

COBB AND SPEAKER CLEAN IS JUDGE LANDIS DECISION

Both Fully Exonerated And Put in Good Standing

"Not Guilty of Framing a Ball Game", Declares Commissioner; Leonard Charges Fall to Ground and Tarrred Players Are Restored to Rosters of Detroit and Cleveland; Joe Wood Also Cleared.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker today were exonerated by Commissioner K. M. Landis of any wrong doing in connection with charges brought by "Dutch" Leonard, were restored to eligibility in organized baseball and their names restored to the roster of the Detroit and Cleveland clubs.

Leonard accused Cobb and Speaker, resigned managers of the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians, respectively, of participating in a betting coup hinging around an alleged "thrown game" between their respective teams in September, 1919.

The commissioner's decision also cleared Joe Wood, outfielder for Cleveland during 1919 and at present baseball coach at Yale university.

Wood was named by Leonard as one of the Indian players deeply interested in the alleged "fixing" of the game in question, played between Cleveland and Detroit on September 25, 1919.

"These players have not been found guilty nor are they guilty of 'fixing' a ball game," Judge Landis ruled. "By no decent system of justice could such a finding be made. Therefore they are not placed on the ineligible list."

Voluntarily Withdrew. Both Cobb and Speaker, Landis revealed, voluntarily withdrew from baseball instead of being forced out as the public supposed, because they did not desire a hearing at which their accuser, Dutch Leonard, was absent.

"As they (Cobb and Speaker) desire to rescind their withdrawal from baseball, the release which the Detroit and Cleveland clubs granted in the circumstances detailed above, are canceled and the players' names restored to the reserve lists of their clubs," the decision read.

Both Cobb and Speaker were informed November 27 of last year by Judge Landis of Leonard's refusal to come to Chicago and personally confront them with his charges that they conspired September 25, 1919, to "throw" a ball game to Detroit, assuring that club of third place in the American League race when it was certain Cleveland had captured second place.

Leonard had charged that Cobb and Speaker had bet on that game and it was a letter written by Cobb which was first regarded as confirming charges of fraud, the judge's statement said in reviewing the background of the case of the two players.

Scented Disbelief. "Cobb and Speaker," Landis' statement declared, appeared on Nov. 27, 1926, and were informed of Leonard's attitude, whereupon they canvassed the whole situation with the commissioner and reached rather quickly the conclusion that they would rather quit baseball than have a hearing at which their accuser was absent.

"There reason was: the mere announcement of charges of this character, whatever the personality or the motive of the accuser, or the scarcity or even the absence of evidence to support the charges, would be harmful to the accused persons, experience having shown that a vin-

SCOT SCRAPS BIG FEES FOR LOVE

R. C. Surgeon Takes $25 Job in R. I. for Girl He Met While Touring U. S.

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 27.—Fortune, profession and social position have all been swept aside by Dr. Steven W. Gregory Gould, of London and Aberdeen, in his love for Miss Grace Conway, stenographer in a Valley Falls law office.

Gould, the son of Lady Jean C. Gould, is a graduate of London University and a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons. He was making a tour of the world when he met Miss Conway in this city. When his parents opposed the courtship and threatened to disinherit him the tour ended here. Since then he has been working as a $25 a week clerk to be near the girl of his choice. He cannot practise his profession in this country as he has no license to practise surgery here.

20 BELOW ZERO REPORTED HERE

Cold Wave Sinks Mercury Lowest It Has Been In Many Years.

Manchester is recovering today from the coldest weather that has been recorded here in many years, a temperature of as low as 20 degrees below zero being reported. However, the weather forecasters brought the good word that the spell would be broken by tomorrow.

Various Reports. In an effort to ascertain the true temperature, a survey was made in various parts of the town and outlying sections. A Herald man telephoned to ten different persons and in not one single case was a temperature of less than ten degrees below reported. The maximum was 20 degrees below zero. This was reported by Ralph F. King, of 13 Oak Grove street. From the top of Bolton Hill, according to a word reaching the home of Charles E. King in Bolton early this morning, 18 below was reported. Clinton Keeney, of Keeney street in the Fifth District, reported 14 below. Henry Harlowe W. Willis, of Henry street, in the heart of the town, found the mercury down to 16 below at 6:30 this morning.

Colder Than Winted. The temperature of 20 below gives Manchester something to crow over Winted because the correspondent in that town is always able to find a thermometer that registers lower than any in the state.

The lowest temperature reported in the country came from Brainerd, Minnesota, where the mercury dropped to 39 below. Saranac Lake in New York state reported a temperature of 20 below and other parts of New York state as low as thirty.

RUMOR OF NEGRO AS ILLINOIS' SENATOR

Can't Be Considered, Governor Small Says, Till Smith Case Is Settled.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 27.—"No vacancy occurs in the Senate insofar as Illinois is concerned until the committee now considering his credentials refuses them," Governor Len Small declared today when asked concerning a report that Ed Wright of Chicago, a colored member of the Commerce Commission, would be named as Smith's successor.

Status of the Smith situation has been the subject for much speculation since the Senate refused to permit him to take the oath of office. The governor's office has not changed its position, that the appointment of Smith filled the vacancy caused by the death of Sen. William B. McKinley and that unless Smith's credentials are rejected finally by the Senate there is nothing for the governor's office to do. The governor gave no intimation as to a possible successor for Smith if his credentials are finally discarded by the Senate.

SENATE BILL WOULD FOSTER COMMUNITY Y

Senator Smith Introduces Measure Today to Incorporate Manchester Y. M. C. A.—Broad In Scope.

A bill of extraordinary interest to all Manchester people interested in recreational work, and of special interest to residents of the north end, was introduced in the Senate at the State Capitol today by Senator Robert J. Smith, of this town. The bill is a measure to incorporate an association for Manchester which will make possible the carrying on of community recreational work on the same broad lines as the Manchester Community Club, the two south end recreation centers, and Y. M. C. A.'s in general.

The association as incorporated by the legislative act, takes the name of the Young Men's Christian Association of Manchester, but it offers additional features as regards many Y. M. C. A.'s in that the organization places the organization at the service "of the people of Manchester and its environs" without limit as to membership.

On Broad Lines. The act of incorporation allows liberal latitude on this feature, as it provides that "the objects of said corporation are to establish and maintain a reading room, library, gymnasium, social rooms, and playgrounds, and to aid in all proper ways in improving the moral, intellectual, social and physical condition of the people of Manchester and its environs, and in general to do such work as is usually performed by associations of this character."

The act introduced in the Senate today by Senator Smith is given in full herewith:

Section 1. Clifford R. Burr, Wells A. Strickland, Herbert O. Bowers, Fred H. Wall, Scott H. Simon, Grace Robertson, and William W. Robertson, together with such other persons as may hereafter be associated with them and their successors, are hereby constituted a body politic and corporate, by the name of The Young Men's Christian Association of Manchester, to be located in the town of Manchester.

Section 2. The objects of said corporation are to establish and maintain a reading room, library, gymnasium, social rooms and playgrounds, to aid in all proper ways in improving the moral, intellectual, social and physical condition of the people of Manchester and its environs, and in general to do such work as is usually performed by associations of this character.

Section 3. Said corporation shall have power to adopt, amend, and repeal a constitution and by-laws, rules, and regulations for the administration and government of its affairs and the suspension and ex-

HOLD CANADIAN AS DYNAMITE SUSPECT

Youth With Explosive and Fuse Arrested as Terrorizer Of Killingworth Region.

Middletown, Jan. 27.—Zedric Rudolph Molsen, a young Canadian is locked up in the county jail at Haddam today in default of $5000 bail following his arrest by state police on a charge of breaking and entering the home of John Harris, of Killingworth. Myron E. Harris, justice of the peace at Killingworth, today set the bail for Molsen, who is suspected of serious crimes in lower Middlesex district. Molsen's arrest followed a long series of events which terrorized the district where he was arrested. He was found, according to the state police, to be carrying dynamite and fuses. This material, Molsen is believed to have stolen from the State Highway Department down the river. Following one theft of such material a small section of a new highway job was blown up.

COOLIDGE SHAKES HANDS AT 2500 AN HOUR RATE

Washington, Jan. 27.—President Coolidge shook hands today with 1,220 visitors in 27 minutes. It was the largest throng of handshakers that has visited the White House this winter. The visitors comprised mainly delegates to the W. C. T. U. convention here, and a gathering of insurance men.

STERLING CHURCH SPLITS OVER KLAN

M. E. Pastor Quits and Takes Away Part of Flock When Ordered to Harmonize With All Faith.

Sterling, Jan. 27.—Rev. Ernest C. Drake, pastor of the Methodist church here, has resigned and has started an independent church in another section of the town, taking with him about 100 of the members of the Sterling church. His resignation, Mr. Drake said, was due to opposition of his superiors to his membership in the Ku Klux Klan which is supposed to have largely contributed to the support of the church here.

In defense of his position, Mr. Drake today declared that he had taken the pastorate of the church here because the people were in sympathy with the Klan. His district superintendent, Mr. Drake said, had on January 18 ordered him to take down the American flag and the electric cross which were displayed in the interior of the church, and promised to call in the state police to remove them if Mr. Drake refused.

According to Mr. Drake he was informed that "the attendance of Klansmen in full regalia in my church and the large contributions are nothing but political bribery and must stop." He said, "I was told that the whole town is permeated with a spirit of fear and dread and to end it this church must be in complete harmony with all other faiths, especially with the Catholic faith."

NORTH END WATER SERVICE IMPROVED

Parallel Main to Be Installed; New Chlorinator Recently Installed.

Clean, healthy water and plenty of it is available at the north end as result of two big improvements planned by the Manchester Water Company. One of the improvements has just been completed and north end residents are now drinking scientifically chlorinated water that passes the strictest state health board test.

The second improvement will be complete in the spring. A parallel main system will be installed leading from the Manchester reservoir to Depot Square. This supplementary main will not only greatly increase the water pressure throughout the entire system, but will allow for a greater flow of water in case of a heavy drain on the system at any time.

Parallel Mains. "About 300 tons of 12 inch piping has been ordered by the company and the work of installation will be started as soon as the ground opens in the spring. Starting near the Manchester reservoir, the 12 inch main will parallel the present 8 inch main all the way to Depot Square. The company's engineers say that this 20 inch main water feed will be sufficient to supply the north end for many years to come."

When installing the mains "T" joints will be placed at North Elm street and Oakland street. As the north end develops mains will be laid up North Elm street and along the proposed Summit street extension so that a hook building at the second reservoir. Here the mains open into the system, the first and third reservoirs being only reserve supplies. Chlorine has been added to Manchester's drinking water previous to this but it was not done by a mechanical process.

The new chlorinating machine was installed by the Wallace and Tiernan Company, a New Jersey concern. They have carried their study of water purification to the highest point of perfection and the Assembly Orders Probe Of Fitch Soldiers Home

Passes Measure Under Suspension of Rules; Minority Bill Demands Public Utilities Survey.

Hartford, Jan. 27.—Investigation into the affairs of the Fitch Soldiers' home at Noroton and the report to the present general assembly before March first with a recommendation for procedure was ordered by the lower house of the Legislature here today in a bill passed under suspension of rules. The investigating body is to be named by Governor John H. Trumbull. House Leader Averill, of Branford, presented the bill.

Another bill passed today under suspended rules authorizes the governor to present the Connecticut building at the Sequi-Centennial to the city of Philadelphia, providing that city will adequately maintain the building. A third bill, passed under suspension of the rules, appoints Governor Trumbull, Francis A. Pallotti, secretary of state, and Judge William M. Malbone of the Supreme Court of Errors as a state library committee for two years.

Study of Public Utilities. Among bills submitted to the House today was one directing the governor to name a commission of five to make a thorough study of the public utilities situation in the state, the commission being directed to map all possible power and water sites, study the present holdings and possible developments of existing companies, and report of these studies, at the same time as might be for the benefit of public interests. Messrs. Citron and Gilbert, of Middletown, presented the bill.

KELLOGG OFFERS CHINA TREATY OF INDEPENDENCE

BIG FURORE IN CONGRESS OVER RUM SNOOPERS

Andrews May Quit As He Is Denied More Law; Two to Fight For Trial of Federal Judge.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The searchlight thrown on the activities of prohibition's secret agents, revealing that they have operated "speak-easies" to trap law violators, and that at least one federal judge co-operated with dry agents to catch violators whom he afterwards sentenced from the bench, has created a furore in Congress that threatened today to have far-reaching results.

The developments are these: (1) A determined fight is to be made in the House to impeach Federal Judge Frank Cooper, Northern District of New York, for his efforts in trapping rum runners whom he afterwards sentenced.

(2) The treasury is considering the abolition, or at least the severe curtailment of the work of prohibition's "under cover" men.

(3) There were reports today that General Lincoln C. Andrews, chief of enforcement, will again offer his resignation.

Until the operations of official speak-easies were disclosed by newspapers and other private sources, it was said that responsible treasury officials had little knowledge of the details of their operation. A further investigation into the under-cover system is now in progress, looking to radical changes.

