

KELLOGG CALLS MEX SITUATION VERY CRITICAL

Coolidge, However, Opposed to Break With Calles Gov- ernment on Land and Oil Laws.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The controversy between the United States and Mexico over the latter's new land and petroleum laws reached the deadlock stage today—with the State Department throwing out hints of a break in relations.

Publication of the last four notes exchanged between the two governments confirmed what has been generally known—that absolutely no progress has been made in reconciling the conflicting views of the Mexican foreign office and the American State Department.

Deem Laws Confiscatory. In the opinion of the State Department, the laws are confiscatory by nature and constitute a menace to American property below the Rio Grande, estimated to be worth approximately one billion dollars. To this the Mexican foreign office replies that the laws are not confiscatory, and besides, Mexico is a sovereign power with the inalienable right to enact such domestic laws as she sees fit, so long as they stay within the recognized principles of international law.

There the controversy rested today—almost in the same spot it rested several years ago when the note-writing began. Neither side has budged, and an intensification of the diplomatic correspondence, and the State Department considers it useless to continue it.

The next development probably will be postponed until after January 1, when the new laws become operative. Then American property owners must register their holdings and receive in exchange fifty year concessions, and comply in other respects with the new laws.

Thus a concrete case will develop upon which action, if any, will be taken. Thus far the dispute has hinged over an interpretation of the laws; when they actually begin to operate the dispute passes out of the academic stage and into the concrete.

President Against Break. While the situation is officially characterized by Secretary of State Kellogg as "extremely critical," there nevertheless exists in Washington a widely prevailing opinion that an actual break in relations will be averted. President Coolidge is not desirous of adopting any such drastic policy if it can possibly be avoided.

The President and Secretary Kellogg held a long conference at the White House last evening at which the situation was thoroughly canvassed.

It is understood that Mr. Coolidge will take advantage of the occasion to again warn Mexico of the seriousness of the situation in his address to Congress on December 7.

PLAY TRICKS WITH SCHOOL PHONOGRAPH

Levinson and Hot Mama Issue From Machine Instead Of Lessons.

Westport, Nov. 24.—Members of the town school board are gunning for children who upset Staples High school yesterday, by substituting entirely secular phonograph records for those used strictly for educational purposes, and if the miscreants can be located the school board may advocate corporal punishment.

Staples High school uses a type of phonograph that locks when the record is started and unlocks only when it is finished. A teacher examined a record of historic import, duly labeled in the school's own label, and started it going. The result was "Levinson at the Wedding."

When the record was finished the teacher decided to put on a poetry record to soothe the children, and immediately the phonograph was playing "Red Hot Mama."

So great was the uproar that the high school had to suspend its session.

CONNECTICUT'S DINNER TO COST TWO MILLIONS

Hartford, Nov. 24.—Connecticut's Thanksgiving dinner will cost approximately two million dollars. Fifty car-loads of turkeys have come to satisfy Connecticut's hankering. Each car contained 20,000 pounds of turkey whose retail value this year is about 45 cents a pound, a total of $450,000. And that's only a starter.

FUNDS COME IN DAILY FOR DRIVE

Community Club Gets Additional Gifts—Lively Parade By Children.

Cash donations and pledges continue to come in for the campaign of the Manchester Community club. While the various teams have almost completed the work of canvassing their districts, returns are being received daily from citizens who were not reached by the workers on their first visit.

It was unavoidable that some would be skipped in so extensive a canvass as was made in the campaign. A check-up now going on at headquarters discloses the names of a number of prominent people who always wish to participate in campaigns of this character for public welfare. The executive committee stated today that these persons were overlooked inadvertently and not intentionally, and they are invited to volunteer their contributions. This will reduce the number of visits to be made by the "clean-up" flying squadron now at work.

New Total Soon. The revised total of subscriptions will be made as soon as the flying squadron has completed its work. Cards have been made out for each contributor showing whether payment was made in full or in part. Those who have not paid in full will make payment quarterly, in equal parts.

The clerical force at the "White House" is having a busy time these days computing the figures, keeping the telephones answered, and supplying the information desired by the workers.

Snappy Parade Yesterday. Citizens on Main street near Depot Square at 3:45 yesterday afternoon were astonished to see advancing with stately tread on the sidewalks on either side of the street two long lines, composed of

BURCH WILL SEEK DIVORCE FROM ELOPER

Action Only Course Open Says Husband of Woman Who Fled With Father-in-Law.

Yonkers, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Lyndon W. Burch, grandson of the late Bishop Burch, today plans to start suit for divorce against his wife, Isabel Keyes Burch, who eloped with his step-father, Captain Arnold Marson. The run-away couple are now under arrest in San Francisco charged with violation of the Mann act.

After making his admission, Burch suddenly decided that he was "talking too much" and refused to give any details regarding his proposed action. But sitting in his home here with his two children he said there "seems no other course to take."

Burch's wife disappeared some time ago, accompanied by Marson, her mother-in-law's second husband, who is an Italian war hero. They were arrested as soon as located on the coast.

Mrs. Marson is proscribed in her life here.

Marson Gets Hearing. San Francisco, Nov. 24.—Captain Arnold Marson, former Italian army officer, today was scheduled to appear before United States Commissioner Francis Krull for a preliminary hearing on a charge of violating the Mann act. His companion, Mrs. Isabelle Keyes Burch, is held as a material witness. She says she will refuse to testify against him.

PAYS $366,845 FOR A LAWRENCE PICTURE

London, Nov. 24.—A new record price for a picture sale at a public auction was set up today when Sir Joseph Duveen paid $366,845 for "Sir Thomas Lawrence's 'Pinkie,'" at the sale of the art treasures of the late Lord Michelham.

Fifteen famous pictures in the Michelham collection brought a total of $2,189,775.

TWO DIE IN GAS TANK TRAGEDY, ONE A RESCUER

Third Man Collapses in Heroic Try to Save a Life High in Air at Bay State Refinery.

Everett, Mass., Nov. 24.—Two night checkers at the plant of the Beacon Oil Company's refining plant were killed by gas, a third man was overcome, and others were endangered in rescue work atop a big tank twenty feet above the ground today.

The dead are: Dennis Donovan, 18, of Charlestown and John Hughes, 28, of Everett. Merle Haskell, also of Everett, was overcome. Twenty feet in the air, on top of a big tank, Donovan was overwhelmed while opening a manhole to measure the contents. Volatile gases from the partially refined gasoline, with no wind to carry them away, caused his death.

When Donovan failed to return, Foreman Earl Bradley and Hughes were sent out. They had just reached Donovan's body, when Hughes collapsed. Bradley ran for help.

Refusing to heed warnings, Merle Haskell climbed up the tank with a rope fastened around his body. He got the rope about the body of Hughes and was about to lower it to the ground when he himself collapsed.

Haskell and Donovan and Hughes were brought down by firemen wearing gas masks. Efforts to revive Donovan and Hughes failed. Donovan was only eighteen years old. He was working to obtain funds to attend college next year. Last year he graduated from Boston College high school, where he was manager of the track team, editor of the school paper and cheerleader, selected for the annual game with St. James' High of Haverhill on Thanksgiving Day.

SEAPLANES SPEEDING ON TOWARD PANAMA

Navy Aircraft Making Excellent Progress on Latter Half of Non-Stop Flight.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The Navy's pair of metal seaplanes, PN-10 type, took off from Hampton Roads at 4:18 and 4:26 respectively yesterday afternoon on their non-stop flight to Panama.

Lieutenant B. J. Connell, flying plane No. 1 reported in a wireless message timed at 8:20 this morning that he was 145 miles south of the Isle of Pines—considerably more than half way to his destination.

Connell reported that the oil temperature on his starboard motor had gone up. Queen Marie had reported an average of over 70 miles an hour.

Bartlett's Plane Down. Washington, Nov. 24.—Commander H. T. Bartlett, flying plane No. 2, is being held from Hampton Roads to Panama, has been forced down off the Isle of Pines, the Navy was advised in a message this afternoon.

The message stated that Bartlett's oil supply failed and did not indicate that either the ship or her crew were injured in any way.

TESTS THE POWERS OF BOXING COMMISSIONER

Donahue Sued For Ordering Boxers Share of Gate Held Up For Stalling.

New Haven, Nov. 24.—A prize fight held here more than two years ago is scheduled to engage the attention of Judge Edwin S. Thomas in United States District Court here, this afternoon. Sam Goldman, of New York, once manager of Pal Moran, boxer, is suing Thomas Donahue of New London, state boxing commissioner, for $3,200 and costs because of the fight ending in a fizzle on August 21, 1924. Both parties to the suit have waived a jury trial and are content to let the case be decided by the judge alone.

According to papers in the suit, Pal Moran was hired to box at Weiss Park, New Haven for a percentage of the gate receipts which finally amounted to $3,200. The referee, following the bout, decided that had been no contest, and the state commissioner, according to the suit, ordered Moran's payment withheld.

MARIE, DEPARTING, FACES A STRUGGLE

Sails From New York, Perhaps to Seek Control as Empress of Rumania.

New York, Nov. 24.—Queen Marie of Rumania, with her son and daughter and the rest of the royal party, sailed for Europe today on the Berengaria.

"America has been a friend to me," she told newspapermen on her departure, "and I hope that when I have gone the same remembrance will remain, that same wonderful feeling that I have seen expressed on every face as I have been received everywhere."

Hundreds Say Farewell. The Queen's party is occupying the imperial suite, used by the Prince of Wales on his last visit here. It was headed high with floral tributes. Hundreds of the Queen's friends and admirers stood on the pier to bid her farewell.

Broadcasting a farewell message to America from radio station WMAQ, Queen Marie had refused the insinuation that she had come to this country to collect money for Rumania. She said:

"When I am gone, don't let anything tarnish that remembrance that you have of me. I did not come on business. I did not come for the sake of politics. I came for nothing but just to make friends with you."

Struggle for Power. Vienna, Nov. 24.—Queen Marie's return to Bucharest will be the signal for a typical Balkan struggle for power, according to reports reaching here from Belgrade and Bucharest.

King Ferdinand's condition is such that he will probably have to undergo an operation and the chances of his living for any extended period are slight, according to the reports received here.

Queen Marie is said to have ambitions to establish herself as Queen Regent, or perhaps as Empress of Rumania, it is reported.

In the army there is a decided movement for the return of Prince Carol.

The present arrangements for the creation of a regency for the infant son of Prince Carol seem unlikely to prevail.

USE WAR PLANS IN DEFENSE OF FALL, DOHENY

Gleaves' Secret Report of Japanese Move to Attack Hawaii to Be Subpoenaed in Trial.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Highly confidential documents of a most sensational character bearing on America's relations with Japan have been subpoenaed in the Fall-Doheny conspiracy case, it was learned today.

At the instance of Frank J. Hogan, chief counsel for E. L. Doheny, the oil magnate, Justice A. Hoehling has ordered Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to appear with every report made to the Navy department by Admiral Gleaves while the latter was in Asiatic waters in 1920-22.

Raid on Hawaii. Hogan, addressing the jury during his opening, stated flatly that Gleaves had reported he had reliable information the Japanese government was preparing for a secret mobilization against Hawaii and the Philippines, and that for that reason the Navy was anxious to enter into the contract with the Pan-American Oil Co. for consumption of which Doheny and ex-Secretary of the Interior Fall are facing charges of conspiracy to defraud the government.

I intend to put Wilbur on the stand," said Hogan, "and either make him produce the Gleaves reports and thus substantiate my argument, or make him admit they are of such a sensational nature as to complicate international relations. In either event, I believe my point will be proved."

Testimony Begins. The trial settled down today to the business of hearing direct testimony from the first group of the hundred-odd nationally known figures who, in one way or another, have knowledge of the circumstances leading up to the leasing of the oil fields.

Before placing anyone on the stand, Owen J. Roberts, government counsel, read portions of the

HUDSON RIVER BOAT RAMS A FREIGHTER

Trojan Badly Damaged in Collision But Nobody Is Hurt and There's No Panic.

Peekskill, N. Y., Nov. 24.—The Hudson river boat Trojan rammed a freighter belonging to the Fleischmann Yeast Co., between this place and Stony Point late last night. Seventy-five passengers were transferred from the Trojan to river tugboats early today and brought to Peekskill whence they were sent by train to Albany.

No one was injured, although the passengers were severely shaken up. Both vessels were disabled but remained afloat.

There was no panic aboard the Trojan. The majority of the passengers had not yet gone to bed when the collision occurred.

The Trojan was brought to a pier here, where it was found that her bow was badly damaged.

New York, Nov. 24.—The Hudson River night boat Trojan with fifty passengers aboard, was rammed by a rum runner fleeing from a pursuing revenue cutter, Captain George H. Warner, skipper of the vessel, charged on his return today from Peekskill. It has been reported that the Trojan crashed into an anchored freighter.

Captain Warner said he was traveling at a normal rate of speed when the fugitive vessel, of about 800 tons cut across his bows for the shore.

The vessel and her crew were later captured by the men on the revenue cutter, Captain Warner stated.

MRS. GIBSON'S DEATH IS EXPECTED SOON

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 24.—Mrs. Jane Gibson, around whose testimony the state is building its case in the Hall-Mills murder trial, was reported weaker in the hospital here today, and it was stated that her death is expected in a comparatively short time.

TO LET COURTS SOLVE GORMAN ESTATE TANGLE

Multiplicity of Deeds Baffles Administrator—Case Will Be Tried on Next Tuesday in Superior Court.

