen, Harold Norton took first honors in the form of a handsome silk necktie, Charles Loomis took consolation honors, a book of bridge score sheets.

After the playing the Ruth Elizabeth Tea Room was thrown open and the guests were served ice cream and wafers. The chairs and tables were later removed and dancing was enjoyed till a late hour.

Director Washburn announced that alternating each Wednesday bridge and whist would be played. This will give the whist enthusiasts an opportunity to play the game. Next week the play will be bridge and whist combined.

A very unusual exhibit of crepe paper flowers was shown in another room of the club by Mrs. G. Holmwood; roses, tulips, poppies and many other varieties were arranged in pleasing color scheme. Mrs. Wood is well known in many cities of the country for her expert knowledge of paper flower work. Many towns people know her through her classes at Hales, Steiger's in Hartford and also other exclusive shops. A class is now forming at the club, being the first of the classes throughout the winter. Anyone may join whether a member of the club or not. Full information may be had by calling the Manchester Community Club, Tel. 1033.

LIVE WIRE BREAKS; TRAFFIC IS DELAYED

Trolley Passengers to and From Hartford Had to Be Transferred Around Break.

Fireworks of all kinds were evident as 400 feet of trolley wire fell at Love Lane late yesterday afternoon. Trolley traffic had to be transferred around the break for several hours and this morning the temporary repair parted and the passengers were again transferred.

The line which broke fell on the tracks and welded itself to the rail, shooting forth myriad sparks and bright blue and green lights. Jack Gordon's line gang appeared and began to repair the break and after three hours work the cars were allowed to make the through trip.

This morning at 7.30 the repaired line broke and was out of commission for more than an hour. Only one connection was lost, however, and the service continued unbroken by the transfer of passengers.

A WOVEN OF A STORY SPOILED BY CHILD

When a woman reported that a bottle of medicine had been stolen from a baby carriage standing outside of Hale's store yesterday, the reporters chortled over the news as visions of "the world's meanest thief" flitted across their brains but, alas, the mystery was quickly solved.

There were two baby carriages in front of the store. A child picked up the medicine and put it in the other baby carriage. The woman walked home and did not discover the medicine until she picked up her baby. She then returned the medicine to Quinn's drug store where it had been compounded and the rightful owner claimed it later in the day.

TWO FEATURES NOW PLAYING AT CIRCLE

"Money Talks" With Claire Windsor and "Merry Cavalier" Featuring Dick Talmadge Make Up Bill.

Is "Money Talks" funny? If you really must have proof, go down to the Circle theater and watch an audience stagger out, then if you have a good, strong heart and can stand laughing without serious injury, get in line at the box office, and prepare yourself for an hour of the most hilarious entertainment you have ever enjoyed.

This picture, which is the initial directorial effort of Archie Mayo under the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer banner, will doubtless bring him instant recognition wherever shown as possessing one of the keenest minds for comedy that has yet been discovered. "Money Talks" is one of those fast, energetic, situation comedies that keeps the audience in a constant state of hilarity from the initial scene to the final fadeout.

The other, equally interesting picture is "The Merry Cavalier" with Dick Talmadge. It is an ingenious and original story packed with a host of thrilling and daring "stunts." Talmadge himself is as agile and surprising as ever, and the theme of the picture not only possesses more humorous possibilities than his earlier stories, but has a "big timber" location which makes an effective background for a display of his remarkable gymnastic ability.

The plot deals with the efforts of a millionaire lumberman and his physician to cure the former's son of a general run-down condition. The older man plan to have an actress friend impersonate a lady in distress, and appeal to the boy with an involved tale of her misfortunes, so as to awaken him to an interest in life. The boy happens to overhear the scheme, however, so that when the daughter of a neighboring timber owner comes to the son with a story of the treachery of the millionaire's foreman, Talmadge thinks she is the actress in question and disbelieves her tale. Impressed by her sincerity, however, he follows her to the woods, and is soon involved in a gripping and mysterious plot which provides plenty of thrills.

Saturday's program continues the double picture policy with "The Flying Horseman" and "The Fate of the Flirt."

GET TOGETHER CLUB TO OPEN ITS SEASON

Cheney Club Organization to Have Turkey Supper on October 14.

The Get Together club of Cheney Brothers will have its first meeting of the season Thursday, October 14 at Cheney hall. A turkey supper will be served by the Spinning Mill group promptly at 6 o'clock in the dining hall. There will be an attendance prize awarded to the lucky member directly following the supper period. Each member will write his name on the back of his ticket. These tickets will be shaken in a box in the usual manner and the lucky ticket will be drawn. This stunt has always proven successful wherever tried and there will doubtless be novel variations from time to time which will make it interesting.

The speaker of the evening will be Edward Barnays of New York City. Mr. Barnays is an expert in the advertising field and will tell the members of the Get Together about one phase of the advertising of Cheney Silks. Mr. Barnays is a man of wide experience and an entertaining speaker and what he has to say will be of great interest to everybody.

The Spinning Mill will arrange for the entertainment of the evening. Prizes will be given to the best individual performer. Tickets for this affair are being sent out to the mill secretaries for distribution.

PARTY IS ARRANGED FOR KIDDIE ACTORS

Jack Sanson Plays Host to 50 Children and Their Parents and Friends.

Yesterday afternoon fifty happy children with their parents and school teachers attended a party at the State theater. The party was for those kiddies who took part in the "Kiddie Revue" which was presented at the State a few weeks ago.

The sailor act of the revue was re-enacted on the stage as the first number on the party program. The kids skipped through it just as though they had been doing the act many times.

"The Kids had done their act, Hank Brown, 'the funniest man in vaudeville,' who will play at the State today and for the next two days, amused the children with some of his fun. The youngsters enjoyed his entertainment and kept calling for more.

Following this the stage was set with tables, and a party supper was served. The catering was done by William Wolf of the United Soda Shop. The youngsters enjoyed all the ice cream they could take care of, besides several kinds of cakes, cookies, orangeade and candy. The children's mothers and school teachers were also in attendance.

The party was given by Jack Sanson, State theater manager. Mr. Sanson wanted to show the kids his appreciation for the fine work they did in putting the Kiddie Revue over big.

ABOUT TOWN

JURY DISAGREES IN RUM CASE AGAINST DOCTOR

Bridgeport, Sept. 23.—Dr. Anthony R. Campo, of Stamford, will be retried in the December term of the superior court on a charge of manufacturing liquor, according to announcement made here today by William H. Comley, state's attorney.

Dr. Campo's trial came to an end yesterday afternoon with a jury disagreement.

Dr. Campo operated a hospital at Drien. Federal operatives raided a building on the grounds there late July and uncovered three stills and much alcohol beside arresting four men along with the doctor. All but the doctor forfeited bail and he went to trial this week declaring he knew nothing of the distillery.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 23, 1926.

THE BIG FIGHT.

A great many people don't know what it is all about, this big heavyweight championship fight of tonight. Some deem it a very shocking thing, the pitting of two wild animals in human guise, to batter each other and maim each other and stream blood and murder all over each other. It isn't.

Some think it a glorious sport, the refinement of physical courage and skill and strength, a combat worthy of the gods. It isn't.

It is the best outlet, under the primitive impulse, for a perfectly primitive impulse, the throbbing desire to see man compete with man violently—and a mighty poor substitute for the genuine thing.

It is primitive impulse that makes prize fighting possible; not only the primitive impulse of men of a certain type to beat other men with blows, but the primitive impulse to look on while the blows are being swapped. No natural child on earth passes by unnoticed when two boys are mauling each other in the gutter. He—or she—stops to look on and becomes vastly excited by the combat. You have seen dogs do the same thing when their own kind are tearing at each other. It goes farther back than humanism. It is a normal animal trait.

But it isn't the only normal animal trait. Acquisitiveness is an animal trait, too. The same dog that fights the neighbor's dog or barks madly about the edge of a canine melee also, in calmer mood, hides bones—makes as big a collection as he can of what, in his view point, rates as wealth. Dogs and men and wolves are fighters—and they are getters.

Now perhaps it is because man is a higher animal than the dog or the wolf, but anyhow he is a bloodier fighter than either the dog or the wolf, and he is more acquisitive, and at the same time he is keener about witnessing fights. He combines a love of blows and a love of getting in such degree as would shame either dog or wolf, poor half developed creature as either is.

In some men, of course, punching or seeing somebody punched is the paramount impulse. In others the getting impulse is greater than the urge to fight or witness fighting—a physical sort. But in normal man both the qualities exist.

Operating co-ordinately, the fighting impulse and the getting impulse work to produce the twentieth century prize fight. A hundred thousand or a hundred million people yearn to watch the impact of fist upon jaw. A handful of men who have just enough of the fighting instinct to understand its play upon the intelligence of the yearning mob and who possess a preponderance of the getting instinct, get up the prize fights—thereby collecting great stacks of bones for themselves. And the yearners, carried away by their lust for vicarious conflict, provide the bones in payment for the gratification of the yearning.

Meantime a good many individuals who themselves may be complete victims to the getting impulse, which is precisely as primitive and animal-like as the fighting impulse, hold up their hands in shocked horror and cry out against the savagery of it all. They wonder how men can be so bestial.

Not bestial at all, in our humble opinion; just natural. Not any more bestial, that is, than a hundred other things we do and which the lower animals also do.

We should feel much inclined to defend our right to witness a heavy weight prize fight or any other kind of a prize fight or a wrestling match or football game or running race—all of them cruel things, in a way—without losing our claim to respectability, if we believed the contest to be a worthy one, from the most primitive point of view. But in such circumstances as this affair of tonight, while we certainly might insist that we could attend it and remain respectable, we quite as certainly see no way in which its claim might be extended to embrace sanity as well.

A hundred and thirty thousand people are expected to spend two millions of dollars to see presumably the two best fighters in the world battle for the premiership of the prize ring. They will see no such thing. They will pay their money to see two men punch each other, to be sure. But such are the operations of the prize ring, and such are the prejudices against the calling that they will see only the arbitrary pick of a tiny section of humanity playing a game of fist-cuffs according to certain piffling rules.

