

PEACHES TOLD FIB TO COURT ABOUT DIARY

Admits One She Called Hers Was Faked So as to Leave Out Names of Her "Boy Friends."

Court House, White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 26.—"Peaches" Browning admitted under cross-examination in court today at the trial of the Browning separation case that a diary introduced yesterday as her diary was re-written by her so that she could keep some of the names of her "boy friends" out of the court records. It wasn't her original diary.

It was because she wanted to protect these friends, "Peaches" said, that she tore certain pages from her original diary a few days after her marriage to Edward W. (Daddy) Browning.

She admitted under questioning by Judge John E. Mack, chief counsel for Browning, that the pages she tore out of the original diary contained the names of boys who had made love to her and to whom she had made love.

Neither diary, however, was admitted into evidence on the ground that they were not material.

"Peaches" was kept on the stand for less than an hour and was subjected to very little cross-examination.

Sable Coat Again
"Peaches" arrived in the court room shortly before ten o'clock, accompanied by her mother and her lawyer. She wore a brown sable coat. She told reporters that if it had not been for her mother she would have refused to continue her testimony on the stand yesterday after she broke down.

The court room was packed. Hundreds of curious persons milled about the corridors.

"Peaches" seemed nervous as she took her place in the witness box. She had been on the stand for four hours yesterday and left it exhausted.

Brief Cross-Examination
Judge John E. Mack of Browning's counsel began his cross-examination.

Q. Were you attending school up to the time you were burned by acid? A. Yes.

Q. You spoke of a contract with a syndicate for stories printed for you. Is this the story (handing her a picture of a tabloid paper)—is that your signature under the story "Why I Left Daddy Browning"? A. It is.

Mack then introduced the paper containing the story in evidence.

"Peaches" identified story after story as those which she had been paid $1,000 to sanction. The newspapers had been brought into court in a trunk.

Browning, dressed immaculately in a blue suit and conspicuous blue and gold tie, looked squarely at his estranged wife as if to see what the effect upon her would be. She seemed distraught and on the verge of another breakdown. She coughed nervously.

Twenty-one letters were introduced.

When he finished introducing the letters Mack unexpectedly concluded his examination at 10:40 a. m.

"That is all," he said quietly.

Attorney Epstein then took over the witness for re-direct examination.

Hints at Diary Faking
Epstein told the court he visited "Peaches" in her apartment last night and she told him she never wrote the diary accredited to her in a published story.

"Mrs. Browning," asked Epstein, "when did you stop making a diary?"

"The day I was married."

Mack jumped up.

"Didn't you identify a diary here yesterday as your diary?" he asked.

"I did."

"Didn't you tell your attorney you passed off a phoney diary on me?"

"I did not," declared Peaches angrily.

"Peaches" admitted that the diary she brought to court yesterday was re-written by her because she did not want the names of some

OUT OF BROTHERS' WILL, HE DROPS DEAD

Providence, Jan. 26.—William Orrell, president of the Orrell Mills at Glendale cut off his brother, Samuel, 76, without a cent, in his will.

When Samuel learned that his brother's will disposed of property valued at a million dollars, to other relatives and to four mill overseers, but that he was not mentioned, he dropped dead. Samuel had been a business partner of William.

SOFT COAL STRIKE SEEN IN PROSPECT

Lewis' Speech at Miners' Convention Called Throwing Down Gauntlet.

Indianapolis, Jan. 26.—A general strike throughout the bituminous coal areas loomed today as one of the possible results of the speech of President John L. Lewis in opening the 19th constitutional convention of the United Mine Workers of America here.

Lewis answered proposals made by operators at the recent Toledo meeting, with the assertion it is an "economic impossibility" for the American miners generally to reduce their scale of living to conform to the wages paid in non-union areas.

At the Toledo conference it had been suggested that the pay range be based on the non-union standards, plus ten per cent.

"Has Thrown Down Gauntlet"
Lewis' answer has been construed to mean that he will oppose any such attempts with the entire force of the United Mine Workers.

Patrick Fagan, head of the Pennsylvania delegation, and a power in the coal competitive field, which governs the scale in all other fields, said the statement of the union president has thrown down the gauntlet to the operators.

Fowers Haggood, who created a sensation at the first session yesterday by charging he had been tacked by pro-administration men, had not presented his credentials today. Haggood, a nephew of Norman Haggood, the writer, claimed to have been elected by a local union, and came to Indianapolis as representative of the red faction.

BARGE GOES "WILD" UNDER OWN SAIL

Parted From Two Off Cape Cod She Heads For Cuba Under Emergency Canvas.

Provincetown, Mass., Jan. 26.—A thrilling drama of the sea was being enacted off Cape Cod today.

The last barge of a tow of three hauled by a snow about broke away in a snow storm and gale. The tug signalled through the fog to the five men aboard the drifting barge to hoist their two sails.

As the "wild" barge started south, the tug still towing the other barges swung about and headed for Chatham. There the barges were anchored while the tug set off in a gallant chase for the drifting barge.

The tug it is believed here, was enroute from Norfolk and New York for Boston with coal laden barges.

Nova Scotia Girl Had Made Swarm of Admirers in Brief Career.

Boston, Jan. 26.—Today the body of nineteen-year-old Maybelle Matheson, brutally slain in West Roxbury, started in its tragic journey back home to the little town of Whycocomagh, Inverness County, Nova Scotia.

Meanwhile, police and representatives of the district attorney's office were making every effort to discover the killer. Many packages of letters and papers containing addresses and telephone numbers disclosed according to police that the girl during her 14 months stay in "the states" had won more than fifty admirers. The theory was advanced that possibly there was among these a wife or a sweetheart who was jealous of Maybelle—that a woman was the slayer.

MOTHER GIVES IN VAIN EFFORT TO SAVE TOTS

Warren, Pa., Jan. 26.—A mother sacrificed her life today in a futile effort to save her two small children from flames which razed the home of Clarence B. Hills at Stone Hill, near here. Awakened by smoke, Mrs. Hills found her home a raging inferno. With three of her children she leaped to safety, but re-entered the house to rescue William, 2-years-old, and an infant. All three perished.

GOODRICH, GLASTONBURY COUNTY COMMISSIONER

Hartford, Jan. 26.—County commissioners for three counties were elected in both houses of the legislature today. They are as follows: New Haven, Mrs. Clara N. Coker, of East Haven, and Hubert T. Platt, of Milford; Windham, Arthur C. Keith of Putnam, and Ulrich C. France of Plainfield; Hartford, Elzer Goodrich of Glastonbury, and Samuel Graham of Suffield.

WHIPPING POST BILL COMES TO STATE SENATE

Boxing Board Bill and One To Let Town Clerks Fix Own Fees Among Many To Reach Assembly.

Hartford, Jan. 26.—Interesting bills continued to reach both House and Senate today as the time limit for new business was approached. A revolutionary change in the state boxing commission was proposed by Senator Goss, of Waterbury. Representative Higgins of Coventry presented a bill that would give town clerks the right to charge additional fees for their services as they see fit, or as may be reasonable or just, in addition to charges they are by law permitted to make.

Mrs. Julia M. Emery of Stamford presented Mayor Alfred N. Phillips' whipping post bill, intended to bring drastic punishment upon women breakers and those who harm children.

Stonington, New Canaan and Glastonbury felt the urge to become metropolitan and asked that regular police courts be established in their limits while Norwich requested the right to police Lebanon, Bozrah, and Colchester beside its own territory. Southington seeks a board of safety to handle its police and fire departments.

Connecticut Flowage
One bill received in the House today provides for a commission to investigate the diversion of "certain tributaries of the Connecticut river outside of Connecticut."

The commission would be named by the governor and would study the project at the Ware and Swift Rivers, in Hampden county, Massachusetts, which are to be diverted for the use of the metropolitan water supply of Worcester and Boston.

Experts have reported that such diversion would materially reduce the flow in the Connecticut and possibly injure both manufacturing and health conditions in this state.

Another House bill authorizes the State Forester to cooperate with towns and forestry associations to improve and beautify the country roads, while the Senate has a bill authorizing the governor to appoint a commission to improve "roadside scenic conditions."

Under a bill from the hands of Mr. Higgins of Coventry, the House rules would be amended so that in the future in addressing the chair the representative may say "Mr." or "Madame Speaker."

Passes Vote of Confidence in Actor, Who Will Go Ahead With New Film.

New York, Jan. 26.—"Delighted" was the enthusiastic comment of Charlie Chaplin today when he learned that the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce had voted his confidence, endorsing his films, following rumors that because of elements his pictures might meet with objections.

While Charlie prepares for a "fight to the finish" in the action brought by Lita Grey Chaplin he is also planning to rush to completion his new picture "The Circus" it was said.

NORRIS ACQUITTED IN CHIPPS KILLING

Receives Ovation in Court and His Church Calls a Prayer Meeting.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 26.—After a trial covering sixteen days, the Rev. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church at Fort Worth, was acquitted by a jury in the district court last night of the murder of Dexter E. Chipps. The verdict of not guilty was returned at 8:48 p. m., two hours and eight minutes after the case went to the jury.

The verdict was reached on two ballots, an hour and twenty minutes after the jury retired, but a delay in returning it to the court was occasioned by the absence of the defendant. He was brought in to court from his hotel, accompanied by his wife and sons, and received the acquittal without emotion.

House bills included the following: Providing for public whipping for men who assault or are guilty of inhuman treatment to their wives, mothers or children; providing that no woman or girl sixteen years of age shall be employed in a manufacturing or mechanical establishment more than nine hours in one day or fifty-four hours a week; jury duty for women; appropriating $175,000 for a Bristol armory; establishing a Stonington town court; appropriating $10,000 for the New Milford hospital; appropriating $4,000 for a Greenwich state armory repairs; prohibiting transportation of sick or injured persons in hearses; authorizing

FEAR GROWS U. S. CAN'T KEEP OUT OF CHINA WAR

EVERY SENATE VOTE IN FAVOR OF ARBITRATION

Unanimous For Robinson Peace Resolution; Coolidge May Present His Side To the Country.

Washington, Jan. 26.—President Coolidge had before him today the fact that the Senate unanimously favors arbitrating the land law controversy with Mexico.

The vote on the Robinson Resolution, advising the President to peacefully settle the dispute, afforded one of the rare occasions when the Senate has solidly been in favor of something. The vote was seventy-nine to nothing. Republicans, Democrats, Insurgents, Protestants and Catholics, joined in registering an expression against armed conflict.

Not Mandatory
While there is nothing mandatory in the Senate's action, as applied to the Coolidge-Kellogg policy, the unanimity with which the Senate voted is expected to be not without effect in determining the future steps in administration policy.

President Coolidge is expected to take cognizance of the Senate's action, even though he considers the resolution merely an advisory notice of Senate opinion. This cognizance will be expressed, it is anticipated, either by means of a message to Congress, similar in purport and expression to that which he recently sent concerning Nicaragua, or by the publication of a formal statement, setting forth the fundamentals of the Mexican problem from the White House viewpoint.

Such a message, addressed either to Congress or to the public generally, would simply put the administration's case before the country.

Sees Confiscation As Issue
Mr. Coolidge has consistently maintained that the only question at stake in the Mexican controversy is: "Shall American property be confiscated without being paid for?" He has stated his belief that if the American people once realized this fact the opposition to the administration's Mexican policy would vanish. The Senate's adoption of the Robinson resolution now affords him the opportunity to drive his point home, according to his advisers.

Mexico May Make Proposal.

WINDHAM MAN DIES BY FELLING OF TREE

Willimantic, Jan. 26.—Caught under a falling tree that he himself had cut, Frank M. Tingley, 68, was crushed to death on his property in Windham Center late yesterday while Andrew Mosley, a neighbor, who was helping him, looked on powerless to aid him.

Tingley was extricated from beneath the tree and carried to a hospital here but was found to be dead.

Tingley failed to calculate the sweep of the branches of the falling tree and was dragged by them under the trunk.

