

COAST GUARDS SAVE 7 BY BREECHES BUOY

Snatch Crew of Wrecked Schooner From Death in Spectacular Wreck on Cape Cod — Benumbed Sailors All Brought Safely to Shore.

Provincetown, Mass., Dec. 7.—Sails ripped to threads by a fierce gale, rudderless and drifting before the howling wind, the three-masted New York-bound lumber-laden schooner W. M. Reinhardt was tossed about a helpless wreck off Cape Race early today.

Seven men aboard, working frantically at the pumps and shooting up rockets of distress, had about given up hope when Coastguardsmen came up, shot a line aboard the schooner and rescued the seamen by means of a breeches buoy.

Surfman John McSaiden, patrolling the beach, saw the schooner first to see the distress flares from the schooner. He lit his own flare, signaling for help to the Coast Guard station.

The Reinhardt was piling up on the shoal off Cape Race, having found it impossible to launch the surfboat. Those on the schooner had taken to the rigging.

The breeches buoy gun was fired and the men on the schooner made fast the rope with the little cannon. One by one the crew of the three-masted schooner were brought ashore on the breeches buoy.

As fast as the seamen were brought to the beach, they were carried to the Coast Guard station. Captain Burnham Tower, of Albert, N. B. was the last man to leave the ship. The others rescued were: John Ruane, Thomas Breen, Albert Danberg, Irving Tower, James McCarthy and Leslie White.

"Wonderful Job"
"Those Coast Guard boys did a wonderful job," said Captain Tower. "While they were taking us off the wreck they were sweeping the ship from stem to stern. Most of us were pretty numb from the exposure and the cold for we had drifted all day yesterday with the rudder useless but were too far off the coast for our distress signals to be seen."
The schooner, bound from Albert, N. B. to New York, probably will be a total loss.

POLICE AGAIN GRIP GERALD CHAPMAN AID

Louis Wolfe, Taken For Handling Mail Robbery Bonds, Arrested in Fur Job.

New York, Dec. 7.—Louis Wolfe, 37, once seized by police in connection with the disposal of part of the loot from Gerald Chapman's $2,000,000 Leonard Street mail holdup, today was arrested charged with disposing of part of the proceeds of a $150,000 fur robbery.

With him the authorities held James Duffey, 28, charged with being an accessory in the disposal of the furs. Half the loot has been recovered. Wolfe several years ago went to Atlanta under a five year sentence but won freedom on appeal. Later he was admitted to the Essex County, N. J., penitentiary in connection with the disposal of $75,000 worth of Liberty bonds in the famous Chapman case.

SMUGGLER LANDS DRY OFFICIALS IN MEXICO

One of Kidnapped Pair Wires That Crew of Arsene J. Is Under Arrest There.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 7.—V. D. Jackson, dry chief for the Gulf zone, today notified the state department of the safe arrival in Puerto, Mex., of the rum runner Arsene J., which broke arrest a week ago and kidnaped the two prohibition officials aboard.

Assistant administrator J. H. Matthews and Coast Guardsman Handley are safe and apparently have been in control of the rummer since she eluded her captors off Southwest Pass. Matthews wired that the schooner was turned over to custom officials in Puerto.

Matthew's cablegram read: "Arrived here Monday at 10 a. m., with Arsene J. and crew. Handley with me. Customs officer has schooner in charge. Crew of schooner under arrest. Cable instructions care Acting American Consul J. Starke."

Jackson said he would ask the advice of the State Department regarding whether the Arsene J. would be brought back to this port.

Japanese Marines Land After Raid on British and Japanese Property—Friendly Chinese Slain.

Shanghai, Dec. 7.—A state of anarchy prevails today in Foochow, with frequent anti-foreign riots and bloodshed, according to messages from there.

Jap Marines Land
Japanese marines have been landed and are protecting the foreign population. American destroyers are enroute to Foochow.

Although the general strike at Hankow is no longer effective, the strike epidemic is spreading to Swatow and other cities.

A message from Hankow said the Cantonese commander, General Chang Kai-Shek is organizing military headquarters in Kiukiang preparatory to offering stiff opposition to the northern troops now advancing up the Yangtze river from Nanking.

CORONER HOLDS OLSON BOY TO BE MURDERER

Inquest Verdict Makes Him Guilty of Death of His Namesake Sweetheart.

Fairfield, Wis., Dec. 7.—The search for Erdman Olson, 17-year-old Gale College student, continued today following the coroner's inquest which named the youth as the slayer of pretty Clara Olson, 22-year-old farm girl, whose body was found in a shallow grave near Rising Sun.

After deliberating only 15 minutes, the jury reported the girl had come to her death "by a violent blow administered by Erdman Olson on the left side of her head, causing fracture of the skull, probably in the early morning of September 10, 1926."

A letter found on the girl's body, alleged to have been written by young Olson, had much weight with the coroner's jury. This letter outlined a plan for the elopement of the youth and the girl.

AMERICAN IN PARIS MERCY MURDERER?

W. H. Payne Kills Wife, Nurse and Self; Mate Had Long Been Invalid.

Paris, Dec. 7.—William H. Payne, an American with a residence on the Champs Elysees, today committed suicide after killing his wife and the nurse in attendance on Mrs. Payne. He used a revolver.

Payne, who was 60 years old, had been resident in Paris for many years. Mrs. Payne has long been an invalid and the police are investigating the "possible theory that the double murder and suicide was another 'mercy murder,'" with the killing of the housekeeper probably unintended.

Police stated that Payne chased the nurse about the house with a revolver and cornered her in the kitchen, shooting her three times in the head. Payne then returned to the salon where his wife sat in an invalid chair and shot her twice in the head. He then went to his room and secured another revolver and shot himself.

POLICEMEN PLAN ANOTHER BENEFIT

Commissioners Vote Approval—Two Promoted—New Supernumeraries.

Approval was given to the Police Mutual Benefit association by the Board of Police Commissioners in meeting last night to conduct another show or concert during the present winter season to aid the funds of the organization. Two previous concerts have made a big hit with Manchester people and have increased the association's treasury considerably. The money is used to pay for accidents or illness incurred by the policemen while on duty.

At the regular meeting of the Police Commissioners held in police headquarters here last night two supernumerary patrolmen were promoted to regular rank. They are David Galligan and Winfield C. Martin.

Two supernumeraries were appointed at a meeting held on February 26, 1926 and Martin became a supernumerary on October 21, 1926. They were commended by the commissioners for their good work.

More for Force
Two supernumeraries were added to the force at the meeting. They are Edwin James Donaldson of 64 Fairfield street, and Joseph A. Prentice of 65 Benton street. Donaldson is 23 years of age, stands six feet two inches and is 130 pounds. He is a high school and business college graduate and has recently been employed by the Amos Adams Company.

Prentice is 23 years of age, stands six feet two inches tall and weighs 130 pounds. He has been employed by J. H. Hewitt, local milk dealer. There were six applicants before the commission. The other four applications were tabled.

Two patrolmen, Chief Gordon, Captain Schendel and Sergeants Barron and Crockett were present at inspection which preceded the commission's meeting. Two patrolmen were absent with valid excuses. The personal equipment and uniforms of the men were examined and found to be in splendid condition. Each of the commissioners commended the patrolmen for their appearance and care of equipment.

Want Police Surgeon
A communication was received from the Manchester Medical association asking that a local physician be named police surgeon. It was the opinion of the association that one man should be called upon in cases where a physician's word on intoxicated prisoners was necessary and in police accident cases. The matter was referred back to the medical association, asking for a more detailed proposal. The commissioners also asked that a local physician be recommended for the post as well as another to act as his deputy.

A new ruling was passed by the commission which will affect applicants for positions on the force. Every man seeking to join the department must, hereafter, pass a physical examination.

President Dewey and Secretary Murphy signed the contract for the new automatic printer telegraph system which is to be installed in police headquarters. The commission was authorized to purchase the system by the Board of Selectmen.

Two Directors and Secretary Murphy were named as directors of the Police Benefit association to serve with the directors named by the policemen as required by the organization's charter.

It was voted to continue the police school here. Sergeant Barron will be in charge and classes will be held in the former probate room of the old Hall of Records, now the Police Headquarters. Classes will be held one night a week and the first part of the works be given over to mental tests. One member of the police commission will be present at each class and will aid in the instruction.

It was brought out at last night's meeting that traffic control through the employment of school janitors as special constables was very satisfactory. Especially in Buckland the plan has proved successful.

H. S. Traffic
Following a request from high school authorities it was decided to place a patrolman at the high school Main street crossing every school day from 11:30 a. m. until 1 p. m. Between those hours many of the high school students are crossing the thoroughfare and conditions are dangerous. The work will be divided among all members of the police department so that all will share in the extra work this season.

KEEP UP SLUSH FURORE IS PLAN OF DEMOCRATS

Probe of Gould Merely a Part of Scheme to Make "Corruption" an Issue in the 1928 Election.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Threatening to keep the issue of election corruption alive until the 1928 presidential campaign, Democratic leaders of the Senate were prepared today to force immediate action on the Walsh resolution authorizing an investigation of charges that Senator Arthur R. Gould, Republican of Maine, was once involved in a $100,000 bribery case.

The inquiry will not be opposed by Republican leaders, it was learned, as the resolution does not provide for initiating a contest against the Maine senator. It merely called on the Senate elections committee to investigate the charges against Gould and then to recommend appropriate action to the Senate. Republicans control the committee.

Set Program
Administration leaders, however, saw in the move a Democratic program for keeping the issue of election corruption constantly before the people for the next two years. In such a maneuver, the Democrats would debate the Gould case at the present short session and then initiate contests against Senators-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania and Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, as soon as the new Senate convenes in the Seventieth Congress.

The resolution against Gould ordered charges made by a Canadian jurist several years ago that the Maine senator had paid $100,000 to a former premier of New Brunswick in anticipation of future favors for a railroad then represented by the senator. The same charges were aired in Gould's recent campaign but were ignored by the voters of Maine.

Adoption of the resolution was assured when Republican leaders let it be known they would not oppose the effort, however, will be used to prevent initiation of a contest against Gould.

Insurgents Help
The Walsh move, too, found the Republican insurgent bloc ready to vote for a senatorial inquiry.

"As the charges, coming from a foreign jurist, involve our relations toward a friendly nation, I believe there should be an inquiry," said one insurgent leader. "I don't feel, though, that they justify an election contest as the charges had nothing to do with Mr. Gould's election. In any event, the people of Maine passed on the charges and did not feel they were serious enough to prevent his service in the Senate."

Washington, Dec. 7.—Foreign magazines or newspapers carrying liquor advertisements may enter the United States, the Treasury ruled today. Honchoberg is the third bank official in the last few months who admitted huge shortages. The two others are at large.

PAIR IN PARKED CAR FOUND MONOXIDED

Springfield, Dec. 7.—Seated side-by-side in a parked sedan filled with Monoxide gas from a running motor, Thomas E. Girouard, 22, of West Springfield, and Miss Mary Martell, 20, of Chicopee, were found today on Plainfield street in the factory district.

One Dead, One Unconscious
The young man was dead and his companion was taken to Springfield hospital, unconscious and dangerously ill from breathing the gas fumes.

Isolated Road
Girouard and Miss Martell were seen together last evening riding in the young man's sedan. They had entered Plainfield street, which is a road not much used at night, on the Springfield-Chicopee line.

Apparently they had parked the car and left the motor running in order not to allow it to freeze. Today a watchman at the Springfield Provision Company noticed the car and looking inside discovered the plight of the young couple.

At Springfield hospital it was stated that Miss Martell probably would not live.

