

TO BROADCAST EACH STEP OF THE HALL TRIAL

Radio Concern Plans First Exploitation of Murder Trial; Doctor Finds Mrs. Mills' Tongue Gone.

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 29.—Investigators of the Hall-Mills murder mystery declared today that two bullets extracted from the exhumed body of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, choir singer who was slain four years ago with Rev. Edward R. Hall, will have an important bearing at the trial next week of the Rev. Hall's widow and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, charged with the murders.

Tongue Missing

Examination of the body by Dr. Otto H. Schultze, noted autopsy surgeon, also disclosed that the tongue was missing. A recent report fact which hastened Special Prosecutor Simpson's decision to order the exhumation.

Dr. Schultze intimated that the tongue had been cut out, although he said it might have been removed during the long period the body had lain in its grave.

The body was re-buried in its grave this morning. The re-burial was supervised by Alfred Forsyth, superintendent of Van Hook cemetery, near New Brunswick. This was the second time Mrs. Mills' body had been exhumed and an autopsy performed.

Liko Shears Wound

The autopsy revealed that the "necklace" wound on the throat, which nearly severed the head, began at the back and was slight at its inception, increasing in width as it continued. The physician suggested that a pair of shears might have been used. Once the instrument had slipped, making a cut in the breast.

For legal purposes James Mills, husband of the murdered woman, was called in to identify the body.

"Yes, that's Eleanor—that's my wife," he said in a colorless voice.

Then he raised the left arm and pointed the wedding ring he once placed on it. The ring was turned away, bowing his head, and was led from the room by a detective.

Prosecutor Simpson has found a new witness, a woman, whose testimony may be of startling importance at the trial.

She is Mrs. John G. Gibson, "the pig woman," ace among the state's hundred-odd witnesses. Mrs. Gibson says she saw Mrs. Hall, her brother Willie and her cousin Henry B. Carpenter, in the lane. She explains that she was enabled to recognize them by the glare of automobile lights.

Prosecutor Simpson expects to proceed before the first of the week with the exhumation of Dr. Hall's body, which is buried in Brookline.

He occupied today with the "struck" jury proceedings here before Supreme Court Justice Parker and County Judge Cleary. In selecting a panel from which the Hall-Stevens jury will be chosen, sixty takers have been drawn.

Plans for Broadcasting

New York, Oct. 29.—Radio fans will be able to get a "blow by blow" description of the Hall-Mills trial by an arrangement for broadcasting the proceedings announced by Station WJNY, Hotel Roosevelt.

I plan to broadcast the trial just as a prize fight is broadcast from the ringside," Charles D. Isaacson, director of the station, said. "The microphone will be in a building directly across the street from the Court House and I will be constantly moving from the courtroom to the mike. Assistants will be in the courtroom while I am out of it so that no action will be missed.

DEATH OF CHARLES H. BLOOM.

Charles H. Bloom, one of Manchester's oldest and best known residents, died today at his home on Main street. Mr. Bloom has been ill for about two years.

He was born in Manchester in the old Bloom homestead on South Main street on June 4, 1852. For years he was one of the town's leading contractors and builders.

What Say?

Inquisitive "Ike," one of the two grafts whose mottled elongation brightened darkest Africa before their capture by the Smithsonian-Chrysler Expedition. Here we have "Ike" peering forth from his stateroom as the ship brought him into Boston harbor. "Ike's" fellow captive is, of course, "Mike."

FLIES BIG FACTOR IN DESERT WEDDING

Millions of Them, Says Earl Carroll, Reporting Moroccan Nuptials.

The ceremonies and celebrations attendant on the marriage of the three sons of the Sultan of Morocco ended shortly after midnight today. Earl Carroll, American theatrical producer, flew from Paris to Morocco to witness the ceremonies.

By EARL CARROLL.

Morocco, Oct. 29.—Sixty musicians in kimono, six hundred dancing girls, around a moonlit fountain, six thousand sheiks on horseback firing muskets, sixty thousand tom-toms and sixty million flies—that's Marakech, as the three sons of the Sultan marry their three daughters of the desert.

The red sunset vies with the clouds of red dust as countless caravans arrive, lanterns twinkle in the olive groves, snake charmers, acrobats, rug merchants and courtiers fill the famous Djem el Fna.

I arrived here by aeroplane and circled ten times over the minarets and domes and when I landed the natives thought I was an emissary bringing tardy wedding gifts from the French government.

Faces of Grooms Hidden.

The bridegrooms—the three sons of the Sultan—were presented to the populace swathed in clothing and decks from their heads to feet, with their faces invisible, proving that in Marakech as elsewhere the bridegroom is an unseen but necessary adjunct to a wedding.

I have met the Sultan and El Glaoui, Pasha at Marakech, and have been given luncheon in the palace, squatting on a cushion in Arabian splendor, eating thirty-two courses of chicken alone, without the aid of either a fork or a knife.

ANTINOE'S LIFEBOAT DRIFTED 2,000 MILES

New York, Oct. 29.—Blown 2,000 miles from the scene of the heroic rescue of the crew of the British freighter Antiope by the President Roosevelt, lifeboat No. 8, lost during the rescue, has been washed ashore on one of the Orkney Islands, Captain George Fried of the Roosevelt learned today.

The Antiope rescue was made on January 28. According to information Captain Fried brought from abroad, the lifeboat was washed ashore between October 17 and 23.

BANK'S TURRET KILLS, WOUNDS, FOILS BANDITS

Guard Opens Fire as Shotgun Raiders Enter; 1 Dead, 1 Shot, 1 Escapes; Officer, Citizen Hurt.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 29.—One bandit was killed, one was wounded, a policeman was shot in the stomach, and a citizen was wounded in the leg during an attempted hold-up of the Bank of Detroit on Michigan avenue shortly before noon today.

From twenty to thirty shots were fired. Three bandits took part in the hold up. One of them escaped. The dead man has not been identified. No loot was obtained.

In Steel Turret.

Two of the bandits entered the bank with sawed-off shotguns and ordered the employees to "stick 'em up and shell out."

ASTRID AND LEOPOLD TO BE THRICE WEDDED

Civil and Lutheran Ceremonies in Stockholm to Precede Rites in Belgium.

Brussels, Oct. 29.—The religious ceremony, uniting Prince Leopold, heir to the Belgian throne, and Princess Astrid of Sweden, in marriage, to be performed in St. Gudule Cathedral on November 10, will lack much of the pomp usually attending royal ceremonies, it was learned today.

The wedding ceremonies will probably be performed before the marriage is complete. The civil ceremony will be performed in Stockholm next week. This, it is understood, will be followed by a secret Lutheran ceremony in Stockholm, in deference to the wishes of Astrid.

ALL-AMERICAN CANAL GETS ADVERSE REPORT

However, War Department Will Give Hearing to Objectors to Engineers' View.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Full opportunity to state their views will be given persons and organizations who object to the army engineers' adverse report on the All-American canal through New York state, the War Department declared today.

For the second time, the army engineers have turned thumbs down on the proposal to build an All-American canal to link the Great Lakes to the Atlantic by way of the Hudson river.

FIND ANOTHER BOMB IN N. Y. BUILDING

Infernal Machine Discovered Just Before 500 Workers Enter the Lofts.

New York, Oct. 29.—A crudely made time bomb was discovered today in the doorway of a six-story loft building shortly before 500 workers entered the building.

What Did Tommy Think of Yanks?

The war is over and is forgotten by all but those who were in it. And they will never forget it. But just as distance lends enchantment, time irons out the worry wrinkles caused by the great tragedy.

Just before we went into the conflict a question that puzzled military officials both here and in Great Britain was how the Yank would team up with Tommy Atkins. Although speaking the same language there was a gulf between the two nations, hard to bridge. Maybe it was our American histories. Maybe it was the influence the Irish had on the American mind. One day Tommy Atkins was told that Tommy Atkins was before the U. S. entered the war was not very popular with the American doughboy.

You've heard our boys' opinion of the English soldiers, haven't you? How you ever heard the other side—Tommy's opinion of our boys?

You haven't? Then read it, told by an Englishman, a Manchester man, who for two years fought with Americans in France. It's a new angle of an old story.

You Can Heat Your Home Perfectly The Union Sunola Way

Comfort At Last

The Union Sunola is a warm air furnace that may be placed in any room in your house. It operates on the same principle as a basement furnace, drawing in cold air at the bottom, heating it and forcing it out at the top in such volume and with sufficient velocity to fill your entire house. No pipes are necessary to carry the warm air through the rooms. No radiators or registers are needed. The Sunola burns any kind of coal—hard or soft, lignite, slack or coke.

And you'll be surprised at the economy of the Sunola. Its coal consumption is no more than an ordinary stove and many times less than a basement furnace. You can definitely reduce your coal bill with a Union Sunola.

"SIGN YOUR NAME" DEMANDS ROGERS

Hopes "Voter" Will Have Courage in Future to Show His Identity.

Editor, The Herald:
If I were an old man, embittered against the world because of my own failures, afraid to attend a town meeting because a man many years my junior had beaten me most decisively in a debate which I had started in an attempt to belittle him, I would probably walk through life with envy daily and nightly distorting my viewpoint of life and my vision.

But, being one upon whom Dame Fortune has smiled and having been able to hold my own with any such number of the type of the old man who signed himself "Voter" on Thursday evening, I am not burdened with either envy or the realization of abstract failure. Neither am I inclined to adjudge severely on who by his own deeds has placed himself in the above described category. Therefore, lest I dignify the old man by devoting more than two minutes to him I will close with the comment that I hope that with the further mellowness of old age the poor fellow will muster enough of even false courage to support him while he signs his name in a manly way to utterances he in the future submits for publication.
Cordially and not vindictively,
WILLARD B. ROGERS.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Today the first marking period closes at the local high school. Rank cards will probably be distributed next Friday. This is the time of year for the All-High school sport, that of "flunking." What knee-shakings there will be next week! Rank card day is one that is one of the most dreaded in the life of a high school student. Will he "pass?" or will he "flunk?"

Yesterday afternoon the high school observed Navy Day with a special assembly. The assembly was given over to speeches about Theodore Roosevelt. Four members of Mr. Potter's Senior history class were the talkers.

Edith Balch first spoke on Roosevelt as a father. Following her, Paul Packard spoke concerning Roosevelt as a reformer. Then Frank McCann discussed Roosevelt as a military man. Lastly George Smith spoke about Roosevelt as a statesman. All the talks were interesting and were attentively received by the student body.

Several members from the Boys' and Girls' Glee clubs sang two selections appropriate to the day.

The assembly next week will be a football assembly. Walter Camp will be the man who will be discussed in relation to the great fall sport. It is hoped to secure a classmate of Camp's to address the student body. If it is impossible to secure this speaker, whose name has not been disclosed, another will be secured.

Walter Camp is considered to be one of the greatest exponents of the game of rugby football. He devoted much of his life in the interests of that game.

Several high school students will also speak and will discuss the game itself, its rules and regulations. Mrs. Nichols will be in charge of these speakers. It will be a full-fledged football assembly.

The dancing classes held their weekly sessions yesterday afternoon. Each week the members are enjoying these classes more, both the beginners and the advanced dancers. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wirtalla are in charge.

The football team will play at Bristol tomorrow. The locals are second to Meriden in the standings of the Central Connecticut Inter-scholastic League. There is much interest in the game, and it is expected that many of the local students will accompany the team.

The band will rehearse in the High school hall tonight at six o'clock. Harold Turkington, bandmaster, requests that all members be present, and be prompt in attendance because the band will play at next week's football game. For this reason tonight's rehearsal will be important.

21 TOWNS HAVE FILED SCHOOL ENUMERATIONS

Hartford, Oct. 28.—Twenty-one towns have filed school enumeration reports with the state comptroller, listing the number of children between the ages of five and sixteen years on September 1, last. Payments of state aid for educational purposes will be made on March 1, using these lists as the basis for computing the amounts granted.

Towns already reporting have children as follows: Bozrah, 208; Burlington, 330; Beacon Falls, 430; Bridgewater, 82; Chester, 381; Canaan, 123; Cromwell, 733; Durham, 256; Eastford, 170; Guilford, 712; Lebanon, 261; New Canaan, 1,208; New Milford, 1,232; Norwalk, 7,133; Oxford, 332; Ridgefield, 741; Somers, 594; Trumbull, 742; Union, 87; Windsor, 2,233; Watertown, 2,134.

SEEMS TO BE NO END TO OUR BRIGHT GIRLS

There is reason to suppose that there are Dumb Doras in other places but one does not notice them so much as the ones right here at home.

Manager Hart of the Circle theatre, in advertising his Sunday show pasted a picture of Bebe Daniels over a mirror in the lobby of the playhouse.

Last night after the lights were turned out, the lobby was in semi-gloom. A flapper passed and seeing the mirror, walked in to "doll up."

"Since I used this new rouge it makes me a hundred times more beautiful," she remarked to her girl friend as she came out of the lobby.