Cases Break Down. Opponents of the system pointed out that several important cases against smugglers and bootleggers have broken down owing to the fact that government agents had themselves violated the law in order to catch offenders. Hereafter, it was said, only methods will be used for which high treasury officials will be willing to take responsibility.

Wholesale impeachment demands were threatened by congressional vets today in their drive against under-cover enforcement.

"I am prepared to rise to a question of high privilege and impeach Judge Cooper from the Hall of Congress if the judiciary committee backs my resolution," said Rep. La Guardia, Republican of New York. "I will take the same action against another high United States official unless certain men are indicted."

MANCHESTER YOUTH VIOLENTLY INSANE

Matthew Lucas Taken to Hospital This Afternoon—Nerily Wrecks Home.

Matthew Lucas, 21 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lucas, of 27 Homestead street, became violently insane this morning and was committed to a state hospital this afternoon.

Young Lucas, who seemed a quiet, even tempered fellow, was taken from a local trolley car last night when found saying prayers continually. He was turned over to the local police and after an examination was given into the custody of his parents.

This morning Lucas became violent and practically wrecked the interior of the home, smashing furniture and windows. He struck a sister, but fortunately he was not given to murder.

CURIOSITY SPUR TO UTERMAYER?

Student Friends Believe Yale Man Died to Probe "What Lies Yonder."

New Haven, Jan. 27.—A haunting desire to know "what is yonder" is believed to have been the real reason for the suicide of Richard Starr Utermeyer, son of the poet, according to friends here. Young Utermeyer is remembered as having an analytical mind, always seeking the reason behind various actions and enquiring as to the motives of any action that interested him. His temperamental nature was readily recalled as the youth's body went out from the campus room where he died.

Yale students today published in their daily newspaper a tribute to their fellow and the class of 1923 officially mourned Utermeyer's loss.

N. Y. HOTEL CLERK KILLED BY BANDITS

Two Others Shot, Woman Leaps From Window in a $200 Robbery.

New York, Jan. 27.—Joseph Lipschitz, a clerk at the Hotel Charles, was shot and killed early today by two bandits who invaded the hotel.

Harold Perlmuter, an assistant clerk, and James Montforte, a guest, were wounded but will recover from the wounds.

One hundred guests in the hotel were awakened by the shooting and rushed out of their rooms in terror. One woman, Adele Strauss, who was standing in the lobby, became hysterical and jumped out of a window of the reception room. She suffered internal injuries, brain concussion and shock that may cause her death, physicians said.

Got Only $200. The two bandits escaped in an automobile with a third confederate. They secured only $200 in loot.

While the first bandit forced the two clerks into the cashier's cage, the second walked into the reception room and lined up a dozen men and women guests there, relieving two of them of $150 and a diamond pin.

Lipschitz and Perlmuter pounced on their captor in the office and fell from shots from his gun. As the shots distracted the attention of the second bandit, Montforte tried to seize him, but was felled by the butt of a pistol and shot as he lay prone.

At the cry of the first thug, "For God's sake, let's get out!" both ran down the stairs, emptying their pistols at other guests aroused by the shooting, who attempted to follow.

NO FUNDS CHECK GOT PAYEE IN TROUBLE

Stamford, Jan. 27.—Roger A. Van Vichter, a Bridgeport salesman, came to Stamford today to explain a financial transaction involving a $10,000 check he deposited here and drew against. At the same time Americo Sollecco, local restaurant owner, was arrested for issuing a worthless check and for selling liquor.

Van Vichter explained that he had sold Sollecco the outfit for a restaurant and received the check, which he supposed was good, but which proved to be otherwise. He agreed to settle with the bank.

Makes Formal Statement of Policy That Startles Diplomats; Points Aloofness of U. S. From Other Powers In China, Wants No Concessions; Paper Received In England as Co-operative, However.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Secretary of State Kellogg, with the approval of President Coolidge, wrote a new chapter of Chinese history yesterday. In an amazing statement, from a diplomatic standpoint, the Secretary tells the world that this government stands for recognizing China on a basis of international equality. He declared that this country was eager to see China obtain full control of her own tariff schedules, and also to abolish extraterritoriality, the practice of permitting foreigners in that country to have their disputes or crimes submitted to courts of their own government.

Sharp Warning at End. Though there is a sharp warning to China in the conclusion of the statement about the necessity of this government protecting American lives and property in China if the Chinese authorities are unable to provide such protection, the whole tone of the statement is of friendliness to the Republic.

What was regarded as something of a reflection on the attitude of the British, French and Japanese in China, as contrasted with the unselfish, friendly attitude of the United States, aroused comment here tonight in diplomatic circles. In view of the fact that Britain, France and Japan have concessions in China and in view of the fact that Japan has been accused, particularly in connection with the twenty-one demands, of harboring a desire little short of eventual annexation, it was declared by diplomats that the statement in effect notes that this government holds no concessions in China, and has never manifested any imperialistic attitude toward that country "is an unusual declaration.

Asks Most Favored Nation Status. The diplomats point out the reference to America's lack of concessions and lack of imperialistic design in China is preceded with the words "The government wishes to deal with China in a most liberal spirit." The inference, they point out, is that others do not.

Mr. Kellogg makes it plain that while this government favors letting China fix its own tariff schedule it does not propose that any other nation shall be favored at the expense of the citizens of the United States. The statement, in effect, merely promises China on this point that whenever China can persuade other nations to agree with her to permit Chinese autonomy as to the tariff, the United States will not only be willing but glad to join.

Meanwhile Mr. Kellogg points out at length, the Administration

The Flapper herself really is a work of art. Her figure, her clothes, her friends and motor cars excite the admiration of everyone—the envy of some.

There's nothing high-hat about Flapper. She knows a great deal about life as it is seen through the eyes of modern youth, and her comments are terse, witty and very, very wise.

GAS BLAST DURING GAME FATAL TO 6

Acetylene Explosion at Idaho Basketball Contest Kills One, Five Trampled.

Turner, Id., Jan. 27.—Six persons are dead and fifteen others were seriously injured as the result of a gas explosion which wrecked a hall in which the basketball teams of Turner and Central Idaho, were playing last night.
As about 300 persons from the two communities were watching the game, the acetylene gas lighting system failed. James McCann the janitor, left to investigate. While he was gone someone struck a match.
Wall Blown Out
A deafening roar followed. The back wall of the building collapsed showering timbers and plaster on the spectators.
Fantic stricken, the occupants of the building made a rush for the front exit. As they struggled around the exit, the front wall of the building also collapsed.
McCann's body was blown to pieces. The other dead, it is thought, were trampled to death. Two of the basketball players were killed. They were Elmer Anderson and Iral Love. Two small sons of James McCann were also killed. Brigham McCann, a Turner rancher, was the sixth victim.

GLADSTONE INTRIGUES PARADED IN COURT

Author Names Mrs. Langtry As Friend of Statesman in Slander Suit.
London, Jan. 27.—Alleged romances and intrigues of William E. Gladstone, former premier and "Grand Old Man" of the Victorian age, were paraded in public today, while the two sons of this famous Liberal, themselves now reaching old age, fought to protect the memory of their father.
The battle over the name of Gladstone was brought about through the libel action of Captain Peter Wright, author, who is suing Viscount Gladstone for calling him a "liar," because Wright in a recent book attributed hypocrisy to the former premier in matters of sex.
Wright on the witness stand today named four women in connection with Gladstone, one of them being Lily Langtry, the once famous stage beauty known as "the Jersey Lily."

WOMAN THEATRE HEAD PUTS BAN ON "DRAG"

Stamford, Jan. 27.—Theatergoers here were ready to attend the first-night performance of "Drag," a new play by Jane Mast, at Stamford Theatre tomorrow night, when Mrs. Emily Hartley, the theater owner, announced she would not permit "Drag" to be presented. Mrs. Hartley holds that the new play contains things that should not be placed before the public.

The bill was entered by way of the Senate.
No Women at Wetherfield.
Refusal for the present crowded condition of the state prison at Wetherfield is proposed under a Senate bill presented today. The bill would transfer all women prisoners now in the state prison to the Farm for Women at Natick and provide that in the future all women convicted of crime shall be sent to the farm rather than to the prison.

KELLOGG OFFERS CHINA INDEPENDENCE TREATY

cannot abrogate the present treaties, as under our laws new treaties must be negotiated and approved by the Senate to supplant those now in existence.
Definite Promise Seen
The Cantonese Nationalist government can definitely hope for recognition by the United States as soon as it has brought the great part of China under its control, according to the interpretation placed here today on the Kellogg statement.
Secretary Kellogg's announced willingness to "enter into negotiations with any government of China who can represent or speak for China," is considered especially significant. Added hope of recognition for the Cantonese is seen in a section which declares that "the United States has watched with sympathetic interest the Nationalistic awakening of China and welcomes every advance made by the Chinese toward organizing their system of government."
This government is not particularly the memorandum suggests, as to whether it enters into negotiations with the Chinese alone or in concert with other powers as England has requested.
Despite its readiness to discuss new treaties the United States will not unconditionally relinquish its extra-territorial rights. Such a step will not be taken until "China is prepared to provide protection by law and through her courts to American citizens, their rights and property."
To Protect Citizens
In any event, this country will expect "that it be granted most favored nation treatment and that there should be no discrimination against the United States and its citizens in customs, duties, or taxes, in favor of the citizens of other nations or discrimination by grants of special privileges and that the open door with equal opportunity for trade in China shall be maintained."
But failing to provide an acceptable opportunity for treaty negotiations and failing to afford sufficient protection to American property, the Chinese are warned that the United States will protect the lives and property of its citizens, and "it is with the possible necessity for this in view that American naval forces are now in Chinese waters."

DECLARE TIME RIFE FOR SEAWAY TREATY

Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Boosters Urge Pressure On President Coolidge.
Muskegon, Mich., Jan. 27.—Steps looking to the negotiation of a treaty with Canada for the construction of a ship canal from the Great Lakes to the sea were being considered by delegates to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence River Association at the regional meeting here today.
Declaring that the data on the proposed seaway has been so clearly worked out that it cannot be attacked from any standpoint, Charles P. Craig, of Washington, executive secretary, declared the time has arrived for the public to signify to President Coolidge its wish that he negotiate a treaty with Canada for the immediate construction of the canal.
TOLD ARTIST TO GIVE MAYOR RUMMY NOSE
Boston, Jan. 27.—The trial of Frederick W. Enwright, former Boston publisher, charged with criminally libeling former Mayor James M. Curley, was resumed in Superior Court today. The trial is a result of a cartoon published in the now defunct Boston Telesgraph which depicted Curley as a convict sitting in a prison cell.
Testimony included that of Charles Brickel, former circulation manager for Enwright, who testified that Enwright ordered a cartoonist to draw a picture of Curley and "make him look like the toughest crook living" with a "raspberry on his nose." Enwright testified that he never saw the ex-mayor intoxicated or clad in a striped suit.

OPEN CONGRESS FIGHT FOR TAX REDUCTION
Washington, Jan. 27.—Carrying their fight for immediate tax reduction into the open, Democratic leaders today launched a big gun bombardment of the administration in both houses of Congress for enactment of tax relief legislation before the March 4 adjournment.
In the Senate, the Democrats sought a direct vote on the Reed proposal for a ten per cent slash in income taxes payable this year. In the House, they called on the administration for action on the Democratic "round-robin" demanding passage of a bill, immediately reducing income taxes and repealing nuisance taxes.
This was the Democratic answer to the Republican announcement that a tax reduction bill, totaling a cut between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000, will be sponsored by the House before the end of December.
The deficiency appropriation bill, with the Reed plan as a rider, carries $184,000,000 of which $175,000,000 is provided to pay tax refunds. The Democrats succeeded in getting it advanced so that all the necessary appropriations approved by Comptroller General McCarl before they can be paid.

SHIPBUILDING IN YARDS OF U. S. IS ON UP GRADE

Washington.—Shipbuilding for the first time since 1924, apparently is on the up-grade, according to the Commerce Department.
For the first time in three years an increase in world shipbuilding was shown by returns from all maritime countries for the quarter ending December 31.
On that date gross tonnage of vessels under construction totaled 1,932,027 tons, an increase of more than 83,000 tons as compared with the end of the preceding quarter.
"No other quarter since that ending June 30, 1924, has shown a gain over the preceding period, but in comparison with the 1924 figure the present total marks a decline of more than 500,000 tons," the statement said.
Several changes occurred in the ranking of the various countries during the quarter under survey. Although the total for Great Britain and Ireland showed a small decline, these countries now hold first place by a margin of over a half million tons.
Italy ranked next, also showing a decline from its figure of September.
Italy's hold on second place is threatened by Germany which scored a sharp advance during the quarter. At the end of September Germany was building about 150,000 tons less than Italy. Germany then stood in fifth place, but by nearly doubling her September figure, is now in third place only 28,000 tons behind Italy.
The United States which ranked sixth in September, moved up to fourth place, while the Netherlands with a former ranking of third, dropped fifth.
The returns show a sharp contrast between Great Britain and Ireland and other maritime countries in the matter of new work begun during the last quarter and work being pushed toward completion in the same period. While only 87,853 gross tons of steamers and motorships were launched in Britain and Ireland, construction was started on 151,074 tons.
With the other maritime countries combined, however, new work was considerably less than the total represented by launchings vessels for which keels were laid representing 260,422 tons, as against 329,295 tons of shipping launched.
New work represented 411,496 tons with 377,148 tons launched in the world in the last quarter.
The commerce department statement showed that building of tanker vessels, which for sometime has been on the decline, increased fifty per cent from the September to December quarters. Of this gain nearly 50,000 tons represented the increase in Great Britain and Ireland. Construction of motor ships showed a gain of 75,000 tons, although Great Britain, Ireland, and Italy, which have been the leaders in this class of building reported decreases.