May Be Compelled to Act With Powers at Shanghai

North and South Chinese Re- ported Agreeing to Drop Own War and Join in At- tack on Aliens If There Is Intervention — Fate of Shanghai Rests in Im- pending Battle—British Make Proposal to Canton- ese.

Attention focuses on Great Britain today, as reports from China indicate that the situation there is quiescent.

The British government has issued a statement declaring that it has made a proposal to the Cantonese which should bring about a settlement if the Chinese are willing to accept a reasonable basis for agreement.

Some newspapers intimate that this statement is intended to divert attention from British military maneuvers and to fix the blame upon China for negotiations now going on in Hankow.

Japan has decided that the situation in China does not warrant a display of arms, although there are reports that Great Britain invited Japan to participate in such a display.

Central News reports state that American evacuated Foochow only after the Cantonese had failed to guarantee their protection.

Looting is reported in Chekiang. Shanghai reports state that there are reports that the north and the south will unite against the foreigners if there is intervention in China.

Additional guards have arrived at the French concession in Shanghai.

Although there are indications of an imminent battle between Chang Tso-Lin and the Cantonese forces, no reports have been received of any clash between them.

U. S. Involvement Feared
Washington, Jan. 26.—The United States will continue its neutral stand in the Chinese civil war, it was strongly emphasized at the State Department today. But notwithstanding this attitude the government is intensely interested in the movement of two great Chinese armies near Hangchow, where a battle on a stupendous scale, that will seal the fate of Shanghai, is momentarily expected between northern troops under Chang Tso-Lin and Cantonese forces under Chang Kai-Shek.

It has become obvious that this government's hope of averting a clash at Shanghai depends upon the outcome of the impending battle at Hangchow. Should Chang Tso-Lin be defeated, the victorious Cantonese are expected to sweep down upon Shanghai, making necessary the defense of the international city by force of arms.

The British and the Japanese already have taken steps toward defending the city, the former having under way "Shanghai defense force" consisting of almost 20,000 men.

Meanwhile, though it is virtually certain that it will be drawn into the fight, the United States remains undecided as to whether it will join in a common defense with the other powers. The administration has been hoping against hope that such a step would not become necessary, and has drawn no plans as far as could be ascertained today, to co-operate with the other powers. The only public pronouncement in this regard has been the White House statement that "we will do the best we can" there to protect American lives and property.

The utility of attempting to remain the foreign concession in Shanghai by military force without a consequent heavy loss of lives is again being emphasized here. The millions of Chinese who live either in or near the international settlement would undoubtedly take part in any mob violence that the nationalist agitators may inspire. To successfully defend the city, then, it would be necessary to drive out these natives even at the cost of a wholesale massacre.

It is considered here that nothing short of overwhelming defeat will keep the Cantonese from Shanghai, the second most important objective in their drive toward complete conquest of the country. The city has the richest customs port in China and it contains

COBB AND SPEAKER RULING TOMORROW

Exoneration of Players Ex- pected in Decision That Landis Promises.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker will know their fate tomorrow.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis announced today that he would decide Thursday as to the status of the former Detroit and Cleveland American League club managers.

Whether the show cast on the records of the peerless diamond pair by a story told the baseball czar by "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, that Ty and Tris were involved in an alleged "throw" game in 1919, is to be lifted will be finally determined by Landis.

Judge Landis stated he will make a formal announcement covering the cases of the two accused stars.

Complete exoneration for Cobb and Speaker and repudiation of Leonard's entire story is expected.

PEACHES TOLD FIB ABOUT THAT DIARY

people mentioned in it to come out in court. "Peaches" was then excused from the stand at 10:52 a. m. Over Attorney Discloses "Peaches" admission she had re-written her diary came when her attorney, Henry Epstein, said to the court: "Your honor, the witness told me last night that the diary produced here is not the original one kept before her marriage. I deem it my duty as an officer of this court to make that statement."

"Peaches" explained that "after becoming a married lady," she didn't want the names of young men to get on court records. "Mr. Morris, who is mentioned in it, asked me to destroy the diary," she said. Browning's attorney declared that the missing pages in the diary "show that she was not so innocent of the marriage relation as she claims."

"Peaches," when cussed from the witness stand, started to cry. The tears streaked down her round, pale face and her body shook. She finally regained her composure. "Daddy" regarded her sympathetically. Nurse Testifies Mrs. Catherine Mayer, a nurse, was then called to the stand. She testified she had known "Peaches" and her mother for five years and went to Cold Springs at Mrs. Heenan's request to pay the Brownings a visit after "Peaches" and "Daddy" were married. She also testified "Peaches" when she suffered from acid burns the witness said, "I heard Mr. and Mrs. Browning quarreling on their honeymoon at Cold Springs," Mrs. Mayer testified. "One night Mrs. Heenan and I were down stairs talking when we heard words upstairs and then a scream. Mrs. Heenan rushed up and brought 'Peaches' from her husband's room."

Browning had iron bars put on the window of the bedroom at Cold Springs, Mrs. Mayer said. The screaming by "Peaches" occurred about ten o'clock at night. Mrs. Mayer said, "Finally I prevailed upon 'Peaches' to go upstairs to her husband," said Mrs. Mayer. "I told her I thought that was best."

Mrs. Heenan on Stand "Peaches" mother, Mrs. Carolyn Heenan, was then called. She resembles "Peaches" in feature, although her hair is dark while "Peaches" is blonde. Epstein asked: "Where was your daughter born?" "In Columbus, Ohio. She is sixteen years old."

"Peaches" birth certificate was offered in evidence. Q. Did you have any other children? A. No. Q. Are you divorced from your husband? A. Yes. I divorced him in 1918. Q. Your occupation has been what? A. A nurse. Q. Do you recall when you first met Mr. Browning? A. March 15, 1926. Q. Who introduced you to him? A. My daughter. "Very Fine Gentleman" Mrs. Heenan said "Peaches" had been to a dance and she was waiting up for her when she came home with Browning. Browning impressed her as a "very fine gentleman" on that occasion, said Mrs. Heenan. "When your daughter went out on the other occasions did your daughter always tell you where she was going?" Browning usually brought "Peaches" home about midnight, she said. One night Browning told her he had "serious intentions" regarding "Peaches" said Mrs. Heenan. On that occasion he showed her numerous letters written by girls who wanted to marry him, she said. Mrs. Heenan testified that the day before "Peaches" married "Daddy" she was summoned to the office of Francis G. Dale, in Browning's office. Browning was there. "Mr. Browning said we (meaning he and "Peaches") are going to run up to Cold Spring and get married. Can you go along? I said, yes I could. "Mr. Browning put a roll of bills in my hand and said I would need it for expenses."

Mrs. Heenan decided to stay at Kew Gardens. Soon Dorothy Sunshine Browning, ten-year-old adopted daughter of the millionaire, came there for a visit. When Dorothy came, Browning told his wife she better sleep with her mother, Mrs. Heenan said. "One day Mr. Browning got greatly excited and fell flat on the bed," said the witness. "Peaches" going to kill you and kill myself," he shouted," Mrs. Heenan testified. Court was adjourned until 1:30 this afternoon at the conclusion of Mrs. Heenan's testimony. After two more witnesses had testified this afternoon the trial adjourned at 2:10 until next Monday morning.

REBEKAHS SURPRISE MRS. IVA INGRAHAM

Noble Grand, Guest of Honor At the Home of Mrs. Ralph Cone.

Mrs. Iva Ingraham, Noble Grand last year of Sunset Rebekah lodge was the guest of honor at a party given Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Ralph Cone of East Center street. Mrs. Ingraham had been invited to Mrs. Cone's under the pretext of a social hour to play bridge. The hosts had seen to it that the guests assembled early and her living room was in darkness except for a fire burning brightly in the fireplace.

When Mrs. Ingraham arrived she was generally surprised to find the officers and members of the guard team and degree staff to the number of 50 there to greet her. Needless to say, a very pleasant evening was spent listening to the radio, playing games and telling stories. After refreshments, in which the hostess was assisted by Mrs. Jessie Wallace, Mrs. Alice Short and Mrs. Elizabeth Mason, Mrs. Emma Nettleton in behalf of the lodge presented to Mrs. Ingraham a handsome bridge lamp; and Miss Ruth Porter gave to Mrs. Henry Lowd, mistress of the degree team, a silk scarf.

DEMING, HERE, FAVORS ALIEN REGISTRATION

Believes U. S. Should Keep Better Check on Foreigners; Would Restrict Further.

Robert C. Deming, director of the department of Americanization, was the speaker at the Kiwanis meeting this noon at the Hotel Sheridan. His subject was "Our Immigration Policy." Mr. Deming was introduced by President Knofla as a Yale man who had preceded his address, naturally, by telling a few funny stories about Yale and Harvard. He is well versed on the subject of immigration, having been connected with Americanization work for 15 years. He gave figures which showed the great increase in the world's population, which is today much greater than ever before in its history. From 1811 to 1911 the growth was greater than in any previous period. Mr. Deming is in favor of restricted immigration, more restrictions than obtained today. He declares we must have it in order to retain our form of government and nationalism. More people in this country today favor restricted immigration than ever before. It is only a matter of education. It is natural that people of other countries in which there is a lower standard of living and morals favor the country that has a higher standard and seek that country. The speaker favors registration of aliens and gave his reason for so doing. Every man and woman who become citizens of the United States are practically registered, but aliens who come here and who do not obtain citizenship are never registered, are unknown and no record taken of them. He said Canada, our northern neighbor, is the best friend we have. Both countries work amicably on the immigration problem. Immigration from Mexico must stop. Thousands and thousands of Mexicans slip across the border illegally every year and are now crowding the cities of the southwest and even as far north as Chicago. If aliens were registered this great influx would stop. Mr. Deming was roundly applauded for his informative talk. President Knofla was named as representative to the international convention to be held in Memphis next June. George H. Wilcox was elected a delegate. Scott Simon won the attendance prize today. It was donated by F. T. Blish.

trols the entrance to the Yangtze valley and as such is of great military importance to the southerners, who now control most of the valley. The territory about Shanghai is now in the hands of Sun Chung-fang, who recently allied himself with Chang Tso-Lin on the theory that the latter would be able to check the Cantonese. But in view of the continued southern victories it would be no surprise to observers here to learn that Sun had suddenly switched his allegiance to Chang Tso-Lin. Such a move would greatly facilitate the Cantonese advance upon Shanghai. 4,000 Americans in Shanghai The situation in Shanghai was officially described by the State Department today as being "very delicate." There are more than 4,000 Americans among the foreigners there. Secretary of State Kellogg declined to say what instructions have been forwarded to Admiral C. S. Williams, commandant of the American naval forces there, in the event of an attack on Shanghai by Cantonese Nationalist forces. It is assumed, however, that Williams will either land troops enough to protect American lives and property or evacuate those Americans who wish to leave. A re-statement of the American government's policy in the whole Chinese problem will be made tomorrow by the State Department. It is understood it will reaffirm the traditional friendship this government has for the Chinese people and express sympathy for them in their nationalist aspirations. Britain Makes Proposal London, Jan. 26.—The British government, through charge L. S. O'Malley, has made definite proposals to the Cantonese leaders which gives basis for a belief that a satisfactory settlement of the Chinese difficulties will be reached shortly. It was officially announced today. The statement did not disclose the nature of the proposals made by Great Britain, but pointed out that discussions still continue at Hankow and that the test of the willingness of the Cantonese to accept a reasonable settlement is now being made. The official statement declares that the constructive proposals which have been offered are needed to lead to the establishment of better relations with China unless the Chinese authorities are bent upon making relations impossible. The statement was obviously issued with the purpose of drawing public attention from the military movements being made by Great Britain and centering attention on the diplomatic situation. It also is interpreted as being a step to place the onus on the Chinese if the negotiations break down. More Troops Sent The transport Minnesota sailed for China today carrying 1,000 British marines and two flights of the British fleet's air army to strengthen the Shanghai defense forces. The air unit comprised 150 men and twelve seaplanes. The departure of the Marines from Portsmouth will be followed shortly by a dispatch of other units of the Shanghai defense forces. The transports Kildonan Castle, Kinfauns Castle, Herminius and Karmola are now being equipped at Southampton and will probably sail on Friday or Saturday. A destroyer flotilla of nine vessels is under orders for China and is expected to sail about February 10. Within fifty days, it is estimated, there will be 20,000 men available for the British defense in the Far East.

