

OLD SWINDLE WAS WORKED ON PRIHODKA

Foreigners Think North End Man Gave Stranger His Money for Alleged Money Making Machine.

After testifying in court yesterday morning against Philip Salenik who stole $1,000 from him, Anthony Prihodka, of 60 North street, evidently departed for parts unknown for he had shown up at his rooms up to 10 o'clock last night.

The Herald made a persistent effort to locate Tony yesterday afternoon and last evening in an attempt to learn more about the alleged counterfeiting plant found in a room in the North End. All of his friends were found but Tony himself was not about. He has two small rooms in the basement of 60 North street where he keeps his bachelor's hall. One room he uses for a kitchen where he cooks his meals and the other he uses as a bedroom.

Friends Talk.

Although Tony was not seen, friends told a different story than Tony about how the money got into Salenik's possession. He told some of them that the Massachusetts man stole it from under his pillow but others figured that the affair happened this way:

Salenik told Tony that he had a machine that could make money and so interested Tony that he decided to invest in it. The Russians in the neighborhood say that they never heard of a Russian, or any other foreigner for that matter, spending $1,000 to a sister or brother for a passage to America. They think too much of money to even loan that amount to a brother or sister. They generally buy a ticket on this side and send it to Europe.

Letter Not Seen.

Although Prihodka said he had a letter from his sister asking for the $1,000 none of his friends saw it. They say it is also strange that Tony and Salenik met accidentally on the day Tony went to the bank and after their return they ate breakfast together and then Salenik stole the money which had been placed under the pillow. The strange part of this, they say, is why Tony did not discover his loss until the next day.

An Ancient Swindle.

From their stories and theories it is believed that Tony lost his money through the "money making hype" with the exception of the gold brick, the oldest swindle in American history. A magician years ago made a trick box that evidently converted paper into money. A novelty concern saw that the little machine would make a hit with the public and street fakirs sold them by thousands. Then the craze died out and a few years afterwards the police from all over the country began to get complaints from foreigners that they had been swindled out of their savings with a machine that had been copied from the one sold on the streets but which had been improved. The method of operation is simple.

How It's Worked.

The swindler generally lives a few weeks in a section of the town or city where numbers of his countrymen reside. He gains their confidence and also, by shrewd questions, finds out who has money. He then becomes friendly with this man and when the time is ripe he explains that he has just been re-

He Had to Leave Town To Make Good On Stage

In these days when so many boys and girls are in the "average" class it is refreshing to hear of a boy, and a Manchester boy at that, who could well serve as the hero in one of Oliver Optic's "Ragstorics" stories.

Born in Austria, a musician at seven years of age. Then no more lessons because there was no piano and no money. The trip across the ocean to America—the land of opportunity.

Then a flareup of the fires of genius when his parents were able to resume his music lessons. As he mastered English he gave lessons himself, even in his grammar school days, and to pay the big fees that noted professors charged him for lessons he played in the movies.

He was not appreciated here. He left town and one night, just like in the story books, a musician recognized his talent and now he is on the concert stage.

Candidate's Total Campaign
Spending Two-fifty to Buy and Mail Herald.

Hartford, Oct. 8.—Deputy Sheriff Eugene W. House, of Glastonbury, spent $2.50 in his campaign for the nomination for Sheriff of Hartford county. The expense included purchase and mailing of fifty copies of the Manchester Herald which contained matter favorable to his candidacy.

Edgar G. Daniels, unsuccessful candidate for the nomination as senator from the thirty-second district, spent $20 for hire of automobiles.

John E. Doughan, of New-Haven, Democratic candidate for Congress from the ninth district, has appointed Frank S. Bergin as political agent. Patrick J. Goode, also of New-Haven, has been appointed political agent for David M. Richman, of the same city. Democratic candidate for secretary of state.

OLD WOMAN KILLED BY FLOWING GAS

Nearly Blind, She Accident- ally Opens Jets on Stove; Found Unconscious.

"Accidental" death, declared Assistant Medical Examiner Le Verne Holmes in the case of Mrs. Julia S. Davis, found dying in a gas filled room at 141 Center street, at an early hour today. She died before the doctor arrived.

Mrs. Julia Davis was a widow and about 80 years of age. She was a semi-invalid and was nearly blind. Mrs. Idell Waldorf with whom she boarded, took care of her.

Retired Early.

Last night the aged woman was helped to bed at 9 o'clock. At about 12:30 Charles Sison, another boarder, smelled gas. His room is upstairs and the gas seemed to be coming from the kitchen downstairs. He dressed and went down stairs and found the kitchen filled with the deadly fumes. The windows were thrown up and two gas jets on the stove, found wide open, were shut off.

Household Aroused.

The other occupants of the house had been aroused by this time and Mrs. Davis' room was entered. It is right off the kitchen and was also filled with the gas as the door was opened and the gas jets were called but before he arrived she had died, despite the efforts of those in the house to revive her.

How Accident Occurred.

From the stories told by the people in the house, Dr. Holmes learned that Mrs. Davis, who was nearly blind, had to grope her way to the bathroom even in the daytime. It is believed that during the night she went to the bathroom and on her way, in groping along the walls, struck her hand against the gas jets and opened them. She then went back to bed and never awakened.

The body was taken in charge by an undertaker as soon as Dr. Holmes had given the cause of death but arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

Mrs. Davis had boarded at the Waldorf home for the past three years. As far as they know she had no near relatives.

WINDOW CLEANERS BATTLE WITH POLICE

Brooklyn Fracas Follows Stab- bing of Employer as Rush Hour Crowds Look On.

New York, Oct. 8.—Striking window cleaners and police fought a pitched battle in the shadow of Borough hall, Brooklyn, during the rush hour today in view of hundreds of persons.

One man was stabbed and hurled through a plate glass window. Four men, claiming to be strikers, were arrested only after police threatened them with revolvers.

U. J. Schwartz, president of the Home Window Cleaning Co., was stabbed by one of twelve men who attacked him while he was guarding Edward Benson, an employee, who was cleaning store windows. Schwartz's injuries were not serious.

400 SOUTHRONS LYNCH WOMAN WITH TWO MEN

Negro Trio, Tried and Ac- quitted of Killing, Mur- dered by Mob at Aiken, South Carolina.

Aiken, S. C., Oct. 8.—Three negroes, two men and a woman, were taken from the county jail today and shot to death by a mob of 400 men. They were accused of the murder of Sheriff Henry H. Howard, who was killed during a liquor raid.

The lynching followed a verdict of not guilty returned yesterday against Demon Loman, 21. The other negroes slain were Bertha Loman, 26, wife of Demon, and his brother, Clyde Loman, 18.

Lock Up Jailor, Sheriff.

While the mob was storming the jail, Jailor W. H. Taylor called Sheriff Charles Robinson but when the latter arrived Taylor had been locked in a cell. Robinson also was overpowered and locked up.

The mob hustled the woman and the two men to a patch of woods three miles south of the city where they shot them to death.

Once Convicted.

The Loman brothers were convicted of the murder of Sheriff Howard at their first trial last year and were sentenced to die in the electric chair. The women was given a life term in prison. They appealed and the supreme court reversed the decision and the second trial started last Monday.

A directed verdict of not guilty was given Demon Loman yesterday, but he was returned to his cell and held on a charge of assault and battery on Sheriff H. H. Howard, who accompanied Sheriff Howard on his fatal raid of the Loman home.

An investigation, was started by city, county and state authorities of the lynching, but no arrests have yet been reported.

Governor Orders Investigation.

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 8.—Governor McLeod has ordered a full investigation of the lynchings of three negroes, one a woman, in Aiken, S. C. It was announced today at the governor's mansion.

Ordered State Constable Hart to make a report to him of the affair, and also to assist local authorities in running down the leaders of the mob.

PLANS NEW OFFER FOR MUSCLE SHOALS

Slemp, for New York Group, Tells of Proposal Giving U. S. Better Terms.

Washington, Oct. 8.—A new offer for leasing the government's Muscle Shoals project will be submitted to Congress next fall by a group of New York capitalists and engineers, it was announced here today by C. Bascom Slemp, former secretary to the President.

The proposal, to be known as the Farmers' Federated offer, will involve a financial investment by the group of from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000, Slemp said. He added that the proposal would involve a better financial return to the government than any of those heretofore submitted and likewise a large guarantee of nitrate production for the manufacture of fertilizer.

INQUIRERS FAIL TO GET AT STEPHENSON

Indiana Klan Head, Serving Murder Term, Kept from "Disclosing."

Indianapolis, Oct. 8.—D. C. Stephenson, former Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan of Indiana, who has been held incommunicado at Michigan City during recent charges of corruption in Indiana politics revolving around activities of the Klan, today was ordered to appear in superior court here Monday.

His appearance in court will be in connection with supplementary proceedings concerning an attachment suit involving a concern in which he formerly was interested. All efforts to interview Stephenson in the Michigan City prison concerning his charges of Indiana political intrigues, have been in vain, both Gov. Ed Jackson and the penitentiary warden refusing to grant anyone permission to talk to him. Friends of Stephenson charged this was an effort to "muzzle" him and prevent him from making his "disclosures."

LAST OF OLD NEW HAVEN SHIPPIERS FIGURES DIES

New Haven, Oct. 8.—E. Harris Weaver, last of the old shipping figures of New Haven, died at his home here today after a long illness. After retiring from the ship Chandler business, he served as harbor master for years.

Shaw Could Make Better Films for Nickle, He Says

London, Oct. 8.—With American and European producers clamoring for his work and offering stupendous sums for anything he writes, George Bernard Shaw, his seventieth birthday behind him, believes that he has passed the apex of his career as an author and dramatist, and he frankly admits it.

Returning from a holiday in Italy where he worked diligently but with little success on his latest project, a book to be entitled "The Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism," Shaw lamented his inability to push ahead as quickly as he used to.

Shaw's debut as a film actor took place in Italy where he participated in a brief "film interview," a scheme whereby phonographs are synchronized with the film, so that the performer is made to talk while his picture is being shown.

The description of this stunt turned Shaw's thoughts to the movies in a general way.

Goldwyn Talked of Self.

"The chief complaint I have to make against the American film is that the producers think that as long as it costs money it must be good. The backers of the American films are presumably all business men who think of art merely in terms of money."

Will Greet Yanks Like Conquerors

New York Awaits Breath- lessly 6 o'clock Return of Its Baseball Heroes.

New York, Oct. 8.—A boisterous welcome awaits the return of the Yankees early tonight. Victorious in two straight battles over the St. Louis Cardinals and bearing a one-third lead in the world's series the New York American Leaguers are now speeding homeward by special train. They are due to arrive at Grand Central terminal at 6 o'clock, and there will be thousands of local fans on hand to greet them with as riotous enthusiasm as the other players.

Cards Not Friendless.

The Cardinals are also due to arrive about the same time at Pennsylvania station where a vast throng of Mount City rooters will be on hand to greet their favorites.

Interest in the series has not subsided a bit in New York and record attendance is expected at tomorrow's game at Yankee stadium.

Hotels here report that the demand for rooms is as heavy as it was a week ago.

HINDENBURG ACCEPTS SEECKT'S RESIGNATION

Delay Angered Liberals Who Scented Victory for German Militarists.

Berlin, Oct. 8.—President von Hindenburg today accepted the resignation of General Von Seeckt, commander of the Reichswehr.

The acceptance of von Seeckt's resignation culminated in the irregular crisis growing out of the irregular service of the eldest son of the former Crown Prince Wilhelm in the Reichswehr, contrary to the terms of the Versailles Treaty governing Germany's land forces.

The delay in the acceptance of his resignation had caused considerable resentment in Republican, Democratic and Socialist ranks, the newspapers of these parties pointing out that if the President allowed Von Seeckt to remain in the army, Minister of Defense Gessler must resign, which would mean a victory for the militarist clique over the parliamentary regime.

The President's acceptance of the resignation is expected to avert a more serious political crisis.

"Y" MAN STIRS A. F. L. IRE BY PROPAGANDA

Believed Bearer of Olive Branch, Switches His Speech to Advocacy of Russ Recognition.

Detroit, Oct. 8.—The whirlpool that since Tuesday has been raging in the American Federation of Labor convention around the Detroit Y. M. C. A., today had drawn into its vortex Sherwood Eddy, international secretary for Asia of the "Y" organization.

Labor officials and delegates today were openly charging that Eddy had taken advantage of the Federation to obtain the floor and deliver a propaganda address in behalf of European debt cancellation and recognition of Soviet Russia.

When Eddy was extended the courtesy of the platform, at his own request, it was with the belief that he had come in an effort to repudiate, on behalf of the Y. M. C. A., the action of the Detroit body in canceling an invitation for President William Green to address a "Y" meeting Sunday afternoon.

Warmly Greeted.

When he was introduced by President Green as "one who is in sympathy with the humane work and principles of the American Federation of Labor," the delegates applauded Eddy.

Eddy's first words, however, were to disclaim that he was speaking in the capacity of a "Y" official, but as an individual who had been to Europe for the past summer as a member of an unofficial labor fact-finding commission. For nearly an hour he held the floor as he poured forth the European propaganda.

The shock and surprise of Federation officials and delegates was plainly evident from the outset of his speech. President Green politely thanked Eddy for his remarks, but his flushed face and the vigorous pounding of his gavel plainly disclosed the displeasure he and the convention felt over thus being "taken in."

The effect was to fan up the flame of feeling today the "Y" Federation of Labor, the delegates adopted a resolution proposed by the metal trades division of the Federation "to inaugurate a general organizing campaign in the automobile industry at the earliest possible date." Eighty per cent of this industry, the largest in the United States, is centered in and around Detroit and it represents the major part of Detroit's industrial life.

Board Fires Back.

The Detroit Board of Commerce today fired back at the American Federation of Labor in the matter of the cancellation of invitations for labor speakers to occupy Detroit pulpits and the Y. M. C. A. rostrum next Sunday.

C. C. Magill, editor of the Detroit official organ of the Democratic body, in a public statement said:

"We have no apology to make about any assertion that the American federation of labor is un-American and unpatriotic."

Louis J. Flint, a commerce board director, concurred in this statement, adding: "We are determined that Detroit shall not be in the grip of trade union leaders. Our city is the most prosperous in the country and it is prosperous because it is a stronghold of the open shop."

FOOTBALL BIG THREE TO KEEP FORMATION

Long Rumored Break Fades as Harvard Withdraws Michigan Proposal.

New Haven, Oct. 8.—The long rumored break in the Big Three football combination of Yale, Harvard and Princeton will not eventuate. At a meeting here of representatives of the three universities it was decided to continue the present athletic relations.

"At the first regular meeting for the present academic year of the Harvard-Princeton-Yale chairman of athletics," it was announced, "it was mutually agreed that the tentative proposal for a Harvard-Michigan football game at Ann Arbor in 1927, was counter to the understanding and practice of the 'triple agreement' and on suggestion of Harvard it was accordingly withdrawn."

The Harvard-Princeton game for 1927 will be played at Princeton, it was announced.

Their report was accepted today by Coroner J. Gilbert Calhoun and State Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn as clearing up the mystery surrounding the deaths.

ORMISTON'S STORY PUT IN EVIDENCE

Denial He Had Part in Mc- Pherson Disappearance Is Recited by Detective

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 8.—Kenneth Ormiston's denial to the Los Angeles police that he had anything to do with the disappearance of Althea Temple McPherson, his former employer, will be made public for the first time today when Captain Taylor takes the stand in the preliminary hearing of the evangelist on conspiracy charges to defeat justice and to manufacture false evidence.

The former Angelus Temple radio man made a personal statement to Captain Taylor during the height of the search for the "drowned" body of the noted pastor.

The prosecution charges that Ormiston spent ten days with Mrs. McPherson in a cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea during the time when she, according to her testimony to the Grand Jury oath, was held a prisoner for ransom.

Another development promised for today was the calling of witnesses to prove visits by Mrs. McPherson and Ormiston to local hotels.

Registered at Midnight.

The names of these arrested visitors was declared by district attorney's investigators to have been turned up by them last night, when, they said, it was discovered that the pastor and Ormiston registered at the Alexandria hotel in San Pedro rooms, on the night of May 10. The fact that Mrs. McPherson spent May 9 and May 11 at the Alexander already had been proved, it was claimed, by hotel records found several days ago.