There are probably five thousand men who never put on a boxing glove in their lives who could knock either of these two over-touted professionals into the middle of next week if occasion called for it. And not one of the five thousand could get paid five dollars to go on in a preliminary.

The prize fighters of today are paper fighters, stuffed with printer's ink. Especially the heavy weights. It is neither criminal nor unrespectable to go to see them fight. But when one does go and pays the crazy prices that are charged, he is just a plain sucker. Which it is the inalienable right of every good man and true to be.

Perhaps Judge Banks, in imposing so light a minimum sentence as a single year's imprisonment on Clark L. Hamilton, defaulting England tax collector, took into consideration the element of contributory negligence which often enters into decisions of civil suits but is seldom considered in criminal cases.

From all accounts there was never the slightest justification for the choice of Hamilton by the voters of England for the job of tax collector. They must have all known him and have known, too, that he was living beyond his means, that he was slovenly in the conduct of his own affairs, that he was exactly the wrong man on whom to impose the responsibility of handling their money.

It was distinctly unfair to a person of Hamilton's make-up and situation to put temptation in his way. If he appears to have received a rather surprisingly light punishment for the heavy loss which he has occasioned his community, it is, likely enough because the court weighed all the circumstances in the case.

There is a school teacher in Manchester, perhaps more than one, who has been telling her pupils that they must not refer to Nathan Hale as a spy—that he was "much too fine and noble a gentleman to have that word used in connection with him."

This is immoral. It displays ignorance of the English language. It is a matter for the school authorities to take up.

Nathan Hale was a spy. The work that he did as a spy was infinitely more heroic than that of the man in the battle line with a musket in his hand and a comrade at right and at left. It called for the rarest kind of courage as well as exceptional intelligence. That is the quality of the work of the military spy.

It is only lop-sided mentalities that attribute meanness and disgrace to the word.

Major Andre was a spy and we hanged him. Nathan Hale was a spy, and the British hanged him.

Each served his country, each gave his life for his country, each became an immortal. Shall we teach our children lies?

THE DIVVY. The Daugherty-Miller trial is reaching its most interesting phase. There has always been a deal of curiosity as to how the Merton bribe was split between the parties to the transaction, if there were any bribe and if it were split at all. Now the government is trying to show that Daugherty's share in the money received for returning the American Metal Company's property to its German owners was $150,000, while Miller got a mere $50,000.

Since the German owners, through Merton, parted with the handsome sum of $441,000 as the price of "speed" in putting the deal through, there would appear to be a matter of $241,000 unaccounted for by the Daugherty and Miller divvies, with only Jess Smith and John T. King to be taken care of. And since Jess Smith and Daugherty appear to have been one, there is rather more likelihood than unlikelihood that the Ohio storekeeper's fingerings were included in the Daugherty rakeoff. Which would leave a sum approaching a quarter of a million dollars still in the hands of the Connecticut man.

This, of course, is merely arguing from the contentions of the government, and may be doing Colonel Miller and Mr. Daugherty terrible injustice. The jury may find that neither of them got a nickel. It may find that King never got a nickel. It may find that Merton never paid a nickel to anybody. It may find that there never was any German Metal Company, any Swiss Society. It may find there never was any seizure of alien property. It may find there never was a war.

CLOTHES. The National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers declares that within a year the men of America will be wearing high colors—best reds, bright greens, tans, blues.

It neglects to say whether these colors are to be complemented by chiffon stockings, lace cascades at the cuffs, white tie-wigs, silver shoe buckles and black coat plaster patches at the corner of the mouth.

It is well to have enthusiasms and it is not well to be too sure that what is always shall be. But it strikes us that there is another association that might speak its little piece in this connection if the clothiers should show a disposition to become overconfident that American men in numbers will return to the fashions of the court of Louis 15th. That association is the Association of Credit Men.

And imagine being compelled to get out and get under your car clad in pink trousers, sky blue waist-knit and ruffles!

Edge and Bruce and Representative LaGuardia, Gallivan and Tinkham; in the latter Senators Shepard, Willis and Capen and Representatives Blanton, Kyale and Cramton.

But none of these or any others have concentrated quite so exclusively on wetness as Hill or on dryness as Upshaw.

Whenever Hill got up to make a speech, the House of Representatives has taken it for granted it would be a wet one. Whenever Upshaw took the floor it has been assumed he was about to proclaim the virtues of prohibition. If either one changed to get off his pet subject, everybody has been astonished.

Hill looks the part of a wet and Upshaw of a dry. The former is big, jovial, fond from all appearances—of good cheer and high living. The latter is a little wisp of a man, with a very thin, deeply-lined, ascetic face and an air of having put everything of this world behind him.

Some dries look wet and some wets look dry and some are indeterminate, but nobody ever could make a mistake about Representative Hill and Upshaw.

Upshaw's defeat was not necessarily a setback for prohibition. Leslie J. Steele, who beat him, is also pledged to its enforcement, though there sometimes is a difference between a politician who's for prohibition and one who simply is for its enforcement so long as it's in the statute book.

The result was a surprise in Washington. The Georgian's views are so pronounced and have been so widely advertised that not a man, woman or child in his district could possibly have failed to know his position. The natural conclusion, from the fact that his constituents sent him four times to the capital, seemed to be that they endorsed it.

In the main, Upshaw probably was a victim of Senator Jim Reed's committee of inquiry into campaign expenditures. Reed not only extracted from General Counsel Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon League the information that the Georgia representative was one of the lawbreakers to whom the league had paid

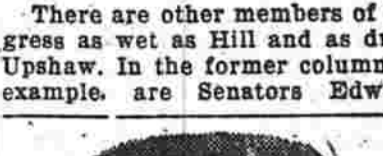

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Sept. 23.—Plenty of this year's primaries have had more significance than the one for the choice of a Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives from the fifth Georgia district, but by reason of the unusual personality of the defeated aspirant for a renomination there, that particular one had quite a peculiar interest.

Representative William David Upshaw is the individual. Among the national lawmakers, for more than seven years now, Representative Upshaw has been the very symbol of prohibition, just as Representative John Philip Hill of Maryland symbolizes prohibitions antithesis.

There are other members of Congress as wet as Hill and as dry as Upshaw. In the former column, for example, are Senators Edwards, PET PEEVES. Say, don't you really love the man who drives a little car, and never seems to know or care where other autos are? He turns a sudden corner, scaring other folks to death. I'd like to catch this guy who always makes me catch my breath. No doubt you've met the fellow who will stand and talk all day. He's always glad to meetcha, and he has a heap to say. Ya stand and listen, patiently, and let him have his fling, and when he gets through talking—well, he hasn't said a thing. I wonder if you've ever heard of Mrs. Such-and-Such. Why, she's the one who always calls, and gets herself in dutch. It isn't that she simply calls; she's never quite discreet. Her visits always happen when you're sitting down to eat. It takes a lot of funny folk to make the world they say. Well, gosh, I sure believe it, cause I meet them every day. And when each day is over, there is one main thought it leaves: A lot of funny people who are why we all have pet peeves.

New York, Sept. 23.—New York is an old town, as places in America go. Charity is older. Want is as old as time! That's why the "bread dole" of St. Luke's is one of the city's oldest institutions. Bread and charity become synonymous in the French revolution. Want is felt by those who lived in 1792 quite as much as by those alive today. The pinch of hunger has not been an exclusive privilege of any generation. And so for 124 years bread has been handed out down on Hudson street. Hudson street is an old street; a farway street in the days when the Dutch cluttered the Battery; a street that became sinister through gang warfare; a street that gave name to one of Manhattan's most notorious gangs, "the Hudson Dusters"; a street beyond which a man without a criminal record may pass without courting arrest; a street of busy markets that have overflowed from the East Side as prosperity gradually set in. Back in 1792 there lived a man named Leake—John Leake—a wealthy merchant. When he died he left a will with a curious clause. It specified that 1000 pounds was to be put out at interest "to be laid out in the annual income in 6-penny loaves of wheat bread to be distributed every Sabbath morning to such poor as shall appear most deserving." When the clock sounds 10 o'clock a crowd of bareheaded children appear at the front of St. Luke's. They go away with bread for hungry families. St. Luke's is an old church. It came into being when Greenwich Village was little more than a series of farmyards. It stands on the fringe of a fashionable and wealthy section, but its yellow brick, dingy air is rather a symbol of the economic state of its parishioners. It is a fitting place for the perpetuation of Manhattan's oddest charity—charity that has gone on for 7000 weeks. In contrast is the more modern method of aid, as demonstrated by Greenwich House which stands nearby, exuding an efficient, modern atmosphere. Here the children and parents alike are taught to bring in their own bread. There are school rooms, medical clinics for the ailing, the teaching of trades, all the machinery of modern settlement work that would have set poor John Leake's head in a whirl. —GILBERT SWAN.

NO SUCH THING AS CRIME WAVE

Federal Judge Johnson Considers It Old Fashioned Living Back.

Philadelphia, Sept. 18.—There is no more lawlessness now than any other time in this country, or in any other country, comparatively speaking. So opined Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson of the Middle District of Pennsylvania, recently. New offenses made by new laws, he added. "A crime wave? There isn't such a thing," asserted the Judge. "There has not been one in this country since we have heard responsible persons declaring that there was. At least, I never have believed in it and I don't now. "The apparent increase of lawlessness is due, in my opinion, to the increase of prohibitory laws. By that I do not mean, specifically prohibition although it comes under the same category. But in the last few years there have been so many laws, making things that formerly were misdemeanors crimes. Judge Johnson said although now "we hear of a youth which is smoking, drinking, living a loose and frivolous life, and forgetting or not knowing or what home should mean," yet we are approaching an era of "old fashioned living." He declared, there are too many divorces in the country. "A divorce is so easy and so cheap to obtain." He remarked, "and appears to be so easy a way out of a bad job, that it has become one of the accepted methods of exit from matrimony."

Tanlac Rescues Hartford Woman

Health and Strength Restored After Suffering from Indigestion, Dizziness and Nervousness. Gains 9 Pounds.

