H. A. NETTLETON TO ASSIST HEAD OF TROLLEY CO.

Change in Operations Makes Manchester Man Assistant
Superintendent of All Lines—Will Reside Here.

Henry A. Nettleton for 18 years superintendent of the Manchester division of the Connecticut Company, becomes assistant superintendent of all the Connecticut Company lines with the abandonment of the local office and car-burns. It was announced today. Nathaniel J. Scott, superintendent of the Connecticut Company told The Herald today that Mr. Nettleton would have charge of the eastern lines of the trolley company.

Henry A. Nettleton

As superintendent of the Manchester division, Mr. Nettleton had charge of all lines east of Burrside. His new position, which is a big advancement, places him over the Glastonbury, East Hartford, Windsor and Burrside lines in addition to those in the old Manchester division.

Knew of Promotion
Mr. Nettleton had not been told of his appointment as assistant to Mr. Scott when interviewed by The Herald today. He had been given to understand that he was in line for promotion, however, and the announcement was not a surprise to him.

Mr. Nettleton has been with the Connecticut Company 31 years. He started as a clerk in the local office on July 29, 31 years ago. Within a few years he was made cashier and in 1908 he succeeded John L. Adams as superintendent of the Manchester division. He has remained in that position since that time and has succeeded in making the South Manchester, Rockville and local lines among the most efficient of those of the Connecticut Company controls.

Will Live Here
The promotion will not take Mr. Nettleton away from Manchester. His interests and those of the Connecticut Company which he will control will be in Hartford and he will continue to make his home here.

WOMAN OF FAMOUS LINEAGE A SUICIDE

Mrs. Louise Hewitt of New York Leaps to Death From Sixth Story Window.

New York, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Louise Hewitt, 25-year-old daughter of William Schieffelin, wealthy retired drugist and prominent in the younger society set, committed suicide today by leaping from the window of her sixth story apartment. She had been suffering from a nervous breakdown, police said.

Mrs. Hewitt was a descendant of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt and of John Jay, first chief justice of the United States.

Mrs. Hewitt's husband, Abram, a graduate of Oxford and now studying law at Columbia University, was not in the apartment when the tragedy occurred. He is a great grandson of Peter Cooper, founder of Cooper Union, and a grandson of the late Mayor Hewitt of New York.

The Hewitts were married in March, 1924, and the event was one of the most fashionable gatherings of the season.

EXECUTE 14 GANGSTERS TO STOP MOSCOW CRIME

Moscow, Dec. 9.—Fourteen gang leaders convicted of having committed 57 robberies in Moscow recently were executed today. Justice moved with the utmost speed. The fourteen were sentenced to death this morning and their executions were carried out this afternoon. Explaining the swiftness of the executions, the authorities declared that only extreme measures would check the present crime wave in Moscow.

FATE OF 36 MINERS IN BLAST UNKNOWN

33 Badly Burned, Brought to Surface in Indiana; Rest Are Far Underground.

Francisco, Ind., Dec. 9.—Thirty-six miners were believed dead and six in mine No. 2 of the Francisco Mining company, following a dust explosion at 6:20 here this morning. Thirty-three miners, all badly burned, four or five of whom were believed to have been fatally injured, already have been taken out of the wrecked mine, officials said.

286 Feet Down.
The entombed men are 286 feet below the surface. Rescue crews were working frantically. Officials said they thought they might be able to get out all of the entombed men.

The fate of the 36 men was not definitely ascertained although reports were current that a number of them were dead.

J. R. Henderson, manager of the mine, expressed confidence that most of the entombed miners would be rescued in a few hours although he admitted no one knew the extent of the cave-in.

There are 125 competent rescue workers mobilized for the rescue work. Henderson said, "We are sending down rescue gangs in shifts of 25 men."

CRITICIZES TAFT FOR HIS CARNEGIE ANNUITY

Democrat Says It Puts Chief Justice Under Obligations to Steel Corporation.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Sharply criticizing the acceptance by Chief Justice Taft of an annuity of $10,000 a year from the estate of Andrew Carnegie, Rep. Rainey, Democrat of Illinois, today proposed to strike from the judges salary bill the provision to increase his salary.

Under the Reed bill, which the House took up this afternoon, Justice Taft's salary would be increased from $15,000 to $20,500 a year.

Rainey told the House that much of the income of the Carnegie estate is derived from bonds of the United States Steel Corporation. He read a "canon of ethics" prepared by Taft in which the chief justice declared federal judges should carefully guard against being placed under obligations to great corporations.

BORAH SPRINGS PLAN FOR PEACE IN WORLD

Would Invite All Nations to Join in Forming Copy of U. S. Supreme Court.

Washington, Dec. 9.—All the nations of the earth would be asked to co-operate with the United States in drafting a new code of international law and in creating a new international court modeled after the American Supreme Court, under terms of a resolution sponsored in the Senate this afternoon by Senator William E. Borah, Republican of Idaho, the Senate irconcilable leader.

The Borah resolution would also "outlaw war." The proposed courts would be enforced by "the respect of all enlightened nations upon judgments resting upon open and fair investigations and impartial decisions."

"JOHN D." FAILING ON WAY TO FLORIDA

Aged Oil Magnate Barely Able to Walk as He Leaves For Annual Vacation.

New York, Dec. 9.—John D. Rockefeller is on his way to Orlando, Fla., today on a private car for his annual winter vacation. The aged multi-millionaire founder of Standard Oil is in a weakened condition.

Friends who saw the famous "John D." yesterday were shocked at his appearance. He could scarcely walk without assistance.

The car was stocked with cases of wine bottles and several fireless cookers which carried prepared food for the aged capitalist.

DEMOCRAT HIT BY HUGE SLUSH FUND CHARGES

Tyson, Tenn. Senator, Spent $1,800,000 For Seat Is Allegation G. O. P. Will Push For Probing.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The sensational charge that Senator Lawrence D. Tyson, Democrat of Tennessee, spent $1,800,000 to win his senatorial campaign two years ago featured a request filed with the Senate elections committee for a complete investigation of the 1924 Tennessee primary.

Republican leaders indicated they would support the request in order to open fire on senatorial elections in the south. The charges against Tyson were filed by John Neal, a defeated gubernatorial candidate.

Ignored for Two Years
Neal demanded hearings on a petition, filed with the committee two years ago by Benjamin Hooper, member of the Railway Labor Board, which alleged "gross fraud" in the nomination and election of Tyson.

The Hooper petition, signed by 200 Tennessee citizens, Neal said, had lain dormant before the committee since 1924. He asserted that the slush fund used in the senatorial primary in Tennessee was comparatively much greater than that expended in Pennsylvania and Illinois.

The question of launching new inquiries into the Pennsylvania election and the Maine primary was placed today before the Reed committee which spent the summer investigating charges of corruption and fraud in a half dozen senatorial campaigns.

The committee cannot take cognizance of the charges against Senator Tyson, because he was elected in the 1924 campaign, it was said.

Spring Attack on Vane.
The much discussed Democratic fight to prevent William S. Vane, Frank L. Smith of Illinois, from ever taking their seats in the senate was launched this afternoon when Senator Dill, Democrat of Washington, introduced resolutions which would disqualify them as Senators because of their primary campaign expenditures.

Dill's motion came without warning and surprised Republican leaders who had anticipated no such action until after the Seventieth congress has convened.

The resolutions were "laid on the table." They can be called up at any time for a vote in the Senate.

THIRD-DEGREE BOWMAN, THEN EXONERATE HIM

After 18 Hours Charleston Police Decide He Knows Nothing About Olson Boy.

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 9.—James H. Bowman, who was questioned by police on suspicion that he may know something of the whereabouts of Erdman Olson, alleged slayer of Clara Olson in Prairie Du Chien, Wis., was confined to his room today under guard. Bowman collapsed last night after almost 18 hours of continuous questioning. Police announced they are convinced he has nothing to do with the Olson case.

Alma, Dec. 9.—The youth arrested here on suspicion that he may be Erdman Olson, wanted in Prairie Du Chien, Wis., for the murder of Clara Olson, will be held until definite word is received from Wisconsin authorities.

MAIN ST. MERCHANT MISSING FROM TOWN

Isadore Katz, of Self-Service Dress Shop, Packs Up Goods and Skips.

Isadore Katz, proprietor of the Self Service Dress Shop at 97 Main street, is missing from town. His whereabouts are unknown and he took his merchandise stock with him. It is understood he owes money for his rent.

The reason for Mr. Katz's disappearance is not known. He had conducted the Self Service Dress Shop for four months coming here from New York. According to a woman who worked in the store, some of the goods were wrapped up and put in boxes Monday. That night he took away the supplies in an automobile. The next morning he did not appear.

However eleven hats and two vases of cloth flowers were left in the display window probably as an effort to conceal the fact he had left town at least temporarily. Investigation the next day resulted in finding an empty room.

It is not known whether Mr. Katz contracted any other bills here with the exception of the rent which he left unpaid. A report that he had borrowed money from the Manchester Trust Company was denied by President R. LaMotte this afternoon.

MEXICANS PROTEST 'IMPERIALISM' OF U. S.

Mexico City, Dec. 9.—A widely advertised mass-meeting of the Anti-Imperialist League of the Americas and 14 allied organizations, scheduled for last night to protest against America's attitude and to support the Mexican government policy in recognizing the Saca government of Nicaragua, was accompanied by considerable excitement even though the demonstration fell below expectations.

Prof. Roman Munez, of the Department of Education, made an appeal for support for the government and admitted that a critical situation had been created by the Mexican recognition of the Saca government. He asserted that Mexico's action was "an open challenge to Yankee imperialism," and said that 1927 would be a hard year for Mexico, with "Yankee intervention threatened."

200 Miles Road Building Best Connecticut Record

Hartford, Dec. 9.—Connecticut made a new record building roads in the past outdoor season, putting down more than 200 miles as compared with 113 miles in 1925 and 132 miles in 1924. The fact is to be reported in the annual message sent to Governor Trumbull by the State Highway Department.

Road construction this year included 65 miles of concrete surface, 123 miles of macadam and bituminous macadam. The trunk line system was improved by 53 miles of newly constructed road, 94 miles of reconstruction, while state-aid roads were upheld with 43 miles of new road and 12 miles of reconstructed road.

BABSON SEES 1927 NEW ENGLAND YEAR

Boston, Dec. 9.—"Planned economy" as opposed to haphazard, sporadic, arbitrary use of the axe is real expense control, Louis K. Liggett told members of the Chamber of Commerce today at a trade and industry luncheon, part of Chamber of Commerce Week in New England. He discussed installation and operation of expense control methods.

