COOLIDGE WILL RUN AGAIN, IS NEW INDICATION

Meeting With Texans Believed First Step in Campaign Of President For Renomi- nation.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The political claps of the capital, ever eager and alert to glimpse the first robin of the political spring-time, were convinced today that Calvin Coolidge's campaign for another term has been launched.

A quiet breakfast which President Coolidge gave at the White House yesterday morning to a group of Texans, and which did not attract much attention, was hailed today as the harbinger of his political intentions toward 1928.

Present at the White House breakfast table were seven Texans, headed by R. B. Creager, the Republican national committeeman from the Lone Star state, and including Leonard Withington, secretary of the Republican state committee; James W. Bass, of Austin, R. F. Lee of Houston, Orville Ballington of Wichita Falls, Roy Campbell of San Antonio, and F. L. Thompson, Bass and Campbell are federal officeholders.

"Texas General Staff"
The whole company was described by the politicians today as constituting the "Republican general staff" of Texas, whose members will control the forty-odd votes from Texas in the next Republican national convention. There were four members of the Senate present, Moses of New Hampshire, Goff of West Virginia, Means of Colorado, and Sackett of Kentucky, but their presence was said to be of doubtful value.

During the several hours that Mr. Coolidge served sausage and hot cakes and bacon and eggs to his guests, the talk was all of politics, of conditions, of the party's outlook for 1928, the state of public feeling, and of organizational matters.

When this political gossip began to be fruited about the capital there was a general lifting of political eye-brows. They went even higher when it was reported that the Texas breakfast was but the beginning of a series of such affairs, whenever they conveniently be arranged, the ultimate design of which is to help Mr. Coolidge make up his mind about 1928.

Not an Intimation
So far as is known in Washington, Mr. Coolidge has never said or even intimated to anyone whether he is to be a candidate to succeed himself. The general impression has prevailed among Republican leaders that he is a candidate, although many of them pretend to speak tentatively.

One of them, who can be considered "close" to the White House, recently said:
"The plain truth about the matter is that Mr. Coolidge hasn't made up his mind. If there seems to be a demand from the party that he run again he will do so; he would, in fact, like nothing better. On the other hand, if this Lowden movement, or any other movement, gets big enough and threatens to cause a real fight in the convention, Mr. Coolidge probably would think a good while before he braved the 'third term' bugaboo."

The breakfasts, such as the one tendered the party leaders from Texas yesterday, are considered measures to help Mr. Coolidge make up his mind, few believe that as any guests at his table will advise him that his candidacy would be unpopular.

Creager New "Slump"
There were reports about the capitol today that Creager is to become "the Slump of 1928."
C. Bascom Slump, ex-Virginia Congressman and ex-secretary to the president, was one of the principal Coolidge lieutenants in the pre-convention maneuvering of '24. Lately he has been touring southern states, and the political gossip has been that his touring was in the interests of some of Mr. Coolidge's possible opponents in '28, Representative Nick Longworth included.

Creager has had considerable experience in handling southern delegates himself. He has been a familiar figure about national conventions for many years, usually involved in contests over the credentials of southern delegations.

All in all, the political railbirds of the capitol thought today they have discerned the first chirp of the Coolidge robin of '28.

Treasury Lifts Ban on Flotation of City of Paris Bonds in U. S.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The Treasury today partially lifted the ban on private American loans to French clients. Officials announced that no objection would be interposed to the plan of American bankers to sell privately City of Paris bonds, which have been underwritten by French bankers.

POPULAR CONCERT FOR POLICE SHOW

Seven Numbers on Unusual Program of Music; Radio Charlie Tobias Coming.

A popular concert of songs will be presented by a group of talented artists for the Police Benefit at the State theater Sunday afternoon. The artists are coming here from New York where they were engaged by Captain of Police Herman Schendel and Manager Jack Sanson of the State theater.

An unusual type of concert will be heard. Each of the seven groups will be musical, but nearly every kind of entertainment with music will be presented. It will be, in reality, seven concerts all gathered together in one mammoth benefit show.

The first group on the concert program brings Joe Leveaux to the State theater stage. He plays several kinds of musical instruments and is an artist with each. Then will be heard the Crane Kiddies. These kiddies sing popular, operatic and old time songs. The third group presents Cortes and Lyon in heart songs. Their presentation is a most artistic one as is that of the Hammett Singers who follow. These singers are a quartet offering a program of old time ballads.

Boardman and Rawling follow in a song recital, largely popular. One of the most important groups presents Charlie Tobias, the popular song writer of radio artists, and a member of the famous "Roxy's Gang." Mr. Tobias will also be master of ceremonies at the concert. The last group in the concert will be Michael Partl and Company offering a high class program of operatic and classic numbers.

Entertain Everyone
The entire program will be presented with a view toward entertaining every one who can possibly attend, from the children to the oldest grown-up. It will be popular throughout and will be enjoyed by all, no matter what the taste is musically. Captain of Police Herman Schendel is chairman of the committee in charge of the concert, and it was his suggestion that the program be a popular one.

The committee and Manager Sanson have had a difficult time arranging the concert program. It was not an easy task to engage seven musical groups for one afternoon entertainment. They had to be either in New York or in this vicinity and they had to be of a high class. It was only a few days ago that the complete program was arranged.

Captain Industriously
Captain Schendel has worked industriously lining up the benefit, directing the ticket sale and attending to the one hundred and one little things that must be done. The ticket sale has been big, and because of the popular type program there is no doubt the theater will be well filled.

U-BOAT SAILORS CUT WAR YEARS OUT OF AGES

German Seeking to Enter U. S. Navy Gives His 4 Years Too Young, Pleads Com- mon Practice.

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 3.—The United States Navy lost an expert sailor yesterday when the Springfield recruiting office was obliged to refuse enlistment to Walter Prill, a German U-boat tar throughout the World War, because he was not a full-fledged American citizen. Prill, who came here from Syracuse, N. Y., left Springfield last night for New London, Conn., where he hopes to enlist in the Coast Guard. Navy rules bar applicants who have not obtained final naturalization papers.

Prill told the local recruiting officers he had been in America since early in 1924. He speaks English excellently and, according to the recruiting men, gave evidence of being well educated. He recounted many thrilling incidents of the war on and under the sea, declaring he served aboard three German submarines, the U-9, U-55 and U-108, leaving the U-9 in port, just one hour before the vessel departed, never to return.

Dead Years
Questioned as to his age, Prill told the officers he was 23 years old, although later he admitted he was 27.

"I did not live during the four years I served in the German Navy, therefore that time doesn't count," he explained to the astonished American sailors. This method of giving one's age, said Prill, is faithfully adhered to by a majority of those who served with the German submarine forces during the war.

"They consider the time so ill spent and their service to the Vaterland so repulsive, that they prefer to forget about it," he said.

WRIGHT-GLADSTONE CASE GOES TO JURY

Justice Declares Section Was Introduced in Book to Please Scandal Lovers.

London, Feb. 3.—The good faith of Captain Peter Wright's strictures on the character of W. E. Gladstone was attacked today by Justice Avey when he summed up the publication of a book by Wright against Gladstone, charging that the viscount had libelled Captain Wright by calling him "a liar and a coward."

Viscount Gladstone's charge against Captain Wright followed the publication of a book by Wright which attacked the late Premier Gladstone as hypocritical regarding his immoral relations with women.

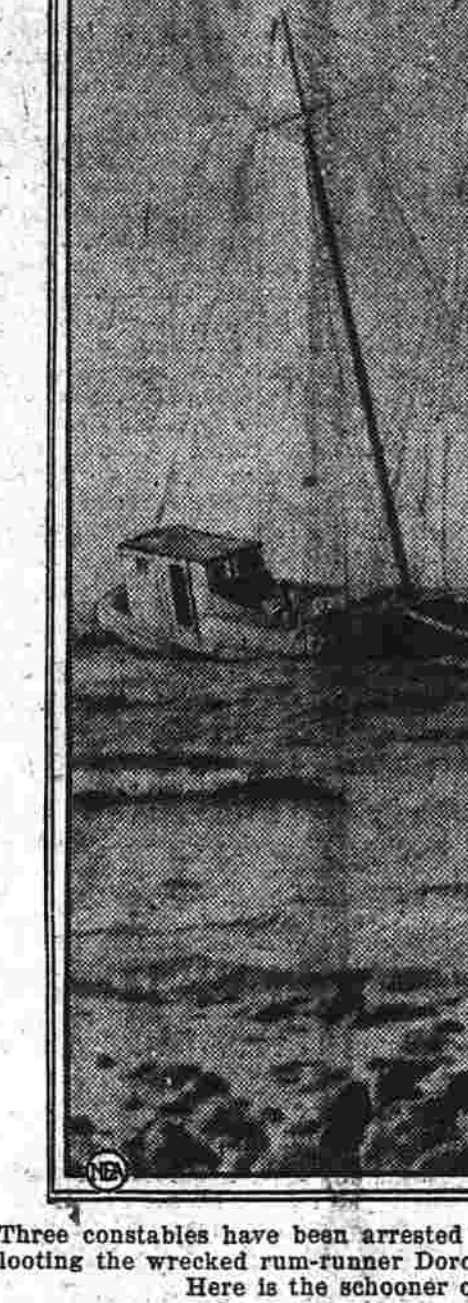

"Could there be any doubt," said Justice Avey to the jury, "that this section of the book was introduced at the last moment by Captain Wright to pander to the vicious taste of that section of the reading public which loved only scandal?"

The case went to the jury at 4:45.
London, Feb. 3.—The jury in the Wright-Gladstone case tonight returned a verdict in favor of Viscount Gladstone.

COL. SMITH ILL, SENATE DECISION IS POSTPONED

Washington, Feb. 3.—The Senate Elections Committee today postponed until next Wednesday its decision in the case of Senator-Designate Frank L. Smith, Republican of Illinois, whose right to a seat in the Senate is being questioned. Smith is ill at his home.

FINDS NO OBJECTION TO COMMUNITY PLAN

Proposal to Use Morton Will Money for Recreation Is Not Opposed.

Late this afternoon word reached Manchester that the legislative committee on corporations voted to report favorably on the bill fostered by the Manchester Community Club proposing to use the Morton estate money for recreation purposes.

No opposition to the Manchester Community club's proposal to divert the money set aside by the Willie T. Morton will so that it could be used for general recreation purposes developed at the legislative hearing on the matter this afternoon. The committee on corporations heard the bill at 1 o'clock at the State capitol today.

Although several appeared in favor of the bill none objected to it.
Strickland For It
Wells A. Strickland, president of the board of directors of the club spoke in behalf of the bill. He told the committee the type of work that was being done by the present organization. The bill proposes to use the money, which was to have been used for a Y. M. C. A. at the north end, in carrying on the work of the Community club.

Mr. Strickland said it was merely combining recreational forces at the north end of the town.
Senator Robert J. Smith and Representative Raymond A. Johnson appeared and spoke in favor of the bill. They said they believed there was no opposition to it in Manchester.

Others at the hearing were W. W. Robertson, Scott H. Simon, Fred H. Wall, Mark Holmes, Fayette Clark, Robert K. Anderson, George H. Washburn, and Fred A. Sweet.

NEW PORTUGAL REVOLT MAY BE NATION WIDE

Lisbon, Feb. 3.—Martial law has been declared throughout all Portugal, following receipt of reports that the military garrison has revolted.

Although the minister of war states that the extent of the revolt is not known the declaration of martial law is interpreted as indicating the government's fear that it may be nation-wide.

The rebels arrested the minister of public instruction who was in Oporto on a holiday.

SWINDLES SCORES ON AUTO "LOANS"

New Yorker Gets Million and Half on Mortgages on Non-Existent Cars.

New York, Feb. 3.—Scores of small investors stormed the district attorney's office today in an effort to learn what had become of some $1,500,000 which they are said to have entrusted to David D. Deutsch.

As security for their funds they are said to have received chattel mortgages on non-existent automobiles.

Deutsch, looking the part of the financier he claims to be, is said to have admitted to the authorities that during the past year he had collected some million and a half dollars through a fake automobile financing business.

Imagines the Cars
He secured loans from his alleged victims, according to the authorities, on the strength of mortgages on cars.

The difficulty was that neither the cars nor their owners ever existed.

At police headquarters, where Deutsch was held in default of $100,000 bail, the "financier" intimated that he would offer a satisfactory "explanation."

