

BOARD WANTS STORM WATER SEWER PLANS

Selectmen Feel Town Should Lay Out System Now; Task Grows Bigger Each Year; Monthly Meeting.

Manchester has grown so rapidly in the past few years that the Board of Selectmen faces the planning, at least, of an adequate storm water sewer system. Feeling that the town cannot afford a complete coverage system at this time, the board is planning to take care of the most troublesome spots immediately, and in the meantime, estimate the cost of two or perhaps three large systems that will serve the town for many years.

The drainage of storm water on Center street in front of the E. L. G. Hohenthal property has been remedied through the co-operation of Mr. Hohenthal, the State Highway Department and the town. Mr. Hohenthal gave the right of way for a sewer, the state is doing the work and the town will maintain it. In that way a bad condition is practically done away with.

Storm water which rushes down Laurel and Garden streets from the top of the hill along Chestnut street will be taken care of by an extension of the present system on New street. The gutters and highway in this section are always torn by a heavy rain and the extension will save considerable money in highway repairs. The building of the extension was voted last night.

Another bad condition during storm periods is found at Spruce and Pearl streets. There is no system to carry the water which drains south from East Center street and the residents on the corners along Spruce street suffer when the gutters cannot take care of the flow. A sewer system down Spruce street is proposed and an estimate will be made of the cost.

Another Corner Benton streets, a section comparatively for residences, it is nearly impossible for pedestrians to pass through after a storm. This means that a small construction job and probably will be taken care of before winter sets in.

There are other big jobs in taking care of storm water, such as, that which flows west from the so-called "heights" toward the present dry brook. That alone is one that calls for considerable engineering work, and much construction. It must be dealt with separately and when the town feels that it can afford it.

SOUGHT FAR AND NEAR, FOUND IN OWN TOWN.

Sloux Falls, S. D., Oct. 16.—For more than two years Ned Hanson, a wealthy farmer, wandered over the United States, after having suffered a lapse of memory. The other day, an old neighbor of Hanson's recognized him as he was being carried through the city by a motorist from Jackson, Minn., who had given him a lift.

CHARGES CONTEMPT TO AIMEE LAWYER

Judge Cites Evangelist's Attorney for Fight in Open Court.

Los Angeles, Oct. 16.—After a week featured by the testimony of Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sielaff, which culminated in a fist fight between her attorney, S. S. Hahn, and W. W. Gilbert, chief counsel for the defense, the Aimee Semple McPherson conspiracy case was temporarily halted today.

The preliminary hearing of Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and Mrs. Sielaff, will be continued Monday. The trio is accused of having conspired to produce false evidence in connection with Mrs. McPherson's story of being kidnaped.

Mrs. Sielaff finished her third day on the witness stand yesterday. Miss Bernice Morris secretary to R. A. McKinley, who was alleged to have been negotiating with Mrs. McPherson to produce her "kidnapers" followed her. McKinley was killed in an automobile accident several weeks ago.

Asked to Carry On Miss Morris testified that Mrs. McPherson approached her and asked her to carry on the work started by her employer.

The third hectic week of the preliminary hearing was capped by Judge Blake when he cited W. I. Gilbert, defense attorney, for contempt. The citation came as the aftermath of his encounter with Attorney Hahn. Judgment will be reserved until the hearing is concluded.

SEVERAL BIG FOOTBALL GAMES PLAYED TODAY

New York, Oct. 16.—Intercollegiate football will enjoy its fifty-third anniversary today with seven inter-sectional games and a host of important clashes scheduled in the Big Ten, Missouri Valley, Southern and Coast conferences.

The inter-sectional conflicts will be those between Columbia and Ohio State and New York University and Tulane at New York; Pennsylvania and Chicago at Philadelphia; Cornell and Michigan State at Ithaca, N. Y.; Harvard and William & Mary at Cambridge, Mass.; Loyola and Detroit at New Orleans; and Notre Dame and Penn State at South Bend.

These are some of the big games of the day but there are others. Included in this list are Yale and Dartmouth at New Haven, a game that may determine the temporary Eastern leader; Princeton and the Navy at Princeton; another of the East's classic attractions; Syracuse and the Army at West Point; Pittsburgh and Colgate at Pittsburgh; Georgetown and West Virginia at Washington; Washington & Jefferson and Carnegie Tech at Washington, Pa.; and Georgia Tech and Alabama at Atlanta.

LOST! A DUMMY COP! HOW'LL HE USE IT?

Who stole the dummy cop? is a question that is bothering the Manchester police department today.

Sometime during the night the stationary policeman at Main and Charter Oak streets disappeared. The only clue that could be found today was the broken bits of what seemed to be the spokes of an auto wheel. Evidently somebody hit the silent cop, knocked it off its base, and left the scene taking the evidence with him.

Just how the miscreant can use the "cop" is a puzzle. Maybe he's got a lot of chickens, and needs some sort of traffic direction in his coops. For the present, just keep your weather eye open for a stray dummy cop.

OHIO STATE FAVORED.
New York, Oct. 16.—Ohio State is favored to defeat Columbia in their inter-sectional game here this afternoon.

The Scarlet and Gray had a high-class combination a year ago and of the eleven men who participated in the nine to nothing victory over Columbia at Columbus, nine again are at hand.

SECRET SERVICE MENTOR GUARDS YOUNG COOLIDGE

Lives in Same House, Advises Companionships, Sticks Close to Son of President o' Nights.

Amherst, Mass., Oct. 16.—Colonel Edward W. Starling, secret service operative, has been the constant companion and guard of John Coolidge, son of President Coolidge, since Amherst College opened about a month ago.

It is said that the constant presence of a secret service man at the side of young Coolidge is due to threatening letters received by President Coolidge or his son.

Evening Companion
Colonel Starling maintains lodgings in the home of Mrs. Emma F. Lindsey, 3 Northampton Road, where young Coolidge resides, and is constantly in the company of the president's son except for the time he spends in classes and on a few occasions during daylight hours.

During the evening the operative is never out of young Coolidge's company. Both the agent and young Coolidge are close-mouthed. Despite this fact, however, the reason for the agent's presence is an open secret on the college campus.

Colonel Starling keeps to himself when young Coolidge is at class or in the company of fellow students during the afternoon recreation periods.

No Boxing Matches
The Colonel will also see that no incident of a sensational nature occurs, such as the boxing match last year in which young Coolidge was defeated by a Brooklyn student.

The Colonel advises John as to friends, his hours, and at the same time guards closely the boy's health.

It could not be learned what the threatening letters were, but it is understood they have been received at the college. This was shortly before the beginning of the Fall term.

Dad "Afraid of Marriage."
"What's the big idea of the night guard, John?" asked an Amherst student.

"I guess Dad's afraid I'll get married or do something rash like that—that's all there is to it," replied young Coolidge, laughingly.

The President's son took the matter of a bodyguard goodnaturedly, said he didn't mind having the colonel along at night at all.

"Usual Custom"
Washington, Oct. 16.—Following the usual custom of guarding the President's family, Colonel Edward W. Starling of the White House Secret Service force, accompanied John Coolidge, the President's son, to Amherst College and has remained there a few weeks.

Ever since he began his studies at Amherst a Secret Service man has always gone on the train with young Coolidge at the opening of each term and remained there some time until he got settled and the college term was well underway.

New York Woman Loses
Hope of Presentation at Court, Jewels and Faith.

New York, Oct. 16.—Her hope of being presented at the Court of St. James's was shattered when she discovered her husband was a professional crook instead of being the son of the Viscount of Coventry, Mrs. Jessie P. Coventry tearfully testified yesterday.

Mrs. Coventry is 41 and resides at 300 Central Park West.

Here's a Dress for 3 Cents!

Ladies, here's absolutely the latest and most exclusive in dresses. Surely no Parisian model ever wore a gown like this! Monsieur Alphonse Berge, dress designer, who is at the State Theater today and tonight, fashioned this gown on Isabelle Vance Berge, last night in about one minute and a half. All he needed was The Manchester Evening Herald and a handful of pins.

MARIE WILL NOT ALTER HER PLANS

Report She Will Cut Out Visit to California Are Declared Absurd.

Aboard the Leviathan, Oct. 16.—Queen Marie has made no changes in her American itinerary.

"The report from Washington that the queen is eliminating her visit to California is absurd and out of the question," the queen's lady-in-waiting, Mme. Lahevary stated today.

Reports of differences over the queen's tour, due to alleged interference by Lois Fuller, dancing teacher and friend of the queen, were also denied.

The question of professionalism is in danger of being raised with Queen Marie it seems.

Exclusive Contract.

SAVAGE C. LEGION HEAD AS JOHNSON QUILTS

Was Engineer Officer Overseas in War; Election a Victory for East and Mid- dle West.