At midnight, May 9, according to the district attorney's investigators, Ormiston registered at the Alexandria as "Frank Gibson, 1220 Post street, San Francisco." District attorney's investigators explained that "Gibson" was an alias frequently used by Ormiston in his trips up and down the coast from Seattle to Los Angeles.

Rumors that Kenneth Ormiston is in metropolitan Los Angeles continued to animate the detective squad of the district attorney's office. A report today that he had been seen on the outskirts of the city resulted in Chief of Detectives Ben Cohn dispatching a detail to search for the missing radio man and to await his return.

No Trace of Shack.

Alonzo B. Murchison, member of the Douglas, Ariz. police force, and the officer to talk to Mrs. McPherson after her re-appearance from Mexico, occupied the witness stand the entire day yesterday in the McPherson conspiracy case. He testified that he searched within a radius of sixty miles for the shack in which Mrs. McPherson said she had been held captive and was unable to find it.

The officer also expressed doubt that the evangelist had walked 20 miles over the desert. He said it would have been impossible for her to cover this distance and not have her clothes show more signs of wear.

Injuring Evidence.

During the progress of the hearing, W. I. Gilbert, chief attorney for Mrs. McPherson, spilled a glass of water on the garments Mrs. McPherson wore at the time she appeared at Douglas. This aroused the wrath of District Attorney Asa Keyes, who protested to the court. More careful of the clothes, which the state contends will have more than a little bearing on the outcome of the case.

WIFE SCOUTS REPORT OF CHAPLIN RETIRING

Lita Grey Says Screen Celeb- rity Couldn't Quit Movies If He Tried To.

San Francisco, Oct. 8.—Reports emanating from London that Charlie Chaplin would soon retire from the motion pictures were scouted today by his wife, the former Lita Grey, who has been visiting relations here. "Charlie will never quit the movies," she said. "Why, I don't believe he could quit. He is too utterly wrapped up in the work."

CHICAGO POLICE FACE BLOW-OFF ON HUGE GRAFT

Huge Scandal in Bootleg Protection Coming as U. S. Grand Jury Probes Corruption.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—Another wholesale batch of indictments similar to the 79 handed down against Cicero gangsters and public officials a week ago, hovers over the Chicago city police department's alleged bootlegging activities.

Between fifty and one hundred policemen, detectives and politicians will be hit by the federal grand jury probe scheduled to start Wednesday, government officials predicted today.

Cicero Drop in Bucket.

The Cicero investigation was a mere "drop in the bucket" federal officials said today as compared to the activities which will be revealed by the Chicago probe. And the money revealed as Cicero profits the officials say, will look like pocket change when compared to the huge takings which Chicago produced.

"It was not the Cicero, Chicago Heights, South Chicago and other outlying police, officials, and gangsters who made the real dough," one federal official said. "They were just minor figures in the huge booze scheme which had its center right here in the heart of the city."

Two thousand dollars was a nominal price for a "pass" for a load of booze through a Chicago police district, the federal officials charge. "Collected" from Crooks.

Known gangsters, arrested and found to be carrying guns, were assessed from $100 to $200, to escape punishment for carrying concealed weapons, according to the federal investigators. During the days just before the Kentucky Derby last year, the investigators say, dishonest policemen reaped a harvest sending booze trucks enroute to Louisville to the curb and collecting from the drivers for immunity.

FIND RUM RUNNER'S BODY IN LAKE ERIE

Was One of Two on Boat Sunk in Battle With U. S. Coast Guard Chaser.

Buffalo, Oct. 8.—The finding today of the body of Aaron Vanderveer of Port Colborne, Ont., floating on a life preserver in Lake Erie near Crystal Beach was considered by Canadian authorities as confirmation of the reported sinking, several days ago, of the power boat "The Tourist" which it is said was engaged in a running battle with a United States Coast Guard rum chaser off Point Albino several weeks ago.

A man named Clark, a mechanic of Port Colborne, also is believed to have lived his last hours on the craft. The powerboat was bound for Erie, Pa., with a load of liquor.

BEARDSTOWN HUNGRY AS FLOODS PERSIST

1500 Persons Homeless, 150 Destitute in Town Swept by Illinois River.

Beardstown, Ill., Oct. 8.—Hunger today added its burden to the miseries of flood-swept Beardstown. Appeals for canned goods and other food were made. Fifteen hundred people are now homeless and 150 of them are destitute.

The Illinois river is rising again and this afternoon was at a stage of 25.5 feet.

A forecast by the United States weather bureau stated that the river will reach its crest tomorrow night at a stage of 25.6 feet.

ACCUSE NIGHT WATCHMAN OF SELLING MACHINERY.

Bridgeport, Oct. 8.—Oscar Hirm, of Gloucester, N. MYSTERIOUS RADIO VOICE ASTONISHES SO. END FOLKS

During the broadcasting of the World Series people at the corner of Main and Oak streets have been puzzled by a radio voice coming apparently from nowhere. They looked up and down the street and at windows but saw no horn and yet the voice droned on.

The explanation after it was traced, was simple enough. The Evening Herald has a megavox pointing out of a window facing Keeney Court. The sounds strike the wall of the building opposite, then is reflected to the Circle theater wall and then zig-zags across Oak street until it reaches Main street.

It is a remarkable example of acoustics.

It is difficult to estimate the exact degree of influence the home life of a genius may cast over his work. Certainly none seems to have been blessed with a more patient, comprehending and tender mate than Joseph Conrad.

To us, such peeps behind the home walls as are given by Jessie Conrad in "Joseph Conrad As I Knew Him" (Doubleday, Page) comprise records of surpassing fascination.

Conrad was a crochety, gouty, irascible but lovable fellow who needed strict diet and kindly ministrations. Common sense and imperturbability were qualities essential in the woman he married.

His widow recalls his amazing proposal of marriage: "He began by announcing that he had not very long to live, but such as his life was he thought we might spend a what might have happened had Conrad married—well, for instance, a woman with a career.

Most disconcerting it is to learn the difficulties of publishers in wheeling large sections of the public into reading such thrilling masters as Conrad, Stevenson or Kipling.

Again a "behind the scenes" peep is allowed by Helen Woodward in her odyssey of a modern woman worker, "Through Many Windows" (Harpers). In those chapters devoted to her experience as an advertising writer for big publishing houses she recalls magazine campaigns to stimulate sales of these and others. To what the popular taste the Stevenson ads were given such enticing headlines as "One more step and I'll blow your brains out... What did he do?"

But even this didn't work. She had to go back to the sex confession magazine staff. "Her husband and her lover, which did she save?" This, if you please, for R. L. Stevenson. But it sold the books and, who knows, may have made converts.

Two books of unusual short stories: Somerset Maugham's "The Casuarina Tree" (Doran) and "Singing Winds" (Boni, Liveright), by Konrad Bercovici.

Our advice is to make Maugham's acquaintance through his classic, "Of Human Bondage," dismiss his other novels and then go on to his short stories of which "Rain" is, perhaps, his finest. But in this new collection there is one particularly thrilling tale, "The Force of Circumstance," which tells of an Englishman who "went native" in the Straits Settlements, returned to his homeland, married an English girl and took her back. Perhaps that sounds familiar. But the English girl looks upon the dark skinned native and, thereafter, the story deals with the psychological effect upon her attitude towards her husband. Revolted by the association, she leaves him and returns to her native girl. A fine study, this!

Bercovici is, happily, again with his gypsies, and if you have delayed making the acquaintance of these colorful, flashing, romantic tales of the Romany folk, and of Turks and Tartars as well, turn quickly to one entitled "The Vineyard" and be thrilled by the picturesque dance of the grapes and the peasant who ran away with a fiddler.

Somerset Maugham

few happy years together." At that time he had written but one novel, "Amey's Folly." The future Mrs. Conrad was then Miss Jessie George, an Englishwoman of undistinguished family and possessed of no dowry.

We learn that while concentrating at white heat upon a book he virtually refused to eat, and much of his illness may be attributed to this. She punctures the various tales of extreme poverty that have gone the rounds. She also minimizes the role of Ford Madox Ford as first aid to Conrad's genius, a part in which Ford cast himself in a book printed shortly after Conrad's death.

She tells how, shortly before their marriage, Conrad gave her a manuscript of "Outcast of the Islands" to read and when she sensed "a restlessness in him, a sort of inward fire that robbed me by my speech," and thus brought irritable comments on her enunciation.

There are stories of the children, of the master's irritation when the babies cried, of his amazing absorption in which he was writing, of his habit of throwing lighted cigarette butts and all but burning up the house, of scores of incidents that must prove absorbingly interesting to Conradians.

It becomes obvious that Mrs. Conrad completely subordinated her life to the whims of her genius husband. In this connection we make bold to suggest to those reading groups and women's clubs suffering from program difficulties this winter that some absorbing papers might be based on speculation of

COLUMBIA

The annual town meeting was held at the town hall Monday afternoon. The reports of the selectmen and the school board were accepted and budgets approved after some discussion. It was voted to put a metal ceiling on the lower hall, also to increase the insurance on the building from $3000 to $5000. It was voted to close the so-called "New Road" leading to the Elisha Lewis place, which is not used and is in bad shape. A clause in the warning to reduce the number on the school board from 6 to 3 was passed by a unanimous vote. The following town officers were elected:

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Stephen Decatur (9)

Decatur saw much service during the rest of the summer of 1804. For bravery and skill he was placed in command of the Constitution for a short time. He was then only 25 years old! He retained command of the ship until the end of the war, in 1805, when he was transferred to the Congress and sailed for home.

The ship stopped at Norfolk. Everywhere the sailors were received with enthusiasm.

Early in 1806 Decatur was married to Miss Susan Wheeler, daughter of the mayor of Norfolk, Va.

For several years trouble loomed with the British who had repeatedly seized American sailors and disregarded the flag. Decatur, who had been superintending the construction of gunboats, was in command of the United States in 1812, when war was declared and the fleet put out to sea. (Continued.)

In the early years the parish was widely scattered, the ladies going over to every street, way over to Wapping to the Collins, over to the old "Dart district" (so-called), to Deacon Perrins and Mrs. Charles Jones. One December meeting, 1867, Mrs. Wilbur Hills one hundred and eight were present in the evening. They closed the evening with singing "On Jordan's Stormy Banks We Stand" and a prayer.

At the evening meeting, September 1868, Mrs. C. D. Talcott, was chosen secretary and Mrs.

ed and in 1881 it was voted to do what they could in connection with the Home Society. In 1882 at the annual meeting held on October 24 it was voted to hold the newly formed Mission Band, now the strong Auxiliary of the Hartford branch of the Woman's Board.

An account of the meeting of November 1883 the first notice was recorded of a meeting of the Tolland County Auxiliary of the Woman's Board was mentioned as meeting with the Talcottville church, of which Mrs. C. D. Talcott and Mrs. James Talcott were the stirring leaders for many years.

At the annual meeting of September 1884, Mrs. H. M. Talcott was elected treasurer and served until her death in 1913, with the exception of two years, 1897 to 1899, when Mrs. Ernest Smith was treasurer. Miss Faith Talcott is carrying on the work her mother laid down.

Among the names of the ladies on a list as written in the secretary's book for the years 1889-90 only two are still members with us, Mrs. William Risley and Mrs. George W. Smith, two others are living, Mrs. Waite and Mrs. Hart now (Thompson), out of twenty-two members. Notes of a meeting in March, 1892 at Mrs. Dexter's, says that though the day was stormy her table was full, not only of guests but of food, for we remember her hot orange short cake.

Reports of suppers, fairs, entertainments in the parlors, the hall and in the homes of the members show that the years have been full of activities bringing members together to work for the one great end, to help our brother man. There was always work for some missionary family, also work for schools such as the Allan Norman school of Thomaston, Ga., back in 1892 and later for the Grandview Norman Institute at Grand View, Tenn.

About 1896 and a few years following death entered our midst and took from us Mrs. Percival and Mrs. Pinney. There was a memorial on the death of Mrs. Julia, who had served as vice president for five years, she leaving us in August, 1902. Then in December of that year, Mrs. Dexter passed on, Mrs. Waite writing quite a memorial to her memory.

From 1904 to 1908 Mrs. Yale served as secretary. She made a special note of an extra meeting of the society when twenty-two members rode over to Avery street to Mrs. William Keeney's to a quilting party in Talcott Brothers' barge; some of us remember that time, on September 23, 1904.

Special notice of an "Eggs" supper that was served in the church parlors in May, 1905 was exceptionally interesting. Eggs were served in various ways, scrambled, stuffed in salads. There were used two chafing dishes to scramble

REVIEWS MISSIONARY WORK FOR 60 YEARS

Talcottville Woman Presents Report Giving Interesting Historical Data.

(Special to The Herald) Talcottville, Oct. 8.—At the meeting of the Ladies' Home Missionary Society of the Talcottville Congregational church yesterday afternoon a resume of the work of the society for sixty years, or since its organization on September 18, 1866 to October, 1926 was read by Miss Alice Dexter. Miss Dexter opened her report by reading the original Constitution of the society as prepared and adopted. The report in part follows: "Of the forty-five ladies, members who organized the society, only one is now living, unless I am mistaken, Miss Isabelle Oviat. There were eighty-eight men members.

The first president, Mrs. Daniel Kellogg, secretary, Miss French, a school teacher here; the first treasurer, Mrs. George S. Talcott. The ladies met at the homes of the members once a month. The first year the numbers in attendance were large, as they served suppers and the men and younger people came in, in the evenings. Sometimes they numbered over a hundred. The social evenings were always closed with a prayer by the minister or a deacon if the pastor was unable to be present.

I noted one time that the society was entertained by Talcott Brothers at the house of Mrs. Jane Talcott; after much thought it came to me that that was in the "Boarding House", as Mrs. Jane Talcott was then the keeper of the company's house.

The first year's meetings were held the first Wednesday of every month, later they skipped August, and often in March.

A barrel was sent in 1868 valued at one hundred and twenty-five dollars. In those times the barrels were sent to the Home Missionary Society in New York, and then forwarded to the Missionary for whom the ladies had been working.

In the early years the parish was widely scattered, the ladies going over to every street, way over to Wapping to the Collins, over to the old "Dart district" (so-called), to Deacon Perrins and Mrs. Charles Jones. ed and in 1881 it was voted to do what they could in connection with the Home Society. In 1882 at the annual meeting held on October 24 it was voted to hold the newly formed Mission Band, now the strong Auxiliary of the Hartford branch of the Woman's Board.

An account of the meeting of November 1883 the first notice was recorded of a meeting of the Tolland County Auxiliary of the Woman's Board was mentioned as meeting with the Talcottville church, of which Mrs. C. D. Talcott and Mrs. James Talcott were the stirring leaders for many years.

At the annual meeting of September 1884, Mrs. H. M. Talcott was elected treasurer and served until her death in 1913, with the exception of two years, 1897 to 1899, when Mrs. Ernest Smith was treasurer. Miss Faith Talcott is carrying on the work her mother laid down.

Among the names of the ladies on a list as written in the secretary's book for the years 1889-90 only two are still members with us, Mrs. William Risley and Mrs. George W. Smith, two others are living, Mrs. Waite and Mrs. Hart now (Thompson), out of twenty-two members. Notes of a meeting in March, 1892 at Mrs. Dexter's, says that though the day was stormy her table was full, not only of guests but of food, for we remember her hot orange short cake.

Reports of suppers, fairs, entertainments in the parlors, the hall and in the homes of the members show that the years have been full of activities bringing members together to work for the one great end, to help our brother man. There was always work for some missionary family, also work for schools such as the Allan Norman school of Thomaston, Ga., back in 1892 and later for the Grandview Norman Institute at Grand View, Tenn.

About 1896 and a few years following death entered our midst and took from us Mrs. Percival and Mrs. Pinney. There was a memorial on the death of Mrs. Julia, who had served as vice president for five years, she leaving us in August, 1902. Then in December of that year, Mrs. Dexter passed on, Mrs. Waite writing quite a memorial to her memory.

From 1904 to 1908 Mrs. Yale served as secretary. She made a special note of an extra meeting of the society when twenty-two members rode over to Avery street to Mrs. William Keeney's to a quilting party in Talcott Brothers' barge; some of us remember that time, on September 23, 1904.

Special notice of an "Eggs" supper that was served in the church parlors in May, 1905 was exceptionally interesting. Eggs were served in various ways, scrambled, stuffed in salads. There were used two chafing dishes to scramble

LAST YEAR'S CHAMPS IN SOCCER LEAGUE

Celtics to Be Worthy Contestant in Manchester District Circuit.