Economists are agreed that 1927 will be a quieter year than 1926, said Roger W. Babson, "without doubt the year will show distinctly lower stock market prices, somewhat lower commodity prices and a general easing off of business, considering the tendency as a whole," he said. "Statistics, however, suggest strongly that New England will have a better year in 1927 than in 1926. The readjustment in the shoe industry, the low price of cotton, and certain other factors strongly suggest that New England will be better off next year."

SCRAPS RED TAPE, FOILS DEPORTATION

New Haven, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Rocha Wandrow and her son Lezell will not be compelled to return to Poland, in spite of a deportation warrant issued by the government and served more than a year ago in New Haven. The Wandrows were saved by a decision issued today by Judge Edwin S. Thomas, of United States District Court which permits them to stay in this country.

"They are of good moral character, of good health, literate and not likely to become public charges," says the decision. "They are not subject to deportation and should be permitted to remain here."

Husband a Citizen.
Wandrow and two daughters have been here for some time and are now naturalized citizens. To separate the family would be a hardship, Judge Thomas declared, and that is not the intention of the government. Mrs. Wandrow and her son were ordered deported because they entered the country, the Polish immigration quota for the period was found to have been filled.

Washington, Dec. 9.—President Harding called the Washington Arms Conference, at which limitation of naval armament was agreed upon, "because of the menacing movements of Japan," E. L. Doheny declared from his trial this afternoon. This information was given him, Doheny said, by Capt. J. K. Robinson, U. S. N., retired, who assisted in the negotiations for the naval oil reserve leases.

"BUTLER" HELD FOR GEM THEFT AT WASHINGTON

New York, Dec. 9.—Josep' Fried, known to New York jewel robbers, "butler jewel robber," was arrested today in connection with the sensational robbery of a Washington society matron. He is also suspected of complicity in a number of recent New York jewel robberies, and is said to have served a number of terms in prison.

The charge on which Fried is held for extradition is the robbery of Mrs. Norman Williams, one of Washington's wealthiest matrons, who she was entertaining a woman guest on March 7 last, four armed men suddenly walked into her drawing room, bound and gagged her and her guest as well as seven servants, and took jewels worth $2,500 from a hidden vault in the room. Fried was found in the house at the time, and disappeared immediately after the crime.

"Did you know about the loan to Mr. Fall?" asked Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel.
"Yes."
"Who told you?"
"My husband," he said. Secretary Fall needed it to buy a ranch, and I said I would be glad to let him have it."
"Did you know about the physical details of the loan?"
"No, but when, on November 30, I suggested we have Ned (her son) in for dinner, my husband said: 'Ned has gone to Washington. I've made the loan.'"
"Did you see the note for this loan?"
"When Ned came back."
"When was it in its entirety?"
"Yes."
"Present at Fearing."
"Were you present when it was torn?"
"Yes."
"Will you state why it was torn?"
"We were getting ready to leave for California. My husband was looking at the note. Suddenly he said: 'If anything should happen to me and this note were found in my wallet, the executors would press immediately for payment, and Mr. Fall would be worse off than ever. I shall tear off the signature and give it to you and keep the body myself. Then, if anything should happen, you will know, and Mr. Fall will not be embarrassed.'"
"Did you keep the signature?"
"Yes, in a deposit box in the Security Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles."
"Did Mr. Doheny ask for it late in 1923 or early in 1924?"
"Yes, but I looked in the deposit box and didn't find it."
"Later did you?"
"Was in envelope."
"Yes, in an envelope in that same box."
"Have you got it with you?"
"Yes, here in my pocketbook."

U. S. REQUESTS MEXICO TO HOLD RUM SHIP

Mexico City, Dec. 9.—Ambassador Sheffield has formally requested that the Mexican government detain the alleged French rum runner, Arsene J., at Puerto, Mex., pending an investigation of the ship's escape from the custody of the Coast Guard at New Orleans and the kidnapping of two prohibition agents.

The ambassador's request is made under the provisions of the anti-smuggling treaty negotiated at El Paso. The embassy holds that the cargo of the Arsene J. is liable to confiscation either by the American or Mexican government.

The foreign office said the situation is made difficult by the fact that the vessel is of French registry.

MIDDLETOWN THEATRE RUINED BY FLAMES

$100,000 Loss When Middlesex Burns in Three Hour Fire; Actors Lose Belongings.

Middletown, Dec. 9.—Fire starting in the basement of the Middlesex Theatre completely gutted the auditorium of the playhouse early today with a loss estimated at over $100,000. The blaze broke out at 4 o'clock this morning and firemen fought for three hours before getting it under control. A asbestos curtain and a fire-wall prevented the flames from spreading to the other parts of the building, which houses a bank and a public hall.

A stock company playing at the theatre lost all its belongings. The Middlesex Theatre is the oldest playhouse in the city, having been erected in 1822.

DOHENY'S WIFE TELLS TALE OF THE TORN NOTE

Husband Ripped Off Signature For Her to Keep to Prevent Executors From Pressing For Payment.

715 COASTGUARDSMEN CONVICTED IN A YEAR

Washington, Dec. 9.—Conspiracies with rum runners and other serious offenses led to the conviction by general courts-martial of 715 members of the United States Coast Guard in the year ending June 30, according to the annual report of that service made public today.

Out of 727 coast guardsmen placed before general courts, only twelve were acquitted. Prison sentences were inflicted upon 112 and 240 were dishonorably discharged.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Edward L. Doheny, wife of the multimillionaire oil magnate, took the witness stand at the Fall-Doheny trial today to defend her husband from charges of conspiracy in connection with leasing the Elk Hills oil reserve from ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall.

Following his mother came E. L. Doheny, Jr., who carried the "little black satchel" to Washington with $100,000 in currency for Fall.

Waiving all immunity, Mrs. Doheny told of her part in the $100,000 loan made by Doheny to Fall, which the government contends constituted a bribe.

Fall gave a demand note for the money, she declared. The note was torn in half and her husband gave her the part containing the signature. This was done, she said, so that Fall would not be pressed for the money in event that anything happened to her or to her husband.

NEGROES SEIZE TAXI FOR TRIP TO SOUTH

New Britain, Dec. 9.—Two negroes are in jail in Berlin because of the unusual means they took of going to North Carolina for the winter. They telephoned for a taxicab and asked to be driven as far as Berlin. Here they suggested the driver with a lead pipe covered with cloth. The driver was able to leap from the machine and telephoned the police. The negroes then drove off with the taxicab. Near Berlin it got stuck on the roadway. The negroes started to walk towards Berlin but were captured by the police as they were entering the city. They confessed to the police that they held up the taxi to get a car for the trip south.

COUNT SALM TOOK MONEY AS A FAVOR

Work? Certainly Not! But He Consented to Accept Cash From Countess Millicent.

New York, Dec. 9.—The separation suit brought by Count Ludvig Salm against his wife, the former Millicent Rogers, was postponed today until January 17 after the count's attorney, had requested times in which to obtain witnesses whom he said would testify to Salm's ability to support a family.

Well-defined rumors in circulation about the courthouse had it that negotiations looking to financial settlement were under way. It was developed yesterday that Col. Henry H. Rogers, father-in-law of the count, had offered him $12,000 a year to keep the Atlantic ocean between himself and his wife. This offer, the count refused.

In connection with the count's admission on the stand yesterday that his wife had given him from the thief who stole gems worth $35,000 from an automobile owned by Mrs. George Treadwell, of Albany, on Nov. 30, News of the theft was not made public until today.

Mrs. Treadwell had just returned to New York from an automobile trip through West Virginia with Queen Marie of Rumania. The jewels were in a large suitcase in Mrs. Treadwell's coupe, and were stolen while she was making a telephone call. After parking the car on the curb, she had locked the doors.

VISIONS SUPER-HIGHWAY FROM COAST TO COAST

Washington, Dec. 9.—A super highway, stretching from coast to coast, was proposed today by Senator Dupont, Republican of Delaware. The highway would pass through municipalities of less than 2,500 population, strictly avoiding the "big towns." Leasing of unused portions of a 500-foot wide right of way, set aside for future needs of military and post roads, would pay for the construction.

ORMISTON GOES TO LOS ANGELES AS A PRISONER

Found at Harrisburg By Reporter, Waives Rights and Returns to Answer McPherson Case Charges.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 9.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, wanted in Los Angeles in connection with the Almee Semple McPherson case, was arrested here early today by two Chicago detectives and a detective of the Harrisburg force.

He left for Los Angeles later in the day, having waived extradition.

Ormiston submitted to arrest willingly and expressed a desire to return to Los Angeles to answer charges of subornation of perjury and conspiracy to defeat justice.

Freely Admits Identity.
Chicago, Dec. 9.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive radio operator wanted in Los Angeles in connection with the Almee Semple McPherson case, has been located in Harrisburg, Penn., according to a copyrighted story appearing in the Chicago Herald-Examiner today.

Ormiston was found last night living in a two-story apartment in Harrisburg fronting on the Susquehanna river. He was taken under the name of "Fred Lininger."

When the Herald-Examiner reporter, accompanied by two Chicago detectives, walked in on Ormiston, he smiled and quietly admitted his identity.

"Yes, I am Ormiston," he said. "But this is only the beginning. There will be a long, hard fight before I go back to California. Also I feel that District Attorney Asa Keyes is not very anxious to have me go back for trial."

The former Almee Semple radio announcer is under indictment in California on charges with subornation of perjury and conspiracy to defeat justice.

Living on Writings
Ormiston amazed his "uninvited guests" when he explained how he had made a living since he fled from California. He stated that he has been writing articles for radio magazines and that recently he sold an article which is soon to appear under his own name in a magazine having nationwide circulation.

Ormiston declined to discuss any of the countless stories which have linked his name with indecent suggestions to the Almee Semple McPherson. But he was quite willing, according to the reporter, to talk about anything and everything else.

When the reporter, having traced him for several months, knocked last night on the door of the "Front Street flat," it was Ormiston who opened. He made no attempt at deception when he was addressed as "Mr. Ormiston."

"Come in," he said.

Sergeant Carson of the Harrisburg force was called to Ormiston's flat as soon as his identity was established.

Ormiston's typewriter was in the room. "I have to write for a living," he explained.

Then he said: "Would you gentlemen mind showing me your credentials, so I may know to whom I am talking?"