ARKANSAS REFUGEES ARE IN SORRY PLIGHT

Flood Victims Jammed Into Tiny Court Room, Little Church and Cow Barn.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 3.—The flood situation along lower White River is very critical. Rescue parties working since the levee broke last Sunday night at Pioneer Plantation brought out more than 1,000 refugees. They are being cared for by residents of nearby towns.

At Cotton Plant, barns and warehouses are being used as temporary quarters for many of the more than 500 refugees brought from Pioneer Plantation and other overflowed lands near Des Arc. Ten families are housed in a court house room, 20 by 25 feet.

About fifty persons crowded into a small church and several families are finding temporary quarters in an old cow barn nearby.

Bradfield is threatened with a break in the levee. Rescue workers are searching for 15 or 20 families said to be marooned on high land in the vicinity of the threatened break.

Sylvia Hawkes Weds SHAFTSBURY'S HEIR

Actress, Daughter of Public
House Keeper, Becomes Lady Ashley in London.

London, Feb. 3.—Beautiful Sylvia Hawkes, actress, was married today to Lord Ashley, heir of the Earl of Shaftsbury, at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge. Shaftsbury has repeatedly denied that his heir would marry the beautiful young actress.

Sylvia Hawkes, a former mannequin, then a chorus girl and finally an actress, is but 20. Lord Ashley is 26.

NEW REICH CABINET PLEGGED TO PEACE

Former Enemies of Republic Swear Fealty, Renounce Idea of Revenge.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—Consolidation of the German government renunciation of any spirit of revenge, and a policy of understanding with all nations of the world, were declared as the policy of the new German cabinet introduced to the Reichstag today by Chancellor Marx.

Some of the members of the cabinet were formerly bitter enemies of the republic, but the chancellor declared that all had unanimously pledged themselves to uphold the Weimar constitution.

"It is the unanimous will of the new government to safeguard, respect and honor the existing constitution in its entirety, its executive organ, and its national colors," said Chancellor Marx.

"Every attempt, violent or otherwise, illegal, to change it will be regarded as high treason."

Marx said neither he or Dr. Stresemann would have consented to remain in office if they had not been given the absolute guarantee of all members of the new cabinet unanimously approving the continuation of the foreign policy instituted at Geneva and Locarno.

"My allusion to Locarno and the League of nations does not mean that the government lessens its efforts to foster relations with other nations, especially the Soviet republic and the great American nation," said Marx.

"Our policy of understanding includes all the people of the world."
The chancellor pledged co-operation in the proposed world economic conference and demanded the withdrawal of all allied troops from the Rhineland.

METHODISTS' THUMBS DOWN ON SMITH, RITCHIE

Also Jim Reed, But Board Says
It Would Back Walsh For President, Lauds McAdoo.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Governor Al Smith of New York, governor Ritchie of Maryland and Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, today were placed on the "blacklist" of presidential candidates by the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals.

They are "unacceptable" because they are wets, the board said.
On the other hand, Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, and William Gibbs McAdoo, because they are dries, are acceptable to the board. Either the board declared, would be supported by the organized dries.

Senator Walsh is a "living refutation of the charge that Catholicism is a bar to popularity among Protestants in the United States," the board added.

McAdoo was characterized as a man of "outstanding courage and biasing honesty."
The board made no mention of Republican candidates.

JUDGE, IN BED, HOLDS COURT

Fractured Hip Imprisons
Rhode Island Jurist But Doesn't Stop Him.

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 3.—Lawyers stood at the bedside of Judge Edward W. Blodgett, 70, of the Rhode Island superior court bench. Arguments began.

It was a novel setting for a court but his bedroom will be Judge Blodgett's session until he completely recovers from injuries received in an automobile accident.

The justice was run down by an automobile in October. For weeks he lay with a plaster cast about his fractured hip.

But as soon as the physician removed the cast, Judge Blodgett had posted in Providence courthouse a notice to the effect that until further notice he would hear motions and arguments at his bedside.

SENATE CALLS FOR INSIDE MEX STORY

Asks State Department For Names of Oil Concerns But Leaves Loophole Open

Washington, Feb. 3.—The Senate this afternoon called on the State Department to produce the "inside story" of the controversy with Mexico over the New Mexican oil and laws.

Adopting the Norris resolution by a unanimous vote, the Senate asked for the names of all American individuals and corporations holding oil concessions in Mexico, the names of those accepting the Mexican land laws, and the names of those refusing.

Quiz On Advice
The resolution also asked what "advice or instructions" the department had given those companies refusing to obey the law, and for copies of all correspondence between the department and "it concerns over the law."

At the instance of Senator Curtis, Republican of Kansas, the Senate gave the Department an opportunity to refuse the information if it was "incompatible with the public interest."

YOUNG JOHN DODGE LOSES FORTUNE FIGHT

Son of Air Millionaire Not

Detroit, Feb. 3.—John Duval Dodge, son of the late John F. Dodge, today lost his fight in Circuit Court to share in the $7,500,000 estate of his half sister, Anna Margaret Dodge, who died in 1924, at the age of four.

Attorneys for John Duval Dodge intimated they would appeal the decision to the Michigan Supreme Court. John Duval, after his father's death January 14, 1920, forced his family to settle with him for $1,500,000 cash after his father had cut him off with a yearly income of $1,800.

British Cabinet to Decide By Tomorrow Whether to Risk Great Conflict; U. S. Might Be Drawn in Against Its Will; Canton- ese Likely to Hasten Shanghai's Capture; U. S. Forces Moving.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Hope of a peaceful settlement of the Chinese problem, which had been growing in government circles here, disappeared almost completely today when England's open defiance of the Canton and Peking governments became known.

Although officials withheld formal comment on the London cabinet's refusal to submit to Chinese demands for the withdrawal of the 29,000 troops now steaming toward Shanghai, there was apparent an undercurrent of feeling that the break might eventually lead to war on a major scale.

Particularly disquieting was the news that the Nationalist army would make a supreme effort to capture Shanghai before the arrival of the British defense force. If this plan is carried out, the British undoubtedly will have to resort to open hostilities to protect their nationals, and with American citizens in virtually the same predicament in Shanghai this country may be drawn in a conflict against its will.

This government, it was said today, will not curtail its movement of additional troops and Marines toward China despite the report of Admiral C. S. Williams, commander of the Asiatic fleet who said that the danger of riots and other hostile demonstrations along the Yangtze valley had been considerably lessened. As long as there remains even a remote threat against the safety of Americans in China the government will keep in force the measures already taken for their protection.

To Ignore Somers Resolution
Meanwhile the State Department showed no signs of wavering its stand on treaty or other negotiations. Officials reiterated that the next move must come from across the Pacific and that no further steps will be taken to express this government's willingness to negotiate.

This was taken to mean that the Somers resolution now before the House, which calls upon the President to name commissioners to deal with the Chinese will not change the present policy unless unforeseen circumstances make such a change imperative.

May Decide on Diversion.
London, Feb. 3.—The British cabinet is considering the diversion of the thousands of troops now en route to Shanghai, it was admitted officially today. No decision is expected to be reached before tomorrow.

Official statements declared that the eventual destination of the troops would depend upon the situation in Shanghai and that if there is any danger of a situation arising there similar to that at Hankow there will be no diversion of the forces but they will proceed to their original destination.

If the troops are diverted they will be sent to Hong Kong and Wei Hai Wei.

The foreign office is drafting new and more complete instructions to Owen O'Malley, British charge, who continues his negotiations with Eugene Chen, Chinese Nationalist leader. These negotiations are at present confined to possible assurances of the safety of Shanghai, which would make it possible for the British to accede to the Chinese demands and divert the large defense force now on sea.

May Attack City Soon.
Reports from the Chinese fighting zone today indicated that the Cantonese forces may try to forestall the purpose of Great Britain in sending large numbers of troops to Shanghai by making a supreme effort to capture the international city from the Sun Chuang-Fang forces before the British troops en route can arrive, according to dispatches from Shanghai.

It was reported that General Chiang Kai-Shek, commander-in-chief of the Cantonese, is ill and confined to a hospital.

UPSHAW IS SHOCKED BY BROWNING TRIAL

Washington, Feb. 3.—Edward West Browning, the New Yorker who is seeking separation from his wife, "Peaches" Heenan Browning, has become "exhibit A" for the reform forces of Congress.

The Browning trial is to be the starting point for a new reform wave, it was disclosed by Rep. Upshaw, Democrat of Georgia, sergeant of the reform squad.

The immediate object is to prohibit the details of salacious divorce cases from reaching the public through the printed word. Upshaw would bar mail privileges to accomplish this result.

The Browning case is being invoked in the campaign for national regulation of the movie and against sex plays and magazines.

U. S. FEARS GREAT WAR FROM TROOP LANDING

crusiers, the Richmond, Cincinnati and Marblehead, were due to sail from the Canal Zone for station at Honolulu, where they will be available for emergency use in Chinese waters.

The U. S. transport Chaumont was due to sail from San Diego with the Fourth Regiment of United States Marines, for Guam and other Pacific points. The Chaumont will carry 1,200 marines for distribution at strategic points, to be held in readiness. The Chaumont will join the Asiatic station.

A detachment of more than 250 marines today was ordered direct to Shanghai to assist in protecting American lives and property.

Rear Admiral C. S. Williams, commander of the Asiatic fleet, advised the Navy Department that 150 marines on the U. S. Goldstar from Guam and three officers and 91 men from the Philippines have been ordered transferred to the U. S. S. Peccas, a tanker, which will sail tomorrow from the Philippines.

SEEK MAN WHO BEATS GIRLS WITH IRON PIPE

Boston, Feb. 3.—A youth, believed by police to be wanted in Lynn and Cambridge for slugging women over the head with a piece of pipe—the same weapon used to kill Maybelle Matheson in West Roxbury—is being hunted by police. His latest victim, Miss Alice Queney, 18, of Roxbury, was struck down last night a few feet from her home. The man dropped the iron pipe as a crowd pursued him.

DEMAND FOR TICKETS PLEASES COMMITTEE

Records Broken For C. of C. Banquet—N. B. Richards, Toastmaster—The Menu.

"Nothing succeeds like success." The Chamber of Commerce committee on the annual banquet is learning the truth of this axiom. Everyone feels that this year's banquet is to be a "humdinger" and the responses to the ticket invitations have been correspondingly large. Never before has the sale of tickets at this time been so great.

Steward Melville L. Stacy has announced the following menu which has Chef Osano's guarantee of excellence behind it:

- Cream of Celery Soup Olives Pickles Fried Filet of Sole Rolls Sweet Butter Half Broiled Spring Chicken French Fried Potatoes Green Peas Cranberry Sauce Frozen Pudding—Small Cakes Coffee Sautéed Nuts Smokes The Toastmaster

The competition for the privilege of acting as toastmaster was active, and the committee was somewhat puzzled as to which of the numerous applicants to accept. It finally decided upon Melville L. Richards, and it is felt that the choice is a wise one.

The committee wants to emphasize the fact that the dinner service will begin at 6:30 o'clock, and not at 6:45 or 7:00; also that those desiring to make their table parties should not delay as those not making up their own tables will have to be located in groups according to the best judgment of the seating committee.

The sale and mailing of tickets will start Tuesday noon, February 8th. It is even possible that they may be closed earlier as the seating capacity of the hall is but 224.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

It won't be long now before the aspiring elnder path warriors begin doing their stuff. The track team begins its "spring training" before candidates for any other team playing spring sports. It is quite necessary that all members of the track squad be in A-1 condition, and the only way to accomplish this is by persistent training.

Usually track practice is begun on the indoor track, before it is warm enough to practice out of doors. Coach "Pete" Wigren has issued no official call for candidates as yet, but some will begin practicing soon.

If the weather permits the skating carnival, which was postponed last week because of the bad condition of the ice at Center Springs will be held this Saturday. There are a large number of high school skaters entered, and all are anxious to have the carnival take place this week.

NEW HANDBOOK FOR BROWNIE LEADERS

Little Sisters of Girl Scouts to Have Revised Program

Although Brownies have always been thought of as merry little brown-clad mythical folk, as many as 500 real live Brownies have been discovered scattered throughout the United States.

They are little girls from seven to ten years of age who are not old enough to be Girl Scouts but who are learning the underlying ideals of Girl Scouting.

