

CHORAL CLUB MAKES PUBLIC ITS PROGRAM

Selections For Next Monday's Concert Announced Today—Ready For Brilliant Performance.

The Men's Choral club of Manchester announces the program for its sixth concert, to be given next Monday evening at 8:15 at High school hall. This program, which is given in full below, contains many strong numbers, which the club feels confident will delight the audience Monday evening. The committee in charge stated today that as a result of the many and painstaking rehearsals the club is now practically ready for the concert. However, the concert next Monday evening will be used for the finishing touches and there will be a final rehearsal next Sunday afternoon.

In addition to the well known capabilities of the Choral club, comprising as it does the best singers of Manchester, the committee in charge has secured as assisting artists musicians whose ability is recognized throughout the country. Richard Crooks, the tenor soloist, has a fine reputation, which has already been commented upon by The Herald. In commenting on Mr. Crooks' recent appearance in New York City, Olin Downes, the eminent music critic of the conservative New York "Times," says:

"Not many tenors—perhaps no other American tenor in the concert field—have voices of equal texture, beauty, and capacity for emotional expression. He can announce English text with much clearness and effect. He is a singer of exceptional capacity, with more than his share of natural gifts, and no doubt with the ambition and sincerity to push on."

Other Artists
Equally prominent in musical circles are the two other assisting artists, namely, Hazel Theodorowicz, cellist of Boston, and Mildred Godfrey Hill, harpist, of Meriden. These two artists have splendid reputations and have been enthusiastically received wherever they have appeared in concert work.

At the last concert of the Choral Club, which was held last April, the attendance aggregated 900 persons, and judging from the demands for tickets made to members and to Watkins Brothers and Kemp's Music Store, the distributing points, the audience next Monday evening will duplicate that of last April. In view of the splendid program prepared, persons who are not associate members of the club are urged to arrange at once for their tickets.

Cleveland Police Break Up Nest, Capture 38, in Tear-Gas Offensive.

Cleveland, Nov. 23.—Armed with riot guns and tear gas bombs and protected by bullet-proof armor, 33 Cleveland detectives early today wiped out what is believed to have been the most vicious crime groups in the state, in a house located near Berea. The officers captured 28 men and ten women.

Twelve stolen automobiles and thousands of dollars worth of loot were recovered.

One murderer and two escaped convicts are said to have been among the captured persons.

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, Nov. 23.—Treasury balance as of Nov. 20: $147,286,824.32.

"OLD UNCLE SAM" MAX BE BRAND FOR A COOLD

Washington, Nov. 23.—"Old Uncle Sam"—that may be the brand of America's medicinal whiskey of the future.

At the Treasury today it was stated that under the plan of General Lincoln C. Andrews, dry chief, for establishment of a semi-official distillery to make all medicinal liquors, only one brand will be produced.

All physicians' prescriptions for "something for a cold," will call for this brand. No name has yet been designated but that at least of the Treasury's worries.

The official brand, however, will be guaranteed five years old, aged in wood, of pleasant aroma and absolutely pure.

CAMPAIGN TEAMS BUSY ON 'CLEAN-UP'

Community Club Workers Going Over Their Districts For Final Canvass.

A survey of activities in the campaign of the Manchester Community Club to raise finances was made last evening, and all team workers today received the word to start in on the final "clean-up" in their respective territories. In using the term "clean-up," the committee did not contemplate bodily or financial attack, but the general sounding up of everybody in the different districts who has not yet contributed to the Community club campaign fund.

Those who have been directing the campaign are much pleased with the progress made, especially as the German purported to be bound from Bremen, Germany, to Halifax. As far as could be ascertained today, no formal charges have been made against the ship or her crew of 16 Government men who went aboard the ship, she contained in her hold 100,000 cases of Scotch whiskey, valued at bootleg prices, at $8,000,000.

Coast Guardsmen intimated that the German vessel had been seized on direct orders from Washington. Men who boarded the ship said she was armed, but that she made no attempt to use her guns when boarded.

At New York Request
Washington, Nov. 23.—Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the coast guard, announced today that the German bark Carmen, seized 140 miles at sea by the destroyer McCall, was taken at the request of Division Commander A. J. Henderson, of the Coast Guard at New York.

Henderson requested that the Coast Guard fleet seize the Carmen.

TWO TOWNS HARD HIT BY MILLS REMOVAL

Ware, Mass., Likely to Lose Chief Industry, Greenville, N. H., Affected.

Springfield, Nov. 23.—The town of Ware in Massachusetts and the town of Greenville in New Hampshire each received a severe blow today when the officers of the Otis Company notified stockholders to meet in Boston December 6 to approve plans of the directors to move the textile mills of the company in the two towns to the south.

The mills are the chief industry of both Ware and Greenville and manufacture cotton underwear and awnings. Mills of the Otis Company in Three Rivers and Bondville, engaged in manufacturing cotton specialties, will be continued.

Ware, with a total population of 9,000 has 1,500 operatives working in the Otis mill. The Greenville mill is a smaller unit.

SEIZE GERMAN RUM SHIP 140 MILES AT SEA

Unexplained Act of Coast Guard Brings Five Million Dollar Cargo Into New York Harbor.

Washington, Nov. 23.—The German steamer Carmen, seized 140 miles at sea by a prohibition destroyer and towed into New York, has been officially released and the Coast Guard officials at New York who seized her have apologized for it as "all a mistake," according to a message to the German embassy here this afternoon.

A. J. Henderson, Coast Guard commander at New York, has called on Gustave Heuser, German consul general, and assured the consul it was a mistake, according to the embassy's advice.

Very Mysterious.

New York, Nov. 23.—Mysterious, rum-laden, the German Barkentine Carmen, of Hamburg, rode anchor almost within the shadow of the Statue of Liberty today under strict watch of Coast Guardsmen. The Carmen was seized while 140 miles at sea and towed here by the Coast Guard destroyer McCall.

Federal officials refused to divulge why the craft had been seized so far from American shores, especially as the Carmen purported to be bound from Bremen, Germany, to Halifax. As far as could be ascertained today, no formal charges have been made against the ship or her crew of 16 Government men who went aboard the ship, she contained in her hold 100,000 cases of Scotch whiskey, valued at bootleg prices, at $8,000,000.

ULSTER OPPOSED TO THE REORGANIZATION

Objects to Proposed Status as a Unit Outside of the United Kingdom.

London, Nov. 23.—The Imperial conference held its final meeting at 10 Downing street today and adopted the full report submitted by the various committees.

The outstanding feature of the report is the proposal for a reorganization of the British empire, which will make the dominions more free and will make it impossible for the mother country to take action binding the dominions without their consent.

The various features of the report of the imperial conference must now be submitted to the dominion legislatures.

Ulsters Opposed

Belfast, Nov. 23.—The Ulster government will raise objections to the proposed reorganization of the British Empire, as suggested by the imperial conference, it was decided today at a meeting of the Ulster cabinet.

Premier Craig and the ministers of finance and labor have left for London to make representations to the government on the proposed changes.

The Ulster government fears that the change of the title of the king, which would mention Ireland as a unit, may prejudice the status of Ulster, which still considers itself as a part of the United Kingdom.

HERMINE DENIES THE EX-KAISER'S VERY ILL

Berlin, Nov. 23.—The former German kaiser, who has been suffering from rheumatism for the past ten days, was much improved today. Princess Hermine sends a telegram as follows:

"The reports that the former kaiser is 'seriously ill' are unfounded. He has been suffering from rheumatism for the last ten days, but is much improved today and is getting up."

Says Game Sanctuaries Foster Game's Enemies

Hartford, Nov. 23.—Conditions a large extent, he says for the extermination of predatory birds and hunting house cats, and the fur trappers for killing of quadrupeds. No system has been worked out for a general war upon vermin, but on state game preserves the commission authorizes responsible persons to trap bearers, and in some instances to carry guns for the extermination of such vermin as the great horned owl, bad hawks and crows.

Regarding one inconsistency in the game laws, Mr. Titcomb says that under the federal migratory bird law the number of herons has greatly increased and in some localities they are proving very detrimental.

The Deadly Heron
"Under favorable conditions," he says "one heron will rapidly devour an incredible number of trout and when such conditions are discovered by her practically every trout in a pool has been exterminated. There is evidence that a blue heron on two night visits to a Connecticut stream, devoured 500 trout."

NO. 1 ANNUAL DANCE TO DRAW BIG CROWD

Firemen Find Big Demand For Tickets—Turkey, Goose, Pig Awards.

Manchester generally celebrates the coming of the Thanksgiving season by attending the annual social and dance of the Hose and Ladder Co., No. 1, of the South Manchester Fire department in Cheney Hall. Tomorrow night, judging from all reports, Cheney Hall will be crowded for this year's affair. Tickets have sold well, and the books of "turkey, goose and pig" raffle tickets have beaten all previous sale records.

There will be modern and old fashion dancing at the social, refreshments will be served and a feature of the evening will be the awarding of the large number of prizes. Interest always centers on "who gets the turkey?" Usually some out-of-town ticket buyer gets the big prizes, but this year may prove an exception.

To Buy Equipment

The reason for holding these annual Thanksgiving Eve socials is a good one. When the South Manchester Fire department was organized in 1892, the members volunteered their services for the protection of the district, but made plans to secure its own equipment at no cost to the district. The money derived from the socials goes toward this equipment fund.

Recently the company added a new one-man, motor driven, combination chemical engine, hose, hook and ladder truck. This entailed considerable expense and tomorrow night's affair will help to pay the cost of the new equipment.

The committee in charge of the social are as follows:

General Committees

Says U. S. Soldiers Are Housed Worse than Criminals in Jail

Washington, Nov. 23.—"The most vital, the most neglected and the most harmful evil of all those under which the army is suffering today 'living conditions,'" said Major General William J. Snow, chief of field artillery, in his annual report to Secretary of War Davis, made public today.

"No delay should be permitted in presenting for remedy the deplorable housing conditions in the army," said the report.

"In fire traps of the most absurd nature it houses its personnel, animals and material. Criminals in many local jails and most penitentiaries are incomparably more com-

MANN ACT IS INVOLVED WIRED TANGLE

Society Elopers From New York Held in Frisco; Step-Father-in-Law and Step-Daughter-in-Law.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 23.—Captain Arnoldo Marson, Italian war hero and former executive of the New York Edison Company, was arrested here yesterday, charged with violation of the Mann Act. His companion, Mrs. Isabelle Keyes Burch, is held as a material witness. She is a member of the prominent Burch family of New York.

The apprehension of the couple here disclosed a "garbled" status of the Burch marital affairs.

At the conclusion of the war, Lyndon Walkup Burch, grandson of the late Bishop Charles Sumner Burch of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York, returned from England, where he had been an aviator in the royal air forces, and married Isabelle Keyes, young society girl.

Met In War Work

About the time Burch was married, his mother, Mrs. Grace Burch Walkup, Bishop Burch's only daughter, was serving with the Serbian Red Cross at Saloniki. There she met Captain Marson, the dashing Italian officer. They were married in New York in 1920.

In New York Captain Marson met young Burch's wife. They fell in love with each other and sought to find a way out for themselves. Burch, according to the story, was willing to grant his wife a divorce in order that she might marry Captain Marson, but the captain's wife would not become a party to the plan.