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—In the most exciting election held since its organization, the American Legion late yesterday elected Howard Paul Savage, of Chicago, national commander for next year.

Savage will lead the Legion on its pilgrimage to France in 1927 for its annual convention and its visit to the battlefields where the A. E. F. fought, and the graves of comrades.

The election was so hotly contested between Savage and J. Monroe Johnson of Marion, S. C., that it was not until the twenty-first ballot that the break came which gave Savage an uncontested finish.

Johnson had jumped into the lead on the first ballot, with 498 to 483 for Savage, but thereafter he gradually lost strength while Savage held practically all of his. A few votes went at times to Thomas Amory Lee, of Topeka, Kan.; Jay W. Williams, of Gettysburg, S. D.; and E. E. Spafford, of New York, despite Spafford's refusal to permit his name to go before the convention, for he had seconded Savage's nomination.

Johnson Withdraws.
On the twenty-first ballot, after Johnson had dropped to 421 votes and Savage stood at 491, with 513 needed for a majority, Johnson walked up to the platform about the middle of the roll call. It was instantly sensed what he intended to do, and a cheer went up from the Savage supporters.

Johnson thanked his friends for their fight to elect him, but said that he thought it best to withdraw. On the next vote Montana still threw its ten votes to Johnson, but Nebraska then switched and voted twenty-five for Savage.

A roar went up from the delegates, who threw flags in the air and waved their canes and standards, and in the midst of the uproar, Lee also withdrew his name, and was followed by Williams, who moved to make the election of Mr. Savage unanimous. This was done, while the Illinois delegates did a snake dance behind their standard.

Mr. Savage was carried to the platform on the shoulders of delegates.

Was With Engineers.
Savage was with the Engineers in the war. He was born in Boone, Iowa, in 1884. His father was a locomotive engineer. He went to Chicago with his mother, three brothers and a sister in 1900 to finish his schooling, attending the Lewis Institute of Technology for three years and the University of Wisconsin one year. He played baseball with the Cubs for two years after leaving school, and then went to work for the South Side elevated railway as a roddman. He Longmeir, Wash., Oct. 16.—Mice have found another use for the cash register. Recently the cash register of a mountain lodge refused to work. Investigation revealed quantities of melon and other seeds stored in its innards by the white-footed deer mice living in the lodge's walls.

BIGGEST DIRIGIBLE FLEES TO SAFETY

Los Angeles, Chased by Western Storm, Reaches Home Port at 4.40 a. m.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 16.—After a race across several states to avoid a storm blowing in the west the Los Angeles, giant navy dirigible, returned here safely at 4:40 a. m. today and was landed on the field by 6:50 a. m. It left Detroit yesterday afternoon at 3:49 o'clock and fled before the storm to the Hudson River valley, where the big ship outdistanced it.

Remembered Sister's Fate
With the memory of the Shenandoah's fate in Ohio last year in mind, Lieutenant Commander Rosendahl cast loose when the storm was coming toward him.

The big ship passed over Buffalo at 9:30 o'clock last night and over Rochester at 10:25.

PITTSBURGH'S LABOR BANK IS IN TROUBLE

Three Officials Held After Dis- appearance of $320,000 in Bonds Is Discovered.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 16.—State Bank Examiners took charge of the Brotherhood Savings and Trust Company, Pittsburgh's only labor bank today, while a thorough investigation of the bank's reported loss of $125,000 to $320,000 to a bond salesman was launched.

Three officials of the bank were held by city detectives on "suspicious person" charges, while the in-vestigation checked the story of E. A. McCrady, president of the bank, that he turned over the huge sum to Charles E. Knapp, a bond salesman, who was to deliver the bonds at McCrady's office, but who disappeared.

The three bank officials held are McCrady, William Kelly, vice president, and J. L. Nelson, treasurer. Frank Redman, who is said to have introduced Knapp to President McCrady, was held on a similar technical charge pending investigation.

OHIO SOLDIERS OUT FOR KILLERS OF COP

Closing In on Two Desperadoes Who Shot Policeman Dead for Accosting Them.

Chillicothe, O., Oct. 16.—National Guard troops early today surrounded a section of Bottomland near here and began closing in on John and Drowdzowsky, two men, of Pomeroy, who are alleged to have shot and killed Policeman Dan Garrett here yesterday.

The posse was formed after two girls, giving the names of Rosetta Doland, 16, of Columbus, and Cleo Webb, of Danville, were captured as they were leaving town. They admitted having lived here as the wives of the Hickmans and implicated their lovers, police say, in the killing.

Garrett was shot down when he accosted the two men in their automobile. He was seeking suspects in a hold-up.

FRANCE WILL DELAY TEST ON DEBT PACT

To Postpone Action Till Febru- ary Home Elections Will Change Situation.

Paris, Oct. 16.—The French government will not ask for ratification of the British and American debt settlements before February. It was learned authoritatively today.

The delay has been decided upon in the hopes that the November elections in the United States and the French senatorial elections in January may change the situation.

The government, it is learned, has made a canvas of the situation and found that there is little chance of the present Parliament ratifying the agreements.

4 MAIL CLERKS HURT IN ACCIDENT ON PENN.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 16.—Four mail clerks were injured at Picher, O., near Dennison, early today when the engine and seven coaches of train No. 65, of the P. and N. Y. lines, New York to St. Louis, were derailed, according to word received at the Pennsylvania line dis- trict office here. The mail car, diner, a club car and four Pullmans were derailed. No passengers were hurt.

BANDITS HIDE IN OLD REFUGE OF "LIGHT HORSE"

Believed to Be at Bay at Chimney Rock, Scene of Revolutionary Retreat; Searchers Close In.

Bound Brook, N. J., Oct. 16.—The spectacular hunt for the eight machine gun bandits who killed one man and wounded two others in the $150,000 mail robbery Thursday morning at Elizabeth, N. J., today had narrowed to a small area around Chimney Rock, two miles from here.

As seventy-five state troopers, comprising the advance guard of 50 armed men who are participating in the most extensive manhunt ever made in the east, closed in on the corner of the Watchung mountains where the bandits are believed to be hiding, a battle appeared imminent this morning.

"Light Horse" Retreat.
If the desperadoes are located in this mountain area, which is twenty miles long and three miles wide, the battle will be fought on the field where General "Light Horse Harry" Lee retreated under British fire shortly before the battle of Princeton 150 years ago.

Hundreds of wealthy residents of the community, fearing they will be moved down by the bandits' machine gun fire, have fled from their homes.

Major Mark Kimberling of the state police will fly over the hatched-in area in a plane today and if he finds any clew of the bandits, 2,000 militiamen will be thrown into the battle at nightfall.

The present attacking force is equipped with rifles, gas bombs and hand grenades.

Two members of the bandit gang have been identified by witnesses of the mail robbery as James J. (Killer) Cunniff and "Bum" Rodgers, New York gunmen. Rewards for the capture of the desperadoes total $20,000.

The total loot, which was originally placed at $300,000, has been reduced in the estimates to about $150,000, as the bandits' deliveries had been made by the mail truck before the bandits' attack.

EVERYBODY DRUNK AS MURDER IS COMMITTED

Coroner Finds Bridgeport Kill- ing Lacks Any Evidence to Support Self Defense.

Bridgeport, Oct. 16.—Another murder case was presented to the consideration of the City Court today when Frank Pultano, 26, was presented on the charge of willfully causing the death of John Drowdzowsky, a neighbor, previous to his appearance in court Pultano heard the decision of Coroner John J. Phelan, handed down today, that Pultano is criminally responsible for his neighbor's death.

Drowdzowsky was shot and instantly killed by a bullet which was fired into his body. Pultano was arrested and declared he had shot Drowdzowsky in self-defense after a quarrel over two dollars which Drowdzowsky owed Pultano's sister, Coroner Phelan finds that no evidence was available to show Pultano acted in self-defense. The coroner says that everyone in the house at the time was intoxicated, that Pultano struck Drowdzowsky over the head with the butt end of a revolver and jumped back when Drowdzowsky started for him after that Pultano jumped the contents of the revolver into his body.

SELF-LOST SOLDIER "TARBOT" IDENTIFIED

Former Buddy Declares He Is George Beaupre, Wounded at Belleau Wood.

Baltimore, Oct. 16.—Israel M. Greenberg, senior clerk in the Baltimore City Bureau of Receipts, has written to the Veterans' Bureau in Washington that he had recognized from newspaper description, "Jerry Tarbot," the nameless Legionnaire, as George Beaupre, a French-Canadian and his "buddy" in the A. E. F.