BIG POULTRY SHOW TO OPEN TONIGHT

Over 200 Entries—Fowl, Ducks and Pigeons on Exhibition; Admission Free. The big state armory on Main street is a noisy place today. Crowing roosters, clacking hens, quacking ducks and cooing pigeons make the auditorium ring. Manchester's poultry show will open tonight and last three days. Figuring from last year's success it is certain that the armory will be thronged for the next three days, if only from the fact that admission will be free this year. Last year with admission charged, the show was unusually well attended. It is expected that there will be more than 200 entries before the show starts tonight. Fanciers from all parts of the state and from other states will show their birds. Local fanciers, however, need not take a back seat at the exhibition for some of Manchester's birds have won prizes in the biggest shows in the country.

NOBODY WANTS CHEST OF GOLD AT LOCAL BANK

Bank officials are growing discouraged over the failure of any of the Christmas Club members to turn up with the lucky key to the chest of gold which is valued at $100. There are close to 2,000 keys out and of this number it is believed less than three-fourths of the owners have turned their keys. With money as scarce as it is, bank authorities cannot fathom the slow response by the club members. The chest of gold was exposed for key holders at the Manchester Trust Company several weeks ago. If the lucky person does not show up, soon bank officials say they will be forced to take some action on the matter. Suggestions have been made that the chest of gold be raffled off to the members of the Christmas Club so that it be donated to some charitable institution.

"FIFTH GOSPEL" CODEX ADMITTED TO BE HOAX

Story of Joseph of Jerusalem Written by Author to Boom Sale of a Novel. Bari, Italy, Jan. 26.—Purported discovery at Cerignola recently of a supposed Greek codex signed by Joseph of Jerusalem, which caused a stir in scholastic circles, is now alleged to be just another publicity hoax. The codex, believed by many English and American scholars to have been authentic, was said to bear the signature of Joseph Flavius, who was born 37 years after Christ, dealt with the life of Christ and the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans. Gino Gordella now charges that the codex was fabricated by Louis Moccia on his suggestion. Gordella said he conceived of the story of finding the codex to advertise a novel by Moccia, which was supposed to have been based on the codex. Henry Ford has been reported as striving to buy the codex, believing it to be the "fifth gospel."

MAY FIGHT MARINES

Nicaraguans Desperate Over Zoning, Says Sacasa. Puerto Cabezas, Nic., Jan. 26.—The danger of a clash between United States Marines and Liberal troops was pointed out today by Dr. Juan Sacasa, head of the Liberal government. Dr. Sacasa deplored the situation, but charged that the action of the Marines in constantly extending neutral zones had aroused hostility. He declared that the Diaz government at Managua could not stand without American support and disclaimed any anti-American feeling on his own part. "Hostility has been aroused by the action of the United States Marines in following the Constitution-alists and declaring neutral all the zones without American support," said Dr. Sacasa. "Such acts are making Nicaraguans desperate. The situation is bad and is increasing in gravity. Creation of these neutral zones is robbing us of the peace captured by us through force of arms." Dr. Sacasa expressed the determination to carry on, in spite of all difficulties. He added: "I am convinced that the Diaz government would quickly fall should the American government withdraw its support and resume an attitude of neutrality." Dr. Sacasa, after denying any anti-Americanism, referred to the United States as his "second mother country." "That is where I was educated," continued the Liberal chief. "That is where I became imbued with Liberalism."

Abd-el-Krim Finds Island Prison an Eden of Peace; Happy the French, Not the Spanish, Captured Him.

Paris.—Abd-el-Krim, who flashed across the newspaper headlines of years ago to reach a haven of forgetfulness, is the world's recent sacrifice to the memory of Napoleon.

The British and their allies taught France the lesson when they sent Napoleon to St. Helena. Elba had been too near for safe exile, and escape from St. Helena was impossible.

France's St. Helena is the lonely island of Reunion, 500 miles east of Madagascar in the southern Indian ocean. It is a paradise of lofty mountains, abundant fruits and gorgeous flowers.

Since 1896 France first used it for a trouble-some monarch in 1896. France had long claimed possession of the enormous island of Madagascar, but was resisted by the native queen, Ranavalona.

Abd-el-Krim, who flashed across the newspaper headlines of years ago to reach a haven of forgetfulness, is the world's recent sacrifice to the memory of Napoleon.

RUTH ROYE HEADS BILL IN HARTFORD

Great Comedian at the State, Hartford, For Last Part of the Week.

Headed by Ruth Royce, universally recognized as America's premiere comedienne, one of the most important figures in vaudeville today, and with a stupendous production in Joseph E. Howard's 1927 Revue, a tremendously interesting film feature and many other notable presentations, the program at the State theater, Hartford, Main and Morgan streets, for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is one of the most attractive which this superb new playhouse has offered since it opened, a month ago.

The feature film "Prisoners of the Storm," from a story by James Oliver Curwood, is a fascinating drama of the great northwest, of the type for which this author is famous, played by a splendid cast headed by House Peters. Dramatic scenes of the gold country and the long, long winters in the sub-arctic, with the beauty of what has been called the world's loveliest forest country, form a background for an intensely gripping story of the fight for love and riches.

Through the night roared the midnight express. The old engineer's eyes were weakening under the strain and he asked his fireman to watch the lights of a "block signal." Soon came the report—"Green light—all clear!" and on sped the train—head on into another train—because the signal light was RED and the fireman had betrayed his old friend.

It is just one of many dramatic moments in the latest Gotham production "The Block Signal" which comes tomorrow and Friday.

Ralph Lewis is seen as the locomotive engineer and George Chesbro plays the treacherous fireman. Other favorite photoplayers include Sidney Franklin as the comical "Roundhouse" Rosen, boss of the engine stable, Jean Arthur as the girl telegraph operator and handsome Hugh Allan as the young engineer who saves the day.

Frank O'Connor directed this thriller under the supervision of Renaud Hoffman.

"Winners of the Wilderness," the companion feature to "The Block Signal," is a story of the west in the days of the frontier. Big men with hearts of gold, who fought for beautiful women against Indians and bandits. They abound in this picture with its myriad thrills in every reel.

Milton Sills finishes a successful run in "The Silent Lover" at this theater tonight. Successes, dear to the French Foreign legion and is laid in Morocco.

In the role of a dispirited young diplomat who almost ruins himself in Paris, and then finds himself again in the grueling service of the French Foreign Legion, the hero of "The Silent Lover" is the countless other success stories contributed another splendid characterization to the "immortals" of greenland.

TWO CORKING FILMS ON CIRCLE PROGRAM

"Block Signal" and "Winners of the Wilderness," Milton Sills in "Silent Lover" Ends Tonight.

A smashing railroad drama and a thrilling western feature constitute the double feature bill which will be shown at the Circle theater tomorrow and Friday.

"The Block Signal," will star Ralph Lewis, famous character actor, Milton Sills in "The Silent Lover," completes his run at the Circle tonight.

Ralph Lewis has not appeared in a starring role here for some time. But he has been busy working on new features and still holds the reputation of being one of the greatest character actors in the pictures. An actor of sterling ability, his starring films never fail to please.

ASSASSINATORS SAVED TAXPAYERS $970.83

Ten Per Cent Penalty Cut Down Nearly One Half By Use of Telephone.

The board of assessors gave real service to those property owners who forgot to file their lists before the time limit this year. As a result, they saved for some owners the taxes on $69,345, which amounts to the comfortable sum of $970.83 when figured on a 14 mill basis.

It was done by means of the telephone. Many hours were spent in calling up delinquents and the result was that the list of the 10 per cent was reduced one-half under the total of last year.

The scheme was made possible by the card index system, which was used to good advantage. Formerly the assessors could not tell who had not filed by looking at their books but now the card indexes show the names at a glance. It was the first time in more than 20 years that such a scheme had been worked here.

James B. Hutchinson, chimer at the South Methodist church, gave a program of Scotch music on the Case Memorial chime last night in commemoration of the birthday of Robert Burns the poet. Following were the numbers:

There was a Lad Was Born in Kyle, Scots Wha Hae, Loch Lomond, Duncan Gray, Robin Adair, John O' the Lea, Ye Banks and Braes, Comin' thro' the Rye, Blue Bells of Scotland, Flora MacDonald's Lament, Wae's Me for Prince Charlie, Auld Lang Syne.

The church was open to the public during the concert.

Petitions received today were: Restoring forfeited rights to Vincent A. Smith and Edwin R. Shelgrove, both of New Britain.

Senate bills presented today included the following: Providing that the secretary of state shall be the state Athletic commissioner, ex-officio, and shall appoint five deputies, one from each congressional district for two year terms and at salaries of $500 each.

Other bills were: providing exemption from taxation of all property used for charitable purposes; authorizing purchase of Ridgetfield property for use of the state police; appropriating $750,000 for state parks and forests; providing the state board of education shall appoint a board of examination and registration or architects; providing that Norwich police shall have jurisdiction in Colchester, Lebanon and Bozrah; providing for uniform public accounting and standardization of receipts and expenditures wherein public moneys are concerned.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 26, 1927.

T. B. BED FUND.

The thought is suggested that perhaps, on the whole, the worthwhile achievements of organizations, like those of individuals, are likely to be in inverse proportion to the noise they make in the world.

Recently the Herald printed the yearly report of the association, which with entire modesty set forth the fact that twelve patients cared for by the fund for the year four have recovered and five returned to their employment.

At least four lives saved. Probably more—almost undoubtedly more. They pin war crosses and Carnegie medals on heroes for less.

It is, when you think of it, a very splendid business to be in—both for the workers, with their individual contributions, the officials of the fund who so carefully and efficiently administer it.

Not often is it safe to signal out for special laudation particular members of a group of volunteers all of whom are striving for the same admirable end.

There is one tiny item in their annual report which speaks louder for the management of the fund, however, than volumes of wordy praise.

It is, perhaps, no great wonder that the Tuberculosis Free Bed Fund association accomplishes what it sets out to do.

MARIE'S HOKUM.

And now it is disclosed, through a copyrighted dispatch to the New York Times from its very special correspondent at Vienna, that Queen Marie of Rumania is so little satisfied with the result of her trip to the United States that she probably sincerely wishes she hadn't come at all.

Marie is especially distressed by the effects of what she considers to be the national American trait of exaggeration. "Americans love to magnify and distort all incidents until they assume the dimensions of sky-scrapers," says the Queen.

On the whole, no thinking person would care to take direct issue with Her Majesty on this point. Americans do love to magnify, sometimes even to distort things. We are perhaps just a little more excitable over small matters than we might better be.

the carnival spirit that was born on Armistice day; it may be that because this people hasn't altogether regained its balance from that day to this, we are more responsive to impulses for loud shouting and capering at the least excuse than we used to be.

About ten times as much advance fuss was made over the coming of Marie as there was any good reason for. And, starting off on that basis, it is not so wonderful that her whole trip took on a somewhat hectic and unnatural excitement.

If there was any worse exaggeration, any more pronounced magnifying by anybody else than there was by the good lady who, the moment she stepped on American soil, fairly sobbed with the joyous emotions she experienced in being in the land of her so dearly beloved Americans, we don't recall it.

Well, if Marie came over here and endowed us with a vast, all-embracing national kiss, what would she have us do in return—tell her to go peddle her apple sauce in some other market? Or return the kiss in kind?

If Marie had come here like a queen she might have gotten a queen's reception. Coming like a circus, she got a circus reception. We may love to exaggerate but we are, at a pinch, adaptable.

NORRIS ACQUITTAL.

Acquittal of Rev. Frank L. Norris, the Texas minister who shot and killed a Fort Worth politician, brings no surprise. In the state of Texas they have carried the theory of "contributory negligence" to a remarkable degree.

