The special performance was to begin at 10:30 this morning. At nine minutes to eleven, the curtain was lifted and the Rajah appeared.

Hathaway on Scene The Rajah explained that shortly before time for the performance to begin, Prosecuting Attorney Hathaway and Patrolman John McGinn came to the theatre and informed Manager Sanson that the show must be stopped; that it was against the law.

Passing the Buck Efforts to learn the cause for prohibiting of the performance were refused by Samuel G. Gordon chief of police Samuel G. Gordon replied: "I was unaware that the performance was stopped. I refer you to Mr. Sanson."

GOOD BRAKES SAVE LIFE OF PHYSICIAN

Ellington Doctor Stops Car In Nick of Time—Trolleys Blocked For Hours.

Dr. Edward A. Brace of Ellington, had a narrow escape from death early last evening at the Talcottville bridge when he lost his bearings in the heavy fog and drove his automobile into the open space between the road and the trolley bridge.

The accident happened at 7:10 but through traffic was not restored until 10:22, trolley officials said. The wrecker did not arrive until 9:30.

Blocks Trolley Traffic The accident severed trolley traffic between Manchester and Rockville. Fortunately, however, four cars were "trapped" on the rocky side of the bridge when the automobile left the road.

It appears that the job of removing the wrecked automobile from its position was a hard one. It was necessary to summon the wrecker from Hartford in Hartford. This is a cumbersome looking car that requires considerable power to operate. In fact, it used so much power that other trolley cars were slowed up, trolley officials said.

On Sick Call Dr. Brace did not suffer even a scratch in the accident. The automobile was only slightly damaged. It was extracted by means of a crane.

Reports to Police Immediately after the accident, Dr. Brace reported the affair to the Rockville police who gave out the information that the control Dr. Brace had of the auto was the only thing which saved his life.

Dr. Brace was returning from attending a patient in the outskirts of Wapping when he met with the accident. He said he never saw the fog so thick in his life. He attributes his escape from death as being due to the fact he was driving very cautiously. A trolley car was proceeding close behind him as he started to round the corner on to the bridge and had the motorman not stopped his car suddenly the trolley would have rammed into the automobile.

ASSESS DUKE ESTATE FOR MILLION LOSSES

Must Pay Expenses of Fertilizer Experiments Made By N. Carolina Company.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 21.—The court of chancery here has decreed, it was learned today, that losses amounting to $1,032,337.93 incurred by the late James B. Duke, millionaire tobacco man, in experimentation with a new process of manufacturing fertilizer, must be met by his estate in spite of the opposition of his widow, Mrs. Nana-line H. Duke and the executors of the $39,000,000 left by the deceased.

The sum in question is to be paid over to the Southern Power Company of Charlotte, North Carolina, in which Mr. Duke held 70 per cent of the stock. A bill has been presented by the Power Company to the estate, specifying amounts paid out on notes and amounts due for power and light to the Piedmont Electro-Chemical Company of Charlotte, which was organized by Duke to manufacture the fertilizer.

SMITH, BARRED BY SENATE, TO FIGHT FOR SEAT

Battle Before Committee to Be Led By James Beck, Former Solicitor-General Of the United States.

Washington, Jan. 21.—With the doors of the Senate closed in his face and barred from his oath of office, Senator-designate Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, today faced the task of proving to a hostile jury his right to a senatorial seat on the appointment given him by Governor Len Small.

As the Senate has twice refused to let Smith enter its portals, even temporarily, there appeared small likelihood of his ever becoming an actual senator. The voters against Smith were both 48 to 33, a Democratic-insurgent coalition joining hands to bar him from his appointed seat. Senators McLean and Bingham of Connecticut both voted in favor of Smith's admission.

Leaders of the coalition hailed the verdict as an announcement by the Senate that it will not admit to its membership any senatorial candidate tainted with huge expenditures. As such, they predicted, the verdict virtually bars both Smith and Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, from any hope of entering the Senate in the next Congress.

Smith meanwhile prepared today to lay his case before the Elections Committee, to which the Senate referred his credentials. In his fight for a seat, it was said, he will be represented by James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States, and Cornelius J. Doyle, Springfield, Ill., attorney.

To Start Tomorrow A preliminary meeting will be held Saturday to arrange a program for the committee's inquiry into the right of Smith to a seat. This session, it was said, will be attended by Smith, his counsel, members of the committee and Senator-elect A. Reed, Democrat of Missouri, who led the vote to exclude a program then will be mapped out for the investigation and until an agreement is reached, it was said, no one would predict the range of the inquiry.

Later an Internal Revenue representative intimated that some action might be taken against the bank, but officials of the institution declare they were entirely within their rights in cashing the huge check.

YOUNG FOLKS NEVER SO GOOD, SA YS FORD

Of Course, They're a Bit Like Caged Lions Just Let Loose, But Pretty Quick They'll Handle Freedom Right.

By THEODATE GEOFFREY South Sudbury, Mass., Jan. 21.—"I believe the young people of today are better than they ever have been because they have been given freedom and have learned to stand on their own feet." Henry Ford made this statement with a strong emphasis, although his ordinary conversational tone is so low and quiet it is difficult to follow him.

It was his way of answering the oft-made charge that the automobile, in turning young folks loose, away from parental control, has contributed to license and immorality. Henry Ford does not think so.

NORRIS, SOBBING TELLS OF KILLING

Weeps as He Swears He Shot Chippis in Fear of His Life.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 21.—Frequently breaking into sobs, and with tears streaming down his face, Rev. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church at Fort Worth, today told his story of how he killed D. E. Chippis, lumberman, in the church study at Fort Worth, last July 17.

The minister is on trial for murder. Declaring that Chippis came into his office, where the pastor was talking with L. H. Nutt, church trustee, Norris said Chippis declared:

"Saw Hip Pocket Motion
"You have been talking too much about my friends, Meacham, Roach and Austin, and if you don't stop, I'll kill you."

Meacham is the mayor at Fort Worth. Roach is a prominent druggist and Austin is a city councilman.

"He demanded that I retract a sermon I had prepared for the next day," Norris testified. "I told him it was impossible, and asked him to leave. Chippis started to leave and turned around, saying 'I'll kill you, I'll kill you.' His right hand went back to his hip, I saw the movement."

Tears welled to the pastor's eyes when he asserted that Chippis started at him rapidly, and sobbing the pastor testified:

"I—I—I—I—I shot him."
The minister was to be put under cross examination later this afternoon.

At recess Mrs. Norris gave her husband a cheering pat on his shoulder and said:

"You did nobly, I know it was hard but God was with you."

This is considered quite a record inasmuch as Mr. Hohenthal has made trans-Atlantic trips on five occasions.

Many guests were present at the anniversary session last night. Five were present from Hartford among whom was Most Worthy Patriarch Mrs. Annie R. Beador of Hartford. Grand Worthy Patriarch James W. Davis of Bridgeport was detained by illness but sent a congratulatory letter. Grand Conductor Mrs. Nini R. Anderson of Hartford was present as were two grand division officers. ### MEXICO WAITS FOR U. S. ON ARBITRATION

Dakota, designed to prevent President Coolidge from directing any military thrusts against Mexico without calling a special session of Congress.

By Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, demanding that the Foreign Relations Committee investigate reports that the State Department sought to induce press associations to carry "propaganda" intended to arouse public resentment against Mexico.

Wants Names
By Senator Norris, calling upon the State Department for the names of American individuals or corporations, owning oil concessions in Mexico; the names of those who have accepted and rejected the Mexican laws, and the correspondence between the State Department and the concession holders over the controversy.

On top of these resolutions, the Senate foreign relations committee, after a session of more than two hours behind closed doors, agreed to favorably report the Robinson resolution in amended form. This resolution declares it to be the sense of the Senate that the dispute with Mexico should be settled by arbitration.

The committee vote for a peaceful solution of the Mexican controversy was thirteen to three.

Claim Rebels Beaten.

Mexico City, Jan. 21.—Claims that the backbone of the rebel movement has been broken, the government is taking action to check false rumors of rebel successes, which rumors it claims are being disseminated to bolster the hopes of those religious zealots engaged in the insurrectionary movement.

The government has ordered that the laws regarding the dissemination of false news be strictly enforced.

The War Department is still receiving reports indicating that there is a considerable amount of fighting in progress in several parts of the nation, but generally the fighting is on a small scale and is taking the nature of guerrilla warfare.

Defeat of a rebel band, led by two priests, in Nochistlan, Zacatecas, is claimed by the War Department. These rebels are alleged to have attacked the town and to have been repulsed with the loss of six dead and immediately executed. One woman was made a prisoner. The rebels lost one dead and four wounded.

McLean Dissents

One of the dissenting votes was cast by Mr. McLean of Connecticut. Those favoring the resolution included Moses of New Hampshire and Gillett of Massachusetts.

Frazier's resolution was prompted by reports that the administration planned to "let the Mexican situation drift" until after Congress adjourns six weeks hence, when a firmer stand would be taken.

Demands Congress Act

"It is the sense of the Senate," his resolution read, "that the President of the United States should not exercise the power of the commander in chief of the army and navy of the United States to send any of the armed forces of the nation into Mexico, or to mobilize troops on the Mexican border, or to assemble fighting units of the navy in waters adjacent to Mexico, while the Congress of the United States is not in session, but that if and when he contemplates such action, he shall immediately summon the Congress in special session and communicate to it the reasons for such proposed military action."

SWIMMING CLASSES AT EAST SIDE REC

Women-Students Doing Well Under Instruction By Miss Ruth Calhoun.

Under the instruction of Miss Ruth Calhoun, associate director of the Recreation centers women of the swimming classes are making rapid strides. It is not quite as easy for an older person to learn to swim as a younger one but it is surprising how many women have accomplished in eleven lessons. The twelfth and last of the lessons of the series will be given this week. Next week a new series will begin. The beginners' class will be held on Thursday evening, January 27, at 7 o'clock.

Miss Calhoun feels there isn't a person who cannot learn to swim. No one is too young or too old. She does consider it essential, however, to have enough confidence in the teacher to be willing to follow her instructions.

The Intermediate B class will have its first lesson of the series Tuesday evening, January 25th, at 7 o'clock. This class consists of those who are able to keep afloat by using the side stroke only imperfectly.

The Intermediate A class and the advanced class will meet together because the work is so closely allied. They will begin at 7:40 o'clock Thursday evening, January 27th.

27th. The Intermediate A group consists of those who wish to perfect the side stroke so as to do several lengths of the pool using the correct stroke and correct breathing. This will be quite rapidly accomplished so they can soon join the advanced class work and learn the crawl stroke and diving. Anyone wishing to learn to dive may join the advanced class. Only a certain number will be taken for each class so it would be advisable to sign up at the office immediately.

There are already two private swimming classes at the East Side Rec Pool. Time is available for one more class. If a party of from ten to twenty women would like to have a private class in swimming, Miss Calhoun would be very glad to make the necessary arrangements. The time will be given to the first party requesting it.

SIGN COLLEGE STAR

Not more than 10 years ago Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants had little or no use for the college ball player. Today he is strong for the educated athletes.

His latest high-brow rookie is a star, Edward Kallina, who made a name in football as well as baseball. He is a pitcher with a tendency to hit the ball a Babe Ruth.

With Bloomington in the Three-I League, where he played before getting McGraw's O. K., he was used at first, and in the outfield when not pitching, in order to take advantage of his slugging.

ANOTHER B. B. RUMOR

New York, Jan. 21.—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker are almost certain to be "exonerated and restored to good standing" as a result of the Johnson-Landis showdown next week, according to a report in circulation today. The report was that Johnson would be retired as head of the American League and given a pensioner's job as president-emeritus while Cobb and Speaker already vindicated by Johnson's latest statement that they were dropped for incompetence and not dishonesty would be, of necessity, restored to good standing.

LANGFORD GETS $6,000

New York, Jan. 21.—Sam Langford, now ancient and almost sightless, was richer by about $6,000 today as the result of a benefit show conducted on his behalf last night at the Walker Athletic Club in the heart of Harlem which was Langford's playground in the days when he was the most-feared heavy weight in the game. It is understood that Langford plans to open a bootblack stand in Boston to support himself in his declining years.