The girl had not seen her reflection at all. She was looking at Bebe Daniel's photograph.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Aaron Burr (15)

In July, 1808, Burr arrived in London. Joseph Bonaparte had just entered Madrid as king of Spain. Burr was received with suspicion by the English ministry. He was arrested in England for debt, and went to Sweden. Hearing that the emperor had granted independence to Mexico he went to Paris, seeking an interview with Napoleon.

He failed to gain an interview, his money dwindled away and he sought a passport for home.

About six weeks after his return from New York, one of the greatest tragedies in his life occurred.

The health of his beloved daughter, Theodosia, failed after the death of her son. She left South Carolina to join Burr in New York. The ship on which she was a passenger, the Patriot, was never heard from, and is believed to have foundered in a gale off Cape Hatteras. Burr was inconsolable. (Continued).

"CASCARETS" FOR BOWELS, STOMACH,
HEADACHE, COLDS

Clean your liver and constipated bowels to-night and feel fine

Get a 10-cent box now. Are you keeping your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important. Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. No odds how sick, headachy, bilious and constipated you feel, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

CONDENSED TOWN MEETINGS.
 Up in Massachusetts they are to vote, next Tuesday, on a proposed amendment to the state constitution extending to towns of 6,000 people the privilege of adopting the limited town meeting system which towns of 12,000 or more now have the right to adopt if they see fit.
 This system has solved to a very great extent, in Massachusetts, a problem which is rapidly growing serious in such communities as Manchester, Greenwich and other of the larger towns in Connecticut—the resting of our municipal authority on town meetings which, in the very nature of things, cannot possibly be what they were originally intended to be.

When the towns of this state were little assemblages of a few hundred or at most a very few thousand persons, it was really possible for the voters to get together and arrange their municipal affairs in annual meetings, with everybody taking part. With more than six thousand voters, every one of whom has as good a legal right to a voice in town meetings as any other—a situation existing today in Manchester—it is simply a physical impossibility for the original system to operate.

They found a solution to this complication, in the City State, by establishing a new system, adequately approaching the outdoors one and yet free from its cumbersome, by creating a body of town meeting electors, chosen in the regular town elections from among the whole body of the people, and these regularly accredited persons stand in the relation of the people themselves when they participate in the annual or special meetings of the town. They are the direct delegates of the entire electoral body. And they are numerous enough to insure treatment of all subjects from the popular viewpoint, while not numerous enough to form an impossibly unwieldy mass.

A much worse thing could be done than the adoption of this system, or one based on the same principle, in Connecticut towns of any considerable size.

Take the town of Manchester, for example. Suppose there were created a body of town meeting electors equal in number to one elector for every hundred voters. That would make a sufficiently numerous yet sufficiently compact body of 60 or 70 delegates, chosen by the people themselves, to whom would be entrusted the carrying on of such business as must be done by the people. If the number were twice as large probably no harm would be done—an elector for every fifty voters. And let them be chosen in a to-be-determined manner which would insure a reasonable distribution of representation to all parts of the town and all classes of citizens.

It seems to us to be clear that such a body as that might be depended on to express the will of the entire community much better than any town meeting where nobody is represented except those voters who happen to be present and where at least seven-eighths of the voters are always unrepresented.

Connecticut is a better state than Massachusetts. Why let our neighbor, then, get away with a very definite superiority in the way of holding town meetings?

NOT SPORTING.
 The flare-up over Ogden Mills' presumptive attack on Governor Smith's private character, which threatened to turn the New York campaign into the worst mud-slinging contest of the year, anywhere, has flopped. Mr. Mills doused the same utterly by disavowing any intention to reflect on the private character of the governor, and the incident is closed, according to the latter's declaration.

It becomes apparent, however, that the Smith forces were only waiting for an excuse to throw one effective mud glob at the Republican candidate, in the hope that some of the dirt might stick even though the attack might be called off in the next instant.

 Smith's declaration that "for five solid weeks" he had been making every effort to restrain the people at his headquarters from assailing the private life of Congressman Mills, coupled with a tacit admission of his own idealty to his marriage vows, is a piece of incoherence which no declaration of an armistice will silence.

In view of the fact that Mills' utterance concerning the veracity of Smith could only be twisted into reflections on his private character by the most strained of all possible constructions, it looks very much as if the Democratic candidate had fired a shot for which he had been waiting half an opportunity—and which was essentially unfair and nasty in its quality.

The incident lowers Smith's reputation for sportsmanship.
WOLF CHILDREN.
 Out of Russia, every now and then, comes some almost unbelievable story of predatory bands of children—war orphans, derelicts of the revolution, product of the revolution's mad consequences—living on the scrapings of the kennels, sleeping under the stars, clad in rags pilfered here and there; utterly neglected little wild animals, seed of the most enormous criminal class ever produced by any civilization.

Just now there are fresh reports of the "menace" which these savage little wild creatures constitute. We are told that, going about together in bands, they are a sinister danger to the lives as well as the property of grown-up citizen-communists.

In no other country in the world, even if the existence of such a group should be possible—which it isn't—would this state of affairs be such a complete refutation of the whole theory of civilization, as in Russia. The red system of government presumably was predicated on protection of the interests of the underdog, guarantee of the means of life and happiness to everybody, equally. Yet there is no other corner of the world where the most elementary dictates of humanism would not have prevented the abandonment of scores of thousands of little children to their fate, as these Russian children have been abandoned.

If the stories are true—and they persist and have never been effectually denied—Russia has evolved, out of her folly and wrongheadedness, the most grisly tragedy the world has known since the Children's Crusade.

And in the proposal to get rid of the menace by exiling many of these wolf-children to an Arctic island she contemplates the world's greatest crime.

BATTY.
 Dr. Mansfield Robinson of London is as sophisticated about Mars as a cosmologist is about brass knuckles. He not only knows just how the Martians look—seven feet tall, almond eyed, bat eared and given to riding about in hopping automobiles and to tea drinking—but he has a lady friend among them. He sent her a message in Martian, over the radio, and got an answer, very brief—mere signal letters in fact. Now he explains that he has learned telepathically from his friend Oomarruru that the reason the reply to his message was so brief was that the Martian scientists were skeptical because the message was in English and they—outside, of course, of the telepathically minded—could make nothing of it. Evidently the Martian savants share in the more or less frequent earthly reluctance to be made monkeys of.

There are, probably, in Great Britain and the United States, a couple of hundred thousand imaginative children of twelve or thereabouts who could get up precisely this kind of a play-act if they were so minded.
 Yet it is a good safe prediction that Dr. Mansfield Robinson's fame will not die out this week. In all probability he will presently be delivering lectures all over England, and likely enough in the United States, to large groups of pop-eyed people with nothing to do—and will clean up financially on his familiarity with Mars, the Martians and his special friend Oomarruru—whose bat ears will probably be a little less batty than the brains of the doctor's auditors.

FULLER.
 Governor Fuller of Massachusetts is a good governor and a good automobile man. But that is not enough for him. He wants to run a newspaper.

"In the newspaper," he said, "I would show how we reap what we sow—in taxes, in the great conflict between labor and capital. What a job you can do with a newspaper that is absolutely controlled by advertising and led by a man of vision!"

Co-la-lal as so many of Governor Fuller's Bay Staters say.
 When Governor Fuller starts to running a newspaper independent of the small matter of advertising, let him know in advance that he will not reap what he sows, for he will sow dollars and reap the tobacco tags. And let him at any cost to his vision and his enthusiasm, keep the little old auto shop, for he will need it, yes bitterly will he need it, to produce the supply of dollars that he will have to sow in his newspaper.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

Washington, Oct. 29.—The end of the year 1927 will see the United States leading the world in aviation.
 William P. MacCracken, assistant secretary of commerce, in charge of aeronautics, says so. F. Truette Davidson, assistant secretary of war, in charge of aeronautics, corroborates MacCracken. Edward Pearson Warner, assistant secretary of the navy, in charge of aeronautics, corroborates both MacCracken and Davidson.
 That makes it unanimous. Incidentally, according to Warren Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general, in charge of aeronautics, more mail already travels by air routes in the United States than in any other country.

Commercial aviation is at a disadvantage in America, as compared with Europe, because there it is subsidized by the government, while here public sentiment will not permit it. Only two American flying concerns are making money, MacCracken reports, while the others, at best, are only breaking even and some are losing.
 MacCracken's problem is to encourage more Americans to travel and ship by air.
 Rates inevitably will be higher here than abroad, because of the "foreign companies' subsidies. That, however, does not matter so much, since Americans, having more money, can afford to pay more, and seem inclined to have what they want no matter what it costs.

MacCracken's theory is that the essential thing is to make flying safe and certain.
 Most aviation accidents occur, MacCracken points out, as landings are being effected. Planes take off without difficulty and dare all right in the air but landing is ticklish business.
 This is especially true at night and MacCracken considers night flying, if anything, more important than day flying, just as a busy man prefers to take a night train, in order not to break in on his working hours, and likes to have emergency shipments of goods, currency or papers sent by office at night, that it may be in somebody's else hands in the morning.

As a matter of fact, America does, at present, lead the world in night flying, doubtless for the reasons given. European commercial aviation is, indeed, ahead of America's, but not her commercial night aviation.
 With the establishment of a great system of model landing fields and beacons, to guide aviators on their way and to facilitate descents, MacCracken is certain night flying will take such a spurt as the nation does not even dream of.

By the end of 1927 he promises that such a system will be established.
 Davidson and Warner are as much interested in commercial aviation as MacCracken. The more civilian flyers there are, the more the army and navy will have to call on in an emergency.
 MacCracken, Davidson and Warner are all practical aviators.

As such, they are war products. They still do most of their traveling by plane. If anything happens to the pilot, not one but can take charge competently.
 They are also very young men for their responsible positions—Davidson 30, Warner 32, MacCracken 37. Assistant Postmaster General Glover is 47.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, Oct. 29.—No day-to-day historian of Manhattan events can quite overlook the significance to be found in the casual announcement that Bobby Edwards has gone to work.
 Don't smile! There is something almost historic in this seemingly inconsequential item. It may be the final gesture of the Greenwich Village of yesterday.
 First, since the name of Bobby Edwards is not an uncommon one, let me explain that this particular Bobby was perhaps the last exponent of those "villagery" traditions that made this section the legendary spot that it is.
 He was to Greenwich Village what whiskers are to Charles Evans Hughes or what George M. Cohan is to Broadway. From which you will gather that he was both a decoration and a mystical figure.

This Edwards was associated with the "inside" of the Village back in the days when it was importing poets, artists, garrets, radical discussions.
 The old Villagers went. The Bohemia grew commercial. But Bobby Edwards stayed. His stock in trade was a ukulele. In a garret he would make them out of cigar boxes and what-not, would inscribe them, and sell them to the yokels. When night fell he would appear in the various taverns. He would

 He was to Greenwich Village what whiskers are to Charles Evans Hughes or what George M. Cohan is to Broadway. From which you will gather that he was both a decoration and a mystical figure.
 This Edwards was associated with the "inside" of the Village back in the days when it was importing poets, artists, garrets, radical discussions.
 The old Villagers went. The Bohemia grew commercial. But Bobby Edwards stayed. His stock in trade was a ukulele. In a garret he would make them out of cigar boxes and what-not, would inscribe them, and sell them to the yokels. When night fell he would appear in the various taverns. He would stop out his wife and sing a group of songs of Village vintage. Also he published the official Village magazine.

 In the old days the Bohemian resorts were his hang-out. Sometimes he would get meals, always he would sell his periodicals—and thus he lived.
 Work was some nebulous term to be applied to the bright sons of struggle. He applied the finest traditions of leisure and play handed down from those hardy pioneers who crossed the city in wheelbarrows and underwent the awful gauntlet basements to build up a kingdom of freedom that lasted until they all grew up.
 Bobby refused to surrender to the changing Bohemia. He refused even to admit that the Village was changing. His magazine adopted each vagrant poet and artist: his songs were wistful echoes of by-gone days.
 And now, I learn, he has gone to work in a department store's art department.
 After which announcement the coming of the "post's plaster" to Village café—announced in this column some days back—loses much of its importance. It seemed at first to indicate a return of these posturings of which so much has been mentioned. Now it seems but a weak bit of mimicry. I have often held that the poseurs and gatekeepers have passed; that the old Village is all but gone.
 I have seen the skyscraping apartment rises in old Barrow street, along the avenue at the second

Village door, and one by one appear on the side streets. Each night the faces in the coffee houses seem stranger.
 And then Bobby Edwards goes to work. Let no one tell you that this is the Greenwich Village of yore.

PLAN TO CANVASS NO. END FOR FUND

Friends of Community Club Arranging to Get New Members for Organization

Robert K. Anderson, chairman of the general committee working on the arrangements for the house-to-house canvass of the North End to be conducted November 8 to 13 inclusive, today announced that a special meeting will be held next Tuesday night at the lodge rooms in the Beach and Brown block. Everybody will be welcome.