Possibly this may not be bad law in some respects. It certainly ought to make for good manners and a minimum amount of bullying of the cowardly by the hardy—just as the carrying of guns made for good manners in the old time mining camps.

It may not be difficult for a great many people to rejoice that Rev. Mr. Norris is neither to hang nor spend many years in prison for the Chipps killing, but it certainly is not going to be easy for many of them to get up a great deal of enthusiasm for his valor.

CLOUDS.

From New Haven comes the news that the Democratic organ of that city, the Union, is experiencing such rough weather financially that it is about to go under a friendly receivership.

However, tribulation is not an utter stranger to the old Union. In the nineties there was a period of very hard sledding indeed. Then along came the free-silver campaign of 1896. Every last newspaper of the Democratic persuasion in the state of Connecticut, with the single exception of the Union, if memory serves rightly, bolted the Bryan ticket and went to Palmer and Buckner, the gold-Democratic nominees.

Because the late Alex Troup was one of those extremely scarce things in New England prior to the "Cross of Gold" convention, a free silver advocate, and because he habitually did about as he pleased anyhow, regardless of consequences, he came to the support of Bryanism with a bang. "Suicide!" warned every friend.

But whether Troup had reckoned on it or not, it proved a great stroke under the circumstances. There were, after all, a good many Democrats in Connecticut who remained loyal to their party and presently they became ardent silverites. And the New Haven Union became their Bible. The Union went all over the state, its circulation mounted enormously. And though Bryan took a beautiful beating the Union took the gravy in the form of a re-established prestige, good business—for advertising follows circulation—and a long era of prosperity.

NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 26.—A bright young man I met the other day is just about to make a comfortable fortune by showing the vast army of apartment dwellers how to exercise their dogs without taking them outside the house.

It would be unkind, perhaps, to describe as bunk Marie's protestations of affection for everything from the Statue of Liberty to the compost heap on an Idaho ranch and everyone from President Coolidge to the gentleman who struck Billy Patterson. But at best it was hokum, of course; just stage business.

So up sprang a young man with a bright idea. It is a revolving platform, such as was made famous by the Ben Hur chariot races. It operates by electricity and the family pet can take a run of several miles without leaving the front bedroom.

Pet stores thrive in New York. Loneliness is, to a great extent, responsible. The light-fitting apartments into which humans must squeeze are made sayer by the presence of a canary, a couple of parakeets or a parrot.

One place on Fifth avenue specializes in queer birds and animals and fish, from baby alligators to gay-plumaged songsters from the African jungles.

Why people buy them not even the proprietor has ever completely figured out, for the lays of such pets in modern apartment houses are short.

Almost any day, when the weather is pleasant, an entire neighborhood may be seen pursuing a pet monkey up a fire escape.

He named them and gave them a cage and the other day I found him greatly dismayed. They had presented him with a family of little mice and he didn't want to keep them, nor did he wish to kill them.

In the northwestern part of the United States there is an area of almost 200,000 square miles of solid lava, due to prehistoric volcanic eruptions.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Jan. 26.—Davey Jones has taken away the ideal sailor of the coast guard—no who had helped rob this same Davey Jones of many another prospective victim.

When the coast guard supply schooner Lincoln burned and sank off the North Carolina coast recently with a loss of four men, she carried with her Coxswain William H. Alston. Rescuer by profession, he found none when his own hour of need arrived.

You may have seen his picture on posters used for recruiting purposes. Just as the navy and the marine corps have selected their ideal gobs and devil-dogs for exhibition purposes, so did the coast guard pick Alston.

Now the distinction of being the "best all-around coast guardsman" is vacant. Some of the high officers will pick a new one, but they say there's no hurry about it.

Four of the Lincoln's crew of eight were lost when she went down off Cape Lookout. Another victim was Churfa Erlingson, an Erlington put life-preservers on the younger men. Sailors on the ship Defender, standing by helpless in heavy seas, saw the four doomed men still on deck after their mast had toppled over. One of the survivors was in the water 36 hours before being picked up.

Allston's father is a chief petty officer in the guard, having spent a lifetime in the service. Among some families along the shore there is a tradition of such service. Frequently a grandfather is found on the roster of the guard at the same station with his son and with a grandfatherly expected to follow in his footsteps.

Run-runners, it is said, find it harder to corrupt such men, whose lives have been given to this dangerous type of rescue work.

Late in the spring, coast guard cutters in Alaskan waters—probably the Haida, Aigonquin and Unadilla—will make their annual visit to wierd Bogoslov island, in the Bering sea north of the Aleutian chain. Bogoslov is Russian for "Love of God." Sailors have been known to emit a similar expression of profane astonishment on sighting it for the first time.

Bogoslov is a volcanic formation which has furnished the Aleutian natives with many legends. It changes its entire shape during the year, sometimes submerging completely, sometimes reappearing as a single island and sometimes as two or three. Sometimes it gives off a volcanic steam and sometimes it surrounds it holes and dead sea-lions and fish float upon the surface for miles around.

The coast guard's annual visits are to study the changes in contour and the changes in the ocean bottom which this phenomenon produces. One of these latter changes caused the loss of the Cutter Tahoma in 1914. Eighty-five miles from nearest land, pinnacles of volcanic rock shot up unexpectedly from the bottom and the Tahoma struck them.

Conventions

This is one of a series of 20 articles on modern American cities' progress and problems. Tomorrow: The Value of Industries to a Community.

BY DON E. MOWRY

Secretary American Community Advertising Association. If Russia had had the convention spirit, it has been said, she never would have had a revolution.

Conventions are the covenant of substantial, orderly government, according to E. L. Dixon of the Detroit convention bureau.

Interchanging Ideas. "Those hosts centralizing periodically at important points are promoters of peace and progress," he says. "When one section of a great country with such diversified interests as this can come into contact with representatives from other sections, the inevitable interchange of points of view means a diffusion of understanding among the citizens, counterbalancing provincialism and modifying insistent self-interest."

It is reported that the convention and travel business in America amounts to nearly a billion dollars annually. Naturally, the cities are bidding for conventions, and bidding hard.

Four of the Lincoln's crew of eight were lost when she went down off Cape Lookout. Another victim was Churfa Erlingson, an Erlington put life-preservers on the younger men. Sailors on the ship Defender, standing by helpless in heavy seas, saw the four doomed men still on deck after their mast had toppled over.

Old Mowry's. How sleep the brave, who sink to rest. By all their country's wishes blest! When Spring, with dewy fingers cold, Returns to deck their hallowed mould, She there shall dress a sweeter sod Than Fancy's feet have ever trod.

By fairy hands their knell is rung. By forces unseen their dirge is sung: There Honor comes, a pilgrim gray, To bless the turf that wraps the clay; And Freedom shall awhile repair To dwell a weeping hermit there! —W. Collins: Ode Written in 1746

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n. When you plant a red oak you plant a tree for a dozen generations to enjoy.

Our Puritan ancestors had set out red oak trees on the windlass ed shore of Plymouth, we today might still enjoy the tree's beauty and majesty, for the red oak reaches a height of 150 feet and attains the ripe old age of 300 years or more.

The early fathers did not forget the old home in Bonnie England and many a tree and shrub which they found in the American wilds grew to love, found its way across the Atlantic. The red oak in this way was introduced into Europe in 1749. It withstands the European climate better than any other of the American oaks and grows there in abundance, thriving apparently as well as in its native land.

The red oak (Quercus rubra) is found from Nova Scotia to Minnesota and Kansas, south to Florida and Texas. It is one of the largest, stately and hardiest of the trees of eastern North America. No other oak of the Northern States grows so rapidly or is capable of being transplanted so easily, and few trees are better adapted for parks and roadsides.

The flowers of the red oak, bright red and graceful in appearance, appear in May and early June. The leaves fall in the autumn after changing to autumnal coloring of orange and brown. The acorns ripen in the second year. This fruit is large, averaging an inch in length and half an inch in breadth. The wood is heavy, close-grained and very strong.

Farming, Declares Obregon Best Job for Ex-President

Nainral, Sonora, Mexico.—Fourteen years ago a Mexican named Alvaro Obregon abruptly deserted his country house to become a soldier.

Through his struggles troubled Mexico was restored, to order and given the most stable, progressive government it had enjoyed in many years.

His work done, this same Alvaro Obregon went back to his farm, forgetting the cares of government like Cincinnati of old.

Now there is widespread talk that Obregon will be recalled to public service, again to serve as president, perhaps to defend the present regime against a new revolution. But Obregon hopes he can remain in retirement, he told me as we talked at his farm home here.

Still an Executive. Obregon, just turned 48, displays on his huge country estate the same executive qualities that made him so distinguished a president.

A year ago his tract of land here at Nainral was a barren waste of sagebrush and cactus. Obregon took charge of it with zest and now has a 20,000-acre establishment peopled by a community of nearly 20,000 people—a little kingdom in which he virtually reigns supreme.

The annual return from his agricultural venture is estimated at $100,000.

It is almost impossible to induce Obregon to discuss the present political situation in his country. But he will talk freely of his own aims and ambitions; of his efforts to bring better working and living conditions to the downtrodden Mexican Peons, of his dream of reclaiming both the people and lands of his country.

Proud of School. He points proudly to a long building to the left of his house. In this building, by day, the children of his employees go to school. In the evenings the workmen use it as a study and reading room.

Beside it is a small hospital with a competent doctor and a number of nurses.

The town itself, three miles away also shows his influence. It is laid out and built in modern style.

Huge, up-to-date warehouses, equipped with modern elevators and transfer carriers, hold Obregon's crops until they are ready for shipment.

Turning a 20,000 acre stretch of semi-desert into a productive farm in eight months requires a lot of work; so, as might be imagined, Obregon keeps long hours.

He is up every morning by four o'clock and off on a tour of inspection. As he passes through the fields little boys look up and smile, tossing a cheerful "Don Alvaro" to him in answer to his cordial nod.

House is Picturesque. Obregon's house is old-fashioned viewed from the outside, but highly modern within. It reflects his character; bespeaks his culture and education.

From the portico of this castle-like home Obregon can see his green and yellow fields stretching in great, billowy waves, to the horizon. Through them winds the Mayo river, with irrigation canals extending from it like slender filaments.

On the second floor is Obregon's sanctum—a sort of combination of den and library and office. Here, when he is not checking his accounts or studying some new agricultural review, he sits and browses through his two favorite authors—Marcus Aurelius and La Rochefoucauld.

Obregon says that it is his ambition to spend the rest of his days on his farm working for and with the army of employes and forsaking politics for the company of his wife and four children. He is repeatedly urged by friends to seek the presidency again, but he refuses to discuss this.

It is better to be a farmer, he thinks.

An Unpopular Addition to the Family.

COVENTRY

Miss Ruth Taylor of Hartford spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. A. B. Porter. The Christian Endeavor Society will hold a Snow Ball Social Friday evening at the Chapel. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Smith and two children of Manchester spent Sunday with Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Noble Loomis. Thursday evening of last week Coventry Grange, No. 75, P. of H. installed its officers for the coming year. First Master Brother Byron A. Hall and Past Master Sister Walter S. Havens did the work. Friday evening the Tolland County Dairy Club put on an Achievement Program at Vernon Grange. The entire program was given by the children and each member gave a short talk on something pertaining to his or her animal. They will repeat their program at Mansfield as soon as the new building is finished. This club is just another of the 4-H clubs and it certainly is a live club. Miss Laura K. Kingsbury spent the week end at home. While at one of her classes this past week one of her teachers was demonstrating a new washing machine and while putting hot water in the machine she turned to speak to one of the class and in doing so lifted the hot water hose in the direction of Miss Kingsbury and scalded one leg quite badly. She has been able to attend all her classes however and reports the burn is improving all the time. Mrs. Barnes Sunday school will meet next Saturday night at the home of Mrs. A. J. Vinton to plan for an entertainment to be given at a later date. J. E. Kingsbury has returned home after spending a few days in Hartford this past week. The Hill children attending Rockville High school were home over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harlow and two children of Middletown have returned to Autumn View Farm, where Mr. Harlow has entered the employ of J. E. Kingsbury.