Greenberg said he served with Beaupre in the Sixteen Company, Fifth Regiment, United States Marines, from June, 1917, to June 6, 1918, when Beaupre, a French-Canadian and his "buddy" in the A. E. F. DISHONEST.

Franklin W. Cristman, dry independent Republican candidate for the United States Senate in New York, told an audience in his state Thursday night that the greatest menace to President Coolidge and his policies lies in the possibility of the re-election of Senator Wadsworth—than whom, as a matter of fact, President Coolidge has had no more powerful supporter in the whole of Congress.

It is plain dishonesty for a person of Cristman's position to ask the support of voters on the pretense that he is concerned with the success of the Coolidge administration, when his nominators frankly admit that they have not the slightest expectation of electing him to the senate and only set him up to bring about the defeat of Wadsworth who refuses to subscribe to their prohibition theories.

The Cristman crowd in New York is out to elect a Democrat to the senate. There is not even the paliation of their helping to elect a dry Democrat, for no dry Democrat is in the race. They hope to defeat Wadsworth out of sheer spite, thus depriving the President's party of a needed vote in the Senate and the President of one of his most loyal, most skillful and most influential senatorial backers.

And then their candidate prates of a menace to the President!

GASTON.

If somebody asks you, quick—just like that—"Who is running for such-or-such an office on the Democratic ticket in Massachusetts?" and if you don't know anything about it but don't care to admit it, there is always one fairly good chance of a way out. You answer, just as quickly, "Col. Gaston." And as like as not you'll be right.

William A. Gaston is almost the only Democrat in Massachusetts with money enough, and the desire to spend it, to be candidate for governor, United States senator, congressman, or any old thing, at any time when his party calls, or can be persuaded to call. All years look alike to the good Colonel, who has a weakness for telling the Boston Irish how he loves them and of believing the Boston Irish when they tell him how they love him, and of not being able to understand how it is that, on election day, all the Boston Irish voters vote for him and yet he gets so very few votes.

The colonel is running for governor again this year. It would be interesting to watch the returns from the Boston wards and see how many of their Celtic ballots go to David I. Walsh and yet, somehow or other, forget to go to Gaston.

The colonel is the original, the middle and the final political comelon of this generation.

GEESE.

It is easy to see trouble ahead for the Great Barrington, Mass., man who craves distinction because he is the owner of a 21 year old goose and who is putting forth tentative claims towards old-age championship for his bird. If his goose were a hen he might stand a good chance of premiership as an owner of ancient poultry—but with a goose, of merely voting age!

If the Barrington man's goose were really a goose, even, it would be different. But she is a child, a flapper, just a gosling. When a goose is a goose she is forty, fifty, likely enough sixty years old. Such is goose maturity.

Not of course, as a rule, among the domesticated creatures that pass as geese, for there are two reasons why these birds seldom attain to real goosehood. In the first place they live wrong, waddling about in a barnyard or a poultry stockade and never taking to the wing. And in the second place their cruel owners cut them off in their adolescence by the axe method.

But ask any old wild goose hunter how old is likely to be the gender that heads the first flock flying south in the autumn or north in the fall—and he will tell you that on the average the wise old chap is probably anywhere from forty-five to fifty and likely enough rising sixty. And if you indicate doubt he will tell you of New England decoy geese that have been kept in the one family during three generations and are known to be three score and more of age.

And then this cheap skate of a Bay Stater comes along with a 21 year old goose, and brags. Ha!

MEDIAVAL.

They served a medieval banquet in Paris a few days ago. The price per plate ran about $50. A multi-millionaire Peruvian magnate gave the banquet to twenty South Americans in honor of Ecuador's minister to France.

Medieval meats, breads, pasties and pastries were prepared from the famous recipes of Taillevent, famous cook to old Charles VII of France, who was known as somewhat of an epicure and gourmand.

One dainty phase of the feast was the serving of the wine. According to old custom, the waiters stuck their thumbs in the wine when serving.

The banquet room was covered with sweet-smelling herbs into which the guests threw their gnawed bones, and where the waiters dumped the general food refuse. There were no forks, and the table was laid with a voluminous cloth serving as napkins as well as used by each guest to wipe the face and hands.

Granting that the novelty of the feast pleased the guests, it would be interesting to know just how they would like this throwback of the years for a permanent thing.

We humans prattle a bit about the efete and decadent modern civilization but any onslaught on hot baths, modern plumbing, and table cutlery sends us scurrying for shelter.

SIDE-TRACKED.

Sir Rider Haggard, whose glamorous tales have given almost as much romance to the world as did the soulful eyes and svelte waistline of Rudolph Valentino, is another so-called great one who found his niche through sheer accident.

He was a serious-minded gentleman who hoped to make a name for himself by writing on agriculture. His most thrilling plots concerned the footprints of a field mouse and the number of kernels on a corn ear.

He wrote a book called "Remarks on Recent Events in Zululand" and nobody bought it.

One Sunday in church Sir Rider and his wife saw a mysteriously beautiful woman. "Let's each imagine a book about her," they said. So they began. Mrs. Haggard wrote only one chapter, but Sir Rider kept right on until he had finished "Dawn." Then came "She," and his name and fortune was made.

Perhaps 75 per cent of our world's great ones got side-tracked before they started to make good.

MUSH.

Midnight has struck, they tell us poetically, for "The Cinderella Girl," known also as "Peaches" Heenan Browning.

It is to be hoped, in the name of a long-suffering public, that midnight really has struck. It is to be hoped that this most nauseating pageant of human monkey-shining ever paraded before us has ended.

But probably that's hoping too much! "Daddy" Browning soon will emit a "come home, I need you, dear, all is forgiven," very likely, and then we'll have it all over again.

Mother-in-Law Catherine Heenan is all to blame, according to one version.

"Peaches" has gone home to Mama Heenan. That lady says that "Peaches" is just nervous wreck and that most of those pearls were imitation, anyway!

How hard can you grit your teeth without cracking 'em? So can we!

PROSPERITY.

Our friend the New Haven Journal-Courier has been at it again. "A national prosperity which breeds corruption in various forms and reaches up to the highest offices within the gift of the people may be questioned as not the best asset the party in power might have in seeking the endorsement of the electorate," breathes the Grandmother.

According to this, in order to make this a land of purity and light and convert all its public officials and employees, down to the last of the several hundred thousand, into plaster saints, we ought to return to the conditions of 1893, when we had real Democratic times and not much to eat.

The people, however, may be hard to convince that they ought to wear Democratic supremacy by way of a penitential hair shirt.

OCTOBER.

What price the July and August vacations, prolific of sunburn, mosquito bites, thunderstorm drenchings, crowds and weariness, and all gone and forgotten and of no effect at all when these marvelous October days come to woo the worker's wits away from his toil with lure of rustling leaves in the woods and lulling whisper of gentle seas on warm golden sands!

When will mankind get wisdom enough to stick to the job in the summer when having a "good time" is a misery, and take his time off in the glory of autumn where every mellow minute of outdoors is worth an hour of sun-baked summer loafing?

Or, anyhow, when will he get sense enough, though he does take his vacation in the torrid season, to take another during the hunter's moon? Even if he has to fire the boss!

Old Masters

All the world's a stage.

And all the men and women merely players: They have their exits and their entrances;

And one man in his time plays many parts, His acts being seven ages. At first the infant,

Mewling and puking in his nurse's arms. And then the whining schoolboy, with his satchel,

And shining morning face, creeping like a small Unwillingly to school. And then the lover,

Sighing like a furnace, with a woeful ballad Made to his mistress' eyebrow. Then a soldier,

Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard, Jealous in honor, sudden and quick in quarrel, Seeking the bubble reputation Even in the cannon's mouth. And then the justice,

In fair round belly with good capon lin'd, With eyes severe, and beard of formal cut,

Full of wise saws and modern instances; And so he plays his part. The sixth age shifts Into the lean and slipper'd pantaloon,

With spectacles on nose and pouch on side, His youthful hose well ser'd, a world too wide For his shrunken shank; and his big many voice,

Turning again toward childish treble, pipes And whistles in his sound. Last scene of all, That ends this strange eventful history,

Is second childishness and mere oblivion, Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything.

—Shakespeare—Jacques' description of the seven ages of man; As You Like It, Act II, Scene VII.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Three-cornered political contests generally are tricky things. They usually mean that one side or the other is split.

Four such contests exist at present in the senatorial field and the divisions all are in the Republican ranks.

Three of them are worrying the regular party leaders a good deal, for this looks like a close year and they can't afford to have quarreling among themselves.

The fourth instance they don't consider so bad. It even gives them cause for a little hope.

First, the Illinois senatorial fight is triangular—Frank L. Smith, regular Republican nominee; Hugh S. Magill, dry independent Republican, and George E. Brennan, very wet Democrat.