Purpose of Meeting.
It will be the purpose of the special meeting to get together as many as possible of the persons who are interested in the success of the Manchester Community club. Mr. Anderson has made arrangements with all civic and fraternal organizations in the North End to spread the news to their members so as to insure a large attendance.

Mr. Anderson is working especially hard in effort to make the drive a roving success. However, he will need real cooperation from his fellow-workers. Mr. Anderson is confident that the people at the North End realize the necessity of giving their financial and moral support and that the campaign will be successful.

Further announcements will be made from time to time.

Women's Opinion.
"The importance of recreation centers and other phases of recreation cannot be overestimated," said Mrs. R.E. Purinton, president of the Manchester Mothers' club today in discussing the Community club campaign.

"The dangerous age for the young of the human species is in that period of stress when childish things are being put aside and adolescence reaches for quick realization of maturity. It is then that a healthy recreation program can be of the greatest aid in keeping these future citizens sound and normal. It is then that boys and girls are irked by restraints of home, grow restive under parental authority and resent discipline. Intelligence and responsibility. Bodies are thrilled by impulse that are fraught with danger.

"It is during this period when character is set, when tendencies become fixed. It is the time when the sapling may grow into the straight tree, or be warped and twisted forever. It is the time when 'youth will be served,' and if society does not see that it is served wholesomely, cleanly, frankly and openly, then all too often it is served in the ways that bring unhappiness, shame and comradery's loss. And it is sadly true that in these later 'teens' youth is most neglected, most left to its own impulse, unguarded and untutored instincts. That is why recreation centers such as the Manchester Community Club and others are imperative for not children alone, but for older boys and girls, young men and young women.

"It would seem to me that in the campaign that is about to be launched by the Community club that the individual who does not support the efforts of this institution is striking a blow at the women, boyhood and childhood of our community."

WARN SLOW DRIVER IN SATURDAY TRAFFIC

There will be more traffic on the state highways tomorrow, perhaps, than there has been on any other day of this year, owing to the press of automobiles toward New Haven from all directions for the most popular game of the present season. Every available seat in the Yale Bowl has been sold for the Yale-Army football game and the great majority of those who attend will be transported in automobiles. The state motor vehicle, police and highway departments, in cooperation with the New Haven and West Haven police and the New Haven Automobile Club and Connecticut Company have perfected the traffic arrangements that have governed the handling of traffic occasioned by the big games at New Haven in the past two weeks. Their experience this year as well as in past years has shown that the great football crowds are not difficult to handle if the simple rules and directions are followed. They are to avoid extremes of speed on the highways, not traveling so slowly as to hold up traffic behind nor so fast that the driver does not have complete control of his car.

The trouble with the slow driver on occasions like these, when every main highway running into New Haven presents the spectacle of an unbroken line of well-filled automobiles, is that it encourages the driver behind him to try to turn out and pass. Others follow suit, with the result that a great many cars are constantly turning out into the right of way of opposite traffic all along the line until the slow car gets into New Haven. This leads to confusion, and experience of past years has shown that it is the most dangerous practice to be guarded against.

AMERICANS IGNORE NEW BELGIAN MONEY

New York, Oct. 28.—Banks and foreign exchange brokers resumed today quotation of the Belgian exchange in francs with a par of 2.78 cents instead of the new belga, which has a par of about 13.90 cents.

The belga was created early this week as a foreign trade unit and was intended for quotation in foreign exchange. However, banks here, who must keep their Belgian balances in francs inasmuch as belga is only a unit of account, have decided against trading in belgas as it involves bookkeeping complications which are considered unnecessary. Hereafter only the francs will be quoted.

CYP CLUB ENTERTAINS CENTER CHURCH JUNIORS.

More than fifty of the juniors from Center church school enjoyed the Halloween party arranged for them by members of the Cyp club, which is composed of young people of high school age. The decorations were autumn leaves, festoons of black and orange paper and pumpkin Jack O'Lanterns.

The children looked very attractive as they streamed in, dressed in Halloween costumes of every description.

Earl H. Chaney, director at the School street Rec was in charge of the games. A "channel of horrors" was arranged in the basement and the children were escorted through it by the Misses Emma Strickland, Marion Lewis and Mary Wilcox. Stuart Robinson, James McCaw, Rodney Wilcox, Ray Warren and Bob Carter. Popcorn, apples and fruit punch was served to the kiddies.

At the meeting of the Cyp club Sunday evening reports will be given by the delegates to the older boys and older girls' conferences. Lois Howe and Esther Sutherland will report for the girls and Rodney Wilcox and Herbert Crockett for the boys. A number of the young people in addition to the delegates attended these conferences.

GREENWICH MINISTER OUT, RESULT OF CHURCH ROW

Greenwich, Oct. 28.—Rev. Dr. Louis W. Barney has resigned as pastor of the First Congregational church of Sound Beach after fifteen years of service there. Factional differences are said to be the cause. Dr. Barney came here in 1911. He is chaplain of the Masonic Lodge here, and also chaplain of the Sound Beach fire department.

GIRL CARPENTER.

Newark, N. J.—Miss Irene Rodney is only 14 years old but is an experienced carpenter. During her school vacation she helped her father to build a house.

WAPPING

Mrs. Franklin G. Wells Jr. was taken sick with an attack of the grip Tuesday night, but is reported as improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Maynard and family moved from this place Tuesday to Woodbridge street, Manchester last Friday.

They are talking of having a macadam road made from East Windsor Hill to the Buckland road which will be a great improvement as there is so much traffic on that road.

Walter S. Billings moved his family from Will Felt's tenement house to Strickland street, Manchester on Thursday.

Frank Fahy moved his family to the Manning tenement on Sullivan street recently.

Two automobiles came together in front of the Wapping library on Thursday morning. No one was hurt and the autos were only slightly damaged. The drivers settled the difficulty without going to court.

Miss Emma Burger attended the week-end festivities at Wesleyan College.

"MEN'S SUNDAY" AT LOCAL CHURCH

Second Congregational men in large numbers are expected to be present at the service Sunday morning. The Men's club of the church, under the leadership of Millard Park, which represents the majority of the men of the congregation, by personal solicitation is endeavoring to bring about a record attendance of not only the men but the women and the girls and boys.

Rev. Frederick C. Allen, the pastor, will deliver an appropriate sermon for Men's Sunday on the subject of "The Manhood of Jesus."

Mrs. R. K. Anderson, the church organist, is arranging for special music by the choir, and expects to have one or two selections by a male quartet.

TWO BRIDGEPORT PAPERS ARE MERGED INTO ONE.

Bridgeport, Oct. 28.—Announcement was made here this afternoon that on and after November 1 the Bridgeport Evening Star and the Bridgeport Evening Times will be issued as a consolidated evening paper under the name of the Bridgeport Times-Star.

The paper is to be published from the present home of the Star at State and Lafayette streets which has been leased to the new corporation by Senator George B. Clark, owner of the paper.

BORAH ON WAY TO AID MOSES IN CAMPAIGN

Washington, Oct. 28.—Senator William E. Borah (Rep., Idaho), is expected to stop in New York City tomorrow to confer with owners of New Jersey textile mills concerning conditions which resulted in the Passaic strike. Borah will leave tonight for New Hampshire where he is expected to support George H. Moses, Republican.

1926 Tough Year On Golf Champs; America Crushes Pride Of British

Only Southern Season, Which Is Not Important, Left on Sensational Year's Programs.

By DICK WILLIAMS

New York, Oct. 29.—The 1926 golf season has virtually passed behind the curtains of oncoming winter. Only the southern season, which develops much advance arguing, but little actual form, remains to round out one of the most sensational years in the sport. It has been a tough year on champions—and a tougher year on British pride. For the first time in history, both British major titles, their amateur and open, were captured by Americans in such decisive fashion as to leave little doubt as to the new world's links superiority.

Sweetser's achievement in bringing back the British amateur cup probably more significant than Jones' conquest in the open. The open had been more or less American property since the '20's were written into the book of 1900, but the amateur had defied the best efforts of some of our greatest stars.

And before Sweetser, dangerously ill and playing almost solely on his competitive spirit, achieved the title he saw Jones, Von Elm, Quinlan, Gunn, Gardner and McKennie, the strongest Walker cup team America ever sent abroad, fall before the determined resistance of the now thoroughly alarmed Britons.

Jones' victory in the open was somewhat less dramatic. Not a Briton threatened him and even his American rivals, led by George Von Elm, who was subsequently to win the amateur title here from Jones, and Al Watrous, heretofore an indifferent Detroit professional, were not sufficiently close to cause him acute discomfort.

Jones' performance in the British open and in the amateur there, prior to his defeat by a young Scot who had been little more than an average qualifier before his mastery of the great Atlantic, was hailed by golf sharpshooters as certain indication that he would achieve his ambition of winning the American double crown—the amateur and open championships in a single season.

Landing in New York a few short weeks before the start of the open at Columbus, he was visibly tired, but confident. In the preliminary rounds at Scioto he appeared overgrown. Then came a great first round topped only by Turnesa, the professional, and the experts vowed he was himself again.

In the second round he slipped to a 77 and appeared out of the play. Three professional and an amateur had outdistanced him. In the third round he pulled up to third place—and ideal spot for a finisher like Jones with only Turnesa to fear.

Turnesa the nervous young pro who is capable of sensational golf, but lacks the steadiness of a finished golfer.

The Double Crown
The final round brought Jones in at par and Turnesa dropped back sadly. Walter Hagen, who had threatened to drive down the stretch with the amateur king, failed to maintain his pace in the last 18 holes—and fell behind Turnesa. Jones had won half the honor he coveted—the double crown.

That Jones should lead the amateur field is unquestioned. The fight between Sweetser and Von Elm for second honors is not so easy. Both had great years, but Sweetser's triumph was confined strictly to winning the British open while Von Elm not only captured the American amateur crown, but ran Jones a close second for the British open and made a creditable showing in the American open. In addition he won the amateur and open titles of the Pacific coast.

These performances should entitle him to the place. I would rate the ten amateurs as follows:
1. Robert Jones, Atlanta.
2. George Von Elm, California.
3. Jess Sweetser, New York.
4. Francis Outmet, Boston.
5. Jess Guilford, Boston.
6. Watts Gunn, Atlanta.
7. Rudolph Knepper, Chicago.
8. Chick Vans, Chicago.
9. Frank Dolp, Portland.
10. Roland McKenzie, Washington.

The Pro Leaders
To rate the pros is almost as difficult as to pick the amateurs. Come what may, here goes:
1. Walter Hagen, Florida.
2. Joe Turnesa, New York.
3. Leo Diegel, Washington.
4. Johnny Farrell, New York.
5. Al Watrous, Detroit.
6. Bill Melhorn, Chicago.
7. Harry Cooper, Dallas.
8. Gene Sarazen, New York.
9. McDonald Smith, New York.
10. James Barnes, New York.

