Club House Crowded
An indication of the widespread enthusiasm which the campaign has aroused is apparent in the numbers at the Community club. The "White House" is thronged nightly. Last evening eighty whist players attended the whist social arranged by Mrs. James W. Foley, and the occasion was a marked success. First prize, fat turkeys, were taken by Mrs. D. Curtis and Monroe Stoughton. Second prizes went to Mrs. J. A. Corneilus and John J. Quish. Consolation awards were given Miss Dorothy Chapin and Edward Coleman. An especially pleasant evening was enjoyed, and the committee in charge, under direction of Mrs. Foley, received many compliments on the success of the whist.

Mass Meeting Today
At the plant of the E. E. Hilliard Co., this noon a mass meeting was held. Those present for the club were C. R. Burr, Scott H. Simon, William F. Childs Jr., Fred H. Wall, G. H. Washburn and Mark Holmes. Director Washburn addressed the gathering.
Large Numbers Important
Scott H. Simon, speaking for the executive committee, today expressed gratification at the large number participating in the campaign. "It is very desirable to have a large number giving moderate sums in the campaign. This means assuring their future interest in the work of the Community club. The club is for the whole people; we want them to realize that it is their club, that they are welcome there; they have contributed to it and they have a right there." Continuing, Mr. Simon said:

"Modern working conditions make it imperative that the worker find expressive activities outside of work hours. Every normal being needs relaxation to offset the strain of his daily work—needs a share in the community's recreational life to satisfy his natural craving for companionship. For most of us work continues throughout the year. Play which recreates and throws off the fatigue of the day must go hand in hand with work, twelve months of the year. "The boy who works for eight hours and then for two hours plays a good, snappy nine-inning baseball game in the evening is not going to hang around the pool room after ten o'clock. He is tired and sleepy from the exercise of hitting and running, and because his lungs are filled with ozone. Such a boy is a better worker the next day. There are fewer accidents, increased production, a more contented disposition and a keener liking for the town because it is doing something for him.

For Welfare Of All
"We want to have prosperity, but in order that prosperity and material gain shall not prove a curse instead of a blessing, we must do all we can to promote the refining influences of life—proper means of recreation, wholesome enjoyment, the cultivation of those capabilities for delight and pleasure which alone make the gains of prosperity a blessing.
"Real community service is done through both men and women, people of all creeds—in fact, everyone in the community can find the means which will permit them to function with no divisions. We are not merely men and women. The real tie is the family tie. We are wives and husbands, mothers and fathers, sons and daughters, brothers and sisters. In our leisure time, political and religious differences can have no place. The welfare of each of us is dependent fundamentally upon the welfare of all of us, and in public life that man is the best representative of each of us who seeks to do good to each by doing good to all—not to represent any special class, but to represent all true and honest men of all classes and sections.

Lakeview People Stage A Party

Residents and property owners of the new Lakeview section met last night at the Harriet Brown Tea Room for what they called a "Get-Acquainted Party." About forty persons were present. Marion Richmond and Ruth Chapman, owners of the Harriet Brown Tea Room, joined in the party and turned over the catering for the evening to Chef Osano. At 6:30 the chef served one of his incomparable turkey dinners with all the fixings and real mine pie for dessert.
One room would not accommodate all the party, so long tables were set up in three different rooms. Each room had a turkey and a host appointed to carve it. F. A. Verplanck and Mrs. Verplanck were host and hostess in the south room; R. LaMotte Russell and Mrs. Friend in the east room; and F. B. Clarke and Mrs. Clarke in the north room. The party being strictly informal, the various guests were assigned to do the work of serving. Anyone not doing their job well was penalized by having to spell Thanksgiving backwards, or some such stunt.
Director E. H. Chaney of the Rec and Mrs. Chaney were there to promote the get-acquainted idea and when the evening was over, there was no one who did not know all the rest and their special qualifications. Unsuspected talent was revealed when Bert Knight, Clark Terrill and F. A. Verplanck did an Indian war dance. A. A. Warren and Mrs. Watkins put on a tableau showing Pocahontas saving the life of Capt. John Smith. Norman Thrall won the prize for the best tableau, "The Landing of the Pilgrims." Stephen Hale and Mrs. Verplanck were applauded in their first meeting with Frisella Mullins.
The radio game was given up as unsolvable by the east room but its intricacies were finally mastered by Dr. Knapp and Mrs. Stephen Hale. The south room was just in the midst of a most exciting game when Director Chaney broke up the party. George Cowles was the star pin boy in the amateur bowling game.
After the games F. J. Bendall led the crowd in singing. Dr. Knapp, M. S. North and Elmore Watkins were called upon for readings. Dr. Knapp's Russian son accompanied by Mr. North on a make-believe banjo was a scream.
One guest, Clarence H. Bergquist, came all the way from Jamestown, N. Y. to attend the party.
Plans for a permanent Lakeview Community organization were talked of. The section is already carefully restricted as to type and location of houses. It is further stipulated that any Lakeview owner wishing to dispose of his property must first offer it for sale to the other owners. This organization would take care of the parks and grounds, revive the interest in the Lakeview tennis courts, and take all measures to maintain the whole Lakeview tract as one of the beauty spots of the town.

Rev. Taylor Called To Another Church

The Herald has just received an interesting letter from Rev. W. F. Taylor, who for several years was pastor of the North Methodist church here. Mr. Taylor wishes to say "hello" to his many Manchester friends through The Herald and to let them know that he is now stationed at Imperial, California, as pastor of the Methodist church there.
Rev. Mr. Taylor when he received the call was connected with the Anti-Saloon League of Los Angeles. He explains that Imperial is two hundred and fifteen miles south of Los Angeles, in the Imperial valley, noted for its low altitude, heat in summer and for summer crops grown in the winter season. Mr. Taylor says that cotton is grown in the valley, pomegranates, dates and many other fruits and garden produce. In some places of the valley they are 200 feet below sea level. The soil is very productive when water is supplied. Rain seldom falls and the water supply is drawn from the Colorado river. The winter season is delightful but the summer rather warm, 100 to 130 degrees.

Mr. Taylor writes that his daughter Iona is with him, that they have "lots of parsonage" and the church compares with the North Methodist here in numbers. His son Marcus teaches in a valley town fourteen miles to the south of the town of Imperial.

SAYS GUARD BOATS RAN RUM INTO PLYMOUTH

Boston, Nov. 17.—Testimony that Coast Guard patrol boats ran rum into Plymouth, where it was turned over to bootleggers, that the crews were paid for their work, that the rum runners furnished the guard boats with fresh food, that the Guardsmen gave the smugglers cigars and cigarettes and that ale was always on ice in the picket boats, was the burden of testimony given today by William Curtin, testifying against Marcus Haley and other Coastguard officers before a court martial at Charlestown Navy Yard.

BIG VAUDEVILLE BILL AT STATE TONIGHT

Five Acts You Will Like, and "Duchess of Buffalo" Tonight, Tomorrow and Saturday.

Now is the time for all good theater-goers to come to their State. The reason is that there's one whale of a vaudeville bill at the State theater tonight, tomorrow and Saturday. Just a look at the names of the acts will convince anyone of what a good bill this week's is. Just to prove it, here are the acts: The first to greet you is Billy and Ethel. They say that they have "something that will make your hair stand." They say that they mean it, too, so right here at the beginning there is a big kick in the program.

Following the hair raiser come "The Four Caddies." They call their act "A Comedy and Harmony Sketch." Harmony is right, Boy, how they can sing!

And now we have with us, ladies and gentlemen, Hattie Althoff and Co. in "Songs and Comedy Trimmings." Here is mirth in words and in song—and good measure, too.

Fourth on the program: O'Connor and Wilson in "The Best Due." The best, do they say? Well, we'll leave that to you.

The headliner! And what a headliner it is, too! It is the Caulfield Ritchie Revue. These performers are the performers that make your toes tickle, and make you "just rearin' to go" yourself. Here is a dance offering extraordinary.

Then we have more good news for you. Your old favorite comedienne, Connie Talmadge, will be here in "The Duchess of Buffalo" to make you laugh. Zowski, wowski, applesauski, hahaski, hawhawski, catsmeowski. All that is Russian for "This is Connie's best, funniest, jazziest, hottest and fastest comedy to date."

There was a Russian maiden who loved ermine because it was pretty, and who loved a boy because he was the most handsome and the most loving boy in all Russia. But then fate intervened, and "The Duchess" came near to losing her sweetie. But then fate played another hand and wedding bells sounded. You see, it all comes out right in the end.

Just to remind you, Rudie Valentino's greatest picture, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" will be at the State next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

FINE DOUBLE FEATURE NOW SHOWING AT CIRCLE

"Wages For Wives" and "Doubling With Danger" Here Tonight and Tomorrow.

Double feature bill at the Circle theater tonight and tomorrow. "Wages for Wives" and in "Doubling With Danger."

What do husbands do after their wives desert them? "Wages for Wives" tells how, amid many roars of laughter. Adapted from the stag success, "Chicken Feed," the story deals with the wife who simply couldn't stand for her husband's nagging her around any more, and just decided that she would let him keep house himself for awhile, he was so smart. And then hubby took to the job of making researches in domestic science—and didn't succeed. That's where all the fun comes in. But that's only one case, for there are two other wives who feel the same way about their husbands in this picture, and oh, what a melange of fun there is in it! Claude Gill-water, Earle Foxe, Creighton Hale, Zasu Pitts, Jacqueline Logan, and Margaret Seddon are the members of the three households in question.

Sciatic-Neuritis

The sciatic nerve, situated at the back of the hip joint is frequently the subject of Neuritis, giving rise to the painful disease Sciatica. The symptoms are intense pains which shoot down the thigh to the foot, often aggravated by walking, and with painful points along the course of the nerve, very tender to the touch.

