

AL'S ELECTION MEANS A LOT TO DEMOCRATS

New York's Political Battle Holds Destiny of at Least One Presidential Possibility.

New York, Sept. 29.—The off-year political battle in New York this year, which holds the destinies of one, possibly two, presidential possibilities, gave promise today of being the hardest fought in a generation.

The colorful personalities involved and the circumstances attending both the Republican and Democratic state conventions, just concluded, have made this a recognized certainty. For five weeks it is to be a slam bang fight, with no holds barred, and no quarter asked or given.

Rep. Ogden L. Mills, who accepted the task of opposing "Al" Smith's thrust at a fourth term as governor, supplied the incentive for the Republican effort.

His Charge
"If Tammy goes back to Albany this year with two billions of dollars to spend and the state government to recognize in the next two years, you will not oust Tammy from Albany in this generation," he warned. There were many who believed his words.

To which the Democrats reply: "We must re-elect Al this year, or relinquish all hope of ever seeing him in the White House."

These are the spurs. Thus the issues have been drawn. It will be a hot and bitter fight. That much is conceded on all sides.

The Democrats are supremely confident. Their leaders talk of a half-million majority for "Al." The Republicans are hopeful rather than confident. Their hope of beating Smith, the super-man of New York politics, is predicated chiefly on three points: (1) the admitted strength of the Coolidge national administration, (2) the military and naval ability of Mills, and (3) the personal popularity of Senator "Jimmy" Wadsworth, which is akin to that of Gov. Smith.

Mills a Debater
Mills is a formidable debater, and he has spent the better part of two years preparing for this fight. He has at his finger-tips veritable mountains of data with which to attack the fiscal administration of Gov. Smith. Furthermore, Mills has the confidence of the conservative business interests of the state in much the same way that Coolidge has it.

Many Republican leaders contend that Gov. Smith has no added to his popularity in the last two years. The wish may be father to the thought, but such anyway is their contention. They argue that the smashing victory for Smith won two years ago—when Coolidge was carrying the state—was due in no small measure to the feeling among New Yorkers without regard to party that "Al" was dealt unfairly with at Madison Square Garden. They contend this "sympathy vote" will not be present this year.

On the Democratic side, the confidence is so pronounced as to cause the leaders some apprehension of being "too confident." Of Smith they have never had any real fear. In other years they have been indifferent to the balance of the ticket, and if current stories are to be believed there has been historical trading of Republican votes for Smith for Democratic votes for Wadsworth.

DEMOCRATS PLAN FOR PRESIDENCY

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 29.—The Democratic party of New York state today was preparing for an intensive campaign to re-elect Governor Al Smith and thus pave the way for the presidential nomination for the governor in 1928.

Democratic leaders as they left for their homes today appeared to be absolutely convinced that the first real step toward nominating Governor Smith for president two years hence was taken here yesterday when the governor was re-nominated.

Leaders Speak.
Judge George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, John H. McCooey, veteran leader of Kings county, and William H. Kelley, the Democratic power in this city, told friends today they were certain Governor Smith was now on the road to the presidential nomination.

The leaders predicted that the governor would defeat his Republican opponent, Representative Ogden L. Mills of New York, by more than 500,000 votes. They also expect that with the governor again at the head of the state ticket Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner, who was nominated for

TEAPOT OIL CASE UP TO U. S. COURT

Sinclair's Lawyers Appeal to Highest Tribunal After Losing in St. Louis.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The Supreme Court must now decide the famous naval oil reserve cases.

Attorneys for Harry F. Sinclair are expected to appeal at once to the Supreme Court for a reversal of the decision of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals which ordered cancellation of the Mammoth Oil Company's lease to Teapot Dome.

Months and perhaps years, may elapse before a final determination is made of all the oil cases which grew out of the Senate's investigation during the winter and spring of 1923-24.

Arguments in the Doheny case are to be heard by the Supreme Court on next Monday or Tuesday. The decision in this case, an appeal for a writ of certiorari, is expected to have an important bearing on the final determination of the Sinclair appeal.

TO TAKE APPEAL.
St. Louis, Sept. 29.—Attorneys for Harry F. Sinclair today were expected to take an immediate appeal to the Supreme Court for a reversal of the decision of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals, rendered here last yesterday, returning to the United States government the famous Teapot Dome naval reserve.

TOWN PROTESTS CAR-BARN MOVE TO TROLLEY CO.

Letter Addressed to Directors Calls Attention to Loss of Revenue as Well as Loss to Manchester.

Manchester officials protested to the directors of the Connecticut Company today against the proposed removal of the local office and car barns of the company to Hartford. A committee appointed by the Board of Selectmen working with a committee named by the Chamber of Commerce met last night and drafted a letter of protest.

The letter which is printed in full below calls attention to the apparent loss the move would mean to the Connecticut Company and which may have been overlooked by the directors in discussing the change. No action has been taken by the Connecticut Company directors since no official protest had previously been lodged with the company.

The letter follows:
To the Directors of the Connecticut Company:
On or about September 10th, an announcement was made that your company intended to discontinue the use of the local car barns and move your equipment to the Hartford office, intending thereby to operate the Manchester, Rockville, Stafford Springs, Manchester Green and other Town lines from the Hartford office.

This announcement came as quite a surprise to the patrons of these lines and has caused considerable concern as to the advisability of the move, having in mind the question of service, the loss of an industry, loss of employment of commuters and the loss of home owners.

A public sentiment became so strong after this announcement that the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Manchester, deemed it wise to call a special meeting to consider the proposition with the view of making your company reconsider its action. The Board of Selectmen met and appointed a committee to consider the proposition, consisting of the following men:

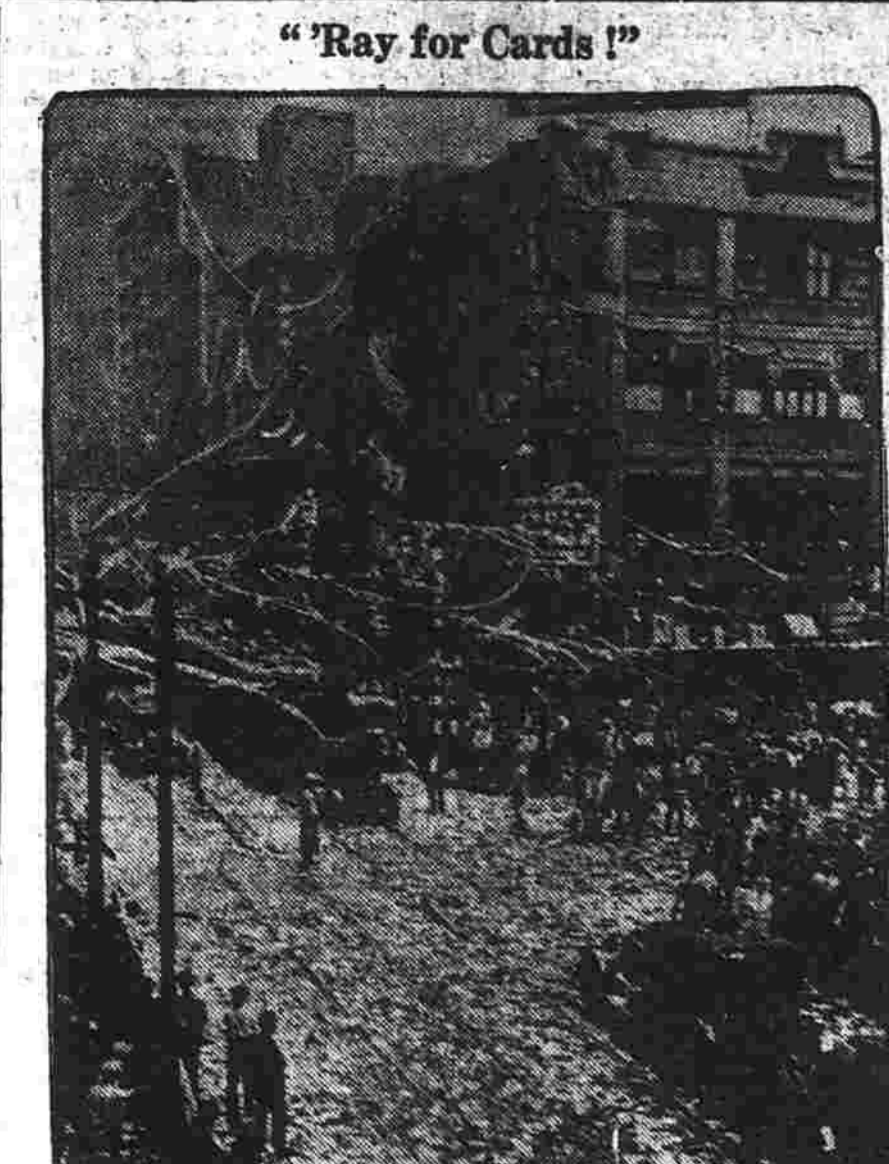

Reasons For Change
This committee met on September 16th with Mr. Scott and Mr. Bennett of your company. Mr. Scott and Mr. Bennett very courteously told the committee that this was a new thought on the part of the company but had been under consideration for some time. They further informed the committee that the chief reason for the change was the fact that the local barns were in a very deplorable condition and that the company could not use the barns during the coming winter without the expenditure of a considerable sum of money. They also contended that the service would not be impaired by the change and that the local employees would undoubtedly be cared for so that it would not be necessary for them to change their residence.

The committee have considered the question of service and also the effect the change might have on the commuters from Manchester and your employees who reside in Manchester and have reached certain conclusions which we would like to submit to you for your consideration before a final decision is reached. While we fully realize that the decision rests entirely with you, we believe that your company will respect the opinion of the residents of this town and it is with this in mind that we have decided to submit to you our objections.

Would Hurt Service
We consider the strongest objection to this contemplated change is that of impaired service. It is difficult for us to see how the present service can be maintained if these lines are operated from the Hartford barns. In the event of a break down at this end or at any of the lines mentioned above, it would be necessary for a wrecker or repair car to come the full distance from Hartford before the service could be restored. Whereas under the present system, a situation of this kind has just recently been corrected at a loss of but seven minutes service. At the present time a dispatcher is on duty at the local office and is able to keep the cars running with the least delay. There are no "tie ups" as so often times experienced on other lines where the block signals are depended upon entirely. We cite the Glastonbury line as an example. This feature seems doubly important when you consider that the Manchester line is

This word predicting the time of rescue of the forty-three men buried in the G. Pabst mine here was passed about today as 400 men fought their way through rock and ore in their dramatic race underground against death.

The riotous celebrations of Armistice Day faded into insignificance in St. Louis when news came that the Cardinals had won the National League pennant—the city's first pennant since the early '80s. Business stopped and the whole city turned out to make a noise. This shows one of the downtown streets.

ONE DEAD, 1 DYING FROM GAS POISON

Waterstown, Sept. 29.—One person is dead, one is dying and scores more are more or less ill today from gas poisoning. Charles Ludwig, 60, was found dead in his home at Depot street, his wife Elizabeth, 75, is in Waterbury hospital in critical condition, and Andrew Kaschak and his four children are under doctors' care here.

When the situation became known today entrance was forced into the Ludwig house, which was tightly closed, and the two victims were discovered, one dead for hours and one dying.

Employees of the Waterbury Gas Light Co., which furnishes gas here, went into the trench during the morning and found the service pipe broken. Unable to shut off the gas, they burned the leak and set fire to the fumes which continued to blaze for hours pending repairs.

Father's Story Kaschak told officials that his children were taken ill this morning and that he had spent hours trying to aid them. Investigation showed that the gas fumes flowed into the areaway between the two houses and remained there as in a pocket. Open windows in the Kaschak bedrooms had saved the family.

Members of fifteen other families in the street were more or less ill during the morning, some requiring doctors' care.

Readjustments in Rates

Reductions, gradually increasing to substantial amounts, on calls to points 150 miles or more distant. An increase of five cents in some of the basic Station-to-Station rates for distances below 110 miles, including the adoption of a minimum rate of 10 cents for Station-to-Station calls between exchanges more than six miles apart.

Collect Charges on Station-to-Station Calls

The privilege of reversing charges, heretofore confined to Person-to-Person calls, on practically all Station-to-Station calls where the rate is 25 cents or more.

Longer Reduced-Rate Period

Reduced-rate hours for Station-to-Station calls will begin at 7 P. M. instead of at 8:30 P. M. as formerly. Between 7 and 8:30 P. M. the discount will be approximately 25 percent of the Day Station-to-Station rates. From 8:30 P. M. to 4:30 A. M. the discount will be about 50 percent of the Day Station-to-Station rates. These discounts will apply where the Day Station-to-Station rate is 40 cents or more, with a minimum reduced rate of 35 cents. Because of the unsatisfactory service conditions which it brought about, the existing Midnight discount will be discontinued.

Our Exchange Managers are now in possession of the revised rate schedules and will gladly answer any inquires as to rates to specific places and will furnish any further information that may be desired regarding the proposed changes in toll practices.

The bullet entered the girl's head below her left eye and lodged in the brain. Coroner Arthur G. Bill, of Danvers, will conduct an inquest this afternoon.

The Rutka boy told Colchester authorities that the revolver was one he found in his father's barn. State police investigated and on Monday arrested Steve Stenesky in a Colchester garage and charged him with selling firearms without a permit.

Stenesky on Monday evening was bound over for trial in the New London county superior court after state police testified he sold a .32-caliber revolver to the Rutka boy on Sunday for $1.25.

EMPLOYEES DO NOT FEEL THAT IT IS POSSIBLE FOR YOU TO GIVE ANY PREFERENCE TO THE MANCHESTER EMPLOYEES

We do not feel that it is possible for you to give any preference to the Manchester employees once they operate from the Hartford line. It does not seem that men who have been in your employ for a number of years who are familiar with the lines mentioned above and who have depended upon these runs and have established homes of their own in Manchester, will be able to continue in your employ until they take up a residence in the City of Hartford. While you, Mr. Scott and Mr. Bennett suggested that the company would be glad to run "owl cars" so called, to take care of their employees, we do not feel that this would correct the situation in as much as the employees of the Hartford line are leaving Manchester at the same time. It has also been demonstrated within a short time that men have not been able to maintain the schedule running over strange lines.

"COUNTRY STORE NITE" AT STATE TONIGHT

5 Select Vaudeville Acts and "Aloma of the South Seas" Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Tonight will be the weekly "Country Store Nite" at the State. What fun there is on one of these nights! If you have not been in the habit of going to "Country Store" you have been missing something.

Each week it gets better and better. This week "Country Store Nite" will be the best yet. In addition to the large number of presents to be given away, there will be several big surprises in store for all who attend. There are also any number of good long laughs to be taken out of you tonight. Be sure to come.

