ELECTION HERE MAY BRING OUT A RECORD VOTE

Closing of Mills, Republican Organization and Interest in Dewey-Gabb Fight to Bring Out Crowd.

FOLLOWING PLACE—New Municipal Building.

TIME—6 a. m. to 6 p. m.
TRANSPORTATION—Phone "Republican Headquarters," give your name and address and a car will call. If you can possibly get to the polls yourself, so much the better.

HOW TO VOTE—Party levers must be pulled to the right until the bell rings. In splitting ticket push up lever over name of candidate you are scratching, pull down lever over candidate you favor.TO VOTE A STRAIGHT TICKET SIMPLY PULL THE PARTY LEVER UNTIL THE BELL RINGS AND LET IT SPRING BACK.

A record vote for an "off" year is expected here tomorrow when Manchester voters go to the polls to register their choice for state officers. The closing of the Cheney silk mills for the afternoon and the organization which has been prepared for the local vote in their support will be largely responsible in bringing voters to the polls, it is thought.

Practically all departments of the silk mills will be closed for the afternoon, as was announced by The Herald Saturday. No time will be lost since the departments will make up for the election half-holiday by working Saturday.

Other Plans

The E. E. Hilliard Company, Case Brothers and the Orford Soap Company will see that all voters in their employ will get to the polls tomorrow. Mrs. Emma Nettleton will have charge of the Republican women's headquarters here and plans to get out a big women's vote.

The Republican organization will take care of any voters who cannot otherwise get to the polls. Telephone will be installed in the headquarters at the municipal building and it will be only necessary to ask telephone operators to connect with "Republican headquarters." Those who have no transportation to the polls are asked to do so themselves. The organization will have a big job on its hands getting all those who have no transportation to the municipal building.

G. O. P. Victory Seen.

The usual Republican majority is expected in Manchester and it is expected, too, that the number of straight Republican party votes will overwhelm the efforts which have been made here to elect George Gabb as sheriff over Edward W. Dewey.

United States Senator Hiram Bingham will increase his majority of the special election of December, 1924, it is believed here, and Governor Trumbull should lead his ticket to a landslide victory if signs do not fail.

QUEEN MEETS 'FOLKS,' GETS INDIAN BONNET

High Hats 'Out' as N. Dakota Farmers Board Train and Braves Do War Dance.

Aboard Queen Marie's Special Train, Nov. 1, Queen Marie, of Roumania, rubbed elbows today with "just folks," the typical American farmer and his wife.

While her million-dollar train sped through the fertile lands of North Dakota a dozen real farmers and their wives "on the soil" boarded at each stop and chatted with her majesty until the next stop.

It was the appointed day of freedom for Queen Marie in which she was to do what she wished and see whom she chose. Her majesty began it with a royal proclamation that high hats were "out" for this day at least. She expressed the desire to meet and talk with "the backbone of America," and later to ride with the cowboys at Medora, the heart of North Dakota bad lands, where a rodeo will be staged.

An escort of honor from the state American Legion accompanied the Queen through the North Dakota tour. Governor A. G. Sorensen is to board the train at Bismarck and instruct her majesty in co-operative marketing and agricultural problems.

North Dakota Indians in tribal costume performed an Indian dance for the royal party. Sorensen presented the queen with an Indian bonnet.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, Nov. 1.—Treasury balance as of October 29: $232,831,419.16.
Balance as of October 28: $234,106,353.12.

NEARING 40, IS GIVEN STEPMOTHER, AGED 16

Patchogue, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Viola Marie Alter, just turned 16, today is the wife of Dr. Elias Rogers Corwith, 38, and the stepmother of Mrs. William Thompson, of Milwaukee, who is considerably more than twice her age.

The physician and his girl Scout bride were quietly married at Brookhaven yesterday afternoon while practically the whole population of Patchogue waited in the rain outside the church here.

MANY PRISONERS BEG FOR FREEDOM

Pardons Board Hears Long List of Appeals from Wethersfield Inmates.

Hartford, Nov. 1.—Eight years of service as a purchasing agent for a firm of garment makers, although confined in prison, were told about by Charles Bassett, of Waterbury, who is serving a life sentence for murder, when he appeared for a pardon today before the state board of pardons.

Bassett's appeal is among nine others being considered by the board, over which Governor Bull is presiding. Bassett has been in prison since 1905 but makes his first appeal for clemency this year. He said that about twelve years ago he decided to study and educate himself. At the start he was illiterate, but at present he is studying calculus. He started work years ago.

It was brought out that a Canadian warrant awaits Bassett if he is released because of a crime committed when he was ten years old. Benedict M. Holden represented Bassett and declared he is ready to disprove that charge in any Canadian court if Bassett is released here. There was no opposition to Bassett's petition.

Other Pleas

A plea for pardon or reduction of sentence was made by his wife for George A. Finn, of Norwich, who is serving five to nine years for embezzlement from the Bankers Trust Co., of that city. Clemency was asked by Attorney John P. Barrier. Allen M. Brown, state's attorney for New London county, said he thought Finn had been taught a lesson but would make no specific recommendation regarding the case.

Percey Bishop, of Charlestown, Mass., appeared for his brother, Charles H. Bishop, who is serving a life sentence for murder. The crime was committed at Rockville in 1906. It is his twelfth appeal.

Attorney John A. Danaher, of Hartford, pleaded for the release of S. A. B. Ellery, who is serving a life sentence for murder. The crime was committed at Preston in 1908. Mr. Danaher said that the prisoner, who is of a temperamental type, has suffered sufficiently for his crime. William G. Baxter, secretary of the State Prison Association, declared that the members of Salisbury's family, a wife and five children, are now public charges and need the support of the husband and father. State Attorney Brown recited the history of the case. He said that Salisbury killed Herman Chapman, an Irishman, who the prisoner claimed, were trying to dispossess him of his home. He said he did not think Salisbury would be a menace to society if freed.

Would Go To Italy.

Vincenzo Santero, of Waterbury, 62 years old, who has been serving a life sentence since 1903, made known through counsel his intention of returning to Italy if released. He is reported as in poor health.

SHOOTS UP A PARTY THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Cleveland Man Kills Two, Wounds Three, Commits Suicide With Automatic.

Cleveland, Nov. 1.—Three persons are dead and four others in serious condition in a fatal shooting which resulted in a man running amuck with an automatic pistol. James Trecka, 48, who was suing his wife for divorce, returned to her home and killed or wounded every member of a family dinner party, then shot himself. Beside Trecka the dead are: Frank Koman, 36, Mrs. Trecka's son-in-law; Edward Kukral, 30, Mrs. Trecka's nephew. The wounded: Mrs. Mary Trecka, 48, critical; Evelyn Kukral, 17; Mrs. Sylvia Koman, daughter of Mrs. Trecka.

N. Y. POLICE VETERAN DEAD.

New London, Nov. 1.—Richard J. Mulcahy, 66, a retired New York policeman, died at his home in Quaker Hill on Sunday, of heart disease. He had been in ill health for some time previous to his death. He was retired 22 years ago.

KILLER CUNIFFE SLAIN, PAL AND COP DIE IN FIGHT

Notorious Crook, Sought for Mail Job, Murdered in Spoils Row; Slayer Kills Officer, Is Shot Dead.

Detroit, Nov. 1.—A bandits' quarrel over spoils during a champagne carousal today was believed to be the cause of a pistol fight in which James (Killer) Cuniffe, another bandit, their woman companion and a policeman were slain early yesterday. Two others were wounded during the terrific gunfire.

The shooting occurred in Apartment 20 of the Highland Court apartments, 257 Highland avenue, which the two bandits and the woman had occupied since October 17, shortly after the $150,000 Elizabeth N. J., mail robbery that prompted posting of United States marines on mail trains.

The dead are James (Killer) Cuniffe, wanted for two murders in New Jersey, one in Long Island and the $150,000 robbery of the United States mail truck in Elizabeth, N. J., in which a postal employee was shot to death and three other persons wounded; Patrolman Ernest Jones, driver of the "Highland Park" police patrol wagon; William James Olsen, bank bandit suspect; an unidentified woman, the bandits' companion.

Patrolman Ephraim Rancour was shot through the right shoulder and Earl Burns, occupant of the apartment was shot in the neck when they attempted to capture Olsen after he had slain Cuniffe and the woman.

Olsen, Cuniffe and the woman quarreled, police believe, over the division of $9,000 which was in their possession.

Olsen had shot Cuniffe and the woman as the pair sat on a bed. The body of the "killer" was riddled with seven bullets. The woman had been shot twice.

After killing them, Olsen prepared to escape. He had partly packed his clothing and had stacked $8,000 in bills, ranging from $10 to $100, on a table in the living room.

Fingerprint Identification.

Cuniffe was identified by fingerprints sent out from Stelton, N. J., where he was wanted for the murder of Frank and Robert Kearney, a father and son. He was wanted also by Bellemore, L. I., for the murder of Ernest L. Whitman, a teller of the First National bank, who was killed in a hold-up April 4, 1924.

Police believe Cuniffe and Olsen were the bandits who robbed the Peninsular State bank of Highland Park, of $1,000 last Thursday. The pair also are suspected of a number of other recent holdups.

The police heard that shots had been fired in the Highland Court gate, 257 Highland avenue, early yesterday morning, and Patrolmen Jones and Rancour, with a tenant, Jesse Wickham, a former police officer, and Elmer Redman, city constable, set out to investigate. Jones knocked at the door of apartment 20, which was opened by Olsen, dressed in underwear and a bathrobe.

Gave Policeman No Chance.

"What's the trouble, buddy," said Jones as he and the others crowded into the lobby of the apartment.

"Nothing at all," said Olsen, who had held his right hand behind him.

"What's all this shooting about?" said Jones.

"It's about this," snapped Olsen pulling his right arm from behind his back.

Too Much Publicity Loses This Poor Little Rich Girl Her Paring Job

Camden, N. J., Nov. 1.—Publicity has spoiled the set young Cinrella experience of Elinor Dorrance, daughter of the multi-millionaire head of the Campbell soup company and has driven her out of her job. Elinor, tomato peeler at 30 cents an hour, punched the time clock just as any other factory girl, hours before her father drove up to the plant office in his car. She planned a scale to advancement from the tomato peeling department to the cashier's cage and on to a permanent place on the advertising staff. The other girls didn't know her from the most commonplace Lizzie Smith.

Then it came out that she was the daughter of the big boss. The newspapers printed the story. She became a public figure.

With the spell broken, Elinor fled back to the paternal family estate at Randsor, Pa. The poor little rich girl for the present is going to forget the music of factory whistles, the clinging touch of a scratching work apron, the straining and calculating contact of tomato juice and machinery.

"Of course Elinor wants to know the business," explained Dr. Dorrance when the story came out. "And the best place to learn it is in the factory. She would learn much more than just soup-making too. She would gain a human understanding which no amount of flapper parties could give. I approved of the idea, heartily."

The daughter's disappointment is shared by the father.

SHOW COFFIN WILL HOLD HOUDINI DEAD

Magician Succumbs to Blood Poison; to Be Buried in 'Stun' Casket.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 1.—Harry Houdini, famous magician, died here yesterday afternoon. Operated on last Monday for appendicitis, three days after his appendix had burst, Houdini became the victim of streptococcus paritonitis, from which he recovered in 1919.

A special Pullman has been chartered by Mrs. Houdini to take the body of the magician to New York for burial. It will leave here this evening.

The body will rest in a special air-tight bronze coffin which Houdini recently had made to prove his contention that anyone could live without air for an hour if he did not let fear overcome him.

Caused by Blow.

