EXPECT ARREST ANY HOUR IN LOCAL HOLD-UP

Wife of Supernumerary Loses Pocketbook and Husband's Check—Bar- ron Uncovers Clue.

Valuable clues are in the possession of Sergeant of Police William Barron which may lead any minute to the arrest of the man who accosted and robbed Joseph Prentice near the East cemetery Friday night. Mrs. Prentice, wife of Supernumerary Officer Prentice lost her pocketbook containing $12 and her husband's pay check for her assault. The clues were run down in the East cemetery when Sergeant Barron followed the trail the thief probably took in making his getaway.

On Shopping Tour

Mrs. Prentice was returning from shopping Friday night and when near the cemetery entrance on East Center street, a seemingly young man stopped her. Mrs. Prentice fought the robber, but in the scuffle dropped her pocketbook. The fellow scooped it up and ran away.

Check Not Endorsed

The pay check which was in Mrs. Prentice's pocketbook was not endorsed. It was in payment of her husband's services as a supernumerary. She had intended to deposit it in the bank for Mr. Prentice, but found it was not endorsed and was returning it for her husband's signature.

Among the things found in the cemetery by Sergeant Barron was a box containing an old set of underwear and other personal articles. The box containing these things was, however, fairly well frozen to the ground, and for this reason, Sergeant Barron does not attach a great deal of importance to it.

HARTFORD MAN KILLS WIDOW AND HIMSELF

Murder and Suicide Discovered in Goodwin Street Home This Afternoon—Man Sick.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 7.—Ferdinand Melantochi, 297 Market street, and Mrs. Pauline Wilkus, a widow, of 15 Goodwin street, are dead this afternoon, as the result of what is believed to have been murder and suicide.

Police summoned by occupants of a tenement house on Goodwin street who heard revolver shots, found Mrs. Wilkus' body propped against her kitchen sink. On the kitchen floor lay Melantochi, at point of death. The man finally died soon after he had been received at Hartford hospital.

Police investigation developed the theory that Melantochi, dependent over ill health and realizing he could not marry Mrs. Wilkus, had shot her and himself.

Mrs. Wilkus has two sons who at the time of the shooting were in school.

FAMILY OF 29

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 7.—Leander C. Gentle, one of the nation's foremost exponents of the anti-race suicide doctrine, today is the father of twenty-nine children. The last, a girl, arrived last night. Gentle, who has been twice married, recently was presented to President Coolidge as "the champion father." Nineteen of his children are living.

BOXER FALLS 45 FEET

Boston, Mass., Feb. 7.—Dave Deshier, who was prominent in ring circles as a welterweight boxer about fifteen years ago was probably fatally injured today when he fell from the roof of a building under construction on Commonwealth avenue.

Deshier was standing on the girder when the arm of a hoisting crane struck him. He was taken to City hospital where his name was placed on the danger list after examination had shown a broken spine.

BOYS PLAY HOCKEY WITH DYNAMITE STICKS

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Three Toronto boys played hockey with chunks of dynamite which they had chopped off from a number of sticks kept in a shed in a local brickyard. No explosion occurred, which experts attribute to the fact that the dynamite was frozen. Some of the parents collapsed when the story became known.

WAPPING FARMER DIES SUDDENLY

Herman Yanke Victim of Apoplexy Before Aid Reaches Him.

Herman Yanke, aged 73, Wapping farmer, dropped dead of apoplexy yesterday afternoon in the kitchen of his home at 118 Smith street. His wife, who is his only survivor, was the only person in the house at the time. She summoned a doctor but her husband was dead before he arrived.

Out of Town.
Assistant Medical Examiner Le Verne Holmes was called but as the case was outside of his territory, the medical examiner from East Hartford was summoned and gave permission for removal of the body to the undertaking establishment of William P. Quish of this town.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home. Rev. H. Heidenreich of Hartford will officiate. The body will be placed in the receiving vault in the Buckland cemetery.

UNKNOWN PERSON WARNS OF THEFT

Allen McDonald Confesses Robbing Landa's Service Station.

Landa's Service station, located at Main and Hazel streets, was entered last night by Allen McDonald, a young man who has been frequenting the gas station. McDonald took $90 in a cash bag, after he had broken through a window.

An unknown party evidently witnessed the break for the police were notified by telephone that the station was being robbed. In court today McDonald was bound over to the Superior court under bonds of $500.

Work on the part of the police resulted in McDonald's arrest. It was 11:35 last night when Police Captain Herman Schendel received a telephone call from an unknown party who stated that Jack's Filling station was being robbed. He once flashed a general alarm on the police light system.

Patrolman Martin answered from the box at Main and Bissell street and hurried to the scene. He found the window on the south side broken and there was evidence that the man had fled. Realizing that he had met no one on the street as he hurried to the filling station, Martin decided to pay a visit to the lunch cart near Pearl street.

Found in Lunch Cart
His decision proved correct. There seated on a stool about to eat a sandwich was McDonald. The back of his coat bore a large mark where the putty and dirt which he had brushed against while crawling through the window, had been smeared. McDonald denied he was innocent but while being taken to the police station, he attempted to drop the bag containing the $85. The policeman, however, heard the bag drop.

McDonald then broke down and confessed. He said he stole the money because he was penniless, was without a home, and without anything to eat or a place to work, he said. Realizing the plight he was in, McDonald broke down badly while in the cell last night, but later he started to sing the "Prisoner's Song."

The filling station which was broken into is owned by Carl Landa, who bought it some time ago from Jack Dwyer. McDonald, it seems, had been hanging around the filling station for some time and had learned where the cash bag was secreted every night. Recently, it is understood, the proprietor of the filling station rented a room for McDonald to sleep in and gave him money when he was desperately in need of both.

TRAIN LEAVES RAILS

Chicago, Feb. 7.—More than 100 passengers on a fast Chicago, Burlington & Quincy passenger train from St. Paul were shaken up when seven cars left the rails at Downer's Grove, 21 miles west of here today. No one was seriously hurt as all of the cars remained upright.

JAP EMPEROR BURIED AMID ODD RITUALS

Over 1,000 Priests at Ceremonies During Interment Of Man Who Died Christmas Morning.

Tokio, Feb. 7.—With more than 1,000 priests and ritualists participating in the ceremonies, Yoshihito, late emperor of Japan, who died Christmas morning, was buried tonight with the most impressive and resplendent ceremonies the empire of the rising sun has seen in nearly two decades.

Ceremonies Begin

Within the glow of thousands of lanterns and torches the ceremonies began at 5 p. m. (five a. m. New York time), when the funeral procession left the palace in the heart of Tokyo. They will end at dawn tomorrow at Highashi-Asakawa, a country village on the Musahi plain, about thirty miles from Tokyo, where the mortal remains of the one hundred and twenty-third occupant of the throne will be laid to rest in the mausoleum especially built to receive it.

Awaited the Hearse
In the vanguard of the procession as it left the imperial palace, were the usual representatives of the army, navy and court. But the waiting crowd paid little heed to these. They were awaiting the hearse, a picturesque and huge cart which bore the coffin.

This cart was made chiefly of Hinoki, or Japanese cypress, with wheels of zelkova and axle of oak. It was lacquered black, trimmed with gold, its length was 23 feet and it was 12 feet high and 12 feet wide with wheels nearly six feet in diameter.

Black Oxen
Four jet black oxen drew the cart. These bullocks were bedecked in regalia almost as elaborate as that worn by the human mourners. Nine herdsmen or grooms attended them.

As the bullocks trudged along, so many steps each minute, the wheels of the cart gave forth a peculiar walling note denoting grief to the Japanese mind. This was in accordance with an ancient Japanese custom which requires that the wheels of the cart should be of an uneven number. The cart was pulled by a team of oxen which were dressed in mourning.

Hundreds of casualties and great damage to buildings of the vicinity were reported.

News Cut Off

Communications between northern and southern Portugal were still interrupted today, and it was difficult to gauge the full extent of the revolution. The uprising is headed by General Souza Diaz, chief military commander of north Portugal. The chief object of the revolt is the abolition of the dictatorship of General Carmona.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Vigo said the insurgents were in complete control of the northern bank of the river Douro, while the government troops were drawn up on the south bank. The two factions waged a sharp duel with machine guns and artillery while both maneuvered for a position for decisive action.

U. S. STEAMER STRANDED OFF OF HALIFAX, N. S.

President Harding Reported Out of Fuel Oil—Vessels Steam to Rescue.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 7.—The steamship President Harding, Bremen for New York, was reported stranded off Halifax, N. S., in messages received here today.

The President Harding was reported out of fuel oil as the result of a leaking tank was said to be anchored ten miles outside Halifax harbor.

Government steamers were steaming to the aid of the stranded ocean greyhound.

BURNED TO DEATH

Milestone, Sask., Feb. 7.—Destruction of the Milestone hotel and some neighboring property by fire resulted in John Singleton, 14-year-old son of A. H. Singleton of Routeau, youthful hockey player, losing his life when, with four others, he ran back to save hockey equipment. Four persons jumped from windows, two being injured.

ROCKVILLE BOY HURT IN CURIOUS ACCIDENT

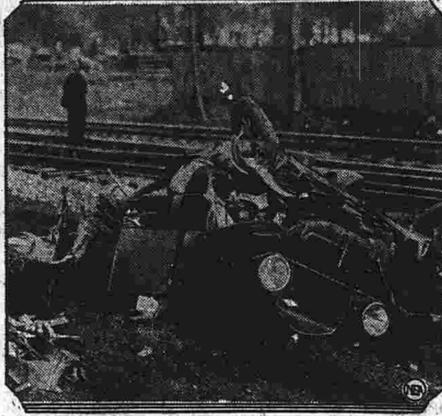

Rockville, Conn., Feb. 7.—Harold Kloter, 14, is in serious condition at his home here as the result of an unusual trolley accident. The boy was riding toward Hartford when the trolley pole broke, the wheel fell to the ground, rebounded through the window where the boy was sitting and struck him above the right ear.

Physicians say his skull is gashed but not fractured.

TREASURY BALANCE.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Treasury balance as of Feb. 4: $193,115,532.34.

Cross Crossings Carefully!

This automobile wreck tells better than words of the crossing tragedy in which death came in one stroke to Walter M. Twombly, employe of the Federal Trade Commission, and four members of his family. It was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio express train at Kensington, a suburb of Washington, as the Twomblys were returning to their capital home.

PORTUGUESE REBELS HAVE SURRENDERED

Many Killed and Wounded in Three Day Battle—For- eigners Are Warned.

London, Feb. 7.—A dispatch from Lisbon today said the Portuguese rebels at Oporto have surrendered.

Many of the rebels were killed and hundreds were wounded in the battle between the rebels and the government forces which continued from Friday to Sunday, according to a Lisbon dispatch to the Daily Express.