DRUGGIST FAILS TO RUN MILLS PROFITABLY

Fall River, Jan. 27.—Stockholders of Pecossett mills today voted to liquidate. The four mills employ 800 hands. A year ago Louis E. Liggett, of the United Drug Company, purchased a majority of the stock, and announced plans for rehabilitating the cotton industry by the manufacture of cotton bandages etc., under efficient methods. The plan, as far as could be learned, was not carried out.
Financial statements today showed that during last year Pecossett mills lost $324,000 of which $191,000 was due to a decrease in inventory and $123,000 in manufacturing loss.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Carrying their fight for immediate tax reduction into the open, Democratic leaders today launched a big gun bombardment of the administration in both houses of Congress for enactment of tax relief legislation before the March 4 adjournment.
In the Senate, the Democrats sought a direct vote on the Reed proposal for a ten per cent slash in income taxes payable this year. In the House, they called on the administration for action on the Democratic "round-robin" demanding passage of a bill, immediately reducing income taxes and repealing nuisance taxes.
This was the Democratic answer to the Republican announcement that a tax reduction bill, totaling a cut between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000, will be sponsored by the House before the end of December.
The deficiency appropriation bill, with the Reed plan as a rider, carries $184,000,000 of which $175,000,000 is provided to pay tax refunds. The Democrats succeeded in getting it advanced so that all the necessary appropriations approved by Comptroller General McCarl before they can be paid.

Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Boosters Urge Pressure On President Coolidge.
Muskegon, Mich., Jan. 27.—Steps looking to the negotiation of a treaty with Canada for the construction of a ship canal from the Great Lakes to the sea were being considered by delegates to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence River Association at the regional meeting here today.
Declaring that the data on the proposed seaway has been so clearly worked out that it cannot be attacked from any standpoint, Charles P. Craig, of Washington, executive secretary, declared the time has arrived for the public to signify to President Coolidge its wish that he negotiate a treaty with Canada for the immediate construction of the canal.
TOLD ARTIST TO GIVE MAYOR RUMMY NOSE
Boston, Jan. 27.—The trial of Frederick W. Enwright, former Boston publisher, charged with criminally libeling former Mayor James M. Curley, was resumed in Superior Court today. The trial is a result of a cartoon published in the now defunct Boston Telesgraph which depicted Curley as a convict sitting in a prison cell.
Testimony included that of Charles Brickel, former circulation manager for Enwright, who testified that Enwright ordered a cartoonist to draw a picture of Curley and "make him look like the toughest crook living" with a "raspberry on his nose." Enwright testified that he never saw the ex-mayor intoxicated or clad in a striped suit.

"Well," replied Isaac. "If I cashed a check for fifty pounds and got sixty pounds by mistake, and gave the man who cashed the check five pounds, that would be honesty."

Washington.—Shipbuilding for the first time since 1924, apparently is on the up-grade, according to the Commerce Department.
For the first time in three years an increase in world shipbuilding was shown by returns from all maritime countries for the quarter ending December 31.
On that date gross tonnage of vessels under construction totaled 1,932,027 tons, an increase of more than 83,000 tons as compared with the end of the preceding quarter.
"No other quarter since that ending June 30, 1924, has shown a gain over the preceding period, but in comparison with the 1924 figure the present total marks a decline of more than 500,000 tons," the statement said.
Several changes occurred in the ranking of the various countries during the quarter under survey. Although the total for Great Britain and Ireland showed a small decline, these countries now hold first place by a margin of over a half million tons.
Italy ranked next, also showing a decline from its figure of September.
Italy's hold on second place is threatened by Germany which scored a sharp advance during the quarter. At the end of September Germany was building about 150,000 tons less than Italy. Germany then stood in fifth place, but by nearly doubling her September figure, is now in third place only 28,000 tons behind Italy.

PILE SUFFERERS

How Far Have You Gotten With Messy Ointments?
Don't be surprised that suppositories and salves haven't rid you of Piles. The most they can do is bring temporary relief. They never reach the cause—blood stagnation in the lower bowel.
Piles can be removed by an operation. Sure! But who wants to submit to the surgeon's knife when a harmless little tablet taken internally can banish the cause of Piles and bring real, lasting and honest-to-goodness relief?
Forget about an operation and stop using salves, Hem-Roid, the internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt, should quickly rid you of Piles the same as it is doing for thousands of others or costs nothing.
Get a package of Hem-Roid today at Packard's or Murphy's Drug store or, any drugist. It is absolutely harmless and if you aren't delighted with the results you can have your money back—adv.

CHILDREN MARCH OUT AS SCHOOL IS BURNED

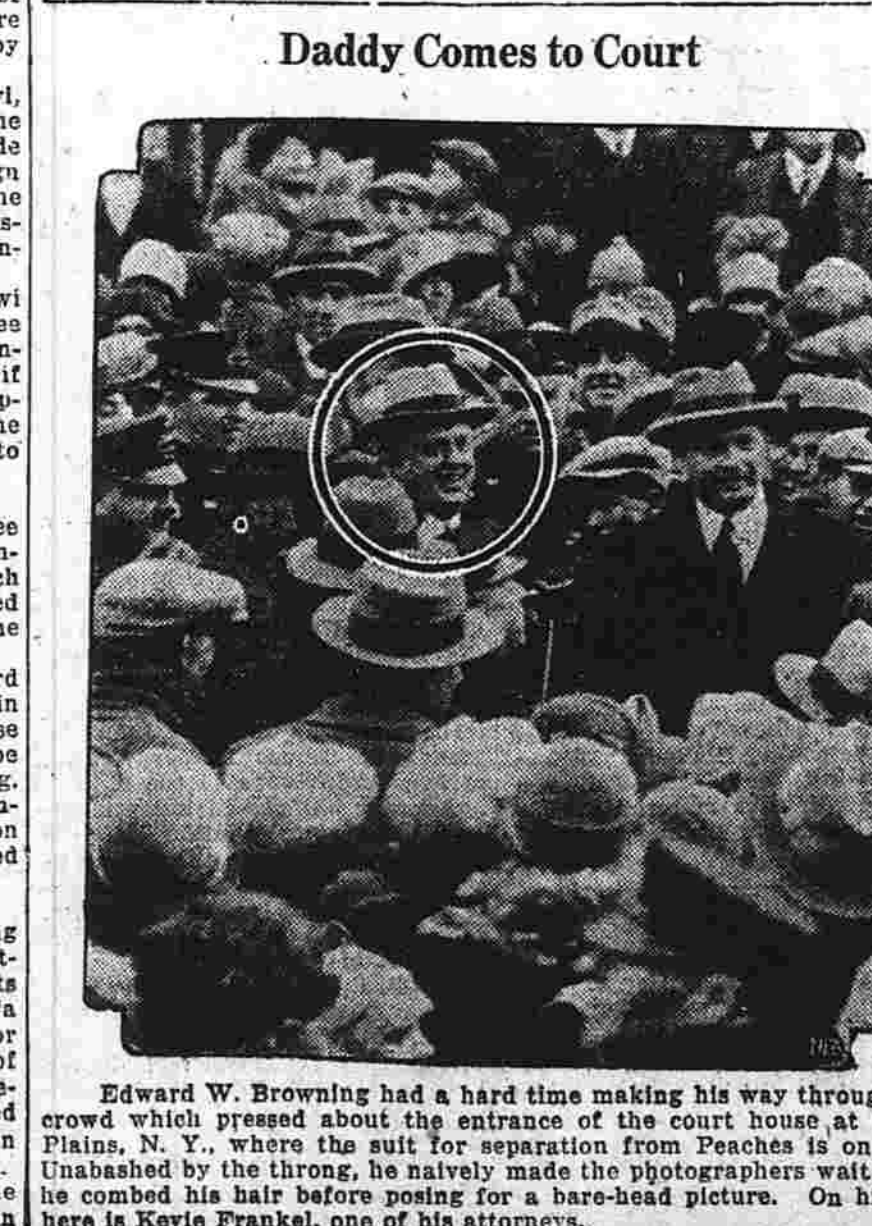

Barkhamstead, Jan. 27.—Twenty-five pupils ranging in ages from 7 to 12 marched out in good order today when the school house in Pleasant Valley burst into flames. Miss Harriet Day, the teacher, marshaled the pupils in marching order and led them from the building in safety.
The school structure was destroyed with its contents but most of the children's belongings were saved.
The loss is estimated at $5,000. The blaze started from a defective chimney.

Plans to Oust Reds From Membership in Huge Labor Organization.
Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—The United Mine Workers of America, one of the largest labor organizations in the world, today moved to eliminate radical membership by an amendment to its constitution. As the 30th constitutional convention surged uneasily and waited for the report of the committee of whom the task of drafting such an amendment had been entrusted, President John L. Lewis delivered a supplemental report recommending re-adjustment of coal freight rates throughout the country.

PROBE OF FITCH HOME ORDERED BY ASSEMBLY

Hartford, makes it mandatory that the motor vehicle commissioner issue a certificate of title after owner has presented proof thereof before any motor vehicle may be registered. The same bill provides that all used car dealers be licensed. The fees from this are to be used as an "auto theft fund," by the state for investigation of stolen automobile cases. The bill was entered by way of the Senate.
No Women at Wetherfield.
Refusal for the present crowded condition of the state prison at Wetherfield is proposed under a Senate bill presented today. The bill would transfer all women prisoners now in the state prison to the Farm for Women at Natick and provide that in the future all women convicted of crime shall be sent to the farm rather than to the prison.
The State Board of Education desires the power of conferring degrees, according to a bill introduced into the Senate but the bill withdraws the right to confer honorary degrees.
A State Department of Aviation and a general study of cancer also are proposed in Senate bills.
House Bills
House bills received today included the following:
Authorizing the commissioner of agriculture to regulate roadside markets; authorizing private hunting clubs to operate pheasant preserves; creating single headed commissions for the administration of the department of hair dressers and cosmeticians in place of the present board of three; prohibiting sale of adulterated products as gasoline; limiting the powers of banks, trust companies and building and loan associations regarding the sale of their own securities; providing that actions against physicians and surgeons for damages arising from medical treatment must be presented within one year; providing that cold storage fish must be so advertised by markets.
Providing that a judge of probate must give consent for the marriage of a minor orphan; appropriating $23,000 to the "Army of Armory, New Haven; prohibiting employment of aliens by the state; providing for the issuance by town clerks of conscientious exemption certificates for parents of children who are ordered vaccinated by school authorities; providing that savings banks may not register first mortgages or real estate in an amount exceeding seventy per cent of their deposits.
Providing zoning districts and regulations in Stratford; providing that automobile owners must obtain certificates from the town tax collector before the state may register the automobile.
Prohibiting hunting from motor vehicles and the use of headlights in hunting; creating a state tax investigating committee which shall particularly study the tax situation in small towns.
Senate Bills
Senate bills presented today included the following:
Allowing the retired compensation commissioner the power to settle claims and matters relating to appeal cases tried by them prior to retirement; creating a Bridgeport domestic relations court; authorizing the State Board of Education to confer degrees when in the opinion of a board a person shall have completed required necessary for such degrees and providing that the board may not confer honorary degrees; providing a blanket appropriation for the study of cancer; providing that bowling and billiards may be played on Sunday if the electors in a town meeting so decide.
Providing that Bridgeport's city auditor shall be the city comptroller; providing that all women criminals shall be sent to the state farm for women in the future; providing that the state athletic commissioner shall appoint a deputy whose salary shall be fixed by the board of control; providing the commissioner from ten names submitted by the board of censors of the State Dental Association.

MONROE DOCTRINE.

Whenever there is any trouble between the United States government and the government or part of the people of some minor state of the Western Hemisphere, the Monroe Doctrine gets hauled into the arguments very much as the head of Charles the First invariably intruded itself into Mr. Dick's famous memorial to parliament.

People talk about the Monroe Doctrine as if that celebrated policy were a declaration of adoption by the United States of all the little republics of Central and South America, Mexico into the bargain.

As a matter of fact the Monroe Doctrine is nothing of the kind. In 1815 there was formed in Europe the most high sounding political combination of modern times, the Holy Alliance of Russia, Austria and Prussia which, under the influence of a queer mixture of materialism and religious exaltation, developed a sort of notion that it was destined to regulate the affairs of the world.

