

JACK FROST IS ON WAY HERE; DUE BY SUNDAY

Six Above in Montana, Below Freezing in Much of West; We're In for It Unless It Sidetracks.

New Haven, Sept. 24.—Prospects are good today for the arrival in Connecticut tomorrow evening of the season's first substantial cold snap, according to Weather Bureau officials here. While the mercury stood at 68 degrees at 9 a. m., and was down to 70 an hour later, the Weather Bureau received information of six above at Helena, Montana, and freezing temperatures throughout the West.

One Chance of Escape.

Unless the cold weather is deflected down the Mississippi river, Connecticut will be shivering by Sunday morning, the Weather Bureau believed.

Snow Near Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 24.—The predicted cold wave, whirling out of the northwest where below freezing temperatures were reported, struck Chicago and this section of midwest with a vengeance today.

Snow fell for two minutes in Evanston, a suburb, according to an official report of the United States Coast Guard station. The thermometer registered 56 degrees. A drop of 20 degrees since early this morning.

In Chicago proper, a cold and driving rain continued as the temperature fell.

GAS CAR SMASHES TRUCK, 2 MAY DIE

Thirty-two Persons Injured in Crash at Railroad Crossing in Bridgeport.

Bridgeport, Sept. 24.—Two persons were probably fatally hurt and thirty-two others severely injured when a gasolene car of the New Haven road struck a motor truck loaded with trap rock at a railroad crossing, near Bridgeport Park, here, today.

Ernest De Palma, 23, of 186 Exchange street, New Haven, driver of the truck; and Luis Williams, 35, of 12 High street, Bethel, motorman on the railroad car, are likely to die.

Mrs. Agnes Olmstead, of Lake Zoar, suffered a broken nose. Other victims were cut by flying glass.

The gas car, approaching the grade crossing at forty miles an hour with its whistle blowing, struck the truck in the middle. The truck was turned over. The gas car's radiator and cab were completely smashed in and the car was derailed but not overturned.

WILL BRING HOMESPUN FOR GOVERNOR'S SUIT

Asheville, N. C., Men to Bear Unusual Gifts to Trumbull and Hartford's Mayor.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 24.—Governor John H. Trumbull and Mayor Norman C. Stevens, of Hartford, will receive enough homespun cloth for suits of clothes from a delegation of Asheville, N. C., business men, when the Carolina Sky Special arrives here on October 6.

Both officials have chosen the material they favor. Secretary William M. Mead, of the local chamber of commerce, the organization that will entertain the visitors here, has forwarded their order to Asheville. Many of the visitors have personal friends in this state as Asheville has long been a favorite winter resort for Connecticut families.

Local Painting Teacher Just Back From Abroad

Manchester has some mighty interesting folks. We have roamers who sailed the seven seas, soldiers who fought savage tribes, men who excelled in sports. In the field of music we have a singer of national reputation and a violinist who is reaching for Fritz Kreisler's crown. One of our explorers who is also internationally known as a radio expert, visited the Arctic circle.

In all of the arts Manchester is represented. Now we have a young lady, just returned from her studies abroad, who is not only a student but a teacher of painting. Read her European Impressions in tomorrow's "RALD at Noon"

EXPLODES BOMB, WRECKS FACTORY, ISN'T INJURED

Lisbon, Sept. 24.—The Ribalonga munitions factory was partly destroyed, a neighboring church was wrecked and several persons were injured today when a workman exploded a bomb he was manufacturing. The workman, who escaped all injury, was placed under arrest.

FIND CONN. GIRL IN BROOKLYN GUTTER

Rose Lavelle's Pursuit of a "Broadway Career," Ends in a Hospital.

New York, Sept. 24.—The "career" of Rose Lavelle, attractive 19-year-old blonde who ran away from her home in Montville, Conn. to become an actress, ended today in a Brooklyn gutter. She had been picked out of a gutter where she lay, rained, unconscious and drug poisoned.

Rose told police she had always wanted a "career" on Broadway. Things were too quiet in Montville. So two weeks ago she ran away from home and came to New York. But theatrical managers were not as enthusiastic as she had expected.

Things became more and more difficult until last night she attended a party. That's the last she remembers until she woke up in the hospital.

Dominic Faloso and Henrietta Neubauer were arrested charged with assault.

TUNNEY'S RELATIVES DODGE SPOT LIGHT

"Public Not Interested in Any Tunney Bit Gene"; Brother, Cop, Sees Fight.

New York, Sept. 24.—Gene Tunney's relatives refused to share the spotlight that centers about his manly 185-pound form today, following his sensational success in wrestling the heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey in Philadelphia last night. His mother, Mrs. Mary Tunney, refused to see newspaper reporters at her home here. A sister, who shares the home with her, was just as evasive.

"The public isn't interested in any of us but him," she said. "We have no statement to make."

"None of us has any idea of the rest of the family and any of the papers as a result of the Philadelphia affair."

Tunney's brother, a policeman, attended the fight.

Tunney is the first New Yorker to hold the heavyweight championship.

FIGHT FANS HIKE IN DRIVING RAINSTORM

Thousands Forced to Walk to City After Seaside Battle; One Man Drops Dead.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 24.—Every train leaving Philadelphia today carried a capacity load of fight fans returning to their homes in various parts of the country after witnessing the Dempsey-Tunney fight last night.

Confusion and chaos marked the return from the Sesqui-centennial stadium to downtown Philadelphia last night—a distance of about three miles. There was not sufficient transportation to handle the 130,000 people at the event and many were forced to walk back to the city in driving rain.

One man dropped dead of heart disease near the stadium after the fight. Between fifty and sixty persons were injured in the terrific crash, most of them slightly.

POLICEMAN FINED $250 IN FATAL DRIVING CASE

Hartford, Sept. 24.—John Mense, a Hartford policeman who was involved in a motor vehicle accident several weeks ago that resulted in the death of a Hartford resident, was fined $250 on a charge of criminal negligence by Judge John W. Banks, in superior court here today. Both prosecution and defense maintained there was no evidence of liquor in the case.

WHEN DEMPSEY'S RING REIGN CAME TO ITS END

In this remarkable photo is captured the dramatic moment at which the battered Dempsey (at right), for seven years holder of the ring championship, was helped across the squared circle to congratulate his victor Gene Tunney (shown with towel over shoulder at left.) Dempsey, still very groggy, was supported by "Jerry the Greek," whereas the elated Tunney is shown surrounded by a group of police stationed at his side to hold back the crowds of admirers.

TORNADO IN OHIO INJURES A DOZEN

50 Dwellings in Ruins, Much Damage Done; School House Demolished.

Cleveland, Sept. 24.—The southeastern section of Erie county today is a panorama of devastation—the result of a tornado which caused damage estimated at several hundred thousand dollars and resulted in injuries to at least a dozen persons, who were struck by flying debris.

The storm broke about 4:30 P. M. yesterday, near the southeast corner of Erie county, sweeping northward, thence out into Lake Erie.

More than 50 dwellings were wrecked by the tornado and hundreds more unroofed or otherwise damaged. Communication within the stricken zone was cut off.

School children escape. Eye witnesses declare that the storm was actually a series of three small tornadoes, following parallel courses.

Near Huron a school teacher, seeing the ominous clouds approaching, gathered her pupils at a point of safety a few seconds before the building was demolished.

MANY WITNESSES FOR THE McPHERSON TRIAL

Prosecutor Promises Sensational Disclosures Through New Evidence of Conspiracy.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 24.—With at least a dozen witnesses arriving here from Carmel, Salinas and Arizona to testify at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Almee Semple McPherson, woman evangelist; her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy; and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sellaf, and with the district attorney's office announcing that sensational new evidence had been unearthed, the conspiracy charges against the trio were boiling over today.

Mrs. Wiseman-Sellaf, through the medium of audivits, charges that Mrs. McPherson offered her a sum of money to produce a "Miss X," who was to be designated as the woman companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator at Angelus Temple, at the Carmel cottage.

Another Searcher. District Attorney Asa Keyes claims that he has unearthed evidence from among the effects of "Dr." A. M. Waters, who killed himself a week ago, that he, too, was trying to find a mythical "Miss X."

It is also charged that Mrs. McPherson communicated with Ormiston as recently as August 15. All efforts to locate Ormiston, who is also wanted on conspiracy charges, have proven fruitless.

MEXICAN POLICE CHARGE WOMEN WITH SEDITION

Mexico City, Sept. 24.—Headquarters of the Catholic Women's Associations were closed today by the police, who charge that seditious propaganda has been issued from there. Arrests of Catholic women leaders are not discouraged by the Chamber of Deputies' rejection of their plea for constitutional reform, stating that such action had been anticipated.

NO DOCTOR'S AID, NO COMPENSATION

Injured Woman Who Scorns Treatment Can't Get Pay, Is Noonan Rule.

Hartford, Sept. 24.—The refusal of a woman employe of the North & Judd Manufacturing Co. of New Britain, Mrs. S. Viata, of 18 Clark street, New Britain to receive treatment for an injured thumb, now infected and badly swollen, has led Compensation Commissioner Leo J. Noonan to suspend her rights to compensation.

She was injured at work on July 30, and except for one treatment by a doctor has refused all medical aid.

The commissioner held an emergency hearing on her case and efforts are being made to induce the woman to have her thumb treated properly. She does not speak or understand English.

ENJOINS KU KLUX KLAN FROM E. CONN. PARADE

Court Blocks Procession at Plainfield But Kluxers Plan to Hold Big Meeting.

Plainfield, Sept. 24.—Retrained by a superior court injunction issued by Judge John R. Booth, from parading when they meet here tomorrow, members of the Ku Klux Klan of eastern Connecticut today announced the injunction would have no effect on the general meeting. Henry J. Bessette, first selectman secured the injunction on the ground that serious trouble might result from a parade.

The injunction is being served today by deputy sheriffs on leaders living in New London, Plainfield, Killingly and other towns in this section.

DEMPSEY GETS CASH BLM FOR HIS HURTS

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 24.—Jack Dempsey has received the money due him for fighting Gene Tunney last night. Dempsey's manager, Gene Normile, said today. By what legal process it was obtained, despite all the law suits, was not stated.

"Jack got every dollar that he was entitled to and there is no legal tangle about it," Normile said.

WALKS INTO CAR, KILLED

New Britain, Sept. 24.—Dennis McInerney, 60, was struck and probably fatally hurt here today by an automobile driven by Max J. Unkelmact, architect. Police, investigating, found McInerney walked into the car, and they did not hold Unkelmact.