Canada exported more than $12,000,000 worth of furs during the year which ended in April, 1926.

CAPT. BLOW DIES AT HIS HOME HERE

Mariner Who Served 40 Years on Big Lakes Passes Away After Brief Illness.

Captain Moses Blow died at his home, 58 Oxford street last night about ten o'clock after a few days' illness with grip. Yesterday he was much better but a heart attack was the immediate cause of death. His wife only recently returned from St. Francis' hospital after undergoing a major operation and is slowly convalescing at her home.

Captain Blow was born at Grand Isle, Vermont, December 19, 1833, and for more than forty years has been a captain on boats plying the waters of Lake George and Lake Champlain during the summer seasons. For several years past he has spent his winters in Manchester, the family having moved here from Burlington, Vermont.

Subject of Story
The Herald carried a feature story in October, after Captain Blow returned from his season on Lake George. It told an interesting tale of his experiences on the lakes during his long period of service with the transportation company. He considered the Lake George scenery the most beautiful to be found anywhere. His father before him was a sailor and spent many years on sailing vessels on these lakes.

Captain Moses Blow

He has several brothers and sisters now living in Vermont and a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry Blow.

Made Home Here
Captain Blow and his family liked Manchester so well they decided to make their permanent home here and in the late fall he bought the cottage on Oxford street. Beside his wife he leaves three daughters, Mrs. Ralph Kingman and Mrs. William J. Haggarty who live with their parents and Mrs. Henry Veins of Main street. He also leaves one grandchild, Harry, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Veins.

The body will be taken to Burlington tonight on the midnight train. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. Oxley of the Baptist church in that city will officiate. It will be a Masonic funeral with burial in Lakeview cemetery.

OPEN FORUM HERALD WANTS TIPS ON SPECIAL STORIES

Manchester Folks Always Talk Of Articles That Should Be Written, After They Appear.

Editor Evening Herald:
Queer thing about those Saturday Special articles concerning interesting Manchester persons. I was talking to one of the writers, asking how he managed to "dig up" these people every week. "It is very difficult," he said. "Sometimes as many as four leads are visited without a story. Finally one is visited who is willing to talk. But now comes the queer part. As soon as the article appears The Herald office is besieged by men and women saying that they know of persons who were better soldiers, better sailors, had wider experiences or had more interesting stories to relate than the person around whom the stories were woven. The Herald would appreciate 'tips' of this kind before and not after the special story has been written."

Would it not be a good idea for Manchester folks to tip off The Herald concerning any interesting persons they know who live in this town?
One Who Admires the Specials.
Editor's Note:—The Herald would certainly welcome any tip of this kind.

GETS TWO RED FOXES IN A DOUBLE SHOT

Norwalk, Conn., Jan. 21.—James E. Katsor, local hunter returned from Cannondale with two red foxes that he killed at the same time yesterday. Katsor's hounds ran the foxes for some distance and when they circled toward him he fired twice so quickly that the two foxes dropped side-by-side in their tracks.

MINSTREL AND DANCE OF BON AMI CLUB

Expect Large Attendance at Hollister Street School Hall Tomorrow Evening.

Tomorrow evening at the Hollister street school assembly hall the Bon Ami Social club will give a minstrel followed by a dance. The entertainment is under the direction of James J. Breen. Mr. Breen will also sing some of the special solos. The cast is made up of some of the best voices in the club, strengthened by good outside talent.

No trouble or expense has been spared to make the entertainment tomorrow evening the outstanding affair so far given by the club. Rehearsals, started early in the winter, give evidence that the members and their friends have a treat in store for them.

The cast follows:
Director and special soloist: James J. Breen; interlocutor, Theodore Fairbanks; pianist, Miss Elizabeth J. Norton; soloists, Max Smith, Corwin Grant, William Brainard, George LaPlamme, Louis Breen and Henry Stewart. Quartet: William Brainard, Henry Stewart, Rufus Robinson and Lloyd Baisey. Gentlemen of the chorus, Norman Sanford, Sherwood Smith, Rudolf Fregin, Howard Grant, Albert Miller and George Snow.
After the Minstrel Al Behrend's Orchestra will furnish the music for the dances, old timers being interspersed with the jazzy modern.

HERE'S CHANCE TO SPEND $75 IN 3 MINUTES

The first opportunity for Manchester persons to make transatlantic radiophone calls will be had Saturday, according to an announcement made today by Miss Katherine T. Cannon, chief operator at the local division of the Southern New England Telephone Company. The trans-Atlantic service which was inaugurated in New York recently will be extended to include Connecticut at this time, she stated.
Miss Cannon said that at present no calls had been filed from local persons. They may do so, however, prior to Saturday to insure speedy handling of their calls, Miss Cannon concluded.
The cost will be $75 for the first three minutes and $25 for each minute thereafter.
It is not likely that the police will be required to keep local persons in line in front of the telephone office on Saturday.

ORMISTON EXPECTS WIFE TO DIVORCE HIM

"Phantom Radio Man" Does Not Anticipate Sensational Suit, He Declares.

San Francisco, Jan. 21.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, the so-called "phantom radio man" implicated in the Almee Semple McPherson case, was in San Francisco today. He is visiting his father and mother who live here.
Ormiston was reluctant to discuss the details of the case which gained him nation-wide notoriety. "It's a closed book so far as I am concerned," he said.
He admitted his wife was enroute here from Australia. He also said he suspected she would sue him for divorce.
"I hardly expect the grounds will be sensational," he said. More than likely it will be simply desertion.

CANADA HAS SMALL INDIAN "UPRISING"

"Mounted" Defeated by Red Wards When They Refrain From Shooting.

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 21.—Four hundred fighting Indians and their squaws today were in victorious possession of Oshweken Reserve, near here, following a "rebellion" last night in which the Indians attacked and overwhelmed a contingent of the Royal Mounted police, who refrained from firing at the mob.
The immediate cause of the rebellion was the recent ousting from the reservation of the Indians by the Canadian government due to alleged irregularities concerning agricultural concessions. The Indians ripped off the chains and locks placed on the buildings by the government and took possession.
Government authorities today were taking preliminary steps for a settlement.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Kit Carson (11)

In the romantic valley of Rayedo, 40 miles east of Taos, Carson, in 1849, established a little settlement with an old friend of the plains named Maxwell, and other comrades about him. Braves of neighboring tribes often called at Carson's ranch. They honored his courage. To them he was known as "Father Kit."

The old urge to trap the streams came often to Carson and he would set out over the trails in quest of furs and adventure.

In 1853, with 6000 sheep, Carson journeyed overland via Fort Laramie and Salt Lake to California, where he marketed them.

At San Francisco Carson met many of the old spirits of the plains and rivers, and good-fellowship constantly sought him out. San Francisco then was the cosmopolitan center of life on the coast, and Carson found himself everywhere a hero. But he avoided dissipation and took his way again over the trails to Taos. ©1927 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. (Continued.)

CANADA SENDS US 20 MILLION IN RUM

Whiskey Exports to U. S. Not Banned By Pact, Wet Association Declares.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Canada exported $20,000,000 worth of alcoholic liquors into the United States in 1926, according to a statement issued by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

"It is illegal to import liquor into the United States, but it is not illegal to export it from Canada to this country, thanks to the 'joker' which was slipped into the agreement signed by the two nations," the association said.

"This joker is a clause which states that Canadian customs officers must not refuse clearances to rum-runners, provided they appear capable of making the journey to the American port designated in their papers.

Ever Growing Trade

"That the joker has proved effective is indicated by the ever expanding traffic in liquor from Canada to the United States, the bulk of which is on Lake Erie and Ontario. More than half of the whiskey manufactured in Canada is produced in Ontario.

In addition to the $20,000,000 worth of whiskey smuggled into this country, the statement said that shipments of ale, beer and gin must be added. It was stated that $5,000,000 worth of beer was sent into the United States from Canada.

"Shipments to Mexico and Cuba were insignificant, the bulk of Canada's export liquor trade being with the United States," the association said.

70 'PHONE WORKERS GET SERVICE MEDALS

Five to Be Honored With 45 Year Emblem—22 Women Among Number.

Seventy employees of the Southern New England Telephone Company will be given new service emblems upon the completion during the year of 20 years or more of continuous service in the Bell System, although in nearly all these cases these faithful workers have been all the time with the Southern New England.

There are more than 260 employees of the telephone company who have 20 or more years of service in that business, but the 70 referred to are those who will receive new emblems marking the close of another five year period in their association with the business.

Gold Emblems

An emblem of gold is given each employee upon the completion of his first five years in the business and at the end of each succeeding five years he receives a new and slightly different emblem to indicate 10, 15 or 20 years of service and John W. Ladd, hale, hearty and happy is still on the job as General Claim Agent with 43 years and nine months to his credit.

There will be a very large number of employees to receive the five, ten and fifteen year emblems during the current year but for the purposes of this story only those of 20 or more years in telephony and receiving new emblems this year, are considered.

5 in '45' Class

Of the 70 employees in that class five will receive 45 year emblems, four will take off the 35 year emblem and wear the 40 year button; one will receive a 35 year emblem, four will proudly show their 30 year emblems, while 21 have completed the quarter century of service and 45 will receive 20 year buttons on which four small stars appear.

These 70 employees have served the public as telephone workers for a total of 1,765 years.

Included in the 70 employees are 22 women workers. And as this is a story without names it may further be mentioned that two women will receive 40 year buttons, one will receive a 35, three have been in the business 25 years and 16 will get the four star button of 20 years.

The long and continuous service records of telephone workers for, as stated, there are hundreds of them beyond the 20 year mark, indicate that there is something interesting about their jobs, something which holds them and it is a well established fact that as a group of workers they yield to no other in their loyalty to their business and their genuine desire to capably serve the public.

BRITISH LABORITES O. K. STRIKE CONDUCT

Vote Two to One Endorsing General Council Course in Great 1926 Conflict.

London, Jan. 21.—The meeting of the executives of the British trades unions, assembled here to hold an "inquest" on the unsuccessful general strike of last May today voted 2,340,000 to 1,095,000 in endorsement of the action taken by the General Council of the Trades Union Congress in handling the strike.

The vote taken today was a vindication of the authorized leaders of union labor, who have been under heavy attack ever since the ending of the general strike.

SHOOTS THREE, KILLING ONE, IS TRAILED DOWN

Detroit, Jan. 21.—Trailed through the snow for more than an hour, George Wiska, 23, said to have killed his father-in-law, seriously wounded his wife and shot a neighbor, was found exhausted in a lumber yard today.

Police said Wiska began shooting after his wife, Louise, 23, had refused his offer of reconciliation. Her condition is critical. When Peter Burm, 54, Wiska's father-in-law, tried to protect his daughter, he was shot in the head and lung. He died later.

The next victim was Norman Hoigie, 19. After Burm had been shot down Hoigie made a rush for Wiska but was shot in the neck.

JACK LOCKWILL AT ROCKLAKE

by Gilbert Patten

Jack didn't know what to do, and at first he found it difficult to keep from shedding tears of disappointment and shame. Succeeding, by a great effort in controlling and hiding his feelings, he met the taunts and jeers with a look of great haughtiness and defiance. Drawing himself up and assuming a disdainful and contemptuous manner, he said: "You are nothing but common little ruffians!"

That arrogant the biggest boy, a red-headed youngster who was given to bullying his companions. He sprang forward, looking savage enough to eat Jack. "Oh, is that so, you girl-raided little snipe?" he cried. "Well, I'll make you swallow that!" Then he slapped Jack's face.

Jack had never been struck before. The stinging pain brought tears into his eyes at last. Brushing the mist away, he saw the bully was going to strike again. Sudden hot anger filled his heart, but it turned almost instantly to cold rage. He flew at his assailant and knocked him down.

They fought upon the ground, striking, kicking and clawing as they rolled in the dirt. Jack's inferior strength made him no match for his opponent, who soon had him underneath. "Bag, you little bum, or I'll knock your block off!" snarled the bully. But Jack wouldn't budge. Suddenly they were snatched apart, and Jack was lifted to his feet. To his dismay, he found himself in the clutches of his own father.

Robert J. Smith, 1009 Main St.
 Real Estate, Insurance, Steamship Tickets.