He glanced at the cards and said he was satisfied. "I really can't understand," he said, "why it has taken so long for you people to find me, considering the great number of who have been trying. For the fact is that I have made no particular effort to hide my identity."

"I have not used any disguises—aside from assuming a different name and I have not avoided public places. I have been occupying my present apartment for two months."

Where Detectives Swarmed.
"Many of the cleverest detectives in the United States have stood close enough to me for handshake and none of them recognized me. That happened at Atlantic City, July and August, when the American detective society was in convention at the Ambassador hotel."</

DOHENY'S WIFE TELLS

TALE OF TORN NOTE

together and dramatically displayed the whole note to the jury. There was no cross-examination of Mrs. Doheny. Her son was then called. "Do you recall a transaction for your father in which you got a note from Mr. Fall?" "Yes, in November, 1921, father said he was loaning Mr. Fall $100,000 to buy a ranch. On the morning of November 30, father called me and asked me to find out his balance at Blair & Co. I did and found it was only ten dollars, eleven thousand. I inquired about mine, found it had over $100,000 and so advised my father. "What did he tell you to do?" From Son's Account. "To draw $100,000 from my account and take the cash to Mr. Fall in Washington. "Anyone accompany you?" "Yes, my secretary." Young Doheny said he went direct to Fall's hotel, announced himself and delivered the money. "Mr. Fall sat down and wrote a demand note payable to my father and handed it to me. I noticed the interest rate was blank," he testified. "I asked Mr. Fall about it and he said my father hadn't mentioned that and he didn't want to dictate it, but that if none were written in, it would bear interest at the usual rate." Doheny's Own Story Doheny himself took the stand after his son had testified and said the famous $100,000 loan to Fall was a private transaction, pure and simple, between old friends and the money was not given with any idea that he would be favored in the oil leases. The defendant's left arm in a sling and showing all of his 70 years and the rigors of his illness launched immediately into an explanation of the negotiations for which he is standing trial. Frank J. Hogan, defense counsel, called for all letters passing between Doheny and officials of the government. Doheny told of his early life. At Fond Du Lac, Wis., where he was born, he worked as a book agent and surveyor; at Wichita, Kan., during an Indian massacre, he was a restaurant waiter. In 1889, he found his first mine, at Kingston, N. M., naming it "Miner's Dream." Met Fall as Miner "It was there I met Albert B. Fall, who was working in the Grey Eagle mine," said Doheny. In 1900, Doheny founded the oil company which ultimately grew into the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Company. In April, 1925, he withdrew from office in the latter, but retained his stock. "After leaving New Mexico, did you continue to know Mr. Fall?" "Yes." "Did you come in contact with him as a senator?" "Yes." "When Fall became Secretary of the Interior did he tell you anything?" "He said he had an agreement with President Harding to serve only a year." Offered the Loan "Did you loan Mr. Fall any money?" "Yes sir, $100,000." "What for?" "Early in November, 1921, he told me he wanted to acquire a ranch adjacent to his New Mexico property so he could complete his water rights. He said he thought he could get the money from Price McKinney, of Cleveland. I said in a casual way if he wanted it, he could get it from me." "He said if he could get it from other sources, he would prefer to do so." "What did he say about security?" "That he would offer his property as security." "When did you again hear from Mr. Fall?" "He called me and said he wanted to close the ranch deal but had been unable to get the money elsewhere, and reminded me of my offer. I told him I would be glad to make the loan." Wanted It in Cash. "I told him I would send him a check He said it would be more convenient in cash, as it was going to be a cash deal." Doheny then related him he had gotten the money and sent it to Washington by his son. "Mr. Fall offered to put up his old ranch and the new one as security but I told him not to both," said Doheny. "When your son returned, what did he say?" "He handed me the note and told me Fall had left the interest rate up to me and that if I fixed none, he would pay at the legal rate." Doheny next told how the note was deliberately torn in two. He gave the first part containing the signature to Mrs. Doheny so that Fall could not be pressed for payment. check He said it would be more convenient in cash, as it was going to be a cash deal." Doheny then related him he had gotten the money and sent it to Washington by his son. "Mr. Fall offered to put up his old ranch and the new one as security but I told him not to both," said Doheny. "When your son returned, what did he say?" "He handed me the note and told me Fall had left the interest rate up to me and that if I fixed none, he would pay at the legal rate." Doheny next told how the note was deliberately torn in two. He gave the first part containing the signature to Mrs. Doheny so that Fall could not be pressed for payment.

ORMISTON GOES BACK TO LOS, A PRISONER
(Continued from page 1.) "None whatever," he said, "and that is all I shall tell you on that subject until after I have consulted my attorney, Edward H. S. Martin, of Chicago." Ormiston said that in selecting an attorney to represent him he simply used the classified telephone directory when he happened to be in Chicago and took the name at random. One purpose for which he wanted counsel was for indirect dealing with the editors of radio publications. He would send his manuscript to the lawyer, who would then submit it to the magazines. Ormiston willingly left the flat with the reporter and the officers as their "guest." Mrs. McPherson Indifferent Los Angeles, Dec. 9.—Aimee Semple McPherson attaches "no significance whatsoever" to the fact that Kenneth G. Ormiston has been found in Harrisburg, Pa. She so declared herself today when informed the former radio operator of her Angelus Temple had been located. "I am not in the least concerned about or interested in Mr. Ormiston's whereabouts," the famous evangelist said. Mrs. McPherson added she was too busy with the Christmas program of her temple to be bothered about "matters that did not concern her in the least." Throughout her sensational case Mrs. McPherson has steadfastly denied that she was Ormiston's companion in his Carmel cottage, as was claimed by District Attorney Asa Hayes. Will Fight, Says Lawyer Chicago, Dec. 9.—Kenneth Ormiston will make a "last ditch" fight in Chicago against extradition to Los Angeles, Edward H. S. Martin, his attorney, announced today. Disagreeing with reports that Ormiston planned to return voluntarily to Los Angeles from Harrisburg, Pa., Martin said he was coming of his own volition to Chicago where the legal battle would begin. Will Be Prosecuted. Los Angeles, Dec. 9.—"The state will prosecute Ormiston the same as anybody else and we do not care whether he talks or not," said Deputy District Attorney E. J. Dennison. Dennison added that two Los Angeles detectives would be sent immediately to meet Ormiston and "see that he reaches Los Angeles." Lynchers Beware!

This benign looking gentleman is Judge Harry Day Reed, of the Georgia Superior Court. By the heavy sentences he recently imposed on nine self-confessed members of a lynch mob, he has proclaimed that the midnight noose is not to replace the law's orderly course in Georgia, so far as he is able to prevent it. Of the nine men who pleaded guilty before him, one was sent to the penitentiary for life, and the others were given terms of from four to twenty years imprisonment.

MAC WON'T WORRY WHERE HARNS ARE

Jack McKenna is one Connecticut company employee who will not be worried when the local headquarters move to Hartford. McKenna will not have to move to Hartford to start a run or take his car to Hartford when he finishes. McKenna, who has been a substitute dispatcher, motor-man and conductor on the local lines, will be relieved man for the Cross-town and Green lines. His hours are such that he is sandwiched between the regular men and his starting and finishing time are not on either end of the run. McKenna will not even have to go to Hartford to turn in his money.

SOUTH DAKOTA WANTS SUMMER WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Dec. 9.—An 80,000-acre tract of land in the Black Hills of South Dakota, and a lodge containing eighty rooms, were offered to President Coolidge as a site for next summer's White House. A delegation of South Dakotians, headed by Senator McMaster and W. C. Lust, of the state Chamber of Commerce, called at the White House and proffered the estate, which is known as Custer Park, and lies about 30 miles from Rapid City. The President is interested in it, but did not commit himself.

SWEDISH LUTHERANS HOLD SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT

The choir of the Swedish Lutheran church held a supper and entertainment last night in the church vestry. After the supper, at which over one hundred were served, a surprise program was given. Victor Johnson, baritone, entertained with several solos and Miss Beatrice Johnson made a hit with several readings. Rev. Ralph Mortinson, guest of the evening, gave a talk on experiences in Norway. After the program several contests were held in which Albert Anderson, Albert Robinson and Harry Erickson were victors. The evening's entertainment was closed with games and singing.

OPEN FORUM

ASKS BETTER SERVICE FROM CONNECTICUT CO. Editor, The Herald. Tuesday morning many Manchester commuters in all good faith boarded the 7:30 o'clock trolley car for Hartford. At the Center there was no trailer. En route to Hartford stop after stop was made, although there was a standing load when the car left the Center without a trailer.

Nobody wishes to be unreasonable when the trolley company has a snowstorm like this one on its hands. But ought not steps be taken to prevent a recurrence of such abuses? There is a long winter ahead, and commuters are only human.

HARTFORD REALTOR OFFERS FREE RENTAL

Local Trolleyman Also Offered Free Moving Van if They Will Take Families to Hartford.

Now that the trolley situation is the most important topic of current news in Manchester, comes further information, in regard to the situation. Local trolleyman said today that agents of T. D. Faulkner, Hartford realtor and former local man, were here yesterday with an attractive proposition in regard to moving to Hartford.

Much discussion has occurred of late in regard to whether or not the local trolleyman will remove to Hartford with their families, thus taking considerable business away from Manchester. There are about sixty families in town who have been affected by the abandonment of the car barns.

The proposition said to be offered by the T. D. Faulkner agents is that they will provide moving vans free of charge and also present such families as move with free rental for the first month. The rents are reported as $35 per month.

CALLES SCORES.

It is entirely possible that the people of this country may be forced to the conclusion, before many months are passed, that there are better business brains at the head of the Mexican government than there are at the head of the American State Department.

By engaging in the wholly extraneous enterprise of supervising the establishment of a government of Nicaragua to suit the very small number of American investors in that country, and of landing United States Marines to force the acceptance of that government on the Nicaraguan people, Mr. Kellogg gave President Calles of Mexico an opening of which that energetic person was prompt to avail himself.

Calles, completely ignoring the government established by Kellogg, has officially recognized the Scaza government, termed by our State Department as revolutionary but by Calles as a government both de jure and de facto.

This is a stroke which will immensely popularize Mexico with every country south of Yucatan, and will bring Calles and his country into sharp contrast with Kellogg and his country.

Mexico, it ought to be plain enough, is on the very verge of important industrial development. Her manufacturing interests are already surprisingly larger than most American realize. She has an abundance of cheap labor, much raw material and needs only capital, organization and direction to enable her to open up a very important competition in numerous lines of production with this country in relation to South and Central American trade.