MEXICAN LABORERS BATTLE CHICAGO COPS

Raid on Railroad Camp Starts — Shooting That Kills Three and Wounds Half Dozen.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—A police officer shot to death in a pitched battle in a railroad labor camp of the Chicago Northwestern near Melrose Park early today. Another police officer and several Mexicans were wounded.

Trouble started when Melrose Park police received word that a woman was being attacked in the labor camp. When officers J. L. Stahl and Charles Kolwitz answered the call, they were fired on by Mexicans.

Stahl fell, mortally wounded. Kolwitz killed two of the laborers before he was wounded. A riot call brought squads, armed with rifles and shotguns, from Chicago and Melrose Park.

A fierce battle raged, the Mexicans barricaded in the box cars in which they were quartered. A tear bomb attack finally brought about their surrender. Half a dozen of the Mexicans suffered flesh wounds.

Nineteen others and one woman were arrested. The men had been drinking freely of "moonshine" all night, a neighbor living near the scene, told police.

NO EXPERIMENTING, WARNS PRESIDENT

Crystalized Gist of Message of Coolidge to Congress Today

"The state of the union is one of general peace and prosperity."
"Economy has surely brought results."
"Nothing is easier than the expenditure of public money . . . but the results of extravagance are ruinous."
"Whenever the state of the treasury will permit, I believe in tax reduction."
"Avoid putting the government in the business of (farm) production, marketing or price-fixing."
"Those who are agitating for reduction of tariff . . . to benefit foreign producers are much more likely to secure that result by continuing the present enormous purchasing power that comes from our prosperity."
"The problem of freight rate reduction would be simplified by consolidation of railroads."
"Our merchants are altogether too indifferent about using American ships."
"The condition of the wage earner has steadily improved. The 12-hour day is almost entirely unknown."
"The country is more free from labor disputes than for years."
"I favor reducing rather than expanding government bureaus which seek to regulate business."
"Lynching should be eradicated by law."
"As a whole our military power is sufficient. The one weak place in the whole line is our still stupendous war debt. Economy is the handmaid of preparedness."
"For years we have besought nations to disarm. We are ready to continue the work of the Washington conference."
"The foreign policy of the government is one of peace. We are strong enough so no one can charge us with weakness if we are slow to anger. Our resources are so large we can afford to be generous."

CAUGHT 'EM ON 3d CROP LOOTING

Twice Was Enough for North Coventry Man to Lose Apples; Three Go to Jail.

Rockville, Dec. 7.—Three "New Britain" men went to tolland jail today to serve sentences of three months each imposed by Judge Newell S. Jennings in superior court after the men had pleaded guilty to breaking and entering Phineas Talcott's apple storehouse in North Coventry. They are Jacob Ahlro, 32; Peter P. Stomock, 21; and Edward S. Gouzeak, 23.

The trial brought out the fact that Mr. Talcott had lost his apple crop in two seasons by theft. He stationed two guards at the storehouse this year, and the guards caught the three New Britain men forcing their way into the building at two o'clock on the morning of October 6. Outside was a car containing several large bags. An automobile truck came up later but when the driver discovered the situation moved onward swiftly.

Harris was charged with obtaining $200 from John Sharr of Plainville.

Harris represented himself as a promoter and leaser of gasoline stations in this vicinity and requested that Sharr deposit the money as security. Sharr was paid his first week's salary by check, which later came back marked "no funds." Harris' arrest followed. It was learned that Harris had served forty-five days in jail for similar operations in Hartford.

AGREE ON PLAN FOR FREEING OF GERMANY

Formula Reached For Abandonment of Military Control Early in Year.

Geneva, Dec. 7.—It was reported today that a formula, for meeting Germany's demand that military control by the allies in Germany be abandoned has been practically decided upon.

The formula, which is being discussed in private conferences, is outlined as follows:
1. The present system of military control in Germany would cease in January.
2. Future control of the Rhinland demilitarized zone would be taken from the League of Nations and placed in the hands of the signatories to the Locarno pacts, which include Germany.
3. Control of armaments in the remainder of Germany would remain in the hands of the League of Nations under approximately the same conditions as outlined in 1924.

Congress Is Urged to Let Well Alone

Coolidge, in Message to Final Session of 69th Admonishes Members Against Extended Legislative Program — Declares Against Putting Government Into Farming Business — No Demand For Military Increase.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The nation is peaceful and prosperous, and what it needs most is not new legislation, nor experimentation with untried theories, but rather "a steady continuation of those which are already being crowned with such abundant success."

This was President Coolidge's reassuring message to the dying session of the Sixty-eighth Congress.

It was a plea to Congress not to rock the boat in the twelve weeks it has to live, but to proceed methodically about the business of making minor adjustments to the governmental machinery here and there. The message was the longest Mr. Coolidge ever has delivered to Congress, despite its outstanding feature. He discussed every phase of governmental activity, and pronounced conditions in the main to be excellent. It was so long he did not attempt to deliver it in person, but left it to reading clerks in both Houses.

His chief observations and recommendations were:
"This is no time to attempt general tax reduction. Through strict economy, the treasury has a surplus of $383,000,000. This should either be returned to taxpayers in the form of a credit on next year's income tax payments, or devoted to reduction of the public debt. It is for Congress to decide."
Prohibition.
Local authorities should lend more assistance to the government in enforcement. People have a right to disagree with the law, but as long as it is here it should be enforced. Congress should enact whatever additional legislation is necessary to correct existing faults in the enforcement machinery.

Foreign Relations.
America is at peace with the world and plans to continue so. "We are strong enough not to be sensitive over treaties; we fear nobody and nobody fears us." America is willing to continue disarmament whenever other nations are willing.

Mr. Coolidge did not mention the Mexican controversy at all.

Agriculture.
Agriculture is slowly recovering from its post-war slump. There are bad spots, but in the main the picture is pleasing. Cotton production should reduce its acreage one-third. The government stands ready to give aid in promoting credit and co-operative effort, "but there are certain pitfalls to be avoided," and "it is necessary to avoid putting the government in the business of production, marketing or price-fixing."

"We are spending many millions each year to increase farm production. We ought now to put more emphasis on farm marketing."
National Defense.
The army and navy are large enough. The best preparedness the nation can secure now is to pay off the last war debt for "a country loaded with debt is a country devoid of its first line of defense."
Tariff.
America has been made prosperous by the present tariff act. Don't tinker with it.

Radio Legislation.
Congress should end the present confusion by giving the Department of Commerce regulatory powers, as proposed in the White Bill. There is no need for a separate bureau to handle the problem, as proposed in the Dill bill.

Economy.
Economy as practiced by the administration has proved the worth of many projects and has broadened requiring large outlays. It would be greatly to the benefit of the country if we avoid all commitments at this except those of pressing nature."
Waterways.
Extension of the Mississippi river system and development of the lower Colorado river are worthy projects and should be given priority.

prompt and favorable action by Congress.

Reclamation.
The government is now engaged in a program that will absorb all its funds for some years, but study of future needs should continue.

Railroads.
Consolidations would promote lower transportation rates, and enabling legislation should be passed.

Merchant Marine.
America's merchants should pay more attention to shipping in American ships. "The great need of our merchant marine is not more ships, but more freight."

Coal.
Congress has been dilatory in not insuring the country against future strikes. The President should be empowered to deal with emergencies, through legislation providing for mediation, distribution and protection from profiteers.

Judiciary.
Congress should raise judicial salaries.

Banking.
The federal reserve system has proved its worth and should be safeguarded. Congress should pass the McFadden branch-banking bill.

The Negro.
Lynching should be eradicated by law.

Veterans.
I do not favor any extension of the pension system at this time.

Alien Property.
Congress should work out a program whereby alien property can be returned, and at the same time protect Americans having claims against Germany.

Federal Regulation.
"I am in favor of reducing, rather than expanding, bureau which seek to regulate and control business activities." Local and state governments should not look to the government to regulate what is really their own problems.

The Philippines.
General Leonard Wood has made a good record as governor-general of the Philippines, but "at an early date our possessions should be taken out from under all military control and administered entirely by the civil side of the government."
"We are attempting to assist these people to self-government and should look upon their wishes with great respect, granting their requests when right, yet maintaining a frank firmness in refusing when they are wrong."

Against Extended Legislation.
The President's opening admonition to Congress was against tampering any extended legislative program. Most of the recommendations have heretofore been made in previous messages.

He made one suggestion that the business of government could be expedited if Congress would appropriate for two years at a time instead of one. "Very much time could thus be saved," he said, and it would result "in decreasing the work of legislation."

American Ideals.
In conclusion, Mr. Coolidge spoke of "American ideals."
"To relieve the land of burdens that came from the war, to release to the individual more of the fruits of his own industry, to increase earning capacity and decrease hours of labor, to enlarge his vision through good roads and better transportation, to place before him the opportunity of education, to inspire him to receive the inspiration of religion, all these are ideals which deliver him from the servitude of the body and exalt him to the service of the soul. Through emancipation from the things of the material, we broaden our vision over the things that are spiritual."

DOHENY'S ILLNESS POSTPONES TRIAL

Co-defendant With Fall Suffering From Carbuncle, Justice Won't Proceed.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial was adjourned for 24 hours this morning when Justice A. A. Hoehling learned that E. L. Doheny, the millionaire oil operator, was confined to his bed following a second operation on the infected arm which he has been carrying in a sling for several days.

Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel, asked the court to proceed with only one defendant, former secretary of the interior, Albert B. Fall, in court. Justice Hoehling, however, in consideration of the various legal points at issue, thought an adjournment over the day would be desirable while he had an opportunity to examine the law as to whether the defendant's presence was mandatory.

Assurances were given the jury that Doheny was suffering from a carbuncle which is keeping his temperature slightly above 100. In view of his 70 years, his physician, Dr. Gerry Morgan, thought it best to keep him in bed.

Community Club Extends Thanks

The executive committee of the Manchester Community Club financial campaign desires to take this occasion to express its appreciation for the splendid co-operation which made possible the remarkable success of the campaign just closed.

This co-operation was given principally by the following:

First—The financial contributors.
Second—The Manchester Herald.
Third—Various fraternal, social, business and church organizations.

The men and women who constituted the teams were unusually efficient and diligent in the performance of their responsibilities—often very arduous. Their gave their time gratuitously for love of the work. It would be impossible, in many cases to secure the same quality of talent or devotion for a pecuniary consideration. These volunteer services are easily worth many thousands of dollars annually to the community, and are producing inestimable results in healthier, happier, more purposeful children and adults, and besides improving the moral tone of the town.

NAME S. H. SIMON CLUB GOVERNOR

Chosen Trustee of Community Club at Annual Meeting—Year's Reports.

The annual meeting of the Manchester Community Club was held last evening at the "White House," 79 North Main street. The reports of the officers, covering the activities and expenditures of the past year, were read and acted upon, and plans for the coming year were discussed.

The club has important matters pending in view of the movement for placing the north end in position to carry on the recreational work for which provision was made in the will of the late Willie T. Morton.

New Full-Term Trustee
In the annual election of officers, the changes were confined to the board of governors, as the old officers were re-elected. There will be a new face at all meetings of the board of governors for a full three-year term as a result of last night's election. Scott H. Simon was elected to serve three years. To fill the final part of a term, owing to a resignation, Mrs. Walter Balch was elected to serve a year.

The election resulted in the choice of the following officers, proposed by the nominating committee, consisting of W. W. Robertson, Fred H. Wall and William Foulds, Jr.:

President, Mark Holmes; vice-president, Wells A. Strickland; secretary, Miss Mary McGuire; treasurer, Charles E. Loomis.