One of the most complicated estate problems in Manchester in some time has been revealed in an attempt to settle the estate of the late Patrick Gorman which is valued at approximately $150,000 and to which three persons claim title.

The Manchester Trust Company which formerly acted as conservator of the property and now administrator of the estate, have turned the matter over, to the superior court in Hartford to thrash out. The case was scheduled for a hearing yesterday but one of the attorneys was unable to speak above a whisper owing to a heavy cold and the trial was postponed until next Tuesday.

The value of the real estate on Main street, and in the block bounded by Oak, Cottage and Maple streets, owned by the late Patrick Gorman, furnishes the basis of a very much mixed-up lawsuit. During Patrick Gorman's life he was, as everybody knows, a very thrifty, hard working, and successful man contractor, and acquired and developed very valuable real estate in Manchester.

The property on Main street, including a frontage on Main street of 200 feet, and running clear through westerly to Locust street, on which are situated his fine white brick residence, a large double house, the Mohr Bakery and various other buildings, was one of these properties.

The other was a half block between Oak street on the north and Maple street on the south, Cottage street on the east and the Dry Brook on the West.

In Feeble Condition. During his last days Mr. Gorman was in a very feeble condition. He died in January, 1924. His wife, Bridget Gorman, died in May, 1923. They had no children. A nephew, James F. O'Gorman, was taken when an infant by Patrick Gorman and his wife and was looked upon by them as their own son, although he was never legally adopted. James died in 1919.

The Manchester Trust Company was appointed administrator of Patrick Gorman's estate. After this appointment it developed that Mrs. Delia Fearfull had in her possession, a deed of the Main street property claimed to have been given her by Patrick Gorman after his wife's death. Another alleged deed appeared purporting to be from Patrick Gorman to Mrs. Honora Reilly Worthington and Mrs. Catherine Eddy MacMahon and this deed conveyed the three houses facing Maple street. The administrator questioned the validity of these deeds and determined whether they were valid or not.

The administrator brought an action to the Superior Court asking for a decree holding them to be void on the ground that they were obtained through undue influence and at a time when Patrick Gorman was incompetent.

O'Gorman Enters. After this action was begun Lee O'Gorman, as administrator of the

PROBE HOTEL FIRE AT WINDSOR LOCKS

Telephone Building Saved in Long Fight With Flames of Mysterious Origin.

Windsor Locks, Nov. 24.—Fire officials here today were probing the case of a fire that last evening did damage of about $20,000 to the Hotel Brusie, on Main street opposite the railroad station.

The flames apparently started in a room on the third floor and swept through the fourth floor and the roof. Other portions of the frame structure were damaged by smoke and water. The building is owned by Vito Coiopietro, who has a furniture store on the ground floor.

Firemen worked on the building from 9 p. m., when the fire was discovered, until after midnight. Their work prevented the flames from spreading into the adjoining building occupied by the Southern New England Telephone Company.

WILLIE BALKS SIMPSON QUIZ IN HALL TRIAL

Prosecutor Abandons Cross- Examination of Supposed Incompetent—Detective Admits Lying.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 24.—"Willie" Stevens concluded his testimony in his own behalf as a defendant in the Hall-Mills murder trial today. He left the stand a splendid witness for himself, the prosecutor being unable to break him down on a single essential point in his testimony that he had "absolutely nothing to do" with the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

Willie was on the stand for but twelve minutes this morning, making the length of his appearance as a witness an hour and thirty-two minutes, less than half the time taken in Henry Stevens' direct testimony and cross-examination.

Transformed overnight into a new and intriguing personality he resumed the witness stand for further cross-examination by the prosecutor for the state.

Best Witness of 100. Willie had proved to be the best witness of the trial to date, and more than 100 have testified. He is no funny man on the stand—nothing at all peculiar about him except perhaps his looks.

Denying "absolutely" that he was a member of the murder squad that is alleged to have slain Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills he told a clear, lucid story of what he did on the night of the crime. He said he was smoking in his room at the time of the murder. Prosecutor Simpson couldn't budge him on a single essential fact.

"I understand you to say you didn't know Mrs. Eleanor Mills very well?" was Simpson's opening question today.

"Yes,"

"You were never in the Mills home or took notes there?"

"No," replied Willie. "Only one time I was on the piazza, never in her home."

Never Talked to Mrs. Mills. "You never saw her at her home and never talked to her?"

"No, sir."

"Didn't you tell the prosecutor of Middlesex county in 1922 that on Thursday night (the night of the murder) you never left the room until your sister called you?"

"I am not positive."

Yesterday Willie said he had left the room to say "good night" to his sister.

Simpson then placed some shells on the witness railing.

TO Untangle Puzzle

If the unrecorded deed to Bridget and James is valid, Patrick Gorman had no title to them when the Pearsall and Worthington deeds were made. If this deed is not valid, then the question is whether the late deeds held by Mrs. Pearsall and Mrs. Worthington are valid instruments. The whole matter is very much mixed and it is for the purpose of untangling the puzzle that the case is in court.

HUDSON, N. Y., HAS BIG FIRE

Suggestions to Follow in Selecting Oil Burners Given By Local Dealer.

Alfred A. Grezel, local dealer, suggests that in selecting an oil burner for your cottage or mansion there are a few very important questions to consider; namely, the type of burner to be used, grade of oil used, comparative cost of maintenance and fuel, supply of oil, etc.

THANKSGIVING. The New England—now American—festival of Thanksgiving day is significant especially as a heritage from a time around which we are prone to wrap the garments of romance. At the period of its origin its date went far toward establishing itself. In those days people got their living outdoors. Life moved in annual cycles—the ploughing, the planting, the tilling, the harvest, the making of things snug and safe for the winter; then the long weeks of practical imprisonment behind the barrier of snow and ice.

By the end of November the last of the crops were in, the winter's wood cut and hauled, the houses banked, the hard labor and the production of the year over. That a devoutly religious people should then set apart a certain day for the rendering of thanksgiving for the blessings that had attended their efforts was logical. We are no longer, here in New England, essentially or principally an agricultural people. We do the same things all the year around. There is neither beginning nor end to the round of our endeavors. All seasons are alike in that none of them brings fulfillment. We have infinitely more of material reward for our labors, than they who first set aside the festival, but we none of us—save the comparatively few who still live from the soil—appreciate the larger meaning of the word, "Done."

NO WAR! If Secretary of State Kellogg is planning war with Mexico it would seem to be the business of the American people—not the exclusive affair of Mr. Kellogg, the War Department, the Civic Legion, the draft boards and those gentlemen who have money invested below the Rio Grande.

Because, first and foremost and incontrovertibly, the American people are not going to have any war with Mexico. Mexico has made certain laws which are said to affect adversely the interests of American owners of Mexican lands—mineral, oil and grazing lands. For some time the United States State Department has been extremely busy trying to get Mexico to, in effect, abrogate those laws. Mexico refuses to do so because, as President Calles explains, that country is passing to a new ownership system of nationalization of natural resources which require that old rights adjust themselves to new principles in the general interest of the nation.

IN OTHER WORDS Mexico is trying to give her hitherto economically oppressed, peonized and exploited population a chance for a decent development and a humanized existence. For three hundred years Mexico has been a failure. Vast private ownerships of her resources have brought nothing to her as a nation—only great wealth to individuals, often foreigners. Apparently the Calles regime is determined to create a prosperity of the people. That reforms in Mexico could be brought about without affecting the profits of American exploiters as well as all other exploiters, both native and foreign, is not to be expected. Mexico has not expected it. Mr. Kellogg has consistently demanded it. The affair does not concern the American people. It concerns a few capitalists. Mr. Kellogg now ignores President Calles' brusque declaration that if the United States is aggrieved at Mexico's course she can have recourse to the Hague tribunal, and quite palpably threatens to break off diplomatic relations with Mexico. That would not quite necessarily mean war but it would be a very long step toward war. There has been some secret shenanigans in the War Department over preparation to reorganize the draft boards—which leaked out the other day. It would seem to be entirely possible that the State Department and the War Department, between them, across the Grand Canyon of the Colorado when the sun is wielding his morning paintbrush. Something to talk about for days and to think about for years. And they never experience it. Because nobody can make another person understand about good music. And yet every person who has ever listened to it—listened with ears and mind and heart opened—has caught the indescribable point. Training, education, have nothing to do with the spiritual appreciation of music that is right.

There is only one way that this cheapest, rarest, most delightful of delights can be made part of a community's experiences—and that is by experiencing it. And there is no way for a community to experience it unless somebody makes it possible.

That is the work that the Men's Choral Club is doing—out of sheer love of the doing. It is devoting many, many hours of time and of hard work to the extraordinary enterprise of providing for the people of Manchester a quality of music such as it falls to the lot of extremely few communities like this to hear.

And in the forthcoming concert it is sincerely probable that the club has made a long step in advance over the extremely fine achievements of past seasons. Its very splendid chorus has the added advantage of one more year's training and experience. It has striven very hard for another step in advancement. It has a fascinating program.

And it presents to the people of Manchester, in addition to highly regarded artists in the persons of Hazel Theodorowicz, cellist, and Mildred Godfrey Hall, harpist, a singer of much that same rare appeal as has made the fame of John McCormick—Richard Crooks.

Termed by some of the critics the greatest American tenor, by all as equal of the greatest, this young man has just arrived at that point of celebrity where not to have heard him in the person, a year hence, will be cause for infinite regret to everybody who has missed the opportunity.

When it is considered that there is no slightest possibility of this concert being a financial success—that it is made possible only by the devoted labors of the Choral club and the little group of helpers who go deep into their pockets to meet the heavy expense of the undertaking, it would really seem as if Manchester ought to go so far in appreciation, at least—and so far in the search for self culture—as to fill every seat in high school hall Monday night.

Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota is the Salome of the next Congress. A political outcast for two years, Frazier's power has become such that both Republican and Democratic parties are now casting amorous glances in his direction. Each side wants him to dance with it.

Frazier was read out of the Republican party after the La Follette presidential campaign and now, when he is the only one of those so treated left in the Senate, his vote becomes of paramount importance to the G. O. P. Senator Borah recently paid the way for Frazier's reinstatement in an open letter, but the North Dakotan can afford to be very fussy about his future playmates.

The question is, what will Frazier demand? The Republicans can hardly organize the next Congress without him unless they have some Democratic help.

No Enticement. Someone has suggested giving him the chairmanship of the Indian affairs committee, but presumably that will not be savory bait.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 24.—While dogs and cats continue to be the most popular pets, celebrities of New York could fill a Noah's Ark with the collection of beasts and birds to which they have become attached.

Thus E. F. Albee, vaudeville impresario, has two baby elephants, Jeanne Eagles, the lovely stage star, has a parrot—which, if rumor be correct—can say something stronger than "darn it!" Billy Burke has a baby leopard. Mrs. Albert Smith, wife of Governor Al., is quite fond of a pet monkey. Vincent Lopez, the orchestra leader, has an alligator in his bathtub—or wherever he keeps it. Lenore Ulrich has a famous kitten. John Barrymore has a trick ape, of organ grinder vintage. And so it goes.

The East Side is tremendously proud of the person who leap it boundaries to win fame and fortune in the American whirl. The oldsters look with not a little fear upon the younger generations in whom they see a breaking down of old customs, tastes and ways.

But let those youngsters go forth and win and the whole Ghetto turns out to cheer. And they do go "home." There are "home-coming" strutters on the East Side, as elsewhere. Scores more use their new positions to cement old ties to new ones. They try to keep alive much that is fine in the old and convert the oldsters to much that is fine in the new.

The other night I wandered over to watch the opening of a new Yiddish theater, through which two men who have risen to success hope to win back the youngsters to the old drama. To do this they had to house the fine old works in a place that would parallel the Broadway lures of the young folk.

And I saw two men—Louis N. Jaffe, who built the place, and Maurice Schwartz, who puts on the dramas. If there are two men typical of my point, there they are. Schwartz came from Russia at the age of 12. He worked in a rag shop through the daylight hours and studied by night. One day he saw David Kessler, great Yiddish tragedian, and, in due time, became an actor.

Jaffe also came as a penniless immigrant. He had studied to be a rabbi, gave it up and left Russia. He came to America and sold newspapers until he was sufficiently skilled to be a cigarmaker. But he studied at night. That is the real point of both these stories—the boys studied at night.

Feast day of St. John of the Cross, first prior of the Barefooted Carmelites, whose reform was rejected by the elder friars who cast the saint into prison.

STORE CLOSED ALL DAY THANKSGIVING. CLOSED AT 6 TONIGHT. A Thanksgiving Message from Watkins Brothers. RARE is the man who will admit under any circumstances that business is unqualifiedly good. Few of us are ever satisfied with the present degree of prosperity. It is so much easier to see the clouds on the horizon. As a matter of fact general prosperity prevails to an extraordinary degree right now. Why not admit it and write it large among the things for which we are thankful on Thanksgiving Eve? Business IS good with us. We're thankful for that, and thankful that we are located in Manchester where we started, where business has been so uniformly good throughout the fifty-two years of our business career. But most of all we are thankful for the friends among whom we live and with whom our business relations have bordered on the ideal. WATKINS BROTHERS, Inc.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE. Rare Fly. BY AUSTIN H. CLARK. Smithsonian Institution. Who has not heard of the spider and the fly? Spiders and flies practice what is known as reciprocity. That is, each makes certain concessions to the other. The fly states it more definitely, flies often allow themselves to be eaten by spiders, while spiders often allow themselves to be eaten by flies. Strange as it may seem, there is a whole group of flies, and the members of which never eat anything but spiders. The fly shown in the picture is one of these spider-eating flies. They are all distinguished by having a very small head, which is little else than eyes, and a curiously hump-backed appearance. AN of these flies when young live within spiders, feeding on their tissues, or within the egg sacks of spiders, consuming their eggs. A number of these spider-eating flies are brightly colored and metallic—very beautiful creatures. There are not many different kinds, and most of them are rather rare.

