HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Tomorrow evening the band will rehearse promptly at 6:15 in the High school hall. The rehearsal will be of the utmost importance, because the band will make its first public appearance a week from Saturday at the Connecticut Interscholastic League football league game at the McKee street stadium.

The band was proposed last spring by Kemp's Music House, which has sponsored the movement. Many of the boys who could play instruments suitable for band work became interested in the formation of a band, and some others who would not play but who wished to become members were able to secure instruments through the courtesy of Kemp's, which supplied these instruments at cost price that the band might become a reality.

This fall the band was definitely organized, and Harold Turkington of Kemp's Music House agreed to act as bandmaster. Through his efforts the organization has developed remarkably well, and will be ready to play a week from Saturday.

The formation of a French club will get under way on Monday afternoon, the seventh period. The local High school has never had a French club before. The movement for such a club is being sponsored by the Misses Nolan and Kelley.

Here's What a Protective Tariff Means to Manchester

It is impossible to separate the prosperity of Manchester from the prosperity of the silk business, its chief industry.

The silk industry would never have been created in the United States, and would not exist today, if it were not for a protective tariff. There is little difference in the machinery used in the manufacture of silk in the United States and that used in foreign countries.

Following are comparative wage scales of the world's industrial nations. It is easy for sane, thinking persons to conclude from these figures whether they want a Republican protective tariff to bridge the present difference between their wage scale and that of other silk manufacturing nations.

How would the people of Manchester like to compete with the following scale of wages?

AVERAGE WEEKLY WAGE OF SILK WORKERS
United States—male	$25.00 to $27.00
(The above is not as high as the average wage paid in Manchester.)
Great Britain—male weavers	$11.00 to $13.00
France—male	$ 7.00 to $ 9.00
Germany—velvet weavers—male	$ 9.00 to $13.00
Japan	$ 5.00 to $ 6.00
China	$ 2.50 to $ 3.00

BUTCHER SHOP NIGHT A WONDERFUL SUCCESS

Every Seat Filled at Last Night's State Show; Vaudeville Tonight, Tomorrow and Saturday.

If there was a vacant seat in the State theater last evening the ushers could not find it. The playhouse was packed from "pit to dome" as the old-timers used to say. The attraction was a real butcher shop and the novelty provided a great treat.

When the curtain arose an honest to goodness butcher shop was disclosed. There were butcher blocks, cash register and everything.

As the numbers were called off the people started to walk up to the stage and at one time the stage was almost filled with the shoppers. With the men, women and children walking about choosing the various cuts, the cash register ringing and the three butchers cutting up the meat and clerks wrapping it up, the scene was most realistic. Altogether about 1,600 pounds of meat was given away, not mentioning cabbage, celery, pumpkins and other things.

Tonight finds vaudeville occupying the State stage. There are two acts fighting for headline honors. The first is Wilbur Sweetman and his band. Here is an organization of musicians hard to equal on the vaudeville stage. The leader is acclaimed the best clarinet player in the world and you have often heard him in solos on the Victor records. The other big act is Raymond Nelson and Co., a great comedy combination. Other acts are Alexander and Kent, triple bar athletes, Art Stanley, delineator of song types and Matthew and Earl "At the Club" a comedy bit.

Douglas McLean will be seen in "Hold That Line," and "Sweet Adeline" will be the song reel. When the name of the song was announced last evening there was a burst of applause the first time a song reel was applauded when it was announced. This means that there will be many singing the

NOTED STAGE PLAY AT CIRCLE TONIGHT

"Diplomacy" in Which Sarah Bernhardt Starred, Will Be One of a Double Feature Bill.

There was probably no better known stage play than "Diplomacy," when Sarah Bernhardt, the world's greatest actress played the principal role years ago. Now the play has been put into the pictures and loses nothing by it. It will be one of the features at the Circle tonight.

The peace of the entire world depends on the recovery of a stolen treaty. The newly married wife of a young foreign office attaché is suspected. Evidence piles up. Then come complications and revelations at which you will be amazed.

Why? Because "Diplomacy" fairly bristles with mystery and thrills! If you like lots of excitement—"Diplomacy" the picture for you.

The other feature will be "The Shamrock Handicap," a great story of the race tracks. It is filled with romance and just the kind of a feature to balance "Diplomacy." Of course there will be shorter subjects also on the same bill.

