

QUIT CARBARN NEXT SATURDAY FINAL DECISION

Transfer Affects Many Local Men; Also Raises Difficult Problems For Connecticut Company.

Definite orders for abandoning the local carbarn were posted in the office of the Connecticut Company yesterday afternoon. The carbarn will cease to be the operating base for Hartford and local cars next Sunday morning when the new runs go into effect.

Local Men Affected

Manchester has only 22 men on the first list, headed by A. H. Gilman. In addition, the names of 19 men appear on the second list and 19 on the third. These 19 are on the spare board and do not bid in on the regular runs.

Runs to Manchester and Stafford will not be the same as formerly. As far as the operators of the cars are concerned, Manchester, motormen and conductors will find that local runs will be split up with Hartford runs and as none of the Manchester motormen are familiar with Hartford runs, there will have to be considerable breaking in.

Question Finally Settled

Supt. Scott's notice settles a question that has been hanging fire for several months. Since the announcement some time ago that the company was to consolidate its carbarns, rumors have been going the rounds. None of these could be verified, however, for the Hartford office of the company would give out little or no information. Even Supt. H. A. Nettleton of the local division was kept in ignorance of the date of the change.

Local Protest Ineffective

Protest by local business men and even one by the Board of Selectmen had no effect on the decision of the company. Officials said that the reason for the removal was the fact that it would cost more to repair the barns than to move the whole outfit to Hartford. They claimed that the barns had fallen into a bad state of repair and that new buildings would probably have to be erected here.

Various problems confronted the officials of the company and it is said that some of them are not settled yet. Hartford officials profess ignorance of further developments in the move, saying that everything was being handled at the New Haven office.

Express Service

No arrangements have yet been announced for the handling of the local express business. A warehouse has been kept for two years to store the express packages, but the Hartford office has not indicated whether or not this will be continued.

Another problem, concerning spare men who are expected to be at the barns in time for the first runs, confronts both the employees and the company. If Manchester motormen and conductors are expected to report for the first car in the morning, they will have to live in Hartford. This means that the town will lose more than 100 of its population for there are about 55 motormen and conductors employed on Manchester cars.

The town will be interested in finding out how the company will handle severe snowstorms from its base in Hartford. Heretofore, co-operation between Don Hatlin, superintendent of the Manchester State Highway force, and Supt. H. A. Nettleton of the Connecticut company here, has kept the roads open between here and Hartford and also between this town and Rockville.

Dispatcher Stays

The dispatcher's office will remain here for some time after the move is made, it was announced. Considerable time will elapse before the telephone lines operated by the Connecticut company can be changed over to connect with the Hartford office. That, too, is another problem. Line cars working out of Manchester have taken care of the system very efficiently. Repair cars, then, will have to work out of Hartford and the trip to dispatching office will be a long one.

ALARM BELL RINGING, FALLS AS CHURCH BURNS

Boston, Mass., Dec. 6.—Frank Powers, member of the congregation of the Unitarian church, erected here 20 years ago, saw it alight today. He seized the rope of the church bell, which was also the village fire-bell. But the fire burned the fastenings and the bell came crashing down. Powers got out of the way in the nick of time. The church was destroyed.

WINTER BURIES TOWN IN SNOW, FREEZES IT UP

Highways Kept Open—Trolley Service Maintained—Many Autos Stalled—Near Coasting Accident.

Following what was an intimation of winter on Friday evening, when Manchester had its first appreciable snowfall of the season, came the storm of Sunday, which continued practically unabated until this morning. At times the fine flakes driven by a stiff northerly wind assumed blizzard proportions. To add to the severity of the storm was a temperature on Saturday night of about two below zero, and severe temperature continued throughout all of yesterday and well into the night. This morning moderation set in and the storm abated. Fully eight inches of snow fell, but with that Manchester was fortunate compared with other sections of the country where the storm was more severe and the temperature lower.

Highways Open

The highways leading into Manchester were kept open by the efforts of the State Highway Department and the Connecticut Company. One of the trolley company's snow plows was put out on commission at Burke's Corner, Rockville, when the rear wing dropped and caught into a bank. During all day yesterday and during the night the situation was kept well in hand, and trolley service this morning was only slightly off schedule, about fifteen minutes on the main line between Hartford and Stafford Springs, and on other lines less.

Autos Rammed

The only snow in this vicinity to be reported was to automobiles, some of which were stuck in the snow on the highways and had to be towed in, and some frozen while standing in unheated garages or while moving on the highways. Garage men were kept busy towing and thawing most of Sunday. As late as this morning many stalled autos were seen on the outskirts of the town.

Boy's Narrow Escape

With the opening of the coasting season, and the youngsters were out in large numbers on the various streets where the sliding was good. There was one near accident, when an automobile passed over a boy on Garden street. The youngster ran directly in front of the automobile, which straddled and passed over without touching him or his "pig-sticker" sled. It was a narrow escape and threw a scare into the boy and the driver.

Prairie Du Chien, Wis., Dec. 6.—When Erdman Olson, 18, returned home today at 1:30 the morning on which Clara Olson, his sweetheart, was supposed to have been slain, he sat down and "played the radio," Mrs. Albert Olson, his mother, at the coroner's inquest, testified today.

High Gales Tonight

Washington, Dec. 6.—The weather bureau today issued a warning that a disturbance of considerable intensity south of Nova Scotia is moving northeastward and will cause strong north and north-west winds along the Atlantic seaboard between Eastport, Maine, and Sandy Hook, N. Farm Buyer with Big Gun, Knife Stirs up East Hampton's Folk

East Hampton, Dec. 6.—Deputy Sheriff Young and Constable Flood of this place are combing the woods in the Mount Pleasant section for a man believed to be insane, carrying a revolver of heavy calibre and a large curved knife.

The stranger, believed to be a Pole, visited several farms in the Mount Pleasant section last week and bargained to purchase six of them, stating they were to be occupied by his relatives. The occupants of the farms prepared to move out and had arranged to seek other living quarters. The man then disappeared and returned Saturday to the home of John Johnson, armed with the gun and knife, and appeared to be in a highly excited condition. He suddenly disappeared again. Johnson and his neighbors notified the authorities, and the woods in the vicinity were searched without locating the mysterious stranger. The man is about forty years old and is attired in laborer's clothing.

LINDGREN, SINGER, IN NEW ESCAPE

'Swedish Nightingale' Takes Poison, Calls Cab, Moves To Boston Hospital.

Boston, Dec. 6.—Lydia Lindgren, 37, grand opera star, known as the "Swedish Nightingale," whose two great fears have been death and darkness, swallowed a dose of poison in her suite at the Copley Plaza Hotel early today.

Then, gathering her baggage and personal papers together, she telephoned for a taxi cab and drove to city hospital. There emergency treatment probably saved her life. No reason was given for her taking the poison.

Paul Quirze, operatic tenor, husband of the "Nightingale" was notified at the Hotel St. Andrew, New York.

MANCHU CHANG PLANS TO RULE ALL CHINA

Will Assume Dictatorship, London Hears—Anti-Foreign Situation Is Easier.

Shanghai, Dec. 6.—Thirty of fifty-six separate strikes declared by Chinese servants, customs officials and police in the foreign concessions of Hankow have been settled, but anti-foreign demonstrations continued today as strong as ever.

It is reported that the nationalists, organizers of the strikes, have decided to send delegates to Europe in the hope that by careful research they will be able to carry on the boycott of foreign goods on a more scientific manner.

Disorders were reported at Foochow, which has surrendered to the Cantonese forces.

It is rumored here that the troops of Marshal Wu Pei-Fu, who for years has alternated between fighting Marshal Chang Tso-Lin for mastery at Peking and allying with Chang against other rivals, will join the Cantonese forces.

STOCKHOLDERS VETO TAKING MILLS SOUTH

Boston, Mass., Dec. 6.—Decision to withhold approval of the directors plan to close the Otis Company mills at Ware, Mass., and Greenville, N. H., and remove the looms to a southern location, was voted by the Otis Company stockholders today, pending a further study of the New England and Southern situations by a special committee.

REFUSED A CIGARETTE, FIGHT AND IS KILLED

New York, Dec. 6.—Refusal of a request for a cigarette today led to the murder of George Crandley, according to the police. Crandley is alleged to have asked Charles Johnson, of the New York Hotel, where both were living, for a smoke. Johnson's refusal, police said, led to a fight during which Crandley was killed. Johnson is now being sought.

TEAPOT DOME TRIAL LOOMS FOR A. B. FALL

Supreme Court Rules Ex-Secretary and H. F. Sinclair Must Face Jury—Capt. Robison on Stand.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Another conspiracy trial, growing out of the "oil scandals" was assured today when the Supreme Court held that ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair must stand trial on the indictment growing out of Fall's leave of Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

Fall had nothing whatever to do with arranging the government's lease with E. L. Doherty for oil storage facilities at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Captain, J. K. Robison, U. S. Navy, testified at the jury at the Fall-Doherty conspiracy trial today. The actual negotiations were carried on chiefly by subordinates in the navy and interior departments, Robison said.

Doherty appeared in court today with his left arm in a sling. An infection was responsible. His physician was not for his enforcement of Doherty to bed. A temperature accompanied the infection.

SEEK MRS. CHRISTIE, NOVELIST OF BRITAIN

Long Search in Surry Fails to Disclose Whereabouts of Writer, 33 With Nervousness

London, Dec. 6.—Thirty-six hours of constant searching of the woods, ponds and rivers of the Surrey Countryside today failed to develop any trace of Agatha Christie, popular British novelist, who disappeared under mysterious circumstances yesterday morning.

SQUIREL WAS NUTTY BUT NOT HYDROPHOBIC

Negative Test For Rabies Result of Scare When Trumbull Child Is Bitten.

Hartford, Dec. 6.—Since time immemorial the squirrel has been regarded as an example of mental instability but at last science has been called upon to give a brain test to the lowly animal and in one case at least, abnormally has been proven. The test was made at the laboratories of the state department of health here last week.

A squirrel had bitten a child in Trumbull. The animal was killed and the head sent to the laboratory. Rabies infection was feared, inasmuch as the animal is a member of the rodent family.

A negative report was returned on the rabies test but indications of abnormality were discovered. The report to the laboratory by the squirrel's owner, which has been a pet, was that it acted "queer." So far as the laboratory workers are aware this is the first time the brain of a squirrel has been examined for rabies infection in this state.