30 DRIVERS' LICENSES SUSPENDED BY STATE. The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out today at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce his highway menace. There are thirty names on the list. The case of one was appealed. Four were Connecticut operators convicted in other States. WILLIE BALKS QUIZ OF THE PROSECUTION witness, had testified that Carpenter was one of the persons she saw at the scene of the crime.

Willie's Baptism
Rev. Marvin Pettit, who succeeded the slain Rev. Hall as pastor of the church of St. John the Evangelist at New Brunswick, was recalled to the stand when Willie Stevens had been excused.

Case showed a record book from St. John's church to the witness. "Does the record show the date of William Stevens' baptism?" Case asked.

"Yes, he was baptized June 16, 1872, at St. John's under the name of William Carpenter Stevens."

Date of Moon's Rise
Raymond S. Dugan, professor of astronomy at Princeton University, followed Rev. Pettit and was asked when the moon rose on September 14, 1922.

"It rose at 11:23 Eastern Standard time at the Pennsylvania station, New Brunswick, N. J."

He then calculated that the rise would be two seconds later at De Russey's lane. He said the moon was at that a little half moon.

(This testimony corroborated Mrs. Gibson's statement that the moon was up on her second visit to the scene of the crime on the night of September 14, 1922.)

Mrs. Mabel Cluckner, daughter of Mrs. Marie Demarest, one of the state's star witnesses, was called and she testified she was riding with her mother on the day the latter testified she saw Minnie Cluckner and Ralph Gorsline spying on Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills, and that she did not see the incident.

No Spots on Coat
John Chambers was called. He testified that on the 17th of September, 1922, he was at the home of Anna K. Bearman when the coat and scarf was brought in and could see no spots on it.

Mrs. Moncure Carpenter testified she was at Mrs. Hall's home the day the latter's coat and scarf were sent out to be cleaned but saw no spots on it.

The defense then called Mrs. Anna K. Bearman, who had testified for the state. Attorney Case apparently wanted to clear up a discrepancy. He got her to admit she was not in New Brunswick on the morning of September 17, as had been testified.

Canon Well was called next. "You saw Mrs. Hall at the funeral—did you see scratches on her face?"

"I did not," he said. Mrs. Hall had thrown back her veil and he noticed no scratches.

Saw No Scratches
The Rev. Thomas Conover, an elderly clergyman, testified he attended Rev. Hall's funeral and saw no scratches.

Another clergyman, Rev. Edward Stevenson of Plainfield, when asked, when he attended the funeral, he saw any scratches on Mrs. Hall's face, said: "None whatever."

Mrs. Etta Bennett, a white-haired woman of about sixty, came next. She saw Mrs. Hall in her home on Saturday, Sept. 16, 1922 she testified, and Mrs. Hall did not have scratches on her face. This was only a few minutes after the bodies were found.

Mrs. Jennie Waller, the girl Robert Erling, a state witness, testified in De Russey's lane with him on the night of the murder, was the next witness.

"Did you take a ride to De Russey's lane with Robert Erling on September 14, 1922?"

"Yes."

"Did you stop in the lane?"

"No."

Saw No Mule
"Did you see Mrs. Jane Gibson there?"

"No."

"Did you see a woman with a mule?"

"No."

She was cross-examined by Prosecutor Berger.

"What time did you get home that night?" he asked.

"About 11 o'clock."

"What were you doing all this time in the car?"

"Well—and she shrugged her shoulders, leaving the question unanswered.

Mrs. Waller admitted that Attorney Stevenson of defense counsel, had talked to her since the case started.

"Did he suggest that because you were married it would be bad to say you stopped in the lane that night?"

"He did not."

Swaggerer Charges Bribery
Willard Stout, a slim young man with a swagger, was called.

He testified Erling approached him and said there "would be money in it" for him (Stout) if he said he was in De Russey's lane on September 14, 1922.

Ferd David, detective of Middlesex county, was recalled. He was a state witness several days ago. He said there were several visiting cards turned over to him with other articles found at the scene of the crime. He and other detectives examined the cards. He found no fingerprints on them he explained he is no fingerprint expert.

David also testified that in October, 1922, Mrs. Gibson told him and Detective Totten, that on the night of the murder she heard a shot and saw a flash and rode away on her mule without dismounting.

David contradicted Pig Woman Case tried to get from David a statement as to whether Mrs. Gibson was able to identify the three defendants in the prosecutor's office in New Brunswick in October, 1922.

A lengthy argument between opposing defense counsel followed.

Finally David was allowed to answer.

This was a high spot in the morning's testimony.

"Did Mrs. Gibson on October 17, 1922, say she could not identify any of these defendants?" Defense Attorney Case asked.

"She did," David replied.

"And were the three persons,

Mrs. Hall and Henry and Willie Stevens in the prosecutor's office at that time?"

"They were."

Contradicts Own Testimony
On cross-examination David admitted he swore on November 28, 1922, before the grand jury, that Mrs. Gibson had actually identified the three defendants.

In response to questions from Case, David testified that Mrs. Gibson told him "several conflicting stories of what she saw on the night of the crime."

Simpson on cross-examination asked David did he receive Dr. Hall's glasses after the murder.

"Our office did," replied David.

"In the first week after the murders, did you come out in the office holding these glasses and rubbing the lenses with both hands for the purpose of erasing finger prints and saying 'these are not finger-prints, they're flyspecks?'"

"I did not," said David emphatically. He was then excused.

Mrs. Hall Acted Naturally
The Rev. Thomas A. Conover of Bernardsville, an Episcopal clergyman, was the last witness of the morning. He testified he saw Mrs. Hall on Saturday, Sep. 16, in response to a telephone call from Mrs. Hall. He could not remember seeing any scratches on her face.

Mrs. Hall acted like any woman would act under similar conditions, he said.

He said Mrs. Hall broke down Monday morning while he was administering communion and apologized for him for doing so.

The clergyman was excused and luncheon recess was taken.

Simpson Seeks Time
When court opened this afternoon counsel for both sides launched into a long argument over a request by Simpson for further delay before he begins cross-examination of fingerprint experts. The court ruled he would delay his decision as to whether he would give the prosecutor more time to study the exhibits.

Alexander Merchant, of New Brunswick, professional architect, was called and identified drawings of Mrs. Hall's home which he had made. He made the drawings in 1925 when she was making alterations in her home.

KANE-WARD
St. Bridget's church was the scene of a pretty wedding this morning at nine o'clock when Miss Catherine Adaline Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ward of Belmont street became the bride of James P. Kane, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kane of East Hartford. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. C. T. McCann and was witnessed by a large gathering of relatives and friends.

Mrs. Margaret Shea, organist and a close friend of the bride played the wedding march and during the nuptial mass sang Ave Maria and at the close, "Star of the Ocean."

Miss Margaret V. Ward, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Joseph Leonard of East Hartford was best man.

The bride was attired in a French frock of white tulle over satin. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet of pearls and orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of Easter lilies, Ward roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaid wore pastel shade green with gold lace hat and silver kid slippers. She carried an arm bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses.

After the ceremony at the church a reception and wedding breakfast was held at the Hotel Sheridan.

Mr. and Mrs. Kane left at noon for Chicago and Kansas City where they will visit the bride's brothers. They will be at home to their friends after January 1 in their new home at 85 Chapel street.

PURPLE HAS EDGE OVER ROYAL, PURDUE
Evanston, Ill., Nov. 24.—No two teams have battled on more even terms on the football field than have Northwestern and Purdue.

Their recent meeting, marked the eighteenth time they have come together. The Purple has won 10 games and the Bollermakers eight.

Up until last season they had split even. In 1925 and 1926 Northwestern went into the lead, winning 13-9 a year ago and 22-0 this fall.

The largest score ever rolled up was made by Northwestern in 1916 when the great Paddy Driscoll rained the Evanston fields. Purdue was tramped in the mire 38-6.

PRISON INMATE INVENTS AEROPLANE APPLIANCE

Washington, Nov. 24.—(United Press.)—Among the places where there is much interest in aviation, are the prisons. The Navy Bureau of Aeronautics received a letter from an inmate of New York State Prison, enclosing an invention for a rigid dirigible mooring-mast, and asking for a model airplane.

The prisoner wanted the model airplane to attach a patent for supplying a plane on a small surface. He also asked for photographs of the "newer models" in order that "I may get better acquainted with them." The photographs were sent at once.

REVERSED CHARGES—AN ADDITIONAL CONVENIENCE

YOU can now reverse charges, with a few exceptions, on Station-to-Station toll telephone calls where the rate is 25 cents or more. Many times this will prove a great convenience, and this improvement on Station-to-Station calls should be welcomed by the public in general.

The salesman can now call his home office by number and reverse the charges; the parent, his home telephone by number and charge the call to that telephone; and in many similar cases, advantage can be taken of this change.

This new convenience should offer an added inducement to the use of the greatest of time savers—the telephone.

TRAIN WAR CUTS TIME TO COAST

Five Railways in Bitter Fight—Five Hours Off Schedule.

BY ROY J. GIBBONS

NEA Service Writer
Chicago, Nov. 24.—On ribbons of steel, crack flyers of the super deluxe type will race the setting sun in a new 63-hour service inaugurated by five western railroads connecting Chicago with the Pacific coast.

This most radical shift of through schedules marks a resumption of the old-time bitter enmity among the western transcontinentals—an enmity that had been lulled by federal supervision during the war.

It cuts five hours off the best regular running time ever made to date.

Cry For Speed
Heretofore the run from Chicago to the west coast has taken anywhere from 68 to 75 hours. The latest reduction comes as a forceful answer to the demand for more speed made by the speediest nation on earth.

It will enable a traveler to board a connecting train in New York at dusk Saturday and arrive at the Golden Gate in time for breakfast Wednesday.

Thus, for the first time since rails spanned the continent, it will be possible to make the trip with the loss of but two business days.

Covered Wagon Days
Contrast this with the hardships of the covered wagon days, when the journey from the east of steel to the west of steel was a march by foot or Indian arrow, the modern passenger can travel with incredible swiftness and in luxury.

His courier, sleek and silent, will rush through the landscape just a few hours behind the sun—a veritable hotel on wheels, equipped with every sort of modern comfort, including snow, baths, barber shops and soda fountains.

It took the first trains that ever ran out of Chicago to San Francisco in 1867 something like 109 hours to make the trip, so far as records can reveal.

Cutting It In Two
The new schedules, which are the result of a year's effort involving all departments of five armies of men of the Rock Island, Santa Fe, Chicago and Northwestern, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific roads, almost cut this old time in two.

Huge sums of money have been spent in better ballasted road beds to permit greater speed. The finest kind of rolling stock obtainable has been purchased and much engineering effort has been expended. All this as an answer to the cry of speed—more speed.

The new running time is on an excess fare basis at the rate of $10 additional for a through ticket. At proportionate bonus rates intermediate points, including Kansas City, Denver and other cities along the routes of the new flyers, will share in this fast service.

From a Day Each Way
The five roads associated in the new enterprise have included four daily trains in each direction to start the new service. Other trains which formerly made the trip in from 75 to 70 hours have been reduced to a no excess fare basis and placed on a 63-hour schedule, the former running time of the super flyers.

Federal supervision during the war halted all rivalry. But rivalry of the keenest sort now is on once more. Instead of the old slogan of "the public be damned," the public is to be served—handsomely.

USE WAR SCARE IN FALL-DOHENY DEFENSE

navy department's specifications for the Pearl Harbor oil storage project for the sake of the record. Much of the questioning of witnesses will center around the circumstances of the letting of this contract to the Doheny-controlled Pan-American company.

The two Pearl Harbor contracts and the elk hills oil lease were then placed in the record.

Daniels on Stand
Joseph Daniels, secretary of the navy under President Wilson, took the stand. Taking the oath, he kissed the bible rather than lay his hand on it.

Roberts merely asked him if any oil leases and contracts had been made during his administration.

"No," he replied.

The witness was excused without further examination.

Will Ed Harris, one of the eight heirs owning the ranch at Three Rivers, N. M., which Fall purchased with the money obtained from Doheny, took the stand. He testified he sold the ranch to Fall in December, 1921, for $91,500 but said he had lost the contract. He was paid $10,000 in cash on the date of contract, he said.

Hundred Dollar Bills
Harris testified Fall paid him $10,000 in hundred dollar bills from a little satchel.

"The next payment was made in the latter part of December at Three Rivers, in two checks, one of $23,000 to me and one for $22,000 to my brother-in-law, A. D. Brownfield," he said.

The checks were introduced in evidence. One was dated December 28, 1921.

"Were you paid in full for the contract?"

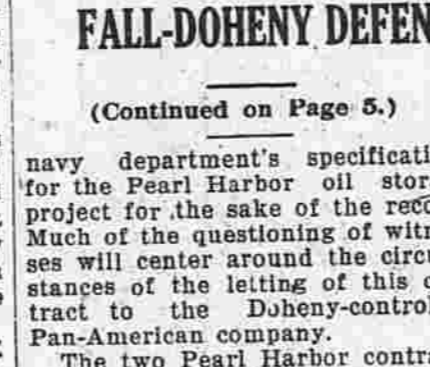

"Yes, sir."