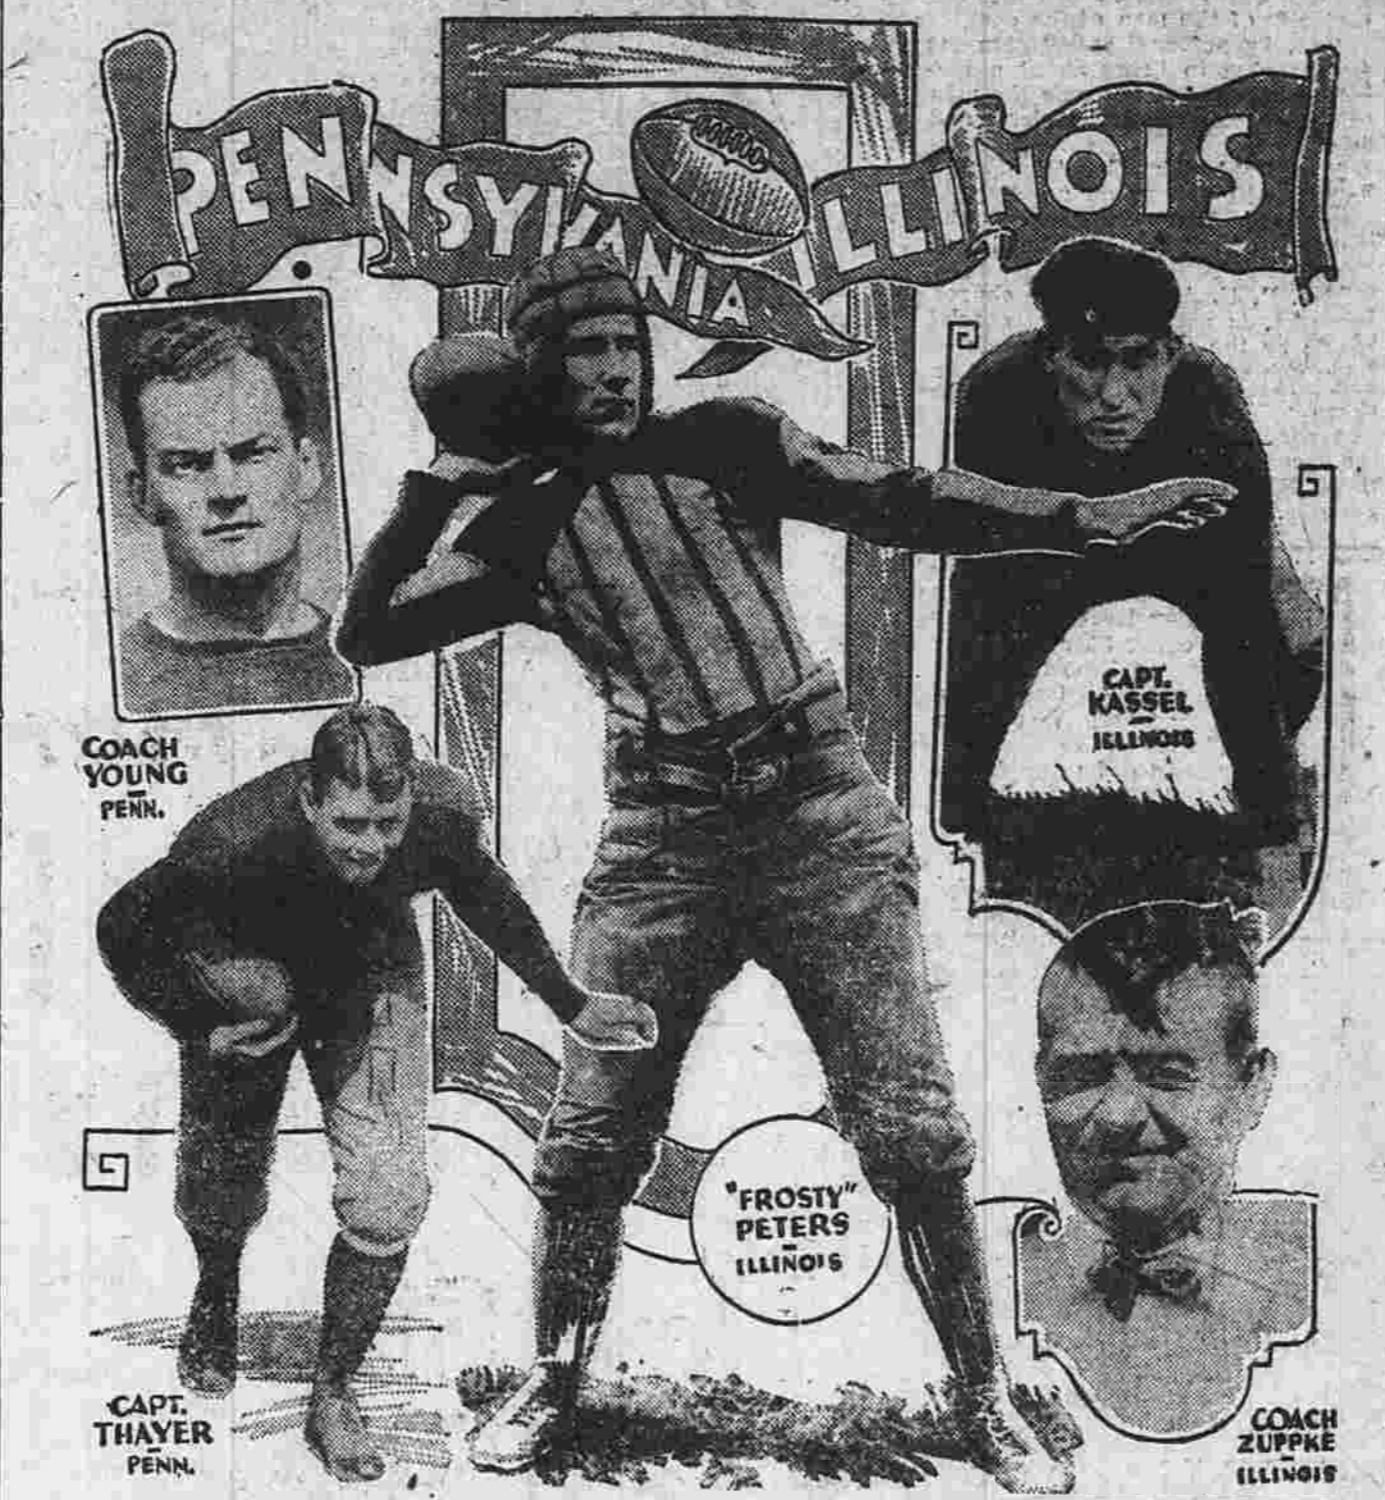

And as for the leader of them all the greatest golfers in the country—and that means in the world, for that matter—we have but one selection.
In all deference to the mighty Hagen and the courageous Von Elm, who scaled the heights from the depths of two bitter defeats of other years, we can nominate but one—Robert Tyre Jones of Atlanta.

UNDEFEATED PENN CLASHES WITH ILLINOIS SATURDAY

BY BILLY EVANS
The gridiron reputation of the Big Ten against that of the "E-f-f-e-e East" is well known.

There you have the mythical schedule when Pennsylvania meets Illinois at Champaign, Ill., Oct. 30. It stacks up as one of the most important intersectional games of the year.

Pennsylvania is gunning for revenge. For a year Penn's football gladiators and the student body have been waiting for the chance to wipe out the football atrocities of Red Grange and the rest of the Illinois cast.

Just to jog your memory, Pennsylvania was trounced 24-0 at Philadelphia last fall, in what was a surprising upset for the eastern experts but not to followers of the Big Ten.

Prior to meeting Illinois, featuring the sensational Grange, Pennsylvania had successively beaten Brown, Yale and Chicago.

Three decisive victories over two of the strongest teams in the east, and one of the leaders of the Big Ten, raised many of the football critics to prematurely name Penn as the outstanding team of the country.

Then along came Illinois and Grange—or if you prefer, Grange and Illinois, showing his wares for the first time in the east, had a large contract on his hands. For two years the east had been filled with tales of his record-breaking feats. He was called the greatest ball-footer of all time.

Rising to the occasion in typical Grange style, the Illinois marvel ran riot. On a wet field, with conditions all against his style, Grange raced through the Penn team for three touchdowns.

The east was then willing to admit he was all he had been cracked up to be.

Few Major Elevens With Goal Uncrossed

BY BILLY EVANS.

The days of a major football team going through an entire season without being scored on are over.

Improved play on the part of the smaller colleges has made for keener competition. There are few soft spots on the average college grid schedule.

The forward pass and the developing of specialists in the kicking of scoring for the lesser college teams.

Ten years back it was the exception for a big college eleven to be scored on. Now it is a decided exception for one to complete its schedule without having one or more opponents score.

The tremendous popularity that football has enjoyed during the past five years can be directly traced to the keen competition that features practically every game.

A perusal of the figures in the games played to date will best illustrate the point I am trying to make.

Take the east for instance: Harvard was beaten in its first game of the season by the almost unknown college of Geneva, coached by the famous "Bo" McMillin.

ST. JOHN REPORTED SIGNED WITH CUBS

Said to Have Reported for Practice; He Is Anxious to Square Accounts for Beating Last Year.

Rumors were prevalent today that "Lefty" St. John, considered one of the best backfield football men in the east, has signed with the Cubs for the remainder of the season. This report, however, has not been confirmed by Manager Angelo of the Cubs. Nevertheless, it was learned by one of the members of the Cub team that St. John reported for practice Tuesday night and said he would play for the remainder of the season.

It is known that St. John has stated he would like to play against the Cloverleaves this season. He even told the writer so a few nights ago. St. John, it appears, has not forgotten the severe blow he suffered in the last meeting between the North and the South at which time St. John was knocked out during a scrimmage. While not seeking revenge in any underhanded way, he made it plain he wanted to prove to the South he had the best football team.

The Cub's game for Sunday has been cancelled and it will be attempted by Manager Angelo to secure an out-of-town team to come here. The next four Sundays will find home games for the Cubs it was stated by Manager Angelo. There will be a special meeting of the Cub players tonight at the School street Rec. at 7 o'clock.

The NUT CRACKER by Joe Williams

Mickey Walker has decided not to fight as a welterweight any more. A decision the boxing fans of the country reached for him some months ago.

The professors are crying that football coaches are overpaid. Having seen some of the teams perform this season we are beginning to think so ourselves.

Far be it from us to intimate that it is possible for some tennis players to make more money as amateurs than they can as professionals.

No football team ever got very far without a good line, and the same seems to go for our politicians, who speak glibly of rendering so much unselfish public service.

In certain circles the visit of Queen Marie has created unflattering comment. And yet there is no record of the royal lady ever having expressed a melodious preference for "Horse, Horse, Horse!"

Fame does flit. Not many people can tell you today whether Michael Arlen was a bantamweight champion or a Broadway barkeep.

Mr. O'Gotty wants to know if the overhead game in professional football has anything to do with the cost of operation.

The newspapers are printing pictures of Babe Ruth making up backstage. It will be more interesting to see pictures of him making up with Col. Rupert after that new contract has been signed.

Never look a gift horse in the mouth. The figures showing that four out of every five have it, are probably correct anyway.

There's a two-year-old baby in Baltimore that can whistle. This ought to make him the leading two-year-old of the season in spite of all the flattering things the turf writers have been saying about Crusader.

We see by the papers that Mr. Browning has gone into the courts to get a divorce. We had hoped it would go into them to get a guardian.

STRANGE COINCIDENCE
In mighty few series that Joe Judge of Washington has played in St. Louis he has failed to hit one of more home runs. The experience of Bill Jacobson of Boston when playing Philadelphia has been much the same.

HARK, HARK!
"Is it true, daddy, that there are women inventors, too?"
"I should think so! You will find that out at every tea party."—Dorff-barber, Berlin.

CALIFORNIA HAS BEST CHANCE IN MANY YEARS
Los Angeles, Oct. 28.—It's been 12 years since a University of Southern California football team triumphed over California. That's a long period over which to take an annual drubbing on the gridiron. This year it seems as if the craving for a victory over California is to be satisfied.

BROWN BEAR ROARS WITH JOY AT TEAM

Providence University Has Reason to Be Gleeful; "Tuss" McLaughry the Hero; Favored Over Dartmouth.

This is the eighth of a series of football articles written by Davis J. Walsh and other staff writers on the leading teams of the East and those of the Middle West that have appeared in this section. Other articles will appear at regular intervals.

By ROBERT T. BULKELEY

I. N. S. Correspondent.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 28.—Brown had a spracking once, and Brown had a Pollard once who with aid of remarkable lines and quick thinking men assisting in the backfield swept Eastern football. Brown had a team once that worked its way through the teams of the East and then went West seeking new worlds to conquer.

Brown almost but not quite conquered the West on a New Year's afternoon in Southern California, but Brown made an impression of the best sort.

All through the years of football at Brown bright individual stars have sparkled on gridirons far and near, and Brown has had her fair share of football victories because of these stars. They have made the Brown Bear a thing to be treated with respect.

Team Work.
Now comes a Brown team of eleven stars who are not thinking of starting their parts but of playing a concerted game, of playing steady, rushing game. Brown has put into the field, this year, a team whose every man is capable of using his head as a means of thinking. Brown has a team of husky men who can play a grueling hour of football and come out at the end as fresh as they entered—to all appearances.

It is the fashion, this year more than ever before, to announce a long list of casualties before a football game and to lament in advance the loss of a game. But the fashion hasn't taken hold on the hill top here where the home of Brown is located. All the team is thinking of this year is keeping in condition and playing football better than anyone else plays it.

That Brown is in condition is evidenced by the almost startling fact that eleven men only played against Yale last Saturday, and the same eleven were romping at practice again this week. As for playing football better than her opponents—there's the score sheet for the current season. Brown is going into her game against Dartmouth on Saturday without a defeat to her name.

Pointing.
"Big Three" football coaches have the knack of pointing their teams for certain opponents at the end of an eight week season. Their men are carried along step by step, to the climax. Harvard points for Princeton and Yale, Yale for Harvard and Princeton, and the Tiger coaches are making ready to have their animal feed on Buldog and Mule.

But not so Brown. De Ormond McLaughry, one of Amherst, came down to Providence this fall and put his own little methods of football into working force. He picked out his men and pointed them each for a certain game. When he came to the team, he was ready and some more. So "Tuss" as his acquaintances call him, seems on the road to being the first coach of all in the East this fall even with a schedule as difficult as you please to work through.

McLaughry put his team through the Yale game without using one sub, but he didn't do it because he had no subs to put in. Brown had plenty of subs for last Saturday, and probably even for Thanksgiving Day, when meets Colgate in the almost brand-new stadium here. McLaughry had a first-class team in the field against Yale. The men were active in offense and more than stubborn in defense. McLaughry let the eleven men keep going. That is the McLaughry idea of coaching. "Let will spout alone" stands above the idea of putting in subs to give them a chance to get practice.