Life without good health is a grim shadow. For a year Mrs. Emma Yockell, 41 Buckingham St., Hartford, Conn., suffered terribly from stomach troubles and other ailments. "Indigestion and loss of appetite caused such untold misery that my nerves became shattered. I suffered a great deal from headaches. I couldn't sleep at night and I would be so tired that housework was drudgery. I tried remedy after remedy without success. At last, Tanlac came to the rescue. This wonderful tonic relieved my suffering and made me feel like my old self. I have gained 9 pounds. And I can eat anything without ill effects." Tanlac helps build up weak bodies, drive out causes of suffering and gives the body health. It is made from roots, bark and herbs. At your druggist's.

Hanging on Grimly

Right, an automobile from the salesroom of the Phillips garage on Flagler street, Miami, which escaped by the narrowest margin from crashing to the ground. The wind, caving in the glass windows and playing tracks inside the garage, almost succeeded in stealing this car.

BIG TOBACCO CROP IN NORTH CAROLINA

Over 300,000,000 Pounds of Tobacco to Market in This Season's Crop.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 18.—A Thousand fires flickering fitfully throughout hot summer nights—basket after basket of long ripe leaves gleaming under skylights—the sing-song intonation of the auctioneer drowned amid a circus day atmosphere. Eastern North Carolina has gone about its business of curing and marketing 300,000,000 pounds of bright leaf tobacco, and overnight sleepy villages scattered over the belt have been changed into beehives of industry.

Following close on the heels of the South Carolina and Georgia opening, the New Bright Belt—the world's biggest tobacco growing area—is now in the midst of the yearly marketing season, and all indications point toward the marketing of 300,000,000 pounds.

New High Prices After seven "lean" years, prices are soaring to new high levels and are estimated to average 50 per cent better than prices paid out on the New Bright Belt floors in 1925. Prices are estimated to range from 25 to 32 cents a pound. Sky high prices on the New Bright Belt bore out the prediction of veteran tobacco and warehouse men that this section faced "another 1919," after observing relatively higher prices on the South Carolina, Georgia and border markets. The 15 markets which comprise the New Bright Belt last year produced something like 235,000,000 pounds. This year the belt's total production will pass the 300,000,000 mark, according to present estimates.

Immense Crop The New Bright Belt is only a part of the North Carolina tobacco growing country. Tobacco growers of the entire state last year marketed more than 361,000,000 pounds of the weed for something in the neighborhood of $76,000,000.

The markets in the Old Belt will open late in September and early in October. The border markets—that is, the markets in South Carolina and those located just over the state line—are about to be brought to a close, after a record-breaking season.

North Carolina, which occupies first place among the 40 tobacco growing states in the value of production, will, as a whole, sell more than 400,000,000 pounds of the leaf at higher prices than in seven years, if predictions of tobaccoists and warehousemen run true.

CARBONI GETS ONE-TO-THREE

Hartford, Sept. 23.—Frank Carboni, alleged member of a bootlegging gang, involved in the murder of Carmilo Tiralongo, of Torrington, by Casare Barbieri, was sentenced to a term of from one to three years in state prison, by Judge John W. Bank here today. The charge against Carboni was carrying concealed weapons.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Swamp Fox (2)

Marion fought under Col. Moultrie against the Indians and in these battles learned the sagacity of the red men and became skilled in the tactics of forest warfare. He took part in the occupation of Fort Johnson, which caused the flight of the royal governor, Lord William Campbell.

For his bravery in action, the Swamp Fox was promoted to major in 1776 and stationed at Fort Moultrie, in Charleston harbor.

Fort Moultrie was bombarded by the British under Sir Henry Parker in 1776. Marion showed great courage and coolness.

A concentrated attack of the British in 1780 resulted in the capture of Fort Moultrie. Col. Moultrie was made a prisoner by the British and the Swamp Fox was free to begin the career that made him famous, that of a scout, the head of a force of brave men who harassed the invading troops at the most unexpected times.

ENORMOUS WASTE IS SHORTENING EXTENT OF COAL AND OIL SUPPLY

This is the fifth of a series of articles by Israel Klein, science editor of NEA Service and The Herald relating the part chemistry is taking in the welfare and progress of the world.

By ISRAEL KLEIN, Science Editor, NEA Service.

Science has provided us with so vast a supply of oil that we are wasting it to an alarming extent, shortening considerably the days for this fuel's usefulness as an important source of energy.

"We lose $3 1/3 per cent of our energy in the production of oil and gas from our oil pools.

"Eighty-five per cent of what remains we lose in the process of transforming heat energy into electrical energy.

"Ninety per cent of what remains we lose in transforming the electrical energy into light."

No Excuse for Waste.

Doherty, as well as all those acquainted with the problem of fuel supply, can't excuse this waste on the ground of our present great coal resources.

"Regardless of how much coal we have," he says, "I cannot subscribe to the theory that there is no necessity to curtail waste simply because it is claimed that there is an abundance of coal. As a nation we show unhealthy tendencies when we develop a disregard for the reasonable application of the rules of thrift and a spirit of recklessness and irresponsibility by disregarding our needs for the future.

"When he turns our attention from coal to oil we find a most alarming situation. Each year brings a larger and larger demand for liquid fuel and yet the science of oil has progressed at such a rapid rate that we have been producing petroleum at a rate vastly in excess of our real needs and have been burning it to displace coal and in many instances to displace cheap steam coal.

"There is no proof and little likelihood that we can much longer even maintain our present rate of production."

These estimates are set before us by Pierre Appell, general secretary of the Central Fuels Office in France, and one of the world's leading authorities on fuel.

Coal Needs Saving.

"A day will come," he says, "when burning raw coal under boilers will be considered as absurd a waste as the surfacing of a road with rich iron ore would be today.

"Little by little all of the motive power and all of the heat needed by the industries will be drawn from perpetual, inexhaustible sources of energy and the last of the coal resources will be exploited for those industries which are absolutely dependent on it."

Looking so pessimistically upon the present misuse of our coal deposits, Appell paints even a worse picture with regard to oil. For he sees the world's oil supply lasting only 80 years, if consumption continued at the present rate.

And if consumption kept on increasing as in the past, the oil supply would last only 30 years!

Losses in Oil:

Yet waste, Doherty points out, continues at an enormous rate.

Expressing it in terms of energy for the production of light, as an example, he says—

"We lose $3 1/3 per cent of our energy in the production of oil and gas from our oil pools.

"Eighty-five per cent of what remains we lose in the process of transforming heat energy into electrical energy.

"Ninety per cent of what remains we lose in transforming the electrical energy into light."

No Excuse for Waste.

Doherty, as well as all those acquainted with the problem of fuel supply, can't excuse this waste on the ground of our present great coal resources.

THE PENNANT RACES.
Cincinnati will be the only pennant contender in action today. The Reds, who are now two and one-half games behind St. Louis as a result of the Cardinals' victory over Brooklyn yesterday, have a chance to tie the leaders provided they win all their remaining games and St. Louis loses one of two games with the Giants.

The Yankees now lead Cleveland by only two games, having lost to Chicago yesterday while Cleveland was beating Boston. Each team has four more games to play and New York must win three of them to clinch the pennant, if Cleveland wins all of its remaining games.

In the case of Pennsylvania, Doherty shows, we are already using about as much of its oil each year as the state has produced in the last 67 years!

ANDOVER

Mrs. Charles Faulkner and grandson, Duane, have just returned from New York where they have been visiting the former's son Lionel Faulkner.

George Cyphers has commenced work in East Hartford and is commuting by train.

A. E. Frink spent Wednesday in Hartford.

Mrs. W. B. Talbot attended the Nathan Hale celebration in South Coventry Wednesday.

About twenty-five attended the Grange meeting Monday evening and most of those present were dressed as kindergarten children. Childhood photographs were placed about the room and those attending had to guess who the pictures were of. Ice cream cones were passed around during the evening. Mrs. Howard Stanley gave a report on the Lecturer's tour of which she was a member.

Lewis Phelps and family attended the Nathan Hale celebration.

Biff! Bang! Zowie!

Tonight's the big night in the fighting world. Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney are clashing in a ten-round bout for the world's heavyweight championship at Philadelphia.

There will be thousands and thousands of fans at the ringside but there will be hundreds of thousands who will not be there. For the benefit of Manchester fans who will not see the fight, The Herald has made arrangements with John Barstow for a blow-by-blow description of the fight to be broadcast from the South Office of The Herald on Oak street.

The returns will come directly from the ringside through WTIC and will be relayed from the Keeney Court side of The Herald Office. There is abundant room for a gathering of fans to listen to the results of the fisty classic.

Rehearsals for the play "Station YYY" are taking place this week, as this play is to be presented by the local Dramatic Club at the Conn. Agricultural College Monday evening. The play was given in Andover a few weeks ago and was a decided success.

The Men's Club held a special meeting in the town hall Tuesday evening.

Ends have scheduled four teams and are still arranging games for the following SunJays. The first game will be against the heavy Clay Hills of Hartford.

FIVE VAUDEVILLE ACTS AND PICTURE AT STATE

"The Battling Butler" Featuring Buster Keaton and Five Select Acts at State Three Days.

Do you like to see a first class vaudeville bill and a picture of the "big hit" variety on the same bill? If you do, come to the State tonight, Friday or Saturday for the State theatre will present both an excellent vaudeville bill, and a knockout comedy feature picture, "The Battling Butler," with Buster Keaton.

The first vaudeville act to be presented will be the Miller Trio, in a specialty musical, dancing and singing act. There is a musical surprise in store for you when you see this act.

Paul Brady, the man you all know, will be second on the program. Paul is the man with all those funny stories, the kind that make you roar with laughter, and the kind you just love to hear told.

"Something New in Vaudeville" is the title of the third act. Delmore and Moore have a novelty offering that will please everyone.

Next will be Hank Brown, the funniest man in vaudeville. Hank gave the State's patrons a taste of his ability as a funny man at the "Country Store" last evening. His act will make you laugh until you will be able to laugh no more.

The headliner will be a musical comedy entitled "A Society Scandal." In this act a company of six capable people show what a really good musical comedy act.

A maze of flying gloves—gloves coming from everywhere. Then a referee tolling "Ten!" That's what poor little Buster discovered in his escapades as the bogus "Battling Butler."