New York, Jan. 21.—Schemes for cleansing the Broadway stage are now as numerous as cats in Greenwich Village.

But it is not likely that a czar of the Will Hays-Judge Landis type will come to rule over the theater belt. The last bright idea, and a fairly logical one, recommended a committee to read play manuscripts and pass on them before they went to potential producers.

Going through a batch of editorials printed on this subject by papers outside Manhattan, we gather that the rest of the nation is considerably more indignant than Broadway. That, perhaps, may be due to the fact that visitors are largely responsible for the box office success of so many objectionable dramas.

Recently, George C. Tyler, the producer, set out to put the public and clean-shaven leaders on record. He produced a very amusing comedy, "Tommy," which is as nearly 100 per cent pure as could be desired. The attendance at the start was not of the sort to encourage cleanliness. Advertisements and narrow challenging civic leaders and theatergoers to do something about it. Personally, we are a bit skeptical.

On the other hand, in the very midst of threatened censorship, another play, "New York Exchange," a fair play, with some amusing moments, luridly advertises as "a drama of a male captive," the interpretation of which we leave to our readers.

Next to play censorship, one of the most interesting topics of Broadway concerns the popular vogue of casts talking over plays after the managers have thrown up their hands.

It has often been held that many a good play went to the storehouse before its time, thanks to the timidity of managers who were losing a little money. Players have often had great faith in productions that failed and have long had a theory that, with a little longer run, a potential flop might be put over.

Within a few weeks two companies have gone to the rescue. One comedy drama, "The Padre," was so highly thought of by Leo Carillo, the star, that he personally threw out the headline, changed the name to "His Own Way," and temporarily saved it from the reef.

Then along came the cast "This Woman Business" and did the same thing. Hardly had the complaint concerning a dearth of musical shows gone forth than the market seemed suddenly to be flooded. From here, there and everywhere, musical pieces descended upon Broadway and scarce a rehearsal hall but isn't occupied. We have it that the demand for musical show books was so great indeed. The other day we heard a report that Charles W. Milling had hired a long list of principals, had his music and everything else, but no nook.

Quite the most pretentious of the new music productions is the Shubert's opus based on a romanticized incident in the life of Jeanie Lind, "The Nightingale." Eleanor Painter is cast in the role of the immortal Jennie.

And there's another that takes the adorable Dorothy Burgess out of light comedy and thrusts her back into a single role. "Bye-Bye, Bonnie," it has been named and boasts as one of its authors Bide Dudley, the Broadway columnist, which may account for the fact that its lines are more than ordinarily amusing.

The latest arrivals include one sure-fire success, "The Barker." Written by a Columbia professor, it presents a more colorful than accurate picture of street carnival folk. There seems to be a definite vogue for plays concerning carnivals. Just a couple of weeks ago "Ballyhoo" made its appearance, but failed to click.

"The Barker" will survive because of the merits of its cast rather than because of the play itself. There is much to be said in favor of the types presented and there is considerable of the flavor of the small town tent show racket.

But one is asked to swallow a plot wherein a hard-boiled ballyhoo man has dreams for his son; wherein that son leaves college and falls under the spell of a gal who can charm country lads as well as snakes; wherein this hard-boiled hannah of the tent racket blossoms under the tender sunshine of true love; wherein the ballyhoo man's son secretly weds a charmer and gets socked on the jaw by his daddy when the truth comes out—and a great deal that has more to do with the spun sugar concession than with the ferris wheel of reality.

We do not mean to imply that snake charmers are incapable of pure and idyllic love. In fact we seem to recall a glorious romance between the fat lady and the skinny man at Coney Island that ended in wedlock.

Much of the lingo is excellent, some of the persons and situations are hard-boiled enough for everybody and the sentimentalisms are such as will cause the box-office to blossom even as the rose. And the performances of Claudette Colbert and Walter Huston will be added to the good things of the season.

WILLIMANTIC DRIVE FOR HOSPITAL STARTS

Willimantic, Jan. 21.—A drive for a new municipally controlled non-sectarian hospital is on in earnest in this city following a meeting of 200 citizens in the town hall here Wednesday. A temporary ways and means committee has submitted a report that a survey strongly indicates that such an institution is desired here. The report of the temporary committee was accepted and a permanent committee was then empowered to proceed along the proper lines to secure a charter for the new hospital.

Rug Color Should Be Deeper Than Walls

An important thing to remember in choosing rug colors is that the floor should be deeper in color value, the walls lighter, and the ceilings lightest. This does not necessarily mean that all rugs must be of sombre tone; even where a gay rug is used the same subtle gradation of color may be observed. The floor is the foundation of the room and the strongest element must always be at the base, whether you build with bricks or with colors.

It was a colonial Bedroom group that drew their notice, and both were peering curiously, with noses flattened against the cold window glass, in search of style details. We overheard Grandma tell so interestingly of the brave men and women who lived in Colonial times, and how the severe sturdiness of their lives was reflected in the admirable simplicity of the furniture on display. The cutest Tot was noticeably impressed by her Grandma's wide information. "Granny," she spoke eagerly, "you sure know your onions!"

A City's People

Question of Future To Be Quality of Population, Not Quantity; Plans and Surveys.

This is one of a series of 20 articles on what American cities are doing to meet the needs of modern growth. Tomorrow: A City's Personality.

BY DON E. MOWRY Secretary American Community Advertising Association.

Population growth has been the big thing in the minds of American cities.

The Kinds of People. This means that in the near future emphasis is going to be placed on qualitative growth rather than on quantitative.

Adding to its 6-cylinder models, the Marmon enters the year with a somewhat smaller car of additional cylinder capacity. The little Marmon shown at the top is an 8-cylinder of 2 3/4 inch bore. Below is a new Essex coupe. The five Essex models are almost completely redesigned in body and motor. The higher hood and greater streamline effect give the appearance of the parent make, the Hudson.

OHIO WILL REAP BENEFITS FROM NEW SHIP CANAL

Great Lakes to Atlantic Route to Bring Cheaper Freight Rates.

Washington.—Owing to its tremendous manufacturing and agricultural industry Ohio will be one of the principal beneficiaries of the opening of a ship canal from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Ocean, in the opinion of commerce department experts who have been studying this project.

In the first place the plan, which has long been advocated by Secretary of Commerce Hoover and prominent Canadian engineers and officials would give Ohio excellent seaports in Cleveland, Sandusky and possibly other smaller lake-districts.

Officials said that the industries of the state likewise would make available to some extent cheaper power as the result of the proposed hydro-electrical developments.

Secretary Hoover said, in advocating the St. Lawrence route for the ship canal, that in addition to its contribution to an invaluable waterway, it would attract to the Erie basin a great number of new industries seeking cheaper power. While the eastern district possibly would profit to a greater extent than Ohio, officials believed that the Buckeye state would come in for an important share of benefit.

From the commercial and industrial standpoint a ship canal which would connect the vast production areas of Ohio with Europe and South America by water would mean cheaper freight rates and ability to more successfully compete with other exporting states.

Ohio already is one of the leaders in the American export business. For the third quarter of 1926 Ohio ranked ninth in United States as an exporter. For this period exports from Ohio were valued at $44,924,933, a gain of $5,284,938 over the same period of 1925.

Iron and steel plates, sheets and strips made up $5,199,680 of the total exports, having been the most important single item. Rubber tires produced in Ohio and exported to foreign countries were valued at $4,382,070.

Other important export commodities were wheat, passenger automobiles, agricultural machinery and parts and crude petroleum. Officials explained that from the manufacturing standpoint Ohio has been moving rapidly to the front in America since the war. To some degree the manufacturing industry is supplanting that of agriculture, once Ohio's most important commercial activity.

Manufacturing Plants Illustrating the sound economic position of the state it was explained by experts that the industry has a strong agricultural background, of importance in state building for the future.

160,000 ARE KILLED ON OUR HIGHWAYS

That Is the Toll For Last Ten Years—25,000 Killed Last Year.

The first note in a nationwide highway safety campaign was struck in Detroit today by Charles M. Upham, managing director of the American Road Builders Association. In an address before a convention of the National Crushed Stone Association, Mr. Upham appealed to every man, woman and child in the United States to help make the campaign a success.

According to Mr. Upham, the automobile has taken more than 160,000 lives during the past ten years. In many places the fatalities are increasing faster than the number of automobiles are increasing, he said. During 1926 many metropolitan districts reported an increase of fifteen per cent in the loss of life over that of 1925.

"Final reports will unquestionably show that more than 25,000 persons were killed in automobile accidents during the year ending January 1, 1927," Mr. Upham declared. "Most of these accidents were avoidable. The mortality was cut in half within a short period of time if the people of this country will co-operate with the American Road Builders Association and each other in the campaign we are putting under way this year."

Mr. Upham said that careless and reckless driving and unfit drivers are responsible for the largest number of accidents, while poor lighting, complex traffic regulations, dangerous grade crossings, sharp curves, narrow bridges and other highway defects are additional hazards.

At the national convention of the American Road Builders Association which has just adjourned at Chicago, the problem of fatalities on the public street and highway was given thorough consideration. It was decided to launch a campaign the objective of which is the reduction of loss of lives on the highways.

"If the Association can cut the loss of life on the highway in half, it will have saved more than 12,000 lives," Mr. Upham concluded. The safety campaign will be divided into three sections—statistical, engineering and psychological.

HELD FOR DEATH THAT SPEED ALONE CAUSED

Bridgeport, Jan. 21.—Reuben Root, Stamford automobile salesman has been held criminally responsible for the death of Albert Ackerson, also an automobile salesman, in Stamford on January 8. Coroner John J. Phelan, in making the decision, says the accident was due entirely to the high speed at which Root was operating a car.

PARK ON STREET BUT PAY FOR IT

State Commissioner Wants Autoists to Keep Out of Busy Thoroughfares.

A plan under which towns and cities might tax the parking of automobiles in their busiest streets is broached by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stockel in the January bulletin of the state motor vehicle department. He says that "a car parked all day in a busy city street ought to pay road rent to the city" and that the main object to be gained is "not the collection of revenue but to get rid of as many parked cars as possible."

Notwithstanding the fact that people of common sense and vision have almost invariably "laughed long and heartily" whenever the idea has been mentioned by the commissioner, he says that he has faith in the plan which might be considered by the Legislature as the basis of a law to help solve the parking problem. The parking problem, he points out, has so many complications in connection with the transaction of general business that "it has seemed to be a superhuman proposition to do anything about it," but he outlined his suggestion "with the hope for constructive criticism and that the idea may arouse enough interest so that the long-time parked car may be recognized as a nuisance and a menace."

Traffic Hazard

His discussion of the subject in the bulletin proceeds on the premise that parked cars today constitute the greatest single classified traffic hazard. The more the streets and highways are cleared of parked cars the safer will they be for all users, and an additional incentive ought to be given to motorists to take their cars off the streets when they intend to stop for prolonged periods.

The idea can be sustained, he says, on the ground that a parked car occupies road space. Every tax imposed on motor vehicles proceeds, he explains, on the theory of wear and tear on the roads, but even the basis takes into account, through factors involved in the wear and tear proposition, the road space occupied.

YOUNG PEOPLE NEVER SO GOOD, SAYS FORD

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. They were taking a lesson in the intricate maneuvers of the Land-ers, to the strains of an orchestra of four players, all workmen in the Ford factories, which they had brought with them from Detroit.

I asked if he looked for the revival of old-fashioned dancing to make people take more of their recreation in their own homes. "No," said Mr. Ford, frankly. "You can't expect the young people to do much with music or dancing in the homes. Records for the victrola have helped, and the radio, but recreation is really more of a community affair. Get a crowd together and they have more fun."

Mary-Lamb School Mr. and Mrs. Ford had come from Michigan this week especially to be present at the opening of the very little red school house to which Mary and her little lamb from the families in the neighborhood are studying there.

"We have sixteen hundred children in our school at Dearborn," went on Mr. Ford, and they all get instruction in practical arts and music, so that they have more fun. "No, I do not advocate psychological tests to pick out what job a child shall be trained for. Let them study and try things and they will soon sort themselves out to the jobs they like and can do well. We get the timber for executives in our personnel by that natural process. A man soon shows what work he likes, is promoted, makes good."

