up in the recognition treaties with Mexico, will be called on. Charles B. Warren, ex-ambassador to Mexico, advised this course last week when he was summoned to Washington by President Coolidge.

Administration officials were hopeful today that Kellogg's virtuous acceptance of arbitration would serve to extinguish the fires of debate and criticism in Congress, which reached heights yesterday that dumfounded even the oldest members.

Better Religious Debate For the first time within memory of sitting Senators, members participated in a fiery religious debate—started when Senator Hiram, Democrat of Alabama, attacked the attitude of the Catholic church in the Mexican situation.

Half a dozen members replied to his charges and denied them, and for several hours torrents of impassioned oratory poured through the Senate. Reed of Missouri, Walsh of Massachusetts, Broussard of Louisiana, Walsh of Montana, Ashurst of Arizona, and Bruce of Maryland, all Democrats, answered the Alabamian.

News Pleases Mexico. Mexico City, Jan. 19.—News that Secretary of State Kellogg has announced his willingness to arbitrate the differences with Mexico over the land and oil laws, was received in official circles here with undisguised satisfaction.

While officials were disinclined to make any comment until a formal proposal had been submitted, they readily admitted that President Calles would welcome arbitration. It is suggested here that the Hague tribunal should be arbitrating body.

Nicaragua Secession. Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 19.—That the United States is no longer a question between the Liberals and Conservatives but is a question of the Atlantic coast seceding from the rest of Nicaragua is the interpretation placed upon the recent utterances of General Menzies, Liberal leader, in conservative circles here. The government anticipates that an effort will be made to partition Nicaragua.

The government forces and the Liberals are drawing their lines for a battle at Telica Hill, but apparently the Liberals are anxious to delay the battle until they secure additional war supplies, which are now most difficult to procure due to the American activities in patrolling the coast.

Zapata, the Liberal leader, who was driven into Costa Rica, has reappeared near San Juan Del Sur on the Pacific coast.

SENATE GREET'S SMITH WITH FRAUD CHARGES

Senate," said Reed, "demonstrates such fraudulent conduct by the applicant for this seat as to demonstrate his personal unfitness for the office. The evidence also discloses enough of fact to make it a justifiable conclusion that his appointment springs from and comes out of that election and that it never would have been made had he not been elected. The evidence too discloses that election was fraudulently consummated."

"Fraud in the election," Reed said, "puts its stain on these credentials."

Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, asked him whether he thought the Senate had any right to judge of Smith's qualifications until the Illinois man actually became a member of the Senate. Reed said it was the first time the distinction ever had been raised.

While Reed listed Smith's credentials as "fraudulent," the Illinois senator-designate sat in an armchair in the rear of the chamber. He tapped his fingers nervously on the arm, silent and grave. His attorney and advisers were barred from the chamber, leaving him alone amid secretaries to Senators, clerks of committees and waiting congressmen.

"We must stay to Smith and to all the people of America," Reed declared, "that one thing is certain. If this Senate does not guard its portals and protect its own integrity, there is no power outside the Senate to protect it."

"We must declare, so all men may know, that he who comes here must like, in a court of chancery, come with clean hands. If that warning can be certified to all men, then senatorial elections will be kept pure. Wealth will no longer seek to purchase seats in this body."

Bingham Answers Replying to Reed, Senator Bingham, Republican of Connecticut, declared the Missourian "had been led astray."

"Under the principles of the common laws of the constitution we have no right to hold Smith guilty of any crime until he is shown to be," Bingham declared. "It has become frequent here to make charges which have not been sustained by the courts."

SELECTMEN PLAN POLICE BUILDING

Have Funds Enough in Present Appropriation to Rebuild Old Hall of Records.

At a meeting of the Board of Selectmen and the Municipal building committee yesterday afternoon at five o'clock Town Treasurer George H. Waddell presented a standing of the municipal building appropriation. He showed the board that in constructing and furnishing the new building the committee had kept so far within the appropriation that there are funds enough left to re-ramp the old Hall of Records so that it can be used as a police court and police department building.