Foreigners Warned
Following a parley between representatives of the rebels and the minister of war, at which the minister demanded unconditional surrender, which the rebels refused, the minister of war warned all foreign residents and the civil population of Oporto to leave the city. The government troops brought up artillery and bombarded the rebels' trenches.

Victim's Tongue Slit in Three Places—Thought to be Work of Gangsters.

New York, Feb. 7.—The body of an unidentified man, brutally beaten and strangled, was found tied up with sash cord and wiring in a burlap bag early today on Eighth street.

The man's tongue was slit in three places, an indication that he was the victim of a gang feud. Police said that the slitting of the tongue was the punishment meted out to a "squealer."

The murdered man's two feet were tied with sash cord and drawn to the thighs. There were several feet of heavy wiring about his abdomen, and wiring about his neck, which strangled him.

Stamford, Conn., Feb. 7.—Coroner John J. Phelan will come here tomorrow to hold an inquest into the death of William Kingsley, of Crystal street, who died Saturday after being hit by an automobile and into the death of Samuel Fasick, who was found in a street, apparently the victim of a hit-and-run auto.

Kingsley was struck by a taxi driven by Ray Ulatonka, who is being held in bond of $2,000 for the coroner's action. Ulatonka, who took Kingsley to the hospital, claims he did not see the man until after the accident.

Fasick's case is complicated by the fact that Gilbert Chard, an autoist, stopped when he saw Fasick lying in the street but went on when he saw another person rendering aid. Police believe that Fasick may have fallen instead of having been hit.

Pheasants Polygamous, Seven Hens to Harem

Hartford, Feb. 7.—Limited polygamy exists among pheasants, the harem of the cock pheasant consisting of from five to seven birds, according to a circular letter sent to sports clubs today by the State Fisheries & Game Department. The department has ordered 300 male pheasants for delivery in March and asks the clubs to submit requests for these birds in proportion to the number of hens in their respective flocks. A request should be sent in before February 26.

CHINANDEGA IS NEUTRAL ZONE, LATIMER SAYS

More Necessary to Protect Communications Between Americans in Nicaragua; Heavy Casualties.

Bluefields, Nicaragua, Feb. 7.—Admiral Latimer is expected to declare Chinandega, now reported captured by the Liberals to be a neutral zone, if the Liberals are able to hold the city against the Conservative counter attack, according to reports received here.

Heavy Casualties

The casualties in the fighting at Chinandega are reported to have been heavy.

Reports have been received here that the Liberal forces are in possession of Nagato and that notice has been given that they will not permit arms and munitions for Diaz to pass through Leon.

Withdrawal of the American marines from Rama is reported as possible due to sanitary conditions. Typhoid and dysentery are affecting the population there and some of the marines are reported to have been stricken.

DYNAMITE KILLS TWO CHILDREN IN HOME

Explosive Placed Under Bed Where Family Lay Asleep; Mother Dying.

Pittsburgh, Kansas, Feb. 7.—A dynamite explosion killed two small children as they slept in their home here today and dangerously injured the mother of the two.

The dynamite, apparently placed directly under the bed in which the three were sleeping, hurled them from the bed and demolished the bedroom. The dead: Earl Robert Mayberry, six; Florence Mardell Mayberry, six.

Mrs. Lena Mayberry, the mother, is in a critical condition, according to the attending physicians.

CONGRESS SPEEDS UP TO AVOID OVERTIME

Jammed Calendars Being Cleaned to Make Way For Appropriation Bills.

Washington, Feb. 7.—With the death of the Sixty-ninth Congress less than four weeks away, administration leaders today turned their efforts to speeding up the enactment of six remaining appropriation bills in order to avoid the special session after March fourth.

Although jammed calendars await action in both House and Senate, the Republican leadership decided to abandon all legislation during the remaining days of the present session, rather than permit the blocking of a single appropriation bill, the enactment of which is necessary to operate the government during the coming fiscal year.

As a result, the legislative program for the rest of this session will be composed chiefly of those bills which can be enacted by unanimous consent or passed without prolix debate.

HARTFORD REAL ESTATE DEALER GETS ELY HOME

Thomas Trant of Hartford, owner of the former Dr. F. B. Adams mansion and sometimes called the Ely home, considered one of the most valuable pieces of residential property on Main street, has sold the place to Samuel C. Kone of 23 Adams street, Hartford. Mr. Kone is a real estate dealer and it is understood he has bought the property for other parties.

DISEASE ON INCREASE.

Hartford, Feb. 7.—Increases in all communicable diseases except influenza, pneumonia, diphtheria and typhoid fever were reported by town health officers to the State Health Department during the past week. Scarlet fever still has the highest rate, 118 new cases being reported in the period. Other totals follow: Diphtheria 25, measles 80, whooping cough 43, chicken pox 139, typhoid 1, influenza 11, pneumonia 86.

U. S. MISSIONARIES PLEAD TO KEEP OUT OUR MARINES

AMERICA IS READY TO JOIN BRITAIN

If China Rejects U. S. Pro- posal Marines Will Be Landed at Once.

Washington, Feb. 7.—The United States stands ready to take joint action with Great Britain for the protection of foreigners in China, if the Chinese war lords reject the American proposal for eliminating the Shanghai international settlement from the zone of war activities.

This course has been under consideration for some time, it was learned today, although the government still hopes that the various Chinese leaders will provide sufficient guarantees to make joint military intervention by the powers unnecessary.

Diplomatic Note
The identical note containing the Shanghai neutrality proposal sent to Chiang Kai-shek, Chiang Kai-shak and Sun Chung-fang, was couched in diplomatic terms and contained no threat as to what action this country would take in the event of its rejection. It is known, however, that the request was not intended to be an empty gesture.

The only alternative this government has, in the event of rejection, is the landing of troops for the protection of its nationals. This step would be futile, Far East observers point out, unless all the powers undertake to make it effective.

Secret Pact
Dispatches from Europe have intimated that the United States already has secretly agreed to take part in a joint intervention, although the existence of a secret compact has been officially denied here many times.

Replies from the leaders of the warring factions are not expected to reach Washington before Wednesday or Thursday, it was said at the State Department today. In the meantime, preparations are going forward to increase the American naval force in Asiatic waters.

These moves are reliably reported to include the partial mobilization of two additional regiments of marines, totaling 2,400 men, for service in China. Transports will be drawn from Nicaragua and Pacific coast stations to carry these men to the Shanghai zone if need be.

INSANITY DEFENSE AT TURNER TRIAL

Prisoner to Tell Story of His Life and 3,000 Mile Trip For Revenge.

Portland, Me., Feb. 7.—Insanity was said to be the defense of Benjamin H. Turner as he went on trial today for the slaying of James D. Hallen, self-styled soldier of fortune.

Joseph F. Connolly and Harry C. Libby, attorneys for the former California accountant, said Turner would tell a jury the story of his life, showing how, it is alleged, he was made insane by brooding in a Mexican prison over wrongs which he believed Hallen had committed against him.

Hallen was shot down at his Falmouth Foreside home after Turner arrived following a three thousand mile trip from Mexico City.

For the second time in her life, Mrs. Constance Kilborn of this city is expected to aid Turner. Once before Mrs. Kilborn aided Turner when he was accused of a slaying in Mexico.

THIEVES GET SILK

New York, Feb. 7.—Thieves who burrowed through three brick and concrete walls obtained 300 bolts of silk valued at $50,000. It was revealed when the officers of the Ararat Silk Company on the second floor of a Seventh avenue building were opened today.

MORE BRITISH TROOPS

SITUATION IN CHINA

Sun Chuan-fang, having drawn up all of his reserves, appears to be stemming the Cantonese tide which has swept on toward Shanghai. The Cantonese are reported to be held in check outside of Hangchow.

The British Cabinet met today to consider the recommendation of British Charge O'Malley that the British troops now enroute to Shanghai be diverted.

Chang Tso Lin, northern leader, is reported to have agreed to Secretary of State Kellogg's suggestion that the international settlement in Shanghai be considered outside of the war zone. This action, however, will have no bearing on the Cantonese action.

Eugene Chen, Nationalist leader, has repeatedly stated that he does not intend to occupy the international settlement in Shanghai and this is believed to be his probable reply to Secretary Kellogg.

American missionaries in Nanking have called the State Department urging against the landing of American troops in China as unnecessary and likely to create difficulties.

British reinforcements have arrived at Hong Kong. Washington reports that the suggestion that the international settlement in Shanghai be neutralized is refused by the United States, which is willing to take joint action with Great Britain.

At Shanghai
Shanghai, Feb. 7.—General Sun Chuan-fang's armies are making a determined stand before Hangchow, according to dispatches received here. The reverses which they met at Yenchow are said to have been offset by slight gains and the position of the defenders of Shanghai is improved.

Military experts here believe that the issue of the battle for Hangchow will determine whether the Cantonese armies will march to the gates of Shanghai.

Chen's Assurance
The repeated assurances of Eugene Chen that the Cantonese do not intend to occupy Shanghai, or to cause any disturbances there, are being relied upon here by most of the foreigners and it is generally understood that it is the opinion of the consular body that there is no danger to the international settlement unless mobs of Chinese get far beyond the control of their leaders.

NO DECISION YET
London, Feb. 7.—The great battle between the warring Chinese factions in the neighborhood of Yenchow and Hangchow for control of Shanghai, China's chief seaport, was still under way today, with neither side having a decisive advantage. The army of General Sun Chuan-fang, governor of Chekiang province, was still intact and holding its own, according to an authoritative dispatch from Shanghai, Sun, by executing a flanking movement, occupied the city of Chuchow.

The fighting today was reported to be less determined than for the past several days.

A message from Hankow, via Shanghai, said the negotiations between Eugene Chen, Nationalist foreign minister, and British Charge O'Malley would be resumed within 48 hours as a result of an understanding arrived at. It is understood, principally on the basis of "Shanghai defense" troops, ordered to Shanghai, at Hong Kong. This was taken to indicate that the Nationalist army would not undertake the capture of Shanghai by force, at least for the present.

Shanghai dispatches, on the other hand, said preparations were going on there for the reception of the British defense troops. It was not believed at Shanghai that Britain would make the concession demanded by Chen that the troops be diverted to Hong Kong.

CHEMIST PREACHER IS CITADEL GUEST

Stationed at Times Square, New York—Tells Many Stories.

Yveil M. Rader of New York city was the chief speaker at all the services of the Salvation Army Saturday night and Sunday and at the meeting of the Manchester religious mission last night at the South Methodist church.

Mr. Rader is one of the country's leading chemists, and he told some wonderful stories of the power of chemistry which he used to illustrate the power of the gospel. He has lately become connected with the Salvation Army and is at present a soldier of the New York 3 Corps which is located on Broadway and Times Square.