"We give the children plenty of chance to see the way things were done in the old times, and to show them the fundamental processes. They can think out improvements. You have to let people think things out for themselves."

For the Children "We have the old mill on this property now restored and run. What the children can follow the production of bread, for instance from the growing of the grain on the farm through the grinding and milling, and so forth. "As a matter of fact, we have five village industry plants here at Sudbury in the state. One of them has to do with the weaving of cloth. The children, as they graduate from the school, will have the opportunity of going into whatever industry interests them, and they can choose because they will have through practical experience of the various sorts, to judge by."

East Hartford High Plays Return Game Tonight

NEIL STOPS BOYLE AS CHENEYS BEAT ELMWOOD AGAIN 39 TO 34

Silk Workers Win From Endees For Second Consecutive Time; Game Tomorrow.

Elmwood bowed again last night before the superiority of the C. B. A. A. basketball five. The score was 39 to 34. Previously the silk workers had beaten Elmwood 43 to 40.

The news of Cheney Brothers' second victory in Elmwood comes as somewhat of a surprise notwithstanding the fact that Manchester beat them before. The Elmwood Endees have been making a creditable showing against the best teams in the state since Cheney Brothers tripped them 43 to 40 early in the season.

Nevertheless, George Hunt's boys started off in whirlwind fashion and were in the lead soon after the game was under way. Elmwood jumped into the lead twice but thereafter the local quintet led the procession. At halftime, Hunt's team was sitting on top of the world to the tune of 24 to 16 and clung desperately to the lead throughout the final stanza.

Tommy Faulkner had a big night. He caged four field goals and made good on eight of his eleven foul attempts. Joe Pentland also made four hoops but was successful on but three of his ten foul tries. Dick Dillon called 25 personal fouls, twelve on Manchester. Fat Friedman and Red Cervini were ejected via this route.

One of the outstanding features of the local team's victory was the exhibition Jimmy Neil gave. Pitted against Johnny Boyle, former C. B. A. A. center, Neil acquitted himself in splendid style. He scored three baskets against one for Boyle. Herby Kerr was not used because of Neil's fine work.

Cheney Brothers play the Crompton-Knowles Company of Worcester, Mass., tomorrow evening at the School Street Rec at 7:30. No admission will be charged. The summary of last night's game follows:

CROMPTON-KNOWLES HERE TOMORROW TO MEET CHENEY BROS.

Cheney Brothers' Athletic Association will be hosts to a delegation of athletes from the Crompton-Knowles Manufacturing Company of Worcester, Mass., Saturday afternoon and evening. A roast chicken supper will be served at the Rec on School street at 6 o'clock under the supervision of Chas. Osgood. It is expected to seat about forty persons.

The Crompton Knowles delegation which will include both bowlers and basketball players as well as a few top-notch chicken eaters, will arrive here at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. An hour later, a bowling match will take place at Murphy's alleys. The local five will consist of Wilkie, Canade, Schubert, F. Cervini and Subie. In the evening after the supper, or at 7:30 to be more exact, Cheney Brothers and the Crompton-Knowles Company will clash at basketball. The local team holds a close victory over the Bay Staters and hopes to repeat.

MALONEY FIGHTS TWO NIGHT
Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Jim Maloney, fighting South Boston heavyweight, will risk his ring future tonight when he climbs into the ring at the arena here to meet Tiny Jim Herman, gigantic Portland, Oregon slugger, in a bout scheduled for ten rounds.

Maloney has been signed by Tex Rickard to fight Jack Delaney in Madison Square Garden next month. If he is defeated by Herman he will automatically lose this match. Although Herman will have considerable advantage over Maloney in height, weight and reach, the South Boston Irishman was a strong favorite today.

ALL-AMERICAN WRESTLER
Illinois expects to turn out a wrestling team this year that will be in keeping with its high standard in other forms of athletics. Five of the seven wrestlers who will represent Illinois against Wisconsin in their coming meet are letter men. The list is headed by Captain Bernie Boland, All-American guard, who is the heavyweight entry.

Local Sport Chatter

The chances of a double victory for Coach Clarke's S. M. H. S. basketball team this week-end appear to be especially bright. East Hartford has not been cutting any capers and now that Coach Cassidy has lost sixteen varsity men at New Britain, the locals should win in the Hardware City Saturday afternoon.

Regardless of the fact that the New Britain game will be played in the afternoon, many from Manchester are planning to make the trip, as the recent wholesale suspension of New Britain players for violating the eligibility rules, has left no room for betting between the two schools. Dick Dillon is scheduled to be the eleventh man on the floor and will be unless Coach Cassidy gets away with a few substitutions like Yale did in the football tussle with Harvard.

A large number of Manchester fight fans went to Foot Guard hall in Hartford last night to see the bouts offered by the Massasoit A. C. The next opponent for the undefeated Wapping basketball team will be the New Britain Machine five with several of the now-famous "Ineligibles" from New Britain High, among them ex-captain Marian Zaleski.

When this column was typed last night, there was but slight possibility that the amateur tournament skating carnival would be held. The January thaw still refused to let up and unless Skating turns out much colder, there stands little likelihood that the affair will go through.

There were many Manchester folks at the game in Wapping the other night. Among them, we noticed Sam Prentice from Manchester Green. He's the jockey who at one time occupied the spotlight because of his horse races with Roy Roberts on the memorable steeds, Wildfire and Glistening Dick. Well, when we saw Sam he was in the hall sitting on a window sill trying to peer over the heads of many others who were unable to gain admittance.

Among other notables from here who attended the game in Wapping were Director Wilfred J. Clarke, coach of the S. M. H. S. basketball team and Director A. A. Warren of the local State A. However, both said the game was well worth seeing but expressed a desire to view the two teams on a larger floor.

Next week they are going to have dancing after the game in Wapping. However the dancers will have to go across the street to the school for that "sport."

There were a large number of young girls at the game Wednesday night even though dancing was not on the program, so it is apparent that an even larger crowd will be on hand when Wapping plays next Wednesday. Only a limited number can jam into the hall and the rest will have to stay out and cool off until the dancing starts. However the Charleston or Black Bottom should soon stir up circulation.

Children's class (8-12 yrs.)—Friday afternoon, 4:15-5:00
The children from 8 to 12 years of age who have been attending the swimming class at the East Side Rec. will notice a change made in the hour. When the new series starts the week of January 24th the children will meet on Friday afternoons at 4:00 p. m. instead of Saturday morning at 9:45 a. m.

Any mother wishing to give her daughter an opportunity to learn to swim will no doubt be glad to take advantage of this swimming class. Only twenty girls will be allowed in the class. There are at present 20 members of the class and most of whom are expecting to rejoin. It would be advisable for any new ones to sign up immediately if they wish to join.

BAN FACES LANDIS MONDAY

Bristling Battles of Bare Fist Days

I was scared silly and hurt so badly I was nearly in a frenzy when I broke my right arm in the eighth round of my famous fight with Bill Myers, the Stretcher Cyclone, at North Judson, Ind.

I figured I was in for it, as he had a punch that could knock my ears off. I continued cautiously stabbing with my left and waving my right. He was still dizzy from the knock-down I had scored. So things went on until the 30th round.

Then two strangers, nice-looking fellows, came around to my corner and asked me how I felt. "Fine," I says, putting up a bold front. "Can you go another 10 rounds?" they asked.

"I can go 50 more," I says, and they thanked me kindly, walked away and I forgot all about them. One-half hour later the fight still was on, and they came to my corner again and asked me for my Chicago address.

In the meantime Myers and I had been putting up a fight not half as good as the one I had put up. They began to give us the Bronx cheer.

Dawn broke and many of the miners wanted to get out and go to work, but the doors were locked and nobody allowed to leave. That was about the 58th round. Finally the referee announced he would stop the fight in six more rounds if we were both on our feet. I tried hard to put Myers down with my left but was just too weak from the pain of my fractured right. At the 64th round we were still fighting weakly. He called it a draw.

The Cyclone and I walked downstairs. There a strange sight met us. In the middle of the floor was the safe and scattered all over the room were papers. There wasn't a cent of our side but anywhere and it, together with all the bettors' money was gone.

The miners wanted to raise murder and clean up the town, but it availed them nothing. I had my arm set and returned to Chicago. At the saloon where I made my headquarters the bartender said: "I have an envelope for you."

I opened it. There was $2300 in bills in it, my end of the purse. The two strangers who visited me during the fight had not taken my address in vain.

Later I learned the names of the two safecrackers who pulled the job. They were experts. One of them cracked a big Canadian bank afterwards and got so much money he had to leave $100,000 behind because he couldn't carry it.

Editor's Note—In the next chapter McAniff tells how LaBlanche used the "pivot punch" and knocked out Jack Dempsey with his elbow.

PINOCHLE TOURNAY

BORG CALLED BEST TANKER IN WORLD

Arne Borg of Sweden is the greatest swimmer of all time. This fact strikes one forcibly in reviewing the records of 1926. Johan Weismuller, American prodigy, no longer is king of the natorial world.

Borg holds all international standards from 300 yards to one mile. Weismuller, it is true, still holds the 100 and 200-yard marks but the Swedish tankie has undisputed mastery of the majority of distances in the international field. Some of his flashiest time has been in the 300 yards, which he splashed in 3:15, and the 500 yards in 5:11.

FAVORS LA BARBA TO DEFEAT CLARK

Flyweight Champs to Battle For World Title in New York Tonight.

New York, Jan. 21.—Memories of the Jimmy Wilde who staked the field of weight, height, reach and a beating will be revived, at least in the odium of comparison tonight when a couple of Singer's midgets will turn belligerent and fight for the world's flyweight title.

Elky Clark, of England, and Fidel La Barba, of Los Angeles, champions of Europe and the world respectively, will be the principals. Twelve rounds will be the scheduled distance and La Barba will be the winner.

Has Reputation.
However, Elky has been sent here under guise of being England's first champion who is capable of wearing Wilde's mantle, whatever that is, and it may be well not to jump to conclusions about this mature little man with melancholy mien, a home full of children and ears fashioned on the model of an inquiring pointer.

He may or may not have an advantage over La Barba, but the latter, a veteran, is supposed to be a formality for the invader. The general idea about La Barba is that he is making the wrong way, the idiom, if at all. He will be weakened, they intimate. I don't believe it.

Comparative Records.
The comparative records of the pair also indicate that Clark carries the deadlier punch. Somehow, I don't believe either will knock the other silly since he became champion within the year he left the amateur ranks but the idea is that he doesn't have to murder Clark. It is only necessary that he beat him and, favored by youth, speed and the twelve-round distance, there is every reason to suspect that he will.

It will be the first international championship meeting since the Dempsey-Firpo frolic in September, 1923.

"SHOWDOWN" MONDAY

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Supporters of President Ban Johnson of the American League, whose "showdown" battle with Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis is scheduled for next Monday, took heart today when it was re-called today that a little matter of $360,000 will be considered before any attempt is made to force Johnson into retirement. He has a contract with the American League that does not expire until 1935; at $40,000 per annum.

Asked if he intended to resign, Johnson said: "I have been in harness steadily for thirty-four years."

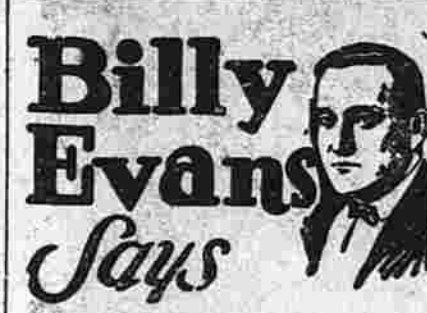

There was no spot in all New York that hadn't been tied up to prevent the coming of the American League caused the National to get panicky. Peace overtures were offered by the National. The two leagues got together and drew up a working code known as the National Agreement, which governed baseball until the coming of Judge Landis.

In 1913, the baseball scandal, involving the Chicago Americans, and the National Commission, a body of three men, and elect Judge Landis as the High Commissioner of Baseball.

Since that time a constant feud has existed between Johnson and Landis, which of necessity will make the withdrawal of one or the other imperative.