Board of governors, full term, Scott H. Simon, full term, Edward F. Dwyer and Miss Grace Robertson, succeeding themselves; one-year term, to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Mrs. P. F. Hanson, Mrs. Walter Balch.

The re-elected directors will add strength to the board by reason of their previous experience. Mrs. Balch, a new member of the board, was one of the most successful captains of the recent financial campaign of the club.

The election of Mr. Simon to the board of governors comes at a most timely period in the affairs of the club. With the larger program and important developments ahead, with prospects of building operations looming large, Mr. Simon will be a strong addition to the board.

President's Report
The report of President Mark Holmes touched briefly on the leading events in the club's activities the past year.

Directors' Report
Director G. H. Washburn covered the year's activities in a detailed report starting with November of last year when Mr. Washburn took over the direction of the club's activities. A chorus of 175 school children was organized by the director with the assistance of the school teachers and the musical supervisor, and this chorus sang Christmas carols in many parts of the town, including the hospital, town farm and other outlying districts. This was closely followed by a masquerade skating carnival on Starweather's Pond which attracted 200 people. Prizes were awarded the best costume both individual and best couples.

Beginning January 12 and throughout the five weeks following a special committee, Mrs. James Shearer, chairman; Miss Grace Robertson, Mrs. Wells Strickland, Mrs. Francis Handley, Mrs. Edward F. Dwyer, Mrs. William Taylor, Mrs. John Trask, Mrs. John Gleason, Mrs. William McGonigal and Mrs. William E. Shaw sponsored and organized a cooking school class for the community. Each session was largely attended and the club's facilities for seating were taxed to the limit so popular did the course become.

Club's Many Activities
Throughout the winter the Community Girls' Basketball team played in the State League and made a very creditable showing with such teams as New Haven, Bridgeport, Meriden and Hartford. A big cast in the club's first play of the season "The Lost Jug," was very successful. Next came "Brush the Magician" at the Hollister Street school. Another innovation in the form of Six O'clock suppers proved to be very popular at the club each Saturday night during the winter.

Many organizations met and used the club facilities during the winter months, among them being the Improvement Club, D. A. R., Kings Daughters, Daughters of Civil War Veterans, County Y. M. C. A., Kiwanis Club, Mens' Club of the Second Congregational church, and others.

The Happy Go Lucky Girls' club of some 30 odd members was organized by Mrs. Washburn as an auxiliary to the club's activities and have proven themselves to be a valuable unit in the club's accomplishments.

The Boy Rangers, formed of the junior boys of the North End, was organized by the director with a membership of 27 and is still growing. The object of the Rangers is to instill into the youth respect for themselves, their parents and teachers and to be loyal to their country and all the worth while elements should go into the foundation of the boy's character during his tender years between 8 and 12, when he is then fitted for further participation with older boys' activities.

Food Sales Popular
Numerous food sales were held during the club's winter and spring season and brought in considerable revenue for the furtherance of the club's program. The Easter Egg Hunt on the "White House" play grounds attracted many youngsters and their parents. Several dances were also run by the club during the season. Whists were held many Wednesday evenings and proved a very popular pastime. An Old Folks Concert given at Hollister street school proved to be not only enjoyable but a musical gem in the club's endeavors. An Easter breakfast held on Easter morning at the club was another innovation.

With the spring came the marble contest in the town's schools which was popular among the boys. The Lawn Fete was bigger and better than ever before and still leaves a favorable impression in the minds of many who were fortunate enough to attend. The Improvement Club's Fourth of July celebration on the White House grounds proves this club as a valuable unit in cooperation with the Community club's efforts for the citizens of the North End.

The director touched briefly on the playgrounds activities during the summer, the Doll Carriage Parade, Pet Show, Flower Show, Treasure Hunt and the coming of the Manchester Garden club being the outcome of the Flower Show. The Manchester Garden club now boasts of 32 members and still going strong. The World Series was shown in a novel manner on the "White House" porch by an ingenious device installed by the director and was the cause of much favorable comment.

Girls' Falcon Club
The Girls' Falcon club formed wholly of Polish girls and open to all girls of this nationality has proven to be an added incentive to do things worth while for themselves and the community. The membership is still small but the girls make up in interest for what they lack in numbers. The campaign just passed is to fresh in the minds of the members to make remarks about here other than to say the success was beyond the fondest dreams of the committee in charge.

EXCELLENT TYPING DONE AT S. M. H. S.

More Students Awarded Medals Last Month Than In Whole Previous School Year.

Judging from the typewriting work at the local High school during the past month and from remarks made today by Principal Clarence P. Quimby, the standard of typing has greatly improved this year.

Thirteen senior and junior students were awarded medals for their excellent work at the monthly tests in November. These awards were made last week. The month previous only three or four students qualified. The number also greatly exceeds that of the entire previous school year. In addition to those receiving gold, silver and bronze pins, many received certificates. Each month tests are sent to the various schools by the Underwood, Royal and Remington typewriting companies. These are of new matter and are dictated to the students by the teachers.

In speaking about the matter this morning, Principal Quimby said certificates are awarded to students typing 30 words per minute, bronze medals to those attaining 40 words, silver pins for 50 words per minute and gold for 60 or over.

Mr. Quimby attributed the marked improvement as due to unusual ability of the students and excellent instruction by the teachers. He paid special tribute to the seven students who typed 50 or better words per minute, laying particular stress on the work of Miss Elin Nielson who typed 59 words per minute.

Following is the list of students who received pins:
Gold (Royal): Mae Clune, 50 word per minute; George Smith, 45.
Silver pins (Underwood): Geraldine Dodwell, 54; Eunice Kohler 53; Helen McGlinn, 55; Elin Nielson, 59; Gladys Rogers, 53.
Bronze (Underwood): Mary Albaisi, 44; Eatrice Blockwood, 44; Gertrude Fish, 47; Gladys Rogers, 53; Leora Yokitis, 43 and A. Guidatis, 41.
These tests were of fifteen minutes duration.

ARNOTTS AND ALLENS ENJOY FLORIDA TRIP

The Herald has just received an interesting letter from Judge Alexander Arnot, who with Mrs. Arnot and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Allen, left for St. Petersburg, Florida about the middle of November. The cars kept within hailing distance of each other all the way down and they report a most enjoyable trip.

When the local men arrived in Spartanburg, S. C., the chief of police there gave them yellow tags for their cars. Judge Arnot enclosed one in his letter. On one side is a greeting to the visitor and an invitation to "make Spartanburg his home." If the tourist is outside the county the tag may be placed on his car and it may be left in the congested district without regard to time limit. On the reverse side are salient facts about the city, which has about the same population as Manchester, and referring the visitor to the Chamber of Commerce for further information. Judge Arnot evidently thinks an advertising plan of this kind would be a good thing for Manchester.

The weather in St. Petersburg he reports is delightful, with many people from the north already there. At a Sunday evening service which they attended at one of the Congregational churches, 2500 were present.

The judge is very enthusiastic about the beauties of St. Petersburg and the advantages it offers as a winter resort for northern people. He says this year apartments may be rented at a figure within the bounds of reason and food and clothing is as cheap as at home. He predicts that Florida is bound to go forward as the years go by and will become more and more prosperous and popular. He says the substantial investors, realtors and owners of business and home buildings are not worrying.

GLASS IN THE GRAVY LEADS TO HOSPITAL

As a result of swallowing a small piece of glass, Mrs. Nancy Montgomery of 25 Knox street, is in the Memorial hospital. She met with the peculiar accident Sunday noon and was taken to the hospital shortly afterward. At first her condition was regarded as serious but it was stated last night she was making satisfactory progress towards recovery. It is not expected that an operation will have to be resorted to as X-ray pictures have been taken and reveal the location of the foreign substance.

It was stated at the Montgomery home last night that Mrs. Montgomery swallowed the piece of glass in some gravy at dinner. The glass was chipped from a cooking utensil.

The enrollment at the Memorial hospital today was 41, according to information given out at the hospital. This is much below normal and is caused by the fact that everybody who can possibly avoid it, steers clear of such places between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

THE RIGHT TO DISAGREE.

"People have a right to disagree with the law," says President Coolidge in his message to Congress today, referring to prohibition.

It is submitted that—quite without regard to the further fact that the President declares that so long as prohibition is the law it should be enforced—this is a position which ought to be recognized as valid by everybody and which is nevertheless condemned by thousands.

The attitude of a great many people in this country is that the eighteenth amendment to the constitution is as debatable a proposition as was the constitution without the eighteenth amendment.

They are attacked by the extreme dries for holding such opinion. The prohibitory laws, alone of all laws, are sacrosanct; to question their wisdom or success or to recommend their amendment or elimination is wicked, immoral, possible only to inately depraved persons.

Not very many of these extremists will have the courage to call President Coolidge either immoral, wicked or a pander to vicious appetites.

The President's utterances on the liquor question might easily have been more definite. They could also have been much more indefinite. Acknowledgment that people have a right to disagree with the laws carries with it, of course, a perfectly righteous sanction for all righteous efforts to get rid of the laws we disagree with.

Opposition to the eighteenth amendment and Volsteadism did not need the endorsement of President Coolidge or anybody else to make it respectable; it already was as respectable as any other honestly held antagonism to error and misgovernment.

But it so happens that there are a good many intemperate believers in prohibition who, because of the extremely respectable source from which this declaration of rights emanates, will for the first time recognize the respectability of the earnest efforts that are being made for a change from fake prohibition to bona fide control of the liquor curse.

WHO'S WORK IS WHO'S One illuminating fact in connection with the reassemblage of the Sixty-ninth Congress is that more than twelve thousand bills of one sort and another remain on the left-over calendar from the last session.

That this is a ridiculous situation everybody will admit and anybody can see. When Congress can, as it frequently does, devote the major part of a long session to the consideration of two or three public measures, the chance of ever clearing such a calendar is, of course, nil, and by far the greater part of the measures that are passed, private bills and small minor matters, never get to the real notice of any but the members of the committees which pass upon them, and frequently receive very little of that.

The cause of this jammox of legislative matter is that nineteenth-century methods of it is not legislative matter at all, but administrative business which ought to be transacted in administrative offices and never come to the Capitol at all. But Congress, from the beginning jealous of its prerogatives, has assumed direct jurisdiction in numberless matters to which it cannot possibly find time to attend and which it has no proper machinery for handling.

This would be less illogical perhaps if Congress were always as insistent on its rights in actually important matters. Here we have, in contrast to this mass of petty office business piled up on Congressional desks instead of being where it belongs, the spectacle of a State Department meddling without authority in the choice of a Nicaraguan government and a Navy Department determining a policy of disposition of national oil fields—matters for Congressional determination if anything ever was. There will have to be a new deal some day in the matter of government responsibilities and activities.

UP NORTH.

Those sanguine souls who are forever, of late, predicting that the time is not far off when white light districts, skyscrapers and perhaps subways will be as common above the Arctic circle as they are at latitude forty-two, may stammer a bit as they contemplate the jam in the St. Mary's river. A hundred and twenty-odd ships worth a hundred million dollars with cargoes worth half as much, are caught in the ice of that highly important waterway which links Lake Superior with Lake Huron and carries an enormous traffic in grain, ore and general merchandise.

And the Saint Mary's river is a long, long way from the Arctic. That Great Lakes traffic is destined to be a far more important economic factor than it is now, great as it is at present, no one can doubt. But until old Earth undergoes a complete metamorphosis as to climate, that traffic is going to be a sharply seasonal proposition.