Second, there are three Senate candidates in New York—Senator James W. Wadsworth, regular Republican; F. W. Christman, dry independent Republican, and Judge Robert F. Wagner, wet Democrat.

Third, there are three in Oregon—Frederick Steiwer, regular Republican; Senator Robert N. Stanfield, whom Steiwer beat in the primary for renomination, but who is running independently, and Bert Haney, formerly of the shipping board, Democrat.

Fourth and last, there are three in Wisconsin—Governor John J. Blaine, regularly nominated La Follette Republican, which, to the Old Guard, is worse than being a conservative Democrat; J. N. Tittmore, Republican, of the regular type, and T. M. Kearney, Democrat.

It's agreed on all hands that Kearney doesn't stand a chance. Wisconsin Democrats are too few and far between. The race is between Blaine and Tittmore.

If Tittmore wins, the regular Republicans will count it a victory. That's why, in that particular three-cornered fight, though it involves a Republican split, they see a gleam of hope.

The New York situation is regarded as unmitigatedly unpleasant. It always is a very doubtful state, and New York is vitally important. Wadsworth needs every ounce of strength he can muster, and here's the dry wing of his party going over to Christman.

The Republican managers are extremely dubious about New York.

Oregon is not much better. Steiwer has the Republican nomination but Stanfield attacks its fairness and is pretty strong—strong enough, it's thought, to draw heavily from Steiwer's support.

And Haney, the Democrat, is strong, too. There was some prospect he could be elected even before Stanfield came out independently. There's said to be still more prospect now.

Illinois ordinarily is very Republican, but its biggest city, with almost half its population, also is very wet.

True, "down state" the voters are predominantly dry. But with Smith and Magill splitting the "down state" vote and Brennan getting most of Chicago's—if he does—how about that? It has the politicians guessing, anyway.

DISCOURAGING

"Er, er, didn't I speak to you on the train last night?"

"Oh, were you the person who said 'Fares, please?'"—Bulletin, Sydney.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 16.—Since advance reports on fads and fancies of the nation are presumed to emanate from Manhattan, let me report that I have it from my spies and secret agents that the forthcoming dance craze of the winter season is to be called "the gigolo." In honor of those convenient young men of Paris who hire themselves as dancing mates to rich old ladies.

One Mons. Darlo, late of Paris, has introduced it in the New York night clubs. I am told, and since it has few of the shuddersome intricacies of the black-bottom and does not necessitate such expert foot manipulation as the Charleston, it should find some vogue.

As a matter of fact, the one-step and the fox-trot have gone unappreciated, in spite of efforts of dance masters and others to launch this dance and that. A few fancy steppers pick up the trick arrangements but seldom get opportunity to dance them.

At practically all the large dances in New York at this time the Charlestons are viewed as a variety of nuisance. Corners are roped off and announcements posted that the Charleston bounds can use that space and thus give no interference to those who wish to "dance."

So many are the speakies now operating in New York that a number of them now send out agents to help drum up business.

These agents mix casually with the milling crowds about Times Square, pick up acquaintance with curb-stone loungers, and finally broach the proposition: "How'd you like to have a little drink?" New arrivals in town are picked up in hotel lobbies and the agents are paid in free drinks and commisions.

In the old days these "steerers" were known as "barflies." They were the fellows always lingering about waiting for a general setup by some easy spender.

Perhaps never since prohibition came to America has competition among the back-entrance resorts been quite as keen as at present. This is particularly true of the many beer places, since most folk have forgotten exactly what beer tastes like and no longer seem able to distinguish between the near variety and that which comes from Jersey with 5 per cent, or more, alcoholic content. Near beer passes for real beer and real beer is declared to be nowhere near, and so it goes—at 40 cents a mug and thereabouts.

With the advent of the "bar rail" near-beer emporiums the last stand of the male seems to have fallen the great majority.

Women took the vote. Women began to smoke. Women began to cut their hair. Women began to swell the barber shop line. Women began to shoot pool.

There still remained the bar, the brass rail and the sawdust.

Any noon hour of the year you may see a line of bobbed-haired girdles lined along the near-beer cafes, one foot on the rail, a sandwich in one hand, a beer mug in the other. Perhaps it is as well that the saloons will never return.

GILBERT SWAN.

He Served Our Famous Men; Tells About Their Tastes

Hughie McCaull, of West Side, a Waiter for 40 Years Describes What Foods Were Chosen by Notables in Business, Literary, Stage and Sporting Circles.

When the modern Sheik and his lady fair dine at a classy restaurant it is the custom for the sheik to steal the tiny lobster fork and his companion to parlor the demi tasse spoon. They explain the theft by saying they took them for souvenirs.

But do they get away with it? Ask Hughie McCaull, he knows. They could swipe the tablecloth for all a care," he says. "All you do is put down double the cost of the missing articles on the bill. Simple isn't it? They never complain. The easiest mark in the world is the modern Sheik dining in a classy restaurant accompanied by a girl."

This from a waiter of forty years' experience carries weight when it is explained that he worked in some of New York's most famous eating houses and served many of the world's celebrities.

Is 57 Years Old
Hugh McCaull lives at 218 West Center street. "I'm 58 years old," he said. "You are 57" said his wife. "Therefore the subject of this sketch is 57 years of age."

"Shanley's, probably the most famous restaurant in the United States had a great system for the waiters. As you prepared your knife, fork, spoon, plate or anything that you took out. When you brought out a plate of soup you were charged with it. With this check on a waiter he naturally had to serve all nothing was stolen so even though the Sheik or his lady fair thought they were getting away with it, they were sadly mistaken because before the bill was made out the waiter checked up on his list and whatever was missing he put it in the bill and at double the value. If the Sheik complained and he seldom did, we would tell them what the charge was for."

Mr. McCaull is the typical waiter with one exception, he is not flat-footed. "I don't know how I escaped falling arches but I did," he explained. "Although I have never seen an old time waiter who was not flat-footed."

He was then induced to give some of his experiences as a waiter in famous New York hostleries. He said he started to work at the Niagara House in Brooklyn which was the gathering place of Brooklyn celebrities. Secretary of the Navy Ben. Tracy, under President Benjamin Harrison always asked that McCaull wait on him. He also served Pat McCarran, "Boss" McLaughlin and John Y. McKane. The latter was described by newspapers at the time as "the crookedest politician in America," but Mr. McCaull said he never met a finer gentleman in his life. McKane was the political boss of Coney Island and for a price would deliver the votes for any man willing to pay enough for them. He finally was caught and served time in prison.

Simple Tastes
McCarran was probably the best known politician in the east and his order at the Niagara House was "two dropped eggs on toast and a cup of coffee." I never served him anything else for years and years," said the veteran waiter.

After some years in Brooklyn, the local man went to New York where he was employed at John Annis' grill rooms on Fourteenth street, another famous gathering place for politicians. Here he served Richard Crocker, Tammany chieftain and Charles Murphy, who succeeded him as head of the great New York Democratic organization.

"Crocker would order one lamb chop, some cracked eggs, a bowl of milk. He never ate at banquets and was always troubled with indigestion."

Great Listeners
"Crocker and Murphy were the world's greatest listeners. If there were four men at a table and one man silent all of the time with the three others doing all the talking you could always guess that the silent one was either Crocker or Murphy. Murphy, however, was a hearty eater and his favorite order was an English flat bone steak."

"Were these men liberal with their tips?"
"Very liberal as were all the big political leaders in New York forty years ago."

Long Dinners
"A dinner in those days was a sort of ceremony. Of course drinks were served and the dinners would last four or five hours. Nowadays a dinner or what is called a dinner last about the same number of minutes."

In those days and he was speaking of forty years ago, English chop houses were the rage in New York. "There were not many restaurants then because all of the saloons served free lunches and the hotels along Broadway gave away elaborate meals so what was the use of spending fifty cents for a meal in a restaurant when you could walk into any of those places and although they charged ten cents for a small glass of beer you could get a good meal with it for nothing," Mr. McCaull remarked.

For many seasons the veteran waiter was employed on Long Island near the Mowatt race track. Here he met many of the leading men in sport circles. Among them were Captain Jacob Wise, "Father Bill" Daly, who by the way was born in Bolton, Lottie Gilson, the famous actress, Weber and Fields, Primrose and West, Weber and Fields were America's most famous comedians and Primrose and West were the big men in the minstrel world in those days.

His Observations
"It was a pleasure to wait on famous people," said Mr. McCaull. "It seems that the bigger a man or woman was in his or her field, the better they were to waiters. Their tastes were simple, for the most part. My forty years as a waiter has taught me that it is always the man with about fifty cents to spend who throws the biggest bluff in a restaurant. He complains about any one thing and makes his bill for service. The really important people are the easiest to serve. I suppose that is why they became famous."