Too Little Imagination

"Much of the world nowadays seems to be suffering from a slow atrophy of the imagination," declares Miss Edith Ballinger Price, well known writer, in a new book on Brownies, called "Brown Book for Brown Owls," just issued by the Girl Scout Publication Department.

"Little is left to our imagination now," says Miss Price. "Our children, listening to radio, watching movies, playing with perfected mechanical toys, are often sophisticated little beings who have lost, before they ever knew its joys, that wonder of life—imagination. With the Brownies people, that magic which beautifies life is imagination, with the Older Folk it may grow perhaps to vision, a quality the world sorely needs. There is a definitely practical program of useful activities connected with our Brownie Game, but in carrying them out we must never for a moment forget the other side of the picture, where the Brownies show as a receptive, imaginative, creative spirit."

"The Brownie program in its relation to Girl Scouting," states Dean Sarah Louise Arnold, president of the Girl Scouts, "is like the kindergarten in its relation to the school."

Outdoor Program

"Brownies play out-of-doors, they have their little symbols, their groups, their order-of-goings. The whole spirit of the game is the spirit of play, with good fellowship, courtesy, kindness, friendliness always in the air, and joy the keynote of all the activities.

RICHARDS DEBUNKS AMATEUR TENNIS

Blames Association, Hints Tilden and Frenchmen Are Really Professionals.

New York, Feb. 3.—Charging the United States Lawn Tennis Association with exploiting its amateur net stars until they no longer are of value either to tennis or themselves, Vincent Richards today exploded his attack on tennis professionals, at one of necessity and openly hinted that Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, French stars, were far from amateurs. By inference, he indicated that Bill Tilden was not a Simon-Pure, but, because he was capitalizing his name in newspaper articles, "I suspect that when I wrote articles, they hired me largely to obtain the name of Vincent Richards, the tennis player," he said.

"If this was true, I was capitalizing my position as an amateur player. I have intelligence enough to realize that Tilden wouldn't be a good enough newspaperman to earn his living at it if it wasn't for the fact that he is a great player.

Frenchmen's Incomes

"Benson earns $4,000 a year as the representative of the top class and he won't play in the tournament abroad unless the Dunlop ball is used. Cochet owns a sports goods store."

According to Richards, the Tennis Association demands three to five months' advance time out of each year and will not accept of his expenses. He quoted as an instance his last Olympic trip, in which he spent $750 over flat expenses and the association reimbursed him for only half of it.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS GREET MRS. BENGIS

Surprise Oracle of Manchester Camp at Her Home—Present Her With Table Lamp.

A delightful affair was the surprise party given last night to honor Mrs. Carl Bengis, oracle of Manchester camp, No. 2640, Royal Neighbors, of 514 West Main street, who was the successful merger of this camp with Laurel No. 2640. The name of one camp and the number of the other was retained for the combined lodges, as $200 real live Brownies have credit is due in no small measure to Mrs. Bengis for her efficient and untiring work.

One of the neighbors made an appointment to call on the past oracle at her home on Park street to make sure of her presence. After the entrance, the bell rang and the gathering dispersed upon Mrs. Bengis in a body taking her completely by surprise. She gave them a cordial welcome and soon the fun began.

Those who contributed entertaining numbers were Mrs. Margaret Shea, who sang several solos, Miss Helen Fredericksen, piano numbers, Miss Esther Metcalf danced the Charleston and Mrs. Agnes Messier and Mrs. Margaret Brown danced the Highland Fling. Mrs. Brown also gave several humorous readings Miss Fredericksen played for the chorus singing of popular songs and for dancing the Virginia reel which was enjoyed later in the evening.

The neighbors brought with them a generous supply of salads, cold meats, cake and other good things and when they were ready to serve the buffet lunch, Mrs. Daniel Griffin escorted Mrs. Bengis to the dining-room and in behalf of the ladies presented her with a beautiful table lamp, which they had concerted up and lighted. The Grace of the camp also gave to Mrs. Bengis two dozen carnations. She feelingly thanked the ladies for their gifts and the friendly regard which prompted them to so honor her.

IMPERSONATOR KNOWS 120,000 WORDS BY HEART

Edwin M. Whitney, of Boston, well known impersonator, who yesterday gave an entertainment at the local high school, has given over 5,000 recitals during his twenty-five years of platform work. This does not include lectures and special talks on various subjects.

Mr. Whitney has memorized ten plays. The average man speaks about 100 words per minute. Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Whitney spoke for over two hours. This would make at least 20,000 words which he repeated from memory in "Turn of Mind." The ten plays means that Mr. Whitney has over 120,000 words memorized.

HIGH SCHOOL ENTERS ORATORICAL CONTEST

Students Here to Try For $1,000 in Cash and Trip to Switzerland.

A cash prize of $1,000 and a free chartered trip to Switzerland. That's the prize which will be presented to the winner of the Inter-scholastic National Oratorical contest this year.

The preliminary tryouts will be held at the high school here from April 5 to 9 and the winner will receive a bronze medal. A. N. Potter is in charge. County tryouts will be in West Hartford; state tryouts at the Capitol at Hartford; district tryouts in New York City and national competition in Washington, D. C. The prizes in the order mentioned are bronze medal, $50, $100, $500 and then the $1,000 prize with the free trip to Switzerland.

Paul Beckard won the tryouts here last year and Sherwood Mercer of the same school, both lost out in the county tryouts.

ABOUT TOWN

There will be a meeting this evening at eight o'clock in the Wapping school hall of all members in the fifth and sixth districts of the Connecticut Valley Tobacco association.

The regular meeting of the Amaranth will be held at 7:30 this evening in Odd Fellows hall, to allow time for the card party to begin at 8:15. Members have donated the prize articles which will be awarded the winners in both bridge and whist. Friends are invited.

Members of the Manchester City Club will meet tonight at nine o'clock for their regular February meeting. Committees will be appointed for the annual banquet which will be held in April. A luncheon will be served after tonight's meeting, and it is expected that there will be some entertainment.

William Rubnow and Mrs. Rose Kronick of Rubnow's, have returned from a buying trip to New York. Rubnow's will add a children's millinery department to the store. Mr. and Mrs. Kronick who has been with the firm since 1923 will be in charge of the new department.

The P. of H. Whist club will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Ernest Newcomb of East Center street.

NEW BRUNSWICK GUIDE

A MANCHESTER GUEST

Bert Moore to Visit N. B. Richards—Sportsmen Invited to Meet Him.

Bert Moore, famous New Brunswick guide, is coming to Manchester next week and will be the guest of N. B. Richards on Tuesday and Wednesday. Mr. Richards visited New Brunswick last fall and hunted all through that section. Mr. Moore was his guide at that time and it is by way of returning that visit that he is coming here next week.

Mr. Moore is perhaps one of the best known guides in that country. He has leased from the New Brunswick provincial government 400 miles of virgin forest, in which there are plenty of moose and deer and in the brooks salmon and trout.

On Wednesday evening, February 23 a grand picture depicting life and nature in the New Brunswick woods will be shown in the lower Cheney hall. Mr. Moore will explain the pictures. Every member of the Manchester Fish and Game club is invited as well as the members of the roof and gun club. Mr. Richards says these pictures are well worth seeing and every hunter and fisherman should make an effort to be present. No admission will be charged to showing of the picture.

During Mr. Moore's visit here it is Mr. Richards' intention to take him through the Cheney silk mills as well as the plant of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company in New Haven.

Julia and Rose Finkbein have bought the Edward J. Hill lots Nos. 21 and 22 in the Greenacres tract.

OPEN FORUM
6 CHURCH MEMBERS
ANSWER FORUM NOTE

The following is an answer to "Non-Church Member" whose letter appeared in The Open Forum yesterday:

We, a band of church members who attended the lecture to which you refer in your letter in The Open Forum of our daily paper, wish to state that we think it quite evident that you couldn't have attended the lecture and thus so terribly misunderstood Col. Agnew's statements.

In the first place the writer says that Col. Agnew stated that there were 10,000 Godless people in this town, and that the good people of this town were so worried about their morals and social welfare that they have gone to the trouble of conducting a mission especially for their benefit.

We wish to answer this argument by saying that this mission is for the re-awakening of the present church members as well as to bring in those who are outside.

In regard to your insinuations regarding criminal acts committed inside the church, we wish you would be more explicit. We cannot answer an insinuation. We don't know of any state's prison office committed in this town within the last few weeks, either by Godless or God-fearing people.

"Non-church member" says that what the church needs to do is to convert the church members. There seems to be a mistaken idea among those outside the church, that when a person joins the church they become perfect, socially and morally. This is not true.

In joining the church a member does not claim to be perfect as no one is perfect, but he states his desire to lead a better life, with the help of God.

The writer says that there are many Godless people outside the church because there are so many hypocrites inside. It seems to us that this is a pretty weak excuse, for not doing what one knows to be right, and weaker than that.

Perhaps if some of you God-fearing people as you call yourself would join the church, you might help to clear up the hypocrisy that prevents you from joining.

SIX CHURCH MEMBERS.
TROLLEY SERVICE

Editor The Evening Herald: I read the letter by "Traveling Salesman" and wondered why that title was chosen, and after reading "Stranger in Towns" poetry I read it again. He does not say our service is O. K. He says that considering conditions in other places, "Manchester hasn't so much to complain of after all."

Are not the titles to letters supplied by someone in the newspaper offices? If so, isn't "Stranger" unfair in blaming "Salesman" for said "title"?

Rotten is another term that has been applied to our trolley service. Our trolley service is not O. K., neither is it rotten.

As I have recently come here perhaps I notice things residents overlook. T. S. is right about conditions at the irregular corner when transferring. I've had to wait when transferring from the Green for northbound autos to pass. The 8-foot law does not effect them.

Whitney Takes 14 Parts
In Play Before 800 Here

Eight hundred persons sat for nearly two hours and a half yesterday afternoon in the High school assembly hall to see and hear Edwin M. Whitney, famous character impersonator from Boston. And this audience—a capacity one—was treated to what is believed to have been the best entertainment at the local school in many years.

Mr. Whitney took the parts of fourteen characters, ten male and four female, in the four-act comedy "Turn to the Right."

It was the opinion among the students here that the play was more interesting than the average play produced by a full cast. The fact that Mr. Whitney took the parts of fourteen characters, all contrasting with each other, gives one an idea of the complexity of the work he accomplished. It is no easy feat to memorize a complete play, let alone the characteristics of each actor.

Facial Control. It was Mr. Whitney's ability to interpret these characters that made his efforts so successful. He has remarkable facial control and also the knack of changing his voice, and actions almost instantaneously to keep up a constant conversation between the actors.

There was barely a pause as Mr. Whitney changed himself from the role of the Deacon to the role of the village Shylock with his harsh voice.

Explains Methods. While the average person was amazed at the wonderful ability of Mr. Whitney, he attributes his success to self-appreciation, "appreciation of memory" as he calls it. Mr. Whitney said he knows ten plays that he can give at a moment's notice without reference to the books.

His argument is that a person should appreciate the good qualities and overlook the other ones. He gave this advice to the members of the Soc and Buskin, Dramatic club following the entertainment. This organization was responsible for bringing Mr. Whitney to Manchester.

Story of Play. "Turn to the Right" is a three-act comedy with a prologue. It was written by John E. Hazard and Winchell Smith and played on Broadway for a long run. Its story shows the tremendous power for good that lies in a perfect, clean soul. That soul belonged to Mrs. Bascom. Mr. Whitney plays her part to perfection as he also does in the parts of her son Joe and the two crooks, Muggs and Gilly. The part the villains take are not very villainous but that of the lawbreakers is lovable.

The comedy opens in the shadow of Sing Sing prison. In a pawnbroker's shop where Joe Bascom, just released from prison, is purchasing a suit of clothes. He has served a year for a crime he believed he had committed while under the influence of liquor. At the shop, he meets two former prison pals, Muggs, the pickpocket and Gilly, the safe-blower. They tell Joe of an "inside tip" on a horse race that will net them a pretty sum—if they only had the money to bet. Joe refuses to steal money as they wish. He departs, taking the first turn to the right.

The scene then shifts to the living room of the Bascom home where Joe's mother, who is unaware of her son's whereabouts for the past year, prays daily for his return. Deacon Tillinger, the village Shylock threatens to take possession of the property because Mrs. Bascom is unable to raise what she owes him. He wishes to gain possession of the farm because of a fine peach orchard thereon.