HEBRON

At the Sunday morning service at St. Peter's church the Rev. T. D. Martin gave a report of the convention attended by him in Hartford recently, opening the "Bishops' Crusade" movement in this state. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brehant were summoned to the bedside of Miles Rogers in Voluntown early this week. Mr. Rogers has suffered a paralytic shock. He was a former resident of this town and is Mrs. Brehant's father. He operated the grist mill here some years ago and lived with his family in the house near the mill. Professor H. A. Seckerson of Storrs Agricultural College supplied the pulpits of the Congregational Churches in Hebron and Gildard on Sunday. He preached a very interesting sermon. The "Every Member Canvass" was carried out on Sunday at the Congregational churches, being postponed from the previous Sunday. The members who visited in their homes on Sunday by delegates appointed for the purpose and pledges were obtained for financial support of the church for the coming year. Sherwood Miner has so far improved from his attack of pneumonia as to have a normal temperature. He is regarded as out of danger. Word has been received from the Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Champe of their safe arrival at their mission field in Mazatlan. They traveled by day through Mexico, the trains remaining near the large centers at night for safety. In passing through the Yaqui Indian territory they said they did not see a single Yaqui warrior, but there were signs of trouble in the past in the shape of trenches and dugouts all along the track and forts with sentries on guard on the roofs. The train was preceded by a long military train carrying from 400 to 500 soldiers with machine guns. The soldiers stood on top of the box cars. A force of 100 armed soldiers also accompanied the passenger train on the car ahead of the sleeping car and the same number in the car behind. Warren Knowles, teacher of the Advent School in Hopevale, and Donald Coates attended a session of Sabbath school at the Advent Church in New London Saturday. The Rev. John Deeter is still incapacitated by his attack of mumps and was unable to occupy the pulpit on Sunday. Mr. Deeter has had a severe case of the disease. New cases are reported daily both in Gildard and Hebron Center.

A Union Christian Endeavor meeting will be held at the Congregational church in this place Friday evening. Hebron, Gilead, Westchester and Salem will be represented. There will be special music by a negro quintet. Mrs. H. E. Hodge had a fall several days ago and has since been confined to her bed.

Your Income Tax

With a certain proviso, compensation paid by a State or "political subdivision thereof," such as a county or city, to its officers and employees is not taxable income. The proviso is that the services of such officers and employees must be rendered in connection with the "essential governmental functions of the State or political subdivision," as distinguished from its proprietary functions. The salaries of the governor of a State, mayor of a city, councilman, board of aldermen, public-school teachers, policemen and firemen are not taxable. But the compensation received by the employees of waterworks owned and operated by a municipality, or of a municipally owned and operated street railway is taxable, for the reason that they are engaged in the activities of a State which are not governmental. Fees for special services to a State are taxable, as for example, compensation paid architects and builders for planning and erecting a State capitol, courthouse, or other State or municipal buildings. An officer or employee of a State, for the purpose of the income tax law, is one whose services are continuous, and not occasional or temporary. In general, the salaries of Federal officers and employees are subject to the income tax. The salaries paid Federal judges are not taxable. The United States Supreme Court having so decided. Compensation paid by the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii to its officers and employees is taxable income, as they are not States or political subdivisions thereof.

TRADE SCHOOL NOTES

Robert P. Taylor, mechanical drafting instructor, returned to his work this morning following an absence caused by the illness and death of his mother in Waterbury. The next game for the basketball team will be Friday, February 4, when the Waterbury Continuation school plays here. It was also announced that Bridgeport Trade school has cancelled its annual battle with the locals because of an ineligible ruling which resulted in all of the first team being suspended for three months. Athletic relations will be resumed next year in basketball, however.

The work of installing the wiring system and the outlet boxes at the new addition to the Manchester Green school has been completed as soon as the work on the inside is far enough advanced the electrical department of the Trade school will complete its work there.

Recent work done by the electrical department of the Trade school consists of two houses for William Kanehl, local contractor and a five-car garage owned by Michael Orfitell.

The carpentry department is now making plans for several prospective home owners in Manchester, and is also busy with shop work, making tool boxes for the students and working on a supply of cabinets recently ordered.

CHILD GETS SICK CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

Look at tongue! Then give fruity laxative for stomach, liver, bowels

"California Fig Syrup" can't harm children and they love it

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated: this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once. When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given. Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills: give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle. Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup Company."—Adv.

EIGHT ACTS AT STATE FOR TOMORROW NIGHT

Popular Dancing Contest Here This Evening—"Prince of Tempters" Last 3 Days.

Tomorrow night is Bargain Night again at the State theater and the bargain is eight acts of select vaudeville headed by the Jay Kay Company, and Lois Moran, and Ben Lyon in "The Prince of Tempters". This evening a real treat is in store. The Black Bottom, that exotic dance which has taken the country by storm in recent weeks, will be demonstrated by several experts who will take part in the contest being conducted by the State. With the Black Bottom contest a number of local couples will compete in a waltz and fox trot contest and handsome prizes will be given the winners in all these events. There will be plenty of variety and plenty of clever dancing for all who attend. The old fashioned dance craze has passed to some extent and to take its place and the place of the Charleston, the Black Bottom has been in vogue. The old fashioned waltz is coming back into vogue and the State theater is sponsoring this beautiful dance. Entries for all dances should be made at the State box office. Several entries have been received and it is expected that there will be many more when the first contest is started. Old favorites, winners of many contests here and in surrounding towns, will compete. Eight acts of vaudeville! They packed the theater last Thursday night and will pack it to the doors again tomorrow evening. Last week's show left pleasant memories and State patrons are assured that this week's will be the same high caliber. Heading the bill is the Jay Kay company, consisting of five people, in a snappy big time revue. The other acts are on a par with this one and are bound to please the most exacting member of the audience. Ben Lyon, Lois Moran and Lya DePutti appear in the big feature picture, "The Prince of Tempters", which will be seen on Thursday.

TALE OF NOMAD LIFE COMING TO RIALTO

"Shadow of the Mosque" Closes Its Engagement Tonight; Other Feature on Bill.

"Shadow of the Mosque" and "Call of the Wilderness" close their engagement at the Rialto theater this evening, on the same program that includes a selected offering of shorter subjects. The first mentioned is an absorbing story of romance in the Arabian desert with a young English officer, a villainous Arab sheik and a pretty dancing girl as the principal characters. "Call of the Wilderness" stars Sandow, called the world's most beloved dog. The feats he undertakes in "Call of the Wilderness" are well high incredible and thrill one to the very fingertips. The double feature program which opens a two days' run tomorrow is headed by "Gypsy Romance" an unusual and whimsical love story of a fascinating nature. This film will appeal to those motion picture devotees who have tired of the usual run of screen entertainment, being written by Miss Mary O'Hara the author of such great successes as "Black Oxen."

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 26, 1927

Friday and Saturday. The regular five acts of vaudeville will be on the bill for the last two days of the week. "The Prince of Tempters" was made by Robert Kane for First National Pictures, Inc. and was directed by Lothar Mendes, imported from the crack producing organization of Europe, the UFA, the outfit which produced the two first named attractions.

Mendes was brought to this country to introduce some of the foreign styles of direction into Robert Kane pictures, and we know by advance reports from the studios that this big production has unique camera effects such as are seldom seen in American made pictures. Ben Lyon, Lois Moran, Lya de Putti and Mary Brian have the featured roles. Coming! Harold Lloyd in "The Kid Brother."

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Nathan Forrest (3)

Shortly after the battle of Shiloh, Forrest's bravery was rewarded with promotion to brigadier-general. Serving under General Bragg, an officer he cordially hated, Forrest took 1500 men and raided Murfreesboro, Tennessee, one early summer dawn in 1862. He captured General Crittenden and his staff and hundreds of prisoners before resistance could be organized.

Word came that General Nelson was dashing down from Nashville with 3500 men, bent on retribution. Forrest smiled and saw a new chance.

Hiding his wild riders in a wood until Nelson passed, Forrest dashed behind Nelson's forces and attacked Nashville.

Nelson, outwitted, determined that Forrest should be captured and returned to Nashville at top speed. Again Forrest slipped away. He came to bear the name 'Gray Ghost,' and Sherman ordered that Forrest be captured or killed 'if it costs 10,000 lives and breaks the treasury.' ©1927 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. (Continued.)

JACK LOCKWILL AT ROCKLAKE

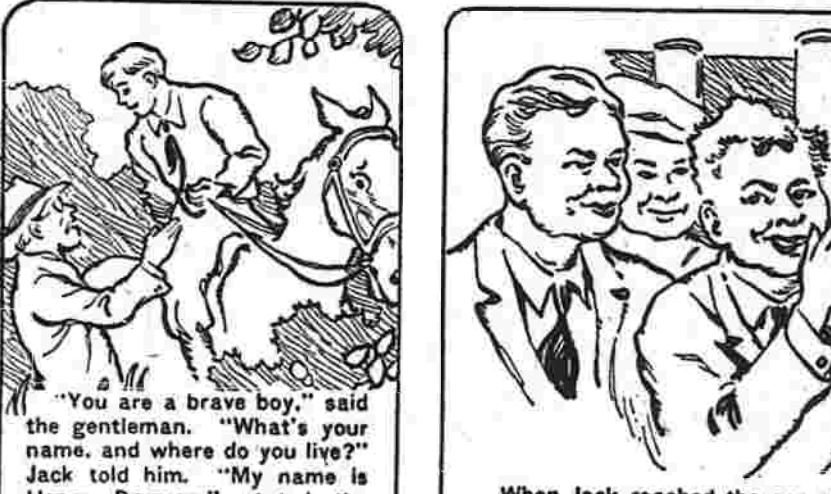

by Gilbert Patten

Under the tutelage of Judge, Jack developed into a distinctly unusual athlete as the years passed. At 12 he was a clever boxer and a surprisingly fleet runner. A fencing master taught him skill and grace with the foils. He could ride a horse like a cowboy. Riding alone in the park one day, he saw two footpads holding up a middle-aged gentleman on a path that was partly screened by bushes.

Jack reined his horse round and charged through the bushes. Striking with his riding crop, he snapped the pistol out of the hand of one ruffian. They fled, and Jack pursued them until they separated and escaped. Then he rode back to the gentleman he had rescued.

"You are a brave boy," said the gentleman. "What's your name, and where do you live?" Jack told him. "My name is Henry Darnson," stated the gentleman, "and I'm a poor man. If those scoundrels had succeeded in robbing me they would have got less than a dollar. But I won't forget you, Jack."

When Jack reached the age of 16, his mother consented, on the advice of Brick Judge, to send him to Rocklake Academy. Reaching the school, Jack had to run the gauntlet of inspection, and among the faces of the boys who were grinning at him he beheld one which he recognized instantly, though he hadn't seen it for a long, long while. The fellow was the red-headed bully he had fought when he was 6 years old.

FRIENDS AGAIN MEET FOR SILVER WEDDING

Second Celebration For Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Burke Is Arranged by Moose Members.
Mr. and Mrs. William Burke of North Main street, who were honored with a surprise at their home last Friday evening in celebration of their silver wedding, were tendered another party last night by a large number of the Women of Mooseheart Legion and the Lodge of Moose, of which organizations both Mr. and Mrs. Burke are members.
Joseph Chloine, an old friend of the family in behalf of the gathering, extended their felicitations in the following words, which were suitably inscribed on a large sheet of paper, tied with streamers of silver ribbon:
"Mr. and Mrs. William Burke: your twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. On January 21, 1902, you were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. We are assembled here this evening to help you celebrate your silver wedding anniversary. If anything on this earth is man or woman's very own, it is the blessing of a happy wedded life. We rejoice with you this evening, your twenty-fifth anniversary and thank Almighty God that He in His infinite goodness has given to you children to comfort and care for you in the future. May your life be a journey made by drawing to an end.
"Again we trust that the health and strength you enjoyed in the past will be yours to combat the trials of life in the future.
"Lastly, the best wishes that we can express for you is that your domestic life in the future may prove as blessed as it has been in the past."
The guests presented to Mr. and Mrs. Burke two handsome silver dishes, together with a bouquet of carnations tied with silver ribbon. They also provided everything necessary for a tasty luncheon. Games, vocal and instrumental music occupied the balance of the pleasant evening.

