

NURSE GOES ON QUEEN MARIE'S WESTERN TRIP

Attends Rumanian Queen as Tour to Pacific Begins, Though Throat Is Called Better.

New York, Oct. 25.—The special train carrying Queen Marie of Rumania, her son, Prince Nicholas, and her daughter, Princess Helena, left the Grand Central terminal at 7:50 o'clock this morning en route for West Point, Albany, Buffalo, Chicago and the Pacific coast.

Only a handful of the curious were on hand to get a glimpse of the queen, and they were disappointed, as she was asleep when the train pulled out. Thus the queen bade farewell to New York, where she landed a week ago, after a continuous round of public and private functions.

The royal party spent the night aboard the special train in Grand Central station after attending a performance of the queen's fantasy, "The Lily of Life," at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Queen Marie denied reports from Vienna that her husband, King Ferdinand, had ordered her back home because of criticism of her visit to this country. She admitted having received cablegrams from the king, but asserted that he merely was concerned for her health.

Although a throat specialist who has been attending the queen announced that her Majesty's throat greatly improved, Miss Helene Young, a trained nurse brought here from Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, accompanied the queen on her western tour.

Tributes penned by the queen to each of the 48 states were being forwarded to the various governors today.

Queen Gets Wetting
West Point, N. Y., Oct. 25.—The elements proved again today they are no respecter of persons.

Braving a downpour of rain and high gales, Queen Marie of Rumania reviewed the West Point Cadets here today and got thoroughly soaked in the process. Her children, Prince Nicholas and Princess Helena, were similarly soaked.

The queen disregarded suggestions that the soaking might aggravate her cold, and accompanied by Brig. Gen. M. B. Stewart, commandant of the line of all twelve cadet companies. Following the review, the Rumanian royal party again boarded the special train and continued on to the next stopping place, Albany.

The sun was trying to shine when the queen first reached the Point. She was met by General Stewart and an escort of regular army troops. While she was holding an impressive reception and meeting the officers and men, the rain began to pour in torrents.

Recall Cable Denied.
Vienna, Oct. 25.—The Rumanian government has issued an official denial of reports that King Ferdinand has cabled to Queen Marie to return home because of American criticisms of her tour, it was reported here today.

Preachers at Odds.
New York, Oct. 25.—New York's churchmen are considerably at variance concerning Queen Marie's American trip, it was revealed today by a survey of Sunday sermons in New York churches.

While the Rev. S. Edward Young, pastor of the Bedford Avenue Presbyterian church was praising the Rumanian queen as "another Victoria," and urging American women to follow her example of "service and patriotism," quite another note was being sounded by Rev. Christian P. Reiser, of the Chelsea Methodist church.

"To what are free-blooded Americans coming?" demanded Dr. Reiser, referring to the adulation that has been heaped upon Marie since her arrival here. "How can any good come to us from such disgusting dust-licking and exaltation of a flesh and blood person who does not even represent a Pope? Why not rather select an unknown American mother and glorify her, than revive a false notion in democratic America that born royalty is better than character? We are cheapening ourselves and exalting wrong ideals by such praise."

U. S. TO FINISH A WASHINGTON JOB

To Complete Dismal Swamp Canal Surveyed by the First President.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The United States government is about to complete a job which George Washington started in 1785.

The Department of Justice announced today that legal experts have virtually finished the preparation of titles to the Dismal Swamp property, connecting the Elizabeth river in Virginia with the sounds of North Carolina.

The Dismal Swamp region was surveyed by George Washington in 1753. After the revolution, Washington purchased the tract, organizing the Dismal Swamp Land Company, and planned to reclaim the swamp was abandoned.

400,000 GATHER AT WEDDING OF SULTAN'S SONS

Double Nuptials of Moroccan Princes Becomes Triple Affair and Vast Crowd Enjoys Delay.

Marrakech, Morocco, Oct. 25.—With 400,000 native tribesmen gathered here from all parts of northern Africa to assist in the celebration of the weddings of the two eldest sons of Sultan Moulay-Youssef of Morocco, all plans were suddenly altered today and the ceremonies postponed until Thursday, when it was announced that all three of the sultan's sons would take brides unto themselves.

The festivities, however, began on scheduled time, and will continue through the week. The addition to the list of prospective bridegrooms lent added zest to the merrymaking.

Magnificent Display
The town was decked out in Oriental splendor for the occasion to match the colorful robes of the thousands of Bedouin horsemen who were to take part in the celebration. Nearly 100,000 has been expended for luminous fountains and torches for the wedding processions and for pastry, mint tea and ice cream.

Twenty thousand dollars worth of alms will be thrown out to the beggars and invalids along the route of the wedding cortege.

The wedding rite itself in importance is that of Moulay-Youssef, now 19 years old and at present Caliph of Marrakech. He is to marry a daughter of Pasha Del-Glaoui. The bride of Moulay-Hasan, 18, and the youngest son of the Sultan will not be known until late on the wedding day. Moroccan custom decrees that the prospective bridegroom shall not be known to his fiancée before the ceremony.

League Association Only Spent
$14,000, Not 8 Millions, and Mostly on Child Work.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 25.—The charges of Clyde A. Wall, Republican state chairman of Indiana, that $8,000,000 fund was pledged by "Wall's" League, to defeat the Little Senate bill, "irreconcilables," was denied here today by Rev. Joseph Myers, Jr., former Indiana secretary of the League of Nations Non-Partisan League.

Myers, while testifying at Senator James A. Reed's one-man slush fund inquiry.

The Rev. Myers characterized Wall's charges as "poppycock" and "nonsense." The charges were the product of a "fevered imagination," Myers testified, as the association spent only $14,000 in the last year over the entire country, and did most of its work among school children.

BIG WIND STORM HITS SPRINGFIELD

Brief Gale of Hurricane Grade Does Damage There and at Pittsfield

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 25.—A rain and wind storm of hurricane proportions swept over this city about noon today and within five minutes had done damage that will run into thousands of dollars and caused injury to at least one person and possibly others.

Smashes Buildings.
Leveling chimneys, uprooting trees, demolishing small buildings and filling the streets with roaring streams of water, the storm came upon the city without warning and passed almost as quickly as it came.

A storm similar to that which passed over the city struck Pittsfield a few hours earlier doing damage to trees and buildings. Police estimates give the damage as at least $25,000.

Buried in Debris
Benjamin Lee, an employee of a gas station on Page Boulevard, was injured when the winds demolished the small building, burying him in the debris. He was taken to Springfield hospital.

Stratford, Oct. 25.—Speaking at a Republican rally held here last night, United States Senator Hiram Bingham covered in considerable detail the question of farm relief legislation, also brought out some interesting facts and statistics concerning Connecticut and New England in relation to the country as a whole.

One of the most strenuously debated questions which came before the first session of the 63th Congress, said Senator Bingham, "related to the causes of the economic depression in the corn belt, notably in Nebraska, Iowa and the two Dakotas and the proper solution for the hard times there in evidence. The farmers and bankers of those states and their friends were extremely anxious to secure the passage of the McNary-Haugen bill, which would increase the prices of wheat and corn and thereby

Only 19 of Crew of British Vessel Saved—Another Ship Capsizes.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 25.—Heavy losses of life in the hurricane which swept the Bermudian coast last Friday were confirmed today.

It is believed that a total of 84 lives were lost in the sinking of H. M. S. Valerian, a sloop of war, which foundered during the storm, only nineteen members of her crew of 103 being rescued.

The British vessel Eastway turning turtle during the storm and twelve of her crew are reported to have been lost.

GRAND JURY TO MURDER PROBE

Open Warfare on Between Somerset County Body and Investigator of Hall- Mills Case

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 25.—On the heels of a definite break between the Somerset County Grand Jury and State Senator Simpson, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills case, it was understood today that when the grand jury meets tomorrow it will inquire into the way Simpson has conducted the revived investigation of the strange cranberry tree murder mystery of four years ago.

Hostility between the prosecutor and the grand jury crystallized with statements from both sides. Senator Simpson, at whose request the body adjourned from Thursday until tomorrow, notified it that its services would not be needed tomorrow because witnesses would not be available.

The Most Independently
The foreman, Percival Snyder, of Bound Brook, N. J., retorted by announcing that the grand jury would meet tomorrow and proceed independently with the investigation of all phases of the investigation of the dual murder.

A call for an independent session of the grand jury was sent out today by Sheriff Sanford Tunison at the request of Foreman Snyder.

KEY MAN M'DERMOTT SURRENDERS; TO TALK

Believed to Have Been Promising Immunity in Don Mellett Murder.

Canton, O., Oct. 25.—Disclosure in the murder of Don R. Mellett, crusading publisher of the Canton Daily News, who was assassinated three months ago, was expected to be made by Frederick C. B. McDermott and Detective Ora B. Slater today, by Patrick Eugene McDermott, alleged "key man" in the case.

McDermott was in county jail here today following a nationwide search for him lasting ninety days. He was surrendered yesterday, at Twin Rocks, Pennsylvania, by his two brothers, as the result of a carefully laid plan prepared by Slater. It is believed that Slater and McDermott in a four-hour conference with McDermott's brother, preceding his surrender, made an agreement not to seek the death penalty for McDermott, provided he would testify against Louis Maser and Rud Rader, the other two men under indictment for the murder.

INDUSTRIALISTS HIT FORD PLAN

Hartford Manufacturer Among 50 Who Declare 5-Day Scheme Injurious.

New York, Oct. 25.—Five days a week in the nation's industries as advocated by Henry Ford meets with strenuous objection on fifty leading manufacturers, according to a statement made public today by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Summarized, the specific objections registered are: "Adoption of the five-day plan in industry generally would greatly increase the cost of living.

It would increase wages generally by more than fifteen per cent and decrease production.

It would be impracticable for all industries.

It would create a craving for additional luxuries to occupy the additional time.

It would be against the best interests of the man who went to work and advance.

It would make us more vulnerable to the economic onslaught of Europe, now working as hard as she can to overcome our lead.