Ideal? Yessir!

Miss Juanita Hornbrook is the "ideal secretary." She was chosen for that part at the national business show in Cleveland.

ALABAMA GOVERNOR CAUGHT IN RUM RAID

Is One of Nine Taken at Fishing Camp With 13 Unlucky Quarts.

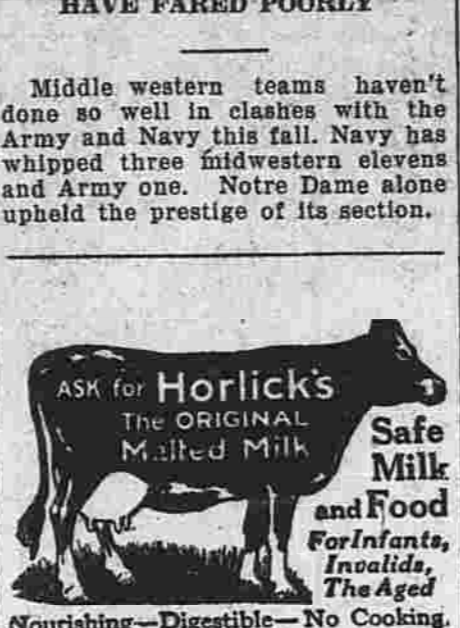

Bay Minette, Ala., Nov. 24.—Declaring that a raid on a fishing camp near Magnolia Beach was inspired by political enemies to "embarrass" him, Governor William W. Brandon today expressed his willingness to appear in court December 6 to answer to the charge of violating the prohibition law.

The raid, conducted by Sheriff Stuart and deputies, resulted in the confiscation of thirteen quarts of whiskey, and the arrest of Brandon and nine other men in the camp. All gave bond of $300 each for a hearing later.

The governor denied ownership of the liquor and said he was merely a guest.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Roger Williams (1)

Roger Williams

Roger Williams, "apostle of religious toleration," was born in England. Authorities differ on the date and place of his birth, but it has been fairly well established that he was the son of a London merchant tailor, and was born between 1599 and 1607.

At about 14 young Williams used to frequent the Star Chamber, a noted London court. There he met Sir Edward Coke.

Sir Edward Coke placed the youth in the Charter House School, and in 1624 Roger entered Pembroke College, Cambridge.

After studying law a short time, young Williams took to theology and aligned himself with the radical Puritans. He vigorously advocated freedom of conscience, and persistently attacked liturgies and ceremonies of the English church. In 1630, he and his wife, Mary, embarked for America. (Continued.)

TEN TURKEYS FREE AT STATE TONIGHT

"Hot zigzgy folks! Yassuh, dey's gonna give away ten fat turkeys at de State theater tonight. Is I golt? Well, Ah hopes to smoke a herring!" That's Florian Slappy the speaking, ladies and gentlemen he's got the same opinion that you should have, too. There's going to be a real farm on the State theater stage tonight—hicks, jarns, fences, poultry—everything that goes with any farm you ever saw. And there will be ten plump, live turkeys on the farm, waiting for you to carry them home, for they will go to ten people in the audience. A whole lot of other presents will also be given away. Coms and get your Thanksgiving Day turkey free.

Then there will be a big surprise and a first class entertainment. Besides all this, there will be a double feature picture program. Isn't that going some for one night?

"The Lady of the Harem" is a colorful spectacle production of ancient Persia. Its plot is woven around a kind hearted confectioner, a beautiful enchantress, an oppressive sultan, and two lovers. The picture, filmed on a scale of unprecedented gorgeousness, is bound to take its place among the screen documents of motion picture history.

One of the most thrilling photographs shown here in many weeks, is "Shipwrecked" Stellar honors are shared by Sena Owen, popular screen star, and Joseph Schildkraut, who recently created so fine an impression in "The Road to Yesterday."

"Shipwrecked" is an excellent photoplay, the scenes of which are largely laid on the high seas during one of the most tremendous hurricanes ever pictured, and on an island in the tropics.

To crown is Thanksgiving Day, one of the biggest holidays of the year. Since that is so, on tomorrow will be one of the biggest and best vaudeville bills ever presented at the State theater. The five acts that make up this bill have been personally selected by the management, and are personally guaranteed to be of the very best quality available on the vaudeville stage.

This will be some program. This bill is bound to please, because there is little that is better.

Vaudeville and picture performances tomorrow will be continuous from 2:15 until 10:30 p. m. If you want to see one smashing big program, be sure to see this one. As an added attraction, the management has secured a song reel, "My Old Kentucky Home" so that you may try out your vocal powers. Evening prices for vaudeville performances will prevail at the State theater. Showings on Friday will be at the usual hours, and showings Saturday will also be continuous.

"So Your Old Man," starring W. C. Fields and Alice Joyce will be the picture feature.

SCOUT SCRIBE
TROOP SIX

LITTLE JOE

Troop 6 B. S. A. met in their club rooms at the South Methodist church Tuesday evening with 17 scouts answering the roll call. Bugler Remig opened with assembly and the flags were brought forth while he played colors. A short drill was held and the patrols assembled in their dens to prepare for the inter-troop contests. Scouts Reunig and Burr have been rivalry in Anderson and Cone for the signaling contest, while Dixon and Borst looks good on the stretcher-making. Practically every boy is lined-up for a contest event, which means that each scout will have to work hard to get a place on the team.

A game period was held and this is what the patrols are waiting for because there is keen competition between the eagles and flying eagles. The eagles under the leadership of Carl Anderson had a step further for good scouting by holding an extra meeting each week outside of the regular troop meeting. The patrol met at Scout Anderson's home last Friday evening and had a very enjoyable time. A patrol score and the meeting refreshments were served. The patrol is making a miniature log cabin.

Four new scouts have joined the ranks of scouting in our troop and are well on their way for the second class pin. The boys are: Stillman Keith, James Metcalf, Elmer Borst and Jaffe DeMars.

We will hold an over-night hike Saturday afternoon and will meet at the scout room at 1:30. The scouts who cannot go for overnight should come along for the afternoon. Don't forget the scout hatchet and enough food for your supper.

over one hundred boys, each carrying on a staff high over his head the familiar Community Club campaign poster urging the populace to "Have a Heart" and help in the campaign.

This demonstration was the result of a plan adopted with the cooperation of Principal Thomas Bentley to have all the signs removed from the laws before Thanksgiving, and at the same time stage a parade of the school children bearing the signs.

A Joyous Gathering. Nothing would please the youngsters better than such an arrangement, and more than one hundred of them fell into line at 3:30 at Middle Turnpike. The forces divided into two columns, the division on the east walk being major-general by Frank Simon at the head of the line, and the division on the west walk by Edward Staum. As the line on each side advanced, one boy stepped out of line at each house, removed the poster from the lawn, and passed back into line.

If anybody thinks it an easy task to conduct a parade of one hundred high-spirited school boys on a sharp November afternoon, on such a mission as this, he is not familiar with the exuberance of boyish spirits. But with Principal Bentley, Director G. H. Washburn and Officer Wittalla on his motorcycle all on the skirmish line, really good order was maintained. The columns marched down Main street, through Depot Square, down North Main to Union street, and counter-marched to the Community club headquarters. Here the signs were disposed of, and after many lusty cheers the boys broke ranks.

Additional Gifts. Many who desire to contribute to the fund and who have not been visited by canvassers are telephoning the Community Club, 1594, announcing their pledges. Mrs. Mary C. Mooser, of No. 526 East Center street, at the Green, telephoned this forenoon, advising of a contribution of $5. Other gifts received today are as follows:

GOVERNMENT LEVIES YEARLY TAX ON RADIOS

Washington, Nov. 24.—(United Press.)—If you own a radio receiving set in Hongkong you will have to pay a yearly tax of $2.50, Consul Harold Shantz reported to the Department of Commerce today.

This additional licensing tax is provided for in a bill recently introduced by the government at Hongkong, which defines each individual receiving set as a wireless telegraph station.

It is planned to turn a portion of the revenue received from the licenses into a fund to be apportioned out to broadcasting organizations.

Harvard at least has this consolation... Princeton will not re-

The Nobel prize for literature has been awarded to Mr. Shaw, notwithstanding the very fine work done in this field by Messrs. Dempsey, Tunney and Ruth.

Eddie Collins packed up and went hunting when he was told he had been fired as manager of the White Sox. He probably went hunting for the guy who told him baseball was a great profession.

George Duncan, the Britisher, plays the fastest golf known to the game. The matter is too involved and immense to try to determine who talks the fastest golf.

The situation in the big leagues has reached a point where any manager holding his job is looked upon either as a mystic or a close relative of the club owner.

Obviously the Coolidge administration knows little about football. At any rate, the boys aren't blocking those kicks in the middle west very well.

Mr. O'Goofy remembers Uncle Joe Cannon with much enthusiasm. "The old boy was a big shot in his day," he says.

It is with regret that we learn Queen Marie will not be able to complete her tour of America. She hasn't seen the half of it.

For instance, the boys of Herrin, Ill., had arranged to give a special demonstration of plain and fancy slaughter in the main street for her, shooting from horseback in cowboy fashion, from high-powered motors in the best boy bandits style and from rocking chairs in the living-room in the usual Herrin home-like manner.

This would, among other things, have given quinine a chance to see how life is lived in the smaller cities where the tumult and hysteria of the metropolis is still refreshingly absent.

And it would have been awfully thrilling for her to have met the hermit of the town who at the ripe old age of 21 has established a record for longevity that Herrin is mighty proud of.

Once seen, the spectacle of a Cicero cum runner mounting his French "75," testing his machine gun, and cleansing his automatic in preparation for the day's toil, is unforgettable as a faithful picture of American domesticity or something.

It might also have helped the cordiale entente of the two countries to even a greater extent than Mrs. Jane Gibson of the Biggie Wigles will ever realize if Her Highness had been able to get over to Somerville, N. J., to take in the Ha! Mills show, or at least a couple of acts of it.

These cunning little murder trials give the foreign visitor an opportunity to understand the soul of America that no other native custom offers.

It is absolutely inspiring to go into a crowded courtroom and watch the eagle-eyed gossips from the neighborhood districts as they dangle on the edge of the chairs trifling in the sordid details of an affair that concerns them about as much as a course in barbering does a use of David's coney.

Candidates may get in touch with Sachs by addressing him at 5902 Euclid avenue, Cleveland.

Billy Evans Says

Without a doubt, some new affiliation of eastern teams will come as a result of the withdrawal of Princeton from the so-called "Big Three."

The idea of an eastern conference already has been suggested. It has been looked on with favor in some quarters, frowned on in others.

One of the main objections to such a scheme is that it would be an unwieldy organization, there being so many good teams in the east.

That hardly seems a logical one, since there are plenty of mighty good teams in the west outside of the Big Ten, yet that organization, also known as the Western Conference, has been mighty successful.

It should not prove to be a difficult task to select 10 teams that would have a pretty good claim to being the class of the east.

Annual Arguments. While it isn't generally known, many of the arguments that arise between the athletic bodies of the various universities can be traced to some grievance over the question of officials.

Some years ago I met with the graduate managers of Yale, Princeton and Harvard at the invitation of Jack Blossom, then in charge at Yale.

The question of umpires for the big baseball games, as well as the rest of the schedule, had been the cause of many complaints. Home umpires failed to give satisfaction.

My opinion was desired as to how the problem of lessening the trouble annually caused over the selection of officials might be brought about.

Hard to Please. Naturally I told the graduate managers that just as long as the home-team furnished the umpires disputes would continue to arise.

I ventured the opinion that the same set of umpires, assigned by one man in charge of affairs and scheduled to different games in different cities each week, would be satisfactory, even though the same umpires in the role of home officials would be a failure.

The graduate managers were kind enough to ask me to consider the position of baseball commissioner of the Big Three, with the proviso that I should act as the umpire-in-chief at all of the Big Three games.

While the salary suggested was most satisfactory, other business connections made it impossible for me to consider the proposition.

In recent years the scheme I suggested of moving the umpires around has been used in many of the eastern college games and the results have been very satisfactory.

Ingram's Suggestion. Conditions in football perhaps are even worse. As a rule there is much bickering before the officials are agreed upon. Should an official be so unfortunate as to render an important decision that determines the winner, he is practically certain to be scratched by the losers the following year.

I note that Commander Ingram, athletic director at the Navy, while frowning on the proposed eastern conference idea, said he was in favor of a prominent athletic personage, or a commission of three, who would handle the sports question of the eastern colleges, such as the selecting of officials, passing on the eligibility of players and rendering decision on any and all disputes.

Erinceton's withdrawal while a blow at Big Three traditions, may result in much good for collegiate sports in the east.

How long has Tom Zachary been in the majors and with what clubs has he played? T. H. Since 1918 and has played with Washington and St. Louis in the American League.

FOUR GRID BATTLES IN EAST TOMORROW

This Fellow Thinks Colgate Will Trim Brown—Ends Season.

(BY BILL CORUM)

I. N. S. Special Correspondent New York, Nov. 24.—Tomorrow sees the end of the football season in the East.

Four big games are on the board. Columbia will mingle with Syracuse at the Polo Grounds; Colgate will try to shave the Brown-Bear at Providence; Cornell and Penn renew their ancient rivalry in Philadelphia, and Penn State is due to tangle with Pitt at Pittsburgh.