HARRY CAREY HERE IN "DRIFTIN' THRU"

A thrilling western drama will be the feature attraction at the Rialto theatre today and this evening. It is called "Driftin' Thru" and should provide some real entertainment for those who like a fast moving western plentifully interspersed with half-breed escapades and gun-play. Harry Carey, one of the foremost delineators of western types is starred and is ably supported by a hand-picked cast, which includes some screen notables. Selected short subjects round out the program.

There will be an added feature on tonight's program when another amateur contest will be staged.

Some of the best amateur talent available in the East have entered the contest tonight and some excellent vaudeville should be offered. The affair is open to anyone caring to compete, entries being accepted at the box office of this theatre.

"West of Broadway" will be shown on Friday and Saturday. Frisella Dean is playing in the leading role and contributes, in a large measure to the success which the film has enjoyed.

REED USING "PROBE" TO AFFECT ELECTION

Trying to Get Evidence in Before Indiana Voters Have to Act on Watson.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 23.—In a race against time, Senator James A. Reed, (Dem., Mo.), resumed his one-man slush inquiry here today for the purpose of revealing the truth about the Ku Klux Klan's activities in American senatorial elections.

With eight witnesses, chiefly former Klansmen, under subpoena, Reed hoped to prove the truth or falsity of stories that Senator James E. Watson, (R., Ind.), participated in the management of the Klan and used it to further his aspirations to remain in the Senate. Reed hoped to establish the facts about Watson's connection with the Klan before next Tuesday's election.

Considerable mystery meanwhile shrouded the disappearance of Mrs. Vivian Tracy Wheatcraft, vice chairman of the Indiana Republican state committee, from the Liberty hospital here, where she was under subpoena to appear as a witness before the Reed committee. Her husband, Bruce Wheatcraft, declared under oath Monday that she was too ill to testify and that her removal from the hospital would endanger her life.

She was spirited out of the hospital sometime yesterday. She was subpoenaed to explain newspaper stories that she had conducted a "poison squad" of women to help Senator Watson to victory by gossip in the last primary.

There Is But One Answer to Your Furniture Buying Problem

FIND THE ESTABLISHMENT

Does a Furniture "Sale" always mean that you can really save money. There is a "sale" for every month of the year . . . with so called Discounts of from 20 to 50% . . . and you wonder if the original prices were altogether out of proportion.

We sell for less, so do we, and so do we. Somebody must be wrong. Can every establishment sell furniture at less than every other establishment?

Certainly not.

Thousands of people, utterly confused, are asking themselves this question. "Where will I go to get the utmost value for my money? Who REALLY sells good furniture at the lowest price?"

There is but one answer what to do. FIND THE ESTABLISHMENT.

—the establishment that has something BACK of its claim of low prices. Get the reason for the claim, get the PROOF. You have a right to know:

—find the establishment that charges you ONLY for the merchandise you buy, an establishment that does not have to charge you for pretentious surroundings, expensive location, attractive show windows and unnecessary frills.

—find the establishment that puts its money into FURNITURE and charges you only for furniture.

—find the establishment that manufactures a considerable part of the furniture it sells and then sells it at a small margin of profit so that its customers can SAVE the profit the dealer would ordinarily make.

—find the establishment that can save large sums of money on the hauling of furniture received from Grand Rapids and other furniture centers because it is located adjoining the freight-house.

—find the establishment where rent, both of factory and display rooms, is very low. Where attractive, well lighted, well ventilated display rooms with over 60 windows can be maintained at one quarter the rent it would be necessary to pay if located on one of the retail streets of Hartford.

—find the establishment where overhead expenses are very low.

—find the establishment which is able to operate its business under these most unusual economic conditions and you will find the establishment that CAN and DOES offer quality furniture at prices that would be utterly impossible if the business was conducted in the usual retail manner.

You will find this establishment at the corner of Morgan and Market Streets. The sign on the building reads Garber Brothers.

—and here you will find an establishment that NEVER has "sales", but one that offers furniture every day of the year at prices that fear not the competition of the most attractive "sales" held elsewhere.