One of the contestants in the newly formed Manchester District Soccer League will be the Manchester Celtics.

This team, it will be remembered, won the town title last season in the amateur league nosing out the British Americans who will also be in the competition this season. If their work last season can be taken as a criterion, the Celtics would furnish abundant opposition for the other teams in the circuit.

The Celtics will hold a practice session Saturday afternoon at the West Side field. The following players are requested to report: J. Malloy, C. Malloy, T. Humphrey, J. Purphy, F. Purphy, C. McDonald, G. McDonald, J. McDonald, Pat McCannagh, Jim McCannagh, J. McKone, P. Madden, J. Henderson, J. Falon, Jack McCannagh.

SUFFERED WITH CONSTIPATION 25 YEARS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brought relief in 3 weeks!

Read this remarkable testimonial to the power of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN over constipation:

"I was your ALL-BRAN. I have been using it three weeks for constipation. I had had this trouble for 25 years and had tried everything, but could never get any relief—but since using your bran I can truthfully say that I am entirely cured and feel like a new man."

Yours truly,
 THOMAS A. HENLEY, JR.

Blotchy skin, eruptions, spots before the eyes, headaches—these all tell of the ravaging inroads of constipation. Don't let this dire disease send its poisons through your body. Check it now and save your health and happiness!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation permanently if used regularly or money refunded. Don't let this dire disease send its poisons through your body. Check it now and save your health and happiness!

Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Michigan. Kellogg's is 100 per cent bran. Ready to eat. Delicious with fruit or cream—also in cooking. Served in all restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

Hurricane or No, Miami Will Be Ready To Open Wonder Street Dec. 1

Miami, Fla., Oct. 4.—Miami, swept from her feet by a hurricane, will emerge from the ruins with the world's most beautiful street.

Biscayne boulevard, along the waterfront for three and one-half miles, will be a new Fifth avenue with a touch of the Riviera, commanding scenic views of charming Biscayne Bay, its islands and shipping and Bay Front Park on the one hand, and the city's show buildings on the other.

And the street, cut through 33 residential and business blocks, will be thrown open Dec. 1, hurricane or no!

The new Biscayne boulevard will be part of the Dixie Highway. It will afford a world pattern for what can be achieved with a unified scheme of street architecture.

Prizes for Design. Prizes amounting to $4650 have been offered by the boulevard association. One thousand dollars will be awarded for the best design for observation towers and traffic signal standards, with a $600 second prize.

Another competition relates to designs for filling stations, which must have no open-air greasing room and which must have an office, two lavatories and two driveways, each with capacity for four cars. Prizes will be $700 and $400.

This is believed to be the first step ever taken to confine the filling stations along an entire street to a plan of architectural harmony.

A vast surgical operation was necessary to create the new boulevard. The south end, formerly Bay Shore drive, was widened and improved. No less than 14 city blocks and 19 improved residential blocks were cut through in making the north two and one-half miles of the street.

New Structures.

North East Third avenue, formerly a narrow street, was cut through the residential district, and the widened street thus created was extended through the recently divided estate of Charles Deering into Bay Shore, a suburb of fine homes. Biscayne boulevard at this point, becomes the Federal Highway, which, combined with the Dixie Highway, extends to the north.

An airplane view of Miami Harbor, showing Biscayne boulevard.

Buildings are being demolished along the new northern section of the boulevard. Older buildings and dwellings are giving way to new structures, show rooms, theaters, offices, restaurants and first-class shops.

More than 80 per cent. of the property owners are represented in the Biscayne Boulevard Association, which instituted the plans for the widening of the boulevard and the architectural competition for its improvement.

QUEEN MARIE'S BOB BY DOCTOR'S ORDERS

So It Is Disclosed in Paris Where She Goes Shopping After Long Journey.

Paris, Oct. 4.—Despite her assertion that "it is most difficult to pose after a three-day train journey," Queen Marie of Roumania faced a battery of cameras with her famous smile on her arrival here this morning.

The queen, accompanied by her suite, is to remain in Paris until she embarks on the steamship Leviathan on October 12 for the United States.

The queen wore a black velvet, lace-trimmed hat, a pearl necklace and pearl earrings, green velvet gown, a leopard-skin coat trimmed with gray, beige stockings, slippers and gloves. She carried a bouquet of pink gladiolus.

Princess Ileana wore a long leopard skin coat, tan silk dress, beaver hat, champagne colored stockings and kid shoes. She looked very much like a chic American girl.

Queen Marie's eldest son, the former Crown Prince Carol, did not appear at the station.

Arriving at the Ritz at 9 o'clock the queen bathed, and donned the same costume. She and Princess Ileana left, unaccompanied, for Fatou's. They waited several minutes unrecognized on the curb for their private car to arrive.

The queen engaged a box at the theater for tonight. A friend of her majesty, traveling with the party, said: "The queen parted reluctantly with her long hair. The bobbing was not done with the idea of being stylish, but followed a recent illness of grippe and fever, and was on orders of the court physician."

FRIDAY, OCT. 8, 1926.

GAS DEATHS.

Undoubtedly because of an incomprehensible freedom from such tragedies in this vicinity, it was days before the death of Brooks K. Parker of Hartford and his little daughter was traced to one of the commonest and deadliest sources of fatalities—the unvented gas water heater. If the Parker tragedy had occurred in any one of twenty cities in the United States its cause would probably have been recognized by the first person to enter their apartment, so familiar have such horrors become.

Not a winter passes in the United States without scores of lives being snuffed out by the fumes of gas burned in coil water heaters that have been given no flue connection.

And yet the ghastly peril of such operation cannot, somehow or other, be brought home to the understanding of the people as a whole.

Perhaps this is in part due to the growing practice of "headline reading." So many people give no attention to the details of news items in which they are not directly interested.

"Gas Fumes Kill Three" appears as a heading of a dispatch from another city. The average reader merely glances at the item, perhaps notes the date and the names. Nobody he knows—and turns to something else. Just another instance of carelessly opening a gas jet without lighting it.

Nothing of the kind, in fact. NOT ONE GAS DEATH IN TEN COMES FROM UNLIGHTED GAS FLOWS BUT FROM GAS THAT IS FLAMING.

And in almost every case it is the water heater that does the fatal trick—a water heater which is not provided with a pipe leading the fumes of the burning gas into the chimney or to the open air.

There seems to be a sort of confusion as to how to name the poisonous product of gas combustion in heaters, for half the time corner reports tell of carbon monoxide and half the time of carbon dioxide poisoning, but what is of concern to the layman is that the high gas flame of the heater, impinging on the metal parts of the apparatus, sets up an invisible, odorless, imperceptible but deadly gas product which can and does kill human beings and other animals with terrible swiftness and often with absolutely no warning.

It is undoubtedly true that a flow of pure air into a room where an unvented gas heater is burning will and does counteract the poisonous fumes and that thousands of tragedies are thus averted. But to burn a gas water heater for any considerable period when it has no vent into a chimney flue, and with doors and windows closed, is to take as lethal a hazard as to put a loaded gun to the head and pull the trigger. The gun may not go off. The poison may not kill you.

Here is one point on which the law fails to protect the lives of the people. IT OUGHT TO BE A PUNISHABLE OFFENSE FOR ANY PERSON TO INSTALL A GAS WATER HEATER WITHOUT CONNECTING IT WITH AN OUTER DRAUGHT.

It ought to be a punishable offense for any person to maintain a gas water heater in his own home without such absolutely essential provision for the lives of its occupants. Meantime, this deadly fact should be gotten, somehow, into the heads of the people—NEVER BURN A GAS WATER HEATER FOR MORE THAN A FEW MINUTES IN A CLOSED ROOM UNLESS IT IS PROVIDED WITH AN ESCAPE PIPE.

There is absolutely no danger to these conveniences, used as they are planned to be used. Improperly used they are as dangerous as war.

AUTO TAXES

Possibly the proposition to have the State Motor Vehicle Department collect automobile taxes for the towns at the time of registration ought not to be finally and definitely disposed of by the fact that that department has expressed itself in opposition to the scheme. If the plan had merit at the beginning it is conceivable that it still has the same merit.

Here in Manchester, people do not attempt to sequester automobiles from tax assessment, but even so, the collection of that tax by the motor vehicle department would greatly simplify matters. And there are other towns in the state, plenty of them, to which such a system would be of the greatest possible convenience and benefit.

It is not apparent that any tremendous burden would be imposed on the vehicle department by the addition of this almost automatic duty. And the reluctance of Mr. Stoeckel's office to take over a trifling amount of extra work is worth exactly what it is worth; it does not, necessarily, constitute final condemnation of the idea.

A TIP, PERHAPS

There is a very singular aspect of a very singular series of crimes taking place in Bridgeport which possibly has not received as much attention as it should. During a period of a number of months some twenty girls have been attacked on the streets of the Park City by some miscreant who like a flash stabs, then flees. In no case has he inflicted much more than a superficial wound, though the instrument with which he does the cutting is sharp. One girl has suffered a wound an inch deep in her side; all the rest have been less deeply cut.

Now this is a very difficult thing to account for if it is taken for granted that the assailant uses a weapon with an open blade. Even though his crazy intention might be to wound lightly, a blow with a knife, delivered in such great haste as this person works under, might well be expected to miscarry more than once in twenty cases, and cut deeply.

There is a tool used, in cutting button holes. It is a dagger-like thing with an acutely triangular blade and a transverse guard that can be moved up and down and set rigidly at the point where the width of the blade is exactly the measurement of the buttonhole to be cut. Such an instrument used to be in common use in tailor and garment shops—perhaps still is. At all events it is a thing not likely to be in the possession of anybody but a garment worker.

And it might not be a bad guess that it is such a tool as this that the Bridgeport stabber is using. Perhaps the police down there have used up this clue. If not, it might give them a starting point from which to work in hunting out a most disconcerting and injurious sort of crank.

"RESEARCH."

Ernest A. Grant is a salaried man of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals. His job is that of "assistant secretary for research." A recent jaak of his was to go to Canada and find out whether the Canadian liquor laws were working well or badly. He went, he researched, he came back. Then, with a good straight face he drew up a report which pronounced the Canadian liquor laws a failure.

We are not saying that his report may not be true. What we are intrigued by is the degree of final authenticity of such a report, which will be solemnly quoted by speakers for the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals.

Imagine Secretary Ernest A. Grant, professional yesman to the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, going to Canada, researching, and then coming back and reporting that the liquor laws were not—all of them—completely, definitely and in every conceivable aspect flat failures! Imagine it—if you can.

Great is "research" in this twentieth century. Some of it could travel on the edge of a razor blade, deviates no more from its purpose than a military rifle fired from a vice at a ten foot range. But its purpose is not to find out.

DAY OFF

It may be a very good thing indeed both for the nerves and the business well being of the American people, that St. Louis and New York are a long day's journey apart. It enforces a lay-off on the part of some seven-eighths of the population of the United States on the strain of listening in on the devastating world series. It gives the factories a chance to produce something during a couple of hours in the afternoon. It gives the stores a chance to sell something. It gives the newspapers a chance to print late dispatches about other things than swats and bingles and boots. It gives a fellow a chance to get a long breath between 2:30 and 4:10 P. M. It gives the American national lung a chance to fill up in preparedness for a hundred million more grunts and groans and ah's and expletives and huzzas tomorrow.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Oct. 8.—Election to the Senate, if he is elected, will cost Allice Pomerene of Ohio $10,000 a year.

He and Owen J. Roberts of Pennsylvania get twice that much each annually for taking care of the government's side of the Teapot Dome and other oil cases. True, this pay lasts only while the litigation lasts but every indication is that it will last as long as a senator's term.

Pomerene will have to retire as oil attorney for the government if he enters the Senate, and a senator gets but $10,000 per twelve months instead of his present $20,000.

Besides their $20,000 apiece as oil prosecutors, Pomerene and Roberts get, between them, a maximum annual allowance of $100,000 for expenses.

This isn't money in their pockets, to be sure, but neither is it money out of their pockets. They can keep their expenses inside $100,000 easily. Very few senators are able to keep inside their senatorial expense allowances. Nearly all of them have deficits to make up out of their salaries.

So Pomerene isn't mercenary in wanting to be a senator again.

Who'll get Pomerene's job as oil litigator, in case he wins his Senate fight, isn't being discussed yet.

The administration devoutly hopes he'll be permitted to go on with the oil cases and is going on the assumption that Frank Willis, a good "administration man," will beat him for senator.

As a lawyer, the administration considers Pomerene all right, but as a senator, it thinks he votes the wrong way.

"If there were any honestly and intelligence in the conduct of this government," said Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, discussing foreign war debts recently, "it would be evident that there can be no payment except in the case of England."

What Rabbi Wise said isn't of so much consequence as where he said it.

He said it in the First Congregational church of Washington, which President Coolidge attends, and the services were opened by the president's pastor, the Rev. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce.

To imply, right in his own church, that the government of which President Coolidge is head has neither "honesty" nor "intelligence" is quite generally spoken of as having been pretty strong.

The Coolidges luckily weren't there, but many's the guess one hears hazarded that the rabbi's frankness must have made Dr. Pierce squirm.

That President Coolidge told his cabinet members that he didn't want them to attend the Dempsey-Tunney fight is a bit of gossip which can't be officially confirmed, but this much is a fact:

Several of them did intend to be there and then didn't go. If it had been just one, it might be fair to assume that he merely changed his mind, but this was to have been quite a party.

Assistant secretaries seeming weren't considered important enough to matter, for they went to Philadelphia in droves—first, second and third assistants—assistants of all kinds.

Business with the departments actually was hampered on the afternoon before the fight, so many assistants were away.

Financially, the navy made the big killing, for it bet, almost to a man, on Tunney, the marine. The other departments, guided more by reason than prejudice, discovered largely that they'd reasoned the wrong way.

LITTLE PROBLEMS

What is an obstacle? Gosh only knows. Something, I guess, that continually grows, stopping your progress and making you think. Jolting success, when you're right on the brink.

Roads that are easy, we all of us learn, sometimes grow rough when we reach the turn. Sailing seems smooth till we hit the detour. Then we feel backward, and not quite so sure.

Maybe you wonder why things must turn up. That's just the fate that's in everyone's cup. Setbacks and such are the things we all need to bring out the thrill when we really succeed.

IN NEW YORK

New York Oct 7.—See-sawing up and down Broadway I chanced to note in the window of a music store a very large picture of Geraldine Farrar, placed there, obviously, to attract attention to certain phonograph records.

And having, just a week ago, told the story of Maude Adams' strange hymnity, the mystery surrounding the great Farrar seemed to me equally baffling.

The music world may often have wondered... I cannot answer questions... I can merely state circumstances.

Now, as everyone knows, Geraldine Farrar was idolized across the nation... She adopted and was adopted by America... Then, suddenly, she saw fit to slip out of the picture, to live in seclusion, and to tell friends, she has no plans... In a quiet, semi-secluded estate, she lives with her father. She appears seldom, if ever, on Broadway and if she comes into the city it is quietly and without notice.

A few weeks ago she returned from a visit to Germany, the country in which she started her career... Her return was unheralded... She might have been any casual voyager... Her arrival was practically unnoticed... Cables from abroad had told of fetes and receptions... She returned almost immediately to the New Jersey hills.

If she intended to retire there was no official notice and no explanation has reached my ears... Certainly age cannot be blamed, for those far older than she have gone on.

In searching for reasons, it may be recalled that she left the Metropolitan Opera after years of vast success. That she went into films and was dissatisfied... That she started a concert tour and suddenly abandoned it... That she appeared in a light opera that failed... Injured vanity?... Perhaps...

Though that would hardly have been fair on her part since the opera that failed was a dimly bad one....

A THOUGHT

RIALTO THEATER OFFERS ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

An exceptionally attractive program has been arranged for a two days showing, beginning today at Manchester's attractive new theater the Rialto which opened under new management a few days ago. The feature attraction, "Flames" brings the beautiful mountains and forests of the great northwest into prominence by using them for a background for this tempestuous melodrama. The photoplay employed in the picture almost rivals the interesting story it tells and Virginia Valli who enacts the part of the heroine is quite different from the usual hysterical girl who calls upon mere man for protection.

When the villain, Boris Karloff attempts his cave-man stuff she simply tackles him and in football parlance "throws him for a loss." Karloff is a welcome new comer to the screen and should be welcome as he makes a very desperate looking villain. Eugene O'Brien is cast in the role of the hero, which no movie picture would be complete and he incidentally gives a fine portrayal of the virile hero.