Marie Bobs for American Trip; King, Vexed, Threatens Beard

Berlin, Sept. 24.—An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth and a beard for a bob. That's the modern version of the ancient proverb in the royal court of Roumania, according to the Berlin Morgenpost. Queen Marie of Roumania, whose hair has been one of her glories, has prepared for her American tour by having her hair bobbed, says the Morgenpost.

The king, so the story goes, was not consulted about Queen Marie's visit to the court hairdresser to be shorn and he is furious, so furious that he is making threats of reprisals. The king, it is whispered by the court gossip, in his fury, has threatened to make a trip to the court hairdresser himself to be shorn of his beard. Such an act would be a drastic one, perhaps even a tragic one, for everyone admits that Queen Marie's beauty is not detracted from by bobbed hair, who knows what King Ferdinand would look like without his beard?

DEMPSEY BLIND AT END OF FIGHT

Couldn't See At All So Had To Be Led To Congratulate His Conqueror.

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—"When the last bell sounded," declared Gene Normile today, "Jack Dempsey was blind in both eyes."

"He got back to his corner and said: 'I'm a loser Gene, lead me over to Tunney's corner because I can't see.'"

"I couldn't let Jack get up until the official announcement was made. Then he jumped up and I led him over to where Tunney was and led him back, because he couldn't see."

LEGALITY QUESTION COMES UP AT SALE

Referee in Bankruptcy Must Decide if Local Firm's Bid Was According to Law.

It is really up to the referee in bankruptcy to decide whether Donohue and Johnson of this town really own the equipment and merchandise of the bankrupt "City Sea Grill" restaurant in the South End.

The sale held yesterday afternoon for the merchandise in the bankruptcy court and was conducted by William H. Wakelee of the United States District Court. There was quite a number of local and out of town persons at the auction.

Mr. Wakelee explained that the bankrupt firm Morris & Contos of above, 71 here this morning, had bid $1,000 and that no bid under that sum could be considered. Under these instructions Mr. Donohue bid $2,000. There were no other bids but the auctioneer called for more.

Then Mr. Wakelee asked for bids for the merchandise in the restaurant. Donohue and Johnson made the highest bid, one of $530. This was allowed.

The question then arose if the local firm did not buy the equipment as they bid the highest and above, $1,000, Morris Eiman, trustee for the bankrupt estate gave it as his opinion that both bids were legal but that Referee Berman would have to decide that.

The City Grill operated here for over a year at a loss when they filed a petition of bankruptcy they had liabilities of over $7,000.

HAGEN, THREE UNDER PAR. BEATS FARRELL, ONE UNDER

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Johnnie Farrell, Quaker Ridge, under par, but not finished the morning round two down to Walter Hagen, Pasadena, Florida, who had a 69. They were playing a semi-final 36-hole match in the Professional Golfers' Association championship at the Salisbury Country club.

NEEDLE WORKERS VICTIMS OF THUGS

One Stabbed, Two Beaten With Iron Club in New Haven Garment Strike.

New Haven, Sept. 24.—"Peaceful picketing" in the New Haven garment strike seems to be at an end and police are preparing to end picketing altogether as the result of an attack on garment workers by men who descended from an automobile and either stabbed or beat up three male workers. Louis Hoffman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is in a hospital with a punctured lung, the result of a knife stab. Marcus and Joseph Proshovaky, also of Brooklyn, are under treatment for cuts on their heads caused by their being beaten with an iron bar.

During the assault weapons used in the assault were recovered by detectives and are being studied for fingerprints. The assault took place on Meadow street while the three men were listening to radio fight returns. The attack was so swift that the assailants escaped in an automobile before the crowd and policemen keeping order could move. Hoffman fell face down with the knife still sticking in his back. In spite of his wound he is expected to recover.

The detective department here believes that the assailants will be under arrest soon and meanwhile are keeping heavier police guards in various districts where garment plants are located.

Get Stamford Thugs. Stamford, Sept. 24.—Frederick Poell is in Stamford hospital suffering from cuts about the head and other injuries suffered when he and another man, unidentified, were set upon by nearly a score of men this morning.

Poell and his companion are employees of a garment factory whose employees are on strike, and were on their way to work when two automobiles drove up alongside them from which sprang several men who beat and kicked them, and then drove off.

The police were at once notified and started in pursuit. One car containing five men was captured here and the other machine with four passengers was taken in Greenwich, and will be returned here. All the men will be held pending an investigation.

TIMSON, EDERLE AIDE, RETURNS IN STEERAGE

New York, Sept. 24.—Louis Timson of Lynn, Mass., who was a great help to Gertrude Ederle and Millie Gade Corson in their channel swims, but himself had to turn back when he tried it Sept. 10-11, returned in the steerage of the Mauritania today. He said that, since he was backed by the Swampscott, Mass., American Legion Post, he preferred discomfort to spending more of their funds.

GET SEVENTH BANDIT OF ROSENTHAL GANG

Mexico City, Sept. 24.—Capture of the seventh bandit involved in the kidnaping and murder of Jacob Rosenthal of Woodmere, N. Y., has been announced by the government.

Six bandits involved in this case were previously paid with their lives. An eighth member of the kidnaping party is still at large.

Fred Wilson of 86 Church street, who has been confined to his home with an attack of cold is at work again.

MAL DAUGHERTY SAYS HARRY M. BURNED RECORD

Missing Accounts in Ohio Bank Destroyed by Then Attorney-General, Hiding Graft Trial.

New York, Sept. 24.—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney-general of the United States, destroyed the records of his account in the Midland National Bank at Washington court house, O., according to his brother, Mal S. Daugherty, who testified today at the trial of the former cabinet member, and Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian. Harry M. Daugherty also destroyed the accounts of the late Jesse Smith and of Mal S. Daugherty, the bank president testified.

Harry M. Daugherty and Miller are on trial charged with conspiracy in connection with the return of $7,000,000 worth of Liberty Bonds to the American Metal company to a Swiss company, which was represented by Richard Merton, German financier. Federal District Attorney Buckner introduced evidence yesterday to show that some of the $291,000 worth of Liberty Bonds given the late John T. King by Merton for King's alleged aid in obtaining the settlement of the claim, had reached the Midland bank.

Mal Government Witness. Mal S. Daugherty was called to the stand as a witness for the government this morning. The government bases much of its case on a cashier's check deposited in Daugherty's bank by King. The ledger sheets recording the deposit are missing. Harry M. Daugherty and Jesse Smith both had accounts in the bank.

"What did you do with these missing records?" Mal Daugherty was asked.

"I gave them to my brother, Harry M. Daugherty," he answered.

"Did he tell you what he had done with them?"

"He told me he had destroyed them," the banker replied. Mal Daugherty had testified in 1925 before the federal grand jury that the records were "missing."

"Did Harry tell you how he destroyed these records?" asked Buckner.

"He told me he burned them," was the reply.

Scanned Accounts Together. The witness then admitted, under questioning, that before Harry destroyed the account records the former attorney-general and the witness went over the accounts "twenty or twenty-five times."

Under cross-examination by Max Steuer, counsel for Harry M. Daugherty, the witness declared his brother had never told him to conceal anything from the government.

Joseph Gavan, accountant for the Department of Justice, was the next witness. He testified that Thomas W. Miller had an "alien property custodian's" account in the Midland bank.

Gavan also told of questioning Mal Daugherty concerning missing papers in his bank.

SEE WORLD COURT ENTRY AS BLOCKED

Irreconcilables Gleeeful as Geneva Powers Decline Fifth Reservation.

Washington, Sept. 24.—America's entrance into the World Court has been delayed, if it has not been prevented entirely, by the action of the powers at Geneva in evading the fifth of the Senate's reservations.

This represents the consensus in Washington, pro-court and anti-court alike.

The irreconcilables are elated over the refusal of the powers to accept at face value the fifth reservation, which states that the World Court may not render an advisory opinion in any case in which the United States "has or claims to have" an interest, without the specific consent of this government. The pro-court forces are correspondingly glum, and yet without rather helpless to remedy it.

DOUBLE FEATURE AT CIRCLE TODAY

"Money Talks" With Claire Windsor, and "Merry Cavalier" With Dick Talmadge on Same Program.

The two photoplays that pleased the patrons at the Circle yesterday will continue to do so today for the last time.

There is only one major fault with "Money Talks." It isn't long enough, and I think the rest of the audience last night at the Circle theater, where this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture had its initial showing, felt as I did about it. The strange part of such pictures is that the more laughs there are in it, the shorter it seems to the audience. Archie Mayo is the director.

Seldom has a picture been received with the enthusiasm that greeted "Money Talks." Spontaneous chuckles that grew to the proportion of deep stomach laughs at the end of the picture were in constant evidence.

Archie Mayo, a former short comedy director, handled the megaphone on "Money Talks," and with eminently satisfying results. He reveals an innate understanding of the sitting of comedy values, and in a few scenes shows that comedy is not his only forte.

Claire Windsor has the leading feminine role, that of Phoebe Starling. Miss Windsor has never been photographed to better advantage and is fast establishing herself as a whimsical comedienne. There is a refinement about her comedy that is found in but one or two other players. She is a bit of Owen Moore as the fast-talking, thoughtless Sam Starling, gives the best performance of his career. In a day when any and everything is forgiven for the sake of a "gag," Moore surprises by offering a real and definite characterization in a farce comedy.

The spirit of Young Lochinvar and the heroes of story books seem to materialize in that good-looking young athlete, Dick Talmadge. In "The Merry Cavalier," he is the real "merry cavalier." Laughing, dashing, sympathetic, Dick seems to be in the wrong century. He is the spirit of Drake, Boone, and other famous rovers who, finding life too tame, went out and wrested fame and fortune from the teeth of apparent failure about Richard—he is success personified, and there is nothing improbable about his victory over great dangers and against heavy odds. You know that you can't do it, but you feel that Dick can, and are relieved when he finally wins freedom and the girl. The stunts and thrills are spectacular in the extreme without being the slightest bit impossible or far-fetched, and the photograph of Jack Stevens, which gives you the full benefit of his daring leaps, is well worthy of praise.

Lest you forget, Saturday also will be double feature day with just as good a program as ever; namely, Buck Jones in "The Flying Horseman" and "The Fate of a Phil."

AMATEUR BOXING BOUNTS TONIGHT?