And so is every sort of human activity in the far north. We may get our coal from Greenland, we may engage in agriculture in the upper Hudson Bay country, but we shall dig our coal and raise our crops in a few weeks of each year, if we dig and raise them at all up there; and the rest of the time we shall hibernate, like bears.

Don't let anybody sell you a wheat farm in the Athabasca country unless you care more for long winter morning snoozes than you do about getting up and to business.

NOT UNANIMOUS?

Premier Mussolini yesterday told his cabinet that the internal situation is far from satisfactory. This is a little surprising, in view of the reports brought back to America by a certain type of publicist who, having given the New Rome the once-over have hastened to tell their compatriots on this side of the water that this dictator thing is the real cheese when you have a bright boy like Mussolini doing the dictating.

The impression given by these folks is that Italy is so very much more sanely governed than America that we really ought to get rid of Congress and import a Duce and do everything would be all right.

So that it comes as more or less of a shock to learn that there are still things to be desired in Italy—things that require sterner discipline by Fascism. Evidently the content, not to say delight, of Italy with the Mussolini regime is not what you might call unanimous. Admission that there are still some recalcitrant souls in that country who have the impression that they ought not to be driven like a gigantic flock of geese by a single gooseherd, gives perhaps a little color of doubt to the report that it was only necessary to kill about a hundred Italians for chucking over the Bologna attempt at assassination in order to make all living Italians pleased with the existing order of affairs.

There must be a few objectors still left. Fascism will attend to them, no doubt—if they don't first attend to Fascism.

STICK 'EM UP.

"Stick 'em up, Bill! Stick 'em up, Eddie! Now everybody keep still altogether, fellows, while we boys pick up this stuff. Afterward, you can all join in singing 'By-by, My Baby Gems.'"

It is to be anticipated that something like this will soon be introduced as part of the ritual of Rotary and Kiwanis luncheons if the practice is followed which was inaugurated at the Hartford Rotary meeting yesterday, of putting on exhibition for the edification of the members of a ninety thousand dollar collection of precious stones.

Just possibly the eloquence of a Rotary group might suffice to talk a bunch of gunmen out of their purpose of holding up the assemblage, but we doubt it. Even that sort of oratory is likely to falter and falter in the presence of the less frequently talkative but tremendously convincing thirty-eight.

SHAWLS.

Manchester people should not be last in their appreciation on an especially interesting exhibition now on at the Morgan Memorial in Hartford. In this town there are many familiar with the loom in its highest state of development. For them there would seem to be rather special fascination about the achievements of more primitive peoples and more primitive times which constitutes the exhibit in question. What weavers have done in the past, what they are still doing in some remote regions, with machinery crude and slow but after all adequate to the performance of textile marvels, would seem to be an intriguing subject for those who work with the most improved and ingenious of modern equipment.

Shawls from China, shawls from Cashmere, shawls from old Paisley, one shawl that took thirty years in the making—beautiful and greatly interesting, especially to Manchester folk.

Anyhow, praise be! this is not coal-strike year.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Dec. 7.—The millenium has come—almost! The Washington correspondent does not care to drag himself way out to the court house where Edward L. Doheny and Albert B. Fall are being tried for conspiracy to defraud the government of a $100,000,000 oil reserve may have his stories on the trial written for him. He need never go near the court rooms.

Doheny pays the freight on the free stories, and apparently does it gladly. It should be added, however, that insofar as is known, no newspaper man here as yet availed himself of this remarkable opportunity to avoid the trouble of getting his own story.

For the newspaper men just don't believe in Santa Claus. And when one side in an important criminal trial writes its own narrative of what happens and sends the result to all the correspondents, they begin to cast asparagus at the donor's motives.

George G. Hill, publicity man for Doheny, is the author of the gratuitous reports. Hill used to be a newspaper man himself. On the eve of the trial Hill issued a pamphlet entitled "Facts and Figures in the California Oil Case." At the bottom of every page was written the admonition: "Keep this compilation where it will always be available for instant reference."

There was no intimation that the tome came from the Fall-Doheny side but it bore the name of George and the newspaper men all knew him.

Now come the specially prepared trial stories by the same author, merely entitled "Fall-Doheny Case, From George G. Hill," and written in good newspaper style. The first one principally dealt with the selection of the jury and the gallant fight of the three leading defense attorneys against the prosecution's proposal that the jury be locked up during the trial.

But it was quickly noted that whereas some eight good-sized paragraphs detailed the defense contention against the lock-up, only one three-line paragraph in Hill's story touched on the government counsel's stand, merely saying that Atlee Pomeroy "deprecatd" what the defense had said.

While there is some surprise at this unique method of publicity, it is recalled that publicity men for oil interests were swarming all over Cheyenne, Wyo., when civil suits involving legality of the Teapot Dome lease were being tried. They would chain warm friendships with editors or publishers, and thus convey the impression that the reporter would do well to keep the press agent's favor.

Old Masters

Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean, Tears from the depth of some divine despair

Rise in the heart, and gather to the eyes, In looking on the happy autumn fields, And thinking of the days that are no more.

Fresh as the first beam glittering on a sail, That brings our friends up from the underworld, Sad as the last which reddens over one

Thank sinks with all we love below, So sad, so fresh, the days that are no more.

Ah, sad and strange as in dark summer dawns, The earliest pipe of half-awaken'd birds To dying ears, when unto dying

The casement slowly grows a glimmering square; So sad, so strange, the days that are no more.

Dear as remember'd kisses after death, And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feign'd On lips that are for others; deep as love, Deep as first love, and wild with all regret;

O Death in Life, the days that are no more.

SCHOOL ENUMERATION SHOWS A SLIGHT DROP

Forty-five Less Pupils in Ninth School District; The Reason; Every Child is Accounted For in 2,880 Census.

The Ninth District school enumeration as taken by Clarence Wetherell, of Wells street was announced today by Superintendent Fred A. Verplanck. The report shows an enumeration of 2,880, which is a decrease of 45 over the previous year. This is believed to be due to building expansion of the town in general. Many persons living in the district are demanding better houses and find these available outside of the district.

The most important fact which the 1926 school enumeration reveals is that there is not a single able boy or girl between the ages of 7 and 14 who is not attending school. It is compulsory for students who are physically able, to attend public or private schools between these ages.

The enumeration accounts for every student in the district. Of the 2,880 pupils between the ages of 4 and 16 years which the census includes, 2,328 are attending public schools, 368 private schools and 184 are not attending any. The latter, however, are all outside of the required age limit with the exception of four.

One hundred and eighteen are under five years of age. Twenty-nine are between five and seven and 33 of them are above the 14-year mark. Of the four who are of required school age, two are classed as idiots or imbecile, one is a cripple, and one is deaf and dumb. The enumeration in the first eight districts has been completed but is not yet ready for publication.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Roger Williams (11)

The Narragansetts vowed vengeance on the Mohegans for the death of Miantonomo. They had begun hostilities against the Mohegans when Roger Williams arrived from England. Williams told the commissioners of the United Colonies of the outbreak, and Massachusetts decided to war on the Narragansetts.

Fearful of the consequences, Chief Pessicus, brother of Miantonomo, came to Williams seeking a way out of his difficulties.

Williams interceded and peace was arranged with the Indians, the Narragansetts pledging to Massachusetts 2000 fathoms of wampum.

One of Williams' great friendships was broken when Canonius, aged Narragansett chieftain, died. The two men had the greatest esteem for one another. Canonius' dying request was that he be buried in the "cloth of free gift" that had been given to him by Williams. Williams was greatly saddened by the chief's demise. (Continued.)

SOUTH M. E. BAZAAR TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Booths to Represent Months and Their Meanings—Boy Scouts Participate—Cafeteria Supper.

Tomorrow afternoon when the clock strikes three, the various groups of the South Manchester Methodist Episcopal church will be ready to receive visitors at the "Festival of the Months" Bazaar, and display the many things that have been made for the Annual Christmas Sale. Booths are already in place, and various colors and schemes worked out. The January Booth, which will refresh the guests with ice-cream, is prettily decorated in the pink, white, and rose colors.

The February Booth, which will give St. Valentine a chance, and provide many things for "my lady's hope chest" stands out in red and white, while hearts are plentiful, and fancy work of all kinds is on display. March, the month of St. Patrick, is decorated in green and white, and aprons will be sold there. April, the month of showers and first spring flowers, is trimmed with jonquills, tulips, and violets, with all other flowers available. Jellies and preserves will find their places among the flowers. The month of May with its favorite May basket, will be a table made into a Maybasket of yellow and orchid colors, while maidens will induce you to buy the home-made candies in the basket. June, with a pretty bowler of rambler roses, will present home-made foods, including the ever popular lemon pies.

July, with its patriotic decorations of red, white and blue will deal in the Fourth of July popular feast—popcorn. August Booth has been taken over by the Boy Scouts who will display their handiwork, and sell the things they have made in wood and leather. September shows the little red school house, and from its doors and windows, handkerchiefs will be sold. The October Booth will breathe of the spirit of Halloween, and grab will be found in the kettle outside the witches tent, while other members of the witch family will sell their wares, from the hundred pocketed witches costumes. November brings us the Harvest Booth, beautifully decorated in corn stalks and pumpkins, with the chrysanthemum, the flower of the month in evidence in all kinds of vegetables and groceries will be sold here. The last month of the year will bring the Christmas Tree surrounded by dolls and toys for the children. Every want will be satisfied in this great array of supplies. Mrs. Claude Truax is the general chairman of events, and announces that the group is doing its work with much enthusiasm. Beginning at five o'clock a Cafeteria Supper will be served, in charge of Mrs. Mary Benson, and her splendid committee.

The menu includes, scalloped oysters, individual chicken pie, waffles, hot dogs, beans, potato salad, cold sliced ham, rolls and butter, cranberry cake, all kinds of pie, ice cream, tea, coffee, milk. Prices will be nominal. The Bazaar will be open from three to ten o'clock.

Transportation will be provided by parents of the scouts going who have automobiles. This has been done before and the generosity of the parents has always been much appreciated. The scout masters will make the arrangements. The camp party will be limited to sixteen scouts and the fee will be $6 payable upon registration.

The camp director will be Charles Morse, assistant scout executive of the local staff. He has had long experience with boys, is a man of good judgment, is safe and has the endorsement of local scout headquarters. He recently returned from a period of training at the National Training School for Scout Executives, where he spent a month preparing for such office.

Harry Jordan, the Maine guide, may be on the teaching staff, but that cannot be guaranteed at this time. He would be an added attraction, but there will be lots of fun and instruction without him. Activities will consist of skating (if we have ice), skiing (if we have snow), test passing, outdoor games, tracking, nature study, archery, making, camp fire stories and stunts at night, reading when conditions warrant and something doing all the time.

Health and safety of the boys will be guarded at all times. Boys with wet clothing and shoes will be cared for. There will be no long hikes or strenuous work for boys who are not fit. Ice on pond will be tested before skating is allowed and safety limits will be established. Wear heavy clothing, wool stockings, strong shoes, proper head and hand protection and outdoor gear possible, wear scout uniform with heavy underwear.

Bring extra suit of underwear, stockings, shoes and rubbers, woolen mittens, extra pair of pants, sweater, four heavy blankets or comforter, tooth brush and paste, knife and axe if you have them, camera, latest handbook, one good story book if you have it, pillow if you wish, skates and skis if conditions warrant, musical instrument, $1.00 change. Mark your name on a duffle bag or other container, tagged with your name. See your Scout Master for Registration Blank.

TOWN PLAYERS BUSY PREPARING "DULCY"

All committees are busily working in preparation for the production of "Dulcy," the three-act comedy to be presented by the Town Players under the auspices of the Educational Club, at the Circle Theater Thursday evening.