Knew Champion
At the Avoca Villa, a well known New York Hotel, Mr. McCaull made the acquaintance of Jack McAuliffe, lightweight champion boxer of the world. The champion would order a cup of coffee and a pack of cards late at night and ask McCaull to play with him if business was not brisk. For several years he played cards with McAuliffe.

The quietest and kindest gentleman I ever saw" was his comment on the champion's behavior. "You would never guess that he was a prize fighter if you were not told what his profession was. He was clean living, had no bad habits and was a soft speaking man. He just could not pick a quarrel with him."

Delmonico Dined On Simplest Foods; "Beefsteak John" Ate At Delmonico's

It has been said that if you mentioned "Delmonico" anywhere in the civilized world it would mean the name of the world's most famous hotel, the greatest chefs that money could hire and most important of all, the world's best foods.

From this you would think Delmonico, the man who created this wonderful establishment, would eat his own food, wouldn't you?

Delmonico dined at Jerry O'Neill's Chop House, Twenty-second street and Sixth avenue, New York, and Hughie McCaull, of 218 West Center street, waited on him.

What do you imagine this man ordered when he dined, with a word, have brought to him delicacies from the four quarters of the globe? A dozen raw oysters.

Delmonico made millions by catering to the most fastidious tastes.

Now the other side of the restaurant business. At the other end of the city, in Park Row, was "Beefsteak John," a man weighing 300 pounds, who dined made millions by serving five cent beefsteaks. He lived at the most exclusive hotels in Manhattan and was a familiar figure at Delmonico's.

where I saw the original "Wild Man from Borneo." That fake has been worked ever since but the original must be dead these many years?

World's Worst Actor
"About the same time I saw James Owen O'Connor, probably the most eccentric actor on the American stage. He thought he was a tragedian. I say that advisedly for I do not believe that anybody else thought he was an actor. I am safe in saying he was the worst actor in the history of the world and everybody knew it but O'Connor himself. He played at Wallack's theater and so many dead cats and decayed vegetables were thrown at him that later he did his turn behind a net so he could not be hit by the audience. I do know that on the night I saw him at Wallack's the stage hands made a small fortune by picking up the dead cats and vegetables and selling them to the audience to throw over again. That may seem like a lie but it is a fact, nevertheless. I think O'Connor was crazy but he kept on acting and at times would hire a theater out of his own money to get a chance to act and the public would jam the place to see him. He was a scream and I don't believe I ever laughed so heartily in my life as I did when I saw him on the stage dodging the vegetables."

John L.'s Appetite
"At the time I am speaking about, Castle Garden is what now is the aquarium and all around Bowling Green were concert halls. I worked in a grill room managed by J. L. Wakenly and here met such famous men as Leggett, of the chain drug stores, Charles Mitchell, the English champion boxer, Jake Kilrain who was knocked out by John L. Sullivan and the great John L. himself. John could eat more than four men. He could drink considerable liquor and at times, while in his cups he would come around carrying his famous diamond belt.

Service Better
"How was the service compared to these days?"
"The service was better in the old days. A waiter had to take care of more eating utensils. There were various kinds of glasses for the wines and liquors and the diners were more elaborate but I believe that the tipping has changed for the better. That came about, I believe from the fact that the present day young man wants to make a hit with his girl and as a result tips more than he can afford. In the old days the young man were more sensible. I think."

White at work at the Niagara Hotel, the local waiter served William A. Brady, the theatrical man whose daughter Alice made such a hit in the movies.

"He also was a quiet man with simple tastes. In those days Hyde and Beaman's was the big theater in Brooklyn. About the same time there was a museum on Fulton street known as 'Holmes' Museum'

His Cousin a Jockey
"Tod" Sloan was the best of the trio and he later worked for the crown heads in Europe and made and lost a half dozen fortunes. Acc by the way while I am talking about jockeys I might as well mention the fact that Archie McIntyre the jockey who rode under the colors of the Queen of Roumania, now on her way to the United States, is my cousin. He lives in North Bergen, N. J., married in Europe and whenever he is home and I am in New York I go over to Jersey to visit him. That youngster could ride a horse even before he learned to walk. That is no lie for I've seen him on an old farm horse when he was a couple of years old and he was not a bit afraid. He started at the old Guttenberg race track and was riding at the same time that Danny Maher was famous. You know Danny came from Hartford and in time became the world's greatest jockey. He came after "Tod" Sloan who had grown too old to amount to much on the turf."

The conversation then reverted to restaurants again as the waiter is perfectly at home on this subject because of his many years' experience.

"For forty years ago, how much did it cost for a substantial meal?"
Fifty Cent Meal
"Well you could get soup, an entrée of fish, meat, three vegetables, pudding and coffee for fifty cents. That same meal would cost $1.70 now. Prices have gone up all along the line. A young fellow in those days could start out with his girl of an evening with a couple of dollars in his pocket take her to a show, treat her to supper and have carfare left. The same kind of time now would cost between seven and eight dollars."

Served Celebrities

When he started on the down grade he hooked the belt for a thousand dollars. I don't know whatever became of it. It was worth many thousands and for a time was on display behind Charley Johnson's bar, Orange and Fulton streets, Brooklyn.

"At that time I was a great baseball fan and on Sunday would go see the old Atlantic Club play. I believe this was the first team of professional players in the United States."

Sharkey Liberal
"Tom Sharkey was another boxer I served. His order was a round bone sirloin, potatoes with jackets on and a pot of tea. He never drank and if he ever gave a tip to a waiter or anybody else, I never heard about it. They used to have a standing joke in New York those times.

Every time a parade passed up or down Broadway and one man would ask another what was it about, the second man would invariably reply: Tom Sharkey must have spent a nickel.

"There really was no money in actually fighting those days. There were purses of a couple of hundred dollars hung up. The boxers made what little money they got by appearing at shows in exhibition bouts.

A great place for these bouts was the Old London Concert Hall. Between the acts the patrons went down to the basement to get drunk.

"As I moved further uptown I got to know big men in the business world like Simpson, the shoe man, Weber, the largest meat packer in New York, Crawford, of Simpson and Crawford. They all had simple tastes. A small chop, a few potatoes, a pot of tea.

"I was once employed on the Steamer Slocum that burned up on the East river with the loss of 800 or 900 persons and on the day it burned my employer sent me to work on another ship. If that wasn't

Fate I'd like to know what is for I did not miss a day on the Slocum that whole summer.

"During the summer season I generally worked on the Iron Steamboat Company's boats that ply between the Battery and Coney Island. I saw more lovmaking in one day than a person can see in a 100 years. In those days lovmaking was done openly on boats and trolley cars. The young people thought nothing of it."

"Could you tell when a newly married couple came into a restaurant for the first time?"
"Easiest thing in the world. If he did not neglect his wife he had not been wed more than three months."

"In the uptown restaurants I met such men as Homer Davenport, America's greatest cartoonist; Charles Cook, star reporter of the New York Herald and the great actor James Thornton who wrote 'Sweet Adeline.' One night at Hammerstein's theater Jim's name was out in front in six-foot electric lights. The house was packed to hear him. The stage manager, after a long wait, came before the curtain with an alleged telegram in his hand saying that he had just received word that Jim was called home by a sick father. At that moment Jim was giving his $2,000 a week monologue, free before a bunch of men on a side street right around the corner from the theater. And to keep from falling down he had one arm around a lamp post. I know because I was one of the crowd."

During the interview McCaull sent getting his big Newfoundland dog "Echo," a pet of many years. His wife was present as was his mother-in-law Mrs. Bridget Lyness who has lived in the same house for 62 years. The family came to Manchester from New York fifteen years ago and have lived here since. There are two sons. Mr. McCaull is now in business in Hartford on Trumbull street.

New Lower Prices Still Greater Values

Lighter Six Chrysler "60" Prices
(Effective Midnight October 9th)

	OLD PRICES	NEW PRICES	SAVINGS
Club Coupe	$1165	$1125	$40
Coach	$1195	$1145	$50
Sedan	$1295	$1245	$50

Touring Car $1075; Roadster $1145
All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax.

The new lower prices now announced for the Chrysler "60" are made possible by vastly increased sales and production. The ever-growing demand for all four Chrysler models—"50", "60", "70" and Imperial "80"—produce savings now coming to you in the refined, lower-priced "60".

The added economies which come from this volume of more than a thousand Chrysler cars per day have their root and source in Chrysler Standardized Quality. This unique plan of coordination between scientific engineering and precision manufacturing gives Chrysler "60" its remarkable value—evidenced by a speed ability of 60 miles and more per hour, dashing flexibility, matchless economy, smoothness, handling ease, comfort and long life—qualities which placed Chrysler "60", even at its old prices, far beyond comparison.