Houdini's trouble is generally attributed to a blow given him by a student at McGill University, Montreal, Quebec, several days ago. The magician had lectured before the student body and invited any student to come to his dressing room if he should be shot. Houdini, in commenting on his great strength one student asked the magician: "You could hardly feel a blow on the stomach, would you?" "Certainly not," said Houdini.

Before he had a chance to set himself, one of the boys gave him two short arm blows to the pit of his stomach. Houdini thought nothing of the matter, beyond stating they had made him wince at the time in view of the fact that he was unprepared, and went on with his show.

At the following night's performance Houdini was observed to double up through pain. He complained of severe pains in his stomach on the train from Montreal and was forced to get out.

Persisted in Playing.

Dr. Leo Detre met the train at Detroit and after examination advised the magician not to give the performance on Sunday night, but Houdini insisted, in view of the fact the house was sold out, and he went on despite his great handicap and pain.

He completed the performance and was rushed to the hospital Monday.

During the week he rallied occasionally, but yesterday it became evident the end was near.

MUSSOLINI ONCE MORE ESCAPES DEATH BULLET

Boy Fires at Italian Premier in Bologna, Is Beaten to Death by Mob; Duce's Coat Punctured.

Rome, Nov. 1.—An unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Premier Mussolini in Bologna yesterday was the result of a well defined plot, it was learned today. It ended in the death of the assassin, at the hands of an infuriated mob.

The Bologna police, aided by the police of the government, are today making a widespread search for the accomplices of the 18-year-old youth who attempted the assassination. There were several precautions were taken to protect the life of the premier, even though some officials were inclined to believe the manifesto a joke.

Two powder-burned holes near the armpit of the Duce's coat—the one in the front and one in the back—are the only visible evidence that Mussolini had passed within an inch of death. The fourth attempt on the life of the premier during the present year, and the sixth such attempt since he assumed power four years ago.

Chippa, on the occasion of the previous attempt, the only witness to the shooting and was expected to be the defense star witness in the trial. Nutt was discussing business with Norris when Chippa entered and began shaking the pastor.

Threatened With Death.

The pastor said Chippa entered his office without knocking. "I am going to kill you for what you said in your sermons, damn you," he said to me, Norris reported in his statement.

Threatened With Death.

Norris explained that shortly afterwards Chippa made a threatening move toward his hip pocket.

Throughout the night groups of Fascist paraded the streets, singing "Givina's," the Fascist hymn while in the churches and homes prayers of thanksgiving were uttered.

Pope Plus when notified of the occurrence said: "Thanks be to God that on a day when the church is celebrating the Redem Christ the head of Italy has been spared."

The youth who assaulted the premier late today is reported to have been the 16-year-old son of a Bologna printer.

Among the many messages of congratulation that poured in on the premier was one from King Victor Emmanuel.

The Pope is reported to have said: "This is a new sign that Mussolini has God's full protection, when discussing the attack upon the premier."

Three other would-be assassins linger in jail awaiting trial for their attempts to kill Mussolini.

Major Zaniboni, who is alleged to have planned to shoot Mussolini while he made a speech from the balcony of Chigo palace on November 5, 1923, will probably go on trial during the latter part of this month or the first of next.

The public prosecutor has recently announced that he will ask for the trial of Hon. Vigilio Gibbon, the head of the "Black" number who shot at the premier on April 7, 1923 and who has been believed to be insane.

Gino Lucetti, who is alleged to have hurled a bomb at the premier's automobile in Rome on September 11, this year, also awaits trial.

"Cousin Kate" a three-act drama will be presented by Miss Mildred Anderson, talented educationist, at the South Methodist church this evening under the auspices of the missionary societies of the church.

PRESIDENT URGES ALL VOTERS TO GO TO POLLS

Washington, Nov. 1.—Practically all high officials deserted Washington today in order to go home to vote in tomorrow's elections.

The example was set by President Coolidge, who with Mrs. Coolidge, leaves tonight for Northampton, Mass., to cast ballots in the home town. The Coolidges will return in time to get returns over the radio at the White House tomorrow night.

In a last minute appeal, the President urged all citizens to vote.

"Let no voters abdicate their sovereign right of self-government at the election on Tuesday by failing to vote."

That and nothing more was the final statement that came from the White House.

PASTOR NORRIS ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Slayer of Forth Worth Lumberman Faces Jury; Self-Defense Claimed.

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 1. (United Press).—J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church, was scheduled to go on trial here today on charges of murdering D. E. Chippa, 50, wealthy lumberman.

Last night, Halloween night, Norris' religious followers staged a huge demonstration, parade and prayer meeting, supplicating aid from high.

Norris' plea will be self defense.

Chippa was shot July 13 in the office of the Searchlight, weekly publication of which Norris is editor. The Searchlight office is in the basement of a Sunday school building adjoining the First Baptist church.

Witnesses Killing.

L. H. Nutt, secretary of the Farmers and Mechanics National Bank and a deacon in Norris' church witnessed the shooting and is expected to be the defense star witness in the trial. Nutt was discussing business with Norris when Chippa entered and began shaking the pastor.

Threatened With Death.

The pastor said Chippa entered his office without knocking. "I am going to kill you for what you said in your sermons, damn you," he said to me, Norris reported in his statement.

14 STATES ARE 'DOUBTFUL' IN TUESDAY TEST

Control of Both Houses of Congress in Balance; Ex- pect 20 Millions Will Go to the Polls.

Washington, Nov. 1. (United Press).—With a final blare of campaign trumpets, the 126 congressional campaign closed today and tomorrow about 20,000,000 people are expected to troop to the polls to select the men who are to make laws for the nation during the next two years.

Thirty-two senate seats and 435 house chairs are to be allocated by the electorate in one of the most tense congressional contests between the Republican and Democratic parties since inauguration of the modern ballot system.

Upon the outcome rests control of both Houses of Congress during the last two of President Coolidge's present administration and the future of pending internal legislation upon prohibition, tax reduction, tariff rates, waterways and other problems.

Expect Heavy Vote.

Leaders of both parties throughout the country have made final appeals to get out the vote and believe that perhaps 20,000,000 citizens will answer the call—more than have ever before voted in a congressional election. In 1924 the total vote for President ran over 23,000,000 but political statisticians customarily deduct about 35 per cent from the presidential figures for off-year contests which do not arouse the interest of presidential races.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders believe the chances of success lie in getting their full strength to the polls. Republican leaders for instance claim that states like Massachusetts, Ohio and Illinois are normally Republican states and that if full Republican vote is cast, the Republican candidates have their best chance to win. Democrats likewise rely upon full cast of their vote for what they say they believe are normally Democratic states. Like Arizona, Missouri, Oklahoma and Nevada.

14 Doubtful States.

The outcome of the poll rests upon 14 states listed as more or less doubtful. These so-called doubtful states include Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nevada, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania and New York.

Special interest attaches to senatorial contests in Illinois and Pennsylvania because of the sensational investigation of a Senate committee which disclosed $3,000,000 was spent in the Pennsylvania Republican primary and $1,000,000 in the Illinois Republican primary in both of which the Republican senatorial candidates were selected. Many senators have indicated that the Republican candidates, William S. Vare in Pennsylvania and Frank L. Buxton in Illinois would be barred from the Senate for excessive expenditures, if successful, in obtaining the election tomorrow. The Senate several years ago went on record against expenditure by former Senator Newberry, Michigan, of $100,000 in a primary campaign.

High Stakes For Several.

The future of prospective presidential candidates of both parties is at stake in several of the states. In Maryland and Pennsylvania, Democratic champion of state rights, is a candidate for re-election as governor and a big majority in his favor would add to his chances of obtaining the 1928 Democratic presidential nomination. Likewise in Ohio, Alton Palmer, Democratic senatorial aspirant against Senator Willis, Republican incumbent, is mentioned as a possible leader of the party in 1928. In New York Senator James W. Wadsworth, Republican incumbent, has been classed among the party leaders who might succeed to Mr. Coolidge's position as national leader of the party. In the Cincinnati, Ohio, legislative district, Speaker Nicholas Longworth, also a prospective presidential candidate, is receiving a test from Democratic opposition of John C. Rogers, who is running for Longworth's seat.

Bay State Test.

A test of national interest to the Republican party will be staged in Massachusetts where William M. Butler, close friend of President Coolidge and chairman of the Republican national committee is opposed for re-election to the Senate by former Senator David I. Walsh.

There are fifteen women in races for House seats but no women seeking a Senate seat. The lone feminine senatorial aspirant was Cora M. Bixler, socialist in Pennsylvania, who died after the nomination.

Three women running for re-election now are members of the House: Edith Nourse Rogers, (R., Mass.); Mary T. Norton, (D., N. Cal.); and Florence P. Kahn, (R., Cal.)

The Girls' Friendly society of St. Mary's Episcopal church will have its regular meeting this evening.

AIMEE TO 'EXPOSE THE GREATEST LIAR'

Blames Trunk and 'Jackie' Letter to a Los Angeles Newspaper.

Los Angeles, Nov. 1.—Contents of Kenneth G. Ormiston's trunk, containing dresses, robes, shoes and dainty lingerie, which was seized in New York, were scheduled to be placed in the hands of District Attorney Asa Hayes today.

These articles, according to Hayes, have a direct bearing on the solution of the famous Almee Sample McPherson case.

The woman evangelist, her mother, Mrs. Mimie Keaney, and Mrs. Lorene Wiseman-Siegel, are all charged with criminal conspiracy. The outgrowth of the alleged kidnapping of Mrs. McPherson.

The state contends that Mrs. McPherson, who says she was kidnaped, was taken to Mexico, where a part of the time she was missing with Ormiston, former Angelus Temple radio operator, and that her story of being kidnaped, while her followers thought her drowned, was a hoax.

Keys will attempt to prove that the clothes found in Ormiston's trunk belonged to Mrs. McPherson.

Meanwhile, Mrs. McPherson charges a Los Angeles newspaper of bringing the trunk angles, as well as the "Jackie" love letter, a suggestive which Hayes claims she wrote to Ormiston, and which was intercepted to the fore. And at the same time she alleges that if friends were offered two of money if they would betray her.

Evangelist made those assertions last night at Angelus Temple where the followers fairly rocked the building with their cheers.

Next Sunday, Mrs. McPherson said she would "expose the greatest liar in Los Angeles." "All of you know what that is," she exclaimed from the pulpit.

Attorneys for defense and prosecution will submit briefs to Judge Blake tomorrow. He will then decide if the three defendants shall be held for trial in superior court.

Almee's Slippers in Trunk.

A pair of expensive black slippers found in Ormiston's trunk, have been identified, it has been said by Almee McPherson, world-renowned evangelist, in a Los Angeles shoe store, according to an announcement from the district attorney's office today.

The identification of the slippers was made through the serial number which was sent here in advance.

The information was to the effect that an official of the Westbury-Kayser Shoe Company here had identified the serial number as the same as that on shoes sold by his firm to Mrs. McPherson.

Mrs. Julia Jobert of 185 Maple street is at the Memorial hospital where she is suffering from a broken arm sustained by a fall at her home.

Election Returns

Nicholas Murray Butler said, "The American people are more interested in their government the day after election than any other time."

The Herald believes Manchester people will be interested in election results to a far greater extent the night of election. Therefore The Herald is prepared to give the people of Manchester the best service possible in announcing the results.

The polls close at 6 p. m. Within a half hour returns will be coming in from all corners of the state. The Herald's wire service on election returns will open at 6 o'clock. Phone calls will be handled through 664. Bulletins will be posted at The Herald's office on Oak street. The north office will be thrown open to visitors.

A direct wire will bring in the national election results and an open wire will be maintained with the Republican State Central committee headquarters in Hartford thus assuring the quickest possible service on the results.

Third $2,000⁰⁰ CONTEST

"Don't be stubborn, Sir!"