SALESGIRLS TO SERVE THE C. OF C. BANQUET

New Departure Engineered for Thursday Spread—"Sack of Mystery" Is Full.

Barring an earthquake or a blizzard, nothing can now interfere with the success of the Chamber of Commerce banquet on Thursday evening, when four days in his go, the reservations already nearly equal the attendance of last year.

The final detail of arrangements are completed. Steward Stacy and Chef Osano guarantee one of their incomparable dinners.

Rev. Robert W. McLaughlin and Wallace M. Bayless, the speakers, have both been heard from within the past 24 hours, assuring the committee that they are looking forward to February 10.

The entertainment committee has had its final meeting with the leader of the orchestra, and with the leader of the quartette, who will act as master of ceremonies in directing the entertainment.

Scott Simon's "Sack of Mystery" improves in Aladdin's lamp. It won't even be necessary to rub the magic ring on the enchanted lamp, but just to stick in your thumb an pull out a plum.

Jack Sanson gives assurance that the special vaudeville act which he is bringing over especially for the Chamber will be a good one.

In the meantime, the waiters, who always feel that there is plenty of time, are advised to watch their step or they will find the tables filled, as there is a limit to the seating capacity of Cheney hall, and the best tables are naturally given to the first comers.

D. A. R. DELEGATES TO CONGRESS NAMED

Regent Miss Alice Dexter and Mrs. Arthur B. Loomis to Represent Orford Parish.

The February meeting of Orford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held at the Manchester Community club Saturday afternoon.

After paying allegiance to Old Glory, a lesson on the flag was given by Mrs. Frank Wolcott. The regent, Miss Alice Dexter, thanked the members for the numerous and valuable gifts which they had donated for the entertainment of the immigrants while they are being detained at Ellis Island.

They were told that patriotic lantern slides and lectures may be obtained by securing the address of the regent.

The chapter will see that copies of "Manchester Centennial History" are placed in the library at Memorial Continental Hall at Washington and in our State Library at Hartford.

On February 22 a Washington's Birthday social will be held at the Center Church parlor. Each member may bring two guests.

Delegates were appointed to the annual National Congress at Washington in April, as follows: Miss Alice Dexter, the regent, and Mrs. Arthur Loomis, Alternates are Mrs. Louis Grant, Mrs. Emma Hutchinson, Miss Mary Benton, Mrs. Lucius Foster, Mrs. Donald Grant, Mrs. F. H. Jones, Mrs. Thomas Lewis, Mrs. Herbert House, Mrs. Charles Sumner and Mrs. Gertrude Purnell.

Delegates to the state meeting at Meriden on March 29 and 30 are Mrs. Frank Wolcott and Mrs. Nelson Smith.

Each member of the Chapter had been asked by the Ways and Means Committee to earn a dollar and bring to this meeting with a report of the manner in which it was earned.

The company was favored with readings by Miss Beatrice Johnson entitled "The Church Wedding" and "Over the Phone." Several songs were given very acceptably by High school seniors with Miss Marlon Dordard at the piano.

Following the entertainment refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. F. H. Jones, Mrs. H. A. Core, Eulora Hamlin, Holmes and Mrs. M. E. Dordard.

PATTON SINGS TONIGHT FROM STATION WJZ

Fred Patton, the well known bass-baritone, who is a native of Manchester, will be the featured soloist in the concert tonight at 8:30 from WJZ broadcasting station.

After 1900 years of Christianity, the Church of Christ is so split up into pieces and so divided among itself, that it is indeed a hard problem for Beelzebub and the "Gates of Hell" to find the "rock" upon which Christ built his church.

Before these missionaries brand one half of the population of Manchester, as Godless, let them learn the lesson of Christian harmony first. Let them open their meetings to their sermons, so that the "Godless" may ask questions and thus giving them an opportunity to express themselves regarding their belief.

We can fully sympathize with the poor heathen, who, after being split up into pieces, and himself knee deep in theological mire and lost in a jungle of dogmatic doctrine.

Yours truly, MATHIAS SPIESS, So. Manchester, Conn. Feb. 1, 1927.

MRS. ELIZA HUTTON.

Mrs. Eliza A. Hutton, aged 65, died last night at the Memorial hospital, after a lingering illness with a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Hutton was born in Ireland and had been a resident of Manchester for about forty years. She was one of the oldest soldiers of the local Salvation Army and had always been active in the different branches of the work.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of Mrs. George May on 18 Trotter street and at the Salvation Army citadel at 2.30. Commandant C. M. Abbott will officiate. The body will be placed in the receiving vault in the East cemetery.

BENGOUGH SURPRISED

MIXED SHOWER

Miss Mildred Sargent Receives Host of Gifts from Many Friends

A miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Miss Mildred Sargent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Torrence of Walnut street on Friday evening.

During the evening a wedding cake on which were a bride and groom was cut and distributed. A most marriage was performed with the following people in the cast: minister, Mrs. David Robinson; bride, Miss May Robinson; groom, Miss Gladys Symington; bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Kershaw; best man, Miss Mary Somerville. The flower girls were Peggy Torrence and Edna Kasulki.

OPEN FORUM

PITY POOR HEATHENS AMONG THE 'GODLESS'

Mathias Spiess Gives Views on Col. Agnew's Statement About Non Church Members.

Editor, The Herald: It seems "A Non-church Member" has started a nest of hornets when he had his letter published in The Herald on Feb. 2.

Personally I do not blame "A Non-church Member" for protesting against a stranger coming in to town and calling one-half of the population of Manchester, Godless, but I do blame him for concealing his identity.

Why call people Godless and why point to "hypocrites inside the church," when "There is so much bad in the best of us and so much good in the worst of us that it does not behoove any of us to talk about the rest of us."

Regarding the 10,000 Godless people in Manchester, as Col. Agnew called them and in answer to many who have asked me to give my personal opinion regarding the Protestant missions conducted in town, I wish, first of all, to remind Col. Agnew that a "fisher of men" should use better bait.

If he would study the parable of the "Good Samaritan" he would realize that the Samaritans were a Godless people in the eyes of the orthodox theologians. They were the dogs and outcasts of society and yet Jesus held up the Samaritan in preference to the Levites (clergy) and the scribe (lawyers), as an example of a good neighbor.

As to my opinion regarding the Protestant missions, I can only say that they expose the pitiful condition in which these Protestant churches find themselves today.

After 1900 years of Christianity, the Church of Christ is so split up into pieces and so divided among itself, that it is indeed a hard problem for Beelzebub and the "Gates of Hell" to find the "rock" upon which Christ built his church.

Before these missionaries brand one half of the population of Manchester, as Godless, let them learn the lesson of Christian harmony first. Let them open their meetings to their sermons, so that the "Godless" may ask questions and thus giving them an opportunity to express themselves regarding their belief.

We can fully sympathize with the poor heathen, who, after being split up into pieces, and himself knee deep in theological mire and lost in a jungle of dogmatic doctrine.

SCOUTS CELEBRATING 17TH ANNIVERSARY

Special Program Outlined For Each Day of This Week; Local Scouts Interested.

Starting yesterday and continuing through the following, Sunday the Boy Scouts in Manchester and in every city and town of our country are celebrating the Boy Scout Anniversary Week.

Monday, Feb. 7: The Scout and His Home. Tuesday, Feb. 8: The Scout and His Community. Wednesday, Feb. 9: The Scout and His School. Thursday, Feb. 10: Preparation Day for Merit Badges.

Friday, Feb. 11: The Scout and His Vocation. Saturday, Feb. 12: The Scout and His Camp. Sunday, Feb. 13: The Scout and His Country—Patriotic Day.

The Scout troops are requested to appear in uniform if a body at the morning service of their respective churches. Where possibly the same will give special reference to Scouting and the Church.

Scout Principles Article III of the Constitution of the Boy Scouts refers especially to the principles and policies of the Scout as follows:

The Boy Scouts of America maintain that no boy can grow into the best kind of citizenship without recognizing his obligation to God. In the first part of the Boy Scout's oath or pledge the Scout promises, "On my honor, I do my best to do my duty to God and my Country and to obey the Scout Law." The recognition of God as the ruling and leading power in the universe and the grateful acknowledgment of His favors and blessings, is necessary to the best type of citizenship and is a wholesome thing in the education of the growing boy.

Only men willing to subscribe to this declaration of principle shall be entitled to certificates of leadership in carrying out the Boy Scout program.

The activities of the members of the Boy Scouts of America shall be carried on under conditions which show respect for the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion as required by the twelfth Scout Law, reading "A Scout is Reverent." He is reverent towards God. He is faithful in his religious duties and respects the conviction of others in matters of custom and religion.

In addition to regular program on Monday there will be a Scout supper at the local street Recreation Center at 6:30 for Scout leaders and scoutmasters who attended the recent schools for leaders in Manchester.

YOUTHFUL DRUNKS BEAT ELDERLY MAN

Louis Ulrich and Charles Fogarty, two young men were arrested late last night by Sergeant Crockett on the charge of assault on Henry McConville, 59, of 509 Keeney street.

The young fellows, who were drunk, assaulted the elderly man, apparently for no reason at all, as he was on his way home.

McConville, who was badly beaten and bruised, went to the home of a neighbor and called the station. Sergeant Crockett was detailed to the case but he had some trouble locating the culprits.

Fogarty was arrested in about half an hour after the assault but Ulrich eluded the police for more than an hour after that. He was arrested by Sergeant Crockett about 1 o'clock this morning. The assault occurred at 11.30.

In police court this morning the two men were arraigned before Judge Johnson, but McConville was unable to be present to testify. Accordingly the case was put over until February 16. McConville is now under the care of a local physician.

Because of the seriousness of McConville's injuries Ulrich's bond was raised to $500 today by the court.

HOBENTHAL JR. ACCEPTS LUMBER CO. POSITION

Will Assist N. B. Richards as General Manager of Local Concern.

E. L. G. Hohenthal, Jr., local contractor, will abandon that occupation as soon as his work at the Manchester Green school is completed and will assume the position of assistant general manager of the Manchester Lumber Company.

Mr. Hohenthal will assist N. B. Richards, the present general manager. Mr. Richards finds that the work is increasing rapidly, and fears a breakdown in health if he attempts to care for all the details. He therefore has appointed Mr. Hohenthal to help him.

Emil Hohenthal, Jr., graduated from the local high school in 1909 and from Pratt Institute in 1911. For two years he was with the construction department of the H. Wales Lumber Company of Meriden. Then in 1912 he went into the contracting business himself. He is a member of the Board of Relief. Mr. Hohenthal expects to enter his new position about April 1.

ONLY ONE CRASH IN QUEEREST FOG

Mist Froze on Windshields Yesterday and Autoists Played Safe.