It was with this fact in view that President Monroe, in his message to Congress in 1823, made the following declaration: In the wars of the European powers in matters relating to themselves we have never taken any part, nor does it comport with our policy to do so.

Who wants to interfere with the Mexican constitution? Nobody. Certainly not President Coolidge; certainly not Congress; certainly not the American people? Who has confiscated any American property in Mexico without compensation? Nobody. Certainly not President Calles; certainly not the Mexican government.

UNAVOIDABLE. We fall to see why the wets make so much fuss about the work of the government's "under cover" dry enforcement men, about the Bridge Whist club on Forty-fourth street in New York run by government detectives to sell booze and trap bootleggers, the opening of a speak-easy for the same purpose in Norfolk, the engagement of enforcement sleuths in bootlegging in New York state and various such enterprises all in the way of making the Volstead act effective.

ouncement, to embrace the slightest degree of suzerainty by the United States over Latin America. It consists now, as it always did consist, in a warning against the encroachment by Europe on the soil of the Western Hemisphere.

It is as well to know our grounds when we invoke the Monroe Doctrine in argument as when it is invoked diplomatically, as it has been on two or three historic occasions.

ARBITRATION. It is well high universally accepted as a fundamental principle in this country that the constitution of the United States is not open to arbitration—that whatever disputes she might be willing to adjudicate before an international tribunal America could accept no dictum that involved changing her fundamental law.

President Coolidge's position in the Mexican affair, as several times set forth, is that the only question at issue is: Shall the property of American citizens be subject to confiscation without compensation? President Calles' position is that everything that has been done with relation to foreigners' titles to Mexican property has been done in accordance with the requirements of the Mexican constitution.

Looking at this situation from one angle we are at an impasse—there would seem to be no ground on which the two countries could meet for discussion. And that is precisely where the Senate's resolution for arbitration comes in. Being at a standstill and seemingly hopeless disagreement as to the premises in the case, there appears to be no likelihood of the two governments arriving at an understanding by themselves, and they have actually failed to do so over a term of years.

Who wants to interfere with the Mexican constitution? Nobody. Certainly not President Coolidge; certainly not Congress; certainly not the American people? Who has confiscated any American property in Mexico without compensation? Nobody. Certainly not President Calles; certainly not the Mexican government.

Then what are we in such a wax over, on both sides of the border? We should say that if there are called in arbiters who can merely answer that question, who can reduce the American-Mexican dispute to the terms of a definite problem, the work of arbitration will be about as good as done. But it looks very much as if nobody but an arbitrating body could do it.

UNAVOIDABLE. We fall to see why the wets make so much fuss about the work of the government's "under cover" dry enforcement men, about the Bridge Whist club on Forty-fourth street in New York run by government detectives to sell booze and trap bootleggers, the opening of a speak-easy for the same purpose in Norfolk, the engagement of enforcement sleuths in bootlegging in New York state and various such enterprises all in the way of making the Volstead act effective.

NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 27.—Celebrities have their own sweet ways. Many visitors to New York expect to find the "news-makers" of the day in the noted dining places, but they usually are disappointed. Celebrities, for the most part, choose little out-of-the-way places for their dinners.

Federal Judge Julian Mack, who among other things, presided at the Daugherty trial recently, is known as a gourmet. He markets for his home, carrying baskets of fresh vegetables and meat cuts. In the restaurants he frequents, the waiters know and fear him. When he goes to Europe he invariably goes on one favorite liner because he finds its caviare just to his liking.

Certain other celebrities have their idiosyncrasies, too. Thus Vincent Lopez, the rising young jazz band leader, has his apartments atop his Casa Lopez and when his night's work is through he invariably goes to his room upstairs. Because so little sunlight is enjoyed by such all night performers, his bathroom is equipped with an Alpine ray machine where he can bask in sunlight such as is enjoyed at a certain altitude in the Alps.

Mme. Jeritta, I am told, spends odd moments in her back-stage dressing room sewing. The costume she wears in one of the season's Metropolitan successes was designed and sewed by herself. Gatti-Casazza, the Metropolitan orchestra leader, was educated to be an engineer but took to playing a clarinet in his room, becoming interested in music he would follow the composer, Verdi, about the cafes and streets.

Jama W. Gerard, one time ambassador to Germany, goes horsebacking in Central Park at sun-up when he hasn't been enjoying his other hobby of night-clubbing. Neysa McMein, the cover artist; Alexander Woolcott, the critic, and others of the "intellectual" set play lawn tennis in the park when the snow isn't on the ground.

And so it goes. GILBERT SWAN.

When you undertake to impose upon the people of a country a law to which a majority or a very large minority is utterly opposed and which it is determined to break, you cannot be overnice as to methods.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER Washington, Jan. 27.—Many folk got out of bed earlier than usual to attend the session that opened the Smith debate an hour before the usual opening of the Senate.

The galleries were packed tighter than at any time since Congress came for its present short session—more spectators than when Borah made his speech about Nicaragua.

The diplomatic gallery was empty, but that reserved for senatorial families was jammed and so were all the others. The specter was reminiscent of a Roman crowd all set to see an eminent Christian fed to the lions.

The fact that the eminent Mr. Smith had numerous defenders anxious to see that he at least fared at a later date only tended to put more pep in the show. When all the seats were filled, people were allowed to sit in the aisles and soon these were jammed and it was a Titan's job to get out.

Not that Smith was actually haggard, but Speaker Nick grasped his paw and shook it cordially and patted him on the back so enthusiastically as to register an open endorsement of the senator-elect whom many senators think is unfit to sit among them.

Smith sat to the rear of the senatorial desks. He looked like the headmaster of a boys' school. The Smiths showed more clearly than ever that one of the terms most loosely used in this disfigured upper house of Congress is the appellation "distinguished constitutional lawyer."

Not a single snicker greeted Senator Jim Reed's assertion that "No one must come into the Senate without clean hands."

Comedy to the Layman But They're Types to Alienists At the Trial.

By VIRGINIA SWAIN

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Through a glass, darkly—that is the way one sees the Browning case.

This gaping, circus crowd in the White Plains courthouse is the unwitting audience at a portentous drama of that troubled world that lies just beyond the health and normalcy of everyday.

Behind the veil, uncurbed forces move in wild, unreasoning conflict, while outside the drums beat and the barkers bray.

Alienists Watch
And in a corner, two grave, white-faced alienists sit with notebooks in hand—the only men in the vast throng who see the drama as it is. They are making notes on Daddy Browning, and perhaps on Peaches too—for the case-books of psychiatry.

Through the complacency of modern law, the lay mob may look on at a spectacle fit only for the darkened hushed corridors of the clinic and the hospital.

For the Browning trial is a drama of disease. They have rolled in the operating table and let the world look on.

This story of the Cinderella man to the lay world, is becoming "just too good." His antics, as detailed by Peaches on the stand, are unbelievably comic.

The buxom Peaches in her sables, the African honking gander, the rubber eggs and the green silk handkerchiefs with which Daddy Browning amused himself—and above all, the grotesque account of their honeymoon—have set tongues clacking and headlines shrieking.

In the courtroom, the chief visible emotion is amusement and incredulity. There is no sympathy for either side.

"Gold Digger"
"Gold digger," the women whispered when Peaches strode in; and "old fool" when Browning entered. Little bursts of cheering, ironic or mushy, though frowned on by Justice Seeger, were bestowed on first one side and then the other. Nobody cares which of the two wins. But the show is good comedy—for the uninitiated.

For those who know the dark contours of mental disease, it is something else again.

There are gross currents and grotesqueries that even the unlearned can appreciate. There is the vacuous, self-conscious smile with which Browning heard the most damning allegations against himself. There is his spectacular, strutting entrance every morning, always with a different flowered tie, and a ready handshake for all.

There is his flabby, sagging face, and shiny, amiable eyes.

Indulgence, Contempt
There is his own lawyer's attitude of playful indulgence when speaking of his client. There is the contemptuous attitude of the newspapermen and photographers.

But beyond these, the alienists see more concrete manifestations.

"He wanted me to disrobe and promenade before him—he pranced around before me nude," said Peaches, on the stand.

The alienists nodded, ever so slightly. They wrote on their pads. Well classified types of mentality often show this phase.

"He struck me and pushed me on the floor and frightened me with strange noises," Peaches went on.

Again the alienists wrote. The desire to make others suffer is a common symptom.

She charged unnatural sexual desires of Browning. The alienists were the only persons in the court room whose eyes neither drooped nor glistened. Sexual abnormalities are the daily grist of their mill.

The mob will take home a nudge and a smirk, a memory to gloat over when their own romances flag.

The newspapermen and women will carry away a sense of relief at another job done—well or ill—and a mild disgust. Some of them will have bright and caustic phrases to clip for their scrapbooks.

But the alienists will take home a record of an interesting—but not especially startling—case for their text-books—involving a gross, unruled child, and an aging, inadequately balanced man, who, as luck would have it, somehow got into each other's clutches.

After all These Years A Star at 60!

New York.—Stardom at 60!

A long time to wait, you would say, after reading the innumerable tales of young things who spring into cinema headlines over night.

But Alec Francis wouldn't agree with you. He didn't seek stardom and, when one is around his sixties, such things seem a bit ephemeral—but pleasant of course.

Francis is accustomed to seeing his name well up in the list, but it didn't appear in large letters at the top of the program or in the electric lights until he undertook the Warfield role in "The Return of Peter Grimm."

It will shine again when "The Music Master" comes from the Fox plant in the near future. And Francis is old enough and new enough to know what to expect from audiences when one steps into a role for which David Warfield himself was sought.

The Character Man
Those whose critical capacities cause them to weigh positions with care, that some of the finest bits of any year have been done by the character actors, whereas stars have wilted in their own spotlights.

Thus Francis for years has established himself more firmly in the background than many another has in the foreground. You may recall him as the pioneer parson in "Three Bad Men" or the circuit rider in "Thunder Mountain" or any one of a dozen "old-man" roles.

But actual stardom did not come to him until his sixtieth birthday was just around the corner.

Alec Francis belongs to the old school of "gentlemen" performers. His father was a prominent British barrister and he was educated to follow the father's footsteps. But he wanted to see the world and joined the army. When he broke the news that he was going on the stage his conservative family was shocked beyond words.

His entrance to the theater was made as a property boy and bill-board poster.

In a Far Country
The adventures of Francis before he appeared in Chicago are genuinely thrilling, including a trip with a bunch of barnstormers to South Africa where, stranded, he had to make his way home on a cattle boat.

He entered the films with the pioneers—John Bunny, Florence Lawrence, Maurice Costello, Arthur Johnson and the rest. One by one they dropped from sight but Francis stuck. He appeared with the new stars as they rose—Gloria Swanson, Norma Talmadge, and the rest.

He has seen scores of stars rise and wane. He has seen the fullness of overnight eminence. And now he has it himself. Tomorrow he may return to minor character roles. And, again, there may be more Peter Grimms and Music

HERBERT S. DEE, RICH DETROITER, IN 5TH DIVORCE

Wealthy Real Estate Man Plans to Ask Freedom After Two Months.

Detroit.—Herbert S. Dee, wealthy Detroit realtor, is about to enter the divorce courts again.

Dee, having failed to find marital happiness in five tries, states that he will soon begin a suit for divorce from his fifth wife.

The fifth Mrs. Dee, formerly Mrs. Helen Jones, a sprightly widow of San Antonio, Tex., and Dee were united in Utica, N. Y., Nov. 13 last. Their domestic life last two months.

After they had settled in halmy California in a home right next to one Dee purchased for his fourth wife, the fifth Mrs. Dee deserted him, the realtor charges. A luxurious eight cylinder car and $3,800 held in a joint bank account, also disappeared, Dee says.

Dee didn't lose a day between his fourth divorce and his fifth marriage. When Dulcie Agnes Dee, former artists model, who resided in Canton, O., at one time, divorce ed him, after property settlement was reached out of court, Dee promptly took unto himself a fifth wife. On November 13 he was divorced. On November 13 he was married.

Disaster on Honeymoon.
Dee's fourth marriage went on the rocks during a two weeks' honeymoon on his palatial yacht, "The Cigaret" on Lake Erie. Other couples were aboard.

"We made the trip safely," Dee said, "but the weather was so rough we decided to send our wives back by train while we brought the boat in. We were delayed 24 hours and during this time, my wife, amused our friends by telling them I was an 'old fool' and that she married me solely for my money."

The fourth Mrs. Dee, in her bill, had a few remarks to make about her husband's conduct.

"He boasted of spending $45,000 in a year on women and wine," she declared. "He enjoyed relating his affairs with pretty women from circuses and burlesque shows. During our married life he continually flirted with other women, often inviting unaccompanied girls to our table at cabarets and restaurants," said Mrs. Dee Number 4.

As is characteristic of all Dee's marriages, his fifth was a whirlwind affair. The charming, brown-eyed, brown-haired Mrs. Jones came from Texas to Detroit on business.