Bert F. Andrews is chairman of the staging committee, assisted by Eric Crawshaw. The properties and costume committee is in the hands of Mrs. Charles Johnson. Other members of the committee are Miss Bertha Dietz and Miss Charlotte Meyers. The publicity and advertising committee is headed by Mrs. F. T. Blish, with Miss Elsie Washburn and Mrs. James Irvine assisting. Both the Town Players and the Educational Club report an excellent advance sale of tickets. The promise of a good dramatic production, coupled with the purpose of raising funds to supply milk to the children of the Open Air schools makes a strong appeal to the people of Manchester.

The cast which will be seen on Thursday evening is made up of the following members of the Town Players: Ruth Smith, Edythe Schultz, Eva McComb, Albert Pearson, Elmer Johnson, Albert Addy, Crombie Donaldson, Raymond Tilden, Harry Bellamy, Leonard Johnson and Harold Hildner. Tickets are in the hands of members of the Educational Club and the Town Players. They are also on sale at the Recreation Centers. Reserved seats may be secured in advance at the Recreation Centers or at the Dewey-Richman company's store.

Here's a Real Prescription For the Torturing Pains of Neuritis

Men and Women Everywhere Get Quick Relief From Their Suffering.
When you've tried everything you can think of and nothing seems to even relieve those piercing, agonizing pains, just go to some good druggist and get a bottle of Allens' Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2 which comes in capsule form.
Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished those persisting nerve racking pains that have caused you many sleepless nights. A few more doses and the pains have left you forever.
While this particular formula was compounded for the purpose of conquering painful, Gouty conditions and what is known as Rheumatoid Arthritis—a knotty, painful swelling of the joints—it has proven wonderfully successful in all forms of Neuritis and Sciatic Nerve Pains.
You needn't be afraid of its containing dope of any kind—it doesn't. Such things are only makeshifts and can only at the best give temporary relief.
Be sure you've got Neuritis and then get Allens' Special Formula No. 2. North End Pharmacy, So. Manchester Agents, Magnell Drug Co., sell lots of it.—Adv.

CHOOSE COL. BISSELL ON HARTFORD EXILES

Elect Well Known Local World War Member of Select Organization.
Colonel Harry B. Bissell, well known world war veteran and captain of Company G when the unit sailed for France, has been chosen an honorary member of the post de commande of the Hartford Exiles, it was announced yesterday.
The Exiles consist of twelve men mostly in military service, who met in the American grill room of the Hotel Regina place de Rivoli in Paris January 1, 1919 for the first annual dinner. On each New Year's day, this unit gathers at the Garde Hotel in Hartford to eat a dinner consisting of the same menu as the original one in Paris. From time to time, the organization elects an honorary member who advances to the active list after a year, reversing the military procedure. Ex-governor Lake is one of the members.
Colonel Bissell began his military career December 31, 1907. In 1916, he went to the Mexican Border with Company G as a captain. When that unit went to France, he retained that rank but was soon promoted to major. Colonel Bissell took a decidedly active part in the World War. He was in the battle of Seicheprey and the fighting near Belleau. Colonel Bissell, who is chief of staff of Major General Morris E. Pease, commander of the forty-third division, also took part in the Meuse-Argonne drive. He is president of the Hartford Winter Quartermaster conference.

'COUNTRY STORE' PROVES TO BE MORE POPULAR

More Presents and Bigger Surprise Than Ever at State Tomorrow Night.

Come on, folks! There will be another big "Country Store and Surprise Nite" at the State tomorrow evening. Each week "Country Store" is becoming more popular, and hundreds turned away is becoming quite usual. From this fact observe this warning: Be at the State early tomorrow night.

Tomorrow night's program will be just as good, or better, than you have had served you on previous Wednesday nights. Besides the many presents that will, of course, be distributed, there will be another big surprise. What it will be the management declines to tell. But it will be a big one! Then, there will be an excellent double feature program. Leatrice Joy is featured in "Made For Love," the companion feature will be "Silver Treasure" with an all star cast.

He was an archaeological husband. Back and forth from the Egyptian tombs he carted mummies, forgetting his beautiful wife. For all he knew, she could have been just another mummy, but no, then he would have been interested in her from an educational standpoint.

For the last times tonight that funniest of all screen comedies, "We're in the Navy Now," featuring Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton will be shown at the State theater. Two nuts, a falling apart prize fighter and his manager, chasing each other about, chase each other right into the navy. Then the fun begins. Before they know what it's all about they're away out on the briny deep on an American transport, headed for France. And what doesn't happen

And still there are stubborn people right in this part of the country who won't accept this offer, but continue to suffer from gas on stomach, belching or sour food, stomach pains, foul breath, dizziness, biliousness and headaches, just because—just because—that's all, there is no other reason.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin will stop dyspeptic agony in five minutes; will conquer obstinate cases of indigestion, and turn the old stomach into a new one in a few weeks.

on that transport isn't worth mentioning. Nothing funnier than this picture can be imagined. It's just one grand roar from beginning to end. If you have not already seen it, there are but two chances to do so left to you; one is at 7 o'clock and the other is at 9 tonight at the State.

'LOVE'S BLINDNESS' ELINOR GLYN FILM

Story For Circle's Feature Written by Popular Author. "Dulcy" Presented Thursday Evening.

When an Elinor Glyn production comes to town, local theatergoers know that there's going to be some show! There must be a reason for this, and here it is: An Elinor Glyn picture means that the finest kind of picture will be on view. Drama, comedy, clever situations, and a good film story are all combined. "Love's Blindness," the latest Glyn story to be filmed, will be shown at the Circle theater tonight and tomorrow.

When Erich Von Stroheim made "The Merry Widow" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the motion picture industry was shown what was meant by a "passion for detail." This time it is Elinor Glyn, who supervised the production from her own novel of "Love's Blindness," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture with Pauline Starke and Antonio Moreno in the leading roles.

Mme. Glyn personally supervised the selection of every player that appears in the film, down to the most inconspicuous extra, and not only that but every detail of dress and department of every player had to be used by Mme. Glyn before it was photographed.

She chose every piece of furniture with which the sets were dressed, and passed on the architect's drawings of all the buildings.

On Thursday evening the Town Players will be seen at the Circle theater in "Dulcy," a three act comedy. This is a quite ambitious production, and one which should be well worth seeing. In the cast are included such local favorites as Ruth Smith, Harry Bellamy, and Albert Pearson. This is the first play to be presented this season by the Players. The high school symphony orchestra will furnish music at the presentation of the play.

RIALTO OFFERS TWO ATTRACTIVE FEATURES

"Typhoon Love," one of the feature pictures being shown at the Rialto theater today and tomorrow offers a very high type of motion picture entertainment. It is frankly melodramatic in theme but it is the kind of melodrama that appeals to ninety-nine per cent of us. The story deals with an opium mine in the South Sea Islands (and it is worthy of note that the picture was filmed in its true locale), owned by Tom and Jack Gordon and coveted by Captain Morgan, case-hardened veteran of many a South Sea episode that he has been "shady" to say the least. At the outset it appears that Morgan's daughter June is an accomplice, which is a facer to Jack who has loved her from the moment he has first set eyes upon her. How the boys foil Morgan forms the basis for some excellent screen entertainment whose action never lags. The cast includes such names as T. Roy Barnes, Ruth Clifford and Mitchell Lewis. "Among Those Present" is the name of the co-feature which stars the prince of all fun makers, Harold Lloyd. It is a hilarious tale of a pseudo nobleman, portrayed by Harold, who attempts to make the grade in smart society assisted by a training as a bell hop. It may best be described as one continual laugh. Larry Semon comedy and current news events will also be shown. Work on the new organ goes on apace and the management of this theater hopes to have the Wurlitzer Orchestra Organ installed in the near future so that patrons of this picture may watch the undeniably attractive bills while listening to the strains of popular music as played by a competent organist. Friday evening another radio set will be presented to some lucky person. Coupons are being given out now.

ENGLAND FOLLOWS AMERICA RULE IN PURIFYING TENNIS

British To Also Check Players From Reporting About Tournaments In Which They Participate.

London, Dec. 7.—(United Press)—The Lawn Tennis Association is determined to purify British tennis of the taint of professionalism in amateur play and is following the example of the American association by prohibiting players from writing about tournaments in which they take part. This is only one move to lay the "ghost" of the question will be definitely decided at an annual general meeting of the association Dec. 13. The Council will propose a new rule which, if adopted, will provide that:

"CUTTY SARK" SHIRTS FOR GIANTS IN 1927

New York, Dec. 7.—Uniforms of the New York Giants next season will be without shirt tails, it was announced today at the offices of the ball club. The shirt and trousers will be hooked up on the plan of overalls, it was said, the suggestion having come from the players. They claimed the tails of shirts were unnecessary and impeded free action. According to the Broadway News, this is one way for the Giants to avoid being tailenders.

BIG PURSE FIGHTS "OUT," SAYS TEX

Dempsey Only Pug Who Could Draw Two Million House, His Belief.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
L. N. S. Sports Editor

New York, Dec. 7.—Neither Gene Tunney nor any other fighter of this age ever again will cut in on a $2,000,000 "house," Tex Rickard informed the waiting world today, with an oral footnote to the effect that Jack Dempsey alone was responsible for the big money era. According to Rickard, the former champion's style, color and personality packed him in and, until such time as his duplicate is developed, the addictee will be inclined to stay in droves.

"There is only one of this type for every twenty years," Rickard added. "So, I don't look for another man with Dempsey's appeal for some time."
The promoter probably was serving due notice against the ambitious ideas being entertained by Tunney on the matter of his next purse, it being understood that the champion was somewhat ticked by the receipt of only a quarter of a million as his end of the Dempsey match. At that, Rickard believes Tunney will line up with him for a title defense next summer and said so.

Rickard will stage an elimination match between Jimmy Maloney and Harry Persson late this month and by the time the entire series has been completed next summer, Tunney will have a logical opponent. Rickard, having tied up Jack Sharkey after February 1, has a lien on most of the good prospects, including Paolino.

"I am saving Dempsey for outdoors, in case he comes back," said Rickard. "Can you imagine what Sharkey and Maloney would draw? Maloney and Paolino, who is a great fighter, would be another knockout."
"By early summer, I will have the series," said Rickard. "Dempsey and, if Jack Sharkey doesn't want to try again, I will send my survivor after Tunney."

Lee Fohl's Red Sox team didn't have one .300 clubber last season. Rickard and Jacobson topped the Beantown hitters, being tied at .299. Boston had a team average of .255.

RICKARD ANNOUNCES HIS FIGHT SCHEDULE
New York, Dec. 7.—Tex Rickard today made public schedule of heavyweight bouts for which he has signed Jack Sharkey, Boston championship contender, the final match being with Gene Tunney for the title on September 15. The latter, however, is contingent upon Sharkey surviving the series of tests Rickard has arranged for him.

The first on February 7, will be the winner of the Jim Maloney-Harry Persson bout at the garden on December 20. The second Sharkey engagement has been set for March 14 with Paolino as the Bostonian's rival. The third will be with Paul Berlenbach at the Yankee Stadium on June 9.
Jack Dempsey, Rickard explained, may enter the elimination series at any time the former champion selects. The promoter also declared that a defeat for Sharkey in any bout would mean his elimination and a re-arrangement of the series.

The NUT CRACKER by Joe Williams

Newa Note: The city council of Pittsburgh has voted to erect a memorial to Harry Greb, the prize fighter.