LITTLE JOE

ASK VILLAGE
Hilo, Hawaii.—Kalapana, immortalized by the stage play, "The Bird of Paradise," has been suggested by local civic interests as an appropriate site for a Hawaiian village. Primitive forests, warm springs, the cave of refuge, beautiful coconut groves and the ruins of ancient "heiaus" (temples) are some of the attractive features of the section. The establishment of a Hawaiian village at Kalapana is urged as a means of perpetuating the native grass houses and the native arts which are becoming rare.

OVER 1,000 DRIVERS SUSPENDED IN 1926

Over 150 More Than Year Before—Less Reckless Driving During the Year.
The state motor vehicle department found it necessary in the past year to suspend 1,356 operators for driving while under the influence of liquor. The number of suspensions on this account was greater by 152 than the 1925 suspensions for that cause and breaks all Connecticut records. The suspensions in 1924 for this offense totaled 1,022, in 1923, 733; in 1922, 394 and in 1921, 254.
In the year just closed 8,321 operators were taken off the road for varying periods because of different infractions of motor vehicle laws and regulations. This number was an increase of nearly 400 over the suspensions for 1925, but for the principal offense, reckless driving, there were only 2,338 suspensions as against 3,009 for that reason in 1925.
Increase of 253
For operating without a license, 1,489 operators were put on the motor vehicle department's suspension list in 1926, an increase of 253 for the year. There was an increase of about 200 suspensions for that offense of failing to report accidents, the total number of drivers losing their right to operate on that account being 1,523. That offense proved to be the most prolific cause of suspended licenses.
Twenty-six operators were put on the suspension list for driving while under age, 329 for being involved in fatal accidents, 240 for evading responsibility, 404 for operating unregistered motor vehicles, 79 for failure to appear at hearings when so ordered, 245 for overloading trucks, 43 for theft of motor vehicles, and 307 for failure to give proof of financial responsibility.
Fifty operators lost their licenses because the department was unable to locate them at the address they had given and eighty-eight were ordered off the road because they were adjudged to be improper persons to trust in charge of a motor vehicle.

Police Protection

At times the policeman looks like a superfluous member of the community. But when he is needed, he is right on the job.
Same way with accident and health insurance. In an emergency, when illness or accident puts an unexpected strain on your pocketbook, Connecticut General accident and health insurance pays you a weekly income and helps with doctor's fees.

WILLIAMS THINKS GENE TUNNEY CAN LICK JACK AGAIN

Believes Ex-Champ's Chance To Come Back Lies In "Warm Up" Battles.

By JOE WILLIAMS
New York, Jan. 26.—Mr. Jack Dempsey is back in the headlines again talking about another duel of the digits with the great intellectual of the ring, Mr. James Joseph Tunney.

It would be much easier for some of the fellows to fall for and broke our prophetic nozzles last September trying to call the turn at the Battle of the Sequa to take Mr. Dempsey seriously if he would do more fighting and less talking. What Mr. Dempsey needs now is the same thing that he needed before he climbed through the ropes to lose his crown to the fighting marine last fall—and that is some honest-to-John fighting under his belt.

If Dempsey comes back to the ring to meet Tunney without engaging in two or three legitimate warm-up bouts en route he will be beaten again just as badly if not worse than he was the first time. He ought to be in there swinging loaded punches at the Sharkeys, the Malenays and the Klakos, all of whom, I think, would topple before his attack, inaccurate and rusty though it may be.

There are only two men in the field Dempsey need proceed against with caution. One of course is Tunney. The other is Jack Delaney, the light heavyweight, a deadly sharpshooter who might have won from the Dempsey Tunney whippersnapper as easily as the present champion did.

But all the other palid pretenders to the heavyweight throne are notably lacking in genuine class and Dempsey, in good physical condition, could step out and mingle among them with little fear of losing either caste or cash.

Dempsey can do more to bring himself to a state of fighting formability by tossing soggy mittens in the general direction of a few earnest pugilists who think they on the third base to a championship bout than by all the mountain climbing, bag punching and "Tunney-or-nobody" ultimatums in the world.

Dempsey lacked a lot of things in his fight with Tunney, weight, stamina, sensible advice in the corner, poise and FIGHTING EDGE. It was this lack of fighting edge that made the fight look bad and caused so many ringside observers to believe it was crooked.

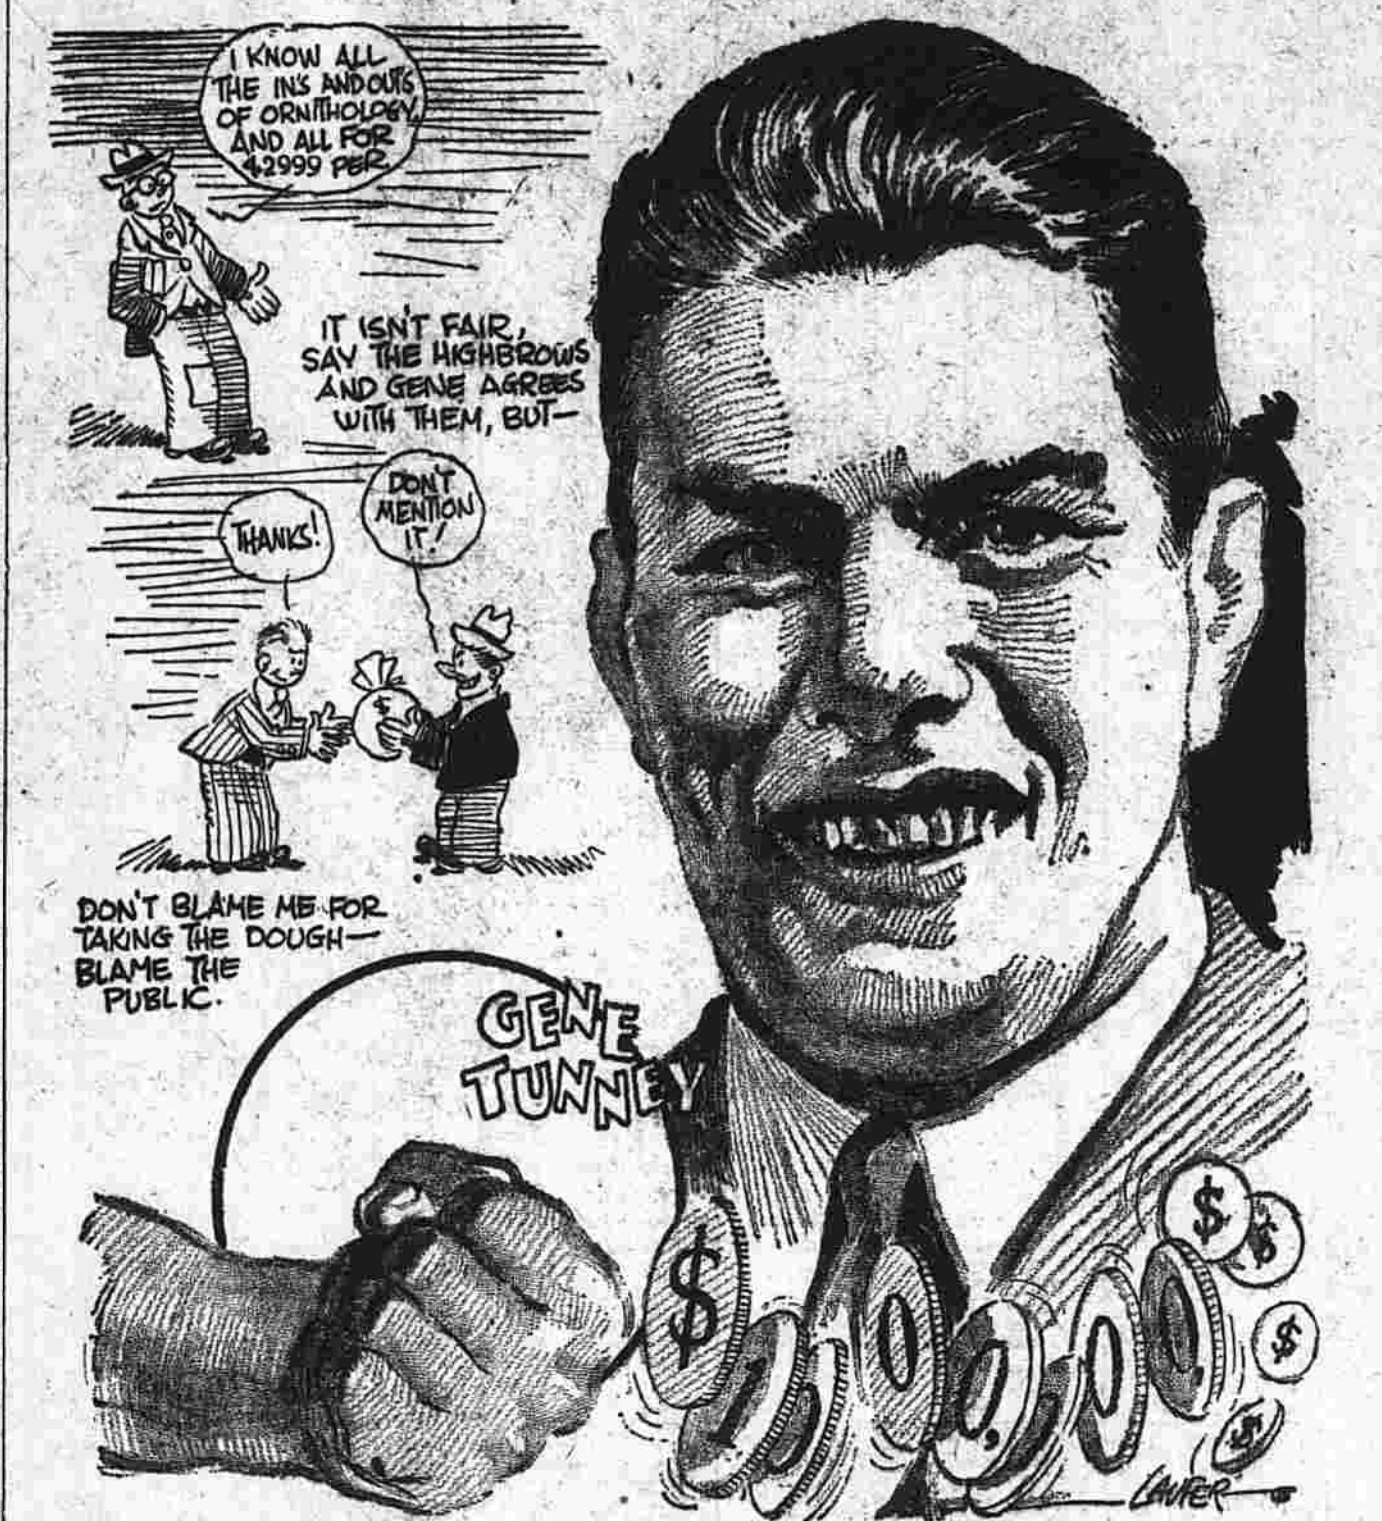

In the fourth round Dempsey rushed Tunney to the ropes and pinned him there with an overhead right. Tunney remained against the ropes, crouched wide open for another punch, apparently flustered and hurt. But Dempsey didn't let another punch go. Instead he floundered around and did approximately nothing.

Did it look bad? It looked terrible. And it was terrible. But Dempsey wasn't holding back intentionally. He was the victim of what you might term arrested action. Three years of inactivity had woven a web of restraint over his muscles and instinct. It was elementary to teach a man to the ropes and throw one punch. Dempsey could do that and did. It was closer to science, to the FIGHTING EDGE I mentioned above, to follow the opening up with a quick destructive blast. Dempsey couldn't do that and didn't.