FINE RECKLESS WOMAN, HOLD SUSPECTED CAR

"Alice M. Black of Bethany" Drove at 40 on Flat Tire in "Borrowed" Machine.

Greenwich, Dec. 6.—A woman giving her name as Alice M. Black and her home town as Bethany, Conn., was fined $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving here today, and her car was ordered seized pending an investigation as to how she obtained it. The woman was stopped by an officer here today after she had driven at forty miles an hour on a flat tire. The car was registered in New Hampshire and the driver had a temporary driver's license good in New York state. The driver declared she had borrowed it from a New Hampshire woman now in Europe.

Old Congress Meets to Begin Last Session of Its Career

SURPLUS, RADIO, AID FOR FARMS FIRST OF JOBS

All Other Legislation Except Appropriations Is Due For Neglect in the Short Winter Session.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Congress came back to work today facing a veritable mountain of problems, with only twelve scant weeks in which to solve them, and the opinion was general among the leaders when the gavel fell that the drying session of the Sixty-ninth Congress would pass into history with little accomplished outside of the routine and the necessary.

It will be a session, according to its leaders, that will see much sharp fighting, much political maneuvering, much oratory, and little of first rate accomplishment. "Lame duck" congresses rarely set any records for achievement, and this one is expected to prove no exception.

To Keep Bills Off

The efforts of the leaders will be devoted to keeping legislation off the statute books, rather than seeing how much can be put on. In this endeavor time is their chief ally, for their remain but twelve weeks of life to this "Coolidge Congress," so-called because it came into power on the crest of the 1924 landslide.

Disposal of the treasury surplus of nearly $400,000,000, farm relief and radio regulation—these problems constitute the trifinity of major tasks confronting the members when they assembled today. If these are adequately dealt with in addition to passage of the appropriation bills, administration leaders will write files on March 4 fairly well satisfied.

The fighting over the treasury surplus will be sharp. President Coolidge had proposed that these millions be turned back to the taxpayers. The Democrats insist the surplus be made the basis for general tax reduction. It is the consensus that neither proposal can prevail, and that in the event the surplus will go by default into the retirement of the public debt, now totaling approximately $18,500,000,000.

McNary-Haugen Bill

The fighting over farm relief will be even sharper. Midwestern members, Irish from the disgruntled grain belt, have revived the McNary-Haugen bill which President Coolidge considers "radical." The bill was defeated a year ago because the southerners would not support it. Since then, however, the South has been hard hit by the decline in cotton prices. The bill is one chance of passage lies in a coalition of south and west. Few believe that it can be accomplished.

A solution, temporary at least, for the present radio confusion probably will be found, if for no other reason than public demand for it is so great. The House has passed the White bill, giving Secretary of Commerce Hoover almost car-like authority to regulate radio. The Senate passed the Dill bill, creating an independent bureau with regulatory powers. A compromise between the two probably will be worked out.

Due for Shaving

Chief among the other questions to be dealt with are prohibition, Muscle Shoals, alien property, Shipping Board reorganization, and the consolidation of primary "slush funds," etc. On all these matters opinion is so sharply divided that it is not believed possible to work out any definite disposition.

PICKING JURY FOR TRIAL OF M'DERMOTT

Court Machinery in Murder of Don Mellett Begins to Operate in Canton.

Canton, O., Dec. 6.—Patrick Eugene McDermott, alternately cast as a prospective juror and exchanged "wise-cracks" with his counsel here today as a jury was being chosen in the hall of justice to try him for the murder of Don R. Mellett, vice president of the Canton News.

When court recessed temporarily at 11 a. m., two women and two men had been named in the jury box. They were C. W. Keame, connected with the public firm Mrs. Olive Huston, Norman Bier, farmer, and Mrs. Annie Winmill.

Of the venire of 62, 23 named drawn for the case about a dozen had been excused on the ground that they had formed an opinion, were opposed to capital punishment or other causes.

The crowd which sought to visit the courtroom was limited to about 125 persons.

CONN. SYSTEM OF APPRAISAL VALID

U. S. Supreme Court Sustains State Law for Fixing Condemned Land Values.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The Connecticut law under which property is valued when condemned for park purposes was intentionally held valid by the Supreme court today in dismissing the appeal of John B. and Louis M. Macken of Waterbury.

Property of the Mackens was taken for park purposes by the city of Waterbury.

121 SHIPS CAUGHT IN RIVER ICE PACK

Vessels, With Crews, in Michigan-Canada Trap.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 6.—Hope of freeing 121 ships, valued at $150,000,000, imprisoned in the ice jammed St. Mary's River with their crews of approximately 4,000 men, waned today as the blizzard, with below-zero temperature, continued to rage. The entire fleet is suffering from lack of food and a number of the ships are in dire need of coal. Coast Guards will be dispatched with food supplies, it is believed.

Worst in History

The ship blockade, said to be the worst in marine history, is several miles long on each side of the Island. The ice forms a veritable dam twenty feet deep. It is worse in narrow, rock-cut dykes, where the churning of tugs has cut the ice in chunks and the water has run entirely filled the channel. When a boat passes through the ice fills in behind again and the same difficulty is experienced by the next boat. Sailors say it is like driving a boat into a travel pit.

Two passenger steamers, the Harmonic and Athabasco, are among the ice bound ships. Many of the trapped sailors believed they are destined to spend the winter where they are. Marine men pointed out the necessity of keeping at least half a crew with each ship to keep steam up because, when the ice breaks the boats must be ready instantly to move.

LOCAL BOY SCOUTS SEEK MISSING MAN

Hartford Man Absent Since Friday Noon; His Whereabouts Unknown; Local Scoutmasters Notified.

Manchester Boy Scouts have been asked to join with other scouts in the Hartford Council in efforts to locate Daniel Raymond, 56, of 91 Henry street, Hartford, who has been missing from his home since Friday noon. He is five feet and five inches tall, weighs between 140 and 150 pounds, has a black mustache, wore a blue top coat, grey felt hat and dark suit.

Fred C. Hill, scout executive of Hartford Council, was notified of the missing man and asked to contribute the aid of the Boy Scouts in the work. Mr. Hill accordingly sent letters to all the scout masters in the council in speaking about Mr. Raymond. The letter received by local scout masters says:

"This family is distressed, naturally, and appeal to the Scouts to search for Mr. Raymond. They do not indicate where he might be. Consequently, we can make no suggestion as to what portion of a city should be searched. However, Scouts should be urged to be on the lookout for this man and even to go out of their way to search isolated places, both in the city and in the suburbs. It would be a great credit to scouting if one or more Scouts could either locate this man or get a clue to his location. Such a proposition leads a boy to observe, which is right along the lines of Scouting."

"Will you kindly bring this matter most emphatically to the attention of your troop at the next meeting. If you can offer any suggestions which would help the boys in their search, it would be well."

"Have the boys report any information they get to Franklin Raymond, telephone Charter 4892-2 and to the detective bureau of the local police department."

FEDERAL ACTION FAILS TO STOP POOL GAMBLE

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 6.—Despite the federal proceedings against the Albany and Hudson gambling pool, agents today were handing out "key cards" for the play on the fluctuation of the selected list of New York stocks, showing that both pools were still in operation in this state.

NEW SENATORS TAKE SEATS AS SESSION BEGINS

Both Houses Crowded For Historic Ritual of Rejuvenating—Noon Is Signal For the 3-Month Term.

Washington, Dec. 6 (United Press).—With historic ceremony, the final session of the Sixty-ninth Congress was ushered in today to the Supreme court today in dismissing the appeal of John B. and Louis M. Macken of Waterbury.

Property of the Mackens was taken for park purposes by the city of Waterbury.

Fine ladies with lognettes; business men from over the country; veterans from hospitals and glad-hand government officials peered down into the wells of the Senate and the House of Representatives when the stroke of noon summoned the national legislators to organize for the work of the year.

Vice President Dawes in the Senate and Speaker Longworth in the House immediately called for order and introduced the chaplains for prayer.

Organization Ritual

The solemn ritual of organization prescribed by the constitution was complied with, and formalities were cleared away so that President Coolidge tomorrow may present his annual message on the state of affairs, with recommendations as to what business should be transacted.

It was the same ritual that has opened previous congresses since the foundation of the republic but it bore an excited interest to the spectators and participants alike. Senators wore dresses; in their frock coats and high collars. They stood at their desks in the semi-circular chamber with bowed heads as the chaplain prayed.

At the front of the chamber, there were two vacant chairs to mark the passing of two senators during the nine months summer recess, Albert B. Cummins, Iowa, and Bert M. Fernald of Maine.

New Senators

After the prayer was over new senators were brought forward to receive the oath of office. There was former Senator David Walsh, Democrat, Mass., who was elected to fill an unexpired term to which William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee previously had been appointed. He, with Senator David Walsh, Democrat, Mass., and Senator David Stewart, Rep., Iowa, were the only new ones who had been sitting at the last session but formally required that the others chosen to succeed themselves should bow to the oath. These included Senator Gerald P. Nye, Rep., N. D. and Senator Arthur Robinson, Rep., Ind.

The oaths being administered to the candidates in pairs, Senator Curtis, Republican leader, introduced the usual resolutions of notification to the president and the house that the senate was in session and ready to do business. Adjournment then was taken until tomorrow.

House Jubilant

The scene in the House was more jubilant. There the 435 members acted like classmates returning from the summer vacation and few of the members paid much attention to the routine business transacted upon the same formula as provided in the Senate. The congressmen buzzed in little groups, shaking hands and telling of the happenings of the campaign.

Democrats found their strength increased substantially in the Senate as a result of the last elections although their full newly acquired strength will not be felt until the new congress comes into power after March 4. This session is a hold-over of the old Congress elected two years ago and the only changes made were through filling vacancies caused by deaths.

Two Democratic senators, Walsh and Hawes, were sworn to replace Republicans and left the Democrats just six votes short of a majority. The standing is 53 Republicans, 42 Democrats and 1 Farmer-Laborer.

Balance of Power

This situation would enable the Democrats to control upon any legislation in which they should receive six votes from the Independent Republican group.

The short session will last for three months until March 4 but there will only be about ten weeks of actual work, due to the necessity of adjourning over the Christmas holidays.