Hartford, Sept. 24.—Tonight at Capitol Park leading amateur boxers of the state will meet in one of the special invitation tournaments providing weather isn't adverse.

One of the bouts that promises real action is that between Abe Bodine and Joe Cunningham, a snappy str of featherweights. Cunningham has a record of twenty-one amateur bouts without a defeat while Bodine is one of the best amateurs in this section in any class.

A welterweight bout of real proportions will bring together Pinky Kaufman, former Ohio state champion and now of Hartford, and Billy Szepiaki of Springfield.

Then Art Chappelaine, class of Springfield flyweight, will engage Pete Fiorentino of New Haven.

Bill Liberman of Springfield will take on Charley Anderson of New Haven in the 143 pound class.

There will be at least eight bouts, the first to be held at 8.30. More than twenty amateurs have entered for this event.

The outdoor season is fast waning and the prospect is that there will not be more than two or three more shows at Capitol Park.

Some Doin's!

Yes, sir, I sure 'nough had my picture took an' I wanta tell you that's some story by itself an' p'rhaps I'll tell you 'bout it bine by when I have time—but anyhow here I am, the first time I ever get my picture in the paper. But I landed there this time all right with both feet, only they didn't have room fer 'em, an' in fact I'm in here a day early at that, Sat'day being my reg'lar appearance—but I hed some struggle t' get in 't all this week an' here's how 't come about.

You see, there's been big doin's goin' on down here fer a couple weeks—gettin' ready fer the big affair thet's comin'—an' they bein' keepin' pretty quiet about it, but we all bin humpin' t' beat the band—jilin' in new furniture an' s'lickin' up the place, an' scoutin' all 'round after some extra big bargains an' gettin' a lot o' advertisin' ready—'cause there's somethin' goin' t' break pretty sudden, an' it's goin' t' make a awful big noise when it does.

An' just about t'morrow night the thing 'll go off an' be announced to th' public—but I gotta make some sorta explanation so I don't mind tippin' you off t' what the doin's is all about—it's our 27th Anniversary Celebration—an' b'lieve me they sure do set some store by their anniversary celebrations down here.

Why, after I bin tearin' in an' boostin' things along on it best I could here fer a month back, an' supposin' all the time I wuz goin' t' be right up in the front lines when it come off, then they says, "No, Happy, this is big stuff—why we been 27 years waitin' for a 27th Anniversary, and we always have a grand big Jubilee Affair on anniversaries,—make it a great Profit Sharin' occasion and Old Home Week for all our loyal customers, and you bein' here so recent, you better lay off and listen to th' music."

Well, sir, I couldn't blame 'em in a way, 'cause I never see any doin's just like this before. Tain't a Sale er anything of the kind—not what you could call it, fer there ain't any o' this mark-down goods er nothin'. We don't have only two reg'lar Sales a year—summer an' winter. But b'lieve me they are puttin' on a great show of values an' layin' out an awful big dollar's worth o' goods fer anybody's money in this Profit Sharin' proposition, an' they're preparin' fer a awful pile o' people an' mean t' have somethin' worth while fer 'em all. They says these Profit Sharin' Anniversary affairs hez come t' be a big thing, with hundreds of customers cuttin' into the profits on thousands o' dollars' worth o' goods, an' I kin believe it after seein' what they're workin' out fer this one.

But you'll see all about it in th' papers t'morrow night, just what it is—an' I wouldn't wanta horn in on a 27th Anniversary Centennial er whatever it is only here's what kinda made me sore—when the ad man come 'round an' says he's gotta take my Sat'day night space away from me fer his Anniversary Celebration which starts on Monday. An' after I'd hed my picture took fer the occasion an' everything. Well, sir, I wuz madder'n a wet hen, an' I raised all kinds of a holler 'bout it, but it didn't do no good 'till finally they says, "Well, Happy, you kin have Friday night instead, an' put your picture in an' everything, only don't give away anything 'bout th' Anniversary."

So that's why I ain't been able t' mention it, only explain how I come to be out on Friday night—but everything's all set now an' the whole story 'll be in th' paper t'morrow, an' b'lieve me it's SOME DOIN'S, an' you wanta be there!

URGES LIBERALITY TO YOUTH OF N. E.

Breton Woods Conference Head Points Need of Reward to Retain Young Men

Breton Woods, N. H., Sept. 24.—New England business and industry must promote and reward its young men if this section is to retain the services of her able and ambitious youth. John S. Lawrence, president of the New England Council, said today in opening the quarterly meeting here.

The power committee presented a resolution declaring that where a proposed agreement for the interchange of electric power between two companies becomes a matter of interest to two or more states an agreement should be made by appropriate legislation whereby the public utilities commissions of such states shall have the joint jurisdiction over the matter.

New England agricultural colleges are placing more emphasis upon the study of the business side of farming, the agricultural committee reported, calling attention to a New England farm market conference in Boston, December 8 and 10.

The committee on recreational resources said that this district can have just as much favorable publicity as other sections of the country as soon as New Englanders are willing to pay for it, as are business interests elsewhere. Many New England communities are successful in attracting new industry and in promoting industrial development without offering bonuses, free taxes, etc.; the public relations and community organizations committee declared.

STATE FOREST ASS'N TO SEE BEAUTY SPOTS

New Haven, Sept. 24.—Excursions to various beauty spots in Meshomac, or Rattlesnake State Forest, will form the chief features of the fall field meeting of the Connecticut Forestry association to be held October 2 in the town of Portland, according to announcement from the association headquarters here today.

Centering on the log cabin headquarters near the Portland Water Company's reservoir, the members of the association will visit a hardwood stand at 11 a. m., return for a picnic dinner, and then go to Great Hill Pond where the state has recently acquired a ravine containing the remains of an old coal mine. Roads to the meeting place will be marked for the occasion and Portland and Middletown Boy Scouts will have charge of parking.

PROTESTS BUS LINES. Greenwich, Sept. 24.—The New York and Stamford street railway company has protested operation of the Greenwich and Fort Chester and Fort Chester and Glenville bus lines to the Public Utilities Corporation.

HEBRON

Leroy Benzinger has closed for the season his gasoline and food station which he has operated on the cement road near Chamberlain's crossing through part of the summer.

There was no school on Tuesday at the Hopevale school as the teacher Miss Josephine Folsom who is substituting for her sister, Miss Marion Folsom, is suffering from a bad attack of ivy poisoning.

Elder Moffat, president of the Atlantic Union Conference, was a recent visitor at the home of Elder C. P. Lillie at Burroughs Hill. While there a meeting was held which was attended by members of the Advent church in the vicinity.

Mrs. Clara Johnson and her three children and Mrs. Paul Coates and her daughter Eleanor were visitors on Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart in Tyngville.

Mrs. James Brown and children were visitors in Hopevale at the home of Mrs. Edward Fredericks recently.

Miss Gladys Broome who has spent the summer at her home in Hopevale has returned to Hartford where she is employed.

A marker with date 1750 has been placed on the old Sybil Gillette house now owned by Mrs. T. D. Martin. This is probably the oldest house in the vicinity of the Green.

The Rev. T. D. Martin was absent from home from Wednesday to Friday while attending the conference of clergy of the diocese held at Wallingford at the Choate school which was offered for use on that occasion.

Eugene Smith and a friend, both from Norwich, visited at Mr. Smith's old home on Monday. Many from this town were present at the Nathan Hale celebration at Coventry on Wednesday. A float manned by the American Legion showed scenes from the World War with soldiers in uniform. Miss Clarissa Pendleton was dressed in costume of Red Cross nurse and Mrs. C. Daniel Way, a Y. M. C. A. worker in the war overseas, also accompanied the party in uniform of worker. The float was decorated with bunting. Flags of the legion were displayed and there were trimmings of golden rod and pine boughs. Plans for a second float representing scenes from history had to be abandoned on account of lack of time and resources.

Services at St. Peter's Episcopal church will be held at 10:30 A. M., beginning with Sunday the 26th. Through the daylight saving season it has begun at 10 A. M. Sunday school will be held at a quarter before twelve.

Norman and Robert Rathbone, sons of Mrs. Etta Rathbone, are suffering with spinal meningitis. They have had severe and painful attacks but are reported as on the mend. The cases came on recently.

NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

Nash entirely encases the front brake shoes which are of die cast aluminum. And thus keeps out all water and dirt from the mechanism. Note extremely large brake drum shown at left.

The Simplest and Most Efficient 4 Wheel Brakes

Standard Equipment—No Extra Cost

Another vital Nash mechanical superiority is the special Nash 4-wheel brake system—the safest, simplest and most efficient type known to the industry.

Fully equalized to right and left, front and rear, these brakes banish entirely the dangerous swerving characteristic of partially equalized brakes.

They are of unique simplicity in design, having fewer points requiring lubrication than any other mechanical brake system.

Their instant, powerful, but velvety ease-of pressure is scientifically distributed, 60% to the rear and 40% to the front.

The sixteen new Nash models now on display range in price from $865 to $2090 f. o. b. factory.

THE NEW CHAMPION

Gene Tunney

LONDON RADIO FANS LOSE FIGHT DECISION

Fading at Climax of Prize Ring Story Hits Amateurs Who Listened In.

London, Sept. 24.—London's rabid fight fans who sat up most of the night with their ears glued to their radio sets in an effort to receive the ringside description of the heavyweight championship bout broadcast from Philadelphia were at last partially rewarded for their vigilance.

Amateurs with short wave length receiving sets were able to hear the fight story clearly, although they were troubled with "fading" just as the announcement of the decision was given.

The well-known wireless research worker, G. L. Morrow announced that he had picked up the fight as re-broadcast from the Berkhamstead station, using a two-tube set.

Everyone knows how to cure your cold, remove your freckles, or reduce your weight.

DEMPSEY IGNORES UPSETS WOMAN HE UPSETS.

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—Jack Dempsey collided with a woman, Mrs. N. J. La Roche, as he was rushing to his dressing room after his bout with Gene Tunney last night. She darted across the de-throned champion's path and was knocked over. Dempsey kept moving, witnesses said. She was treated for cuts and bruises at a hospital.

OLDEST M. E. MINISTER CELEBRATES 102nd BIRTHDAY.

Malden, Mass.—The world's oldest Methodist minister has just celebrated his 102nd birthday. In 1824, the Reverend Edward Stewart Best was born. The whole of his life has been dedicated to his ministering calling.