If a person can find a higher degree of excellence in one of Brown's backfield than in another he is going some. Cornsweat at fullback, Lawrence and Mishiell the right and left halfbacks, and Randall, quarterback, are likely to rate high at the end of the season if they continue to carry on as they have so far. Randall's punting is a joy to behold. This same Brown backfield is shifty to a man and speedy. A broken field seems to delight each of the men, and yet a rugged opposition line is treated as if it weren't there, or didn't amount to much. This Brown backfield hasn't much respect for the football might when Brown is lined up against the said mighty.

Brods and Towle, on the ends, Kevorikian and Hodge at tackle, and Smith and Farber playing guard places with Consonide in center—there, this fall, is a combination to do any coach's heart good. Whether its opening a hole in the other fellow's line, receiving a pass; going down under a punt, or bowling over the opposition in interference the line is there.
Football is a thing that kills off prophets, especially this year, but it seems likely that Brown at the season's end should be placed about where Dartmouth was placed last December.

THREE LOCAL SOCCER TEAMS PLAY TOMORROW

Two Games to Be Played in Manchester; Celtics vs. Scandias and Cheney Brothers vs. Cian McLean.

There will be two games in the Manchester District Soccer league tomorrow afternoon. Both will be played in Manchester and will get under way promptly at 2:30. All three Manchester league entries will swing into action. New Britain will be the odd team this week and will not play.

The Celtics and the Scandias of Hartford will mingle at the West Side playgrounds. The Celtics won their opening league contest in New Britain Saturday against the three. Tomorrow they seek further laurels. Manchester will use the following players: McKone, C. McDonald, F. McDonald, G. McDonald, F. Murphy, Filon, Taggart, Madden, Malloy, Jim McCavanaugh, P. McCavanaugh and J. McCavanaugh.

In the other league tilt, Cheney Brothers and Cian McLean will swap kicks at the McKee street stadium. The silk workers, fresh from their impressive 4 to 1 victory over the Scandias a week ago, hope to annex the scalp of the Cian McLean. It will be the latter's first game. The silk workers will pick their lineup from Flavell, Weir, Boyce, McDowell, Finlay, Faton, Jones, Calvert, Hewitt, Salmonson, Wiley and Torstenon.

PRO FOOTBALL IS PROVING FLAT FAILURE IN BOSTON

Boston, Oct. 29.—Professional football which looms big in the sport world with the acquisition of "Red" Grange to the ranks, appears to have reached its zenith in one game and then fallen by the wayside as far as Boston is concerned.

After a flash last season the opening of the pro game in Boston this year lacked the auspicious atmosphere that has been attendant in other cities in the country. Several conditions have led to the downfall of the game in this city, which is without question one of the leading sport communities in the United States.

Conflicting dates with the big college games seem to have resulted in small crowds. While thousands have been attending the Harvard games in the Stadium but a mile away, the professionals have been playing before a mere handful at the baseball parks of the city.

Col. Bob McKirdy, owner of the Boston franchise has announced his desire to quit the league that includes teams from the principal cities of the country. He is of the belief that Boston is not yet ready for the pro game. After dropping about $12,000 with but a few games played, many sportsmen agree that Col. McKirdy has good grounds for his opinion.

But in the face of Col. McKirdy's willingness to quit Herb Treat, former All-American end and coach has come forth with a proposal that he take over the team and its franchise.

Treat has faith in Boston as a home for professional football and with the majority of the players willing to follow him on a plan of profit splitting after expenses are paid, he believes the game can be conducted at a profit here.

SPOOKS ARE WAITING FOR REC FROLICKERS

The spooks and witches will be in their glory tonight at the School Street Recreation Center when the fifth annual Hallow'en frolic will be held there. The dance will be a costume affair with prizes for those with the prettiest, the funniest and most original outfits.

A Chamber of Horrors has been located in the tunnel connecting the Rec with the Franklin school and the admission ticket entitles everybody to a trip through it. Some new thrills direct from the west, have been planned by Associate Director E. H. Chaney and he promises a weird time for all who venture through the tunnel.

The famous Worthy Hills orchestra of Hartford will play for dancing. This combination made a hit at the Laurel Hop here last week and is expected to be the means of drawing a large crowd.

Harry Anderson of the decoration committee reports that the gymnasium where the dance is to be held is all fixed up to give the Hallow'en atmosphere. He was assisted in his work by Eric Crawshaw and Elmer Johnson, the latter installing electrical fixtures and effects.

A program of games and dances has been prepared by a committee in charge of Miss Florence Kelley, Principal Clarence P. Quimby of the High school will take charge of the dances and will lead the grand march at 8:30. Judges will pass on the costumes of those who are competing for prizes and will make their awards later in the evening.

Dancing will start at 8 o'clock and refreshments will be served in the buffet lunch room on the main floor.

THREE-ACT COMEDY GIVEN BY READER.

The three-act comedy "Cousin Kite," given under the auspices of the Missionary societies, at the South Methodist church on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, is one that is sure to be of interest and amusing throughout. The reader, Mildred Bass Anderson, has presented it in recitals from Canada to Florida, with great success. A graduate of Leland Powers' Dramatic College of Boston, she has justly earned for herself the reputation of excellence in her art that is sure to be added to on this her first visit to our town.

Of the play itself, everything contained in it is such as to hold the interest of the audience right to its climax, and the rich humor and sparkling wit with which it is permeated is entertaining.

Tickets may be had from members of the societies or at the church on the evening of the entertainment.

TROLLEY CREW PURSUES FOX FOR 3 MILES

A handsome red fox today owes his life to a trolley switch.

Late Wednesday night a Manchester-bound trolley car left Stamford Springs enroute for the car barn. At a point near Brown's Bridge, a pretty red fox was sniffling about.

As the trolley car suddenly shot around a corner behind him, the fox was blinded by the strong rays of the arc light. There was no alternative, so he started at top speed on what proved to be the wildest experience of his life.

There were no passengers on the trolley, only Motorman Walter Miller and Chester W. Shields. The crew decided to give Reynard, a real test. The motorman turned on as much juice as he dared. It was down grade most of the way and the trolley fairly sailed through the air.

According to Conductor Shields, the race for life continued for fully three miles. At times the trolley got as near as five feet from the fox and the legend was never more than twenty feet. The trolley whistle was blown several times in an effort to frighten the fox but this proved more or less of a fiasco.

Reynard kept on. As fast as his little legs would carry him, he kept on. But the space was beginning to tell. He couldn't understand why it was impossible for him to get away from that pesky light and the noise and rumble that was following him so closely.

Then came the climax. The switch at Snipe Lake gave into view. Miller and Shields held a consultation and decided the speed of the car must be reduced or they themselves might suffer the fate the little fox had so narrowly averted.

The pause in the speed of the car was sufficient. Reynard was only leading by a margin of three feet at the time but soon was rods away. He leaped into the brush at the side of the road where it is probable is still sleeping in peace.

BRIDGEPORT INVENTOR LEAVES BIG ESTATE

Bridgeport, Oct. 29.—Frederick D. Baker, retired manufacturer and inventor of the Weed Tire chain, left an estate of at least $1,500,000, according to his will offered for probate here today. The will provides a trust fund from which Mrs. Baker is to have an income annually of $36,000 with provisions to pay her $1,500 a month during the six months of administration.

Upon Mrs. Baker's death the estate is to be distributed widely but chiefly among Bridgeporters. Public bequests effective then follow:

- Bridgeport Boys club, $15,000;
- Bridgeport hospital $15,000; St. Vincent's hospital for a "rose room" exclusively for firemen and policemen of the city, $15,000;
- Police Sick Benefit fund $3,000;
- Firemen's Sick Benefit fund $3,000.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

JUDITH MARTIN, a teacher at Pendleton University, is under the disapproval of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN, because she spends most of her leisure hours with ERIC WATERS and his young radical student friends. MYRA ALDRICH is in love with Eric and jealous of Judith. DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, admires Judith and tries to persuade her to make peace with the dean.

The dean's wife is carrying on a secret love affair which Judith discovers on a weekend trip to the city. Judith listens to her story of the dean's tyranny and assures her that she will not gossip.

Two students die of bootleg whisky and the dean indirectly accuses Eric of importing the liquor for sale. Eric enters the conference room and denies the accusation.

That night Eric's mother comes to town and gives a dinner party, to which Eric invites Judith.

At the last moment Eric telephones that his mother insists upon his bringing Myra, whom she has known in their home town. He offers to send WILL WETHERELL, a frat brother, after Judith, but she refuses to come to the dinner.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI

"BUT Judith," gasped Eric, "how in the world am I going to keep mother away from all the tattle tales, unless I have you to help me?"

"Oh, so that's it?" snapped Judith. "Well, Eric, I must confess that it isn't of much importance to me whether you keep her away from them or not. I'm going to hang up now. Goodby."

Judith hurried through her bread pudding that night and ran up the steps. Her watch said ten minutes of seven. She did not turn on the light in her room, though it was in deep shadow, but drew a chair close to the window and sat down.

And when Eric Waters drove his racer under the street lamp and turned in at the Stedway walk she drew hastily back behind the scrim curtains.

"Oh, Miss Martin," called one of the girls downstairs. Judith did not answer. The call came a second time and a third. At last she heard the girl say, "Sorry, she's not in."

There was silence for a moment. Then the voice sounded again. "Miss Aldrich," Myra's door opened with a bang and Judith heard her run across to the stairs.

"Coming, Eric." Judith set her room to rights and prepared her papers for grading. At last she rose, seized a large woolen scarf and went downstairs. Judith strolled down the walk toward the ramp and found another seat on a stump in the corner of the yard.

A huge police dog came running up the street and darted at her. Judith jumped and fell off her stump into the wet grass.

"Down, Ponto," shouted a voice that she knew. Dr. Dorn was towering over her. Judith sat up in the grass and giggled.

"I've been wanting to see you," said the professor. "To tell you how sorry I am that I blundered yesterday. For, of course, it was a blunder."

Judith brushed a wet leaf off her skirt. "Never mind," she said shakily. "I've had such a fit of blues that I'm glad to see even you. For goodness' sake, talk to me."

"I'll do better than that," said Dr. Dorn. "Run in and get some heavier

"Somebody has called those spots 'windows of absolute night,'" she said.

wrap and I'll take you star-gazing with me. Ponto and I were on our way to the observatory."

"All right," she answered. "I'll hurry."

She came back with a tweed topcoat over her arm and they started up the street. "I have some field glasses in my pocket," said the professor. "But we'll use the telescope too."

They entered the tract of rolling ground in the center of which the observatory was set. It gleamed white and globular as they approached. Ponto had run off to parts unknown.

"We'll go up on the roof," said Dr. Dorn. "This is a marvelous night to take in the whole heavens. The telescope limits one so."

Standing on the square roof of the building, behind the telescope dome, they might have been on a watch tower built to command the universe. Black country rolled away on every side, with deeper black here and there to show where trees clustered.

Dr. Dorn was looking through the glasses. "See," he said, handing them to Judith, "how clear the Coal Sack is tonight."

She nodded. The great black spot upon the Milky Way suggested mysteries and vague terrors looming beyond.

"Somebody has called those spots 'windows of absolute night,'" she said.

The professor laughed. "A pretty phrase but not very significant. They may be masses of solid dark material, instead of holes looking out on voids that our telescopes cannot reach."

Judith spoke crossly. "I like the pretty phrase. Why do you try to take the pretty things out of science, you scientists?" She turned her face up toward his but the night shut them away from each other.

Dr. Dorn was still. At last he moved and she could feel his coat sleeve brush her arm. "Do we? I wonder. Perhaps we have lost the feeling for pretty things. That is because we look only for truth. And truth is not always pretty. Judith shrugged. Then why bother about truth?" she said.

Dr. Dorn put one hand on hers. "I can't talk about science. This night is a setting for—" He pulled abruptly away from her and walked to the edge of the roof. Judith watched him from her place.

He put the glasses to his eyes again. "See, there is Vega," he said. "Isn't she blue tonight?"

Judith did not trouble to look up. Neither did she answer him. Instead she walked to an elevation near the edge of the roof and sat down. The professor strolled about with the glasses, exclaiming now and then over a constellation.

At last he came back and seated himself beside her. "I still haven't told you how sorry I am about yesterday afternoon. I assure you I spoke only to warn you against the dean—to help you. That was because I wanted to see you succeed."

Judith moved restlessly. "Oh, dear, why will people always do things 'for your own good'?" They never really help—just hinder."

He nodded dejectedly. "That's true. I learned it yesterday afternoon. Sometimes I think I'm a hopeless bungler with women—or, in fact, with human beings. I've limited myself to my work—and my mother. She is an invalid."

"Oh," said Judith. "I'm sorry."

"It's on her account that I've never been able to think of many things. I'd like to leave teaching and go into research. But it doesn't pay enough at first."