The calendars are jammed with legislation to be taken up, but there is little prospect that much business can be transacted. The government appropriation bills must be passed and these require considerable time, although they attract but little attention from most of the legislators.

Congress Leaders Tell Of Plans IN THE HOUSE

NICHOLAS LONGWORTH
Speaker of the House of Representatives

The Republicans in the House are concerned for the immediate future with the appropriation bills, which we are anxious to dispose of as rapidly as possible.

It is desirable to accomplish this so that there will be no question of lack of time later on for the passage of these measures.

The appropriations committee has completed three or four of the appropriation bills and we ought to get these passed by the House before Christmas.

The Ways and Means Committee is now in process of agreement upon an alien property bill designed to complete the return of alien property and the settlement of American claims and we plan to put this bill through as soon as possible.

Further than this we have not yet worked out any definite program. Such a program will be formulated during the time we are engaged with the appropriation bills.

PILES GO QUICK
Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds, because it relieves this congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has given quick, safe and lasting relief to thousands of Pile Sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. By FINIS J. GARRETT
Democratic Leader in the House of Representatives

The Democratic minority in the House in the coming short session of Congress will continue its policies as carried out during the session ended last July. Its program is not one of heckling the administration, but of co-operating with the majority where it can and vigorously opposing the majority where it cannot. The minority cannot initiate legislation or fix the program.

If the majority pushes the administration's tax refund proposal, it can expect plenty of opposition. We will have none of it. We are hoping, on the other hand, for a general tax reduction.

I believe the first step in tax reduction should be a revision of the tariff.

Tariff revision all along the line, we feel, would be one of the first important steps toward agricultural relief. Apparently, however, the situation as regards relief for the farmer is as chaotic as it was last year.

It is important that the radio bill be passed in this session and there seems reasons to hope for this. Something should be done also about the disposition of Muscle Shoals.

tant points such as Stafford and Rockville will take time. However, officials of the company say that they have gone into all that and are prepared for anything that may turn up.

IN THE SENATE

By JAMES E. WATSON
Administration Leader, United States Senate

The short session of Congress will be introduced by Senator McNary and it will be pressed.

Second, the fight over tax reduction and the form it shall take.

Third, Muscle Shoals.

Fourth, an extremely important one because they involve the expenditure of about $3,500,000,000—the appropriations bills, which are about to be taken up.

Whether any of the contested election cases—the Vane and Smith cases and others—will be officially considered is problematical.

I think the McNary farm relief bill, which I strongly favor, stands a better chance for enactment this session than ever before.

Personally, I don't believe that any tax legislation whatever will be passed this session, and I think the surplus will be used to reduce the debt.

Muscle Shoals will be one of the first things to come up and it remains to be seen whether this will be pressed, the debate on it will probably consume about ten days.

We always think we're going to do a lot of things in a short session, but my experience is that we don't.

By JOSEPH T. ROBINSON
Democratic Floor Leader, United States Senate

The Democrats will undertake to bring about a tax reduction in the present session of Congress which will bring equal relief insofar as is possible to all the people.

They will vigorously oppose the administration's tax refund plan as unfair to millions of small taxpayers and a piece of marked favoritism to the larger taxpayers.

Taxes, according to the Democratic view, should be collected for the purpose of governing and when large surpluses accumulate from unneeded revenues, they should be regarded as automatic signals calling for a decrease in taxation.

Among the other principal questions which probably will come before Congress in which Democrats are most interested are:

Passage of an adequate farm relief measure.

Reduction of the tariff.

Measures to curb corruption and "slush fund" irregularities in senatorial primaries.

Consideration of farm relief should follow disposal of the appropriation bills.

The Senate today stands at the crossroads insofar as concerns its prestige of the immediate future in the minds of the public as a result of the scandal attaching to the recent elections of certain senators. For its own honor and self-respect the Senate cannot afford to condone by ignoring it a situation which threatens to brand elections of United States senators as commonly dishonest and corrupt.

The wet bloc, for instance, has organized to defeat any attempts at enforcement, reorganization, sponsored by the drys, and by delays and parliamentary maneuvering can probably block any action for twelve weeks.

The dying Sixty-ninth Congress assembled with the threat of an extra session of the Seventieth hanging over it.

Recognizing the improbability of accomplishing much in three months, the Democrats are openly forecasting an extra session right after March 4 to deal with the problems they feel will not be dealt with in this session—principally tax reduction and farm relief. In the Seventieth Congress the Democrats will be stronger, more militant, and in a better strategical position to enact their own program.

Get to Work Thursday
The present session will not really get down to business until Thursday. After the gavels fell today the usual adjournment was taken out of respect to dead members. Tomorrow will be devoted to hearing President Coolidge's annual message, and Wednesday to hearing the budget read and discussed. Thereafter the fighting begins.

NEGATIVE MERIT.

Congress is again with us. With a long and involved program of legislation ahead of it, it comes in session for the winter full of fight and political animus. Not much of the program will be performed. Not much will get beyond the stage of talk for the record. It is a good bet that an extra session will follow, even though the President is said to be earnestly opposed to it.

It is almost inevitable that this session of our national legislature will result in a revival of those many expressions of contempt for that body which have been becoming more and more common of recent years.

This is regrettable. Congress as a whole is far from contemptible. It contains a great many very able, very honorable, very efficient members. Probably a considerable majority of the representatives and senators are as big, as responsible and as earnest as the members of any parliament at any period in history.

It is to be wondered that in other countries America is getting the reputation for being entirely destitute of a sense of proportion? There has been a theory in this country ever since the nation became a nation that the military power was at all times, save in time of actual war, subordinate to the civil power. It remains to be seen whether that theory has been abandoned and whether we have arrived at a point where military bureaucracy is beyond the control of the federal courts.

That constitutes a pretty good record. After all, the people of the country ought to realize that it is not only what Congress does which provides a measure of its sanity, but what it might do yet does not do. It is an essential of the situation that negative performance is sometimes as much of an achievement as positive performance.

If Congress this winter does nothing at all but pass the appropriation bills it will be doing better than if it passed all the legislation in sight.

HAPPY GLOOMSTERS.

Loud cacklings today from those sombre pessimists who have been running around ever since the middle of September, quoting to whoever would listen from the utterances of certain bilious old seers who insisted that the winter of 1926-27 would bring us more snow than we ever dreamed of before. It is their day, and they are happy.

Well, let 'em be happy. So are the rest of us. We have the consolation at least that if zero-weather hits our coal bins a devastating wallop far in advance of all reasonableness as to dates, it mauls the gloomsters' fuel just as viciously; and that if seven inches of snow fall where one inch would be a decent pre-holiday decoration, the shoveling of it excites our lumbago no more than it does the dour prophets' rheumatism.

And we are breeding a lot of trouble for ourselves. NO SUIT.

The Stevens family—or Hall-Stevens family—of New Jersey threaten, through one of their lawyers, to sue the New York newspaper which was directly responsible for precipitating the indictment of four of its members and the trial of three of them for murder. It is something more than doubtful that they will do anything of the kind. It is pretty certain that the newspaper in question would welcome such a suit ten times as joyfully as Henry Stevens welcomed the six-pound bluefish that brought him an alibi in its gills.

The Stevens family suing a rich New York newspaper before a court which would not be a court of Somerset county, N. J., and before a jury which was not made up of their neighbors, friends, business associates and employes' relatives, would be in a very different position from the position of that family during the last four years. There will be no libel suit.

BOOZE ADS.

Boston customs authorities have ruled that foreign publications carrying liquor advertisements cannot enter the United States. This is in direct conflict with a ruling established at the New York customs house, but is said to be with the sanction of the revenue authorities at Washington who took council with somebody or other connected with prohibition enforcement, so it must be all right. If it is the intent of the Volstead law that the circulation of liquor advertisements be prohibited—and it certainly is—then of course there is no valid excuse for making flesh of American newspapers and fish of English or French magazines.

One of the publications against which complaint was made at Boston is a Paris fashion magazine, which probably hasn't a single subscriber in the United States outside the garment and millinery trade. The number in question consisted of 150 pages. On one of the pages appeared a one-inch advertisement for a cordial which every well-to-do New England grandmother of the last century used to consider as an essential to her medicine chest. No other liquor advertisement was carried in the number.

As much as the cordial is distinctly an intoxicant under the Volstead definition, however, the magazine is legally proscribed. There is no more reason for exempting it from the inhibitions of Volsteadism than for exempting the prohibition forces to overlook open if inconsequential advertising of black-berry brandy.

Being part and parcel of the law of the land, it is right and proper that all these ridiculous, offensive regulations be enforced.

Meantime there are at least half a dozen preparations, legally on sale in every drug store in the country, which are exactly as much beverages and contain several times the French cordial in question, and which can be advertised legally in every newspaper in the United States, every day of the week, if their makers see fit.

Is it to be wondered that in other countries America is getting the reputation for being entirely destitute of a sense of proportion?

MUSSOLINIZED.

There has been a theory in this country ever since the nation became a nation that the military power was at all times, save in time of actual war, subordinate to the civil power. It remains to be seen whether that theory has been abandoned and whether we have arrived at a point where military bureaucracy is beyond the control of the federal courts.

If it is within the power of the secretary of the navy to determine that "public policy" justifies withholding from a United States court reports of navy officers on the strength of which the navy has made preparations for war involving the sacrifice of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of public property—altogether without the knowledge of the people or of Congress—then it is high time the country realized it. Because in such event the country will most certainly take steps to bring about a diminishment of that power.

With the State Department establishing a foreign policy in Nicaragua utterly contrary to all American traditions, and with Secretary Wilbur instructing his subordinate officers to refuse to give testimony of the utmost value in one of the most important criminal prosecutions the country has ever known, we are standing, very temporarily it is to be hoped, in a position that would delight a Mussolini.

And we are breeding a lot of trouble for ourselves. NO SUIT.

The Stevens family—or Hall-Stevens family—of New Jersey threaten, through one of their lawyers, to sue the New York newspaper which was directly responsible for precipitating the indictment of four of its members and the trial of three of them for murder. WASHINGTON LETTER

By ROONEY DUTCHER. Washington, Dec. 6.—Among those distinctly not insensible to the Democratic party's screaming need of a Moses to lead it out of the wilderness in 1928 is the Hon. Albert C. Ritchie, governor of the Maryland free state.