The disease is a very obstinate one and does not readily respond to ordinary treatment. It takes more than the usual pain sedative even to alleviate the pain. The quickest, safest and surest way to get rid of the persistent nerve racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenru Special Formula No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take them as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished, all pain and soreness. Continue until the Neuritis has entirely disappeared and you are able to work and rest in comfort once again. No. End Pharmacy, South Manchester Agents, Magnell Drug Co., Keep Allenru Special Formula No. 2 in stock all the time and sells lots of it.—Adv.

"Doubling With Danger" is the title of Dick Talmadge's latest photoplay. Like all his others, it contains thrills and laughs in great abundance. It is a story of snooping spies, longeared eavesdroppers, detectives and other such abominable government creations. Then there are secret plans that prying hands would do snatch away, and there is besides all this suspense and mystery, barrels and barrels of honest-to-goodness Talmadge comedy. Yes, folks, it's A REBEL picture from beginning to end.

RIALTO'S FEATURES OFFER MANY THRILLS

The double feature program being offered at the Rialto theater today and tomorrow seems to have been secured with the sole purpose of jolting the faded film fan's interest. Both pictures being shown specialize in thrills of a widely different nature. In "Unknown Treasures" one of the photoplays, the thrills are of a creepy nature as the action takes place in an old deserted house which is supposed to contain somewhere in its mouldering ruins, a sizeable fortune, hidden there by its former occupant who happened to be the hero's uncle. When the young man starts a search for the hidden securities things start to happen and as the picture progresses the happenings become more grotesque and weird. The excitement culminates in a double murder by a gigantic ape and of course the hero locates his fortune, wins the girl he loves and evidently quite happy at the close of the story. Gladys Hulette and Robert Agnew are starred in this mystery melodrama which sustains one's interest until the very end.

The second feature being shown is "Perils of the Rail" and Helen Holmes plays the leading role, all of which should be good news to thousands of her followers who have missed her capable acting for some time. The plot, a rather complicated one, tells the story of a young chap who is sent to prison after being convicted of fooling a railroad of an considerable sum of money. How he brings the real culprit to book and finds happiness for himself forms the basis for as good a story of railroading as has been produced in an age. Edward Hearn plays the masculine lead and proves a splendid foil for Miss Holmes' charms. The comedy has enough humor to make one forget his troubles and the current news reel will also be shown.

Tomorrow evening a five tube Al-water Kent radio set will be given away as the prize in the contest conducted this week at this theater. Everyone holding coupons will want to be here of course and arrangements for taking care of a capacity house have been made. Coupons will be given out again at today's and tomorrow's performances. Saturday another event similar to the one held last Saturday will be conducted and five more pair of ball bearing roller skates will be given away to the children attending.

There are now 25 women aviators in Europe.

SPEED ON YOUR OUT-OF-TOWN CALLS

YOU can now ask for any telephone number in the state—and four out of five times the toll operator will complete the connection while you hold the line. This rapid service also applies to numerous points outside the state to which there are direct wires. The element of speed grows increasingly important in meeting the demands of the business world. The telephone is playing a real part in filling this need for speed in American business. Hand in hand with speed of communication goes toll telephone service.

Are you taking advantage of the fast service? If not, you will enjoy finding that you can make calls to out-of-town points practically as quickly as to the office across the street.

TAX PAY-BACK TAKES BIG JUMP

Rebate or Set-Off Will Be $350,000,000 Instead of Quarter of a Billion.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Unless government finances undergo an unexpected upset in the next six weeks, the treasury will be prepared to hand back to federal taxpayers close to $350,000,000 as a credit against taxes payable March 15 and June 15, it was learned today.

This is an increase of $100,000,000 over the original Mellon estimate.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon already has announced that the government can stand a credit-refund of fifteen per cent of the 1926 collection. On the basis of heavier receipts it is now possible that the rate may be boosted still higher.

In addition to returning over a third of a billion to the taxpayers during the first half of 1927, it now appears certain that the government will cut the public debt by $750,000,000 in the present fiscal year.

Health Service

MANY FACTORS ENTER INTO EFFECT OF LIQUOR ON MAN

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, The Health Magazine

Scientists continue to try to find out just how much alcohol is necessary to produce drunkenness.

Apparently the quantity varies according to the physical state of the persons, the age, the sex, the constitution, the temperament, the heredity, the state of health of various organs and mode of living, the nature of the beverage taken, including its composition, and the proportion of alcohol.

In certain diseases, such as diabetes, hysteria or delirium tremens, much larger quantities of alcohol can be consumed than in normal states.

If a person is moderately tired, working in the open air, or exercising vigorously, the alcohol does not seem to have the same effect as it would on one who was sitting quietly in a chair.

Quart of Rum

A case was reported of the death of a man who drank a quart of rum, and the majority of authorities are agreed that for a man weighing 65,000 grams, 400 grams may be a fatal dose. Nations differ as to the amounts of alcohol consumed.

One estimate indicates that persons in Finland average a quart and a half per person per year; in Italy which alcoholism was found to be prevalent were, in order: hotel servants, waitresses, domestic servants, cooks, hairdressers, women without an occupation, samstresses, milliners, artists' models, and hospital nurses.

COURTESY PAYS

Honolulu—Because they were generous with their smiles and extended courteous treatment to a traveler, Ernest Ching and Harry Nolan, employes of a Waikiki-beach hotel, have departed on a trip around the world. The traveler, Charles D. Clinch, wealthy Californian, took a fancy to the boys when they greeted him on his first trip to Honolulu.

Just a Living Room Suite or a Garber Brothers' Custom-Built Living Room Suite?

There is a difference, you know, a decided difference

There is just as much difference in buying a living room suite of no particular name and a living room suite of established quality as there is in buying bonds of no particular kind and bonds that are proven profitable investments. There is a difference. From bonds of established integrity you are assured of receiving profitable yearly returns. It is a paying investment.

Our advice is to buy living room suites of established quality.

When you buy a Garber Brothers' Custom-built living room suite . . . you buy KNOWN QUALITY. From Garber Brothers' suite you will receive yearly returns for your investment . . . divided into daily and hourly benefits in the form of comfort to you and your family and permanent attractiveness to your home.

And also, you get much greater value from your purchase of a Garber Brothers' suite because while the quality and construction of Garber Brothers' suites are better . . . the investment is very reasonable.

Careful, expert workmanship applied to high grade materials results in finer and more comfortable living room suites.

Selling direct from the factory to the public at factory price results in a price saving that counts up to many dollars.

It always pays to buy a Garber Brothers' custom-built living room suite.

Visitors are always welcome.

Wonderful wearing qualities . . . uncommonly beautiful in appearance . . . this 3-piece suite in genuine Angora Mohair . . . is only

THIS is not an ordinary living room suite. Its general custom appearance—its comfort giving qualities—its long life construction . . . all these features place this suite in a class quite out of the ordinary. Compare this suite with any mohair living room suite at $325 and more, too . . . and you will be pleasantly surprised. For a suite of this character ordinarily sells for at least $325. In buying direct from Garber Brothers, you save the difference. Web construction throughout and REVERSIBLE cushions in your choice of several patterns of fine brocatelle.

We'd like to have you see this suite and other suites. We'd like to show you through our factory and see just how Garber Brothers' suites are built. Won't you come in!

WAPPING

Harold J. Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Collins, of this place, had a narrow escape from serious injury or death, on Tuesday. During the storm the eavesdroppers blew off from his grandfather's barn, and in taking hold of them to replace them, he came in contact with a live wire, and was unable to let go until his hand was severely burned.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Pitkin of South Windsor celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary on Monday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at Wolcott Chapel. There were 250 relatives and friends present. The chapel was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and roses. A program was given by the Hartford School of Music. Mr. and Mrs. Pitkin were congratulated by their friends, many of which were present at their wedding just fifty years ago. Tea was served by Mrs. Frank Bidwell. Mrs. Edgar Barnham, Mrs. Erastus Barnham and Mrs. Case. They were married November 15, 1876, by Rev. Mr. Bowman, who was the pastor of the South Windsor Congregational church at that time. Three daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Pitkin, Olive, Mabel and Marion, all of whom are married. There are six grandchildren.

Walden V. Collins is ill at his home with the chickenpox. The Bible Study class will meet at the parsonage on Thursday evening at 7:45. They will continue the study of the life of Paul. The terrible windstorm of Tuesday did some damage around here. A tobacco shed belonging to the Hartman Plantation was blown down. Telegraph poles, trees and etc., were also blown down. Hugh Coleman of Great Barrington, who was arrested on October 31, by Constables Jones and Jorgenson, at Station 52 1/2 for driving while under the influence of liquor, was tried in the town court last week and fined $100 and costs and given a ten days' suspended jail sentence.

The case of Windsor Putnam of Cambridge, Mass., a student of Harvard Business School, who was arrested October 29, at Station 36, by State Policemen White and Clark, for driving while under the influence of liquor, was also fined $100 and costs and given a ten days' suspended jail sentence. John Zwassler, who was in the car with Putnam, charged with intoxication, had his case nolleed upon payment of costs, which amounted to $17.43. Constable Charles Jorgenson was the prosecutor and John F. Riordan, justice of the peace.

ANDOVER

At the annual election of officers of the Grange Monday evening the following were elected: Master Wallace Hilliard; overseer, John Hutchinson; lecturer, Mrs. Blanche Lewis; steward, Burton Lewis; assistant steward, Guy Bartlett, chaplain, Ada M. Thompson; treasurer, Elsworth Covell; secretary, Marion Stanley; gatekeeper, Eugene Thompson; Ceres, Olga Lindholm; Pomesa, Mildred Hamilton; Flora, Gladys M. Bradley; home economics committee, Mrs. Nellie Hyde; pianist, Miss Ite Hamilton; executive committee, Charles Wright; cheer leader, Mrs. Rachel M. and Mrs. Lewis Phelps. Mrs. Ralph Bass, Miss Ite Hamilton and Miss Holbrook attended the concert given by Miss Eleanor Cook, daughter of Dr. Cook of Hartford, at the High School hall in Willimantic Monday evening. Miss Cook sang the folk songs of different nations, dressed in costumes of the countries. Miss Cook has visited each nation of which she sang. The pianist dressed as a peasant boy part of the time.