Expressions condemning the five-day week plan came from such manufacturers as Clarence W. Whitney, Hartford; W. L. Chase, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.; A. L. Humphrey, Westinghouse Airbrake Company; Philip T. Dodge, Mergenthaler Linotype Co.; and Robert P. Lamont, American Steel Foundries.

STATE EDITORS ON FALL OUTING

Guests of Connecticut Agricultural College and Willimantic.

One of October's most beautiful days favored the members of the Connecticut Editorial Association for their fall meeting at Storrs and Willimantic Saturday. The drive over the hills, with their autumn foliage still beautiful, was most enjoyable and although one member, driving from Canaan, got tangled up in Manchester's detours and went 40 miles off his course, he said it was worth it.

The double attraction of a day at Storrs and a night in Willimantic, the new Metropolitan hotel as the joint guests of the Connecticut Agricultural College and the city of Willimantic was sufficient to bring out a record breaking attendance of Editorial Association members, with their wives. More than 100 gathered at the new Storrs Community house at noon. They represented newspapers from the four corners of the state.

An elaborate luncheon, prepared and served by the girls of the Home Economics department of the college, under the supervision of Home Economics Director Miss Lundberg, was thoroughly enjoyed by the visitors, who were loud in their praise.

Chief Justice Taft delivered the opinion of the President to remove a federal officer without the consent of the Senate was sustained by the Supreme Court today, thus ending a dispute as to constitutional rights that has waged between the legislative and executive branches of the government for half a century.

PRESIDENT CAN REMOVE OFFICE HOLDER AT WILL

Supreme Court, Backing Wilson's Act, Settles Dis- pute With Senate Half Century Old.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The power of the President to remove a federal officer without the consent of the Senate was sustained by the Supreme Court today, thus ending a dispute as to constitutional rights that has waged between the legislative and executive branches of the government for half a century.

The decision was handed down in the case of Frank Myers, now deceased, former postmaster at Portland, Ore. Myers was appointed by President Wilson in 1917 and removed from office three years later, without the consent of the Senate. Because his appointment had been confirmed by the Senate his heirs contended, in a suit for back pay, that his removal without the Senate's consent was not constitutional.

Chief Justice Taft delivered the opinion. Justices McReynolds, Holmes and Brandeis dissented, but the dissenting opinion, called the court's decision revolutionary in character.

By Nature of Office.
Chief Justice Taft found that Congress in 1863, when it passed the principles involved in this case and held that the President should have broad powers of appointment and removal. Not only is the President's power of removal upheld by legislation, but also by the very nature of the office, the court held. The check given by the Senate in the requirement that the President must submit some appointments for the confirmation does not imply a similar right of a check upon removal.

In his opinion the court held unconstitutional the tenure of office act of 1867 in which restrictions were imposed upon the President.

Of High Importance
The decision is considered by legal authorities as among the most important ever decided by the Supreme Court. Solicitor-General James M. Beck, in arguing the right of the president to remove, declared "the principle involved in the very foundation of our government." If the president cannot remove officials, however unfit and unworthy they may be," he said, "then he has neither the independence nor the power that has been attributed to the office."

The Senate's interest in the case was evidenced by the designation of Senator George Wharton Pepper, Republican of Pennsylvania, to argue for the other side. He contended that the framers of the constitution limited the president's power of appointment by making his appointees subject to confirmation by the Senate, and therefore, his power of removal was likewise limited. It is his decision today the Supreme Court rejected this theory.

In Court for Years
The Myers case has been before the courts for several years. When Myers originally sued for $3,538 back pay, the government merely set up the defense that delay in bringing the suit was fatal to recovery of damages. The court of claims sustained the government, and did not pass upon the legality of the removal.

When the case reached the Supreme Court, however, the government changed its tactics, and challenged the constitutionality of the law enacted in 1876 which provides that "postmasters of the first, second and third classes, shall be appointed and may be removed by the president and with the consent of the Senate."

Chief Justice Taft declared that it was necessary for the president to have the removal power. Otherwise, he said, a politically opposed Senate could virtually hold the functions of the executive branch of the government.

"THE SHEIK" COMING BACK TO RIALTO

"The Passionate Adventure" a decidedly "different" photoplay closes its engagement at the Rialto tonight. So much has been said of this picture it seems superfluous to say more. Olive Brook, Alice Joyce and Marjorie Daw have leading roles and are supported by an excellent cast. The main characters are a husband and wife who enjoy a serene but loveless life. The husband enters the service during the late war and returns an entirely different man, as his elemental side has been aroused by the horrors undergone during conflict. The wife, for a time doesn't sense the change and he looks for diversion of an exciting kind in the slums. He finds it in huge quantity and becomes involved with a girl when he rescues her from a bully. How the hero finally finds his salvation through his wife and what becomes of the girl in the case forms an engrossing story that is perfectly acted.

A comedy, "Shore Leave" provides plenty of hilarious amusement and a novelty reel will also be shown as well as the customary news events.

The attraction for Tuesday Wednesday and Thursday will be "The Sheik" which is being brought back to Manchester by popular demand. Upon Rudolph Valentino's death there was an instant demand for the showing of pictures in which he appeared and it is to satisfy those who would like to see this spectacle again that the management has booked "The Sheik" for a three days showing.

It is quite unusual to have the public interested in a motion picture stars work after his demise and this fact only attests Valentino's great popularity. The story is familiar to almost everyone and was really the film which brought Valentino fame although his ability was clearly demonstrated before then, in "The Four Horsemen". With the present rage over Valentino pictures, existing "The Sheik" should play to capacity houses during its run here.

TROLLEY OFF TRACK
JAMS UP TRAFFIC

Car Gets on Road at Buckland and Company Has to Use Busses.

Two Manchester men had an unexpected thrill and a narrow escape from serious injury early today when a trolley car jumped the track at Buckland.

On Wy to Rockville They were in charge of a car bound toward Rockville. It was the first car out of the car-barn at the Center this morning and no passengers were in it.

The car swerved to the right, jumped completely off the tracks, crossed the road, plunged part way over a small embankment and narrowly missed a large tree standing nearby.

However, street traffic was able to detour without any trouble over the road which leads from Buckland proper to the railroad depot and then parallel with the railroad tracks to the underpass.

Call Out Busses Realizing that it would be a long and hard piece of work to get the trolley car back on the tracks again, the Connecticut Company men sent word to Hartford and two large transportation busses were sent.

transferred to Hartford over the South Manchester route. A wrecker was sent to the scene of the accident from Hartford and the track was cleared at 8:20.

C. OF C. SECRETARIES TO GET CHENEY TIES

Three Hundred to Be Distributed at Convention to Be Held in Pittsburgh.

Manchester, Connecticut, will be much in evidence at the Pittsburgh convention of the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries.

This convention is held from October 24 to 27 inclusive at the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, and Secretary George E. Riz will officially represent the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

Cheney Brothers have given three hundred Yale blue silk ties each in an individual box, appropriately gold lettered, to be presented as souvenirs to each Chamber of Commerce secretary registered at the convention.

Practically every large community in the United States, many from Canada, Cuba, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines will be in attendance at the convention.

In addition to the Cheney ties the officers of the National Association have requested the Manchester Chamber to put on exhibition in the reading room of the William Penn Hotel, the series of articles which have been published in the "Manchester Herald" on fraudulent stock and merchandise sales.

Some of the secretaries have suggested that these articles be reprinted in book form for distribution to all members of the National Association, and it is expected that following the convention, the articles will be put into pamphlet form by the association and distributed to members with proper credit to the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

NO DAMAGE HERE FROM RAIN STORM Few Wires Torn Down by Wind and Leaves Clog Receiving Basins.

Although last night's rain and wind storm was a severe one, it did little damage in Manchester as far as inquiries made this morning disclosed.

The electric light company reported that the transformer of Keeney Court was out of commission and a gang of men were working at it today.

The storm was a peculiar one. During the afternoon, rain came in gusts, driven by a south wind. As the day advanced the storm grew and after 10 o'clock at night it had attained almost cyclonic proportions.

Despite the heavy rains, the local theaters did a land office business although the patrons had to scurry homeward after the show when the rain was falling in torrents.

Since the storm came from the south, local weather sharps seem to think that it was the tail end of the cyclone that devastated Cuba.

LIGHTS EXTINGUISHED IN SHOPPING DISTRICT Trouble With Transformer Plunges South End in Darkness for Nearly an Hour.

Local merchants are grateful today because Manchester people are almost sure to have had a clear, busy shopping hour, the electric lights suddenly went out and there was abundant opportunity for thievery before they were turned on again about an hour later.

In a short space of time, however, many of the stores had old-fashioned kerosene lights and candles burning. But, nevertheless, the loss of proper lights was a serious blow to the merchants as considerable business was lost.

The repair gang from the Manchester Electric Light Company went out to find the trouble which proved to be in a transformer.

TRYING TO COMPLETE CENTER ST. THIS FALL With favorable weather for the next few weeks, it is now expected that the reconstruction work on Center street, from the Center to Adams street, will be completed.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS
OUT ON A HIKE

Spend Afternoon in Woods and Learn to Use Stoves as Frying Pans.

The first hike of the newly organized Camp Fire Girls at the South Methodist Episcopal church was held on Saturday afternoon with 35 girls in line. Altogether it was considered a very successful event.

The group armed with lunches and equipment for the journey, left the church at two o'clock. The destination was kept a secret until the girls reached the entrance to the DeMars Farm, and then the fun began.

Following the blazed trail into the woods, the group found fireplaces and immediately set themselves to the task of cooking their out-door meal. As a given signal, the alikers started out in every direction looking for rocks, wood, and other materials to make successful fires.

The following girls earned honors in building fires: Hazel Russell, Barbara Grimes, Frances Schultz, Marion Crawshaw and Eleanor Metcalf.

As soon as the fires were burning well, the cooks enthusiastically started their work. Potatoes, apples, bacon, eggs, steak, and even toast were in evidence. The cooking processes were very interesting, but the eating of the supplies was most satisfying.