All the experts seem to agree that the Democrats' important requisites are: 1—A presidential candidate who can make an agreeable compromise man if the Al Smith and W. G. McAdoo situation arises again at the next national convention, and who will have nothing serious the matter with him which would tend to alienate a decisive number of votes.

2—A fighting, substantial and constructive program which will promise the country something it wants and look appreciably more attractive than the administration now being furnished.

Ritchie and his friends have felt for a long time that they could supply the first of these necessities and now Ritchie himself is stepping up to the plate with his idea of the second.

The governor again is trotting out his favorite issue, which is state's rights.

But the most important feature of the matter is that the rights issue, in the opinion of most of his friends, is closely intertwined with prohibition, and that Ritchie himself is definitely on record, as favoring a change in the Volstead act along with other alterations tending to decentralize American government. Ritchie favors turning almost everything back to the states that the states properly can handle.

Ritchie's most concise presentation to date of the platform on which he would like to run as a presidential candidate was made in his recent speech at Chicago, where he attacked "excessive federalism."

Obviously encouraged by Democratic gains in the congressional elections, he saw reason for hope that "political hypocrisy, cowardice and buncombe" were about to make way for an honest, vigorous and comprehensive Democratic program.

Too much government in business injured business and chilled the free enterprise of men, he held, and government should keep hands off business as long as business kept hands off government.

According to Ritchie more than 40 federal agencies continually are injecting themselves into private business—40 nuisances, according to Ritchie.

Ritchie's prospects at this time seem to depend in large part on whether his party will accept a "wet" candidate, although he officially might be wetter "or dryer" after the party finished making a candidate of him.

The uncertainty as to how the prohibition issue will shape up in 1928 tends to discourage much speculation about either a very "wet" or very "dry" possibility, but, although Ritchie has been discreetly silent, there seems little question that he has been bitten by the presidential "bee."

On the surface, his advantages seem to be that he is "wet," has a good record of service and re-election and is considered "acceptable." His disadvantages are that he is "wet," is a bachelor and comes from a state with a small electoral vote.

TRADE ON NAMES

IS CROOKS' STUNT

Chamber Discloses Parker Fraud—Berlin Lad Is Put Right.

This is the 39th article in a series prepared for The Herald by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

The Automotive Royalties Corporation, Clark W. Parker, President.

Here is another case of trading on a name. More than $100,000 worth of stock in the above concern was sold in this vicinity entirely by using the name The Parker Rust-Roof Process Company.

Every business man, particularly those having the handling of metal products, knows what it means to have them branded as "Parkerized," so it is not surprising that they were easily interested and quickly sold when it was represented to them, that Clark W. Parker was the inventor of an entirely new type of revolving internal combustion automobile engine.

But the thing they did not know was that Parker was not the inventor, nor the owner of the Parker Rust-Roof Company, but that he obtained the formula in England, and was supposed to pay the English inventor royalty rights for the use of the process, nor did they know that the Parker Rust-Roof Company lost $1,500,000 while Parker was president of the concern, and that the banks refused to further finance the organization as long as Clark and his son were connected with it.

The Burns agency summarized the findings of several weeks' investigation in the following paragraph: "AUTOMOTIVE ROYALTIES CORPORATION, 1819 Broadway, New York City."

The Principal of this is Clark W. Parker, who figured prominently in injunction proceedings instituted against him as the result of a promotion some years ago at Fouchesville, N. Y. Dr. Eugene Christian of 171 West 71st Street, New York, who advertises himself as an authority on food, is circulating his mailing list in the interest of Parker and urging all his (Christian) clients to buy stock. When one of our representatives, during the present investigation, met Parker the latter claimed that he had defeated the attorney general's office in the injunction proceedings. The attorney general's office denied this to be a fact, however, stating that the injunction is still in force.

Parker told our man he worked on Henry Ford's first car and was chief engineer for General Motors. He also claimed to have organized the Parker Rust-Roof Company of America which is located in Detroit, Mich. Our Detroit office reports that Parker's name is unknown in the chief engineer's office of General Motors, or at the Ford Company's plant, and inquiry at the Parker Rust-Roof Company of America brought the information that Parker and his son were both identified with that company, but because of financial troubles resulting in the banks refusing further loans so long as the Parkers were connected, both were compelled to leave the company.

The local Chamber has a voluminous report on file. Among the interesting high-lights of this report are the facts that even Dr. Eugene Christian, Parker's most ardent admirer and self-appointed publicity agent, admits that Automotive Royalties is a gamble, and Parker himself, admits that his revolving internal combustion engine was not originally designed for automobile or airplane use, and that he has not yet perfected it.

Notwithstanding the above facts they make use of the well-known and dangerous sales argument based upon the assumption that IF this engine is installed in 20 per cent of the automobiles manufactured in the United States, in next five years that every hundred dollar investment will return $1800 in royalties annually.

Since the last article of this series was written, the Chamber has had a caller, a clean-cut, attractive, honest-looking young lad, named Henry Lawton. Henry was from the Berlin, Connecticut branch of the American Rescue Workers, Inc., and was soliciting contributions for the organization.

He was questioned closely as to what he knew about the organization he represented, particularly as regards the national officers. The result of the inquiries convinced the Chamber that this lad was honest and was in reality, an unconscious dupe, sent out by this organization, which has been the subject of a previous article in this series.

The American Rescue Workers are notorious for the crookedness of their national officers, most of whom are discredited Salvation Army men. Their plan of operation is to represent themselves as doing a work which parallels that of the Salvation Army. As a matter of fact, they do just enough to escape arrest and to prevent Peter Business Burcius in Indianapolis, Philadelphia, Boston, Worcester and other places where they have headquarters, from putting them out of business.

Hard to Convince. Young Lawton was hard to convince because he knew nothing except what he had seen at the Berlin branch, which he claims was honestly administered, but the fact that a large percentage of the branch collections go to support this national officers, nearly all of whom have court records on many serious charges, made it necessary to till the boy that he could not solicit subscriptions in Manchester; that if he persisted, his arrest would be ordered.

The holiday season is a "time" when calls for charity and subscriptions of all kinds are being made. Manchester people are urged to think twice before giving to anyone whom they do not know, but in case of doubt call the Chamber of Commerce, as they may thereby save themselves from being swindled and incidentally, give the Chamber an opportunity to save others from being victimized.

Old Master's

The splendor falls on castle walls
And snowy summits old in story;
The long light shakes across the lakes,
And the wild cataract leaps in glory.
Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying,
Blow, bugle, answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.
O hark, O hear! How thin and clear,
And thinner, clearer, farther going!
O sweet and far from cliff and scar
The horns of England faintly blowing!
Blow, let us hear the purple glens replying;
Blow, bugle, answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.
O love, they died in yon rich sky,
They faint on hill or field or river;
Our echoes roll from soul to soul,
And grow forever and forever.
Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying,
And answer, echoes, answer, dying, dying, dying.

trees, is often mistaken for a small woodpecker, but he has so many characteristics of his own that this is undeserved. With his black crown and bluish black he is unlike any woodpecker, and he well deserves that all should know him for what he is.

All our friends among the birds have their definite lines of work. The woodpecker digs out and devours those strong-jawed larvae which bore their way into the tissues of the trees.

The nuthatch, however, though he sometimes detects and removes these pests, joins with the chickadees and the creepers in specializing on insects which hide away in crannies of the bark.

He is particularly adept in traversing his field upside-down, and by this power puts one over on all his bark-hunting friends. Another common habit of the nuthatch is to take an acorn and wedge it into a cleft of bark so it will not roll, and hammer it with his strong beak until he has broken the shell. He is fond both of the kernel and of any insects living within. Some think that this nut-hacking habit has given the bird his common name as he creeps about over the bark of the trees, up or down or sideways, he repeats his cheery nasal note, "Yank, yank, yank."

This announces him, for it is unlike the note of any other of our birds. A piece of suet tied to the trunk of a small tree will encourage Mr. and Mrs. Nuthatch to remain all winter on our home grounds.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers. Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil. No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action. If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime. Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Roger Williams (10)

In the spring of 1643 Massachusetts, Plymouth, Connecticut and New Haven formed the United Colonies of New England. Several settlers at Pawtuxet, near Providence, placed themselves under Massachusetts' protection. Williams, fearing encroachment on Providence, set out to England to obtain a charter for his people's territory.

COUNTERPLOT PUTS HAYWOOD-I. W. W. AGITATORS IN JAIL

This is the second of two articles telling the strange, hitherto secret World War story of "Captain X" and his counterplotting, as a U. S. Steel Corporation employe, against alleged anti-war intrigue of the I. W. W.

By HAROLD M. SIMS

Portland, Ore., Dec. 6.—Charles G. Baksey, "Captain X", ostensible right hand man and personal friend of "Big Bill" Haywood, I. W. W. leader, but actually a secret operative of the U. S. Steel Corporation, found himself firmly on the "inside" of the radical organization a few months after he had set out on his strange assignment, in 1917.

The last doubts Haywood might have had of him were swept away when Baksey, known to the I. W. W. as "Charles G. Albis", got Haywood to officiate at a fake marriage in which Mrs. Baksey posed as the daughter of a rich Oklahoma oil man.

"Baksey" or Albis, to use his alias, thereafter became Haywood's personal bodyguard. Events were moving rapidly. The I. W. W. had plans laid for a general strike.

"Wait," Albis pleaded. "Wait until the government has sent more men to France. Then we can turn the country upside-down over night and grab the government."

Haywood was unconvinced. So Albis gave him a new argument. "Don't start anything now," he said. "Our organization is full of government spies. We'll all get pinched before we can make a move."

This impressed Haywood. Albis urged that he could rid the I. W. W. of spies. Haywood agreed and it was arranged that Albis buy a house in Duluth, Ill. with I. W. W. workers, start cleaning out the organization.

Albis did. Haywood thought the "oil king's" daughter furnished the money for the house; actually it came from the U. S. Steel Corporation.

Not long after he went to Duluth Albis had enough documentary evidence against Haywood to warrant his arrest. He gave this to federal agents and Haywood was seized. But the other I. W. W. leaders never dreamed that Albis was the "Captain X" whose depositions were being used against Haywood. Albis, in turn, told them that Haywood's arrest only proved his contention that the organization was infested with spies.