The story is exceptionally well written and has been described as perfect screen entertainment. Another attraction which should make a decided hit is the chapter play "The Fighting Marine" which starts its run in this theater today. Its chief character is none other than Gene Tunney who recently defeated Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight crown of the world. Tunney has a very likeable personality and aside from his skill with his fists he makes a splendid actor. Many of the incidents as depicted in the film are actual happenings from Tunney's own life, and as such should make an absorbing serial. An educational reel, a comedy and a news reel will also be shown.

"Young April" will be the feature attraction on Sunday evening and Monday. Its presentation at this theater will mark its first appearance in this vicinity which incidentally flatters the acumen of the present management in securing it for the first run. Rudolph and Joseph Schildkraut with Elinor Fair fill the major roles. Selected short subjects round out the program.

WAPPING

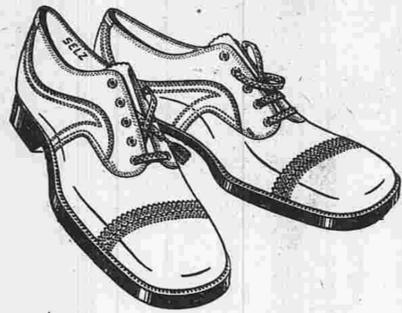

Mrs. Martha West who is staying with her daughter, Mrs. Edgar Stoughton, left Thursday afternoon to stay a week with her son and family Mr. and Mrs. Howard West of Rockville.

Mrs. Emma J. Skinner and Mrs. Edith House who have been on the sick list have recovered from their illness.

Next Wednesday, Oct. 13, the East Central Pomona Grange, No. 3, will hold the regular meeting at Suffield, Conn. Several from this place are planning to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Burnham have moved to Rutherford, N. J. Mrs. Alex Marouski was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital for an operation recently.

From experience and reading authentic information on foods, the modern housewife knows that a one-sided diet, will not produce as sturdy, healthy individuals as will a balanced diet of foods from the following groups: Vegetables and fruits, meat, milk, cheese, fish, cereals and starches; sugars, fats and fat foods. During the summer fruits and vegetables are most seasonable and at their lowest price and should be used in abundance, for the minerals as well as vitamins they contain. During hot weather an over-supply of the sugars, proteins, starches and fats should not be indulged in.

Cantilever Shoe

(For Men, Women and Children)

There are reasons for the exceptional Cantilever comfort, but they are all based on this essential point:

The Cantilever is designed with a knowledge of the structure and functions of the foot. It is made to harmonize with the foot in action and in repose.

The natural result is a restful ease which you may never have experienced before.

This is combined with a graceful simplicity of line and a beauty of finish which give a distinctively well-shod effect.

The most convincing proof of this is to try the shoe on your foot a few minutes. No obligation.

Announcing The Opening, Saturday, Of

GRANT'S

South Manchester's New Store

Bringing to this community the same Merchandise, Service and Economy Prices which have made Grant's the "Value Spot" in nearly 100 cities.

Mr. Magic Buyer

New Store Brings Large City Service and Economy Prices

A new step in progressive merchandising is ushered in with the opening of Manchester's new Grant store Saturday — the making available to small communities the advantage of a large city store. The store will serve Manchester with the merchandise now carried by Grant stores in the larger cities, such as Hartford, Bridgeport, New Britain and Waterbury at the same Economy Prices.

The W. T. Grant Company is a native New England corporation which has grown in its twenty years of life to one of the largest and most successful chains in the United States. Grant Stores now dot the map from Lewiston, Maine to El Paso, Texas, and serve a total population of over 26,000,000. Heretofore, its stores have been located only in cities of over 50,000 population. This new step now makes Grant's Real Economy Service available to communities under 15,000.

No need now to go to the bigger cities for Grant Values. Hundreds of items needed and used every day will now be found at home, in Manchester: Yard Goods, Housewares, Tools, Auto Accessories, Infants' and Children's Wear, Muslim Underwear, Hosiery, Knit Underwear, Art Goods, Notions, are a few of the lines made available to people of Manchester. Come and see.

Walsh Blames No One But Cardinals For Sherdel's Second Defeat

ATTRIBUTES 3-2 DEFEAT TO HAFEY AND THEVENOW

Says Yanks Did Little, if Anything But Cards Did "Ample, Sufficient and Enough."

By DAVIS J. WALSH
Enroute to New York, Oct. 8.—I'll match my two winners against their two losers and ask favors of no man.

That was Rogers Hornsby's final word as he boarded a train for the east with his St. Louis Cardinals in tow for the sixth game of the world series at the stadium on Saturday and today the intelligentsia were disposed to string along with the young man's viewpoint.

Cards Have Trumps
The Cards may be one town and two to play on this series but the fact that Hornsby has Alexander and Haines, his two winning pitchers, to match against Huggins' two losers, Shocker and Ruetter, was not too far from the truth, in fact, life might have been ebbing fast from Cardinal hopes today but all animation was by no means extinct.

Alexander will pitch the Saturday game in New York and if he can show sixty per cent of the time he showed the first time they took the blanket off him, the Cards can't be any worse than an even bet for that particular occasion.

For the entire series, the Yanks, however, ranked two to one favorite on the basis of elementary mathematics. The Cards have to take two ball games to win the series; the Yanks only one.

Can't Catch Flies
And unless the boys get around to the matter of catching pop flies, the best exhibition of pitching that Alexander and Haines might care to uncover will get them slightly less than nothing. Bill Sherdel turned loose a left handed epistle yesterday and all he got was a pain in the collar and his second straight defeat in the series at the hands of Herb Pennock.

Pennock Out? Twice?
What the Yanks did to Bill was little, if anything. What the Cards did to him was ample, sufficient and enough.

The first New York run scored when Hafey stepped on his silly foot and lost Pennock's drive for a two base hit, so called, and he came in on Koenig's single to the left. But before this transpired, they trapped Pennock off second but lost him again when Thevenow dropped the ball. In other words, Pennock was out twice before he scored the first run.

Hafey Asleep
The second came in the ninth and tied the score. The manner in which it was scored was enough to make one weep silently into the folds of his vest. Grover hit a high fly over the infield for what should have been the first out. It wasn't. The wind carried the ball away from Thevenow while the limping Hafey was nowhere. So the ball dropped safe for a double. Lazzari then prepared to lay down his sacrificial life but the Cards wouldn't have it that way.

Bell was caught on his flat feet and went for a hit. Gehrig rambled to third. He scored when Paschal looped another lazy fly over the infield, too far out for Thevenow and too far out for Holm.

However, it is becoming more apparent with each passing year that the disposition of world series spoils is being decreed by fate. The Senators in 1924 had to fluke in the tying run on a badly batted fly hit in the ninth and the winning run on a carbon copy of the same play. Apparently both balls hit the same lump of dirt.

There were plenty of breaks in the stygian gloom of the 1925 finale and the Pirates got all of them, though truth to tell they forced them.

Maybe the Cards will come back the way the Senators and Pirates did. I wouldn't bet that they won't, I'm cured.

WOMAN WILL ATTEMPT FOUR-DAY SWIM FROM ALBANY TO NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 8.—An attempt to swim the 160 miles in the Hudson River from Albany to New York will be made Sunday morning by Lorry Moore Schoemmel, New York's only woman life guard.

Mrs. Schoemmel expects to make the distance in four days, swimming during the day and sleeping aboard a launch at night. She will attempt to swim seventy miles the first day, starting under the Albany bridge about 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

The time of Millie Gade Corson, woman channel swimmer, for the same swim was six days.

Mrs. Schoemmel recently swam forty-four and one-half miles around Manhattan Island in fourteen hours, eleven minutes. She set a record of five hours and fifty-seven minutes for the twenty-one mile swim from the Battery to Sandy Hook, against the record of seven hours and eleven minutes held by Gertrude Ederle, first woman to conquer the English channel.

Three thousand Americans go broke in Paris every year. And still the franc stays down!

Billy Evans Says

Fate plays many queer pranks. Consider the case of Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals.

About two months ago the Cubs decided to get rid of Alexander, the big right-hander with 18 years of major league service to his credit and one of the outstanding hurlers of the game.

It looked as if Grover was doomed to slip out of the big tent. But along came the Cards, and they lost no time in grabbing the 29-year-old campeliner.

With the Cards, Alexander jumped back into old-time form and no doubt was as much responsible for the Hornsby club winning the pennant as any man on the roster.

Not only did Alex win several much-needed games himself, but on numerous occasions he went to the assistance of a faltering hurler and pulled the tit out of the fire. Alex had come back with a vengeance.

Set Yankees Down.
But that wasn't all. Rushed into the breach in the second game of the world series, Grover again came through nicely. He whipped the Yankees to knot the series.

Alexander's performance was pretty much of a classic, too. He allowed the hard-hitting Huggins troupe but four scattered safeties. He issued but one pass and set 10 of the foe down on strikes. True, he was in quite a hole in that second inning, and but for an error would have escaped with just a single run.

When the Yanks weren't fanning the ozone, Alexander had them rolling weak grounders to the infield, as 16 assists attest. The Cards' outfield had only one put-out all afternoon. Hafey, camping under Combs' loft in the eighth inning, incidentally, that was the first ball the Yanks hit out of the infield since the third.

As clever a piece of pitching as Herb Pennock, Yankee ace, did put up in the opening game, that put over by the veteran Alexander was just a step or so behind. And Pennock, by the way, had no Ruths, Meusels and Gehrigs to face. In a word, it was a great triumph for old Grover.

As mentioned, fate plays many odd pranks. And it wouldn't be surprising if the fellow cast adrift by the Cubs last summer turned out to be one of the big heroes of the 1926 fall classic. It has happened before.

WORTH KNOWING

"Rabbit" Maranville, recently turned adrift by Brooklyn, had a long and illustrious career in the majors. Maranville saw 15 seasons of big time service.

The midset joined the Boston Braves in 1912, coming from New Bedford of the New England league. He remained with Boston until the close of the 1920 chase when he was traded to the Pirates. In 1925 the Pirates swapped him to the Cubs along with Grimm and Cooper for Aldridge, Grantham and Niehaus. Last fall he went to Brooklyn on waivers.

Maranville gained most fame while with the Braves. He was a member of that famous 1914 "miracle team" which climbed from the cellar in July to a pennant and world championship.

BALL CLUBS, LIKE INDIVIDUAL KINGS, SEE TITLES PASS

New York, Oct. 7.—Tragedies that befall individual champions on the tennis courts, the golf links and in the prize ring did not confine their work to those three sports, for collectively, championship baseball clubs of 1925 fell woefully by the wayside and were compelled to step down and out while newer teams climbed up from the depths of oblivion to occupy the spotlight this year.

While Bill Tilden, Bobby Jones, Paul Berlenbach, Harry Greb and Jack Dempsey were being humiliated in such startling manner, dark horses in six of the eight leading leagues of organized baseball were pushing aside the 1925 champions and battering their way to 1926 titles.

A review of 1925 and 1926 records will inform the baseball fan that only two clubs repeated in the eight leading leagues of the country to retain the championships they captured a year ago.

In the National League Pittsburgh stepped out to let the St. Louis Cardinals march boldly to the front.

The American League race saw the two-year reign of the Washington Senators shattered while the New York Yankees, after a two-year absence, sneaked back into the big money.

In the American Association, the Louisville Colonels, despite the loss of Manager McCarthy, who took the flag this year.

In the International League race found the Baltimore monopoly grabbing the pennant and all the glory that goes with it.

In the Texas League, the Fort Worth Panther was forced to meet a natural death, the Dallas Steers taking 1926 honors.

In the Southern Association, the Atlanta Crackers failed to repeat their 1925 achievements. Larry Gilbert's Pelicans of New Orleans took the flag this year.

In the Pacific Coast League the San Francisco Seals watched the Los Angeles Angels take the pennant this season while in the Western, the second club out of Moines.

With runners on first and third, a double steal is started as the pitcher stands on the rubber. How should this play be broken up by the team in the field?

The fact that the runners start the play as the pitcher gets on the rubber is what usually confuses the situation.

Should the pitcher throw the ball to the plate while standing on the rubber, it would be a legal pitch and the catcher would be forced to handle the ball in the usual manner before making a play on the runner.

Incidentally, the batsman would have a right to swing at the ball if he cared to do so, in an effort to help out the runner.

Likewise, if the pitcher first stepped in the direction of a first as the play was started, he would be compelled to throw the ball to that base or make a balk.

The only proper way to make the play is for the pitcher to step off the rubber, back off it best, as the runners start to steal. Then he has a perfect right to throw the ball to any base he thinks best in order to break up the play.

Conquerors of Harvard

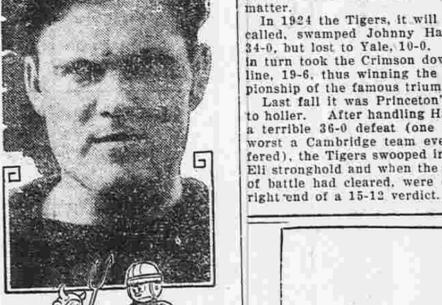

Here are the men who mainly were responsible for the slightly ignominious defeat of the Harvard football team by Geneva college. "Bo" McMillan, left, is head coach of the Geneva eleven; Ernest Meyers, center, is captain of the squad, and Mack Flenniken is the star backfield plunger who carried the ball a long way toward Geneva's two touchdowns.

HERE IS A REAL BATTLING BISHOP

Rev. Scribner Plays Tackle on Ohio Wesleyan University This Season.

Delaware, O., Oct. 7.—Ohio Wesleyan University's football team, referred to as the "Batling Bishops" because Wesleyan is a Methodist institution, has at least one player who lives up to the cognomen.

He is the Rev. Norman Scribner of Baltimore, Md., 220-pound tackle on the eleven. He is 6 feet 3 inches tall.

Rev. Norman Scribner

Scribner is a licensed Methodist minister who had considerable experience in the pulpit before he entered Ohio Wesleyan as a freshman last year. His most recent pastorate was at Williamsport, Pa.

Just One Big Ten Eleven Defeated In First Game

Chicago, Oct. 8.—Every Big Ten football eleven but Purdue came through victorious in the opening games of the season. Purdue, meeting a tough opponent in the Navy, fell after a terrific battle, 17-13.

Of the nine winning teams, however, only five came through without being scored on. They were Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Northwestern and Iowa. Of these Minnesota ran up the largest total, scoring 51 points against North Dakota.

Michigan, Chicago, Indiana and Ohio State failed to blank their opponents. Michigan watched the Oklahoma Aggies, coached by Johnny Mauthe, former Maize and Blue All-America halfback, kick a field goal. Chicago permitted Florida to score a touchdown, while Depauw, though badly outplayed, succeeded in crossing Indiana's goal line.

Ohio State found Wittenberg soft piking, but the little Godfrey eleven put over two touchdowns on the Buckeyes, a rather unusual feat in an opening game.

Of the other big middle western schools, Notre Dame perhaps made the best showing. Rockne's boys ran wild on Beloit and, when the final whistle chirped, were on the long end of a 77-0 score.

Creighton, a pretty good team year in and out, had a tough time over-throwing North Dakota Aggies; in fact, did well to eke out a 26-13 victory.

For the second time in as many seasons, Missouri, one of the high-ranking teams in the Missouri Valley Conference, and Tulane, one of the strongest aggregations in the south, fought a no-decision battle. A year ago the count stood 6-6. This time neither was able to score.

CARDINALS, WITH ALEXANDER, ARE STILL FAR FROM A BEATEN BASEBALL CLUB

By BILL CORUM.
On Board the Cardinal Special, enroute to New York, Oct. 8.—The Cardinals may be licked, but they haven't found it out yet.

Say this much for the "show me boys," they are going to have to be shown. Their red-billed caps are still in the ring. While most people seem to think that another baseball hoop was buried out there in the Mound City yesterday afternoon, that doesn't make it so.

Alexander the Great stands between the Yankees and the realization of their dream of conquest, and if old Alex can hold the Ruppert rifles at bay once more in tomorrow's tussle everything will be right back where it started.

While the Yankees have the advantage of a home field and home crowd for the deciding contest, or contests, that doesn't mean a great deal with a good road club like the Cardinals.