Solomon was the first wise man who said "Nothing ventured . . . nothing gained."

America was discovered by a man who'd try anything once.

We KNOW that OLD GOLD is a better cigarette.

We KNOW that it is the smoothest and most satisfying cigarette ever parked between a pair of lips.

But the proof is in the smoking.

How can we "make good" our claims if you won't test them fairly with your taste! Here's what a fair tryout of OLD GOLD will prove to you:—That a cigarette can have plenty of punch without any punishment. That it can have all the aroma and fragrance in the world without taxing or tiring your tongue or throat. That you can smoke it morning, noon or night . . . as many as you like . . . with maximum enjoyment and without regret or after-effect. Now we leave it to you, Sir!—Isn't it worth a few cents to make these great discoveries?

- MORTON S. RUTSKY . . . President, Collegiate Special Advertising Agency, Inc.
- JULIUS MATHEWS . . . Representative of 48 New England newspapers
- ROBERT W. ORR . . . Lennen & Mitchell, Inc., Advertising Agency

The Winners of the FIRST HEADLINE CONTEST will be announced November 15th (Winners of the second contest will be announced November 22nd, the third contest, November 29th)

THIS is the third Old Gold headline contest—with another golden pot of $2,000 in prizes. Get on your thinking cap—you may get $1,000 out of that pot!

The Lorillard Company think the above is a dandy ad for Old Gold Cigarettes. But what shall the headline be? A headline makes or unmakes an advertisement. You are invited to submit your headline idea. The obstinate man in the picture is refusing to try Old Golds. The young lady behind the counter knows that a stubborn man misses a lot of thrills. What is she saying to him, to get him to change his mind?

Your headline must not be over ten words, including the four first words "DON'T BE STUBBORN, SIR!" That gives you a maximum of six words to add.

52 prizes totalling $2,000.00 will be awarded for the 52 headlines which most cleverly get over the point of this advertisement . . . in the opinion of the judges.

CONTEST RULES

- (1) Contest opens November 1st and closes November 15th. All replies must be mailed to reach the Lorillard Company by or before midnight of November 15th. Winners will be announced November 29th.
- (2) Anyone—of either sex—may compete, excepting employees of the F. Lorillard Company or their affiliated companies.
- (3) Read the text of the above advertisement carefully. Get posted on the features of Old Gold Cigarettes. Then submit the most appropriate headline starting with the words "DON'T BE STUBBORN, SIR!" and using not over ten words all told. The shorter the headline, the better, if it gets over the point.

(4) Originality, clearness, brevity, neatness and legibility will count.

(5) Send your suggestions on the coupon in this advertisement, or a sheet of paper, written on one side of sheet, only. Sign your full name and address. You may submit as many suggestions as you like, but each must be on a separate sheet of paper, or a separate coupon—with your name and address in full.

(6) In the event that several persons submit the same winning headline, with equal neatness and equal respect for above conditions, the prize for that headline will be divided equally among them.

(7) The F. Lorillard Company will have the right to use as it pleases any or all headlines suggested, whether they secure a prize or not.

The regular monthly meeting of the Lakeview Parent-Teacher Association will be held at the school on South Main street this evening. Pupils of the school will provide the entertainment.

George Johnson has returned to his home in Boston after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Johnson of Clinton street.

Mrs. R. H. Wirtalla of Strant street spent the week-end at the home of her brother, Mayor G. J. Scanlon of Holyoke, Mass.

It was erroneously reported Saturday that Miss Alice Marshall won the first prize for the prettiest costume at the Halloween frolic at the School street Rec. The winner was Miss Frances Kasack of Church street, who is employed at Pagan's store at the North End.

The Beethoven Glee club will rehearse tonight at the Swedish Lutheran church at 8 o'clock. A special rehearsal of the first basses and first tenors will be held at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Frank Zimmerman of Benton street will entertain the Dorcas society of the Swedish Lutheran church Wednesday evening.

Loyal Circle King's Daughters will meet in Center church this evening for special business.

Chairmen of all committees for Center church bazaar, "A Trip to Tokio," will meet at the church this evening at 7:30 in the junior room.

"Men's Sunday" at the Second Congregational church yesterday brought out the largest attendance since the summer vacation. As a result of the efforts of the Men's Club an unusually large number of the men were present and in many cases their whole families. Rev. F. C. Allen preached an inspiring sermon on "The Manhood of Jesus." A male quartet consisting of Ralph Brown and W. J. Taylor, tenors, and Rev. F. C. Allen and E. E. Segar, basses, sang two selections in addition to the anthems by the regular choir.

Norris reached into his desk where he kept a gun, the statement said. "I don't know how many times I shot," Norris declared.

R. B. Ridaway, a politician, who was sitting outside in his car and heard the shots said he saw two men nervously approach the door leading to the pastor's office.

"How in hell am I going to know him when I see him," said one man who was later identified as Chippa.

"No Damnation." Norris appeared calm throughout the proceedings following the shooting and the next day preached a sermon before a capacity congregation of more than 6,000 on the text: "There is no damnation for them that are in Christ Jesus." The pastor did not refer in his sermon to the shooting of the night before.

Within two weeks, Norris had been indicted on charges of murder by a grand jury and had begun organization of defense plans which included collection of subscriptions from members of his church. He continued to preach regularly and even conducted revival meetings in this section.

During grand jury meetings he charged the members of the body were composed of members of the Catholic church, to which, as a member of the Klan, he was opposed.

$15,000 For Defense. It was estimated that Norris has collected more than $15,000 from members of his church for his defense. As a token of their belief in him, his "flock" will hold nightly prayer meetings during the trial, asking divine guidance.

Norris' church is "outlawed" in the Southern Baptist church conference. About 10 years ago he was acquitted of charges of arson in connection with the destruction of his church by fire.

More than 500 veniremen were on hand today as prospective members of the jury. The defense and state have summoned more than 150 witnesses, among whom are noted politicians, preachers and business men.

Alleges Venue Change. Alleging that the Catholic church and individuals of great power have conspired to get him "hung" for his killing of D. D. Chippa, lumberman, who exploded a bomb in the prosecution camp today by asking for a change of venue. It came as a complete surprise and took the prosecution off its feet.

The motion for a change of venue names H. C. Meacham, mayor of North West; O. E. Carr, city manager; L. X. Haughey, manager of Meacham's store and George J. Keenbuhl, secretary of the Knights of Koblenz, as those who have conspired to get him "hung."

Court was recessed to prepare a formal answer to the motion. Attorneys on both sides say it will take a week to dispose of this motion and a great many witnesses will be introduced by both sides.

MANY PRISONERS BEG FOR FREEDOM

mental condition. The state attorney neither favored nor opposed the appeal.

Attorney Phillip M. Bernstein asked the release of Harry Robinson, of Waterbury, who is serving from 20 to 25 years for rape. Robinson has been in prison since 1912.

Frank Ustik, of Waterbury, who is serving from four to seven years for rape committed in 1925, declared that he had been "framed" by the parents of the girl he was said to have attacked. He said he was not guilty.

Jacob Tilman, of Waterbury, made his first appeal for a pardon. He also was convicted of rape in 1925. Tilman declared the girl he is accused of assaulting had lived with him from 1915 to 1924 and that he was the father of her two children. He said she was nine years old while the state claimant she was fourteen. The state attorney declared that Tilman had a prison record in New York state.

Cases Withdrawn. Alexander Dembrocki, serving a life sentence for murder committed at New Milford, in 1913, made his first plea for clemency. State Attorney Walter Holcomb did not oppose the plea.

Among the cases withdrawn this morning were the following: Alex Tedeschl, 67, of Williams-ville, serving a life sentence for murder, and Charles A. Beers, 30, of Middletown, serving two to five years for statutory rape.

No appearances were made in the cases of the following: Giordano Candido, 34, of Torrington, serving a life sentence for murder; Diratto Cabudo, 40, of Norwich, serving a life sentence for murder; William Kyanskas, of Waterbury, statutory burglary, serving one to eight years.

Girl Protests Release. A dramatic moment was reached when the daughter of a murdered man pleaded that her father's slayer be kept in prison. The case was that of Gus Scialini, of Stamford, who killed John Montagnolo, of the same city, in 1922. Scialini was sentenced to ten to twelve years for manslaughter and seeks reduction of his sentence to five years.

William F. Alcorn and David E. Fitzgerald, both of New Haven, represented Scialini, declaring there was some doubt concerning the circumstances surrounding the murder. They said that everyone in Stamford was in favor of the man's release. At that statement, Carmelo Montagnolo, daughter of the murdered man, cried out: "We object. That is not true."

The girl was with her mother and several others, her brothers and sister. Raising the stand then the girl declared that she was an eyewitness to the crime and that Frank Scialini had held her father while Gus shot him. The girl then said: "We ask simple justice and that Gus Scialini remain in prison during the time imposed by the court."

E. Earl Garlick, assistant state attorney for Fairfield county, upheld the daughter in regard to description of the crime.

KILLER CUNIFFE, PAL AND POLICEMAN SLAIN

hind him and shooting Jones through the forehead. As Jones collapsed, face down Olsen fired twice at the others hitting Rancour in the shoulder and Burns in the face.

Again Olsen pulled the trigger, but his pistol jammed and he ran to a dresser to get another gun. As he reached it Rancour fired at him and in his rage poured six bullets into the prostrate man. But until the last Olsen crept toward the dresser where the other gun lay.

Battle in Passage. The lobby in which the shooting took place is a narrow passage, at one end of which is a living room and at the other end a bedroom. In the center are a bath room and a kitchen. After the first three shots, Olsen retreated to the bedroom, while Rancour and Burns were in the bath room, firing around the corner.

When Olsen lay dead on the floor, Rancour entered the bedroom and found, sprawled on the bed there the bodies of Cuniffe and the woman, both in underclothing. Jones was taken to Highland Park General hospital, where he died an hour after admission. He was a married man with no children. He joined the Highland Park police department in 1919, after serving overseas in the army. He was recognized as one of the most efficient officers on the force.

Olsen "Ice Cart" Connolly said, drove his car clear over to the left hand side of the road in meeting the other machine at the corner.

The injured persons were taken to the hospital in an ambulance.

The 50th anniversary committee of Manchester Branch No. 1, A. O. H., will meet tonight in St. James' hall.

PLAN MASS MEETING FOR COMMUNITY CLUB

Part of Drive for Funds Tomorrow Night—To Get Election Returns.

A mass meeting of local people is planned for tomorrow night by the Manchester Community club in an effort to arouse enthusiasm for the club's drive for funds. The meeting will be held in Balch and Brown hall on Depot Square at 8 o'clock.

In order to attract more people it is planned to have a radio set installed so that election returns may be broadcast.

There will be speakers on the program who will outline the work the club has been doing and a general invitation has been extended to everyone to attend.

THREE PERSONS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

All Out of Town Residents; Police Blame Man for Driving While Intoxicated.

Three persons were taken to the Memorial hospital last night following an automobile accident near Boland's Filling Station on the Lake Stream. None of them were seriously injured, however, and it is expected two will be discharged today. All parties concerned were from out of town.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Goodwin of 120 Adelad street, Hartford and his sister, Mrs. Joseph Robertson of 505 Maple avenue, Hartford, were in one of the machines. Their car collided with one operated by William Cunningham of Andover in which Wilbur Manning of Holyoke, was riding. Cunningham was arrested by Sergeant Crockett on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. His case was set for this morning in the local police court.

The accident resulted, it is understood, from negligence on the part of Cunningham who, it is said, drove his car clear over to the left hand side of the road in meeting the other machine at the corner.

The injured persons were taken to the hospital in an ambulance.

The 50th anniversary committee of Manchester Branch No. 1, A. O. H., will meet tonight in St. James' hall.