"Aren't you happy here?" asked Judith.

He leaned toward her but did not touch her. "I might be, if we were friends, instead of enemies," he said. "Why can't we be, Miss—Judith?"

The girl jumped to her feet. "We can, but not if we catch cold and die from sitting on this roof. Let's go home."

They left the observatory and the grounds, with Ponto at their heels, and walked through the dark streets toward College road. Dr. Dorn talked of impersonal topics.

"I'm in a dilemma," he told Judith. "The dean wishes the discipline committee to go much farther with this bootleg investigation than I am willing to go. I cannot consent to go on the presumption of anyone's guilt until it has been proved to me. After that let the law take its course, mercilessly, I should say."

"Right is right," he said, as he opened the door for her. Judith bade him good night and ran up the stairs.

The professor stood for several minutes on the steps, lighting his pipe. He strolled down the walk and called to Ponto. The police dog came bounding at him from an alley where he had been stalking a giant tomcat.

The professor turned and looked back at the house. It was entirely dark. As he looked at it a light flashed on in a window.

Dr. Dorn took the steps out of his mouth and bent forward. It was the window looking out upon the balcony. A trellis leaning down from it offered an easy ascent from the ground. On that trellis, a few weeks before, he had seen a man climbing down.

The dog knocked against the professor's knees. For the first time in Ponto's life his master pushed him away with his foot.

Then after a moment, with his eyes still on the lighted window, he reached down and laid his hand on the dog's head. Ponto pushed closer to him, whimpering.

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Sumner

Take it all back! No, not "all," but some of it! Not long ago I said some nasty things in this column about a new novel called "Portia Marries." Well, I still insist that much of it is silly, sullied writing. But I do hand it this on a silver platter! It is almost the only modern novel I know which permits a woman to have that much-touted "career," a home, a husband, and a child, and everything running hunky-dory.

In "This Freedom" one of the first of the "husband or career" novels, Rosalie's kids go to the devil, and the author infers it is all Rosalie's fault.

In "Three Kingdoms," by Storm Jameson, the wife-advertising writer, alienated from her husband, because of his lack of sympathy with her career, is fallen in love with her boss and sundry others, as the author seems to say that a woman who works outside the home will come to no good end.

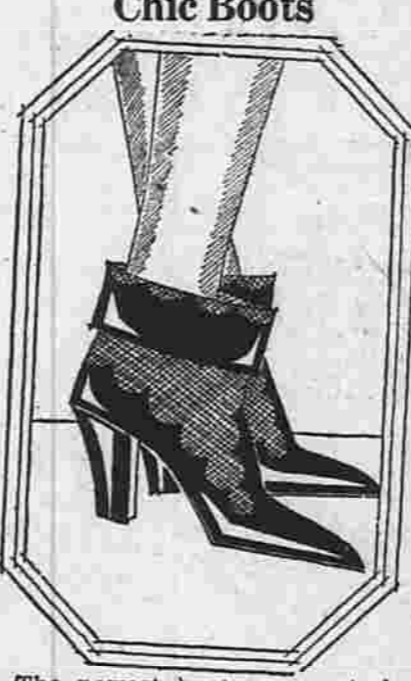

But Jeannette Gibbs, author of "Portia Marries," lets the gal get away with it, for which we thank her!

This is not a pretty quote which I dug forth from a current magazine article on the subject of alimony, but read it anyway, if you can: "cancer and the alimony leech are one and the same thing. The divorce is like the operation for cancer in that it relieves the man of the woman, but the financial obligations remain, like the roots of the cancer, until they drain the vital forces and the victim is destroyed."

The alimony system is taking on the form of punishment for misdeeds committed by the husband during the marital course, rather than that of a just form of sustenance for the dependent wife, as it was intended to do at its inception, around the year 1868."

Queer thing that modern woman can prattle about the equality of the sexes, and in the next breath publicly admit that she is inferiorly incapacitated for meeting life and making a living, when she accepts alimony to the tune of the millions

Coat flowers, roses, lilies, pansies, nasturtiums, made of fur are Fashion's latest offering. While it is sure that a rose made of soft beige squirrel is mighty chic, five dollars seems a lot to pay for so trite a sartorial adornment!

And now this much criticized modern youth rose to the crisis. He took his girl to the Y. M. C. A., demanded a receipt from the matron in charge in exchange for the girl, and mailed it special delivery to her parents!

I watched him puffing and puffing at the street car window. Couldn't budge it, though his very said the chicly dressed woman next him, "perhaps I can help." She did. Just a gentle little push and up went the window. He thanked her. He was red, very red. She smiled her "very welcome," and the car looked puzzled. Beautiful Dresses

When I buy dresses for the friends of the Little Fashion Shop I give much more thought and time to the selection of each separate dress than many buyers.

I am very critical. Because I am critical I can please others who are equally as critical.

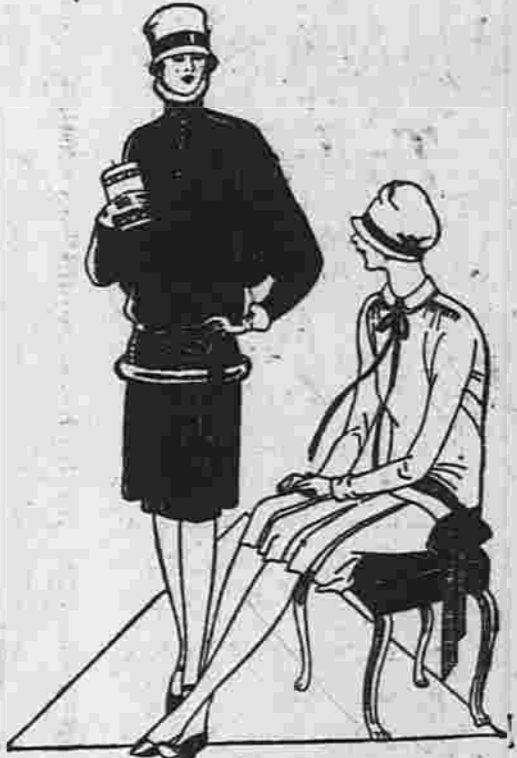

Much of my own pleasure comes from hearing people say that they derive pleasure from the quiet atmosphere of my little up stairs shop where they can select leisurely.

My chief aim is to please people. The style, the colors, the quality, the workmanship—all must please.

And my prices are below usual prices—my rent and other expenses are low and what I save, I cut off the price—thus the Little Fashion Shop is an economical place to buy as well as a pleasant place to buy.

Come and see me when you need another dress.

OVEREATING HARMFUL AFTER MIDDLE LIFE BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Most of the illnesses that afflict the man beyond middle age are due to the fact that he does not realize his intestinal limitations.

The most pernicious misdemeanor after middle life is overeating. The person who works out-of-doors is, of course, able to dispose of more and heavier food than does a brain-worker.

The brain-worker who tries to eat meat three times a day will find himself, in most instances, in better condition if he eats meat only once each day, but in this condition quantity of food is more important than its nature.

Cooked Foods The human being gradually has been adapting himself to more and more refined and thoroughly cooked foods. Nevertheless, it is not desirable for him suddenly to change to foods that are coarse and indigestible.

These perhaps will aid elimination, but at the same time they will irritate the delicate lining of the intestines and permit the more easy entrance of bacteria into the body.

Theft Just For The Thrill

By Olive Roberts Barton

The airplane thief is with us at last. One was stolen from Peake's Field at Ottawa, Ill., recently. Will the oldest inhabitant please look over his records and see if he can beat that? I have heard of glass eyes being stolen, and wooden legs, and church pews, and cigar-store Indians, but this is the first time I have had the pleasure of hearing that someone has annexed an airplane not his own.

Seriously it comes to this. The type of person who would steal an airplane would not be hard to guess. A boy—or two boys—between the ages of 18 and 22, far aside from the criminal phase, such an act is redolent of foolhardiness and adventure.

"What is sin in others is merely an experiment in ourselves," quotes the wise man. There is where you have the beginning of 90 per cent of crimes. Some crimes are vicious, some are malicious, some are weakness, and a vast amount of it experimental.

Crime in youth comes almost invariably under the latter class, especially stealing. Most professional thieves, burglars, second-story men and automobile thieves are very young. They go in for it partly for sensation; half the time when they start they do not know what they are actually doing or the enormity of their crime. Afterwards when it is too late to back out, it doesn't matter, nor do they care.

Once I taught school. There was in my room a rather lovable, spirited boy of twelve years. He was as normal a child as I have ever seen. One day a policeman came to school and got him. He had reached over the counter a bank and stolen two thousand dollars! When they sent him to reform school I knew the child did not realize what he had done. I think someone dared him to do it. But at the same time he was without fundamental sense of ownership.

Children are never too young to be taught honesty. Six months—a year is right. Three years—five years of age is too late to begin. Do not condone the theft of a cookie!

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

By ARTHUR N. PACK
President American Nature Ass'n.

High in the air a flying wedge of Canadian geese, led by some wise old gander, seek a winter home in southern bayous.

What memories and fancies they bring to one's mind!

In some far northern marsh, perhaps within the sound of the restless ice-straw waters of Hudson bay, perhaps in some spruce-bordered swamp flanked by snow-covered mountains, their summer was passed.

There the broods were raised and thence, as the first heralds of the ice King threatened to set fast their feeding grounds, they rose and arranged their ranks into the wedge that experience has taught them serves best to help them cleave swiftly the pathways of the air.

Yesterday they paddled the icy waters of the north, with winter close on their trail; today they gather their food in the hazy calm of our Indian summer days; tomorrow, if they wished, they might be reveling in the endless summer of the tropics.

And, as they fly, one of their number suddenly closes his wings and falls lifeless to the marsh. Perhaps some far-fung shot, sent at random at the speeding flock, had found its mark in some less vital spot, gradually weakening the strong heart and willing muscles as they strove to keep up with the fast-flying band.

Perhaps old age had set its final curb on that once tireless frame. At any rate, his seasoned flights between the tropics and the arctic are past forever.

As the poet has truly said, we may well gain a lesson from this far-flying band of waterfowl winging its way unerring through the pathless heavens, needing neither guide-post nor compass:

"He who, from zone to zone guides through the boundless sky the certain flight, in the long way that I must tread alone, will guide my steps aright."

And, when our time comes to die, may we all meet as bravely and as fearlessly as the wild goose, who, even though wounded unto death, strives with his fellows along the appointed path until he reaches the end of the trail and, incomplaining, dies.

FLETCHER WILL PROBABLY BECOME GIANTS' COACH

New York, Oct. 29.—Reports today declared that negotiations virtually had been closed for Arthur Fletcher to become a coach of the

New York Giants next season. Fletcher, recently deposed as manager of the Phillies, made his reputation as a ball player while playing shortstop with the Giants' pennant winners of 1911, 1912, 1915 and 1917.

BROKER SUSPENDED FOR LIBERALITY TO EMPLOYEES

New York, Oct. 28.—Edward E. MacCron, head of the brokerage firm of E. E. MacCron & Co., was suspended from the New York Stock Exchange today for one year.

It was alleged that MacCron & Co. paid to two employees, who managed branch offices in Michigan, one-half of the net profits of these offices in addition to their salary without having secured the written approval of the committee on quotations and commissions.

CHINESE BANDITS CAPTURE A MISSIONARY BISHOP

Shanghai, Oct. 28.—Bishop T. A. Scott, attached to the China Inland Mission, has been carried off by bandits. The bishop was captured while making a tour of his See, the reports indicated.

RUMANIA DENIES

RECALL OF QUEEN

Word of the Rumanian government to shorten her majesty's trip to America. There will be no changes in her majesty's program.

The false rumors which have been set afloat are attributed here to intrigue, planned by the enemies of the court and the government and passed off on credulous correspondents. Those who have opposed the tour of the queen and who wish to discredit the government are charged with striving to make it appear to the American people that the queen is defying her government in continuing her tour, and are also seeking to convince the Rumanian people that their queen is diminishing the dignity of their country abroad.

Much Indignation

Some of the reports, circulated in the United States, have been cabled back here and have aroused the deepest indignation, particularly one story which flatly states that there is a test of strength in progress between the king and the queen, the queen defying the king's command that she return to Bucharest.

Government officials state that Rumanian is highly gratified with the tributes paid to the queen by the United States and warned against giving credit to rumors and reports from Vienna, Budapest and other European capitals, and even some of the reports which purport to come from Bucharest and which are allegedly statements from official sources.

PREACHING ROBE IN

TRUNK OF ORMISTON

They are expected to be able to say who bought the garments.

Two other things of interest and importance were found in the little trunk—a flowing robe of flaming red such as Mrs. McPherson wore during her evangelistic appearances, and a large silk handkerchief bearing the name of the Rev. Paul Rader, pastor of the Chicago Gospel Tabernacle. Rader does not know how his handkerchief got into a trunk found in New York, but explained that he once had preached in Mrs. McPherson's pulpit, and might have dropped it there.