The capital and direction she can get from various sources—Japan for one, Germany for another.

For the United States to alienate all Latin America by such dunder-headed proceedings as this Nicaraguan flop is to put a premium on ultimate Mexican ascendancy in Latin American trade which ought to come to the United States, and would, if we did not permit over-foxy secretaries of state to drive it away.

And Brother Calles is just clever enough to take advantage of the phenomenal Kellogg blundering.

Business is business, but throwing away the business of a whole continent for the sake of a shoe-string is bad business. And besides, in this case it is illegal, unfair and discreditable into the bargain.

PHONOGRAPH VS. RADIO.

An extremely interesting side-light on the development of radio is the sale of the Victor Talking Machine Company.

One of the commonest of observations, at the time when the radio was springing into popularity with a suddenness and speed altogether unparalleled in the history of advances of modern civilization, was: "This thing will put an awful crimp in the phonographs—it will make them obsolete."

It is of more than a little significance that the entire stock of the Victor company, largely family-held by relatives of the company's president, Eldridge R. Johnson, but of course more or less widely distributed as to the balance, is bid for by a big banking syndicate at the handsome figure of $115 a share. The majority of the stock is already optioned to the bankers by the Johnson holders, and the sum they are to receive for it is more than twenty-eight million dollars. Altogether the entire purchase price figures up to more than forty millions.

There is, in this, mighty little to indicate that the phonograph is a dead cock in the pit. No big financial group is paying forty million dollars for either a dead or a dying enterprise.

There is one factor in the conflict between radio and phonograph which these bankers have not overlooked, even if the majority of folk for a time did. The talking machine owner is boss of his own entertainment. The radio listener-in is not. And it is a quality of human nature that it likes to do its own picking and choosing, as well in entertainment as in food.

These bankers are betting forty million dollars that human nature is not going to change, either this year or next. And will bet forty cents that they win.

DENBY.

Former Secretary of the Navy Denby, whom everybody likes and whom nobody suspects of being anything but a straightforward, honorable gentleman, was put in a most distressing position at the Fall-Doherty trial yesterday when, after being cornered by the government's attorney in cross-examination, he had to admit in effect that he knew no more than the man in the moon about the naval oil leases which he executed.

This, in the light of "developments, looks like an almost shameful admission. It is, however, nothing of the kind. It reflects not on the personal intelligence or integrity of the former secretary of the navy but on the system which had long been in vogue of creating figure-head cabinet officers who never really had anything to do with the running of their departments.

There have been simply scores of Denbys at the nominal headship of government departments, and they served out their terms and got full credit for whatever of achievement was attributable to their departments, and nothing of blame, because it happened that nothing discreditable was done.

For that matter does anyone imagine that the present secretary of the navy, Mr. Wilbur, would have known any more about those oil leases than Denby did, if he had happened to be in the job then instead of now?

It is too bad that Denby, whom everybody likes, had to be put in such an embarrassing position. But at least he knows that no one suspects him of being in on anything crooked.

THE LAW.

"Anyway, it is the law, and the law must be obeyed and upheld." This is the final reply of proponents of Volsteadism on those rare occasions when they can be gotten to admit that there is question as to the moral and ethical success of prohibition.

The argument usually silences the wet advocate, except for the weak final shot, "Well, the law ought to be changed." Whereupon the dry smiles a smile, understanding and hugging the difficulties.

Clarence W. Darrow is one of those individuals who can, without loss of standing, say what he thinks and think what he pleases.

He says that civic disobedience to obnoxious laws which cannot be repealed has been in the past and is now one of the principal means of extending liberty.

He did not say but he might have said:

In Judea, once upon a time, the official coin of the realm, the legal tender money, was Roman. The ancient Judean coin had, in the course of time, gone the way of all mintages and had, to a great extent, disappeared. The priests of the temple at Jerusalem established a law that all Jews must pay their temple rates in the ancient coinage of Judea. Brokers set up their offices in the outer temple and sold Judean coin to the faithful at the rate of two-and-a-half of the common Roman money for one of the temple money. When the rates were paid the priests turned the Judean coin back to the brokers and they sold it over again, doing a snug little usury business in which priests and brokers divided. They were "running a corner" in the scarce coinage.

It was the law. Yet Jesus of Nazareth went into that religious brokerage office with a whip and lashed the cheats out into the street, breaking up the practice.

When Massachusetts was a rightfully subject to the British crown as it now is to the Constitution of the United States, the British government put a perfectly legal tax on tea. It was an outrage, under the circumstances of representation, but it was the law. Citizens of Boston, in open, flagrant violation of that law, went down to the docks and heaved 342 chests of tea worth $90,000 into the harbor.

That was one of the most significant steps in the chain of events that gave us our Constitution.

There is something to be said for Mr. Darrow's point of view, shocking as it may seem to many.

There are laws—and then again there are laws.

FORGETTING?

There is a war veteran in Hartford whose identity has been lost. He cannot himself trace out his own pre-war existence. But he remembers a great deal about the experiences of the hospitalized; and at an American Legion banquet last night he made a speech. He said that the women of America had forgotten about the men whose return from the shell-torn fields of battle they acclaimed with "glorious gestures of sympathy." The only women the war-victims in the hospitals ever see, he said, excepting on the rare "lolly-pop" occasions of Christmas and such festivals, are professional, salaried welfare workers—and in the nature of things such visits can bring them no savor of the "home" life for which they long.

"If they ever come back nothing on earth will be too good for them," was the practically unanimous expression of the American women's thought in 1918.

Not many then would have believed it possible that within nine years veterans would be complaining that the women no longer care.

Perhaps the man of lost identity has also lost perspective.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Dec. 9—If you would determine your qualifications as an aviator, just hop into the nearest electrical butcherchurn and have someone press the button.

If after a half hour in the butcherchurn you can emerge smiling, unflustered, and with your hair still parted, you are a fair candidate for a job as a pilot.

For that is the nearest earthly approximation of what aspirants for air pilot jobs in the army soon will all have to go through—a ride in the "whirling bathtub," known officially as the Ruggles Orientator, which is shown in the above illustration.

F. Trubee Davison, the army's secretary of aviation, has returned from an inspection trip in Texas, enthusiastic over the possibilities of the "bathtub test."

He says experiments to date indicate the orientator is an indispensable means of quickly determining who is fit to fly and who isn't.

The contraption is parked at Brooks Field, Texas, and in operation it simulates an airplane's turbulence, cart-wheelings, flip-flops, tail-spinnings and other antics. The physical, mental and neurological faculties of a rookie, if any, all are brought into play.

Old regular army men trying to join the air corps and youths seeking their first commission are placed in the tub. They are instructed to hold tight, and that if they know their stuff, they can "steer"—or direct the motion—by use of controls inside.

The fun begins when the juice is turned on and the machine and its occupants begin to skid, roll, twist and loop the loop.

The applicant's reactions under this pressure are accorded, either mechanically or by judges, and a verdict is given as to his probable possibilities as an aviator. This verdict is not final now. The candidate goes through the regular training course and a flying board officially pronounces its judgment.

But, according to Davison, the "whirling bathtub" has such a fine record for showing whether the candidate should be allowed to progress further, that he believes it will be recognized as a decisive preliminary test within another year, thereby saving everyone time, bother and money.

The victims of the orientator, once in the throes, doubtless recall H. L. Menckens' definition of man, which was, roughly, that man was a sick fly hanging precariously onto a gigantic fly-wheel spinning around in space at 185,000 miles a second.

At Christmas play and make good cheer; For Christmas comes but once a year.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 9—There remains at least one cafe in Manhattan—and this in wild, wild 42d street, if you please—where women still are forbidden to smoke.

This is, perhaps, the last stand in all the Broadway belt of the latter day conventions. One would expect such a place to be a mirror of Victorianism. On the contrary its windows reflect all the gaudy salad-and-lobster trimmings of the mid-town "quick-and-basists."

Uninitiate flappers are daily making the mistake of "lighting up a smoke" with their demi-tasse and being cautioned by waiters to stop. Their arguments are invariably more heated than one is likely to hear when a man is reprimanded.

The other day I heard an 18-year-old giving a head-waiter a five-minute speech on equal rights and modern women. In fact a man I know, who prides himself on making odd surveys, brings the report that he has noticed more smoking among fat dowagers and old-fashioned types than among any others.

Strangely enough (this place is not flooded by fat dowagers and old-fashioned women. In fact a man I know, who prides himself on making odd surveys, brings the report that he has noticed more smoking among fat dowagers and old-fashioned types than among any others.

Those who were inclined to sigh at the space accorded the passing of Valentino when measured beside that given the late Dr. Eliot may find some solace in a few figures I have just gathered.

The rush for old films in which Valentino appeared, according to a Broadway film gent, lasted for but a few weeks, whereas, a member of the who's-who of bookdom tells me, the sale of five-foot shelves goes on apace.

The West Point influence on Broadway movie theater valets by comes weakly more amusing. Not only is the military academy uniform suggested by that of the latest film palace, but the solemn discipline and carriage of these seat conductors is carefully patterned.

Going to the smoking room in the basement of one million-dollar-wonder theater the other night I was amazed to see a side door open and out came marching in double file some 50 of these "superfluous-shushers." Their heads were thrown back, their backs rigid, their feet swung out rhythmically and a "floor captain" sent them up the stairs with unsmiling severity to martial them in the aisles in time for the closing of the picture.

I learned later that the almost favorite "game" of these young men is the result of a month of schooling. Anyone searching for future valets might look them over carefully—with this warning, however: I have heard that just before performance the click of "crisp dices" may be heard as usual on the cement floors just behind the theater.

GIFTS STORED FOR CHRISTMAS DELIVERY.

Refurnish One Room This Christmas

PROBABLY you have friends who are refurnishing by yearly Christmas gifts to the home. We know dozens and dozens who are slowly, carefully, refurnishing their homes by the addition of a few new pieces each Christmas.

They work out a general layout that they would like to have, then set out to secure one or more pieces each year. Perhaps the first year it was a new davenport, then a secretary, a wing chair, a Victrola—and the little pieces that add so much to the finished appearance of a room, just seem to fill in naturally.

If it is a bedroom they are redecorating a four poster or spool turned bed is many times the nucleus for their room. Then a highboy, a chest of drawers with loose hanging mirror—and before they realize it the room is complete!