It was the original plan to house the police department motor equipment in the old building but rather than ask the voters for an additional appropriation the Hall of Records will be slightly made over to accommodate the department and the court rooms.

The regular meeting of Manchester Tent, No. 2, Macabees, will be held at the Balch and Brown hall tomorrow evening. The new officers will be installed by Past Commander Patrick J. Touhey.

Debt Talk Taboo, So Poet is Envoy

By MILTON BRONNER

Paris.—Reassured by forestallment of the crash of the franc and beginning to believe that France can get along without American finance, Premier Poincaré has decided not to seek ratification of the Berenger-Mellon agreement.

And to tell us so, he's sending a poet—Paul Claudel!

It is one of the most amazing incidents in recent international history. Last year Senator Berenger became the French ambassador to the United States. He was charged with the special duty of negotiating the payment of France's war debt to us and with getting our government to scale it down as much as possible. The terms he obtained were better than those accorded England, but not as good as Italy's.

Little was said about this in France until Poincaré's national coalition government took the helm some months ago. France was in a bad way then. Rich as a country it was broke. Her budget didn't balance, and the franc was steadily tumbling in value until it looked as if it might go the way of the German mark six years previously. But the franc's headlong fall was stopped and it has practically become stabilized.

France Objects to Paying

Then, apparently suddenly, everybody remembered the Berenger-Mellon agreement. Papers of every shade of opinion, from the extreme Royalists on the right, to the Socialists on the left, made an outcry against payment. "Shylock" was one of the pretty terms applied to us. Uncle Sam and President Coolidge were plentifully caricatured.

The members of Parliament and politicians and just as responsive to the voice of their constituents as our own Congressmen and Senators.

Poincaré is a past master at politics. He soon saw how the wind was blowing. He soon learned it would be impossible to get the funding agreement ratified.

So he shelved it, by letting it be known that all the balance of this year would be taken up in passage of the budget, various taxation matters, and general business of the franc. Then he and Brian, Minister of Foreign Affairs, asked Berenger to go back to his great post in Washington.

"Je n'en ferai rien," said Berenger. "A very polite way of saying, 'Nothing doing.'"

In despair, Brian and Poincaré turned to their list of regular diplomats, the men who make diplomacy a career, who go where they are sent. So it's Claudel for Washington.

France is sending us one of her most finished diplomats, although not since the United States had Jam. S. Russell Lowell at the Court of St. James has any nation thus employed so distinguished a poet on a diplomatic mission.

AMERICAN LEGION NEWS

Commander Victor Bronkie of the Dilworth Cornell Post No. 102 American Legion has made the following appointments for the year: Membership—William J. Thornton, J. F. Van Ness.

House Committee—R. D. McCann, Carl Hansen.

Finance—Russell B. Hathaway.

Publicity, welfare, legal, Boy Scouts—James A. Irvine.

Visiting—Dr. Clifford Harville.

Athletic—Earl H. Chaney.

Americanization—Harry Maidment.

Auditing—C. Ely Rogers.

Banquet committee: Chairman, Dr. Robert Knapp; speakers, Harry Maidment; banquet, William Newman; entertainment, Earl Bailmeister; publicity, James A. Irvine; tickets and finance, Fred Lorch.

The regular meeting on Jan. 31 promises to be one of the most interesting of the season. Several items of business will come up for action. Comrade C. W. Goff will talk on the entertainment which will be of a novel nature. The doctor has something "up his sleeve" and it behooves every member to be on hand for this meeting. Refreshments will be served by the doctor and his committee.

The annual meeting and banquet is scheduled for sometime in February. Comrade Robert P. Knapp, chairman of the committee will announce the progress at the coming meeting.