BRING FOUR DEER FROM MAINE WOODS

Fred Wohlbebe, Ed Montie, Joseph and Charles Irons are back in Manchester today after a week's hunting trip in Maine. They carried on in the vicinity of Grand Lake Stream. They have with them the carcasses of four deer—two buck and two doe.

Frank Irons and Joseph Irons brought down the two buck and Wohlbebe and Charles Irons got the doe. Ed Montie went without a catch.

Wohlbebe didn't even get sight of something to shoot at until Thursday when he got his doe. Nothing could cheer the big fellow up until he succeeded in bringing the animal down. Montie saw plenty of game, but the excitement affected his shooting badly.

Victor Yates and Philip Holmes who went to Maine with the local party are natives of that state and remained there following the hunt.

"CYP" CLUB MEETS. Center church young people who are members of the "Cyp" club held an interesting meeting at the church last night and listened to reports of the Older Girls' Conference. After considerable discussion, asking questions and other matters of business it was decided to postpone hearing reports of the Older Boys' conference until the following meeting.

The officers and members of the cabinet are as follows: President, Robert Russell; vice-president, Eva McComb; second vice-president, Stuart Robinson; treasurer, Elliott Knight; secretary, Mary Wilcox; Marion Moore, Emma Strickland, Frances Howe, Marjorie Little, James McCaw, Sherwood House, Roy Warren.

Program committee for the year—Miss Eva McComb, chairman; Ruthven Bidwell, Margaret Howe.

Social committee—James McCaw, chairman; Emma Strickland, Ray Warren, Frances Howe, Marjorie Little, Muriel Treat.

Membership committee—Rodney Wilcox, chairman; Betty Robbins, Roy Warren, Stuart Robinson.

Finance—Elliott Knight, chairman; Doris Ellsworth, Robert Carter.

HALLOWEEN SUPPER AT ORANGE HALL. Over a hundred of the Daughters of Liberty attended the Halloween supper and costume party in Orange hall Saturday evening. The parade around the hall was a sight worth going some distance to see.

There were all sorts of fearful and wonderful rigs, including witches, "Spark Plug" shepherdesses with crooks, old-fashioned women and others dressed to represent little girls with their dolls.

The prize for the best dressed lady was won by Mrs. Sarah Ritchie who also won in the soda water contest. Mrs. Ellen Fuller was awarded the prize for the funniest woman's costume; Mrs. Nellie Pearson, "best dressed man" and Mrs. Ellen Ferguson the funniest man's getup. Mrs. Georgiana Tomlinson won the peanut race. Later "Spark Plug" was auctioned off.

Mrs. Mary Mercer was the winner but close inspection revealed that beneath the disguise was one of the members.

A feature of the refreshments was the "fortune" pudding containing money, a ring, a thimble and a button.

BUYS JAMAICA GINGER, TELLS POLICE, ARREST

Frank Farr, who conducts a small grocery store at Spruce and Charter Oak streets, was before the Manchester town court this morning on the charge of selling intoxicating liquor. What he did sell was a small bottle of Jamaica ginger.

Farr was arrested on complaint of Silistine Gardner who was the principal witness. Gardner and another young fellow had a row in Farr's store and finally Mr. Farr put both Gardner and his chum out. As a result Gardner told Sergeant Crockett that he bought the Jamaica ginger from Farr.

Mr. Farr in his own behalf said he supposed he had a right to sell the Jamaica ginger. Judge Johnson reserved his decision until Wednesday, in order that he might have an opportunity to investigate the law in more detail in regard to selling Jamaica ginger as several cases of this character have gone to the Superior court and have been thrown out.

William Cunningham of Andover, who was for many years a resident of Manchester and better known as "Wild Bill," was found guilty by Judge Johnson this morning of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He had an accident on the Bolton road about 6:30 last evening when the car he was driving ran head on into one driven by James J. Goodwin of Hartford. Mr. Goodwin and Joseph Robertson who was with him, as well as Dr. Holmes and Captain Schendel, all testified that Cunningham was under the influence of liquor. Cunningham maintained he had had no hard liquor after noon on Sunday. Later he admitted drinking some cider during the afternoon.

Judge Johnson found him guilty and imposed a fine of $100 and costs and a jail sentence of ten days.

ELKS LADIES' NIGHT Rockville Lodge of Elks, in which there are several Manchester members, will hold a Ladies' Night on November 4. A luncheon will be served and good entertainment will be provided. On November 30 the Elks plan a dinner and get together at the Rainbow Inn.

Miss Adele Trefry of Greenwich was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Mollan of North Main street.

PICKS A NICE LIGHT MACHINE TO BUMP INTO

Mr. and Mrs. William Bay and family of 33 Stone street met with an unusual accident last evening while driving down Twin Hills on their way to East Hartford.

In going down the hill, Mr. Bay claimed he was partly blinded by approaching headlights and did not see a steam roller standing on the side of the road. As a result his car crashed into the steam roller and threw his wife and three children out of the car. Mr. Bay, however, was pinned in the machine by the steering wheel and escaped with a bruised chest.

Mrs. Bay was removed to Memorial hospital where it was stated this morning she has a laceration of the right hand and possible internal injuries in addition to the loss of several teeth. The children escaped with slight injuries.

The accident was investigated by Patrolman McElinn and it is understood there were no red lights on the steam roller at the time.

Class Forming A violin outfit will be loaned while learning and at the completion of a course of lessons a new outfit will be given free of charge.

MONDAY, NOV. 1, 1926.

MAKE IT A RECORD.

Connecticut voters occupy, with relation to tomorrow's election, a rather special situation. They are not deeply engaged in a contest over men or means, for there is no real fight on, either as to any position on the state ticket, as to any one of the five posts as Congressional representative or as to United States senator. In each of these cases the Republican candidate is practically assured of success.

What Connecticut voters especially have to do, tomorrow, is to register an expression of Connecticut sentiment and of New England sentiment on the policies of the Republican party, as they have demonstrated in the industrial health of this section, as an offset to agitation against those policies, within the Republican party, in sections where the interests of New England are but lightly considered. In a sense tomorrow's election, so far as the congressional end is concerned, is a matter of sectional concern.

That New England's interests lie in the continuation of the policies of the Coolidge administration is thoroughly well understood by the people of this state. So well understood that a settled conviction to that effect accounts in very large measure for the impossibility of organizing the opposition into an effective fighting force. He is a rare exception among Connecticut voters who would contemplate with ease of mind a rewriting of the tariff schedules by a group of Southern Democrats or of Southern Democrats and paternalistic Western Republicans acting together.

So that the thing Connecticut has to do tomorrow is to poll a tremendous straight Republican vote—not at all to merely insure the election of that party's candidates but to notify the rest of the country that all but an imponderable part of its electorate is solidly back of the political and economic principles that have brought its industries to their present state of development and prosperity.

In view of this, there is urgent reason for a full expression—for a tremendous vote. That such a vote will be cast there is every indication. And as Manchester is unfortunate in having to do all its voting at one polling place, constituting a voting precinct with a phenomenally large registration, it is advisable that those who can vote in the morning do so.

Let's make it a record total.

MUSSOLINI.

Another attempt on the life of Benito Mussolini has failed. Another mad zealot, a mere boy, has sacrificed himself to a mistaken patriotism. Italy has once more been saved from what would certainly prove incalculable disaster if it should ever be brought to pass—the violent removal of its dictator.

We have always believed that the "salvation" of Italy by such process as redeemed it from the industrial and financial morass into which it had fallen was a greater misfortune than a continuation of the distressful conditions which Mussolini stopped, for it has sold its birthright of freedom for a mass of potage. But there is no hope for a return of Italian freedom save in the logical working out of the tremendous adventure of Fascism to its inevitable conclusion. And the martyrdom of Mussolini would utterly destroy the chances of such a working out.

Mussolini, if he lives out his natural span, must make good in his policy of absolutism, or he must eventually fall. Fascism's case cannot be ultimately proven or disproven in three or four years. What the world ought to have opportunity to find out, what it is imperative for Italy to find out, is where Fascism and Mussolini will land the country at the end of a dozen years.

The untimely death of the exponent of absolutism in Italy, at this time or in the near future, would destroy all opportunity for determination of the merits of the system he represents. Those who hold to it would never and their assertions that it would have worked miracles if it had been allowed to go on. There would always be new efforts to re-establish it. Every failure would be excused by the absence of the "right dictator." A new "right dictator" would be forever arising.

The only hope for the destruction of Fascism in Italy in a generation at least lies in the continuation of the life and power of Mussolini for so long a time as may be necessary to demonstrate to his nation and to his world the fallacy of the theory that any civilization can prosper and continue which rests wholly on the wisdom and the virtue of one man—that the government of Ramses III was right and the government of America is wrong.

WAYSIDE TREES.

We are not at all sure that a state-wide celebration should not be organized for the purpose of adequately calling attention to the letting of the first contracts for setting shade trees along Connecticut highways. Certainly the event is of more importance than some of the incidents over which we cut capers. And certainly, too, it marks the adoption of a policy which in the future is not unlikely to make Connecticut incomparably beautiful.

Beautiful our state already is—few others can present anything like such consistently interesting, never monotonous scenery, though there are some that make twenty times as much noise over a fifth of the reality. But infinitely can its beauty be added to be the embowerment of all its roads.

There is no reason for going head over heels into a costly campaign of tree planting in a vain aspiration to convert the roads of the state into a bowery all in a minute, and nobody contemplates any such proceeding. But there is reason for always and everlastingly doing something; planting some trees every year; keeping perpetually in mind the ultimate object; spending such money as we afford, no more, but being sure to spend that—and to get the money's worth.

Let no person believe that in such work as this all the satisfaction and benefit will be reaped by other generations. There is as much gratification in watching the growth of a sapling that is some day going to be a splendid tree as there is in experiencing the splendid tree that was once a sapling. The knowledge of participating in effort that will come to its fruition after we are passed is one of the most soothing and satisfying of things. It links us with the far future as nothing else can do.

Wherefore let us rejoice over the beginning that is made.

CONNECTICUT'S LUCK.

Yesterday's New York Herald-Tribune, in an editorial article, sees the Connecticut political situation clearly, expressing it as follows:

Connecticut, like New York, will elect on Tuesday a full state ticket as well as a senator and representatives in Congress. In a state so noted for its steady habits there is no indication this year of a political upset. Senator Hiram Bingham is a candidate for re-election. Having been lieutenant-governor in 1922 and 1924 and elected governor in November, 1924, he became a candidate for the Senate seat made vacant by Frank B. Brandegee's death and was chosen at a special election in December, 1924. He has taken very high rank in the Senate for a new member. His scientific and military experience qualifies him for expert legislative employment, and as a member of the Morrow Aircraft Inquiry board he was able to do a great service to American aviation and to contribute largely to last year's happy solution of the government's flying force problems. Mr. Bingham is an unusually competent and promising senator. Connecticut is lucky to have found a spokesman of his quality to succeed the brilliant and forceful Brandegee. He eminently deserves re-election.

In 1924 Republican representatives were elected in all the five districts. In 1922 one Democrat slipped in from the 5th district. The present representatives have been renominated. They are veterans in the House, each having served three terms or more. The voters have everything to gain by returning them.

The Connecticut voters are satisfied with the Coolidge administration. They have every reason to stick to the policies which have brought prosperity to both state and nation.

HOUDINI.

We do not agree with those numerous newspapers which are inclined to accredit Harry Houdini with doing the world a very material service in exposing the tricks and devices by which so-called spiritualistic mediums fool their victims. There were very few of these "exposures" of Houdini's that had not been made before, and over and over again. And he carried his skepticism quite beyond his own mental depth.