A more hilarious picture than Buster Keaton's latest, which will play at the State tonight and for the next two days, was never filmed. Buster never smiles in his pictures, but yet he makes his audiences convulsive with laughter.

The story of "The Battling Butler" concerns a young man who was in love—and that started all the trouble. His girl, mistaking him for the world's champion boxer, who was known as "The Battling Butler," simply adores him. Buster finds out that if he should let her know who he really was, that he was not the real champ, she would leave him flat. He is very much in love with her, so he lets her continue to think that he is the genuine Battling Butler, until the story gets beyond its original confines.

Then poor Buster is in for it. The real champ comes along, and finding Buster stealing all his thunder, challenges him to a fight to prove which of the two is the real champion. Alas, for poor Buster, he had never been in a fight ring in his life. He is quickly rocked to sleep by the champ, or does fate step in and arrange things otherwise? The only way to find out, is to come and see for yourself.

It's coming—it's coming! The greatest dramatic achievement of years! The most sincere, and the most human story ever told! An unforgettable episode in cinema history! What's all that? It's "Variety," and it's coming here shortly. Watch for an announcement soon.

WAPPING

The Parent-Teacher Association held its first meeting this fall, last Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Center school hall. About fifteen ladies were present. Musk-mollons were served afterwards.

The Cemetery association directors met Monday evening at the library. Plans were discussed of a building for the association's tools and also for getting water for the cemetery.

The school calendar for this year is as follows:
Fall term, from Sept. 13, to Dec. 23.
Winter term, from Jan. 3, to April 17.
Spring term, from April 10, to June 17.

Sunday, October 3, will be rally Sunday at the Federated Sunday school and it is earnestly hoped that every teacher and pupil will make an extra effort to be present.

Funeral services for Miss Esther S. Jennings, aged 82 years, were held Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock from her late home, at South Windsor. Rev. James W. Lord, rector of St. James's church, officiated. The burial was in the South Windsor cemetery.

Several from this place attended the Massachusetts state fair, on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

The high school class of girls from the Federated Sunday school met at the home of Miss Helen Lane last Saturday evening and planned a dog raffle for next Saturday evening at Flax Hill. After the business meeting a social time was enjoyed by all.

The Most Unique Furniture Establishment in America is The TRIUMPH of an Idea

EVERYTHING grows out of an idea. America's large industries owe their success to ideas. And the benefits the public has derived from these ideas is exemplified by the better living conditions throughout the country.

Garber Brothers' Furniture Establishment is founded upon an idea. A simple idea it seems, but one that has justified itself by the economies and comforts it has brought to thousands of families.

We are manufacturers of living room suites. We sell them direct to the public from the factory at factory price with factory service... a one-profit plan that saves thousands of dollars.

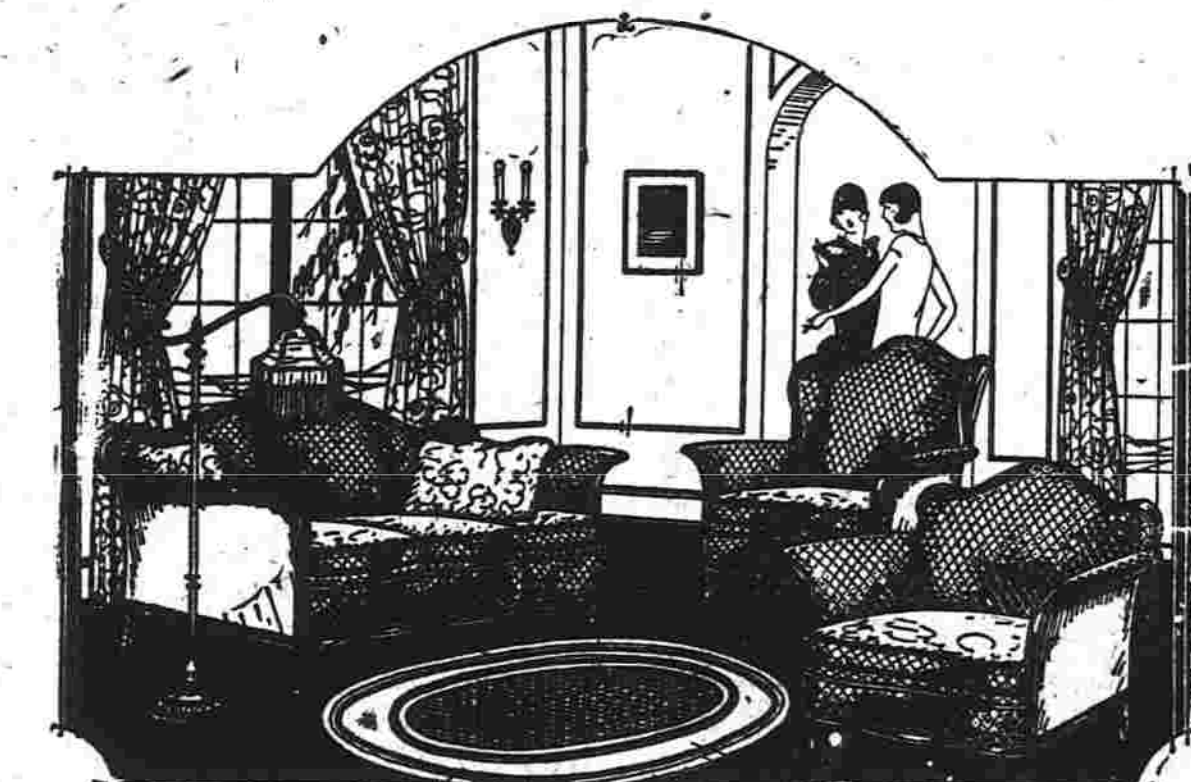

We sell all our furniture from the same factory building. A plain, unassuming structure on the outside but attractive on the inside. Located a short block from Main Street... just far enough from the beaten path to save us many thousands of dollars every year on our rent overhead alone.

ALL THESE ECONOMIES ENABLE US TO KEEP QUALITY AT A HIGH STANDARD AND PRICES AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE LEVEL. Low prices backed by sound quality.

This method of doing business has been proven scores and scores of times in other industries as well as in our own, as the only means of building an institution of TRUE PUBLIC SERVICE... an institution that not merely makes claims but actually does make it easy for every family to have a better home.

Garber Brothers' vast establishment... the manufacturing facilities... the purchasing power... the value-giving power is a fact-picture of the TRIUMPH of a sound idea.

And you will be glad, years from now as well as now, that you bought your furniture at Garber Brothers'.

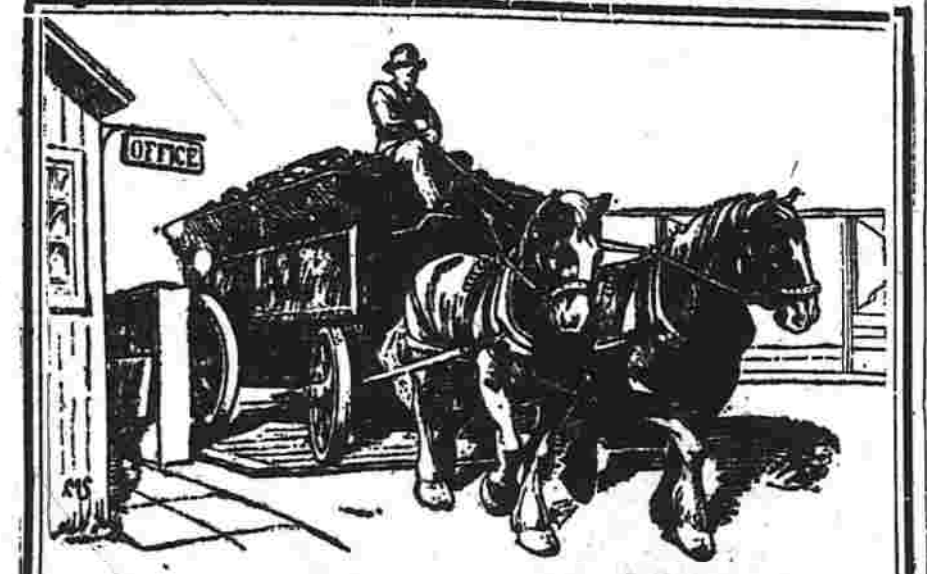

Have Your Living Room Suite Built to Order by Garber Bros. Better Construction... Lower Prices... Wider Range of Styles and materials to choose from. Come, see how they are built.

PROCRASTINATION
Isn't it peculiar why people will put off ordering coal until the last minute when they could just as well have their bins filled before the cold weather arrives?
It's human nature to put off until tomorrow what can be done today, but every sudden cold snap keeps us busy writing orders, each order stating "must be delivered at once."
All of which leads us to ask, have you ordered your winter supply of coal?

THE BIG FIGHT.

Dempsey arrives preceded by battalion of process servers, seven plastic surgeons, eight Chicago flat-foots, a copy of the Police Gazette, Jerry the Greek and six-inch beard.

Respectable tourist from Egplant, Tex., holding ticket stub for $27.50 seat is crowded back into the $22.50 section.

Tunney arrives heading endless delegation made up of amalgamated librarians of America, executive committee of Authors and Writers' League, H. L. Mencken, Zane Grey, Peter B. Kyne, Mary Roberts Rinehart and Bert E. Collyer.

Respectable tourist from Eggplant, Tex., is kicked from $22.50 section, into eighty-ninth row in $16.50 section, while home routers cry in vain. Block that kick, block that kick.

Tex Rickard arrives escorted by honorary members of D. A. R., founders of American historical society, guardian of liberty bell, keeper of Declaration of Independence and Betty Ross flapper namesake, while children and women in the streets shout, "Thank God for Rickard. He saved the Sesqui!"

Respectable tourist is forwarded from $16.50 section into rear rows of $10.50 division, losing in transit one copy of Farmers' Journal, a sack of plug cut, one umbrella, two Valley Forge banners and one silver-plated, self-starting dollar watch.

Jack Kearns arrives with three bales of freshly mown ego, five barrels of slightly used personal pronouns, 46 bantamweights (three on Round Hogan, any one of which would be a cinch to take Dempsey. Band begins to play "Pals" and both Kearns and Dempsey stand up and take bows.