Joe turns up unexpectedly without knowing the extent of the debt, offers to pay it. He is "broke." Muggs and Gilly, riding in a freight train, are left on a siding in the town where the Bascoms live and, in search of food, come to the Bascom home. Joe is afraid they will betray his secret.

Muggs and Gilly learn of Joe's predicament and break into Deacon Tillinger's store and steal $125 from the safe. The bill is paid to the enraged Deacon who is finally "rough-housed" out of the Bascom home by Muggs who, in the process, picks the Deacon's pocket of the $125 and later puts it back in the safe. Later the Deacon discovers his loss. Joe is in love with the Deacon's daughter, Elsie, and that makes matters more complicated.

Somewhat the Deacon gets wise to Muggs and Gilly and calls the sheriff. But it develops that Lester Morgan, a friend of the Deacon, is the man who committed the crime for which Joe served a year and he is arrested. Joe, in the meantime, has earned enough money from the peach crop to pay $125 but Muggs again slips $125 into the Deacon's pocket thus making the village Shylock believe he had not lost the money at all, so Tillinger returns $125 to Joe and apologizes.

The play ends delightfully with Joe marrying his old sweetheart, Elsie, and with Muggs and Gilly marrying Betty, Joe's sister, and Jessie, her girl chum.

NINE AUTO DRIVERS
LOSE THEIR LICENSES

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out today at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are nine names on the list. Two cases were appealed. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

CONNECTICUT ACT OF 1919 DECLARED VOID

Law Enabling Cities to Pay Above Contract For War Time Work Invalid.

Hartford, Feb. 3.—Judge L. J. Nickerson, of superior court today declared unconstitutional an act passed by the 1919 General Assembly which would allow municipalities to increase above the contract price the compensation paid for construction during the World War. This decision automatically ends the suit of Dennis A. Blakelee & Sons, of New Haven, against the Hartford Water Board, asking $169,000 extra compensation for construction of a dam at New Hartford in 1915 and during the war. The original contract price was about $750,000.

Judge Nickerson finds that the 24th amendment to the state constitution expressly prohibits increase of compensation over the contract price agreed to by cities and contractors. He holds that the legislature cannot grant power expressly prohibited by the constitution.

BRITAIN'S WAY OUT.

The firm determination of the Chinese, apparently of all parties, northern as well as southern, to prevent the landing of the British expeditionary force at Shanghai, would seem to be likely to bear fruit of frustration for the ill-considered proceeding. Not only the Chinese but the various powers interested in the Shanghai foreign settlement are opposed to the assumption of military rights in that city by the British government. England, in this matter, stands alone.

This, however, does not mean that Britain cannot land troops in China. Hong Kong is open to her. Hong Kong is British territory by cession. It was ceded in 1841, the transfer being ratified by treaty the next year. That deal involved the island city alone. Eighteen years later the five-mile peninsula of Kowloon, just across narrow Hong Kong Roads, was added to the grant. Then, in 1898, the Chinese government leased to Britain, for ninety-nine years, 376 square miles of territory on the mainland, behind Kowloon.

All this is, of course, genuinely British territory so far as treaty agreements can make it so. It provides ample room and facilities for as many troops as Great Britain could transfer to the Orient and for as long a period as she might care to keep them there.

That this region is a long distance from the Shanghai area and quite removed from the present scene of disturbance, may make it of little value as a tactical base with reference to the "defense of Shanghai," but it does provide an excellent medium for the saving of Great Britain's face.

Apparently she need not call back her troops, nor drop them off in India. There is opportunity for a wonderful military picnic back of Kowloon.

DIRT.

Those sophisticates who have experienced Lieberkranz cheese know that it is nutritious, a good food, though of all known comestibles its odor is the worst. Kipling's British soldier does not deny that in his place the "commisariat camel" is of the utmost possible military value, even if he does smell "most awful vile."

Nobody has ever proposed to suppress dynamite cheese nor yet to slaughter all the camels in the world because they are offensive to delicate olfactories.

We are not impressed by the fundamental virtue of proposals to censor dirty plays, dirty magazines or dirty divorce court news, either by boards or by prohibitory laws.

Not that we claim the pornographic magazine possess much of the nutritive value of Lieberkranz nor that their stench is not greater; not that we hold that plays like "The Drag" possess discernible merit behind the fog of stink that beclouds them; not that it is our notion that a "Peaches" scandal improves anything of anybody in any conceivable way. But the whole business of publicity on the proceedings of society at large is essential to human education and human development, just as the business of explorative surgery and diagnosis is essential to the physical well being of the race.

Censorship is a tricky plant. Give it root in the garden of human affairs and very soon we should be fighting a weedy growth of extraordinary virulence, for the very life of the principle of publicity.

People flock to dirty plays and dirty pictures, revel in dirty tabloids and read dirty scandals because they are born with a liking for dirt. It is a question whether it is not sometimes just as well to supply it to them ready made as to require them to manufacture their own.

FORD'S BILLION.

If Henry and Edsel Ford should accept one of these offers of a billion dollars for their business, which would almost seem to be coming in on every mail, what on earth could they do with the money provided it were paid, as it is coolly stated it would be, through the efforts of a large number of big banks?

And what on earth, by the same token, would a bunch of bankers do with the Ford Motor company?

One of the things that conceivably might happen—to give the imagination unleashed flight—would be the turning of the Fords, with their billion dollars of capital, to the business of aviation on some brand new line not included in any present activity of the company and so not under any inhibition through the sale.

The Fords are not magicians, but they know how to arrive at a purpose. And suppose they established the purpose of putting present day flier riders a-wing at a cost of a few hundred dollars—perfecting some flying device whereby the individual could alight in his own backyard or even at his own street door as easily as a gull on a rock. And suppose they accomplished it. Please, then what would become of the value of the automobile shops owned by the bankers?

We should hate to see the Fords set out to fill the air with flying human beings, because we have a secret dread that they would accomplish it, as they have succeeded in filling the roads with too many motorists. No doubt the day will come when strangers will pound on your roof in the middle of the night to inquire the compass bearings to Willimantic. But we should prefer that that period should come after we have passed on. The birds look better to us than organ grinders and bootleggers over our heads.

We trust that Ford will not take that billion either now or soon.

DIESEL LOCOMOTIVES.

Much interest will be aroused, no doubt, by the announcement that the Boston and Maine railroad has ordered from the Krupp at Essen, Germany, the first Diesel locomotive to be tried in the United States. Likewise, no doubt, there will be considerable wagging of heads among those who, having a little knowledge of this kind of engine, will be inclined to doubt its availability for American railroad work.

The Diesel internal combustion engine, burning the cheapest and most undesirable grades of practically refuse oil, is unquestionably a most economical power unit as far as cost of fuel goes, that cost being a mere fraction of the expenditure for an equal amount of steam power from coal. But aside from a comparatively small number of surface marine installations, what Americans know about the Diesel is confined to our navy's experience with it in submarines. There it is well known to be a pretty delicate proposition, and engine trouble is still almost as common to submarines as it was twenty years ago to automobiles.

But it should be remembered that the building of a Diesel engine for a submarine and the building of a Diesel locomotive are entirely different problems. What causes the trouble with the submarine engines is not the principle of the mechanism but the handicaps that have to be met in the matter of weight and size in proportion to the power demanded.

The submarine engine has to meet requirements of lightness and smallness of size which are well high insurmountable, and the highest mechanical and engineering expertness is unable to overcome a certain amount of risk in consequence.

In the building of a locomotive no such limitations are to be encountered. It is possible to make every part heavy enough to carry its strains with a liberal margin of safety. So that the comparative uncertainty of the submarine Diesel need not at all be reflected in the locomotive type embodying the same extremely valuable principle.

It is rather a wonder that American railroads have delayed as long as this in experimentation with the internal-combustion heavy oil locomotive. And it would not be in the least surprising if, within a comparatively few years, that type of engine would absolutely supplant the steam locomotive of today—and perhaps forestall and prevent, for a long time at least, further extension of the electrification idea.

FILLING IN THE TIME.

"Passengers on commercial aircraft eventually will be in direct communication with their homes and offices," gleefully announces a Washington dispatch, which explains that the United States Bureau of Standards is completing an exhaustive investigation of an aeronautical radio system by which it will be possible, some of these early days, to plug into the commercial telephone switchboards.

Which strikes us as perfectly delightful. One is so bored, don't you know, by the soporific tedium of buzzing through the air at the rate of a couple of hundred miles an hour and wondering whether the pilot is going to miss or hit the next mountain or church steeple, that it will be most enlivening to be able to call up the house and inquire if the cat has had its milk or the furnace fire was gone out.

Now if the Bureau of Standards or somebody else can only fix it so that we can also shoot elephants, witness a championship prize fight, drink a gallon of boiling gin and get a dozen or so of assorted divorces during a Boston to Chicago hop, we may be able to drag through the weary time, without becoming positively cold and clammy from ennui.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Feb. 3.—The belief of Chinese mobs that Chinese children were being killed in foreign missions and hospitals, as evidenced recently by riots endangering the lives of priests and others, is merely another outburst based on old superstitions.

A hundred years ago British and French diplomats were busy insuring protection for foreign missionaries in China and for converts to Christianity. Toleration clauses of this nature were inserted in various treaties.

These treaty clauses were far-reaching. They gave foreign powers a virtual protectorate over what ever natives embraced one or more sects of the Christian religion.

Trouble was caused by the claim of converts to be exempted from contributing to the cost of national ceremonies of a religious nature and by the efforts of priests to protect the converts from cupidity and injustice on the part of mandarins. First, the Chinese government and the Buddhist and Confucian literati began to oppose Christian activities. Then came the mobs.

In the sixties popular demonstrations began to break out on the basis of a belief that native converts performed black art rites on children, taking their eyes or their souls to use in making medicine. The lower class Chinese were then, as now perhaps, ready to believe almost anything of this nature. Accustomed to fervent worship of their ancestors, they became excited over reports that converts were required to desecrate the tablets of their forefathers. Missionaries were beaten or murdered and missions destroyed.

Meanwhile the Chinese government was complaining against the Christian activities, holding that they were breaking up established relations between the rulers and the people.

Rumors became current that children were being kidnapped for sale at the founding hospitals of Roman Catholic missions. The viceroy arranged a public inspection at Nanking to disprove these rumors, but the next month—June, 1870—similar stories were spread in Tientsin.

A mob, led by agitators, destroyed the French missionary buildings and massacred 10 Sisters of Mercy, the French consul, several other Frenchmen and a party of Russians mistaken for Frenchmen.

Sixteen of the rioters were condemned to death, and two leading local officials and 13 others condemned to banishment and approximately $400,000 was paid as an indemnity.

France undoubtedly would have acted more harshly had she not then been engaged in war with Germany.

Subsequent attempts to regulate the conduct of converts and to place the missionaries under control of the Chinese government were turned down by the French.

Although many missionaries have made themselves useful enough to take a place in the hearts of Chinese in their territory, Chinese human nature and superstition, as evidenced by these incidents in her past history, tend to demonstrate the peril in which the missionaries in the interior may now find themselves.

Old Master's

Darest thou now, Oh soul, Walk out with me toward that unknown region. Where neither ground is for feet nor any path to follow?

No map there, nor guide, Nor voice sounding, nor touch of human hand, Nor face with blooming flesh, nor lips, nor eyes are in that land.