Besides the country store there will be two good feature pictures. The first will be a beautiful UFA picture, "The Waltz Dream." How would you like to take a trip to Vienna at one of its gayest, most glamorous moments? And on the wings of a dreamy Strauss waltz? If you would like to do this, come, if for no other reason, to see this picture. Take a look behind a throne and see princes and princesses as human beings—serious, funny, in love, falling for Dan Cupid's tricks just like ordinary mortals!

The other feature will be "The Phantom Express" featuring Ethel Shannon, David Butler and Frankie Darro. This is a most gripping story of a man's courage and a woman's faith. It is one of the best and the most thrilling episodes of the shining rails ever filmed.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday the State theater will present an excellent bill of five select vaudeville acts, and a feature picture, "Aloma of the South Seas" featuring Gilda Gray.

"Aloma of the South Seas" is a Famous Players-Lasky epic of life and love in the fabled sea islands to the south of us. Packed with wild dancing, strong dramatic punches, beautiful tropical scenery, and great acting by a fine cast which includes Percy Marmont, Warner Baxter, Julianne Johnston and William Powell, it is one of the film sensations of the year.

If advance reports are to be believed, Gilda, as the beautiful native dancing girl, is as good on the screen as she has been on the stage. She, "Aloma," is loved by the peafowl diver, "Nautaine." "Bob Holdem," a dissolute young man, comes to the South Seas to forget his having been jilted by Sylvia, his society sweetheart. "Bob" starts on the downward path until Aloma who is very much attracted to him, shows him the right way to go. Then Sylvia appears on the scene and the dramatic struggle between the two women for the man they love is a thing of dramatic emotion.

The vaudeville bill for this week will include some of the best acts now running. The first will be Steppen and See, "Two Australian Boys" in a new act that will be a surprise for you.

The second offering will be a first class comedy act with Stacey and Faye. These two have more funny sayings that you could ever imagine.

The third act will be a big specialty number. It is an act featuring Signor Westony, Marie Norrie and Jan Czalay, three of the world's best concert artists. Their offering is something new—operatic vaudeville. Marie Norrie is not only a wonderful soprano singer, but is also a marvelous dancer. It will be positively the first appearance of this trio in New England.

Following them will come Wall and Willes in a new comedy act. These two are real fun makers who keep you laughing all the time.

The headline attraction will be a Marting and Correll offering entitled "Musical Maids." Their entire company is composed of eight people. "Musical Maids" is a musical comedy-singing-dancing specialty. Special and beautiful scenic effects accompany this offering.

On next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday the State will present the long-awaited master production,

"Variety." This is a mighty UFA picture depicting strongly the passions of human nature. The characters are members of the show world in the famous Winter Garden in Germany. Emil Jennings gives a master performance in the leading role, and Lya DePutti, who plays opposite him is equally good. Most unusual and superb photography is another feature of this great picture. "Variety," the spice of life! It will be here next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

SOUVENIR HAND GRENADES BLOW UP PART OF TOWN

Beleznia, Hungary.—A section of this small town has been destroyed and a boy killed by the explosion of several souvenir hand-grenades in the house of a retired army officer. The grenades were brought home by Lajos Fischer as war trophies and have since hung on the walls of his house.

Two of the grenades fell from the wall and exploded causing a number of other shells and grenades to explode also. Fischer's six-year old son was killed and his house entirely destroyed. Several other houses were wrecked and a number of people slightly injured.

HIGH EXCHANGE ON YEN MAKES JAPANESE IMPORTS GO TO NEW LOW RECORD

San Francisco—Higher exchange value of the yen and lower price on raw cotton resulted in a drop in imports to Japan in August to the lowest level since September, 1924, according to a cable summary made public by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce here. Exports of raw silk from Japan showed a marked increase for August, but silk and cotton yarn exports declined.

The bureau's office in Manila reported the copra market steady with slightly higher prices. Firm markets have advanced the price of high grade hemp.

Express Train Dependability

Hupmobile Six Built to same High Standards as Costliest Cars

Hupmobile Six a Leader. Also, in Complete, Modern Equipment

What goes into a motor car is vastly more important than what goes on it. You will not buy a car, on mere external and non-essential, but on proven performance, dependability, long life, and low cost of maintenance. Its superiority in these respects is small, however, the Hupmobile joins the latest and most complete equipment to be found on any car.

Certainly no car at its price—or within five hundred dollars of its price—compares with the Hupmobile Six in brilliant, delightful performance.

Its ability to perform and to out-perform, however, is not the most remarkable feature of this great car.

Underlying the public's admiration for this big, beautiful, full-size Hupmobile Six, is the deep seated respect of the average American for Hupmobile's traditional dependability.

Hupmobile pays millions of dollars more each year to make its Six one of the most dependable of all six-cylinder cars.

Owners, however, reap the benefit. The Hupmobile Six owner will tell you that his cost of maintenance is so low as to be almost negligible.

He will tell you that he can set out on a tour of a hundred, or a thousand or ten thousand miles, with the complete assurance that his journey will be unmarred by mechanical trouble or annoyance.

For you can drive this Hupmobile Six at express train speed, from sunrise to sunset, in the comforting knowledge that it is engineered and constructed to give such service easily, smoothly, and without straining.

BEST CAMPAIGN DOCUMENT.

There will be no campaign document employed in the Connecticut campaign comparable to an article written by Governor John H. Trumbull for the Financial Digest comparing the financial position of Connecticut with that of the other states of the American Union.

Connecticut is out of debt! Connecticut is living within her income!

These two facts, one the effect, the other the cause, are highly satisfactory, standing by themselves. In contrast to the "trend of the times" as reflected by the financial statements of the vast majority of the states they provide evidence of a brand of commonwealth government fairly startling in its scarcity at this time.

To quote the governor's articles: The same disease that is afflicting so many people and so many families—that of allowing expenditures to mount above income—also appears to be afflicting the majority of our forty-eight states. Comparatively few of our states are living within their incomes. Like the reckless installment buyer who contracts for more bills than his salary or wages will permit, most of our states are mortgaging their future to the extent of almost countless millions of dollars.

The degree in which this is true is set forth in the article in figures that are fairly staggering. First, the per capita debt of the whole forty-eight states, taken as a whole, in 1918, was $4.95; in 1924 it had risen to $10.64, an increase of 114.9 per cent in six years. Second, in 1918 seventeen states spent more than their income; in 1924 twenty-seven states spent more than their income—some of them two or three times the income. Third, fully ten per cent of the total income of the forty-eight states is now required to meet interest and amortization charges.

Meantime, while the per capita debt of all the states was jumping 14.9 per cent from 1918 to 1924, the per capita debt of Connecticut decreased 46 per cent; and while the per capita debt of the New England states in 1924 was much less than that of many of the states of the Union, Connecticut's was the lowest of them all, and by far, for she owed but $3.11 per person, while the New England average was $13.18.

Today Connecticut has on hand in her treasury money enough to pay every dollar of outstanding obligations and leave a substantial balance.

If there are half a dozen other states in the country in a similar position there surely are no more—and most of them, while Connecticut has been paying off her debt, have been piling obligation on obligation.

And yet does there occur to any Connecticut citizen any point or relationship in which Connecticut falls short of discharging her duty to her people? She has the best roads, by and large, in the country. Her institutions are adequate and credible. Her contributions to education are generous. She has invested wisely in public parks. She holds her own in the maintenance of police and National Guard. She is one of the progressive commonwealths. Her citizens have every reason to be proud of her achievements.