Haywood's successor gave Albis sweeping authority to investigate. He gave him a signed passport calling on all I. W. W. locals to "take him into full confidence" on any matter Albis wished.

Albis then launched his counterplot. He spread suspicion and fear throughout the organization. No man knew whether his comrade might not be a government agent. Trusted men were ousted, the finely-laid plans were disrupted.

The Duluth Raid

Albis became chairman of the First Soviet Council at Duluth. All the while that he was gathering evidence, and doing his utmost to bring the I. W. W. plans to naught, he ostentatiously was the I. W. W.'s most active leader in that part of the country. He paid for this reputation, a little later.

The Minnesota militia raided the I. W. W. hall at Duluth. In the furore that accompanied the raid, militiamen pinched on Albis as "the worst of the bunch" and gave him a punching that sent him to a hospital for two weeks. But he didn't care. He had his evidence, and he gave the signal.

Leaders were arrested by scores. The organization was crippled. Whatever chance they had of pulling a general strike vanished overnight.

The Finale

It is hard to say how Haywood and scores of others were prosecuted and convicted; how most of his associates went to prison, but Haywood, upon his release on bond, fled to Russia.

After the war, Baksey went to Washington for special secret service work. There he exposed a big narcotic ring by "getting on the inside."

For the last two years, railways of America have employed him to run down ticket frauds.

But none of his peace-time work will ever compare, for thrills and excitement, to the job he did during the war.

START CHURCH BAZAAR WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Committees in Charge of "Festival of Months" Report Everything in Readiness.

The various organizations of the South Manchester Methodist Episcopal church are now enthusiastically completing their plans for the "Festival of Months" bazaar which is to open at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the church.

Each booth will represent a month of the year, and will be decorated according to the outstanding thought of that month. With a great array of colors, the banquet hall of the church will present the many tides, foods and fancies to delight the eye of the purchaser. The general chairman, Mrs. Claude Truax, promises one of the most attractive Christmas sales, and is working now with the representatives of each church organization to bring this about. During the sale, a cafeteria supper will be served at 5 o'clock, with Mrs. Mary Benson in charge.

A very fine menu has been planned, and the ladies are ready to meet any and every need. The supper committee is as follows: Mrs. Mary Benson, Mrs. A. McCann, Mrs. Robert Keeney, Mrs. Bronson, Mrs. Margaret Brown, Mrs. Emma Dowd, Mrs. Beers, Mrs. Ross Lewis, Mrs. Dayton Driggs, Mrs. Thomas Vennard, Mrs. Hamilton Metcalf, Miss Flora Stanley, Miss Alice Benson, Miss Nabel Trotter and Mrs. David Harrison.

TOWN PLAYERS SEND OUT 500 INVITATIONS

Letters were sent out to 500 people in Manchester Saturday inviting them to become associate members of the Town Players, the Little Theater movement of this town. The invitations were sent out by Mrs. Charles Felber, chairman of the extension committee and are a part of the campaign authorized at the last meeting of the organization.

The Town Players, organized by Miss Marjorie C. Geary of the Rec in October, 1925, have an active roll of about 70 members, but the organization is now working for associate members, people who will give their moral and financial support to the movement.

Since their formation, the players have given six one-act sketches and a three-act play, "His Husband's Wife," for the benefit of the Educational Milk fund. They will present "Dulcy," another three-act affair, for the milk fund on Thursday evening at the Circle Theater. Future presentations include a Christmas pageant scheduled for December 22 and a one-act play to be given for the Girl Scouts in January.

In addition to the associate members, the club is always open to active members who wish to act, learn stage technique, assist in staging plays, makeup and all the branches of theatrical work.

The present officers of the club are as follows: president, Leonard Johnson; vice-president, Miss Florence Kelley; treasurer, Crombie Donaldson; secretary, Albert Addy.

Miss Helen Bodreant's specialty tonight at the School street Rec will be Hot Tamales, 10c. Cafeteria privileges open to Rec members and all others who wish.—Adv.

COVENTRY

DEATH OF A. H. POMEROY

A. H. Pomeroi passed away at the Manchester Memorial hospital Sunday about 2 a. m. Mr. Pomeroi has been in poor health for the past four years, although able to be around most of the time until his death. He was taken to the hospital Saturday evening, operated upon about 10 p. m. and never regained consciousness.

The deceased was born in Coventry March 29, 1845 and with the exception of a very few years' has always lived in Coventry, having spent the last 60 years of his life at his recent home. Mr. Pomeroi was a great worker for the Democratic party and for many years was registrar of voters. He also was a member of Urile Lodge of Merrow.

He is survived by one son, H. B. Pomeroi; and a grandson, Walter B. and two sisters, Mrs. Ellen Day and Mrs. Fanny Curtis, both of Hartford.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at 1 p. m. from his late home, Rev. J. N. Atwood officiating. Burial will be in the Center cemetery.

COMMUNITY CLUB EXTENDS THANKS

The executive committee of the Manchester Community club financial campaign desires to take this occasion to express its appreciation for the splendid co-operation which made possible the remarkable success of the campaign just closed.

This co-operation was given principally by the following:

First—The financial contributors.

Second—The Manchester Herald.

Third—Various fraternal, social, business and church organizations.

The men and women who constituted the teams were unusually efficient and diligent in the performance of their responsibilities—often very arduous. They gave their time gratuitously for love of the work. It would be impossible, in many cases to secure the same quality of talent or devotion for a pecuniary consideration. These volunteer services are easily worth many thousands of dollars annually to the community, and are producing inestimable results in healthier, happier, more purposeful children and adults, and besides improving the moral tone of the town.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

COURT OF HONOR

The next session of the Court of Honor of Manchester Scouts will be held at the School Street Recreation Center on Monday, December 20, at 7:30 p. m. All scouts wishing to qualify before the court should have their applications properly signed in the hands of Commissioner Irvine on or before Thursday, December 9.

There should be a number of scouts ready to pass their first class tests and every scout master is urged to have their scouts ready to this court.

Watch the Boy Scout news column in the Herald for further information.

MANCHESTER AND JONES HIT "30 BELOW ZERO"

Buck Jones Latest Feature Makes Hit With Big Crowd At Circle Last Night.

Buck Jones' "30 Below Zero" had nothing on last night's weather, but the weather in turn had nothing on the big crowd of people that plowed through the snow in order to see Buck Jones in his latest, last night at the Circle theater. They were well repaid for their efforts, as anyone of them will testify.

Equipped with a gripping story and surrounded by an excellent cast, Buck Jones stars in "30 Below Zero," Fox Films version of John Stone's dramatic story of the north woods.

The cast includes Eva Novak, Paul Panzer, Harry Woods, Frank Butler, Henry Murdock, Vincent Howard and others.

"30 Below Zero" will be shown at the Circle for the last times tonight. You are bound to like him in this "different" picture.

Another fine picture will be on the bills at the Circle Tuesday and Wednesday "Love's Blindness" an Elliot Glyn story featuring Pauline Starke and Antonio Moreno. And—well, you know what that means.

The Elliot Glyn touch which changed Lew Cody from a villain into a romantic leading man established John Gilbert as the great lover of the screen and made Allen Pringle, has now Anglicized Antonio Moreno. In "Love's Blindness," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production of Elliot Glyn's novel Moreno is a thorough Englishman, even down to his name, which becomes Hubert Culverdale, Pauline Starke has the leading female role.

On Thursday evening of this week, "Dulcy," a comedy in three acts, will be presented by the Town Players. The cast will be as follows: Dulcy, Ruth Smith; Tom Sterratt, Harry Bellamy; Gordon Smith, Albert Pearson; Henry Harold Maher; William Parker, Elmer Johnson; C. Roger Forbes, Albert Addy; Mrs. Forbes, Eva McComb; Angela Forbes, Edyth Schultz; Vincent Leach, Leonard Johnson; Schyler Van Dyke, Raymond Tilden; and Blair Patterson, Crombie Donaldson. General admission for this performance will be fifty cents. Reserved seats will be seventy-five cents.

OF AUTO ACCIDENT

Slippery roads are said to have been responsible for an accident on Hartford Road on Saturday night involving a Chevrolet touring car and a Ford. One of the occupants of the Ford was cut about the head but his injuries are not serious.

Herbert Crawford, driver of the Ford, was going east on Hartford road and had come to a point opposite the Robert Cheney residence. He was traveling on the left side of the road and the other car, driven by Alfred Schiebel, was coming in the opposite direction.

Crawford tried to bring his car to the right-hand side of the road but the slippery road made his wheels skid. Schiebel, evidently thinking that Crawford was going to turn into a nearby driveway, kept on going and the crash occurred.

The Chevrolet suffered a bent front axle, a broken wheel, a crushed radiator and fender. Damages to the Ford included a crushed top, a bent running board and the body sprung. John Crawford, father of the driver of the Ford, was cut on the ear but did not require medical attention.

Officer Winfield Martin investigated and both drivers agreed to settle out of court.

Leg Broken—Taken to Hospital—Dewey Is Held Blameless.

Maasle Hunt of Andover suffered a broken leg when he was struck by an automobile driven by Benjamin Musinski of 35 Squire street, Hartford, near Hollister street Saturday evening. Hunt was hit while he was fixing a chain on his left rear wheel.

According to Musinski's story, he was traveling north on Main street and saw the Hunt car parked near the curb at Hollister street. He turned out to the left to pass and struck Hunt, who was bending down near his rear wheel. He claims he did not see Hunt until after he had hit him.

Musinski picked the injured man up but the latter said he was not hurt and did not want to go to a doctor. He was taken to the Memorial hospital, however, where it was found that his left leg was broken above the knee.

He told Musinski that he would make no trouble for him as a result of the accident.

Sergeant John Crockett investigated but made no arrests.

"IN THE NAVY NOW"
SCORES A BIG HIT

Extremely Funny Gob Comedy
With Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton Goes Over
Big.

Without any doubt "We're In the Navy Now," the Paramount picture starring Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, which opened its local engagement last night at the State theater, is the funniest and best comedy seen in Manchester this year. To say that it is the best comedy ever filmed might be saying too much—but then, it's almost impossible to say too much in favor of this picture. Anyone of the huge audience that witnessed it last night will bear out these statements. It's just one grand roar from screening to fadeout.