He arrived at the point where he deemed it good business for Houdini to assume that every inquirer into the invisible and unknown was a charlatan—quite irrespective of whether or not such inquiry might not, as a matter of fact, be honestly made. He made a great deal of money by convincing tens of thousands of people that investigation of the occult was always and necessarily a cloak for the makings of money.

He was a genius in his craft and a superlative showman, but he was an infinitely long way from being a scientist, as some have gone so far as to call him. He was, on the contrary, a person who started from the standing point that everybody, everywhere, was a fakir and a grifter, and who stuck to that theory through thick and thin and invented his proofs as fast as necessary.

No rock ever fell off a precipice without human aid, because it was possible for a human being, hidden, to have pushed the rock. That was the Houdini creed, in effect. To prove it he hid behind rocks and pushed them off precipices, and said: "See? I told you."

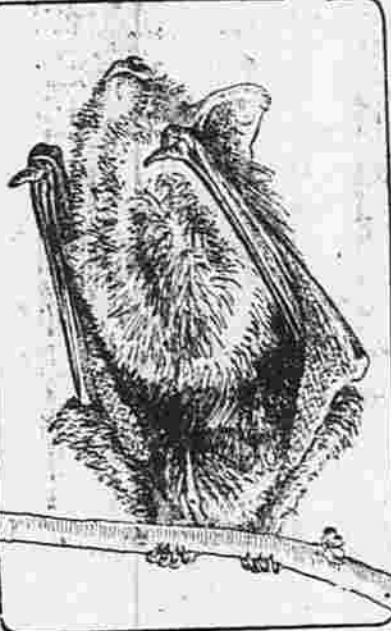

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK. President American Nature Ass'n.

When the lengthening shadows have given away to gathering darkness, the bat begins his day. Slipping noiselessly from his hiding place in some thick-leaved tree, behind the closed shutters of a deserted building, or from the dusty recesses of some little-frequented attic, he launches into the air in quest of satisfying his growing hunger.

First he usually seeks the nearest water, and dipping gracefully to the species of temperate climates, and with all except a few of the tropics, living insects alone are eaten. Though much has been written about this diet, the fact remains that very little is positively known about the groups of insects most commonly taken. Many moths are secured and many believe that mosquitoes in large numbers fall prey to these tireless policemen of the night.

Though not without their own peculiar species of vermin—for practically none of earth's creatures are free from some annoying parasite—bats do not carry bedbugs. Their entire life is spent in man's service, for without them and their fellow-hunters it is altogether probable that man long ago would have succumbed to the attacks of his myriad-breeding foes, the insects. All day long, from early day to dark, the birds were ceaseless war; when darkness falls the friendly bat joins the night shift.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART. Washington.—Senator James A. Reed of Missouri meant to say he's a candidate for the 1928 Democratic presidential nomination when he announced that he isn't a candidate for renomination to the Senate.

That's what political Washington thinks. George B. Lockwood, ex-secretary of the Republican national committee, has come out in his monthly magazine, the "National Republic," his party's rather more than semi-official organ, and said so explicitly. The same gossip is current around Democratic headquarters.

Without being in the very first group of Democratic presidential possibilities, Reed has loomed pretty conspicuously in the background for some time.

Perhaps he'd have loomed still more conspicuously if he'd declared himself somewhat more definitely. Everybody knows that Al Smith is a candidate. Everybody knows that William G. McAdoo is a candidate. He may not be given a rating as probably, but at least he's a candidate. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland is a candidate. Senator Reed simply has been somewhat talked about. He hasn't shown any signs hitherto of openly working for the nomination.

Even when Reed passed the word that he'll be out of the Senate at the end of his present term, he explained that his purpose is to retire from politics and practice law. That he's after the Democratic presidential nomination is only an inference.

There are workers in the field in Reed's behalf, however. Whether he authorized them to do so or not, strong supporters are urging him as the "logical candidate." His senatorial announcement has strengthened their hands.

That Jim Reed is even so much as a Democratic presidential possibility is one of the freaks of political history.

No longer ago than 1924 he was in such bad favor with his party in his home state that it refused to send him as a delegate to the Democratic national convention. As chief enemy—not excepting those in the Republican group—of President Wilson's policies, he was in even worse repute with Democrats throughout the country, as a whole, than with the Missouri Democracy. There seemed nothing unlikelier than that he ever would regain influence.

Today he's at least a "favorite son" and not another Democratic presidential lightning rod bearer, but is afraid of him.

Reed would be a picturesque figure in the White House. Even missing the White House, he'd make a picturesque campaigner. He's a whole, than with the Missouri Democracy. There seemed nothing unlikelier than that he ever would regain influence.

A THOUGHT

When thou art bidden of any man at a wedding, sit not down in the highest room; lest a more honorable man than thou be bidden of him.—Luke 14:8.

After a cesses and losses, men grow humbler and wiser.—Franklin.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 1.—Bonfires again begin to illumine the dark streets of the East Side at nightfall.

Chill winds come in from the Hudson, and it's cheaper to keep warm in the street than in the house. As the pushcarts bring an end to their day's trade they move away, one by one, leaving the empty crates in which came their wares. Tots, scarcely able to toddle, have learned to watch such spare wood as cats watch a garbage can.

Glance along any East Side street once darkness has settled and you will see at least one such neighborhood fire to a block. Whole families gather about them. They are, for the most part, strangely quiet. Only the children p'ank about. The oldest stand staring with hypnotized eyes upon the flames, saying nothing. Tire!! As though finding some restful message in the crackling wood.

Here and there the pushcart men are burning their own kindling in their families are gathered about. There is little or no home life in the ghetto. This is a place of streets. Only the limp washing, hanging from the fire escapes, suggests life. And it is preceded by this brooding ominousness. When snow flies the fires will burn by day and by night. But the pushcarts will be there, blizzard or no. Barter goes on, in spite of weather.

In many an odd corner New York hides those eminently romantic business enterprises—the old bookshops. A casual glance is always an invitation. There is the ever-present atmosphere of mystery.

Elsewhere the diamond shops display their grandest wares in their windows; the new styles and the costly coats—but in these one must prwl and inquire to find the gems. Yet exchanges involving fortunes are made by those who trade in first editions and Americana. Just around the corner from the office in which these lines are penned is a funny little place where a hundred dollars is a mere down payment. Yet, from the exterior, one would expect to find the floor cluttered with two-bit bargain tables.

Recently in such an old book trade, a Gutenberg Bible brought more than a quarter of a million dollars.

And quite recently, Dr. Otto Vollbehr, the German collector who made the purchase, brought to America 2000 of his collection of 15,000 rare books. He became interested in collecting many years ago when, upon a trip around the world, he found himself in San Francisco and saw the famous Sutro collection.

Not long afterward he was in a train wreck and was left in such a highly nervous state that physicians ordered him to take up some hobby to occupy his mind. He turned to old books and trades in suits that sound like bank clearings.

Each winter finds him in California negotiating with the Huntington Library, valued at millions. GILBERT SWAN.

INVESTOR WARNINGS PUBLISHED IN N. Y.

Don't Be Caught Napping Is Advice Given by Local Chamber.

This is the 35th article in a series prepared for The Herald by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

"Kills Man Who Was in Concern that Has Failed."
 "New York Now Flooded with Fake Stocks."
 "Bogus Magazine Solicitors Jail-ed."
 "Waterbury Woman is Gyped $1200 by Gyps."
 "Bogus Priest Gets Eight to Ten Years."
 "Seek Salesman with Labor Bank's Funds."

The above are some of the titles which have headed newspaper articles on fraudulent sales during the past few weeks. The New York State Chamber of Commerce, reputed to be the wealthiest and most influential organization of its kind in the world, has recently issued a booklet devoted to "Warnings to Investors." One of their opening paragraphs is as follows:

"It has been common practice to ignore the gullible or inexperienced who lose their money in questionable transactions and thereby to repeat the legal maxim, 'Caveat emptor.' This phrase, 'let the buyer beware,' indicating that if he lost it was his own fault, was very good in primitive days when it was originated, before the event of corporations and stocks and bonds, and all the other complexities of modern civilization. There is, however, gradually being aroused throughout the land a feeling that the public at large should be protected from losses in transactions which, though within the law, are questionable.

Every Citizen's Duty

"When a stranger approaches you to sell stocks or any type of securities in any enterprise, whatever, ask him to show his registration certificate. If he has one you are assured that his record has been investigated, ad nothing detrimental to his character has been discovered. Should he not be registered, it is your duty as a citizen to report him at once to your Chamber of Commerce, your bank or a Justice of the Peace. He is no abiding by the laws of this Commonwealth. Your promptness in reporting such activity will doubtless save your community a portion of its annual toll toward the upkeep of these unscrupulous salesmen, and will materially aid the Secretary of Banking in putting a stop to their activities within the State. It should be remembered that in no case are registrations and certification endorsement of the SECURITIES offered.

In last week's Herald article mention was made of the activities of the Trade Journal Circulation Company, an alleged organization soliciting paid-in-full subscriptions to trade journals. The National Better Business Bureau has conducted a canvass among the publishers of various trade journals whose subscriptions are being solicited, and without exception new publishers deny having any knowledge of or connection with, or even of knowing the existence of the Trade Journal Circulation Company, showing most conclusively that the Trade Journal Circulation Company is working entirely on their own, having no connection whatever with the publishers which they claim to represent. Anyone saying that any subscription simply makes a contribution to the solicitor's personal purse.

The Manchester Chamber has submitted to the United States Postal Inspector the literature of concern of the card coloring concerns and believes that some action can be had along the line of issuing a fraud order. In the meantime anyone contemplating sending money for card coloring outfits should do well to consult the Chamber and learn of the experience of others.

Two other individuals whose activities have been reported to the Chamber during the past week are an Assyrian woman selling lace and claiming to have the endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce. This woman has evidently been coached by someone understanding the psychology of a Chamber of Commerce indorsement. She is also probably aware that very few people will ask to be shown the indorsement.

As a matter of fact, the Chamber of Commerce does not indorse, nor give letters or recommendation to any agent or sales person. Anyone encountering this woman will confer a favor by calling the Chamber of Commerce at once so that we may get in touch with her and nip her little game in the bud.

Student Course
 The second individual that has been reported is a young man soliciting funds with which to qualify for some student course. He has some sort of a publication which he represents will be sent free, if that he asks being 98c to cover postage for two years.

The Chamber of Commerce is anxious to get in touch with this young gentleman and get a look at the contract which he is asking the people to sign. It is more than probable that the 98c is his commission and that those who sign the contract will later be called upon by a collector for the subscription price of the paper. Some of the foregoing incidents may strike a casual reader as petty and inconsequential. Taken of and by themselves, a single one might be so considered, but when one is in a position to observe the number of such petty grating games which are being worked day in and day out in every community in the land, and realizes the amount of money which is contin-

AVOID DIZZY SPELLS

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation which often causes dizzy spells. For 20 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards gave his patients, in place of calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Known by their olive color. They free the system of poisons that ravage health, energy, beauty. You need never have hollow complexion, dull eyes, coated tongue, throbbing headaches—all signs that your bowels are clogged. Here is torpid. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. They act smoothly and without griping. How much better you'll feel and look! Mrs. Mildred Coppolo and Miss Esther Jones are visiting their mother Mrs. Ellen Jones.

Mrs. Edward Frink of South Manchester, Mrs. Eugene Platt of Wapping and Mrs. A. E. Frink spent Wednesday in Colchester the guests of Mrs. Frink's sister, Mrs. Harrison Foote.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Sackett and granddaughter Miss Lura Sperto left Friday for Hartford where they were guests at the Bond Hotel Sunday with their daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Coombs. They will leave for Florida where they intend to locate. Mr. Sackett has been in Andover about thirty-eight years and has been town clerk and town treasurer nearly all the time. He will be greatly missed by everyone in town.