It is just possible that getting away from St. Louis may be the best thing that could have happened to the Cards. Certainly, all those parades and backslapping they went through didn't help them any. They were pressing pretty badly yesterday, because they knew that great home crowd was expecting so much of them. In that way the strain will be less in New York, where, after all, a world's series is only a world's series.

Managers: What with Hornsby running the Cards and Huggins the Yanks, there will be "h" to pay which ever wins. (Call them hounds off, sheriff, I'll surrender.)

Umpires: This is a tough one. Or, to be specific, four tough ones.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis: If the weather is fair and there are enough cameramen on the field the old boy ought to break his 1925 record, when he crashed into 1478 pictures, not including the 429 indoor flashlight shots.

Pitchers: This is a toss-up from where we sit and believe it or not we are sitting in a spot where it's easy to get a real line on toss-ups. Shocker will be in there trying and we hope it gets him more than it used to get Bryan.

First Base: Bottomley or Gehrig? Personally we like Hal Chase. Of course, Hal wasn't always good to his mother but then there are other things in this vale of tears besides the cancelled checks Harry M. Daugherty burned.

Second Base: This is practically a stand-off between Lazzari and Hornsby, with Lazzari standing off so far that he is hardly visible to the Ziegfeldian, or undraped eye. Signals: 4, 18, 23, shift, 42!

Shortstop: Thevenow, 255 and Koenig, 269, will be in there wearing uniforms. You can say that for them anyhow. Or, if you are short of words, you can say less and yet cover the subject adequately.

Third Base: Dugan or Bell? Dugan snores in a more enticing tempo and wears a bigger Elk tooth. This gives him the edge. Bell invented the telephone but his first name, Lester, was jammed on him by an angry relative.

Left Field: For the Cards, Bledsoe for the Yanks, Meusel for the channel, Miss Ederle; for that rundown, nervous condition, try Peppo. At the bell Dempsey was groggy and Tunney turned to page 356 to see what to do next.

Vagaries of Unkind Wind Gave Yanks Their Belated Victory Yesterday

Breaks Were Plenty And Evenly Divided

Strong Gale Affected Fly Balls; Robbed Lazzeri of Homer With Three On; Also Gave Pennock Puny Double.

By BILLY EVANS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 8.—The vagaries of an unkind wind decided the fifth game of the world series. Spotted Home Run

In each instance the Yankees figured. Once it was most unkind. It apparently spoiled a home run for Lazzeri with the bases filled. It seemed to have robbed New York of what would have been a commanding lead. However, on two other occasions Dame Fortune smiled on the Yanks through the medium of the wind.

The game was a battle of south-paws and once again the courageous Pennock triumphed over Sherdel. It was a tough game for the Cardinal ace to lose. It would have been more so for Pennock.

Youth is so costly. Yankee youth once again made the going difficult for the American Leaguers. I have in mind Koenig and Lazzeri, rookie infielders.

In the second inning, a bit of careless base running cost the Yankees a run. Pennock asks for a much greater margin if he is at his best.

With Gehrig on third, Lazzeri on first, Dugan up and one out, the stage appeared to be all set for some Yankee activity.

Dugan grounded sharply to Hornsby, almost on the base line. If Lazzeri had stopped up, Hornsby would have been forced to make a play on the batsman, and while he may have eventually gotten Tony in the run, that would have ensued, Gehrig's run would have crossed the plate. When the Yanks went into the eighth inning trailing 2 to 1, it seemed as if the loss of that run might be the break that would ultimately decide the issue.

But to get back to the stiff wind that made the judgment of fly balls quite difficult.

Wind Treacherous. In the third inning, Pennock fled to deep left. The ball was hit harder than Hafey figured. He came in two steps, then seeing that he had slight misplayed the ball, tried to go back, and slipped to the soft ground.

Pennock was accredited with a rather cheap two bagger. He later scored. Break number one for the Yankees. Three innings later, the sixth, with the bases filled, Lazzeri hit a long fly ball to right field. Southworth backed up against the wall and seemed to have given up on the catch.

The wind carried the drive back at least 15 feet and Southworth finally made the catch with his arms resting against the wall. That was break one against the Yankees.

Things seemed to happen every third inning in this ball game. Going into the ninth Gehrig hit a fly to short left field. It looked as if either left fielder Hafey or shortstop Thevenow might make the play.

Thevenow gave chase. The wind was too elusive. When he started after the ball it was 25 feet fair but finally fell safe to the ground just inside the foul line, with Thevenow making a last frantic, but vain effort to grab the ball.

Rookies Come Through. Gehrig, later scored the run that tied up the ball game. In the extra inning, a hit by Koenig, two

PENNOCK'S WORK RECALLS GAMES OF OTHER YEARS

New York, Oct. 8.—Herb Pennock's sensational pitching in the opening game of the world series recalled other great balling performances in classics of other years. The most notable perhaps was that dished up by Ed Reulbach while hurling for the Chicago Cubs against the White Sox in 1906. Reulbach allowed the enemy but one safe hit. In the same series Ed Walsh of the White Sox and "Miser" Brown, Cubs, each turned in two-hit feats.

In the 1919 playoff between Cincinnati and Chicago, Dicky Kerr of the Chicago team and Jimmy Ring, and "Hod" Eller of the Reds, doled out three-hit performances.

bases on balls, with a wild pitch mixed in, filled the bases. Lazzeri's sacrifice fly to right put over the deciding tally.

Koenig, the Yankee's rookie shortstop had a most eventful day of it several times. He had Pennock in trouble because of fielding miscues. Yet it was he who supplied the punch that gave New York two of its three tallies.

Pennock, in winning two games from the Cardinals, justified my prediction that he would be the only Yankee twirler certain to worry St. Louis.

The edge is now decidedly with New York. Hornsby as usual will put the big game of the series from a Cardinal standpoint up to Grover Alexander. Shocker is certain to oppose him.

BREAKS FIVE TO ONE IN FAVOR OF YANKEES

Walsh Intimates Cards Would Have Won With Douthit in the Game.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

En Route to New York, Oct. 8.—At the end of the game the breaks stood five to one in favor of the Yanks. The latter's only bad luck came in the sixth when the wind held Lazzeri's long fly inside the park with the bases filled. But as far as that went, Lazzeri wouldn't have been at bat at all except for Pennock's lucky double.

Douthit would have caught Paschal's fly that scored the tying run in the ninth; that is Douthit would have done so if he wasn't sitting on the bench.

The only thing you catch there is a lot of splinters.

But Douthit's absence caused by his collision with Hafey on Wednesday was not as detrimental as Hafey's presence. The latter couldn't get up with flies hit in his direction because of his leg injury.

Our Mr. Ruth walked twice but otherwise spent a sedate afternoon at the plate. But his one hand catch of Hafey's foul in the fourth was a gem of purest ray serene.

We just received a shipment of Lowney's Chocolates, bon bons, etc. and have had to re-order to meet the demand. A wonderful buy at 60c lb. Quinns.—Adv.

PENNOCK HAS WON FOUR WORLD SERIES GAMES; LOST NONE

By FORD C. FRICK.

Aboard Yankee Special, enroute to New York, Oct. 8.—As this hilarity laden special train soos speeding homeward this October morning, there's a smiling young chap idling about one observation car watching the fitting landscape.

Near at hand sits his wife, humming to herself, or leaning over occasionally to whisper in his ear. She's the happiest woman among all the happy women on this train this morning.

And well she should be. For her husband is Herbert Pennock, considered one of the greatest left-handed pitchers in organized baseball today.

Herbie Pennock, this morning, owns this train, and everything in it. And he has earned his distinction.

For it was his supple left arm that yesterday pitched the Yankees to within a single game of a world championship, his cleverness and cunning that turned back the Cardinal stickers like broken waves before a rock, holding the opposing batsmen at bay until his own teammates at the last minute, rallied their batting forces to put over the run that meant victory.

It is doubtful if any other pitcher in all big league baseball, except Pennock himself could have won that game yesterday. And it wasn't easy for Herbie. Every ounce of strength he had went into the battle, all the cunning of his long years of experience were called upon and brought into play.

Herbie Pennock's record is still clean. He has pitched four world series games and he has yet to be returned a loser.

RUTH FAR AHEAD OF RIVAL SLUGGER

St. Louis, Oct. 8.—The Ruth-Hornsby duel lapsed back into a dull lethargy yesterday. Neither super-slugger got a hit, but Ruth twice walked. Hornsby failed to get aboard at any stage of the game, but in the sixth inning he gave the fans a thrill with a smash to center.

Afield Hornsby sparkled brightly, but Ruth made a great run into the temporary seats to spear Hafey's tall foul.

The Babe has a big lead on Rogers in batting, .312 to .200.

ONLY 108 STUDENTS; HAS GREAT ELEVEN

King College in Quaint Hills Between Virginia and Tennessee Boasts Real Team.

Bristol, Va.-Tenn., Oct. 7.—Nesting between the quaint hills of southwest Virginia and east Tennessee, and near the border line of the two states, there is a college in this city with 108 students enrolled. It is King College.

The Presbyterian church lends its support to King College. Young men are fitted for the ministry. But this college also turns out a football team; a rather remarkable football team for a school with but 108 students. Since 1921, when King College decided it would resume football, some unusual things have happened.

First, the team won all but two of its games in 1921. In 1922 it scored 408 points to its opponents' 23. One game was lost. In 1923 the King College team was dubbed the "Mountain Tornado." That season 307 points were scored.

The "Tornado" was the pride of this entire section and the envy of other colleges, of which there are several in this region. The following year, 1924, it had a successful season, but in 1925 suffered a reverse. Quabbin church, Georgetown University and Tennessee Medical College defeated the King eleven.

This year another odd thing has happened. The "Mountain Tornado" has two regular captains, Arthur Hammerstrom, end, and Roger Williams, center, each of whom tips the scales at nearly 200 pounds, tied on three different voting occasions for the honor of being the team's leader. The plan is for one to have charge the first half of the game and the other the second half.

More than 60 of the 108 students at King College play football, by the way.

Twenty solid cars loaded with overalls were transported direct from Commerce, Ga., to St. Louis, 825 miles, recently, the total freight charges on the shipment being $5,096.53—or 17 cents to carry a pair of overalls that distance.

O'FARRELL'S 3 HITS PUTS HIM IN LEAD

Cardinal Catcher Now Tops World Series Sluggers With .437 Average; Gehrig Second

New York, Oct. 8.—Bob O'Farrell, the Cardinals' slugging catcher, today has assumed the batting leadership of the world series regulars with the fine average of .437. Lou Gehrig, Yankee first baseman, is second with a mark of .412.

As a result of their hitting yesterday the Yanks are batting .245, only fourteen points behind St. Louis.

CUBS LOSE TITLE TO WHITE SOX 3-0

Chicago, Oct. 8.—The White Sox and Cubs were entraining for their homes today, following the wind-up battle of the city series. The White Sox regained the city championship, winning four of the seven games played. In the deciding game yesterday, Ted Blankenship shut out the Nationals, three to nothing.

NURMI TO TRAIN IN IOWA SCHOOL

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 8.—Paavo Nurmi, the fleet-footed Finn, will train at the Drake University here when he returns to the United States this fall.

Announcement that Nurmi will arrive in Des Moines about Nov. 15, to start training for his onslaught against any and all existing distance track records, was made by Ossi Solem, Drake athletic mentor. The Finn, it was said, will pass up the gymnasium and athletic clubs of the east, coming directly here. He will train at Drake's new field house, and December 11 will make his first public appearance of this season's tour when he will attempt new records. He will race again at Drake's December 18 before leaving Des Moines for a tour of the states.

How Nurmi happened to come to Drake to train is the story of Dr. Alfred J. Peterson, United States minister to Finland and former professor at Drake. Dr. Peterson is personally acquainted with Nurmi, and at the request of Solem invited him to do his training this fall at the Des Moines university.

Dr. Tlovo T. Kalla, author of a book on Nurmi, and close friend of the runner, probably will accompany Nurmi, according to word from Dr. Peterson. Dr. Kalla expects to give a series of lectures in American colleges on Finnish athletics.

Nurmi, in accepting Drake's invitation, asked that he be given privacy during his training. This request will be observed, Coach Solem says.

SAINT and SINNER by Anne Austin

CHAPTER XXIII A FEW minutes after Mr. Lane's unceremonious withdrawal from the interview with Mr. Cluny, the elderly tutor asked and obtained permission from Mrs. Lane to take Cherry driving in the luxurious limousine parked before the shabby little Myrtle street house.

Faith lay back in his arms, trembling, dizzy with such a rapture as she had never dreamed could come to her. "Now, I'll wager you had some foolish, altruistic scheme in your dear head when you brought me out here," he told her, laughing joyously.

"I certainly trust you will use your influence with your husband to bring about a more graceful acceptance on his part of a situation which, in my opinion, will mean happiness to all concerned," Mr. Cluny said with punctilious politeness, as he bent over Mrs. Lane's hand.

"Well, what do you think?" Mrs. Lane quavered, the polite, almost smirking smile wiped from her heavy cheeks and lips, her gray eyes filled with tears.

"I think it's a crime!" Faith cried passionately. "It's breaking my heart! Don't let her do it, Mother. Please! Think what it will mean to Cherry—yoked with that waxen-faced, stiff-kneed old man, who simply wants to drink new life at the fountain of youth. She's so young, Mother, just a baby! Not quite nineteen!"

"I don't want her to marry a poor man," Mrs. Lane sighed heavily. "You don't know what I've been through, Faith, married to a failure like your pa. I'd rather see my daughters in their graves than to see them go through what I've suffered. It won't be long—he can't live many years more. Oh, I don't know what I'm saying! He's a nice, friendly, polite man, Faith, and he's rich. She'll have everything in the world she wants."

"Except thrills," Faith was frankly crying now. "And you know, Mother, Cherry lives on thrills. Even if he lives only five or six years, as he certainly has every chance of doing—maybe twenty—he'll have tarnished her youth, made her cynical and hypocritical and maybe unfaithful!"

"Faith! Do you realize what you're saying?" her mother demanded sternly. "Oh, my heart! That awful pain!" she gasped, laying a puffed hand on her vast bosom, her face contorted with agony.

"All right, Mother, lean on me. We'll soon be there! Just a few more steps. Shall I call Dad?" "No," Mrs. Lane gasped, letting her great weight lean upon Faith's supporting arms. "Oh, Lord! There's the doorbell!"

But Mr. Lane had heard it, too, and came from the kitchen, where he had retired to read his paper, to think heaven knows what terrible thoughts of his daughter's folly. Faith, as she eased her mother into bed, caught snatches of conversation from the living room, knew, with a surge of joy, that Bob Hathaway had come and that he was she, not Cherry, whom he wanted to see.

Bob stopped her with a kiss which seemed to draw her very soul from her body.

It will just upset you, make your heart misbehave. Good night, dear. I know you're trying to do your best for all of us—Cherry, too."

"He is old," Mrs. Lane whispered, with a faint in her voice. "Maybe—" As soon as Faith joined them, Mr. Lane, without apology, shuffled slowly and wearily from the room, his shoulders stooped as if they carried the burden of the whole world's sorrows. Bob Hathaway stared after her with very real concern in his blue eyes, which had flamed just a moment before with joy at seeing Faith again.

"What's the matter with your father?" he asked in a low voice. "He looks completely knocked out."

"Something rather terrible has happened. Where can we talk, Bob? I'll have to tell you all about it." "I have my car outside. Shall we drive out into the country? It's a heavenly night. You'll need a warm coat, dear."

Her heart leaped at the word of caress. It was coming! He cared, he cared, and yet—if there was any way in the world she could save Cherry—

They were both silent as Bob drove swiftly out Myrtle street to the state highway. After twenty minutes of driving he slowed the car and coughed. "Oh, a country lane turning off the highway."

"At the risk of being picked up as a parked petter, I'm going to turn in here so that we can have a little privacy," he told her matter-of-factly, as he guided the car down a rutty, tree-bordered lane. "Now, Faith, dear, what is the terrible news? Has Cherry run away again? Quite simply, he lifted her clenched, cold hands from her lap and held them in both his, stroking them gently.

"It's worse than that," Faith tried to keep her voice steady, though every nerve in her body was quivering ecstatically. "Oh, Bob, she's going to marry your uncle—Mr. Cluny!"