It Was Then That Burch's Wife and Captain Marson Decided to Elope.

They came to California and Mrs. Burch found employment in a store here. Captain Marson, despite the fact that he is a noted engineer, could not find employment. Finally the couple were traced here and their arrest followed. In lieu of a $5,000 bond, Captain Marson was compelled to remain in the city prison last night. Mrs. Burch was released on her own recognizance.

Both Captain Marson and Mrs. Burch were defiant of the opinion of society today.

"Captain Marson is the finest man in the world," declared Mrs. Burch. "I love him. We wanted to marry each other. When there was no other avenue open for us, we ran away."

Not only does Captain Marson face charges for alleged violation of the Mann Act, but he also faces deportation, for he is not a naturalized citizen of this country.

Mrs. Burch's husband, it has been disclosed, was a "Burch" by adoption. He was the issue of his mother's first marriage.

MARIE BIDS ADIEU TO U. S. BY RADIO TODAY

Queen Marie of Rumania today says her farewell to America—over the radio. At 5:30 o'clock this afternoon her majesty will speak through station WJAY.

The queen left Turco park this morning with Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas. The last day here is being spent in a tour of the harbor, tea with Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor and finally the trip to the Berengaria, on which the royal party will sail tomorrow for Europe.

Queen Marie this afternoon visited Wall Street as the guest of Walter C. Teague, president of the New Jersey Standard Oil Company and Mrs. Teague. Traffic in the financial district was tied up by large crowds collecting around her automobile while the queen visited. After visiting the Standard Oil skyscraper at 26 Broadway Queen Marie stopped at the custom house and then left on the Standard Oil tanker "Charles White" for a luncheon engagement at the New York yacht club.

Supreme Court Pulls TRADE BOARD'S TEETH

Washington, Nov. 23.—The Supreme Court today extracted some more of the teeth of the Federal Trade Commission.

The commission has not the power to require industrial concerns to divest themselves of the property of other companies acquired by them through purchase where stiff competition is asserted by the commission, the court held today.

Earl Roberts Lodge, Sons of St. George will meet tomorrow evening in Finner hall at 7:30 p. m. A good attendance is desired as the officers for the next six months will be elected.

Mrs. Gibson Not Wanted to Live More Than Week

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 23.—Mrs. Jane Gibson, accused of the three defendants in the Hall-Mills murder trial, is steadily growing weaker, and it was informally stated at the hospital today that she probably will not live more than a week.

She has a continually high temperature, sleeps little, and is sinking rapidly. Mrs. Gibson receives about 200 letters daily from persons who praise her for risking her life to testify in the murder trial in Somerville.

THOUGHT FALL WAS ABOUT TO RETIRE

So Doherty Couldn't Have Hoped For Favors, Is Defense Contentions.

Washington, Nov. 23.—At the time Edward L. Doherty gave former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, $100,000 on a personal unsecured note—November 30, 1921—the millionaire oil magnate was of the understanding that his friend had but three months more of public life and therefore could not possibly have expected reward at the expense of the government.

This was the answer today by Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel for Doherty, to the allegation of the government in the Fall-Doherty conspiracy trial that the $100,000 was, in fact, a bribe for Fall's turning over of 30,000 acres of land in the Elk Hills, Cal., to all reserve. Hogan followed Owen J. Roberts, federal counsel, who opened argument for the government.

Roberts had told the jury the government expected to prove:

1. The circumstances of the $100,000 transaction clearly indicate a corrupt agreement, which involved the Doherty company's getting oil leases of enormous value.
2. The lease was obtained without competitive bidding in violation of the law.
3. The construction contract for the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, storage tanks, was not in accord with the invitation, and was based on the granting of preferential rights in all future leaseings of lands in the naval oil reserves.

"We will prove to you," said Roberts, "that the circumstances surrounding the $100,000 transaction indicate clearly a corrupt agreement, that it involved the Doherty company's getting oil leases of enormous value, that the lease was made without competitive bids; that construction contracts for the Pearl Harbor storage tanks—admitting them to be of great value to the government—was of a profitable nature, and that the bid on this contract was not in accord with the invitation, but was based on a preferential right in all future leaseings of oil reserves."

"We will prove to you this all to have been in violation of the constitution and the laws of the United States."

TOLEDO FIRE FIEND MAY BE THE CLUBBER

Starts Seven Fires Today That Cause Loss of a Quarter Million.

Toledo O., Nov. 23.—Toledo's "clubber," believed responsible for the murder of six women and attacks on ten others, is thought to have caused seven fires entailing a loss of approximately $250,000 here early today.

The C. A. Mauk Company plant was burned this morning with a loss of $200,000. The City Street Department stables; the Banner Lumber Yards, Henry P. Reicher Contracting Company's sheds, a building in the rear of an apartment house and a New York Central freight car were burned. In each instance, fire department officials say, evidence pointed to incendiarism.

Later the Citizens' Ice Company plant was partially burned with a loss of $10,000.

The only clue was the meagre description of a man seen leaving the box car shortly before it was burned. A few minutes later the alarm from the Banner Company was turned in.

Police officials believe that a madman, of almost unbelievable craftiness, is the sole author of the many crimes.

They frankly admit that they have not discovered the slightest thread of evidence which might aid them in trapping the lunatic.

Two In Support Fred Sandberg of the Washington Police Department, another fingerprint expert, followed Taylor to the stand. His testimony was largely corroborative of Taylor's.

Sandberg swore the fingerprints on the calling card ("S-17") were not the same as Willie Stevens' official print.

"They do not show the same characteristics when held to the light and this one (the official) is so much darker than the other," he said.

Another fingerprint expert was then called. He was Gerhardt Kahne, who said he has been a supervisor of fingerprint identification in New York City for twelve years.

Kahne revealed he is the inventor of a new system of inkless registration.

SIMPSON HAS HALL LAWYER GIVEN BOUNCE

Counsel Ejected For Sitting With Jury Guardians; Three Experts Say Prints Are Not Willie's.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 23.—Willie Stevens, accused with his brother and sister of the Hall-Mills murder, took the witness stand in his own behalf at 2:43 this afternoon.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 23.—A mild sensation was caused at the Hall-Mills murder trial today when Prosecutor Alexander Simpson had Robert H. Neilson, of defense counsel, ejected from the court room.

Neilson had been sitting among the officers' guarding the jury. The defense lawyer was escorted from the courtroom by Captain Harry Walsh.

"Why that red-headed—planted himself right among the jury guards—how does he get that way?" Simpson exclaimed.

Later Neilson was permitted to return to the court room. He took a seat in the press section, 20 feet removed from where he was sitting when he was ejected from the court room.

Not Willie's Prints

The fingerprints of Willie Stevens on the state's exhibit S-17 is not identical with the official fingerprint of Willie Stevens, today declared James Herbert Taylor, fingerprint expert of the United States navy, and two other experts, testifying for the defense at the Hall-Mills murder trial.

"S-17" is the calling card of Rev. Edward W. Hall. The state claims it was found at the scene of the crime and that it bears the fingerprint of Willie Stevens' left index finger.

Robert H. McCarter, chief counsel of the defense, had shown the fingerprint expert greatly enlarged photographs of the two fingerprints, and asked:

"Is there any difference between these two fingerprints, and were they made by the same person?"

"They were not," said Taylor. "No Doubt Whatever."

Taylor said there was "no doubt whatever" that the two fingerprints were not the same. He described technical differences in the lines and said: "Because of these differences I say they are absolute. No doubt that these fingerprints were not made by the same person."

On further questioning Taylor asserted there are seven or eight distinct differences in the two prints.

McCarter asked Taylor to assume that the calling card, "S-17" had been exposed to the air as it lay on the ground near the murder scene from Thursday night, Sept. 14, 1922, until this morning, that it had been picked up and examined by several persons; that it was placed in a package with numerous other articles; taken to Somerville, and examined there and then taken to New Brunswick and not developed until late that week.

"If all these things happened to this card, could the latest prints have survived?"

"Could Not Survive."

"It could not have survived, in my opinion," said the witness. "The rubbing of it and the absorption of the perspiration into the paper would have obliterated most if not all of the fingerprints."

Taylor was shown another photograph, a small one, six inches by two, which he explained was a picture of the drawing he had made pointing out the differences he saw in the two fingerprints.

McCarter asked Taylor how he made the drawing.

"By free hand," Taylor said.

Prosecutor Alexander Simpson demanded to know if the witness claimed to have any special skill in drawing. Taylor said no, he didn't.

Simpson then objected to the introduction of the drawing and a lengthy argument between him and McCarter ensued.

The drawing was finally marked for identification but it was not admitted in evidence as yet.

COMING.

Two New York policemen stopped a suspicious automobile. At once an automatic, perhaps two or three automatics, began to blaze from within the car. One policeman fell dead, the other mortally wounded. The car sped on. Later the second policeman died. A rat of a boy, playing checkers, was arrested. He admits that he was one of the four in the car from which the fatal shots were fired, and that he carries an automatic pistol, but insists he did no shooting.

Perhaps, eventually, the miserable, heartless crime will be expiated; more likely not. At all events it will be a long time. And before the perpetrators of this double murder are punished, if they ever are, likely enough a dozen or twenty more New York policemen will be killed in the same way, without a chance, in the service of society.

And what earthly thing has society done, since the upgrowth of the breed of human adders that does such crimes, to protect its protectors? Absolutely nothing effectual, New York, to be sure, has passed its Baume's law. It seems to have few terrors for bandits, cop killers.

Elsewhere nothing has been done. The courts drone along in the same old way, safeguarding the interests of the criminal with the nicest particularity, while guns spit and bombs explode and machine artillery rips in the great cities and no country road is safe anywhere. Marines guard the mails, banks and factories use armored cars, a state of war is on. But what court is there, and what legislature is there, that conceives all this to be any of its affair?

This is a mathematical fact—the crime wave can be suppressed. The murdering of men who happen to be custodians of sums of money and the wanton slaughter of policemen can be stopped.

Because there are a hundred times, at least, as many decent people as there are criminals in the United States and the power runs absolutely, inevitably, to the overwhelming majority.

But it can't be suppressed by meeting an extraordinary condition with ordinary methods. It would have been every whit as sensible to try to stop the Germans at Chateau Thierry with a writ of injunction as to continue treating criminalism by the outworn methods now in effect.

Every gangster in every city in the Union is known to the police. Every gangster in every city in the Union could be and ought to be hauled out of its dives and kennels by the scruff of the neck, haled in to court for what he is and promptly and infallibly ironed to the next gangster and put to work in a chain gang. There are millions of trees that need planting in this country. There are thousands of acres of swamp that want draining. There are hundreds of jobs that society would the better for the doing, that there is no one to do.

Sweeten and enrich the vagrancy laws so that they can reach out their grip and put these tens of thousands of potential bandits and murderers where they can do no harm—before they do it. Can't be done? Of course not—under existing conditions. But society is big enough and powerful enough to change every condition, no matter what it may be, that prevents its doing. Some day it will, because it will have to. Otherwise there will soon be no policemen, no law officers. Nobody at all to protect society.

ALL ALONE.