His birthday was quietly observed at his home, where the venerable pastor was visited by Mrs. J. W. Cunnock and Rosamund Best, his daughters, two grandchildren and several great-grandchildren. A nephew, Henry Farnham, resides in Chicago.

COLUMBIA

Rural Carrier Raymond Lyman is taking his vacation this week. He with his family will spend part of the week visiting Mrs. Ralph White at Amherst, Mass. The route is being covered by the substitute, Eugene Winter.

James Utley, who she is recovering from the injuries received in an auto accident two weeks ago on the Storm King Highway.

Mrs. Ella Hutchinson has returned to Columbia after spending part of the summer visiting friends in Hartford and other places.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Porter started back for their home in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on Wednesday after spending several weeks at the home of Mr. Porter's parents.

Mrs. W. H. Carpenter is visiting her sister, Mrs. Mortimer Dowd at Hartford.

Columbia was well represented at the Nathan Hale celebration in South Coventry Wednesday. The Columbia band was in the line of march, playing with the Rockville Boys' band, all under the direction of A. E. Lyman. Some of the local schools were also in the parade, and the High school pupils were taken to the exercises in the school bus.

ANDOVER

Mrs. Ellen Jones and family spent Wednesday in South Coventry.

Mrs. A. E. Frink is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John T. Murphy of Bristol.

Edward Nicolet of Hartford was a visitor in town Wednesday evening. A large number of the town's people attended the Nathan Hale celebration in South Coventry Wednesday. Many of the school children marched in the parade and a float was furnished by this town.

It was prettily decorated and consisted of a tableau, showing Nathan Hale's farewell to his family just before starting the venture which was to result in his execution. No word had been received from Miss Lois Caswell, or any member of her family, who left for Florida in the early fall, and were presumably at Miami at the time of the disaster. Miss Caswell was a former teacher at the Center school and has many friends who are anxiously awaiting news.

Mrs. E. H. Frink and son of South Manchester were callers in town Thursday afternoon.

The neckline and armhole of youthful frocks is effectively outlined with French flowers in many colored velvet and chiffon.

DEMPSEY'S WIFE TALKS

Lima, Ohio, Sept. 24.—"It was consoling to know that Jack finished on his feet, and fought it out to the end," was the comment of Estelle Taylor Dempsey, wife of the former heavyweight champion when she learned of Dempsey's defeat.

Mrs. Dempsey, enroute to Philadelphia, first learned of the debacle to Dempsey at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Refusing to believe the report as contained in Indiana newspaper extras, she sought confirmation in Lima.

She told newspaper reporters that Dempsey probably would demand a return match with Tunney, and expressed confidence that he would regain his title within a few months, if this demand is granted.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Swamp Fox (3)

Fleeing after the capture of Fort Moultrie by the British, Col. Marion went to North Carolina where he met Gen. Gates, who received him coldly. He raised four companies of irregular cavalry around Williamsburg and in August, 1780, Gov. Rutledge made him a brigadier-general of state troops.

The name of Marion became feared by the Tories. His scouts, the so-called "Swamp Fox" and his companies of irregular cavalry around Williamsburg and in August, 1780, Gov. Rutledge made him a brigadier-general of state troops.

Shortly after Marion took command of his forces, a strong band of Tories under Major Gainey gathered near the Great and Little Pedee rivers. The Swamp Fox and his men rode all night and fell upon the camp just at daybreak. Rainey's forces were completely surprised and fled, leaving many dead. (Continued.)

ITALY PLANS FOR A FUTURE COAL-LESS, OIL-LESS WORLD

This is the sixth of a series of articles by Israel Klein, science editor of NEA Service and The Herald, regarding the part chemistry is taking in the welfare and progress of the world.

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
 Science Editor, NEA Service

Italy today is a picture in miniature of the world in the future, when coal and oil shall have been practically exhausted.

For Italy, dependent on other lands for these two important sources of energy, is turning to an apparently perpetual energy of the earth as an alternative.

The coal-less, oil-less age may be said to have arrived, so far as Italy is concerned.

One of the greatest exponents of this coal-less age in Italy is Prof. Umberto Pomilio, leading chemical engineer in Italy, who is now in this country.

Little Native Coal
 "Italy," says its spokesman, "is one of the poorest countries in fossil fuels. We have to import nine-tenths of all the coal we use. And our coal demand is going up despite our increasing development of energy from other sources."

"So we must look elsewhere for our energy. And we find it in the waterfalls, the rivers, the natural steam from the earth, the heat of the volcanoes and the rise and fall of the tides. The last two sources have not yet been applied, but they're being tried out experimentally."

"Thirty per cent of the power obtainable from our waterfalls is already in use. We figure 30 per cent more can be obtained from the same source. The rest is economically impossible."

"With mountains in the north and more in the south, we can so link our lines over the entire peninsula that we can get energy from the northern mountains in summer, when the snow melts, and from the southern mountains in the winter, after the dry season."

Natural Steam Power
 "But only about 20 to 25 per cent of our power is hydro-electric. The rest must come from fuel, from coal. So we are trying to find means to replace this imported energy by our own power in some other way than by the use of coal."

There are several active volcanoes in Italy, three of which especially are now subjects of experiment as sources of power. These are Vesuvius, Etna and Stromboli.

The greatest development toward a natural power supply, however, is in Tuscany at Larderello, where natural steam rises from the ground, and is being used for power.

"But Italy is expecting much of its energy from this source," says Pomilio. "As the steam comes out of the ground it has very little pressure."

"By boring a deep hole in the ground, we get steam with enough pressure to drive a pump. Now there are three turbines in this district being driven by 80 pounds of steam per kilowatt hour."

Heat Without Aid
 That's only a beginning in the quest for power outside the realm of coal, however. Still another method is being tried out with remarkable success in Italy. This is a purely chemical process. It's called the exothermic method, by which compounds are formed by the heat of their own junction, rather than by the aid of heat from coal or oil.

"In the production of hydrochloric acid, for instance," Dr. Pomilio explains, "considerable coal is burned to furnish the heat necessary in the mixture of salt and sulphuric acid. But we have found a way of burning hydrogen and chlorine together, which not only produces the acid, but furnishes heat in addition."

"We are trying to apply the exothermic method for the production of potash which today uses up a great deal of coal in the process. Instead of using coal, we attack the potassium-aluminum-silicate with hydrochloric acid by this exothermic method and get other products in addition to our potash."

Too Much Heat!
 "In the production of paper pulp, present processes must rely on pressure and heat from coal. It takes 150 pounds of coal to get 100 pounds of pulp. That's too expensive for Italy."

"So we have tried the reaction of chlorine on wood and straw by the exothermic method. The result is that we not only get the pulp and heat from the process, but we have had to find ways to cool the mix-

U. S. SPENDS SIX BILLION DOLLARS IN CONSTRUCTION

That Amount Is Required Annually According to Gries, Chief of Department of Commerce.

Washington, Sept. 18. — United States is spending about six billion dollars annually for construction work, according to John M. Gries, chief of the division of building and housing of the Department of Commerce.

After a survey of the construction Gries declared that its importance is hard to over-emphasize.

"In value of product it ranks considerably above the automobile industry, the largest in the manufacturing class, and is about on par with railway operating receipts," Gries said.

"Variations in construction activity from year to year have a large share in determining the prosperity of other major industries and bears some relation to retail trade and to the individual incomes of practically every family in the country."

Existing construction was described as underlying the whole economic organization of United States today.

Gries pointed out that the volume of construction is of great importance. The million and a half to two million increase in population each year requires new dwellings, increased manufacturing facilities, increased public utilities and other types of construction.

"In general progress depends largely on the nation's devoting a due proportion of its energies to construction," Gries declared.

"As Secretary of Commerce Hoover has stated, 'our national savings are accumulating at an unparalleled rate and it is especially desirable to have them invested in domestic permanent capital improvements which contribute directly to the well being of our people, for by such devotion of our savings we both encourage thrift and raise the standard of living.'"

He said the construction in United States today, measured in value, is less than thirty years old, and another thirty years hence a backward look to the present is likely to show a similar situation, according to Gries.

In spite of the vast program it is only recently that the building of houses and construction of buildings, roads, canals, bridges, railroads, harbor works, subways, tunnels and other work that produces a more or less fixed structure or alteration of the natural topography has been clearly recognized as a single industry.

"The production of its manufacturing industries is carried on mainly in buildings, of course, but depends even more on the physical network of railways, highways, telephones and telegraph systems, and lines for the transmission of power and water, all of which are in a large measure the products of construction," Gries said.

"Living standards of the people depend very largely on the character of dwellings, on the availability of water, sewerage, gas and electricity, and on the accessibility of varied recreational facilities, and on the streets and roads which enable them to get from place to place. There is a measurable relation between the character of dwellings and health. The schools require a great number of buildings in order to do their work effectively."

"Miss Legion"

She won a bathing contest they held, and then helped them put on a membership campaign. The Legionnaires plan to boom her for the title "Miss Legion" at the national convention in Philadelphia this fall.

JACK CLINGS IN A CLINCH

The champion, battered and cut by the challenger's rapid-fire blows, is reduced to the old trick of the weaker fighter—that of hanging on in a clinch to escape punishment. Many an opponent sought in vain by this means to avoid a beating from Dempsey, and here he is trying likewise to evade the conquering Tunney.

JACK HAS GENE ON THE 'ROPES

Dempsey put up a fight for his title, all right. Here he is crowding Tunney to the ropes, his back to the camera and his right arm raised to try for a blow. Referee Reilly is rushing in to bring the fighters back to the ring.

AUSTRALIA LOWERS RATE ON SHIPPING FOR U. S.

Washington.—In an attempt to increase its foreign trade with the United States, Australia has reduced its freight rates on cargoes shipped to American ports. It was announced today by the Department of Commerce.

The reductions, average on some cargoes as much as ten per cent, were applied to all merchandise shipped from Australia to this country. The purpose of the slash, it was said, was to improve shipping trade to Canadian ports as well as the United States.