There has been considerable excitement abroad in the campaign for every member to get a new member or to contribute one dollar to the furniture fund. A report of progress on this subject will be submitted at the next meeting. Every legionaire should remember, however, that it is equally important to have an old member sign up for another year.

HEBRON

There were no services in any of the churches of the town on Sunday owing in part to the bad storm and the badly drifted roads. The Rev. John Deeter, pastor of the Congregational church, was unable to preach as he is suffering from an attack of mumps which is sweeping the town. All the other members of Mr. Deeter's family are ill with or recovering from mumps. Professor H. A. Seckerson of Storrs College was engaged to take the pulpit in Hebron and Gilead and motored over to the Center for that purpose, there having been a misunderstanding with regard to the service having been given up. The road to Gilead was so drifted in that it was impossible to get through in the middle of the day, on Sunday.

Allen Sterry of New London, took his place as teacher at the Center school, grammar grades, Monday morning.

Sherwood Miner is seriously ill with grip.

Mabel Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Porter, is having a severe attack of mumps. Many of the cases have been light.

There was no Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening either in Hebron or Gilead.

While ice cutting was going on in Jones street on Chamberlain's pond one of the horses broke through the ice. One of the cutters went to the rescue of the horse and in his turn took a mumps. Neither horse nor man was able to make a landing until four other men had come to the rescue. Beyond some inconvenience from the icy bath no harm was suffered.

Mrs. Giles Taylor of Middletown is making a visit at the home of her mother, Mrs. Emma Park, and her brother, Earl Park.

Mrs. Lee and her eleven year old son, of Hartford, are spending the winter months with Mrs. Walter Wright. Mrs. Lee's son is attending the Jones street school.

The Junior choir of St. Peter's church met for rehearsal Monday evening at the home of Miss Clarissa Pendleton, Miss Kellogg played.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Coates are recovering from grip.

The weekly meeting of the Young People's society of the Advent church was held this week at the home of Elder C. P. Lillie instead of at the church.

Mrs. Edward Fredericks has returned from a visit of several weeks with friends in Glastonbury.

Mrs. Frank Davis who has been in East Hartford assisting in the care of Mrs. Elizabeth Dorrance has returned to her home in Hopeville.

The health habits of the children in the Jones street school have reached the point of efficiency where the teacher feels that there is no need of criticism. The daily use of the health charts has therefore been discontinued.

ANDOVER

Mrs. Herbert Thompson was called to Stamford Saturday by the sudden death of her sister Miss Sadie Walker.

Roscoe Talbot was home for a few hours Saturday. Mr. Talbot is on night duty at the railroad station in Berlin.

Hurbert Thompson has gone to Newfoundland. He is doing forestry work for the government.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Platt of Wapping were callers in town Sunday.

There was no Christian Endeavor meeting on account of bad traveling and because the leader is just recovering from an attack of the grip.

Next Sunday evening the leader Miss Dorothy Cook will be "How can we train for service?"

There was a young couple with a New York state license stopped at the Congregational church just before the morning service began and wished to be married. As it is necessary that one must be married in the state where the license is issued the pastor, Rev. Cook could not perform the ceremony.

Mrs. J. T. Murphy of Bristol spent Monday with her parents Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Frink.

STALIN ADOPTS TROTSKY'S PLAN TO MAKE BUDGET

New Financial Program For Soviet Government Keeps Old Tax Ideas.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

Moscow.—Leon Trotsky has once more been put upon the political shelf, but the publication of the Soviet Union budget project for 1928-27 reveals that once more his political conqueror, Joseph Stalin, has adopted Trotsky's shelf as his own platform.

Thus the wily Georgian has again put into practice the method by which he has succeeded in mastering the Communist Party and with it the control of the government of the Soviet Union. This, the method of crushing the opposition and then adopting anything good they may have had to suggest, has also been the practice of the Bolshevik party ever since it took power in 1917.

Three of the principal points in Trotsky's program, the increase of taxation on the peasants, the decrease of government expenditure on the peasants, and the increase of government credits to industry, are incorporated in the new budget projected by the Commissariat of Finance.