There will be a public whist in the Town Hall Friday evening. The proceeds will go to the Hall fund. Charles Phelps was home from Yale Monday night returning to New Haven Tuesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Platt of Wapping spent Monday and Tuesday night with Mrs. Platt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Frink.

JAP PRINCE AT OXFORD EATS WITH CLASSMATES

Oxford, (United Press)—Prince Chichibu, second in line to the Japanese throne, has arrived to begin his career in an English university. He is occupying a suite of four rooms. One of these rooms was in the Prince of Wales suite when he attended Oxford. The Prince's baggage when it arrived staggered the domestic force of porters, for it has been many years since anyone has brought so great an amount for his personal use.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION FOR THANKSGIVING DAY.

"A lively sense of gratitude is not the least of the virtues. It implies an intelligent appreciation of benefits received and a proper recognition of their source. It goes hand in hand with a sure faith in God's goodness and a serene hopefulness for the future. It besets love and charity for our neighbor."

"We New Englanders have traditionally endeavored to express this feeling in our annual harvest festival. In the gathering of our families we give thanks for those human ties which mean more and more as we grow older; in our feasting we recognize such material prosperity as has been our portion; in our bounty to others we symbolize in a small way the abundance with which the Divine Providence has blessed us."

"It is a good custom; a heart-warming, home-loving, God-fearing custom. And in the certainty that its significance is still vital to the people of this state, I designate Thursday, the twenty-fifth day of November next, as a day of Thanksgiving, recommending that it be observed as such in the churches, schools and homes throughout Connecticut."

"No man is so poor but that he has had some good gift during the past year. It is no mean boon just that one's lot has been cast in this old state of Connecticut, dedicated for a century and a half to the ideal of free government. It is fair to praise God for opportunity as well as for realization. It may be that our table reflects no worldly wealth, but if one can hold his head high in the knowledge that he has kept faith with himself, if only one can still clasp the hand of one honest friend—he may well thank God upon his knees."

PRINCE TO DEDICATE SOLDIERS' CEMETERY

Jerusalem (United Press)—On the slope of Mount Scopus, facing the Mount of Olives and Jerusalem, the final resting-place of 2,400 English and British soldiers, an old man strummed a squeaky guitar. How To Reduce Varicose Veins

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become dependent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal. Moore's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic cases of Piles are often entirely absorbed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. CUBA-URUGUAY SPAT ENDS IN LOVE FEAST

Havana, Nov. 17.—The threatened break in diplomatic relations between Cuba and Uruguay was averted today when the minister from Uruguay presented a conciliatory note to President Machado. The note denied responsibility for or sympathy with the utterances of Uruguay's League of Nations delegate in objecting to Cuba's entrance into the League. President Machado, it was stated, now considers the matter closed.

The EDITOR of a Food Journal writes for herself and her staff

"NO suggestion of unpleasant commercial qualities," says the editor of a nationally known food magazine after testing White Rose Bread.

"Compares more favorably with homemade than any other bread we know," declare scores of other teachers and students of cooking who recently made similar tests of this new loaf.

No wonder women everywhere are turning to White Rose Bread. They are delighting in its richer bread flavor, in its deep, flaky, delicious crust (the result of "slow-baking"), in its smooth, even grain.

They are finding, too, that this loaf stays fresh longer—yet has a complete absence of "sogginess."

White Rose Bread was perfected with the help of leading food experts—authorities on cooking, on diet and nutrition. They have given their time and experience in order that you might have as fine a loaf of bread as it is possible to make.

Try White Rose Bread today. Notice the difference yourself! White Rose Bread is baked twice each day and rushed to your grocer—always fresh whenever you buy!

REPORT DISSENSION AMONG CARDINALS

Ill Feeling Exists Between Hornsby and Bredon

Rogers Said to Have Demanded Three-Year Contract For $50,000 Salary; Farrell Discusses Situation

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 13 (United Press).—Reports of internal dissension on the St. Louis Cardinal baseball club, so close upon the evidence of the wreck that family trouble made out of the Pittsburgh Pirates, put the future world's champions largely up to the diplomacy of the majority stockholders.

Sam Bredon, wise as a baseball business man and popular in a wide circle of friends, will hardly make the mistake that Barney Dreyfuss committed last year in going to Europe and letting his club go on the rocks.

While Dreyfuss was trying to get his health back on the other side, his champion Pirates split-up into factions, fought among themselves and reached such a condition of demoralization that three players, a manager and a vice-president of the club became casualties before the storm blew over.

Rumors and Rumors

The domestic situation among the Cardinals may not be as bad. In fact there may be no situation at all. Rumors and reports, especially about the inside affairs of a baseball club usually are not worth the consideration of even a crazy rumor but so many stories have been heard about the Cardinals that there must be something behind it.

Late in the pennant race, before, during and after the world's series, stories were passed around that the best of feeling didn't exist between Rogers Hornsby, manager of the champions and the officials of the club. And they haven't been denied.

Hornsby is said to be in a condition of disagreement with Bredon, president of the club and in a state of open war against Branch Rickey, vice-president and former manager of the team.

The young manager of the first world's champion club St. Louis evidently had a chance to get hysterical about it but he demanded a three-year contract at $50,000 a year, permission to increase his holdings in the club to fifty per cent of the total stock and assurance that he would pass completely out of the affairs of the team, like Fred Clarke did in Pittsburgh.

Before Hornsby would accept the management of the club he indicated that he was allowed to purchase Rickey's stock and it was understood that all but $5,000 worth of the former manager's holdings were sold to him.

Hornsby is said to be demanding the rest of it and it might be construed that he wants to become vice-president and have the same voice in the business affairs of the club that John McGraw has in New York and that Connie Mack has in Philadelphia.

It was heard during the world's series that Hornsby and Bredon had a violent quarrel during the season when Bredon suggested that he was betting too much on horse racing and that it didn't look well. And before the world's series had feeling again, come up when Hornsby was said to have protested vehemently because he couldn't get as many tickets as he wanted.

Trade Rumors

Considering all these angles, it did not come as a shock to the baseball public when stories were heard that Hornsby might be traded to the New York Giants by Frank Frisch and other considerations and that Bill Killefer, who acted as assistant manager last year would take charge of the club.

It will be a surprise if Frisch is with the Giants next year as he and John McGraw are on the outs and the Giant leader has intimated that he will consider a fair proposition for his former pet.

St. Louis could make better use of Frisch and perhaps could offer better terms for a trade than any other club in the league.

If there really is anything to these stories, Bredon is now in a position where he might feel that he would not break faith with St. Louis if he made a trade for Hornsby.

Bredon has to be admired because, during the lean days in St. Louis, he secured patronage by building up a championship club instead of cultivating players for the market.

Missed Fortune

He could have made the fortune that Harry Frazee made if he had sold off his players like Frazee sold off the Boston Red Sox but he stuck it out, and finally bought his patrons a world's champion team.

Bredon would not have to flee to the hills from the mob if he traded Hornsby as he is not the popular idol that Bucky Harris was and is in Washington and he didn't get the credit that Harris did for winning a championship.

Even the rabid baseball fans in St. Louis think down in their hearts that the St. Louis team and not Hornsby won the pennant. They figure that Branch Rickey left a championship team and it became one when the players had a chance to play their kind of a game instead of following Rickey's queer theories.

PYLE AROUSED IRE OF TENNIS GODS BY SIGNING AMATEURS

Association Lost First Move But Plans to Get Second Jump and Cover More Territory.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 13 (United Press).—When C. C. Pyle turned his attention from Red Grange and his professional football league, to tennis and signed Suzanne Lenglen, Mary K. Browne, Vinnie Richards and Howard Kinsey as a troupe of professionals, he predicted that the move he initiated would result in the recognition of open tennis tournaments in which amateurs could play against pros.

The idea of even considering any relations between amateur and professional players was at first considered by some of the lords of American tennis to be so radical that it was almost blasphemous.

The rank and file of tennis patrons, known in boxing and baseball as the customers, without whose support tennis would be a game for the idle rich had some respect for the guardian angel role the association assumed but on closer inspection the attitude of the governing body was found to be just as radically narrow as Pyle's was broad.

Open Competition

Considering that open competition and sanctioned competition between amateur and professional players had not only failed to ruin golf but had been responsible for a very great increase of public interest in the game, a large part of Bill Tilden calls his public weighed the arguments for and against open tennis and asked: "Why Not?"

Following the tactics and strategy of national politics, the politicians of amateur tennis very obviously are employing feelers to sound out the public before they go on record one way or another and in answer to that question, "Why not?" their semi-silent reply seems to be: "Well, we'll bite. Why not?"

Jones W. Mersereau, making it clear that he was speaking for himself and not as the president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, said recently that an organization of tennis professionals would be beneficial to the game. But his private opinion means just as much as his official opinion. The directing minds of American tennis represent such a conservative corporation that Mersereau would not have dared to commit himself, even privately, if he had not the assurance that his fellows on the "board of directors" concurred in his opinion.

It did not require the inference obtained in the statement of its president to carry the conviction that the association considers professional tennis as established and open tennis as sure to come. The inference shows that the association wants to make the best of a complicated situation by jumping in and taking the control of the side lines of tennis from C. C. Pyle, even at the expense of a humiliating back-flop.

Winter Pro Matches

Before the unofficial opinion of the association was made public, George Agutter, professional at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills and his assistant, Paul Heston sailed for Europe to compete in the winter professional matches on the continent.

This trip had more significance than all the official statements that the association could have made in support of professional and open tennis.

Agutter, considered by many to be the greatest tennis player in the world, has been the professional at the West Side Club for years and has won the respect of the association for the interest that he showed in the development of juvenile players.

The West Side Club, owner of the greatest tennis stadium in the United States, is the dictator and overlord of the whole association. Practically all of the responsible positions of authority in the association have been and are still held by the officials who are members of the West Side Club.

It is quite obvious that Agutter, on his own initiative would have undertaken such a mission. It is quite obvious that he had been given good reasons to believe that he would not draw the wrath of the tennis gods on him by going to Europe to start the organization of a professional society and to recruit a large number of European professionals for a pro championship tournament that is almost certain to be held at the West Side Club next season.