LONDON'S LORD BISHOP A VISITOR IN OCTOBER

Hartford, Sept. 23.—The Right Reverend Arthur F. Winington Ingram, Lord Bishop of London, who will visit selected American colleges and universities during October and November, will be in New England from October 15 to 21. During that time his itinerary will be in the company of President Remsen B. Ogilby of Trinity College.
During his tour, Bishop Ingram will make formal addresses at each college he visits, but will spend most of his time in informal contact with undergraduates, both individually and in groups, President Ogilby said today. He is now in British Columbia and will begin his tour on the Pacific Coast.
His New England schedule calls for his arrival in Boston Friday, October 15, where he will remain as the guest of Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts until Monday, October 18. He will spend most of his time in Boston at Harvard University but will also visit other colleges and universities in and around Boston.
On Monday Bishop Ingram will go to Providence and spend that night at Brown University, leaving there Tuesday morning, October 19 for Hartford and Trinity College where he will be the guest of President Ogilby until Thursday, October 21.
Trinity has advanced the date of its historic matriculation day exercises which are usually held on the first Monday in November, to Wednesday, October 20, and Bishop Ingram will be the speaker. Thursday, October 21, the Bishop will motor to New Haven for a day at Yale University, following which he will return to New York.
The Bishop is an enthusiastic golfer and tennis player and during his longer stops at Harvard and Trinity, will be entertained at various golf and country clubs, according to present plans.

LE ROI ET LE ROI.

Thinkings dead long thinking! King Dempsey is down and King Tunney is up.

It is not more important than the coming Congressional election, than whether we get into the World Court with Reservation Five or without it, than whether the sunspots hand us Florida hurricanes every week all over the country for the next year and a half, than the price of Ford's, than whether there is to be a new war in the Balkans—but the body of American citizenship quite obviously thinks it is, a hundred times over.

And so it is worth a wish. Sincerely it is to be hoped, from this angle of American sportsmanship, that King Tunney will turn out to be as much better a champion than was King Dempsey as he has turned out to be a better fighter.

Dempsey became champion by licking a big strong man who suffered from a defeatist complex and who went into the ring with no will to fight, let alone to win. He retained his title seven years by competing four times—once by fighting a mixed-race pugilist named Brennan, since murdered, once by encountering the physically unfit Gibbons, once by beating the Frenchman Carpenter, who was no match in size, and once by escaping an accidental knockout at the hands of that mountain-like monstrosity Firpo who did not at all know how to fight and was clumsier than a grizzly bear.

Seven years. Gene Tunney is a popular idol with the fight fans today. If he exploits his championship as Dempsey exploited his he will be as unpopular as the unlamented ring king who is "mort," by the time a new king comes along to upset him.

For the sake of whatever sportsmanship there may be in prize fighting it is to be hoped that Tunney proves to be a different kind of champion.

HURRICANE TYPHOID.

The Florida hurricane did its work on Saturday. Four days later it was reported that there were thirty-one cases of typhoid in Hollywood and Fort Lauderdale, presumably caused by the drinking of contaminated water necessitated by the failure of the regular water supplies. Even now, when the government is hurrying typhoid serums to the hurricane zone, with every indication that an epidemic is feared, only six days have elapsed since the break of the catastrophe.

The period of incubation for typhoid fever in the human system is generally recognized as being twelve to fifteen days, and even then the development of the disease is usually slow. So that it is probably seldom that a case of typhoid is sufficiently far advanced to be diagnosed in less than three weeks from the time the poison is taken into the system.

Under these circumstances it is very difficult to believe that typhoid now present in an active stage in the hurricane zone can possibly be the result of the hurricane, other than indirectly. It is, of course, entirely possible and sufficiently probable that the strain, physical hardships and mental anxiety undergone by residents of that unhappy region have operated to prematurely develop typhoid cases that might not have been recognized for some time in the ordinary course of events, and even to beat down resistances that would have otherwise conceivably been able to conquer the disease even though the germs were present in the system. But it is highly improbable that there are any persons ill with typhoid down here at this early day as the result of implantation of the germs since the tempest.

The point of this would appear to be that there was typhoid in plenty present in Hollywood and Fort Lauderdale before there was any September hurricane. It took the storm, however, to uncover the fact—which it is not unfair to presume had been carefully hidden.

TEMPERANCE.

A Hartford minister, Rev. Charles Graves, pastor of the First Unitarian Congregational church, has returned from an extended visit in England somewhat disturbed by the discovery, that American prohibitionists are conducting a campaign of propaganda over there in the hope of doing to Great Britain what they have succeeded in doing to America. It is not, because he fears that the campaign will meet with any success that Mr. Graves is adversely affected by his discovery, but because he naturally dislikes the experience of seeing injurious falsehood disseminated abroad in the name of his country.

He does find that temperance advocates in England are being grossly deceived as to the operation of the prohibitory laws, the results of which are being painted in glowing colors. But that the great majority of the people of Great Britain put any stock in the propaganda is not the case. He does find, too, that the use of alcoholic drink in England is on the decline, precisely as it was in this country at the time of the intrusions of the ruinous eighteenth amendment. And as a temperance man he is encouraged in the belief that John Barleycorn's face is turned toward eventual elimination on the other side.

Which brings us to the vital point in this whole problem. The Hartford clergyman declares that constitutional prohibition and steadiness have set back the cause of temperance in this country fifty years. That is the real issue in the fight against the present day regime. It is not, as the radical dries continually represent, a contest between themselves and the liquor interests, for the greatest liquor interest that this country has ever known is represented by the bootleggers of high and low degree and unanimously that interest is for prohibition "as is."

It is between prohibitionists and those who desire to cure the nation of alcoholism. It is between theoretical dries on one side, and practical temperance and teetotalism advocates. The liquor interests and the prohibitionists are bedfellows in this division. The real temperance advocates, like Mr. Graves and the Manchester Herald, have to fight them both.

PAPER WASTAGE.

The New York Times, dreading lest Queen Marie, on her arrival in New York, may be made the target of one of those utterly American demonstrations, a ticker-tape bombardment, as she passes through the financial district of New York, is impelled to dwell on the great wastage of paper that goes on in this country anyhow. "With nothing," says the Times, "are we Americans so careless as with paper. The subways and trains are filled with soiled, discarded newspapers. The park authorities have to maintain a constant war against paper litterers. Our country roads are lined with the wrappings of lunches."

Correct. But we wonder if there is any greater participant in paper wastage in the length and breadth of the land than this same most important journal. Newspapers like the Times, which print hundreds of thousands of copies of huge Sunday numbers weighing two or three pounds apiece, on simply millions of the columns of which no human eye is ever cast, are responsible for the disappearance of thousands and thousands of noble trees every month—gone into pulp from which is made the trainloads of paper upon which these gargantuan Sunday monstrosities are printed.

If all the brokers' offices in New York were to set all their employees to heating ticker tape out of their windows, and keep it up every business hour of every business day in the week, the waste would be the merest trifle in comparison with the ghastly destruction caused in the fabrication of those hybrid things that on Sunday go by the name of newspapers in New York.

PASSING THE BUCK.

There is an obvious disposition in Florida to blame the United States weather service for the recent hurricane there—or, if not for the hurricane itself, at least for lack of proper warning.

The Weather Bureau unfortunately has few friends—it is always a matter of amazement how relatively little its service has seemed to improve either in scope or in accuracy in forty years, in spite of all the developments of science—but in this case at least it's going to be a pretty difficult matter to make the accusation against it stick.

The great storm hit Miami on September 18. As long before as the fifteenth the Weather Bureau reported a disturbance north of the Virgin Islands and moving slightly north of west. On the sixteenth it reported a tropical storm as having passed Turk's Island, moving west-northwest and attended by dangerous gales. On the morning of the seventeenth it ordered storm warnings hoisted at Key West and continued: "Hurricane central about 23 degrees-north 74 west, moving west-northwestward, attended by winds of hurricane force near center. This is a very severe storm. Its center will likely pass near Nassau early tonight. Every precaution should be taken for destructive winds Saturday morning, especially between Jupiter and Miami."

Friday evening further warning was sent out advising great caution to all vessels off the East Florida coast. Later that night, at 11 o'clock, the bureau sent out special hurricane warning, admonishing Miami and vicinity that the storm would approach very closely to southeastern Florida and to be prepared for winds of hurricane force in the morning. Unless it is the idea that the Weather Bureau ought to have an army at hand at every point in the country, ready to convert rickety houses into stout ones and dig cyclones for a community in two hours, it is a little difficult to see just what more the Floridians could have expected.

"PRIDE."

At Cape Gris Nez a young Spaniard hurried down to the shore, took off his clothes, jumped into the water—and swam out into the English Channel, to be seen no more. In the clothes was a letter saying that he intended to swim the channel without food, without tugs and without escort of any kind, so that Spain might have the glory of an achievement transcending that of any other Channel swimmer.

This is a good example of that stilted vanity which in Spain has passed for pride during hundreds of years. The young swimmer made precisely as ridiculous a gesture as did his country, a few days earlier, when it huffed out of the League of Nations.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Sept. 25.—A high-powered car from one of the foreign legations here ran into a poor old Washingtonian of nearly 80 the other day, as he was flitting along R Street, and killed him.

All accounts agree that it was an inexcusable accident. If anything but a "diplomatic car" had been responsible for it, in all probability the driver would face charges of manslaughter.

But a diplomat can get away with anything. He simply flashes his diplomatic card, claims "diplomatic immunity," gets the police salute, and that ends it so far as he's concerned.

"Diplomatic immunity" is recognized the world over. The theory is that a diplomat isn't subject to the laws of the country he's accredited to. No special exception is made in his favor in the statute books, but it's international usage.

If a diplomat does something that positively can't be tolerated, his home government can be asked to recall him, but he must be punished by the one whose guest he is. Even the most barbarous people feel terribly mortified if anything unpleasant befalls a foreign envoy who has trusted himself in their midst. Hate him though they may, they must guard him like a million dollars while he's with them in his official capacity.