Respectable tourist is dropped-kicked from $10.50 section into farthermost rows of $5.00 seats and drops through tiers, falling 450 feet to warm, hospitable concrete below, denying en route that he had heard the shots which killed Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills.

Harry Wills, Paddy Mullins and members of the New York boxing commission arrive and take seats especially reserved for them at Shibe Park, where the Athletics succeeded in losing their annual pennant.

Both Messrs. Dempsey and Tunney cheer Wills to the echo, neither of them having drawn the color line in cheers so far.

Respectable tourist goes into Broad street theater announcing "first, official films of the big fight forty-eight hours later" and decides to see it that way.

"All that I'm interested in," he muttered to himself, "is to verify that the fight was actually held."

TWO BIG REASONS WHY DEMPSEY MUST WIN FIGHT TONIGHT

One Is Jack Kearns, His Arch Rival; the Other Is Estelle Taylor, His Screen-Star Wife.

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Atlantic City, Sept. 23.—One of the things that slays heavyweight fighters seeking to stage a comeback in the ring is a dulled, stifled spirit of ambition.

That flaming urge to get to the top, that constant driving pressure to reach the uppermost level of the game, isn't there. At any rate it isn't there in the same proportions that it was when the champion was the challenger and conditions were reversed.

Those who are stringing along with Gene Tunney to detrone Jack Dempsey at the Sesqui bowl tonight are in the same predicament as the former marine.

They point to Tunney's bubbling optimism, his repeated expressions of confidence, his enduring mental serenity and utter lack of outward worry.

This is in contrast to the expert's descriptions of the champion's seamed face, his lack-luster eyes and sporadic moods of weariness.

In Tunney you see ambition, roaring, surging ambition, eager to rush forward and claim its long-deferred reward.

Benny Leonard Picks Dempsey to Win Fight

(By Joe Williams)

Atlantic City, Sept. 23.—Benny Leonard picks Jack Dempsey to win from Gene Tunney in the "Battle of the Sesqui-centennial."

This comes somewhat as a surprise, because Leonard's old manager, Billy Gibson, is now Tunney's manager, and Leonard and Tunney are former stable mates.

I stood at the ringside with the retired ruler of the lightweights the other day as he watched Dempsey grunt and snort through five rounds of slug-ging with his hand-picked troupe of Socking Silbies.

Wearing one of those Broadway creations in brown with matching Fedora in the Wales manner and showing undeniable tripples of flesh to indicate that his three-year lay-off hasn't exactly hardened him, Leonard said he saw no reason to write Dempsey out of the heavyweight picture just now.

"He's still doing the one thing he always did better than any other heavyweight," commented Leonard, "and that's hitting. The old kid is still there. When his lands it has the effect of an iron weapon. You feel it all over."

Leonard doesn't believe Tunney will conduct the kind of fight he thinks is necessary to defeat Dempsey—a rushing, slam-bang fight from start to finish. Leonard points out Tunney has never been that type of fighter and he questions that he will be able to change over night, even if he should decide on that program of attack.

Leonard concedes Dempsey has gone back. He agrees he isn't as fast as he used to be and that he is a trifle wilder shooting his punches home. Most of the experts think Dempsey has lost some of his punch but Leonard won't admit this.

"On the whole," the department stated, "American manufacturers have but little competition in the field of firearms, Germany, Spain and Belgium are showing increased strength."

Salient Facts Concerning The Big Fight This Evening

Here are some salient facts concerning the world's championship heavyweight fight set for this evening at the Sesquicentennial Stadium in Philadelphia between Champion Jack Dempsey and Challenger Gene Tunney:

PRINCIPALS—Jack Dempsey, born June 24, 1895, Manassa, Col., champion, vs. Gene Tunney, born May 25, 1898, New York City, challenger.

DATE—Thursday, Sept. 23.

PLACE—Sesquicentennial Stadium, Philadelphia.

LENGTH OF BOUT—Ten rounds to a decision; two judges and referee to decide on winner.

SCALE OF PRICES—$27.50, $22, $16.50, $11, $7.70 and $5.50, including war tax.

PRELIMINARY BOUTS—Monte Munn vs. Hugo Clements, George Godfrey vs. Bob Lawson, Martin Burke vs. Yale Okun, Tommy Loughran vs. Jimmy Delaney, Knute Hansen vs. Johnny Risko, Harry Persson vs. Jack Adams.

TIME OF ROUNDS—Three minutes each, with one-minute rest periods.

PROBABLE ATTENDANCE—140,000.

RECEIPTS (estimated)—$1,500,000.

150,000 Fans To Pay $2,000,000 To See Dempsey-Tunney Battle

Great Stadium at Philadelphia To Hold Most Wonderful Throng Ever To Witness a Championship Match—Jack To Enter Ring At Odds Something Like Three to One, With Gene's Friends Hopeful and Laying Wagers On His Chances.

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—Picture tonight a flowering stadium filled to its concrete brim with people; alive, if you can, a crowd ranging between 125,000 and 150,000 souls rising head upon head from the depths of the bowl to the top-most tier lined in jagged relief against the sky of early evening; invade the box office, check up on the receipts and you will find that the "killing" runs into two millions of dollars.

What is it—the coming of the millennium? No, this seems to be something really important. It is the world's heavyweight championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney and the men and women who paid their money, laid their clothes, torn, their buttons assailed and the dignity assailed, in general wouldn't have minded it if it cost them twice as much in time, trouble and money.

It affords one of the mysteries so prevalent in our modern life. These two men, we are informed, are not very evenly matched. It is not supposed to be a good fight as the Dempsey-Firpo brawl nor as intriguing a prospect as the meeting between Dempsey and that dear Georges.

Yet neither of these spectacles were able to gross the attendance nor the receipts with which the Sesqui-Centennial stadium will be favored tonight. The respective capacities of the plants used may not be commensurate with this. The Hippodrome with a Tom show and this Dempsey-Tunney fight can't be so terribly hot, at that.

It may be the champion's first start in three years, but disabuse your mind of the idea that he is "only" as good as "old Jim" as old Jim Jeffries was in Reno.

Rip-tearing Fighter

He is still a rip-tearing fighter. Perhaps he is not so fast as he once was, but he is actually bigger and stronger. As for Tunney—the hero of the U. S. Marine Corps, no record indicates that he is a fast, shifty big man with the punch of a middleweight. There is nothing to get excited about in this fight but the addicts are excited just the same.

Due to something of a great deal of record indicating that he is a fast, shifty big man with the punch of a middleweight. There is nothing to get excited about in this fight but the addicts are excited just the same.

Ten Round Fight

They are going ten rounds to a decision, American style, to be rendered by two judges and a referee, provided it goes the limit, the announcer will climb into the ring to take up the slips of those who are to elect the winner.

He will first take that of the referee, and without looking at it, pick up those of the two judges. Should the latter disagree, the decision of the referee settles the argument.

Dempsey's chief second was the excitable Frenchman, Gus Wilson assisted by Manager Gene Normie, Captain Mabbutt and Jerry Lavadis.

Manager Billy Gibson, Trainer Lou Fink and a pair of assistants were to look after Tunney. They probably will have to do a lot of looking.

How to Obtain World Series Tickets—Landis

A statement explaining how to obtain tickets for the World Series games in New York if the Yankees win the American League pennant was authorized by Commissioner K. M. Landis yesterday. It follows:

"All applications must be made in writing and the applicant must, if called upon to do so, be prepared to furnish the names of the persons by whom the tickets will be used. A certified check or money order, payable to the American League Base Ball Club of New York must accompany each application. When tickets are ordered by a firm or corporation the name of the individual to whom they are to be sent should be specifically stated.

"All tickets will be delivered by registered mail, therefore, it is important that the applicant's name be plainly signed and the address fully and carefully given.

"The reserved and box seat tickets will be sold only in sets of three for the games to be played at the Yankee Stadium, viz: Games 1, 2 and 6. If game No. 5 is not played the money received for those tickets will be refunded to the purchaser.

"The best available seats will be allotted as the applications are received, and preference will be given to the regular patrons of the club. Eighteen thousand general admission tickets to the remaining and upper tier stand and 20,000 bleacher tickets will be placed on sale at the Stadium at 10 a. m. each day for the game of that day. The purchasers of these tickets must immediately enter the park.

"The prices of tickets are $5.00 for box seats; $3.50 for reserved seats; $3.00 for general admission tickets and $1.00 for bleacher tickets.

"Address all applications to the club offices at No. 225 West 42d Street, New York City."

"First Two Rounds Will Tell Result"

By Joe Williams

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—Anything can happen when Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney step into the Sesqui bowl tonight and start thriving high-priced punches in the general vicinity of each other's noodle.

I incline privately to the hunch Dempsey will win and it will be no great surprise to me if the fight goes the limit of ten rounds. I think the fighting fury of the champion, backed up by a zealous desire to embarrass his traducers, will carry him through.

At the same time I am convinced Dempsey has run his race and is ready to be bewled over by the first topnotch fighting man he meets. In some respects I esteem Tunney a topnotch fighting man, and in others I do not.

Tunney fights with a super-cautiousness that is not wholly characteristic of great fighters. I have seen him in all his important fights and only once did I see him adopt a war-like, aggressive attitude. This was in his fight with Tommy Gibbons, a year ago, when he won by a knockout in twelve rounds.

Tunney tells me he will fight the same kind of fight against Dempsey tonight. "I will tear into him from the start and knock him out early," Tunney says. Personally, I don't believe he can knock Dempsey out, but he crowds him from the start he has a fine chance to win.

I think the first two rounds will tell the story of this fight. Dempsey will bounce from his corner and begin whamming rights and lefts at Tunney's body and head. Some of these are bound to connect. In the old days one of these would be enough to bring Tunney down. But those days are gone. Dempsey is no longer that kind of hitter. Punches that used to stop his foemen, now merely stagger them.

Tunney doesn't thrive on punishment. Carpenter made him back up and Gibbons, after dropping seven straight rounds, hit him with a left hook in the eighth round that sent him into frantic reverse. If he begins to back up against Dempsey he will be lost, because Dempsey, faded as he is, can still chase a retreating opponent.