In all probability, the issue will be decided at the meeting which Judge Landis has called for Monday, Jan. 24, at Chicago, in which President Johnson and the side of the Cobb-Speaker episode. Landis demands a showdown of all the evidence.

MANCHESTER IS CONFIDENT OF WINNING THIS ONE TOO

Billy Evans Says
Clear Up The Fog
The Ty Cobb-Trip Speaker case started the present upheaval in major league baseball.

Major of it game charges of "Swede" Ribberg, which were due to be untrue and were wiped off the slate by Judge Landis. That erased one of the biots on the game.

As a result of the Speaker-Cobb episode, the president of the American League and the high commissioner of baseball are now at swords' point.

Fandom has been fed up on the situation. Action is desired. The fog about baseball will not be cleared until a definite decision is given regarding Cobb and Speaker.

These two great stars are either innocent or guilty. A draw decision is never popular with sport lovers. Baseball must give its answer one way or the other.

Duncan Disappoints
George Duncan, famous British golfer, is with us but he won't be able to go back to England and tell the folks how he came and conquered.

Duncan is finding the going very rough out California way. His short game has been very bad. The putts simply won't go down and when they don't, the scores climb high.

Already Duncan has been soundly trounced in a special match with "Light Horse Harry" Cooper. He was positive he would take over the brilliant youngster.

Even a greater disappointment was his failure to qualify in the Los Angeles open. He lost out by a single stroke. He went from a 74 in his first round to an 84 in his second.

When Duncan takes an 84 he is certainly off his game.

Figuring On Pennant
Connie Mack is figuring on a pennant for 1927. The failure of years has been a distinct disappointment to go over the last two points.

The Athletics in failing to win in either 1925-26, showed one glaring fault, a lack of poise, particularly in the tight situations.

That was due to the fact that the club, as a whole was a young one, and lacked several veteran stars who might serve as a balance for the younger and more erratic members of the team.

Of course, this defect has been apparent to Manager Connie Mack for some time and he is not one who sits idly by without attempting to remedy it.

Mack's club lacked an experienced veteran in the infield. The outfield also was just a trifle shy what it should have been, while the play at shortstop was brilliant but erratic.

Signs Three Stars
It strikes me that Connie Mack has remedied these weaknesses by the addition of Eddie Collins, Zach Wheat and Boley.

Clarke's Combination Working Like Clock—Locals to New Britain Tomorrow Afternoon.

Manchester	E. Hartford
Holland	Powell
Gorman	Thayer
Farr	T. Stangle
Borgini	Bjorklund
Dowd	C. Stangle

The above lineups will meet for the second time this season tonight at the School Street Rec in a Connecticut Interscholastic League game. Manchester won the first of the two in East Hartford two weeks ago by the decisive score of 51 to 27 and the second team also won by a comfortable margin.

Manchester's victory over Meriden last Friday evening put lots of confidence in the boys and their work in practice this week has been of the best. It was good last week and it seems that the team has returned to the old form it was in when Hartford fell before it by the score of 46 to 15 in the first contest of the season.

Bristol and New Britain have been the only teams to take the measure of Manchester and the local team has lost only one league game. The New Britain game has been thrown out as though it had never been played. Manchester will get another chance at Bristol later in the season on the home floor.

Coach Clarke's most effective lineup seems to consist of Gorman, Holland, Farr, Boggini and Dowd. The Boggini in the regular lineup is Nino, the boy who ran the floor. Bristol ragged in Bristol and held Smith of Meriden, one of the best players in High school basketball, to one basket. He is a running guard of the first water and bids fair to show a real showing when it comes to picking an All Connecticut team.

On Saturday afternoon the second game with New Britain will be played. Manchester will meet the Hardware City team on the latter's floor. There is reason to believe that lots of fireworks. Since the team has 16 members of the New Britain squad from further basketball this season, the team of Coach Cassidy's fondest hopes has become a thing of the past.

Practically every man who was on the first and second teams has been disqualified. This includes the great Zaleski, Havlik, and all the other varsity men who played in Manchester a few weeks ago when the locals fell by a 12 point margin. Coach Cassidy has had to build up an excellent team and it is hardly possible that it will be good enough to give Manchester even a run.

FATE OF DELANEY
RESTS WITH BOARD
New York, Jan. 21.—The fate of the Jack Delaney-Jimmy Maloney heavyweight elimination match hung in the balance today as the New York State Athletic Commission went into session to consider Tommy Loughran's plea that Delaney be forced to defend his light heavyweight title before entering the heavy fight. Chairman Jim Farley already declared unofficially for champions remaining remaining in their own class but the full sentiment of the commission will not be known until William Muldoon and George E. Brewer cast their votes.

Delaney has not defended his title in New York since lifting the championship from Paul Bertinbach last summer but in December he stopped Jamaica Kid in Connecticut. The latter was officially recognized by Connecticut as a title fight and, the two stars having a working agreement, New York would seem to be in duty bound to acquiesce. In that case, Delaney will not be subject to challenge by Loughran or any other contender until his six months of grace elapses in June.

The Japanese entrant will be Kinryu Matsuyama, world's junior champion, or K. Suzuchi, former junior title holder.

GUARD MUST STAY BETWEEN OPPONENT AND THE BASKET

BY H. G. OLSEN, Ohio State Coach

One of the first and most important fundamentals of individual guarding is that the guard should stay between his man and the basket.

If he so places himself, he is able to see the ball and cover his man as well. He can watch ball, but at the same time be aware of any movement which his opponent makes and can shift his position accordingly.

Failure to observe this fundamental of guarding has cost many a basket.

The illustrative pictures portray one very common mistake in this connection. The guard (see illustration No. 1) has posted himself in an improper position; he is not between his man and the basket, and so cannot see the ball and his man at the same time.

He is watching the ball and pointing at his opponent, who is slightly behind and to his left. This mistake can very easily be observed by anyone who cares to look for it in the average basketball game. Pointing at a man doesn't cover him.

Illustration No. 2 shows the forward starting his break for the basket. The guard, watching the ball, is evidently aware that something is about to happen. But before he quite senses the situation, the forward has the jump on him and is on his way to the basket. Too late, the guard discovers this fact and makes a strenuous effort to stop the pass to his man.

Illustration No. 3 shows the usual result of such improper guarding. The forward has earned a sufficient advantage, so that the efforts of the guard are in vain. The basket is made.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

To the home of PROF and MOLLIE ELWELL, in Cambridge, Ind., one night in October of 1898, is brought a woman who had fainted on a train. That night twin girls are born to her and she dies without revealing her name.

The story then moves forward 18 years. The twins have been adopted and named MARGARET and ELIZABETH. They are called RUSTY and BETTY.

JIM ELWELL, the son, enlists in the World War. He then discovers that one of the twins loves him.

He is shell-shocked at Sedan and reported dead. Much later he is identified in a New York hospital, where his parents find him with his speech and memory gone. He is like a living dead man.

The day before he is to be taken home he wanders away from his nurse. Late that night he is found in Bellevue hospital with his skull fractured, expected to die. He had been hit by a truck.

The twins, meanwhile, had been identified as the niece of the wealthy JOHN CLAYTON of Indianapolis. Their father is Jim.

Mollie, who is dying, says she will live but his memory is gone forever, and they are to bring him home shortly.

When the Elwells arrive, there is a scene and suddenly one of the grief-stricken twins cries that she is Jim's wife.

ing and carrying on was what he took place."

He took Rusty's head in his hands and lifted her chin up so he could look at her face. "Of course I know you, Rusty," he said. "And don't think I'll ever forget how you saved poor Jim from getting the hide beat off him by the champion of Missouri. Do I remember the croquet ball? Say! And I remember, too, the day that little Rusty got bit by the rattlesnake. Do you remember, old pal?"

Rusty smiled. "How can I forget, Jim? You saved my life that day." She paused, drew a breath.

"Oh Jim, it's just too good to be true, that's all. They said there was no hope for you and here you are just the same as when you went away. I'm so happy I just don't believe I can stand it."

The girl sprang up and rushed over to Mollie, to fling her arms around her and lay her head on her lap. A gutty look was exchanged by Mollie and Prof.

Jim, one arm still clinging to Betty, suddenly sprang to his feet.

"Here I am," he said, "sitting here and there's poor Martha Dalton standing over there and looking like she had seen a ghost. Martha, I'm coming right over and kiss you. This seems to be a regular kissing party, and I don't want to slight anyone. Ain't that right, Prof?"

It certainly was, Prof agreed.

"But Jim," faltered the old nurse, her hands on his shoulders, as she gazed, unbelievably, into his eyes, "I don't understand. Can it be possible that Betty and Rusty brought you back again? They seemed to believe they could work wonders with that harp of Betty's. Was that it, Jim? Did the harp make you remember all of a sudden?"

Jim patted her broad back. "Now you wait just a minute, Martha, old dear, and I'll explain everything. Sit down, everybody, because it's a long story."

He looked around him. "Where's Mike Heneghan?" he asked.

"He's out in the yard, I believe," said Martha.

Jim went to the door and opened it. "Mike," he called. "Come here, Mike."

"Comin' up," Mike's cheerful voice came floating into the room.

"Thought I'd get a breath of fresh air," he explained with that broad grin of his, "while you was all enjoyin' your little family reunion. I'm reportin' for duty now. What's to be done?"

"Not a thing," said Prof: "at dawn."

Jim sank into the wide chair again and pulled Betty down beside him.

"So it's just like this, little sweetheart—and you, too, old pal," turning toward Rusty. His voice shook just a little bit as he began to tell the story that sounded so startling to the girl and Martha Dalton.

"You see, when I got bit by that truck—so they told me, anyway—everything went just sooty. And when Mollie and Prof and Nellie Downing and Mike found me that night in Bellevue hospital they told me I was going to die."

Betty clung to him a little tighter.

"That's all right, honey—I'm all right now," he smiled. "Well, for five days I was unconscious, and during those five days they still thought the odds were about tan to one that I wouldn't wake up—or if I did wake up, that I wouldn't live."

"But one day I woke up, and when they looked me over they found my noodle was still all right—langled up just the same as before."

In the next chapter Jim explains how his memory was restored.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XVI

MOLLIE ELWELL fell backward into the chair beside Jim. The sobbing girl threw herself on her knees in front of her and buried her head in the woman's lap, her slim young body shaken, trembling in passionate abandon.

Prof Elwell's expression was strangely lacking in surprise considering what he had just listened to. Instead of exclaiming, he half nodded to himself.

But Martha Dalton, standing beside the portieres that covered the doorway between the rooms, gasped and looked all around her as if expecting that an explanation would come from the air.

After a moment the excited girl began to speak again, gasping, her words broken by choking sobs; but Mollie and the others heard and understood.

"You—you said I—I have no—no right, Mollie. But—I love the right of wife and of—I have for him."

She faltered a moment, then went on.

"I've always loved Jim, Mollie—ever since—ever since we were babies. And then one night out there in the yard I told him so—and he told me he loved me. I—I promised him when he went to Chicago, that I'd wait for him until he came back. He—he thought it best for both sister and me. And only sister knew about it, Mollie—she was with us that day we were married—the day we went to Chicago."

"She promised not to tell, too. We thought it fun then. But—but now he is back, Mollie, and—he can't tell. He can't tell; he can't speak and tell you the things he's wanting to tell you if he could remember."

"Oh, my God!" Martha Dalton cried softly, and covered her face with her hands.

"So," the girl went on, "I had to tell, because I want him, Mollie—he's mine. I want to help him to live again—to get back his memory again if possible; if not, then—well, to love him and to help take care of him. Do you understand, Mollie?"

Mollie nodded, unable to speak for tears. The girl seemed calmer now—her voice was not breaking. She turned and looked full at Jim as she resumed.

"That's what I want to do, Mollie."

"Betty!" he whispered, and then held her tight.

take care of him and love him. What else do you suppose I care about? What do I care for money, or for the things money can buy—without Jim? What do I care for society or—anything, without Jim? He loved me before this awful thing happened. I want to make him love me again—to make him happy. Oh, Mollie, Mollie, you must let me stay with him. You must let me help Jim. I—I—"

She stopped. While she was looking at Jim an unbelievable thing had happened. Half blinded as she was, she saw it, and what she beheld stilled the words on her lips—seemed almost to still the very heart in her body. A stifled cry escaped her.