Today, at its new lower prices—with exactly the same performance ability, with exactly the same quality—the Chrysler "60" stands forth more emphatically than ever; a value not even remotely approached by any other light six in the industry.

Sixty miles, and more, per hour. Pick-up of 5 to 25 miles in 7 1/2 seconds. Amazing economy of 22 miles to the gallon. Characteristic Chrysler smartness and beauty. Phenomenal riding ease. Chrysler four-wheel hydraulic brakes. Oil-filter and air-cleaner. Full pressure lubrication. Seven-bearing crankshaft. Impulse neutralizer. Manifold heat control. Road levelers, front and rear. Chrysler proved long life. Roomy, luxurious bodies with beautiful upholstery in enclosed models. Attractive new color harmonies.

HERE! First - last and all the time SAFETY! THERE!

Hugh McCaull.

When he started on the down grade he hooked the belt for a thousand dollars. I don't know whatever became of it. It was worth many thousands and for a time was on display behind Charley Johnson's bar, Orange and Fulton streets, Brooklyn.

"At that time I was a great baseball fan and on Sunday would go see the old Atlantic Club play. I believe this was the first team of professional players in the United States."

Sharkey Liberal
"Tom Sharkey was another boxer I served. His order was a round bone sirloin, potatoes with jackets on and a pot of tea. He never drank and if he ever gave a tip to a waiter or anybody else, I never heard about it. They used to have a standing joke in New York those times.

Every time a parade passed up or down Broadway and one man would ask another what was it about, the second man would invariably reply: Tom Sharkey must have spent a nickel.

"There really was no money in actually fighting those days. There were purses of a couple of hundred dollars hung up. The boxers made what little money they got by appearing at shows in exhibition bouts.

A great place for these bouts was the Old London Concert Hall. Between the acts the patrons went down to the basement to get drunk.

"As I moved further uptown I got to know big men in the business world like Simpson, the shoe man, Weber, the largest meat packer in New York, Crawford, of Simpson and Crawford. They all had simple tastes. A small chop, a few potatoes, a pot of tea.

"I was once employed on the Steamer Slocum that burned up on the East river with the loss of 800 or 900 persons and on the day it burned my employer sent me to work on another ship. If that wasn't

Fate I'd like to know what is for I did not miss a day on the Slocum that whole summer.

"During the summer season I generally worked on the Iron Steamboat Company's boats that ply between the Battery and Coney Island. I saw more lovmaking in one day than a person can see in a 100 years. In those days lovmaking was done openly on boats and trolley cars. The young people thought nothing of it."

"Could you tell when a newly married couple came into a restaurant for the first time?"
"Easiest thing in the world. If he did not neglect his wife he had not been wed more than three months."

"In the uptown restaurants I met such men as Homer Davenport, America's greatest cartoonist; Charles Cook, star reporter of the New York Herald and the great actor James Thornton who wrote 'Sweet Adeline.' One night at Hammerstein's theater Jim's name was out in front in six-foot electric lights. The house was packed to hear him. The stage manager, after a long wait, came before the curtain with an alleged telegram in his hand saying that he had just received word that Jim was called home by a sick father. At that moment Jim was giving his $2,000 a week monologue, free before a bunch of men on a side street right around the corner from the theater. And to keep from falling down he had one arm around a lamp post. I know because I was one of the crowd."

During the interview McCaull sent getting his big Newfoundland dog "Echo," a pet of many years. His wife was present as was his mother-in-law Mrs. Bridget Lyness who has lived in the same house for 62 years. The family came to Manchester from New York fifteen years ago and have lived here since. There are two sons. Mr. McCaull is now in business in Hartford on Trumbull street.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Aaron Burr (4)

The men who endured the hardships of Benedict Arnold's expedition to Quebec, spoke warmly of the courage of Aaron Burr. The soldiers, near starvation, were reduced to eating reptiles and dogs. It was fifty days after leaving Newburyport before the troops saw the lights of Quebec.

Arnold had to announce his arrival to General Montgomery at Montreal and Burr was chosen for the dangerous duty.

Knowing that the French still rebelled at British rule, Burr disguised himself as a priest and went to the house of a learned father.

Burr revealed his true character and asked for assistance. The priest tried to dissuade Burr, but was finally prevailed upon to furnish a horse and crude carriage. Burr made the trip of 120 miles with difficulties, and Montgomery was so pleased he made him a captain on his staff. (Continued)

C. B. A. A. SETBACK TOURNAMENT OPENS WITH 76 PARTICIPANTS

Big Increase in Number of Players; High Scores Take Home Turkeys for Dinner

Once more the ever-popular setback stiffs are in progress among the employees of Cheney Brothers. Four separate tournaments are to be held during the cold winter months. Each will have six sessions.

The first sitting of the first tournament was held Thursday night at the School street Rec and the attendance surpassed that reached at any time last season. Seventy-six participated. The high scorers were Calvert and Irwin and as a result each tugged a nice fact turkey home.

The next sitting will be held Thursday night at the East Side Rec at 7.30. The sessions this year will start at this hour instead of 8 o'clock.

Following are the results of the first sitting which shows who are playing in the tournament. Hereafter only the first ten names will be mentioned except at the close of the tournaments. The list:

Player	Score
Calvert-Irwin	152
Torstenon-Bieu	146

1st for 9 consecutive Years

For the ninth consecutive year Buick has won first choice of space at the National Automobile Shows. This is Leadership! For this honor goes annually to the member of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce with the year's largest volume of business.

For any other car to equal this would mean retaining continuous leadership until 1936—almost another decade.

The industrial history of America records no more brilliant achievement than these nine successive years of Buick dominance.

TWO REVERSE PASSES NEVER'S BEST THRILL

Star Describes How Stanford Tied California Who Was Leading 20-6 With Six Minutes to Play.

BY ERNIE NEVERS
All-American Fullback, 1925.
(Copyright, 1926, N. E. A.)

"What is the greatest thrill you got out of football during your three years at Stanford?"

No question is put to me oftener by football enthusiasts than that one. And believe me it's a fairly tough task to answer it.

I can recall any number of long forward passes, thrilling end runs, goals from the field in a pinch and various other forms of thrills common to football.

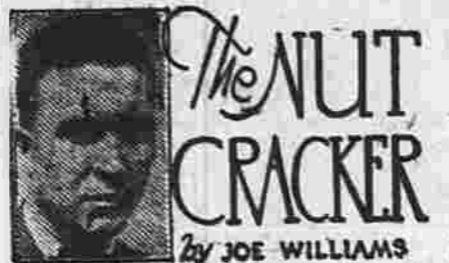

After a month I thought I doubt if I ever quite the kick out of any situation as I did from two reverse passes we pulled against California.

Perhaps it was the playing a game with California that makes those two reverse passes stand out as the biggest thrills of my entire career.

With six minutes to play, California was leading Stanford 20-6. It was evident to our coach, Glenn Warner, that some speedy action, involving real deception, was necessary if Stanford was to have a chance to save the day.

The reverse pass was signaled for as a play that might upset the opposition.

The first bit of strategy pulled in connection with the passes had nothing to do with the actual completion of the plays, but was simply deception.

For a while it looked as if the world series and the Daugherty trial would both run over into the spring tennis season.

Historians are undecided whether to list Sisler as a former manager or a former mis-manager of the Browns.

Ruth's demand for a $150,000 contract was no doubt inspired by his knowledge that there is no law against demanding.

If what we hear about the veteran pitcher is true, Mr. Berlin's old song will have to be changed to "Alexander's Jag-Line Band."

Off-hand, we'd say that Tex Rickard is the only guy in the world who has a chance to bring about a return match between Peaches and Browning.

THE NEWSPAPERS INTIMATE THAT GENE TUNNEY IS ABOUT TO BE MARRIED INTO THE ROCKEFELLER FAMILY.

After all, the real hero of the series was the wild-eyed insect who sat behind the Cardinals' dugout in St. Louis and rooted for the Yanks.

When the boys get around to figuring out the best high school football team of the year, Harvard will have to come in for a lot of consideration.

Walter Eckersall writes in a current magazine about an Illinois punter who used to run down and catch his own kicks.

Right after the series closed Ruth visited a hospital to cheer up a sick friend. We don't know whether it was Koenigs or Meusel.

"VICTIM LIST" SHOWS 5 DEFEATED HUSBANDS

Reinartz, as Usual, Tastes Two Defeats While Anderson Is Also "Spanked."

No less than four names are found on the first "victim list" to be "issued" by the officials of the Married Peoples' Bowling League which held its opening fall session Thursday night at the West Side Rec. The spouses still rule.