Bob Hathaway's fingers closed on hers with sudden, fierce pressure, but he did not speak for what seemed to the girl to be long minutes. At last he whistled softly, then laughed rather shortly: "Well, the old son-of-a-gun! And he's been a widower for twenty years! I think we can look forward to a comedy, entitled, 'The Taming of the Flirt.' Uncle Ralph won't stand for any nonsense. Yes, I think the adorable Cherry has met her match!"

"Oh, Bob! How can you?" Faith snatched her hands from his and in the moonlight her brown eyes glittered with anger. "Don't you see it's a tragedy? Little Cherry married to that dreadfully old, old man!"

"Forgive me, dear!" He put his arms around her and forced her head to rest on his breast. "You can't expect me to be weeping bitter tears over Cherry's self-invited tragedy when it frees me from any shadow of an obligation to her. Now can you really be saying that?"

"I'm not in the soul-saving business, darling. Sorry! I offered Sunday night, because I knew that you wanted me to, and because I had fancied myself in love with you. Of course she had forfeited all right to this chivalry when she got herself into that mess with Ettleson, but there was some remnant of the old feeling left for her in spite of my realization, that I had fallen deeply, hopelessly and for life in love with her big sister. Do you know that you're beautiful, Faith? My 'Mother Earth' sweetheart! Of course I was in love with you that night I unburdened my heart to you about Cherry and Wiley and that girl I was engaged to when I was in college. But I wasn't clever enough to be married to the dear, faithful, great hearted woman-girl I've been dreaming of and hungering for. No, I can't marry Cherry, even to please you, sweet. For I'm Bob, and she simply says, 'you'll have me,' he ended with sudden humility.

"I've never even fancied I was in love with anyone else in my life." Faith laid her lips against his lean, tanned cheek. "Bob, do you love me so. But—there's something else—"

"What now?" he demanded with mock terror. "If you even mention Cherry's name again for the next half hour, I'll simply kiss you, till you beg for mercy."

She laughed, then put her hands against his chest to hold him back. "Listen, Bob. If we get married—well, then, she conceded to his protest, "when we are married we'll have to live at my home. I can't leave mother and dad and Joy and Junior. They need me too much. Mother isn't going to—to be with me long. Bob, I'd feel like a murderer if I left her now in his hands. Even the best of nurses couldn't do for her what I do. She loves Cherry so much, the best of all of us, but she depends on me, day and night. And Joy is so young and hard to manage—so precocious and sharp, Bob—and dad would simply wither up into a dreary little old man if I left him to manage the family alone. No, I can't leave them, Bob. Please understand!"

The man's arms relaxed, dropped slowly from her shoulders, as he stared fixedly into space, as if he were looking into the future and seeing all the little tragedies to their love which would be the result if he accepted her ultimatum.

She waited, trembling, praying silently, her hands tight locked in her lap.

At last he shook his head abruptly, as if to dispel unwelcome visions. "I suppose that's the real reason why I love you, Faith. Because you're the kind of a girl who couldn't possibly do an unselfish thing to save her life. It won't have to be the house in Myrtle street, will it, dear? I'll afford a better home for you than that."

"Oh, Bob," she flung her arms about him, strained his head to her breast, which rose sharply on a great sob of relief. "You're the best man in the world! I knew I could count on you! Oh, I love you so terribly that it frightens me!"

On the drive home she laughed and laughed, a happy laugh of hers, as she asked him to wonder what she would say to both his girls getting engaged on the same day?"

(To Be Concluded)

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Sumner

The killing of mentally and physically defective children by their parents is often—and necessarily—justified, necessary and an act of mercy. This is the opinion of Clarence Larrow, criminal attorney, author, lecturer, and sociologist, who knows human problems, causes and results, as do few humans.

Byron Stone, a father, attempted to kill his 15-year-old deaf, dumb and crippled son, and then took his own life, when circumstances got too much for him. Darrow upholds the father and says that the child should have been taken out of the world earlier in his life.

Almost as old as life itself is this question of the survival of the unfit. Peoples of all colors, all climes, all ages, have solved it differently. The Spartans took their unfit young people to a waste place there to perish.

The question of this right to dispose of human life has ever been settled and never will be so long as Mother Nature implants in the human breast the same strong parental instinct of love and affection for the abnormal child as for the so-called normal. When nature permits parents to distinguish between the two, then and then only can science and rationality have its way.

Black is the season's big color in girl. Black like a raven's wing, the black of a dead ripe cherry, the black of a will at night, the black of the movie villain's heart, are the favored shades. Black coats, black dresses, and huge black picture hats, flower-trimmed; black and blue, the bump on the knee, is a chic combination.

Story writers, preachers, and the like have had no few words to use on the subject of foolish young call-lovers who, regardless of the high price of over-stuffed furniture, Chinese pongis, and lamb chops will get married on a few shekels a month.

Younglings who aspire to wed on next-to-nothing will be cheered by the few choice words of the Rev. Dr. Francis E. Cla. k, wed 50 years:

"Those early years of married life are too precious to put off until middle age stares one in the face. Its financial struggles and economies must be met and faced together. They are a part of the precious discipline of life for the wife as well as for the husband."

A honeymoon twenty years later was the recent experience of Louis Nutrax and Mrs. Nutrax. Twenty years ago they wanted to go abroad, but finances wouldn't permit. They went on wanting to go abroad. Little seasons why they couldn't. Twelve seasons ago they took them along when they took the old world this last summer.

How about it, parents? Was the rearing of those twelve children worth a 20-year-late honeymoon, and one even then, had only with the twel-e along?

It may sound like warmed-up talk to begin speaking of one William Harrison Dempsey, demised heavyweight champ of the boxing world. But I desire so to speak about Jack and Estelle. It has just occurred to me that the story writers would have had Jack deliberately lose his title in order to learn whether Estelle loved him for himself alone or for his title. The story writers would have even had Estelle shriek just what she did shriek—"I'm coming back to see a husband, not a champion."

Now the interesting part of the story is to just watch and wait! "Grow, little thin girl, fatter, fatter," continues to be the warning cry of our nation's physicians. They say that a toxin called cytos results from broken-down tissues after a dieting habit. Tuberculosis, even death, come next. Wasted words. No woman ever put health before beauty. Now will anyone begin now? But, boy, how the fat girls will go to the chocolate pie and maroon parfait!

HOW REMOVAL OF TONSILS HELPED 1,200 CHILDREN.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene the Health Magazine. Almost everyone now knows that the removal of the tonsils is desirable when they are infected, in order to prevent repeated sore throats, but more particularly to prevent secondary diseases likely to occur through carrying infection from the tonsils to other parts of the body.

Five years ago 8,000 children in Rochester, N. Y., had their tonsils removed. After a year 5,000 of these children were re-examined, and at the end of three years 2,400 were re-examined. Dr. Albert D. Kaiser of Rochester has gone over the records to find out the benefit the patients derived from the operations.

One of the chief complaints for which such an operation is done is breathing through the mouth. Out of 1,200 children on whom the operation was done, 1,057 were mouth-breathers. Out of 1,200 children who were not operated on, 864 were mouth-breathers.

Three years after the tonsils and adenoids had been removed, only 122 of those operated on were reported by the parents as still breathing through the mouth, whereas 830 of the 864 who were not operated on were reported still suffering from the original condition. Mouth-breathing was relieved in 88.5 per cent of the children by removal of the tonsils and adenoids.

Among other conditions for which the operation is done are frequent sore throats and head colds. It was found that head colds had been relieved in 75 per cent of the cases. Naturally sore throat, due to infection of the tonsils, was relieved in the large majority of cases.

Malnutrition. An investigation of children with infected tonsils and adenoids shows that many of them suffer from underweight and malnutrition. Dr. Kaiser found that malnutrition will be improved somewhat following the removal of the tonsils and adenoids, although this is not specific, since the other factors involved also must be corrected.

In addition to the benefits already mentioned, it was found that diphtheria and scarlet fever occur to a lesser extent in children without tonsils than in those who still carry the infections of these tissues.

Finally, rheumatism, chorea and heart disease occurred in a far smaller percentage in the group from which the tonsils and adenoids were removed than in the controlling group.

Here is definite scientific evidence, based on investigations extending over years, to establish the importance of this type of preventive nose and throat surgery.

HER OWN WAY A GIRL of TODAY IN THE BALANCE

Before I opened my eyes again, hours afterwards, I caught the smell of disinfectants and anaesthetics and I wondered if it were possible that I had been taken to a hospital. I still had a feeling of something pressing down upon my chest which I had had before I lost consciousness.

Cautiously I tried to move my hands and found that one of them was immovable. The other I managed with great effort to bring toward my head. Then I got the courage to open my eyes and saw that instead of the rooms of the Beaux Arts, which is some way I subconsciously expected to find, I was looking into the kind eyes of a white clad nurse and about me were the four bare grey walls of a hospital room. It was then that I realized the heavy thing lying across my chest was my left arm, which had been splintered and was evidently in a cast.

ished the nurse, "your left leg is also fractured, but it is a comparatively simple one and the doctors are not going to put it in a cast." At last I began to remember—what had happened to the others? Were any of them hurt? John He must have gotten more of that chandler's punch than I. The last thing I was conscious of was that he was bending over me, protecting me with his body.

"Did any of the others get hurt?" I asked. Before the nurse answered I saw her face grow grave. "Mr. Meredith is very badly hurt, Miss Dean. The doctors hold out very little hope of his recovery. I did not know that I had drawn myself up very quickly to a sitting posture until the agony of my leg turned me faint. "I must go to him," I said. "There, there, my dear, lie down. You shall go to him in a short time. Just as soon as Dr. Phillips comes you can go to Mr. Meredith. They are depending upon the sight of you to give him courage to live." "Let me go now. I must not wait a minute. Don't you know that he saved my life perhaps at the cost of his own?"

TOMORROW: John's Wish.

FOX COLLARS. The double fox collar, that is, two fox furs joined in the back and forming long stole effects in front, is one of the most popular ways of finishing the neckline of both cloth and fur coats.

WINTER FROCKS. Chiffon and velvet are the most popular combination for winter afternoon frocks. Often the upper part of the frock is of chiffon and the skirt of velvet.

Home Page Editorials The Lowly Thumb-Jerker By Olive Roberts Barton

Each age brings its own words. Mr. Webster would certainly push up his spectacles and bend low over the present-day dictionary if he could see some of the additions to the child of his wearisome labors. We have "gate-crasher," "cake-eater" and "high-hatter." Mr. Webster might well scratch his head over the word "thumb jerker."

A thumb jerker is a person who stands out on a road and jerks his thumb at passing automobiles, indicating that he wishes a lift in their direction. Boys on summer trips call it hitch-hiking. Tourists stop and take them in and carry them a certain distance. Then they pick up another car, or another car picks them up, and eventually they reach their destination without trouble or expense to themselves.

carrying of wayfarers in private vehicles which makes them liable to prosecution, but in case of accident to the car the owner is liable for heavy damages if the casual passenger is hurt or killed.

Not long ago I heard a young man tell his father he was going to hitch-hike to school some two hundred miles distant. "I'll use my carfare for spending money," he said. "All the fellows do it and it's the thing to do." "No, son, said the father, "you'll not hitch-hike it. When I was a boy I hoofed it to the same school with the feeling that I was pretty lucky to get my tuition money. There was no money for carfare and I walked the whole distance on dirt roads, sleeping in barns at night. I didn't depend on anything to get me there.

MODEST PATTERNS. Velvet this season is as apt to be figured as plain. Small floral patterns, or geometrical designs in bright colors on a dark ground are especially liked.

FOR THE PURSE. The bright red velveteen purse for winter is often adorned with black enamel or silver, and frequently with combinations of both.

Tidy, Curly Hair in Summer

By Edna Wallace Hopper. I use a hair dress which every girl and woman would delight to know, especially in summer. It keeps my hair wavy, fluffy, glossy, tidy. I never go to a hairdresser, never have a Marcel wave. I get all that curl and glow by using this dressing twice a week in my room. Great experts make this dressing especially for me. It is not sticky or greasy. It quickly does to perfection all my hair needs to be beautiful, wavy and tidy.

MANY CHOICE NUMBERS FOR LICENSES REMAIN

The distinction of being the first to receive motor vehicle registration plates for the year 1927 is held by Glenna E. Waters of Hartford. The holder of Number 310, she made application October 2, the day after the state motor vehicle department sent out 270,000 application blanks to present registrants, and received the same number she holds this year. Three other registrants took out their 1927 registrations on that day at the main office in the Capitol; four did so at the New London branch, two at the Bridgeport branch and one each at the New Haven and Stamford offices. The Waterbury office issued none on that date, which virtually the first that it was possible to receive registrations, since the application blanks did not go out in the mails until the afternoon before. Including the registration business done "over the counters" of the various registration offices and by mail, forty-nine registrations were issued October 2, as of January 1, 1927.

Few of the numbers which appear to be considered by many automobilists to be the choicest, either because of their smallness or other distinctive features, have yet been issued, but the present holders of them will have until November 15 to reserve them. After that date, any of those numbers which have not been reserved, by the payment of the fee in advance and the submission of a written request, will be issued at the convenience of the department. Registration No. 1 has been held by Judge James P. Woodruff of Litchfield since the state first began issuing motor vehicle markers. There is always a demand for the registration numbers corresponding to the number of the year during which it is to be used. No. 1927 is held this year by Ella A. Rogers of Westport.

TWO FEATURES ON CIRCLE'S PROGRAM

Glenn Hunter is coming to the Circle theater tomorrow for one day only. This is a very important announcement to those of the fans that remember this youthful screen star for his work in "Merop of the Movies" and many other popular screen productions.

The picture that he comes to the Circle theater in is "The Finch Hunter" and is said to be even much funnier than "Merop" and if such is the case we're more than satisfied. At least we are sure that the story must be good because it is from the pen of C. Gardner Sullivan and that individual has yet to write a poor screen story. In addition to this picture directed by Joseph Henabery, one of the best known directors in filmdom who will be remembered as Rudolph Valentino's director while that star was with the Paramount.

The companion feature for tomorrow will be Ranger, the marvel dog in "Flashing Fangs."

The latest stellar acquisition to the F. B. O. Studios is Ranger, a police dog of great fame and tremendous ability. In his first picture, "Flashing Fangs," to be shown at the Circle theater tomorrow for one day only Ranger has a chance to display his accomplishments and the winsome tricks which are a part of his repertoire. One of the thrilling moments in Ranger digs his way under a cabin to rescue the girl who is loved by his master. The climax calls for a superb display of courage, and here Ranger gives supreme proof of his daring and his resourcefulness under all circumstances.

Today the Circle presents the last showing of Cecil O'Grady, the Manchester boy and Lefty Flynn in "The College Boob." For the other Madge Bellamy in "Black Paradise."

COVENTRY

The Ladies' Fragment Society of the Second Congregational church will hold their annual Harvest Supper Wednesday, October 13. Supper will be served from 6 to 8, followed by a play named "Four Y-Y-Y's" given by the Andover Dramatic club.

Coventry Grange, No. 75, H. of P. have accepted an invitation from Hillstown Grange for October 14.

In the afternoon of October 13 at 2 o'clock there will be a missionary meeting under the auspices of the American Board and Home Missionary society held at the chapel. Everyone is invited to attend.

October 15 Rev. George Brooks will speak on "What Englishmen Think of the American."

Carl Abrahamson has been testing at Autumn View Farm.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

JUDITH MARTIN, young, red-haired, beautiful, arriving to teach in Pendleton University meets an earnest man who rescues her hand-box on the train, but refuses to enter into conversation with her.

As she steps from the train at Pendleton station, a strange young man giant, green-eyed, seizes her, kisses her and without a word thrusts her into a taxi and vanishes.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

The taxi was wheeling into the main street when Judith first dared to glance out the window. For a moment her heart stopped, as a light topcoat came round the corner.

But the coat swung from puny shoulders less than five feet from the ground. And then the sidewalks seemed lined with light topcoats of many descriptions. The owner of the green eyes and the broad shoulders and the strong arm evidently was not to be identified by his coat.

The car left the business district and swung into an avenue lined with old trees and large houses of frame and ancient brick. Set far back in spacious lawns.

The driver stretched his head through the opening toward her. "You say 512 College, miss?" he asked.

She nodded, and the man, after a curious glance at her white face, turned back to his wheel.

A few moments later, they turned a corner and the car shot up a driveway. "Fifty cents, miss," the driver said, when he had nonchalantly set Judith's baggage on the grass by the drive.

"You've been paid once" she retorted. "And kindly carry my bags to the door."