Syracuse, Colgate, Cornell and Pittsburgh are likely to be the winners, don't try to parlay them! Coach Reynolds' Salt Lake eleven has had nothing save hard luck all season, but is due to come into its own against the Laughing Lions.

Vic Hanson and his fighting Orangemen shined up like one of the best teams in the East at the beginning of the year, and until the battle of the plains at West Point dealt them a blow, from which they are just recovering.

The tooth paste eleven will be a short ender against "Tuss" McLaughry's curly Bears, but it played Syracuse to a ten-ten tie, turned many a Navy rooster's hair white, and may still be coming along.

McLaughry has been quoted as saying that the Brown brigade is not made up of iron men, but of eleven youngsters having a good time for themselves. If so, it would just be like Colgate to take some of the joy out of their lives.

The Maroon has nothing much to lose and much prestige to gain by humbling the unbeaten team from up the hill, and the psychological advantage will be with it.

Cornell is favored because it has shown more scoring punch than the Quakers. Lou Young can't go on forever winning games by a field goal.

"Doc" Sutherland has a better eleven than Hugo Bezdek has at Penn State, and there is no good reason why the Panthers shouldn't take the Nittany Lions.

How many football games did Princeton, Yale and Harvard lose during the 1925 season?—G. H. Six, as follows: Princeton 1, Yale 2 and Harvard 3.

IN RIVAL CAMPS

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 24.—The Army's hard work for the game with the Navy on Saturday is over. Head Coach Jones may order an hour of light work, however, before the squad leaves here for afternoon for Chicago.

Forward passing, both on the defense and offense, was stressed in the final hard workout. Harry Wilson has been groomed for the placement goal kicking.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 24.—The Navy squad will leave here this afternoon for the Army game at Chicago. The same team which started against Michigan probably will take the field against the soldiers.

The regulars concentrated on defensive work in the final hard workout.

OBERLIN LOSES FIRST GAME IN 3 YEARS

Oberlin, O., Nov. 24.—When Oberlin College fell before the Miami eleven here, the other day it marked the first defeat for the locals in almost three seasons.

Oberlin during that stretch won

23 games in a row. It won the Ohio Conference championship two straight years, brushing aside several notable opponents to turn the trick.

Until the Miami defeat, Oberlin had one of the best records in the country. It had only allowed the enemy four points, all resulting on safeties.

Plymouth Lady Prevents Operation—Stainless Liniment Used

Mrs. Ernest Wutrich, Plymouth, N. H., says, "The tightness in my throat was relieved after using Sorbol-Quadruple two days. The night before starting its use I had a terrible choking spell. I was very nervous, had bad headaches and protruding eyes. It also effected my heart. Was advised to have an operation. I am thankful I didn't. My little girl who has goitre is gaining and feels better. Will tell my experience or answer letters."

More Quality Less Money

—that's the new Chandler Message!

THOUSANDS of people seem to have the impression that Chandler is a high-priced car—simply because Chandler looks expensive, and because so many Chandlers are owned by families of wealth.

This is all very complimentary to Chandler, but let's get the facts straight. The new prices of the 1927 Chandler closed models now start as low as $995 and do not go above $1795, f. o. b. factory. The latter price is for the new Chandler Big-Six 7-passenger Sedan!

And these new Chandler models are the finest—the smartest—the best-performing Chandlers ever built—all equipped with Chandler's "One Shot" system of centralized chassis lubrication; an air cleaner; an oil purifier; 4-wheel brakes; thermostatic water control; self-adjusting spring shackles—a list of advantages as long as your arm!

Don't jump at buying a car until you take a trial spin in a Chandler.

CHICAGO BETS 8 TO 5 ON ARMY OVER NAVY

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Football-mad Chicago today installed West Point an eight to five favorite in the twenty-ninth Army-Navy gridiron battle at Soldiers' Field here Saturday.

West Point is largely a favorite because many of the cadet players are former mid-western stars. Among these is Murrell, the big West Point fullback, who formerly acclimated at the University of Minnesota. The Army team will reach Chicago Friday and go through a secret practice at the South Shore Country club grounds.

Members of the student bodies of the two service schools will unite at a luncheon Friday to be served at a mile-long table. More than 3,500 guests will be entertained and the menu includes 4,500 pounds of turkey.

Vice President Dawes will be among those welcoming the rival forces to Chicago.

For Thanksgiving dessert, an Ice Cream Frozen Pudding, order from Edward J. Murphy's Pharmacy.—Adv.

WAPPING

Mrs. Gertrude Hollister's place, which was formerly known as the Oscar Stoughton home, has been purchased by Paul Peterka from Waterbury recently. Mr. Peterka moved his family and household goods to his new home last Friday.

Rev. Truman H. Woodward and G. A. Collins represented the Congregational church branch here at the meeting of the Hartford East Association of Congregational churches at Scantic, last Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Asher Collins gave a birthday party for her son, Porter, on Monday afternoon, who was three years old on that day. There were seven little tots with their mothers present to enjoy it. Mrs. Davis with twin girls, Mrs. Farnam of East Hartford with two girls, Mrs. Hendricks with a boy, Mrs. Wilson and little son, Mrs. Smith and little daughter.

The Wapping Library will not be open on Thursday afternoon on account of Thanksgiving, but will be open on Friday afternoon from three until five o'clock.

Arthur Frink and little son, George, are both improving from their recent attack of the grip.

Little David Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Asher A. Collins, who has been quite sick and under the care of Dr. Boyd of Manchester is reported as improving some today.

Mrs. William G. Chapin from Sheffield, Mass., mother of Mrs. Raymond Geer, is spending a few days with them in their new home here.

Mrs. George A. Frink, who has been ill with the grip at her home here for several days, returned to her work in Hartford last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Stoughton, who have been spending several days at their new cottage at Black Point, returned home last Sunday evening.

The local senior Y. M. C. A. basketball team have entered the Hartford County Y. M. C. A. League recently.

The Federated Sunday School will hold their November social on next Friday evening at the Parish House at 7:45 p. m. The primary teachers have charge of the games and the junior teachers will have charge of the refreshments.

Miss Kate M. Withrel returned home on Tuesday night after a two weeks' visit with relatives and friends in Philadelphia. She attended the sesqui-centennial exposition.

The Wapping Grange degree team has been invited to Enfield Grange the first Monday evening in December, to initiate a class of candidates for that Grange.

Miss Dora Foster of Brooklyn, N. Y., arrived at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foster, last Saturday to spend the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mrs. Marion Pierce and children, Elizabeth and Phillip, motored to Hartford last Saturday and spent the night with Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Laitinen and Mrs. Mary Pierce.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Adams and daughter, Edith, will motor to Goshen on Wednesday to spend the holidays with Mrs. Adams' father, J. F. Wooster and her sister and family, Mrs. Joseph W. Cooke. Mrs. Adams will remain there until the following Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bentley and daughter, Elizabeth, will go to Mansfield on Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Dewey will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nevers.

Rev. and Mrs. Truman H. Woodward will motor to Staffordville to spend the holidays with Mrs. Adams' father, J. F. Wooster and her sister and family, Mrs. Joseph W. Cooke. Mrs. Adams will remain there until the following Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hevener will have as guests on Thanksgiving day, Frederick Newbury, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Viberts Chandler and two daughters, and Mr. Harry Chandler and daughter.

CASE IS PARALLEL TO JERRY TARBOT'S

Jim Elwell, War Veteran, Is Stricken by Amnesia.

Nearly everyone in America has read about "Jerry Tarbot," the shellshocked young war veteran who has lost his memory.

Tarbot has been in a government hospital ever since the Armistice. He does not even know his own name. "Tarbot" is the name his doctors have given him. Repeated efforts have been made to place him, to strike some chord in his memory that would bring back a recollection of the life he used to live. But it has been in vain.

"Jerry Tarbot" is still trying to find out who he is.

His case is strikingly similar to that of Jim Elwell.

Elwell, like Tarbot, was wounded in France, at the battle of Sedan. He speedily recovered from his physical injuries, but his mind remained a blank. He remembered nothing whatever of his past. Doctors could do nothing for him.

Even the sight of his own parents failed to improve his condition.

Yet—by an almost miraculous piece of luck, which was combined in just the right proportion, with medical science's skill—Elwell's memory was eventually restored.

He was able to resume the severed strands of his old life, to find happiness again after it had looked as though happiness was never to be his.

His story is an absorbing one. It is told, simply and graphically, in "Broken Threads," an appealing novel of a young man and two girls, which begins Monday, Nov. 29, in The Herald.

VEGETABLE GROWERS TO MEET IN HARTFORD

The Connecticut Vegetable Growers' Association will hold their annual meeting in the Garde Hotel, Hartford, Conn., on December 1 and 2. 1926. Louis L. Grant of Buckland will be one of the speakers at meetings on both days. He will discuss irrigation and growing more potatoes per acre.

"GIGOLO" CLOSES AT RIALTO TONIGHT

Can a woman know the real state of her affections for a man before she marries him and has lived with him? That is one of the problems posed in "A Woman's Heart" which is playing on the double feature program being offered at the Rialto tomorrow and Friday. The story is adapted from the serial which ran in newspapers some time ago in serialized form under the title "The Revelations of a Woman's Heart." Eve Allen marries John Waring, much to the man's surprise. She professes to love her husband, and a philanthropist who has never asked her to marry him. She finds at last, after learning of her lover's perfidy with other women, that it is really her husband she loves. Edith Bennett, who plays the principal role believes that only after living with a man can a woman tell whether she really loves him. "A Woman's Heart" is a tensesly dramatic, always entertaining protoplasm which will not disappoint those who expect to see something out of the ordinary. Gayne Whitman is cast as John Waring.

The second feature is a fast moving western drama that fairly sizzles with action. It is called "West of Rainbow's End," and the three stars "Starlight the wonder, horse, Rex, the movie dog, and Jack Perry are starred. This is the trio that has delighted millions and their latest vehicle is said to surpass anything produced heretofore. It's all about a chap who returns from overseas to discover that his father has been slain and the home ranch seized by a gang of desperadoes. How he overcomes these obstacles forms the basis for the thrills. Pauline Purley has the feminine lead. A comedy and a news reel will also be shown.

The two features being shown for the last time today are "Gigolo" and "Her Man." The first named stars Rod LaRocque and is a story of a professional dancing man, who finds his salvation in his boyhood sweetheart. "Her Man" is a gripping story as a fight to secure the water rights of a mammoth waterfall. William Fairbanks and Margaret Landis are starred. Selected short subjects round out the program. A five tube Atwater Kent radio set will be given away Friday evening at this theater. All of those holding coupons are urged to be here as it is one of the rules of the contest that the winner must be present at the presentation.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles. Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with oliveoil. Know them by their olivecolor. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All Druggists. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief.

NOTRE DAME SHIFT PLAY BARS TEAM FROM BIG TEN

Western Officials Say Rockne's Backfield Is In Motion On Every Play.

By CLARK B. KELSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent) Chicago, Nov. 24 (United Press)—Coaches and athletic directors from the 10 western conference universities, and scores of mentors at other midwestern colleges are to gather here over the week-end for the annual schedule meeting of the Big Ten, which was scheduled to come before the coaches at the meeting will not arise, it appears at present. Before the Northwestern-Notre Dame game, it was regarded as likely that the school at South Bend would apply for admission. After that game a Notre Dame player, believed to be a substitute who did not play in the game, hit Capt. Baker of the Wild-

FOOTBALL CRAZE HITS HONOLULU FANS HARD

Honolulu, Nov. 24.—(United Press)—The largest crowd to attend an interscholastic football game in the history of Honolulu jammed into Moiliili field to see St. Louis College defeat Punahou, 3-0. Gate receipts show that 20,000 people paid for entrance. Football is attracting so much interest in the territory, that a new stadium capable of seating over 20,000 people is being constructed here. A portion of the seating capacity will be available for intercollegiate games in December, when the University of Hawaii plays teams from the mainland.

Local Sport Chatter

For the benefit of any Manchester boys who are home from college for the holiday vacation and who are interested in the local football situation, it might be advisable to mention that the competing team, the champion Cubs, have so far been unable to agree on terms. The North End team is holding out for a 75-25 split of the receipts while the South End team wants the money to be divided on a 60-40 basis. All the other particulars have been arranged. The game will be played, if at all at Hickey's Grove with neutral officials.

Both the Cloverleaves and the Cubs have unusually strong opposition booked for the coming Sabbath. The Cloverleaves will meet the strong Western A. C. of New London which held the All-New England eleven to a close score while the Cubs will tackle the Rambler-Tigers of Hartford. The latter team will be the first the Cubs have played that has been on the schedule of the Cloverleaves. The Cloverleaves triumphed over the Hartford team twice in thrilling battles. The scores were 7 to 0 and 6 to 0.

Faculty Manager Edson Bailey of the local high school basketball team will be forced to appear at Fitchburg, Mass. High school basketball team here on March 4. He has mailed a contract to the Bay State team and if the world champions decide to make the Connecticut tour, they will absolutely play here. He will know definitely in a few days.

Because of their extensive trip over the holiday, Cheney Brothers' basketball team will be forced to carry a couple of extra players with them tomorrow in Tatville and Danielson. Harry Benson and Herbert Kerr have been selected.

Johnny Mullens, considered to be one of the best basketball players in town last year, is home for a few days visit over the holiday from Flint, Michigan, where he has been working.

Fall River, Mass., will send its crack basketball team to Plainfield this evening to tackle the Community Club five, which has five local players in its lineup. Lengon, Norris, Madden, Mantelli and Stanivsky. The two teams are arch rivals and close games usually result when they clash.