If Dempsey tries to fight Tunney again without trying himself out in at least two test fights he will fight much the same kind of a fight and it will end in much the same way.

And this goes even if Jack Kearns is in his corner and none but non-poisonous cows are permitted to distill the cream for the matrimonial jva.

Tunney Admits Champions Greatly Overpaid But Says Public Is Mostly to Blame

Bristling Battles of Bare Fist Days MY LIFE STORY by Jack McAuliffe CHAPTER 26

I told you how I had Jimmy Carroll, the man who punch that beat my friend Jack Dempsey, on the floor. The referee gave him every possible advantage through the fight both on breaks and counts on knockdowns. Then came the boom-crang and the work of the referee instead of helping Carroll really helped me.

Carroll rushed me at the beginning of the 47th round. It gave me a good shot at his jaw. I called on the old right and let her go. It caught him smack on the whiskers just as he was coming in. He flopped to the floor with a loud bang and I turned to my corner, feeling sure he wouldn't get up. Jack Dempsey, my second, shouted at me and I turned around again.

Carroll started to get up at the count of seven and Cook, the C. A. C. referee, stepped close to me on the right side. I knew that he was illegally trying to block my right hand and I laughed to myself when I thought of the great favor he was doing for me because my right was sore as a ball. When Carroll got to his feet wobbly, Cook crowded me in close to my right side. La Blanche and other of Carroll's seconds kept yelling at him to "Watch the right—watch the right!" With the referee jamming me back and Carroll gaining at my hampered right I had the opportunity of the fight—I let my left go hard, as I could.

Wham—and Carroll dropped as if he were shot.

He was through. And do you know, I can still see that terribly disappointed look on Referee Cook's pan to this day.

After this fight at Frisco I came east and was matched against Austin Gibbons, a Paterson fighter who had been trilling me for a year. He was a wop of a fighter and I had been dodging him because he belonged to a gang of gun-fighters and I needed every advantage when I met him.

We met at a club, the Granite A. C. in Hoboken, to talk terms over. Gibbons came with his brother Jim, a big tough guy who was really tough. When Jim took off his coat he turned around purposely and showed the heels of two gats sticking out of his hip pockets.

"You'll shoot yourself in the heel if you don't look out," I taunted him.

He snarled and walked over to me.

EDITOR'S NOTE—In the next chapter McAuliffe tells of his fight with the gun-fighters' idol and how they jobbed him and gave him heavy pillows and his opponent light gloves.

Minneapolis, Jan. 26.—"Is there no justice in the world?" wail the high brows as they read that Gene Tunney is to receive close to a million dollars the next time he defends his heavyweight title.

Noted scientists, college educators, medical experts and the like spend years and years in sacrifice for the good of mankind and receive in return a miserly pittance compared to the figures Gene Tunney can demand.

The question, thoroughly discussed from the viewpoint of educators and others, recently was put to Gene Tunney, one of the persons most vitally concerned.

"Don't you feel that you and other heavyweight boxing champions have been overpaid in the past?" Tunney was asked.

"Possibly so," came Boxer-Philosopher Tunney's surprise answer. "It doesn't seem right, but I don't know that I or any other heavyweight champion can rightly be blamed."

"To what do you attribute the unusual condition where a heavyweight champion can get almost a million dollars for from 10 to 15 rounds of fighting or boxing?" Tunney deliberated for some time on that one. Then, very slowly, as if picking his words, he replied:

"It's a reflection on our civilization and on economic conditions.

"It doesn't seem fair that some of our greatest intellects, who have given so much in the way of service and knowledge, should be paid in some cases not more than $5000 per year for their talents.

"I personally know of one of the greatest pathologists in the country, whose services to mankind cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents, who has an annual salary of $3500.

"I know professors in mathematics and other sciences in some of our leading universities who do not receive more than $5000 per year.

"Yet for my next engagement in defense of my title I may draw down as much as $600,000.

"Champion boxers are not to blame entirely for this condition. I believe that if I can attract a two million dollar gate, I have earned my share, whatever it may be.

"Since the public is willing to pay and pay, I would be foolish not to accept."

"But why pick on the champion fighters to prove there is no justice in the world?"

"Take the actors and actresses appearing in the movies today. I understand it is not unusual for a Charley Chaplin or a Harold Lloyd to receive as much as a million dollar in salary and royalties from a film that is a big hit.

"Many of those stars have no better foundation in an intellectual way than most of the fighters who are drawing down fat purses. When a boxer gets big money, protests go up from every quarter.

"Don't blame the champions entirely for this frenzied finance in sport. Look into our economic conditions for the answer."

THE NUT CRACKER by JOE WILLIAMS

SHOCKING NEWS—Prince of Wales lassoes an electric horse.

It's by Edison out of Westinghouse, and is galled to trotting, pacing, violin playing and Spanish tangling.

Without any previous experience as electrician Eddie mastered the high-voltage bronco from the start.

Not that this was anything new. There has never been any kind of four-legged locomotion he wasn't able to manage from the start.

It was the finish that brought the red flames of embarrassment to the royal cheeks, and the bone-twisting obligato to the base of the regal vertebrae.

Eddie's mechanical play-toy is replete with incandescent devotion and masada bulb loyalty.

It loves its poppa. Whenever Eddie's wabbling form looms in the kingly stables the wire-netted gee-see throws back its short circuit ears and neighs a fraternal greeting in all the better known Kilgarrats.

Science has scored its greatest triumph. By electrifying the seat of Eddie's pants, current dynasty of Buckingham palace has been saved.

Note: How naively amusing! Current dynasty! You'll pardon the uncouth titter.

The royal procedure is simple. It is, in fact, even more simple than the royal equestrian.

A button is pressed and poof! Eddie is away on an exhilarating indoor gallop amid swak hall trees, aristocratic century plants and the old world intrigues, none of which are marred by outdoor advertisements proclaiming the excellence of Mr. Carter's diminutive pills.

It's a great life, but tricky. . . . For example, Eddie got up the other morning and was half-way around the half-mile dining room track before he discovered he was riding the electric toaster.

SIX HOLD HONOR

Only six times in the history of the organization has the leading batter of the American League finished with an average better than .400. Larry Lajoie turned the trick first, then Cobb performed the feat; Sisler did the same stunt, then Heilmann.

SISLER'S WORST YEAR

Some idea of the way George Sisler suffered as a result of his managerial woes is best told in the batting averages of 1926. Something is decidedly wrong when so great a hitter as Sisler fell 11 points shy of making the .300 mark.

Billy Evans Says

Betting on ball games by players is unethical in all cases. But certainly there is nothing crooked about a wager made by a player in which he picks his team to win.

From the dope that has emanated from the recent scandalous gossip, the impression is created that betting on ball games by players is a modern habit. Far from it.

Many of the veterans of a score or more years back, the pitchers in particular, invariably had a bet down on their team to win any game that looked up as important. Possibly they worked on the theory that such a wager was an incentive for them to do their very best. To most ball players money is a prized possession.

Jack Powell's Case

I know of no veteran pitcher who backed himself as consistently as did Jack Powell, who finished his career as a big leaguer as a member of the St. Louis Browns.

Jack Powell was a great pitcher. He would be in the Alexander-Johnson class of right-handers were he playing today. In addition to remarkable natural ability, Powell had superlative confidence in himself.

Given good support by his teammates, Powell figured he had a better than even chance to win over any club he opposed. His favorite expression as he walked out to start a ball game was:

"If you fellows give me two runs today, that other gang will have a mighty tough time trimming us."

A working margin of two runs was all that Powell wanted. Not many modern pitchers would announce very much over so slight a lead.

Dumbness No Alibi

Powell's favorite wager on himself was $100 to win any time he stepped on the rubber, but he would bet any amount from $10 up to 50 cents on his ability to trim the opposition.

Ball teams as a rule have much more confidence when a pitcher is working who has supreme confidence in himself. Powell, as the pitcher, always created that feeling among his teammates.

If there is such a thing as a good loser in sports, Powell was that individual. If the opposition hit him freely or some player tossed off his game through an error, he accepted the bad break as a part of the game.

A dumb play, however, was an excuse for much raving on the part of Powell, and he was a past master when he started.

Well do I recall a ball game that will show the confidence Powell had in himself. St. Louis was opposing Chicago. At the time the White Sox were fighting for the lead in the American League, while St. Louis was trailing in the second division.

Just a College Trick

If it is possible to accurately dope the odds, Chicago was at least a 2-1 favorite to win.

Going into the last half of the eighth inning, Powell was leading the great Ed Walsh, then at the height of his career, 1-0, 97.

Chicago had runners on first and third with one out. A rookie college catcher was handling Powell's stuff. For no reason whatsoever, the rookie, excited by a fake start the runner on first had made for second, threw the ball to that base, which was unoccupied.

It rolled far into the outfield. The runner on third scored; the man on first went to third, later scoring on a sacrifice fly. St. Louis led, 2-1.

Powell could see his ball game floating as the "rah-rah" catcher made the "bone-head play." I was the umpire. Turning to me he merely said:

"When I bet that century on myself, I didn't figure on any of those college trick plays."

Children of Man O' War Have Set Dazzling Paces

New York, Jan. 26.—Race fans will watch with interest the 1927 running of the sons and daughters of Man O' War. The season just closed show two of his children have reached unparalleled success.

His three-year-old son, Crusader, was the star of his division with a total of winnings that reached $166,083 and the two-year-old Scapa Flow who took down the rich Futurity.

This classic, rich in money value and prestige, carries with it the juvenile championship. Altogether Scapa Flow's purse winnings were $31,408, which enhanced Man O' War's value as a sire and made his family a record of over $358,000 the past year.

Scapa Flow was put away after the Futurity and did not start in the Pimlico Breakers. This enabled a filly, Fair Star, to top him as the leading two-year-old winner of the entire season with $38,960. But Fair Star is not in Scapa Flow's class.

Man O' War had other star performers in Mars and Edith Cavell. Edith Cavell shamefully defeated Crusader in the Pimlico Cup, but she carried only 93 pounds to Crusader's 125.

All in all Man O' War, upon close inspection, has left a brilliant financial trail in the racing world and his sons and daughters' feet hoofs are making an even brighter one.

Seating Room For 650 So Come Early Is Advise; Seven Three-Round Bouts First at 8:15.

Expectations are that another crowd of 700 amateur boxing lovers will jam their way into Cheney Hall tonight to watch the attractive card which has been arranged by Promoter John L. Jenney of Cheney Brothers' Athletic Association under the supervision of the A. A. U. The doors will open at 7:15 and the first bout will start an hour later.

Seating Capacity

The ring was installed last evening and seats were placed in every convenient place. Promoter Jenney expressed confidence that there will be seats for 650. So it will be a case of first come, first served and the tardy ones will have to make use of their legs and stand up. The official paid admissions at the first card were 469 and at the second 589 tickets were sold. Tonight another increase is expected.

New Entries

Two more entries have been placed on the card by Al Hubbard, A. A. U. commissioner. They are Eddie Camp, state champion in the 105 pound class and Tony Lenz, 155 pound Hartford boxer. This makes a total of 24 entries and all the boxers will be on hand tonight. As there will be but seven bouts, only fourteen of this number can be used. The selections will be made by A. A. U. officials.

Just Guesswork

Consequently it is impossible for even Promoter Jenney to tell how the boxers will face each other. There is a strong possibility, though, that following pairs will clash: Eddie Reid and Dan Boeclio, Ray Strong and Tony Kormac, Al Dowd and Arthur Ambrosi, Bill Patrick and Mickey Mallyaguzie, Hay Hall and Ralph Richmond. Beyond these predictions, it is not safe to guess at the bouts. From the 136 pound class up, there are many boxers whose weights are liable to vary and they will be matched accordingly.