No one in the Connecticut Legislature, incoming, is going to have a better time than Senator Lawlor—Joseph H.—of the untrifled Democratic city of Waterbury, which usually goes Democratic in contradiction to some other Connecticut Democratic cities which usually don't.

Mr. Lawlor will be the only Democrat in the Senate. He trained for that distinction in the last—present—Senate by being one of two Democrats in the body, the other being Senator Toss of the New Haven 9th district. But being half a minority is nowhere near as satisfying and outstanding a situation as being the whole works. In the first place he will be the leader of an absolutely united opposition. There will be no necessity of watching weak kneed brethren to see that the majority doesn't get at them and twist their high moral purposes to the base ends of the wicked majority. There will be no attempt of ambitious lesser lights to steal the thunder of the minority spokesman when he starts in to show up that wicked majority.

All the glory and all the effulgence that goes with forlorn hope chieftainship will be his—no splitting, fifty-fifty with some other duck of equal prestige. And above all daily and nightly opportunity to tell, when folks ask him how it feels to be the only Democrat in the Senate, the famous story that the Indiana Hoosier told to Fire Alarm Forsaker. Surely Senator Lawlor has arrived upon a pinnacle. More power to him.

ENVIRONMENT.

A great many persons who are utterly unable to account for many of the circumstances of the Hall-Mills murder on any other basis than the guilt of the defendants on trial are nevertheless unable to bring themselves to the point of belief that people of the general culture of the Stevens family could conceivably be capable of a brutal murder.

It may have no bearing whatever on the subject, but it is nevertheless interesting to note that Mrs. Hall and her two brothers are natives of Aiken, S. C.

In Aiken, S. C., recently, a considerable number of well known persons took three negroes from jail, because they were on the point of being acquitted of a murder with which they had been charged, and put them to death in a very dreadful manner. And practically the entire population of Aiken has rallied to the support of these murderers in fixed determination to prevent their being punished.

In Aiken, S. C., it is quite certainly the theory that a white man has the right to administer retribution in the way that seems fitting to him—utterly regardless of and with supreme contempt for the law of the land. Also, the culture of Aiken, while of an amiable and hospitable sort, does not rise to the point where it revolts at the burning to death of a human being, once its haughty spirit is aroused to the killing point.

Since the Stevens family was raised in the same environment as the seventeen respectable citizens who slaughtered those negroes with no more compunction than if they were pigs, and in an atmosphere where the law is regarded as something to regulate "niggers" and poor white trash but has nothing to do with "quality" folks, the crab-apple tree tragedy may or may not have been a psychological impossibility for them to be mixed up in.

BLUE HERONS.

It is gratifying that Superintendent Titcomb of the State Board of Fisheries and Game has come out flat footed and energetically against the sentimental and utterly mistaken protection of certain birds and wild animals which, in their turn, are terrifically destructive of other wild life of far more value than their own.

The unspeakable blue heron, for example, which is especially and directly indicted by Mr. Titcomb, is a murderous, gluttonous creature which does more to destroy the gentle and highly beneficial sport of trout fishing than all the other causes put together, not excepting the automobile and the Sunday rod.

There is just one proper place for a blue heron—in a picture on a Japanese screen. He makes an admirable picture, for his coloring is as artistic as that of an orchid and he has no equal in the world as a poseur.

He will pose, for that matter, for hours at a time, as rigidly as any hundred year old Japanese screen drawing, in the waters of a trout brook when the little trout are moving, stirring only to make an almost invisible dart of his deadly beak at every fish that comes within his range—and never missing. He devours actually hundreds of them in a day.

Every angler hates him. Every little fish that comes near him dies instantly. He is a bandit and a slayer and an unbelievable digestion. Compared to him the shark is an esctetic and a model of self-denial. He has no friend among birds or beasts or men—save the Audubon society, and not one in a hundred members of the Audubon society ever saw a blue heron, either in the wilds or in an aviary.

If every blue heron in the world were slain the world would not miss his breed. And millions of life-units would have a chance to fulfill their destinies.

BRITISH REORGANIZATION.

An "imperial conference" which has been considering certain changes in the organization of the British empire—or the British Commonwealth of Nations as it has often been called of late—has reported. It seems to have suggested one important change—that governors-general of the various dominions shall hereafter represent the crown instead of, as at present, the British "government" or cabinet. Aside from that, such proposals as are made would be likely to be better understood by a British politician than by the average American citizen.

Just what it is all about we confess to inability to comprehend. But we feel less ashamed of our ignorance than we would if it were not for the fact that leading British newspapers seem to be in much the same pickle.

"The old conception of Great Britain as a parent nation is swept away!" declares the London Times. "The crown being the source of power and the center of allegiance," says the Morning Post, "it is recognized as the one indispensable institution of the empire."

The United Kingdom is about to be dissolved. The so-called Commonwealth of Nations is about to become, really, a United States of Britain. The kings, as the embodiment of the whole British idea, is to be the center of crystallization of British solidarity.

Take your choice. By and by, possibly, the British peoples may find out whether they are at a football game or fishing for carp or down in a coal mine, digging, or what—in this matter. Then outsiders may have a chance to know what it is they are talking about.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 23.—Broadway, which knows how to handle almost any situation, has been a bit disturbed of late about the college-boy question.

A sigh of relief will go along the white light lanes when the football season has ended. The youths from Princeton, Yale and nearby way points have taken to celebrating their victories in the "fishpots," irrespective of covert charge.

And the manners of the campus at the close of a football game are scarcely those of the night club patrons.

Now the university "proms" may consider "cutting dances," for instance, quite the onions, but the papas who are stepping their girl friends around at $2 per covert and more, plus gin and white rock and tips, see no percentage in providing entertainment for unaccredited young men.

Many are the reports of brawls, near brawls and hot arguments to issues from the night club zone. Hip flasks, they say, are very popular just now in the bleachers during the "big games," and by the time the trains reach New York the collegians are in good form.

Recently three of them wandered into a club and, in the best manner of the varsity proms, stepped up to cut dances. The Broadway regulars didn't know what this was all about.

It happened that the three picked on a girl who was dancing with one of the hardest guys of the famous street. When one of them "cut in" the Broadwayite merely pushed him aside. He held a consultation with his fellows. When the scene cleared the three varsity lads were sitting on the pavement outside.

Night clubs, be it known, now are known either as "hoty-totsies" or "class cafes."

The "hoty-totsy" gets the indiscriminate mob. The prices may range up to $2 per covert, but evening dress is not required and the entertainment is more peppery and the dancing more popular.

The "class" places are those in which patrons appear in evening clothes, all others being barred. The prices in these range up to the $5 mark per covert set by Otto Katin's little boy, Roger.

The former are frequented by those who seek entertainment and amusement; the latter by scores of "classies" who try to make the social grade and, hence, follow the lead of the society folk.

In all the walks of Manhattan life, none is more futile who would follow by the fawners who would ape the wealthy set and who continuously follow in the wake of the society "regulars."

A THOUGHT

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, Nov. 23.—The last serious obstacle which stood in the way of success of the aerial express has been overcome, so they say at the aviation division of the Commerce Department.

It was accomplished through the understanding by which the National Air Transport and the American Railway Express agree to work together.

The chief difficulty in the past has been in getting parcels to and from flying fields. The Transport was prepared to carry goods entrusted to it, but it couldn't send a plane to a would-be shipper's door to get them or make door-to-door deliveries to consignees. That's what the American Railway Express will attend to in the future.

Between New York and Chicago, aerial transport saves a day's time over transportation by rail.

Aviation fields are conveniently available at both points. The shipper can put his parcel directly on board a plane. The consignee can meet the plane and get what's coming to him. A day's saved.

But suppose a shipper lives in Poughkeepsie and a consignee in Peoria. The former must ship by rail to New York. There, unless he has an agent waiting and everything is co-ordinated, there's delay in getting the parcel into the Air Transport's hands. Between Chicago and Peoria there's more delay.

On the aerial part of the parcel's trip a day is saved all right, but what good does that do if a day is lost before the flight starts and another after its finish?

Of course aerial transportation won't be confined to the New York-Chicago trip. From the Suffield school, came home on Friday night to stay over the week-end.

While playing in the school yard at the Pleasant Valley school last week Friday, Harrison Middleton fell, breaking his shoulder. He was taken to the Hartford Hospital. He had just returned from the Hartford Hospital, where he had been confined for several weeks with gatherings in his ears.

The choir of the Federated church will hold their rehearsal at the church at 7 o'clock on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett A. Buckland returned Saturday night from their trip to Claremont, N. H., where they have been visiting friends for the past week. They have also taken a trip to the White mountains recently.

The Wapping Grange will hold its regular meeting Tuesday evening at the Center School hall. The degree team will furnish the program.

On Thursday morning there will be a special Thanksgiving service held at the Federated church at 9 o'clock.

Rev. Mr. Evans of Glastonbury, secretary of the Federation of Churches, spoke very interestingly at the church last Sunday evening.

The sergeant was taking the recruits' squad. "For the last time," he bowed, "what is fortification?"

The recruits stood fast to a man. Striding up to the most intelligent looking of the lot the N. C. O. repeated his question.

"Two twentifications, sir!" came the swift reply. "Tit-Bits, London."

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY AUSTIN H. CLARK

Smithsonian Institution Periscopes are no new invention. Long before men thought of them some of the flies employed the principle involved to protect them from their enemies.

These so-called stalk-eyed flies have their eyes each on the end of a long stalk projecting sideways from their head. In some the distance from eye to eye is as great as the distance across the wings, or twice the body length.

Stalk-eyed flies are common in the tropics, in damp places and in shady woods. Safely concealed on the under surface of a grass blade, with their little eyes projecting out on either side, thanks to the long stalks, they can see you perfectly without your being able to see them.

You first see them when they fly away. One of these stalk-eyed flies is common in the eastern states, but in this the stalks are very short.

Many other creatures have stalked eyes beside these flies; for instance, crabs and lobsters; the young of various fishes, and the hammer-headed shark.

GREAT RAILROADING TRAGEDY'S CLIMAX

C. M. & St. P. Under Hammer Today, After Loss of Vast Sums in Expansion.

Butte, Mont., Nov. 23 (United Press).—A struggle for supremacy in the railroad world which started in 1905 will reach an end in front of the Butte railroad station today.

There, standing before the main entrance to the station according to court order, a master in chancery will sell to the best bidder the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad.

The road cost $650,000,000 to build. It has more than 11,000 miles of track. Its capital stock amounts to some $702,864,396.

Yet the courts have decreed that it must be sold and have set a minimum price of $122,500,000 for this property which once was the queen of the railroad world. It will probably bring more than that figure, though some financiers believe not much more.

Fateful Event
On who buys it will depend the future of perhaps more than one great railroad system. It was believed that Edwin James, the largest single holder of railroad stocks in the United States, might make an offer. If he does the day might come when it would become a part of the Northern Pacific and Burlington in a great "James system" comparable to the system dreamed of by the late E. H. Harriman.

The Pennsylvania railroad was said to have an offer ready and should it buy the road, then the Pennsylvania would become a system of 21,567 miles of track running from coast to coast.

The troubles of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul began when the late William Rockefeller, then controlling the road, found Hill on one side and Harriman on the other, fighting for dominance, with his line between them.