Missionary Work

It is a safe guess that the association encouraged or even suggested that Agutter set out on this piece of missionary work. Being the pioneer in such a movement, Agutter would be almost certain of the presidency of any professional association that might be organized and through Agutter the association would be in a position to supervise, by proxy at least the activities of the professionals.

Pyle got the first jump on the association but it is plainly apparent that the association is going to take the second jump and cover more territory than the initial leap of Pyle.

"Three Wise Men" of the Notre Dame Grid Team

Here are the "three wise men" of the 1926 Notre Dame football team—Knute Rockne, head coach, and his two assistants, Hartley Anderson and Tom Mills.

Rockne has been tutoring Irish livers for several years and is recognized as one of the greatest mentors in the country. Anderson and Mills are comparatively newcomers at Notre Dame, but are proving of much help in developing winning outfits. Rockne and Anderson are former Notre Dame stars.

FAILURE TO SCORE EXTRA POINT PLAYING USUAL HAVOC ON GRID

That old "bugaboo"—failure to score point after touchdown—again is in evidence this season. Several games have been lost thus far because a kick, pass or run failed to go through as intended.

George Tech, for instance, dropped its first game of the chase by one point, Oglethorpe winning, 7-6. Boston University took the short end of a similar score against Middlebury. So did Colby while playing Maine, Rhode Island State in its clash with New Hampshire, and little Lehigh against Princeton.

Maine, by the way, also defeated Port William, 7-6, thus winning two games by one-point margins.

Two of the oddest scores were those made in the Worcester Polytechnic and Cooper Union-New York Aggies trays. Worcester Poly tripped Hamilton, 6-5, while Cooper Union beat the Ags, 3-2.

The little Geneva eleven, conquerors of Harvard and coached by "Bo" McMillin, former Centre star, has been scored on in four of its six games, but no team has been able to run up more than one touchdown on it.

On the other hand, Boston University has counted just nine points in five battles and has yet to win a frasca.

CUB FANS SORE BECAUSE ALEXANDER WAS RELEASED

Chicago, Nov. 13. (United Press).—Those who take the Chicago Cubs baseball team rather seriously, here say that a reaction is beginning to take place regarding that deal in the middle of last season which sent Grover Cleveland Alexander to the St. Louis Cardinals.

The reaction has to do with a general changing of fan minds regarding whether or not Joseph McCarthy, manager of the Cubs, used good judgment, after all, in getting rid of Alexander.

When fans read Alexander had been released for breaking training rules the general opinion was that "the big bum oughta be released, he ain't been working."

But when it turned out that Alexander had just what was needed to make the Cardinals a world's champion outfit they thought: "it over."

Cause of Tumult

But the general cause of the tumult seems to be the fact that if the Cubs had had one more good pitcher, say of the calibre of Alexander, in that last month of the National League race, there might have been a different story to write about the last World's series.

But those who still remain loyal to McCarthy concede this and then offer in rebuttal the statement that Alexander was of "no account to the Cubs the way he was going."

Alexander's actions on the field were evidence as in former years. When Bill Killefer managed the team, he worked every minute that he was on the field, when he wasn't pitching to batters, or teaching some young pitcher all he could about the art of curving them, he was hitting fungo flies to the outfield.

This year it was different. Alexander pitched and that was about all.

"Why the sudden let-up?" some fans ask. "Isn't that proof enough that he was hustling? And doesn't that justify Mac?"

Fans say this is why Alexander had been used to having his judgment respected on the team. He had been accustomed to being asked about things. And it can't be denied that he knows something.

The Big Difference

That brings it down to one point: Hornsby was equal to the task of managing Alex; McCarthy was not. As evidence of Hornsby's managerial ability, Alex did just about as he pleased. Hornsby has an opinion that if a ball player delivers on the field, it is nobody's business what he does off the field.

And despite his little eccentricities, Alex commands respect for what he can do and does know. That little incident in the last game of the World's series proves that. After Jess Haines had split his finger, Hornsby called his whole team around him at the pitcher's box and asked "who'll we pitch now?"

One word came in answer: "Alex." Alex had worked the day before, but the whole team was willing to put the entire World's series right back on his shoulders.

Alexander didn't have anything to say about what was going on among the Cubs.

Hornsby respected his judgment. Therefore Alex won.

REFUSES TO LIFT PAAVO NURMI BAN

A. A. U. Committee Will Not Permit Finn to Run in America Next Year.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 13.—Paavo Nurmi Finnish long distance running champion, will not be permitted to run in America next year, the foreign relations committee of the A. A. U. announced here today.

It denied the application of Drake University to bring the feet Finn there for a meet this winter.

Closing its two-day convention, the association selected Cincinnati for its meeting place in September, 1927.

Billy Evans Says

Now that George Moriarty has pires to the inner circle of man-passed from the ranks of the um-gers, some yarns of his days as an arbitrator take on a new angle.

Seldom did a player beat Moriarty in a battle of wits, and the records fall to reveal any lost decisions on the physical side.

Moriarty had a habit of beating the pitcher and catcher to an argument by explaining his decision as he gave it.

If he believed the ball was too low, he would rule it so, and as he called the pitch a ball, he would add "too low."

If he ruled a certain pitch a ball for other reasons, he would definitely tell why, inside, outside, or too high.

Undoubtedly it saved trouble by beating the catcher to the argument. I might add when he offered an explanation of his ruling it was done in an emphatic manner, the tone being most convincing.

Funny Incident

I still get a laugh when I think of an incident that happened at the American League park in Boston, a few weeks after Moriarty had made his last as umpire.

Everett Scott, then playing short-stop for Boston, figured in the episode that got a general laugh, in which even Moriarty joined.

Moriarty was to work the balls and strikes in the game, while I called them on the bases. There always is a certain amount of argument over ground rules which must be adjusted by the plate umpire before starting.

Thinking to strengthen his confidence, I permitted Moriarty to handle the situation himself. It so happened that several unusual points came up on which he was in doubt.

Each time he would hurry from the plate to the Boston bench where I was sitting and ask my opinion.

It became funny to all of us sitting on the bench, after George had repeated the stunt three or four times. On his next trip, Scott, not ed for his ready wit, beat him to it by saying:

"Light somewhere, George, so we can start this ball game."

Annet the Babe

At the time Moriarty broke in, Babe Ruth was rated the best southpaw in the American league. It was during the same stay in Boston that George pulled a classic on the Babe, who at that time was a member of the Red Sox.

George had called balls and strikes for Babe in a game which he was lucky to win by a score of something like 14-11. It was just one of those off days that pitchers occasionally have and which are impossible of explanation.

Snappy Dialogue

The next day as we came out to start the ball game, the following conversation passed between the two:

"You sure had a tough day of it yesterday, George."

"Couldn't have been any worse than yours, Babe."

"Why, the way you were missing them, you had me in the hole all afternoon."

"I didn't miss any on you, Babe. Any time you got the ball close to the plate someone made a baseball."

"You missed 14 on me, George!"

"That's a funny one. Fourteen! Why, you can't count that far."

When it dawned on Babe that Moriarty was questioning his intellect, he wanted to start a riot then and there.

LOCAL SOCCER ELEVEN PLAYS IN HARTFORD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Manager Jimmy McCollough of the Manchester soccer team announced today that his team will meet the Scandias in Hartford Sunday. The game will be played on the new Windsor avenue grounds and will start at 2:30 sharp. The Manchester players will leave for the British-American club at 12:30 Sunday noon.

Manager McCollough also announced that Manchester drew a bye in the first round of the British Cup competition, but is scheduled to meet the Hartford Thistles here in the second round. The date has not yet been set.

TO WIN TITLE FOOTBALL GAME IS OFF

Cloverleaves and Cubs Cannot Agree on Terms

Champions Want Game Over North Under Their Own Referee and Will Give Rivals But Meager Guarantee; Disagreement is Most Severe in History of Sport Here; Hopeless Deadlock With Little Chance of Settlement; Both Sides of Argument.

By THE SPORTS EDITOR

Unless unforeseen developments occur, there will be no town championship football game in Manchester this year. This startling information was given the writer yesterday by official representatives of Cloverleaves and Cubs. The two teams are hopelessly deadlocked in a disagreement over terms. It is a contrary and apparently neither team can settle.

It is said that where there is a spark of life there is hope, but present indications are that there is conflagration of life, but absolutely no hope. In brief, the Cloverleaves claim they will not concede from their present stringent terms which call for the game to be played at the North End on a small guarantee basis with their own referee officiating. The Cubs naturally refuse to accept.

As far as can be recalled, these are the most severe terms ever demanded by any local football team in the history of the town. There have always been more or less factional disputes between the North and the South in all sports, but this is the first time it has reached such an extreme.

It has been a customary habit for rival clubs to stage a lot of ballyhoo before agreeing but it has nearly always simmered down to simply this: The toss of a coin for the field; a percentage basis; and usually a neutral official. Teams have often held out for more favorable terms but this has usually been the ultimate outcome.

Mr. Griffin Speaks

This year is a different story. Manager Bill Griffin of the Champion Cloverleaf Club informed The Herald he would consider no other terms except those mentioned in a preceding paragraph. "It represents the sentiment of my team," said Manager Griffin, "and I will not alter from my present stand. We are not craving for a game with the Cubs. If they want to play us, they will have to come to our terms. Otherwise, there will be no game. We are not worrying in the least. I have arrangements in the works for several top-notch attractions as good, if not better, drawing card than a Cloverleaf-Cub contest which I believe will be equalled."

Manager Griffin contends that inasmuch as his team won the championship last year, it is entitled to dictate to any team which may challenge it. His terms, in more detail are as follows:

Cloverleaves' Terms

The game must be played at Hickey's Grove. There will be no toss-up of a coin to settle whether the game be played at the North End or the South End.

The game will not be played on a percentage basis, not even winner-take-all. The Cloverleaves will consent to give the Cubs an ordinary guarantee but stand willing to play for a side-bet of any amount up to $300.