Only one slight automobile accident was reported at police headquarters yesterday despite the fact that the heavy fog seriously interfered with all kinds of traffic. The low accident record was due largely to the fact that many car owners kept their machines safe and snug in the garages.

The fog was a most unusual one, closely allied to sleet, and it froze on windshields, making a deal of trouble for those motorists who did venture out. One man said that though he has been driving an automobile many years, it was the first time he had seen the weather warm enough for a fog and at the same time cold enough to freeze.

East Center Street Bump The only accident reported by the police occurred yesterday noon on East Center street, when a Reg speed wagon operated by Ernest Lamb of North Frankland and a Chrysler sedan driven by Marietta J. West of 72 Pitkin street collided. Patrolman McGlinn, who investigated, said the accident was due to ice on the windshields of both cars. The damage was trivial and no one was hurt.

CARPENTERS' WAGES.

That the building contractors of Manchester have definitely decided to refuse the demand of the carpenters for an increase of a dollar a day in wages will be disappointing to the journeymen and their families is undoubtedly true.

As a whole and in proportion to the skill and hard work involved the building crafts are better paid than any other important class of workers in the country.

More than a year ago one of the largest lenders on new construction in New York City, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., adopted a policy of retrenchment in that direction because extraordinary building costs were rendering such investments unsound.

Not for many, many days to come shall the Herald, for one, raze the Connecticut company. We have the promise—and a promise is a promise.

payment of wages beyond which business enterprises cannot go without going bust. In the building trades that limit was reached some time ago. Where it has been exceeded the explosion is at hand—as evidence New York.

PROMISED.

When a repentant sinner cries "mea culpa!" and promises to be good, unless he has promised too many times before, those against whom he has offended are bound to take his promises at face value and thereafter suspend judgment on him pending performance.

The Connecticut company has not been given to making promises to the people of Manchester. It has generally paid about as much attention to the protests of the folks of this town as a duck pays to the rain.

But now spokesmen for the trolley concern actually come forward with assurances that Manchester is really remembered as a contributing element in the company's earnings—deserving of something in the way of consideration; and that there are plans on foot by which this community, in the course of time, will get greatly improved transportation.

It is an extraordinary case, for the child is said to be an American citizen, held, so the allegation is, in a foreign country in conflict with her own interests and as such entitled to government protection.

Whether there will be enough left of Lucienne Helen's $180,000 to buy her a pair of shoes, after the lawyers get through with these delicious involvements, remains for the future to tell.

Secretary Kellogg's well intentioned proposal to neutralize the international settlement at Shanghai is ridden by certain handicaps that may operate to make it of little effect.

Another thing is that the Shanghai customs are one of the important objectives of the campaign. Whichever army controls the intake of revenue from that source will have succeeded in financing itself rather heavily according to Chinese standards.

Still another point is that the Chinese could not be blamed very much for adopting a skeptical attitude toward American-created "neutral" zones, after the experience of Nicaragua, where it has been demonstrated that the principle of neutralization can be employed just as effectively as howitzers in defeating the strategy of one of two contending armies.

In any event the impression grows that we are hovering rather nearer to the edge of this Chinese trouble than it was expected we would—nearer than most Americans like. The intrusion of Signor

Lucienne's Fortune. Little Lucienne Helen Nolan, eight-year-old daughter of the late Harry E. Nolan of Hartford, war veteran, bids fair to become an international figure of the first class.

Nolan had an estate of $180,000 which he willed to the child. His father, too, who has died in the interval since her birth, left Lucienne the income of a $30,000 trust fund. So the child is quite an heiress. But the whereabouts of the child is a mystery. She is no longer in Lucerne. The mother, who after the divorce married a man named Bond and is now living at Quincy, Mass., is endeavoring to assert her guardianship but cannot learn where she daughter is, if she does, and gets possession of her, she will invalidate the $30,000 bequest of Grandfather Nolan because his will made the payment of the income conditional on the mother not being the child's guardian.

Now lawyers for the child's mother are threatening to appeal to the United States State Department for aid in setting the machinery of European governments to work in a search for little Lucienne Helen. Massachusetts statesmen declare they will bring the affair up on the floor of Congress and President Coolidge is to be appealed to.

It is an extraordinary case, for the child is said to be an American citizen, held, so the allegation is, in a foreign country in conflict with her own interests and as such entitled to government protection.

Whether there will be enough left of Lucienne Helen's $180,000 to buy her a pair of shoes, after the lawyers get through with these delicious involvements, remains for the future to tell.

In any event the impression grows that we are hovering rather nearer to the edge of this Chinese trouble than it was expected we would—nearer than most Americans like. The intrusion of Signor

Mussolini into the situation as a volunteer ally of Great Britain does not make any possible partnership with Great Britain the more attractive on this side of the oceans—for Mussolini talks too freely at all times of "blows" and too little of the rights of other nations.

THAT TAX CASE.

Besides not being very sporting, the attempt of the government to change its assessment of income tax on the Ford minority stockholders headed by Senator Couzens, after the lapse of several years, promises not to be very successful.

It has been stated that the defendants to the suit will have paid about a million dollars in lawyers' fees and other expenses by the time the case is concluded and, naturally, the government's share in the proceedings will not be free of all charge.

The affair may not, however, be without value if it has the effect of discouraging the Treasury department, hereafter, from wenching on its own bargains. In the homely proceedings of every-day business, when a man fixes his own price and the other fellow pays it and takes a receipt, that is the end of the matter. If the trader stings himself, he makes the best of it. If by any chance he goes walling about for an extra payment, on the plea that he has not charged enough, everybody laughs at him.

When our two souls stand up erect and strong, Face to face, silent, drawing nigher and nigher Until the lengthening wings break into fire

At either curved point—what bitter wrong Can the earth do us, that we should not long? Be here contented? Think, in mounting higher, The angels would press on us and aspire To drop some golden orb of perfect song

Into our deep, dear silence. Let us stay Rather on earth, Beloved—where the unit Contrarious moods of men recoil away And isolate pure spirits, and permit a place to stand and love in for a day.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Two major changes in the makeup of official Washington's higher circles are imminent, according to a growing chorus of rumors that eddies and swirls about Capitol Hill.

To be sure, Washington is always full of rumors, and these may or may not be any stronger than the others. But they're being discussed on every hand, and you may take them for what you think they're worth.

First of all, political observers here are predicting an early resignation of General Lincoln T. Andrews, prohibition administrator, now pending in Congress. It is generally accepted, as authentic that he will leave his job on or about March 4.

Andrews insists that honest-to-goodness prohibition enforcement is not possible without the aid of new enforcement legislation, now pending in Congress. If this legislation is not passed at this session—and it might be remarked there is little indication that it will be—Andrews probably will voluntarily join the other lame ducks who go out of office in March.

His retirement would leave a gaping vacancy, the filling of which would require considerable political pondering. Right now

Washington is wondering if the mantle will fall on the receptive shoulders of Congressman William D. Uphaw of Georgia, dryest of the drys. Uphaw goes out of office this spring; it is considered a safe bet that, if he doesn't get the prohibition post, he will go back to Georgia and become a candidate for the Senate.

The other resignation that is being rumored is that of Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg. To be sure, Kellogg's resignation has been rumored before, and thus far he hasn't offered it. But there are signs that he is finding his office burdensome and a resignation in the spring would cause little surprise.

It won't come right now, however. If Kellogg should resign now every Democrat in the land would shout that he "quit under fire," and would chorus that President Coolidge had admitted making a misstep in the State Department.

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

Too Much Is Enough

Banks everywhere are becoming extremely cautious about financing building enterprises at inflated costs, realizing that even a relatively short period of depression would serve to force them on the market at figures far below the investment.

In the face of such a situation, workers in the building trades would not seem to be helping their own future very greatly if they insist on adding still more to the high cost of new structures, frightening already timid investors and bringing to a halt whatever building may be in sight.

We would like to see every carpenter in Manchester—and every silt worker and truck driver and printer and everybody else who does a real day's work, living on the scale of a millionaire. But unfortunately it can't be done.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Lewis and Clark (1)

In 1801 a young army captain from Charlottesville, Va., became the secretary to President Thomas Jefferson. His name was Meriwether Lewis and he came from a well-known Virginia family, being a grand nephew of Fielding Lewis, who married a sister of George Washington. Jefferson was then negotiating with France for the purchase of Louisiana territory.

Robert Livingston and James Monroe offered Napoleon $2,000,000 for New Orleans and West Florida, to win control of the Mississippi's mouth.

Napoleon refused. "All or none," he told the American envoys. So the United States paid $15,000,000 for the whole territory of Louisiana.

Out of that vast domain the United States was to carve the states of Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Oklahoma, Minnesota and parts of Kansas, Wyoming, Montana and Colorado. Jefferson, eager to probe the land's resources, decided to have it explored. Lewis was quick to volunteer.

JACK LOCKWILL AT ROCKLAKE

by Gilbert Patten

There was no rule of the school that forbade freshmen to have automobiles, but Jack happened to be the first freshman to own one. McNally went around among the upper class fellows, seeking out a sentiment against Jack that would keep him from using the car. He wasn't very successful. "All right," he said disgustedly. "Let the poor fish run wild. Maybe he'll break his neck."

The sophomores challenged the freshmen to play baseball. Jack went out to practice, but he didn't seem to be acceptable. He didn't know the reason until the captain, "Chick" Bevin, explained. "You own an auto," Chick told him, "and the fellows feel you're 'too snobbish.'"

Sometimes Jack was super-sensitive, a weakness that he had inherited from his mother. Seeing Jack wasn't practicing, Darling asked the reason. McNally stepped up and said: "I'll tell you the reason. He's no good."

That aroused Jack's battling spirit. "I understand you're the pitcher for the sops, McNally," he said. "Well, maybe you'll find out whether I'm any good or not. I was on the field again the next time the freshmen practiced. Walking up to 'Chick' Bevin, he said: "I can play baseball and I'm here to practice. I'm going to have a chance to show you what I can do if I have to fight the whole team for it."

STATE AUDIENCE WEEPS AT "THE FIRE BRIGADE"

Tense Moments Seen in Great Spectacle—Here Again Today and Tomorrow.

Eyes were wet and hands gripped chair arms during moments of tansity in the first showing of "The Fire Brigade" at the State theater last night. The concensus indicated this picture is one of the most thrilling ever brought to Manchester. It remains at the State today and tomorrow.

There will be a public whist at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Skinner of Pleasant Valley next Friday evening, February 11.

The Whist which was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Elmore of Pleasant Valley on Friday evening was well attended. There were eleven tables, Miss Isabelle Zinsner won the ladies' first prize; Mrs. Raymond Burnham, second; Wallace Hayes, gent's first and Earl Hayes, second.