Reached to Coast
"We have a road that begins nowhere and ends nowhere," Rockefeller told his board of directors as he looked out and saw the railroad system he controlled, operating in the states of the upper Mississippi valley—the Dakotas, Minnesota and as far south as Iowa and Missouri.

He feared that his line was to be crushed between Hill and Harriman.

At that time the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul was one of the country's most prosperous properties. Its stock sold at $198 a share. Handsome dividends were paid regularly.

Rockefeller swept aside all opposition and ordered the road extended to the Pacific Coast an extension of 100 miles. Engineers went secretly into the field. Carves were complete and work was under way before the public was permitted to know what was happening.

Costly Error
But the engineers estimated that $100,000,000 would pay the cost of the extension and there came the first great tragedy in the road's history. When the first train ran to tidewater on Puget Sound $300,000,000 had been spent—three times as much as had been estimated.

To show for this there stands reaching westward from Chicago one of the country's finest roads. Much of the line has been electrified. For years its rolling stock was the pride of its owners.

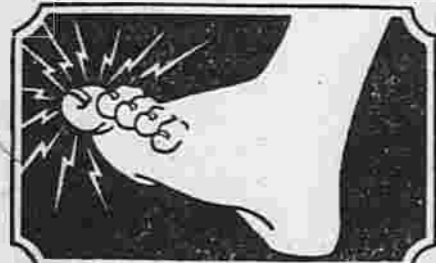

But the dividends were largely in pride of ownership. There was no revenue. The road ran through hundreds of miles of barren territory, productive of neither freight nor passengers traffic. Its investment was so heavy that only extraordinary traffic could pay the cost.

Down
On the stock exchange the value of the stock went down and down. Shares which sold for $198 in 1905 got down to $20 and then still lower. A year ago when the receivership came the common stock was worth $6 per share; the preferred, which once brought $218, sold for $10. The road which represented an investment of approximately three-quarters of a billion dollars had a market value of $19,128,555.

The road struggled on, largely on faith, until March 18, 1925, when it was announced that not only would it be impossible to pay interest on $230,950,196 in bonds outstanding but that it could not meet the maturity of $48,000,000 worth of bonds due June 1, 1925. A receivership was ordered on that day. A year later, after a contest in the court between the proponents of conflicting interests, the sale was ordered.

ARCTIC WHITE OWL WINS BATTLE WITH 1,000 BLACKBIRDS

Another immense owl from the Arctic region was sighted near Manchester again early today.

The large nocturnal visitor was noticed in the top of a big oak tree in the rear of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Thorn in Talcottville at 6 o'clock this morning.

The owl was of a grayish color and not pure white as most of them are. It was attacked by at least 1,000 blackbirds.

It was a picturesque sight. The air about the tree was literally swarmed with blackbirds and Mrs. Thorn said that the branches of the large tree were so heavily laden that it did not look as if there was room for another one.

The owl was perched at the top of the tree with the angry blackbirds several feet below. They darted up at the owl every now and then but always stopped before they reached their destination because of the loud snap of the owl's jaws which was easily audible for considerable distance away.

For a long time the futile siege took place. The owl, however, proved a complete master of the situation and the blackbirds did not dare come within his striking distance.

Mrs. Thorn said the blackbirds made a tremendous noise as they cawed and screamed their defiance at the unwelcome invader.

Finally as daylight approached the huge owl decided it was time to seek a darker shelter as seclusion for "night." He flew off across the pond into the shelter of the woods. His wing spread was fully four feet, Mrs. Thorn said. The blackbirds followed him for a short distance but finally gave up the task, as fruitless.

This is the second great owl from the north that has been seen in this locality lately. Many have been noticed about various parts of the state. They are being driven to warmer climate in search of food. A pestilence is killing off rabbits and squirrels in their former "happy hunting grounds."

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Sam Houston (18)

Finally, in 1845, the United States agreed to the annexation of Texas, and the people of the state were relieved by the action, since a country with such extended borders was subject to all sorts of Indian and Mexican raids. Houston was sent to Washington as the first senator from the new state.

Houston hated slavery. This and his love for the Union were to bring clouds of grief over his later years.

His opposition to the southern party brought him defeat in his race for governor of the state in 1857.

The call to arms was Houston's death knell. Lonely, in poverty, suddenly a very old man, he sat watching the struggle. The last picture of him is that of a man addressing secession crowds, fearless in his beliefs. He died shortly after the fall of Vicksburg, in July, 1863. (NEXT: Roger Williams.)

COMPLETE CENTER ST. WORK BY TOMORROW

Center street, from the Center to Olcott street may be finished tonight or tomorrow at the latest, if the weather holds, it was said this morning.

The Edward Bell company, builder of the road, has its alphas up to Trotter street with the first layer and parts of the stretch between there and the Center were finished with the top dressing this morning.

The north side of the road will be covered with the asphalt surface but at the point where the tracks of the Connecticut company turn into the barn there has been no concrete base. This was omitted because the tracks will be torn up when the cars are abandoned. Then that section will be rebuilt to conform with the rest of the road.

The job has gone ahead faster than it was expected by most Manchester people. It was the feeling here that if one side of the road were finished by winter that would be satisfactory. Two concrete mixers speeded up the work, however.

Now motorists will find an excellent asphalt road all the way to East Hartford, for the Twin Hill concrete road has been asphalted from Love Lane to Adams street where the new pavement begins.

averaging in length three and one-half inches. On a freshly stocked trout stream one heron can do more damage to the fishing than many anglers.

This is not an argument against the law protecting plumaged birds, such as the heron family, but there are conditions under which the balance of nature may be seriously upset by conservation laws just as it has sometimes been upset by the extermination of some one particular species of so-called vermin.

Answering the question of what species may be regarded as vermin on game preserves, Mr. Titcomb names the following: Cooper hawks, sharp horned owls, barred owls, starlings, crows, red squirrels, house cats, bob-cats and lynx, weasels, foxes, mink, European hares (commonly called German hares or jack rabbits), coons, and skunks.

Fostering Birds For the improvement of fishing, he adds that anglers should kill water-snakes whenever the opportunity offers, as these are very destructive.

Mr. Titcomb points out to bird lovers, who cannot afford funds for vermin control, that food and shelter will accomplish more than merely bird sanctuary posters, prohibiting hunting, in attracting birds. The food may be in the nature of low food-bearing shrubbery on Southern exposures, such as Japanese barberry and native barberry, elderberry, scrub oaks, high bush cranberry, blueberries, juniper, dogwood and wild grapes. For trees, beech, wild cherry and apple.

For the purpose of shelter, dense evergreens should be encouraged.

LAY STORM WATER SEWER ON NEW ST.

New storm sewers are being laid on New street from Laurel street to the bottom of the hill near the coal yards. The pipes will be fed by four catchbasins at the junction of Laurel and New streets, a place where the drainage of Laurel, Church and Chestnut streets collects.

Water comes down Laurel street at a fast rate and until now has been sent across New street over a gutter. The gutter has made a depression of almost a foot in the road and it is in an effort to do away with this that the sewers are being laid. The pipe is two feet in diameter and the distance it is being laid covers about 100 yards.

THANKSGIVING DAY COSTS DECREASED

Turkey, Chicken and Vegetables All Lower in Price Than Year Ago.

A Thanksgiving dinner in Manchester will cost considerably less this year than last, it is ascertained by comparing the prices of turkey and chicken now being advertised by local meat markets. Turkey last year cost from 60 to 75 cents a pound but the rate this year will run from 48 to 60 cents.

Chicken may be had at prices ranging from 38 cents for fowl to 55 cents for large roasting chickens. Prices run higher according to the size of the birds. The fixtur's will be cheap. Cranberries are selling at prices not higher than 10 cents a quart, while vegetables for the dinner will not be any higher.

Because a number of tickets which were sold to out of town people had not been received, the drawing on the radio which was to have been given away by Campbell Council last night was postponed until Monday, November 29. The drawing will take place then at 9:30 in the evening. A telegram was received yesterday saying that a large number of tickets were being mailed to Manchester and the drawing was held off so that these may be included.

CARLSON, LOCAL BUILDER, DECLARED BANKRUPT

Joseph E. Carlson, of Middle Turnpike, today filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States court at New Haven. Carlson's liabilities total $37,807, of which $23,150 is secured by real estate mortgages. His assets are estimated at $38,375.

Carlson recently purchased several tracts of land in East Hartford at McKee and Richard streets, on the installment plan and started to build houses on them. However, he found financial conditions worse than he had anticipated and had to file the bankruptcy petition.

BOTH COP AND CULPRIT LAUGHED AT THIS JOKE

Being One of the Episodes in a Policeman's Life That He Doesn't Tell About.

A Manchester policeman saw only the light of duty yesterday when he stopped a man who was coming from a Spruce street home carrying what appeared to be a heavily loaded satchel.

"Let me see your license," said the officer.

"Why should I?" asked the man. "You can't peddle from house to house in Manchester without a license," was the officer's rebuttal.

"Let me see what you've got in that satchel."

"This is a free country, I guess you won't open that satchel," insisted the man.

"You're under arrest," the officer told him.

Those magic words opened the satchel, for the man didn't want to be arrested.

What the officer expected to see was a dainty collection of Armenian lace, pillow covers, silk undies or women's hosiery. What he did see was a neatly packed collection of baby diapers. As the heading reads "Both cop and culprit laughed."

New System in Vogue at Telephone Exchange Makes Us All Be Nice.

Another step has been taken by the Southern New England Telephone Company at the local branch office in effort to establish an even more courteous service.

Several exchanges in this district have been trying a new scheme at the suggestion of the district traffic superintendent. Instead of repeating the numbers given them, the telephone operators simply say, "Thank you."

Already much favorable comment has been heard in regard to the change although it has been in effect only two weeks. There are a few, however, who feel that the old method was better.

In speaking about the matter today, Manager L. C. Clifford said that he had not received any adverse criticism. He said that the "Thank you" plan is receiving an indefinite trial and added that it probably will be continued.

Freshmen Crush Sophomores In Annual Grid Clash

Much Promising Material Is Uncovered That Should Help Varsity Team In 1927

Notwithstanding the fact that fourteen football players will be lost to South Manchester High next June through graduation, president indications point to a strong team to represent our High school on the gridiron next fall. In addition to the hatched-out varsity veterans remaining there will be plenty of material to select from in the Freshmen and Sophomore classes. This was conclusively proved yesterday afternoon in the annual clash between the Freshmen and the Sophomore teams at the West Side playgrounds. The first year men emerged victorious by a score of 7 to 0. The game was watched by a howling and cheering band of over 100 excited school-children.

The match was interesting to watch despite the more or less crude teamplay of both outfits. This was caused by the fact that neither team had any real training. Nevertheless, at times, the individual efforts of several of the players attained a height that was fully as spectacular as feats seen in bigger games.

These Look Good

It would be impossible to say just whom, if any, of the players will make the High school squad next year, but there were several who certainly have the earmarks of "bumers."

Ernie Dowd, freshmen back, gave a nifty exhibition of end circling. At one stage of the game, he ran about fifty yards around right end only to have the ball brought back for a technicality. He also swings a mean foot.