Neutral officials will not handle the game. The Cloverleaves will use their own referee and the Cubs may have an umpire. The Cloverleaves figure the money may be well paid to local officials.

The Cloverleaves stand willing to meet the Cubs on the aforementioned terms on Thanksgiving Day or the second Sunday afterward. They will not play the game on the Sunday following Thanksgiving Day because they are planning to meet a strong team on that date, whether it be the Cubs or not.

Cubs' Terms

When informed by The Herald yesterday afternoon as to the stand taken by the Cloverleaves, Coach Earl Wright of the Cubs, was struck speechless. At first he could not reply, simply laughing at the report. However, later he had this to say:

"As far as I am concerned, the Cubs will never accept the terms which the Cloverleaves have offered us. It would be the height of folly for us to do so. We are willing to comply with anything reasonable but these terms are the most ridiculous I have ever heard of. It looks as though the Cloverleaves don't want to play us very badly."

Chances Are Slim

So that, ladies and gentlemen, is the situation as it stands now. It is the most fruitless effort the North and South have ever staged in an attempt to come to an agreement. And if Coach Wright's words can be taken for final, and we are assured they can, then Manchester fans who still have hopes of watching an inter-sectional football clash here this season had better turn their eyes toward the North End and pray for a reconsideration on the part of the Cloverleaves.

How many times has George Sisler batted over .400 and in what seasons?—T. G. H. Twice—1920 and 1922.

Local Sport Chatter

Because of the importance of the news that the Cubs and Cloverleaves are unable to come to terms with the result that there will be no championship game here this season unless one team or the other gives in, this column is today devoted entirely to a discussion of the situation.

The first reaction will probably be a volley of verbal barrages from the disappointed fans who had eagerly awaited the Cub-Cloverleaf game. While practically every fan has his favorite, he nevertheless feels that the game should be played; that there should be a happy medium agreed upon.

Regardless of the feeling of overconfidence which exists at the North End, it is apparent that if the two teams patched up relations one of the best championship battles in years, would result. The two teams are much more evenly matched than the average fan realizes.

The Cloverleaves appear to have better teamwork and more pep. Whether they have better talent or not, is doubtful. The Cubs have some mighty fine material banded together at the South End. The 1926 Cub machine is far more powerful than the 1925 outfit which battled the Cloverleaves to a scoreless tie at Hickey's Grove last year.

In the opinion of the writer, which may or may not mean anything, the Cubs are fifty per cent stronger than they were a year ago at this time. They have several new faces in their lineup. The appearance of "Lefty" St. John in the Cub backfield alone makes the South Enders dangerous from the opening kick-off until the final whistle. It is true the Cloverleaves stopped St. John completely in the All-Star game last season, but there can be no denying of the fact that he is likely to break loose at any minute on a long run for a touchdown. He is one of the greatest broken field runners Manchester has ever developed and the North End knows it best, for the frigid end of the town was where St. John sprung into limelight from in the days of the famous Eagles.

One argument advanced by some of the Cloverleaves is that the Cubs are not worth more than a small guarantee as an attraction. The point to the fact that in one game this year the Cubs collected but $21. In other words, it is the feeling at the North End that the Cubs are just looking for a chance to make some easy money and that the Cubs are under the opinion themselves that they will never win the game. "They're simply looking for a big loser's share," is how one player put it.

The refusal of the Cloverleaves to play with neutral officials is the highest factor in keeping the two teams apart. The Cubs will never play with the Cloverleaves supplying the referee, they say. There are many at both ends of the town who believe the Cloverleaves have asked a bit too much in demanding their own officials. "Neutral officials or nothing," seems to be the motto over South.

Although it is very doubtful whether the teams will get together or not, Manager Griffin stated today that he was willing to call another meeting of his players and see if the Cloverleaves will consent to play on any "reduced" terms. Any fans who may think the North End is holding out for too severe terms, should not place the blame on Manager Griffin alone. He is the "goat" so to speak. In other words, he represents the sentiment of his team and is the one who has to bear the brunt of the attack.

In speaking about the two managers, Griffin and Angello, we do not hesitate in saying that the South End manager took a wrong attitude on the matter. So far, he has not held any confab with Griffin regarding a game. He is waiting for Griffin to come over South for a game. This is almost too foolish to mention—that is, if his team really wants to win back the title. The Cubs are the challengers and Manager Angello should go right over North with his coach, Earl Wright and hold a discussion with Manager Griffin and Coach George Moonan. Manager Griffin will never go to the South End looking for a game. It is ridiculous for both to wait for the other to move. It is simply a game of checkers, but it is Angello's move.

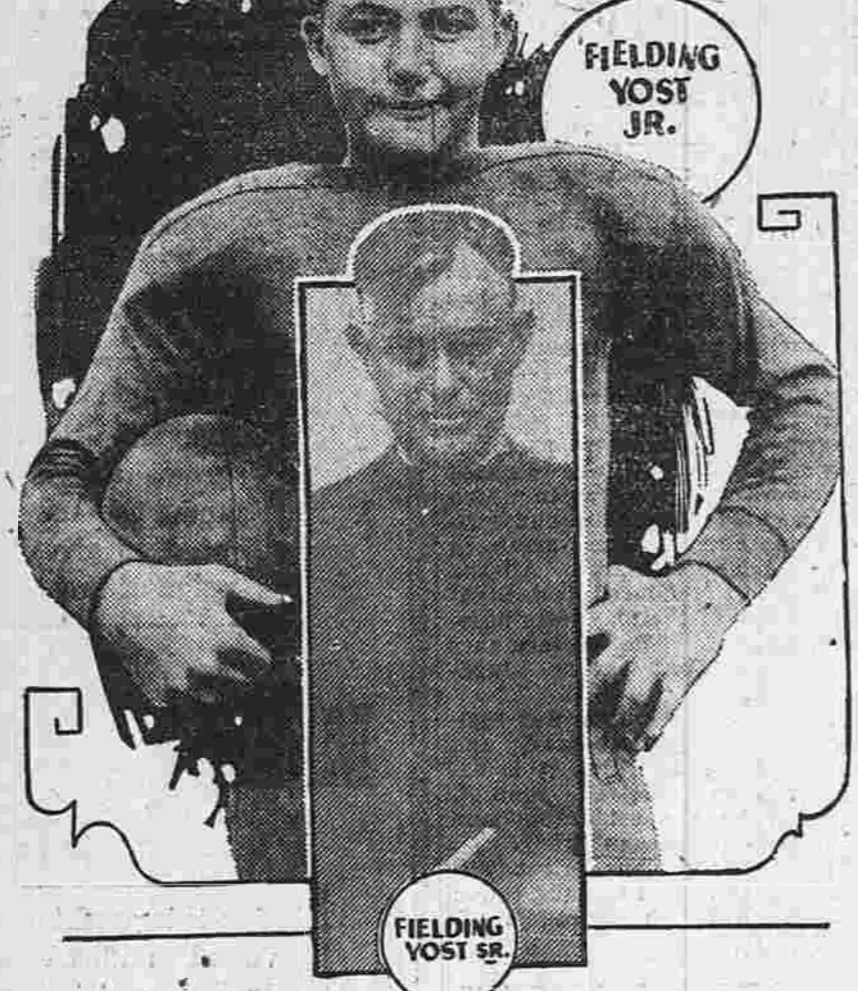

In typing the final paragraph to this column, the writer wishes to go on record as sincerely hoping the two teams will do their utmost to come to an agreement and give the Manchester fans what they are due.

Plainfield Wins Opener, 44 to 14; Five Manchester Boys in Lineup

(Special to The Herald)

Plainfield, Conn., Nov. 18.—The local Community Club basketball team which created a state-wide reputation last season by its feat on the chalked court, got away to a flying start in its 1926-27 season debut here last night, winning from the Aetna Fire five of Hartford, 44 to 14.

The outcome of the game was never in doubt from the first few minutes of play. The locals struck right back into that same system of passwork which won them so many games last season and the visitors were completely baffled. A large crowd watched the opening tussle. It proved nothing short of a practice tilt.

There was but one addition to the personnel of last season's team. Elmo Mantelli, another Manchester boy, has been added to the squad, which now consists of seven players instead of six as was the rule before. Mantelli, with the handicap of a broken nose, played part of the game and caged three baskets. Normandin and Dessinger led the attack with Stavitsky a close follower.

HORWEEN KEEPS TRYING UNKNOWN AT HARVARD

Cambridge, Nov. 17.—"Unknowns" still occupy the grid spotlight at Harvard. From the time Coach Arnold Horween became boss to the present day, new faces, previously unheard of in the ranks of Harvard football men, have continually broken into the Varsity line-up and in most instances their work eclipsed that of the veterans. The latest unknown to come to the front is Sidney Rudman, of Cambridge, a product of the Cambridge Latin school, an end, who will probably play against Yale.

Speaking of tough breaks Minnesota encountered one of the worst a few years ago while playing Northwestern.

The Gophers had a fairly strong team that year—1922. At least it looked like a team to whip the Purple. The size of the score seemed to be the only thing in doubt as the eleven took the field.

Minnesota counted early and with a 7-0 lead went into the second half a sure bet to cop. A few minutes later the Gophers had the oval on the Northwestern five-yard stripe. Another tally appeared certain as the Purple defense didn't seem capable of stopping the Norsemen's attack.

On the next play a Minnesota back plunged over the goal line, apparently chinking up another touchdown. He fumbled the leather, however, it bounding two yards behind the line.

Chuck Palmer, Northwestern's speed merchant, scooped up the free ball and set out for the Minnesota goal 102 yards away. Only Earl Martineau, Minnesota star, stood in Palmer's path. Palmer eluded him, however, running unimpeded for the tally. Goal was kicked and the game was tied at seven. There was no further scoring.

Thus was Minnesota held to a tie by a team at least two touchdowns inferior. Instead of a 14-0 victory the Gophers had to be content with a 7-7 tie. It was as tough a break as any team ever got.