Met In Business.
She met, Dee, in a real estate deal. A few weeks later they were married. Immediately after the marriage she said:

"I feel sorry for Dee. I love him and I hope to make him very happy. I shall try hard to make our marriage a success."

On account of marital troubles, Dee's plans for around the world tour always seem to go astray. By way of observing his last two marriages he planned to cruise around the world in his own yacht. In each instance the marriage failed to last until the trip could get under way.

Dee was married to Adele Handy of San Francisco in 1917 and was divorced a short time later. His second wife was Countess Henri Berney the former Marie Antoinette de Lapa of the Hapsburg family. She obtained a divorce in San Francisco. Dee married Alice Crossman, also of San Francisco, and was divorced within a year. His fourth wife was Dulcie Agnes Langanke, of Canton, O.

Dee plans to charge his fifth wife with desertion.

"What a Wonderful Help" Says Hartford Matron

Mrs. Couture tells how four years of suffering wrecked her health. Now sound and strong; thanks Tanlac

Mrs. Evelyn Couture, 99 Hudson St., Hartford, Conn., is widely known and respected in fraternal circles. Her enthusiasm and tireless vitality enable her to take prominent part in many and varied activities. But she has not always enjoyed the sparkling health she has today.

"For four years I was a martyr to indigestion," she said recently. "It became so bad that I could not even take milk or coffee without suffering afterwards. Violent headaches and dizzy spells were so frequent that life was a constant misery and matters went from bad to worse. Finally my nerves gave way and normal restful sleep was out of the question. Then I went to pieces and almost despaired of ever being well again. Nothing seemed to do me any lasting good."

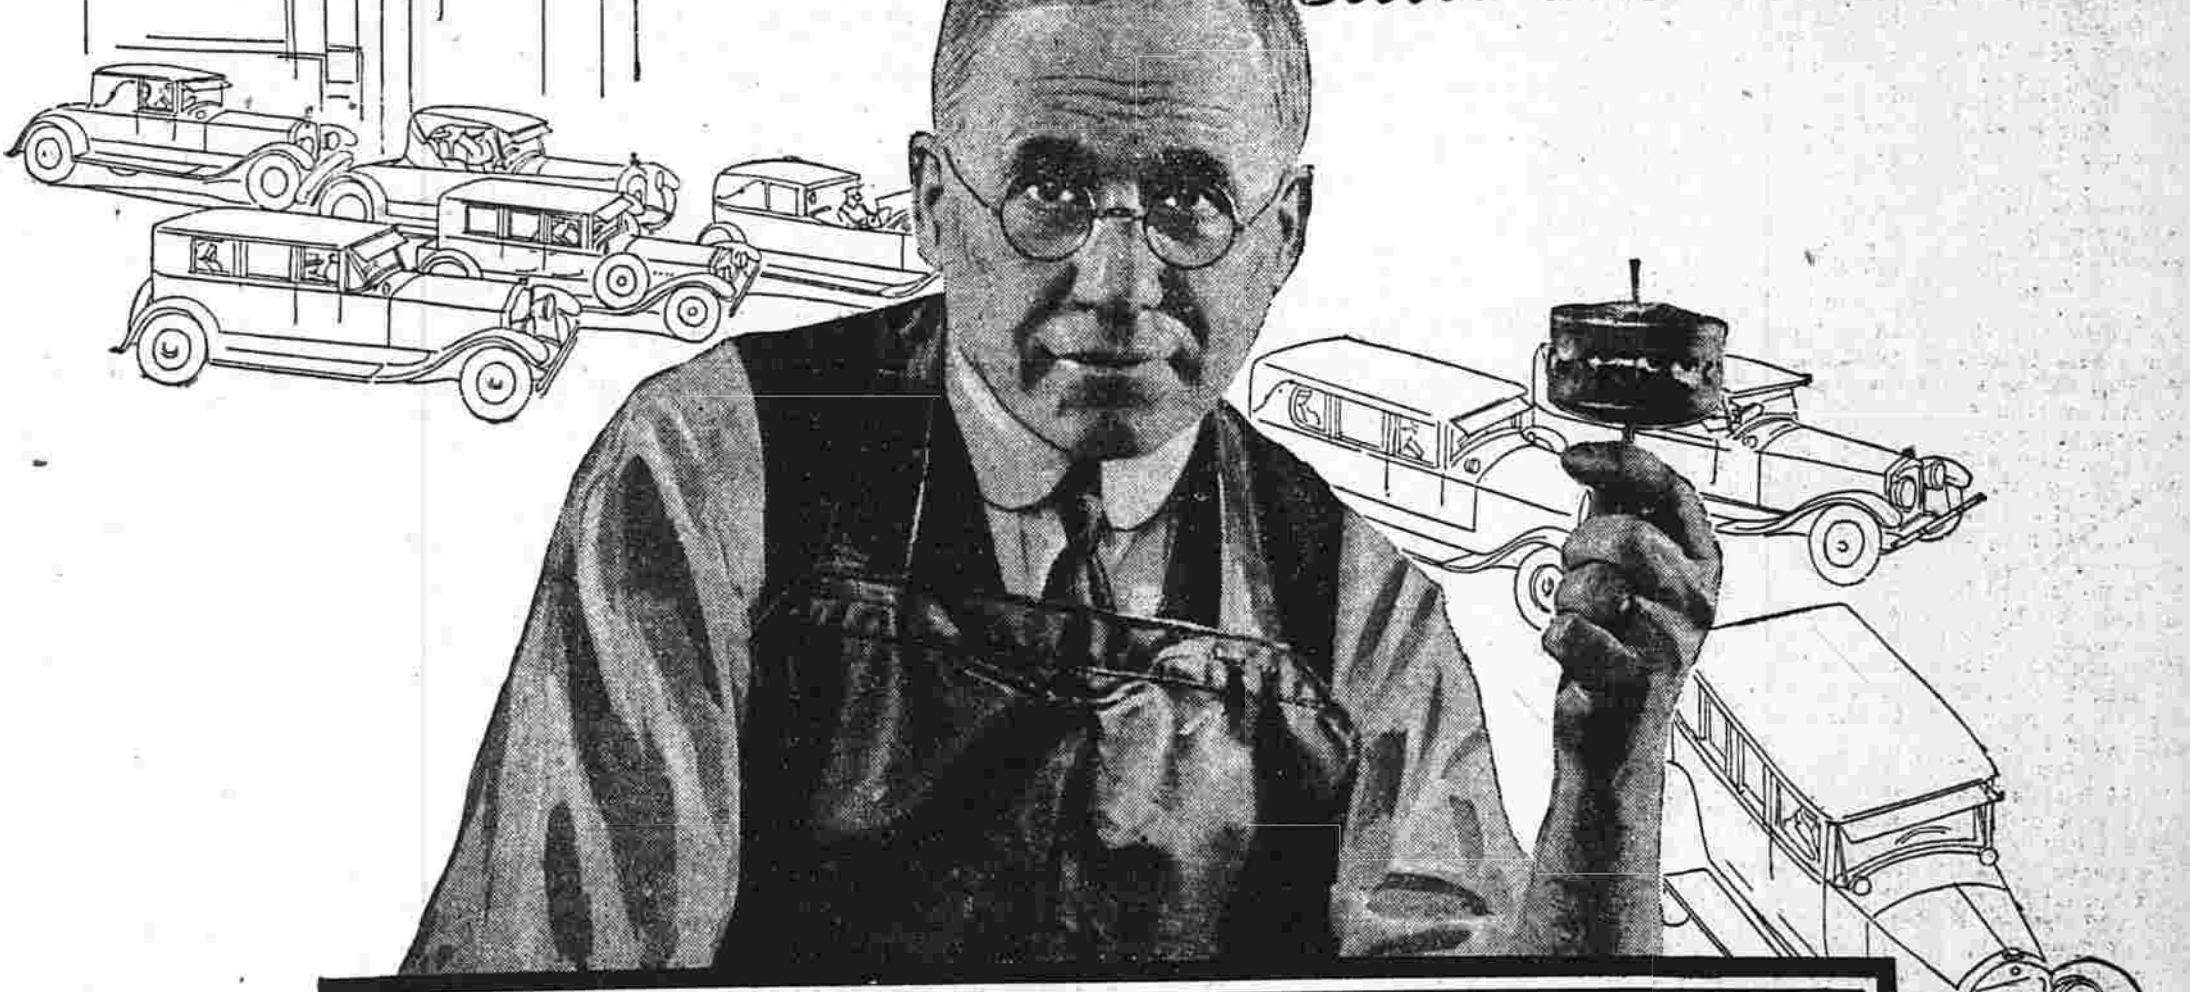

"Then a good neighbor, Mrs. Yorkell, told me of her experience and how Tanlac had helped her. So I tried it on her recommendation. What a wonderful help it was! The very first bottle helped noticeably, so I persevered till my old sound health returned. Since then I've enjoyed splendid health and recommend Tanlac gladly to all my friends."

Profit from Mrs. Couture's experience. Tanlac is nature's own remedy, made from roots, barks and herbs. Your druggist has it. Over 32,000,000 bottles sold.

Million Awaits Lost Indian Girl; Country-Wide Search Is Continued

Maude Lee Mudd, Osage-Seneca Heiress and Central Figure in Raging Court Battles Over Headrights, Is Growing Mystery of Oklahoma.

Miami, Okla.—It is nearly a year and a half now since agents of the department of justice began searching the country over an 18-year-old Indian girl, Maude Lee Mudd, of Osage-Seneca parentage.

And it was several weeks ago that Maude Lee Mudd reached her eighteenth year, her majority, and became an heiress, with a fortune estimated at more than a million dollars awaiting her.

But Maude Lee Mudd is not to be found.

Residents of Miami who knew the girl as know many another little Indian girl, grow more puzzled day by day as the mystery of her continued disappearance grows deeper. They cannot understand why she does not return, now that she has attained womanhood under the provisions of the law.

Knowing Maude Lee as a normal girl who would react riches with all the pretty clothes, motor cars and other luxuries which reach, they are wondering why she does not take possession of her fortune—a fortune that is hers for the mere claiming.

Fortune Grows

In the four years that Maude Lee Mudd's fortune has been steadily piling up, the little Indian girl must have harbored dreams of the day when her eighteen years would bring some modicum of freedom and success from the troubles that began to arise when she was a child of 14. Since 1922 when a malestrom of her heirship to a dual legacy began, Maude's life, companions, guardianship and custody have been matters for court approval. Lawyers and courts fought back and forth, bitterly and at great length, over the questions of her inheritance, her education and hundreds of other items, and the little Indian girl went through many tiresome months and many a weary year before the day arrived when she became of age.

As a 9-month-old papoose, Maude Lee had been turned over by her mother, Mrs. Susie Mudd, a Seneca, to her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Crow of Turkey Ford, Okla. Maude's father died two months before. The mother then married Levi Bomberry, a Canadian Indian and lived in Kansas. It has been charged that the mother lost all contact with her little girl, who grew up with her grandparents, went to the government school and lived the life of a normal Indian child.

Then Maude Lee Mudd became 14 years old, and from that age to the present day she has been the storm center of a series of legal battles fought with such stubbornness that Oklahomans were beginning to wonder when the case would ever end.

Rich Headrights

At 14 Maude Lee had become heir to rich headrights descending from her father's Osage connection and a legacy of zinc and lead holdings from an aunt. That involved about 200 acres of land in the heart of the rich lead and zinc district north of Miami in Ottawa County, Oklahoma.

Suddenly the little Indian girl took on a new importance in the community. Her mother, Mrs. Bomberry, returned and claimed her. William Simms, a government probate attorney, had himself appointed her guardian and set about to take full charge of her estate.

Legal battles began to revolve swiftly around Maude. An uncle contested, and won, a part of her inheritance. The question of her guardianship and custody gave rise to endless bickering over fine points of the law. Attorneys were marshalled from all sides. Maude Lee was taken from the home of her mother and given to the guardian to the care of Mrs. John L. Shannon of Miami, who resigned a position as a stenographer when the little Indian girl was placed in her charge.

Goes to School

In the meantime Maude Lee was going to school here, going to parties and gatherings with small school chums to who a fortune was not so consequential as many other things. In March, 1925, Maude's mother obtained a writ of prohibition against Mrs. Shannon, guardian in the home of Mrs. Shannon. The court later ordered the girl to live with her mother. Simms appealed to the supreme court of Oklahoma. Maude was called to the witness stand at the hearing on her custody.

"Where is your home?" she was asked.

"I don't know where my home is," the girl replied.

The state supreme court reversed the order of the district court and gave Maude Lee back to Mrs. Shannon. Then, almost simultaneously, Maude disappeared. When persons came to take the Indian girl from her mother's home back to Mrs. Shannon, the mother met them and told them Maude had gone out for a ride. After a two-hour wait the mother, with no apparent excitement in her tone said: "She must have been kidnapped."