The girls will meet next Wednesday night at 7:15 for their regular business meeting. Plans are now under way for a Ceremonial Meeting to be held in the rear future.

AUTO HITS PORCH BUT NO ONE HURT Football Shoes Responsible for Odd Accident on Oak Street.

While on his way to a football game, Charles Minnicucci, of 178 Oak street, halfback on the Cubs' football team, lost control of his auto yesterday afternoon and crashed into the steps of a house at 118 Oak street.

No damage was done to either the car or the house, but the investigation by no means was made.

Minnicucci was driving a Studebaker east on Oak street about one o'clock. Near Spruce street a car swung out from a drive way and in trying to avoid it, the young man's car skidded and he ran across the sidewalks and hit the porch of the house.

After the accident Minnicucci explained to the policeman that because he was excited about the game he could not manipulate the brake properly and that with the slippery pavement, put the car out of control.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION That is the joyful cry of thousands here Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers. Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil. No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action. If you have a "dark brown mouth", bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime. Thousands take them every night and keep right. Try them. 35c. 50c. 60c.

MADE CLEAR.

Senator Hiram Bingham has the gift of a singular lucidity. He possesses the faculty of thinking in straight lines and of expressing his thoughts in language so direct and uninvolved that everybody knows not only what he is talking about but precisely what he means by his talk.

Millions upon millions of words have been employed by writers and speakers in efforts to explain just what it is that the West is kicking about, and wherein the western farmer is inclined to blame his troubles to the wrong causes.

An extended abstract of the Bingham address appears on another page of the Herald. It is more than worth the reading—nobody who has been puzzled by the western farm problem ought to miss a word of it.

When the reader gets through with that speech, if he does not understand that it is not a matter of tariff that ails western agriculture but a weakness for wildcat banking and for land speculation, we miss our guess.

FOR BUTLER.

After carefully refraining from anything more than the most formal approval of any candidate for Senate or House in the present campaign, President Coolidge has come forward with a most enthusiastic endorsement of Senator William M. Butler and has declared the intention of himself and Mrs. Coolidge to go home to Northampton to vote for the senator.

It has already been the occasion of some wonderment that the President should make so marked an exception of Senator Butler in the matter of personal support. We see nothing whatever to be surprised at.

Calvin Coolidge is often called cold and unemotional. Just the same he is one of the most loyal men to his friends who ever occupied the presidential office.

There are a great many persons in the Republican party who have no great relish for Senator Butler, and a great many who are convinced that his political companionship has done President Coolidge no good at all.

And there is not the slightest doubt that the arrogant, bulldozing, intolerant attitude of Butler toward the Western Republicans has done more than any other thing toward creating the present unsettled situation in the party beyond the Mississippi.

Nevertheless, President Coolidge unquestionably does feel under obligations to Butler. Moreover, the President is still a Massachusetts citizen and the choice of a senator from that state is a proper matter of concern to him, and one in which he has every citizen's right to participate, even though he may feel that, as President, he should not interfere in the elections in other states.

HONEYED GALL.

You can always tell when a political campaign is being taken seriously in New York, for then the editorial funster comes out of his lair and waxes facetious. The razor edged joke develops along about the last fortnight of the warfare, when the temptation to become abusive, nowadays almost always held sharply in leash, is compromised with by the utterance of smiling cracks that are sharper than the serpent's tooth. Here is one from the Herald-Tribune.

The Municipal Assembly has rung its long threatened 3 a. m. curfew on the night clubs. This puritanical action was taken at the behest of Mayor Walker, on the theory that "early to bed and early to rise makes people healthy and wealthy and wise."

So from now on night life in New York will be abolished, save for persons who have to start the night before in order to find a subway express in which they can get seats as they ride to work. From now on there will only be four paltry hours between the close of the theater and bed time.

Millions upon millions of words have been employed by writers and speakers in efforts to explain just what it is that the West is kicking about, and wherein the western farmer is inclined to blame his troubles to the wrong causes.

At Stratford on Saturday night Senator Bingham probably did more to clarify that subject, in the minds of Connecticut people, than has ever been done before, all put together.

When the reader gets through with that speech, if he does not understand that it is not a matter of tariff that ails western agriculture but a weakness for wildcat banking and for land speculation, we miss our guess.

BABBITS TOGETHER.

Queen Marie, having seen the American metropolis and the American capital and the American show, is now on her way for a view of America's Main Street.

There is, about her Rumanian Majesty; just a touch perhaps of certain qualities that encourage the hope that she will not be seriously homesick. It is not difficult to visualize Marie getting along famously with Babbitt and the Babbitt family.

So from now on night life in New York will be abolished, save for persons who have to start the night before in order to find a subway express in which they can get seats as they ride to work.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Oct. 25.—The fewer marriages we have these modern days, the more divorcees are reached.

That, at least, seems the obvious deduction from the marriage and divorce statistics Director of the Census W. M. Stewart has just finished compiling for 1924.

In that year 1,178,318 couples were married, or 45,606 fewer than in 1923.

Divorces, however, numbered 170,952 in 1924, as compared with 165,096 in 1923.

As population increases, one would imagine that the number of marriages would increase, too.

And so it has since 1887, until 1924, with the exception of 1934 and 1904, when there were slight slumps respectively from 1893 and 1903.

Just around the corner is a Carnegie library with one of the finest collections of Rumanian books.

And in Broome street is a cluster of cafes where chefs pride themselves on their menus and where go folk of all races who prefer quiet and cuisine to the din and rattle that accompanies eating in most New York dining places.

The homes of the Rumanians, I am told, are models of comfort and luxury. Their culture ranks highest among the colonies and their rejection of Americanisms is, I presume, due to an instinctive objection to the blatant and cheap.

This culture finds an outlet in several clubs which have far greater distinction than one would imagine from a casual glance at their exteriors.

The love for the homeland is quite as noticeable as that of any visiting Californian. Yet thousands of the residents are Jews, who fled political persecution. No race in America keeps in closer touch with home politics, and the coffee shops perpetually echo with chatter on political goings on in the Balkans.

They follow closely the literature, music and art of Rumania, giving little heed to that of their adopted land. They have produced some of the most eminent teachers of the American universities and many of the finest musicians.

They have their own buying ground and their poor are taken care of by a communal charity. Queen Marie will have no reason to blush for her children in America. They're quite as distinctive as the queen herself, if you please! GILBERT SWAN.

Christopher Columbus was a diehard. But then we have our own Jackie Coogan, Russell T. Scott and Daddy Browning.

700 TO 1 THE ODDS IN OIL WELL GAMBLE

Chamber Gives More Facts on Fraudulent Stock Schemes.

This is the 34th article in a series prepared for The Herald by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

There are two popular sayings which run as follows: "Imitation is the sincerest flattery," and "Success breeds many imitators."

These two old-fashioned axioms have a particularly pointed application to the game of stock investment.

One of the most common, the cheapest, and at the same time most effective methods of deceit and misrepresentation employed in the stock selling game is that of comparing some worthless or at least absolutely new and untried stock to some nationally known organization like the Bell Telephone, Ford Motors, or Anaconda Copper.

Statistics issued by the United States Department of Commerce show that over a period of years, only one in seven hundred oil and mining development schemes were successful, meaning that nine were failures and that the money of those who invested in the 699 was a total loss.

Comparison Good. It is safe to say that the literature of every one of the 699 that failed quoted an imposing array of figures of some successful mining or oil development, and by skillful juggling of words, lead the unsuspecting investors to believe that they were in the same class.

There are immensely lucrative oil wells and bonanza mines, but the United States Department of Commerce figures (which can hardly be questioned) show that they are in the proportion of one in seven hundred, which is certainly a long shot for the average investor to gamble on.

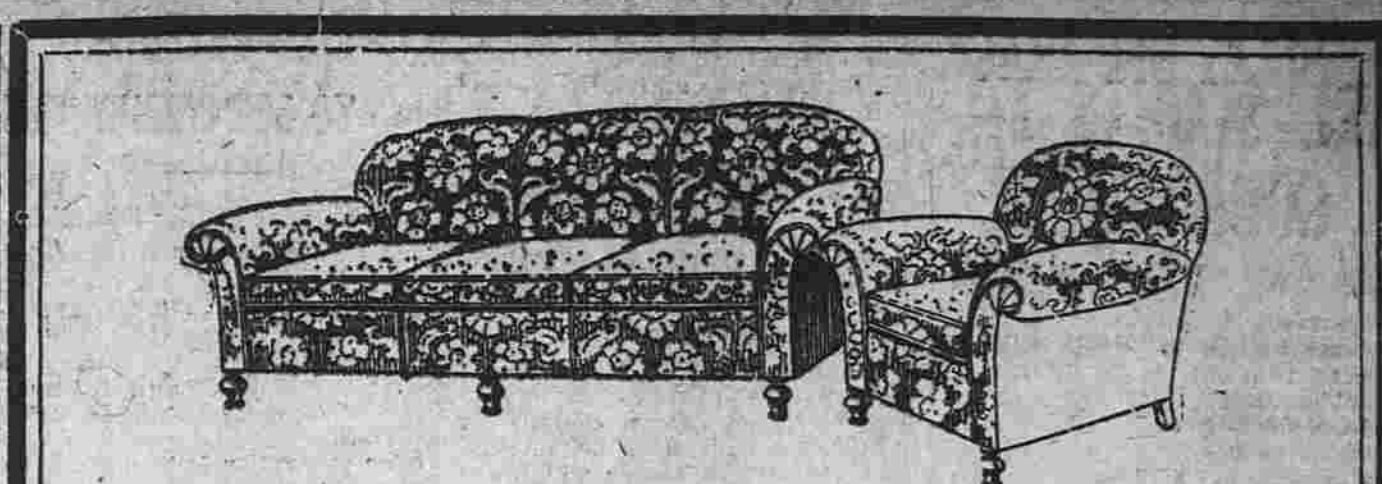

One form of investment that is being widely copied today is the so-called "Investment Trust."