And she pays her way. If there is a voter within the boundaries of the state who needs to be told the reason for this highly exceptional showing it would be useless to tell him.

BONE WILBUR.

Mr. Wilbur, secretary of the navy and titular superintendent of the largest Sunday school in the United States, is a very smart man. He would not deny it himself. He has managed, for instance, to become as complete a rival as possible of an extremely famous personage, one Sir Joseph Porter, K. C.

B., first lord of the admiralty, who, according to the book of "Pinafore," polished up the handles so carefully that he became the ruler of the queen's naves. Mr. Wilbur taught his good little girls and good little boys so splendidly, and won so many lawsuits over orange grove division lines and made such funny addresses at Rotary club luncheons, out in California, that he just naturally had to be the boss of all the American warships and all the American sea officers and gobs. You can't beat merit nor keep the workman down!

But smart as he is there is a nut of a boy—and a most disagreeable nut he is—who is making a monkey out of the clever Mr. Wilbur. His name is Zirkle and we have spoken our minds about him heretofore. He hummed an education from the United States government as a student in the Naval Academy at Annapolis, and cheated when he was doing it, for he didn't intend to subscribe to the oath of allegiance and serve as a naval officer after he graduated.

As a matter of fact, when it came time for Zirkle to get his commission, along with the rest of the graduating class, he flatly refused to take the oath. And from that day to this, though the business has strung along over a number of months, Mr. Wilbur hasn't been able to think of anything satisfactory to do about it. There was no precedent, so the able secretary of the navy was completely up the stump.

What he did do was to send Zirkle off on the graduate cruise along with a whole class of decent young fellows—to see if he would please change his mind. The cruise being over and Zirkle being moved to have some more fun with the secretary, that individual let it be known that he had thought better of it and would deign to swear and take his commission. That would be real nice, Mr. Wilbur thought, and so it was arranged. But Zirkle, having set the stage, sprung a new and devastating surprise on the navy department by again reversing himself and declining to take the oath.

He ought to have had a smack over the jaw and been kicked into the street and then, into the bargain, sued for the whole cost of his Annapolis course. But does Mr. Wilbur do anything like that? He does not. He ships him off on some more travel—this time to San Francisco, where he is to undergo the horrible punishment of being assigned to a ship of the Pacific fleet with the rank of midshipman instead of that of ensign, to which he would be entitled if he would swear in.

Now as a matter of fact a midshipman is an officer, though a lowly one. And this fellow Zirkle, who has shown himself to be a dishonorable swindler in the United States government, will be in a position to give orders to and command the salutes of a certain number of enlisted men including C. P. O.'s and warrant officers who have served faithfully and often gallantly for many years. As a midshipman he will still be a member of the navy aristocracy—a gentleman.

Mr. Wilbur has pulled a bone—that is, he has pulled another bone.

BUT THEY NEVER TELL.

How ordinary and human the great people of the land must be, under the skin, is best demonstrated by the pains they take to prevent the world from finding out the least thing about how they look and behave off dress parade.

There died in Washington recently an old negro, Arthur Brooks, who had been valet to four presidents—William Howard Taft, Woodrow Wilson, Warren G. Harding and the present White House tenant, Calvin Coolidge. Undoubtedly he knew more intimate details of the personal lives, in the executive mansion, of these four men than any person in the world outside their own respective families.

Such information may seem trifling. Perhaps it is, but it's interesting. There were many more important things in the life of Napoleon than the meal he ate on the eve of Waterloo. But it disagreed with him, his stomach was upset, so he lost the battle. There was a trifling detail, which Napoleon's chef unquestionably did his utmost to hush up, but it sheds a flood of light on Napoleon. He was greedy. Indeed, it isn't a trifling detail. It reveals his whole character.

Arthur Brooks probably held the key to many riddles of the Taft, Wilson and Harding administrations. It wouldn't do to refer to the administration of President Coolidge, for he's contemporary. But Brooks' key was buried with him.

Brooks was a talkative old chap—in all capacities but as a presidential valet. He could tell a good story. He had a sense of humor and a nose for the news, but what he knew, as a valet, was as sacred to him as a physician's knowledge of his patient. He didn't tell his closest friend, or his wife, or his children.

Brooks wasn't unique. Who ever heard of a presidential private secretary who made any indiscreet disclosures? Or a chief clerk of the executive offices? Or a White House chief usher? Or a doorkeeper? Or a secret service attendant? Or anybody, connected with the White House?

That's why we know so little about our presidents—even our present one.

HAVE THE WOMEN CHANGED THINGS?

A New York political sage recently unburdened himself of the remark that although women have enjoyed national suffrage for six years, they have brought about few changes. His eyesight must be failing.

The other night we went to a political rally, expecting one of those good, old-fashioned, rip-rarin' ward meetings where the air is so thick with tobacco smoke, you think you're in a London fog. But there was no fog here. Instead was the gentle, insistent aroma of talcum powders, perfumes and toilet waters. The crowd was dotted with feminine hats and boyish bobs.

On the stage there was a piano. A couple of singers came forward and did their act. Then followed a monologist, a couple of jesters and two child dancers.

The orator at a ward meeting used to spit a great flood of tobacco juice upon the floor and start swearing at his adversary. At this meeting he arose quietly, arranged his necktie, smoothed his hair, took a glass of water, and in a polite voice, began: "Ladies and gentlemen—"

Ward meetings were held often in connection with convenient bars. This one was held near a kitchen, and while the candidate was addressing the assemblage, his seconds were out in the culinary department eating ice cream. After it was all over the guests were given a dipper of ice cream and a couple of sugar waters.

Social amenities flew thick and fast. It was a delightful meeting. Who said the women haven't changed things?

THAT INLAND FLEET.

For nearly a decade the United States government has operated a fleet of barges and steamers on the Mississippi river, where river traffic was—supposedly—deader than Samson.

The annual deficit at first was enormous. Then, year by year, it was whittled down, due to business-like methods. Now it has been wiped out.

The government barge fleet—operated by the Inland Waterways Corporation—is making a very neat profit. And the outlook for the future is very promising.

There are a lot of remarks one might make about it. But—well, don't you suppose that pretty soon the country will be hearing a loud clamor to the effect the government should now should retire from business and sell its river fleet?

Government operation always is so inefficient, you know.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART Washington, Sept. 29.—Just why a governorship should be regarded by politicians as a better taking off place than a senatorship for a presidential nomination is not very clear.

However, the belief certainly exists. It may be a mere superstition. It may have been worked out on logical lines.

At all events, the individual who has been stung by the presidential bee seems always to show a preference for a preliminary seat in some gubernatorial chair than for one in the United States Senate.

A senator is in the nation's eye. He's in his state's eye, too. Perhaps he isn't in the latter at quite as short range, but a politician must be pretty close to his state or it doesn't send him to the Senate in Washington.

Besides, if there's anything in proverbs, "distance lends enchantment to the view." A governor is engaged with hum-drum affairs at home. A senator is mixed in huge romantic, federal affairs of state.

A senator has a voice in the destinies of all the states; a governor has a voice in the destinies of only one.

It looks as if a senator, tried out nationally, would be the man for the whole country to pick as a presidential candidate. But no, if politicians are right the country prefers governors—satisfactory individual states, but who knows if they'll prove satisfactory on a large scale?

Warren G. Harding!—well, he was a senator, but that was an accident.

Woodrow Wilson was a governor. Calvin Coolidge was a governor. He was nominated only as vice president, to be sure, but it was on his gubernatorial record.