Life is just one long battle for Wallace Beery. Hardly has the smoke of one fight cleared away before he finds himself submerged in the maelstrom of another! Beery had scarcely sauntered off the "Old Ironsides" set when he discovered it necessary to stage a prize fight in "We're in the Navy Now." As Knockout Hansen, Wallace divides his fighting prowess between the prize ring and deck of an army transport.

Whatever you do, don't fail to see this picture. It will be just the kind of tonic you need to drive all the grumbles out of your system! "We're In the Navy Now" will be shown at the State twice tonight, and tomorrow afternoon and twice tomorrow evening.

Also quite worthy of mention in connection with this picture, is the excellent presentation given by the State theater orchestra. A theater orchestra is usually taken as a matter of course, but after last night's showing many people were heard to comment on the sure fire, snappy work of the State's orchestra. It certainly can put across the music.

An innovation! Another innovation at the State theater! On New Year's Eve there will be a midnight show at the State. This will be the first of its kind in town. All seats will be reserved, and tickets will go on sale in a few days. Watch for an announcement.

THRILLING SOUTH SEA
PICTURE AT RIALTO

There is a fascination about life in the South Seas which grips most of us with its spell and Norman Dawn has taken full advantage of this fact in "Typhoon Love" which is being offered at the Rialto theater on a double feature program which will be shown tomorrow and Wednesday. The story is replete with thrills and crises, have been unanimous in declaring it one of the most realistic pictures of this type. The locale calls for tropical herbage and rather than build gigantic sets, everyone's war-bag was packed and a trip was made to a beautiful South Sea Isle to shoot the picture, so the scenery is entirely authentic. The climax shows a real typhoon and the havoc it wreaks with everything that stands in its way. Several of the cameramen had close calls while filming this hurricane but after reviewing the picture they agreed that the result was well worth the risk taken. Ruth Clifford, T. Roy Barnes and Mitchell Lewis are starred in "Typhoon Love." The other feature being shown on these two days is "Among Those Present," another Harold Lloyd masquerade as an English nobleman in this hilarious comedy and he never showed to better advantage. His antics, are more than funny, as the role gives him a chance to literally "spread himself" and he has never been noted for his ability to pass up an opportunity to bring a howl of mirth from the spectators. Admirers of Harold Lloyd and his brand of humor are urged to see "Among Those Present," it's a sure blue killer. Another shorter comedy with Larry Seamon interpreting his stellar role as well as news events, appear on the same program. The two feature pictures being shown for the last times today are "Two Shall Be Born," an adaptation from the famous novel of the same name and "Bonanza Buckaroo" a fast moving western drama starring Buffalo Bill, Jr. In "Two Shall Be Born" an exceptionally strong cast with Jane Novak and Kenneth Harlan heading it, is employed. Another five tube radio set will be given away next Friday evening. Coupons may be secured now.

HIGHLAND PARK

The Christmas sale and entertainment given by the Ladies Sewing Circle, attracted a large number of people to the Community clubhouse Saturday evening. The different booths for the sale of gift articles or refreshments were well patronized. Tickets were sold for a bed quilt made by the ladies, a home made rug, a doll dressed as a bride, a bed and boudoir lamp set and a fruit cake. The winner of the latter was not present at the drawing and may have the cake by calling telephone 1608. The winning number was 177.

A musical program was given consisting of piano solos by Miss Helen Gordon, a violin solo by Leo Weir, vocal solos by Mrs. Mabel Barrett Robbins accompanied on the piano by Miss Belle Crosby.

The regular Saturday evening modern and old-fashioned dance followed.

Town's '26 Grid Story Remains An Unfinished Novel

Situation Turned Out Just As Was Predicted

Teams Wasted Time Arguing and Decided to Play Day Before Winter Arrived; Lost Money as Consequence; Cloverleaves Deserve Credit, Were Willing to Play But Cabs Quit; Manager Angello Resigns.

BY THE SPORTS EDITOR

Like Joseph Conrad's famous unfinished novel, "Suspense," so seems Manchester's 1926 football edition destined to end. There will be no prizes offered for the best imagination as to how the author intended to culminate his narrative. Only a miracle can now remove this blanket of snow from the gridiron at Hickey's Grove and allow the Cloverleaves and Cabs to play next Sunday. They have picked the colors for their own funeral, so to speak, let the cortege move on.

Some weeks ago, when the writer went on record as saying that there was an exceedingly strong possibility that for the first time in the history of the town, the north and south would be unable to agree on terms before winter arrived at all the wise ones laughed. They termed it nothing but a lot of bunk or cheap publicity. Little stock was taken in the startling information. However, maybe today some of these same hombies may look back and admit that the prophecy was much nearer 100 per cent than the hooch sold these days.

Bye, Bye Football
Yesterday came and went but it failed to relieve the high-keyed tension at both ends of the town. As a matter of fact, it made conditions worse, yes, far worse, for now there is little likelihood the Cloverleaves and Cabs will lock horns on the gridiron this season. The cold weather which accompanied the driving snowstorm even failed to cool the temper of the fans over north who branded the Cabs as "afraid to play."

Cubs Cancel Game
The game which was cancelled by the Cabs about noon on the grounds they could not get all their team together under existing weather conditions. The Cloverleaves were ready to play. Their players were in uniform and Manager Griffin insisted there be no cancellation, it having been agreed to play rain or shine. Manager Angello of the Cabs, however, was unable to gather his team together and was forced to call off the game. He later resigned.

Financial Deficit
The late cancellation, while generally expected by the fans because of the severity and duration of the storm which made playing conditions terrible, resulted in a financial deficit which was shared equally by both clubs. The Massachusetts officials arrived per schedule at 1:30 and were paid $40, twenty dollars being deducted at their own request because of no game. The two teams suffered a total loss of over $50.

Officials Came
Had they played, there would not have been as much of a loss because there were over one hundred faithful fans who braved the elements to snow-shoe their way to Hickey's Grove. It did not start to snow until nearly 10:30 in the morning, this was a half an hour after the officials had left Amherst. Therefore it was too late to stop them. Had a forfeit been posted by each team, a cancellation by one without the other's consent would have been impossible.

Credit to Cloverleaves
There is no denial of the fact that yesterday was no day for a football game. It was better suited for a snow-ball fight. But it must be admitted the Cloverleaves are in the game for glory first, and money second. Otherwise they would have been the ones to cancel the game instead of the Cabs. But as matters now stand, chances appear very slim of the Cloverleaves and Cabs meeting next Sunday. It is understood the Cloverleaves will not book another game with the Cabs unless the south and eleven posts a forfeit of at least $100 to defray expenses for the game itself and for yesterday's. The Bay State officials have to leave Amherst at 10 o'clock therefore a clause would have to be included in the contract that the game not be cancelled after 9:30 in event of bad weather.

Their Own Fault
However, the situation simmers down to just this:
Had the two teams cut out their silly wrangling and played the game a week or two ago a common sense called for yesterday's disappointment would have been avoided. The logical time for the game was Thanksgiving Day and the two Sundays bounding it. However, neither eleven wanted to play November 21. The Cabs refused the holiday and the Cloverleaves November 28.

As a consequence the situation has turned out just as we predicted.

CARD OF THANKS

The Cloverleaves football team wishes to thank all persons who braved the elements to come to Hickey's Grove yesterday. The game was cancelled by the Cabs much against our disapproval.
MGR. WILLIAM GRIFFIN.

INDIANS SEEKING A NEW MANAGER

Our Own Billy Evans Is Among Those Suggested — Peckinpough Likely Choice.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

New York, Dec. 6.—Having assumed, after due deliberation, that the Cleveland Indians do not intend to start the 1927 season without a manager, the keyhole listeners were moved to a burst of generosity today and furnished E. S. Barnard with no less than five. The nominees-by-acclamation are Billy Evans, the umpire; Jack McAllister, scout; Clarence Rowland, another umpire; Roger Peckinpough, of the Senators; and Eddie Collins, former pilot of the White Sox.

The club can't hold out on the situation much longer, with the annual American League meeting being due next week. My guess is that Peck will get the post. There was a talk going the rounds today that McAllister was the favored one. The original boom for Collins apparently having been allowed to die from malnutrition.

One consideration that interfered with the progress of this laudable project was the fact that Collins happens to be the property of the Chicago club. If the Indians really wish to make Collins their manager, they must first take their hands in their hands and see what Comiskey wants. It may be said for the latter that he seldom wants anything more than a vest for a buttonhole.

Evans would find much favor with Cleveland fans but they say that sentiment does not extend to no altogether without influence in Byron Bancroft Johnson, who is in this situation.

In fact, Ban's desires in the matter probably account for the mention of Rowland in connection with the job. Clarence having been one of Ban's boy friends ever since he was wadded off the Chicago bench by another of Comiskey's monarchical edicts. It is hardly likely that Rowland has been given serious consideration.

It may be that one of the players will be taken from the ranks and made manager but the writer has a hunch, supported by a rather authoritative tip, that Barnard is leaning toward Peckinpough for more reasons than one. He is a native of Cleveland, for one thing. He is not without managerial experience, for another, having handled the old Yankees some years back. He is credited with having a superfluous baseball brain, for a third.

No two ways about it, the Indians could look further and do worse.

JUST ONE TOUCHDOWN

Little Hiram College scored but one touchdown all season. It was made against Otterbein. Not a game did Hiram win, although a couple were close battles.

GET SAME NUMBER

Babe Ruth and Harry Hellmann each pooled out the same number of safeties in the 1926 chase—184. Hellmann, however, was at bat seven times more than Ruth, though playing in 11 less games.

BALL EXONERATES MANCHESTER FOR BLAME IN BREAK

M. A. C. Official Says Town Had Nothing to Do With Athletic Break With C. H. C.

In the opinion of "Red" Ball, assistant athletic director at Massachusetts Agricultural College, Manchester had nothing directly to do with the break in athletic relations between Connecticut Aggies and their arch Bay State rivals. When questioned about the matter here yesterday, Ball said the break was caused by Connecticut Aggies themselves and said Manchester was blameless. He claimed the reason was because the Nutmeg college was unwilling to play basketball in Massachusetts. Last season, the two colleges met at the Army here as a neutral floor. The team from Storrs won and Ball said the Connecticut Aggies' cheering section was unsportsmanlike but added Manchester fans treated them cordially.