Then gradually, like the slow breaking of dawn, a radiance began to creep into her face. A light, glorious and splendid, flamed in her dark eyes. She appeared to gather herself—to lift herself up.

"Oh, Jim!" She screamed the name wildly, and rising with a swift movement she literally threw her trembling body into his outstretched arms.

"Mollie! Mollie!" cried the excited girl, "Jim knows me. He remembers me. Mollie, dear—Prof—oh—"

Martha Dalton had looked up in swift alarm. "What's happened to the poor girl? Prof, take her away; can't you see she's—"

"Mollie! Mollie!" cried the excited girl, "Jim knows me. He remembers me. Mollie, dear—Prof—oh—"

The words died away on her lips and Jim Elwell felt the slender form relax for an instant in his arms. But only for an instant. The body grew vibrant again. She raised her head and smiled up at him.

"Oh," she cried, "God is good. God is so good, Jim."

Jim Elwell was looking at her now with eyes that saw—eyes that held in their depths the look of understanding. His arms tightened around her. Then, at her words, his head bent forward on his chest and his second his lips moved in silent prayer.

Then he lifted his head. His glance swept around the room, fell on Mollie and Prof, encountered the startled eyes of Martha Dalton and the suddenly radiant face of Rusty. He smiled, and this time it was not the mechanical smile that had been so pitiful to see.

The girl in his lap clung to him fiercely.

"Kiss me, Jim," she whispered. "Kiss me like that night—that night in the moonlight beneath the trees."

And Jim kissed her; kissed her as he had on that night when he had whispered his love and the Indiana moon had shone down on their newfound happiness.

"Betty!" he whispered, and then held her tight.

The kiss drew forth a breathless little "Oh, Jim" from the girl, followed by a long, ecstatic sigh. And that was that. Jim Elwell no longer was a living dead man. Jim would go on through life like the rest of them—talking, laughing, crying, loving.

Betty lifted her head and looked around—and marveled at what she saw. Martha Dalton and Rusty were the only ones who appeared to be waiting, like herself, for some explanation.

Mollie was sitting back in her chair, on her face a look of perfect tranquility, in her eyes the light of understanding, at last, and blissful content. Prof was grinning—and mopping his forehead with his handkerchief.

Suddenly Rusty, on whose face were written punishment and joy and a mixture of other emotions, rushed forward and threw herself on Jim.

"Oh," she cried, "I can't believe it! Jim, you're yourself again. Oh, I can't begin to tell you how glad I am. Kiss me, Jim, and tell me you recognize your little pal, Rusty—the girl who hit the man with the croquet ball, Jim. Tell me you know your Rusty."

She began raining kisses on Jim's face, his neck, his hands, and then, slumping into the chair, began to sob.

"I wouldn't have had this happen for a thousand dollars," Jim said seriously, "if I had known all this

EVERY WOMAN DESIRES NEATLY TURNED LEGS.

Here's Authoritative Method of Acquiring Dainty Ankles.

By NINON

New York, Jan. 20.—Beauty may begin with the face, but it does not end there. Miss America's ankles are as critically considered as her nose when it comes to handing out the title to the beauty champion.

Some defects of the figure can be reduced to the minimum by a deft manipulation of stripes and drapes, cape backs or short or long waisted effects. But every ankle, in these short-skirted days has to stand on its own merits.

We admire peasant bobs, peasant embroideries and color effects, but the peasant ankle has never made the grade—and it never will. The world is sold on the slender ankle.

If you are one of many handicapped with a too generous ankle, it will be worth your while to fight it off if it takes all summer.

Thin Arms, Thick Legs

The ample ankle does not always accompany the overweight body. Overweight women often have delicate ankles, and slender bodies and skiny arms are apt to pair up with a thick ankle. This particular beauty defect plays no favorites.

The remedy is EXERCISE.

Of general exercise, dancing swimming and hiking are most beneficial. By dancing, I mean classical dancing, not the ballroom type or the Charleston. This gives you the grace and lightness on your feet that banishes heavy ankles. But for an aggravated case more specific remedies are advisable. You have to concentrate right on the particular region.

One consideration mitigates the curse. You can exercise your ankles any time, while riding on the street cars, attending the theater, or while performing a rhapsody on the typewriter. You may look a bit agonized, but think how marvelous you will look when the reducing days are over.

Here is one all the chorus girls swear by: sit comfortably in a straight-backed chair, which means that you nestle your back in its back, and cross your legs in the present-day approved fashion. Then stretch out the raised foot, until your ankle is tired; then reverse your position and give the under foot its chance. You can vary this sometimes by pointing instead of making a circle—point as far out as you can. The point is to feel the stretch and pull.

Exercise in Bedroom

As you lie in bed, bathing to get up and put down the window, stretch your foot as far as you can, and then stretch out your toes. Clench your foot into as compact a ball as you can. This is not only good for your ankle, but for your arches as well. Your feet were really intended to do much more scrambling and clutching than they get a chance to in shoes on even pavements. It is better for them if you keep some of their old resistance in them.

Incidentally badly fitted shoes, particularly those that are too short or too high-heeled contribute to the heavy ankle because they make it impossible for the foot to be easy and comfortable, so it avoids all exertion. The next step is for it to thicken.

One reason we dislike the thick ankle is because it suggests maturity and inactivity and that "setting" process that all women under a hundred years of age like to avoid. The little kindergarten who runs and scampers in a carefree natural way has slender ankles. It is only when she stops running and jumping in her hoydenish fashion that flesh intrudes.

So, if you can keep up your tomboy activities, you will probably keep your ankles slim. Otherwise, the exercise system may be your salvation.

WHAT PRICE SMALLPOX? GREAT ONE IN U. S.

In 15 Years, Over 700,000 Cases Were Reported—Last Year 39,000 Cases.

By CHAS. V. CHAPIN
President, American Public Health Association

"During the last fifteen years there have been over 700,000 reported cases of smallpox in the United States. Last year, 1925, there were 39,539 cases. These 39,000 cases were more than occurred in any country furnishing statistics, except British India. Even Soviet Russia, with a larger population, had only half as many cases. The 8,000 deaths in Mexico suggest that the cases in that country were probably proportionally more numerous than in the United States, but actual statistics are lacking. What becomes of our boasted superiority in public health when we are more widely infected with the most loathsome of the contagious diseases than in any other country, but Mexico, and when we have to admit our inferiority to the despised Soviet Republic. This state of things is no chance event of one year. For fifteen years and longer we have had more smallpox than any country in Western Europe, indeed, generally more than the whole of Western Europe. In 1921 we had reported over 100,000 cases of this disease.

Call It Mild!

"Some people are saying 'Suppose we do have a lot of smallpox, what of it? It is a very mild type of the disease. It never kills anybody. I had rather have it than vaccination. With modern sanitation and our cleanly habits, the old loathsome smallpox has become extinct.'

"Has the reader ever seen a case of 'mild smallpox'? If he has, certainly if 'she' has, neither would ever prefer it to vaccination. A year ago there was an outbreak of some fifty cases of mild smallpox in the vicinity of Providence. Out of the kindness of our hearts, we took four of the patients into our City Hospital. They all had backache, headache and some fever for a few days. They then felt better and could sit up. The bodies and especially the faces of all, were covered with pustules. They were almost thick enough to run together. We counted almost 2,000 on one man. In about three weeks they had turned into brown crusts and dried up. In fact, last for half a year. These were no deaths so this was classed as an outbreak of the mild type. I prefer a successful vaccination.

"It is all nonsense about the old-fashioned severe type of smallpox being extinct. It still exists in varying parts of the world, in India, in China, in Mexico, in Russia and in other places. It has in recent years invaded the United States, from Japan, from Europe, of all, from and most frequently from Africa. Mexico. In 1923, an outbreak of mild smallpox in Detroit was reported. Nobody died. The Health Department did valiant work, but they lived sometimes only two or three days. The public became alarmed. They began to back up Dr. Vaughan, the Health Officer. He vaccinated over 500,000 in a month. The disease was stamped out, but not until 163 persons had been placed in their graves. Virulent smallpox from the same source was carried to Minnesota. In Minnesota it caused 1,298 cases with 363 deaths. Dr. Chesley traced it to 147 localities and had the average fatality was 25 per cent. In Washington, D. C., in 1925 there were 59 cases with 20 deaths. During the first quarter of this year there were in Los Angeles 812 cases with 136 deaths. Virulent smallpox is still with us. It is as cruel a disease as in olden times. When there is no smallpox, people say 'Why should we worry? Why should we be vaccinated?' This is what the 136 Los Angeles victims said last year. Now it is too late.

"How many people are saying the same thing this year? What price will they pay? Intelligence and vaccination? Or indifference and smallpox. Every physician and every board of health is ready to vaccinate you now—before it is too late. Have you consulted them as yet? If not, do it now."

Good Nature and Good Health

LIGHT—IT HELPS OR HURTS OUR EYES

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

All over the world attention is being given more and more to the question of proper illumination of homes, factories and schools, with a view to the health aspects of the situation.

A special report of the British Medical Research Council, analyzing available literature, indicates that close work is best observed by monochromatic rays from the blue end of the spectrum, whereas distant objects are best seen in the red end, and general detail is brought out best by white light.

A normal eye under ordinary illumination can be used continuously for three or four hours with the eye maintaining a practically constant efficiency.

Continuous intensive eyestrain, as for example, that of airship observers during flight, will produce signs of visual acuity, images seen after the original observation, and inco-ordination of the eye muscles.

A study of the lighting of post-offices made by the United States Public Health Service involved the detailed examination of 2,449 post-office employees.

It was found that fewer than 30 per cent had normal vision and that fewer than 17 per cent had both vision and eyes wholly free from defects.

The group with the best vision obtained a maximum amount of "white" light at eight-foot candles illumination, while the group with the worst vision did not obtain its maximum work output until the illumination reached 14-foot candles. The average daylight in postoffices is 12-foot candles.

In the Home

Several recent observations on lighting in the home point out that the eye is adapted to a wide range of intensity of light, but emphasize the danger of undue glare. All avoided, especially on printed paper.

Several investigators recently have urged the use of artificial illumination or of especially prepared window glass for schools which would permit children to receive regularly a definite amount of ultraviolet rays.

There seems to be no doubt that ultraviolet light is valuable in aiding proper body growth through its effects on nutrition and the absorption of food substances. However, the possible effects of long continued or over-exposure to ultraviolet light have not been definitely established.

American physicians are inclined to delay such movements for the utilization of ultraviolet rays until a time when sufficient experimentation shall have been done to avoid the possibility of bad effects from overexposures.

Home Page Editorials Classics vs. Sex

By Olive Roberts Barton

Publishers acknowledge that there would be little or no sale for classic literature if they did not use every trick known to the trade to promote their sales.

The word "classic" is anathema to many people. Almost the worst thing possible for the success of any book past or present is to let it be known that it is a classic.

They say that daughter, mother and grandmother, to say nothing of the male side of the family, are feeding avidly on the sex novel. There is a difference between a sex novel and the prurient sex novel. As far as that goes all love stories are sex stories. It is a matter of degree.

It is not the erotic sex novel, however, that is robbing the classic. It is the popular novels of today that cover a wide range of problems, it is because public taste has changed, not the writers. No one writes a book like "Henry Esmond" or "Daniel Deronda" now because nobody would read them.

But he who misses the good old books misses much. There is not only stamina and strength in our patient soldierly rows of gold-leafed leather-backed "sets" that are ornamental in our bookcases, but all sorts of delightful things we grope and miss in the modern subtle aphorisms of Molnar and Arlen.

At ten or twelve years of age I was made to read "David Copperfield," "The Deserted Village," "Paul and Virginia" and so forth when I wanted to read the Elsie books. I didn't understand half the words then.

It took me twenty years to learn gratitude to the wise parent who commanded it.

Millions Bought Book; He Made Only $3,000

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 14.—Thirty years ago Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, Topeka clergyman, wrote the religious novel "In His Steps."

Today, more than 12,000,000 copies of "In His Steps" have been sold. It is one of the "best sellers" of all time.