'Know it, Oh soul, Nor dost thou, all is a blank before us—

All waits undreamed of in that region, that inaccessible land. Till when the ties loosen. All but the lies eternal. Time and Space,

Nor darkness, gravitation, sense, nor any bounds bounding us. Then we burst forth, we float, In Time and Space, Oh soul! prepared for them,

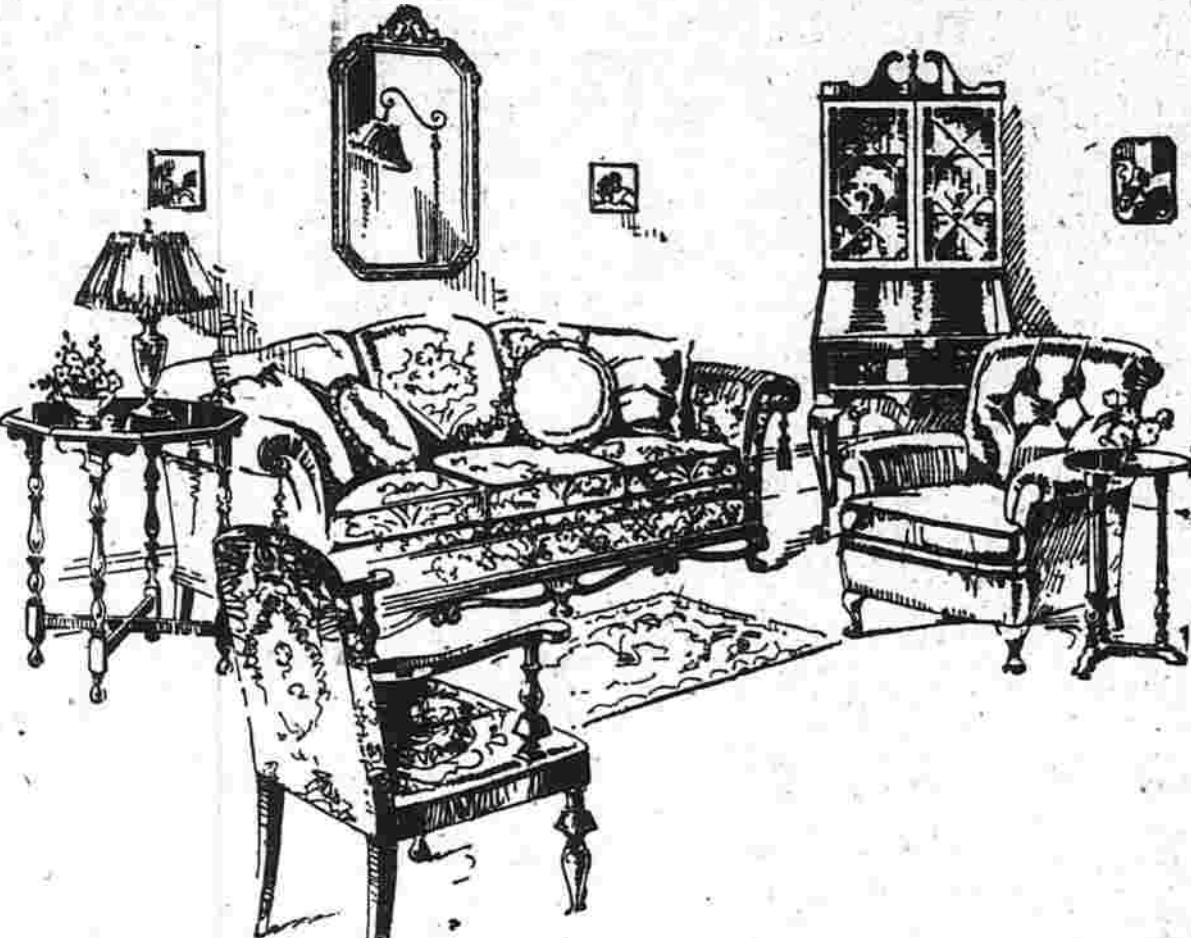

Equal, equipped at last (Oh joy! Oh fruit of all!) them! to fulfill, Oh soul!

—Walt Whitman: From "Leaves of Grass."

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 3.—A modern apartment house is rising in New York's Chinatown.

Long doomed by the inroads of commercialism, this may be the final blow to the Chinatown that was.

The new apartment rises in "Happy Alley," paradoxically named block of sinister memories.

Of all the grisly gang wars to be chronicled, some of the worst began and ended in "Happy Alley." The underworld once bore its bloody brood there, sending them forth from darkened basements and gloomy buildings.

This was the stamping ground of Jack Sirocco, and many of his mob.

But "Happy Alley" had a merry side, as well. Its beer shops, sordid as perhaps some of them were in their day, held many an Irish clogger, dancing heartily to the strains of an Italian accordion.

And don't forget—in "Happy Alley" was "Nigger Mike's," now famous because of Irving Berlin's apprenticeship. It was there, you may recall, that Berlin got his start as a singing waiter.

When the Irish left the Italians and Chinese began to come in. Then the Italians went and left it almost entirely to the Orientals and gangs were replaced by the henchmen of highlanders and later by the automatons of modern tong warfare.

There is plenty for the tourist steers to tell about as they take their charges through "Happy Alley." There is plenty to bring restless sleep to visitors from snug farmtowns.

The shrewd young Chinese have long since built their "noodle joints" into ornate show places for the tourists and many have made such comfortable fortunes that they have moved into Broadway, where every third corner now flaunts lanterns and gold signs, while jazzbands blare at noon hour and midnight alike.

In fact, it took the products of Chinatown, rather than Broadway, to popularize the moon tinted dancant.

A THOUGHT

Such a medicine is Dare's Mentha-Pepsin, a delightful elixir that is sold by Magnell Drug Co. and other live druggists with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't greatly help you your money will be gladly returned. It has helped thousands—it will no doubt help you.—adv.

WORLD WAR VETS.
MAY BE REINSURED

Details of Plan Whereby Ex-Soldiers May Be Reinstated, Given Here.

President Coolidge issued a proclamation on January 15, 1927 designating the week of January 31st to February 7th as "Reinstatement Week" during which time a national movement is being started by the U. S. Veterans' Bureau to inform all veterans of the World War of their rights to reinstate government insurance, which they allowed to lapse. Unless ex-service men reinstate their insurance prior to July 2nd, 1927 they lose their rights to reinstatement of their insurance.

A veteran in good health may apply on or before July 2, 1927 for the reinstatement of all or any part of his term insurance, in multiples of $500 but not less than $1000, by submitting an application for reinstatement and report of complete physical examination together with a remittance covering two monthly premiums on the amount of insurance to be reinstated. If term insurance is reinstated by a veteran in good health for the purpose of conversion, only one monthly premium at the term rate and the first monthly quarterly, semi-annual, or annual premium at the converted rate on the amount of insurance to be converted is required.

As to Health
If the veteran is not in good health and his physical disability is the result of injury or disease suffered, contracted, or aggravated in the service during the period of the World War, he may apply for reinstatement of all or any part of his insurance, in multiples of $500 but not less than $1000, provided he is not permanently and totally disabled, upon the payment of all back monthly premiums which would have become payable if the insurance had not lapsed, with interest at the rate of five per cent per annum, compounded annually. If a veteran who is not in good health at the time of application is unable to pay all or any part of the back monthly premiums with interest, if he will furnish proof satisfactory to the director of his inability to pay, the amount of such premiums and interest will be placed as an interest-bearing indebtedness against the policy. The applicant must also submit with his application a remittance sufficient to cover the premium for the month of reinstatement and the first premium on the converted policy if the insurance is to be reinstated and converted. A Form (763) will be used in submitting proof of inability to pay premiums with interest. This form must be sworn to before a Notary Public or other official authorized to administer oaths and provided with a seal.

The Last Date
Particular stress is laid upon the fact that July 2, 1927 is the last date for a veteran to reinstate and convert his insurance and, in the case of a veteran carrying term insurance at the present time and fails to convert same on or before July 2, 1927, his insurance will automatically lapse.

There are six plans of converted insurance as follows: Ordinary Life, 20-Payment Life, 30-Payment Life, 20-Year Endowment and Addendum at the age of 62. In addition to the foregoing forms of insurance, a Five-Year Convertible Term Policy has been authorized by the Act of Congress on July 2, 1926. This policy provides for a level premium rate during a period of five years and thereafter, beginning with the first day of the sixty-first month, the premium rate required for an Ordinary Life Policy at the then attained age of the insured. This Five-Year Convertible Term policy is particularly made to care for those particularly service men who are now carrying term insurance, and, who, for financial reasons, will be unable to convert their present term insurance on July 2nd.

Physical Examinations
All applicants for reinstatement and conversion are obliged to undergo a physical examination. However such examination may be had without any cost to the applicant provided he applies to the examining physician at the office of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau.

Local applicants may obtain full information on various forms of insurance and will be supplied with necessary blanks by getting in touch with James A. Irvine, Welfare Officer for the Dilworth Corbett Post No. 102 American Legion.

A suitcase on wheels is a recent invention. The carrier folds up when not in use and only the small wheels project.

SOME WOMEN ALWAYS ATTRACT

You want to be beautiful. You want the tireless energy, fresh complexion and pep of youth. Then let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets keep your system free from the poisons caused by clogged bowels and torpid liver. For 20 years, men and women suffering from stomach troubles, pimples, listlessness and headaches have taken Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a successful substitute for calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients, mixed with olive oil, known by their olive color. They act easily upon the bowels without griping. They cleanse the system and tone up the liver. Keep youth and its many gifts. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets tonight. How much better you will feel—look. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Drugists.

Your Income Tax

In making out their income-tax returns for the year 1926, taxpayers are advised by the Bureau of Internal Revenue carefully to present their claims with regard to deductions for losses. To be allowed such claims must conform closely to the wording of the statute. Losses are deductible if incurred in a taxpayer's trade or business, in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with the taxpayer's trade or business, or if arising from fires, storms, shipwrecks, or other casualty, or by theft, and if not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

Business losses result, usually, from the purchase and sale of merchandise. Such losses are ascertained by means of inventories, which are required whenever in the opinion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue their use is necessary to determine the income of any taxpayer.

The cost of capital assets, less adjustment for depreciation and salvage value, may be deducted from gross income if their usefulness suddenly is terminated, and they are disposed of. For example, a manufacturer may be compelled to scrap machinery because it has become inadequate or obsolete. He may deduct the loss sustained, if he has sold, abandoned, or otherwise permanently parted with the machinery. Such loss must be charged off the books of the taxpayer and fully explained in his income tax return.

If a taxpayer demolishes a building used in his trade or business and replaces it he may deduct the loss sustained. But if he buys the site of a new building, land upon which is located an old building, demolition of the old building is not considered a loss, and therefore is not deductible. The value of real estate, exclusive of the old improvements, is presumed to be equal to the purchase price of the land and buildings plus the cost of removing the useless building.

WAPPING

Frank Pratt is just recovering from a recent attack of grip. Frank Birdsey called on friends and relatives in Warehouse Point on Tuesday of this week.

Last Saturday evening the Simsbury quintet did not fulfill its engagement for the basketball game, and so all money was refunded, although the first team of the Wapping Y. M. C. A. boys played the All Stars of those in the hall.

Mrs. Frank C. Stoddard spent the week-end with relatives in Simsbury.

The annual business meeting of the Sunday School board which was to have met this evening, has been postponed until next week Thursday evening, Feb. 10, because many of the young people who are in the play, "The Path Across the Hills," are going to Staffordville this evening to present their play at the Federated Church.

A. C. Rose of Pleasant Valley has entered the Hartford Hospital for treatment.

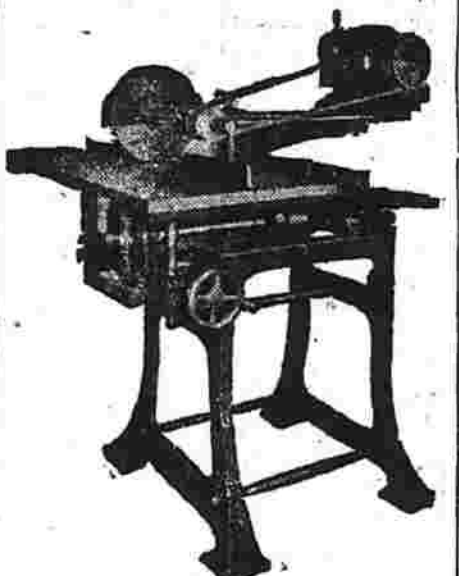

Mrs. Betty Stoughton had as her guest this week Miss Dorothy Brockett of Hartford.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team will play the Community Club seconds of Wapping at the Parish House on next Saturday evening, February 6th. Roger Spencer, one of the players on the Y. M. C. A. team, who injured his ankle about two weeks ago, although much improved, has not fully recovered the use of it.

SCIATIC-NEURITIS

The sciatic nerve, situated at the back of the hip joint is frequently the subject of Neuritis, giving rise to the painful disease Sciatica. The symptoms are intense pains which shoot down the thigh to the foot, often aggravated by walking, and with painful points along the course of the nerve, very tender to the touch.