Dining rooms, kitchen, halls and dens—any room in the home can be brightened by new furniture each year through this plan. If you haven't already started to refurnish your home on the Christmas Club plan why not make this year's gift the starting point?

Have all the members of the family join together in paying for your selection. A small down payment and equally easy weekly terms until Christmas—and afterwards a whole year to pay the balance.

Come in-tonight and reserve your "gift for the home." Join the Christmas Club with its happy home lovers.

Old Master's

O Captain! my Captain! our fearful trip is done,
 The ship has weather'd every rack,
 The prize we sought is won,
 The port is near, the bells I hear,
 The people all exulting,
 While follow eyes the steady keel,
 The vessel grim and daring,
 But O heart! heart! heart!
 O the bleeding drops of red!
 Where on the deck my Captain lies,
 Fallen cold and dead.

O Captain! my Captain! rise up and hear the bells;
 Rise up—for you the flag we flung—
 —for you the bugle trills,
 For you the shrouds a-crowding,
 For you they call the swaying mass,
 Their eager faces turning;
 Here Captain! dear father!
 This arm beneath your head!
 It is some dream that on the deck
 You've fallen cold and dead.

My Captain does not answer, his lips are pale and still,
 My father does not feel my arm,
 He has no pulse nor will;
 The ship is anchor'd safe and sound,
 Its voyage closed and done,
 From fearful trip the victor ship
 Comes in with object won;
 Exult, O shores, and ring, O bells!
 But I with mournful tread,
 Walk the deck my Captain lies,
 Fallen cold and dead.
 —W. Whitman: O Captain! My Captain!

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

Jaguar

By ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n.

Would he consider us a tempting morsel on his menu? Is the jaguar, that large-spotted cat, found chiefly in South America, a man-eater?

The question has not been settled. In southern Brazil, where he attains his maximum size, it seems to be a well authorized fact that he may become a man-eater. The early accounts of the jaguar nearly all relate that he has decided preferences, and when visiting a camp he always made away with a dog first, if one were present; if not he would take an Indian or last of all a Spaniard.

However, the jaguar of northern South America and Central America has not such a bad reputation as his Brazilian neighbors, although he is a strong, powerful animal; usually he is a very wary mammal and the hunter is lucky to see one.

Strange tales are told of the relations between the jaguar and the puma, and the story which appears to be quite widely believed is that the puma or cougar of South America will befriend man when he is attacked by a jaguar, and will fight off the big black and yellow cat. But in North America the cougar has no such reputation. The jaguar is the largest carnivorous mammal of South America, the largest animal which may be said to live even occasionally on human blood.

Send a stamped addressed envelope and questions of fact having to do with Nature will be answered by the consulting staff of Nature Magazine of Washington through arrangements made by this paper.

New York, Dec. 3.—It was inevitable that sooner or later, the bootlegger should cast his shadow over American drama and literature.

His influence upon the American home, the social life, night life and general amusement of the nation is too well-known to need detailing. He is a definite social factor—a corruptive force and a boon; a symbol of lawlessness and of revolt against legal repressions; he is at once a test and serious problem; he is unscrupulous, daring and violent; his tentacles stretch everywhere; he is, in a sense, the most typical creation of a pathetically confused generation; he is an outstanding and historic figure!

How could he long stay out of our plays and novels?
They began by making him a comedy figure who slunk in and out of scenes of musical shows, or who did not appear at all but was mentioned whenever a stage highball was mixed.

Then our shrewd young writers began to take his measure. Scott Fitzgerald created "The Great Gatsby," who tried to turn his bootleg fortune into a Long Island society career and came to grief. Sidney Howard created "Lucky Sam McCarver," who married into a degenerated old line and who also tried to make his liquor loot a spur to ambition.

Phil Duning and George Abbott peered behind the scenes of bootleg feuds and located murder and warfare in the backroom of a certain type of nightclub, turning a dressing room into a battleground for two warring gangs.

And now Sidney Howard has achieved the finest study and situation yet contrived on this subject in "Ned McCobb's Daughter." He has gone to the Maine Coast whence, we have been told, ply many rum-running craft. Into the lives of a God-fearing, solid family of old settlers he plunges a cynical, utterly cold-blooded and unscrupulous son of the New York east side, who has come to find a base for his liquor supplies.

Honest old Ned McCobb has tossed away a fortune trying to clean his name of a stain blotted on it by scheming swindlers during his absence on an African trip. His daughter has married a man with a prison record who suddenly faces arrest as a swindler. The amount of the speculations must be returned or disgrace lies ahead.

Then along comes the bootlegger. The austere, gaunt and ungainly daughter of Ned McCobb is on the very edge of turning bootlegger's assistant when shrewd Yankee wit and courage come to her aid. She beats the rum runner at his own game, shoots square with him and makes him like it.

There are few individual performances in New York to equal those of Claire Blaine as Carrie McCobb and Alfred Lunt as Babe Callahan, bootlegger—or Margalo Gilmore as the morose and weak waitress.

Altogether, the current Broadway week is one of the most important of the season, what with a new Maugham play, that brings back Ethel Barrymore; a new Noel Coward play; a new play by Howard, the Pulitzer prize winner, and the arrival of the great Sorrel with her Comedie Francaise company.

In the Maugham play, "The Constant Wife," the writer returns to the mood of "The Circle," quite his most amusing work, whereas Miss Barrymore is in one of those gracious, thoughtful comedy roles in which she is at her best.

It is, perhaps, quite the smartest presentation of the season, and surely the most suave thing the ultra-suaive Maugham has done. The theme is that quite popular one, or a variant thereon, wherein the very modern wife, learning that her husband is unfaithful, does not shed tears or go home to mother, but decides how best to chart her own particular course.

The reverse of this situation exists in the latest Noel Coward piece, "This Was a Man," although Coward seems to have written his opus on a busy rainy afternoon between teatime and demi-tasse. In this, quite the most careless from the Coward pen, the husband hears from his best friend a tale of infidelities and, being very ultra-modern, bursts into laughter. There is no basis of other comparison between the plays.

Maugham can combine the caustic with the comic as can few others. He raises the question: "What's a little infidelity among friends," and then plays with the question. In the "constant wife," a most sophisticated, engaging and virtuous person, Miss Barrymore, harks back to the days of "The Twelve-Pound Look" after her late adventures in Shakespeareana.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERCIA: Roger Williams (13)

Williams sold his trading post at Narragansett to finance his trip to England. With Rev. John Clarke he embarked in November, 1651. Meanwhile Providence and Warwick continued under the old charter, while Portsmouth and Newport submitted to the rule of Coddington.

Williams arrived in England to find that Cromwell and his army had literally captured England, Cromwell now being Lord Protector. It took several years to adjust the charter difficulty. Williams made many friends, one of whom was Milton, the blind poet.

Finally Williams decided to leave England. Though the matter was not finally settled, the Coddington charter had been annulled. Williams brought a letter from Sir Henry Vane which rebuked the colonists for their differences. The province was ashamed and the four towns reunited and elected Williams president. (Continued.)

DEMPSEY'S INTERESTED IN TURF SPORT NOW

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.—(United Press.)—Jack Dempsey has ambitions to become a king of the turf which may dissipate entirely any aspirations he may have to try a come-back in the prize-ring.

The former heavyweight titleholder has purchased a string of four thoroughbred colts, the nucleus of a racing stable which he expects to build up to at least 20 runners by next spring.

Dempsey has always been an ardent turf fan, and he is a familiar figure at all of the big race meets at Tijuana, the famous Mexican racing resort across the border from San Diego.

Dempsey's four colts, which will be two-year olds and ready for racing on January 1, were purchased at a Saratoga sale last summer for $25,000.

The juvenile mounts were bred at Hamburg Place, the famous breeding establishment, in Kentucky owned by John E. Madden, from the sires, Fair Play, St. Rock, Danzer Rock and Dozier.

Old-time turf experts declare the Dempsey colts have unusual promise, having shown plenty of speed in the few trials they have had at the Tijuana track.

Johnny Coburn, well known New York turfman, who has a big string at Tijuana, is training Dempsey's young thoroughbreds.

As soon as the colts have been registered, they will be formally christened by Estelle Taylor, screen star, who in private life is Mrs. Dempsey.

Prayed, But Lost

Cornhusker Elmer Williams (above) of Illinois prayed for the world before he went into the victory championship husking contest at Fremont, Neb., the other day, but he lost the title to Fred Stanek of Iowa (below). In an hour and 20 minutes Stanek husked twenty-eight and a quarter bushels, husking now. The bride is the daughter of Congressman Joseph L. Hooper.

The NUT CRACKER by Joe Williams

News dispatches from Pasadena, Calif., tell how belligerent bumble bees are stinging quiet, home-loving gold fish to death in privacy of pleatatorial boudoirs.

Society For Prevention of Cruelty to Gold Fish has taken robust steps to end these homicidal outbreaks at all costs, and the cheaper the better.

Police have issued orders to bring in all suspicious looking bees who are unable to show their union cards, marriage certificates and correct meaning of phrase, "The bees' knees."

Federal authorization to invade private homes of bees of superior social standing has been demanded on very silly ground that you never can tell.

The suspicion that a tong-war is in progress between the Oologs, as represented by the bees on the one side, and the Build-Your-Own-Bungalows, as represented by the gold fish, on the other, is something you can take or leave in order named.

Seeking Escape from "Intellectual Death"

Investigators are Working Toward Co-ordination of Women's Interests—Co-operative Methods Prove Practical Time-Savers for Busy Wives.

Dr. Ethel Puffer Howes, director of the Institute for the Co-ordination of Women's Interests, and a corner of the co-operative nursery, showing some of the children in care of the regular assistant.

Northampton, Mass., Dec. 3.—How a woman can have a husband and children with time left for "continued intellectual activity" is the 1926 problem which a research institute at Smith College for women is attempting to solve.

"Careers for mothers," is not its slogan. It simply wants to find a workable plan which will give the average woman time off from her 24-hour responsibility of running a family. And, after a year's work, the Institute for the Co-ordination of Women's Interests is beginning to find a practical way out.

A nursery, a food supply and a household help service, all run on a co-operative basis, are part of the research work of the institute.

"How to care for children during the hours the mother is away from home.

2. How to secure a release from the drudgery of housekeeping without forsaking the personal home-making touches.

3. How to develop professions for women which can be adjusted to the claims of the home.

A co-operative nursery for the children of Northampton women is an experiment now in its fourth month. The charge for the care of each child every morning for ten months is $60. If the child stays for lunch and the rest of the day, the cost to the parents is $135.