"Be Broadminded" Models' Philosophy

"Don't Slap Until You Have to" Is Rule

This is the second of a series of articles telling the intimate story of a New York fashion model. Tomorrow: Where Models Come From.

By MARION HALE
NEA Service Writer

New York, Oct. 28.—"Be broad-minded, dearie, be broad-minded," was Dolly's advice. Dolly was a tall blonde with long ratty-yellow hair who was a first-row chorus girl in the "heavy" season. She had taken me under her wing my first day as a fashion model in a large New York wholesale dress house.

Being broad-minded this time meant standing before a loud-mouthed buyer from Nebraska and letting him push chocolate-covered gin drops in my mouth with his sticky fingers.

The August air was sultry and the showroom full of O. T. B.'s (Out of Town Buyers) grouped around tables in the six little booths.

Always Busy
Eight of us were working busily. We wriggled into dresses, modeled them to each of the separate booths down the full length of the showroom, returning to the dressing room and squirting out of them while the colored maid pulled at the long tight sleeves (everything for fall has long sleeves). This was our treadmill.

Two hundred and fifty smart frocks with queer cuts, odd-shaped capes and a profusion of embroidery composed the "line," many exact duplicates of Parisian models. This particular time I put on a dress of deep chanel, the new light wine shade, with a floating cape hanging from one shoulder.

"Love and kisses from me to you," he said in husky baby talk and poked a chocolate gin drop between my lips.

I gazed to the wall opposite booth No. 3 and "modeled" up, pausing to announce the wholesale price: "Sixteen seventy-five."

I pivoted and held out the cape, giving them a back view. "Number?" queried Harry, the salesman, seeing that the O. T. B.

was becoming interested in the dress, or me. "Number 314," I answered. The models must know the price and number of each dress without referring to the ticket on the sleeve. Some buyers, bashful elderly men, never look at the girls, but focus their attention on the dress, apparently afraid of being vamped. Others stare boldly at the model, and buy any dress, willy-nilly, that a favorite model wears. Still others consider the showing of styles just as they would a musical comedy revue.

"I've got your number," grinned the O. T. B. in 1918 slang. "Come here, sister."

He beckoned me to the table and opened a large red-ribboned box of chocolates, selecting one.

"Love and kisses from me to you," he said in husky baby talk and poked a chocolate drop between my lips.

The inside of the candy was gin and as I bit down on it the liquid squirted out between my teeth. I tried to swallow. My tongue and throat burned. The men roared. I rushed back to the dressing room in a rage.

"Be Broadminded!" Dolly had seen the incident as she was waiting her turn behind the maroon velvet curtains.

"You have to be broad-minded in this job, lil' one. Take their tip as long as you can and don't slap 'em unless you have to."

The tall blonde had summed up the model's philosophy as I later learned it. In a business she has grown into a new code of conduct as successful as her grandmother's but blunt and without illusions.

She isn't shocked at men's glances nor insulted. She returns their banter. She doesn't run from temptation, she walks into it and then slaps with twentieth century girlish muscle.

"Hello, sweetheart," said the O. T. B. stopping at the door of the dressing room, "you dazzle me so I can't see the dresses."

4818 GRADUATES OF WESLEYAN ARE LIVING

Middletown, Oct. 28.—Wesleyan University has 4,818 living graduates this fall, according to the new alumni directory issued today, with over one-fourth of 1,342 living in New York state. Connecticut has 336 graduates of Wesleyan and Massachusetts has 556, while 101 are living abroad.

Wesleyan's graduates run more to teaching than to any other profession, and the ministry is second, with law next. Middletown has 193 Wesleyan graduates as residents today. Hartford has 177, New Haven 102, and Bridgeport 41. Others scattered from New York to San Francisco and from Boston to Miami.

"NEW HAVEN" SEEKING SANCTION FOR MERGER

Washington, Oct. 28.—Application was made to the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad for authority to acquire control of the Central New England, the Harlem River and Portchester railroads. These two roads have been merged under the laws of New York and Connecticut, subject to approval of the Public Service Commissions of those states.

The New Haven also asked for authority to issue $4,995,000 of four and a half per cent. equipment trust certificates. The proceeds from their sale will be used in the purchase of eleven electric locomotives, seven steam locomotives and other rolling stock at a total cost of $6,669,698.