A month later in Council Bluffs, Ia., Maude Lee was thrust back into the public spotlight with the announcement of her mysterious marriage to Earl Gordon, a motor car salesman of Miami. Gordon, when the marriage became known, offered a Council Bluffs newspaper reporter $100 to suppress the news, but it was not accepted. With the wedding party, strangely, was Maude's mother and a second man from Miami.

Friends Surprised

The application for the license had been signed by Maud Lee's mother, giving full consent to the marriage of her daughter, a minor. Maude's friends in Oklahoma were taken by surprise. Gordon had never courted Maude, they said. In fact, Maude Lee hadn't been known to have any "beaus."

The wedding party returned to Miami, and after some of Maude's funds had been withdrawn at the Indian agency for a honeymoon, the two left for California in a motor car.

In a Los Angeles theater one night, Maude Lee left Gordon, according to Gordon's story, and told him that she was going back to the hotel, that she wasn't feeling well. That was the last seen of Maude Lee by Gordon—or apparently by anyone else. Gordon went back to Oklahoma, to Muskogee, and there announced her disappearance.

Since then, month after month, the government has conducted a tireless search for the little Indian girl, going into the case from every imaginable angle, only to exhaust each clue that seemed worth following up.

Where Maude Lee is, and why she does not return for the fortune awaiting her, is as much of a mystery today as it was the day the search began.

In the meantime her royalties continue to pile up at the average rate of about $3,500 a month in the Indian agency here.

THRILLS, ROMANCE AT RIALTO THEATER

The movie going public of Manchester is being treated to a new shtick at the Rialto theater today and tomorrow in the person of Thur Fairfax the magnetic lover in "Gypsy Romance," the headliner on a double feature program of photoplays. It is not exactly a debut for Fairfax for he appeared in "The Four Horsemen" as well as in other similar successes. He is a protégé of Rex Ingram and bids fair to become one of the outstanding actors in this kind of a role. Shannon Day has the feminine lead and is more bewitching than ever. The tale tells of the romance between a young couple who are members of a band of nomads. The peculiar laws governing these people almost spell disaster for the girl and her passionate lover but as they are about to be burned at the stake a rescuer appears and saves them in a spectacular manner. The stormy reprieve with Gypsy lore and can be described as something very entertaining and totally different. The second feature is a wild and woolly western drama called "The Cowboy and the Flapper." William Fairbanks and Dorothy Revier have the major roles and lend plenty of pep and thrills to the picture. There is a strange undercurrent of humor that relieves the suspense at times. Selected shorter subjects include a comedy and news reel.

And even that should pack this playhouse to capacity will take place next Monday and Tuesday when a real band of Hopi Indians will entertain Rialto patrons with an interpretation of the justly famed snake dance. This dance has long been a bone of contention between this little known tribe of Indians and the government and numerous attempts to suppress it have always been followed by uprisings. Upon special invitation the band traveled to Washington and offered the dance to Congress for the closest inspection and that august body was regaled for hours by the sight of half civilized Hopis going through their fantastic steps with live snakes dangling from their arms. The same dance will be offered from the stage of this theater. There will be no increase in admission.

OF COURSE NOT

Not a nasty cathartic or a habit-forming medicine, but a safe pleasant remedy for constipation, sour stomach, torpid liver, bad breath, and similar disorders. Dr. Edwards, a widely known family physician of Ohio, prescribed these tablets for many years in his own practice. Children from six years up are greatly helped by them and like to take them. Recognized by their olive color, Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets overcome those irritable spells that many children are subject to, keep their bodies in active healthy condition, skin clear and eyes bright with the light of perfect health. 15c, 30c and 60c sizes.

Why Studebaker Crankshafts are Best!

120 blows per second
7,200 blows per minute
432,000 blows per hour
4,000 pounds force in every blow

THESE figures indicate the force of the explosions which the crankshaft of a Big Six motor must convert into an even flow of useful power.

No other car in its price field uses such an expensive crankshaft as Studebaker.

Each one is forged from a single block of steel in Studebaker's own shops.

Each one is fully machined and dynamically balanced. Balance is so perfect that if suspended with a fan at one end a slight breeze will cause the one hundred pound mass of steel to revolve smoothly.

How to Judge a Crankshaft

Some engineers favor light crankshafts with many bearings. Studebaker uses a heavy shaft with four bearings, but those four have greater bearing surface than the seven bearings of many other cars.

Some seek to attain with bolted-on counterweights the inherent balance which Studebaker builds into its shaft.

What Lincoln Said

"How long should a man's legs be?" "Long enough to reach the ground," replied Lincoln.

Similarly what counts in a crankshaft is the smooth, vibrationless flow of power which it yields—its ruggedness, its freedom from trouble. These may be attained in various ways. The layman's opinion on technical matters of design is worth little.

How the Layman Can Judge

But any layman can judge as to the performance of various types of crankshafts. You know as well as any expert whether the engine is running smoothly at all speeds.

Test a Studebaker against any other make of car—six or eight cylinder—with a heavy crankshaft or a light one—with many bearings or few—with or without bolted-on counterweights. Ride in any car at any price and you will find that there is no sweeter running engine than the Studebaker.

We would not have any records of so many Studebakers driven 100,000 to 500,000 miles each if Studebaker crankshafts were not superlatively efficient.

Drive a Studebaker and let performance prove to you that the crankshaft has bearings and everything else perfectly proportioned to the job to be done.

"THE BLOCK SIGNAL" AT CIRCLE THEATER

Ralph Lewis Scores Another Hit; Western Feature on Same Bill Today and Tomorrow.

"Ralph Lewis' 'The Block Signal,' which will be seen with 'Winning of the Wilderness' at the Circle Theater tonight and tomorrow, is the popular character actor's best picture. In this vehicle Lewis is cast as the old-time locomotive engineer and the story is one of the best railroad themes ever developed.

Fast trains, crooked work on the line and the quick-wittedness of the engineer in whose hands are entrusted the lives of hundreds of passengers make the picture one long series of thrills.

Ralph Lewis is once more the faithful locomotive engineer and he actually makes one forget he is an actor, so realistic is his portrayal.

The producers have introduced a new theme into their story by having the villain deliberately give false signals in order to cause a train wreck. This head-on collision is one of the most realistic things ever staged for the screen and it is difficult to realize that it is but a photoplay effect.

Sidney Franklin in the character of "Roundhouse" Rosen runs Mr. Lewis a close second for acting honors and his portrayal of the lovable old roundhouse keeper is a genuine acting treat.

Frank O'Connor the director of "Roundhouse" comes in for double honors as he is also the author of the story. He has done well

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Nathan Forrest (4)

Forrest was given the acid test in obedience when General Bragg ordered him to invade west Tennessee. At that time Union soldiers overran the district and Forrest had but 2000 men, poorly equipped, meagerly mounted. Forrest set forth. With him it was to act first and comment afterward.

Northward Forrest and his daring raiders swept, clear to the Kentucky line, burning bridges, destroying railroads, capturing supplies.

There were hours of bitter struggle, with his men hitched to guns fired in the Obion river, but somehow Forrest "always got out."

Day after day, this Union force or that felt the sting of Forrest's fierce lash. In that mad Tennessee dash he had killed and wounded 1500, captured thousands in supplies, blocked reinforcements from going to Rosecrans in Nashville—even forced General Grant to release his bulldog grip on Vicksburg. (Continued.)

JACK LOCKWILL AT ROCKLAKE

by Gilbert Patten

Something as hot as a flame leaped through Jack's blood as he beheld his hated enemy among the students at Rocklake Academy. His first impulse was to leap at the fellow and fight him again on the spot. But Brick Judge, in the years of his guardianship and tutelage of Jack, had taught him to restrain and control his hot spirit, and he held himself in check. The other boy stepped out of the line and confronted him.

"Where's your manners, fellow?" demanded the red-headed chap. "Take off your hat!" There was no sign of recognition on his coarse face, for Jack had changed greatly. "Excuse me, your lordship," said Jack, dropping his heavy suitcase upon the other boy's toes.

The bully hopped into the air and grabbed one of his feet with both hands. Jack removed his hat. "I beg a thousand pardons, your royal highness!" he cried in apparent dismay. "I didn't notice the size of your feet." The witnesses couldn't keep from laughing.

The red-headed fellow was infuriated. His anger was so great that he would have struck Jack if several of the others hadn't interfered and kept him from doing so. A dignified boy, familiarly known to the students as "the Grand Vizier," faced Jack, wearing an expression of sternness and accusation. "You may not be aware," he said, "that you have committed a serious offense, little short of a crime."

In both instances, his direction is strong and capable and he knows how to develop dramatic suspense to the utmost. The story is straight railroad all the way through and no extraneous diversions detract from the interest.

Hard riding cowboys, hard boiled miners, harder toiled cafe girls and crooked saloonkeepers and rascals are in this picture in abundance. Though the film is woven a beautiful love story which brings into the picture in a remarkable manner.

TRIS AND TY EXONERATED!

This Speaker (left) and Ty Cobb, two of baseball's biggest men, were restored to eligibility today by Judge Kenneth M. Landis. All of "Dutch" Leonard's charges were nullified by the decision. Complete story of the decision will be found on Page One today.

ALL THE HEAVIES

HAVE BUM HANDS

Sort of an Epidemic of Fractured Fins Breaks Out Among the Contenders.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Jan. 27.—Like the night after a Princeton-Harvard football game in the days of Hubbard (not Old Mother) the big boys are all cut and broken. And there are no seal rings to clear up the mystery.

It appears that something must be done to make the world safe for heavyweights.

According to Jess McMahon, the Jim Maloney-Jack Delaney fight, scheduled for February 1, is off. It develops that one of Jim's meat hooks is all injured and everything.

You Figure It Out

Therefore it can be figured out by algebra, trigonometry, calculus and geometrical progression that if Maloney can't fight February 18 he can't exchange scissor-hooks with Johnny Risko, the big tire and rubber man from Cleveland in that city next Monday night.

Of course there are those who will declare that Maloney has no desire to bounce against the balloon-tired wallop of Risko, a tough bozo, especially with a fight with Delaney in prospect. And after Delaney maybe Tunney, but that would be unkind.

Jim's Fin Hurt

Jim's fin is absolutely on the down and down, according to McMahon who says that it would be cruelly to pugilist for Maloney to even don a glove, which is a considerable mouthful, when it is considered that a special dispensation from some place or other had been obtained so that $20 per ring-side seat could be charged for the Maloney-Delaney fight.

The Paolino-Uzuden-Knute Hansen fight is also off.

Paolino also has a swollen mitt and can't do business, so Jack Sharkey was offered the assignment.

"I wouldn't consider it. Knute is too easy."

So in view of the casualties there appears to be no reason why Gene Tunney, who is going to Europe before long, can't take his time about coming back.

WELTER CHALLENGERS

Scanton, Pa., Jan. 27.—Tommy Freeman of Cleveland, and Sergeant Sammy Baker, of New York, were rated ahead of Joe Delaney, official challenger for the welterweight title, by the champion, Pete Latzo, in discussing the welterweight situation today.

Latzo incidentally scoffed at stories that he would be unable to make 147 pounds and retain his speed and strength, smilingly pointing out that he weighed 149 pounds four days before his recent fight with Baker.

BATH IS RITUAL

Tokio.—Bathing in Japan is a ritual—a ceremony that Nipponese observe religiously. Scalding water is the custom of the country. There first must be a generous soaping on a bamboo mat. After the plunge the servant usually hands you a striped kimono and large straw hat to run down to the river for a cool dip. After the bath, food is the order of the day.

GRAVE HONORS

Paris.—The women are planning a new offensive on the French Academy. Society and literary women have begun the discussion in the hope of breaking down the barrier that has prevented their sex for 300 years entering the ranks of the "immortal forty." Leaders hail the new liberalism as the wedge by which it is aimed to overthrow "prejudice that dates back to the days of Cardinal Richelieu."

NEW FLOWERS

Honolulu.—Two mysterious hibiscus blossoms are promised Hawaii by J. de Rogo. Honolulu's latest "flower inventor." The blossoms will be known as the "blue bell" and the "pagoda." It is thought that the "blue bell" is a hybrid obtained by crossing the blue bell of Scotland with the rare and delicate mauve hibiscus. The "pagoda" will be a three-tier blossom, with a deep red base, a white center and small single blue top.

LITTLE JOE

WAPPING

Edwin Bealand and Arthur Bealand have come to live with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan West, for the winter.

The young people of the Federated Church will present their three act play entitled "The Path Across the Hills," at Scantic next Friday evening.

Wapping Grange held its regular meeting at the Wapping Center school hall last Tuesday evening, with about thirty members present.

All of the thirteen new officers were present. The Grange presented their retiring master, Franklin G. Welles, Jr., with a ten dollar gold piece, as a token of their appreciation of the faithful and efficient work and of his untiring efforts to make the Grange a success.

The program opened with a report of the State Grange meeting, by the new master, Alfred Stone. There was also a debate, Resolved, that the young people of today are better than the young people of fifty years ago. The debaters on the affirmative were Rev. Truman H. Woodward, Irene Buckland and Phillip Welles. The negative side was Robert Newcomb, Franklin Welles and Levi T. Dewey. The judges were Lucius V. Platt, Mrs. W. W. Grant and George West, who decided in favor of the negative two to one, although it was hard to decide, as strong argument was furnished on both sides.