A royalty of but a nickel a copy would have made the author a millionaire. Because of copyright law quirks, Dr. Sheldon's actual money profits total less than $3000.

"I'm glad of it," he said. "For me to have made a million from 'In His Steps' wouldn't have been very Christ-like.

"I haven't a single, solitary regret."

Had he wanted to get rich, he added, he never would have entered the ministry in the first place.

Head Around the World

Fifty different English editions of "In His Steps" have been published. The work has been translated into 21 different languages and dialects, has been produced in dramatic form on the stage, and even has been set to music as a church cantata.

Few if any novels in all literary history have enjoyed a larger or more widespread popularity. And yet—

"With all of the 22,000,000 copies," Dr. Sheldon declared, in the study of his College Avenue home in Topeka, "I never have received a penny of real royalty and have been paid in all considerably less than $3000 in purely voluntary gifts from four publishers."

A Romance of Real Life

The story of how it happened that the book never was copyrighted properly, and thus became without cost the property of any publisher who fancied it, and how it happens now that its author actually is happy at the twist of fate which deprived him of riches, is one of literary history's most romantic tales.

Soon after Dr. Sheldon assumed his present pastorate at the Central Congregational church in Topeka, back in January, 1888, he adopted a new plan for Sunday evening services in the church.

"Young people were not interested in sermons and didactics in those days," Dr. Sheldon recalls now, "but they were interested intensely in life. So I wrote of life, to interest them and keep them in the church."

New Way of Preaching

During the winter of 1891, Dr. Sheldon read the story of Richard Bruce to his congregation, each chapter serving as a Sunday evening sermon and being followed by a general discussion.

The novel way of preaching Christ met with approval, and the pastor followed it through five additional books to "In His Steps" in 1896. In this novel, minister, choir singer, newspaper editor, railroad shop superintendent, college president, merchant, surgeon, author, heiress and others were placed in quest of a life purpose that would be in His steps.

Encouraged by the interest

his hearers manifested in the story, Dr. Sheldon offered it to several Chicago publishing houses, all of which declined it.

Then he submitted it to the editor of the Advance, a Congregational church weekly periodical published in Chicago. In 1896 "In His Steps" began to appear in this publication as a serial.

Instead of sending two complete copies of the novel to the copyright bureau in Washington, however, the management of the Advance forwarded only a part of one. No copyright lines were carried along with the serialized version.

These blunders resulted in the granting of a defective copyright to Dr. Sheldon, which was not discovered, however, until after the novel had been published in book form, a small edition of 100,000 copies, paperbound.

An unusual demand for the story attracted the attention of publishers generally. The irregularity of Dr. Sheldon's copyright was found immediately, and the work was thus thrown on the open market, to be sold upon a strictly by sixteen different publishers within three months.

In Foreign Lands

Similarly, the lack of an international copyright permitted the wave of popularity of the book to sweep across the Atlantic to England, where twenty different publishers began issuing editions almost simultaneously.

Since then "In His Steps" has been translated into almost every important language. There are some editions even in the dialects of West Africa.

Next to the Bible it is doubtful if any book has had as large a circulation as "In His Steps" during the last thirty years.

As Dr. Sheldon, the author has had no opportunity, neither has he had a desire to cash in on the veritable gold mine the novel, properly copyrighted, might have been.

Readers vs. Profits

"After all," he reasoned, "the main thing about a book is to have it read, and not particularly to have it reap an income for its author. If I had wished to reap big profits, I never would have entered the ministry in the first place.

"Too, I feel the fact that the copyright was found defective undoubtedly increased the circulation of the novel. Publishing houses that might never have touched it otherwise took it up and made it available to common people everywhere.

"It would have been wholly out of keeping with the spirit of the work for a pastor to write a story about what he believes Jesus would do if he were on earth, and then earn $1,000,000 or more from the sale of it."

Why It's Popular

Dr. Sheldon accounts for the wide circulation of the book by asserting that "nothing ever has been or ever will be more interesting to people than religion."

Dr. Sheldon will be 70 years of age February 26, 1927. Today he is a "Christ socialist," as he terms himself—one who applies the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount to everyday life.

He is a man of decision who speaks firmly and deals out in plainness. He has well-defined convictions, and the courage of them.

In other words, in meeting his own problems, Dr. Sheldon continually asks himself the question he puts to the imaginary characters in his world famous story, "What Would Jesus Do?" and he lives, as he believes a minister should live, if he is to follow accurately in His steps.

"Stranger in Town" Lets Poetry Tell What He Thinks Of Service Now.

Trolley service here since the abandonment of the local car barns has been so poor that it has driven patrons frantic. Connections are not made, cars do not operate on schedule and transfers are but wasted paper. "A Stranger in Town" has become so put out with the service that he has taken to writing poetry. His clever contribution follows:

"Tell Me Please!"

You can brag about your jitney,
You can brag about your Nash,
You can brag about your city,
You can brag about your cash,
You can brag about your Ford,
It will take you near and far,
But you can't brag one bit about
Your Cross Town trolley car.
You can brag about your Depot
Square,
You can brag about the Green,
Even when you have the fare,
A trolley's seldom seen.
You have a good location

But how in all this town
Do you get there—walk or fly?
Do you get there—walk or fly?

Old Master's

So fallen! so lost! the light withdrawn
Which once he wore!
The glory from his gray hair gone
Forevermore!

Reville him not, the Tempter hath
A snare for all;
And pitying tears, not scorn and wrath
Befit his fall!

Oh, dumb be passion's stormy rage,
When he who might
Have lighted up and led his age,
Falls back in night.

Let not the land once proud of him
Insult him now,
Nor brand with deeper shame his dim,
Disshored brow.

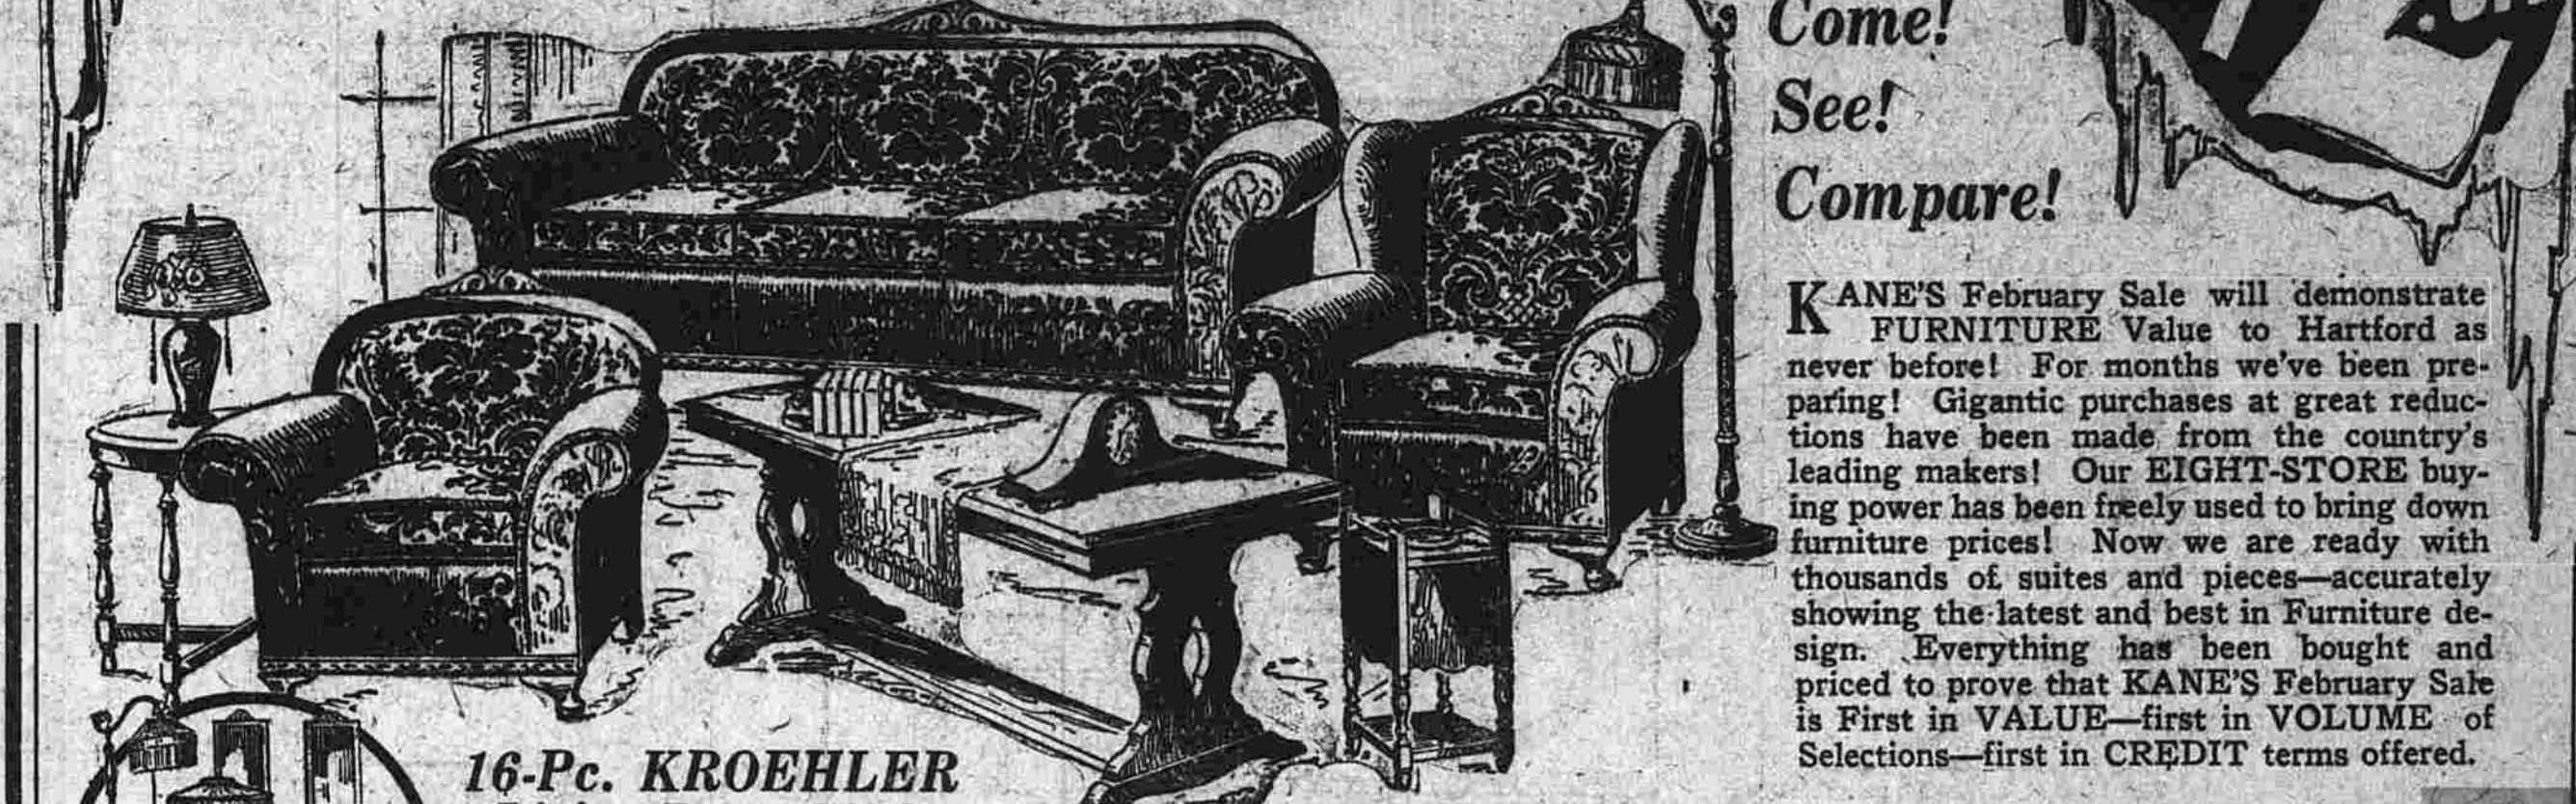

Then pay the reverence of old days
To his dead fame;
Walk backward, with averted gaze,
And hide the shame!