Mr. O'Goofy thinks this is a very noisy idea, and suggests that the proposition be adopted by other cities boasting distinguished cauliflower exhibitors. For example:

St. Paul, Minn.: A beautiful block of granite was unveiled here today in public square. It depicts a long angular form in bathing trunks disappearing into a tank. It bears the inscription: "Fred Fulton losing a heavyweight fight in a characteristic manner." It was presented to the city on behalf of the Amalgamated Order of Cheap Funsters of America.

Greenwich Village, N. Y.: Dedication exercises were held here today in connection with the opening of the new Public Library, which is to be known as the Gene Tunney Institute of Cerebral Stimulation. Mr. Tunney himself was master of ceremonies. He admitted, among other things, that Shelley, Homer, Goethe, Keats and Hugo were also good writers.

The Bronx, N. Y.: A gracefully wrought tableau in white Italian marble was placed on exhibit in the Hart, Schaffner and Hoopla cutting rooms today. In it the sculptor has caught the beautiful filial devotion of the prize fighter for his gray-haired mother, than which there is nothing more filial. The mother is shown seated near a tinker eagerly scanning the tape for ticks. The fighter is shown on bended knees with arms extended singing "Mamma from the Bam Bam, Bammy Shore." It is labeled the Leonardis at home.

Paris: There is a disagreement among the past, present and future premiers of France as to what form a testimonial to the international notoriety of Mons. Georges Carpentier should take. The following suggestions are under consideration:

- (A) An animated clothes rack.
- (B) A soft shoe dancer in dinner clothes.
- (C) A cross between Richard Dix and any Collar Ad.
- (D) A half crouched figure in mock pain claiming a foul.
- (E) A lightning calculator talking Mr. Rickard out of ten extra thousands.

London: It was definitely announced here today that no attempt would be made to erect a monument to Joseph Beckett or Bombardier Wells in Piccadilly Circus. It seems that, contrary to its name, Piccadilly Circus is no place for clowns.

Los Angeles, Calif.: Amid impressive ceremonies a large, menacing-looking object bearing marked resemblance to a human forearm and fist was tossed in the municipal scrap heap here today, along with remnants of 1908 Fords, discarded bed springs, box car axles, battered magic lanterns and horseshair sofas. A tag was attached to the thing which read: "Old Iron Mike." Informed citizens said it formerly belonged to a heavyweight named Dempsey.

First Basketball Game of Schedule Comes on Friday Night—Opens Season For Both Teams.

Hartford High school will come to Manchester Friday night for a basketball game after a lapse of a year. Hartford did not play Manchester last year because satisfactory terms could not be arranged. In their last meeting, Manchester trimmed the Capitol City outfit by one point, winning out in the last few minutes of play in a game at the Hopkins street gym in Hartford. It was the first time that Manchester and Hartford met since a good many years and was the occasion for a celebration here. Little is known of the strength of the Hartford team this year for it has yet to play. The Manchester game will be the opener for both teams. Dick Dillon is scheduled to referee. The second terms of both schools will meet in the preliminary game which will start at 7:30.

Friedman, Kaer, Wilson, Joesting Compose First Team Backfield

By BILLY EVANS.
In making my All-America selections for 1926 I have been guided by the judgment of 40 of the leading coaches of the United States, hailing from all sections of the country. Perhaps as many officials have offered words of wisdom.

At the ends I have named Oosterbaan of Michigan and Winslett of Alabama. While Oosterbaan didn't play up to his high standard before eastern critics in the game with the Navy, he is a brilliant end, just as good as last season, when he was named for the same position. Winslett of Alabama is my other choice. He is a mighty versatile chap who has alternated at end and full. He is a most skillful end, wonderful passer, and can hit the line with the sting of Joesting of Minnesota.

Hanson of Syracuse, Shipkey of Stanford, Broda of Brown and Bacchus of Missouri were four other great wingmen, who by many other experts probably will be rated higher than the two players I selected for my ends.
Boeringer of Notre Dame is placed at center with Butler of Pennsylvania a mighty close second. Klein of Ohio State is placed on the third team.

Captain Wickhorst of the Navy is a great tackle. There is no getting away from him. He played a marvelous game against the Army in the final tilt of the season. The other tackle is more or less debatable. I have given it to Johnson of Northwestern, whom I regard as the best tackle in the Big Ten. Northwestern tied Michigan for the Western Conference championship and the line play of Johnson was a big factor.

Nelson of Iowa probably is Johnson's equal, but being on a losing team his work did not show to the advantage of the Northwestern tackle.
For my guards I have selected Connaughton and Shively of Georgetown, and Mountain of Illinois. Most of the experts will agree on the Georgetown star, but there is sure to be much difference of opinion on Shively.

"He is one of the greatest guards I have ever seen in action," is the comment of Coach Bob Zuppke of Illinois as to Shively, and takes it from me. "Zuppke" has developed many a good guard.
In the Ohio State-Illinois game, Hess perhaps outplayed Shively a trifle, but on the year's play I would say Shively has done the better work. While Hess has played well, in the two games I saw him play it didn't seem as if he was up to last year's high mark.

Friedman and Joesting are cinch bets for two of the backfield positions. Friedman has been the dominant factor in Michigan's success, while Joesting at full has been practically unstopable all season. Kaer of Southern California and Mike Wilson of Lafayette are placed at the two halfback positions. Kaer has been the coast sensation of the year in football, while Mike Wilson is the leading point scorer of the east, the star of Lafayette's undefeated eleven.

Choosing between Moon Baker, Wilcox and Wilson of Lafayette is merely a tossup, but not desiring to have my backfield top heavy with Big Ten stars, Friedman and Joesting already having been named, I have given Wilson the preference. If I were a coach, any one of the three teams that I have named, with the assistance of the game's leading coaches and officials, would suit me.

DIDN'T LOSE GAME
Southern Methodist University football team didn't lose a game in 1926. It won six and tied one. Missouri was the aggregation to hold the Texans to a tie. Southern Methodist, by the way, won the Southern Conference title.

AN OLD TRICK
Having an otherwise perfect record spoiled on the final day of the football season is nothing new to Coach Rockne and his Notre Dame team. In the last few campaigns Nebraska turned the trick a couple times just as Carnegie Tech did this fall.

Billy Evans Says

What's in a name? From now on when it becomes necessary for me to make reference to "Swede" Oberlander, Dartmouth's great star, now assistant football coach at Ohio State University, it will be as Jim, not "Swede." He was christened A. J., but he much prefers plain Jim. Thereby hangs an interesting tale.

Recently Oberlander was in Cleveland discussing the results of the past football season with the many enthusiastic alumni of Ohio State in that city. Prior to being called upon to talk on the State team of 1926 and next year's prospects, someone asked Oberlander how he became nicknamed "Swede" and whether or not he liked it.

He's Not a Swede
Without making any comment as to his preference between "Swede" and Jim, Oberlander said someone tacked the name on him probably because he looked like a Swede, he is a striking blonde, or else the name created the impression.

As a matter of fact there is no Swedish blood coursing through Oberlander's veins. He is just a plain New Englander, an honest-to-God Yankee.

During his college career at Dartmouth, Oberlander, to the world at large, was known as "Swede," the sport writers being quick to take up the nickname after someone had so tagged him. However, to the student body and coaches he was just plain Jim Oberlander.

Veteran Coaches
Now for the story as related by Oberlander which will explain any aversion he may have to the name of "Swede," and why.

After being appointed as an assistant to Coach Wilce at Ohio State, he was invited to attend the conference of coaches, which is an annual event of the football mentors shortly after the season closes. Aside from taking up the same old, same old, there is much merriment at these conferences. The older coaches poke fun at the new ones just as do the big league stars at the bushers in the spring training camps.

Knute Rockne of Notre Dame and Major Cavanaugh of Boston College are two of the veteran cut-ups who have much fun at the expense of the new recruits to the coaching game.

Rockne is a Norwegian, which is the next door to a Swede, while Cavanaugh is nothing but Irish.

Retort Courtous
Oberlander, it seems, while talking with another newcomer, noticed Rockne and Cavanaugh in distant conversation close by. They were discussing dumb plays when Rockne, recalling a "bone" that one of his "Fighting Irish" had pulled, said to Cavanaugh:

"Who can be more stupid than a thick Irishman?"
"Why, a smart Swede," replied Cavanaugh. Then they both laughed and walked away.
"Of course they were talking for my benefit," says Oberlander. Oberlander, one of the smartest players that ever trod a gridiron, is Jim from now on for me. He's not a smart Swede.

Indoor Sports Banish Football To Oblivion

FIVE FOUR-ROUND BOUTS AT SMOKER

Plans Go Forward Rapidly For C. B. A. A. Affair Week From Tomorrow Night.

Now that winter and the accompanying cold weather are apparently here to stay and interest is being turned toward indoor attractions, the smoker which will be staged by Cheney Brothers Athletic Association on December 15, a week from tomorrow night, should prove a complete success.

Five four-round amateur boxing bouts will be staged in the Cheney hall ring and it is expected there will be a large attendance, as only fifty cents is being charged. Boxers will take part from Rockville, Manchester and possibly Stafford Springs.

The program will be conducted on an amateur basis similar to the ones which Manchester fistic fans have watched in Hartford. The directors are hoping the affair will go over big because on this outcome will depend the chances of staging similar affairs from time to time.

At New York—Billy Petrolie of Fargo, N. D. and Cuddy De Marco of Pittsburgh, Pa., drew, six rounds. Eddie O'Dowd of Columbus, O., won the decision over Dominick Petrone of New York in six rounds.

At Perth, Amboy—Abe Goldstein, former bantamweight champion, won the decision over Sam Sanchez, of Mexico, in ten rounds. At Buffalo—Lou Paluso won the decision over Johnny Sacco of Buffalo, ten rounds.

At Harrisburg—Rocky Smith won the decision over Jeff Stevenson, eight rounds. At Pittsburgh—Pete Zivic won the decision over Tim Drexler, ten rounds.

At Fort Worth, Tex.—Pinky Mitchell, of Milwaukee and Clyde Hull of Faith, S. D., drew, ten rounds.

Three Basketball Games On Deck For This Week; Time Ripe For Bowling Matches.

With football a gone, but not forgotten, entertainment, the eyes of sport fans today shifted completely to indoor sports—basketball and bowling. Both have already commenced to do their stuff but the populace has apparently been more or less unaware of the more or less disgusting north-south football controversy which seems to have ended disastrously for all concerned.

Three Games Here
Basketball is due to swing into full speed this week. Three home games will be played. South Manchester High school will pry the lid off its 1925-27 season when it takes the Rec gym floor Friday night in defense against Hartford Public High. Saturday night the Plainville Panthers will oppose the newly organized Rec Five.

It is expected now that football has been expunged from the mind, the attendance at basketball light will greatly increase. There is no reason why it should not. It will be noticed that in the St. Mary's lineup are none less than four of the seven players selected by the Herald as the best produced in Manchester for the year.

Real Talent
Any Manchester team that has such luminaries on its roster as Harold Madden, Leroy Norris, George Stavitsky and last, but far from the least, Elmo Mantelli, is more than deserving of support. This quartet consists of all but one of the five Manchester boys who compose the well-known Plainville field five which last season cut a wide swath in basketball circles about the state. It was one of the few basketball clubs which proved a financial success.

Bowling has been thriving more successfully than ever before according to local promoters of the sport. Many leagues are in full swing and individual matches are also abounding. Probably in a short while matches between the north and south will be arranged. If football is to be taken as a criterion, it might not be bad policy to start negotiations immediately. A match between the north and the south ought to be a rousing success now. The time is ripe, and the feeling bitter.