Investment Trusts have been known in England and Scotland and Germany for many years and have been particularly in the last ten years, investment trusts, properly organized are one of the safest forms of investment for the small investor.

Naturally, the successful investment trust has had many imitators. The same applies to some of the more successful bond and mortgage companies. There are conservative, well-managed, reliable, bond and mortgage companies; there are also hundreds which are improperly organized and administered, and just as sure to fail as the average mining and oil development.

Fine Names. There are, literally, thousands of organizations operating under impressive titles in which the words, financing, mortgage, guaranty, are used in profuse and meaningless abandon, and in utter disregard for actualities. The Chamber of Commerce particularly urges anyone interested in oil or mining stocks, investment trusts, bond and mortgage companies, to go slow and watch their step before turning over their money.

Three that are particularly undesirable are active in this vicinity at the present time. The Cosmopolitan Mortgage Company, the Industrial Loan Society, Inc. and the Fiscal Agents, Inc. are all being peddled in this vicinity. Anyone

Americans and Filipinos Agree On One Point Only

Uncertainty Must End Before Development Comes, Carmi Thompson Will Report; Plan for Rubber.

By WILLIAM R. KUHN. (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Manila, Oct. 25.—(United Press)—Colonel Thompson's report to President Coolidge on the economic possibilities of the Philippines will be built around three central recommendations: two economic and one political. It is predicted by well-informed quarters here.

1. A definite political relationship between the United States and the Philippines for a definite period of time, in order to attract capital.

2. A program for the general development of the island's industrial, mineral and agricultural resources.

3. A solution of the land law limiting individual holdings to 2500 acres, which will permit large scale production of rubber and at the same time win the approval of the Filipinos who regard the land law as their last bulwark against exploitation and have always solidly opposed any efforts to tamper with it.

Heart of Doctrine. The land law has come to be the heart and soul of Senator Quezon's political doctrine and it showed the smallest sign of weakening, there would be a dozen little Quezons all over the islands ready to leap into the breach as defenders of the people against exploitation.

The only solution which appears to have support on both Filipino and American sides and will probably influence Colonel Thompson in drawing up his own recommendations is that evolved by Dr. J. W. Strong, general manager of the American Rubber Company of Basilan. This is the pioneer rubber company in the Philippines and was founded 23 years ago.

It is designed to meet half way the demands of large investors and to compromise with the Filipinos. The latter still recall the days of the great friar estates when the best land in the islands was concentrated in the hands of the friars, and it is hardly to be wondered that they regard the present land law with feelings akin to reverence.

Dr. Strong would amend the law to permit ownership or lease of 20,000 acres for 75 years by a single corporation or individual, for the cultivation of rubber. The law would provide that immediately adjacent to this 20,000 acres would be another 20,000 acres set aside for homestead grants to laborers of the corporation.

This would result in colonizing "the rubber country" and at the same time develop the production of rubber on a larger scale than is now possible.

About the most useless pastime we can imagine right now is thinking up a golden wedding gift for Peggy Joyce.

Colds The $1,000,000 way There's a way to end colds so quick, efficient and complete that we paid $1,000,000 for it. That way is HILL'S. It stops colds in 24 hours, checks fever, opens the bowels, tones the entire system. The millions who know it always rely on it. Go start it now. HILL'S Cascara-Bromine-Quinine Be sure you get on both Filipino and American sides and will probably influence Colonel Thompson in drawing up his own recommendations is that evolved by Dr. J. W. Strong, general manager of the American Rubber Company of Basilan. This is the pioneer rubber company in the Philippines and was founded 23 years ago. It is designed to meet half way the demands of large investors and to compromise with the Filipinos. The latter still recall the days of the great friar estates when the best land in the islands was concentrated in the hands of the friars, and it is hardly to be wondered that they regard the present land law with feelings akin to reverence. Dr. Strong would amend the law to permit ownership or lease of 20,000 acres for 75 years by a single corporation or individual, for the cultivation of rubber. The law would provide that immediately adjacent to this 20,000 acres would be another 20,000 acres set aside for homestead grants to laborers of the corporation. This would result in colonizing "the rubber country" and at the same time develop the production of rubber on a larger scale than is now possible. About the most useless pastime we can imagine right now is thinking up a golden wedding gift for Peggy Joyce.

GIRL SCOUTS TO CELEBRATE GOOD CHEER WEEK OCT. 23-30

Thousands of American girls will celebrate Girl Scout Good Cheer Week during this week according to announcement from the National Headquarters of the Girl Scouts, of which Mrs. Calvin Coolidge is honorary president.

At that time more than 115,500 girls from ten to eighteen years of age comprising the membership of the Girl Scouts in this country, Hawaii and Porto Rico, will participate in a unique demonstration of joy-bringing. With the girls will be associated 9,503 Girl Scout leaders, and 3,240 Brownies or little girls of pre-Scout age.

For seven days, according to the advance program, these eager young trailblazers will endeavor to show the world in seven concrete and typical ways, how the daughter of the family can contribute her part to the joy of home and community life.

All over this country during Good Cheer Week, slim khaki-clad little ten year olds and older girls in their teens will be seen in simple home activities and in public demonstrations as well giving practical interpretation to the golden rule.

In those phases of the program which affect the communities, the local Girl Scout Councils will enjoy the cooperation of such organizations as Chambers of Commerce, Public Schools, Welfare Organizations, and Men's Clubs. In previous Girl Scout Weeks, Kiwanis, Lions, Rotary and Elks throughout the country have helped to make local demonstrations a success. Over 6,500 adult council members and local committeemen are enrolled in the various states as Girl Scout sponsors.

Best of All Although in past years Girl Scout Week has created much favorable comment, it is anticipated that interest this year will exceed that of previous years, since there has been an increase of twenty three percent in membership of the organization during the past year, according to the annual report recently issued by Mrs. Jane Deeter Ripplin, National Director. Two hundred and ninety-eight local Girl Scout Councils with a combined membership of 134,000 will this year participate in the national program. Of this, the greatest membership is in the Eastern States with the greatest percentage of increase in the Far West and the Great Lakes Region. Every part of the country, however, is represented. Indeed, the Girl Scout program, while offering many camp activities, does not confine its work to outdoor training. It embodies a comprehensive home-making and educational program with a year-round emphasis on health building and service to others. Hence during Girl Scout Week, Mother's Vacation Day will loom large. At this time, good material for the home will be purchased by each Girl Scout, meals cooked and many of the mother's household duties assumed. Nor have fathers been forgotten. On Daddy's Day, which falls on the last Saturday in October, each Girl Scout will arrange, if possible, to spend an afternoon with her father.

Other Days Other days have been designated as Health Day, Gift Day, Music Day and Girl Scout Sunday, when local councils will wherever possible attend services in their own churches in uniform. Most interesting to the community, in all probability, will be Good Cheer Day, slated to fall on Monday, October 25th, when Girl Scouts will pay visits to city and county institutions, old people's homes, hospitals and orphanages to present entertainments and bring good cheer. Commenting on the coming of Good Cheer Week, as symbolizing the general aims of the Girl Scouts, Mrs. Ripplin stated, "Girl Scout Week is intended to express in a tangible way that health, dependability, reverence, and happiness, placed in the hope chest of the Girl Scout through her life in troop and camp, is a treasure in the hope chest of the nation. The week's program is briefly as follows: Today, Mother's Vacation Day; Sunday, October 24, Girl Scout Sunday; Monday, October 25, Good Cheer Day; Tuesday, October 26, Health Day; Wednesday, October 27, Music Day; Thursday, October 28, Mother's Outing Day; Friday, October 29, Gift Day; and Saturday, October 30, Daddy's Day.

RAIN FAILS TO KEEP CROWD FROM THEATER

State Jammed to See Milton Sills in "Men of Steel"; Other Showings Tonight and Tomorrow.

The rain did not dampen the ambition of hundreds of amusement lovers last evening to see Milton Sills in "Men of Steel" which had its first showing at the State theater last evening. And they were well paid for the inconvenience they suffered. Indeed it is worth tramping through snow three feet deep to see this super special.

There is no doubt whatever that the feature went over big and one need not be a prophet to predict that the State will be packed tonight and tomorrow by those who failed to see it last evening for by this time its local reputation has been made.

Milton Sills, who is credited with the authorship of the story, is seen in the starring role, and incidentally in what this writer considers his greatest screen performance. Sills is magnificent. He starts out an ignorant laborer in an iron mine. He finishes as boss of a steel mill and son-in-law to the steel mill owner. And what a course he runs in getting there!

Here you have everything that a motion picture fan's heart could possibly desire. There is beautiful romance, wonderful love story, spectacles in the steel mill that make your heart beat, action and then more action, laughs, settings that simply hold you spellbound and thrills that most motion picture producers dream of but seldom put on the screen. What more could you ask for?

Sills has one of the finest casts that one could hope to see assembled. Doris Kenyon in the leading woman's role does the best work we have seen from her on the screen.

Other subjects are also on the same bill.

PRESIDENT LAUDS SENATOR BUTLER

Intends to Make Trip to Bay State to Vote for Him, Coolidge Declares.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The campaign to win control of the Senate which Congress turned into its final week today, featured by temporary abandonment by the President of his aloofness from the partisan struggle.

While he has largely refrained from giving specific endorsement to any of the Republican candidates for re-election, President Coolidge has made an exception in the case of Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts. In a letter to the chairman of the Republican state committee in Massachusetts, Mr. Coolidge has planned an administrative medal on Butler and urged his re-election.

Proud of Him. "In the Senate," wrote the President, "he holds a place which no one else could command for Massachusetts. Admired for his wisdom and respected for his integrity, he has been a benefactor to his state and nation. I know how able and conscientious he is. In his rapidly taking place as a great senator I have an increasing pride in knowing he is from my state." The President says he and Mrs. Coolidge intend to go to Northampton to vote for Butler.