Byolski and Reed, two of the Sophomore backs, looked impressive. The former gave fine interference and carried the ball well in addition to using good judgment in directing his team from quarter. Reed made repeated gains both through the line and around the end. He carried the ball unusually well shifting it cleverly when subjected to tackles from alternating sides.

"Red" Happney was the most consistent ground gainer through the line. He made a large number of substantial gains off tackle and had been given the ball a few more times at the proper time, the score might have been different. The Sophomore backfield luminary also played a bang-up game on the defense.

Toney Siamonds, brother to the Cub player, looked good at tackle for the Freshies. He blocked his opponent and took him down in necessary, much more effectively than any other linemen on either team. Spencer, Shibel and Squatrito also looked well.

"Big League" Stuff

Throughout the first half of the game, the ball was continually in Sophomore territory. This was made possible by the alertness of Siamonds, who recovered Happney's fumble on the 35 yard line. The Freshmen rushed the ball to the 20 yard line but here the defense of the second year men stiffened and "Coach" Squatrito sent in his Benny Friedman, Ernie Dowd.

Dowd missed a dropkick from the 30 yard line but both teams were offside and the play was run over again. Dowd duplicated the former play but missed by a wider margin. Later Happney intercepted a Freshman fumble which staved off an impending score. The half ended scoreless.

In the second half, "Sully" Squatrito entered the game at quarter-back for the Freshmen and this instilled new vigor into the first year men. The Freshmen marched well into Sophomore territory but lost the ball on downs. The ball was punted out again and a few minutes later, Squatrito circled his left end for a 35 yard gallop to a touchdown. Dowd's third drop-kick attempt was good and the score stood 7 to 0.

From then on, however, the tide turned in favor of the Sophomores, who rushed the ball to the Freshmen ten yard line only to lose the ball by a poor selection of plays. Had Happney been given the ball at this stage of the game, the Sophomores would probably have scored. At least, it looked that way.

BROWN'S HARDEST GAME THURSDAY

Ten Years Ago Like Situation Gave Providence Team Tough Break.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

I. N. S. Sports Editor.
 New York, Nov. 23.—Thanksgiving is understood to be the day when everybody says it with harmonics and tries to forget that he was born human. Be that as it might, the hombre caught smiling out loud around the respective campuses of Alabama and Brown universities will be shot long before sunrise, if either or both of these outfits fail to win their football games.

A defeat for either would mean an anti-climax of such consequence to effect the National situation as to coast to coast. If Alabama beats Georgia, it will play Stanford, winner of the Coast title, at Pasadena. If it doesn't, it won't, and a first-class chance for self-elimination by means of two unbeaten teams of two great sections will have evaporated into thin air. But Alabama should win.

As for Brown, it must beat Colgate or admit that it doesn't belong with the trail-blazers. It will be Brown's hardest game and, appropriately, its last of the season and, if history repeats itself, you will laugh unrestrainedly in the vicinity of Providence, R. I., at the risk of your life.

Will History Repeat?

Ten years ago almost to the day, Brown came up to the Colgate finale without a defeat, just as it is at this time. They were calling it the wonder team of all time at day-break and the flop of the century by nightfall, for Colgate won by something like 28 to 0. And that's exactly how little Brown cares about beating Colgate two days hence.

The latter is as tough as a night in jail and, if fate hadn't decreed otherwise, it would have ruined the Navy's record. But the writer thinks Brown will have just enough punch to outscore its rival by a few points.

Boston College should defeat Holy Cross, unless the latter suffers nothing defeat by Boston University was a mere slip of the foot. Frankly, I don't believe that, either.

I like Pitt over Penn State, Pennsylvania by less than a touchdown over Cornell and Syracuse over Columbia.

CARPENTIER INSISTS JACK'S BETTER 'N GENE

By FREDERICK K. ABBOTT

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.
 Paris, Nov. 23.—George Carpentier has turned boxing critic. Reviewing the present crop of heavyweight boxers, Carpentier has announced his selection of the ten best heavyweights now in the ring. Carpentier's selections follow:

- 1.—Gene Tunney.
- 2.—Jack Dempsey.
- 3.—Jack Delaney.
- 4.—Jack Sharkey.
- 5.—Tommy Loughran.
- 6.—Jimmy Delaney.
- 7.—Paul Berinbach.
- 8.—Young Stribling.
- 9.—Franz Diener.
- 10.—Paolino.

"Tunney must be placed at the top of the heap," said Carpentier, "because of his victory over Dempsey. Nevertheless, I persist in believing that Dempsey is the better of the two."

"Jack Delaney, although a light heavyweight, comes immediately afterward. He represents, on account of his weight, about what I was in 1920 when I met Dempsey. Sharkey must come next, not just because he defeated Wills, because Wills would have been beaten by almost any real scrapper."

Young Stribling is better than the best that Europe can offer, Carpentier believes.

Football Notes

Hamilton, N. Y., Nov. 23.—The Colgate regulars went through a short signal drill today as a final preparation for the turkey day game with Brown. With the return of Shaughnessy, all the regulars are in shape.

Providence, Nov. 23.—Dummy scrimmage was ordered for the Brown team today as the Bears perfected their offense for the Colgate game. Practice will be held again tomorrow.

Annapolis, Nov. 23.—Following yesterday's final hard workout of the season, the Navy football squad today took things easy for their game with Army on Saturday. Hoerner may replace Osborn as the pivot position because of his splendid defensive work against forward passes.

West Point, Nov. 23.—A light workout today, followed by a brief signal drill tomorrow will complete the Army gridiron squad's preparation for the Navy game. Marked improvement in the Varsity's aerial game brought forth predictions that on Saturday the Army will make considerable use of its passing attack, hitherto neglected.

Records taken over a period of 36 years show that the greatest number of influenza cases occur about the ninth or tenth week of the year, and the fewest about the 35th or 36th week.

Billy Evans Says

The major leagues recruit their ball players from the minors; why not the managers?

It is more or less tradition, in the big show that a major league manager should be an individual who has starred as a player in that company.

Take the outstanding managers, McGraw, Mack, Robinson, Collins, Speaker, Bancroft, Harris, Cobb. All of them have been or are stars in the majors. Some have been more successful than others, due to having a temperament better adapted to the handling of men.

Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, was one of the first to believe that it was possible to pluck a manager from a lowly minor league and have him deliver the goods.

When Comiskey signed Clarence Rowland to handle 'the White Sox, the experts scoffed at the idea. Rowland won a pennant and a world championship for Comiskey in 1917.

As a matter of fact the most logical thing in the world is to go to the minors for big league managerial material.

Comiskey, when he signed Rowland temporarily brushed aside tradition. However, a majority of the owners were more conservative and didn't fall for the scheme.

Garry Herrmann was the next

The NUT CRACKER by Joe Williams

owner to take a chance on a minor league celebrity. When Pat Moran died, he named Jack Hendricks as his successor. Hendricks for years had been the big noise at Indianapolis.

LOCAL SOCCER TEAM PLAYS SPRINGFIELD HERE THANKSGIVING

Semi-Finalists In Bay State Cup Games to Furnish Exhibition Game at Mt. Nebo.

The fast West Springfield soccer team, semi-finalists in the Massachusetts State Cup competition, will appear here in an exhibition game against the Manchester soccer team on Thanksgiving afternoon. The kick-off will take place at 2:30 on the Mt. Nebo grounds.

Springfield is one of the best teams in the Bay State league, being up among the leaders this fall. It is considered the fastest attraction to be brought to Manchester this year and the local management expects a large crowd.

The visitors will come here with their popular team and the Manchester combination will have its full strength on the field. Permission will be obtained from Secretary Joe Booth to play the game and the Waterbury man will appoint the referee. Wilson Faulkner of Hartford is expected to be the mediator.

SEEK SECOND GAME FOR IRISH ON THE COAST

San Francisco, Nov. 23.—Efforts were being made today to persuade the Notre Dame football team to meet St. Mary's of Oakland here during the Christmas holidays. The Irish will meet Southern California at Los Angeles on December 4.

Coach Staggs has made the threat that he won't give any of this year's Chicago team a letter—And most of the embarrassed youths hope he means it.

Jack Dempsey says he is undecided whether he will fight again—This is the same state of mind he was in the night he faced Tunney.

The American League plans to stage a Ty Cobb day next season—Any pitcher will tell you one Ty Cobb day is much better than 151 Ty Cobb days.

There is no truth in the report that Mr. Statter of the hotels will officiate at the service game between Army and Navy.

MICHIGAN DREW MOST PEOPLE TO ITS GAMES

Ann Arbor, Nov. 23.—Michigan drew more spectators this year than any other football team in America and established what is believed a record for college attendance. Figures issued today show that 397,911 people saw the Wolverine champions play during the last season.

Of course if Mr. Cash and Capacity Pyle really needs something to stimulate business for his pro football league he might try to sign Willie Stevens as cheer leader.

BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS HERE FRIDAY

Saints to Entertain Fast Southington Pextos in Initial Home Game—Dancing to Follow.

The basketball season will be officially opened in Manchester on Friday evening when the Saints stack up against the fast Pextos of Southington at the Recreation Center. This will be the first home game of any local team this season and will be the first of a long series of attractions that the Saints intend to put on during the winter.