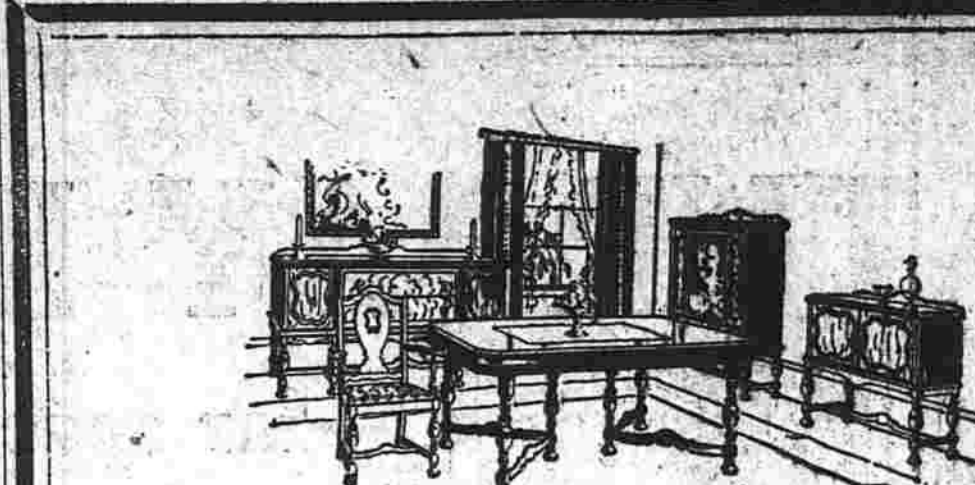

The diplomatic corps in Washington is made up of responsible folk in the main. They don't take advantage of "diplomatic immunity" to commit burglary, arson and murder. A few of them have been suspected of holding prohibition in rather light esteem, but it's as traffic law offenders that they're the biggest nuisance.

Many a man who'd shrink from deliberate crime will fudge a little on speed regulations, even at the risk of paying some penalty or other for it. How much more will he fudge if he knows he can do it in perfect safety!—to himself, not to others.

Let it be assumed that the way up diplomats—men of years and discretion, like British Ambassador Sir Esme Howard and Japanese Ambassador Tameo Matsudaira and Minister Constantin Brun of Denmark—have judgment and caution enough to tell their chauffeurs to keep off the accelerator.

The fact remains that all the embassies and legations have corps of attaches, secretaries, clerks and other underlings—sporty you'll say, with lots of jazz in their blood and little sense of responsibility. There are 52 embassies and legations in Washington. It's a very skimpy one which doesn't muster a personnel of half a dozen and one run up to 20 or more. Six to seven hundred is a moderate estimate of the total—quite a colony.

Now turn that number loose in a community, with an equal number of automobiles—for most of them have em—plus "diplomatic immunity," and you've got a town where life's an uncertain thing for a pedestrian.

TOM SIMS SAYS

It's a queer quirk of the world that the quitter gets laughed at by the guy who hasn't the nerve to begin.

While the fellow with a poker face may get along, there are times when most of us think it needs poking.

Troubles never come singly. This proves troubles are plikers.

A good doctor has to know almost as much about medicine as he knows about human nature.

Mistakes are bound to happen in any world so full of men and women.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 4.—If you play solitaire, the name of Canfield must be familiar to you. Very well! Glancing through the real estate section of a Manhattan newspaper—a department I do not recall having glimpsed before—I came upon a matter-of-fact item announcing the passing of Dick Canfield's mansion into the hands of some efficient-sounding corporation.

And therewith passes what was probably America's most colorful and justly-historic gambling resort.

Back in the Naughty Nineties, when the younger generation was going to the dogs, the whole world was drawn to an imposing looking palace on 44th Street, just east of Fifth Avenue. The mahogany and green marble entrance will be remembered by anyone who chanced to put a ten spot on a turn of the wheel.

The house, I am told by the news report, brought $700,000—a sum that would have been "chicken feed" in contrast with the fortunes that changed hands over the gaming tables.

Canfield himself was a gambler after the heart of any actioneer. He filled his mansion with treasures of art; his was the "grand gesture." Elegance was the keynote of his place. He ruled a house of high hazards from a beautifully paneled room. This was no place for "penny ante" boys. No "tin horn" ever tossed away his few dimes. This was for the moneyed of three continents. Because of its exclusiveness and the wealth of those who went there, it gave challenge to the more public Monte Carlo.

To get by the doorman was not a mere matter of knowing some high-sign or password. Canfield's were not the methods of the speakeasy. One had to be sponsored before the opportunity to toss away a fortune in the midst of elegance would be granted.

Once inside the visitor could use it as a clubroom. You could gamble or not, as you wished. There were no "high heels" methods. This, if you please, is a gentleman's game. Hence exclusiveness. Once your social status had been established, what you played or what stakes you asked were of no import. Canfield boasted the gentility of his clientele. But many were those who staked fortunes. And roulette was the favorite pastime.

It was none other than William Travers Jerome who dethroned Canfield.

The same Jerome who prosecuted Harry Thaw.

Which reminds me that I saw Jerome the other day—with immaculate hair and mustache of greyish-white, nattily clad in flannels—sitting at the defense table of a former cabinet member on trial for bribery.

And, oh yes, I was passing the old Canfield place not so long ago and, unless I am mistaken, there is a military shop, or something of the sort there now.

Sic transit, etc!

—GILBERT SWAN.

DAILY POEM

THE OL' STRAW.

Well, I dunno, I guess you've been a right good friend to me. You've served your time right well and now you're shabby as kin be. You show the marks, around your brim, of ever-handling paw. I really kinda hate to say, goodbye to you, ol' straw.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

By ARTHUR N. PACK President, The American Nature Association

Many have heard but few have seen the tree frog, for he does not court familiarity, though through most of the summer his cheerful trill rings from our doorway trees.

When he utters this sprightly call he blows a big bubble in his throat like a Highland piper. If we can contrive to detect him at this time he may allow us to approach near enough to see that his back is marbled and flecked with gray and brown, like the bark on which he rests, and we understand why we have not seen him before.

Should we implore on his privacy he is likely to jump to another limb, or bunch of leaves, and, wherever he lands, there he sticks.

No wonder, for on each toe is a sucking disc that clings fast to any smooth object it touches. This feature, and some others less easily observed, indicate his closer relationship to the spring peeper.

By and by out of his underground winter home several weeks earlier and has relieved himself of his mucus before our frog of the trees has waked himself from his winter sleep.

Now, like most of our frogs and toads, the tree frog and his mate seek some quiet woodland pool, for their prospective children must pass the early weeks of their life in the water. Here the eggs are laid in small masses and these soon hatch into tiny tadpoles. With a few weeks these have gone through their larval state and have become tree frogs like their parents.

So on after both old and young, each individual on his own account hunt; a home deep in some cavity of root or trunk, often high above the ground, where the long winter is passed.

A Bit of FIFTH AVENUE

When we speak of the Little Fashion Shop as a "bit of Fifth Avenue" it may suggest a touch of vanity. If it does, isn't it pardonable? Mrs. Higgins' constant thought and effort is to make this a distinctive little shop where you may be certain of finding fashions and fabrics, colors and service of precisely the same fine character that you would expect if you went to New York to do your shopping. We seek complimentary comments. We want to help dress you so well that your friends will compliment you on your good taste and your discriminating judgment. It is not vanity to want to deserve this sort of a reputation.

This week's new things include smart new tailored frocks of velveteen, velveteen coat effects with wool checked skirts, wool jerseys with gros grain ribbon bindings. Smart simplicity, good taste, fine quality and perfect workmanship are here combined to give to every business woman or school girl the consciousness of being smartly and appropriately dressed at prices based on good sense and sound values.

INACTIVITY PROVES FATAL TO DEMPSEY

Williams Thought Jack Dempsey Would Cave Before Tenth Round

Fistic Critic Praises Tunney But Finds Former Champion Covered With "Rust of Inactivity."

By JOE WILLIAMS. (Special to The Herald.)

Philadelphia, Penn., Sept. 24.—Jack Dempsey defied the oldest of the game last night and 130,000 people saw him battered and bashed into oblivion.

Jack Dempsey tried to come back after three years of idleness; he tried to come back just as Jim Corbett had at Carson, as Jim Jeffries had at Reno, as Jess Willard had at Jersey City, and he failed, just as all heavyweights who turn their backs on the ring once and remain away from it for any great length of time will fail.

Inactivity Fatal. Jack Dempsey was one of the greatest fighters who ever pulled on the gloves seven years ago when he punned Willard senseless in three rounds. He was still a great fighter the night he stopped the great Louis Firpo in two rounds, three years ago.

But there was nothing great about the Jack Dempsey that went down to defeat before the two-fisted attack of Gene Tunney of the Marines at the Sesqui stadium last night. The cobwebs of antiquity had settled over his former fighting genius and the rust of inactivity had corroded the iron in his once mighty fists.

Just as writers in days gone by said of Jeffries that he was but a shell of his former self, the writers of today, preferring aptness to labored originality, say the same of Dempsey. The marvel is that he was able to survive the first two rounds, because he had absolutely nothing.

Realizes Opportunity. On the other hand Tunney was in there fighting his greatest fight. After a temporary display of his old time cantankerousness in the first round, Tunney, sensing that his great chance had really come, Tunney opened a short, jolting offensive that carried him to victory with the same grim relentlessness that marked the war time advances of his comrades in Belleau Woods.

Tunney, three years younger and superbly trained, had everything Dempsey lacked. He had infinite stamina, he had speed, he had clear eyes and had legs that grew stronger instead of weaker as the rounds passed one by one; he had a fine defense and a splendid hitting style. If Tunney had been a real knocker out he would have finished Dempsey before the third round. Indeed I was convinced Dempsey would not be able to last through the second after seeing him flounder around the ring in the first round with the awkwardness of a novice. One thing Dempsey did have courage. He stood up bravely under a cruel battering. The ultimate tip-off on Dempsey came in the sixth round when he landed three of his favorite blows flush on vulnerable parts of Tunney's make up and didn't even as much as jar him. This was proof that there was nothing left in his fists but spent energy. These same kind of blows dropped all of Dempsey's opponents in the years gone by.

Dempsey in his losing fight left the ring with a face torn, battered and distorted almost beyond recognition. It reminded veteran ring-siders of the day seven years ago when Willard, surrendering his title to Dempsey, left the ring just as badly marked and scarred.

Kearns Is Sad. Jack Kearns sat within ten feet of Dempsey, the man he made champion and watched him lose his title. There was no smile of satisfaction on the dapper little manager's face as he watched the cumbersome efforts of his old pupil and friend, nor any spoken words to indicate that the result pleased him.

In the second round Dempsey caught Tunney with a right hand that landed solidly against his jaw but the punch had no effect on the Marine other than to make him blink and fight back with greater fury.