Butler is opposed by ex-Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, and the contest is regarded by leaders of both parties as being exceedingly close.

"Apparently," said Rep. Oldfield, Democrat of Arkansas, "the President is very much frightened at the prospect of Senator Butler's defeat." Oldfield is chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee. He remarked that the Republicans "were horrified" in 1918 when President Wilson appealed in a letter for the election of a Democratic Congress.

"TEN COMMANDMENTS" BACK AT NO ADVANCE

Famous Picture to Be Shown at Circle at Unheard of Prices Tuesday and Wednesday.

As a result of numerous requests from Manchester movie lovers, "The Ten Commandments," the picture that broke house records in this town the last time it was shown here, will be brought back and shown at the Circle theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday at no advance in prices. This picture deserves all the adjectives that can be piled on to describe it. It is great, stupendous, colorful, and moving. It has comedy, spectacle and drama. A perfect cast, a fine story, and inspired direction. What else could one ask for?

The production takes a little over two hours to show. It is divided into two parts, ancient and modern. In the former the picture opens on the Israelite slaves building the city of Rameses in Egypt. They are being cruelly treated by the Pharaoh, and things look dark until Moses emerges to lead them. He asks for their liberty, and when it is not granted ten plagues are visited upon Egypt. After Rameses' son is killed in the last of the plagues, Rameses orders the Hebrews to leave. They go with aching bodies and hearts over the desert sands. This part of the picture is done in natural colors and in its sweep is overwhelming.

Then follow scenes showing Moses receiving the commandments on Mount Sinai, the children of Israel worshipping the golden calf in wild orgy, and finally the fade-out in which Moses, wrathful at seeing his people's treachery flings the tablets which he had received on the rocks, smashing them into a thousand parts.

TAXPAYERS ARE TARDY IN FILING RETURNS

Only Seven Days Left and Over 3,000 are Still to Be Heard From.

The Board of Assessors are not at all pleased with the cooperation they are receiving from the taxpayers in the filing of tax returns. While the assessors were subjected to some criticism last year, it is apparent that the conditions are reversed this year. The board has been working early and late in effort to give the taxpayers abundant opportunity to file their returns but have received little appreciation. Less than an average of 25 have been calling at the department in the Hall of Records each morning and with only seven days left before closing time, less than one-half of the taxpayers have appeared.

This leaves over 3,000 persons yet to file their returns in the nine days and it is going to make unnecessary work for the assessors in some months ago there has been a steady and persistent stream of requests to the management to bring it back. Answering these requests, Mr. Sanson got busy and finally secured the film. That alone was a big achievement but to bring it back and show it at unheard of prices, was something that will long be talked of in local theatrical circles.

Vinegar and bread crumbs is an old time remedy for corns.

Old Masters

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,
Here once the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard 'round the world.

The foe long since in silence slept;
Alike the conqueror silent sleeps;
And Time the ruined bridge has swept
Down the dark stream which seaward creeps.

On this green bank, by this soft stream,
We set today a votive stone;
That memory may their deed re-deem,
Where, like our sires, our sons are gone.

Spirit, that made those heroes dare
To die, and leave their children
To Freedom, and to Nature gently spare,
The shaft we raise to them and thee.

—R. W. Emerson, Concord Hymn.

BAD BANKING HURTS FARMS, SAYS BINGHAM

sectionalism has assumed that the tariff, which they recognize the manufacturing states of New England need, has been the cause of the farmers' woes. Professor Englund of Kansas, on the other hand, gives us facts which would seem to indicate that if the Western states had followed the banking practices of New England, and particularly of Connecticut, they might have avoided much of the disaster which has overtaken them during the past five years.

56 Times as Many Failures Comparing bank failures in proportion to the number of active banks in existence in 1920, the failures for the next five years show 29.6 for North Dakota, 28.2 for South Dakota, 13.3 for Nebraska, 8.1 for Iowa and 5 for Connecticut. In other words, there were 16 times as many bank failures in Iowa during those five years as there were in Connecticut. There were 56 times as many in South Dakota, 59 times as many in North Dakota.

Unquestionably they have had a harder time than we have. The reasons for this, however, Professor Englund believes are due largely to the lax banking laws. "Too many banks, too many inexperienced bankers, too many illegal loans, too many loans to one customer, real estate speculations, and the fact brought out by the superintendent of banking of Iowa, namely, that they have many loans to officers and directors of the banks themselves. Nearly every bank that closed, was used to a large extent as a private snap by the officers and directors."

The loans to officers of Kansas in one of his biennial reports says that "every bank that has been in distress under the supervision of the present bank commissioner can trace its trouble directly to loans to officers and directors." To us in Connecticut who have for a long time been hearing of the lax banking laws, conscientious bankers and an excellent State Bank Commissioner, it is difficult to appreciate banking conditions as they exist in the corn and wheat states. In Connecticut, according to the 1920 census, for every 100,000 people there were 10 banks in Iowa, or seven times as many; in Nebraska 92, or more than nine times as many banks in proportion to the population. In South Dakota there were 108, and in North Dakota 137, as compared with 10 in Connecticut.

Of course it may be answered that these western states are so much larger than Connecticut and our population is so much more concentrated that it was to be expected that they would have a far larger number of banks in proportion to the size of the population. To this it may be answered that California, which is much larger in area than the western states under consideration and which has had a fine record regarding bank stability, has only 21 banks per 100,000 population, as compared to Iowa's 70, Nebraska's 92 and Connecticut's 10. Apparently it is not entirely due to her protected industries that Connecticut has managed to have so few bank failures in comparison to the corn belt states.

Many of us have thought for a long time that North Dakota was entirely on the wrong track from the point of view of economic science. Certainly the record of her extraordinary number of banks and her extraordinary percentage of failures would justify this belief. It is a pity that her Senators feel it necessary to express their dissatisfaction with financial conditions by voting against the administration whenever an opportunity presents itself.

Proportion to Wealth "Let us state another aspect of the banking situation, namely, the relative number of banks in proportion to the wealth of the community. We are told that the banking laws of the western states permit North Dakota to have 36 banks for every $100,000,000 of wealth in a community, as compared to Connecticut's 4 banks for the same amount of wealth. South Dakota has 22, Nebraska 22 and Iowa 16. Here again California shows the effect of good banking laws for she only has 4.8 banks per $100,000,000 in wealth.

In other words, Iowa has four times as many banks for her capital assets as Nebraska, Nebraska has 5 1-2 times, South Dakota 5 1-2 times and North Dakota 9 times. This means that the banks instead of being an element of strength in the community are an element of weakness because their number is great, their capital small and the number of inexperienced bankers is large.

"The most significant fact in the middle west is thus expressed by one bank commissioner: 'we have too many banks and not enough bankers. Nearly half the banks were capitalized at $15,000 or less. The average capital in North Dakota was less than $30,000. In South Dakota about $20,000. In 1913 it was possible to start a savings bank in Iowa if one had the equivalent of 200 acres of corn. In Nebraska a bank could be started if one had the equivalent of 377 hogs and in Missouri on a basis of $6 mules!'

Not Enough Ballast. "Professor Englund attributes a very large part of the trouble of the mid-western farmer to the poor judgment shown by the bankers of that region. They failed to keep enough ballast of cash and negotiable paper and they too often yielded to the temptation to speculate in land."

"We have realized for some time that one of the great difficulties in the west was the inflated values of the farms in 1920. In Iowa for instance the average value of farm real estate rose from $98 an acre in 1910 to $227 an acre in 1920, many farms reaching the impossible heights of four and five hundred dollars an acre. The average value of Iowa farm real estate has now fallen to $149 an acre, according to Professor Englund, and this has naturally accounted for much of the distress of the mid-western banks. We did not realize, however, until Professor Englund had pointed it out, that a considerable part of the trouble was due to the absence of proper banking laws. He quotes another Commissioner of Nebraska as calling attention to the need for more regulatory power. In a report he says 'legislation is desired to prevent further organization of small banks, to curb speculation, to disqualify the reckless, incompetent banker and to give weight to the criticisms and recommendations of the examiners and the department.'

"It appears to be true that laxity in the banking laws, in some cases, laxity in their administration, and in some cases, laxity in their enforcement, has stimulated speculation and inflation in land values and unreasonable expansion of debts.

"It is obvious to the bankers who have quantities of frozen mortgages that the only way they can hope to get out of the hole they are now in is by increasing the price of wheat and corn, thereby making the farms more saleable and at higher prices, and enabling the banks to recover on their unwise loans.

"It is extremely interesting to note that this Kansas professor of agricultural economics does not advocate the McNary-Haughen plan which would give a fictitious positive stimulus to farm prices. On the other hand he is loyal to his neighbors in the same old-fashioned, common sense terms which have made them dislike the hard common sense of New England. He says that the West needs a safer economic system, greater diversity in agriculture, more local industries, better banking laws, fewer banks, state banking departments with more authority and a higher professional standard among the bankers themselves. Had these words of wisdom come from New England they would have been received with jeers as counsels of perfection from the beneficiaries of a protective tariff. Coming as they do from a professor in the Kansas State Agricultural College, who understands agricultural farming and who is sympathetic with the farmers' viewpoint, they can hardly be waved aside as an example of sectional hatred and lack of sympathy.

"Finally for us, who are so fortunate as to live in Connecticut, it is very comforting to find that we are in that small group of states which has had less than 1 per cent of its banks fail since 1920 and in that still smaller group which by placing the most severe restrictions on the number of banks which are permitted to operate and on the character of the business they are allowed to conduct. All lovers of Connecticut will take pride in this record.

DRYS MAKE QUICK REFERENDUM SHIFT

Start Sudden Drive to Win in Five States After Declaring "Hands Off."

Washington, Oct. 25.—Discarding their reported indifference toward liquor referendums, the drys have opened a smashing offensive to win in five states on November 2. Wayne D. Whelan, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of America, disclosed today.