The trouble is a very obstinate one and does not readily respond to ordinary treatment. It takes more than the usual pain sedative even to alleviate the pain. The best way to get relief from the persistent nerve racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenru Special Formula No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take them as directed and in about 24 hours you should be able to notice that they have considerably reduced, if not almost banished, all pain and soreness. Continue faithfully and in a reasonable time you should be able to work and rest in comfort once again. North End Pharmacy, So. Manchester Agents, Magneil Drug Co. keeps Allenru Special Formula No. 2 in stock all the time and sell lots of it.—adv.

Where QUALITY is Higher than Price
—and where the EVERY DAY prices are LOWER than the so-called "sale prices"

What is Thrift?

Thrift is the buying of the greatest value for the least money. It is something more than the avoidance of extravagance.

A good thrift principle consists of cutting to a minimum the three costs determining the price of merchandise. The production, the cost of handling and the cost of selling to you. You do not pay the extra amounts added usually to take care of the large overhead.

—and instead of selling our furniture at highest prices one month and at a so-called discount reduction another month . . . we price our furniture at the lowest possible level, based on these important economies: There is no discount confusion and therefore there are no disappointments.

And it is unique, this plan . . . for it offers our customers THRIFT opportunities which would be utterly impossible if we conducted this business in the usual retail manner.

. . . and the Garber Brothers' Furniture Establishment comprises all these principles of Thrift . . . and those who buy furniture here gain directly through this Economy . . . mainly in being able to buy and enjoy the wonderful comforts of "fine furniture" and pay no more than is usually charged for furniture of no particular quality.

While the outside of our building is plain and unassuming, and our entire establishment is housed in the same building, this plan in no way takes away the attractiveness of our display rooms. They are without a doubt now the largest furniture show rooms in Connecticut. 60,000 square feet devoted exclusively to display. It is a perpetual exposition of all that is new and fine in furniture. A selection so interesting that it is a revelation to choose furniture here:

- 1—Our location, while only a short block from Main Street, is just far enough away from the beaten path to save us thousands of dollars annually on rental overhead alone.
- 2—We manufacture our own living room furniture. This eliminates the usual manufacturers' and middleman's profit . . . and the result is BETTER QUALITY suites at much LOWER PRICES. These facilities provide us with manufacturing accommodations that are highly important to us and to those buying furniture here.
- 3—Our overhead and cost of handling is cut to a minimum because in this building is housed our attractive show rooms (60,000 square feet devoted exclusively to display) also our living room suite factory, our warehouse, shipping department and finishing department.
- 4—Lack of show windows, pretentious surroundings and unnecessary frills also saves many, many dollars.

Our interior decorating department can help you in many ways; of course without any obligation on your part. Courteous diligent attention is given every person whether just visiting or making a purchase:

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Nathan Forrest (10)

Enraged at Forrest's defeat of Sturgis' forces, General Sherman sent Generals Smith and Mower, with 15,000 men against him. The odds were too great and Forrest knew it. Withdrawing, he conceived a raid on Memphis. During the march to Memphis, Forrest's men often built bridges of grapevines and the floors of darkies' cabins.

It was after midnight when Forrest marched into the heart of Memphis. Three federal generals escaped by leaping from windows.

The attack on Memphis brought General Smith back from his assignment with Sherman. Then Forrest raced after Sherman again.

At Athens, Ala., Forrest forced surrender of a strong garrison by his usual trick of scattering his men to make his force seem larger. At Johnsonville, Tenn., he destroyed millions of dollars worth of supplies, capturing several gunboats. But from Virginia came news of Lee's plight that spelled the wane of Confederate hopes. ©1927 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. (Continued.)

JACK LOCKWILL AT ROCKLAKE

by Gilbert Patten

"Stop him!" shouted the leader. "The door's fastened. He can't get out. Nab him and hold him!" They lunged after Jack. He dodged them several times, as nimble as a fox, but they finally got him cornered. He snatched up a handful of sand from one of the molding boxes, flung it into their masked faces, and then spun around and leaped at a window, crashing through the old sash and glass.

Willie Darling waited in their room, feeling a little ashamed because he had not helped Jack. He was amazed when Jack came in, panting. There was some blood on Jack's face and hands where he had been cut by broken glass. He locked the door behind him.

"Don't you open this door again tonight for anybody, William, my dear," said Jack. Willie listened with delight to Jack's story. He gave Jack some advice. "Don't tell anybody you recognized the Grand Vizier and the Bad Egg," he said. "You'll get your bitterns, yet."

The advice was needless. Jack wasn't a braggart, and he knew what to keep his mouth shut. But somebody tattled. The story went in the rounds of the school, and the slippery freshman found himself, in the language of Willie Darling, "a marked man." He was crossing the campus alone a few days later when he saw Tom McNally hurrying to cut him off. "Hold on there, frash!" called the Bad Egg harshly.

STATE PRESENTS BIG BARGAIN NIGHT BILL

Eight Acts and Feature This Evening—"Fire Brigade" Next Week.

Eight acts of supreme vaudeville with the added attraction of the exotic Pola Negri in "Hotel Imperial" constitutes the State theater Bargain Night program for this evening. Heading the acts are the Fashion Plate trio, the smallest jazz band in the world, whose members play 25 different instruments. For the rest of the week "Hotel Imperial" will be seen with five vaudeville acts. This story centers around a young Hungarian officer who goes to great lengths to prove his love for his country and for a beautiful girl who is on the other side.

The overwhelming realization of war is present every moment, yet the drama is centered upon a small group of individuals, rather than sweeping battle fronts, with numberless soldiers fighting through the holocaust of conflict in confused masses. The battles that form the story's background are suggested rather than pictured. Swift moving glimpses are given, conveying an indelible impression of fighting hordes, paving the way for the drama itself which portrays the reactions of nations at war upon the individual human—their devastating effect upon mind, soul and physical conduct.

The three central figures are the chambermaid of the Hotel Imperial, in a town on the Austro-Russian frontier, captured by the invading Russians; the Russian general and a fugitive Hungarian officer. These portray one of the tenebrous dramas that has yet reached the screen.

Pola Negri gives what is declared to be the supreme characterization of her career, even surpassing Du Barry in "Passion," in the role of the chambermaid who is given luxury and tossed it aside in heroic sacrifice for her country and love.

This wonderful picture is scheduled to be shown tonight, tomorrow and Saturday with five acts of vaudeville.

On Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, "The Fire Brigade," which has been endorsed at a private showing by members of the two local fire departments, will be shown here. It is a first run feature, having lately been shown in Boston and New York.

The production contains almost every element of entertainment. There is spectacle, beauty, especially in a charming sequence done in natural colors, charming love story, thrills, humanity and a splendid spirit of sacrifice that permeates the whole story in the person of "Mrs. O'Neill," the mother.

"The Fire Brigade" is the result of the co-operation of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and the International Order of Fire Engineers, and was produced at the suggestion of the latter. The M-G

STATE THEATER BOOKS

THRILLING FIRE FILMS

"Fire Brigade" Here For Sunday, Monday and Tuesday; Charles Ray in Lead.

More spectacular than "The Third Alarm," containing more thrills than any other picture ever made, the thrilling spectacle of a department of the nation's protectors, the fire ladders, is "The Fire Brigade," which comes to the State theater on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of next week with a special matinee for children Monday at 4:00 a. m. Crowds have seen this picture in the larger cities and the film is sponsored by the associated fire departments of this country and Canada.

Members of the Manchester Fire departments who saw the feat a last week at a private showing are loud in their praise to this tribute extended the fire ladders, that gallant hero who sometimes gives his all in the checking of the country's greatest enemy, the Fire Demon.

This production does for the firemen what "The Big Parade" did for the American soldier, and brings before the public in an arresting manner the necessity of fire prevention without at any time becoming a preachment on the subject.

A gripping, dramatic story has been woven against a background of fire and fire-fighters that holds the spectator from beginning to end. The story tells of "Terry O'Neill," descended from a long line of fire-fighters, his initial enthusiasm, his love for the daughter of a wealthy man whom he later discovers to be the head of the whole city government, his disgust at this man's crooked methods, and the consequent quarrel with his sweetheart over her father, his heroism in a spectacular fire, his exchange of the fire department for the police, and the final reconciliation with the daughter and his later public recognition for his heroism.

Expect Cooperation

The studio had the expert cooperation of the International Order of Fire Engineers in the making of the picture, and the fire scenes were all staged by the Los Angeles Fire Department under the supervision of Fire Chief Ralph Scott of that city.

"The Fire Brigade" is the first directorial effort of William Nigh for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It places him in a similar position to that of King Vidor after he had triumphed with "The Big Parade."

Charles Ray is seen in the role of "Terry O'Neill." Noted for his

O'HARA PLEASES IN CIRCLE FILM

Makes Hit in "California or Bust"—Peter the Great in Companion Feature.

A double feature bill is the piece de resistance at the Circle theater this evening and tomorrow. In the principal picture will be seen George O'Hara, famous comedy star, in "California or Bust," a story of automobiles and dusty race tracks. The combination attraction is Lightning, the Dog Wonder, in "Lure of the Wild."

Either of these features would be enough for a star attraction in itself. The Circle has booked both of them, however, and will present an evening of second-to-none entertainment for these two days.

Lightning is well known to movie fans through his excellent work in intelligence, he requires less directing than a lot of two-legged movie actors and his acting is always a treat. He is the leading actor in the picture, "Lure of the Wild," and he is well chosen for the part as he fits it to a T.

"California or Bust" shows George O'Hara at his best after an absence from local theaters for some time. He has been cast opposite Helen Foster and is supported by John Fox, Jr., and Irving Bacon.

Snapping with the speed and action that has characterized George O'Hara his newest release, has proved itself even better than his former efforts. In a fast-moving automobile story by Byron Morgan, Wallace Reid's motor-car films, as well as the Red Grange story, O'Hara has plenty of opportunity to make a delightful characterization as well as to indulge in some thrilling stunts during the high-powered climax.

The scene of the picture is laid in a little Arizona town, where O'Hara is both an inventor and the proprietor of the town's only garage. The arrival of a motor-car manufacturer from the East, with his daughter, precipitates the story into high gear, and a well-balanced combination of comedy, romance and breath-taking finish in a desperate auto race along a mountain road, rounds out a highly entertaining film.

O'Hara's own work is flawless; his versatility and remarkable ability mark him as one of the most promising leading men of the screen, and he is ably seconded by Helen Foster, who cleverly enacts the role of the millionaire heroine, John Stepping, Johnny Fox and Irving Bacon all do excellent work in the supporting cast. Phil Rosen, who made such successes as "Rose of the Tenements" and "The Adorable Deceiver" for F. B. O., directed the picture with great technical skill, and shares honors with Byron Morgan in the production.

Scotland's greatest railway station, Waverley, Edinburgh, covers 20 acres and deals with more than 1,000 trains a day. Its largest platform is more than a mile in length.

'BEST FIGHT CARD YET' FANS SAY

CLINCH AND STRONG WIN BOUTS HERE

Six Decisions, One Knock-out; Pagni, McCavanaugh and Laboc Win; Card Replete With Action; Nearly 700 Present.

Last night's amateur boxing tournament at Cheney hall, which served as a magnet to attract another capacity house, among which were several of the father sex, may be termed the best card promoter Jack Jenney has so far arranged for Cheney Brothers' Athletic association. At least, that seemed to be the consensus of the 700 fans as they filed through the exits.

Although the program was free of real knockouts, there were several cases where a few more blows would have brought visions of stars and the twittering of birds. One fight ended in a technical knockout and the other six were decision affairs. The twenty rounds of milling were crammed full of action. There was little, if any, stalling, and unnecessary sparring was conspicuous by its absence. It was a crack-a-jack show and everyone, except possibly Tony Guillano who fought Billy Laboc went home well pleased.

Clinch Impressive

In the feature bout of the card Joe Clinch of New Britain scored a clean-cut victory over the rugged Pancho Villa of Hartford. It was by far the best bout of the evening and was replete with action. Both are veterans at the game, Villa having fought three years and Clinch, two. However Clinch has accumulated far more experience as he showed beyond a shadow of doubt in winning every round from Villa. Clinch is the best fighter yet to step into the ring at a C. B. A. amateur show. He fought a cool and heady fight and clearly outpointed his opponent. One reason why Clinch won is because he boxed Villa instead of sluggering with him. This does not mean, however, that Clinch did not land many blows. It was just the opposite, the New Britain battler repeatedly scoring with stiff punches, both rights and lefts, to the face. Villa was groggy on several occasions and seemed on the verge of a knockout but managed to stick it out through sheer grit. And he had plenty of the latter.