Observe the situation now. Coolidge again—as the likeliest Republican re-nominee—a hang-over governor!

And among the Democrats? McAdoo, Pomeroy, Jim Reed—well, they're not governors, but they can't help that. They have to take their chances, just as they are. And they're not nominated yet.

But note the three Democratic possibilities who are governors—Governor Smith of New York and Governor Ritchie of Maryland and Governor Donahoe of Ohio—all probably could have run for the Senate. All chose to stay governors.

It's anybody's guess why a governor is better presidential timber than a senator, or whether it's true at all.

SAVING ON BREAD

Mother: Willie, don't you think it rather extravagant to be cutting butter and jam on your bread at the same time? Willie: No, it's economy. You see, the same piece of bread does for both.—Pele Mele, Paris.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 29.—See-sawing up and down Broadway I caught a glimpse of a woman whose name was once a household word, but who today is one of the most mysterious and elusive figures in America. I mean Maude Adams. She had slipped in "Potemkin," the private showing of "The Great Impersonation," the much discussed Russian film. She slipped out just as quietly. I should never have known her. An aging woman, rather diminutive, caught in a surging crowd at a doorway and bustling into an automobile like some frightened rabbit.

Maude Adams, as the newspaper world knows her, has become almost a myth. Like Peter Pan, for years she has refused to see reporters. She has announced with finality that never again will she pose for the cameras of the press. The public that loved her? They must remember her as they saw her last. She lives in practical seclusion. A favorite place is a hidden old manse on a wooded estate at Tannersville, New York. There are many rumors. A persistent one is that she was about to take the veil. And when in and about New York she goes frequently to a nunnery on Long Island. She lives a cloistered life indeed. One dramatic writer is said to have her "confessions" and to have material for an authorized autobiography to be issued after her death.

Her business life is carried on with equal mystery. She is known to have some film invention which is being experimented with. A year ago she went to England to watch the filming of Kipling's story, "Kith," in which she is interested. She took passage on the boat under an assumed name. Reporters who went to the stateroom were greeted by a kindly lady who denied that she was Maude Adams and, hence, would not be seen.

One bright young reporter explained that he had been too young when she was upon the stage to see and appreciate her, but that he felt he would know her anywhere. This must be Maude Adams. He felt that it must be. The artist led to the doorway merely smiled sadly. A few tears overflowed her eyes. She thanked him, banged the door and was not seen again.

In Europe she appeared from time to time at the film studios. Her arrivals and departures were always furtive. And, just as furtively, she returned to America. Again under an assumed name, I am told that only a few, who kept it close secret, knew of her presence. Of the hundreds aboard ship, many her ardent admirers in her stage days, no one knew her. You see she must have changed. She must have become a mythical figure.

The same is true in New York. She is reported going to certain laboratories from time to time to watch the film process in which she is interested. If she appears publicly she is seldom recognized. Those intimates who see her do not talk about the visits. Certainly I should never have known her had she not been pointed out by a friend and, like Peter Pan, when I reached her side she was gone. Almost mysterious and baffling figure. Perhaps she has become as Peter Pan and darts only through windows of memory, pleading with you to believe in the fairies of a bygone year, else she will perish.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

This curious fish lives far below the surface of the sea in the cool depths where it is always night and where perpetual calm prevails.

It is especially remarkable for its large thick head the bones of which are very thin.

Although probably occurring in all seas, the fish of this type are very few in number of kinds, and only very few individuals have ever been captured.

THE FALL ELECTION

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Both glee clubs have held their rehearsals this week. The boys rehearsed on Monday afternoon and the girls on Tuesday. New pieces are being learned by both clubs. Most of the members of last year's organizations are members this year, and quite a number of new members have joined.

The orchestra rehearsed this afternoon. Under Miss Dorward's direction, the orchestra has grown remarkably in the past two years. It is expected that it will be considerably bettered this year by the addition of several instruments for which there has been a lack previously. Miss Dorward would like to form a good small symphony orchestra, for she feels that there is plenty of material to draw from in the school, if those who can play instruments would come to rehearsals and try. Orchestra rehearsals are always held on Wednesday afternoons, the seventh period.

Band rehearsal will be held after school tomorrow night in the assembly hall. Bandmaster Harold Turkington requests that all members and anyone who can play an instrument suitable for band work be at the rehearsal tomorrow afternoon.

Band rehearsals will not be long, drawout, dry affairs if the boys will co-operate with Mr. Turkington. There is a fine opportunity for putting out a fine school band. But this cannot be done unless all students who can play instruments that are suitable for band work come to rehearsals. Many other high schools all over the country boast of excellent bands and there is no reason why the South Manchester High school cannot have as good a band as any.

The "Somanhis Events" campaign is coming along well. The seniors, this noon, were almost 100 per cent, while the juniors are next in line, the freshmen third, and their elders, the sophomores, last. Last year there were almost seven hundred on the subscription list. It is hoped to at least equal this record this year.

It is time now for contributions to be handed in to the editorial board of "Somanhis." All students are earnestly requested to present something to the board. Even if a student's writing is not accepted for publication, he will gain some valuable experience by writing. It will be good practice, and if his contribution should be accepted, he will have accomplished something of which he may well be proud, for "Somanhis" accepts only the best literary contributions.

The entire school is anxiously awaiting the first football game. The local warriors will play Buckley High on Saturday. If Manchester's pigskin chasers can come through against the New London team, or even make a good showing against it, Coach Kelley will be well satisfied. Saturday's game will help show what Manchester will accomplish in football this year, for Buckley is considered one of the best high school football teams in the state.

POLICE COURT

George Jones of 162 Bissell street was sent to jail for ten days for assault on his wife by Judge Johnson in the police court this morning. He had an additional charge against him for intoxication for which a fine of $10 and costs was imposed. The arrest was made by Policeman Arthur Seymour. The chief witness against Jones was his wife, who showed the court the marks on her face made by her husband's blows. Joseph Madden a young man of nineteen years was before the court on the charge of intoxication. He was arrested by Arthur Seymour on Bissell street at 1:30 this morning. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed.

GAS CAR ON AGAIN.

Trains No. 1682 and No. 1647 which ply between Hartford and Rockville were discontinued today. In their places were started two gas cars. These will run twice a day, once in the morning at 8:45 and once in the afternoon at 3:49. The morning car will stop at Vernon, Vernon Center and Manchester and the afternoon car at Burnside, Buckland and Manchester.

The reason for making the change was to perfect the service so that school children might get to school in time. Previously they had to commute by bus.

TO GIVE UP LOVE

Paris, Sept. 29.—Prince Carol of Rumania is about to renounce his private life and his beautiful Titan-haired Mme. Lupeacu, and regain resume his rights and duties as Crown Prince. It was reported today in private advices from Bucharest.

Carol, who is now living at the rest of Saint De Luz, on the Basque coast with Mme. Lupeacu, is apparently still devoted to his latest love, but it is said that the Rumanian action in advising him that he is no longer entitled to call himself prince, and must use his name of Mr. Carol Caraiman, has a very considerable effect.

There are several American girls abroad who haven't tried to swim the English Channel. Perhaps because they can't swim.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Stephen Decatur (1)

Stephen Decatur, "the Bayard of the Seas," was born Jan. 5, 1779, in Sinnerpuxent, Md. His father and grandfather had sailed the seas, and the love of ocean adventure soon asserted itself in the boy. In 1795 the young Decatur entered the navy as a midshipman aboard the United States.