Those who were defeated by their wives were: Reinartz 2, Anderson.

Johnny Reinartz, who lead the league in defeats last year, got away to a flying start, losing twice to his better-half, Ed Montie, the only one to escape defeat last season.

WEST POINT SEES BIG GAME TODAY

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 16.—While the eyes of the big three may rest on Dartmouth and Yale today, and the orbs of the West lean heavily toward Pennsylvania and Chicago, the gaze of all Uncle Sam's soldiers peer across the miles from a score of outposts toward this historic old point.

For the Army, in meeting Syracuse, is undergoing its baptism of fire today, the baptism that will make or break it as a contender for national honors.

West Point had such a football team as "Biff" Jones drives this year and not in a decade have their hopes for supreme honors been as bright.

Arville (Tiny) Hewitt, the Wilkesburg howitzer, in the West Pointers can exhibit one of the most compelling drives in current football.

At New York—Joe Dundee of Baltimore won decision from Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh in the second round.

GENERAL SHAKEUP IN BOWLING LEAGUE

Only Four Teams Entered and Weaving Mill Monopoly Believed to Have Been Ended in C. B. A. A. Circuit.

There will be a general shakeup in the Senior bowling league at Cheney Brothers this season. Instead of six, there will be but four teams.

This, coupled with the fact that the Weaving mill team which has won the "pennant" for the past few years, will be split up, should all go toward the improvement of the league from a competition standpoint.

There are many who have expressed the hope of seeing the monopoly of the Weaving mill broken and with the news that this season's team from that mill will not be intact, it appears that their wish will be realized.

The league will start a week from Monday night. A special meeting will be held Monday night to perfect plans and to draw up the schedule.

BIG CROWD FLOCKS TO YALE-DARTMOUTH GAME

New Haven, Oct. 16.—A big crowd of Dartmouth adherents as well as the usual throng of Yale boosters flocked into town this morning to witness the Yale-Dartmouth football game at the Bowl this afternoon.

The lineup for the start of the game was given out this morning as follows:

Yale	Dartmouth
Quarrier	LE
Sturhahn	LG
Harvey	LC
Charlesworth	C
Vandergrift	RG
Fishergit	RT
Bunnel (Capt)	RE
Noble	Q
Footo	LHB
Kline	RHB
	Horton (Capt)

Officials for the game will be: W. R. Crowley, Bowdoin, referee; W. R. Okeson, Lehigh, umpire; F. W. Murphy, Brown, linesman; E. J. O'Brien, Tufts, field judge.

The game is scheduled to start at 2:30 o'clock.

Manchester's football menu for the week-end contains two games, each well worth attending.

This afternoon the South Manchester High school will swap line-backs with West Hartford in a Central Connecticut Inter-scholastic league game at the McKee street stadium starting at 2:30.

Tomorrow afternoon at Hickey's Grove, Manchester fans will find ample entertainment for the Sabbath. The crack Bearcats, undisputed champions of Waterbury, are coming here to oppose the Cloverleaves, who, since their organization two years ago, have never felt the sting of defeat.

Both games are deserving of strong support from Manchester fans.

"Brick" Muller, Ex-California Star, Looms As Rival For "Red" Grange

Chicago.—Sun-kissed "Brick" Muller, the former University of California star, is looming as a genuine rival of "Red" Grange in America's professional football ranks.

Wide interest in Muller and his Los Angeles National or Buccaneers has been shown in early season play of the pros.

Muller is the stocky California end who made history on the slopes of the Pacific in 1921 when he forward-passed to victory the Golden Bear eleven over the powerful Ohio State team.

The game was played in Pasadena's poinsettia-decked Rose Bowl and when Muller was through, he had hung up a 28 to 0 win.

Five years have rolled by since Muller was in his prime but he has kept in condition to some extent by playing club football on the coast. He also has been active as a coach since he graduated at Berkeley and his knowledge of the game is thorough.

With Muller is "Tut" Imlay, the former University of California halfback, a sensation in coast ranks in recent years. He also has another California back in Young and Maul, fullback, formerly played at Berkeley.

Nolan and McArthur, the Los Angeles guards, played their college days at Santa Clara university, the California school long noted as a producer of star football players.

Forward passes availed Yale and Georgia but little in their recent clash at New Haven. Of the 30 heaves attempted but seven were successful. Unusual skill in breaking up the over-head passes was the reason for the small number of completed tosses.

BLUES-STEAMROLLERS AT HARTFORD SUNDAY

Hartford, Oct. 16.—Hartford's Blues and Providence's Steamrollers meet at the Velodrome here tomorrow afternoon in the first football battle for the professional championship of New England and from all reports should furnish a thrilling engagement.

Both teams are members of the newly reorganized National League, which includes the Philadelphia North Stars, New York Giants, Brooklyn Lions and many other strong organizations in the East and Middle West with Los Angeles representing the Pacific coast.

Hartford and Providence are the only New England members and their rivalry is expected to feature the league season.

The Steamrollers' great backfield, which includes Jackson Keefe, Curly Oden and Cy Wentworth, needs little introduction. Keefe and Oden ran wild for Brown University teams in the East and wentworth was a New Hampshire State star.

Charley Corgan of Kansas City, who also carries an immense baseball reputation as shortstop for the Jersey City club in the International League, is directing the Hartford club on the field and since his acquisition the team has shown remarkable improvement.

He will be assisted by the Syracuse flash, Shrimp Sevey, the 205-pound plunger and passer from the University of Texas, Louis Smythe; the speedy Alabamian, Eddie McEvoy, and Fordham's captain and fullback, Jim Manning.

WEST POINT SEES BIG GAME TODAY

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 16.—While the eyes of the big three may rest on Dartmouth and Yale today, and the orbs of the West lean heavily toward Pennsylvania and Chicago, the gaze of all Uncle Sam's soldiers peer across the miles from a score of outposts toward this historic old point.

Arville (Tiny) Hewitt, the Wilkesburg howitzer, in the West Pointers can exhibit one of the most compelling drives in current football.

At New York—Joe Dundee of Baltimore won decision from Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh in the second round.

At Los Angeles—Doc Snell won decision over Jimmy McLarnin of Belfast, ten rounds.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At New York—Joe Dundee of Baltimore won decision from Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh in the second round.

At San Francisco—Young Thompson of Los Angeles won technical knockout over Billy Adams of New Orleans, in fifth round.

At Warwick—Young Strubling of Atlanta knocked out Lou Rollinger in the third round.

At Paterson, N. J.—Jack de Mave of Hoboken, N. J. won from Jack Warren of Chicago, ten rounds.

At Savannah—Babe McCoray of New York knocked out Battling Finch of Savannah in the second round.

At Tampa—Sammy Vogel of New York won decision from Armando Shekels of Belgum, ten rounds.

JOE DUNDEE LOGICAL WELTER CHALLENGER

New York, Oct. 16.—There was no doubt in the minds of fight experts today that the outstanding challenger for the welterweight crown of Pete Latzo is Joe Dundee of Baltimore who last night defeated Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh in a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

Zivic, after a good start, succumbed to the straight punching and untrusting aggressiveness. He had Dundee on the ropes in the eighth but lost the remaining rounds with the exception of the second and third.

NORTH ENDS MEET CLAY HILLS HERE

After two cancellations, one by the Laurel Club of Unionville and one by the Plainville Blues, the North Ends will play the strong Clay Hills of Hartford in the preliminary game to the Cloverleaf Bearcat game tomorrow. This game will start promptly at 1:30 o'clock.

The Clay Hills were defeated by the North Ends two Sundays ago by the close score of 8-7. Realizing the poor offense, which resulted in only one first down, the Clay Hills will have an almost entirely new backfield, only one back of the last game playing tomorrow.

The North Ends under the coaching of Ray Noonan have put in two nights of hard practice and are out to show their supremacy over the Clay Hills. The fans will be watching Mike Sacher's line plunging and the aerial attack with great interest to see if the Clay Hills can stop them which they were unable to do in their last appearance.

NAVY AND PRINCETON HAVE HOSPITAL LISTS

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 16.—Princeton tackles Navy in Parmer stadium here this afternoon in the most important test that either eleven has faced so far. The Tiger has far to smooth after the showing against Washington and Lee on last Saturday. Princeton didn't look too good, and just about escaped with a tie. Navy has shown to somewhat better advantage than its rival, but not enough to give it any decided edge.

Princeton will take the field with Captain Jack Davis on the side lines still nursing his pet tie ear. Jackie Slagle is hors du combat and will not be back until the Harvard game.

THE NUT CRACKER

For a while it looked as if the world series and the Daugherty trial would both run over into the spring tennis season.