Thursday evening several members of the Men's Club called on Mr. Sackett and presented him with a traveling bag and a sum of money given by his old friends. Mr. Sackett was very much pleased with the gifts.

Mrs. Ward Talbot was a caller in Willimantic Friday.

There was a large crowd at the Christian Endeavor Halloween social Friday evening at the parsonage. Games were played, songs were enjoyed and the usual Halloween stunts played. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Thomas Lewis and Mrs. L. B. Whitcomb were dinner guests of Mrs. Lulu Lord of Manchester, Thursday.

His Divided Attention

DRAMA OF GREAT WAR COMING TO RIALTO

One of the most talented dog stars appearing before the camera today is Lightning. Girl knows the world over as a canine marvel, who plays an important part in "The Call of the Klondike" which closes its engagement at the Rialto this evening. In the last analysis it is she who makes the ultimate happiness of the hero, Gaston Glass and the lovely heroine, Dorothy Dwan. But before this comes about she demonstrates conclusively that the dog brain functions as ably and as well as does the human intellect.

"The Call of the Klondike" is as interesting a melodrama as has been produced in a long time. The gripping story has much to do with it and so has the all-artist cast which includes such popular personalities as Gaston Glass, Dorothy Dwan, Earl Metcalf and Jimmy Aubrey. But in allotting credit where credit is due a just portion must be given that capable and gifted artiste Lightning. The comedy being shown today is a certain blue-chaser and the rest of the short subjects scheduled are up to par.

William Boyd plays opposite Jeta Goudal in "Her Man o'War" which is being featured tomorrow and Wednesday, and he gives an excellent example of what a well-dressed man will not wear.

Boyd's tuxedo outfit, is one of the sequences in impeccable—until one gazes at his feet. There the Beau Brummel effect ceases, for instead of dress shoes his pedal extremities are encased in the formidable trench brogans of the American doughboy.

This incongruity is one of the comedy touches with which the picture abounds and is brought about when Boyd, a prisoner in Germany during the Great War captures the heart of a German Countess who compels him to change his uniform for dinner clothes in order that he will be a suitable lover.

Selected short subjects will also be shown. There will be a complete change in program Thursday.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Friday evening the Freshman class of the South Manchester school held its annual social in the assembly hall of the High school. Practically the entire Freshman class was in attendance, besides forty or more parents and teachers. The hall was decorated fittingly for a Halloween social. The decorating was done by Freshman members of Miss Condon's art classes.

Before entering the hall Friday evening, each person had to go through a "Chamber of horrors." From the many squeals and noises that were heard to issue from this chamber, there were in all probability all manner of spooky contrivances with a.

The entertainment program, put on by various members of the class, consisted in several pantomimes done by shadows being thrown on a white screen. The first was a boxing match, in which a big fellow was put to sleep by a little shrimp with an enormous chest.

Following this a most horrible sight was witnessed by the audience. It is almost too horrible to think about, and much more horrible to write about. For upon an operating table was lain a helpless victim to the fiendish fancies of unscrupulous surgeons. The poor victim had his limbs dismembered before the eyes of the audience. Br-rr-rr!

After these horrors a magician came onto the screen to display his magic. Nay, not even those magicians of which wondrous stories are told in the tales of "The Arabian Nights" could equal the magic of this genius.

Following the entertainment there was a grand march in which the Freshies paraded about the room before the judges who decided which had the prettiest and which had the funniest costume. The judges were Miss Bennet, Mrs. Nichols and Miss Lamphier. There was also eating contests, contests to decide who could eat the most marshmallows, doughnuts, and apples.

Following these, there were games. The games were all spirited, and were much enjoyed.

Then there was another grand march directed by Mr. Quimby. Clayton Hanson, Freshman class president, led the march. After this dancing was enjoyed until 10:30. Music was furnished by Briggs' Orchestra.

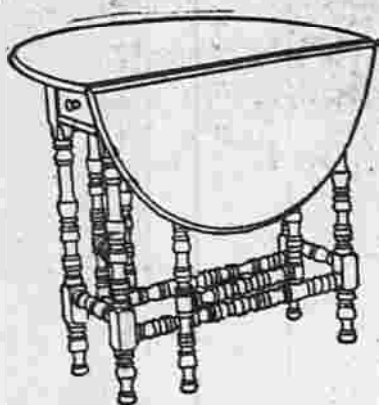

The band rehearsed at 6 o'clock Friday in the assembly hall. There was a large attendance. Several of the school songs, arranged for the band by Harold Purkington, bandmaster, were played by the band in preparation for next Saturday when it will make its first public appearance.

The Debating Club held a meeting Friday afternoon. Several questions were brought up for discussion, and members of the club signed up for debates. A committee was appointed by Mr. Quimby to make nominations for officers. These nominations will be brought up for action at the next meeting, which will be held next Friday afternoon. Woodcut, Hamilton and Merzer were those appointed on the nomination committee. This committee will also decide upon what date the first social night of the club will be held.

New Things From Watkins Brothers at New and Lower Prices

EACH passing year has meant for us the accumulation of wisdom in judging and buying good furniture. We do feel that we know more about values than the beginner or the merchant who has been in business only a few years. Not only do we know values, but our position in the furniture industry is such that merchandise is offered us which never comes to the attention of the majority of furniture stores. Some of this new and distinctive merchandise is described here.

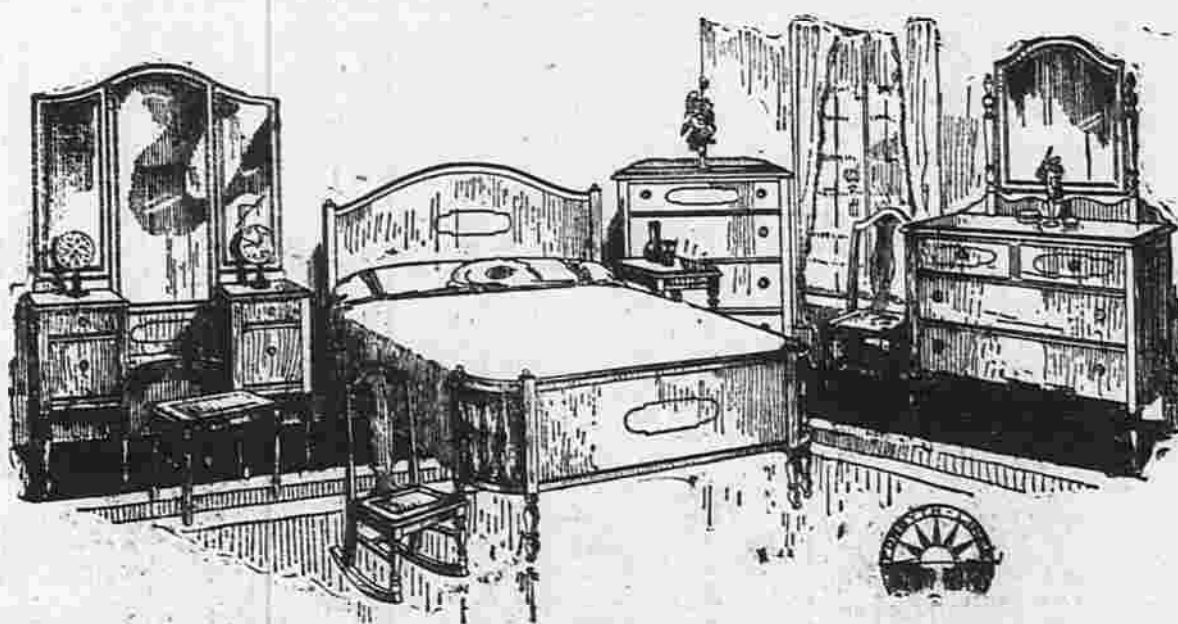

We should enjoy showing you these things and the complete Watkins collection of authentic reproductions whether you intend purchasing or not.

Old English Dining Suites $179

From old English furniture we have taken the design for this sturdy suite. Its heavy turned legs and stretchers are typical of the period and the cabinet woods—walnut and American gum-wood—have been finished to resemble the old, richly aged furniture. A 42x54 inch extension table, 60 inch buffet, china, arm chair and 5 side chairs make up each group. Similar to sketch. Regular $220.00.

A Bedroom Suite of Four Pieces $159

And for the bedroom comes this suite of large pieces, wrought of mahogany plywood and selected American gumwood. It is finished in a deep, rich mahogany. Included in each suite are the four pieces sketched—50 inch dresser, 33 inch chest of drawers and a 48 inch vanity dresser and full size, bow-end bed. As many pieces can be selected as you need, at the new low prices. Four pieces regular $236.00.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Aaron Burr (17)

Burr's hardihood, even at the age of 70, was remarkable for a man who had such a reputation for profligacy. In 1826 he took a 45-hour journey by stage to Albany, with time taken out only for a meal. "The night was uncomfortable," he wrote, "the curtains torn and flying about. . . Came neither fatigued or sleepy."

CINDER PATH KING ON CIRCLE SCREEN

Charlie Paddock, seen in Person at Local High School is Co-Star With Bebe Daniels in "The Campus Flirt." Charlie Paddock, kin of the cinder path who spoke last year to the boys of the local high school, was seen last night at the Circle theater in that great college play, "The Campus Flirt," in which Bebe Daniels stars. Tonight will find the last showing of this feature. When Paddock spoke here there was hardly standing room in the high school assembly hall. It was only this morning that it was discovered that Paddock was prominent in the Circle feature and now that it is known, there is little doubt but that there will be a big attendance this evening at the "Pretty Playhouse."

Bob's story concerns itself with the activities of a college girl who "high hats" everyone failing to come up to her own ridiculous standard. The girl's subsequent treatment at the hands of her fellow students provides one with a laugh each second. How she defeats Charlie Paddock, "world's fastest human," playing a featured role; how she refuses to "walk home" from a boozing party, and any of a hundred other situations. El Brendel's inimitable cowering with Minnie, his pet mouse, is a comedy classic. James Hall, the third featured player, makes a credible screen boy. On Tuesday and Wednesday at the Circle, Lon Chaney, star of "The Miracle Man," "Hunchback of Notre Dame," "Phantom of the Opera" and "The Unholy Three," will again appear in one of his super roles, "The Penalty."

HALLOWEEN PARADE AT THE NORTH END

Over 140 Maskers in Line; Prizes Awarded for Various Costumes. Headed by a tin pan band more than one hundred and forty-three youngsters ranging from five up to fifteen had the time of their young lives on Saturday night in celebrating "Halloween" at the North End. The parade was marshalled by Director G. H. Washburn of the Community Club, assisted by Miss Ruth McLenney, Lauraine Strickland, Esther Anderson and Mrs. G. H. Washburn who acted as lieutenants in the line of march. The parade was a most successful one and the youngsters who participated. The line of march started at the Community Club thence down North Main to Hudson and then back to the Community Club. Here the masqueraders were met by the judges' committee, consisting of Miss Grace Robertson, Miss Esther Anderson, Louis Palmer and W. A. Strickland. The judges' task was indeed a heavy one. Clowns, cowboys, witches, policemen, colored men, and many other costumes too numerous to mention met the judges' gaze in a mad whirl of color and variety. After long deliberation the prize for the best dressed girl was awarded to Miss Helen Fitzpatrick while the prize for the funniest girl's costume went to Mary Quize. The boys' first prize for the best costume went to Kenneth Hutton (dressed as a Keystone Comedy cop, while Arnold Clark took second honors dressed as a witch. The big surprise of the evening was given by W. S. Grant who gave each participant in the parade a package of candy as they went by. Mr. Grant was duly thanked by the paraders in three rousing cheers led by Mr. Washburn. The parade more than reached the fondest hope of those in charge by the order lines along the line of march both by the participants and the bystanders along the line of march. Fathers and mothers of those in the parade being particularly impressed by the leadership and care of the youngsters. Policeman Charles Seymour did traffic duty while the youngsters crossed the street to safety.