At Expense of Peasants

All three measures will have the effect of benefiting the city proletariat at the expense of the peasants. This was the battle cry of Trotsky during his long drawn and bitter fight with Stalin and the majority of the Communist Party Central Committee. On this issue Trotsky was kicked out of the Politburo and degraded to the ranks. Now Trotsky's ideas are blessed with official recognition, and if the ideas prove effectual in practice, the group in power naturally gets the credit.

The budget for next year will amount to 4,760,000,000 roubles, or about $2,380,000,000, which is 721,000,000 roubles more than it was this year, an increase of about 17.5 per cent. Direct taxes will return 2,217,000,000 roubles, indirect taxes and income from sources other than taxation will return 2,333,000,000 roubles, and income from government loans will amount to 150,000,000 roubles.

Direct taxes will be 17.9 per cent more than they were last year, and this increase is largely due to the heightened taxes on prosperous peasants. On the outgoing side, appropriations for industry are to be increased 150 per cent, from 200,000,000 roubles this year to 500,000,000 next year. But agricultural appropriations will be cut to 145,000,000 roubles, which is much less than this year's.

Favorable Report.

How much of this optimistic budget will be fulfilled in reality remains to be seen. Its cheerfulness is matched, however, by the report of Kuybyshev, chairman of the Supreme Economic Council, over the results and future hopes of Soviet industry.

Kuybyshev reports that Soviet industry produced goods "to the value of 4,226,000,000 pre-war roubles in 1925-26, or 7,176,000,000 present day roubles. In 1924-25 the production was valued at 5,000,000,000 present day roubles, which indicates a 40 per cent increase in production this year. This increase, he points out, brought 520,000 new workers into industry.

For the coming year he predicts an 18 per cent increase of industrial production, and an increased employment of 114,000 men. If the government's plans work out, it will spend a total of 900,000,000 roubles for new industrial equipment and factories.

Your Income Tax

A series of articles based on the Revenue Act of 1926 and the latest regulations relating to the income tax. One article will be published each day until every angle of the question is explained.

Anomalous as it may seem, a person may be married and yet single for the purposes of the income tax law. To be allowed an exemption of $3,500, a married couple must have "lived together" in the eyes of the law, for the entire taxable year. However, in the absence of continuous residence together, the question of whether man and wife are living together depends upon the character of the separation. If, occasionally the husband is away on business, or if, for any necessary reason a temporary separation and dependent needlessly allowed. The presence of a wife at a sanitarium, or her unavoidable absence because of ill-health does not change their status, and the full exemption is allowed the husband. But when the husband deliberately and continuously makes his home at one place and the wife at another, they are classed as single persons, and each is allowed an exemption of $1,500 only.

In the absence of continuous actual residence together, whether a person with dependent relatives is the head of a family, and therefore entitled to an exemption of $3,500, also depends upon the character of the separation. If a father is away on business, or a child or other dependent away at school or on a visit, the common home being maintained, the exemption applies. If a parent is obliged to maintain his dependent children in a boarding house, while he lives elsewhere, the exemption may still apply. But if benefactor and dependent needlessly and continuously live apart, the status of the head of a family does not exist, irrespective of the support given.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE To the home of PROF and MOLIE ELWELL in Camdenville, Ind., one night in October of 1898...

comes in a little ahead of them to sort of paralyze the way. This is thought they detected a false note in his cheerful tone...

He is shell-shocked at Sedan and reported dead. Much later he is identified in a New York hospital, where his parents find him with his speech and memory gone.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

MARTHA DALTON was smiling as she contemplated the two girls. It was nearly train time now.

Just to think that twenty years ago Martha had brought the beautiful young stranger to this very house and had helped to bring these two into the world.

Their spirits had slumped considerably between the noonday meal and supper. The exuberance of the morning was gone.