For several years the United States had been paying forced tribute to the rulers of Morocco, Tunis, Algiers and Tripoli.

More than $1,000,000 had been given these piratical despots for the safety of American ships on the Mediterranean.

The injustices of the Barbary chieftains came to a climax in 1800 when the Bey of Algiers insulted Captain Bainbridge, who bore him the annual tribute that year. The Bey ordered Bainbridge to carry his ambassador to Constantinople, and when Bainbridge refused, the Bey declared the captain "as his slave." (Continued.)

OPEN FORUM

The Editor
The Manchester Herald
Manchester, Conn.
Dear Sir:
The enclosed item will be of interest to many of the Jewish young men and women living on farms in your territory. We feel that your paper can reach these better than any other means that we might employ and we would therefore appreciate your inserting this press notice in the next issue of The Herald.
Yours very truly,
SAM KOSTOLEFSKY,
Extension Agent.
Promote Agriculture Through Scholarships
As a means of furthering the interests of farm-minded people, scholarships covering expenses of a short course in agriculture at any state agricultural college are offered by the Jewish Agricultural Society. These scholarships are available to any Jewish young man or woman with farm experience. The awards are made principally on the basis of the applicant's understanding of the practical phases of farming and his fitness to pursue the studies at an agricultural college. The courses for which the society's scholarships are granted are given by the state agricultural colleges primarily for the benefit of those who either already are, or intend to be, engaged in farming. It is the conviction of farmers that the best that the applicant can do when given during the winter months when work on the farm is not very pressing. The object of these courses is to present in a condensed but popular form the underlying principles of efficient farming and household management. The courses are steadily gaining in popularity amongst farmers. The latter have found out that those who take advantage of these courses are greatly benefited by them.
To the Jewish Agricultural Society the value of this training has been amply demonstrated by the recipients of its scholarships in the past. The society's records show that many of the graduates have been enabled to secure well paying positions, while others have at a comparatively short time either acquired part ownership in farms or settled down on farms of their own.
Those interested in these scholarships should apply at once for further information and application blanks. The headquarters of the Jewish Agricultural Society are at 801 East 14th Street, New York City. The scholarships are but one of the many ways in which this organization fosters agriculture among Jews.
Success in farming is not merely a matter of luck, or cooperation, or favorable legislation. People who succeed in farming to-day—and one finds such people everywhere—are for the most part, men and women who have learned to make full use of their own powers and of the experience and knowledge accumulated by others. Now, to teach people to make fuller use of their own capacities—mental and physical—and to impart to them the latest information on farming and farm life, is the precise object of the short courses offered by the state agricultural colleges. Short as these courses are, they go a long way toward improving the mind of the student and in enriching him with a store of valuable knowledge.
It is largely because of the training they receive at colleges that short course graduates are to be found among the most successful and influential members in any rural community. Also it is primarily because of their training that the winners of our scholarships so often succeed. Our records show that a considerable proportion of them have become well-paying, responsible positions, while others have in a short time been enabled to acquire part ownership in farms.
J. A. S. Scholarships
The scholarships offered by the Jewish Agricultural Society are available to men and women with practical experience, but without the necessary training in modern methods of agriculture. The scholarships apply only to courses given by the state agricultural colleges under the designation of "Winter Short Courses." No restriction is imposed upon the successful applicant in the matter of the selection of courses. He is expected, however, to choose subjects which would prove to him of practical importance and application. Girls who select agricultural courses are advised to include as many subjects relating to household management as the program per-

LIST OF SUSPENDED DRIVERS ANNOUNCED

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out today at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are sixty-one names on the list. Five cases were appealed. Four were Connecticut operators convicted in other states. The department statement advises people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

KEITH CO. BUSINESS BEATS ALL RECORDS

Considering the weather there was an exceptionally busy evening along Main street last night while the stores were open. It is not remarkable at this time of the year to see the crowds flock out on Tuesday night but from all evidences, last night was a record-breaker, both in traffic on the street and business in the stores. The merchants in general are very much enthused over the condition of business when a rainy night will bring out so large a crowd. Things were particularly thick down at the Keith Furniture Company store where their 27th Anniversary celebration is in full progress. In talking things over today they stated that yesterday's business exceeded any other single day in the history of the store in the volume of sales and that probably a larger crowd visited this store than in any other day except for Dollar Day crowds, or some special entertainment or reception. At any rate Keith's have arranged a remarkable selling event which is running high this week and next in commemoration of their business anniversary and their efforts are certainly being received very enthusiastically. Local advertising in The Herald has largely accounted for the response of the public as far as Manchester is concerned but their publicity has reached far into the surrounding country as well through other means and their offerings are such as to bring forth every possible purchaser of house furnishings from miles around. The company has requested that mention be made of the exceptional strain that is being placed on their deliveries and other services and to request every possible consideration in this line. Also Keith's have advertised that an attractive free souvenir would be presented to all callers and are very much afraid that some people may have been overlooked in this last event.

Cheney, Hyde and Bendall Remain in Elimination Golf Tournament

CHENEY-BENDALL WINNER MEETS HYDE FOR COUNTRY CLUB TITLE

Great Interest Aroused Over Outcome of Championship Matches; Cheney Is Favorite.

Considerable interest has been aroused over the outcome of the annual individual golf championship tournament being conducted at the Manchester Country Club. Play has progressed to the semi-finals, one set of which has been played. The other will be played this week and the finals some time next week.

Hyde Beats Bowers
John H. Hyde was the winner of the first half of the semi-finals. He triumphed over Raymond Bowers by a score of 4 up and 4 to play. In the other bracket are John P. Cheney Sr. and Fred J. Bendall. The winner of this match will meet Hyde for the club championship.

Cheney Favored
Although there are many who opine that J. P. Cheney will win the championship, he has no easy task. Both Bendall and Hyde are clever players although not as experienced as Cheney. Bendall's card in his 18-hole match with Charlie Felber last Saturday was 76 which is considered a commendable score. Hyde's work has also been brilliant. There were 18 entries in the Country Club tournament. They were the low score contestants who made good in the qualification round. Following are the pairings in each round and the results of the matches to date.

First Round
John P. Cheney defeated Thomas K. Clarke 4 up and 2 to play.
Herbert B. House defeated G. R. Barker 3 up and 2 to play.
Charles J. Felber defeated C. A. Walker 2 up and 2 to play.

Second Round
John H. Hyde defeated F. C. Way by default.
J. C. Carey defeated F. W. Francis 2 up.

Semi-Finals
Phillip Cheney defeated C. Osgoby by default.
Raymond Bowers defeated H. C. Alford by default.

Finals
J. H. Hyde vs. J. P. Cheney.

GLOBE TROTTER RECORD IS SET BY U. S. SAILOR
Syracuse, N. Y.—A globe trotting record to be envied by the most inveterate traveler has been piled up by F. R. Raleigh, of this city, enlisted man in the United States Navy attached to the U. S. S. Cleveland, now home on furlough.

Raleigh in the last year visited Panama, San Bas Islands, Arica, Chile, Caratena, Columbus, Blue-Fields, El Buff, Nicaragua, Puerto Cortez, Puerto Castilla, Honduras, Frontera, Progreso, Mexico, Port Limon, San Jose, Costa Rica and made eight trips through the Panama Canal.

Like San Francisco, the city of Melbourne, Australia, owes its early development to a gold strike.