CHORS OF THIRTY TO SING AT CONCERT

The Salvation Army songster brigade, a chorus of more than 30 voices, will give an entertainment in conjunction with the Maxwell Mandolin club at the local citadel on Wednesday evening. But even Aaron Burr was mortal. In 1833, at the age of 77, Burr suffered a stroke of paralysis. He lay, ill and helpless, in his office, which was the only place then that he could call home. A woman whose father had been a British officer and had known Burr, cared for him in her boarding house for two years.

CHICKEN COOP BURNS

Fire believed to have been started by some small boys who were smoking in the shack, resulted in the destroying by fire of a chicken coop belonging to Ignatz Reizer of 219 School street Saturday night. There were some cornstalks and straw in the coop, according to Mr. Reizer who added that some children had been playing in the coop just before the fire was discovered. All the east side companies responded and the fire was kept from spreading to adjoining buildings. The lives of some chickens, ducks and pigeons were saved before the flames reached them.

MANGLED HAND IS AMPUTATED

Surgeons Unable to Save Limb Injured in Accident in Which Local Man Figured.

It was found necessary to amputate the left hand of Martin L. Gillman, of 236 Main street, at the Hartford hospital Saturday night as a result of the accident in which he figured the day before.

Mr. Gillman was employed as superintendent of the service stations in Hartford operated by the Gulf Refining company. He was driving a Ford coupe owned by the company when the accident happened. Mr. Gillman had his left hand extended out of the window to halt traffic back of his car when an automobile operated by Thomas Raymond of Tolland street, East Hartford, crashed into his machine overturning and pinning Mr. Gillman's hand beneath the wreckage.

At the Hartford hospital, where Mr. Gillman was taken, it was deemed necessary to amputate the hand a few inches above the wrist. The hand was badly mangled, every bone being broken, and there was danger of blood poisoning. Mr. Gillman also suffered numerous bruises and will be confined in the institution for an indefinite period.

The accident occurred at the end of the trolley car line at Hayshope avenue in Hartford Friday noon.

ROWAYTON HERMIT TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Rowayton, Nov. 1.—Louis Meeker, a widely-known hermit, killed himself in his tiny home here several days ago. Meeker's body was found today, a revolver clamped in his right hand. He had shot himself through the head. Meeker was about 55 years old. Little is known about him for he kept almost entirely to himself.

TOLLAND

The Hallowe'en party and entertainment given by the teacher, Miss Meta Hanson, and the pupils at the Grant's Hill school house Thursday evening was a great success. The admission to the entertainment was the sum of ten cents and a neat little sum was realized to obtain records for the school Victrola. All entered heartily into the affair and a general good time was realized from all present. Much credit is due the teacher for so successfully arranging for this pleasant community social.

Mrs. Zoe Beckley Gollomb of New York city made a short visit with her uncle, George Bartlett, in the village.
Miss Mary Bartlett and Miss Anna Cogswell who have been spending the summer here have returned to New York city.
Mrs. Carrie Smith is a guest of her daughter, Mrs. Rufus Reed and family in North Coventry.
George Crandall has returned to his studies at the school of Technology in Cambridge, Mass., after a short visit at his home at Grant's Hill district.
Clifton Ward of Buff Cap district who has been ill for some time is reported somewhat improved.
Mrs. Samuel Simpson is a guest at the home of her son, Sumner Simpson and Mrs. Simpson in New York city.
Frank Luhrsén, candidate for sheriff, attended the Democratic rally held in the Ellington town hall last Monday evening.
The Tolland Federated church was represented at the Older Girls' Conference in Meriden by Ruth Ayers, Helen Clough and Edna Crandall.
Cornell Green, Jr., and Mrs. Green who have been living in Colrain, Mass., for several years have moved to the home of his father, Cornell Green, Sr., where they will reside in the future.
A. W. Kingsbury of the Stafford Springs Monumental Works has set up a headstone of pink Westerly granite for Prof. Joel N. Eno on the family plot in the Skungauaug cemetery.

The office employees and invited guests of the Hockanum Mills Co. held their annual Hallowe'en party in the Tolland town hall on Thursday evening. Mrs. Edgar Edgerton was the caterer.
Mr. and Mrs. George Brown and son Jarvis Brown of Myrick, Mass., were guests Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Steele.
Arthur Gould of East Hartford and Mr. Johnson of Manchester were callers at the Steele House Tuesday.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED
Look, Mother! See if tongue is coated, breath hot or stomach sour
"California Fig Syrup" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Fig Syrup," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.
When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless, "fruity laxative" and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.
Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, to don't be fooled. Get the genuine, sold by "California Fig Syrup Company."—Adv.

TUESDAY, NOV. 2nd IS ELECTION DAY, AND EVERY CONNECTICUT ELECTOR SHOULD RECORD HIS OR HER VOTE AT THE POLLS.

In 1920 and 1921, about 120,000 men were out of work in Connecticut. This was a result of a Democratic low tariff. Under the present Republican tariff, our places of employment are kept running. Support the Coolidge Administration and protection for Connecticut's business, by keeping a Republican majority in Congress.

No state in the Union can show a better financial record than Connecticut. Recent Republican administrations have REDUCED direct taxation, done away with Democratic indebtedness left from 1914, and increased the scope and capacity of all departments and institutions. We have gone through a war period and a period of deflation; the American dollar is worth only 66 per cent. of its 1914 value, yet Connecticut's ACTUAL cost of state government has increased but 10 per cent. since 1914.

MANCHESTER LOSES CUP GAME

Breaks Enable Bristol To Defeat Manchester High Gridmen

Locals Have Edge on Bristol Team But Lose Because of Many Fumbles

Although the Manchester High school team played as well as any team ever has played, Bristol's gridmen were lucky enough to get the breaks last Saturday in that town with the result that the victory went to the home combination by the score of 13 to 7. Five times Manchester had held their opponents within the 5-yard line and three times did the locals march the length of the field, only to have fate go against them.

Even at that, with five minutes left to play and 13 points against them, the Manchester eleven plunged and passed Bristol to death for a distance of 70 yards, scoring with three minutes to spare. Keeney's rushes and Farr's accurate passes to Treat, Hanson and his brother were responsible for gains of from 10 to 15 yards at every clip. Bristol was baffled by Manchester's plays through center and off tackle and Keeney was gaining yardage heavily in nearly every play.

But for the fact that Bristol uncocked a flash of a halfback who could skirt the ends for 20 yards at a time, Manchester would have won. The locals outplayed Bristol for three periods but the third, a bad one for Manchester, produced the breaks that allowed Bristol to win. Farr attempted to kick out of danger in one play and the attempt went less than 10 yards. This left the ball in the danger zone and it was just a matter of time until Bristol pushed it over.

The opening play found Bristol marching through and around Manchester ends, taking Manchester by surprise with a quick shift formation and an unbalanced line. The ball was brought to Manchester's one-yard line and there it stopped. Twice more Bristol came into the danger zone only to be turned back and then Manchester started to play football. Keeney was sent through the center of the line time and again and in a short while the locals were bombarding the Bristol goal line. With two yards to go and four downs to make it, Keeney fumbled the ball which was recovered by Bristol. That spoiled all of Manchester's chances to score and the game was over.

Second Half
This was a disastrous half to Manchester. Within three minutes after the kick-off Berry, the flashy Bristol halfback, had gone around the local end for a touchdown. The attempt to kick for the point after touchdown was blocked by Manchester. Both teams played on even terms for the remainder of the period and Manchester had possession of the ball at the whistle.

In the fourth period it was Manchester's ball on the local 15 yard line. Farr attempted to kick but the ball dropped a few feet from where he kicked it. Bristol recovered and a few minutes later Hugret went through for the winning score. Although the Manchester forwards blocked Hugret's kick the ball glanced off their hands and just barely went over the bar.

The second score brought Manchester to life and a steady march was started down the field. Bristol was helpless in the face of Keeney's rushes and Farr's passes. Gains of from 10 to 15 were torn off and in a short time Manchester had advanced to the 2-yard line. Keeney brought the ball over on a line play and Lupien kicked. The whistle blew just as Bristol had recovered a Manchester fumble.

Flordian was Bristol's outstanding player on the defense for the rest of the line collapsed like a house of cards before the local plunges. Keeney was the star of the Manchester team, the combination yardage of his rushes equalling more than all of Bristol's gains. Hansen showed that he was good for something on last downs with a yard or two to go, and he always made the distance on a plunge through center without any interference.

The Lineup
It was Manchester's unlucky day and every fumble was costly.

SEVEN CHAMPS FALL ON COLLEGE GRIDS

Long List of Upsets Narrows Best to Choice Few; Brown Unbeaten.

By DAVIS J. WALSH, I. N. S. Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 1.—Desert by minor tragedies for some weeks past, advance, it remained for Saturday to contrive that collegiate football be overtaken by the great horror and today the dead and dying were being sorted, identified and piled in orderly heaps for immediate delivery to the coroner's office. Some of the victims were so badly mangled that they may have to throw them away.

Exhibit A is the University of Michigan, best ideal of the Western Conference and touted as the greatest in the land. The Wolverine's hope of a national championship died a horrible death at the Baltimore stadium when the Navy won, ten to nothing, and gave its hidden ball attack to Illinois and lived to regret the incident. Pennsylvania was very successful with the hidden touchdown and lost three to nothing.

Southern California, which dropped out of the coast race by losing to Stanford, was the third unbeaten team to fall.

The Others.
A fourth was West Virginia, a fifth Cornell, a sixth Wisconsin, and a seventh Washington and Jefferson. The latter was ten points up on Lafayette at the end of the first quarter but the Maroon came with a rush in the last two periods and won, sixteen to ten. Cornell also was nine points better than Columbia in the first half but proved to be seventeen points worse in the second half. It was Columbia's first victory over Cornell in something like twenty years. Minnesota beat Illinois sixteen to ten.

West Virginia took one on the jaw from Missouri, champion of the Volley Conference.

The downfall of the championship pretenders, listed above, left the following in possession of the field: Brown, the Army, the Navy, Lafayette, Missouri, Ohio State, Stanford, Alabama, Notre Dame, Kansas Aggie, Tennessee, Boston College, Holy Cross, New York University and Oregon Aggies.

Rather studiously have I refrained from listing Yale among the casualties, although a 33 to 0 defeat by the Army hardly can be said to come under the head of a minor injury. However, the Bulldog has not been without defeat this season.

Brown again fully demonstrated his class by storming through Dartmouth to a ten to nothing decision without using a substitute for the second time this season. Alabama reasserted its intention of taking the Southern title, by winning from Louisiana State, 24 to 0. Ohio State served justice on Michigan of what may transpire later by disposing of Chicago, eighteen to nothing. Notre Dame won another "convincer" this time from Georgia Tech, twelve to nothing. New York University, trailing by three points going into the final period, saved its record by running amuck through Fordham for 27 points. Holy Cross also came from behind in beating Dayton, 20 to 7, and Boston College was scored on for the first time but won from West Virginia Wesleyan, 27 to 6.

Celtics and Cheney Brothers Triumph Over Scandias and Clan

League Standing.

Celtics	2	2	0	4
C. B. A.	2	2	0	4
Clan McLean	1	0	1	0
New Britain	1	0	1	0

Saturday's soccer games in the Manchester District Soccer League resulted in victories for the Celtics and Cheney Brothers. Both are now tied for first place in the Saturday in a double-header bill, the Clan McLean and Clan Douglas, providing the other half of the league standing and will meet next week at the West Side playgrounds.