The Entry List

Following is a complete list of all the entries:

TUNNEY TO MAKE TRY AT EUROPE To Tour Germany, England and France During Early Summer Months.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, Jan. 26.—Prominent Americans who will sail for abroad early this summer are the captain of the Leviathan and James Joseph Tunney, the well-known heavyweight champion. The latter informed the writer today that he is seriously considering offers for a theatrical and exhibition tour of Germany, England and France and is so enamored of the idea that he is despatching his barrister, Dudley Field Malone, to the scene to discover what he may.

Malone will sail on Saturday and will be relied upon to discover all, including the uncharted box office.

Tentative Plans.

The champion's tentative plans were outlined to me in some detail just before he left today on another buck hunt through the west. This is done by tracking the wild and untrammelled buck to the house manager's safe and claiming it for your own.

Anyhow, the end of March will bring the closed season; so Mr. Tunney would hide time elsewhere. His rather sketchy plans at this immature moment call for him to leave for abroad in April and return in June at which juncture it is expected it will be cauliflower time in pugilistics.

Active Training.

Tunney will begin active training then for the defense of his title against the accepted challenger and the party who thinks he won't be "right" for the big moment has a frayed cuff in his family closet.

"I'm not three pounds overweight right now," Tunney declared. "I demand to be in an ounce and, if the ring within four weeks it and ready to fight as well as ever I did. But I'm taking no chances.

"Soon after the first week in June, I'll leave for the woods with four or five sparring partners and, by easy stages, I will work my way to perfection in physical condition."

PLENTY OF BATING

Despite the fact that the pitching in the majors was regarded as much improved last season, 38 players in the American League managed to finish the season with a mark better than .300.

FINNEGAN VS. HILL

Chicago, Jan. 26.—February the tenth today became a red letter day for fight fans with the announcement of Promoter Jim Mullein that on that date Honeyboy Finnegans of Boston, and Johnny Hill, hard-hitting Filipino featherweight, would do battle in the ten-round main event at the Coliseum.

Finnegans is one of the best in the division. Hill is the lad who recently defeated Harry Leonard and fought Joey Sangor to a draw. The Boston fighter will arrive here Monday to begin training.

JOHNSON AT SPRINGS

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Ban Johnson, "temporarily retired" president of the American League, has gone to Excelsior Springs, Missouri, to spend several weeks in an effort to regain his health.

Commissioner Landis could not be located by interviewers who sought information on the Cobb-Speaker situation, but at his office it was stated "the public will be informed in ample time." Landis' decision on the status of these two players is expected at any time. That the famous stars will be overrated continues to be the general belief.

Last Night's Fights

At Albany—Mickey Cangro of Staten Island won decision over Alf Simmons of England, twelve rounds.

At Los Angeles—Jackie Fields, Los Angeles lightweight, outpointed Harry "Kid" Brown of Philadelphia, ten rounds.

The Referee

Who is rated the fastest man in the American League?—J. H. That is merely a matter of opinion. It is doubtful if any player steps to first, faster than French of the Athletics. Most of the White Sox is a better baserunner the rest of the way.

Did Johnson lead the American League pitchers in strikeouts in 1926? What was his record?—M. K.

Johnson ranked fourth with 125. Grove of the Athletics led with 194; Uble of Cleveland second with 159, and Al Thomas of Chicago third with 127.

Did Johnny Buff ever hold two ring titles?—D. S.

He did, both at one and the same time the American flyweight and the world's bantamweight champion.

Did not Rube Marquard bring a record price when sold to the New York Giants? What was the figure. How many years before Marquard made good?—N.

New York paid $11,000 for Marquard, which was big business in baseball in 1908, when the deal was made. He definitely delivered in 1914, when he won 24 and lost 7.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE From the veranda of the Hotel Majestic, at Ocean Town, N. J., TITUS RIGGS, a trust, sees a man taken from the ocean and laid on the beach while a crowd gathers to stare.

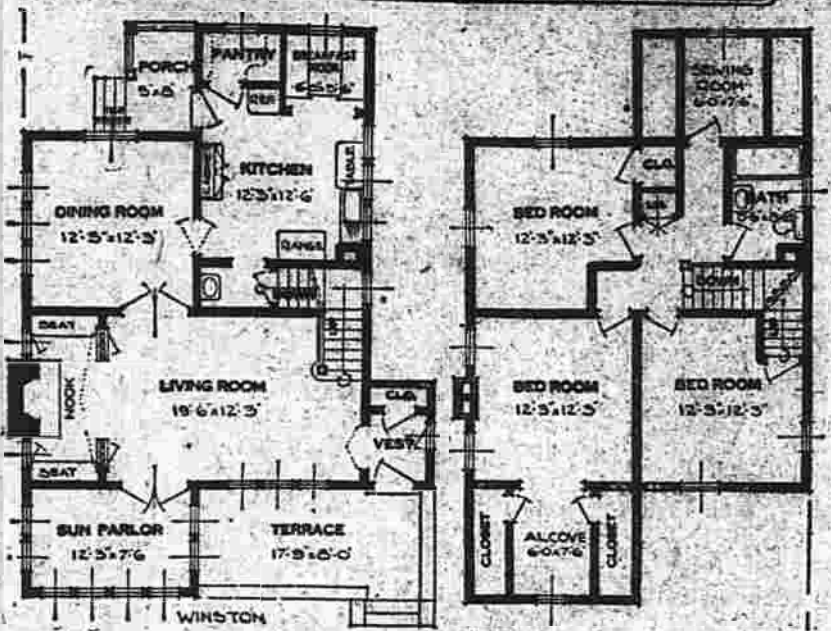

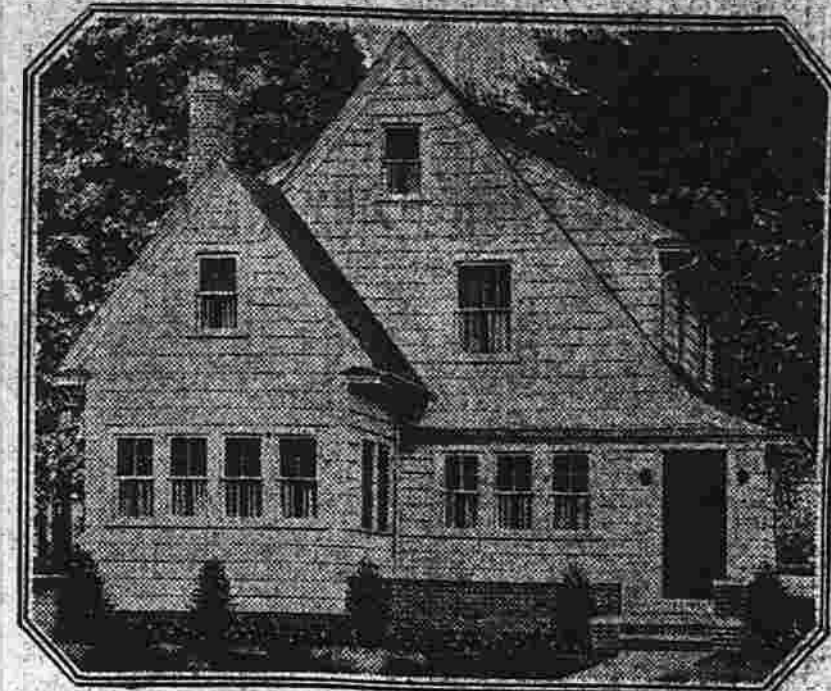

Roger Neville came, looking nervous and excited.

Clearly, few desired to stay in that room of death unless obliged to do so. "Is—that my master, sir?" Ross said, looking timorously at the shrouded figure. "We assume it is," Dixon returned gently, for he was of a kindly nature.

Somebody just telephoned up there and when I answered, told me to come down here. So here I am. What must I do, sir? "Though Ross addressed himself mostly to Pelham, the manager of the hotel, it was really Dixon, the detective, who was conducting the whole affair. He was a more capable and quick-witted man than Pelham, and better fitted to cope with the unusual situation the management now found itself in.

suppose it would be best to telegraph her and await her reply. Then doubtless the body will have to be sent to his Chicago home. "Probably," agreed Dixon. "He was a rich man?" "Oh and on," said Neville, with a dry smile. "He was a lawyer, but he had various other interests. And he was the sort of man who makes a fortune one day and loses it the next."

Black and white, always the combination of elegance, well loved by the women of fashion, was the leading note in the new collection of printed silks shown by Cheney Brothers at the supplementary Spring Opening yesterday at their New York exhibition rooms, 131 Madison Avenue. Black and white, according to Ward Cheney, the newest vogue in prints, and sponsored in Paris, the Riviera, and Palm Beach, was exemplified in a group of interesting designs on Cheney and crepe de chine. Among these were modern flowers and fruits, swirling designs of the "pinwheel" variety; graceful fern-like traceries; "lace flowers"; and applique effects.

WRONG IDENTITY CAUSE OF MIXUP

Similarity in Names and Incidents Brings About Odd Case.

A case of mistaken identity that is out of the beaten path, comes to light in Manchester. Usually the mistake is made by another person but in the local case, the man himself identified himself wrongly. This could not be done except for a curious set of circumstances.

The mix-up started with a similarity of names. A father in Scotland asked the American Red Cross to find his son, one Albert Cameron who was last heard of around Springfield. The Red Cross asked the aid of the radio. Manchester fans heard that Cameron was missing as they tuned into the Hartford station one evening recently. One of the fans remembered that a man named Albert Cameron was the chef at the Edge-wood Inn. He telephoned to Cameron who in turn notified Miss Jesse Reynolds, local welfare nurse, who looks after Red Cross work here. Miss Reynolds notified the proper authorities and the matter was settled as far as the local end of the case was concerned. Yet it had only begun.

Cameron left home in Scotland years ago and his case was similar to the other even to the detail of his army experiences and the fact that he was in Springfield. He had been out of touch with his relatives but finally located a sister who told him his father had left Scotland years ago and was living in California. Also that there had been no search made for him through the Red Cross or through the radio.

But the wires had been busy on the other end and a cousin of the other Cameron came to Manchester a few days ago and said the chef was not the missing man but the Manchester man knew that before after he had received the letter from his sister.

The Manchester man explains that the reason he made the mistake was that he thought his father was still in Scotland and being excited he called up the Red Cross authorities. He also says the other man's case was so similar to his own that he made the mistake naturally.

VERPLANCK PLEASED OVER ALUMNI HONOR

Says Endowment Will Give Confidence to Those Who Want to Go to College.

In talking yesterday over the Verplanck foundation, planned by the alumni of the local high school, Supt. Fred A. Verplanck said: "It would be foolish for me to say that I am not pleased over the plan and the honor bestowed on me by naming the foundation after me. It will be something that will last and it is a great honor."

"Also the foundation is a grand thing in itself. You know there are many young men and young women who would like to go to college but who cannot afford it. If they knew that they would be backed by a foundation of this kind they would feel a confidence they could not feel if they had to go along by themselves."

"I remember a young fellow coming to me and telling me that he had $100 and that if he had another $100 he could go to college. I told him to go right ahead with his plans and when he reached the extra hundred I would see that he got it."

"That boy never asked me for the extra $100. Knowing that he was backed he went right ahead full of confidence, raised the extra $100 himself. The knowledge that he could get the money was all that was needed to give him confidence. That is the plan underlying the proposed foundation. It is to give our high school students confidence if they wish to go to college."

PLAN GRADUATES FOR MID-WINTER

New Scheme Will Within 10 Years Help to Relieve Present Crush in June.

Within the space of the next ten years, it is expected there will be a mid-year graduation at the local high school, it was learned today. At present, a June graduation is being held.

However, under a new policy which is being worked out by school officials, although yet in an immature stage, it is possible that in February, 1935, there will be a class graduated. This is not yet definitely assured as it is impossible to foretell just what complications will loom during the trial of the system which is in effect at many other high schools.

System Started
Four years ago, the system was started at the bottom—in the grades—and at present it has worked itself up to the fourth grade. Four years hence, and if everything goes as is hoped, a class of Freshmen will enter high school in February. Similarly, four years later, a class may graduate.

The whole affair is more or less problematical and school authorities cannot foretell just what course matters will take. There are many things to be considered.

FUNERAL OF JOSEPH SARDELLA.