KOENIG, YANKEES' WEAK SPOT; MAY MEAN DROPPING PENNANT

Sports Writer Says He Is Liable to Drop the Ball or Throw Wild at Any Moment.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
New York, Sept. 29.—"When you hit one toward shortstop—the liner, ground ball or pop fly—start running and never stop; for neither you nor the man at the position will know what he is going to do with it."

This, declared members of the St. Louis Cardinals today, was the advice given them by American League players who have watched Mark Koenig through a season of catch-as-come performance and this, according to the writer, is probably the abiding reason why the New York Yankees can not be granted an even chance with the Cardinals in the World Series.

Weak Link.
A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, according to idle gossip, and by the same token a team is no stronger than its shortstop. Mark Koenig, shortstop of the New York Yankees, always is a great help-to-somebody but seldom to the Yankees. He may handle nine chances perfectly but when he kicks away the tenth ball games goes with it.

That's his complex; he is a ball player who does the wrong thing at the right time.

Great Tribune.
It is a distinct tribute, in fact, to

JACK AND GENE TELL ABOUT IT

"I Wasn't There" and "I Used Straight Right" Explains Battle in Brief.

New York, Sept. 29.—Jack Dempsey today related how he lost the heavyweight championship and Gene Tunney told how he won it.

"I wasn't there," said Dempsey. "I won the fight in the first round with a short straight right I had been practicing a year."

Both Dempsey and Tunney, furnishing a striking contrast, are in New York today. Tunney, debonair and polished, happy and proud in the possession of the title, and Dempsey, his face swollen and discolored, trying gamely to be his old jaunty, carefree self, and presently he isn't completely crushed over the loss of his crown.

Tunney, meanwhile, was graciously yielding verbal tributes to the man he conquered.

"Don't sympathize with me," pleaded Dempsey. "I'm still a big strong man and don't need it."

"What was the matter, Jack—were you sick that night?" he was asked.

"No," he snapped. "I wasn't. I haven't any ailment. Tunney was the best man."

Tunney, meanwhile, was graciously yielding verbal tributes to the man he conquered.

Good Sport.
"Treat him kindly, boys," he said to newspapermen. "He is a fine sportsman. Think of what Dempsey lost—not only two million dollars, but his title and the acclamation, the glory and the lustre that goes with it."

Dempsey is stopping at a hotel with his wife, the former Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress. He will remain here about a month, attending to business and devoting some of his time to court battles which confront him in connection with suits filed by his former manager, Jack Kearns. He will take in the World Series, and, if he can, will get a good rest.

The ex-champion indicated he had no thought of retiring from the ring. He said he would confer with Tex Rickard, the promoter, in the day or so regarding his future activities. He did not mention a return match with Tunney, nor did he discuss Harry Wills, the negro contender.

Dempsey has somewhat recovered his cheery mood despite the battered condition of his face. His dark features are still lumpy and discolored in spots.

An itch he contracted from one of his sparring partners has spread, causing him annoyance. He said he might send for a specialist. The cut over his left eye, in which four stitches were taken, is healing, but the flesh under the left eye is swollen and tender.

CHI CHAMPIONSHIP
Chicago, Sept. 29.—Annual settlement of an ancient municipal feud will get under way here today at Cubs Park when the National League Cubs meet the American League White Sox in the opener of a 7-game series to decide the baseball supremacy of Chicago.

Most of the experts pick the White Sox to win the series. Charlie Root of the Cubs, and Urban "Red" Faber of the Sox, are dated to pitch the opening battle today.

Only two other pennant winners have been able to laugh off a man who hit one toward shortstop—the liner, ground ball or pop fly—start running and never stop; for neither you nor the man at the position will know what he is going to do with it.

All of the others were good. Some of them, indeed, were great. The list, dating back to the start of the modern series in 1903, includes the only Wagner, Joe Tinker, Bill Dahlen, Art Fletcher, Fred Parent, Don Bush, Jack Barry, Rabbit Maranville, Dave Bancroft, Everett Scott, Buck Weaver, Larry Kopp, Joe Sewell, Rogers Peckinpaugh, Travis Jackson and Glenn Wright.

The only doubtful one in that array is Kopf and he had a very good year when the Reds won in 1918. The rest are foolproof.

Perhaps, you ask, one cannot say the same for the Cards' shortstop. Maybe not but the writer has a hunch that Tommy Thevenow will be one of the stars of the series. A fine, aggressive fighting elder he has helped to hold the pitchers up all season and he is one of the best pinch hitters on the club. Everybody knows pretty well what he is going to do; they can't say the same for Koenig.

Local Golfer Registers Hole-In-One on Eve of Big Match With Cheney

It was learned today that Fred J. Bendall who meets J. P. Cheney in the semi-finals of the annual Country Club golf tournament, recently joined the select class of golfers who have succeeded in registering holes-in-one.

Made Against Odds
Bendall performed his thrilling feat recently while on his vacation in Bethlehem, New Hampshire. His hole-in-one was made on the Bethelham Country Club course on the 10th hole. It was a walk-in hole, but Bendall cleared a high bunker which surrounded the green and also eluded a sand trap in front of it.

Made Here Twice
The feat of making a hole-in-one is very rarely accomplished, it is often that a good golfer will go a life-time without making one of the choice shots. Only three holes-in-one have been made on the Manchester Country Club course since it was opened. Alex Simpson, Manchester's best golfer, made one two months ago in the 13th hole. It was a drive of 190 yards.

Rev. Father Sinnott, of Rockville made one in the 13th hole of a match on a drive of 130 yards. Harry R. Cheney is the holder of the other similar record. He made the brilliant shot in the 13th hole of a match, a drive of 190 yards.

Almost Not Quite
C. W. Walker came within a hair's breadth of making a hole-in-one about a month ago. He was driving at the 13th hole and his 190 yard drive came within inches of the hole. One of the spectators kicked the ball into the cup and for the time being Walker had joined the select group.

Local Sport Chatter

Alex Simpson turned in a neat performance the other day on the Manchester Country Club course when he made the 15th hole in two shots. It is understood this feat has been rarely, if ever, accomplished. It is a distance of 335 yards. Simpson made between 260 and 270 yards on the first drive and holed in with a niblet. He was playing with William C. Cheney and Mr. Cowles of Colorado Springs.

Alex Simpson failed to qualify in the annual National Professional Golf Tournament at Salisbury, L. I. recently. However, some consolation may be taken from the fact that only one of the six entries from New England qualified. The rest failed. Simpson's scores were 82 and 84. Alex says Walter Hagen played a brilliant game and reports that the champion is impatient when in true form.

The annual Ladies' Golf Tournament at the Country Club is under way. Elimination play will begin Saturday. Only three more days remain in which to report scores. The contestant must hand in two scores for the 9-hole course. The elimination tourney will last two weeks. Mrs. F. T. Blish is in charge.

The Cubs football eleven will practice tomorrow evening at the Charter Oak street field at seven o'clock. Coach Wright expects all members of the squad to be present as he has special drilling planned for the game next Sunday when the Cubs meet the Shamrocks at the Sons of Italy of Middletown in that city.

The Cloverleafs football eleven of the North End, winners of the town championship last season, plan to open their season Sunday afternoon at Hickey's Grove. It has not yet been announced what team will oppose the locals but it will no doubt be a fast and worthwhile match. An announcement will be made shortly.

Tom Weir, popular director of sports at the West Side Rec, is already making plans for winter activities. One of his events which will doubtless prove of great interest is that of checkers. This sport was indulged in at length last winter and went over big. This year Weir plans to run several tournaments and to operate it on a much bigger scale. It will wind up with an elimination tourney for the individual town championship. A silver loving cup will probably be presented to the winner.