The Celtics were awarded their game with the Scandias Saturday on points when the latter team was unable to present a full team. However, several outsiders were "picked up" and a friendly game was played resulting in a 5 to 0 tie.

C. B. A. defeated the Clan McLean in a well-played game by a score of two goals to none. The silk workers started the ball rolling with some neat forward passing toward the Clan goal but the latter's defense was stubborn and the result was, there was no scoring in the first half.

In the second half, however, things were different. Cheney Brothers pressed on Thomson, Clan goal tender and finally the latter misjudged a shot from Patton. Shortly afterward, the silk workers tallied their second and piled on a third goal.

Wylie, well known baseball and basketball player, is making quite a hit as a soccer player. His playing Saturday was very good.

Jupiter Pluvius Finally Succeeds In Halting Gridiron Contests Here

Old Jupiter Pluvius should be satisfied now, for he has succeeded in putting a halt to Sabbath football games here after three futile attempts. Maybe he will be better natured from now on and allow Old Sol to have his turn "at bat."

Three Sundays before yesterday were also marred by rainy weather but Manchester's football teams braved the elements and played, especially the Cloverleaves, who until yesterday, did not miss a single game. However, yesterday was a different tune. The Mohawks from Bridgeport evidently got "drowned" on the way here for they failed to appear. Had they shown up, the plucky Cloverleaves would probably have handed their compliments to the Weather Man in pantomime and played regardless.

The Cub-Pawnee game was also cancelled, but the New Britain eleven came here and received their rain guarantee. Next Sunday the playing Saturday was very good.

Cubs will oppose the Catholic club of Hartford. Several practice sessions are on tap for the week. The Manchester soccer club, however, defied the elements and played the Danerik team in a sea of mud.

TEN MOST IMPORTANT COLLEGE GAMES FROM A LOCAL VIEWPOINT

Army and Navy Produce Biggest Upsets But Columbia's Victory Over Cornell Not to Be Sneezed at.

Following are the ten most important college games, from a point of interest to Manchester football enthusiasts, played Saturday:

- Army 33, Yale 0.
- Harvard 49, Tufts 6.
- Princeton 27, Swarthmore 0.
- Illinois 3, Pennsylvania 0.
- Stanford 13, U. California 3.
- Notre Dame 12, Georgia Tech 0.

FALL RIVER WINS.
Fall River, Nov. 1.—Fall River completely outplayed the New York Giants here yesterday afternoon and hung up five goals to two for the visitors. More than 5,500 attended. The rain and a heavy field made it hard for perfect football and the Giants suffered most. Both their goals were gifts. Horne scored the first in the second period when he took a corner and kicked into Blair's hands. The goalie dropped the ball and it rolled into the net. Davey Brown got the next when a penalty was called against Coyle. Blair stopped the kick, but Brown followed up the shot.

The score at half time was 2 to 0 in favor of Fall River. McEachran taking a pass from White, chalked up No. 3. Patterson noticed the fourth on a brilliant hook shot. Campbell set one up for White, who made it five.

Danersk Wins Here In Last 10 Minutes

The last ten minutes of the state cup game between the Manchester soccer team and the Danersk A. C. of Stamford proved disastrous to the combination yesterday, Danersk scoring two goals and winning the game after Manchester had held the lead from the first half. Danersk came through in a garrison finish of the kind for which it is noted and drove two past Dickson just before the final whistle.

A heavy downpour of rain turned the field into a sea of mud and the game was slowed up considerably because of this and also because the ball was covered with mud. Kicks didn't go far and not one player had control of the ball during the entire game.

Danersk scored soon after the first half opened and Manchester equalized later in this period. Both teams were slow in the mud and these two scores were the only ones which occurred in the first moiety. A few minutes after the second half commenced Manchester took the lead and kicked for the time being the visitors off their feet. It was easily Manchester's game but with ten minutes left to play in the last period the visitors started an onslaught on the Manchester goal, bombarding Dickson, the local goalie, with all kinds of shots. Two of them went through the posts and Danersk had the game won.

The week end was a bad one for Manchester teams and visiting combinations seemed to have the breaks. This game puts Manchester out of the competition for the State cup and is the first time in many years that Manchester has not advanced to the semi-final.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
JUDITH MARTIN, young college teacher, is admired by DR. PETER DORN, astrologer, professor, and ERIC WATERS, rebel senior.

Judith defends Eric against the accusation of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN, who has been involved with "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, in selling liquor from which two students have died.

Judith discovers a secret love affair of the dean's wife and sympathizes with the woman. MYRA ALDRICH, in love with Eric, and favored by his mother, is jealous of Judith.

Judith receives a telephone call from Mrs. Timothy Brown and meets her at a tea shop. There Mrs. Brown says that the dean believes Judith spent week-ends in the city with Eric and means to ask the board to dismiss her.

Wetherell turned to Judith. "Lord! I forgot that French quiz. I must run along and learn three pages of translation by heart before one o'clock."
They went on down the path until they overtook Dr. Dorn. "Run along, Will," said Judith. "I'll walk toward home with Dr. Dorn. I think he goes my way."

"That will do, Miss Reasey," she said crisply. "Mr. Waters, please finish the ode."
can't understand it how you put up with the limitations placed on teaching. I suppose you know you may get kicked out of school for siding with Waters in the dean's meeting yesterday."

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Sumner

They took photographs of the rooms in Buckingham palace before they began house cleaning. Close-ups were taken of King George's desk, of his bureau top, his chiffonier drawers, of Queen Mary's dressing table, her work basket, everything. Explanation was that the royal pair were apt to be peevish if they found anything out of place or disarranged.

The china closet shelves were photographed before the china was removed and dusted. All the priceless pictures in the picture gallery were photographed before taken from the royal walls for a dusting fore and aft.

Merely proving that humans who wear crowns and lay coronets aren't much different from ordinary mortals, my neighbor John Smith was on a trade this morning because his wife cleaned up his desk in the midst of her housecleaning orgy, and he can't find "a blamed thing."

Once upon a time, yellow-haired Mille Gade Corson, first mother to swim the English channel, tried to get a job usher in a theater. They laughed at the very idea when she said she wanted to "usher." N.J.W. Mrs. Corson gets a big kick out of the fact that she is headlining at the very theater which laughed at her humble plea to "usher."

I have talked in this column about some women in the new book "The courageous, conquering women"—Susan Shane, Ellen Tolliver, Sabine Callender, Lily Shane, Jane Thorndike. But I neglected to speak of the most courageous, conquering woman—Susan Shane, Ellen Tolliver, Sabine Callender, Lily Shane, Jane Thorndike. But I neglected to speak of the most courageous, strongest of them all—Sophy Deming, heroine of Larry Barretto's "Walls of Glass."

GERMAINE CONTRIVES TO FIND REALLY DIFFERENT SPORT CLOTHES IN PARIS

GERMAINE 3 COL HOME PAGE
Paris, France, Oct. 18.
My Dear Cousin:
You ask me to send you something different for sport wear, just as casually as if you did not know that really distinctive costumes for sport are hard to find.

However, since there is nothing I enjoy more than shopping for the unusual, I undertook the commission with joy, and began the assignment by going to Longchamps to the races where the newest are always exploited.

M. Perrone and Aunt Louise were with me, and though my suit-or was most devoted, my Aunt Louise, particularly brilliant and witty, I kept my mind occupied with clothes as well as complications, and I think very little escaped me sartorially, though I may have missed a hot not or so.

Two costumes that I liked particularly were photographed and I enclose them. With a little sleuthing on my part I was able to find where they were made, for you I have ordered you these costumes, one a bolero affair and one with a sleeveless coat and pleated skirt.

The bolero, which is my favorite, is made of beige crepe with a bolero of golden brown velvet. The skirt is trimmed with circles of the brown velvet and the jacket has applied circles of the crepe. It is very Spanish in feeling, and I believe you will love it.

Perhaps the charm of the other lies in the color as well as the cut. Over a silk jumper suit of a grayish rose crepe is worn a coat of rose velveteen a shade or so darker than the silk. It is bound and trimmed with silk bands a few shades lighter than the skirt. The harmony of colors is quite entrancing.

Matching turbans and scarfs of plaid silk are very smart now, and I had one made up for you to wear with this costume in shades of gray and rose. It will just complete the idea and be ideal for you at the southern winter resorts you always frequent.

My friend Jacques has revived his interest in me since M. Perrone is showing me so much attention. And, it has not been coquetry on my part, but really I have had very little time for Jacques lately.

I must say I rather enjoy his dilly-dally, because really he quite forgot me this summer while the lovely lady was in Deauville. He has become quite humble again, and at times shows symptoms of becoming jealous now as he was when Jimmy occupied so much of my time—and my thoughts.

However, I have decided never to let Jacques—or any other man—make me so miserable again. I am going to treat them all with is a question being seriously treated by the greatest minds of England, writing their opinions in daily issues of a newspaper. Some writers opine that it is woman's fear of making a living in a cruelly competitive world, her belief that she can hold down the marriage job with greater certainty of keeping a roof over her head and having bread and butter to eat than in any other job. Others say it is merely an old habit—this belief that marriage is expected of one and must be engaged in whether there is a real reason or not. Stop to think about it, just why did you?

This Parisian frock is completely formed of sequins in shades of pink and rose, and naturally it doesn't need anything else. The bodice, what there is of it, is close and molded to the figure, and the skirt is very full and circular and admirably suited for Charleston dancing. THE TINYMITES BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Up on the rafters Scouty went. To do some tricks was his intent. Said Ukey, "You can't hurt yourself, no matter where you land. The hay is soft, just like a bed. Let's see you act. Go right ahead." And Scouty promptly startled them by hanging by one hand. He then did several things with ease, a master of the queer trapeze. The Tynmites just cheered him on with cries of "hip hooray!" Then Scouty shouted, "Guess I'll drop. I've grown so tired I've got to stop." So soon he was a-bouncing in the monstrous pile of hay. Just then they heard a rooster crow, with much commotion down below, and Clowny said, "I wish that I could ride upon his back. Let's all go down and catch him. Gee, that shouldn't be so hard if we just corner him and capture him within a burlap sack." But then, their plans were stopped once more. A hen came flying in the door and started in to cackle till she frightened all the hay. Most anybody might have guessed that in the hay she had a nest, and why the Tynmites were there she couldn't understand. Now hens can fight to beat the band, and Coppy, being near at hand, the cackler started in on him. Oh, she was very mad. She flapped her wings and snapped her beak. Poor Coppy was too scared to speak. He tried to give her battle with what little strength he had. The snappy hen just clawed and bit and Coppy got the worst of it, so all the other Tynmites came running to his aid. They shooed that at the hen until she grew tired out, and then, while she was getting rest, a very quick retreat was made. (To Be Continued.) (Clowny falls in a milk bucket in the next story.)

BELIEVE BOYS SET FIRE TO BUILDING

Unoccupied House at Manchester Green Is Totally Destroyed by Flames.

Fire believed to have been set by a group of young fellows as a Halloween prank, resulted in the total destruction of a six-room unoccupied house on Green Road at the North End early yesterday morning.

When asked this morning about the fire, Mr. Phelps said it was the general belief that the fire was caused by outsiders at the building had not been occupied for six weeks.

The fire was first discovered at 2:30 by Anthony Rounard, who also lives on Green Road. The fire, however had been burning for some time and gained considerable headway before the two companies from the Manchester Fire Department could arrive.

drant. Several hundred feet of hose had to be laid. The house was valued at between $3,500 and $4,000. Mr. Phelps said today. He added there was insurance for approximately half its value on it.