A daughter was born, January 17, to Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Steers of Providence, R. I. Mrs. Steers was formerly Miss Marian Baker of East Windsor Hill.

Bristling Battles of Bare Fist Days

MY LIFE STORY by Jack McAlliff

When I escaped a near murder at the hands of Jim Gibbons, gun-fighting brother of Austin Gibbons, by pointing out the fact that if he shot me his brother would lose a chance of making $30,000 fighting me, I got down to serious training.

I knew Austin Gibbons was a good fighter.

We met Sept. 11, 1891 and when I walked into the ring I knew I was jobbed. They gave me a pair of gloves that seemed as big as bed pillows. I looked across the ring and saw Gibbons surrounded by his pair that I'll bet did not weigh four pounds of fighters pulling on a tight gunces.

The odds, which should have favored me, the champion, switched to 2 to 1 and 3 to 1 against me.

Jerry Dunn was the referee.

When the fight started I couldn't get Gibbons to land. We feinted back and forth and then I heard a police officer say to Dunn, "If we stop the fight will you call it a draw?"

I tried to get the answer but couldn't.

I had all sorts of underhanded things were going on but I was helpless. The house was worth $30,000 and I did not want the police to show or I would lose my cut. I went after Gibbons and started to sight him. I cut him to ribbons and had his face a mess. I wanted to drop him without making him bleed because I knew the police would jump in the ring. He was fough and I could not sink him.

In the sixth round, after a flurry of gloves on my part, with Gibbons rolling dizzily along the ropes the police busted it up. When I went down to the Police Gazette to collect my purse and side bet, I was told by Richard Fox there was some question about the winner and then there followed a lot of legal action and I was cheated out of every penny.

I later got even with Gibbons by masquerading my name. He signed to fight a "Joe Wolcott" at Coney Island. When he got there he found me in the ring. I kicked him around 12 rounds and then knocked him out.

EDITOR'S NOTE—In the next chapter McAlliff tells how Fitzsimmons beat Dempsey in their memorable battle he witnessed.

In some people the arteries have begun to harden at the age of 40, while with others this process does

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE From the veranda of the Hotel Majestic, at Ocean Town, N. J. TITUS RIGGS, a guest, sees a man taken from the ocean and laid on the beach while a crowd gathers to see the victim.

Dixon said, turning to Carmelita, "You saw the scene Mrs. Barnaby has just described"

DIXON pushed a button and a bellboy appeared at the door. "Oh, it's you, Tubby, is it? Well, hike yourself up to these two room numbers and ask the two ladies to come down here immediately."

"Yes, sir," and the fat youngster took the slip that Dixon handed him. "Isn't that a little imperative, Mr. Dixon?" said Neville, with a look of astonishment. "It's the only way. I've tried too many times asking ladies to come when convenient, and it means a long wait. They can't resent a definite summons in an emergency like this."

"No, I suppose not," Neville agreed, and sure enough, it was but a few moments before the two came in.

"Oh, oh!" exclaimed Mrs. Barnaby, as she caught sight of the blanketed form, "can't we go somewhere else? That awful—oh, oh—"

She covered her face with her hands and said moaningly: "Hush, hush, Duchess," her companion whispered. "Don't make such a fuss."

"Can't help it! Oh, Mr. Peigham, do let us go out of here! Mr. Neville, beg him to let me go! I must go!"

She rose and made for the door with such evident determination that Dixon thought best to humor her.

"All right," he said kindly, "we'll go into another room. Come, please, Mrs. Valdson, and you, too, Mr. Neville."

There were several nearby rooms used more or less as offices, and into one of them Dixon ushered his little crowd of people.

Peigham remained behind, waiting for the appearance of the doctor, who had been sent for with an urgent request to make haste.

The whole affair was most distasteful to Mr. Peigham. To be sure, no hotel manager could be blamed for having one of his guests drop dead, but it made an unpleasant commotion, and try as he would, it seemed impossible to keep the affair secret.

The bellboys were staring; the elevator attendants were on the alert; the clerks at the desk, though outwardly calm, were wide-eyed and listening. The news had, of course, spread, and some of the guests in the great foyer were frankly curious, and were even beginning to ask questions.

They saw the two women, accompanied by the hotel detective and Roger Neville, go into a room and close the door.

Yet the conversation in there was in no way alarming or even interesting.

Relieved of the sight of the still, shrouded form of Garrett Folsom, Mrs. Barnaby became herself again and answered readily enough all the questions put to her.

Too readily, indeed, for she was a voluble sort, and once started she loved to hear the sound of her own voice.

"Oh, yes, of course I knew Mr. Folsom," she returned to Dixon's question. "No, I didn't know him until last evening, but you see, he's the kind of man you feel acquainted with at once. My friend, Mrs. Valdson, introduced him to me, and I took to him that very minute. A delightful man—oh, what a pity he is gone!"

"Then, if you never knew Mr. Folsom until last evening, you can't tell me much about him," Dixon said, a little curtly. "Mrs. Valdson, you have known him for a longer time?"

"Yes," Carmelita Valdson replied, her great dark eyes filling with tears. "I have known Mr. Folsom for several years. He was my lawyer and my friend as well. I was rejoiced when I heard he was down here, and we planned many things to do by way of entertainment. I knew Mrs. Barnaby would like him, and I was not surprised when I found the liking mutual."

"And you three," Dixon took in the trio, "with Mr. Folsom were the whole of your party to go in bathing this morning?"

"Yes," Mrs. Barnaby said, unable to keep out of the conversation. "And I was so glad I had my new bathing suit; it just came yesterday. And Mrs. Valdson, too—we were the best-dressed crowd on the beach. Oh, I can't believe he is gone!"

"Who stood next to Mr. Folsom at the rope?" Dixon asked, ignoring the talkative one, "you, Mrs. Valdson?"

"Yes," Carmelita began, but Mrs. Barnaby interrupted. "I was next but one," she said. "I mean I was next to Carmelita and she was next to Mr. Folsom. But I can tell you what happened, for I was looking right at him."

Clearly, Dixon thought, it was best to let her tell it, as she was far more willing to talk than the others.

"Why, we were all standing there, taking the waves," she said, "and laughing, and just after a big breaker passed, Mr. Folsom sort of loosened his grip on the rope and then his hands fell away from the rope and he just sank down under the water. That's all. Then everybody seemed to scream and another wave came and then I saw the life guards come and get hold of Mr. Folsom and carry him out of the water up onto the beach. That's all."

"You were next Mr. Folsom, I believe, Mrs. Valdson," Dixon said, turning to Carmelita, "you saw the scene Mrs. Barnaby has just described?"

"Why, yes," was the reply, "that is, I suppose it must have been that way. But I was not looking at him at all. I had all I could do to keep my feet. The surf was very high and the waves pounded so I paid no attention to any one else. I just clung to the rope to keep from being knocked down myself. If Mr. Folsom had even a slight cramp it is not surprising he was drawn under by the waves."

"You were off the rope, Mr. Neville?" and Dixon turned to him.

"Yes, I hate to be hanging to a rope. I take the big waves head on, and if they fling me up on the beach, that is the sort of sport I enjoy. Folsom liked it, too, but he felt he must stay with the ladies. He broke away once or twice and then went back."

"Yes, but he was glad to get back," Mrs. Barnaby told them. "He wasn't much used to surf bathing, and he seemed to get winded easily."

"You noticed that, too, Mrs. Valdson?" pursued the questioner.

"Not specially," she said. "But as I told you, I was busy looking out for myself. I think I was never so buffeted by the waves as we were this morning. They were ferocious!"

"Who stood on the other side of Mr. Folsom?" Dixon inquired, and as Neville and Mrs. Barnaby shook their heads, he turned to Mrs. Valdson for a reply.

"It was Mr. Barron," she said. "I know because Mr. Barron asked me who he was and I leaned over to see. That was just before we decided to come out of the water. We couldn't find Mr. Neville, so we said we'd go out anyway. Then a big wave came, and it was right after that that Mr. Folsom went under."

"Where were you then, Mr. Neville?"

"In the water, not far from our crowd," Mrs. Barnaby said, her black and yellow cap and she waved her hand toward shore, so I gathered we were all to go in and I started toward the land. But there was a crowd, and before I could get to shore, I saw the man carrying a man, and I saw at once that it was Folsom."

"And you followed them?"

"Of course. And stood by until they started to bring him here, then I went to my bathroom and dressed as quickly as I could."

"Well," said Dixon, "I think that you have done very well, but I tell you, then, I just wanted to get the details of the drowning. Hello, here comes the valet, Ross."

The man came into the room and stood at attention.

Though evidently stirred with excitement, he preserved a calm demeanor, and except for a nervous twitching of his fingers, showed no sign of perturbation.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

We hear a great deal these days about how hard it is for people to get along, the things that one simply must have, the way such things cost, how much more difficult it is for folks to manage than ever before. I hear it most frequently from my neighbor and school day chum, Marie, Marie gives one side of the story, and Marie's mother, who lives a few doors down, gives the other. Strangely enough, I find more sound logic in the viewpoint of the older generation, and when the conflict grows too hectic am moved to shout "Cheerio" with Marie's mother, and "Apple Sauce" to Marie.

The latest installment of the viewpoint conflict concerns the tonsils of Betty, Marie's small daughter. The school nurse has said that Betty's tonsils must be removed. And Marie is weeping and tearing her hair and wondering where in the world the price of the job will come from. It's getting so that one cannot afford to be in good health."

But I digress from my main theme. I remember that when Marie wailed how they would just have to get along somehow with Betty's tonsils in her mother only calmly said: "It isn't what you have, Marie, but how you choose to spend it," and her mild blue eye glimmered for a moment on the mulberry overstuffed davenport which Marie had bought just a few days ago. Then she added, "Your father's income was exactly what your husband's is. We had nine children to feed and clothe and educate. You have two. We managed. You were all well-cared for but we did not have a radio, an automobile, overstuffed furniture, Oriental rugs, eight or ten dresses apiece, and fancy mould ice creams for Sunday."

And I believe that Marie's mother sums up the whole answer to this modern uproar about the difficulty of getting along on the little that people have today. "It isn't what you have, Marie, but how you choose to spend it," and her mild blue eye glimmered for a moment on the mulberry overstuffed davenport which Marie had bought just a few days ago. Then she added, "Your father's income was exactly what your husband's is. We had nine children to feed and clothe and educate. You have two. We managed. You were all well-cared for but we did not have a radio, an automobile, overstuffed furniture, Oriental rugs, eight or ten dresses apiece, and fancy mould ice creams for Sunday."

Modern girls in another year or two will explode the theory that women are careless motor car drivers. That is if the latest requirements of the Girl Scout motor badge achieves the desired results.

The badge has just been revised with the idea in view to improve the technique of Girl Scout drivers by means of requiring a more thorough knowledge of the mechanical details of the engine and the traffic conditions.

Steering an automobile, turning corners and exhibitions of backing will not be considered among the important factors in the examination for the merit badge, for they are included in the State test which the girl must pass before she may apply for her Girl Scout motor merit badge. In a road test she must show proficiency in the art of starting and stopping her car with smoothness, shifting her gear when the motor has reached sufficient momentum, parking in small spaces and knowing how to keep her car in good condition through the careful handling of the engine. Six written questions on the care of the equipment and general precautions such as the remedy to be applied if the water-cooling system shows steaming and what to do if the skids are also required.

There will be a training class for Brownie Leaders held in Hartford Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Anyone interested in this work will be welcome and may obtain further information from the Commissioner, Mrs. Fred Norton, 180 Main street.

The officers' association will meet next Wednesday evening at eight o'clock with Miss Esther Lord, 33 Stephens street, Manchester Green. Troop will begin its meetings at four o'clock and from five until five thirty will play games and practice the new Scout songs. Dorothy Jensen has passed the Tenderfoot Test.

The modern scarf does not give the idea of an after-thought, it is part of the costume ensemble. Occasionally one sees the scarf made of the self-same georgette or other thin material of the gown. Besides the silken scarf, there are lovely checked and striped wool scarfs, light yet affording warmth.

One of the women's magazines gives the recipe for a pineapple and raisin salad, made like a sandwich, this is, the slices of pineapple are cut in two and a filling of chopped raisins inserted. In the center is placed a ball of cream cheese rolled in chopped nuts and raisins.

Smart little unlined jackets are to be worn with sport costumes for the spring, with or without sleeves and pleated skirts. The jacket is sometimes banded with the skirt material, and is usually in contrast to it.

The recipe below will make a delicious dessert. You might even serve them in place of ice cream, placing each apple on a round foundation of sponge cake.