The drys have named California, Colorado, Montana, Nevada and Missouri as their battle-grounds. Wheeler said. He declared prohibition forces are making no fight in New York, Illinois and Wisconsin. Wets Claim Victory. While the dry "ace" was issuing his rosy forecast, G. C. Hinckley, secretary of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, declared a survey assured the wets of victory in seven of the eight referendum states.

Nearly one-fourth of the voters of the country will face the wet and dry question when they enter the voting booth in the referendum states.

800 ARE PRESENT AT STORE OPENING

Many Visit New Store of Dewey-Richman Co. to See Displays.

Exactly 800 people attended the opening of the new store of Dewey and Richman in their new building at Main and Birch streets on Saturday evening. Most of those who attended were given a token or souvenir by the management.

In their new store, Dewey and Richman have a great deal more room than they had in their other location. The place is lighted better and a skylight in the ceiling gives plenty of illumination during the day while the new style Holo-phane electric fixtures installed by Johnson's transform the place at night. The latest pattern marble linoleum has been laid on the floor by the G. E. Kelth Company which also furnished the buffet and furniture for the formal dinner layout, one of the principal items of interest in the store on Saturday night.

The table was laid for four persons with R. Wallace and Co. silkenware, the pieces including everything, even to goblets and plates. In the center of the table was placed a beautiful bunch of yellow roses.

Practically everything in the new store is new and other new wares have been added. A new line of adding machines and typewriters will be carried from now on and also a line of gold mounted colored glassware. The store must be seen, however, to be appreciated.

TROTSKY RELEGATED TO POLITICAL OBSCURITY

With Zinovieff and Kameney Retires from Public Life as Stalin Reigns Supreme.

Moscow, Oct. 25.—Leon Trotsky retired to political obscurity today, on the eve of the opening of the fifteenth Communist party conference.

Trotsky has been expelled from membership in the political bureau of the Communist party, for his part in the recent attempt to create an opposition party within the Communist ranks. With the retirement of Trotsky there also came the exclusion of Gregory Zinovieff from leadership in the Communist International and the dismissal of Leo Kameney from the post of substitute member of the political bureau. These three go into obscurity as Joseph Stalin emerges as the political leader of Soviet Russia, without dispute.

HARTFORD TRIMS MANCHESTER IN STEADY DOWNPOUR OF RAIN

Thistles Defeat Local Soccer Team by 2-0; Manchester Without Services of Three Star Men.

A steady downpour of rain spoiled everything for the Manchester soccer team in Hartford yesterday afternoon and the locals came home on the short end of a 2-0 score. The game should not have been played for the condition of the field made it a quagmire of mud and made any kind of soccer playing difficult.

Manchester was without three of its best men, Wilson, Cunningham and McCann. The substitutes in their positions, however, played an excellent game and gave their Hartford opponents plenty of trouble.

Both teams battled on even terms in the first half which was cut short by 15 minutes and Hartford made most of its scores by taking advantage of breaks in the second period. Chippis and Campbell found the goals for a goal each.

Next Sunday Manchester will play the fast Danerak A. C. of Stamford in the second round of the State Cup. Manchester will be working under a handicap for the Danerak came through this competition last year to cop the trophy.

The lineup: Manchester: goal Mulholland; rb Gowans; lb Ferguson; McDonald; rhb Bowes; Hewitt; chb Hanley; Hamilton; lhb Montgomery; Nicholson; or Chippis; Marshall; cf Campbell; Pratt; ii Keefe; McCavanaugh; of Walsh.

NORTH ENDS TASTE FIRST DEFEAT ON THEIR HOME FIELD

The North Ends were defeated in the preliminary of the Cloverleaf-Rambler-Tiger game yesterday, 2-0, by the Mohicans of Meriden. This is the first time the North Ends were ever defeated in their home field in the second defeat in three years, as they were beaten by the All-Collinsville last year in that place.

Although outweighed, the North Ends were not outclassed. They gained much more yardage than their opponents. The North Ends gained 12 first downs against four by the Mohicans. In the aerial attacks the Mohicans did not complete any out of three tries while the North Ends completed three out of seven attempts.

On the offense for the North Ends, "Curley" Trouton featured well and runs, while "Mike" work while Harper was the only one who could gain ground consistently.

The lineup: North Ends: Crockett; Mohicans: Krol; Donovan; Mitchell; Schultz; Taylor; Brinkman; Gallis; Medbury; B. Sacherek; LG Flynn; Wilson; Gebeau; Charter; McLerran; Trouton; Merkle; E. Wilson; Buell; Sacherek; Harper; Substitutions: North Ends, McKenna for Crockett; Evans for Krol; Hamilton for Mitchell; Melon for Taylor; Magnuson for E. Wilson; Mohicans: Bray for Shea; B. Shea for Flynn; Cole for Buell; White for Medbury.

Referee: Moski; umpire: Rynoskie; head linesman, McLaughlin.

BROWN NOW RANKS WITH BEST—WALSH

Saturday's Upsets Blow to "Form Players"— Picks Leading Elevens.

By DAVID J. WALSH, L. N. S. Sports Editor

New York, Oct. 25.—Football's weekly flip-flop on Saturday left some sixteen or seventeen teams undefeated for the season and the experts without a leg to stand on as always. The number of unbeaten teams is a bit unusual for this stage of the proceedings but the fact that expert opinion is again legless seems to be without significance of any kind.

Divided we stand, united we fall, seems to be the watchword of the boys who try to call them as they see them. They said Yale would beat Brown in a gallop. Yale didn't. They rallied around the idea that Dartmouth was due for a come-back against a disorganized Harvard team. They were wrong on both counts. Harvard wasn't disorganized and Dartmouth didn't come back.

They were convinced that Alabama would romp over Sewanee, that Kansas Aggies would win handily from Oklahoma and that Princeton was in a mere workout with Lehigh. None of these things happened. Alabama won by the margin of safety, the Aggies by three points and Princeton by one point.

The Navy was another team that was largely favored by the form players. Yale was the favorite in the final minute, was on the one yard line with another score imminent and everything seemed to be in the bag when a Navy substitute picked up a loose ball and ran ninety-nine yards to victory.

Got Some Right However, this is no indictment of expert opinion. The form players, in fact, scored when Pennsylvania beat Williams by thirty-six points; when Michigan defeated Illinois, Notre Dame came through against Northwestern, Washington and Jefferson beat Fordham, New York University stepped right away from Rutgers and Missouri beat Iowa State.

The Army's easy victory over Boston University was another "natural." Some of the boys seemed a bit shocked that Syracuse, minus some of its best line stars, was able to beat Penn State but I didn't see it that way. It doesn't appear to be much of a trick to beat Penn State.

The experts weren't able to foresee Brown's victory, although the Bear has had a distressing habit of beating Yale—distressing to New Haven, that is. They couldn't imagine Harvard beating Dartmouth; yet it was no secret that the Crimson was coming fast. As for those close score things, they can be thrown out. If your team wins at all nowadays, it is considered bad taste to ask how it did it.

Some of the undefeated survivors of the day were Michigan, Pennsylvania, Southern California, Stanford, Alabama, Army, Cornell, Navy, Lafayette, Missouri, Notre Dame, New York University, Ohio State, Washington and Jefferson, West Virginia, Holy Cross and Brown.

The latter now takes front rank with the best of them and, if you care for my opinion as to just who they are, I would name Michigan, Notre Dame, Pennsylvania, Army, Stanford, Ohio State and Southern California.

ELEVEN COLLEGE GRID TEAMS ARE UNDEFEATED

Eleven of the leading eastern college elevens boast a record of no defeats so far this season, but none has massed a point total to equal the 188 of Pennsylvania. Only one, Boston College, boasts an uncrossed goal line. Both Penn and New York University have been scored on but once. Lafayette has scored 174 points, has 27 on the wrong side of the ledger.

"SWEDE" OBERLANDER WRITES 12 ARTICLES FOR THE HERALD

In His First Story, Famous Dartmouth Star Discusses the Proper Grip for Hurling Forward Passes.

"Swede" Oberlander's name is synonymous with football. The famous Dartmouth star was the outstanding player of last year. On his graduation from Dartmouth, scores of colleges sought Oberlander's services as coach. Ohio State finally landed him as an assistant to Dr. Wilce. Already his work has been voted a complete success. Ohio is admitted to have the best offense in many years.

With Oberlander recognized as the foremost forward passer in the history of football, the NEA Service of which the Manchester Evening Herald is a client, immediately made successful efforts to secure Oberlander to disclose the secrets of his achievements on the gridiron. In a series of 12 articles he will analyze the secrets of his forward passing game and also tell about his most sensational work at Dartmouth, much of which, Manchester football followers are already aware.

By "SWEDE" OBERLANDER, Dartmouth. All-American Halfback, 1925. The proper grip is most important in hurling a forward pass. Why not compare the movements of the arm to those used in swinging a golf club? The same primary essentials are discovered in both.

A hasty survey reveals that each first must have the proper grip; perfect execution and timing of the swing of the arm; at the exact moment a snap of the wrist and the follow through.

Then in order to secure those few precious yards of additional distance other bodily forces must be co-ordinated with the muscles of the arm. But first, let us examine the grip.

Unless a player has exceptionally short and stubby hands I never advise the ball to be thrown while resting loosely within the fingers. A firm grip as in golf is desired. Let me try to analyze the position of the ball in my hand. My fingers cover the lacing with the first joints extending beyond. My second finger covers the last lace toward the heel, my thumb is further towards the heel, passing over the seam on the side. In this manner the ball is so balanced that the long axis is inclined slightly toward the toe of the ball.

So much for the grip. Now for the swing of the arm. Watch my hand as the ball is brought directly over my shoulder. For a longer carried out his thoughts on frenzied finance. Ruth has let it be known that he intends to ask for $150,000 in 1927. That seems like a lot of money, but Babe holds he is worth every cent of it.