Mrs. William Grisel has returned to her home from the Hartford Hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

On Wednesday evening the State will award $50 in gold to its patrons. There will be $5 gold pieces and ten $2.50's. On the same program with the pay-night will be two big features. Then the usual week-end program with five acts of vaudeville and a smashing feature will be seen on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

On Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of next week "The Scarlet Letter" will be seen at the State. The picture is made from Nathaniel Hawthorne's book of the same name and stars Lillian Gish.

Milan. — Two treasure hunters who ventured into a cave near Porenzo recently, were killed by the poison gas it contained. The cave is supposed to contain a large quantity of gold and precious stones, according to the legends of the Istrians.

Mrs. Robert A. Boardman of East Windsor Hill was taken to the Hartford Hospital on Sunday afternoon. Her daughter, Miss Margaret Boardman, who is away from home attending school, has returned home for a few weeks, on account of her mother's illness.

The whist which was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Elmore of Pleasant Valley on Friday evening was well attended. There were eleven tables, Miss Isabelle Zinsner won the ladies' first prize; Mrs. Raymond Burnham, second; Wallace Hayes, gent's first and Earl Hayes, second.

Mrs. William Grisel has returned to her home from the Hartford Hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

WAPPING HAS TOUGH GAME FOR TOMORROW

The outcome of the game between the Knights of Lithuania and the Wapping Community Club boys tonight is awaited with considerable interest. Many who have hitherto not recognized the merits of the Wapping players, will change their opinions if the villagers make a real good showing.

Replay from Wapping have it that the lites hamlet will be practically deserted tomorrow night. It seems that everybody is going to Hartford to see the big game.

Boston. — Because his snores were out of key with the soprano who was singing on the stage, Dennis Albanese was fined $15 the other day for disturbing a public assembly. One of the theater attendes declared Albanese's snores were like the deepest notes from a bassoon.

MENJOU IN GREATEST ROLE HERE TOMORROW

"Sorrows of Satan" Coming to Circle for Two Days.

The whole country has been talking about Adolph Menjou's wonderful role in "The Sorrows of Satan," Manchester moving picture enthusiasts will see this film at the Circle theater tomorrow and Wednesday. It is being brought here at a big expense and is truly what the New York critics say of it.

For the last time tonight the Circle will show scintillating Mae Murray in her latest, "Altair of Desire." The crowd last night enthused over this feature and Mae has scored heavily.

Christy Cabanne celebrated the anniversary of his fifteenth year as a motion picture director when he directed "Altars of Desire," with Conway Tearle in the featured male lead, for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Cabanne is one of the new old-time directors that have survived in the industry to the present day. He has directed motion pictures for practically every producing organization, and was with D. W. Griffith in the early days, directing Lillian Gish and Douglas Fairbanks in their first pictures.

D. W. Griffith again proves himself the master craftsman of the photoplay in "Sorrows of Satan," here on Tuesday and Wednesday. In its fine shadings and subtle suggestions the picture is exquisite. With all his old-time magic and with an inspiration, that has not marked in such a degree his films since "Broken Blossoms," Mr. Griffith succeeds in conveying to the audience the most complex ideas through the pantomime of his players.

Every actor performs his part in superlative fashion. Adolph Menjou as Satan, is a delightfully delectable devil. Carol Dempster in the role of Mavis Clare, the poor stenographer and heroine gives the finest performance of her career. Lya De Putti as the wicked Princess Olga, Ricardo Cortez as Geoffrey Tempest, an every member of the excellent cast, in fact, give outstanding performances.

SNORES; IS FINED.

Boston. — Because his snores were out of key with the soprano who was singing on the stage, Dennis Albanese was fined $15 the other day for disturbing a public assembly. One of the theater attendes declared Albanese's snores were like the deepest notes from a bassoon.

LITTLE JOE

BEGGARS SHOULD NOT BE SMOKERS.

NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 7.—So rare are laws in Manhattan that when they appear almost in mid-town, they become vertible points of interest and landmarks.

Thus a little spot in Greenwich Village, known as "cottage row," gained its fame not because it was bought by John Rogers in 1799 for $5000, but because it boasted 14 luxury and luxurious houses they are running largely back to a series of latticed and balconied flats of Spanish architecture on Seventh avenue.

But they were too beautiful to live. I note that an apartment hotel will soon extinguish them.

Over on the Fifty-seventh street belt, where art galleries blossom profusely, they tell of a recent visitor from Hankins Centers, or some way point.

One gallery displayed a sign in the window: "Exhibition of Marinas." "I didn't know that marines ever had time to paint," marveled the dear old lady.

Among the horrible details of the Browning-Pearces suit were those regulations of the baby bride that "Daddy" insisted on such insanities as bringing home trick rubber eggs, collapsible forks and the like.

Well, the first time I met W. C. Fields, the comedian, who has taken to the films he reached in his pocket and handed me a cigar. It was rubber.

Frank Henderson is president of the Rubber Exchange in the Wall Street belt and is considered somewhat of a success in the business world. Yet on his desk may be found a plate of inviting appearing doughnuts which he cordially invites his friends to taste. They are made of rubber!

The late Houdini was extremely fond of offering trick matches and it has been said of Chas. D. Peur that no one loved a practical joke more than he—providing it wasn't too impractical a practical joke.

The horses ridden by Manhattan's traffic cops become immediately suspicious when they see a crowd.

Just as the old-time fire horses would begin to race at the sound of a gong, so the traffic ponies spring into action at the sight of gathering herds.

The other day a toy motion picture device was being shown in the window of a prominent store and soon a great crowd gathered. A few moments later up galloped a traffic policeman. The horse made his way through the crowd, peered into the window and, seeming to know what was going on, watched the film for a moment and then casually backed out.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

A meeting was held on Friday afternoon of all the representatives of the various clubs and organizations in the school who are sponsoring the big Senior class carnival...

Each club or organization will put on some kind of entertainment, novelty, or will run a booth at the carnival. The affair will in all probability be the most stupendous ever attempted at the local high school.

Many interesting suggestions have been made. Le Cercle Francais proposes to run a French cafe in the library room. Because this will be one of the big novelties of the evening, no particulars concerning it have been suggested.

The Soc and Buskin club will present two one-act plays at the carnival, and it has been suggested that there be a musical minstrel act put on also.

Several of the clubs will be in charge of booths, such as candy and refreshment booths, which will be set up along the sides of the assembly hall.

The plans for the carnival will take definite shape this week. Another meeting of the representatives of the clubs and organizations was scheduled for this afternoon.

On last Friday afternoon Le Cercle Francais held a meeting in the Rec auditorium. There was a business meeting first, at which time the committees which will be in charge of the next meeting were appointed, and the minutes of the last meeting read.

After the business meeting "Ape" Markham entertained with several original and interesting dances. Then the members, led by Miss Kelly, sang a number of songs in French.

Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served. At the next meeting of the club it is hoped to have a musical program for presentation.

Everyone is talking about the basketball team's continued successes. Over the week-end the school's hoopers tossed in a couple more victories.

At the next meeting of the club it is hoped to have a musical program for presentation. The girls' glee club will rehearse tomorrow afternoon, the seventh period, in the assembly hall.

The girls' glee club will rehearse tomorrow afternoon, the seventh period, in the assembly hall. The girls likewise are engaged in learning their parts of the cantata "A Man Without a Country."

The orchestra will have its rehearsal as usual in the assembly hall on Wednesday afternoon, the seventh period. There are several new numbers for the orchestra to learn and all members should bring their instruments and be prompt in attendance.

The decorating committee for the Junior Prom, which will be held on Saturday evening of this week, were at work on the decorations on Saturday morning.

The Prom this year bids fair to outdo any other held previous to this time. The request for bids has been great, and the bids are now being distributed.

It has been announced that there will be no school on Friday afternoon of this week. The teachers will attend a convention in Hartford. School will be dismissed at 11:30 a. m. on Friday.

Tryouts were held on Friday afternoon for the boys of the Soc and Buskin club. The boys will give one of the one-act plays to be given at the senior class carnival.

Preserve Church. London. The ancient church of Warburton, Cheshire, one of the last of the old wooden churches of England, will be repaired as a memorial to the late rector, Rev. Geoffrey Edgerton-Warburton.

Clever Engineers Conquer Rockies

Denver, Colo., Feb. 7.—Two thousand feet under the crest of the continental divide busy gangs of workmen are digging the longest hole ever made in the crust of the North American continent.

Next July, when they lay down their picks, withdraw the steam shovels and call it a job, they will have completed Moffat tunnel, six full miles in length, built to allow trains between Denver and Salt Lake City to escape their present round-about route over the mountain passes and to provide a new source of water supply for Denver.

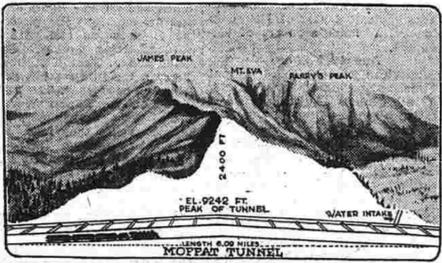

The tunnel will exist as a monument to one of the greatest engineering feats of modern times. A Dream of Moffat. Moffat was the first to dare to throw a railway line across the tangled peaks of northwestern Colorado to connect Salt Lake City with Denver and open that part of the state to commerce.

Two shafts enter the mountains—one from the east and one from the west. Less than a quarter of the beams are splintered like matchsticks. But the work has gone on and gone on rapidly. The workmen work in three shifts, of eight hours each, so that the shafts are never still. Charges of explosive are set off deep in the rock; the reverberations have hardly died away before the steam shovels are trundled forward to scoop up the debris, while automatic conveyers begin clicking as they throw the shattered bits of rock into the dump cars, mounted on narrow-gauge tracks.

Ventilation. Giant blowers, each of 750 horsepower, will project a wind through the tunnel too strong for a man to walk against. The ventilation system is being worked out by engineers of the Denver and Salt Lake railroad, subject to the approval of the state tunnel commission.

The two big blowers are independent of one another, will be placed at opposite ends of the bore and only one will operate at a time. Because the bore is more than six miles long the blower end must be blocked by a door to assure a through draft.

Above is a diagram showing how the tunnel pierces the heart of a steam shovel removing crumbled shale and rock after a blast, had been set off in the tunnel shaft.

A mile of tunneling remains to be done before they will meet. Delicate surveys, so fine that even the strength of the sun's rays had to be calculated by the men "running the lines," have shown the engineers that the two tunnels will connect to within a fraction of an inch.

The engineering problem involved in constructing the tunnel has been enormous. In some places the diggers have encountered solid rock so hard that it blunted their drills. In other places they have struck underground rivers that have flooded the shafts and imperiled lives.

In still others they have had to bore through treacherous shale and soft rock that crumbles and caves in without warning.