There are a few more than 731,000 miles of railroad track in the world.

A Double Treatment for Colds

It is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist the direct, double action of Vicks Vaporub. When it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts in two ways at once:

- (1) Direct to the inflamed air passages with its medicated vapor, released by the body heat and
- (2) Direct through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the tightness, soreness and pain.

Head or chest colds may easily sap your vitality and undermine your health. Don't neglect them.

The NUT CRACKER by Joe Williams

This is open season for broken beams, twisted spines, spiked shin bones, mutilated ribs and powdered shoulder blades.

While the back door diplomats of Europe have succeeded in making the country safe for democracy, football still is anybody's hospital risk.

One great advantage of open game is that it eliminates group fighting and enables ringside spectators to see just who is gnawing whose jaw.

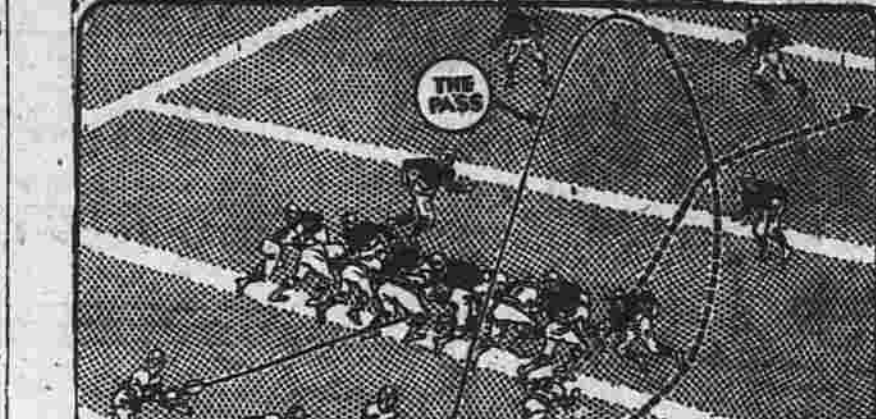

When forward pass was introduced red-necked red-bloods of the period uncoiled their tonsils and demanded to know what the good old game of main and murder was coming to, anyhow.

They were right in theory but wrong in tackle. One of the most delightful forms of ferocity known to the alleged human race is the spectacle of a 200-pounder crashing into a trembling end who has just appeared a pound of rubberized air from the clouds.

Still there is nothing comparable to the enthusiasm of the under grad as he goes out to die for the college colors. Of course his mentality may be open to question but that is another thing.

What's the most number of hits Babe Ruth has made in a season? -D. F. H. Ruth's best mark was in 1923 when he combed out 205 safe swats.

KEY TO FORWARD PASS SUCCESS HELD BY PASSERS—OBERLANDER

Passer and Receiver Must Think in Unison; Throwing Pass Late or Early or Trusting to Luck is Height of Folly.

By "SWEDEN" OBERLANDER (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.) Upon one decision of the passer depends the success of the pass.

The situation is constantly changing. To whom will he make the pass? A moment lost means an uncompleted pass or a possible interception.

I find it my greatest fault to make my decision previous to the beginning of the play. Often this preconceived pass never is executed.

Empire Good Judge Perhaps no one is in a better position to judge a pitcher's worth than the umpire.

Carroll, despite the fact that he failed to finish either of his first two starts, being hit rather freely in both, impressed me.

I find it is considerably different in the majors than the colleges. It is a wider game than I expected.

It has been proved that all Carroll needed was a little seasoning in the minors.

LAZZERI LOST JUST 22 POUNDS DURING 1926 BALL SEASON

But Evans Attributes It to Sever Nerve Strain; Calls Him Best First Year Man.

Tony Lazzeri of the New York Americans probably was the most valuable first-year player in either league last season.

Lazzeri, by his general all-round play, did as much for the Yankees as did Ruth with his batting or Fenwick with his pitching.

For five months of the 1926 season Lazzeri went at full speed and packed a real punch at the bat.

There was a reason—Tony had gone stale at the finish.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE JUDITH MARTIN, a new teacher at Penitence University...

ERIC WATERS, senior, and Dr. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, are chief rivals for her favor.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XX

THE tears which Judith was fighting back made her eyes burn and her throat ache almost intolerably.