Strong Winner

In the semi-final, Ray Strong, state bantamweight champion of Hartford, again demonstrated his superiority over the local New Britain, whom he defeated the week before in the Hardware City. Kody pushed Strong hard all the way but was clearly outpointed by the more crafty Strong who carried all three rounds. Kody, nevertheless, deserves credit for his show. He was game to the last punch.

Card Opened With Tommy Pagni

The card opened with Tommy Pagni, a local boy, earned a popular decision over Harold Monahan, of Rockville. Pagni carried all three rounds. He looked better than he did in his last appearance here, exhibiting a much better offense and defense. Monahan was woefully weak in regard to a head defense and suffered thereof. Monahan gave Pagni a good battle but there was no question as to who won the fight. The local boy scored many points with clever and hard punches in the clinches.

Real Himself!

Inability to stand up and give and take, brought defeat to Al Stryb, of Rockville, in the next bout with Billy Nelson of Hartford, who won all three rounds. The Rockville fighter made sporadic rallies but repeatedly ducked his head and "covered up" when Nelson forced the fighting. Both boxers seemed tired at the end of the fight, who was the aggressor, was without a doubt, entitled to the decision. Rockville tasted his third straight setback when Pat McCavanaugh slashed his way to a popular decision over Ben Morgan, a colored boxer, the first that was to appear in the local ring and also the first to oppose McCavanaugh. The colored lad came into the ring all smiles but left it in a daze. He put up a pretty fight against Pat at the start but was groggy at the finish. Undoubtedly, Morgan would not have lasted another round. He was all in at the finish. Pat scored often with a left jab to the face, and won all the way, but the colored boy put up a better fight than some of his Rockville predecessors.

The Results

Tommy Pagni, Manchester, won decision over Harold Monahan, Rockville.
Billy Nelson, Hartford, outpointed Al Stryb, Rockville.
Pat McCavanaugh, Manchester, won decision over Ben Morgan, Rockville.
Billy Laboc, Manchester, awarded decision over Tony Guillano, Hartford.
Charley Romano, Hartford, won on a technical knock-out over Joe Zetter, New Britain, in second round.
Ray Strong, Hartford, outpointed Joe Kody, New Britain.
Joe Clinch, New Britain, won decision over Pancho Villa, Hartford.

DEMPSEY TO GO INTO TRAINING

To Pitch Camp in California; Has Already Hired Sparring Partners.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, Feb. 3.—Jack Dempsey, the man who was, will go into active training next week to learn for the first time since the Tunney disaster, what he can about the man who may be. Dempsey is not coming east at this time to talk himself into another championship match, as Tex Rickard has been expected to do.

He is going to Wheeler Springs, Ventura County, Calif., where the days are short, the nights long, the hills high, the lights low and all that sort of primitive business. Our John, in other words, is going back to first principles and saying he will start in the above direction before the end of the week. Inside of a month, he will reach a decision as to whether he will fight his way back to the title match or remain where he is.

Source of Information

The information on Dempsey's immediate plans comes to the writer today from a source so close to the ex-champion that they collide violently every time Jack stops to change his mind.

Enter Three Boozes

Enter at the right three honest, willing fellows, who instantly break into a cheer at the sight of their leader. They are, reading from left to right, Gus Wilson, Jerry the Greek and Bull Montana, the acting wrestler or the wrestling actor, which sound like the same thing to me.

Suggests Federal Control of Professional Baseball

Congressman Clyde Kelly Thinks Government Should Intervene; His Reason.

Editor's Note: Congressman Clyde Kelly, a publisher, baseball fan and former player, is framing a bill to provide federal control of professional baseball. In the following article he tells why the government should intervene in the baseball situation both to end crookedness and save names of honest players from being besmirched.

By CONGRESSMAN CLYDE KELLY of Pennsylvania

Washington, Feb. 3.—Baseball has grown into a great business enterprise with millions invested in permanent plants, and yearly expenditures also amounting into the millions.

But that is an insignificant phase of the situation which involves the honesty of professional baseball. The distinctive national sport. Baseball does not belong to those who commercialized it. It belongs to the American boy. It would be better to destroy the business organization entirely than to make baseball a synonym for crooked and dishonest tactics in the mind of the boy.

Baseball Boy

The normal boy worships his baseball hero. He knows his record by heart. To the boy, the baseball star is a great idol, without fear and without reproach. It is a serious thing to strike down that faith. The man who would do it without justification not only injures a player; he commits a crime against boyhood.

Therefore, it is of tremendous importance that while every crook should be driven out of baseball, no honest player should be branded as a crook.

Congress is not interested in baseball? It is too unimportant. We are laboriously dealing with questions not one-tenth as important as that of keeping faith with the American boys, twenty millions of them under the age of 18 today. We are devoting attention to problems of growing white baseball holds the interest of every community in America.

CONGRESS HAS NO POWER?

There is a mandate for Congress to act when the states cannot act. No state can regulate such a nationwide organization. The problem of responsible baseball cannot be met in piecemeal and by fractions.

DRAW TOUGH JOBS.

The two toughest jobs in the major leagues have been bequeathed to Bob O'Farrell and Jack McCallister. O'Farrell succeeds a man who won a pennant and a world series; Rogers Hornsby, while McCallister falls heir to Speaker's Cleveland club that finished second.

WALTER WHIPPS' REM.

While Walter Johnson no longer tries for strikeouts, he fanned 12 last season, working in 262 innings, which means he averaged about one strikeout in every six men retired. Not so bad for a veteran of 20 years.

WAPPING MAKES IT 8 STRAIGHT; TROUNCES MERIDEN MUTES 61-27

Chalk up another for Wapping! And put it in the one-sided column of the tally sheet. For the Meriden Silent Five was pummeled to the tune of 61 to 27 last night before a packed house in the little village where raising tobacco is the chief source of livelihood.

WAPPING AVERAGES 68 POINTS PER GAME, WOW!

Wapping's basketball team has scored 503 points in the eight victories it has recorded against 191 for its opponents. This is an average of about a 53 to 24 score per game. The record to date is as follows:

Wapping	Opponent	Score
Wapping 81	Highland Park 20
Wapping 91	Southington 16
Wapping 43	Broad Brook 13
Wapping 63	Service A. C. 19
Wapping 59	Broad Brook 22
Wapping 44	K of Lithuania 38
Wapping 60	N. B. Machine 32
Wapping 61	Meriden S. F. 27

WAPPING "Y" BEATEN

In the preliminary game at Wapping last evening, the Community Club Second team won from the Y. M. C. A. team in a league game by a score of 23 to 19. It was a hotly contested battle. Frank Kapchunas and Nicholson starred for the winners, Spenser and Rose for the losers. The summary:

Wapping (61)	B.	F.	T.
G. Hills	4	2	8
Pospishil	4	0	8
T. Hills	1	0	3
James	5	3	13

There is no logical reason why former Heavyweight Champion Jack Dempsey should enter the heavyweight elimination tournament Tex Rickard is planning. He is entitled to a return bout, as is customary when a champion is defeated.

SOFT FOR GOLF PROS.

From California, the professional golfers now in that section will next invade Texas for several big tournaments and then finish the winter season in Florida.

This modern age puts Camels first

THIS age tried Camels and placed them first. And it was no half-way verdict. Never in the history of smoking was a cigarette given a leadership like Camel has today.

To find why Camels are the favorite, just try them. You will find the perfect fragrance and taste of choice tobaccos, rarely blended. You will experience a mellow mildness that gives endless cigarette enjoyment!

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE... Garrett Folsom's sister, Miss Anastasia, blew into the Hotel Majusca that evening.

Garrett Folsom's sister, Miss Anastasia, blew into the hotel that evening.

Garrett Folsom's sister, Miss Anastasia, blew into the Hotel Majusca that evening. She made such an entrance as the Queen of Sheba might have made on her historic visit to Solomon.

Accompanied by a maid and followed by a string of porters carrying her hand luggage, she strode up to the desk and demanded the manager.

Tuttle, the suave room clerk, stepped forward and proffered his services.

"I am Miss Folsom," announced the new arrival. "I want the best rooms you can give me. Or, better yet, let me have the suite my brother occupied; that is sure to be the best in the house."

"I can't give you that just now, madam," Tuttle told her. "For the police have it in charge. But I feel sure it can be arranged that you may occupy it while you are here. If you will take another room for the night—"

"No, I will not. Get hold of the police and tell them I insist on having those rooms. Who else could have them? And why let them go to waste? They're good rooms, aren't they?"

"Very good—"

"Then I want them and I mean to have them. Lord, I've enough trouble ahead of me, without being put into an uncomfortable bed! Paxton, take this bag, and take my coat."

She turned to the woman at her side, who obediently helped her off with her traveling coat.

Miss Anastasia wriggled herself out of the enveloping folds and stood, a militant, belligerent figure before the desk as she waited for her keys.

She was tall, heavy, and of a commanding presence. She would have been ungainly, save that she possessed a certain air of sophistication and good breeding that was accentuated by her clothes.

These, though of a pronounced masculine cut, were perfectly tailored and fitted exactly the muscular, vigorous shape.

An ensemble of black cloth, with trimming bands of black Bengaline, was of the latest mode and its lines adapted to make the very best of her somewhat dimly shaped figure. A close, small hat of black Bengaline covered almost entirely her bobbed hair, which escaped in front in little curls of mingled black and gray.

Altogether, as to manner and garb, Miss Folsom was correct, but her face was of the type that has long had the reputation of interfering with the motive power of a timepiece.

It was large and long. The high cheek bones were prominent, the nose, though undeniably aristocratic, was large and aquiline. The eyes were gray and glittering and darted about in angry impetuosity. And the mouth, a snapping, thin-lipped affair, promised unpleasant consequences to those who incurred the lady's disapproval.

Yet her maid seemed to evince no fear of her stern-visaged mistress.

Nonchalantly she took the coat hung at her, carelessly she accepted the bag, and then stood waiting, but scanning with interest the gay scenes about her.

Those nearest were at once observant of Miss Folsom, for no one could be near her and not notice her.

Already she was leaning over the desk, adding admonitory gestures to her spoken insistence on immediate service.

"But, Miss Folsom," Tuttle implored, "please realize I can't do this thing in a minute. I will con-and he thought there was no reason why she should not take possession of her brother's rooms that night.

"Very well," snapped the lady. "There are two rooms?"

"Yes, madam. A bedroom and sitting room."

"Then arrange to have a bed put in the sitting room for my maid. Or can you give me another adjoining room?"

"I'll find out," said Tuttle, hastily disappearing, for he dreaded further talk with the explosive personage who had invaded his quiet domain.

And then Miss Folsom remembered her brother's man. He would be of help, surely.

"Where's Ross?" she demanded, rising suddenly and punching on a clerk at the desk.

"Ma'am?" he responded, startled by her peremptory manner.

"Ross—the valet of Mr. Garrett Folsom. Where is he? Get him at once!"

"Yes, ma'am. I'll—I'll see about it."

"Don't see about it! Get him! Now—immediately!"

But assistance came from an unexpected quarter.

Tabby, passing, heard the demand, and his quick mind leaped to the conclusion that here was the sister of the dead man, and therefore a possible chance for services on his part that might bring welcome emolument. The Folsoms were rich, and the lady was evidently anxious.

"You, Miss Folsom?" he inquired, with his servile smile. "I'll find Ross for you."

"Oh, heavens, boy! Can you? Do then. Get him and bring him here."

But Tabby was gone even before she finished speaking.

And he returned in a very short time with the man in question.

"Oh, Ross," and in her stress of emotion, Miss Folsom grasped his hand. "Isn't it awful! What shall we do?"

"Awful, yes, ma'am," Ross agreed, keeping his voice and proper attitude, even though Miss Anastasia seemed on the verge of hysterics.

And, indeed, the poor woman lost her nerve at sight of the familiar figure of her brother's valet. Hitherto, the strange sights and sounds had so diverted her mind that her personal loss was more or less submerged, but Ross' well-known face and voice brought back the realities of her life and she almost collapsed.