At times the tremendous weight of the rock above and about the tunnel has caused one of the shafts to "squeeze shut." Walls, floor and ceiling come slowly together with such terrific force that 24-inch All Moffat engines already used smoke consumers, thus eliminating the smoke evil of ordinary tunnels. Early plans for electric traction in the tunnel have been dropped.

At each outside end of the shafts there is a small town where workers, engineers and officials live. Each camp is equipped with hospitals, schools for the children of the men and warehouses which hold provisions and fuel enough for a whole month. If a heavy snowfall or a landslide isolates the camps there will be no hardship, and the work will go on.

Lives Lost. In reality, the tunnel will be a compound affair. The main shaft will carry the railroad track; a smaller tunnel, parallel to it, will divert water from the Pacific side of the continental divide and carry it through to the Atlantic side for the use of Denver and nearby towns. Seventeen lives have been lost in construction of the tunnel, and $13,000,000 will have been expended by the time it is complete. The money was subscribed by the city of Denver and the counties through which the road passes. Moffat tunnel will allow trains to cover in six miles ground that the existing line takes 20 miles to cover. It also reduces the grade very materially, and when a cutoff now under construction farther up the line is finished six hours will be lopped from the running time of Denver-Salt Lake City trains.

YAQUI WARFARE FAILS TO HURT WESTERN COAST

Indian Disturbances In Three States Have Been Quieted Down.

Nogales, Arizona. — Although war clouds loom the horizon of Mexico and reports of incipient revolution reach the border from Meico's interior, the three states of Sonora, Sinaloa and Nayarit evidence no depression caused by the Yaqui Indian warfare existing in Sinaloa and church troubles in Nayarit. These three states comprising the West Coast of Mexico continue their route of business forming plans for greater expansion during the next twelve months.

Throughout Mexico's long list of revolutions the West Coast of Mexico has been placed in the peculiar position of being divorced from the maelstrom of war that usually centers in the interior central and southern portions of the Republic. Free From Revolution. Revolutions have scarcely ever touched these Pacific states and the people have grown to accept such a condition as natural—as part of their natural heritage of peace and prosperity.

Four months ago when the Yaqui Indians went on the warpath declaring open rebellion against the central government and allying themselves with Adolfo de Huerta, the optimistic trend of Sonora business men was momentarily shattered. But within a short period of a month the situation had sufficiently cleared to show that the Indians were powerless against a concentrated force of 14,000 soldiers.

Then optimism returned and the natural trend of business was resumed. American mine operators who suspended activities at the break of trouble, reopened their properties; American agriculturists thickly dotting the Yaqui River and Mayo River valleys resumed the planting that has brought Sonora one of its largest years in tomatoes and mixed vegetables.

No Business Let-Up. There has been no let-up of business in industrial activities despite war rumors. Faith is incapable of being shattered and, instead of considering curtailed operations, foreign interests in Sonora are, on the contrary, viewing the year as one of expansion and development.

There is a perceptible agitation for more mining in Sonora and foreign interests, principally American, are in the main responsible for this. In several instances old mines abandoned during the Diaz regime have been reopened and money forthcoming for development and operation work.

The hostile Yaqui tribe is hampering inter-city trade and to a small extent tying up rail traffic in a sixty-mile zone through the old Indian reservation but this is held to be a negligible quantity in the major operation of commercial and industrial life.

The Mexican army is most of the time resting on its arms in war sectors, occasionally going out to meet a band of warriors but in the main the Indian warfare is a bouffe opera affair; each side waiting the opening strains of the chorus that will lead to battle.

Sinaloa Has Banditry. Sinaloa within the past month has had some political strife but this has been stamped out. Petty banditry exists in the vicinity of Mazatlan but the military is bringing this in check with a rigid and feasible policy of summarily executing all involved.

Nayarit, the third and last state in the tri-state West Coast of Mexico, is an unknown quantity. Just opened to civilization within the past two years, by rails of the Southern Pacific of Mexico on their southward bend to connect with Mexico City. This small state, once a part of Jalisco, is truly the last frontier of Mexico.

It is religiously fanatic; commercially dormant and disinclined to accept the precepts of progress.

REPUBLICAN BANQUET IN HARTFORD THURSDAY

Annual McKinley Dinner Will Attract G. O. P. Luminaries From Whole State.

The largest social function of the Republican party in Connecticut will be held on next Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at the Hartford Club, Hartford, the occasion being the annual McKinley Association dinner. From the number of reservations already made, it is estimated that more than 400 members of the association and their friends will attend the affair, which in past years has become a most important winter fixture on the Republican calendar.

There is hardly a city or town in the state which is not represented in the reservations received. Bridgeport, New Britain and New Haven will be well represented, the delegation from Bridgeport coming by special train, about 115 strong. The Bridgeport Republican organization chorus is also scheduled to appear at the dinner and it is expected that they will render selections specially arranged for the affair.

Practically all state officials, and most of the members of the 1927 General Assembly have signified their intention of being present, as well as most of the party leaders throughout the state.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt of New York will be the orator of the evening, and considerable interest is being evidenced in his coming. Always an interesting talker, it is expected that Colonel Roosevelt will touch upon subjects of interest to the McKinley association audience. Governor Trumbull will be the other speaker, and if the governor discusses subjects of new interest, it has been his habit at former McKinley dinners the evening will take on an added interest, particularly because the legislature is in daily session.

Attorney General Benjamin W. Ailing of New Britain, president of the association, will act as toastmaster. Treasurer William H. Judd of New Britain is handling arrangements and reservations, assisted by Clarence G. Willard, of New Haven, secretary of the association.

MONEY, WATCH STOLEN FROM REC LOCKERS

Boys Report Losses to Patrolman Saturday Afternoon.

Patrick McCavanaugh and Chas. Bucholski reported to Patrolman John McGinn that they had lost $6 and a gold watch at the School street Rec Saturday afternoon.

The money was left in their clothes in the Rec locker room while they had gone upstairs to the gymnasium. Both boys are amateur boxers and Bucholski is captain of the High school second basketball team.

Mussolini Like 2 Men Says Artist Rappaport

Close contact with the Italian premier in hours spent painting the Duce's portrait, enabled Dario Rappaport, celebrated Viennese portrait artist, to secure Mussolini's autograph on the accompanying sketch.

(Editor's Note: Dario Rappaport, who through his portraits of Mussolini, Pope Pius XI, Clemenceau and other distinguished European figures, has won international fame as an artist, is now visiting the United States to execute a number of important commissions including the portrait of President Coolidge. Mr. Rappaport here offers his personal impressions of Mussolini as the result of many hours of close contact with the Premier.)

By DARIO RAPPAPORT

New York.—Much has been written and said of Benito Mussolini as the Dictator, the Man or the Statesman. But Mussolini as the model for a portrait painter, showing various sides of his unusual character, is a new individual, I believe. I have seen Mussolini in virtually every mood, every phase of mind, and with the eye of a portrait painter I have seen some things which I think others have not noticed.

Some of the Premier's friends asked me to paint the portrait of Mussolini when I was recently in Rome. I was pleased indeed at the opportunity for the features of the Premier as a delight to an artist with the rugged strength and intelligence which they indicate.

Arrangements were made and I finally was admitted to the closely guarded Palazzo Chigi where the Premier lives and does much of his work.

Your Income Tax

Income includes gains realized by the sale of a single piece of property as well as from sales by a person engaged in buying and selling as a business. Ordinarily, gain or loss resulting from the sale of property acquired by purchase after February 28, 1913—the first income tax law applying to individual income—became effective March 1, 1913—is the difference between the cost and the selling price. The gain is income for the year in which received, and can not be prorated through a number of years. For example, a taxpayer bought in 1919 a piece of real estate for $5,000, which he sold in 1926 for $7,000. The $2,000 profit is taxable income for the year 1926.

Profit accrued on individual income before March 1, 1913, is not taxable, even though it was not realized until after that date. The reason is that the constitutional amendment authorizing Congress to tax the income of individuals did not become effective until March 1, 1913. The revenue act of 1926 provides that the basis for determining the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of property acquired by purchase before March 1, 1913, shall be the cost of such property or the fair market value as of March 1, 1913, whichever is greater. For example, a taxpayer bought in 1910 property for which he paid $10,000. The value on March 1, 1913, was $12,000. He sold it in 1926 for $14,000. The March 1, 1913, value being greater than the cost of the property, the taxable gain is figured on that basis, and amounts to $2,000.

A taxpayer bought in 1910 property for which he paid $5,000. Its value on March 1, 1913, was $5,500, and in 1926 he sold it for $4,000. In this example the taxpayer bases his loss on the March 1, 1913 value, which was greater than the cost, and the deductible loss is $1,500.

FLOCK OF POULTRY FOR SETBACK WINNERS
An unusually large crowd is expected to attend the whist and set-back party at St. James' school hall on Wednesday evening.

It was announced today by Simon Hilderbrand, chairman of the general committee that a five-piece orchestra will play and that for an added attraction a flock of poultry will be on hand to be awarded to the high scorers.

Refreshments will be served free.
"Now I'll do the dictating," said the steno, after she married her boss.

ADVANCE PAYMENT TO UNKNOWN MAN UNWISE, SAYS C. C.

Many Door to Door Solicitors Engaged in Frauds; Pay Only When Goods Are Delivered, Is Advised.

This is the 47th article in a series appearing in The Herald by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

The Manchester Chamber of Commerce has constantly repeated the following warning: "Make no deposits or advance payments to anyone not known to you, or for any goods, until they are received and inspected." Notwithstanding this constantly reiterated warning, almost daily evidences are received that people continue to pay strangers deposits on merchandise for future delivery.

Furthermore, in many cases, they do not even give a receipt for the deposit or if a receipt is given, it bears no printed name or address. An example of what is constantly occurring is the case of the Chamber's attention in the case of the Northern Mercantile Company, Inc. Last October and November, a man named Miller, representing himself to be from the Northern Mercantile Company, Inc., 32 Broadway, New York City, went through the town taking orders for imported linens. He confided himself almost exclusively to Swedish people, and evidently did a thriving business, although it is impossible to tell how many orders were actually taken, as many people do not make reports.

Unprinted Order
He collected a uniform 20 per cent first payment, and left an unprinted order showing no name or address, as the only acknowledgment of the collection. Some people did ask his name and to these he gave the above name and address.

Not until January did any formal complaint reach the Chamber, that the orders taken in October and November had not been delivered. The Chamber thereupon, took the matter up with the organizations in New York, who returned unsatisfactory reports of the company.

The Chamber then wrote direct to the Northern Mercantile Company and on February 3rd received the news that Miller did formerly work for the company, and that his order blanks and samples had been called in owing to his irregularities, and that at the time he took the orders in Manchester, he was not employed by them, and the orders taken had never been sent in.