The annual battle between the Colored Corinthians and the Crimson in the Hartford Velodrome for the semi-professional city championship of the Capitol City should be an interesting battle to watch tomorrow afternoon. Personally, we like the Crimson's chances.

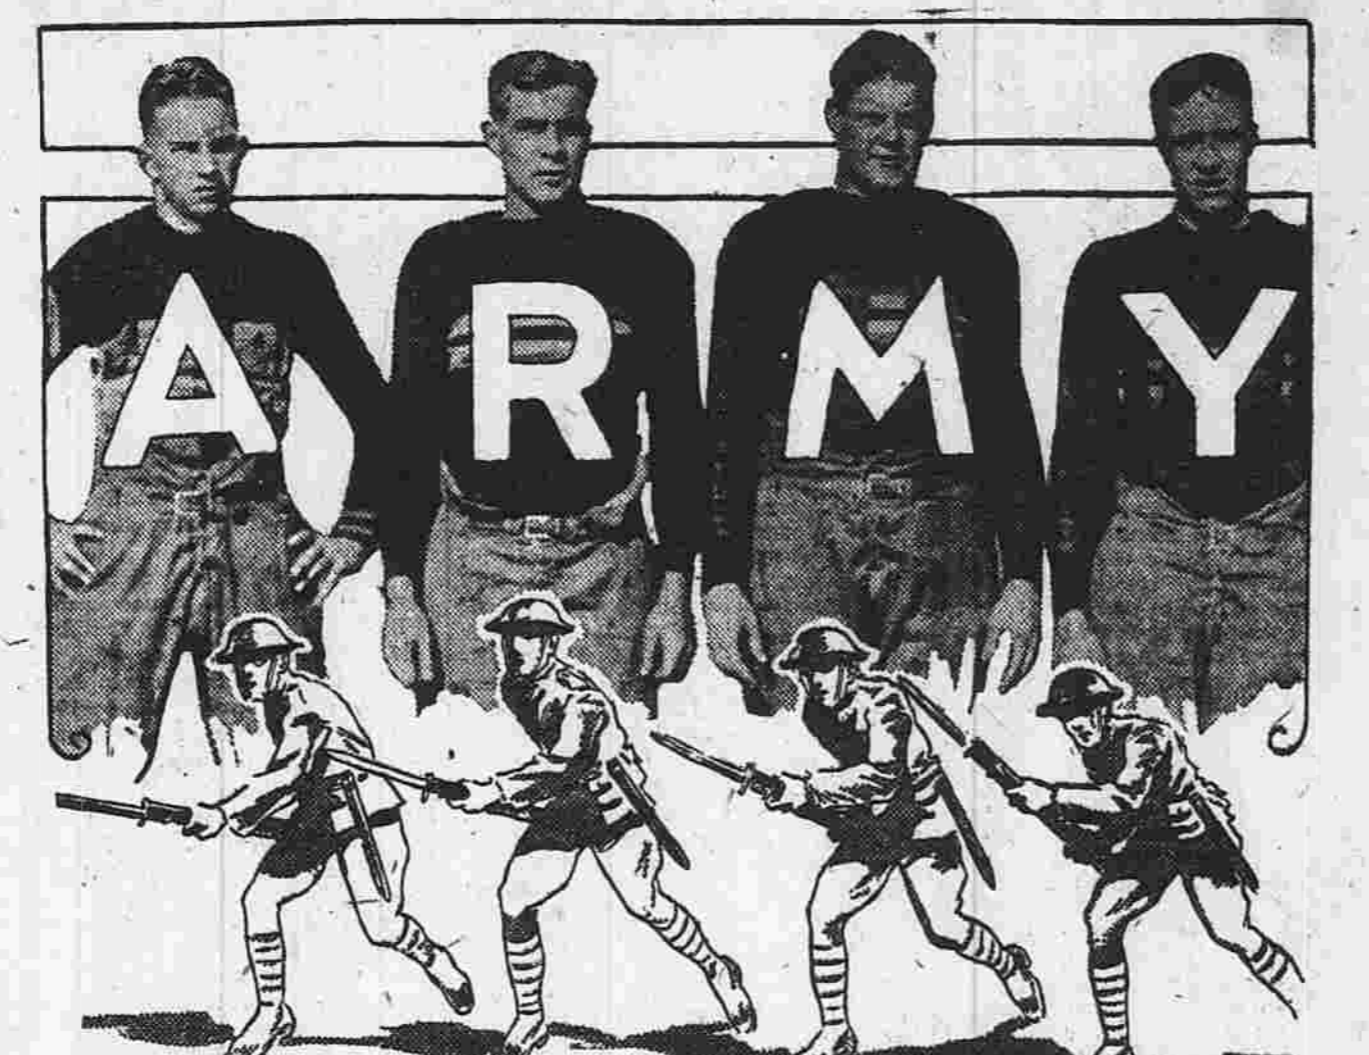

The other Hartford City title clash between the Rambler-Tigers and the Broad A. C. should also be a humdrum tomorrow. One might not be far from wrong to select the Rambler-Tigers but the going will probably be quite rough for the winner.

June graduation will erase 14 names from the S. M. H. E. football squad which had a roster of 28 candidates. Nevertheless, there will be six members of the varsity left to form nucleus of next year's team in Lupien, Farr, Kittle, Hanson, Keanev, Treat. The following will be lost through graduation: Captain LaCoss, Shannon, Vendrick, Hildner, Ornstein, Farr, Treat, Ays, Lathrop, Sheridan, Coe, Polito and Holmes.

Reports from Connecticut Agencies are to the effect that Coach Sumner A. Dolis is banking heavily on Johnny Powers of this town in his team for next year. Powers' work during the latter part of the season has been exceptionally good.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS At New York—Rudy Goldstein of New York knocked out Mickey Travers of New Haven in first round. Benny Selig of New York won decision over Hilario Martinez of Spain, six rounds. At Cleveland—Babe Herman of New York won decision over Benny Bass of Philadelphia, twenty rounds. At Portland, Me.—Johnny Drew of Worcester won decision over Charley Manty of New Bedford, twelve rounds.

Midshipmen Must Stop This Great Quartet in Order to Defeat Cadets

LEFT TO RIGHT: NOEL HARDING, HARRY WILSON, CAPT. "TINY" HEWITT JOHN TRAPNELL. Will the Navy gridders be able to stop this great quartet of Army backs when the two service eleven clash for supremacy in their most important tussle of the season at Chicago, or will Capt. "Tiny" Hewitt and his mates prove too much for the middies' defense? Those are questions now being discussed in football circles as the big game on Saturday draws near. Thus far the Navy has successfully halted every attack, even Michigan's great offensive failed to function against the Annapolis troupe.

Point After Touchdown Rapidly Losing Favor

Sentiment Seems to Favor Alteration of Rule But Few Suggestions Are Offered; Many College Games Lost This Year By Lone Tally; Did Best Team Win?

(BY THE SPORTS EDITOR) A suitable remedy for the situation. The majority favor a change in the rules, but few offer any substantial substitute for the extra point try. It is concluded that there must be some rule whereby the games are done away with as much as possible. Otherwise football would be more or less a dull affair.

Remote Suggestions There is a bare possibility that the extra point could be awarded to the team making the most total yardage. This is rather remote, we will admit, and might be too difficult to attempt, but it surely would turn victory toward the team most deserving it much quicker than the present system. Then again there is the possibility that the extra point or points (according to the number of touchdowns scored) could be presented to the team making the most first downs. Both of these suggestions are, of course, more or less problematical, but they at least give food for thought.

Best Team Won? Here are a few examples of what the present rule has done to college football during the current season and fans can decide for themselves whether or not it is an injustice: Cornell 24, Dartmouth 23. Michigan 17, Ohio State 16. Michigan 7, Minnesota 6. Princeton 7, Lehigh 6. Maine 7, Colby 6. Oglethorpe 7, Georgia Tech 6. Middlebury 7, Boston Uni. 6. New Hampshire 7, Rhode Island 6. Ohio State 7, Illinois 7. Vermont 14, Tufts 13.

These are only a few of the games that are being decided daily by one point in college, professional, amateur and scholastic competition and the time has come where a change is being universally demanded.

Few Suggestions The big trouble seems to lie in the inability of someone to suggest a suitable remedy for the situation. The majority favor a change in the rules, but few offer any substantial substitute for the extra point try. It is concluded that there must be some rule whereby the games are done away with as much as possible. Otherwise football would be more or less a dull affair.

Country-Wide Movement This writer is of the same opinion as many of the football experts throughout the country who have gone on record as favoring a change in the rule. It is an absurd condition as well as unjust. For some time the rules committee has attempted to remedy the situation but as yet no definite success has been achieved. Football is no longer solely a kicking game. The rules committee has admitted that much by allowing running plays and forward passes on the plays for the extra points.

Baby Barnstorming Trip For Cheney Bros. Five Over Thanksgiving Day

Thanksgiving Day will not be one of rest for George Hunt's bustling C. B. A. boys. Three games are on deck starting tonight. It will be a very commendable feat should the silk workers win all of the games on their baby barnstorming tour. However, this is a little more than can justly be asked of them. For they are to be pitted against strong opposition. And what's more, every game will be played on the opponent's home floor and this is no trivial advantage. Cheney Brothers can consider themselves eligible for the "left-overs" from the turkey dinners if they win one of the three games and make a satisfactory showing in the other two. Tonight the mill team will grace the Talcott High gymnasium in Elmwood seeking revenge for the 45 to 28 defeat received from Jack Barton's team a year ago. Tomorrow afternoon, the locals will play against the Celtics in Tatville and after that game will slip on a pair of pants and sweater over their uniforms and motor over to Danielson for a night engagement. Last season Danielson and Cheney Brothers played two close games, each winning one. Cheney Brothers won 45 to 38 and lost 30 to 28 in a five-minute overtime game.

High School and Cloverleaves Play in Morning, Cubs in P.M.

Middletown Club Meets Cloverleaf Team at Hickey's

Manager Bill Griffin of the Champion Cloverleaves announced this morning that he has booked the strong Tufts A. C. of Middletown to furnish the Turkey Day attraction at Hickey's Grove tomorrow morning. The game will start promptly at 10 o'clock. Jake Moske will umpire and a large crowd will undoubtedly watch the contest. The game will bring together two, hitherto unbeaten teams. The Middletown eleven has played seven games, winning six and tying one. It should be a most interesting battle. Several former high school and college stars are said to grace the Middletown lineup and should make the going warm for the local champs.

Due to the fact that many local students are home from college for the holiday, there should be a banner crowd at the game tomorrow than usual. The reputation of the Cloverleaves has spread far and wide. They have not been beaten since their organization three years ago and only scored on once. That was in their first season.

Coach Noonan will probably use as many of this utility players as possible because of the hard game which confronts them on Sunday, when the Western A. C. of New London comes here. But if Walter Moske keeps up his line punting, there should be little danger of the Cloverleaves being defeated. He has been averaging well over 45 yards on every kick. Last Sunday he booted from behind his own goal to midfield when the Broad A. C. threatened to score.

SIX BASEBALL HEADS DEPOSED SINCE END OF 1926 CAMPAIGN

The business of being a major league manager is getting to be anything but an enviable one. With the 1926 season only two months over, six managers have already been deposed. It is probable that at least two other changes will be made before the opening of next season.

Some of the shifts were expected. After the mid-season trouble of the Pirates, which practically cost that team the pennant, it was almost certain that Bill McKechnie would be out of the job. The Pittsburgh fans in a sense demanded it and Barney Dreyfuss was only too glad to oblige, knowing they pay the way.

A tall-end manager is always in danger, so the passing of Lee Fohl at Boston and Arthur Fletcher at Philadelphia occasioned no surprise. Lee Fohl, seeing the handwriting on the wall, resigned. The dismissal of George Sisler also appeared to be in the cards. A star as a player, he had failed dismally as a manager.

Two big surprises, almost sensations, were the retirement of Cobb from the majors and the asking of waivers on Eddie Collins, followed by the appointment of Ray Schalk as White Sox manager.

While Cobb, greatest player of all time, had met with only mediocre success as a manager, his close association with Frank Navin, owner of the Detroit club, made it seem he could stay as long as he desired. Detroit fans, however, wanted a change and no doubt Mr. Navin impressed on Cobb the fact that it would be wise to retire.

The release of Collins really borders on a tragedy, for by the experts he is rated the smartest manager in the American League. No doubt we will hear more of the passing of Collins later on. If new managerial faces can be regarded as a tonic there is going to be plenty of added interest in the 1927 campaign.

SCHOOLBOYS PLAY ALUMNI IN FINAL GAME OF SEASON

Mistretta to Lead Graduates Against S. M. H. S. Tomorrow Morning; Kick-Off at 10 O'clock.

Manchester High alumni will endeavor to overthrow the High school varsity in the only Thanksgiving Day game at the South End tomorrow morning. The kickoff will take place at the McKee street grounds at 10 o'clock sharp.

There are plenty of graduates with good football ability to give the local boys a run. Some of the men who have gone out from Manchester are now playing with prep school or college teams and it is expected that some of these will be in the graduate lineup.

First among the possibilities for a captain and field general are Mistretta, star of three years on the High school team. He went to Williston where he made good on the team there. This year he has been coaching the Trade school team, which is going through its first season.

There are others, including Kittle of Middlebury, Taylor of Boston University, "Zook" Shea of St. John's Powers of the Connecticut Aggies, not to mention a good many who have not come to school. There are still left Little, Mahoney, Kerr, Zwick, Pat Carlson, formerly of Mercersburg Academy, and others too numerous to mention.