When Kearns saw that this punch, one of Dempsey's best, hadn't even staggered the challenger he turned to a friend in the press row and said, "He's through." And he was.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS. At Philadelphia—Gene Tunney won decision and world's heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey, ten rounds. Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, won decision over Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, six rounds. Harry Persson of Sweden defeated Sergeant Jack Adams, St. Louis, on technicality, six rounds. George Godfrey, of Lelperville, Pa., won decision over Bob Lawson, Alabama, six rounds. Monte Mann, Lincoln, Neb., knocked out Hugh Clements, Camden, N. J., in first of scheduled six rounds. Jack De Mave, of Hoboken, N. J., knocked out Joe Stossel, New York, third of scheduled six rounds. Yafe Okun, of New York, won decision over Martin Burke, New Orleans, six rounds.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION New Haven, Sept. 24.—Battista Virgadola, a New Britain mason builder, today filed voluntary petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are $988 and he has no assets.

Tunney Victory Called Greatest Gift In Sport

Walsh Can't See Tunney At All; Says He Didn't Have Punch of Second-Rater and Won Because Dempsey Was Worse.

(By DAVIS J. WALSH.)

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 24.—"When I lose my title, I'll be flat on my back and thoroughly socked on the chin." That has been Jack Dempsey's story for years, but last night he was not flat on his back, nor was he too thoroughly socked on the chin. But he lost the heavyweight championship of the world, and he lost it in a manner that was not dramatic, nor even impressive. He simply had a fight with another man, and the other man won.

The other man won. It wasn't close, it wasn't even a good fight. The man that everybody has been talking about for years went down to defeat without flying the colors of a good game fighting American. He had his chance. He hit the challenger on the jaw often, but he didn't have the punch and a second rate fighter went out to win the heavyweight title, the greatest gift competitive sport has to offer.

Not a Fighter Gene Tunney is not a fighter. Personally, I could think of three men who could beat him today and for all I know, his winning of the heavyweight title may mean a round robin series of fights in which it would be entirely possible for a contender like Johnny Risko to win the title. That's how bad Gene Tunney is.

Tunney had his chance to make a showing in beating Dempsey, but he would not take advantage of it. He fought a retreating fight, scoring only because the former champion couldn't hit him, and the challenger, soon to be crowned, was able to land with counter punches.

A Tragic Sight But it was a tragic thing to see Dempsey lose as he did lose. Whatever idea he may have had in mind became a futile, empty gesture. When he tried to back to his corner, from the first round, in which he took a through shelling, Gene Normie attempted to tell the champion what to do. It was one of the few laughs of the occasion. Jack simply pushed Gene's wagging jaw away with his gloved hand, and that was that.

The champion, soon to be shorn of his title, was Joe Willard all over again, a man who was due to take a punch on the jaw and thought he was the only guy who knew what it was all about.

When Willard was socked on the chin at Toledo, he was down, but he tried to laugh. Dempsey was socked on the chin last night. He did not go down, but he tried to laugh. He couldn't. That's why it

"I Was Terrible; Couldn't Get Going," Sobs Heartbroken Dempsey Today

Jack Says He Has No Alibi; Was Beaten Fairly and Squarely; Ex-Champion in Disconsolate Mood.

By James L. Kilgallen Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 24.—"I'm heartbroken, simply heartbroken." In a voice breaking with emotion, Jack Dempsey, his grim dark face cast and busied, slowly spoke these words today after he arose from a restless night's sleep with the poignant realization full upon him that he had lost his title as heavyweight champion of the world to Gene Tunney, the handsome "fighting marine." The proud street Dempsey sat on the edge of his bed in his hotel room, an inconsolable figure—his soul in the very depths.

Not since the fateful day nearly seven years ago when he slugged the giant, Jess Willard to the floor in that ring in Toledo, had Dempsey known such a day as this.

An ex-champ! No admiring flappings swarming around him and sending him on the back. No messengers boys rushing in with telegrams of congratulations. Only a few friends left, apparently. Good old Mike Trant, the big Chicago detective and the faithful lit-tle trainer, "Jerry the Greek." Forgotten, seemingly, were Dempsey's great deeds against such men as Louis Firpo and Georges Carpentier.

"Tunney beat me—he beat me fairly and squarely," Dempsey said slowly and, one thought, pathetically. "He met me at my own game—slugging—and he whipped me at it."

A pause. Obviously the de-throned champ didn't want to talk then.

"I haven't any alibi. I just don't know what was the matter with me. I couldn't get going. I fought a terrible fight—a terrible fight."

Unanimous Agreement. No one who watched the one great street battle Tunney in, laughing rainstorm in that 20-foot elevated ring beneath blazing Klieg lights with 130,000 people watching the drama with deathlike stillness in the great Z-shaped Sesqui-Centennial stadium, will deny that Dempsey fought a bad fight. No one who witnessed it close up will ever forget the spectacle

LIFE'S AMBITION REALIZED, GENE SILENT ON WILLS

Devil Dog Champion Praises Trainers; Says None of Jack's Punches Hurt Him.

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—"What has been the greatest ambition of my life has been realized. I have won the heavyweight championship of the world."

"But in winning the championship I set another goal for myself. And that is to be worthy of the title; to be a champion in fact as well as in name."

In that earnest and modest manner did Gene Tunney, the devil dog, pride of Greenwich Village, New York's first heavyweight champion, accept the honors of the world with the weight of his fist in the rain-soaked Sesqui arena last night.

Praises Handlers. Gene paid high tribute to his handlers. "Without their help I never could have won," he declared. "Lou Pink brought me into the ring at the very top of my fighting form and once there the advice of Billy Gibson and Jimmy Bronson was invaluable to me."

"I never had any doubt as to the outcome. I was confident when the match was made that I would be the next champion of the world and my confidence increased as my training progressed. I knew I was 'right' and I was ready to make the fight of my career."

"In the ring I was sure of myself every second. Not one of Dempsey's punches hurt me. I think I proved to the great crowd that I was his master."

Discusses Future. "Jack fought a clean fight and the referee, Tommy Reilly handled it perfectly. It was rather unfortunate the bout was marred by rain but I think it handicapped me more than Dempsey."

"My plans for the immediate future are, of course, uncompleted. They are in the hands of Billy Gibson, my manager. But I know that he is just as anxious as I am that I be worthy of the championship."

Concerning Harry Wills, Gene was a bit reticent. "There is time enough to discuss Harry later on," he said.

LEGS WOULD NOT AID ME—DEMPSEY

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 24.—"No alibi to offer," declared Jack Dempsey, today after he was de-throned by Gene Tunney. "I was whipped fairly and squarely."

"Tunney outmeasured me, he out-punched me, outboxed me, and he out-nygunged else but win," Dempsey said. "I couldn't get started, nothing worked right with me tonight. I was missing punches by a foot that I used to land on the button. Several times it seemed I was under way at last, that the old steam was back and that I could bring down Gene, but my legs wouldn't carry me into fast attacks and fast follow-ups."

Dempsey had nothing but praise for Tunney. "I think that in meeting Gene Tunney I met the best man—by far—that I have ever faced in my career," he declared. "He was fast, he was skillful and although his punches didn't drop me they had enough force to batter my complexion out of shape. "The real comfort I have in surrendering my title to him is that the new heavyweight champion is an honor to the game, a fine young American and one, who will always uplift boxing."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
CHERRY LANE, 18, a typical flapper, has a long list of admirers. One is CHESTER HART, a former beau of her sister, FAITH, the stay-at-home drudge for the Lane family.

Her cheeks were rose-flushed, her eyes like yellow diamonds, when Cherry re-entered the dining room. Faith knew, at the first quick glance into that tremulously smiling, lovely face, but she could not spare herself the luxury of asking: "Did he kiss you, didn't he?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

It was after one o'clock that night when Bob Hathaway's low-slung sports roadster drove up into sleeping Myrtle street.

"He kissed you, didn't he?" "Didn't he, though?" Cherry hid a flushed hand. "Oh boy! Some sheik! Some sheik!"

Recently, "It's only a little after eleven. I'm just trying to get Faith to go to bed."

HER OWN WAY

At this point of the conversation with Jerry I decided that talking love over the phone was absolutely futile. I had already learned that the eyes and the expression always said much more than the tongue.

C. OF C. CALLS OFF PAT CROWE'S TALK

In Conference With Ministers and Leading Citizens Fails to Impress His Audience.

Pat Crowe, old-time highwayman, bandit, train robber and kidnapper, best known for his connection with the kidnapping and holding for ransom of the young son of the head of the Cudahy Packing Company has been active in Manchester for the past two weeks, seeking the co-operation of various organizations for the purpose of getting across his propaganda for the establishment of a great national uplift organization designed to save young boys from a life of crime.

Hear His Story.
Representatives of the Kiwanis Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the ministers of Manchester listened to Mr. Crowe's story yesterday afternoon at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Mr. Crowe, however, failed to impress his audience with the fact that he had any concrete plan or any real backing, or that there was even the remotest possibility of success of such an abstract project as he proposed carrying through.

Freed in 1905.
Mr. Crowe said that he had been working on his project ever since his release from jail in 1905 where he served a term for train robbery. Upon his release, he determined to go straight and consecrate his life to the betterment of the youth of the country.

Not Sanctioned.
His proposal to hold a meeting in the High school hall Sunday night mainly for the purpose of raising funds, was not sanctioned and there will be no meeting Sunday night for this purpose. A statement previously published that the Chamber of Commerce and the Kiwanis Club had indorsed such a meeting was an error.

Mr. Crowe was referred to President George Fisher of the New York City Kiwanis Club, who is also director of the National Kiwanis Vocational Training for Boys in America, and he expressed his intention of leaving at once to consult Mr. Fisher.

CONN. INDUSTRIES' BUSINESS GAINING
State Investigator's Report Shows Improvement in Numerous Lines.

Hartford, Sept. 24.—Industries that have been in a more or less depressed condition in Connecticut for some time are now showing a remarkable increase in new business according to Charlotte Moly-aux Holloway, industrial investigator for the state department of labor. She finds this especially true of the pin industry in Winsted, Shelton, Oakville and Waterville.

The silk industry in New London, Norwich, Waterbury, Mystic and Manchester shows notable improvement. Brass and copper and various household factory products in the Naugatuck valley have also perceptibly gained in new business. All this improvement, Miss Holloway says, is since the beginning of the fiscal year. The typewriter industry in Hartford and elsewhere is doing a brisk business in foreign orders.

Working hours have been increased in the metal trades from forty-five to fifty-five, and in some cases night shifts are working.

49.9 Hour Average
A fair weekly average, she says, is 49.9 hours.

The demand for domestic help and day laborers has increased considerably and exceeds that of September, 1925. Business conditions in New Haven are strengthened all along the line and there is a particular demand for skilled mechanics, clerical workers, and salespeople in stores.