They advise that he had been trying to apprehend Miller, but had not been able to learn his whereabouts. One or two who have written them direct, have received their goods. They close their letter with the following paragraph:

"It will give us the names of the parties who claim to have booked orders with us, and ask them to send copies of such orders, we shall be pleased to fill them, if they are for goods that we handle. For lines that we do not handle, we can assume no responsibility, however, since it is possible this man has solicited orders for merchandise not within his scope of a thorough and obtained money from people on such pretenses, for which of course, we cannot assume any responsibility."

Notify Company
Anyone in Manchester having given such orders, should, if they still desire them filled) notify the company at the above address.

This is an excellent example of what people may expect who continue to deal with bell-ringers and pose to house salesmen. These people come to your house, ask you to put confidence in them, but at the same time, they show their lack of confidence in you, by demanding part payment in advance. If the local merchant should insist on your making a deposit on all goods ordered, you would change your place of doing business. You would most certainly refuse to pay in advance, the merchant who went to your own church, lived on your own street, and had an established business in your town, but you will without question, pay in advance to a man entirely unknown to you, with no place of business, and who does not even give you his address, for goods you do not know the quality of. With a local merchant you see the goods you pay for. From a canvasser you buy by sample and the goods (if they are ever received) may be like the sample, or they may not.

No Address
You will know this only after you have paid the postman the bill and then it is too late. One thing that leads you to absolutely refuse to do business, is the canvasser who attempts to give you a receipt not bearing a printed name and address. In addition to being unbusinesslike, this is illegal, and if followed-up makes him subject to arrest.

Down With Mince Pies Gossip and Bachelors

Dear days are in the ring for devotees of ecstatic dancing, gossip, steaming mince pies, male and female bachelorhood and such if model 1927 legislators and legislation enthusiasts have their way.

Fresh blows will be struck at the idea that man and monkey, as pertains to their modes of descent, may have something in common.

Bolts of law and blasts of eloquence are being hurled at these "evils" with demands that they be proscribed. They are targets of emboldened logic and embattled statistics.

Prohibition controversies, foreign relations debates, election expense disputes—these and their ilk lie shelved, with must gathering over them, while such issues as tripping toes, flippant tongues, mince-filled pastry, single-blessedness and Darwinian education come to the fore.

With but a month's growth to its credit, the 1927 lawmaking urge manifests itself as follows:
Bad, Bad "Charleston!"

The dance has been poisoned and degraded by immoral influences, and a national censor of dancing has become a vital need of the country in the opinion of Rev. John Thompson, pastor of Chicago's skyscraper Methodist Episcopal Temple.

The dance censor would be invested with such powers as are wielded by Judge Landis in baseball and by Hays in moviemaking.

"The church has banned the dance. But bang and haranguing have been futile," said Rev. Thompson. "People will continue to dance till the end of time."

"But it is not impossible to remove the evil influences which now surround dancing."

"There is nothing graceful about the Charleston or the Black Bottom. They simply are immoral."

"If I were national dance censor, I would forbid them."

Author of the famous Tennessee anti-evolution law under which John T. Scopes was convicted at Dayton, Senator John W. Butler of that state has introduced in the legislature a bill to prohibit gossip.

"I think it will pass, too," said Butler. "We need to stop a lot of the orders taken for public office, but also about private persons."

Butler's bill would make gossiping punishable as a misdemeanor. "I am absolutely in favor of it," said Rev. W. F. Powell, pastor of the First Baptist church of Nashville.

"Foolish," said Rev. James I. Vance, Nashville's First Presbyterian pastor.

An Evil Indeed!
A bill prescribing a prison sentence for anyone making, selling or giving away mince pies has been drafted by State Senator James W. Finley of the Sunflower State.

"For years I have considered the eating of mince pies one of our national evils," said Finley.

"Governor Ben S. Paulsen recently was ill after eating mince pies," said Finley.

Kansas has a law forbidding the sale of cigars.

"It is as much the state's business to regulate what we eat as what we smoke," smiled Finley.

Watch Capped Smiles!
Representatives John J. Buresh of Omaha and Bert Morledge of Hastings propose to assess a special male and female inhabitants of Nebraska between the ages of 21 and 25 years.

Honorably discharged veterans of any war would be exempted. So would paupers, idiots and lunatics.

"A man—and a woman, too—owes it to the country to raise a family," said Buresh.

Evolution? Blag!
The state of Arkansas would fine up to $1000 any public school employee teaching "that mankind ascended or descended from a lower order of animals," under a law proposed by Representative A. L. Rotenberry. "Fundamentalists do not get, to present their side of evolution," is taught, modernists have an advantage.

"To teach evolution as a fact upsets every primary Bible doctrine," said Assemblyman Heisinger.

OLD, OLD MILL MEETS THE WEAVERS TONIGHT

Much interest centers about the bowling match between the Old Mill and the Weaving Mill in the C. B. A. A. senior bowling league tonight at Murphy's alleys. The Old Mill, under the leadership of Capable Andy Anderson, is heading the league by the slim margin of two games and tonight's results may furnish a new leader.

However, this would mean that the Weavers would have to win all three games, something which Charley Stays says is utterly impossible. The Weaving Mill team will be at full strength and hope to catch up to, or pass, the Old Mill tonight.

Berlin, Feb. 7.—Erich Rademacher, crack German swimmer, today broke his own world record for two hundred metres by three seconds. Rademacher finished the distance in two minutes, twenty-seven and four-tenths seconds.

REED CANDIDACY EXPECTED SOON BY HOME FOLKS

Missouri Senator Watches Situation in Democratic 1928 Field.

Kansas City, Mo.—Senator James A. Reed will ultimately announce himself as a presidential candidate—but only after "watchful waiting."

In Missouri and in Kansas City, Reed's home town, that seems to be the interpretation which his life-long political associates and those who have followed his public career are giving to his present seclusion. The Missouri senator's followers are sitting in a posture of expectant stillness, keeping their powder dry and waiting for his signal to launch their attack.

That Reed will be among the entries to line up for the 1928 presidential sweepstakes apparently grows less doubtful each day, and although his colleagues in Washington seem to regard it as a foregone conclusion that the "national watchdog" will be Democracy's standard bearer in next year's campaign, political leaders in Reed's home state are working up his boomlet quietly and with cautious technique.

Sentiment Develops
They have followed closely the development of Reed sentiment in the East, especially since his recent address at the convention of the National Foot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association and the news newspapers and political observers have been describing his utterances as a definite omen for the Democratic nomination.

Before Reed left Missouri for Washington to attend the short session of congress at the end of the week, he questioned him about his presidential aspirations received this reply:

"I am still old-fashioned enough to believe the Presidency should rest the man, not the man seek the Presidency."

And at another time he said: "I am not a candidate for anything."

He had previously announced he would not seek re-election to the senate when his present term expired. However, Democratic leaders here and in the state capital took these statements with a grain of salt and refused to accept them as a damper upon their plans for a 1928 boom.

New Developments
Among the developments of the last two or three weeks is one which has attracted small notice, but which is regarded here as significant. At Jefferson City a few days ago plans were formed for the organization of the first Reed-for-President Club. The significant angle was that Samuel W. Fordyce, Democratic state chairman, who returned from Washington recently, said he had received Reed's approval of these plans.

Democrats of the Middle West, after viewing the situation as it stands today, seem to hold the common belief that Reed will not make an active fight for the nomination until the psychological moment. The senator himself has already indicated he would not make an organized drive for state delegations before the national convention is assembled.

Meanwhile, recent middle-western developments have evoked high enthusiasm in Reed's home camp. Considerable interest has been taken in a statement by Senator Caraway of Arkansas mentioning the Missouri senator as one of the two men he believes would make the best Democratic nominee.

LOCAL LEGIONNAIRES MAY GO TO PARIS

It is expected that a number of the local members of the American Legion will avail themselves of the opportunity to visit the battlefields of France in September. It is also expected that some of the ladies of the newly formed, auxiliary will make the trip. Those who are eligible to go to the Paris pilgrimage have until May 15 next to make up their minds. Dilworth Cornell post and their auxiliary have already received two-color steamship folders giving full travel plans for the trip.

The cost of the trip is figured from Indianapolis, the approximate cost of population in the United States, $200, allowing $42.50 for incidentals that the veterans may buy to make the trip more enjoyable. Legionnaires traveling on $300 will live in luxury on the second trip over as compared to that first trip in wartime. Under advantageous travel rates obtained by the Legion the veterans will spend less per day than the ordinary automobile summer tour in this country would cost.

SURPRISE PARTY
Mr. and Mrs. John McKeown of Arch street were pleasantly surprised at their home Friday evening by a group of about 65 relatives and friends.
Mrs. McKeown received a floor lamp and Mr. McKeown a smoke stand, from their friends. Games were played, old fashioned dancing was enjoyed, and refreshments were served.

CHINESE TRADE SHOWS GROWTH IN SPITE OF WAR

Customs Collections Are Greater Than Last Year In All Ports.

Peking.—Foreign trade in China increased $5,500,000 in the year 1926 over 1925, of which the United States got a good share. The gross income of the Chinese Maritime Customs was approximately $53,850,000 in the past year.

Remarkable about this increase is the fact that the nation has never been so torn with civil strife, resulting in the incapacity of all trunk railways for months on end. In addition there has been almost a perpetual boycott directed against all foreign imports and British goods in particular at Canton, despite which the importation of foreign products at that port alone increased by $1,200,000 over 1925.

Customs collections on imports at Shanghai totaled $25,000,000 placing it in the fore among the world's large ports. Tientsin came second with $6,000,000. The Japanese controlled port of Dairen in Manchuria made a return of $5,000,000.

America's Share
American merchants at present obtain approximately one quarter of all China's business abroad. Statistics for the first nine months of 1926 according to the American Commercial Attaché here show that American trade, while starting in no one line, is steadily broadening as the Chinese demands grow more diversified.

International business competition is growing more fierce. China explained the Attache, and with increased overhead and piling down of profits, it is inevitable that there will be a high mortality among the many firms doing business here.

Most phenomenal among American exports to China was the boom in unmanufactured cotton which increased $5,100,000 in the first nine months of 1926 over the same period of 1925. American flour boomed from sales $453,000 in 1925 to $2,263,000 for nine months in 1926.

Record Steel Sales
The greatest record in American steel sales in China was made in 1926, although prices were lower due to strong competition. Sales of electrical equipment from the United States increased 25 per cent and plans have been made to handle a 30 per cent increase during 1927.

Fifty two million pounds of American tobacco came to China, in nine months last year against 43,000,000 for the same period of 1925. Prices were lower however, and the value was $10,915,000, a decrease of $8,000 from the previous year despite the increased sales.