A combination of men like these named is sufficient to give this year's team, good as it is, a run for its money. The High school will use its regular lineup but may be without Hanson who was injured in the Willimantic game last Saturday. Shannon, Farr, LaCoss, Kittle, Hills, Vendrick and Lupien will make up the line while the backfield will be composed of Ding Farr, Keanev, Treat and maybe Sheridan. The latter has been understudying for Hansen in practice sessions and seems to be able to run the team capably.

CRIMSON SCORES MOST

Of the Big Three, Harvard ran up the largest single game point total during the 1926 campaign. The Crimson scored 69 tallies on Tufts. Yale's best effort in this respect was against Boston University, when the Blue counted 51. Princeton showed its strongest attack in the Swarthmore battle when the Tigers ran up 27 points.

TWAS NARROW SQUEAK

Alabama, champion of the Southern Conference, had its closest call in the game with Sewanee. The Crimson Tide barely managed to eke out a 2-0 victory, a safety preventing a tie score.

Windsor Locks Club Meets Cubs at the Four Acre Gridiron

Tomorrow afternoon will find the Cubs entrenching themselves at the Four Acres in defense of the invading Windsor Locks eleven, which the locals defeated 3 to 0 a few weeks ago. The game is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock, assistant Manager Albert Pentora announced last night.

The Canal City team is coming to Manchester with a fine record, having won four of its six games. Among the victories was one recorded at the expense of Loomis last fall by a 12 to 0 score.

The Windsor Locks eleven is made an added attraction by the appearance of a young chap named Norris in its lineup. This player is reputed for his kicking ability. The local players who felt the effects of his work in Windsor Locks speak many words of praise about him. They say he is not only a long-distance punter but also an unusually clever drop-kicker.

Norris is the player who defeated the Cubs at Windsor Locks last year by a sensational 40-yard drop-kick. This year, the Cubs' defense kept him from getting close enough to the goal when three points were desperately needed after Kerry Kerr had booted over a 28-yard field goal for a 3-0 victory. Norris' toe gave the Windsor Locks eleven a 3 to 0 victory over the Frog Hollow Senators this season.

The Cub lineup will be intact with the exception of Red Cervini and Herbie Kerr. These two players will be with Cheney Brothers on its basketball trip. Coach Wright has had his squad practicing faithfully during the week and should show a marked improvement before the large holiday crowd which is expected to watch the tussle.

FOUR PLAYING PILOTS IN 1927 BIG SHOW

New York, Nov. 24.—With the recent shifts in major league managers, the 1927 season probably will see only four playing pilots. The quartet is composed of Rogers Hornsby of the Cards; Dave Bancroft, Braves; Stanley Harris, Senators, and Tris Speaker, Indians. All but Speaker are infielders.

Of the newcomers, Bush, Morty and Melvin have all seen much big league service. Howley, who piloted Toronto to an international pennant last season, and who will have charge of the St. Louis Browns next year, at one time was chief assistant to Cobb at Detroit.

TROJANS AND NOTRE DAME IN BIG GRID TILT

One of the best games of the entire football season will be played after the campaign is usually terminated officially. This battle will bring Notre Dame and Southern California together on the far west coast Dec. 4. More than that it will be the meeting of two of the strongest eleven in the country. Rockne's charges have had an unusually successful season while the Trojans boast one of the greatest aggregations that that school has ever turned out.

Southern California lost a 13-12 contest to Stanford a few weeks ago, but Notre Dame stands a good chance of going into the big inter-sectional imbroglio with a clean slate.

MARYLAND'S WIN OVER YALE ONE OF BIG UPSETS

Perhaps the outstanding surprise of the football season was the defeat of Yale by the little Maryland eleven. Maryland, it will be recalled, trimmed the Bulldog 15-0. The Yale whipping becomes even more of a shock when it is further brought to mind that Maryland a few weeks previous was soundly trounced by Chicago. The Maroons trimmed the Baltimore boys 21-0 with one of the worst eleven in the veteran Stagg has ever put on the field.

On comparative scores (which don't mean anything) Chicago stands out 36 points better than Yale. Imagine the icily Maroons chewing up the Bulldog to that extent. Never!

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

JUDITH MARTIN, young college teacher, arouses the enmity of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN by siding with the student radicals, of whom ERIC WATERS is the leader.

DR. PETER DORN, of the astronomy department, is attracted to Judith and anxious to make peace between her and the dean.

MYRA ALDRICH is jealous of Judith because of Eric's attentions to her.

"KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, tries to blackmail Mrs. Brown, and Judith, befriending her, asks Eric to silence her.

When Shea is found dead in a stream, with a letter addressed to Eric in his pocket, Eric is arrested as a material witness.

Mrs. Brown offers an outlandish alibi for Eric, endangering her own freedom.

Judith is angry with Eric for coming to her classroom half intoxicated, and refuses to speak to him.

Dean Brown tries to force her to take part in the great reform campaign he is planning.

When Eric sees Judith with Will Wetherell, his frat brother, in a tea shop, he calls her "Miss JUDAS," mockingly. She goes home almost hysterical, and finds a white envelope under the door.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

you would never have known Prudence Brown for the bride that Timothy brought back with him from her home upstate.

Judith had been listening intently. "I know. One of the things worrying me now, Eve, is that Mrs. Brown, after accepting and giving friendship, has broken away from me completely. She even refused to see me the last time I called. The dean wasn't at home, so it couldn't have been his fault."

"Hm-m," commented Eve. "That's interesting. I had a feeling that Prudence, having dared to accept a friendship, would cling to it for dear life. She's a horribly solitary person. Perhaps the habit of solitude has grown so strong that she became afraid she had trusted you too far and was obliged to pull back."

"But I asked you to come because I wanted to talk of other things, Judith. I'm desperately worried about Eric. And I can't lift a finger to help him."

"What now?" asked Judith, in some surprise. "Things with him are about as usual, aren't they? He's tearing around, slighting his courses, drinking too much now and then and declaiming against the injustice of fate."

Eve smiled. "That's all very true. But you can't dismiss it like that. There's something else—and it's terribly dangerous." She leaned forward and looked into Judith's puzzled eyes. "Do you mean to say, Judith, that you don't know what doings are abroad?"

Judith shook her head. "You're alarming me," she said.

Eve paused a moment, then spoke slowly. "I can't tell you. I can only urge you to make up your quarrel with Eric, before he commits himself to irrevocable folly. Get him to tell you!"

Judith stared. "I don't understand heroes from you, Eve."

"I know," said Eve. "I am a rebel. I've stuck out my tongue at convention and kicked the shins of convention and had a grand time generally. But never yet did I crusade for freedom. Self-determination is all I ask. I'd just as soon be a fanatic deacon as a fanatic rebel."

"Besides, I've paid the penalties. Someday I'll be old, and all the nice masculine adherents of my freedom will alk away, one by one. Who knows? Heaven forbid that I should ever regret anything. But if I do, nobody'll ever know it."

Judith was silent. "I'm afraid I couldn't help matters, even if I did mix up with Eric," she said, after a time. "I haven't much influence with him."

Eve looked at her shrewdly. "If you went about it right, you could give me a pretty good idea of the lengths he'd go to, to crush anyone that defied him."

Judith sat in half-smiling silence. "You're wrong, Eve. The dean doesn't really care for me. He just wants to dominate me, and it can't be done. If Eric honestly cared, he'd not keep humiliating me with irrational actions. He'd act more reasonably."

Eve laughed. "You have a naive conception of love."

She was interrupted by the door bell. There was something imperative in its note. Eve stopped and stared at the door. Before she could come running from the kitchen, the door opened and Wetherell stood before them.

"Eve!" he cried. "For heaven's sake, come! Eric and Dorn are beating each other to a pulp, a little way down the road."

(To Be Continued)

There is open warfare between Dorn and Waters now. In the next chapter Eric tries to get Judith to elope with him.

THE white square lay undisturbed on the carpet as Judith slammed the door and flung herself on the bed, sobbing with the racking violence of a woman unaccustomed to weeping. She lay face down, while late afternoon shadows gathered in the room and the sound of the usual pre-dinner Charleston floated up from the parlor.

At last she sat up and looked disconsolately about her. Her eyes fell on the white envelope by the door. Listlessly she dragged herself off the bed and picked it up.

"Dear Miss Martin," the letter began. "won't you drop in this evening for a talk with me? I have many things to say to you, and you can't refuse. And I'll give you a cup of tea to favor conversation."

It was signed, "Eve Gerhart."

Laying the letter down, Judith switched on the light and took a look at herself in the mirror.

Her eyes were circled and red-rimmed, but not beyond the remedy of cold water and powder.

While the clatter of forks and knives went on downstairs, she dressed and brushed her hair. Then, slipping down the stairs, she let herself out the front door and stood in the dusk of College road.

The campus was a dim labyrinth of buildings and shrubs, indistinct and mysterious. Judith entered it with a little tightening of the lips and a frown on her forehead. She walked more quickly and threw a glance over her shoulder now and then.

Suddenly she found herself at the place where Shea had accosted her, many weeks ago. Shadows loomed across the very spot where he had appeared to block her path. Shea was dead, but it seemed as though his figure must spring again from between the bushes to menace her.

For a moment she paused, gazing wide-eyed at the path ahead. Then, by an effort of will, she plunged into the darkness and came out into the open quadrangle at a run, and on Campus avenue, she found a taxi for the long drive out Granville road.

Eve's little blue-eyed maid opened the door for Judith, and she stepped into the firelit room. For a moment she thought it was empty. But over the back of the fireside divan gleamed the top of Eve's golden head, with a wreath of smoke curling upwards around it. As the maid took Judith's wraps, Eve lifted an arm above her head and beckoned loudly.

Deep in the cushioned divan, in an attitude of careless luxury, Eve was smoking a long cigarette. Her Chinese lounging robe with its jewel colors against black satin glowed under the red reflection of the fire.

Judith smiled. "Your letter made me curious, just as you intended it should."

Eve flipped the cigarette into the fire. "Judith," she said, "tell me what's been happening, to make you look so you do."

Judith looked at her gravely. "You know his wife, I think. Prudence Brown is a living monument to the dean's inventive cruelty."

Judith nodded, but said nothing. "You should have seen her when she came here as a bride," Eve continued. "She was straight and slim, with some of the fire and verve that one associates with a pagan nymph. I thought she was in love with Timothy—she looked at him and listened to him in such wide-eyed wonder."

"It was terrible to see the change coming. It showed in her eyes first. From being wide and limpid, they became merely vague and blurry. Then she began to walk with tremulous little steps that tried to keep pace with the movement of the dean's short legs."

"She gave up the blue gowns she had delighted in, and took to gray and black. Her hats crept back from their captivating droop over one eye, to perch staidly on the crown of her head. In a few months

It may be that the men who have been dismissed are mentally more capable. But in this case it must appear to be a case of labor and not of brains.

It is the old economic question of men earning more than women for the same work. Men have families. So have women. Most of the characters I have employed are supporters of families—in many cases of husbands also.

To pay by piece instead of time has been talked of as a solution. Pay for work received, be it from man or woman. Yet where it has been tried it is still difficult to maintain an equal scale.

I wonder how many ages it will take to get the Chinese prejudice out of the masculine make-up, concerning the industrial value of women.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by Allene Summer

"I hate Thanksgiving," said friend Grace not long ago when, on a cross-country hike, the corn-shocks and the pumpkins in the frost-rimed fields brought some mention of that approaching day. Then, as though such heresay demanded explanation, she plunged in to elaborate.

"Thanksgiving means in our family, of course, as it does in most families, a grand free-for-all family reunion. Our tribe all told numbers eleven, and it's just taken for granted that year after year Thanksgiving shall be at mother's. Well, mother is 75 today, and getting a glutton's feast for 11 is a little job. That means that Bob and I, being the family's sole exponents of single-blessedness, labor as kitchen wench and jack-of-all-trades for the gang. It means, too, to mutilate around the old family table with the old family gang."

"Maybe you think me an awful, old thing. But I'm fed up on family. That's one of the penalties of living at home—you are served family for breakfast, dinner, and three times a day on Sundays. And single remnants of a generally married family soon learn that their life and interests are considered of little moment by the married tribe. So one sits silently pretending to lend an attentive ear to Minnie's husband who is out of work, or Fred's bad knee or Kitty's worry over how she'll get a new party dress for Betty Jean, while one is thinking of one's own life and interests outside the family walls."

"Well, I admit that's a small part of the trouble. I beat about being forced into the position of having to be a kitchen wench, but there's really nothing like quite so much as making a salad or turkey dressing, and after all, family is family, and a holiday more or less full of 'em, isn't so bad."

"But what does get me is the dolefulness of father and mother after the holiday is over! You would think that the only happy days in their life were these few days. 'When the turkey comes out, if the tribe doesn't stay to supper they sit with long faces over the turkey bones and hash and rehash things the way they used to be—"

"They start in with Thanksgivings when we were all at home. Tell how Kitty and I went off to the woods for partridge berries, and how Emily made little pumpkin place cards and ate cups with her water coats, and how father ordered the turkey days ahead and got the biggest one he could find, and how we all quarreled to scrape out the cake bowl, and how we sat around in the afternoon and popped corn and cracked nuts—"

"Well, we did have nice Thanksgivings then, and I wouldn't have mother and father think of them other than in that way. But it's just a symbol of their entire outlook on life, their dolefulness about their present state, the way they hand everything to the past, and nothing to the present."