Broken Threads

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE To the home of PROF and MOLIE ELWELL in Camdentown, Ind., one night in October, 1898, comes MARTHA DALTON, a nurse, bearing a woman who had fainted on the train on which Martha had been traveling.

Elwell is an artist. He has a son, JIM, aged 5. Late that night two girls are born to the woman, who dies without revealing her identity. Her attire indicated she was a person of wealth and refinement. The Elwells adopt the girls.

The story then moves forward 18 years. The twins, now growing to beautiful womanhood, have been named MARGARET and ELIZABETH and nicknamed RUSTY and BETTY.

America enters the World War and Jim Elwell enlists with the first. Two nights before he leaves, he discovers that one of the twins loves him and that he loves her. His mother, coming out of the house, discovers him sitting under the trees.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER VIII "JIM, what are you doing? What are you mooning about out here? Both girls and Prof and I have been wondering where you were."

She came close to him and looked into his face, showing distinctly in the moonlight. And whether it was a mother's intuition or instinct or whatever it was that told her, Mollie knew from what she saw there that something big and wonderful had come into her son's life that night. And her woman's heart—the heart of the wife and the mother, too—also told her what that something was. But it didn't tell her which.

"Won't you tell me, Jim?" she asked, putting her hands up to his shoulders. "Won't you tell Mollie, son?"

Both girls, she told him, had left the parlor a few minutes after Jim. "One went upstairs, I know, for I heard the stair door creak. The other I heard go out through the kitchen, but which one it was I don't know."

Jim was silent, staring at the moonlight. "Which girl was it, Jim, that came out here?" his mother continued almost pleadingly. "For I know, of course, that whichever it was she is the girl—the girl you will wear in your heart when you go away. Which was it Jim? Was it Betty or Rusty?"

Jim Elwell put his arms around his mother and hugged her. But he made no answer just then to her question. After a moment she asked it again and then he told her—all but the name of the girl, and he told her why he couldn't tell that.

He might, he said, never come back. That was an all-too-likely possibility which, of course, they both had to accept.

"And you, Mollie, have been the only mother the girls ever have known. You have always loved them both and love them now, I am sure, equally as well."

Would it not be natural, he continued, if his mother knew which of his two little pals he now loved as a sweetheart that she would love her as his sweetheart also and just a little bit more, perhaps, than the other?

It was hard for him to make his reason clear, hard to voice his feelings about it.

"If I never come back," he went on quickly, forestalling his mother's

"Both of you lose," he announced judiciously.

reply. "Then our secret will never be known. She promised me tonight that she would never tell until I gave her the word."

"And now, Mollie dear," he concluded, "won't you also give me your promise, the promise to make no further effort to find out until I come back which is my pal and my sweetheart, too? Won't you, dearest and bestest of mothers?"

And thus it came about that "the dearest and bestest of mothers" gave to her son her promise. Gave it half laughingly at what she termed a silly idea of his. And half tearfully, too, for she understood something of the thoughtfulness and unselfishness behind his request.

"Tell the girls to come out," Jim called after her as she started back toward the house, "both of 'em. With such a moon two girls aren't any too many!"

Clever Jim! Mollie Elwell laughed softly to herself as she recrossed the lawn. At the kitchen door she turned and looked up at the moon shining down in majestic splendor. A sweetheart moon. It had been Prof's and her moon—was their moon still. Now it was Jim's moon, too, and she, a sweetheart mother, was now love's messenger. But to which girl was she carrying the message? Was it Betty? . . . Or was it Rusty?

She found the twins in the kitchen, both of them looked and acted as if they had been caught stealing the cat's cream. How, Mollie Elwell asked herself in exasperation, could a person tell which was the one she was looking for when the eyes of both were telling the same story?

"Jim wants you two—wants both of you," she told them with a little break in her voice. "He wants you to come out and help him look at the moon. He talks as if he's been moonstruck!"

"Oh!" gasped Betty. "Oh-oo!" breathed Rusty, and "Oh-oo!" sounded the echo as the screen door slammed behind the two forms in lavender dresses and they vanished in the shadow cast by the windowed been aware for a long time. But now as he looked at them he realized that they were not merely pretty. They were the very essence, the embodiment of loveliness—glorious youth and radiant health. And their cheeks glowed more ruddily than usual this morning at the prospect of the day's adventure with Jim.

Mollie Elwell, busy with breakfast, felt the touch of soft fingers on her forehead and looked into the velvety brown eyes of Rusty.

"Yes, dear," she said inquiringly. "Oh, Mollie darling," breathed the guileless youngster. "Ever with just a hint of wistfulness in the dulcet tones, 'mayn't we—sister and I—mayn't we wear our diamond ring today? You know it fits our finger extra tight and we're so careful 'Mayn't we, Mollie darling?'"

Prof Elwell snorted and then almost choked. Then he apologized quickly and laughed until he almost cried. Jim grinned widely and Mollie turned to her, putting, Betty, noting the smile, sighed happily and emitted a ladylike little giggle. Rusty waited tensely.

"Yes, dear," answered the lady of the house softly after a quick glance at Prof Elwell. "You may if you wish."

"Well, I should say so!" exploded Prof. "Most emphatically so—after that!"

He leaned over and wiped his eyes with the corner of Mollie's apron. "Indeed yes!" he tacked on for good measure. "That's certainly good news! Shades of Socrates and Xantippe, what pathos!"

His glance again sought that of his better half and his eyelids drooped ostentatiously.

"Mayn't WE wear OUR new Sunday bristles, Mollie darling?" he misquoted in a shaky voice.

The twins turned to him, putting, and he hastened to square himself with them.

Then, after "Mollie darling" had restored a proper decorum to the breakfast table, Jim drew a coin from his pocket and slipped it in the air, catching it as it dropped.

"Heads or tails, Betty?" he queried, eyeing the young lady on his left. "Just to see who wears it first? You know, it's the greatest, you know, and we'll have to decide this fair and square. Speak up or forever hold your peace."

Betty was still for a breathless moment. "Heads!" she hazarded, her eyes shining.

Jim slowly opened his hand. The coin probably was a nickel, or had been, but it was so worn now on both sides that it was impossible to determine which side was heads and which tails.

"Both of you lose," he announced judiciously. "You mean you three are—are going to Chicago tomorrow?" she asked blankly.

"Yes," and Jim Elwell's grin expanded to its limit, "we-uns reckoned we'd like to if you-uns don't object."

"Him-um," said Prof in a release of breath as he turned to the lady of the house, "well, I guess it'll be all right with we-uns, won't it, Mollie?"

"Why—why yes, of course," his wife replied slowly, and tried to make her voice ring natural. "But you'll be back tomorrow night sure, won't you?"

"Surest thing! Back tomorrow night on the Flyer!"

Betty and Rusty, resplendent in their glad raiment, sat side by side at the breakfast table. The occasion had called for their newest and sheepest silk stockings, their new high-heeled patent leather low shoes and their trim, tailored suits of navy blue tulle. Their hats, of dark blue straw, had been flung carelessly on a broad window sill in the dining room.

Two distinctly pretty girls they were. Prof Elwell noted to himself, and it was a truth of which he had today as it was a thousand years ago. The material marriage is now an approved custom in all classes. And as mothers have learned greater and worldly wisdom, they have learned to begin early to make allies of their daughters in the matrimonial campaign. They start at the cradle to preach the doctrine of the "creditable marriage," which translated means "a good catch."

You cannot blame girls for growing up to think that the only desirable marriage is the materialistic one with worldly gain behind it. That is one change that 30 years has made. But the results are the same. You cannot change these hearts of ours. A loveless marriage is bound to end in unhappiness, and that usually means divorce.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

There's Horse Radish! "Oh, you'll get to the age soon enough when your eyes are especially pleasurable, interesting, or worth getting up for, and you wonder how you're going to keep going for several dozen years more with nothing more to look forward to than horse-radish with your roast beef and an occasional pair of silk stockings."

She Had Fame, Too! A woman 10 or 15 years my senior said that to me a few years ago. It puzzled me. There was no doubt about her sincerity. Her eyes were wistful and bored. I puzzled over it. Why should she be? She had everything that was my own goal. If they were not worth while for her, was it possible that they weren't for anyone? She was a famous writer. Her serial stories ran in the world's largest circulation magazine, to come out in gay book covers the minute the serial stopped, and to sell like hot cakes the world over. She had money for a beautiful home, all the travel she wanted, and yet life seemed inane to her.

Preached at Her! Ten or 15—years ago. I was younger then. I delivered homilies to her in the silent recesses of my own heart. If she was bored, the fault was within herself—not in life. I didn't believe her for a minute. There was so much to do and see in this world—books to write, hiking trips through England, stopping at old inns where Queen Elizabeth slept that night in carriage conveniently broke down right by that inn door. There was Egypt, and lots of girls worked out ways to go on exploring expeditions to Galapagos and Thibet. Golly, one life was a lot for the things in this little world one wanted to see and own and feel and do.

When You're a Kid! Do you remember your drowsy waking-up on Christmas morning when you were a child? Even before your eyes are opened, you feel pleasant. Something was happening today. As the drowsiness lifted a little, the pleasurable something took more definite form. It was Christmas day. Your stockings were hanging down there by the fireplace. It was full of surprises. What a beautiful day it was going to be—one eye half open you saw the snow outside, there might be a new sled and skates. But with all that wonderful day ahead, you just wanted to stay there in the warm bed talking about the stocking downstairs, and pretty soon you went to sleep again.

Grown-ups, Too! We grown-ups retain many childish attributes. One of them is the waking up with the feeling that today is a pleasurable day—something nice is going to happen today. As the drowsiness lifts and the "something" takes definite form, it may be nothing more than breakfast, a new dress you bought yesterday, and are going to wear today, a luncheon date, a new book you'll read on the car to work—but the point is, that there is a zest to life. It's a new day!

Just Another Day? Then comes the day that's just another day. No particular favor as one meets it. Just another day. Just the same old routine. Get up, dress, breakfast, take a car to work, pound out the column, write some stories, read the mail, read the paper, eat for lunch, in again, write some more, go home eat dinner hear the day's gossip from the home tribe, read, turn on the radio, mend some stockings, play the piano, answer the telephone. Bed.

Now if there's just one such day, "just another day," or if it's only once in a while. But begins to come the time when it's chronic. Most every day is "just another day." A long steady die of them. That childlike instinct of recognizing gaudy days as "just days" seems gone. neo worries. Is one getting old? Is one really doomed for just years and years of nothing more interesting to look forward to than horse radish with roast beef? Isn't there anything that's really fun anymore? One thinks of that hiking trip through old merrie Englandsome summer. Oh, sort nice, but the beds might not be clean and you'd surely get blistered heels. That house you were going to have some day up there on the hill with the woods behind it and the river below? That house with its big fireplace and built-in bookcases and old early American furniture, well, it is that old m'edoon you had made into a desk? Ah, such a bother! You'd have so many things to see to the furnace to fill and the lawn to mow and the new coats of paint. Apartment life is really so much simpler and so on.

Easy for what? What is one going to do with all the time left? you can't read all the time, or go on for years listening to the radio or playing bridge or taking with friends, or going to shows, or—well, it is just the natural accompaniment to the tone of getting old, or is it a temporary spasm, and how long does the spasm last? And is there any cure? And if not, how does one manage to get along for several dozen more years? (And since the subject seems rather hazy, there's nothing to do but continue this tomorrow.)

SHE GOT A BARGAIN!

Miss McCoy Abandoned Trip Abroad and Won a Husband.