The trunk has been shipped to Los Angeles and should arrive soon. If the state is right, the case will end right then.

BINGHAM WANTS SPEEDY JUSTICE

Never "Dodged a Vote" He Affirms at Rally in Middletown.

Hartford, Oct. 29.—Declaring that he had never "dodged a vote," and that he welcomed at all times communications which aid in throwing light on the state of public opinion, as regards vexed questions, Senator Bingham, in an address at Middletown last night, gave his views on law and law enforcement, and reaffirmed his pledge to meet all questions with deliberation and devotion to the best interests of the people of Connecticut and the United States.

"I am a firm believer," said Senator Bingham, "in everything which will promote swift and impartial administration of justice. I welcome anything which will promote respect for law and obedience to it. In Connecticut we have always taken pride in the foresight and prudence of our ancestors who devised our earliest laws and Constitutions. The law-makers of Connecticut from the earliest times have endeavored to discover those true and right principles which ought to be embodied in the written law. As President Coolidge has so well said: 'Men do not make laws, they do but discover them. Laws must be justified by something more than the will of the majority. They must rest on the eternal foundation of righteousness.'" thing which leads to disrespect for law and disregard for its enforcement strikes at the roots of our institutions.

"One thing which has led to disrespect for law and disregard for its enforcement is the unfortunate tendency to attempt to make people good by law and, accordingly, to take over into the field of positive law many spheres of human action which were formerly left to the good sense and good judgment of the individual. Zealous reformers, without giving careful consideration to the extent to which wise public policy may properly permit some phases of human activity to be left to the self-control or the restraining influence of public opinion, are ever working for the passage of new legislation. When they constitute part of a well-organized minority they frequently succeed in getting laws placed upon the statute books which are not wise and do not meet with general public approval. Consequently such laws are not highly regarded. They tend to cause disrespect for law. They are not generally observed. The result is an outcry on the part of their promoters for more strict enforcement of the law.

"We prefer freedom to despotism. We believe in representative government, not in benevolent autocracy. Representative government secures to the people more blessings than any other political system ever devised. The secret of its success lies in the willingness of the individual citizen to do his part in the process of selecting trustworthy representatives.

"I agree with the Republican State Platform, adopted by the Republican State Convention on September 14, 1926, that 'the representative form of government as adopted by the earliest settlers of Connecticut is the best means of securing the benefits of popular government . . . upon our representatives rests the responsibility for the proper performance of those duties to which they are selected . . . this responsibility can be fully exercised only after full hearing and deliberate consideration.' By this platform, as one of the selected representatives of the Republican Party I have been solemnly pledged to meet all questions with deliberation and devotion to the best interests of the State."

"I do not pretend to have any unusual wisdom. I try to see both sides of all questions which are presented for our consideration. I despise intolerance and pretense at omniscience. I welcome at all times resolutions or recommendations, editorials, or private letters which aid in throwing light on the state of public opinion as regards vexed questions. I have never dodged a vote. Nevertheless, I believe that in justice to my constituents I should neither vote nor pledge my vote until there has been a full hearing and opportunity for deliberate consideration of the specific questions which from time to time are presented for decision in the Senate."

BIG MOVIE FEATURE COMING TO THE STATE

An announcement that will be of special interest to local movie fans was made today by the management of the State Theater when it was said that "3 Bad Men" was to be shown at "The Theater Magnificent" on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at no advance in prices. Here is the outstanding play of the year. It took over a year to make and has 55,000 persons in the cast. It has been as well advertised in the larger cities that Manchester amusement lovers who are remarkably well read on movie features will know all about "3 Bad Men."

The feature will be shown here with an elaborate musical setting and the State orchestra is already rehearsing the score to have it letter perfect at the premier Sunday evening.

"I do not pretend to have any unusual wisdom. I try to see both sides of all questions which are presented for our consideration. I despise intolerance and pretense at omniscience. I welcome at all times resolutions or recommendations, editorials, or private letters which aid in throwing light on the state of public opinion as regards vexed questions. I have never dodged a vote. Nevertheless, I believe that in justice to my constituents I should neither vote nor pledge my vote until there has been a full hearing and opportunity for deliberate consideration of the specific questions which from time to time are presented for decision in the Senate."

Society and Law.

"This nation was established in order to secure liberty and justice. For this purpose the representatives of the people in the General Assembly and in the Congress try to discover those laws which are right and to correct those which are wrong. It is in order to secure liberty and justice that we strive to maintain law and order. Society cannot exist without obedience to law. FLAPPER FANNY

Dancing fiends just can't stand to sit a dance out.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

If a moustache is the badge of masculinity what's the two little dabs the flapper wears just under his nose the badge of, stysilyth?

A visitor to a village entered the principal shop one afternoon and said to the clerk at the book counter, "Let me have, please, the 'Letters of Charles Lamb.'"

Birmingham, Ala. had a saxophone contest, but the winner escaped.

The height of ignorance is for a girl to get married simply because she is tired of working.

In some rivers it is an offense to catch fish; in others a miracle.

When you lose your head, hold your tongue.

A Lesson in Cooperation "Help one another," a snowflake said, As it cuddled down in its fleecy bed.

"One of us here would quickly melt; But I'll help you, and you help me, And soon what a big white drift we'll be."

"Help one another," a dewdrop cried, Seeling another drop close at it's side, "The sun would wither me here alone, And I would be gone ere the day is done; But I'll help you and you help me, And we'll make a brook and run to the sea!"

"Help one another," a grain of sand said to another grain just at hand, "The wind would carry me over the sea, And then, O what would become of me But come, my brother, give me your hand, And we'll build a mountain and there we'll stand."

When bigger fools are to be had colleges will get them.

A girl to be popular today must powder her face and neck.

She: "I am sorry I can't see the stage very well at this distance!" He: "Use your opera glasses!" She: "I can't, I have forgotten to put on my bracelet!"

The waiter in the restaurant asked Gladys if she would have some corn and she passed her glass!

Film Actress (to suitor): No, I don't think I shall marry again—candidly, I don't think divorcees are such rattling good ideas as they are cracked up to be.

A man who had not been seen by his family for two years, arrived home recently. He has promised in future to walk from the office instead of taking a bus.

When a jazz band knocks the rest out of restaurant it puts the din in dinner.

The fellow who believes in dreams would get along better if he would wake up.

Her husband went bankrupt but she was still in good shape.

INTELLIGENCE TESTS

WHO IS SHE?

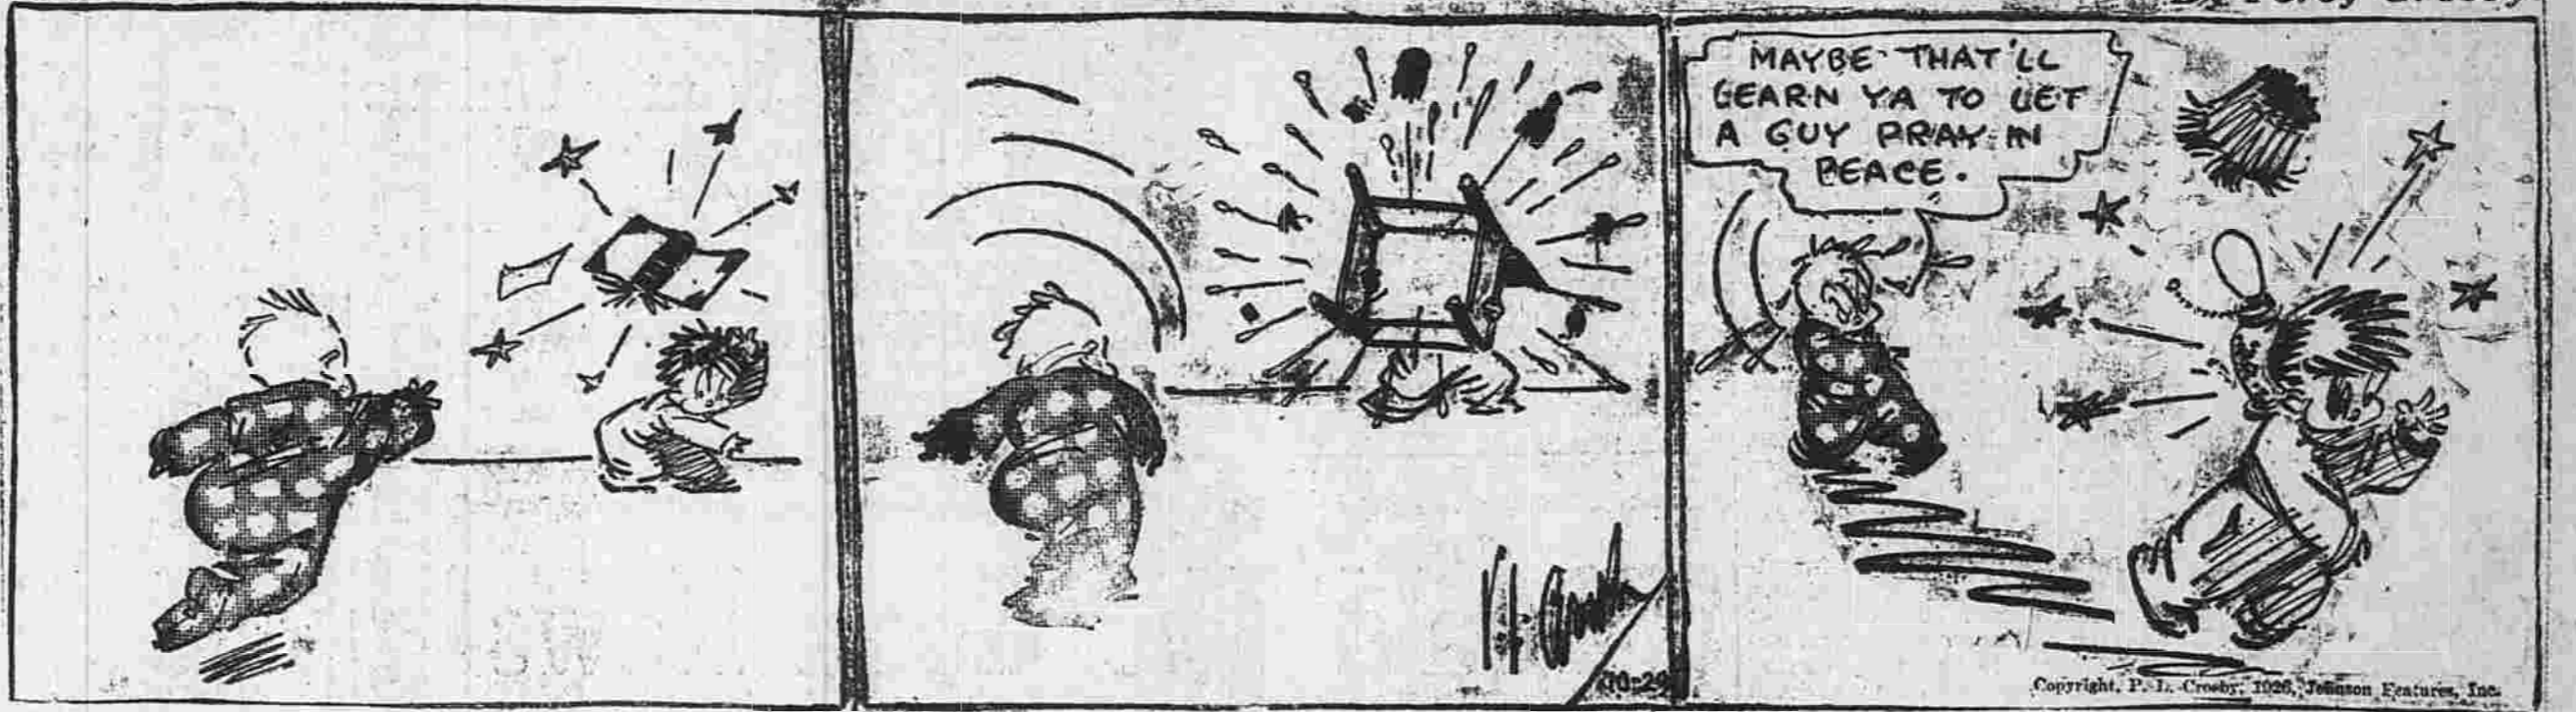

You should be able to answer all these questions without much thought. The correct answers appear on another page.

- 1-Who is the actress shown in the accompanying picture? 2-In what state is the old Spanish mission San Xavier Del Bac? 3-Who managed the 1926 world champion baseball team? 4-Why plays the title role in the moving picture "Twinkletoes"? 5-How many dozens are there in a gross? 6-What is an iciclelet? 7-What state does Senator Reed Smoot represent? 8-In what country is radio station CKCL located? 9-What is Thermopylae. 10-Who wrote the novel "Vanity Fair"?