The man grumbled as he followed her up the wooden porch steps. On the top step he threw down her bags and departed.

Music and laughter drifted out from the reception hall as Judith fumbled for the knocker. She found, instead, an antiquated bell operated by a thumb screw, which sent a brassy peal through the house.

The door opened and a youth in a white apron stood before her.

"Is this Mrs. Stedway's house?" she asked, almost petulantly, for the youth stood silent and frozen.

"Yes," he drawled.

"I have rented a room here. I suppose I may come in?" Judith found her voice growing brittle.

He pushed open the door, making no move to take her bags. The piano banging in the next room stopped, and a pale, blond girl stepped between the folding walnut doors. "I am Mrs. Stedway's daughter, Lillian. I'll show you to your room."

They went up the stairs in silence, and the pale Miss Stedway pushed open a door into a bed room.

"You're Miss Martin, of course. The rest are all here. Summer will be ready in fifteen minutes. You'll hear the gong." She turned and descended the stairs.

Just inside the door, Judith stopped and leaned rather weakly against the wall. The room was plainly furnished, and the white walls, rising indefinitely heavenward, added to its barrenness. But the five windows promised light and the counterpane on the white-enamelled bed looked clean.

Near the bed stood a large packing box bearing the name of the firm from which Judith had ordered her blankets and bed linen. She inspected the bed more closely. There was nothing between counterpane and mattress. All other necessities had been left for her to supply. Even the golden oak dresser or lacked a chair. It was scarred on top with rings from many perfume bottles, and covered with dust.

Judith set down her burdens and rather listlessly walked toward the bed. Without stopping to unpack the blankets, she lay down on it and closed her eyes.

Some time later she was awakened by a gong sounding somewhere below, followed by a burst of noise in the hall and on the stairs. She sat up with a start, and glanced at her tousled self in the mirror opposite. Then she turned out the light again and lay down.

Red tongues of light dancing over the walls and ceiling awoke her next. For a moment, she lay staring at them, in a panic. Then she rushed to the window and saw a procession of whooping young men leading up the street a strippling clad only in his underwear, and brandishing red torches as they ran. Every window in the Stedway house went up simultaneously, and Judith heard a chorus of laughter as girls recognized friends in the procession.

"Hi, Himmy, throw him in the fish pond for me. That's one of the things every young freshman should know." This in a feminine squeak from the porch downstairs.

A sound behind her made Judith turn suddenly. The reflections from the torches were still careening ruddily around the room, and their intermittent light struck against someone leaning against the closed door. A pin point of fire burned beside the figure.

Red gleams caught in the black folds of the person's garments and then flickered off. "Who is there?" Judith's voice caught a little.

The figure at the door stretched out a hand and pressed the light switch. Judith saw a black-haired girl of 19 or 20, wrapped in a black satin lounging robe, and holding a lighted cigar in her hand.

"Sorry if I'm bothering you," the girl said indolently. "I am Myra Aldrich. I just came in to see what all the fuss is about. My windows are on the side."

She walked to the window, gazed a moment and shrugged her shoulders.

Then she moved, with curious swaying stride, to Judith's bed, climbed on it and stretched herself out, with her head against the wall. She was still puffing at the cigar.

"I also wanted to give you this," she said. "It was stuck under my door by mistake. You ARE Judith Martin, aren't you?" She held out an envelope.

Judith glanced at it and laid it on the table. Then she looked at her guest again.

Myra was quite at ease. "I like your room. Miss Martin. Mine's much smaller and barer. You see, I didn't decide to come until the last minute and had to take what I could get."

Judith nodded politely. "It will do very well, when I have found some chintz to take away the hospital-look. I like these windows."

Myra said, "It's rather queer for me to be here. I don't usually care much for strangers. But this house is pretty beastly, and I got lonely. Have you seen the collection of boarders?"

Judith shook her head. "I didn't go down to dinner."

Myra whistled. "Just wait. But you and I'll have to be friends. I've got to have somebody to talk to—especially when I'm in love."

Judith looked at her quizzically. "And are you in love now?" she queried.

Myra nodded casually. She had thrown back her robe, and its cardinal red lining deepened the richness of her skin. Her eyes lighted on the packing box.

"Your bedding has come, hasn't it? I'll bet mine doesn't get here for a week. It was only ordered Saturday."

"But you can't sleep without blankets on a cool night like this," protested Judith.

"Have to, Mrs. Stedway hasn't any to lend, she says."

Judith looked at the single bed. "Come in and sleep with me," she said, impulsively. "We can manage."

Myra displayed no embarrassment. "Very well, perhaps I shall. You haven't had any dinner. I have a chicken sandwich and a slab of chocolate cake in my room. I'll get them if you like."

Myra's departure for the refreshments gave Judith a chance to open her letter.

"Dear Miss Martin," it ran, "this is to advise you that members of the faculty of the college of liberal arts will meet at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the administration building." It was signed "Timothy Brown."

"You eat and I'll smoke," said Myra, as she came in with the sandwich and cake. "I'll also talk. I feel the need of conversation this evening." She stopped suddenly and looked shrewdly at Judith.

"But, look here! I'll bet you won't do to talk to. Bet you've never been kissed." She smiled at Judith impudently.

Judith flushed. Then she smiled sheepishly. "Yes, I have—and no longer than this very afternoon."

Then, seeing Myra's face light with curiosity, she added hastily, "But that's another story. Go on and tell your tale of woe."

Myra lay back with eyes half closed and puffed smoke between scarlet lips. "Well, it's just this. I'm in love with the handsomest young Viking that ever breathed—and the most fickle!"

"I went to Miss Ashton's school in New York last year because he was at Princeton. But he's here this year, because his father's giving him a dose of the simple life. So I'm here, too."

"He's mine now, Judith. But he's changeable. And if he ever stops loving me, I shall quietly but firmly kill myself!"

When Miss Stedway had introduced her, Judith applied most of her attention to her cereal. The talk went on jerkily around her.

"Oh Amy, did 'ja hear? We've got to keep the rules like anything this year. They say the new discipline dean's a holy terror." The freshmen who launched this remark sank back into her oatmeal before the withering glances of the pure Misses Reasey.

"I hope you slept well, Miss Martin," said Lillian Stedway. "I see your blankets arrived."

"Yes," Judith replied. "I was very comfortable. Miss Aldrich slept with me. Her's hadn't come yet."

The eyebrows of the Misses Reasey and Miss Stedway went up. Evidently Myra had already struck sparks from opposing metals in this group.

Coming down the steps an hour later Judith met Myra. The girl was wearing an orange sweater and a scarf whose Roman stripes flamed out in the dusk of the hall.

"Good morning," said Judith.

"You're the first pleasant sight I've seen today."

"I've been for a dawn tramp with my Norseman," cried Myra. "Didn't you wake up when I sneaked out so early? Where are you going?"

"Over to the campus," said Judith. "Will you come along?"

"No, have to unpack. We had breakfast in the duckiest place on the road. Think they call it Blue Moon, or something. I've no doubt it's a dire, wicked place at night. But for breakfast—um-m-m, baked apples, waffles, sausages and drip coffee with clotted cream."

"Hush," exclaimed Judith. "I've just eaten at the Stedway board."

Myra made a face and ran up the stairs.

Judith found the streets filled with students, all in that careless holiday mood that attends the opening of each term, when old friendships are renewed, new ones launched, and old feuds revived.

She reached the campus half an hour before the time set for the meeting. The administration building loomed ahead, presiding with its absurd fly-away dome over buildings of more recent date and purer architecture.

In the center of the quadrangle were some long mounds of green some five feet higher than the surrounding land.

Judith was almost opposite the nearest mound when someone suddenly rose to a sitting position on top of it.

The figure was larger than the ordinary. It wore a pair of corduroy trousers, a blue sweater, a Bowery cap and a briar pipe. It rose and came toward her. And as it lifted its cap at short range, Judith met a pair of green eyes that set her heart pounding. Unconsciously, she stepped back, and then marched straight ahead as though she had not seen him. The figure into step beside her.

"Morning like this, mate, that old rot of Browning's about the lark on the wing, hillside dew-pearled, sound a little less rotten, doesn't it?"

Judith walked on, eyes straight ahead and lips rather firm.

"Pretty startant optimism," continued the voice from under the Bowery cap. "After all, nobody ever wrote about morning as old Boot-black Homer did—the rosy-fingered dawn. Gosh, what a metaphor!" Judith still stalked a little ahead. The man was about to quote more poetry, undismayed, when Judith turned abruptly into a side path and left him.

It took only a very small sprint to bring him up with her again. "Speaking of dawn and things, have you had your morning waffles?" He was standing in front of her now.

Judith looked straight at him. "No, but I've had my morning oatmeal and coffee. And now, I'm going to take my morning stroll—alone."

The conference room was almost full when Judith entered it. She took a seat by the window, under the faintly reproachful gaze of the short, heavy man who stood at the table on the dais.

About a third of the faculty members present were women of uncertain age, mostly wearing stocks and plain white silk shirt-waists, though one or two "arty" smocks enlivened the picture.

"Members of the faculty of liberal arts," said a dry, meticulous voice from the platform, "we are here to discuss such general problems as confront us in the opening of a year which we hope will be the most successful, pedagogically speaking, ever enjoyed by this department of the university."

The room was listening. Judith saw three elderly gentlemen draw forth folded handkerchiefs and wipe their glasses as if by signal.

The speaker stared reproachfully. Hands folded on stomach, he began to speak again. "By making me chairman of the discipline committee, the president has shown a trust—"

Judith turned and looked out the window. Far away on the mounds, a tiny human figure was visible. It lay on its back, with one knee crossed over the other one, pointing toward heaven.

A slight stir at the back of the room as a latecomer entered did not rouse her. She did not turn around until the newcomer was seating himself in the chair beside her.

As she turned, his Phi Beta Kappa key clacked against the wooden arm of his chair, and he hastily jerked it back.

Judith looked up at him and spoke in a stage whisper. "Thank you so much. It didn't hit her on the head any more after you fixed it."

The gray tweeds started. "I beg your pardon. What—"

"The bandbox," said Judith. The steady drone of Dean Tim-thy Brown went on for hours, it seemed to Judith, before he ended his speech with an announcement. "Dr. Peter Dorn—" all eyes turned toward the man at her side—"Dr. Peter Dorn of the astronomy department will take over the duties of chief of the Big Brother movement in the college."

The crowd was stirring, anxious to leave. Dean Brown rapped on the table. "We shall expect the hearty co-operation of every faculty member in making Pendleton University morally clean and safe for the youth of the state."

Dr. Dorn followed Judith into the hall. "I really did want to thank you for squiring my handbox," she said to him, laughing. "But there wasn't much chance. The dean wanted to do all the talking."

Someone ran up to them and caught Judith by the arm. "Scuse me for interrupting, but I want you to come to tea with me over at the Prarie Schooner, Jude." The professor stepped back before Judith could introduce them and Myra pulled her gaily off down the corridor.

"Well," said Myra. "I rescued you that time. Old baggy-knee must be a professor, or something. You don't want the faculty hanging over the real man. That's what you get for looking intellectual. Heaven knows you're handsome enough. With that flaming hair, but you'll have to cultivate the beautiful-but-dumb expression, if you want a frat rush."

They seated themselves at a corner stall in the Prarie Schooner, and were just beginning to drink their tea when a shout came from across the room. "Hi, there, Snow White, Blood Red and Ebony Black."

The mouse-colored Will Wetherell was addressing brunt Myra. She smiled at him over a suspended tea cup.

"Have you heard the latest about your very fine Eric Waters?" he shouted.

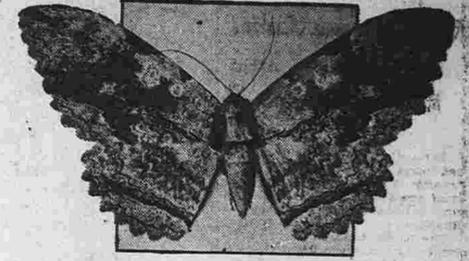

Myra shook her head apprehensively.

"Today he was ducked in the fish pond by the Vigilantes, and yesterday he won a bet of $20 by kissing the prettiest girl that got off the seven o'clock train."

(To Be Continued)

Judith discovers in the next chapter that Eric Waters is in the Latin class she is teaching. Meanwhile Myra is burning to discover what girl it was that her Eric kissed.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

Tropical Moth

By AUSTIN H. CLARK, Smithsonian Institution

This lovely moth, bark-like in color on the upper side, is very common in the warmer regions south of the United States, though rare within its borders. Sometimes it happens that toward the end of summer this moth gets blown far from its normal haunts over the country northward.

Recently I caught one in Washington which apparently had reached there through the assistance of a hurricane which a few days before had swept across the Gulf of Mexico.

MARIE REFUSES TO VISIT PRINCE CAROL

Redhead Lupescu, Lurking in Background, Keeps Mother and Son Apart.

Paris, Oct. 8.—The beautiful, red haired Mme. Lupescu is still the favorite of Prince Carol, and the chief obstacle to his reconciliation with his mother, Queen Marie of Rumania.

The queen has refused to visit Prince Carol at his house in Noully because of Mme. Lupescu's supposed presence there, although she would receive him if he came to her apartments at the Ritz.

The first condition for resumption of friendly relations between Carol and the other members of the royal family, looking toward his eventual ascent to the throne, would be the breaking off of his relations with his paramour.

Queen Marie this morning continued her shopping tour, accompanied by Princess Beatrice of Spain.

The queen and her party are to arrive in New York on October 18.

Prince Nicholas, who with Princess Ileana will accompany his mother to America, left last night for London to purchase some Bond street clothes, so as not to be outdone by the queen.

Honors Here For Queen

Washington, Oct. 8.—Full military honors will be paid Queen Marie of Rumania during the period of her official visit in the United States, the state department announced today. Her official visit starts on October 13, when she arrives in New York, and continues until her return to New York from Washington on October 20.

Major General Charles P. Sumner, newly-appointed chief of staff will head the military group which will greet the queen at Quarantine. A salute of 21 guns will be fired as the queen enters New York on the Macom.

Lieut. Col. Arthur Poillon has been appointed as the Queen's military aide.

CANDEE DEFEATED BY ALLEN IN FIRST

Hartford, Oct. 8.—Police Commissioner Edward N. Allen defeated Alderman Hollis S. Candee in a primary held here last night for the Republican senatorial nomination in the first district. Allen carried six of the seven wards and all but five of the 23 voting precincts. His total vote was 1,552 against 944 for Candee. Only 3,496 of the 8,843 registered Republicans in the district voted.

SHAW COULD MAKE FILMS FOR A NICKEL

once tried to write a scenario himself.

"I undertook to make a scenario of 'The Devil's Disciple,'" he said. "After I had written a practically complete history of the causes leading up to the American revolution, together with vivid scenes from the Boston Tea Party, a close-up of Indians, and so forth. I found that the amount I'd written already needed about 50,000 feet of film and I hadn't got to the beginning of 'The Devil's Disciple' itself.

"Individual producers seem to have a quite individual ability to make films seem like anything but the books or plays on which they are founded.

Queer Bribe
"An American leader of what I believe is called 'The Four Thousand' in New York, offered me $2,000 if, should I go to America, I would keep my mouth shut from the moment the liner reached New York until I got to her drawing room on Fifth avenue. She would thus have the distinction of saying that the first words uttered by me in America were spoken in her house.

"This was very charming, of course. Instead of writing to me directly she wrote to the British ambassador in Rome. They had a big laugh at the embassy before the letter reached me. As far as I can recollect I haven't answered it.

"It is surprising what high prices Americans will pay. At first their offers made me almost ill and I couldn't believe them."

Shaw said that in a corner of his study he had a whole stack of caricatures from America offering contracts for articles and lectures.

"It's a pretty steep price, but I don't think I'll go," he said. "If I did I'd most surely be mobbed."

GAS WELL SOLACE TO AUTOMOBILE'S VICTIM.

Warren, Pa., Oct. 8.—Fortune's frown turned to a smile for Mrs. Ed Splitstone of Canasut, O., today. A gas well, producing two million cubic feet an hour, was drilled in early today on property of Eldred township by David Culbertson and associates. The property is owned by Mrs. Splitstone, who is owned by Mrs. Splitstone, who is now seriously ill as a result of injuries received when she was struck by an automobile.

The well is said to be the biggest in years in this area. It was capped and another well is being drilled as an offset.