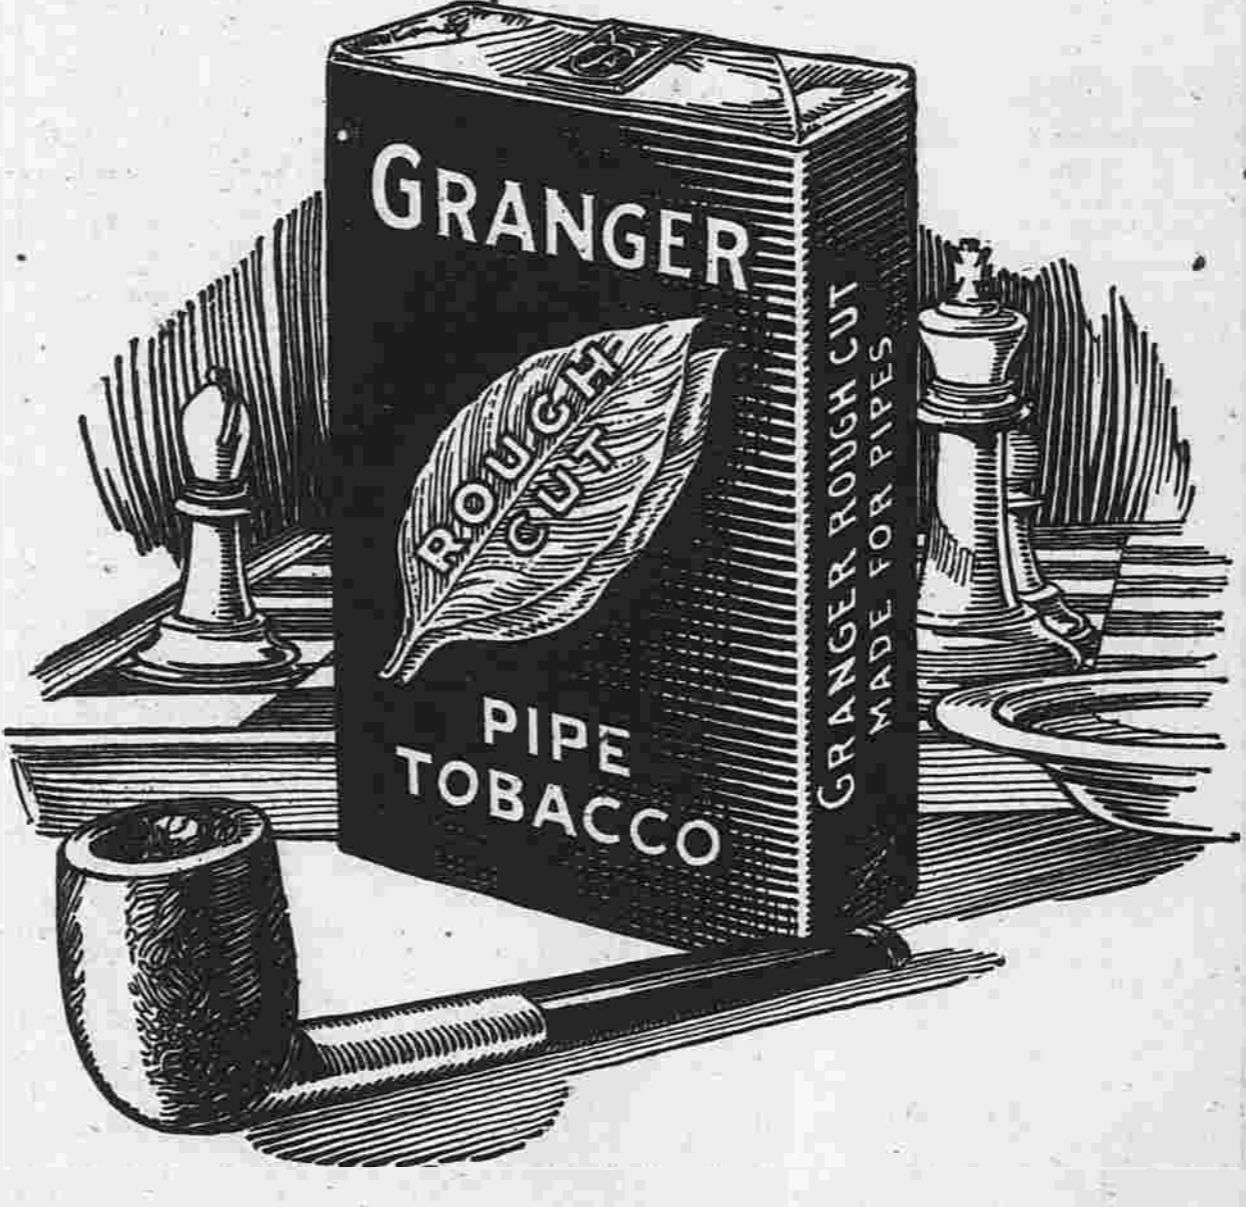

Coach Clarke, who is directing the destinies of the Saints, will pick his team from the following men: Norris, Madden, Mantelli, Kerr, Boyce, Stavitsky, Lutz, Dietz, Neill and Dalquist. The starting lineup will consist of Norris, Madden, Kerr, Stavitsky and Mantelli. Mantelli and Kerr will be in the forward berths while Norris will hold down the jump position. The guards will be Madden and Stavitsky.

The Pextos this year are faster than ever and number among the men in their lineup such players as Hartford, Connors, Cushing, England, LaFleur and Angell. They gave the New Britain Guards a run the other evening in the Hardware City and they are coming to Manchester with plenty of confidence.

A preliminary game will precede the main encounter and dancing will follow.

Just a foil wrapper outside but one of our finest pipe tobaccos inside!

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Common-sense economy plus genuine tobacco quality

PACKED in tins, tobacco of this quality would probably cost fifteen cents—but packed as it is in inexpensive heavy foil, it costs but ten cents.

Common-sense economy indeed—for this soft foil package, with its outer glassine wrapping, is light, tight, comfortable, and rolls up smaller after each pipe load.

But forget package and price—it's what's inside that really counts. Put Granger Rough Cut in your favorite pipe and compare it—for rich mellowness, good taste, slow burning—with any pipe tobacco you ever smoked.

We repeat—"one of our finest pipe tobaccos"—and your pipe will bear us out!

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS.

At New York—Tony Canzeroni of Brooklyn won decision over Andre Routis of France. Nat Kowler of New York won decision over Benny Gould of Canada, ten rounds.

At Chicago—Tiger Flowers, middleweight champion, won decision over Sailor Eddie Huffman of Los Angeles, ten rounds.

At Boston—Mickey Walker, former welterweight champion, won decision over Jock Malone of St. Paul, ten rounds.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 23.—Benny Friedman, captain of the Michigan football team, will not enter the ranks of professional football, he announced today.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE JUDITH MARTIN, young instructor at Pendleton University, arouses the anger of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN by choosing friends among the radical student set, including ERIC WATERS.

DR. PETER DORN, astronomy teacher, is in love with Judith and tries to make peace between her and the dean.

MYRA ALDRICH, in love with Eric, is jealous of Eric's attentions to Judith.

Judith befriends the dean's wife when "KITTY" SHEA, town boot-licker, tries to blackmail her. Eric offers to silence Shea.

When Shea's body is found in a creek, Eric is arrested because of a letter addressed to him found in Shea's pocket. Several days later, Mrs. Brown tells the prosecutor prodigious lies, imperiling her own reputation, to provide an alibi for Eric.

Dr. Dorn calls on Judith in her classroom, and when Eric intrudes, throws him out of the room. Eric has been drinking and collapses in the hall.

Dean Brown insists that she take part in his reform campaign, which is to end with the mammoth revival meeting of Rev. Forrest Poole.

When she refuses, he tells her that his wife does not wish her to come to the house again.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIII

THE dean's words struck sharply on the stillness. For a fraction of a second Judith stared.

The dean stood up. "As an evidence of my wife's wishes, let me point out the fact that she was at home this afternoon when you were seeking entrance. 'Ye both feel that further intimacy between you and her is undesirable."

He was standing by the desk, leaning on outspread starfish hands, so that they glowed faintly pink against the table top. His little eyes bored into Judith's face.

Judith turned and walked out of the room.

The shining face of the Rev. Forrest Poole, looking down from every bulletin board and post on the campus, saw some strange sights in the days that followed.

On administration hall, workmen were stringing wires around the dome and building huge letters over the entrance, which would say "Welcome" to all and sundry visitors on the night of the great rally.

A frequent sight on the campus these days was Dean Timothy Brown, walking arm-in-arm with Peter Dorn. Many people walked with Dorn now—the deans, the lesser faculty members, sometimes a town minister, and occasionally President Danbury himself.

Judith walked alone.

Will Wetherel followed her through the thicket behind the journalism building one day and caught up with her on the bridge over the stender rill that scampered in and out around the campus.

"Greetings, Miss Judas," he said, smiling coldly.

"Judith," he said, pleadingly. She turned around.

"When are you going to take Eric back into favor? I think you're a little hard on him. He really has had a lot of bad luck lately, and your turning against him is the last straw."

"Did he ask you to come to me, Will?"

Wetherel shook his head. "Nope. But, to tell the truth, I'd like to see him get on his feet again, in time for the inter-collegiate debates. Sigma Psi needs somebody on the team. And Eric has been sunk in gloom lately that he won't even listen to it. Darn shame, though, when you consider his Princeton debate record."

Judith's lips curled. "Will," she cried, "DARN Sigma Psi. I'll manage my own friendships and enmities."

"To his surprise, she turned on her heel and left him. But in a moment she was coming back, her hand outstretched. "Forgive me, Will. I had no right to be so snappish with you. But I've had some burdens of my own these days, and they've soured my disposition."

Will accepted her apology with a nod. They began to walk toward the Prairie Schooner. Wetherel was talking volubly, with only a sideways glance at her now and then for appreciation.

"Look at that silly sign," he exclaimed, waving airily at the letters built over the portal of the administration building. "That's all to impress the legislators. 'Welcome' to their prying noses and their nice fat appropriations in 'this spring's budget. Old Brown thinks he's made if the state senators go away impressed with the religious renaissance of Pendleton University. He wants a raise."

"State senators?" repeated Judith. "Yes, didn't you know? They're arriving the night of the rally, to sit on the platform behind Rev. Poole and say 'Amen' between snore-kind-hard on you, Judith."

Judith smiled wryly. "And why?"

"Well," drawled Will, "you'll be standing with your little basket of white ribbons at one of the doors, won't you, pinning the emblem of purity on every young rapscallion who comes in?"

"I will not," said Judith grimly. "Wetherel" whistled. "Well, that probably means the end of you then. The dean's got his heart set on 100 per cent reform. You're a fly in the ointment for him, anyway. By the way, how does he put up with your being friendly with his wife?"

Judith's face clouded. "He doesn't. It isn't necessary. She broke off friendly relations with me herself a week ago."

"Hm-m," mused Will. "I understood she was pretty strong for you."

This subject gave him thought until they were near the door of the Prairie Schooner. Then he looked up and, taking Judith's arm, turned into the Schooner pathway.

"When I said an old set of sophomoric philosophy themes to little Snudge Wilkins today, so I've got twenty-five boxes extra to squander. Just remembered a set of Roman architecture papers that ought to bring ten or fifteen too."

"What would you do if the philosophy prof had the same exam reader this year?" asked Judith.

"He hasn't," said Wetherel. "And anyhow, they don't really grade those papers. They take 'em home and throw 'em down the front steps."

The ones that land on the top step get A, the second step B, and so on. In the rear end of the crowded room a circle of young men surrounded the largest table. Seated on the edge of the table, with his feet on a nearby chair, was Eric Waters.

Judith saw that he was wearing corduroys and a blue sweater. His face, as he bent over the table in deep consultation with the other men, was flushed and earnest. Judith suddenly shifted her place at table.

"What's the idea?" Will inquired. "Oh, I see, you've turned your back to him. Well, don't worry. Waters is too much engrossed in mighty matters just now to pay much attention to you." He wagged his head.

Judith gave him a glance, and looked again at the crowd around Eric. But she asked no questions. To the tune of Wetherel's endless chatter, she sipped her chocolate with her eyes lowered.

The talk behind her grew louder. "Absolute overthrow," somebody was saying. Judith strained her ears, but the voice died down and she could hear Eric's lower tones, evidently cautioning his companions to discretion.

"Hell brewin' over there," commented Wetherel, fishing for the cherry in the bottom of his limeade glass. "Every man in that gang leads some cohort of the devil's legions."

"There's Thomas, who is in school on probation, and Bailey, of the TNT's, and Adams, who was kicked off the Sugar and Spice staff for the risque wisecrack, and young Ole Johnson and Scripp Sewell."

Judith raised her eyes from her chocolate cup. "Will," she said, "what is Eric up to?"

He shook his head. "I don't know. That's one reason why I came to you today. Somebody'd better keep an eye on him."

She shrugged her shoulders. "I'm not a shill-keeper."

Wetherel's eyes narrowed. "Judith, don't you think you owe him something, after all? He's risked a good deal for you, hasn't he?"