Tunney expects to beat Dempsey with a right hook to the head. The world knows Dempsey is easy to hit with a right hand. Tunney has a good right hook. I think his chances would be better if he had a right uppercut, at least if he used it often.

Every sparring partner in Dempsey's camp has cracked him on the button with right uppercuts. Tommy Loughran, the Philadelphia light heavyweight, has brought the blood to the champion's mouth with this punch and on other occasions has spun him around. It's the one punch that is sure-fire against the wide-open Dempsey and it's the one punch Tunney uses least.

Dempsey tells me he will stop Tunney before the sixth round. I happen to know he old one of his trainers he was going to try for a knockout in the first round and that this trainer is betting on just such a conclusion, having placed $500 at 15 to 1, the prevailing odds on a one-round finish.

Tunney is strong enough and clever enough to stay the limit if that's all he is interested in doing. Even Dempsey, when he was really great, could not knock out a man who was in there to "stay" as the saying goes. Tommy Gibbons went in to "stay" with Dempsey and the champion failed to drop him once in fifteen rounds.

I said earlier that anything can happen in this fight and I think that is so. Nobody can say definitely just what effect that three-year layoff has had on Dempsey. It certainly hasn't made him a greater fighter, and there is a good possibility that it may have made him a very ordinary fighter.

Outwardly Dempsey looks all right. I said that last May after looking him over at Hendersonville, N. C. I think he looks even better physically now, as he naturally would with eight weeks hard work under his sash. To some extent Dempsey has offset the rust and wear of his long period of idleness. Whether he has offset it enough to go out and win from a better than average fighter who has it on him in condition, stamina and possibly, ambition, is the big question.

I rather think he has.

BEES SIGNAL BY SCENT

Berlin.—Experiments with bees have shown that the insects are enabled by scent and a peculiar direction-finding apparatus to find their way back to their hives. If a hive is moved, the bees have to find it throw out a "small signal" for the guidance of their followers. The bees also has a keen sense of sight.

HORNBY FINDS HIS OLD CLOUTING OPTIC AGAIN

Rogers Hornsby seems to have found that battling eye of his again. During the last few days the Rajah has been hitting at a great clip. He may yet reach the top of the heap to retain his long-held crown, though chances are he's opened up a bit too late.

BRADLEY HORSES RULE SUPREME

American Derby Victory
Was Fifth Bradley Banner
This Season.

By ART CARLSON
An E. R. Bradley year!
That's what followers of the famous Kentucky sportsman and owner of the Idle Hour farm were shouting down in Louisville last May just prior to the running of the historic derby at Churchill Downs.

Bradley horses, you'll recall, had already annexed the $10,000 Louisiana Derby at New Orleans, the Preparation purse at Lexington as well as another Lexington gam-bol.

More than that the Bradley colors had finished "one-two" in each of the events Bagenbagg had copped the Louisiana event with Boot to Boot second; Bubbling Over had taken the Preparation with Boot to Boot again second while in the third center Bagenbagg, and Barcola had passed the judges' stand winner and runner-up, respectively.

Had Right Dope
Three firsts, three seconds in as many events—small wonder the gang in and around Louisville were calling it a Bradley year.

The boys certainly had the correct dope, too. For the $50,000 Kentucky Derby, turfdom's most colorful race, went to Bubbling Over. Bagenbagg romped in second. There was another "one-two" finish.

A few weeks later, Bradley checked in with another "double." This time in the $25,000 Latonia Derby. Bagenbagg winning with Boot to Boot in place position.

Then came a temporary halt at Fairmount Park when Haste, the Widener star, led Bagenbagg to the wire, Boot to Boot taking third in the Collinsville feature.

Things didn't look so promising for the Bradley colors a short time later, either. Bubbling over and Bagenbagg met with injuries that kept them out of competition.

But into the breach stepped the talented little Boot to Boot. The crack colt was equal to the task—the task of clinging to the winning pace set by his two illustrious stable-mates.

In the Cincinnati Derby, Boot to Boot ran third to Crusader, one of the leading three-year-olds of the season, and Display, winner of the Preakness. The Bradley flock obtained some satisfaction in beating out the highly-touted Carlaris, the Tia Juana twinkle.

Came the third running of the Ohio State Derby at Maple Heights a $10,000 stake. Boot to Boot with Albert Johnson astride, whipped Bolton, a Durrell entry, by a head in one of the greatest two-horse races of the season. Moreover, the Bradley nag did it on a terrible track—a layout more suitable for making mud pies than anything I can think of.

A few days later Bradley started Boot to Boot in turfdom's richest prize, the $100,000 American Derby at Homewood. Not only did Boot to Boot start, but the gallant little colt finished—finished a winner over Display, Black Maria and a couple of other lesser lights.

Derbies for Bradley
The American Derby victory made the fifth derby the Bradley banner has won this season. (Not to mention various other successes.) Bagenbagg and Boot to Boot each bagged two and Bubbling Over one.

Further, Bradley horses have come in "one-two" in five races, second and third in another and third in still one more.

The five Derby triumphs alone have brought more than $200,000 to the famous sportsman—and he isn't through yet.

An E. R. Bradley year! Yes! The boys had it right. It's been all of that—and more. It's been somewhat of a derby monopoly for the colts of the Idle Hour farm, one of the most pretentious and successful breeding establishments in the country.

SAINTS PREPARE FOR BASKETBALL SEASON;
PRACTICE AT THE REC

The St. Mary's basketball team has organized for the season. "Winnie" Turkington, who has on several previous occasions managed teams for that club, has been again honored with the managerial rank. He is working on his schedule now.

For the past two weeks the candidates have been working out at the School street Rec and judging from the list of players submitted today, the Saints will have one of the strongest teams in many years.

Another practice session will be held this evening at the Rec at 7 o'clock. The following are requested to report: Dietz, Nell, Joyce, E. Finnegan, Faulkner, Dahlquist, Kerr, Stevenson, Rogers, Lutz and Dowd.

The Springfield professional soccer team will meet for the New York Giants in an American League game at League Park, Springfield, on Saturday at 3 o'clock. Springfield still is at the top of the league, and with Lawson, Scottish International outside right, and other star players to be signed soon, the club should continue to win games. On Sunday, Springfield plays the Giants at the New York Oval.

The Match-Making Monarch

Tex Rickard

Meet the "Rajah of the Ring Racket." In other words, we present Tex Rickard, world's greatest boxing promoter. Tex has been putting on big championship battles ever since the famous Nelson-Gans bout at Goldfield, Nev. back in 1906.

Rickard was the match-maker for the famous battle between Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries at Reno, July 4, 1910, and of more recent years has put on the Dempsey-Willard go at Toledo; the Dempsey-Brennan at New York; Dempsey-Carpentier at Jersey City; Dempsey-Firpo at New York and a host of others.

Rickard has offered purses that have astounded the boxing fraternity—that make the old timers like Jeffries, Corbett and Sharkey wish they had been born about 20 years later.

About the only heavyweight championship fiasco of recent years was that between Dempsey and Gibbons at Shelby, Mont., in 1923. The "gate" was a mere trifle, or less. Rickard, however, had nothing to do with that bout.

Rickard has been more or less lucky as a promoter. The usual "Rickard weather" always seems to prevail when Tex puts on a show. If the fight is staged in the afternoon the sun shines—if it is at night the stars come out, seemingly to brighten things, just for Tex.

THIRD TITLE SERIES
CONTEST ON SATURDAY

Shamrocks and Sons of Italy to Meet at West Side Playgrounds; Sipples to Pitch Again for Sons; Shamrock Hurler Unknown Yet.

The third game of the town baseball series between the Sons of Italy and the Shamrocks will be played Saturday afternoon at the West Side playgrounds at three o'clock. It was announced yesterday by Manager Vendrillo, following a consultation with Manager Zimmerman of the Shamrocks.

The Sons have won the first two games and head but one more victory to award them the baseball championship of course, providing the challenge recently hurled by the Saints is not listened to. Manager Vendrillo says he will pitch Tommy Sipples again with the view of ending the series Saturday. Who will pitch for the Shamrocks is a mathematical problem which is not easy to solve. Both Prentice and McLaughlin have pitched against the Sons and have been defeated. Farrand, of course, was the losing pitcher in the game McLaughlin worked, but the latter pitched eight of the nine innings. Old Dan Smith is yet to

to the rubber. He may get the call Saturday.

Dempsey-Tunney fight can be heard at Gibson's Garage tonight. —Adv.

ALL THE WORLD IS SAYING
"HAVE A CAMEL"

Why does Camel lead the world?
The answer is Quality. Camels contain the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown . . . such blending as is found in no other cigarette. . . Care and skill that stop at no expense. When you buy a pack of Camels you get the finest cigarettes made, regardless of price.

Increasing millions who've smoked other brands now smoke Camels. Every week, every day, Camel wins and holds a growing army of experienced smokers. Since smoking began, Camel popularity is the greatest ever known.

Camel smokers are the most enthusiastic body of smokers in the world—for Camels never tire the taste, never leave a cigarette after-taste. Camels are a lifetime of smoking pleasure.

Just try a Camel and taste the smoke from nature's choicest tobaccos. . . Find the mildness and mellowness that have taught the whole world to say, "Have a Camel!"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
CHERRY LANE, 18, one of a family of four children of MR. and MRS. LANE, typical American working people, has a long list of admirers, which includes CHESTER HART, a former "steady" of FAITH, her stay-at-home sister.

CHRIS WILEY, to whom Mr. Lane has forbidden the house, and whom Cherry meets clandestinely.

ALBERT ETTLESON, a traveling salesman, and BOB HATHAWAY, to whom Faith is also attracted, but who has eyes only for the petite, copper-haired Cherry.

Faith's life is largely made up of household drudgery and of getting Cherry and her brother, JUNIOR, 21, out of trouble.