"Now I recall many things that mother seems to forget in her hymn to the past. Mother was intensely nervous, and I remember that when we children scurried around the kitchen as she was trying to get Thanksgiving dinner she fussed and scolded and threatened to quit entirely, and even clouted us over the ears."

"I remember how poor we were in those days and how she often told father that if he would let some of the finer things of life, we might have a house that she needn't be ashamed of. And Tommy was a little thief, and she knows very well she was afraid Old Man Stone would send him to the reform school for stealing his grapes, and our home was not the delightful place she makes it now."

"And I am not arguing that I want her to remember these things, either. But what I do wish is that she could see some comfort in the present, and not make us all feel positively wicked for being happy as things are now. She has leisure. Bob and I pay in enough board money to enable her to have pretty clothes, books, music, an auto, companionship. But it's the past, the past—and her sorrow for her present state—with the children gone but two, is especially keen after they go home on Thanksgiving Day."

EASY TO OPERATE

For keeping your hardwood floors clean and polished a lamb's wool wax mop is almost an essential.

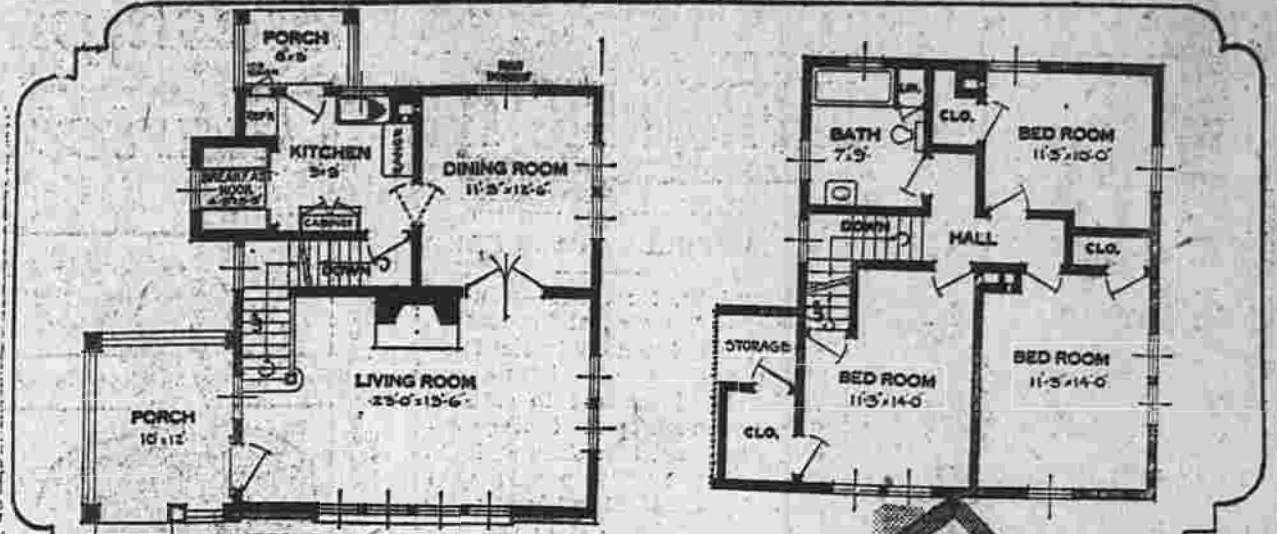

SAVES CLEANERS' BILLS

When you hang your light party dresses away, always cover them with a muslin cover or bag to prevent soil.

SANDWICH FILLING

Equal parts of cream cheese and apricot pulp made by passing stewed apricots through a sieve, put together with mayonnaise dressing makes a delicious sandwich filling. If you add a few chopped nuts it is richer and more festive.

gives an impression of roominess such as would be found in a much larger house. For instance, the living room—which has a broad fireplace—is 23 by 13 feet. And there

TWEED TAKES LEAD IN SEASON'S MODE

Bendel Sees Year of Unprecedented Popularity for Wool.

BY HENRI BENDEL

New York, Nov. 22.—The tweed frock has scored the greatest individual triumph of the season. It is the outstanding success, all the more conspicuous because no one ever really believed tweed "had it in it."

This sturdy and sterling fabric, associated in our minds with English country gentlemen and women who spent most of their time in the open, has too often come something scratchy and harsh, that looked hot and heavy in town.

However, like practically all stand-pat materials, it has finally yielded to French persuasion. If it has lost its old independence it has at least gained gentleness and soft-than such accessories as large colored silk handkerchiefs, printed silk scarfs, neckerchiefs, tailored bouquets of leather or wool, smart felt hats at the lox of this year.

I believe tweed and such soft wools will be even more popular for spring than they will be for winter and we will see such a season of wool supremacy as we never before encountered.

Perhaps this is the reason why the felt hat persists so tenaciously and is the prevailing material for autumn hats, because it is the only possible choice with such frocks.

Good Nature and Good Health

BE CAREFUL IN USE OF LAXATIVE GUMS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

It is safe to say that more proprietary medicines of a laxative character are sold in this country than in any other.

The vogue of chewing gum is also particularly an American institution. It is not surprising therefore that a manufacturer has begun the sale and distribution of chewing gum into which is incorporated a quantity of a well known laxative drug.

Caution in Usage
While chewing gums thus medicated may be safe as laxatives there are excellent reasons why this drug should not be sold indiscriminately. Samples were distributed in the streets of some cities, until boards of health prevented such distribution because the samples fell into the hands of children and there were serious results.

Besides, some persons are especially sensitive, and react with severe inflammation of the skin when they take even a small dose of this remedy.

The second use to which chewing gum has been put has been to incorporate drugs alleged to have special properties for reducing obesity.

The school board of a large American city employ efficiency experts to figure out a way of reducing expenses in maintaining their school buildings.

The efficiency engineers went over the buildings with pad and pencil and issued their ultimatum. "Cleaning the buildings should be costing a hundred thousand dollars a year less!" said they.

The school board called the janitors up on the carpet. They did not say "Oh with their heads!" They said "Oh with their helpers!" But they meant to be more definite, "Oh with their male helpers."

Then to soften the blow, for every one knows that the major-domo in charge of a large building cannot do all the window cleaning and ash-sifting himself, the school board said, "You may employ women, good sirs. You can get the same service with the help of charwomen; we shall raise your salaries, and we shall still save one hundred thousand dollars a year."

Now then, what is the answer? One cannot say that the women will be paid less because they render less service. The work is there to be done, must be done, and will be done, and women will do it.

It must be that most of the women who will be employed are foreign-born. Perhaps and perhaps not,

HARTFORD'S MAYOR GUEST OF MASONS

Over 200 Attend Regular Communication - E. J. Holl the Candidate.

About 225 members of Manchester Lodge of Masons, including visitors from Hartford and surrounding lodges, attended the meeting at Odd Fellows' hall last night, when Mayor Stevens of Hartford, deputy of this district, paid his annual visit to the lodge.

The Master Mason degree was conferred by the regular officers, headed by W. George Glenney as Worshipful Master. It was the last regular communication of the present board of officers but they plan to hold one or two special meetings before the expiration of their term. The election of officers comes two weeks from this time. The candidate last night was Edward J. Holl, the well known real estate dealer. The present board of officers has made a record for Manchester men were raised to the degree of Master Mason.

After the meeting the entertainment committee put on a wonderful supper. At each plate was a cornucopia of delicacies. Passed around and the Masons smoked the cornucopia. Past Master Verplanck presided. Remarks were made also by District Deputy Stevens and by the youngest member of Manchester Lodge. Both Mayor Stevens and Mr. Verplanck are particularly interested in the work being carried on at the Masonic home in Wallingford and urged the Masons to take a greater interest in it. Mayor Stevens is a very able speaker. He made a very deep impression on his hearers by his talk on the work of the Masonic order in the United States. Among the guests was the Rev. David Kelly, assistant to Rev. J. S. Neill, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church. Mr. Kelly is the present Worshipful Master of the Masonic lodge in Donegal, Ireland, and spoke of the work of the Masons in Ireland.

HOLMES-ANDERSON

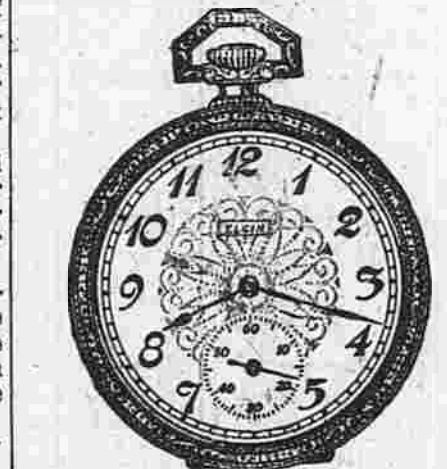

Miss Signe Anderson of Andover and Ward Holmes, son of Mrs. Joseph Holmes of North Main street, were married this afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the bride's brother, Carl Anderson of Middle Turnpike East. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John E. Dunne of the North Methodist church, the bride being given in marriage by her brother. The living room was tastefully decorated with evergreens and cut flowers. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played on the piano by Clayton Holmes, brother of the bridegroom.

Miss Louise Calve was bridesmaid and Arthur Holmes, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Little Arline Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Holmes was flower girl.

The bride's dress was of white georgette crepe. She wore a tulle veil with cap of lace and orange blossoms and carried a shower of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore orchid georgette and carried Madame Butterfly roses, while the flower girl's frock was of honeydew georgette.

Following the ceremony a reception for the immediate families and intimate friends was held. The young couple will make their home for the present with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson.

Hose Company No. 3 answered a still alarm to a fire in the bedroom of the home of Eric Gustafson of 32 Maple street at 10 o'clock last night. A gas stove had become overheated and set fire to the carpet. Considerable damage was done to the room but the fire was kept under control and extinguished by chemicals.

Crooks, Club Soloist, Has Enviably Record

Richard Crooks, soloist at the Men's Choral club concert here Monday night, was born in Trenton, New Jersey, and commenced singing in public at the age of ten. At twelve he shared honors with Schumann-Heink before an audience of 14,000 people at a big Music Festival. A few years later he was engaged by All Angels' church, New York, occupying there the position of boy soprano soloist for two years. During the war he enlisted in the 626th Aero Squadron, the development of his voice being materially hastened by the strenuousness of the life of a flyer. Later he returned to All Angels' as tenor soloist, and in 1921 was chosen from a host of others for the coveted post of soloist at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, New York. Crooks' professional career began in earnest with the 1922-23 season after Dr. Walter Damrosch had personally selected him for the unprecedented number of nine performances as soloist with the New York Symphony Orchestra, which important appearance the tenor filled with such sensational success that at the end of his first season the young artist had the record of over forty bookings to his credit. The following season found Crooks already so firmly established in the regard of the public that the list of his engagements more than doubled and included his first tour of far West and appearances with many of the most important musical organizations and symphony orchestras in this country. In the summer of 1925 Crooks continued his triumphant musical conquest by invading Europe and singing with outstanding success in London, Vienna, Munich and Berlin. A few of the many characteristic exceptional press criticisms the artist has received from these various appearances follow: 'Crooks showed intelligence and made his text clear. The whole assembly rose in the seats with vigorous applause and cries of 'Bravo!'—New York Herald. 'The performance owed much to Crooks. He sang in flawless German with a vigor, authority and real dramatic force that was astonishing.'—New York World. 'Crooks' voice is fresh and elastic, his intonation and diction excellent.'—New York Times. 'Richard Crooks' voice is one of the freshest and most appealing lyric tenors that a generation of professional concert has brought to our notice. He has the McCormack-like gift of making the English language beautiful in song.'—Chicago Herald-Examiner. 'Crooks is a tenor of whom American art has every reason to feel proud.'—Denver Post. 'The recital by Richard Crooks was one of the most delightful concerts the club has ever given.'—Winnipeg Free Press. 'The remarkable smoothness and beauty of his voice—flawless in the evenness of its values—the perfection of his breathing; the taste and imagination of his phrasing made every word he sang supremely satisfying.'—Toronto Saturday Night. 'Richard Crooks delighted the audience with the beauty of his lovely voice and the perfection of his interpretations.'—Savannah Press. Apollo, Huylers, Whitman's candies for the holiday at Edward J. BRAMBACH BABY GRAND To the People of Manchester Q The mind of your child is the one factor that quite naturally commands your most serious consideration; the importance of training and developing the child mind cannot be overstated. Q For this purpose music is indispensable. Authorities tell us music is one of the best mediums to develop children's character and mind in order to bring together muscular coordination and thought. Music also adds a charm to the personality that cannot be otherwise instilled. Q Parents, buy for your child, as a Christmas Gift, a Brambach Baby Grand. Give to the youngster the best in small grand music. When your sons and daughters have grown to maturity, they will be equipped to go anywhere, at ease in any social occasion, possessing an art that you alone can give to them. Q I would like to tell you personally about the influence a Brambach has had on some of the children of this community. I want you to know what an ideal Christmas Gift a Brambach Grand will be. Won't you come in some day soon; then we can chat about the whole matter—all without obligation, of course. Cordially yours, E. J. Kemp, Jr. Because the Brambach Baby Grand is truly a Baby Grand—but 4', 8" in length—it will fit cozily into even the smallest home. Yet with all this conservation of space, the owner of a Brambach need sacrifice not one whit of tonal perfection or case beauty. Then, too, a Brambach Grand is so exactly made, that it will render musical perfection for your children's children. It is the Christ as Gift preeminent. Kemp's Music House, South Manchester.