But what she was asking herself, was there to be anxious about? They had known all along that Jim Elwell would be unable to recognize them when he returned.

And, Martha was thinking, one of these girls was in love with Jim, had promised, very likely, to marry him on his return and to share his life with him.

Which one was it? Martha Dalton thought she knew. It was Betty—Elizabeth. They had tried like gallant little souls to keep their secret, but Betty's tears one day had betrayed it.

"Oh, Jim—dear old Jim—don't you know me?"

ago when the storm had ushered these two lives into the world. And a sorry life they had had of it, she told herself, especially in the last two years.

Outside they could see the lights of the little railroad station. The hands of the old-fashioned clock in the sitting room pointed to half past eight.

Betty's lithe body twisted nervously in the depths of the big easy chair. Her hands were clasping and unclasping. The eyes of both girls held a light that stirred Martha Dalton almost to tears.

"Pretty soon now," said Rusty. "The old nurse nodded. 'Is the light lit on the front porch?'"

A mournful sound, high-pitched, came to their ears from a distance. Rusty jumped nervously. "There's the train whistle!"

"Remember, Jim," said Martha. Rusty began furiously to dab at her eyes with her handkerchief. Betty did not have to; her eyes were dry and staring, her face dead white.

As she swung it open she could hear feet sounding on the porch. The door opened and a man came in, back and forth. Martha eyed her nervously but said nothing. She was afraid, Martha was, afraid of what might happen to the girl when she met Jim.

A certain King refused to have his portrait painted by a well-known artist. It was an unusual thing for a king to do for it was quite in order of things for royalty and other celebrities to ask for the artist in question.

Now this famous artist (now deceased) had a habit of seeing things in people's faces that no one else saw there. And as likely as not at the unveiling, one was likely to behold himself as cheer-leader or for one old man Mephistopheles when all the time he'd been thinking himself a devotee of a nice fellow.

The kid jolly-king knew this. He was satisfied with himself and his subjects were satisfied with him. Why upset the whole apartment and start the gossip?

One time a family of girls who were bringing up father, persuaded their families to have this same portrait painter do him in oil. The painter didn't want to be done in oil and he didn't want to be done for fifty thousand dollars. But it was three to one, so he went.

When she stepped back, Rusty had caught her hand and they stood before Jim Elwell, together. "That's her! That's her!" cried Betty and she rushed forward to look at him as he stood quietly beneath the lights of the chandelier.

When she stepped back, Rusty had caught her hand and they stood before Jim Elwell, together. "That's her! That's her!" cried Betty and she rushed forward to look at him as he stood quietly beneath the lights of the chandelier.

After a moment she heard Betty's voice and noted that she, too, was sitting her toes to the somber tenor of the room. She was still holding to the door.

Jim was looking at Rusty, his eyes devoid of expression, his lips set in a little frown. His face was pale as the white water worn by Martha Dalton on the bank of his head was a big tear, livid and ugly, around which the hair had not yet grown.

His head hung on Betty's like a live weight. Martha Dalton noted, was standing facing a window, his back to the little tableau. He was biting his lips. Mollie had hung herself into a chair and lay back with closed eyes. Prof looked on in a daze.

Then Martha Dalton spoke—dear old Martha—and the black pall of tragedy seemed to lift a little as she strode purposefully over toward Jim and caught him by the arm. (To Be Continued)

In the next chapter the girls try to recall Jim's memory. But— bonds, or he may have tried to look that terrible look that had seared the world into handing him ten million dollars.

But whatever it was he sat there with an expression that a theatrical director would have loved to start in a small screen.

"The artist never said a word, but painted away. There emerged in time the most benign, kindly gentleman you can imagine. Father looked out of the canvas at an amazed world with a sweet generosity that would have put Buddha to shame."

"Proud? Well, the picture is not in the attic. It hangs inside the front door blessing all who enter and smiling a benediction on all who leave."