REC FIVE WINS OPENING GAME

Ekes Out 34 to 32 Winner Over Portland Independents Before Slim Crowd; Quish Stars.

Director E. H. Chaney's newly organized Rec basketball five scored an impressive victory over the Portland Independents Saturday night before a slim crowd at the school street Rec. The game was one of the most thrilling of the season here, Manchester ekeing out a 34 to 32 winner.

Portland proved to be a fast team. The visitors were leading at intermission time by three points, 18 to 15. In the second half, Manchester spurred into the lead and held it until the final whistle. The brilliant work of Quish and Welman stood out foremost. The former was especially invincible as his opponent's score will attest.

SEVEN GET IN CENTURY CLASS AS RUN-MAKERS

There were just seven players in the American League that scored at 100 or more runs during the 1926 campaign.

Three were members of the Yankees. They were Ruth, Gehrig and Combs. The others were Mostil, White Sox; Goslin, Nationals; McManus; Browns; and Spurgeon, Indians.

Ruth led the parade, as he has done on several other occasions. The Bamb scored 139 times. His teammate, Lou Gehrig, was next with 135. Mostil ranked third with 120. Then came Combs, 113; Goslin, 105; McManus, 102, and Spurgeon, 101.

Divling, won by McKay, Manchester; second, Smith Wethersfield. Point Summary
Kensington, 42; Manchester, 25; Enfield 20.
All three of the local boys, Warnock, McKay and Markley, will enter state Y meets in Torrington and New Haven next Saturday and a week from that date. Winners and runners up in all county events are eligible to enter the state meet. Warnock will enter because of his connection with the Hartford Y.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

To the home of PROF and MOLIE ELWELL in Camdensville, Ind., one night in October, 1888, comes MARTHA DALTON, a nurse, bearing a woman who had been traveling. Elwell is an artist. He has a son, JIM, aged 5. Late that night twin girls are born to the woman, who dies without revealing her identity. Her attire indicates she is a person of wealth and refinement. The Elwells adopt the girls. The story then moves forward 18 years. The twins, now growing to beautiful womanhood, have been named MARGARET and ELIZABETH and nicknamed RUSTY and BETTY.

He held her close until her sob-shaken body was still.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER VII

IT was early in June when the call was issued to Camdensville's enlisted men.

During the days that followed time didn't just jog along by any means. It flew by with a speed that fairly took the breath and gripped the hearts of the Elwell family.

And on the twins fell a sort of tragic calm, as if they had just awakened to the tragedy at hand and were resolved to bear it like the Spartan maidens of old.

The next to the last evening before Jim was to go away found him and Rusty and Betty in the Elwell parlor. Jim was stretched out in his customary pose on the sofa. But Rusty and Betty, both dressed alike in lavender-colored frocks, occupied a big leather chair, Betty half hidden in its depths and Rusty sitting on its cushioned arm.

It was reminiscent of that other evening in June, just a short year ago, when Jim had come in with the bestfaced dressing on his eye and had demanded music to ease his sufferings.

This was the setting tonight when Prof and Mollie Elwell entered the room as the darkening shadows were falling. But gone was all the happy, joyous spirit of that other June evening. The hearts that then beat in the peaceful breasts of that little assemblage now were gripped with foreboding. In truth, from appearances, it might have been the night after a funeral in the house.

It was Rusty who broke the pall of silence with a low-spoken request. "Oh, sister," she began, with a little catch in her voice that was half a sob, "get your harp, will you, dear, and sing 'When Our Tongues and Other Hearts'?" My heart is going to break anyhow, and it might as well break tonight!

Ordinarily optimistic people, it has been said, can on occasion get a sort of morbid enjoyment out of the most dolorous prospect. Perhaps Rusty was of that nature. And that, perhaps, was the reason why Prof Elwell brought Betty's harp from its place in the corner and stood it up in front of her. Probably, like Rusty, he felt that they might as well get the agony over with.

Mollie Elwell, in a darkened corner of the room, was silent, and Jim on his couch was in an agony of spirit. Elizabeth Elwell began to play. Softly, like the breathing tones of fairy music, the low notes of the little prettude to the old song fell on their ears. Then:

"When other tongues and other hearts Their tales of love shall tell, In language whose excess imparts The power they feel so well; There may, perhaps, in such a scene, Some recollection be Of days that have as happy been, Then you'll remember me, you'll remember, remember me."

A sweet contralto voice died away in a low cadence of drifting melody. Silence fell on the little group. . . . Then suddenly from one of the shadowy forms in lavender came a stifled, tearing sob.

Jim Elwell arose from the sofa and left the room. He walked blindly, feeling his way along out through the kitchen. At the door he paused and lifted his eyes toward the sky. "God," he said softly, and then he walked to the woodshed, where he dropped down in a chair in a dark corner and cupped his chin in his hands.

He sat there for some minutes, staring at the shadowed floor. Then the sound of a footstep fell on his ear. It failed to stir him at first, but another sound brought him to his feet. He looked up just in time to catch a fleeting glimpse of a lavender-colored dress where the moonbeams touched it as it crossed the yard. A moment passed, in which he stood thinking soberly; then he stepped across to the doorway.

From under the trees in the back yard came the sound of sobbing. Jim Elwell slipped quietly out and across the lawn, pausing under the shade of the maples.

Why, he thought rebelliously, did this have to happen? Why couldn't he, like his friend, Dick Canfield, be alone with no one to care too much if he never came back? Why? The form of a girl became visible to his eye. Her head was buried in the hollow of her arms as they rested against the tree trunk. He was half crying as he moved softly up behind her and placed his hands on her shoulders.

Then she turned around, but her face was hidden from the moon by the shadow of the great tree. "Don't cry, little pal," he said to her, his own voice husky; "I'll probably come out all right in the wash, you know."

No words came from her for a short space, as she stood there leaning against him, her body shaking violently. Then, "Oh, Jim," came the startling response, the words broken by short, gasping sobs, "don't call me just—just a little—little pal—tonight! Call me—call me your—oh, Jim, you're going—going away—to the war! I'll never see—see you again—I know! You'll—oh, kidding me, won't you Jim? Not as you've—you've always k-kissed me before—but—oh, Jim!"

Tenderly he took the shaking form in his arms and drew it close. He bent his head and his lips touched hers. But the quick, passionate clinging of those lips of hers was something far different from anything Jim Elwell had ever known before. The blood leaped to his heart and then went pounding through his arteries in a hot, fierce drive.

He felt the young breast held close to his own life and fall in throbs of short, quick breath. After a minute he raised his head and drew her out from the shadow of the tree where he could see into her upturned face.

The big full moon shining down through the leaves reflected its silvery splendor in the dark eyes looking up into his and he saw there the light "me'er seen on land or sea." He read there the old, old story of the things that are—the revelation of life, of nature itself. In their humid depths he saw revealed the great underlying forces, the immortal story of the Universe. Jim Elwell was awake at last. He loved and was loved. With a fervent exclamation, he kissed her again and again.

"Dear," he said, "and I was so blind." Her arms tightened around his neck. "I love you, Jim. I can't bear to see you go away to war. It will kill me."

He tried to comfort her, tried to tell her that he was coming back safe and sound. "With America in the war, dear, it can't last long. Why—" he laughed bravely—"those fellows will be ready to quit the minute we land in France. You know that, honey. Don't worry, Jim doesn't want you to. It would make him feel badly if he thought you were worrying about him. Be brave, sweetheart."

He held her close until her sob-shaken body was still. Thirty minutes later she left him to go into the house. But before she went she had confided in him another secret and given to him the promise he had exacted.

"Yes, Jim," was the answer she made to his question, "promise. Not until you come back shall anyone except sister learn from me our secret. And if—" her arms tightened around his neck. . . . she was still for a moment. . . . and then she was foaming within me. I would go forth to the best mart and do my Christmas shopping, have all the white tissue paper and red ribbon on the packages by Thanksgiving eve, and look piously and self-complacently upon a struggling shopping world some days hence.

Music Hath Charms. The salesgirl unfolded further glories of her realm. It seemed that if you didn't care for the tuneful powder jar, there were musical jugs to sit by the bedside with the night drink, and charm the wakeful one with tunes when the stop-sical tea pot and musical bread traps, musical wash cloths and bath towels, hae no a doot.

I Miss My Swiss. I was reminded of a day in Lucerne, Switzerland, last summer, when we invaded a woodcarver's shop to seek some of those little carved red-nosed gnomes and the old whistled man of the Alps who make their living by their whittling to take down to the valley below. Wearing I sank into a carved chair by the door while my friend looked at carvings. Music swelled and welled about me—dainty, twinkling tunes like those that haunt the pages of Andersen's or Grimm's fairy tales. Over and over again they were played. I looked about for the music box and it was not until my friend approached, package in hand, and I arose, that the music stopped and the smiling proprietor told me I had been sitting on a musical chair which could play twelve hours straight if the sites did not remove himself or herself. Doo-Dads and Tahingamajigs. There is much food for thought in the Christmas display this year. Perhaps there has been for the past few years, but it seems to me that never before has the commercial world gone on quite such a ramp as with its array of meaningless, silly, gaw-gaws and doo-dads. Now this commercial world is canny. The gaw-gaws would not be there if there were no market for them. It means that women will buy. Now the question arises, what sort of woman exists today who must spend her time and energy in buying up by any stretch of the imagination the called "white hincynths for the soul," unless her soul be a bawdy thing, indeed!

Anyway, We Buy Them. And are we women who think that we must have, because they are set before us, powder jars that play tunes and perfume atomizers for the handbag and a million other bangles of an over-complex age, any happier, really, than our mother who would no more have spent money for a hand-painted musical powder jar than for the crown jewels of the Russian Royal Family? Woman's Inhumanity to Woman. We are grossly unfair to other working women. We may be in several respects. But our unfairness takes one big form in which we all sin. We engage the help of a salesgirl, and look and look and look at this hat and that hat, or this coat and that coat, and then we coo sweetly that "Well, it's really the prettiest I have seen yet, but I'm not quite ready to buy until I look a little more. Now what is your number, please?"