"Where are we going?" Scouty said, and Copy answered, "Straight ahead. I guess we're simply going where the horse decides to run. But, what's the difference, anyway. We haven't got a thing to say about this trip, so let's just go, and have a heap of fun." The horse, it seemed, enjoyed the ride, and swayed himself from side to side, which tossed the little Tynmites abounding in the air. They'd leave the horse's back and then come hobbling down kersmack again. Perhaps it jarred them up a bit, but no one seemed to care. They traveled through a forest dense and then old hobbin jumped a fence, and started through a farmer's field where corn was growing high. Then Carpy said, "Ah, here's a treat," and, gee, he almost lost his seat in reaching for a cob of corn as they went sailing by. Now, just ahead there stood a farm, which caused the Tynmites some alarm. Said Scouty, "If we're taken here, they'll chase us all away."

HARD-HEARTED MANNEQUINS

No Charitable Motives Sway Models in Their Gold-Digging: Co-eds Supplement Their Education in the Clothing Houses

BY MARIAN HALE
NEA Service Writer
New York, Oct. 29.—The college girl with the knack of wearing clothes smartly floods the ranks of the professional fashion models in New York City during vacation time.

None of the girls roll their hose, though some wear no-hose at all. And if the girls go out on late parties two or three nights a week, they fall into bed early on the other nights.

Yet she can never be mistaken for the girl who makes modeling her business. Her nails aren't as long, nor her skin as creamy. We eight models were lolling around the dressing room of a wholesale house on West 37th street. Business was dull. The discussions ran from men, rouge, dresses and dates to "Where'd you come from?"

INTERSECTIONAL GAMES SATURDAY

East, Middle West and South Invaded Tomorrow; Walsh Picks 'Em.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor
New York, Oct. 29.—Collegiate football will stake itself tomorrow to an intersectional show down, a meeting of teams truly representative of their respective districts for the first time this season.

Notre Dame, into the intersectional pit with one of the Southland's best, Georgia Tech.

In the West
The Navy-Michigan affair at Baltimore probably will carry the greatest import east of the Mississippi, although plenty of people will want to know whether Pennsylvania can kick a field goal with an elbow pad against Illinois at Urbana. The third great intersectional meeting will involve West Virginia, unbeaten to date, and Missouri, champion of the Valley conference and the fourth will be the Notre Dame-Georgia Tech game at South Bend. It looks like the Irish in this one but I wouldn't attempt to call the result of the Missouri-West Virginia contest.

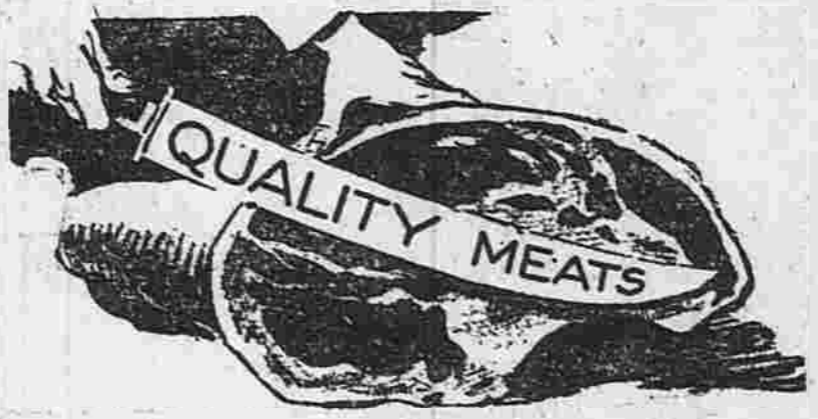

Fighting for the Eastern title, will romp over Dartmouth, softened by its battles with Yale and Harvard.

Another undefeated Eastern team, New York University, is being picked to beat Fordham and it should.
A. F. L. TO BACK 200 CONGRESS CANDIDATES
Supports 2 Progressive Republicans, Several Democratic Senate Nominees.
Washington, Oct. 29.—The American Federation of Labor will seek the election of candidates in more than 200 congressional districts and will actively use its influence in a half-dozen senatorial fights, it was announced here today.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Campaign expenditures of the Republican Congressional Committee were brought to $177,493.35 with the filing of a supplemental report by the organization today.

Total contributions reached $200,150 on October 28. Included in the expenditures was $500 to aid the campaign of Representative F. H. La Guardia, of New York, who dropped his Socialist affiliation to run as a Republican in the present fight.

MILLS KILLS SMITH AS PRESIDENTIAL FACTOR

Ogden Mills has a ghost of a show of beating Al Smith.

This news proves startling enough to make any visiting fireman sit up and take notice.

The elegant Mr. Mills has, from the first, carried the fight to New York's petted presidential darling.

See Blow at Smith But if New York's election turns out anywhere near what political dopesters all over the State now think it will, the bantam from the Avenue will have put a severe crimp in the heavyweight hopes.

study of the executive offices in Washington will be as great as that of Norman's Woe, Gloucester, to the Golden Gate in San Francisco.

Tammany "Off" Smith In New York's refined political circles one hears outspoken stories of Al Smith such as one never heard before.

Call Al "High Hat." The old district captains regard Al as becoming "high-hat."

How They Figure It. According to Republican figures, Ogden Mills will come down to the Bronx with 370,000 votes.

York, black thunderous rumblings accompanied by 200.

The "Gaelic-American" an Irish newspaper, intimates, if it does not openly charge that Al's name is really Schmidt, and not Smith at all.

Whispering Campaign. This whispering campaign seems to indicate that Al Smith's not as popular as he was.

Tired of Al's Boom Here in New York they are growing a little tired of Al Smith's presidential boom.

How They Figure It. According to Republican figures, Ogden Mills will come down to the Bronx with 370,000 votes.

Smith beat him by about 107,000. Tammany claims a 450,000 lead in New York City for Al.

The figures for the two camps, therefore, appear as follows: Smith, New York City, plus 413,000; upstate, minus 250,000; Smith to win by 163,000.

These figures, like all figures in all campaigns, don't mean very much. They do show, perhaps, the proportionate chances of the candidates in the light of other campaigns.

On every side one hears stories of small groups of Republicans who have always voted for Smith before but who, now, are going to vote for Mills.

The Pan-American Union is supported by quotas contributed by each country, based on the population.

by a scant 100,000, then Mr. Smith will have a very difficult time indeed in picking up the pitcher of his presidential ambitions.

No Longer a Boyce Of course, whatever the margin of Smith over Mills there will be allis, but those who go to Democratic national conventions will rely chiefly on the figures of this fall's elections before sticking to Smith for another 100 ballots.

However, this election may turn out, the campaign as conducted by the ripenting Ogden Mills has carried the fight to Al Smith, and has shown that he is not by any means the terrifying awe-inspiring figure Republicans have hitherto regarded him.

SCHREIBER-WADDELL. Miss Gertrude D. Waddell, daughter of James Waddell of 29 Birch street, and George G. Schreiber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Schreiber at West Center street, were married yesterday at St. Mary's Episcopal church at four o'clock.

The bride and groom were attended by Miss Marion Waddell, sister of the bride as bridesmaid, and Thomas Graham as best man.

The bride's gown was of blue crepe Roma, with hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony at the church a reception for relatives and intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom was held at the home of the bride which was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

On their return from an unannounced wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Schreiber will live in their newly built home on West Center street.

The bride has been employed in the office of the Aetna Insurance company in Hartford and the bridegroom is a member of the firm of Gustave Schreiber & Sons, building contractors.

ABOUT TOWN

The Oakland club met yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Mason Wetherell of Oakland. The next meeting will be held November 11 with Mrs. Josephine Wetherell.

Robert Murdock and his nephew, George Murdock, both of Philadelphia, are in town visiting the former's father, George Murdock of Walker street.

Dr. Charles W. Strat and Mrs. Strat entertained their friends with a costume Halloween party at their home, 83 Henry street, last evening.

Mrs. Thomas Ferguson of Main street and her sister, Mrs. Frank Hastings of Hartford, are spending the week-end in New Haven.

Graing Whist club members met yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Amy Brown of Bidwell street and made plans for the season.

Mrs. Francis Wetherell of Oakland entertained her Sunday school class at Second Congregational church at her home last evening.

The little girls each invited a friend and all appeared in costume. The decorations, games and entertainments were all in keeping with Halloween.

E. E. Crozat of Flint, Mich., is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Thibodeau of Clinton street.

The voting machine will be on exhibition until eight o'clock this evening. This will be the last opportunity new voters will have to learn the machine before election day next Tuesday.

The Beethoven Glee club will have a rehearsal this evening, the first tenors and first basses at 7 p. m. and the second basses and second tenors at 8.

The Girl Reserves met at Center church last evening and made plans for the rally to be held at the Hartford Y. W. C. A. in November. Esther Sutherland of the local branch has been appointed as secretary of the county council.

Tonight the Young People's society of the Concordia Lutheran church will have as their guests the Young People's society of New Britain. Extensive preparations for a Halloween party have been made and the young people are looking forward to a good time.

Ray Robinson is having a filling station erected on a lot on Main street, about opposite the new cobblestone stairway leading to the Center Spring Park.

COOLIDGE RECEIVES GRIDMAN Washington, Oct. 29.—The University of Michigan football team, which tomorrow plays Navy in Baltimore, was received by President Coolidge at the White House this afternoon.

COUNT SALM GAINS SHORT RESPIRE FROM HEARING New York, Oct. 29.—The case of Count Salm Von Hoopstraten and his wife, the former Millicent Rogers, was in court today on a motion to set the count's suit for separation and custody of their child for trial. Salm's attorney told the court that Salm was prevented from being in court because the Austrian immigration quota to this country was filled. On the strength of this the case was reset for November 10, on which date the count's counsel must submit further proof of his client's inability to reach America.

NOVEL SCHEME DEFEATS HIGH COST OF LIVING.
A new way in which to defeat the high cost of living has been unearthed in Manchester and apparently has proved itself quite practicable for cases of this kind.
Recently a family removed from Wells street to School street, a distance of about 100 yards. Instead of hiring a moving van, the friends of the family came to their assistance and one night there was a string of eight men, women and children engaged in carrying the household furniture from house to house.

RAILROADERS ASK FOR PAY INCREASE
Representatives of 100,000 at Hearing Today Before Arbitration Board.
New York, Oct. 28.—Hearing of the request of 100,000 eastern railroad trainmen and conductors for a twenty per cent increase in wages started today before the Board of Arbitration consisting of representatives, employes and the public.
Twenty-five years' experience in electrical manufacture and the world's largest radio factory behind the Atwater-Kent. The machine you will eventually buy. Barrett & Robbins, 913 Main.

WOMEN FIGHT OVER PIGS, CHICKENS AND CHILDREN
A complaint was received by local police the other day to the effect that two women living on Autumn street were engaged in a fist fight. Patrolman John McGilinn went to the scene to investigate but found no cause for an arrest. However, he told the parties to make a complaint to the prosecuting attorney hereafter.
The women, Mrs. Sophia Manchuk and Mrs. Maurice Worsaa, live next door to each other and do not agree. One claims the other allows not only her children but also the pigs and chickens to roam on her property.
The Board consists of Edgar E. Clark of Washington, former member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, chairman; William D. Baldwin, president of the Otis Elevator Co., for the public; E. P. Curtis, secretary and treasurer of the Order of Railway Conductors, and Daniel E. Case of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen for the employes; William A. Baldwin, vice-president of the Erie Railroad and Robert V. Massey, general manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad, for the companies.

E. M. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, opened the hearing with a plea for scientific adjustment of wages.

PRISCILLA DEAN AT THE RIALTO THEATER
Priscilla Dean is starred in the attraction "West of Broadway" which is being featured at the Rialto today and tomorrow. It is a volatile story and shows fiery Priscilla off to advantage. Its locale is the great West and the theme, an engaging one gives Miss Dean an opportunity to display her superb abilities in this sort of a role.
Arnold Gray and Walter Long appear in the supporting cast and give an unusually finished portrayal of their respective roles. Another offering on these two days will be another chapter of "The Fighting Marine" one of the most popular of the present day chapter plays. Gene Tunney takes the title role and succeeds in proving that the screen lost a polished actor when the prize ring gained a new champion. There is an intangible "something" about Gene's personality which seems to gain ones sympathy instantly and this fact no doubt has a great deal to do with the success of the picture.
Whether one is interested in the squared circle or not he is bound to find a lot to enjoy in "The Fighting Marine" which might almost be termed a true life story of the existence of the present day world's champion, selected short subjects will also be shown in addition to those films already mentioned.

The next time you serve a can of imported fish, for example, at your table, just pause a moment. Did it ever occur to you that there is a story behind that little can of fish? Probably it came from France, Denmark, Norway or some other foreign country. Those fish in the can you bought are part of a catch that some little fishing boat caught off the coast of Norway perhaps. The seas are turbulent there, the weather is cold and the life of the fisherman is a hard one. Nevertheless these men risk their lives year in and year out to enable us here, more than 2000 miles away, to meet your demands for these fish delicacies.