Stuffed Apples Pare and core smooth apples of a uniform size. Cook in heavy syrup to which the juice of one lemon to each cup of sugar has been added. Boast apples and cook very slowly and carefully to prevent them from breaking. When the fruit is tender and clear remove from syrup and chill. Cook syrup down until thick enough to jelly. Combine equal parts of chopped nuts, seed and chopped raisins and orange marmalade with the jelled syrup and fill cavities of apples with the mixture. Mask each apple with whipped cream slightly sweetened and flavored with vanilla. A cube of bright red jelly or a maraschino cherry can be used to garnish the dessert.

Monograms in diamond shape are frequently placed on the new sweaters, in the center of the front, just under the V neck. Triangular pockets on sweaters are other little effective touches.

Tutors Brides-to-Be Detroit's Visiting Housekeeper's Association maintains a school for brides-to-be, managed by Frances Van Buren and her assistant, Far school is a little cottage not far from the center of the city and here hundreds of girls contemplating matrimony have been tutored in housekeeping in three weeks but the course is for three weeks but the students enter at a time and move in bag and baggage. The course is budgeted, that is every hour has its special occupation. The girls are taught housekeeping tasks, preparing of meals and marketing; Miss Van Buren accompanies them and shows them the different cuts of meat and other foods which will give the best value for the money; how to make a "home" out of odds and ends of furniture and bits of gay chintz and to live comfortably and pleasantly on a budget of $128 a month. Miss Van Buren of her eight years of experience has evolved two don'ts which she says hit home to nearly every inexperienced or discouraged housewife. "Don't put things off; Do your work on schedule time, even if you are tired. Nothing is so discouraging as a left-over job. Don't splurge. Plan your menus and stick to them. Spread your money evenly over the period it must last.

The president of one of the big tobacco companies believes that the next move of tobacco concerns will be direct advertising to women. He says: "More and more women are smoking every day. As soon as some tobacco company breaks the ice you may look for a concerted campaign of cigarette advertising to women."

"The universe pays every man in his own coin; if you smile, it smiles upon you in return; if you sing, you will be invited into ray company; if you think, you will be entertained by thinkers; and if you love the world and earnestly seek for the good that is therein, it will pour into your lap the treasures of the earth."

Secretary of Labor Davis, who has just been to Manchester within the week, returns to the recent appointment of Mrs. James D. Tillinghast of Cambridge as commissioner of immigration at the port of Boston as "the most important federal job ever given to a woman."

Mrs. Tillinghast, mother of two grown children and a son, is a famous school of oratory. She is known as the woman orator but frankly admits she knows nothing of immigration laws. She is a Republican and did not even know at latest reports what salary was attached to her position. "But whatever the salary," said the new commissioner, "it is my duty to take the job and I am proud to have the chance to show what a woman can do." Mrs. Mabel Willibrand of the Supreme Court is considered by the political women of the country as probably the only woman with a more important job than Mrs. Tillinghast's, and it is intimated that some of them are not over-pleased with Secretary Davis' choice. Mrs. Tillinghast says "Women in politics must work like men."

Good Nature and Good Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN The washing of clothes in a crowded home, a modern apartment house, or kitchen inevitably creates sanitary problems of importance. A kitchen is a place for the preparation of food. Regardless of any sanitary questions, it is distasteful to think of the washing of soiled clothes in a kitchen when steam from the tubs, the boilers and the chemicals used mingles with the food that may be prepared. Avoiding Infection The ordinary family wash carries little danger of infection to the laundry worker, but freshly soiled handkerchiefs or underclothing should be boiled separately before being put with the rest of the clothes. Most germs are readily killed by exposure to heat or sunlight. Moreover, soap, washing soda, borax and ammonia have the power of killing germs in various strengths. In the case of persons with serious contagious diseases, the soiled clothes should be kept separately and all linens thoroughly boiled before being allowed to come in contact with clothing worn by others. Public Landries The development of kitchen and apartment houses has also brought about the development of commercial laundries which undertake the washing of all of the clothing as well as of stiff shirts, collars and special materials to which they were formerly limited. In the modern commercial laundry the clothing for each family is sorted and kept separately so that there is little danger of contamination of the laundry of one family by the materials from that of another. The development of modern laundry machinery has led, in practically all communities of any size, to the gradual disappearance of the home laundress and has been a distinct aid to hygiene and sanitation in the home. Hate Germs! By Olive Roberts Barton

A business man said one evening to a group of friends whom he and his wife were entertaining, after a discussion of national affairs, "Do you know what is ruining this country? Hate! Not racial or national hatred, just the plain individual brand. I find it in my personal contacts every day. Isn't it ridiculous?" Strange that the following day at a lecture, the speaker remarked: "Hate is the thicket in the night that eventually seals every good impulse unless carefully and systematically barred out of state and federal politics. There is nothing in the world quite so ruinous as jealous hatred," he remarked. "To my mind, the greatest of all commandments is, 'Thou shalt not hate.'"

A new word called to your attention will often pop up unexpectedly over and over after that, if you have noticed. It almost seemed to be so with this old-new or new-old word "hate," for that night I read where a city booster had told the Board of Commerce in a certain town that more important than all the new industries they could induce to locate there, was the necessity of buying old feuds and personal animosity. "Bury your hate and work together," he advised.

My goodness! thought I. Is it so bad that? Why didn't someone tell us about it before? This "hate" business has us by the throat, it seems. Oh, well, it's winter and we hate the coal man, and the gas man and the plumber, and the doctor and the man who made alarm clocks. It will be different in May. I picked up a magazine that contained a short play of Tolstoy's, the last he wrote, I believe. In it Pecky says, "You know we love people for the good we do them and hate people for the harm we do them." There it was again, but with explanatory trimmings that supplied the missing factor in the equation. Indeed, it was the whole equation itself! It is true! The people we hate most bitterly are often those we have wronged. It is stock-taking time. Why not take stock of our besetting sin, including this word "hate."

THE TINYMITES

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

While Clowny drifted on the ice, a voice from near at hand, yelled twice, "Hurrah! Hurrah!" And they all turned and saw the Eskimo. He'd run to get a piece of twine, which surely would come in real use, but what he planned to do with the Tynmites didn't know. "Just watch me close—and you will see that I'm as smart as I can be," their friend the furry Eskimo announced in boastful tone. "I may rant help, but not just now, I guess I'll get along, somehow, if I just try to work my plan, and work it all alone." He took the twine and spread it out. Then wrapped it round and round about. And then 'twas in a circle, they began to see his scheme. So then held one end in his hand, and swung the rest to beat the end. Then, when they least expected it, 'twas hurled across the stream. "And now," the Tynmites heard him shout, "the rest of you can help me

ANOTHER MANCHESTER MAN IN "WHO'S WHO"

E. L. G. Hohenthal Listed in Late Edition—Called Prohibition Worker.

In The Herald's account of the golden wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Chipman of Henry street it was stated that aside from Dr. Chipman and his son only one other Manchester man was listed in "Who's Who in America." That other man was named as Howell Cheney.

However, Manchester has another celebrity in E. L. G. Hohenthal who is listed in the latest edition of the famous red book. Dr. Chipman and his son Charles are listed under Manchester, Conn., while Howell Cheney and E. L. G. Hohenthal are listed under South Manchester, Conn. The edition previous to that of 1927 was in reference and for that reason Mr. Hohenthal's name was omitted from the account.

Mr. Hohenthal is listed as a prohibition worker and a complete account of his work in the interests of prohibition in this country and throughout the world is given.

COL. AGNEW TO SPEAK AT THE S. A. CITADEL

Editor of War Cry to be Present During Young People's Entertainment.

The program to be put on by the young people of the Salvation Army next Saturday evening will be of a very interesting character. The sketch will be entitled "From the Cradle to the Training College" and on the program will be one of the youngest soloists that has ever been presented to a Manchester audience. This service will be presided over by Lieut.-Colonel Agnew of New York city, who is visiting Manchester for Saturday and Sunday and will conduct the services in the local citadel.

Colonel Agnew is one of the Army's leading men and has filled various positions which has taken him to different cities of this country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, which gives him a wide knowledge of the Army's operations. He is an interesting speaker and will speak in the local citadel Saturday night, Sunday morning at 11 and in the afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. He will be accompanied by his son who will take a special part in all these services. His son has taken active part in the work of the Army and is today a bandsman and also expects to enter the officers training college in New York city this fall.

SENATE BILL WOULD BACK COMMUNITY 'Y'

pulsion of its members, to provide for the election of its officers and to define their duties, to regulate and provide for the management, safe-keeping, and protection of its property and funds, and such other powers as are incident to such corporations.

Section 4. Said corporation may purchase, receive, hold, lease, and convey real and personal estate which may be given or granted to it, and it may, for any of its purposes except for current expenses, mortgage or pledge its real and personal estate, and may lease the same or any portion thereof.

Section 5. This act shall take effect upon its being accepted by the persons named in Section 1 of this act, by a majority vote of the members present at a meeting specially called for that purpose and held within three months of the date hereof, and notice of such acceptance shall be given by said corporation by causing a certificate to that effect signed by its president and counter-signed by its secretary to be filed in the office of the Secretary of State.

Non-End Recreation Several weeks ago The Herald announced that steps were to be taken to unite all of the forces at the north end interested in community recreational work, for the purpose of securing a charter which would permit action under the date of the late Willie P. Morton. Under the will, the sum of $100,000 is bequeathed for recreational purposes, including a building.

The names of local citizens given in the proposed legislative act are all trustees of the Manchester Community club, having been named by William Hamlin Childs, of New York, in a deed executed by him in May, 1924, to take over "The White House" property for the Community Club.

For several years recreational work at the north end has been broadening out, the way being led by the Community Club. This club now holds property valued in the neighborhood of $30,000, and it is understood that the club holds itself in readiness to devote this valuable property to such larger developments as may follow as regards recreational work at the north end. It will be seen that holding this valuable property, and with its splendid location in the heart of the business section of the north end, the Community club by no means comes empty-handed into the larger recreational program proposed.

Splendid co-operation along recreational lines was given by the local citizens a few weeks ago, when $7,200 was contributed for the Community Club's drive for funds to carry on its work.

PLUMBING FIXTURES

Price alone should never govern either the selection of the fixtures or the plumber to do the work. Assurance of good material and workmanship is certain only when there is no false economy in buying plumbing and when good judgment selects the men to install it.

HUMORIST IS SECURED FOR C. OF C. PROGRAM

W. M. Bayliss, of Bridgeport to Replace Mayor Bauer Who Is Unable to Appear.

What at first appears as a misfortune, may sometimes turn out to be a distinct advantage. When Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn, wrote to the Chamber of Commerce expressing regret that certain matters before the Massachusetts Legislature would make it necessary for him to cancel his engagement to speak at the annual banquet, February 10th, the committee was down-hearted. Now that they have succeeded in securing Walter M. Bayliss of Bridgeport the committee feel that the last touch has been added necessary to assure the success of the banquet.

All Human "We are all human. We like to ride in automobiles on Sunday and we like to spend $500 on ourselves instead of giving a similar sum to the church. But we must be Peter-beings and not Peter has-beens. We cannot be Simon Peters but Peter the rock on which the church is founded."

Humorist Mr. Bayliss is distinctly a humorist. He is associate editor of the "Bridgeport Life," a weekly paper in the same class with the "Detroit Saturday Night." He is also editor of the "Bughouse Bugle," the houseorgan of the Columbia Nut Company.

SEND 4 CHILDREN TO COUNTY HOME

The four children of Norman Brace of North School street, who yesterday was bound over to the March term of the Superior court, will be committed to the county home at Warehouse Point. The mother died under 16 years of age. The mother died about a year and a half ago.

Path Across Hills MAKES A HIT HERE Wapping Thespians Delight Audience at the Harding School—The Players.

Those who braved the severe weather last night to witness the performance of "The Path Across the Hills," a three-act drama, at the Harding school, felt that the entertainment was well worth while. The play was given by young people of the Federated church at Wapping, under auspices of the January group of the Ladies' Aid Society of the North Methodist church.

As the entire three acts require only one living room scene, it was the purpose of the cast to give it a number of different places with the object of raising funds for improvements to the Federated church at Wapping. Mrs. Truman H. Woodward, wife of the pastor, coached the players and their work reflected much credit upon the director.

The drama plays for a full two hours and abounds with amusing situations. Alfred Stone, who takes one of the leading male parts in the play, gave the prologue. Miss Lois Stiles had a very heavy part and did exceptional work. William Foster of Henry street, the only local actor in the cast, furnished amusement for the ease with which, in the part of the struggling young doctor, he could transfer his attention from one girl to another. The plot is a good one, three or four love matches are in progress throughout the play to lend interest. Comedy was furnished aplenty by Mrs. Rose Nevers as Zora, the colored cook, and the husband she annexes, Salamander Jones, played by Levi Dewey. Miss Clara Chandler, as "Lutie," Ralph Collins, Miss Frances Stoddard, Miss Edith Lane and Edward Sharp were the others in the cast and played their respective roles with naturalness and ease.

Attention of Chief Samuel G. Gordon was called to the attention of the family, and he with Miss Jessie Reynolds, social service worker, made a thorough investigation. Brace was brought to justice by order of Chief Gordon. The children have no relatives and have had very little care in the home.