Historians are undecided whether to list Sisler as a former manager or a former mis-manager of the Browns.

EMERSON CAREY
Cornell

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Gridiron followers at Cornell are looking forward to a strong eleven this fall. It may not be as formidable as some of the famous Big Red teams of a few years ago, but an aggregation likely to make a lot of trouble seem certain. Last year the Ithacans skipped through the chase with just two defeats, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania being the only schools to trip Dobbie's boys. T. is fall Cornell faces. CAREY =

One of its toughest schedules in a long stretch, and it will have to be a first-class outfit to come near equalling performances of past Big Red elevens.

Emerson Carey will lead the Ithaca lads this fall. Carey plays guard. He's a powerful fellow, strong on both offense and defense. It's a big hole he opens when his team has the ball while his position is almost impregnable against the onrushes of the foe.

Carey is a veteran and ranks as one of the best linemen Cornell has had in several seasons. With him leading the eleven Cornell will not be lacking in capable leadership.

Germaine Wonders What To Buy; Reds Are "In" Muslim Appears In Evening Gowns

The WOMAN'S DAY

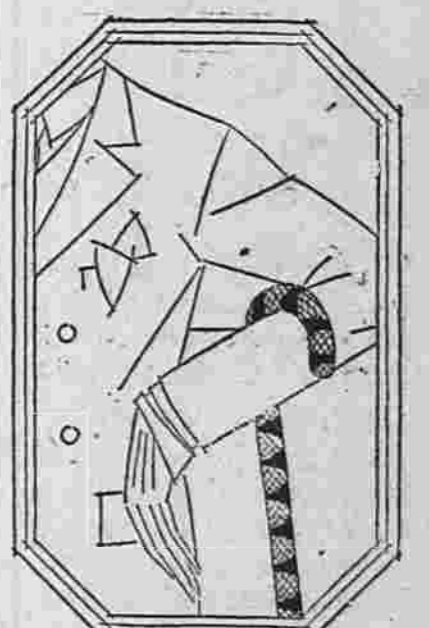

Queen Marie dieted for a svelte figure before she went to Paris to buy new togs for her American trip, we are told. And over this syphilike flapper "digger" the queen draped a fur-trimmed coat of beige and green velvet with a close little toque of velvet and beige upon her golden locks.

papa living near Paris killed himself because his two daughters had their hair cut. It may be heartless, but I can't help thinking how lucky the girls are without such a fool parent!

It took Suzanne Lenglen to dare say it and make the saying mean something. Suzanne came right out in meeting and said that tea gowns and afternoon frocks were as dead as bustles, and that the only clothes a woman needs today are sport clothes to be worn all day long, and evening gowns.

Alberta Hoppe, 18, won the recent honor of being judged the healthiest farm girl in 12 mid-western states. Alberta will compete for the national health championship soon. One wonders just how much Alberta prizes her health laurels. If she's the average girl she would probably entuse much over "a prettiest girl" title, which is just why no matter how loudly all the health experts howl about the ruin of modern girls' health by dieting, girls will keep it up as long as they know they look pretty.

Some women dress "fit to kill" dad's bank roll.

About the only feminine mystery left is why she doesn't spend the afternoon at home occasionally.

To a Lady's Handkerchief. Oh little dab of lace silk, Perfumed slightly like a rose; A breath of Romance and of Love, In you milady blows her nose.

Nobody can say that the modern girl has no visible means of support.

Before marriage a man spends all of his money on her and afterwards she spends it on herself!

Some men are natural born optimists and others think they can open a milk bottle with their thumb.

INTELLIGENCE TESTS

A BIBLE STUDY.

These questions, all taken from the Bible, will show your familiarity with well-known Biblical incidents. The correct answers appear on another page.

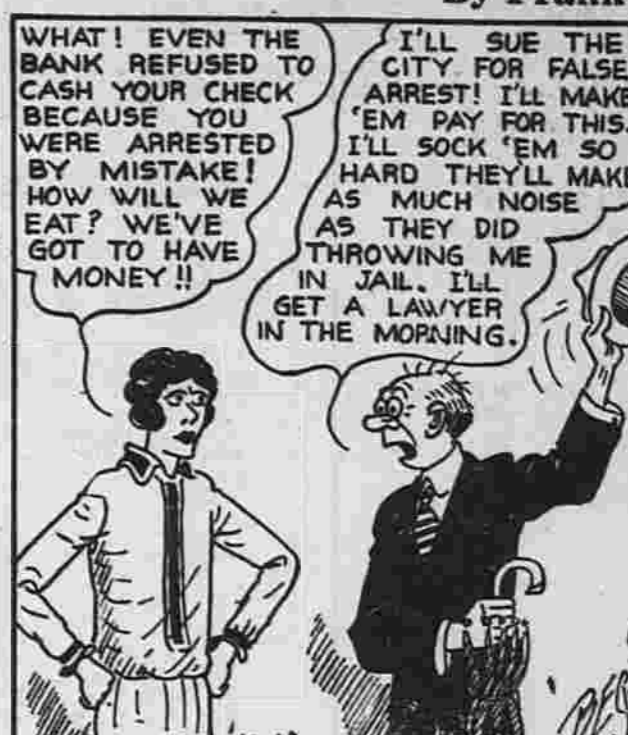

- 1-What incident in Biblical history does the accompanying scene portray? 2-What was God's punishment of the serpent for tempting Eve to eat the forbidden fruit? 3-Where did Cain go after he killed Abel? 4-What bird was the first that Noah sent out of the ark? 5-Who was the girl that Jacob was tricked into marrying? 6-What is the meaning of Genesis? 7-Where did Noah's ark land? 8-What was the name of Cain's son? 9-Who anointed the feet of Jesus with oil and wiped his feet with her hair? 10-Who was the angel that gave Jesus his name?

THE TINYMITES BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) The Tynymites were worried now. "We've got to climb this hill somehow," said Copy, as they gathered round and strained their little eyes. "It's steep and long, and my, or me, how we'll get up I can't see. It seems as if the top of it is way up in the skies." "Aw, shucks," snapped Scouty, "don't be 'fraid. I'm sure that we can make the grade. We Boy Scouts learn to do such things as climb long hills like this. Just don't give in. Make up your mind, and you can do hard things, you'll find. I'm sure that if we'll only try, we will not go amiss." So, up they started, one by one, and after all, it seemed like fun. They grabbed a hold of twigs and rocks while traveling along. Then Scouty saw that Clowzy still was at the bottom of the hill. He turned around and shouted back, "Hey, Clowzy, what is wrong?" "Poor Clowzy waved his hand and DANCE TONIGHT at the RAINBOW Bill Tasillo's Orchestra Admission, 50 cents.

Gaul's "THE HOLY CITY" by the Choir of the SOUTH METHODIST CHURCH Assisted by Harpist and Eminent Soloists. Sunday Evening at 7.30

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. LaFrancis of North Main Street are leaving for Washington, D. C., to visit relatives.

Mrs. Nellie Hayes of Vine St. who has been quite ill for several days has gone to spend some time with relatives in Hartford and is reported to be improving.

A surprise birthday party was held Wednesday evening at the home of Louis Damato of 24 Homestead street in honor of his sixteenth birthday. The party of nearly forty friends of the host were entertained with dancing, and games. Refreshments were served and Louis was remembered with a number of beautiful gifts. The party broke up at a late hour and a good time was enjoyed by all present.

Johnson and Little, plumbing contractors and local representatives for the Super Automatic Oil Heater, have installed one in the new home of Louis Bunce on West Center street.

POLICE CALL BOARD IS IN NEW QUARTERS

Moved Upstairs—Hall of Records Changed to Police Headquarters.

Employees of the Manchester Electric Co. moved the signal board at police headquarters upstairs in the Hall of Records yesterday which at the same time loses its name as the Hall of Records and will hereafter be known as Police Headquarters.

The big signal board occupies the room formerly used by the town clerk. Chief Gordon will occupy the room formerly occupied by Manager Waddell and the probate court will soon be occupied by the police court judge as a police court.

Originally it was planned to put in more cells downstairs and arrange a garage for police cars and motorcycles but with the cut in the appropriation this improvement will have to wait.

Unseen Sources of Long Life. The basic sources of automobile value are not always apparent to the eye. A motor car, like a house, may LOOK a great deal more substantial than it really is. Because of this difficulty, more and more thousands are turning to Dodge Brothers product for insurance against disappointment. The years have proved, and each year proves anew, that Dodge Brothers are as deeply concerned with the UNSEEN goodness of their motor car as with the seen. The mileage it will deliver, the safety it will provide, the expense and trouble it will save the owner over a period of years, are quite as important to Dodge Brothers as the more obvious details of equipment and style.