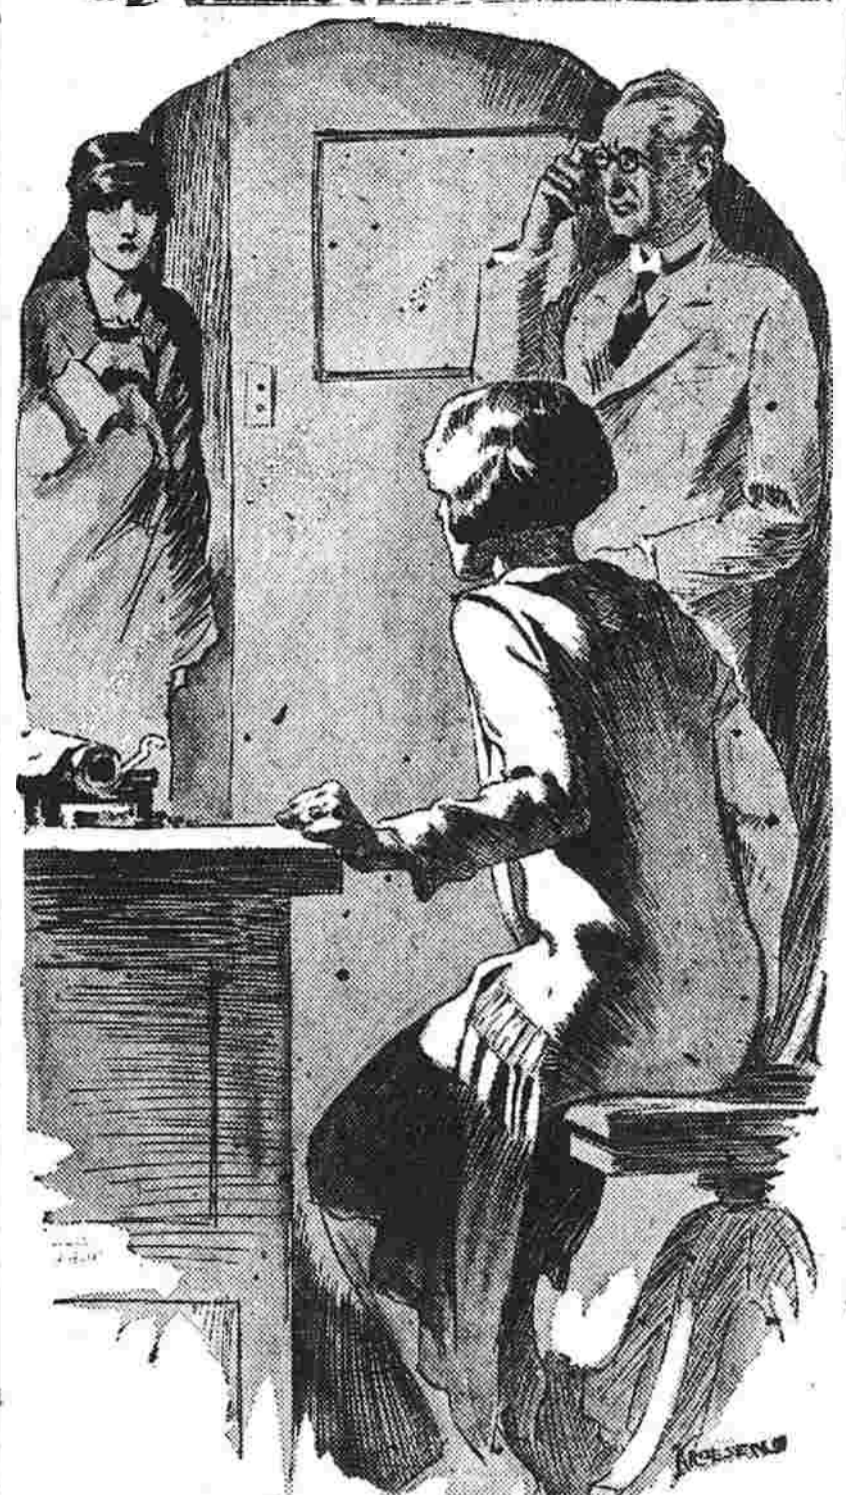

CHESTER HART, calling on Cherry, has invited GEORGE FRUITT, son of one of the richest families in town, to call on Faith, since he himself feels rather mean at his own treatment of Faith.

Fruitt who has studied art in New York, tells Faith that she is a modern Venus, and sends her a great box of American Beauty roses the next day.

Cherry is angry and jealous, and determines to win Fruitt for herself. While AUNT HATTIE LANE is helping Faith to make a new dress, a gift from Aunt Hattie, the girl gets a telephone call from the Western Union. The message is for Cherry, from Albert Ettleson, and Faith hurries to the business district to the offices where Cherry works, to give her the message and to warn her not to play with Ettleson, who is a married man.

She surprises old MR. CLUNY, Cherry's employer, with his arm around Cherry's shoulders, and all thought of the Ettleson telegram is driven from her mind.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER X

Cherry followed her sister into the kitchen, her good humor rapidly returning. After all, he had been Faith's partner the night before. It would hardly have looked right for him to send the roses to her—Cherry. But why hadn't he had the gumption to address the box to both of them? Faith thought of getting a dozen American Beauty roses to go with the ones she had sent.

"What are you going to wear, honey?" she asked.

"I don't know," Cherry said, looking at her reflection in the mirror.

"You won't tell Mother or Dad about the telegram or—about Mr. Cluny, will you?"

"I won't," Cherry promised, but she was thinking of the telegram she had just received.

"I want speaking of Mr. Cluny," Faith cut her short. "I came up here to give you a message that was telephoned by the Western Union—"

The girl backed away from Faith, reached out a trembling hand to steady herself against her desk.

"You let them read you my telegram?" she gasped.

"Then, tonight when I saw him lying in bed, she whispered, almost pleadingly: 'What did he say, Faith? Did you—did you tell Mother?'"

"No," Faith answered, and then repeated the message which had been ringing in her ears ever since she had heard it over the phone.

Cherry listened with painful concentration, then relief flooded her face, bringing color into her pinched white cheeks. "Oh, that silly boy!" she tried to laugh unconcernedly. "It's just his joke—that 'love and kisses' business. He—he was telling me when I saw him last that he had a grand job lined up for me—without his company. That's what he meant, Faith."

"I have some shopping to do," Faith said, sick at heart, for she knew that Cherry was lying. "And I suppose you've got lots of work to do. But—but I think you'd better tell Mr. Cluny that you are leaving at the end of the week, Cherry."

"For some reason he seemed flared up again. But I'll tell him that my big sister objects to nice old men kissing me," she ended with her light, musical laugh. "Good-bye, Faith. You—"

"What do you mean, butting in on me like this?"

Cherry LANE sprang up from her chair, out of the encircling arm of the old man who had been bending over her when Faith opened the door.

"What do you want?" she demanded shrilly. "What do you mean—'butting in on me like this'?"

Faith said nothing, but her eyes shifted scornfully from the trembling girl to the white-haired man who stood by Cherry's desk. She could not help but admire the nonchalance with which he adjusted his horn-rimmed nose to his thin, high-bridged nose and stared at her, out of pale gray eyes that showed no trace of fear.

"What can I do for you?" he asked suavely.

"I am Cherry's sister," Faith said steadily. "And you can leave me alone with my sister for a moment, if you don't mind."

He bowed slightly, with old-fashioned courtesy, then, turning to Cherry, he said, as if nothing unusual had happened: "As I was explaining—when we were interrupted—section three of this brief is to be omitted. I shall need five copies."

When the door into an office marked, "Mr. Cluny—Private," had closed upon him, Cherry sprang forward and seized Faith's wrist, twisting her arm cruelly.

"I suppose you want to get me fired?" she panted. "Butting in like that?"

"He had his arm around you and his cheek against yours. And there was a smudge of lipstick on his mouth. He had been kissing you. Oh, Cherry, why do you have to get all tangled up with every man you meet?"

"Mind your own business!" Cherry snapped viciously. "I can take care of myself."

"I don't believe you can," Faith interrupted her sharply. "You're playing with fire when you flirt with"

CONDITION—An obviously "made-up" appearance.

TREATMENT—Follow your natural coloring, don't select your rouge and powder at random, and follow the natural coloring of your face when you select powder. Use the same tint on your cheeks that you use for your lips. If you are a blonde, a light rouge is advisable. For a brunette, a darker red is better. Eccentric make-up should be avoided. Your powder should be harmonious with your skin. For a dark skin, a rachel powder is best, but on a light one, a flesh tint is better. Though make-up has much more standing than it once had, the most fastidiously groomed women avoid artificiality, and strive to achieve only a perfectly natural effect.

Good Nature and Good Health

NEBRASKA BREAD AND WATER DIET NEED NOT BE HARMFUL.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN.

There are authentic reports of numerous persons who have fasted for 30 days without harm and other records of men who have fasted for as long as 50 days without apparent harm.

The body can unquestionably maintain itself without food for a considerable length of time. The agitation concerning the bread and water diets in Nebraska indicates the general lack of understanding of what the body actually requires for its continuous existence.

In the first place bread itself varies in different communities. A bread made with white flour, yeast, malt extract, sugar, shortening and water will not have the food value of a bread made of the same constituents with the addition of the amount of milk required by modern baking standards.

One-Third Milk. Our government permits the title "milk-bread" if one-third of the liquid used in making the bread is milk. A bread made with five pounds of sweetened condensed milk per cental of flour contains about one and a half ounces of milk to a pound of bread.

Bread may be made of whole wheat and other elements of roughage and of vitamin supply that are lacking in bread made from white flour.

It is possible to prepare bread with wheat germ added to such an extent as to provide 12 times the amount of wheat germ contained in whole wheat bread. These points are emphasized because they are vitally important in determining the amount of time that a person might live successfully on bread and water alone.

Complete Diet. A complete diet, as has been emphasized in this column, consists of the various protein elements, mineral salts, vitamins, sugars and fats. A milk bread made according to modern standards, while not an especially complete food, is relatively complete. It lacks in the amount of calcium and to some extent in the amount of the important vitamins; if a sufficient amount of milk is incorporated with the bread, it may even supply these deficiencies.

If the bread is made with nuts and raisins or with much wheat germ, these will supply other deficiencies. This point is mentioned particularly because there is no reason why a person might not live for almost an indefinite period on a sufficient amount of such bread and water.