Then Search the Other Stores. And the girl who has opened every hat drawer in the establishment, says "Thank you. I'll give you my card," and we go away to comb the other stores of the town as thoroughly. Sometimes we come back to the first store. We're in a hurry. We've forgotten all about that girl who so painstakingly showed us the stock a day or so ago. We breathe a sigh of relief when you clerk comes up and says, "something I can show you?" we say, "oh, yes, you had a little hat up here the other day—sort of mauve and purple with a silver rose," and we buy this hat, which was the prize cull of the many hats shown us by the first girl, after half a minute's work on the part of the second girl, and the commission is hers!

"Promising" Prospects. The girls in some stores seem to have a fair little way of setting this matter themselves. The minute the "prospect" says, "Oh, I'm looking for a sweet little hat I saw in here a few days ago," they say, "and do you remember the clerk who helped you?" and then proceed to find said clerk for her. But often there is no clue that we have spent precious minutes in there before. We are either careless, or we don't want to take time to bother, and are only too glad for the tender ministrations of any clerk, to say nothing of seeking a special one. And it's rather stretching a point to expect the girl to ask, "have you been hunting in here before?" We'd repeat it if she did! But there's another phase to this matter which does not reflect on buyers so much as on the salesgirls. After all, this matter of who gets the commission and the general custom of paying commissions for sales instead of a straight salary, or as an addition to a straight salary, is up to the store, not us! And it seems to me it is up to them to so regulate the matter that customers are not embarrassed by wrangling between clerks as to whose "prospect" she is.

Trade Mark Registered. It is almost the invariable trademark of a cheap store when this wrangling does publicly occur. The better stores have strict laws against it. A few days ago I trod the highways and byways looking for a gold lace hat. I almost found it in a certain shop, but was not just sure of the way the maine waded itself heavenward. The clerk showed me how it could be draped downward, even bringing more malice from the trimming department, but I was not quite convinced. I took her card, saying I would look a little more and if I found nothing any more exactly right, come back.

And Walked Out Again. I did go back. My particular girl was out for lunch. My own lunch hours were not too long. I couldn't well wait, so told another clerk what I wanted. The hat was no more than found when the first girl breezed in. She was all coos and sugar to me, but turned on the second girl with rage in her orbs. "This is my customer," she said. "I showed her a dozen hats the other day." "But you didn't ask for her, did you?" said the second. "Well, she is mine!" This from the first. "Well, she is not!" This from the second.

So I just walked out and got my hat somewhere else, I thank you!

USE DRY TOWEL. A dish towel that is dirty or too damp will always make your spoons and glasses dull.

FOR BEST TEA. For the best results, always use a china or earthen teapot, never a tin one.

DON'T NEED FREEZER. If you have no ice cream freezer, you can make ice cream in a tin pail, packed in a wooden one. Whirl the small pail around by its handle, taking off the cover occasionally to scrape down and beat the cream.

Home Page Editorials Our Higher Civilization By Olive Roberts Barton

"Those who profit by his valor pay him with praise." A magazine I had lent to a friend came back with the above quotation underlined. I read it, and again, and a third time. The meaning be-came dawn upon me. The more I thought of it the more I decided that it was about the truest thing I had heard for a long time.

I concerns the person you are trying to please and whose good will you can hope to keep only by doing him eternal favors. A spoiled child grows up into this sort of a person—the older he gets the more he demands service—service that runs the gamut of all favors—concession of opinion, precedence of place, in short he knows not the first principle of group living which has "selfishness" for its pass word.

There is the club woman who is always a source of dissension and trouble unless she is an officer and running things to suit herself—then she can be all amiability and friendliness. If by reason of fair-ness others get their turns, she entertains herself by putting the members continuously on the defensive on every issue that comes up.

There is the college girl who is all smiles and sweetness as long as she is the center of attraction. She ceases to be the friend instantly of anyone who outclasses her, out-dresses her, or gains a coveted place on a team. Men as a rule are better fitted for group living than women, contrary to all the annals of sex. Among lower animals it is the male that is intolerant. The higher we go in civilization the more tolerance we find among men and the less tolerance we find among women—en—for each other.

A woman who can out-dress, out-sing, out-paint, out-travel, or out-do her neighbor in any way whatsoever has a hard time of it often. She is always running up against the person she has to conciliate—the small, spoiled woman who has never grown up, and who will only be her friend if she sidesteps to let her pass.

We might look ourselves over. Do we give people the feeling when they are with us that they must apologize for living? Are we constantly carrying a club and compelling others to placate us?

Jim can't tell his mother which twin it is he loves, and he explains why. Read the next chapter.

Good Nature and Good Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

This conclusion agrees with the opinions of physicians generally, and particularly with the experience of insurance companies, which will not accept for insurance persons who are heavy drinkers. The data of insurance companies, however, represent the answers to questions by men anxious to get insurance, and who know they will not get it if the evidence of heavy drinking is against them.

Drinkers Versus Abstainers. If moderate drinkers and heavy drinkers are pooled together and compared with abstainers as a class, drinkers as a class have higher rates of mortality and lower expectancy of life than abstainers as a class.

Studies made upon animals lead to the view that alcohol has a specific selective action on the germ cells, killing off the weak and defective, and leaving the strong and sound to survive and perpetuate the race. It is not certain, however, that these experiments have any practical human significance.

Prof. Pearl is convinced that alcohol, when abused, leads directly to more or less disastrous consequences, and that some human beings are so constituted that they will abuse it with regularity.

What has become of the old-fashioned juryman who never lost a case?

Good Nature and Good Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Unfortunately, when alcohol becomes the topic for consideration, even the most scientifically-minded person is likely to be influenced by his prejudices. Statistics have been manipulated by the proponents of both teetotalism and the unlimited use of alcoholic beverages to prove either that drinking is beneficial or harmful.

In a recent study, Prof. Raymond Pearl, director of the Institute of Biological Research of Johns Hopkins University, presents a survey of part of the population of Baltimore with relation to its drinking habits and its longevity.

Classifies Drinkers. Drinkers were classified into groups according to the amount of liquor generally taken. Moderate drinking of alcohol beverages did not shorten life, according to the report. On the contrary, moderate, steady drinkers exhibited somewhat lowered rates of mortality and greater expectancy of life than abstainers.

Persons who were heavy drinkers of alcoholic beverages exhibited considerably increased rates of mortality and diminished longevity as compared with abstainers or moderate drinkers.

WORTH-WHILE CAKES. When making cake, it is economy to use only the best materials, strictly fresh eggs, fine granulated sugar, good butter and pastry flour. Otherwise, the result is not worth the effort.

CROUTONS FOR SOUP. To prepare croutons that are so delicious with soup, cut buttered slices of bread into squares half an inch thick. Heat in the oven in a pan, stirring occasionally until they are crisp and golden brown.

ONIONS AND CABBAGE. Green vegetables keep their color better if they are cooked in an uncovered dish. Strongly flavored vegetables such as onions and cabbage are better cooked uncovered, and their odor is less objectionable if allowed to pass off continually in steam.

"So she's a grass widow?" "Yes. Her husband was a vegetarian."

SENSE AND NONSENSE

And now we have the sad case of the boy who spent six months in overcoming halitosis only to discover that he was unpopular anyhow.

One thousand poor people in New York were presented with radios last Christmas—poor people!

When doing your Christmas shopping don't forget the first of the year tax list—beg your pardon, for crossing bridges.

Hurray For the Christmas Time Santa Claus will come this way; Come with gifts for Christmas day Speeding reindeers o'er the snow So merrily on they go:

Santa Claus is surely right For he brings us such delight; Hear him scale the roof so steep, Then down the chimney creep.

Santa Claus you need not fear If his bells you chance to hear; Gifts for all he'll leave behind, Hurrah for the Christmas time.

Chorus: Jingling Christmas bells, Happy the children's band, Shining eyes drooping with flicking tapers, We are off to the slumberland, Christmas time brings good cheer, Waiting a glad surprise, Children's a singing; Their sweet voices singing Hurrah for the Christmas time.

Cabbage is just as bad as it smells, if not a little bit worse.

Samba: "What kind of a watch you got?" "I has a wonder watch." Samba: "Wonder watch! Never heard of that before." Jasbo: "Well, you see it's this way. Every time I look at it I wonder what time it is."

A free and easy man is usually popular. So is a free and easy woman.

Dealer: "That, sir, is a rare old revolver. It was carried by Christopher Columbus." Customer: "What! Why, revolvers were not invented in Columbus' time."

Gentlemen Prefer Blondes, Brunettes, Redheads, Raven heads, Titians, Flaxens, Auburns, Nutbrowns, Peroxides, Hennas, Gentlemen prefer—WOMEN!

It is generally the citizens who have never dabbled in ink who think they know better how to run a newspaper.

Dealer: "I know. That's what makes this one so rare."

It is hardly fair to expect everybody else to be good simply because you are growing old and have lost your kick.

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, but all play and no work makes him a duller.

THE TINYMITES BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE). A merry bunch of Tynmites were surely seeing all the sights. They'd climbed upon the back end of a great big touring car. Said Scouty, "Gee, I'm getting cold. Hang on, you fellows. Don't lose hold. The speed the man is driving at, he must be going far." Along the country road dust flies. It flew up in their little eyes, and made it rather hard for them to really have much fun. And then the auto swerved about and, as it stopped, the man jumped out, and shouted to another man, "I'm glad that trip is done." "Now, all be quiet," Scouty said, "I think the man's gone up ahead." "As soon as it is good and safe we'll hide behind a tree." For quite a while they watched the man and then they all jumped up and ran, and shortly found a hiding place, as safe as it could be. They hoped for thrills, and not in vain, for soon they saw an acro-

Mr. Pickett, who holds a direct agency for these cars has been assured by the New York management that his status will not be affected and that he will continue to represent the Whippet in Manchester territory.

LIGHTS GO OUT HERE

WHEN POLE SNAPS OFF

Manchester was in almost total darkness for twenty minutes about 9 o'clock Saturday night when an electric light pole bearing the main feed wire from Hartford broke off near the Manchester-East Hartford town line. The cause is unknown. The lights went off and then on again two or three times. Then they went out entirely. Superintendent L. H. Heebner dispatched several men to switch the power over onto the old line which follows the railroad tracks. In a short time service was restored.

It was through no fault of the local department that the lights went out as it was not in local territory. However, it was a credit to Superintendent Heebner that service was restored as quickly as it was.