These costs pay rent, food and the salary of a nursery assistant.

There is an especially constructed kitchen in the nursery home from which food can be sent to the homes. It is the plan of the Institute to prepare plain, wholesome food, suitable for children, in family-size quantities. In this way, the mother who calls for her children in the afternoon may take home her evening meal at a less cost than if she had prepared it herself.

The Institute also plans a co-operative home service, with servants and maids on a "share system."

But when the children and household difficulties have been sufficiently organized to give the mother extra, uninterrupted time, what can she do? Dr. Howes believes that the long business day, with its ceaseless regularity, is impractical for mothers. Through the questionnaires, she hopes to compile a list of occupations which women are managing to carry on successfully.

"Intellectual Death"

"A woman who is a mother cannot compete with men," she says. "She shouldn't try, but she can do something else. Marriage has meant intellectual death to most business and professional women. And it is the dissatisfaction and frustrated powers which the Institute for the Co-ordination of Women's Interests is trying to find means of dispelling."

The research work thus far has shown that college women enthusiastically welcome investigation into a subject which Dr. William Allen Neilson, Smith College president, characterizes as "the outstanding problem which confronts every educated woman today—how to reconcile a normal life of marriage and motherhood with intellectual activity, not necessarily professional."

And, as Dr. Howes phrased the situation:

"I believe the victims of sex-suppression are no more in number than those of the frustration of capacity."

BALL TEAMS MOVING TO GET RID OF DRAFT

Asheville, N. C., Dec. 8.—Gradual abolition of the system of major league teams drafting players from the minor leagues is expected to result within the next few years as a result of the movement under way today at the annual convention of professional baseball leagues.

Officials of the association were instructed to draw up another agreement, which would allow various minors to refuse or accept the draft by April, 1927.

Easy Marriage Greater Evil Than Divorce, Says Minister, Who Starts College of Matrimony to Teach 'Life's Most Serious Business.'

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Wilson, "faculty" of the new marriage school.

San Diego, Cal.—Adding to the complexities of modern education has come a new course of study, which, when a scientific name is evolved, will be called something like "maritology."

For matrimony is, or should be, a science, according to the dean of the marriage school which has been started here.

With these and other observations gained from his ministerial experience, Mr. Wilson decided to start a marriage school, with himself and his wife as instructors and a student body recruited from the ranks of San Diego's young people.

MANCHESTER SCHOOL ENROLLMENT GAINS

Town Stands 12th in State and Third in County With 5,063 Pupils, a Gain of 52 Over Last Year.

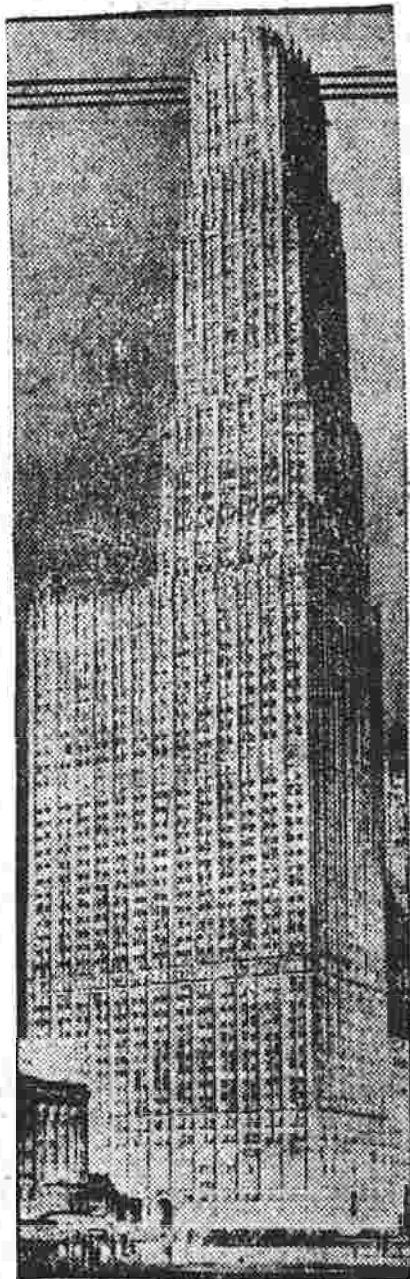

Manchester stands twelfth in the list of school enumerations filed with the state comptroller at Hartford, it was learned yesterday.

This was made possible by the increase of 97 pupils in the Eighth and outlying districts while the Ninth School district showed a decrease of 45.

Manchester's total school census is third highest in Hartford county as the following scale of comparison will reveal:

Table showing school census for various towns in 1926 and 1925, including Hartford, Berlin, Bloomfield, Avon, Bristol, Burlington, East Hartford, Canton, East Windsor, Farmington, Glastonbury, Hartford, Southington, Manchester, Marlborough, Plainville, Rocky Hill, Simsbury, Suffield, West Hartford, Wethersfield, Windsor, and Windsor Locks.

Famous Inventor Seeks Ecclesiastic Invalidation of His Provisional Marriage.

Rome, Dec. 9.—The application of Senator Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the wireless, for an annulment of his marriage, to the Hon. Beatrice O'Brien has been formally placed before the Rota Tribunal.

The recommendations of the Westminster Diocesan Tribunal in favor of the annulment are now being considered by the Rota Tribunal.

In his application for annulment Senator Marconi requested the ecclesiastical authorities to maintain the strictest secrecy.

PLANS DEMPSEY FIGHT SOMETIME IN MARCH

New York, Dec. 9.—Tex Rickard's receipt of a message from Jack Dempsey, informing him that the ex-champion will return to the east soon after the first of the year, prompted the promoter today to lay plans for Dempsey's appearance in the ring at Madison Square Garden some time during March against one of the survivors of the elimination series.

DUBLIN TO MAKE SWEEPING REFORMS IN CITY GOVERNMENT

Dublin—Sweeping and far-reaching reforms in connection with the municipal government of Dublin are proposed in the report of the Greater Dublin Commission.

The area recommended to be included in Greater Dublin extends from Malahide in the North to Killiney in the South, a total distance of eighteen miles.

The city manager system of administration, on which the report is mainly based, is borrowed with certain modifications from similar schemes in operation in Switzerland, Germany, and the United States.

It is claimed in the report that there is nothing autocratic or dictatorial in the system, public desires being protected by the representatives elected by the people to the Great Council and its component parts, the Borough Council, and the Dublin Council.

A large section of the report is devoted to townplanning and the problem of clearing the slums and getting the workers out of the tenements into healthier surroundings.

To these ends the setting up of a town planning commission is recommended, on which the Great Council will have wide powers.

No noticeable void in the life of the city will be created by the disappearance of the Dublin Corporation and Lord Mayor.

A New Georgia "Peach"

New York, Dec. 4.—The queen is dead! Long live the queen!

No movie queens have passed beyond public favor recently, but that the film moguls think there is a chance of some of them doing so is clearly evident by the unusually healthy crop of baby stars.

More than a year ago a motion picture company started a movie school. The "pupils," following "graduation" made one picture. And nearly everyone expected that would end the thing and the old players could go serenely on their way.

But it now begins to be evident that the film producers were in earnest, for within the last few months at least four of the 16 have been given prominent parts, three of the four winning their big chance within the past few weeks.

When W. C. Fields' new comedy, based on the stage production, "The Pottery," is shown, the public will see, in the role of Mamie Potter, a young Atlanta, Ga., girl named Ivy Harris.

Ivy Harris

When Paramount's "Love's Greatest Mistake," which Edward Sutherland now is filming, finally comes to the public, the fans will see a young blond named Josephine Dunn.

"Jo" has been in several Broadway musical comedies, the most recent one before coming to the films being "Kid Boots." She originally came from Denver.

In the same picture is another girl, this one from Wichita, Kas. She is Iris Grey, and, while her part is not the leading one that "Jo" will have, it is a good one.

Josephine Dunn had no idea of going into the films. But another girl friend made an appointment for a screen test and Josephine went along. The cameraman suggested that she sit for a couple of pictures, and she found herself in the film school while the friend lost out.

FOREIGN IDEAS

ARE HARMFUL TO JAPAN'S MORALS

Country's "Grand Old Man" Looks With Alarm on New Culture—War Was Caused By Neglecting Morals.

Tokio—"Japan today is suffering from extreme efforts to apply her recently acquired scientific knowledge. She is absorbed in that to the exclusion of the spiritual virtues she has inherited from the past. Foreign ideas have become an obsession."

Viscount Elchi Shibusawa, "Grand Old Man" of Japanese business and outstanding leader for more than half a century in the nation's economic and cultural development, gave, in the words quoted, his view of what he regards as the most serious problem Japan is facing today.

Now he has retired from active business life. The personal fortune that he might have made he has turned back, largely, into business channels. In his later years he is devoting himself chiefly to cultural enterprises and to efforts to advance the economic and spiritual welfare of Japan.

ANOTHER BIG BILL AT STATE TONIGHT

Five Select Acts and "The Popular Sin" Here Tonight, Friday and Saturday.

Another big vaudeville bill will open tonight for a three-day stay at the State theater. A Paramount comedy drama, "The Popular Sin," featuring the beautiful Florence Vidor, will be the feature picture.

Here are the vaudeville acts: The first is Ergotti and Hermann, a comedian and his pal. Second on the program is Bert and Betsy, featuring the beautiful Florence Vidor, will be the feature picture.

The headline attraction will be Buckridge and Casey Co., a musical comedy company.

The fourth act will be Ben Smith who calls himself "The Troubadour." He will demonstrate why in a highly entertaining manner. The last act will be Bert Hughes and Co. They say that they are the originators of basketball on wheels.

Again this Saturday afternoon presents will be given to the kiddies. Santa Claus will appear in person to distribute the toys. An even larger number of presents than previous will be given away this week.

Five bootleggers, two bandits, two burglars and four auto thieves were arrested in a raid on an Ohio roadhouse. These roadhouses are getting to be quite popular with the idle rich.

NEW ENGLAND QUALITY AS FARMS' YARDSTICK

Uniformity, Better Packing Urged at Marketing Conference to Meet Competition.

Boston, Dec. 9.—Farmers of New England can stop the increasing competition from the west by proper grading and packing of their high-grade fruits and vegetables, declared Lieut. Gov. Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts, welcoming delegates to the opening of the New England Farm Marketing Conference at the State House, today.