MANICURE YOUR OWN; DO THE JOB RIGHT

Careful manicuring is a beauty rite that cannot be neglected without unpleasant and obvious consequences. Fingernails are not only lovely and embarrassing, but are actually sources of infection and discomfort.

MANICURE WEEKLY

Manicuring when the cuticle is regularly cared for becomes a simple matter of cleanliness. If you do not go to a professional manicurist, you should have a weekly session of your own.

Liquid Bleach Good. If you use nail white under the nails, apply it with discretion. The liquid bleach that is introduced under the nail, on a cotton dipped orange stick is very good. Nothing is better than orange juice or a combination of equal parts of juice, peroxide and ammonia.

DISH MOP. A new fibre dish mop is connected to the sink by the faucet, and rinses while it scrubs. EGG-BEATER. Never let the eggs of an egg beater get into the dish water. BATHE HANDS. Before beginning dirty house work, fill the fingernails with soap to keep off dirt.

RAINBOW SANDALS. For southern wear, sandals in rainbow shades are new and striking. CLEANING FLUID. A good cleaning fluid, may be made at home of a half pint each of grain alcohol and chloroform and a tablespoon of ammonia.

THE WOMAN'S DAY (BY ALLENE SUMNER)

When little Martha Kenworthy was 15, she told her mother that she'd like to be a mother. Today's girl says, "I want my own place right now," and she proceeds to make that own home.

LINK BRACELETS

Bracelets of alternating seed pearl and rhinestone links have clasps of silver.

HOOP EARRINGS

Hoop earrings made of four or five gold hoops give exotic charm to a black-haired beauty.

SILVER AND SAPPHIRE

Novelty jewelry is using silver and sapphires to great effect.

HAND-BLOCKED SCARFS

Hand-blocked scarfs in darling colors are seen on New York streets with sober street clothes.

Her Hair Fairly SPARKLES Now!

The woman who knows what to do after waving her hair doesn't fear the effect of hot irons. Nor of frequent washing. A few drops of Danderine on comb or towel—and the hair is soft and lustrous, and behaves beautifully.

Chic Coiffure

To achieve the latest in Parisian coiffures, the boyish bob is used, but two strands of hair are left long and brought to the opposite side, where they are tucked in with jeweled combs.

SILVER BROCADE

Silver metal brocade on a black satin background makes a stunning formal gown for the dowager.

HOW TO GIVE FIRST AID TO MONOXIDE VICTIM

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

For some years it has been known that it is exceedingly dangerous to remain in a closed garage near to the exhaust of a motor car when the engine is running.

The exhaust gas contains large amounts of dangerous poison called carbon monoxide gas. Illuminating gas also contains a considerable amount of this substance. The gas is invisible and has no odor, at least not sufficient to constitute a warning.

In the Streets Indeed, some doctors have stated that a sufficient amount of this gas is released from the exhaust pipes of motor cars, and particularly large trucks and buses running in our streets, to cause serious symptoms in the people who are constantly exposed to the inhaling of such gases.

Jekyll and Hyde

By Olive Roberts Barton

A certain King refused to have his portrait painted by a well-known artist. It was an unusual thing for a king to do for it was quite in order of things for royalty and other celebrities to ask for the artist in question.

The kid jolly-king knew this. He was satisfied with himself and his subjects were satisfied with him. Why upset the whole apartment and start the gossip?

One time a family of girls who were bringing up father, persuaded their families to have this same portrait painter do him in oil. The painter didn't want to be done in oil and he didn't want to be done for fifty thousand dollars. But it was three to one, so he went.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

In the old days, if anybody missed a stage coach, he was contented to wait a day or two for the next. Now a man lets out a howl if he misses one section of a revolving door.

"Cross Crossings Cautiously" if you would avoid that run-down ice-cream.

Chiropractor: I had a patient today whose spine—

Wife: Stop! I don't want to hear any more of your back talk.