On the other hand, modern research indicates that the absence of the various vitamins, of the mineral salts, or of the other specific constituents of a complete diet may result in serious symptoms, dependent entirely on the person concerned and the amount of the deficiency. There is a real difference between complete starvation and such partial starvation as is here concerned.

Modern bread, having a scientifically established composition, is a sensible food. Unfortunately not all of the bread in the United States is up to the same standard. It would be interesting to know the kind of bread used in the Nebraska bread and water diet and to see the results of this legally controlled experiment.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Mrs. Aloisio, the well known dressmaker in the Cheney block, is handling the Shepard tailored felt suit values. Receiving them direct from the factory she is able to sell most reasonably. Do run up and see them, no two alike and such fine quality.

Allene Sumner, whose interesting letters from abroad I feel sure you have all read, has returned to this country and her bright editorial comments on affairs of interest to women will appear again—I think I can promise—on Saturday, and appear as before at least three times a week.

If you have never grown gladiolus, prepare a spot for them this autumn. The ground needs to be well fertilized with stable manure, if it is obtainable, the fall before planting. Sandy loam is best for them. I had very good success with "Peace," "Mrs. Watt," "Herald," "Mr. Mark," "Evelyn Kirtland," "Alice Tiplady" and one or two others, which has only increased my desire for some of the other named varieties, some of which are ruffled. Burbank and Kundler originated many of the choicest gladiolus which now excite our admiration and win ribbons at our flower shows.

Miss Arlyne C. Moriarty, teacher of Piano and Harmony, Studio 38 Florence street, Telephone 1188-3.

Tartare Sauce
 To one cup mayonnaise add two olives, one gherkin, one small onion, all chopped fine. Also one tablespoon parsley. Stir and serve cold.

Gladiolus should be lifted when the leaves have turned yellow and laid to dry in a dry, sunny place. Later the soil may be rubbed off, the bulbs stored in paper bags. You have a collection of the named varieties you can put the name on the paper bag. Do not allow the bulbs to become too hot during the winter and guard against mice.

It is a little late to talk about making flower pictures for almost any night Jack Frost may come with a blighting hand. It is, now an interesting pastime for children or their elders. Take a photographic printing frame and blue flowers. The white of eggs to a stiff froth with 8 tablespoons of powdered sugar and juice of 1-2 lemons. Spread on pudding and brown in oven. Serve cold.

Added Beauty In an Hour

I use a hair dressing which great experts made especially for me. It keeps my hair curly, gives it a sheen. I never go to a hairdresser, never have a Marcel wave. Yet everyone who sees me on the stage or off marvels at my curly, glowing hair.

Now I have placed this dressing at every woman's call. All toilet counters supply it as Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75c. My guarantee comes with each bottle. If it doesn't delight you, doesn't double the beauty of your hair at once, ask for your money back.

Go try it now. It is one of the best things I ever found for women, especially for those with bobbed hair.

HER OWN WAY

A GIRL OF TODAY
 JERRY CALLS

Again I started for my room but I was not to have that hour before I should dress for dinner without another interruption.

Jerry Hathaway could not resist calling me up and telling me that he had gotten himself invited to go with our party.

I was sorry I answered the telephone as I heard the triumph note in his voice—I really didn't want him to go—I wanted to make my decision without him.

"Is that you, Judy?"

"Yes, I answered shortly.

"You don't act very glad to hear my voice."

"I am not."

"Then I presume that Miss Meredith has told you that she has invited me to the party this evening."

"She told me, Jerry that you had managed by saying I had a previous engagement with you to get yourself invited. However, I am afraid she forgot that it was really her brother's party instead of hers."

"So that's it, is it?" said Jerry. In a rather ugly tone of voice.

"You didn't feel that it was a business engagement that you had to keep with Joan, but a date, that rather piqued your curiosity, with her brother?"

I saw I had made a mistake and tried to make matters better, but only succeeded in making them worse.

"You know, Jerry, that this evening will be the first time in all his life that John Meredith has ever made his appearance in a public place like a restaurant or a theater. For some reason he seemed to want to go with me and of course Joan was most enthusiastic about it. She may not have wanted me to go as her secretary, but she certainly made it very clear that she wanted me to go as her friend."

"Judy Dean, are you thinking of throwing me over for that wealthy cripple?"

"Jerry Hathaway, if you speak to me like that again I will surely hang up this receiver. Now as long as you are going with us I want you to use your influence and get the most conspicuous table at your father's restaurant. I am just silly enough to want all those people who treated me so horribly when I was friendless to know that I now have powerful friends."

"As well as lovers," interrupted Jerry.

I could not tell from the way his voice sounded over the phone whether he meant the phrase to be nasty or nice.

TOMORROW: Jerry Hangs Up.

"All the world is queer except me and thee, and even thou art a little queer."

Down in our hearts how many of us feel that the only infallible person in the universe is the first person singular. The beams in our eyes, the glass houses we live in, are seldom apparent to us. Like death, faults are things to be applied to others. And haven't we the feeling that death will leave us to the last?

I was amazed recently to hear a certain woman say, "Criticism is the meanest thing in the world. It is the meanest because it is the cheapest. It grows on a person like a disease—once it gets a start it cannot be stopped."

I could scarcely believe my ears, because, wonderful as she is in every other way, her reputation for criticism is legion. However, she was frankly convinced that she was in a position to voice the remark.

I know a man who has never needed to exert himself in his profession—because he inherited the nucleus of a large fortune and his investments have turned out unusually well—criticized a man who had always worked hard for his six children and call him a poor manager. The man who made the criticism of his friend's predicament has no children of his own, and it happens that his house is one of those that is figuratively easy to "keep in order."

Let us be sure that our own fences are mended before we point out the holes in those of our neighbors. East of us has to live his own life. If you are wondering how the Joneses can afford a new radio, perhaps they are wondering why you burn electric light all over your house every evening. And if the family tea lives in a cheap little house down the street have taken your breath away by going to Europe, stop to consider, before you voice your surprise to the neighborhood, that perhaps that is why they can afford it. Most likely they have denied themselves a thousand comforts to take the trip.

To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

Magnell Drug Co. Makes This Offer

Money Back If One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin Doesn't Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used.

At last the way has been found to combine Pepsin with other corrective stomach agents so that it will do the most good in the shortest possible time.

Why bottles with slow actors when one tablespoonful of this splendid and pleasant liquid remedy will cause gas, bloating, heaviness, heartburn or any upset condition of the stomach to speedily vanish.

And why should any man or woman suffer another hour with indigestion or any stomach misery when the remedy that acts almost instantly can be easily procured?

But there is more to say about this remarkable remedy—something that will interest thousands of despondent people.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin not only quickly relieves stomach distress, but it also conquers stubborn indigestion, dyspepsia and gastritis, and puts an end to dizziness, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness, and despondency which distressing troubles are nearly always caused by chronic stomach disturbances.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin is pleasant to take, has a delightfully refreshing taste and after it has put your stomach in a clean and healthy condition, just notice how much better you look and feel, for besides correcting stomach disorders this supremely good remedy, that Magnell Drug Co. and druggists everywhere guarantee, is a fine tonic that builds you up and makes you work with vim, eat with relish and sleep soundly.—Adv.

For two days only, Friday and Saturday, we will have with us the president of the fur manufacturing company whom we are planning to buy our fur coats from this coming season.

Buy Your Fur Coat From One Who Knows

Tomorrow you have the opportunity to purchase a fur coat from the man who makes them. Buying a fur coat is not an every day experience with most of us and it is only natural that you feel better satisfied if you buy from a man who has made furs his lifetime study.

Whether you plan to purchase or not you are cordially invited to come in and inspect the splendid showing and you are privileged to ask any questions you wish about furs.

Buicks
You know what the Buick people say—"when better cars are built—Buick will build them."
Well, that's just what we claim about

Fish
When better fish is sold in Manchester—Pinehurst will sell it.
Early Friday—by express from Boston—we will receive a shipment of

FILET OF HADDOCK—
A boneless, sweet fish, excellent fried, boiled or baked.

FILET OF COD—
Prepare same as the Haddock.

DRESSED MACKEREL—
Ready for the oven—the Mackerel season soon will be over.

DRESSED HADDOCK—
Ready to use—bake or boil.

FILET OF SOLE—
A delicate white fish of the very best quality.

SMOKED FILET OF HADDOCK—
About the same as Finnan Haddie. Delicious with a cream or butter sauce.

Pinehurst Market News
It is almost as hard to get deliveries out on schedule Friday mornings, with the increased volume our fish business gives us, as on Saturday. Really, it will help a great deal if you phone your order early. The first delivery leaves the store at 8:00 o'clock. Orders should be in before 7:45 for this delivery.

Ed. Laking has decided to stay with us until the first of the year, when he will resume his studies at Boston University. Ed. is so enthusiastic about this dressed fish that he feels sure he can double our fish business inside of a month. We are going to let him do it—and if you want to know about the speed the shippers show in getting this fish from the boats to the dressing plant and then on its way to the consumer so that it will reach you "fresh from the ocean," ask him.

Fall Opening

The Curtain Rises Tomorrow On An Exhibit That Will Furnish An Illuminating Answer To What Is New In Smart Fall Ready To Wear

The opening exhibit is tomorrow and Saturday, but it actually started several months ago when all the fashion marts were visited in quest of the new and correct in Fall attire; bearing in mind at all times the preferences of our clientele.

The exhibit, tomorrow and Saturday, will reveal in one glorious display—the brilliant new fashion themes, which will appeal to every woman and miss whose tastes incline to youthfulness and individuality in dress.

Come and see this great storehouse of all that's new for Fall.

Well, folks, we are still urging you to have your furniture repaired and made to look like new. Both workmanship and prices will be satisfactory to you. We suggest that you phone us at an early date and avoid the rush.

Custom Built Furniture
Come in and have your Living Room Furniture or odd pieces built to order from a big selection of coverings. We build it any style you want. Be glad to meet you and help you to select your furniture.

Slip Covers
Let us measure up your living room suite for Slip Covers, which is the best and easy way to keep it from being soiled. Always looks like new once you have them. Our representative will be glad and always ready to call and show samples, days or evenings.