The announced purpose of the conference is to develop uniform standards for New England quality farm products for all the six states and John S. Lawrence, president of the New England Council, said the gathering was tangible evidence that New Englanders believe that many problems of one state are common to the other five.

RIALTO FEATURES ABOUND IN THRILLS

An attractive double feature program is being shown at the Rialto theater today and tomorrow. In addition to the shorter subjects there is "Dame Chance" which stars Mary Carr, Gertrude Astor and Robert Frazer, and "Fighting Fate," an epic of the squared circle which features Billy Sullivan.

"Dame Chance" is a forcefully-told story of the taster which follows the fortunes of some Gall Vernon, a small time stock company actress who from a lowly beginning climbs the ladder of fame until her name is blazoned forth in the lights of Broadway. During her rise to stardom, there is a parallel romance in her life which finally ends with her falling in love with the playwright in whose play she finds her ultimate success. It all makes "an enterprising drama that is highly diverting. The second feature is a picture that should appeal to the majority of film fans. It is called "Fighting Fate" and no less a personage than Billy Sullivan, has the stellar role. It depicts the trials of a small town boy who attempts to wrest fame and fortune from life by means of a pair of padded mitts.

Crooked work by a lightweight champ almost ruins the boy but he eventually stages a come back and then, to use a common term, "the fun begins." The shorter subjects which will be shown include a comedy and a news reel. Tomorrow evening another five tube radio set will be given away absolutely free of charge to some fortunate person. Everyone having a coupon showing that they have attended this theater during the week is eligible, but the winner must be in Friday night's audience to receive his prize. Five pairs of ball bearing roller skates will be given away to the children at Saturday's matinee.

All kinds of domestic utensils, from drinking mugs to washing tubs, which look like pottery but are unbreakable, are made from wood pulp in Thetford, England.

ROOSEVELT REVEALS POWER IN FAR EAST

Americans will feel strange and not unpleasant sensations on considering the picture of themselves as potentially great foreign administrators, like the heroes of Kipling's Indian stories, which is drawn on the background of Nicholas Roosevelt's new book, "The Philippines: A Treasure and A Problem." Mr. Roosevelt, who has just returned from a prolonged investigation of conditions in the islands does not draw this picture as of today, but strongly insists upon the importance of realizing it in the future.

How the decisions of Congressmen from "our home town" can vitally affect Eastern Asia becomes obvious when Mr. Roosevelt points out the generally unrealized fact that the northern most Philippine island is only 65 miles from the southern most Japanese territory; that only 500 miles separate American territory from China across the China Sea; and that George Washington might almost have sailed a silver dollar from the Philippines southward across to Dutch and British possessions. Added to their nearness to Asia are the facts that the Philippines are immensely rich in natural resources; that the pressure of population bears strongly from crowded Japan toward the comparatively sparsely settled Philippines; and that we have not, according to Mr. Roosevelt, completed as yet the promises we made on occupying these islands. Mr. Roosevelt, whose opportunities for first-hand investigation were unparalleled, is an ardent disciple of holding the islands.

FEATURE ARTICLES ABOUT INTERESTING WOMEN

Broken Threads

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE To the home of PROF and MOLIE ELWELL in Camdenville, Ind., one night in October of 1898, comes MARTHA DALTON, a nurse, bearing with her a woman who had fainted on the train on which Martha had been traveling. Elwell is an artist. He has a son, JIM, aged 5. Late that night twin girls are born to the woman, who dies without revealing her identity. The Elwells adopt the girls.

Wonderingly, Betty removed the ring from her finger.

The story then moves forward 18 years. The twins, now growing to beautiful womanhood, have been named MARGARET and ELIZABETH and nicknamed RUSTY and BETTY. America enters the World War and Jim Elwell enlists. Two nights before he leaves he discovers that one of the twins loves him and that he loves her. He tells his mother this but she does not tell her which twin it is, as he wants her to love both the twins equally while he is away. The day before he leaves Jim takes the girls to Chicago for a good time. While in the dining room of a hotel with them, Jim is violently surprised when a waiter drops a note on the table written by a woman only a short distance away. The woman leaves.

and the sentence was finished with an elaborate shrug of the shoulders, a gesture at once eloquent and graceful and, Rusty and Betty at once concluded, decidedly reminiscent of the grand French ladies they had read about. "We'll let it go at that," Nina Kingsley went on. "And now," she smiled engagingly once more, "you are no doubt anxious to know what I meant in that note I had the waiter fetch you. The ring—the 'indicated the diamond was by Betty." "I recognized the instant I saw it down there in the palm room on account of its odd setting."

But the answer was disappointing. "Really, I don't think I ever heard," Nina Kingsley said. "There was a brief silence. Then the actress held out her hand toward Betty. 'Would you allow me to examine the ring for a moment? Perhaps I'll be able to show you something you have never yet seen.' Wonderingly, and with just a suspicion of hesitancy, Betty removed the ring from her finger and laid it in the woman's outstretched hand. At the ring touched her hand, Nina Kingsley trembled slightly and a red flush sprang to her cheeks. In her dark eyes burned an odd light as she began twisting the jewel in her fingers. The twins were leaning forward in their seats, watching her tensely. Jim Elwell was studying the woman intently, a puzzled frown knitting his forehead. "How show this woman was just a little too much for him. It was all very mysterious. A question was on his lips. John K. Danvers—where was he now? But he did not voice it. To his amazement, Nina Kingsley, who had been holding the ring all this time and who now seemed to have recovered her usual calm, turned slightly in her chair and then held the ring up close to her eyes and toward the electric light. Suddenly a little 'oh' of surprise escaped her and she turned back to her watchful audience. "He changed the pictures," she announced breathlessly. "Look!

The WOMAN'S DAY

We Grew Serious We grew most serious and homely in this space yesterday, and discussed with fervent abandon growing-old pains, if that's what they are. When life stretches ahead of us like a gray, monotonous stretch of sea, it's wonderful what we're going to do with it and whether it offers anything more exciting than horseradish with roast beef, and an occasional pair of new silk stockings.

Uniformity

Co-eds of Highland Park Junior College, Detroit, have a four-day week of a kind. That is, on four of the five weekly school days they must wear the uniform pictured on petition of the girls themselves, above. The uniform was adopted to lessen competition in clothes. The pretty demonstrator is Miss Wilda Spann.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Bobs for the most part today are close and in decided contrast to the chrysanthemum type, that was the fashion not so long ago. The extremely short cut in the back is no longer considered smart. The charmingly feminine cut with natural waves and a natural line is the rule. Viewing some of these boyish cuts that have been in vogue one hardly knows whether it was a boy or girl unless the eye traveled down to the dress that was worn. At a recent fashionable wedding the girls in the bridal party each carried huge ostrich fans the color of their frocks, which were in pastel colors, two of a kind, yellow-green, pale blue and pink and all wore picture hats of brown tulle.

If a man broadcasted his gift preferences he'd specify something else besides the neckties, hostery and other necessities he would buy for himself. Choose for him something that has distinct appeal either of novelty or beauty. If he smokes, there are novel ash trays that play a little tune as long as the smoke is resting in its groove. For the man who travels extensively there are small folding chess and checker sets. The newest in dress studs this season is a large black pearl, either real or imitation. Scarfs, too, are most attractive. If he plays golf there is a new golf scorer which is strapped on the wrist like a wrist watch. Slip-on gloves lined with chambray are ideal for winter wear. The man who likes smart things will be delighted with a pair of the new goat skin gloves; still another variety much liked is the buckskin glove that will not harden on being wet.

Place on your list of practical gift suggestions and underline it—a Prairie Window ventilator, of metal, enameled in green, green, gray or white. Mrs. C. J. Anderson, 21 Edmund street is the sole agent. Phone 1179-5 and she will call and show you how efficient it is. Galoshes became popular overnight due to the sudden cold and heavy snow. They have become quite ambitious this year and are in various light colors and tweed mixtures, some of them trimmed with astrakhan like a caesack boot. The best dressed women prefer the House of Hale buckles with the neat zipper fastenings. Also, since the cold-spell fur coats have come out with renewed vigor.

Indian Pudding. What can surpass an old-fashioned Indian pudding for dessert on a frosty winter's night? This recipe is one that has been handed down for several generations and has stood the test of time and taste. Three cups milk, 1-2 cup cornmeal, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup minced suet, 1-2 cup molasses, 1-2 cup seeded raisins, 1 teaspoon suet, 1-4 teaspoon ginger, 1 egg. Scald 1 cup of milk and stir in cornmeal, salt and molasses. Stir and cook until mixture thickens and add suet, spices and raisins. Mix thoroughly and stir in milk, well beaten, and remainder of eggs, which is cold. Stir well and turn into a well-buttered pudding dish. Bake in a very moderate oven for two hours. Serve warm with sweetened cream.

The Wayside Gardens, out Rockville way, will have for the Yuletide a large stock of evergreen, mural wreaths, everlasting, red and green ruscus, princess pine and other evergreens and Christmas trees and baskets of cut flowers and plants in great profusion. A word to the husbands and fathers—for downright originality they not give wife or daughter a permanent wave, with the stipulation that the work be done at the Lily Beauty Shop, upstairs in the House of Hale building. Mrs. Robinson's waves never fail to give satisfaction.

Handbags are lovelier than ever this Christmas and one may choose from the infinite variety of styles and prices. For evening they are more often made of fine beads, jewels and brilliants. For more utilitarian wear they are making very handsome ones of brown alligator and suede and other equally fascinating combinations of leathers and colors. Finner haddie, nicely broiled and served with hot baked potatoes is an appetizing luncheon or supper dish in cold weather. If the fish seems dry soak for half an hour in cold water. Pour off this water and then cover with water just off the boiling and let it stand 15 minutes longer. The skin may or may not be removed before broiling, which will take about twenty minutes. Serve hot with butter or a little hot cream and garnish with parsley or cress and a bit of lemon.

Italy has an infant musical prodigy in the granddaughter of the King, Maria, daughter of the Prince of Yugoslavia. Her husband Count Calvi di Bergallo. Though only three years old Maria is said to create little melodies and never hammers the keys in child fashion. Her royal mother entertains her with Chopin and Beethoven as well as the works of the great Italian masters. Hand-tinted Christmas greeting cards, boxed assortments and novel Christmas goods in variety will be found at Mrs. Elliott's Rug and Gift Shop, 75 Henry street.