Palmer's sensational career, incidentally, was one of the longest made in recent years. They're still talking about it in Big Ten circles.

GENE'S NEXT FIGHT DEPENDS ON PURSE

Will Leave Rickard if Fugazy Can Show Him More Money.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Nov. 18.—Gene Tunney, slightly miffed in his best ball room manner over "certain features" in connection with Tex Rickard's promotion of the recent unpleasantness in Philadelphia, may desert the czar in favor of the crown prince, nee Humbert J. Fugazy, it was learned on excellent authority today.

Under Fugazy's auspices, Tunney's opponent would be either Jack Sharkey, who exposed the colored gentleman in the woodpile, or Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion, and the bout, if held, will take place at the Polo Grounds during the late summer months.

Meantime, Delaney and Sharkey may meet for the right to challenge for the title. Both are bound to Fugazy, the former by contract, and the latter by contract, expiring, February 1.

Within the last 24 hours, Tunney and Fugazy have conferred on the matter and a second and final meeting is due on November 30. A definite proposition will be made to Tunney and then, if Rickard can't better it, Tunney will go over to the other camp. It is said that Tunney has been impressed by a statement from Fugazy that a lease on the Polo Grounds is as good as his.

From a lieutenant of Tunney's, it was learned today that the champion's grievances against Rickard are "unimportant" and that Gene feels quite friendly toward the promoter. He, however, is not disposed to let friendship interfere with business and, if Fugazy can show him more money, will definitely swing over to the other camp with Person or Maloney or Joe Windmill, the champion won't hesitate a split second by his handsome wrist watch.

C. B. A. TO PLAY THREE GAMES OVER THANKSGIVING DAY

Cheney Brothers' basketball team will need a hearty Thanksgiving Day dinner for Manager George Hunt, Jr. has arranged a baby barnstorming trip for over the holiday.

On Wednesday night, Thanksgiving Eve, the silk workers will play in Elmwood. Thanksgiving Day afternoon will find the locals in Tatville while in the evening they will transfer their luggage to Danielson.

The mill team will practice Thursday night at the School street Rec at 8:30 o'clock.

SAINTS WILL PLAY MERIDEN TONIGHT

Undaunted by their defeat at the hands of the Endeas last Saturday, the Saints will try conclusions with another Meriden team tonight in that city. They will stack up against the Insillos, conquerors of Cheney Brothers.

The local team will carry its usual lineup probably without Stavitsky. The lineup then will consist of Mantelli and Kerr at forward, Madden and Boyce in the back court with Roy Norris at center.

The team will leave the club at 7 o'clock and will make the trip by auto.

Who was runnerup to Feste Carter when he won the western amateur golf title and what was the score of the final match?—R. T. E.

Russell Martin, the score being 3 and 2.

Did Eddie Kid Wagner ever knock out Sid Terris, and if so, when and in how many rounds?—E. S.

Yes, in 1924, in six rounds.

S. M. H. S. AT WINDHAM SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Encouraged by its victories over West Hartford and Middletown, the local High school football eleven will travel to Willimantic Saturday afternoon to meet Windham High on the Recreational Park gridiron.

Windham claimed the state title last year and only lost two games in three seasons. Bristol pinned a 14 to 9 defeat on Windham last week in the Bell City. It was a stirring battle and the outcome hung in balance until the final minutes of play when the Bristol quarterback purposely made a safety to prevent his team from losing.

A football rally was held this afternoon at the local High school. The S. M. H. S. band will go to the game and it is expected that there will be a large number of the student body who will attend the game.

upon the three persons near the now famous crabapple tree. Q. When you got to the tree did you get off the mule? A. Yes, and tied the mule to a cedar tree. Q. What if any did you hear? A. I heard muffled voices. They kept coming closer and closer. Q. What did you hear them say? A. I heard someone say: "How do you explain these letters?" "Then I heard: 'God-damn it, let go!' Then I heard the wind going out of some one. Then I heard some one scream. There was a flash of light from here to there (illustrated) and something glittered. Q. Then did you hear a woman's voice? A. I heard a shot and a woman say: "Henry, easy, easy, easy, Henry!" then there was a shot and something fell to the ground. Then a woman was screaming. Q. What did you do? A. I ran for my mule and jumped on it. I stubbed my toe on a stump while I ran. Q. That was when you lost your moccasins? A. Yes. Then came shots—Bang, bang, bang. I was on my mule, by this time. Q. Then what did you do? A. I went home and sat down and began thinking about my own. And thinking about those shots. I says to myself, "There is something wrong." So I went back and tied my mule to a tree and I heard something like a screech and then I got off my mule and the moon was shining very bright. Then I looked and saw a gray-haired woman was on her knees doing something with her hands. Q. And have you identified that woman? A. Yes, Mrs. Hall. Q. Have you identified the man you saw? A. Yes, Henry Stevens. Q. Do you see in this courtroom any persons you saw that night? Her head was raised by the nurse. A. Yes. Q. Point them out. She then identified Mrs. Hall and her brothers. The court room, packed far beyond its capacity, was held in hushed silence by Mrs. Gibson's story. Mrs. Hall Nervous As she told of seeing Mrs. Hall kneeling and weeping, Mrs. Hall raised her gloved hand to her face, then dropped it, and clenched it into a fist. Her lips worked nervously; Henry Stevens was plainly nervous for the first time since the trial started and his ruddy face lost some of its color. He did not drop his gaze, however, holding his head high, his eyes on the witness. Defense Attorney Case asked the identity of a person standing near Salome Carrener, Mrs. Gibson's aged mother, who is to be a witness for the defense against her daughter. Simpson told Case it was a police officer put there in case "you (Case) have planned for her to cry out while this woman is testifying." "I object to this," shouted Case. "Oh, well," said Simpson nonchalantly, "he is there to preserve order." Tells Of Di Martini Visit Prosecutor Simpson then took a picture of Felix Di Martini, who for several months after the murder, was Mrs. Hall's private detective and asked the woman lying on the bed if she had ever seen him before. "Yes," said Mrs. Gibson, "he came to my window and said: 'I will pay you to keep your mouth out of this. I banged my gun on the floor and told him to get out of the house.' " "Why did you bang the gun down?" Simpson asked. "I was afraid of him. He got right out." While Mrs. Gibson was giving her dramatic testimony in a setting more strange than ever witnessed in a courtroom, Henry De La Brupere, Carrener, also charged with murder, but not on trial now, was brought into court from the jail tunnel and was seated near Henry Stevens. Simpson asked the jurors if they had heard all of Mrs. Gibson's testimony, of which was given in a weak, barely audible voice. One of the jurors said he did not, so the court stenographer read the testimony to the twelve men. Like Dead Woman Meanwhile Mrs. Gibson asked the nurse to prop her up a little and she wiped her perspiring forehead with a handkerchief. Then she closed her tired eyes. In profile her face might have been that of a dead woman. An occasional movement of her hands, once brown with heavy work, now gray with hospital pallor, indicated she was really alive, but very weak. The physician standing by Mrs. Gibson's bed, took her pulse. When the court stenographer finished, defense counsel Clarence E. Case then began a cross examination of the witness. Cross-Examined Case's examination was conducted in a considerate tone. He asked his questions slowly. Q. Mrs. Gibson, do you know Mr. Ferd David (Middlesex county detective)? A. Yes, sir. Q. Do you remember one evening when he requested you to go over what you did that night? A. They didn't ask me to do nothing. I went over the same thing all over again. Q. You remember that evening? A. Yes. It was the night after Clifford Hayes was arrested. Hayes is the chap who four years ago was accused of the murder by Raymond Schneider, who with Pearl Bahmer found the bodies of Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills in De Russey's lane on Saturday morning, September 18, 36 hours after the slaying. Q. Is it a fact that you returned to the scene in the daylight of the next day? A. No, I did not. I didn't go back until I went with David.