"What do you mean, Will?"

"Then I'll tell you. Have you ever really known what Eric did for the temple?"

Judith started, but did not reply. "And do you really know where he was on Christmas Eve?"

For a long moment the girl stared at her plate. Then she rose to her feet suddenly, so that the silver clattered on the table.

"Let's go home," she said, shortly. "Will was watching her with a half-smile. Shrugging his shoulders, he too rose and picked up the check.

The group in the rear of the room was watching them. As Judith turned to pick up her scarf from the back of her chair, she saw Eric climbing down from his position on the table. He bowed, with his hand on his hip.

"Greetings, Miss Judas," he said, smiling coldly.

Several persons near Judith's table heard the words, glanced up and then returned to their own conversation. But in the circle of men behind Eric, a titter ran about.

Wetherel was paying the check and had not noticed the incident. When he had put the change in his pocket and was looking for Judith, she laid her hand on his arm. "Please hurry," she said.

He left her at the Stedway door, and Judith, running up the stairs, stumbled through a mist of tears.

A large square envelope lay under the door of her room.

In the next chapter, Eve Gerhart projects herself into the picture again, with a warning to Judith.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

This And That In Feminine Lore

Pity Poor Widow! The Woman Thou Gavest Me has been blamed for many things besides giving her spouse to a sour crabapple plucked in the Garden of Eden. But the modern wife of this nation who "is just about getting fed up on being blamed for everything from a punctured tire to no giving in his divorce" may be comforted by learning how much worse it might be.

Widows of India are blamed because their husbands died. In order to expiate her crime, the widow is used to perform "suttee," being burned to death on her husband's funeral pyre. But the government has stopped that. Nowadays a widow must live, but live a shunned, lonely and scorned life.

Laws are easily made but law work is a prejudice centuries in the making quite so easily.

Meal In Thirty Minutes Mrs. George Lydton, of Pearl River, N. Y., won a speed-cooking contest in a recent Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries. The lady cooked a better meal in less than thirty minutes than any of her competitors in more time. By that way, the cook had only one arm.

Mrs. Lydton's menu was tomato bisque soup, boiled chicken, French fried potatoes, string beans, tomato salad with cheese, peaches and ice cream with sauce.

Who Eavier Her? Funny thing about it is that it is not the woman who eavier her cook. Although throughout the history of the race housekeeping has ever been the woman's job, with women proud of their prowess in that line, things are no longer thus.

The Guest and Fireside "In memory of those early homes built by our Pilgrim fathers, and on behalf of the millions of homes represented in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, appeal to the nation to return once more to the custom of bringing the guest to one's own fire side."

So pleads Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. She pleads further—

"I appeal to the nation to make the Thanksgiving Day of 1926 a memorial to family life, to center it about the hearth of all American institutions, the home; to break the habit of public feasting with its noticeable lack of hallowed associations!

"To make the day an occasion for sharing with friends the heart-warming atmosphere of beloved and intimately homey things of life."

Lunch Rooms "Ain't So Bad!" We hear so much of this sentimentality about the home, the fireside, the blessed family circle. Good stuff, to an extent. But sometimes I wonder, after all, just what it all means? Why, getting right down to brass tacks, is this nation any better than the rest of the world er composed of families who eat the Thanksgiving turkey in Ma's dining room than if these families who have imposed upon Ma out to a pretty hotel dining room and a busy Thanksgiving dinner for the crowd?

"Us Girls" Need Help The doleful plight of the poor bachelor maid who delves and toils from 8 to 8 and must homeward wend her way to a round of collars to be washed, silk hose to be darned, and suits to be pressed, is getting the London press in quite a furore. The greatest minds of the empire write voluminous letters to the editor, giving various ways and means. They recognize that the tolling male has a wife or mother or sister to darn his socks, send his collars to the laundry, and perhaps buy a pair of shoes, but that the working female has no one but herself to rely upon.

"Ladies Maids" Bolting all the prattle and clatter down, what working-women need are old-fashioned ladies' maids—not on a full-time basis, perhaps, as Queen Elizabeth or Cleopatra employed their tolling minions. But why don't some aspiring young things who "just love" to fuss with silk things, and mend lace, and catch runs, and steam velvet wraps and press tweed suits, and, perhaps, get a nice little tea for two, go into this business of hour-by-hour work for bachelor maids? Three or four hours a week would fix things up great for most of us, and things of us know few ways in which we would rather spend a five-dollar bill!

Free and Get "Eau" But why be silly? Where are we tolling spinsters to find these jewels in the realm female. The same reason that makes us prefer to pound typewriters and tackle filing cabinets and glue our ears to switchboards, is the very same reason why we can't hire "Ladies' Maids." They don't like greasy dish water and dye soaps and sewing needles and the ironing board, etc. Or write for big, illustrated book Color Craft—free—DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N11, Burlington, Vermont.—Adv.

Make it NEW for 15 cent

The people who have the most to be thankful for on Thanksgiving Day are those who didn't wait for Good Fortune to find them, but who went out to find her. The "plenty" in your home of plenty is never an accident. It is put here by your own hand work and constant thrift."

When buying poultry for the Thanksgiving feast, and this applies to the traditional turkey, as well as the roasting chicken, there are certain rules to follow. The skin should be moist and tender. The breast and legs plump and firm. If the skin breaks easily under the leg or wing the bird is young. See that the turkey is not over fat through the back. This indicates an old turkey. Have the turkey delivered the day before Thanksgiving. Remove the neck, tendons and feet and wash the bird thoroughly inside and out. Dry it carefully and place in the refrigerator or other cool place to chill thoroughly. Then rub well with salt, stuff and skewer or sew securely and return to the refrigerator. Thanksgiving day sprinkle suit over the bird, rub it into the skin and dust with flour or butter and flour creamed; truss the bird and tie the legs and wings close to the body. Place in a large covered roaster and roast uncovered in a hot oven, 550 degrees for twenty minutes, then cover and reduce the temperature to 400, allowing 20 minutes for each pound, figuring the weight of the bird after it is cleaned and dressed.

Potato Caramel Cake Four eggs, 2 cups light brown sugar, 2-3 cup butter, 2 cups flour, 1-2 cup sweet milk, 1 cup hot mashed potato, 1 cup grated chocolate, 1 cup nut meats, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-2 teaspoon salt. Cream butter and slowly add sugar, beating hard. Add yolks of eggs, beating until mixture is very light and creamy. Melt chocolate and add to hot mashed potato, beating in milk. Mix and sift flour, salt, baking powder and spices. Put mixtures together, beating well. Stir in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into a large cake pan with a chimney and bake on hour in moderate oven. Cover with a boiled frosting or not as preferred.

Onions were always an accompaniment of the old New England Thanksgiving dinner, and most people serve them creamed or stuffed today. When boiling them a few dried celery leaves help to lesson the offensive odor, and when paring them keep the knife in cold water or peel under water. It is the cut onion coming in contact with the hands that accents them so strongly.

Here is a Thanksgiving candy that at least the pilgrims never tasted. It is called "cherry foam." One and one-half cups sugar, two tablespoons corn syrup, pinch salt, one egg white, one-third of a cup water and one-half cup candied cherries. Cook sugar, syrup and water to boiling point, pour slowly onto stiffly beaten egg whites, beating all the time. Add chopped cherries, half a teaspoon almond extract for flavoring and beat until it can be dropped in spoonfuls upon waxed paper. Put a piece of cherry atop each piece of candy. Clip this and try it for Christmas if pressed for time now.

The cake recipe given below is a good one for the holiday season. The recipe makes a large cake but it keeps well and is convenient to have on hand.

Chrysanthemums are equally popular at the Thanksgiving season for cut flowers or potted plants. All colors and varieties reasonably priced at Wayside Gardens on the trolley line to Rockville.

For Thanksgiving favors the chrysanthemum crepe paper cups in shades of orange and yellow are a good choice, filled with salted nuts, or miniature turkeys, or filled with mint and watergreen fondant waters.

Freshly salted Caseo Jumbo peanuts for your Thanksgiving feast, 50c pound. Phone 788.

Chicken pie was as traditional as turkey with the old New Englanders. If a big party is to be entertained at dinner and one turkey isn't sufficient, the chicken pie proves an ideal "stretchier." For the average family an eight to ten pound hen turkey is usually ample.

Keep the Thanksgiving table decorations low, except when the meal comes late in the day and tall centerpieces are used. A wide low bowl of fruit and nuts is colorful, or flowers that are not too tall.

For the buffet or table decoration you will want rosy red apples. No better place to buy them than plectrol, 302 West Center street. Phone 574-2 and they will make quick deliveries.

For a different apple pie, make as usual, leaving out the spice and before placing the top crust on the pie, add a generous sprinkling of cocoanut.

Looking one's best adds to the pleasure of the gay holiday season. Mrs. Robinson at the Lily Beauty Shop is always very busy at such a time, but if you will phone 1871 she may be able to give you a good marcel tomorrow.

Here are one or two menu suggestions: Consomme, celery, olives, cranberry jelly, tiny beef, pickles, roast turkey, mashed potatoes, candied sweet potatoes, French peas, grapefruit salad, pumpkin pie, pineapple mousse, coffee and mints; another, grapefruit, cream of celery soup, roast turkey, mashed potatoes and turnips, cranberry jelly.

Good Nature and Good Health NATURE GIVES WARNINGS TO MIDDLE-AGED MAN By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. As man approaches middle age and his body begins to lose its powers of recovery from degeneration and disease, certain symptoms may appear which must be taken as danger signals on the road of life. They are definite warnings to slow down, to keep to the center of the road and to avoid complications. Chief among these are albumin in kidney excretions, gout, and diabetes. There is a tendency in persons past middle age to take on fat. All medical authorities are agreed that it is well for a person after 50 years of age to diminish in weight, and that if he fails to do so, the deposits of fat must be regarded as a bad sign. It is well for the man of middle age to realize that the time to begin to take off fat is before he reaches 50. Fat Elderly Men The insurance companies have found from an investigation of their records of deaths that the elderly man with a large amount of fat is likely to have a shorter life expectancy than the one who is lean. A large amount of fat beneath the skin probably means also a great amount of fat around the heart and liver.

Home Page Editorials Learn To Get Along Together By Olive Roberts Barton. When this form appears or when the person beyond middle age has the other manifestations, including pains in the muscle, nerves and joints, these must be taken as warning signals for lessened speed and lessened quantities of body fuel. Diabetes represents difficulty in the body's ability to handle sugars. It is a disease that can be controlled easily by modern methods, but unless seen early, may produce effects that are promptly fatal. It demands a scientific consideration of the diet, such as only a trained physician can give.

Home Page Editorials Learn To Get Along Together By Olive Roberts Barton. As an English major said, "Let's face it." From now on we expect to live in a man-and-woman world—not a man world. We have to learn the gentle art of living shoulder to shoulder, learning the world's lessons and doing the world's work together and keeping each in the background. A few weak ones will go to the wall, but every boy and every girl must learn that in the new world before them law must begin with self.

THE TINYMITES

When Coppy brought the farmer's saw, the whole band shouted, "Hip, Hurray!" And then they rolled an apple to a clear space on the ground. They picked the largest one of all that from the tree had chanced to fall, and gathered round to have their feast, with merry leap and bound.