SENSE and NONSENSE

At one time, he who danced had to "pay the piper." Now he has to pay the doorkeeper, the waiter, the checkroom girl, and sometimes a dancing partner besides.

Lawyer: "You lie! You lie! I have a witness who saw you commit the crime!"

Accused: "Hold on, now. Keep your shirt on. I got a witness who didn't see me do it!"

Is your load too heavy? It may be lightened by helping a brother tote his.

Before taking any girl on a petting party a man ought to make sure she's warm enough.

Five Little Words. There are five little words, I'd have to know:

They are: "Pardon Me," "Thank You" and "Please."

Oh, use them quite often wherever you go:

There are few words more useful than these.

These five little words are filled with a power

That money or fame cannot give. So commit them to memory this very hour—

And use them as long as you live!

Bellhop (to newly ushered-in-guest): Anything I can do for you?

The Wise Guy: No, thanks—I've got some in my suitcase.

Some people are so antagonistic that every time some one rolls up his sleeves to go to work, he is accused of getting ready for a fight.

Husband: You accuse me of reckless extravagance. When did I ever make a useless purchase?

Wife: Why, there's that fire extinguisher you bought a year ago. We've never used it once.

The biggest mistake many fellows make is holding a girl on their lap before they're able to support her!

Knowledge may be gained from books but not wisdom.

The famous criminal lawyer had won a shockingly bad case by eloquence and trickery, and a rival lawyer said to him bitterly: "Is there any case so low, so foul, so vilely crooked and shameful that you'd refuse it?"

"Well, I don't know," answered the other with a smile. "What have you been doing now?"

Knowledge and wisdom may be related but it's no more than an in-law relation.

THE TINYMITES

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

The Eskimo the Tinymites found was kind and showed them all around. He'd made real friends with Clowdy, so the crowd thought him right. The Tinymites all thought Clowdy lost, but into luck he had been tossed, 'cause he had met the Eskimo and stayed with him all night.

He haven't had much fun of late, their new friend said, "And this is great to meet a bunch of little folks all set to run and play. I'll show you sights you'll say are real. Perhaps we'll find a bear or seal, if you will just be patient, 'cause they often come this way." Some other Eskimo came out to find out what 'twas all about. They'd heard the high pitched voices of the little Tinymites. They all were friendly as could be, and Coppy said, "It seems to me that we had best get started, if we're going to see the sights." So, down a long ice path they went. The Eskimo seemed quite intent on scaring forth a polar bear to please his little friends, who gladly joined him on the hunt. Just then they heard a nearby grunt, and someone loudly shouted, "This is where our journey ends." In just about a minute more the bear came forth amid a roar. The Eskimo ran up to him and stroked his fussy head. The Tinymites eyes were open wide. Such wondrous stunts they'd never tried. Then, "Who would like to ride this bear?" the fur boy loudly said. "Oh, I would," came the quick reply. The Tinymites all were glad to try, so Mister Polar Bear stood still while one crawled on his back. And then the bear jumped quickly out amid the very happy shout. The whole gang raced along so they could follow in his track.

(The Tinymites feed a seal in the next story.)

STAGE and SCREEN

What's What and When and How at the Local Playhouses.

DOUBLE FEATURE BILL AT CIRCLE TOMORROW

Tom Tyler in Western Film; Two Features Tonight Also.

A couple of real good features will be seen by Circle theater fans on Saturday only. Tom Tyler appears in "Tom and His Pals," and the companion feature is "A Man of Quality." Tonight the two big features, "A Poor Girl's Romance" and "Enemy of Men," will be seen for the last time.

Laura Jean Tibbey's best story has been adapted for the screen and is never so convincing and thrilling than when acted out on the silver sheet in "A Poor Girl's Romance." Of course, it has been given the modern touch and is, if anything, even better than the story itself. "Enemy of Men" with Cullen Landis and Dorothy Revier, tells of a girl who set out to wreak vengeance on the betrayers of her young sister. How she comes to realize that all men are not the same is the climax of this picture and the man who is different from the rest is Cullen Landis, who plays the part of a young surgeon.

Saturday's two features are directly opposite in their composition. Tom Tyler is seen in the first one, which is "Tom and His Pals," the story of a boy who is struck with the beauty of a famous screen vampire. She lures him away from his true love but the denouement comes in the last reel and everything is rosy for Tom and Mary.

Tom Tyler's Western pictures always contain an enterprising element of novelty that sets them in a class by themselves, and his latest FBO production, "Tom and His Pals," is no exception. The arrival of a motion picture company at the ranch, and the havoc it works with the cardiac affairs of the hero and heroine, forms the original theme of the film.

A thrilling struggle up a towering cliff, a terrific fight in the aisle of a racing train, and plenty of side-splitting comedy and interesting sidelights on the filming of an actual picture are features of unusual novelty. Tyler shows to fine advantage, both in his daring horsemanship and in his genuine acting ability, and Doris Hill makes a charming and adorable heroine. Little Frankie Darro, Tyler's inseparable companion in all his recent productions, is again one of the highlights of the film, and the remainder of the cast, give splendid performances.

Bob De Lacey, the director, is to be commended on the clever manner in which he has handled the story interest and maintained the suspense up to the thrilling climax.

THRILLS GALORE ON RIALTO BILL

"Broken Homes" a thrilling adaptation of a True Story novel closes its engagement at the Rialto theater this evening. It is highly romantic and its entertaining qualities may best be judged by the tremendous box office records it has established in other cities. Alice Lake and Gaston Glass have leading roles. The second feature is "Ridin' Straight," a gripping western melodrama starring Bob Reeves. A comedy and current news round out the program. There will be a complete change of program tomorrow when the "Dixie Flyer" will head a double feature bill of motion pictures. Imagine, if you can, a fight on a rising raft on which the loser goes plunging into a rock strewn river. Imagine a runaway railroad car headed straight for the open draw. Imagine a fight on a speeding train, to participate in which both the hero and heroine had to make a death-defying leap against almost insurmountable odds. Imagine all of these happenings and one still has only a faint idea of the many kicks which "The Dixie Flyer" possesses. The cast is headed by two popular players, Cullen Landis and Eva Novak. The second feature is a fast action western drama called "Little Warrior" and stars Josie Sedgwick. The shorter subjects to be shown include another chapter of "The Mystery Pilot," a comedy and news reel.

PORTIA MANSFIELD AT STATE, HARTFORD

Miss Portia Mansfield whose dance interpretations are hailed as the most beautiful on the stage is at the new State theater in Hartford today and tomorrow with her company of 12 talented artists. Rose Kress and Company are entertainers extraordinary and excellent harmony is produced by Harold Yates and Cooper Lawley, booked directly from New York. The photoplay attraction is the famous dog Rin-Tin-Tin in "While London Sleeps." For four days starting Sunday "The Music Master" featuring Lois Moran, will be presented.

Napoleon House, in New Orleans, to which friends of the famous general planned to take him after effecting his rescue from St. Helena, is offered for sale. Napoleon died before the rescue could be accomplished.

RAJAH STILL DRAWS CROWDS TO THE STATE

Publicity Packs 'Em In Despite the Rain—Vaudeville Acts Unusually Clever.

By Member Herald Staff

Rajah Rabold and four acts of vaudeville combined with a good feature picture made up one of the best programs the State theater has shown so far. Last night, despite the unpleasant weather, hundreds enjoyed the well balanced bill.

First on the program came the Ruby Trio, three girls of diversified talent. One sang and played the piano while the other two danced and were at home with the slyphone. Dances of bygone days leading up to the Black Bottom of today were interpreted by the two clever dancers while their accompaniment and reductions were given by the girl at the piano.

Willie Smith, the singing and dancing boy, had a hard time leaving the stage for applause kept him there for more than one encore. Smith has a good voice and is a cracking jack when it comes to dancing sensational steps. He has several new songs along with a couple of old timers.

A moving picture company on location, the actors all monkeys, was a real hit. The director (not a monkey but a victim of the theory of evolution), put his charges through their paces in fine style. One of the principal stunts of the monkey crew was the still-walking done by the cleverest of the troupe.

The headline act of the vaudeville was the troupe of Edwards and Grant. Miss Edwards is a slightly built girl, somewhat on the style of a typical flapper. Her burlesque of Russian dancing was a scream. The male part of this act is a singer and a clever teller of funny stories. He and his partner do plenty of work on burlesque of various subjects and the whole act is a roar of laughter from start to finish.

Rajah Rabold finished up the show with his usual exhibition of psychic powers. The feature picture on the bill for these three days is "Just Another Blonde" with Jack Mulhall.

Seattle police are giving good conduct emblems to drivers who didn't violate the traffic laws in 1926. They haven't found their man yet.

Bob De Lacey, the director, is to be commended on the clever manner in which he has handled the story interest and maintained the suspense up to the thrilling climax.

CHANEY A MARINE

IN NEXT PICTURE

"Tell It to the Marines" at State Sunday, Monday, Tuesday With Famous Character Actor.

Lon Chaney without his makeup? Impossible. But it is so. He comes to the State on Sunday for three days and he is his natural self. A hard boiled sergeant of marines is the role he is taking in this picture, "Tell It to the Marines." This is one of the best bits of acting that Lon has done since his appearance in "The Phantom of the Opera" and it certainly is a wonderful picture.

South sea beauties vie pretty American nurses for the love of the Devil Dogs. The sweet little nurse who has fallen in love with a private in the Marines who is far below her in rank is played by Eleanor Boardman while her lover is William Haines, star of "Brown of Harvard."

Haines gets mixed up with a dusky beauty in the South Sea Islands and is in a terrible fix. His sergeant, a tough egg of many "hitches" in the services comes to his rescue and after getting him out of trouble, knocks him cold with one blow. Needless to say, the tough sergeant is Lon Chaney and he is every inch the character he plays.

A leatherneck from top to bottom, typical of the men who carry the flag through foreign seas, Chaney has drawn the praise of such men as General LeJeune of the Marine corps for his realistic portrayal of a service man in this picture.

"Tell It to the Marines" comes here on Sunday and will be seen on Monday and Tuesday also.

RED MEN TO DINE

CONTEST WINNERS

Chicken and Spaghetti For Team That Enrolled Most New Members.

A contest between teams of Red Men and in which the object was new members has just closed with Irving Keeney's team the winner among the local tribesmen. Keeney's team enrolled ten new members during the contest and the opposing team, captained by William C. Schieldege enrolled two.

As a result the Red Men will dine Keeney's team. The dinner will be served Saturday night, Jan. 29 at the Red Men's social rooms on Brainard Place. Entertainment, speech making and card playing will follow the dinner. Only team members and invited guests will be present.

Frank Diana, the Red Men's popular chef, will prepare a menu of chicken and spaghetti for the evening's dinner. The losing team will stand the expense of the affair.

"Man Nobody Knows" Proves Most Interesting—Under Auspices St. Mary's Bible Class.

The moving picture entertainment under the auspices of the Men's Bible Class, of St. Mary's church, on Wednesday evening at Cheney hall, was unusually well attended.

First a travel film was shown depicting interesting scenes from all over the world. This was followed by a soprano solo by Mrs. Arthur Jobert and baritone solos by Edward Dellert, of Hartford.

The feature picture, "The Man Nobody Knows," was then presented. The musical setting was arranged by Alexander Savene and was played by John Wilby.

The film, a reverent presentation of the incidents in the life of Jesus and scenes in Galilee, was well received by the large audience.

INCREASE OF RECEIPTS
AT SOUTH END P. O.

Over $1,000 More Taken in Over Year Before—Gross Receipts $49,554.81.

According to figures made public today by Assistant Postmaster William S. McCann of the South Manchester Post Office, there was an increase of $1,284.07 in amount during the past year. The report for 1926 shows a gross receipt of $48,554.81 while in 1925 the amount was $48,270.74.

Had the increase reached the fifty thousand dollar mark, Postmaster Oliver F. Toop would have automatically had his salary increased $100 per year. It is possible that the receipts for the present year may reach that total.

The report shows that, as usual, the largest sale of stamps was made during the last quarter—October, November and December.