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN New York—Ten years ago, Margaret McCoy lost a trip to the Far East and won Brock Pemberton, the theatrical producer, as a husband. She still thinks she got the best of the bargain.

Marriage in her case was one of those accidents that happen in the midst of well-laid plans, changing in an instant the whole future course of life. Miss McCoy, originally an Orange, N. J., girl, returned to spend a winter in New York after several years spent in studying vocal music in Berlin and Paris. She intended that spring to take an extended trip to Sumatra, India and other remote lands of the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Brock Pemberton

But she had not counted on Brock Pemberton. He was then a young dramatic critic on the New York Times, fresh from his home town of Emporia, Kansas, and bent on conquering New York with his pen, as William Allen White had prophesied he could do.

At First Sight? Pemberton met Miss McCoy at a studio party given for her by Greta Torpeda, the singer. He admits that he liked her at first sight—especially because she had a pleasant voice and wore a pretty dress. He has always loved music and appreciated artistic clothes, almost as much as his wife does.

Margaret McCoy gave up the trip to the Far East, announced her engagement to Brock Pemberton, and was married in December, 1915, all within the space of two months. She says she didn't even regret the loss of the trip to Asia.

Ever since their marriage, the Pembertons have lived in New York, when they were not traveling abroad. The success of Brock Pemberton began when he produced "Enter, Madame," a play which swept Broadway off its feet and then went through the country with equal triumph.

Mrs. Pemberton found her love of clothes useful in her husband's business. Several years ago she became official supervisor of costumes for all his plays. She not only visualizes the necessary outfits for each actor and actress, but shops for the gowns and hats, the shoes and hose and minor accessories of each wardrobe.

Praised by Critics Her unusual creations for Katherine Cornell in the glamorous role of Inez March, in "The Green Hat," were given credit by many critics for contributing much to the play's effectiveness.

"It isn't often that a wife has such a perfect chance to follow her chosen profession in her own husband's business," she says. "We've always worked so nicely together and enjoyed each other's hobbies so fully that we had no energy left for quarrels."

HERE'S MOST POPULAR OF SPANISH TYPE BUNGALOWS

The Orlando In all parts of the country, the demand for the Spanish bungalow is growing. This model, the Orlando, is typical of the sturdy, but inexpensive kinds being constructed in many sections.

The Orlando is efficiently and compactly built, but offers a real home for the small family. There are five large rooms, a separate breakfast nook, and hallway connecting all the rooms, yet the house occupies only a 28 foot front and is not the type that requires large surrounding space to set it off to advantage.

The bath is conveniently located and in the rear of the house. Front and back porches are partly enclosed and the refrigerator is iced from the outside. There is a large fireplace and ample closet space for the bedrooms.

The breakfast nook, although adjoining the kitchen, really is a separate room. Notice the wealth of windows through the house. This is the type that is made doubly attractive by the use of awnings.

Construction is of tile and stucco so arranged as to give extraordinary coolness in summer and warmth in winter. The cost, complete, is $3,500.

Complete information about the cost of this house can be obtained from Standard Homes Corporation, Colorado Building, Washington, D. C. Complete plans and specifications also can be purchased from this company.

EARRINGS ARE "IN" Earrings have passed the experimental stage. While they are no longer featured in such bizarre shapes and designs, they are developed in diamonds and precious stones more elegantly than ever before.

YOUTHFUL FROCKS Gauze ribbons in delicate shades are used on the party frocks of the extremely young.

EXPENSIVE, TOO A dinner ring that is all the most exacting woman could ask for has a huge black and white pearl arranged in a diagonal line, and square diamonds filling in the spaces between.

JEWELLED COLLAR Paris is responsible for the fad of wearing a jewelled tuckie of generous size at the back of the collar.

MILK VALUABLE ITEM IN DIET OF GROWING BOY

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The addition of one pint of milk a day to a diet which satisfied the appetite of growing boys converted an average gain of weight of 3.35 pounds per boy into one of 6.38 pounds, and produced an average annual increase in height from 1.84 inches to 2.63 inches.

This betterment in nutrition, by actual experiment was proved to be due, not to the relatively small increase in the fuel value of the dietary nor to the extra protein supplied in the milk, but to the specific qualities of milk as a food.

Experiments were undertaken under the auspices of the Medical Research Council of Great Britain as a part of an extensive series of studies of the child. The experiments were controlled, since they covered the observation of five or six hundred boys living in a colony near London.

An analysis was first made of the amount of food which these boys were receiving under the standard diet and the average rate of growth. The diets were then modified by the addition of milk and butter in specified amounts. Housing experiments were standard and did not vary. During

The American marriage market, that exchanges its millions for foreign titles, with a bride and groom thrown in, is quite as active as it was thirty years ago.

The much-discussed annulment of the Marlborough-Vanderbilt alliance, and its manner of having been procured, many be out of the ordinary, but the American public is no stranger to the marriage of convenience.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, the cousin of the former Duchess of Marlborough, says in an article, "that such sales are not uncommon among the socially elect, and that there is now one family in New York City which for the past ten years has exerted its every effort to form an alliance with the British Crown."

"If the Parliament of Great Britain," says Mr. Vanderbilt, "were to set aside 'a certain ceremony' required, precedent to such a marriage, it is possible that a New York girl not so distantly related to the writer (Mr. Vanderbilt) would become a future queen of England."

The chances are fair that she won't, but it shows that in thirty years the custom of the marriage barter has not changed. Socially the evil is far-reaching. Nothing spreads like class example. "The king can do no wrong," is as true today as it was a thousand years ago.

The material marriage is now an approved custom in all classes. And as mothers have learned greater and worldly wisdom, they have learned to begin early to make allies of their daughters in the matrimonial campaign. They start at the cradle to preach the doctrine of the "creditable marriage," which translated means "a good catch."

You cannot blame girls for growing up to think that the only desirable marriage is the materialistic one with worldly gain behind it. That is one change that 30 years has made. But the results are the same. You cannot change these hearts of ours. A loveless marriage is bound to end in unhappiness, and that usually means divorce.

IMPUDENT For southern wear is an impudent little sport dress of pink wool trimmed with embroidery in cherry colored wool.

DEBS LIKE THEM Little straight coats of gold or silver lame cloth lined with brilliant, going to show, or well, it is just the natural accompaniment to the tone of getting old, or is it a temporary spasm, and how long does the spasm last? And is there any cure? And if not, how does one manage to get along for several dozen more years?

PINK AND GOLD An evening slipper of bright blue satin is edged with gold leather and adorned with pink satin flower on the vamp.

RIBBON TRIMMING An effective trimming on dark serge and silk frocks is the use of bands of different, but harmonious colors in gros grain ribbon.

INTELLIGENCE TESTS

A FOREIGN STAR

All of these questions are concerned with the theater. News from the stage and screen are included. The actress in the accompanying picture made such a success in foreign productions that she was brought to America to play in the United States studios. Her name and the answers to the other questions appear on another page: 1-Who is shown in the accompanying picture? 2-Is Dolores Costello a blond or a brunette? 3-Who plays the title role in the movie picture 'The Return of Peter Grimm'? 4-Who is author of the play 'Icebound'? 5-What title of nobility did Gloria Swanson receive by marriage? 6-Who plays the lead in Belasco's 'Fanny'? 7-Who plays the lead in the picture 'The Quarterback'? 8-What was the maiden name of Charlie Chaplin's present wife? 9-What stars lead in the picture, 'We're in the Navy Now'? 10-Who plays 'Zeile' in 'The White Black Sheep'?

SENSE AND NONSENSE

More folks might attend church, if they were shown they were welcomed by being welcomed.

When a man doesn't want to lie himself he quotes statistics.

Teacher: "If there are any dumb-bells in this room, please stand up." A pause, then finally Johnny stood up.

Teacher: "What, do you consider yourself a dumb-bell?" Johnny: "Well, not exactly that, teacher, but I hate to see you standing all alone."

It takes a string of figures to make a man important enough for the gravure section of the Sunday paper; but one good figure is all a woman needs for publicity.

Home, home, sweet, sweet home, When the bedbugs doth bite In the dead of the night No matter where you roam, I'll have this much to say That you'll kneel down and pray And give thanks that there are no bedbugs at home.

"The man who gets by on his looks isn't going very far."

When certain people find steady work you know business is booming.

They say that the meek shall inherit the earth, but you can imagine how much of it there will be left after the inheritance tax collectors and the estate lawyers get through with it.

It has been a long time since eggs were cheap enough to tint whiskers and vest fronts with.

A young rookie at one of the western camps was the victim of much guffing. One night while he was on guard the tall figure of one of the officers loomed up in the darkness before him. "Who goes there?" he challenged.

"Major Moses," replied the officer.

The rookie, scenting a new joke, said cheerfully, "Glad to meet you, Moses, old thing. Advance and give the Ten Commandments."

Featherless Bipeds Fine feathers make fine birds, they say, But ah, the girls have chucked So many of their clothes away The creatures look have plucked.

The chief difference between a boy born in the United States and one born in Mexico is that the American boy may become President and the Mexican will if he isn't careful.

"What would you want to do that for?"

"I wouldn't. I'd buy an expensive radio."

The airplane sailed on through the air. The Tinies didn't know or care how long they'd have to ride before they reached old Santa Land. They only knew their hearts were filled with thoughts of fun and they were thrilled to think that when the plane reached there, they all would be on hand. Then Oppy whispered, "Bless my soul! I found a dandy little hole and we can all look out and see the queer things passing by. Oh, my, what wondrous little stars. I wonder if it goes by Mars. It seems to me that I've been told it's up here in the sky." The whirling motor made him shout. You see it almost drowned him out. You know a motor always makes a lot of noise. Then Carpy peeked out in the air and shouted, "Hey! Look over there! The funny moon is laughing. What a nice life he enjoys." And, sure enough, the moon on high sent peels of laughter o'er the sky. And every little Tynimite took turns at looking out. Then, when a mile or more was cleared the jolly moon man disappeared. The Tinies still were wondering what it was he laughed about. Said Scouty, "Someone's got to keep on watch while all the rest get sleep. I'll be the first to take my turn. You'd better close your eyes." How Scouty's weary eyes did ache. 'Twas hard for him to keep awake, while cooped up in the airplane that was sailing through the skies. It seemed that hours and hours had gone. Then came the breaking of the dawn. Then Scouty peeked out in the light and had a thrill—or scare. He shouted, "Hey, you Tinymites. Wake up and see the wondrous sights. A funny land is just below. I guess we're almost there." (To be continued)

WELL ATTENDED MEETING AT BUCKLAND ASSEMBLY HALL

About 90 members attended the monthly business meeting and entertainment of the Buckland Parent-Teacher Association at the school assembly hall last evening.

Miss Isabel Moore, school nurse in the Eighth District, gave an enlightening talk on the work that is being done for the underprivileged children who attend our Open Air schools.

An excellent program of entertainment was provided by a committee headed by Mrs. David Armstrong, in which thirty children took part. They had been previously drilled by Miss Sullivan and the other teachers and gave a creditable performance, as follows:

The Three Bears, Grade 2.
 Solo, Daddy's Sweetheart, Marlon Lathrop.

Little Red Ridinghood, Grade 2.
 Recitations, "The Reason Why" and "When Mama was a Little Girl," Virginia Armstrong.
 Vocal duet, "Tying Apples on a Lilac Tree," Doris Cole and Niel Case.

Folk dances by Grade 2.
 Wand drill, pupils grades 4, 5, 7.
 Mrs. Nina Fogli acted as pianist for the songs and dances.
 Coffee, ice cream and cake was served.