Meeting each other's somber eyes over a little table, they both laughed, but there was a note of hysteria in the laughter.

Eric did not smile. "Honor itself seems to be tottering. At least, mine is."

Judith shrugged her shoulders. "After all, she is a young girl, and she was in your care."

"Oh," said Judith, dryly. "So that's the sum of it?"

Eric picked up his glass of water and drank it dry. "Look here, I don't want to talk about Myra. I want to talk about you. You were simply magnificent this afternoon. I hope it won't injure your standing with the dean permanently. If I'd stopped to think, I wouldn't have put you in that painful position before the faculty."

"But, at the moment, it just seemed that I had to find somebody that believed in me. This mess has got me very low, Jude. I don't see how I'm every going to vindicate myself. I wish I'd kept clear of the business. I don't think it's wrong to drink. But when it comes to selling poison whisky—or being suspected of it—well, that's a bit unsavory."

"Yes," said Judith, gravely. "It is. They finished the meal in silence, and the waiter brought the check. A gray envelope fluttered out of Eric's pocket as he reached for his bill folder.

Judith stood back to let the crowd pass. Presently she saw Eric coming toward her, with a handsome white-haired woman on his arm.

"Mother," said he, "this is my friend, Miss Judith Martin. She came down with me to welcome you."

The green eyes beneath the milk turban were like Eric's. They swept over Judith coolly. "Indeed," said Mrs. Waters, "how do you do, my dear?"

"I'm not sober," said Myra. "I'm just meditating. I'm going to have a new evening dress and I was wondering what color it should be. Chinese red appeals to me. It's so easy to spot."

Judith's brows wrinkled. "I can't see that there is an advantage."

Myra giggled. "Silly Billy. Easy to spot on the dance floor, I mean. That's what red dresses are for—so the stage can keep track of you."

Judith laughed. "Are you finding it necessary to resort to such tricks?"

Myra looked serious. "I danced three times around the floor with one man last Saturday night at assembly. It was horri- bly embarrassing. If I'd had a Chinese red dress I'll bet that wouldn't have happened. For one thing, Will Wetherel grabbed me for the last dance and asked where on earth I'd been. He'd been hunting for me all evening on the floor."

Judith nodded. "You go out to dinner with me tonight, Judy? Let's have a real party, just the two of us, as a sort of love feast after the war."

"All right," said Judith absently. The recollection of Eric's dinner party came to her during an afternoon class and she hurried home from school to apologize to Myra.

But she had no chance. Myra came tripping into Judith's room as soon as she got home. "What a wonderful day! I pledged G. D. this morning. Isn't that grand? I can be initiated at Christmas." She proudered before the mirror.

"Say, Judith, will you excuse me from that date tonight?" Will post-poned it to your convenience.

Judith was taking her evening dress off its hanger in preparation for Eric's party. "Why, surely, Myra. In fact, I would have had to break the engagement with you, if you hadn't done it first. I got my dress mired."

Miss Stedway's voice called Judith to the telephone. "Eric was on the wire. Listen, Judith, I'm in an awful jam. Mother called up Myra and invited her to the dinner—told her I'd come after her at seven o'clock. I argued with her, said I'd asked you and couldn't go after Myra. But mother wouldn't give in. She's rather spoiled, you know. Now I'm afraid to fight this thing out, with all the scandal hovering over me. Will it be all right if I send Wetherel for you?"

"It will be quite all right to send nobody after me," said Judith. "I'm not coming." (To Be Continued)

Judith watches the stars with Dr. Dorn in the next chapter, and the reader learns of a new side to the serious-minded professor.

Chill before serving and each glass with a dot of egg white, stiffly beaten and garnish with a sprig of mint.

Chiffons, velvets, taffetas, these are the three favorite fabrics for evening wear. The girls will choose the taffetas and chiffons and the matrons or older women the velvets. Taffeta is ideal for the bouffant frock, particularly in the new two-toned shades of chiffon.

Two russet pears, 1 tart apple, 1 tablespoon minced candied ginger, 4 tablespoons minced celery, 2 tablespoons chopped hickory nuts, 2 cups shredded cabbage, 4 tablespoons grated carrot, 4 tablespoons oil, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, cooked salad dressing, 4 marachi cherries.