"Now, now, Miss Anastasia," Ross said, in a low tone, "you must brace up, you know. And don't stay here, ma'am. There's so many people about, and they're all so curious. Won't you?"

"What do I care?" she cried, angrily. "Did I ever notice people, Ross?"

"But they notice you, ma'am, and it's not so good. I make no doubt you can go take my small coat, the office of the management."

"Of course I can! I can go where I like! But I prefer to stay here. I thought I'd see Mr. Neville before this—oh, here he is, now!"

And even as she spoke, Roger Neville approached, holding out his hand in greeting.

Anastasia had a way of making her presence felt. In the next chapter she begins to work.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

Constance came home with a brand new husband the other day. Oh, not quite so casually as coming home with a new box of face powder. Constance had told her mother that next week she was going to marry Bob and bring him home thereon to dwell.

"You see, he only makes $30 a week and I make $25, and we would never get ahead if we rented a flat and went into housekeeping ourselves," she explained. "So we'll just take the spare room and board here and Bob will pay the same board I do and we'll get along just 'dandy,'" saying which, Miss Constance bled her from the kitchen to the parlor, leaving her mother to ponder over the dishpan.

Free Drudge For Ma. Now Constance pays her mother $8 a week board money. Constance does not own a business mind for nothing. She knows exactly what the household bills are. She knows that she does not cost her mother one penny over $8 a week, and not one penny more does Constance pay. So for the sum of $16 a week, $1.50 of which will be spent for food and gas and lights and telephone and taxes and insurance and laundry, Constance's mother is to have the ineffable pleasure of continuing her life not only as free drudge for daughter Constance, but also as free drudge for son-in-law Bob. To be sure, she is getting her living. Constance estimates this living as worth $3 a week, so perhaps we should admit that Constance's mother is getting that amount.

"Modern" So Far. Constance is only one of many "modern, emancipated women" I know who are doing the "emancipation" they can get for themselves, but are quite content to let their mothers continue to be "old-fashioned" women who do a full day's job for almost nothing. Let anybody blithely and casually foist upon a mother the dimensions of keeping house for six people with a remuneration of "keep" in the neighborhood of a dollar a week, and they would hit the ceiling! But mother always has done it and no one ever stops to consider that she may have some little rebellions of her own on the subject!

It's Disgusting. Personally, I think the Constance story of bringing home to Ma her husband to keep, the most preposterous, unjust thing ever heard of. It is one thing for a woman to drudge for her own children because she loves them and because they are dependent, and it is quite another thing to drudge for someone else's children when this "child" is a grown man, capable of making and paying his own way.

It's a Simple Old Story. It is simply the old story of selfishness. The children want to save for themselves. They just take it for granted that the mother of 20 years ago who asked nothing more for her life than to keep her home for her children is capable of keeping on at the same old gal and asks nothing more of life than to "drudge" for her keep and perhaps 50 cents a week over.

As a matter of fact, hundreds and thousands of mothers look forward to the day of release, the day when they can get rest or turn their energies into pleasant and more lucrative pursuits. They resent along the son-in-law dumped upon them, and the weary old round is redoubled.

How Can They? The misery of it is that girls, and sons, too, for that matter, whose minds are keen and who are balanced enough to hold good positions, and in social life to talk human and logical about various things, and to solve problems, are the very sons and daughters whose attitude towards a mother is as archaic as that of the husband who growled about "the nickel I gave you last month." These are the sons and daughters who may feel or think that a mother is giving nothing out of a salary of $50, that they are out of a salary of $150 a month job for nothing, but her "keep!"

PUR FLOWERS. Flowers of fur are new this season, and will probably be very popular on fur coats. They are made of sheer haired pelts such as unborn cat and pony skin.

If you will allow them to buy the boxed materials which include directions and everything necessary. They begin as low as 25 cents a box and new and fascinating ideas are out this year.

For the debutante, nothing could be more fetching than a dress of pink blue flat crepe, trimmed with light blue long free loops about the skirt and surplice neck.

Radical new shapes in turbans are of straw, fitting close in the front and extending out in the back. Elaborate hair bows which can be manipulated like a wig are ideal with light dresses, coming as they do in soft and becoming colors.

Mrs. Ruth Conklin of New York is a woman who holds down an unusual job. She is a woman cartographer in the country. She operates a keyboard of loopy, connected with one of the finest sets of charts in the world, that given by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. to the large Avenue Baptist church in memory of his mother. Mrs. Conklin admits that it is a grueling work and wears on the nerves, flesh and hands. She loses every-al pounds a month and is on a fatening diet too. You hear her every Sunday evening at seven if you tune in on WJZ. She is an organizer having received her B. In addition to her strenuous work on the radio, she is an organizer at the Christian science church nearby.

New Haven just now is having a great progress exposition which is attracting state-wide attention. Simultaneously one of the big department stores, Malley's, is celebrating 75 years of business. The old time costumes, just as they were in Hale's store at the time of our Centennial. The young men are included in the celebration at Malley's and they are wearing tall hats, silk vests and other styles of 75 years ago. A stage coach and four with girls and men in old fashioned costumes makes regular trips to the suburbs and through the city. A wonderful exhibit of antiques is a part of the four day celebration, winding up on Saturday with the 75th anniversary sale.

Good luncheon combinations are the following: broiled sirloin steak, creamed spinach, scalloped tomatoes, French fried potatoes, broiled chops, green peas, baked potatoes, hearts of lettuce with Russian dressing; fried, string chops, spaghetti with cheese, strong cheese, fresh fruit salad with French dressing.

Combinations of several colors, or the whole gamut of shades of one color is the most important color note of the year, in tiered, fringed and beaded frocks.

A simple gown of plum-colored flat crepe has for its sole trimming a girlish of eivet flowers in the zignia shades of red, cerise and purple.

The recipe below you will find amusing reading, whether you will want to try it or not. We have all known that scalloped oysters were required as an extravaganza with it as this. When men give a recipe for anything they cook, they require lots of space, and this one is supposed to be by a man.

Buttered Oysters. Take a nice large shallow dish pan, cut a pound of butter in half, being careful to have one half larger than the other. Then I cut the smaller half in two. If you do this at first it is easier for you to use. It doesn't cook so wasteful. I place the pan on top of a good hot stove and when no one is looking I place the larger half in the pan and let it melt. Meanwhile I have some kind-hearted soul toast some bread very lightly. Now I pop into the melted butter a quart of oysters and let the shells and fingering go to the Dickens. The feller that eats my cooking has as much time as I have to pick out the shells. When the oysters start to bubble and storm around I pokes in here and there, the best I can, these pieces of toast that have been cut in thirds and then I pour over some cream, a lot of it—by all means a pint. If I am short of cream I use top milk and maybe some more butter. This depends on how much I am watched.

Now I let this cook or stew a long time, maybe one-half or three-quarters of an hour. I watch it and with an old silver fork I lift or stir under the oysters so they will not stick to the bottom. I add more cream or milk if it cooks a little dry, but the thing to do is to be sure to cook 'em. Cook 'em hard, brown the bottoms. Brown 'em and keep 'em wet with cream, butter and milk.

When it is pretty nearly time to serve them I sprinkle some cracked dust, if I haven't enough toast, and pour on some more cream, dot with butter when no one else is looking, and stick 'em in a hot oven and brown the tops. Brown 'em and plenty and serve. You will only want them fixed two or three times a year this way, but you will not be satisfied after that with them any other way."

Law Student's Nerves Snapped Meriden man, working 18 hours a day, and studying law besides, shattered nervous system and had bad breakdown. Built back to rugged health by Tanlac, he gives high praise to this natural tonic.

Vito Del Pomo lives at 34 Prospect St., Meriden, Conn. A forceful, energetic and ambitious young man, he overtaxed his system. Nature rebelled as she always will. Mr. Del Pomo found himself a nervous wreck, forced to quit work and secure complete quiet for six weeks. But nothing seemed to help him. Appetite vanished, and sleep, insomnia with all its terrors seized him.

"At first I refused the advice of friends to try Tanlac," he says. "At last I agreed to give it a fair trial. My appetite and digestion showed marked improvement in a little while and my nerves grew steadier. Soon I was eating normally and feeling strong enough to get back on the job. Greatly encouraged I continued with Tanlac and I can truthfully say that Tanlac and Tanlac alone, brought me back to my present splendid health."

Profit by Mr. Del Pomo's remarkable experience. If overwork or neglect have taken toll of your health, start on Tanlac today. It is nature's own remedy, made from herbs, barks and roots. Your druggist has Tanlac. Over 62 million bottles sold.

FEAR OFTEN MAKES CHILD STAMMER. By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Most investigators today believe that stammering is definitely associated with some disturbance of the emotions. It occurs particularly in persons who have an underlying tendency to excitability. If a child stammers, the investigator tries to find out the particular cause in his environment or in his life history which is responsible.

Sometimes an older brother or playmate is overbearing; sometimes the child is too much crowded in his work at school or at home; sometimes there are conditions which keep him constantly in a state of fear, either physical, mental or emotional. Under such circumstances, the proper procedure naturally involves removal of the child from the circumstances that are responsible.

The child may be encouraged to be tranquil while talking, and to avoid talking in the midst of excitement. Various methods have been evolved for causing the child to talk slowly and smoothly. These include the use of rhymes, the mother or some other sympathetic person teaching the child by example, reciting the

Home Page Editorials A Child's Price? By Olive Roberts Barton

We need to be reminded how well worth while a little child is. In the day of "discussion" of child training, child psychology, new methods of development and so on, we are apt to regard him as we might regard some new and interesting form of beetle, tucked up on the professor's desk for inspection.

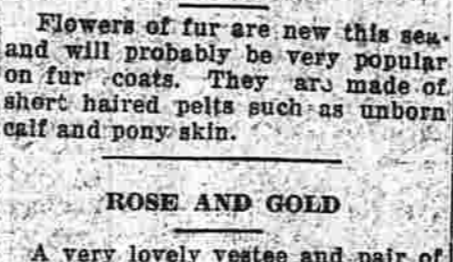

We talk about careers or children, or about careers or children, as though x equaled y and there was a choice. There is no choice. There may be individual preference, or individual necessity, but there is no more choice than there is between a rose and a piece of nett, spin.

Do you know children? If you do, stop worrying about them, and enjoy them. There is no pleasure in a gem if you think of nothing but its safety and insurance. Roosevelt in his books of travel speaks over and over again of children. He is never too tired after a day's weary tramp, when jotting down his notes, to mention the "dear little girl" or "fine son" of the inn-keeper. His letters to his own children will one day be found in gold.

Eve, Y. S. Frank, humorist, satirist, and noted for her work in developing vocations for children, writes an article in a recent magazine called "What About the Children?" In it she discusses the question of careers.

To me the crux of the whole matter lies in this paragraph: "I know no more important moment in the day," writes Mrs. Frank, "than that in which my small son comes peeping into the house, shouting for 'Mom' at the top of his lungs. 'What is it?' I answer, thinking about something tremendously important, has happened. 'Oh, nothing,' he says, 'I just wanted to know if you were there.' That is it! The mother who chooses a career that keeps her away from this eager little shout, misses much."

It didn't seem that they could make the wholeback trip and stay awake, but there was nothing else to do since land was not in sight. And then a startling thing took place. The whale just seemed to stop its race, and all the Tinies wondered what was due to happen next. Another spout of water rose and drenched the little fellows clothes. The actions of the mellow had the Tinies quite perplexed. The whale then took a sudden stop. Its great big head just seemed to drop and in the air its tall high and flapped around like mad. One moment more and down it went. The Tinymites were quickly sent a flying in the open. Such a thrill they'd never had. The whale, of course, was out of sight, and every little Tinymite was of the next story.)

Rockville Man in Serious Condition After Accident at Ogden's Corners.

Kerwin A. Elliott, a young Rockville business man, is in critical condition at the Rockville hospital today, a victim of a hit-and-run motorist, while returning home from amateur bouts in Cheney hall last night.

Elliott with four other Rockville men attended the bouts and on the return to Rockville stopped at Ogden's Corners because of tire trouble. He was run down by a speeding automobile as he was kneeling to fix the tire. So fast did the car disappear that his companions were unable to get the number.

Two doctors worked over Elliott most of the night. Meanwhile state police started a hunt for the driver of the car that hit him.

The Misses Barbara and Maribel Cheney who have been visiting in New York are expected home tomorrow.