Case asked her if she knew George Seidle. She said she did. Case asked her if she ever told him she would like to tell a certain story. She hesitated and then replied: "Oh, yes, I remember. He said to me: 'How much will you take for two mules?' " Case switched quickly to another question. Q. Did you tell Mr. Tallor and Mr. David that while you were riding along De Russey's lane you did not get off the mule, but rode straight home after hearing the shots? A. No. Mrs. Gibson seemed to be getting weak at this point. Dr. Chas. Snyder, the young physician in attendance, took her temperature. It was 102.4. The sick woman shook her head from side to side as Case tried time and again to get her to say that she tried to get George Seidel to corroborate her story of what she saw in the lane on the night of the murders. "I did not," she reiterated with each negative shake of the head. Case switched his cross examination as the physician finished. Q. Were you able to identify Mrs. Hall and Henry and Willie Stevens in the prosecutor's office in New Brunswick on October 1, 1932? A. I wasn't asked to identify nobody. Q. Did you tell John Fitzgerald, a reporter, that you could not identify anybody? A. I told him I had nothing to say. Case then asked Mrs. Gibson if she didn't remember testifying at the preliminary hearing in August, 1926, in answer to a question by Simpson that: "I saw something glitter and saw a man's face." Case turned and pointed to Henry Carpendar, the fourth defendant in the case, who is to be tried later, and who has been brought into the courtroom from his cell this morning. "Did you not say," asked Case amid an impressive silence in the court room, "that it was 'this man here'?" "Yes," replied Mrs. Gibson. "Mr. Carpendar, come here," commanded Case. Carpendar arose and stood at the witness stand. "That's one of the men," Mrs. Gibson said. "You didn't say anything about there being any other man there." "Nobody asked me," was her reply. After she identified Carpendar, Case asked her: "Were you asked if you saw other forms that might be men and you said, 'I could not see. There was something moving but it was dark, I could not see.' " "Yes," she replied. Her Various Names "You were sworn here today as Mrs. Easton," Case went on. "You are also known as Mrs. Gibson: which is your name?" "Both." She explained she got the name Jane Gibson when she was on the Gibson farm "because of the Gibson farm products, and I never said nothing." "Jane Easton is my married name," she added. She said she was married to a man named Easton in 1919 in "some little church around the corner." She didn't remember where it happened in New Jersey but she didn't recall the city or town. "Your maiden name was Elsie Leiner, was it not?" Case asked. "It was my father's name, she admitted, but he never used that name. "Will you tell by what various names you have been known?" "You know them now." "You were baptised Mary, were you not?" "Mary Jane Leiner." Case asked her if she wasn't known by various names—Mary and Jane Easton and Jessie Easton. She said she was. "Were you also called Anna King?" "No." Remembers One Husband Mrs. Gibson announced she wished to change the date of her marriage, making it 1900 instead of 1919. "How many husbands have you had?" Case asked. "Only one that I can remember." Mrs. Gibson was asked if she was married to Frederick Kisselring, on August 13, 1890. "No," she replied. She said Kisselring was a married man with two children. "Did he not divorce you, January 4, 1898, on the grounds of your adultery?" "No, that was some other woman." She denied she had lived with Kisselring as his wife. She also denied she ever lived with Harry Ray. "Who is he?" demanded the woman on the bed, her voice rising. "I never lived with Tom. Dick or Harry Ray." "You once sang in concert halls?" "Yes." Simpson objected and was sustained. She didn't know Stumpy Gillen, she said, in reply to another question. "Where you not living at Gillen's roadhouse near New Brunswick in 1907?" "No." The embarrassing questions did not seem to bother Mrs. Gibson. From time to time the doctor took her temperature. Dr. Snyder asked Mrs. Gibson if she felt well enough to continue. "Almost through." "This is the last time I'm going to testify," she replied weakly. "I am going to stop soon." The doctor shook his head and muttered: "This is terrible." Mrs. Gibson again denied she told Detective Ferd David on October 17, 1932, that she could not identify Mrs. Hall, Henry Stevens or Willie Stevens, as those she saw at the murder scene. Case asked her what kind of a firearm she used when she ordered Di Martini, Mrs. Hall's detective, from her farm house. Mrs. Gibson explained she merely pounded on the floor with a double-barrelled twelve-inch shotgun. "Didn't you also have a pistol?" "No." "Did you carry a pistol with you?" "No." Within Six Feet Mrs. Gibson said she got to within thirty feet of the wagon she was following the night of the murders, but couldn't see who was in it. "How many times have you been in De Russey's lane since the night of the murders?" Case asked. "Three times, with the detectives." Q. How far from you were the two people you said you saw? A. About six feet ahead of me. They were standing in the road. Q. There was no attempt to conceal their identity at all. A. I didn't notice about that. The doors were closed and the air was stifling. All lights in the courtroom were lit. The longer Mrs. Gibson testified the weaker she seemed to get. It was a terrific ordeal for a seriously ill woman whose temperature had mounted to 102.4. Witness Wearying Case asked Mrs. Gibson why she penetrated so far into De Russey's lane on the night of the murders. She said it to the mule. "How near the crabapple tree were you?" "Forty or fifty feet." "Why did you go near the crabapple tree?" "I heard the quarrelling, the cursing and the swearing." She said she was about ten feet from the cedar tree where she tied her mule when she first heard the quarrelling voices. "First they came from the right, then from the left and then right up close," she explained, wearily. There was no indication at this point of any intention of the defense to abandon the cross-examination. "How far had you gone from the place when you tied your mule when you saw them?" asked Case. "About ten feet." "You say you saw a flashlight. Who held it?" "I don't know." "How many people were there that you saw?" "Three or four." Dr. Snyder leaned over and asked her if she wanted to stop. "No, I'll go on," she replied. Continued questioning failed to shake the sick woman's story. When Case quizzed her on her second visit to the scene of the murder she said she heard a noise like a screech owl. It proved to be a woman crying. As the cross-examination ended at 2:37 o'clock Mrs. Gibson lay in bed, dramatically pointing her finger at Mrs. Hall and said: "I have told the truth here today, so help me God—and you know it!" Mrs. Hall turned deathly pale.

PLAN "CHURCH NIGHTS" AT 2D CONGREGATIONAL Series of Suppers and Entertainments to Be Given During Winter. At a meeting of the Second Congregational church members last evening at the home of E. E. Segar it was decided to hold meetings called "Church Nights" on the second Thursday evening in each month for five months. The parish has been divided by a committee into five neighborhood groups, each group to have complete charge of a supper for each church night. A small charge will be made for the supper, simply to defray the expenses, and a program will follow the supper. It was suggested that during the month of Easter, a Lenten service be given as a program. The chairman appointed are as follows: For December supper, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wright, for the group living on North Elm, Washington, Henry and Woodbridge, east of Oaklan. The doors were closed and the air was stifling. All lights in the courtroom were lit. The longer Mrs. Gibson testified the weaker she seemed to get. HUI! GAROLINE COSTS BUT 25c A GALLON "Declined with thanks" could be the headline of this story and it would be an apt headline at the time. Conductor Ed Mohr of the local trolley lines was returning from Hartford the other night when the trolley pole of his car went off the wire. The rope to the pole was broken so the conductor had to climb to the roof of the car and put the trolley on with his hands. As there is considerable grease and dirt on trolley poles, Mohr's hands were covered. About to wipe his hands on a curtain in the car after he had descended, he was stopped by a man who took a bottle out of a little Boston bag. Mohr used it to wash his hands, the stuff working like magic. "Oh, that's wallpaper cleaner that we make over in East Hartford," said the owner of the bottle. "It makes a good drink too," he said as he tossed off a generous bumper. "And it only costs $1.50 a gallon." RALLY 'ROUND TEAM FOR WINDHAM GAME High School Students Give Encouragement to Eleven For Saturday's Big Battle. The final rally before the Manchester High-Windham football game Saturday was held this afternoon in the High school hall. speeches were made by members of the team and the student body and the affair wound up with the singing of school songs and practice in cheering. Charles Treat presided at the meeting and called for a short talk from Clarence LaCoss, captain of the team, who is playing his third and last game against Willmantic on Saturday. Ludwig Hansen, quarterback, who is also an honor roll man, spoke for a few minutes and was followed by Miss Hilda Magnuson. Terry Shannon spoke in behalf of the subs on the team while Coach Kelley explained some of the strategy that will be used on Saturday. James Quish represented the alumni. The band is to go to Willmantic on Saturday. Members of the Kiwanis club have donated their cars to take the musicians up. Buses will take students and the team to the Tread City and it is expected that about 200 will be in the party. Cars will leave the Rec at 12:30. Coach Guver of Storrs will be in charge in Saturday's game and other officials will also be members of the coaching staff of that college. ITALIAN SPEED ACE CALLS ON COOLIDGE Washington, Nov. 12.—Bearing America's last remaining air record in his pocket, Major Mario De Bernardi, the crack pilot of the Italian army, came to Washington today to make his official farewells before returning home. Before returning home, he won the Schneider cup races at Norfolk last Saturday in record time, defeating the American navy's premier planes and pilots, and just before leaving Norfolk late yesterday broke the world's speed record over a three-mile course. His little red monoplane hurtled over the straightway course at a rate of 258.87 miles an hour, breaking the previous record held by Lieutenant Jimmy Doolittle, U. S. A. by more than 13 miles. The little Italian was presented to President Coolidge this morning and congratulated on his achievement.

LITTLE JOE "A MAN HAS AT LEAST ONE FAULT WHEN HE CLAIMS HE HASN'T ANY..." BIG CROWD ATTENDS ST. JAMES BAZAAR This year's annual bazaar of St. James' parish opened last evening in the Parish hall on Park street. A crowd estimated at over five hundred attended. It was by far the largest crowd that has yet attended one of these bazaars. A musical play, "A Dream" was presented by members of the junior choir and the children's chorus under the direction of Charles Packard. The youngsters performed remarkably well and amazed their elders with the way in which they executed the dance numbers. The dance numbers were arranged by Miss Ariene Mortuary. All the solo numbers rendered last night in the course of the play were heartily applauded. The performance was a success from every standpoint. Quite a sum of money was realized from last night's bazaar, and coupled with that which it is expected will be received tonight, there will be a considerable sum to start the new organ fund. Tonight the various prizes will be raffled off. Dance music will be furnished by Al Behrend's orchestra. REPORT TRACTION MEN INSPECT LOCAL LINES. Rumors in Manchester today were to the effect that engineers of Samuel G. Insull's traction company of Illinois are here inspecting the Rockville and Manchester trolley lines with a view either to purchase or the establishment of an opposition line to the Connecticut company. According to reports, the men have been timing the runs between Hartford, Rockville and Manchester, and have been sounding out public opinion concerning the service here and what service is expected when the carbarns are moved to Hartford. Insull's traction company is the greatest in the middle west, covering a large part of the state of Illinois and surrounding states. His corporation is an $83,000,000 affair.

KID 'COUNTRY STORE' AT STATE SATURDAY

Since there has been so many requests from local kiddies for such an event, Manager Jack Sanson announced today that there will be a children's gift day at Saturday afternoon of this week at the State theater. It will be in the nature of a Children's "Country Store." Wednesday night is always the grown-ups gift night, and the kids evidently are quite desirous of having such a time for themselves. Conforming to many requests for such an innovation, Manager Sanson will continue to have gift afternoon for the children on Saturdays. The vaudeville performers will do "clowning for the kids. That is, the performers who take part in the regular vaudeville program will, after the show, amuse the kids as part of the gift day program.

A Love Story

A Mystery Story

A War Story

BEGINS IN THE HERALD--MONDAY, NOVEMBER 29

BETTY

ONE rain-swept night in October of 1898 a strange and beautiful woman was taken from a passing train to the home of Mollie and Prof Elwell. Late that night twin girls were born to the mysterious stranger, who died without telling her name or whence she came.

That is the story's start. You next meet the girls 17 years later. You are curious about the mystery of their birth. You are anxious to know which of the girls Jim Elwell loves. You know it is one of them, but not until the story is almost finished do you learn which of the girls it is.

And when Jim Elwell goes to war you will thrill at the part he plays, for a shell blots out his memory and he is reported dead, and listed as another man.