CHARGE IN DAUGHERTY TRIAL TODAY UNLIKELY

Defense Talked 9 Hours as Against 3 Hours Testimony, Buckner Points Out.

New York, Oct. 8.—Inviting defense counsel to challenge any statement he might make, United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner began his summation to the jury today at the conspiracy trial of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian.

Federal Judge Julian W. Mack declared it was unlikely he would charge the jury today.

"Whether this claim (American Metals Co.'s claim for $7,000,000) was valid or invalid is wholly irrelevant and immaterial to the charge that these defendants conspired to defraud the government of their honest and unprejudicial services by taking money to pass the claim," Buckner asserted.

"The easiest way out of a case is to acquit, but this case must be decided on the evidence. The trial of a former alien property custodian and a former attorney general consumed only three hours while defense counsel took nine hours for summing up.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.)

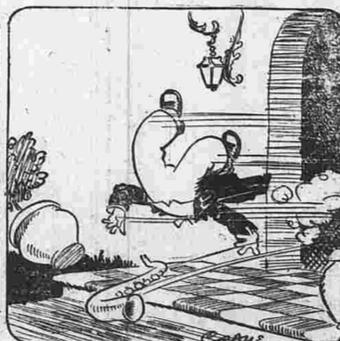

From the far off land of Wender Where, like fairies sailing through the air, there came a band of Tinymites, and cheerful tots were they. It seems they never will grow up, and from the morn till time to sup, mid song and dance and much delight, they spend their time in play.
Of course when first they landed here, the country wide, both far and near, was really quite a wonder spot and happy place to roam. And so the little Tinymites said, "Well start out to see the sights, as soon as we are sure we've got a place to call our home."

The bad, so when he started out to look he felt no real alarm. "I'll simply find a place," said he, "where we can all live happily, nearby a cozy knoll or nook, and far away from harm."
Through woods and fields, by night and day, poor Scouty trudged his weary way, and then he found the very place that he was looking for. "Well this is luck," he shouted loud, "there's room enough for all our crowd," and then he ran a merry pace to tell what was in store.
"Attention, all you Tinymites, I've found the very best of sights," and Scouty nearly toppled down from running all that day. "Now everybody here," said he, "who wants to go, just follow me." And, with a shout and mighty bound, the band was on its way.

(Follow the Tinymites on their adventures. Another story TO-MORROW.)

ILL. PARK WILL SAVE HOMES OF MOUND BUILDERS 144 Acre Tract With Pre-historic Earth Works To Be Preserved.

Springfield, Ill.—All possible speed will be used in beautifying the 144 acres comprising the Cahokia Mound Park in Southern Illinois and in completing the second state bond issue road to this park. Contracts for work on the park have been let and the ground will be broken up and seeded.

The Mounds will not be disturbed. The Great Cahokia Mound, or "Monks Mound," is easily the largest prehistoric artificial earth work in the United States and is to the "Mound Builders" what the Great Pyramids were to the Pharaohs of Egypt.

Dimensions of Mound. The dimensions of Monks Mound are: base, north and south, 990 feet; east and west 721 feet; height 99 feet. It covers 16 acres and is estimated to contain 84,000,000 cubic feet of earth. It has been figured that it would take 2,400 builders working 10 hours every day for two years to complete this mound.

The Mound won its name because in 1894 the order of Trappist Monks built a mansion there. The name Cahokia comes from the tribe of Indians LaSalle met in 1681. In addition to this mound there are 45 smaller ones scattered about.

The Cahokia mounds, scientists say, are identical with structures which the Spaniards found the Aztecs using in Mexico City for religious ceremonies in the early part of the sixteenth century.

Age Not Known. Just when the mounds were built has never been determined. It is believed, however, their construction antedated the arrival of the white man by several centuries.

It has never been agreed upon by archaeologists as to who built the mounds. Some believe they were constructed by Aztecs who wandered north, others thinking that the relics found in the mounds indicate greater culture than that possessed by the Indians found when Columbus discovered America.

Appropriation was made by the Illinois assembly so that this heritage might be preserved.

BROWNING DOESN'T CARE IF SHE NEVER COMES BACK

New York, Oct. 8.—Edward W. Browning, the "Cinderella man" and millionaire husband of the vanished "Peaches" Heenan Browning, said he wasn't the least bit interested today when he was told that one of her friends had located her. And he added that he didn't care much when he was informed about a statement attributed to her that she was "through" with him.

HAVANA, CRIME FREE, HAS FINEST POLICE

Berkeley, Cal.—Havana has the finest police force in the world, according to August Vollmer, famous scientific police chief of Berkeley, and one time head of the Los Angeles police department. Chief Vollmer has just returned from a two months stay in Cuba where he was called to reorganize the island republic's police system. The famous "scientific" chief declared he had little to teach the Cuban police, but admitted that as a result of his visit to the island there will be better equipment for handling traffic and a better firing system for keeping records.

The Havana police department, he asserted, is the finest in the world and Havana is freer from crime than any city of its size in the United States. There are 2400 policemen and seventeen stations in Havana, Chief Vollmer declared, and the cops attend school for six months to a year are perfected in their work before they go on duty.

The municipal police forces of the various Cuban cities are to be federalized, Vollmer said. The number of policemen affected will be some 25,000. On the Isle of Pines, Vollmer declared, Cuba is building what will be the world's finest penitentiary. It will cover 5,000 acres and will be able to care for 5,000 inmates and will raise all the vegetables needed for all federal employes.

There are no lawyers of the "shyster" type in Cuba, Vollmer said. Any man guilty of a crime, if captured, is certain to be sent to prison.

U. S. MENTAL CASES SHOW AN INCREASE

Albany, N. Y.—Patients in institutions for mental diseases throughout the country increased from 187,791 in 1910 to 237,817 in 1923, or from 204.2 to 245 per 100,000 population, according to a report just published through the co-operation of the New York state hospital commission and the federal government.

One of the points brought out by the report is that which compares the alcoholic admission in 1922 with those of 1910. "In 1910," the report says, "the alcoholic cases constituted 10.1 per cent. of the total admissions to institutions for mental diseases. In 1922 they constituted but 3.7 per cent. of such admission."

In New York State the percentage of alcoholics for both sexes dropped from 11.5 in 1910 to 3.0 in 1922; in New Jersey from 19.7 to 4.2; in Pennsylvania from 6.9 to 3.0; in Maine from 6.5 to 3.4; in New Hampshire from 11.3 to 8.0; in Vermont from 11.1 to 1.7; in Massachusetts from 14.6 to 6.4; in Rhode Island from 11.4 to 7.2 and in Connecticut from 10.6 to 4.1.

New York State, however, has not been maintaining its reduction in the percentage of alcoholic first admissions since 1922. In 1923, New York State's percentage of first alcoholic admissions rose to 4 per cent; in 1925 to 5.4 per cent and in 1925 to 7.6 per cent. This percentage for 1926 probably will not be known, the hospital commission said, until early next year.

Over 50 percent of all the patients suffering from mental diseases in 1923 in the country were single and 34 percent were married the report shows.

AUTO REGISTRATIONS SLOW UP THIS YEAR

A pronounced slowing up in the rate of motor vehicle registrations in Connecticut, as of September 1, 1926, is indicated by figures given out at the state motor vehicle department. Whereas on the corresponding date of last year, Connecticut registrations showed an increase of 13 per cent. over the previous year the increase rate on September 1, 1926, was 8 per cent., the lowest in at least five years. The rate of increase over the previous year shown by September 1, 1924, was 17 per cent. and by September 1, 1923, was 15 per cent.

The total number of cars registered by the September 1, of this year was 264,366, as against 244,134 on the corresponding date of last year, 211,283 by September 1, 1924, 174,601 by that date of 1923 and 147,926 by September 1, 1922. If registrations had continued at about the average rate for the previous three years, 300,000 motor vehicles would have been registered in the state by the end of this year, but it now appears improbable that that total will be reached.

The whole number of motor vehicles registered in Connecticut during 1925 was 262,564. It will be noted that that total had been exceeded by the end of the eighth month of this year. September registrations pushed the total for 1925 well towards 270,000, but the remaining months of the year are not strong registration months.

The slowing up in the rate of increase is most noticeable in registrations of so-called pleasure cars and public service cars. Total number of which registered by September 1, 1926 was 7 per cent. in excess of the registrations in that class a year before. Registrations of commercial cars showed a 13 per cent. increase at that time. However, while motorcycle registrations had decreased 8 per cent. and combination registrations 1 per cent.

The Stage

New York, Oct. 8.—The most ruthless villains of the current Broadway theater season continue to be the playwrights themselves. It is from their clutches that the lovely and talented young artists of the drama need to be saved. That these talents should be asked to drag the inadequate author's chestnuts out of the fire; that individual performances should be called upon to save the writer's face seems preposterous in a nation where popular tradition has it, every other person has a play hidden in his trunk.

There is, for instance, Pauline Lord, as fine a young artist as the American stage today can boast; perhaps the very best we have. But for her amazingly adroit performance, a piece entitled "Sandwood," dramatized by Owen Davis from a novel of the same name, would have sunk one week off shore. Yet the presence of Miss Lord will probably keep it buoyed into a profitable cruise for all concerned—and they don't deserve it.

And there is Ann Harding in a play by one Dennison Clift, who is said to hail from Hollywood. Which is easy to believe when in the second act we hear the following lines recited in a rapt and little French lady of the streets who is in the process of being saved by a young American soldier: "Would you buy your freedom with this young girl's shame?"

Mayhap Mrs. Clift's experience includes title writing for the Hollywood unlimited. Certainly there seems little doubt that he has arranged movie rights in advance for this lurid opus and, again mayhap, the Broadway production is but a decoy to get the name established for future movie purposes.

Very well—the play's name is "The Woman Disputed" and we suggest, gratis, a movie mauler: "The Shame Camp," since the story has to do with a group of non-combatants who are grabbed up by the Germans. The Prussian officer says he'll let them all loose at the price of the "girl." The officer is Lowell Sherman at his Prussianest, and the cast is as fine as any in New York. The play will probably have a long run. Oh, yes, the author says the play was suggested by Maupassant's "Ball of Suet!" Now you tell one.

And there is Frances Starr, missing from the stage these several years, who returns in a vehicle that bumps and joggles and almost throws her out at times. It's called "The Shelf" and all visitors who have plays in their trunk are requested to see it that they may take courage and thrust their efforts into the hands of the producer. Mrs. Starr is most lovely in the role of the lady-with-a-past who is called upon to save, not only all the hypocritical characters of the play, but the play itself.

So much for the bad news. On the other hand there reached Broadway from the middle west the dramatization of Anita Loos' "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," which probably most of the playgoers in and around Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and way points already have seen and, hence, will be no treat to them when they visit New York. To their general acclaim now is added Broadway's plaudits, particularly to the work of June Walker

The Party'll Succeed Now

Hawaii is staging a big jubilee at its territorial fair this fall. So, just to make the affair a success, the United States is sending four of its prettiest girls as delegates. The delegates, pictured as they sailed from San Francisco, are, left to right, the Misses Theima Lee, Lena Felix, Marie Larson and Alice Parker. Each has won at least one beauty contest.

If you are Particular about the quality of eatables you serve, you will do well to patronize our market. For Sunday's Dinner. A Tender Juicy Rib Roast or Leg of Lamb, Roast of Pork. ALSO HOME KILLED BROILERS, ROASTING CHICKENS, FOWL. Calves' Liver, Bacon, Sweet Breads. FRESH VEGETABLES. Native Spinach, Cauliflower, Brussel-Sprouts, Egg Plant, Head Lettuce, Celery, String Beans. STATE VARIETY BILL PLEASES AUDIENCE Acts to Suit Any Taste at Popular Playhouse Last Part of Week. (By Member Herald Staff.) The vaudeville bill presented at the State yesterday was of top notch quality. The program opens with Watson's dogs, a large number of small canine actors (the amused not only the children at the matinee but the adults, as the dogs do wonderful stunts and have appeared on all the big vaudeville circuits. Leddy and Leddy, comedy team, put over some unusually clever gag lines. Not only are they high class comedians but they are acrobats. In fact it appears from their act that they were originally straight acrobats and in later years changed their act. The three Kenna Sisters put over a singing and dancing turn that made a big hit with last night's audience. They have beautiful gowns and sing and dance well. Their jazz numbers were well received. Bobby Carbone and company, two operatic singers, inject much comedy into an otherwise straight singing turn. Carbone has a tenor voice and knows how to sing high class music. The headline act was Ed Scofield with four girls, all dancers. The high spot in their turn is the Egyptian dances of one of the quintet who dances under a blue spotlight. She had to answer to numerous encores last evening. "Fine Manners" is the movie feature, with Gloria Swanson as the star. The story, the acting and the setting are all good.

60 AND 12, ELOPERS ARRESTED AT BOSTON

Boston, Mass., Oct. 8.—Lucy Paule, twelve, and Thomas Boshich, sixty-three, both missing for a month from Youngstown, Ohio, were arrested here today. By day, the child was a pupil at Mt. Bowdoin grammar school, west end, but she confessed, according to police that her relations with Boshich were not, as the man contends, those of a father and daughter.

AUTO AND TRUCK IN SLIGHT CRASH

No One Hurt in South End Accident and Little Damage Done. A slight automobile accident occurred this morning in front of Magnell's Drug store on Main street at the South End. Herbert Panekoff, of 577 George street, New Haven, parked his Chevrolet coupe in front of Magnell's drug store. He is a salesman of a Ford truck operated by Cecil England had just turned out of School street and was proceeding up Main street.

Something went wrong with the steering wheel and the truck operated by England swerved to the side of the street, ramming into the parked Chevrolet. England was not injured and the damage to both machines was slight.

AKS EXTRADITION FOR BREACH OF PAROLE

MANCHESTER SHIVERS AS MERCURY DROPS

Manchester shivered last night in the grip of a cold wave that seems to have struck all of New England. What few people were on the streets wore overcoats and those who did not wear them wished that they did. Late this morning the temperature had risen to only 53 degrees on Main street. A hour frost was seen by those who were up early this morning but farmers in this section said that little or no damage was done to their crops. Only the tender things such as tomatoes were injured to any extent. Some farmers reported damage to apples.

OCTOBER SERVICES AT M. E. CHURCH

A complete program of services for the month of October at the South Methodist Episcopal church was announced today by Rev. Joseph Cooper. Included in the evening services will be the "Holy City", Gaul's great oratorio and an Irish and Scotch night with special services. The life of Alfred Lord Tennyson, poet laureate of England will be treated in a special sermon by the pastor on "Tennyson, In Memoriam" on Sunday, October 31. Following is the complete program: October 10— 7:00 p. m.—Pleasant Sunday Evening. Scotch Night. Sermon: "The Religion of Sir Walter Scott." October 17— 10:45 a. m.—Rally Day in Sunday School and Church.

LOCAL MAN DIVORCED.

Charging desertion, Nelson J. Cate of this town was granted a divorce in superior court yesterday by Judge Nickerson from Rose Melow Cate of Springfield, formerly of Windsor. They were married in March, 1922 and Nickerson testified that she had run away with another man on March 20, 1923. Cate was represented by Frederick J. Rundbaken of Hartford.

MATRONS AND PATRONS GUESTS OF AMARANTH

Chapman Court, Order of Amaranth, observed visiting matrons' and patrons' night in Odd Fellows hall last evening. This is one of the important events of the year and the affair which began with a supper in the banquet hall at 6.30, was successful from every point of view. Nearly every court in the state was represented. Mrs. Mary E. Woodcock of Waterbury, grand royal matron of the state court was one of the guests of honor. The supper was in charge of Mrs. Rachel Tilden, and the favors were provided by a committee headed by Miss Olive Chapman. The color scheme was red and white and a profusion of garden flowers in these colors was used in the table decorations. Florence's Delicatessen shop catered.

MAKE VOTERS TOMORROW.

Men and women whose names are on the to-be-made list should make it a point to appear before the Board of Selectmen at the Hall of Records tomorrow from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. After they take the oath they will have the opportunity to register with the party of their choice. This will save them the trouble of appearing before the registrars at any future date. COMPLAINS THAT COW DISTURBS SLUMBERS. A unique complaint was received by the Manchester police department last night. A woman on Bigelow street said that the bellowing of a cow at a nearby residence was disturbing her slumbers. Chicago beauty doctors are ready to strike for more than $30 a week. Is that a tribute to Chicago women?