Wages throughout the state continue high. While there has been no general advance there have been slight individual increases in most trades. Lumber dealers report encouraging increases in new business, not to a great extent but enough to give considerable satisfaction.

Canada produces four-fifths of the world's supply of asbestos.

FLAPPY TANNY SAYS

We all enjoy the vacation the boss takes.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Probably the next appliance that these guys with the yellow slickers will have will be a windshield with an automatic wiper.

Traffic policemen have very even tempers. Mad all the time.

Many a life has been saved because driver did not follow instructions from rear seat.

"Shakes Hands with Traffic Cop: Arrested for Driving While Intoxicated." Headline. This must have been the old-timer who used to kiss the bartender goodnight.

Motor Aphorisms. A honk in time prevents a fine. Spare the pump and spoil the tire. There's no use crying over spilt gasoline.

A green motorist makes a fat repair shop. If wishes were cars, legers might ride. It's a lucky car that has no everturning.

Good roads slogan: Money makes the mile go. A slip of the tongue often follows a slip of the tire. A fool and his car are soon in need of repairs. One-half the world doesn't know how the other half flies.

It's just about got so in this country that an automobile shies at a load of hay.

Some drivers are courteous and some pilot five-ton trucks.

"Drive slowly or you may be driven slowly," is a good slogan now that the summer motoring season has opened.

Blacksmith: You say you can shoe a horse. How would you proceed about it? Applicant: Toot my horn until he got out of the way.

The automobile increases by leaps and bounds; the pedestrian decreases in spite of leaps and bounds.

Auto Demonstrator (who had been trying for three hours to sell the car): "Now, I will throw in the clutch."

Uncle Joshua: "I'll take her then. I knew if I held off long enough, ye'd throw in something to boot, b' gosh."

To beat the train across Tried Mickey O'Dowd, Now Mickey's roosting Up on a cloud.

There isn't any recourse for the pedestrian these days but to buy a car.

The modern idea of roughing it is to drive with one window of the closed car lowered.

A dumbbell is a person who uses his auto horn for a doorbell!

If it wasn't for autos, moonshine and guns there wouldn't be much use for publishing a newspaper.

To the wild, brainless roadhog The way we must give, For the poor undertaker We know he's got to live.

Health Hints. Drive slow! Two fools might meet. Dodging traffic is all right if you dodge the right way. Walking will put you on your feet again.

A village is a place where seven people congregate when one Ford makes another dent in another Ford.

SHE KNEW.

"Do you understand the nature of an oath, madam?" asked the attorney of the fair witness. "I'll tell the world I do. I married a sailor," was the emphatic response.—Judge.

Good Nature and Good Health

PREVENTION IS TREATMENT FOR HEART DISEASES.
By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene the Health Magazine.

One of the most serious forms of heart disease is that which affects the blood vessels that supply the heart itself with blood. When these blood vessels become hardened as the result of disease or obstructed as the result of infection or some mechanical factor, the nutrition of the tissues of the heart suffers.

The result is a train of symptoms pointing directly to a weakness of the heart, not the least of which may be the exceedingly painful condition known as angina pectoris, or severe pain in the heart. When these blood vessels become obstructed, the progress of repair is similar to that which occurs when blood vessels elsewhere in the body succumb to interference.

Sometimes other blood vessels take up to some extent the necessary circulation. In other instances the tissues that are destroyed become fibrous and are scarred. If the patient is sufficiently youthful, new muscle fibers may develop.

Correction of these conditions is clearly a matter somewhat beyond the help of the physician. Obvious disturbances of the heart by proper attention to the hygiene of the body and by eliminating as soon as possible in the course of the life of the people who look to him for guidance such foci of infection as may exist in the throat, the nose, digestive tract or other places in the body.

The latest available evidence seems to indicate that such infections may produce secondary changes in the heart at the time when they occur, but that these changes sometimes do not become manifest in direct relationship to the heart until years after, when perhaps the circulation of the blood vessels become changed in association with the natural progress of old age. The indication is clear for prompt treatment of the infections that have been mentioned at the earliest possible moment.

After Eating. It has been noted that pain in the heart in persons suffering from such diseases is likely to come on soon after a meal. Indeed, physicians who perform post-mortem examinations on the bodies of persons dying suddenly of such heart disease not infrequently find the stomach distended with food which has been in the stomach hardly long enough to be affected by the process of digestion.

When death occurs suddenly, vomiting of a large meal is sometimes an early symptom. As a result physicians constantly warn persons with angina pectoris to eat sparingly, or to take a little food at frequent intervals, rather than to overload the stomach with a bulky and heavy meal.

When the blood vessels which supply the heart are diseased, a slight bending upward of the heart by a distended stomach may so interfere with the circulation in these blood vessels that it will precipitate a severe attack of pain.

TOM SIPPLES TO PITCH AGAIN AGAINST SHAMROCKS TOMORROW

Sons of Italy Taking No Chances; Anxious to Make It Three Straight; Shamrock Hurler Uncertain; Probably Will Be Last Minute Choice.

Now that the echo of the Dempsey-Tunney fight has almost died away and fans have come back to a state of normalcy again, another sport has them enraptured in thrills galore. It is King Baseball who is ending its season in a blaze of glory in the major leagues.

Manchester fans who are interested in baseball will have a treat all their own tomorrow afternoon at the West Side playgrounds.

The Sons of Italy and the Shamrocks are booked to take the field against each other in the third game of what may be the end of the series for the town championship. The Sons already hold two victories to their credit and are confident of putting the "finis" on the series tomorrow afternoon. Play will start at 3 o'clock. Russell and Lehmitt will again hold the indicators.

The close battle the Shamrocks gave the Sons last Sunday has caused the fans to sit up and take notice. After losing the first game by a one-sided score, the Shamrocks had mutiny within their ranks. They fired their manager and demoted their captain. Then came within one run of winning the second game after leading most of the way under the new regime.

Now the potent question looms: Was that simply a flash in the pan or was it proof of a stronger and better operated baseball machine? At any rate the 8-7 game last Sunday has served to boost the Shamrocks stock considerably and there are many who would not be surprised if the North End team came through with flying colors.

Sipples will pitch and Lamprecht will catch for the Sons. Prentice or McLaughlin will probably pitch and Kelly will catch for the Shamrocks.

Try a chocolate malted milk for a delicious, nourishing drink. At our fountain. Quinn's—Adv.

N. B. Richards Files Appeal from Decision of Hartford Commission.

N. B. Richards, manager of the Manchester Lumber Company filed an appeal in the Court of Common Pleas in Hartford from a decision of the Hartford Zoning Commission restraining him from completing two three-tenement houses on Cornwall street in that city. The Board of Appeals rejected applications for permits for the construction of these houses. In November, 1925, Frank Grande, owner of land at 201-203 and 205-207 Cornwall street, Hartford, mortgaged the premises to the Lomas & Nettleton Co. and to Maurice S. Sheketoff, also of Hartford. Grande obtained a permit for the erection of two three-family tenements on the land. When the buildings were about two-thirds completed, the complaint recites, Grande abandoned the work.

The Lomas & Nettleton Co. immediately began an action to foreclose its mortgage in the superior court, and in June of this year, Sheketoff as a holder of the second mortgage, redeemed it by paying Lomas & Nettleton the full amount of its indebtedness. Then Sheketoff conveyed an interest in the premises to Nathan B. Richards, who was interested in the property because of an unpaid bill for lumber furnished by the Manchester Lumber Company of which he was manager and a stockholder.

After acquiring title, Sheketoff and Richards applied for a permit to complete the buildings as three-tenement houses, but the building department refused to grant permits. The board of appeals, following an appeal, upheld the building department.

Fred P. Holt, Nicholas F. Rago, Michael A. Connor, Frank K. Daniels and Leslie E. Pierce, compr-

When the board of appeals, are notified to appear before the court of common pleas on the first Tuesday in October.

FORM GARDEN CLUB AT THE "WHITE HOUSE"

A very enthusiastic meeting was held at the "White House" last evening in which the Manchester Garden Club was brought into being. A special committee composed of Mrs. W. W. Ellis, the Misses H. G. and M. O. Chapman, J. W. Galavin and Alex Marshall was chosen to draw up a constitution and by-laws in tentative form to be submitted for action before the club at the next meeting.

A number of the members brought in specimens of the late fall flowers from their own gardens. J. W. Galavin had a handsome vase of California seedling Dahlias some fourteen odd varieties with no two being alike. The unusual size and color were a revelation to this part of the country. Mr. Galavin made a showing of his flowers at the late State Fair in Hartford and was awarded some 20 odd ribbons in first and second prizes.

Director Washburn awarded the prizes for the last flower show held at the club in the form of bulbs, rose bushes and magazine subscriptions. At the close of the meeting the Garden Club voted to send all flowers brought in to the hospital, the sick and shut ins.

The Manchester Garden Club's membership rolls are open to anyone in the community who is a lover of flowers, whether they have a foot or an acre of space. The purpose of the club is to show what really can be done even in a limited space as well as to foster the spirit of more appreciation of flowers. Director Washburn will be glad to give any information to those who may desire it.

The club's monthly meetings will be announced later as well as the subjects under discussion.

Thomas Bolukus of Wapping was found guilty of breach of the peace in South Windsor court Monday evening. A fine of five dollars and costs was imposed. Justice William J. Thresher was intentionally lenient because he did not believe that Bolukus was by any means wholly to blame. The affair was evidently the aftermath of an alleged assault two weeks earlier in which Bolukus maintains he was beaten, stabbed and robbed. Witnesses of this earlier fracas could not be secured although Bolukus showed bruises and a cut face to substantiate his claim. The matter is still under investigation.

It is impossible to even make a conservative estimate as to the number of local persons who were in the huge radio audience. The streets were practically deserted except in places where radios had been installed. At the K. of C. hall, Barrett and Robbins, Barstow's, Conran's bowling alleys, South End Herald office, Army and Navy club and numerous other public places, large crowds listened to the returns. This does not, of course, include the countless radios installed in private homes. The broadcasting of the fight returns at the South End office of The Herald on Oak street, was made possible through the courtesy of Barrett and Robbins and Barstow's Radio Shop who supplied the apparatus. There were but few of the "I told you so's." In fact everyone was amazed at the great fight Tunney was making and all but those whom had bet on Dempsey appeared to be happy over the way the tide was turning. What this country needs is lipsticks with zits in them.