Threads of fate . . . Broken and snarled in the hands of a whimsical Destiny . . . Pieced together in the end to form one of the most surprising climaxes you ever have read.

With 48 superb half-tone pictures. Another smashing NEA serial story.

Written by Clifford L. Webb in collaboration with Ernest Lynn, NEA fiction editor.

FLAPPER FANNY says

Some people run out of gas, and others out of judgment, when driving a car.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

'Yes,' said the beautiful girl reflectively, 'I married for love and I'm going to keep right on marrying until I get it.' Teacher: 'Take your hands out of your pockets, Willie.' Willie: 'I can't. My suspender's broke.' IF YOU WERE NEAR Life's journey would be bright, — If you were near; It's burden would seem light, — If you were near; The sunshine of your smile Would illumine every mile, I could work and laugh the while — If you were near. One of the best things going is the guest who has outstayed his welcome. 'How's business selling houses?' 'Well, I can't real estate.' Clara is so dumb she thinks Red Grange is an agricultural society. Distracted mother: John, will you speak to these boys? Father: Good evening, children. If you want to commit the crime of Killing Time be sure it is your own. Here lies the remains of a radio fan Now mourned by his many relations. He went to a powder mill, smoking his pipe And was picked up twenty-one stations. Magistrate: Did you and your husband quarrel on Friday night? Wife: What? And the next day pay day? I should say not. No use is crying over spilt milk. Consider yourself lucky for not spilling the beans. Glass bottom boats are being used now to take you out to see the pretty starfish that are thriving on your land. If you are a self-starter the boss won't have to be a crank. MISS BUTTERFLY You can't but smile at what she wears. Although it is her ruling passion. She now puts on a lot of airs. And thinks she's dressed, for that's the fashion. 'Strike one,' said the umpire, as he handed his friend a box of matches. R. R. Porter: You dropped your pocket-book, miss. Upper Bertha: Sir, that's my overnight case. Fashion Note: Sual' boys trousers will be worn sliding down banisters. Music charms some, literature delights many, and oratory pleases a fine bunch, but something good to eat catches them all. Dear Editor: What should I take when I am run down?—Anxious. Dear Anxious: Take the license number.—Editor. The best angle from which to approach a problem is a try-angle. 'People have quit having piazzas.'

CHILD'S TEST

Here's a test for the children. Study the questions and see how many you can answer. Then turn to another page for the correct answers: 1—What is wrong with the accompanying picture? 2—How many hours are there in a month of 30 days? 3—Who was president of the United States when the Monroe Doctrine was declared? 4—Of what political party was President Andrew Jackson? 5—Correct this sentence: From who did you get them books? 6—In the game of checkers may a man jump more than one opposing checker? 7—Is the shape of the earth a perfect globe? 8—Who was the Roman god of war? 9—Is an automobile owner required to have a federal license to drive his car? 10—What is the largest city in the state of Colorado? Finding One's Place 'This is just the place for me,' Said the humorist at the shore, 'For here whenever I crack a joke The breakers simply roar.' Gladys—Where will we go tonight? Let's go up on the belfry. 'Nothing doing. I was there once with a fellow and the bell tolled on us.'

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

THE TINYMITES BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) By this time it was close to night and up spoke Scenty Tynmite, 'I think that we will hide our cart behind the shed,' said he. 'And then we'll find a place to sleep. I'm sure the food will safely keep until the morn when we will be as hungry as can be.' And, all the time one Tynmite was looking on in keen delight. 'Twas Clowny, who had planned to play a joke upon the band. 'They've stopped their search for me,' he thought, 'and so a lesson they'll be missing. Their food will soon be missing, which they will not understand.' The tribe soon left their little cart and for the haystack made a dart. The voice of Coppy broke out clear. 'We'll sleep up in the hay.' 'Ha, ha,' laughed Clowny, in the tree. 'They're leaving all their food to me. They surely all will be surprised when comes another day.' He waited for an hour or so, then thought that it was safe to go and have a feast all by himself, on food they'd left behind. He shinned down the old tree trunk, and slipped and toppled down kerplunk but, shucks, it didn't hurt him, so he really didn't mind. And then he raced back to the shed. 'Oh, me, oh my, oh me,' he said, on seeing what was in the cart. 'Here's where I have my fling.' Perhaps his act was rather rude, but still he climbed up in the food, and sat right down to eat his fill, and eat it like a king. 'Tomorrow we will see some fun,' said Clowny when the meal was done. 'Just think what all the Tynmites will say when they appear. I guess the safest place for me, is back up in that maple tree. Then I can see their big surprise before they know I'm here.' (To Be Continued) (The Tynmites find Clowny in the next story.)

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ANNUAL IS POSTPONED

Less Than Quorum Attends Scheduled Meeting Last Night; New Date Set For Dec. 1.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Chamber of Commerce did not occur last night as was scheduled. The attendance was insufficient to legalize the election. Only 17 members were present. This is 13 less than a quorum. It appears that many of the members attended the Fathers and Sons banquet.

In speaking about the matter this morning, Secretary George E. Rix announced that the meeting will be held Wednesday evening, Dec. 1, at the Hotel Sheridan. A dinner will be served at 6:30 and there will be either a speaker or entertainment.

DISCOUNT REPORT BOY WAS INJURED BY GUN

Alfred Gill, 12-year-old Coventry youth, who was recently reported to have been accidentally shot, was discharged from Memorial hospital yesterday. It was stated that there was a misunderstanding in connection with his injury.

First reports were that a careless hunter had shot him near the school house in Coventry. Both hands were badly injured and two fingers had to be amputated from one of them. Today, however, it was stated that State Police investigated the case and were convinced the boy was not injured by a gun.

It is pointed out that the boy could not have been injured so severely from a range so far away that the hunter could not be seen. It is believed by some that the boy in some manner got hold of a dynamite explosive cap.

FIRST MASTOID CASE

Joseph Kittle, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Kittle of 32 Essex street, is making satisfactory progress at Memorial hospital following a serious operation he underwent Tuesday morning.

The boy was operated on for an acute mastoid which was the result of an abscess in his ear. This is the first case of the kind at Memorial hospital this year, it was stated. However, cases of this kind are usual at this time of the year. The operations are said to be extremely dangerous. The Kittle boy, however, has come through the ordeal well.

TOWN PLAYERS GIVE 'DULCY' ON DEC. 9

"Dulcy," the three-act comedy which the Town Players have been rehearsing for the past month, will be given at the Circle theater on Thursday evening, December 9, in conjunction with the milk fund of the Educational club. A committee of Town Players will meet with a group of the Educational club members on Friday evening at 7 o'clock to complete details.

The comedy is written by Connelly and Kaufman and has been given in several big cities, enjoying large runs in some of them. It is being coached by Miss Marjorie C. Geary, director of the club, who has had for her assistant during the past week, Louis Smith. Mr. Smith has been a student of dramatics as well as an actor for some years.

Last year the Players gave "Her Husband's Wife" for the Educational club and the State theater was packed to the doors at the presentation. It is expected that this play, the second big effort of the Players, will be attended by a large crowd.

The following cast will present the play:
 Dulcy, the wife Ruth Smith
 Gordon Smith, her husband Albert Pearson
 Bill, her brother Elmer Johnson
 Forbes, a business man Albert Eddy
 Mrs. Forbes Eva McComb
 Angela, their daughter Edythe Schplitz
 Vincent Leach, scenarist Leonard Johnson
 Sterrett, advertising engineer Harry Bellamy
 Henry, the butler Harold Maher

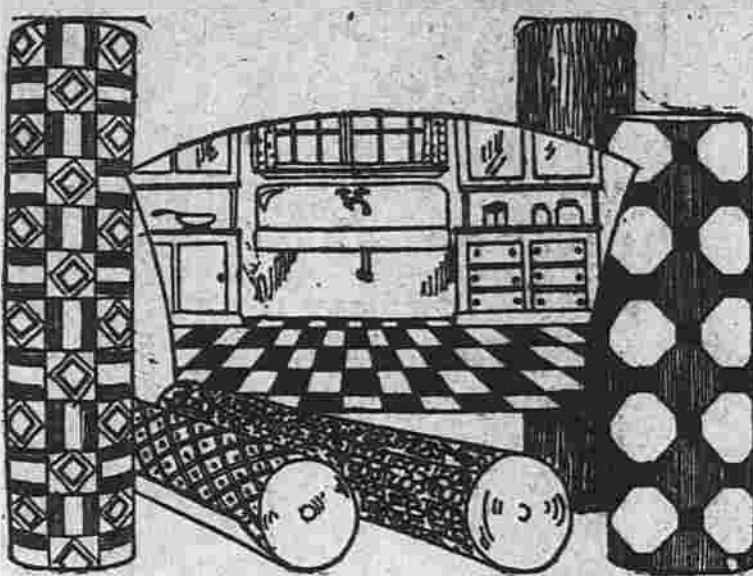

FESTIVAL CANTATA HERE SUNDAY NIGHT

It is particularly fitting that for the special monthly musical service at the South Methodist church next Sunday night, Tertius Noble's "Gloria Domini" has been chosen. It is a portrayal in song of the building of the Temple of Solomon and a paean of thanks to Jehovah for all His mercies toward Israel. It is one year this month, since the new church at Main and Hartford roads was dedicated, and therefore the words and sentiment of the "Gloria Domini" are most appropriate.

The work is for baritone solo and chorus, the voice of Solomon, giving thanks to God, and calling on the people to worship Him, being put into the mouth of the baritone; in this case Robert Gordon, well known Manchester singer. The composer, hearing that the cantata was to be given in Manchester on his part, so at the time of Mr. Noble's recent recital in Hartford, Mr. Gordon met him there, and had thorough instruction in the entire part.

Mr. Noble expressed himself as delighted with the voice, and said that the role of Solomon, lying very high as it does, would be "ideally placed." The choruses are brilliant and virile, the recitative passages being delegated to men's voices. The service will be at 7:30 o'clock on Sunday night, and the public is cordially invited.