During his American League career he has made about ten millions for the club owners. Babe is likely to get the $150,000 if he sticks. Jack Dempsey got close to a half million for 30 minutes' battling with Gene Tunney. That figure makes a mere matter of $150,000 seem not so much for playing 154 ball games.

Ruth is a bigger attraction than Dempsey ever was as a fighter, and he packs 'em in daily.

What Is Babe Ruth Worth? All Slugger Can Get

How much is Babe Ruth worth? The New York club will have to answer that question to the Babe's satisfaction before spring roll-around.

Ruth received $52,000 for his services during the season, just closed. He is paid in weekly installments of $1,000, extending over the entire year.

The idea is to keep Ruth in spending money. If the Babe received $2,000 per week during the season, as many other ball players having a $52,000 contract would, he probably would be broke about a week after the season ended.

Money was made to be spent—that is the theory the Babe works on, and so far he has successfully

TOWN CHAMPIONS LOOK BRILLIANT DESPITE THE DOWNPOUR OF RAIN

BOBBY JUST FORGETS OPPONENT; PLAYS AGAINST OLD MAN PAR

Many golfers have different views of watching their game in match play. Many play their own game in comparison with the score of the opponent.

Bobby Jones perhaps has one of the best systems of all. In fact, despite Bobby's recent defeat at the hands of the crafty George Von Elm, it might be said that Jones' system can be accepted as one of the most substantial and logical of the lot.

"I play against par on every hole," is the way Bobby explains his golf.

"It matters not to me that my opponent registers a birdie or an eagle on any particular hole. I cannot do that consistently. Par will, nine times out of 10, so to speak, defeat any opponent one chance in a hundred."

After one considers Bobby Jones' system in this respect, the logic of it rapidly oozes to the surface.

Before teeing off, Bobby learns what par for the hole is and regulates his strokes accordingly. It is par that troubles the open champion, not his opponent. It is doubtful if Bobby Jones realizes, as he stalks around the course, that he is doing battle on the links with anyone in particular except Old Man Par himself.

The fact that his opponent sinks a 50-foot putt or drops a 135-yard approach mashes within six inches of the pin does not disturb Bobby. His morale is unshaken, his nerve is not shattered, his brain is not loaded with worry and fear that he will lose the hole at hand.

Many golfers worry so over the bright shots registered now and then by their opponents that they can't retain full control of themselves.

Shooting strictly against par is an excellent method of eliminating the bright shots registered now and then by their opponents that they can't retain full control of themselves.

Locals Outweighed But Not Outplayed; Locals Score in Second Quarter When Captain Moske Catapults Over Final Stripe.

One fact that towers above all others as a result of the 6 to 0 victory the Cloverleaves scored over the Hartford Rambler-Tigers at Hickey's Grove yesterday afternoon in a down pour of rain, is that the North End eleven is highly capable of meeting teams far out of their class with reasonable success. Yesterday they met an opponent which would normally at least twenty pounds heavier on the average, but also considerably older. However, this made little difference insofar as the ultimate outcome was concerned.

Visitors Never Threaten. The Cloverleaf goal line was never in real danger throughout the entire contest. Once late in the second half the visitors got possession of the ball on the Cloverleaves 35-yard line when a lateral pass resulted in a Menck play, but that was as far as the Rambler-Tigers got. The local defense transformed into a virtual steel wall.

The writer got his first glimpse of the Cloverleaves in action yesterday and was very much impressed with the 1926 town champions despite the terrible condition of the field which made brilliant play impossible. The ancient axiom reads, "Make hay while the sun shines." But the players of the Cloverleaves discard all rules and regulations when there is a chance to meet an opponent on the gridiron.

For the past three Sundays the weather has been anything but favorable and yesterday it poured for three quarters of the game but this did not dismay the determination of the locals. In fact the writer believes the Cloverleaves would have given the Rambler-Tigers a far worse beating had the field been dry because the players of the Manchester eleven registered ten first downs against four for the visitors.

"All the King's horses and all the King's men" could not have stopped the Cloverleaves and determined town champions yesterday. Realizing that they were pitted against a team far superior in weight and experience, the Cloverleaves went into the game under a big handicap but came out bedecked with honors. They managed themselves as one of the most powerful, well-balanced, unindividual and brilliant football teams Manchester has had in many years.

One important factor in the victories of the Cloverleaves is that they play collectively and individually. That is the reason why the North End eleven is so successful on the gridiron. While the wonderful playing of their gallant leader, Captain Brunis, is far from individual, his players are not jealous of him. He attributes his success to the assistance he receives from his mates and as long as the Cloverleaves work on that idea they seem destined for further laurels.

Despite the pouring rain yesterday about 200 fans trekked to Hickey's Grove to watch the game and see if the Cloverleaves were truly playing at their best. They were bound to break against the first real opposition it faced.

When the game started, it was the candid opinion of the majority of the spectators that Old Man Par had won the game before it was to its credit. But they were soon to realize their mistake. The Rambler-Tigers kicked-off. The kick was low and Tyler grabbed it. It was downed almost in his tracks. For the majority of the first quarter the ball crisscrossed back and forth in mid-field with the advantage resting on the Cloverleaves.

In the second period, realizing that the opportunity of a lifetime faced them, the Cloverleaves started a march toward the Hartford goal line. With the Moske brothers, Bill McLaughlin and Brennan alternating, the "picks" passed white line after white line until the ball reached the 35-yard line. Here Brennan fumbled and the visitors recovered. They immediately punted.

At this point, Captain Brunis Moske showed a rare bit of judgment. Standing on the Hartford 40 yard line, he called for a fair catch. In their over-anxiousness, the Hartford ends crashed into him. A fifteen yard penalty placed the ball on the 25-yard line. The Cloverleaves were back in a huddle instantly and back almost as quick Brunis Moske, aided by perfect interference picked a hole through tackle, altered his course toward end and skirted for a fifteen yard gain before the Rambler-Tigers secondary defense brought him to Mother Earth. The Brunis Moske delayed too long and a five yard penalty brought the ball to the five yard stripe with the goal to go. Bill McLaughlin was called through tackle, and made about two yards. Then Brunis Moske shot like a catapult straight through the middle of the Rambler-Tigers line for a touchdown. The try for point went wide on a place kick from the toe of Walter Moske.

Dean Brown tells her that his wife is going to visit friends in a small town upstate, but Judith sees her in the city hotel where Judith has gone for a week end of relaxation.

When she returns to Pendleton, Eric gets off the same train and Dean Brown sees them together. Mrs. Brown sends for Judith and throws herself and her secret on her mercy.

During this conversation, the dean comes home and says sneeringly, "I trust you and Mr. Waters enjoyed your week-end trip, Miss Martin."

THE umbrella fell down and the dean stopped to set it up again. He had not met Judith's eyes.

Judith pulled her scarf around her. "I don't know how Mr. Waters enjoyed his trip. I enjoyed mine very much, thank you." She was shaving the words close.

Dean Brown began to remove his overcoat. Its sleeves stuck and he cast a resentful glance at his wife, who sprang to help him. "Oh," he said, "I saw you returning with him and naturally thought—"

"I don't care what you thought," said Judith. "I went to Middleburg alone. I don't know where Eric Waters went. Good by, Mr. Brown."

The dean's wife gave her a glance of pleading. The dean caught it. Judith was approaching the front door, and Mrs. Brown ran after her.

"Good by," Judith said again to the wild-eyed and speechless woman. She stepped out on the porch, and the front door shut out the blanched face of Mrs. Brown.

and twirled her around violently. "Look here, you can't afford to be so damn choony with me. You and young Waters! I got you both right where you can't squirm or squeal."

She crossed the bridge and made for the campus almost at a run. It was in shadow, for the western buildings screened it from the low rays of the setting sun.

She hurried across the central path. The mounds were still distinct in the twilight. They lifted their rounded heads against the smooth lava just ahead of her.

A man emerged from behind them and walked toward her. At first Judith scarcely noticed him, so absorbing were her own thoughts. But when he came a little nearer and stood in the path before her, she started back.

"Kitty" Shea hunched his trousers up and swaggered toward her. "Howdy, Judy, fine evening, ain't it?"

Judith did not answer, but he fell into step beside her. She walked faster, and he burst into laughter. "What's the hurry? Plenty of time before chow. Not six o'clock yet."

Still she did not speak. When they reached the turning point in the pathway, she saw two men students a little way off, and made a movement as if to run to them.

But Shea caught her by the arm and twisted her around violently. "Look here, you can't afford to be so damn choony with me. You and young Waters! I got you both right where you can't squirm or squeal."

"What do you mean?" demanded Judith, throwing back her shoulders. Shea stepped still nearer and thrust out his black jaw. "Well, there's the Blue Moon, and there's the Blue Moon, there's a Lover's Leap, and the ride home."

He put a hand on her wrist. But before Judith could scream, someone intervened. The two youths whom she had seen on the path ahead had heard Shea's voice and returned.

One of them struck at the man, but Shea was gone, in a lurching gait across the campus. One of the boys started to chase him, but gave it up and came back. He peered into Judith's face. "Did he hurt you? Why—It's Miss Martin!"

Judith looked up. "Is that his business?"

"The boy laughed and nodded. 'Didn't you know it? Most of the hooch drunk in Pendleton comes down from Middleburg by auto. And the auto is driven by none other than our friend back yonder—if it was he. 'Why don't you file charges against Shea?' he said. 'He's a bad one. Somebody ought to get his goat.'"

Judith tried to speak naturally. "I couldn't afford to get mixed up in such a mess," she said. They left her at the Stedway door. Dinner had begun when Judith entered the house. She went to her room, and freshened her face and hair. Then she went back down stairs and into the dining room.

In spite of recent emotional disturbances—or perhaps because of them—Judith ate heartily. The sensation of warmth and light and cheerful talk about her gradually smoothed the worried lines from her forehead.

"Where is that cute Myra Aldrich?" asked Sissie of Miss McGonigle. "I don't know where she is here. Don't you LOVE her black hair and those gorgeous reds she wears to enhance it?"