There are a large number of real good checker players in Manchester and if the sport can be revived, it should attract an immense amount of interest. Tom Weir is just the one to put the affair over with a bang. Last year one of the tournaments was so keenly contested that the finals did not end until 1 o'clock in the morning and about fifty persons stayed to watch the finish of the exciting match which was between Henry Marx and Fred Phaneuf, the former emerging victorious after a thrilling contest.

The Older Men's volley ball league will start at the West Side Rec Monday evening at 8:15. Sessions will be held every Monday and Friday afternoon, according to the present plans.

On October 7, which is a week from tomorrow night, the Married Peoples' Bowling League will convene again at the West Side Rec. This league aroused considerable attention last year not only among members, but the public at large because of the number of wives who defeated their husbands. The Herald each week published a so-called "Weekly Victim List" and it caused lots of fun and excitement.

The soccer game between Manchester and Bridgeport scheduled to take place in the Park City Sunday, has been cancelled. The Bridgeport Celtics are playing the 15th Clam Campbell eleven in the first round of the National Cup competition and will be unable to meet Manchester. It is possible that the local eleven will play in Watbury Sunday. All players are requested to report at the West Side Rec at 7 o'clock tomorrow night for

LANGE WILLING TO MEET FEENEY FOR $100 PURSE

Accepts Challenge; Now Up to Feeny to Reply in Horseshoe Controversy.

Manchester lovers of the horseshoe pitching sport are sure in store for a real treat. Henry Lange has accepted the challenge hurled at him by Charley Feeny and a match between the two arch rivals is in the offing.

How Feud Started.
The horseshoe pitching feud between Feeny and Lange dates back to last summer when the two met in a match reported to be for the town championship. Lange won by one-sided scores. Feeny claims the match was not for the title and that he entered the match with an injured elbow. Recently the pair met in a double match and Lange outscored Feeny by 34 points in 15 games.

Lange Accepts Challenge.
The result was that Feeny challenged Lange to a match on Saturday. This def was published in the Sport Chatter column yesterday. Lange today informed the writer he is willing to meet Feeny for a purse of $100, fifty dollars apiece, in a 15-game match. Lange made it plain he would not play for fun nor marbles but would accept the middle clause of Feeny's "fun, money, or marbles" challenge.

Lange is willing to meet Feeny a week from Saturday. He stands willing to post a forfeit of $50 with the Sports Editor of The Herald as his share in the purse.

The Matter Now Strictly Before Feeny to Defend the Challenge.
He has hurled it. It is probable that Feeny will announce his acceptance through the columns of The Herald sport page tomorrow. Meanwhile fans will eagerly await his reply.

There will be six instead of eight teams in the C. B. A. junior bowling league when that circuit gets under way the middle of October. One of the teams which will not be entered this year is the Hawks Shop.

The six entered are: Ribbon, Weaving, Dressing, Velvet, Throwing and Main Office. Old Mill. In the Senior Bowling league, the personnel has not been definitely decided. An attempt is being made to split up the players on the two Weaving Mill teams so the competition will be much more equal his season. Last season, it was a walk-away for the Weavers.

PLAN BUSY WINTER SEASON IN SPORTS

John L. Jenny, secretary of Cheney Brothers' Athletic Association, is hard at work these days making arrangements for the winter activities of the organization. He has already completed plans for four setback tournaments.

On Wednesday evening, Nov. 3, there will be an inter-department night at the school street Rec. Other athletic meets are planned. Some will be between Cheney Brothers and other manufacturing concerns. The J. J. Regan Company and the Orford Soap Company are expected to be lined up for sport competition. There will also be a night of athletic competition between the married and single men of the athletic association.

The affairs will be held on the first Wednesday of every month starting in November.

On the program of sports there will be pool, bowling, checkers, setback, tug-of-war, basketball, volley ball and horseshoe pitching.

FIGHT BAN LIFTED

Chicago, Sept. 29.—The ban on heavyweights in Illinois has been lifted by the state boxing commission, it was learned today. The commission took this action, it was said, because so many of the heavyweights have volunteered their services in the benefit boxing show to be staged here October 15 for the Florida relief fund.

Georges Carpentier and Jimmy Delaney of St. Paul will clash in the feature bout.

Two hundred years ago New York had fewer than 6000 people, one-half of whom were Negroes.

At this time the membership and all interested people who attend will be addressed by Mrs. Elizabeth Hines Hanley, drama specialist of the Playground and Recreation Association of America. The meeting and supper will be open to all who are interested in the success of the Town Players and tickets will be distributed through the mails to the membership of the organization. William Remig, chairman of the entertainment committee, is working on a program at the present time and expects to have an excellent program for that evening. The general committee will meet again on Tuesday evening of next week to complete the arrangements.

During Mrs. Hanley's visit she will also have one meeting in which she will show a miniature model of stages, some simple lighting effects; give lists of plays, pageants, etc., for special groups, and purposes and occasions, and demonstrate the procedure in preparing a play for production.

Mrs. Hanley is specially fitted for this work by training and experience, having studied extensively with such instructors as the late William H. Deane, stage manager for David Belasco, from whom she took play production and stage management; Miss Alys E. Bentley, of New York, music, rhythms and free interpretation; Prof. Eric Gaston, London, England, voice, diction and gesture; Miss Doris Kenyon Jette, Boston, play-analysis and general dramatic expression; Madame Elsie Dubois, Paris, France, stage craft in relation to symbolism, moods and color values; Miss Marion Delecomyn, London, composition and selection of plays; the late Prof. H. Her experience in the practice of her art, which has extended over a period of fifteen years, has comprised teaching dramatics and play production in private schools in Atlanta and Savannah, Georgia, and New York City; dramatic recitals throughout the southern states; amateur club organization and direction in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Massachusetts and Oklahoma. For six years she has served as drama specialist and community organizer for Community Service and the Playground and Recreation Association of America. She has written and directed some of the largest and most important pageants in this country, and is the author of many festivals, stories and plays for special community uses. She is here to offer her services in any of these lines, as they are requested.

"WANING SEX" AT CIRCLE TONIGHT

Drama of Modern Flappers Being Shown Last Times Tonight.

Gash, Mame, I seen Norma Shearer in a picture last night at the Circle theater that'd make a weeping willow laugh.

Norma is a lawyer and her boy friend, who is Conrad Nagel (goah, I like him, he looks so refined), is a district attorney and he's nutty about her. She's kinda soft on him, too, but she's one of these dames that don't like to show it, you know what I mean, I'm kinda that way myself, only not so much. If I'm crazy about a guy I like to keep him guessing, don't you?

Well, anyway, she says she'll marry him if he beats her in court, she's defending a poor, hard-working burglar that he tries to have hanged or something.

Well, anyway, she wins and he loses, and then that's where the other girl comes in. She's a blonde, just a regular little fluffy bottle blonde, and she just lures that boy Conrad right home with her and fixes him up a dinner that'd put a tiger to sleep. He gets a little sleepy and she spills coffee all over his lap so he'll have to take off his trousers while she dries and presses them. See the trick? She wants some people to come there and find him like that.

But she gets fooled good and Norma does it, only she don't know that.

The funny thing is that Conrad gets home in a strange pair of pants and Norma's little brother gets home without any and runs into his girl. Boy, what a battle they throw!

Everything gets fixed up all right when Norma gets busy and gets home without any and runs into his girl. Boy, what a battle they throw!