A certain family decided that one gift should go from them to the other family, rather than that one gift should go from each member of one tribe to each member of the other. So they decided on this idea and they say it made a big hit—they gave a "League of Nations Basket" in it was carved from Russian cheese from Holland, English coffee, French truffles, rice wafers from Japan, Swiss chocolate, maple sugar from America and so on. The contents might be changed to suit the tastes of both the sender and the recipient. The suggestion is worth making note of. A basket of choice fruits is another gift that is always acceptable, and in it may be tucked boxes of the candied fruit from California, preserved ginger, figs in jars, home made jellies or plum pudding. MARY TAYLOR

The large-petaled shoulder flower continues to rule supreme in evening. It is rare to see a smart evening gown without this decoration and the larger the flower the smarter evidently. The white flower is a bit newer than the colored ones.

Good Nature and Good Health

STORE WORKER MUST PAY ATTENTION TO DIET This is the second of a series of four articles on the health of the store worker. During the pre-Christmas buying rush the suggestions found here are invaluable both to clerks and customers. Tomorrow: Shoes and Clothing. By DR. MORRIS FISHER Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. Investigations in the 25 stores which co-operated in the Harvard study of mercantile health revealed the fact that from 75 to 90 per cent of workers do not practice intelligent personal hygiene. The guide as to diet is usually those foods that appeal to the appetite and a feeling of fullness or satisfaction after eating. Almost everyone now knows that a satisfactory diet must include sufficient amounts of the basic food substances and of the vitamins necessary for proper nutrition and growth. It is also certain that fluids must be taken in adequate quantities and that the store must make them easily available. Poor Eating Habits In addition to the kinds of food eaten, poor habits of eating are concerned. The food is chewed hastily and insufficiently; it may be taken at irregular hours; candy is lunched between meals, sometimes more to offset nervousness than for

By Olive Roberts Barton A woman recently complained to me of the radio. Said she, "You have to wade through so much trash to get what you want it's a nuisance. We have to listen to bedtime stories, recipes for cooking, tales of travel, quotations on the stock market and even instructions on bridge, before we get what we want." "What do you like?" I asked. "Music! Orchestra music! Dance music preferred. We're not so fond of singing but we can stand that at any rate. We love dance music!" "I know a man who lives out of town who deals in stocks," I remarked. "He bought a radio purely for the stock information he gets early in the morning. He phones orders to his office and business is in full swing when he arrives." She shrugged her shoulders. "Then they should have special stock radios."

A golden star that reached to earth From heaven was quietly laid, And on this bright and shining path A million sunbeams played.

The angels clothed in raiment white Came softly floating near, A radiant glory filled all space, The music sweet and clear Of "Peace on Earth, Good Will To-ward Men"

Went echoing round the earth; The star shone bright; 'twas Christmas morn.

The Christ Child's day of birth.

"Dearest," said she to her husband before Christmas, "I just can't wait till Christmas to tell you what I've gotten you for a present."

"Well, what is it?" asked the young husband.

"I've gotten you a new rug to put in front of my dressing-table and a bronze statuette for the parlor mantel. Now what are you going to get me?"

"Well," he replied contemplatively, "I think I'll get you a new shaving mug and a razor."

We don't want Santa to bring us a thing, but there're a few things in our neighborhood we'd like him to take away with him.

December 25th, we will all find out who our "lose" friends really are.

Lady: "I want to get a Christmas present for my husband, and it's so hard to do so, as he doesn't smoke, drink, play cards or go out at nights."

Clerk: "Is he fond of fancy work?"

THE CHRISTMAS BLUES

Wrist Watch, bracelet, New fur coat;

Bicycle, wagon,

And toy steam boat;

Neckties, hankies,

Hosiery, shoes—

Pa is singing The Yuletide blues!

Americanism: Borrowing more money to pay the interest on that you've already borrowed.

Skirts will be shorter this winter and war debts will be longer and Paris sets the fashion for both.

Mother: "What lesson did you learn at your teacher's knee?"

Bobby: "That she has dimples."

There's the plumber. Buy a plumber a Christmas present. What about a million memorandum books?

INTELLIGENCE TESTS

STATESMAN

This man figured prominently in English political life during the World War. His name and the answers to the other questions appear on another page.

1—Who is shown in the accompanying picture?

2—Who won this season's Yale-Harvard football game?

3—What was the last official government position held by Albert B. Fall?

4—Where is radio station WOC?

5—Where are the waterfalls with the highest drop in the United States?

6—Approximately how many radio stations are now operating in the United States?

7—Where is the famous Circus Maximus?

8—Whom did President Coolidge send as special representative to visit the Philippines?

9—Is there any difference in the time in New York City and Miami, Fla.?

10—Where is the city of Colours?

Tom—Did you ever hear the story of Ben Hur?

Dick—No.

Harry—There once was a woman who found $10,000. How would you like to have Ben Hur?

THE TINYMITES

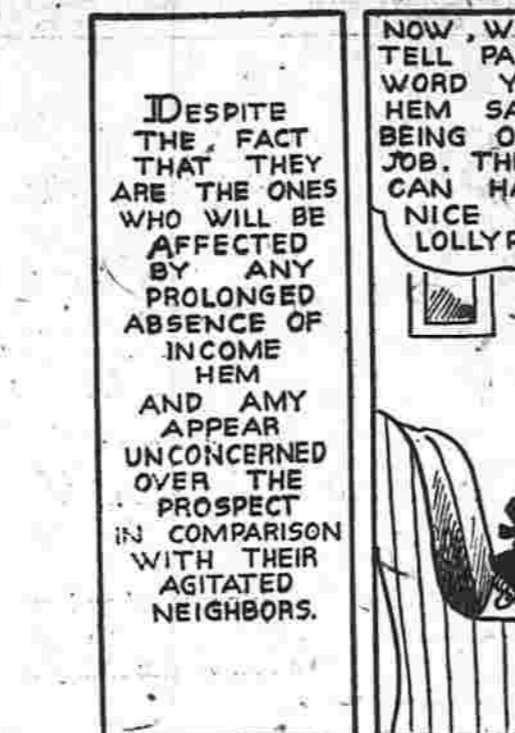

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE).

The Tinymites were all surprised when suddenly they realized that they were standing right in front of Santa's wondrous land. "Oh, my," said Copy to them all. "We've got to climb right o'er that wall. Will someone kindly boost me up? Come on, lend me a hand." They tried and tried to climb the wall, but couldn't reach the top at all. So Ukey said, "Perhaps they'll let us in, if we will wait." But when an hour had drifted by, they all grew tired and heaved a sigh. Then Scouty said, "I'll tell you what. Let's rap up on the gate."

(To be Continued) (The Tinymites meet Santa Claus in the next story.)

GAS BUGGIES—Sympathy

DESPITE THE FACT THAT THEY ARE THE ONES WHO WILL BE AFFECTED BY ANY PROLONGED ABSENCE OF INCOME, HE AND AMY APPEAR UNCONCERNED OVER THE PROSPECT IN COMPARISON WITH THEIR AGITATED NEIGHBORS.

NOW, WINTHROP, TELL PAPA EVERY WORD YOU HEARD HIM SAY ABOUT BEING OUT OF A JOB. THEN YOU CAN HAVE YOUR NICE SHINY LOLLYPOP.

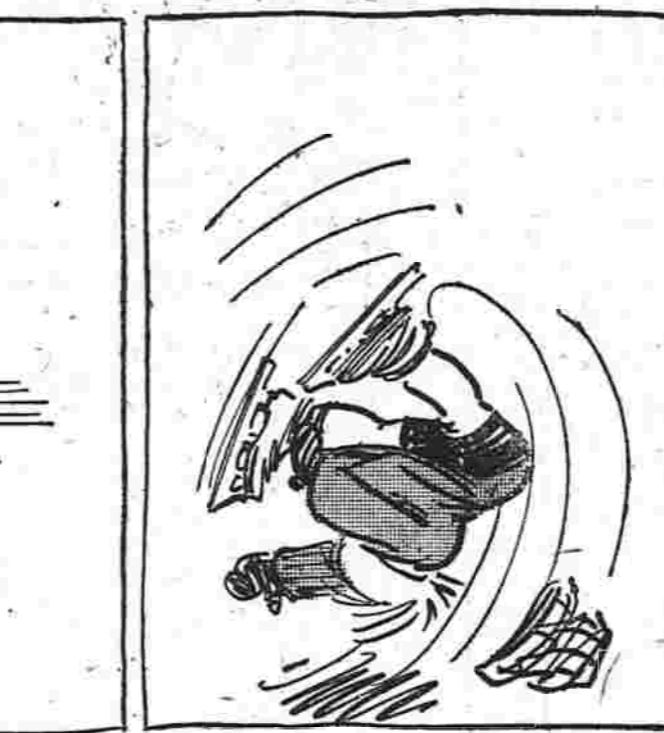

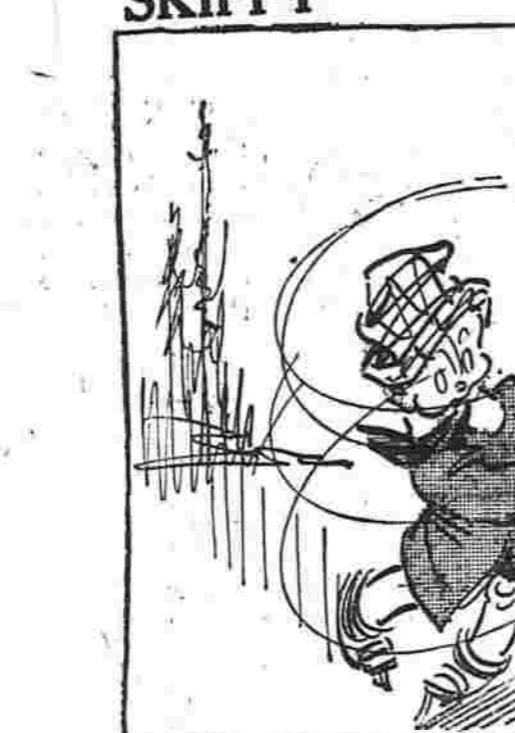

HE SAID— HE SAID, WELL AMY IF I DON'T GET A JOB BY CHRISTMAS I'M SURE OUR TENDER HEARTED NEIGHBORS WILL TAKE UP A COLLECTION FOR US.

LOOK, PET! IS THIS FUR PIECE WORN OUT ENOUGH TO GIVE TO SOME OF YOUR PEOPLE FOR CHRISTMAS? I'M MAKING UP MY LIST.