Fairy Story—"Certainly," said the reporter, "I will return your photograph." And he did.

Husband to clerk—Will you show my wife a cooking range, please?

Clerk—Pleased to, sir. What kind would you want?

Husband—Oh, we don't want to buy. I just want her to see what one is like.

The sting of bees is said to be good for rheumatism, but "as for me and my house" we'll take rheumatism.

FLAPPER PSYCHOLOGY The flapper nonchalantly showed a pair of limbs acutely bowed.

"The which," remarked Prof. Kent, "To my trained eye reveal her bent."

The sox upon her bowlegs showed No roll of bills a cow to croak, And that is how I quickly knowed The girl was bent and also broke.

I think you're making fuller mention Of her than she at all deserves; Why should a man discuss those curves?

That need, but are not worth, attention?

Reveal her bent! 'Tis that she begs, This modest and demure young miss!

That you, when writing of her legs, Will do it in parenthesis.

THE GLOW OF FRATERNITY It is to seal the sacred bonds of brotherly love with a warmth that shall ne'er grow cold.

"Yes," drawled the great man, "many are the wonderful holidays I've spent abroad, and I've had a good many adventures, too. While I was in Africa I hunted bear."

"Good heavens," cried his pretty companion, "but didn't you get awfully cold?"

The trouble seems to be that the people who started the movement for short skirts some time ago forgot to equip it with brakes.

Once a man succeeded in training his wife not to squeeze the toothpaste tube in the middle.

The troubles that never come are more trouble than those that do, but it's different with company.

In Greenwich village, recently, modern poetry was recited through a megaphone, accompanied by a clarinet, flute, saxophone, trumpet, and cello. These were of no avail, however, the verses being easily audible.

INTELLIGENCE TESTS

WHAT'S MISSING?

Here are some easy questions written especially for children. The correct answers appear on another page:

1—What is missing in the accompanying picture?

2—How long did Rip Van Winkle sleep?

3—Is pneumonia singular or plural?

4—What is the capital of Kansas?

5—Is a lieutenant or corporal a higher ranking officer in the United States army?

6—How many years is the term of president of the United States?

7—What is the abbreviation for Maine?

8—What river forms a natural boundary between Arizona and Nevada?

9—Who was head of the American army during the Revolutionary War?

10—Which is the largest in area of the United States?

A garage man's motto should be, "Oily to bed, oily to rise."

THE TINYMITES BY HAL COCHRAN

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

The Tinymites quite nervous grew because, of course, nobody knew where poor wee Clowny was by now. He'd been gone near an hour. Said Scouty, "Waiting here means naught. It's more than likely he's been caught. Let's all go forth and rescue him, if it's within our power." They talked it over quite a bit, and then upon a good plan hit: "We'll wait around until it's dark," said Copy to the rest. "I would be too hard, in broad daylight to seek poor Clowny Tinymite." And so they all agreed that dusky nighttime would be best. They loafed and talked and played until the sun sank slowly o'er a hill, and then they saw the pale moon rise 'mid clouds just overhead. "Ah, now's our time to stop our play, and journey softly on our way. I guess that we'll be safe, now, in the darkness," Scouty said. So, off they went, all in a bunch, and Carpy whispered, "I've a hunch that we had better shortly get down on our hands and knees. Some people's eyes are very keen. We cannot tell, we may be seen. Now, everyone be quiet, now, and careful, if you please." They crawled to where the ice hut stood, and Scouty whispered, "This is good. We haven't seen a soul, so we are safe as safe can be. No doubt wee Clowny's in this No-doubt wee Clowny's in this No-doubt. At least it's where his footprints trace. I wonder if we have the nerve to crawl right in and see." "Aw, shucks, come on," brave Copy said. "Just follow me. I'll go aboard. If anything should happen, we can quickly turn and run. And tomorrow we will know much more, for when they reach the inside, lots of pleasure is begun." (The Tinymites find Clowny in the next story.)