THANKSGIVING

After 75 Years of Matrimonial Bliss The Blackmars Want No Change.

Columbus, Ga., Nov. 23.—Bad news for the matrimonial cynics: Columbus has discovered and appropriately honored Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Owen Blackmar, married SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS.

True love endures, their diamond anniversary attests. That there are occasional exceptions to prove that its course is never smooth is evident in their benevolent, contented expressions.

From Maine to California came the friends, old and young, who were present to help Mr. and Mrs. Blackmar celebrate the occasion. One of them was Mrs. Josephine Peabody who was a bridesmaid on that equally festive day in 1851 when Blackmar led Miss Ann Blood to the altar.

All their lives since then have been spent in Columbus. Forty-seven of Mrs. Blackmar's 95 and of her husband's 96 years have been lived in the same home on Fourth avenue. From it they have seen their descendants increase to 37.

"I'd like to be the best in the world to live here with Alfred 47 years more," said Mrs. Blackmar.

CHAMBERLAIN DOVE TO ITALY AND FRANCE

Suggests Peace Meeting With Briand and Mussolini on Border Troubles.

Rome, Nov. 23.—Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, has suggested a meeting between Foreign Minister Briand of France, Premier Mussolini of Italy and himself, at Stresa, Lake Maggiore, prior to the December meeting of the Council of the League of Nations, it was stated semi-officially today.

The meeting, it is understood, has been prompted because Sir Austen fears that Franco-Italian relations may be strained by recent clashes along the borders of the two countries between Fascists and anti-Fascists and he desires to promote an understanding between the two nations.

TROOPS KILL CHIEF OF MEX CATHOLIC REBELS

Durango, Mexico, Nov. 23.—Federal troops under General Leon have killed Manuel Garcia, said to be a leader of Catholic rebels, during a skirmish at El Refugio, 26 miles east of Durango. Many of Garcia's followers were dispersed but one band under the leadership of Tirso Guerrero escaped to the mountains. Negotiations are now under way for the surrender of Juan Galindo, who is said to be the most important rebel chieftain now operating.

GOVERNMENT LOSES IN LIGHT BULB SUIT

Supreme Court Knocks Out Case of Conspiracy to Fix Retail Prices.

Washington, Nov. 23.—The government today lost its suit against the so-called "electrical light trust" in which it had charged the General Electric company, the Westinghouse Electric Co., and the Westinghouse Lamp Company with conspiracy to fix and maintain retail prices on lighting bulbs.

The opinion was read by Chief Justice Taft, and in the opinion legal authorities open a considerable loop-hole in the operation of the anti-trust laws.

The court denied an appeal taken by the government from the district court of Northern Ohio.

Two questions were involved: First, the legality of the sales policy of the General Electric Company requiring distributors, who are designated as agents, to sell lamps at prices fixed by the company; Second, the power of the General Electric Company, as holder of numerous patents, to fix the prices to be charged by the Westinghouse Light Company, which is granted use of some of the patents. The supreme court ruled against the government on both points.

Solicitor General William D. Mitchell, who had appealed the case for the government, declared the decision would have a far-reaching effect in anti-trust disputes.

BAD RUM KILLS TWO WATERBURY WOMEN

Waterbury, Nov. 23.—For the second time within a week a woman victim of poison liquor is listed on the police docket here. Mrs. Anna Burba, 33, a widow, was found dead in bed by her 16-year-old son late this morning, and her body was sent to St. Mary's hospital where an autopsy showed that death was due to poison. T. E. Conway, deputy coroner, ordered a chemical analysis to determine what the poison was. Mrs. Terry Galsud was found dead in bed by her young son less than a week ago and a chemical analysis determined that poison liquor killed her.

OPEN FORUM

AN APPEAL

Editor, The Herald—
In almost every home there are accumulations of books, none of interest and value, but no longer of any use to their owners. "Books are the open doors into other men's minds," the unflinching companions of isolated souls, and often the mentor and example of fine character to groping youth. Most of us have at some time been inspired through reading to strive for higher values in our own lives.

About 150 miles from the city of Singapore, up the west coast of Malaya, is the interesting and historic town of Malacca with a population of 18,000 in which are about 2,000 English speaking Chinese, Indian and Malay boys and girls whose minds are eager for understanding and development, hungry for the knowledge and wisdom to be gained through the reading of good books. There is in Malacca, a young Chinese teacher in one of the schools, who is an ardent student and lover of both children and books. He can be trusted to make the best possible use of books—fiction or informative literature—suited to the ages ranging from kindergarten to middle life.

B. J. Spencer Failed to Support
Wife and Child—Forfeited Bond Placed Here.

A non support case that has been before the Manchester police court for more than a month was yesterday disposed of for the time being at least when the defendant, B. J. Spencer forfeited his bond of $100 because he failed to appear. He was not present nor was he represented by counsel and Judge Johnson ordered his bond forfeited.

This morning Attorney James B. Henry of Hartford, representing Mrs. J. B. Spencer, mother of B. J. Spencer, appeared in court to ask the Judge to reopen the case and reconsider the order calling the bond. At the close of the hearing this morning Judge Johnson decided not to reopen the case. Spencer was brought into the Manchester court on the charge of non support by his wife. Spencer had made his home with his mother in Manchester, although his wife lived in Hartford. They have one child.

At the hearing October 21 the case was continued for one month. This was done by agreement of counsel. Judge William S. Hyde represented Mrs. Spencer, Jr. and if was understood Spencer had agreed to pay his wife $15 a week. Through his attorney Spencer mailed his wife a check for $6 a week which was not accepted and has been returned to his counsel. In the meantime Spencer left for parts unknown and through his mother it was learned he is in California.

After the hearing this morning Prosecuting Attorney Hathaway thought an effort should be made to locate Spencer and bring him back to Manchester, in which case it will cost him very much more than if he contributed to his wife and child's support at the rate of $15 a week. Spencer is a dentist and had an office in Manchester at one time. Later he opened an office in Hartford.

New York, Nov. 23.—A million-dollar bond fraud plot to victimize twenty leading Wall Street institutions, uncovered by the National Surety Company is being investigated today. Losses to date are placed at $240,000, but all New York losses, it was announced, are covered by insurance.

The alleged leader of the swindle is under arrest in Denver, police there announced. He is Earl A. Pivan, 28, advertising man, social leader, officer of the A. E. F., and one of the leading sales consultants in Denver.

Swapped For Good Ones
Denver police announced that Pivan admitted obtaining $250,000 in government bonds and other gilt-edge securities from New York brokers in return for the fake bonds, and that he was negotiating with London bankers to buy $208,000 of the "securities."

Police charged that Pivan donned a jet black mustache and a carefully fitted wig, and assumed the alias of "C. A. Coe, broker," when he passed the worthless securities. The forged bonds, police announced, purported to be the valid offerings of the Denver water department.

Pivan, police charged, had $1,000,000 worth of spurious bonds printed and negotiated with members of the original sales syndicate to sell them.

ACTION, AMOUR GALORE IN "EAGLE OF THE SEA"

Glowing Tale of Days of Sea Adventure and Romance at Circle Tonight and Tomorrow.

If you were told that the last of the pirates that used to roam the seven seas of old and terrify merchant ships were come to life again, what would you do? Would you not be curious to see this pirate? If that is so, here's your chance, for Captain Sazarac, the last of the pirates, has come to life again and is again the terror of the sea. Would you like to see him? If you would, come to the Circle theater either tonight or tomorrow afternoon or evening, for he is showing in "The Eagle of the Sea."

When Frank Lloyd produced "The Sea Hawk" it was justly acclaimed the greatest photoplay of its kind that had ever been brought to the screen. There were sea-battles, hand-to-hand fights and love sequences galore—enough to thrill the most critical theater-goer. Such was its success, that when Lloyd signed a contract to produce Paramount pictures, the first film assigned him was "The Eagle of the Sea," a romantic tale of pirates. At the Circle Theater, the finished product will be flashed on the screen. For ninety breathless minutes, dressed in corsair clothes, "cutlasses" between our teeth, boned merchantmen, will fight side of Jean Lafitte, most daring of the buccaners; rescue Florence Vidor, and yell until you are hoarse as a Spanish galleon sinks beneath the waves.

"The Eagle of the Sea" may truly be called Frank Lloyd's masterpiece. He has produced a drama that ranks high in the achievements of picture history. Lloyd has combined love and romance in New Orleans with adventure and daring on the high seas. He has given us heart-stirring love scenes in moonlit gardens and thrills without end during massive battles.

Of the cast, there are a score who win unlimited praise. Florence Vidor, as Louise Lestron, the belle of New Orleans; and Ricardo Cortez, the dashing Lafitte;—both featured players;—are worthy of particular mention. Andre Berang is priceless as a tipsy sailor, as are Sam De Grasse, Mitchell Lewis, Guy Oliver and James Marcus.

CAN YOU CARVE A TURKEY? HERE'S HOW

Perhaps the Thanksgiving host whose privilege it will be to carve the turkey needs his memory freshened up a bit. It's surely an art any man may be proud of, to neatly and skillfully carve a roasted bird.

The placing of the turkey on the table is important. The head should be toward the left hand of the carver. This brings the drumsticks to the right and the side of the bird directly in front of the carver.

Insert the fork firmly over the breast bone at the highest point. Do not remove the fork until the carving is done.

First remove the whole leg, thigh and drumstick in one piece. To do this make a circular cut around the joint close to the body. With the blade of the knife press the leg back and cut through the ligaments, holding the thigh bone to the back. A quick little twist of the knife easily severs the joint.

However, if you want to, it's perfectly "proper" to hold the end of drumstick covered with a paper frill firmly with the fingers of the left hand. Then a quick gash of the skin between the body and thigh, a little tweak with the fingers and a downward cut with the knife and the leg is neatly and expeditiously carved. The two joints of the leg repose on the platter while the wing is severed and the breast carved.

Next remove the wing by making a circular cut around the joint and pressing back with the knife just as the leg was done. However, the fingers cannot be used for the wing. Care should be taken not to cut any of the white meat of the breast with the wing. Place the wing on the platter.

Now, with the fork still in position, cut thin slices lengthwise from the breast, beginning close to the place from which the wing was removed and working up the ridge of the breast bone. Now remove the fork and separate the drumstick from the second joint, cutting through at the joint. The dark meat on the thigh and drumstick should be divided into small inviting portions. The wing is divided in two parts.

The stuffing is taken out from the tail end of the bird with a large serving spoon.

In the event that this is your "first Thanksgiving," and consequently your first venture in carving the precious bird, it will more than pay you, Mr. Man-of-the-House, to assist in the scrubbing and cleaning of the turkey and carefully watch the trussing. This will give you the "feel" of the joints and a more intimate knowledge of the anatomy of the bird than you could otherwise have.

MEXICO STANDS PAT ON OIL, LAND LEGISLATION

Mexico City, Nov. 23.—Mexico makes no suggestion of arbitration in her latest note to the United States on the protested land and oil laws, it was learned today. The correspondence in this dispute, which will be published tomorrow, will disclose Mexico standing pat and insisting upon her right to enact her own laws for the protection of her resources.