Miss McGonigle's mouth was too full for conversation, but she nodded. One of the Hockys answered her place. "Do you mean the red she wears in her clothes or on her face, Sissie?" she asked.

Sissie flew to the defense. "What she does range? So do we all. So would I if you knew your eggs. Myra Aldrich is a darling! Everybody picks on her."

Lillian Stedway's cool voice cut in from the foot of the table. She spoke as if to the entire table but she fixed her condemning eye on Sissie. "Please try to avoid quarrels at the table, girls," she said. "They're very hard on the digestion."

"So your old hash," muttered Sissie. Caroline McGonigle said, "Myra's gone out to dinner. Saw her dolling up in it to kill. She wasn't here for any meals yesterday. Seems to me she's out more than she's in, these days."

Sissie took a huge bite of cake. "My, it must feel grand to be so popular!"

Judith had papers to grade after dinner, but she found it hard to settle to work. She sat idly with the pen holder in her hand, and the bottle of red ink open before her.

The pile of themes diminished very slowly, and at eleven o'clock she yawned, stretched her arms and walked to the window. She opened it and let the cool night air blow into the room. Then she went back to her study table and worked feverishly for two hours. At last the pile of papers had been gone through.

Judith raised her head and was straightening her cramped shoulders, when there was a noise on the porch below. She ran to the window by the balcony and looked out. All was still in the yard. A car stood parked a little way up the street, evidently left for the night by someone staying in the next house. Its headlights were out.

A squirrel began to chatter sleepily in the tree opposite Judith's window. The noise below might have come from his scampering feet on the wooden floor of the porch.

Judith turned back to the light, and began to get ready for bed. She brushed her hair hastily, for she was very tired.

With a sigh of relief she reached for the electric light switch and got into bed. She was shivering between the cold sheets when the noise on the porch repeated itself. This time it was unmistakably the scuffling of human feet.

Judith ran to the open window again. A muffled dialogue in male voices was going on. But there was another sound that made Judith strain her ears. It was the sound of a woman sobbing.

She threw on her bathrobe and ran into the hall. A night light was still burning over the head of the stairs. She ran down the steps, keeping her eyes on the glass of the door.

Outside, silhouetted against the street lamp, were the figures of two men. They seemed to be holding something between them. While she watched, they propped their bodies against the door frame and ran.

Judith rushed to the door and flung it open, and Myra Aldrich fell into her arms.

(To Be Continued)

A tragedy hit Pendleton campus in the next chapter, and Myra has a narrow escape.

The WOMAN'S DAY

I don't know a man who doesn't like jam. I believe matrimonial bureaus would do a land-office business in husbands if they put among the credentials of their feminine clients, "She can make good old-fashioned goose-berry jam, and for cherry preserves she can't be beat."

Have you ever entertained a bachelor who dines at his club or hotels and who knows no "spreads" save mint gelatinized jelly with his lamb, a paper thimble of anemic apple sauce with his duck, guava with his patatas, and with his turkey cranberries the color and consistency of dried blood?

If he asks if there is such a thing as jam to be had, the assistant waiter goes to the waiter, the waiter goes to the captain, the captain goes to the head waiter, the head waiter goes to the steward, and the steward goes to the manager.

That engaging young man, the Prince of Wales, is about to move into his new abode, Marlborough house, the home of the late queen mother Alexandra. What a waste what a waste for some girl who would just dote on shopping around for orange and black cretonnes for the sun parlors and other certain "fancy touches." Buy her a pair of French candelabra, two French chaise lounges, two Wedgwood vases, a crystal chandelier, a Florentine brass candlestick, a painted tea caddy, a pink glass vase, and an old glass hang lantern in half an hour!

Well, what women couldn't do as well, if the coin of the realm was behind her, and she didn't have to read the price tag?

Have you heard this talk about "the wage-earning neuter?" Spinners who long to keep house, and spinners who long to carve a career are joining forces, they say. The star-at-home spinster keeps house and is paid a salary by the wage-earning sister and a nice little home is had by all. One way of solving the servant problem.

And speaking of the servant problem, Mrs. Fifi Potter Stillman is proud rather than ashamed of the fact that the affianced bride of her son, Bud Stillman, was, in the crew sense, "a hired girl" in her own home.

"Girls will work in factories," she told me on her porch at Grand Alms, and there is no scorn attached. But if a girl works in another woman's kitchen, she feels socially lower than that. It is an office girl. And yet there is no work which has to be done like the drudgery of housework."

With the downfall of the kaiser, many pretty little stories are coming out about his domestic affairs. Stories that could not be told about a kaiser's sons are now told about the man at Dorn. Not long ago, Prince Joseph, widow of the ex-kaiser's youngest son, remarried "a mere baron." Prince Eitel Friedrich, the second son, filed suit for divorce against his wife, reminding everyone of the time when the crown prince's Central was begging the kaiser to let her divorce the milliner's daughter, and the kaiser turned purple with rage.

Other times, other customs! "There is not a faithful woman living," I read "who would rather be a lovely vamp than an ugly bookkeeper."

True! Who longs for the brains of Empress Theodosia or Jean d'arc, and what woman would not like to be a Mary Pickford or Miss America?

Mrs. Ada Chamberlain, wife of a Los Angeles attorney, killed her three children the other day and ended her own life. A lengthy note left behind her explained that she killed her children because she had not been a good mother to them and must take them from a world for which she had not prepared them.

One sometimes wonders if there is not too much hullabaloo about this parent business nowadays. One cannot pick up any paper or magazine without reading some outbreak on how we parents have failed.

There is almost a morbidity in parents' over-serious outlook on their job today. Our mothers who spanked us, fed us, knitted mittens for us, baked little pies for our play parties, rubbed our chapped hands with mutton tallow, curled our hair on wet rags, gave us birthday parties, took us for picnics, washed out our mouth with soap and water when we told lies, didn't have much time to wonder whether or not they were being good parents. They just kept plugging away at the job, leaving the result on the lap of the Gods.

And none of them were forced to kill us or themselves for worry over their deficiencies!

CLEANING MIRRORS. Clean a fine mirror with alcohol but do not let it run under the frame. Dust a mirror frequently.

PROPER POSTURE. When sweeping, watch your position. Your body should be erect, your head up and your mouth closed.

SINGLE BLANKETS. Many housewives prefer single blankets because of ease in handling and laundering.

OIL YOUR LOCKS. Locks should be oiled frequently. Oil the key and turn it several times in the lock.

Here Are Some Menus For Hallowe'en 'Eats'

Perhaps you want something a little different from the traditional pumpkin pie, cider and doughnuts for your Hallowe'en party. If so, here is a new menu for you.

A whole dinner menu is given, but it can be used in part of supper or light evening refreshments as wanted.

Hallowe'en Party Menu Vegetable Cocktail in Oranges Broiled Chicken Sweet Potato Pumpkins Cauliflower au Gratin Bat-wing Salad Jack 'o' Lantern Sandwiches Mexican Parfait Coffee

If you do serve supper or just a little lunch, serve it before midnight—for this is supposed to be the magic hour when things are "sure to come true." Some special stunt should be planned for the witching minutes close to midnight.

If only part of the menu is needed the salad, sandwiches, ice, cake and coffee are sure to please.

Sweet cider and nuts can be served during the evening, or salted nuts can accompany the salad and cider can take the place of coffee, or be used in addition to the regular afterdinner beverage.

The cocktail is made of finely diced raw carrot, celery, cabbage and tomato moistened with French dressing, made piquant with Worcester's sauce. Oranges are hollowed out and faces cut in them a la Jack 'o' lantern. The cocktail is placed in a paper drinking cup cut down to fit the inside of the orange.

The chicken is broiled as usual, the golden brown coating carrying out the color scheme. Sweet potatoes are boiled and mashed for the "pumpkin." Season well and form into tiny pumpkins. Use a skewer to make the tiny depressions always found on pumpkins. Brush over with melted butter and use a raisin for the stem.

Bake in a quick oven until brown. The cauliflower is baked in the oven until brown on top. Bat-wing salad is unusual enough to require a recipe.

One slice pineapple 3 large cooked prunes, 1 teaspoon cream cheese, 1 teaspoon peanut butter, lettuce. Cut pineapple in half through the center. Place on a crisp lettuce leaf with the round edges toward but not touching each other. Work cheese and peanut butter together and use a raisin for the stem.

Remove stems from prunes. Stuff two with mixture and place, cut side down, between the pineapple halves to form the body of the bat. The pineapple forms the wings. Cut thin strips from the remaining prune and place them on the pineapple in such a way that they make the frame so plain in a bat's wings.

The sandwiches are round with faces cut on half the slices of bread. A sharp-pointed knife makes this work very easy. A triangle for the nose, new moon for the mouth and almond-shaped slits for eyes. The nose and mouth are filled with bits of pimento, white rice or green olives, cut from the stones, all the eyes.

Brown or rye bread should be used and the filling may be creamed butter, minced olives and nuts. The Mexican parfait keeps to the yellow color scheme.

Mexican Parfait Two cups brown sugar, 1 cup water, 6 eggs (yolks), 3 cups heavy cream, 1 pound walnut brittle, 1 dozen dry macaroons. Put sugar and water in a smooth sauce pan and stir until melted. Then cook without stirring, until a soft ball is formed when a few drops are tried in cold water. Pour slowly onto yolks of eggs beaten until thick. Bat constantly while adding sirup. Cook over hot water until stiff. Fold in cream whipped through food chopper. Grumble macaroons and dry for five minutes in a hot oven. Mix crumbs and brittle thoroughly and add half to the custard mixture. Turn into mold, pack in ice and salt and let stand four hours or longer. Serve sprinkled with remaining creamed butter crumbs and walnut brittle. The freezing mixture should be three parts ice to one part salt.

A simple sponge cake is delicious to serve with the rich ice suggested, although tiny round cookies painted with melted chocolate to picture owls, faces or the proverbial witch on a broomstick are cunning. A wooden skewer makes an excellent "brush" for this painting.