Crisp cabbage in cold water for 30 minutes. Drain and dry between towels. Combine with carrots, mix sugar, salt, oil and lemon juice and pour over cabbage mixture. Beat well with a fork and chill while preparing the rest of the salad.

"Make your trimming flowers of the same fabric as your dress, and the bigger the smarter," says Paris.

Silk squares for mufflers are the thing this season—men's mufflers I hasten to explain. They should be 36 inches square and pure silk gray is best as it doesn't wrinkle. The favorite colors are tan, taupe or white grounds with small or large figures, coin or polka dots.

"Society? I'll Take Job," Blueblood Author Says

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS. New York—Temperamental and active women need to have lots of work to do, and if their home and family doesn't use up all their excess energy—and usually it doesn't—they should have jobs of some kind.

So says Isabel Cotton Smith, herself one of the restless class. Though she belongs to one of the old, aristocratic families of New York, and knows the 400 by their first names, she knows her way around in the business world. She's in Dun's as well as in the Social Register.

"As a child," she recalls, "I was always unhappy because I never had enough to do. I couldn't possibly keep myself occupied, and I frequently got into trouble. As I grew older, I was unable to take social life seriously, and it was not until I needed the money, and went to work that I really became happy because then I had an outlet for my activities."

Mrs. Smith has made a great adventure of her business career and allowed no conventional notions of what a first family lady cannot do to cramp her activity.

"My first venture was that of saleswoman in an exclusive New York shop. At the end of two weeks my employer asked me not to return, and as a final gesture, he said I was impossible—I believe he went so far as to imply I was an idiot. I stayed two months in my next job but it was not a period of unalloyed joy for me or the firm."

"So I went into business. I rented a house in Washington, got in touch with a seamstress I knew, and opened my own dressmaking establishment—managed it for seven years, until I left Washington, and by that time, being a business woman was in my blood."

"So when we moved down to Texas during the war, where there was nothing for me to do, I started to write a cook book. Believe it or not, I was nine years writing that volume which has recently come out as 'The Blue Book of Cookery.'"

"All my love for cooking went into it. During that time, I experimented with some two thousand recipes besides what came up in the regular course of the day's eating routines. And I never again want to see eggs and a mixing bowl looking menacingly at me."

When she returned to New York, after the war, Mrs. Smith plunged into new business activities. She became a professional marketer, and the business, she admits, was a flop. Buying vegetables and meats for a hundred women was just a hundred times as bad as buying for one.

"From that she operated an employment bureau, then she went in to real estate on a large scale and is one of the most successful women in the business."

"I didn't go into business for fun," she admits. "If I hadn't needed a little money to keep the gas from being turned off, I don't suppose I should have made quite the effort I did at the start. "I've made the most ridiculous mistakes, and tried the most outlandish schemes. Having had no business training of any kind, no disciplinary college course, or no capital, some of the time, I've not been able to see the road very plainly—but after various digressions in the fields and highways, I have been able to limp back to it. "Society? Well, ambition and money will always create what we call society. Today many of the old families are the new poor. Who can tell who will be in power tomorrow—but business goes on, and the business woman, who has a job she likes and that brings in the income she needs—well, she should worry about society."

Good Nature and Good Health

STRAINED EXPRESSION IS SIGN OF NASAL FLAW. This is the last of a series of five articles on healthful children.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN, Editor of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

A normal child breathes through his nose. When such breathing is obstructed by growths within the nose, or by abnormal conformation, by adenoids, or by large tonsils, the child develops a pinched and harassed expression.

The old-time physician when called to a patient would always look first at the tongue. "A clean, moist, red tongue," says Hugh Chaplin, "indicates that digestion is satisfactory."

Character—Orderliness

Home Page Editorials By Olive Roberts Barton

There is no surer key to character than orderliness. Show me a person's room and I can tell you something of his personality.

Orderliness may, of course, be bought and paid for, but in the average house it is mother's back that bends for every bit of carelessness usually. If each member of the family sees to it that his own belongings are kept in place, it takes an infinitesimal fraction of his time and makes housekeeping a far less burdensome thing.

FLAPPER FANNY

Exaggeration was made for the gossip—who makes the best of it.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

With rubber held so dear it's getting to be quite a compliment to call a person a flat tire.

When an irresistible filver comes in contact with an immovable hole in the road the doctor and undertaker dance with glee.

Sign on the back of a Ford: Well, go ahead if you want to; we prefer to do it on the dotted line.

Every family should own its own home and its own filver to stay away from it in.

Larkson: I'm going up to the jail. I want to talk with the bandit who took my car.

Parkson: What's the use? Larkson: Maybe he'll tell me how he got fifty miles an hour out of her.

An Open and Shut Case An open car an open road. Likewise an open throttle. An open ditch—closed episode. They had an open bottle.

There had been an auto wreck. One of the drivers climbed out in a fit of temper and strode up to a man standing on the sidewalk, thinking it to be the other driver. "Say, where the devil's your tail light?" he roared. The innocent bystander looked up at him. "What do you think I am—a lightning bug?"

We read of a family of six being left destitute when the auto burned up. How about that.

About this time the old car doesn't seem to be just like new.

French Without a Struggle Sir: Add to your Easy French Lessons this sign in a Los Angeles second hand auto shop: "If you want to know what class is. Take a look at this here chassis."

Hospital Nurse: You wish to see the young man injured in a motor accident. You are the lady he was with?

Gladys: Yes, I thought it would be only fair to give him the kiss he was trying for.

Only Backard would build a Backard.

The automobile is something like progress. The crank is out in front.

Those drive fastest whose presence won't make any particular difference when they get there.

As the horse disappears, horseback riding becomes aristocratic, and a time may yet arrive when there is social prestige in walking.

Chauffeur (to slightly deaf farmer): "Can you tell me where I can get some gas?" Farmer: "Hey?" Chauffeur: "No, gas! This ain't a horse, it's an automobile."

If wishes were horses—we would wish they were autos.

Motorcycle Cop: I just stopped you to get your number.

Girl in Roadster: You state men sure work fast. I just gave it to a chap twenty miles down the road, but in case he didn't tell you, it is 123-R.

The fellow who buys a car on time surely pays as he goes.

INTELLIGENCE TESTS

WHAT'S YOUR IQ?

IQ means "Intelligence Quotient" or Intelligence rating. This is a hard quiz, and the average person should be able to answer only five questions. If you are able to answer more than five questions your intelligence is above average and if you can answer all, your rating is superior. The correct answers appear on another page: 1—Who is shown in the accompanying picture? 2—What caused the death of King Alexander of Greece in 1920. 3—Who wrote "Thanatopsis"? 4—In what year during the Civil War was the Battle of Chickamauga fought? 5—How many tiles are there in a set of Mah Jongg? 6—How many boroughs are there in New York City? 7—Who wrote "Evangeline"? 8—Who excavated the tomb of King Tutankhamen? 9—What are the two most popular complaints for divorce in the United States? 10—From what is this quotation taken: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness?"

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tynmites, of course, were sad. The lark they'd had was really bad. When Mister Squirrel ran away their little cart was wrecked. Said Scuty, in a wailing tone, "It's our own fault. We might have known. We made the squirrel work too hard, so what could we expect?" Then Carpy rose and chimed right in. "Oh, shucks, let's bear our fate and grin. There's no use in crying over spilt milk, so they say. Now that was very good advice. To smile, instead of frown is nice, so all the band was very glad to look at it that way. Just then they heard a noise right near. A thumping, thumping, very clear. At first it seemed so very loud it filled them all with fright. Then Ukey looked and loudly cried, "Ah, here's our chance to get a ride," "because he had seen, far down the road, a horse run into sight. The horse's hoofs, upon the ground, had made the thumping, thumping sound. He galloped down the pathway 'till he reached the Tynmites. Then Carpy said, "He looks to me like he's as friendly as can be." But Carpy added, "I don't know. I wonder if he bites." The horse, however, bobbed his head and swished his tail, so Carpy said, "Aw, gee, come on, let's hop aboard. He's big enough for all. I'll hold my hands and give a boost. Upon his back, we'll soon all roost. Be careful, now, don't slip, because it's pretty far to fall." They scrambled on the best they could, and some sat down, while others stood. And then they pulled wee Copy up. It sure was quite a load. The horse was smart, and seemed to know the Tynmites were set to go. He started very slowly, then went trotting down the road.