American kerosene sales suffered badly falling off two millions for the first nine months of 1926. They were offset however, by an increasing of $1,800,000 in paraffine wax imports into China.

As an automobile market China lags behind the rest of the world. American cars are well ahead of all others but only 800 passenger cars were imported from America during the first nine months of last year.

Other leading American imports into China during nine months of the past year included canned milk $833,000; sole leather, $809,000; leather belting, $256,000; raisins,

"THE COUNTRY BEYOND" COMING TO RIALTO

"The Great K. & A. Train Robbery" heads the double feature program which is being shown at the Rialto theater for the last times today and this evening. Tom Mix and Tony, his wonder horse are starred in the action roles with Dorothy Dwan, noted horsewoman and finished screen actress in the feminine lead. The story is extremely logical but with thrilling and Mix in the role of a railroad detective is given unlimited scope for his natural abilities in dare devil riding. The second feature balances the program admirably. It is "Paddocked," a simple story well told that pictures life as it really is in a countless number of well to do homes at the present time. Lois Moran and Ford Sterling appear in the major roles. Selected shorter subjects will round out the program. The double feature program opening a two days' engagement at this theater tomorrow has for a headliner the gripping James Oliver Curwood story, "The Country Beyond," one of this popular author's most widely read novels. The natural beauty of the Canadian Wilds and the gay lights of Broadway are equally well pictured in the pictureization and with Olive Borden, Ralph Graves, Gertrude Astor and J. Farrell McDonald in the cast, the film reaches the acme of screen excellence. The balancing attraction is "Border Women," a tale of the Texas Rangers and the hazardous life they lead. William Fairbanks, famous actor-athlete and Dorothy Revel are starred. A hilarious comedy and news reel will also be offered.

PULLED A "BONER."

One of the few "boners" that Manager Stanley Harris of Washington has made since assuming the management of the Senators was the trading of Tom Zachary to St. Louis for Joe Bush. With a second-division club Zachary won 14 ball games while losing 15.

CECELIA GROH

Billy Evans Says

GREAT OUTFIELD The signing of Tris Speaker by Washington, to my way of thinking, gives that club the best outfield in the majors.

Goslin in left, Speaker in center and Rice in right, comprise an outfield that would be hard to beat. It boasts unusual strength in every department of play.

I can think of only one outfield that might possibly be rated better, the old Boston Red Sox combination of Lewis, Speaker and Hooper.

The Washington trio of today has greater batting strength, in fielding it is about a standoff between the two, on the bases, Goslin, Speaker and Rice are faster, in throwing alone did the Red Sox definitely excel.

Washington pitchers should have little to kick about this summer as far as their outfield is concerned.

Still Has Class This Speaker has showed up some, of course, but is far from being through. I don't know how many more years he intends to play, I have heard only one, but he could probably step along in big league style for three more seasons if he cared to.

Speaker is unquestionably the greatest outfielder of the last 20 years, all phases of play considered. His judgment is uncanny, his knowledge of opposing batters complete, there never was a surer catch and his arm has always been noted for its accuracy.

Goslin, Speaker and Rice form a defensive trio that should make it a difficult task for the opposition to make balls fall safe in the outfield.

Goslin Has Improved When Goslin joined the Washington club, he was one of the worst fielders I have ever seen break into the majors. When he started after a fly ball, I feared for his safety.

The fact that left field in Washington is a sun territory, made his task none the easier. I have seen the "Goose" stagger under may a fly ball during the early days of his career, only to lose it entirely or make a catch in a sensational acrobatic manner.

However, Goslin took his fallures good naturally and realizing the defects in his play, set about to remedy them. He has succeeded in a most emphatic manner.

Call Rice Man of War Sam Rice, the other member of the trio, is one of the truly great outfielders of the game. There is a polish to his play that makes difficult catches look easy.

Modest and unassuming, Rice goes about his work in an almost mechanical manner, and seldom turns in a poor performance. For one of the most remarkable outfielders in the game, he has been but little press-agented, due to a certain lack of color.

"Man of War," the Washington fans call Sam Rice, because of his great speed. It is a deserved nickname.

STRIBLING FIGHTS TONIGHT New York, Feb. 7.—Launched upon another drive that he hopes will carry him to the fistic greatness long denied him, W. L. (Young) Stribling, the south's official heavyweight contender, will fight in New York tonight for the first time without the parental guidance of "Pa" and "Ma."

He will meet Sallor Eddie Huffman, of California, in the ten-round final bout at Madison Square Garden and, if successful, will become an official entrant in Tex Rickard's heavyweight tournament. Stribling ruled an eight to five favorite over Huffman today.

Stribling won a decision over Huffman in California several years ago.

Barnes, California Pole Vaulter, After World's Record This Year

Los Angeles, Feb. 7.—Lee Barnes, University of Southern California's erratic pole vaulter, who cleared 13 feet 8 inches in the coast meet last season and then lost at heights considerably under that in important meets in the east will set a world's record of 14 feet during the coming season.

Coach Dean Cromwell, veteran mentor of the Trojan track and field squad, is the authority for that prediction. Cromwell, who is known far and wide as the "maker or champions," is confident that Barnes will leap higher with the bamboo pole this season than any other athlete ever has.

"When the day is right, the time is right, the competitor is right, and his pole doesn't break, Lee will clear 14 feet and it's going to be this season," declared Cromwell the other day.

Best Year Forecast "Nothing can stop him. This is going to be his best year. I feel confident of this after watching him in his first workout this season."

Barnes himself is anxious to fulfill his coach's prophecy. He was considerably burned up over the talk that resulted when he failed to make a good showing in the eastern intercollegiate, and the Hollywood boy is anxious to vindicate himself.

Competition on the coast will be plenty hot this year. Jack Williams who can clear 13 feet consistently, is his Trojan teammate now. Barnes will vault against the Smith brothers and Glenn Graham, who are competing for the L. A. A. C., and all three of whom have bettered 13 feet, and Hill of California.

Get U. S. Record Lee is vaulting against the first four named when he set an American record last season at the Coliseum, which stood until Hoff broke it.

He started when the bar was moved to 11 feet 6 inches. Then he cleared 12 feet 6 inches, 13 feet and 13 feet 6 inches in rapid succession. The bar was moved to 14 feet and everybody in the Coliseum held their breath but while Barnes was hurling himself into the air, the bamboo cracked and he tumbled to the sawdust. You can never convince Cromwell that Barnes wouldn't have cleared that 14 feet.

When he vaulted 13 feet 8 inches at Stanford and went east, only to lose out. This season Barnes will be equipped with a new and longer pole which he can use and carry with him throughout the season and which is guaranteed not to break.

Going After Hoff The record he is going after is Hoff's present world record of 13 feet 11 and 15-16 inches. His 13-foot-8-inch mark is the best ever set by an American vaulter and is an all-time all-collegiate record.

Barnes is working out daily at Bovard field. His first big meet will be the annual A. A. U. relays slated for the Coliseum Feb. 26, at which time the pole vault will be made a special event.

The two Smiths, one of whom has cleared 13 feet 4 inches; Glenn Graham, who tied with Barnes for the Olympic championship and lost the vault-off, and who has a Southern Conference record mark of 13 feet 2 inches and Jack Williams, will provide his competition.

DEMPSEY LAID UP Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 7.—A serious case of blood poisoning in Jack Dempsey's left arm threatened today to postpone indefinitely any attempts of the former heavyweight champion to win back the title.

While surgeons today continued their efforts to localize and remove the infection, friends of the former champion announced that all proposed training plans have been temporarily cancelled.

12 HITS IS HIGHEST IN A WORLD SERIES.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—Despite the fact that 23 world series battles have been staged between the two major leagues, only three batmen ever that long period of time have succeeded in making as many as 12 hits in any of the clashes.

A number of players have compiled 11 hits but to Charley Herzog of the New York Giants, Joe Jackson of the Chicago White Sox and Sam Rice of Washington, goes the honor of cracking out an even dozen safe wallops.

Herzog made his in 1912 against Boston; Jackson in 1919 against Cincinnati and Rice in 1925 against Pittsburgh. Herzog and Jackson played in eight games, Rice one less.

Locals Turn Game Into Scoring Bee; Visitors Held For First Half Without Score.

Manchester High added another to its string of basketball victories Saturday night by taking into camp the Norwich Free Academy five at the School street gym by the score of 46 to 10. The visiting team did not score until three seconds were left in the first half.

The local boys tuned the affair into a scoring bee and when the avalanche began to get too big for the scorers, Coach Clarke sent in his second string men to give his regular team a rest. Practically everybody scored. Holland and Gorman doing most of it, while Norwich's scoring was divided between two men.

The first half was as one-sided as any game could be. Manchester put up a wonderful defensive game while Ty Holland kept dropping in the baskets. Passwork brought the ball to the goal any old time the team desired it and everybody made good his shots. The half ended with Manchester on the big end of an 18 to 2 score.

The second half was almost as bad although the visitors managed to score four baskets, mostly on long shots. Manchester kept right on scoring and ran up 11 baskets and six fouls but Norwich stayed right where it was and made futile attempts to stop the local scoring.

Suzanne Takes Issue With Molla In Tilt Over Sportsmanship

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 7.—Suzanne and Molla, stormy petrels of the feminine tennis world, have found another point of difference.

Both came to Miami Beach for winter tennis. Both expressed themselves on the topic of women in sports. And their answers were as different as the women themselves—the mercurial Frenchwoman and the Norwegian who burns with the will to win.

It was the opinion of Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, American woman tennis champion and leading contender for the world title, that women are poor sportsmen, "nasty, jealous creatures, whose dispositions we have to come out under competitive sport."

"Women are just as good sportsmen as men," was the declaration of Suzanne Lenglen, former woman champion of the world, and old-time rival of Mrs. Mallory.

"But I think it must be harder for them to be," added the Frenchwoman and then joined in the laugh which her seriously offered added comment brought.

"Sportsmanship is harder for women because they are more emotional and because a game like tennis puts them under a greater nervous strain. All sports, the game has a good deal to do with developing sportsmanship."

"It might be said in defense of women in sports that if they don't conceal their emotions they are more honest in that," one of Suzanne's party said.

"Don't say too much in defense of women," said Mlle. Lenglen. "I don't like them."

"And I don't like anyone who takes a beating too well," she added. "It hurts me to think it doesn't mean any more than that to beat them. I like just a little kick."

Mlle. Lenglen has had the best of Molla. She has lost four sets in her competitive tennis career, and one of those was to Mrs. Mallory, at Forest Hills, in 1921. Then Suzanne retired, pleading illness.

She was the first set to the American champion.

Word to the wise is too many. The report that Clark Griffith will pay Speaker $55,000 for one summer's toll would be much easier to believe if it were anybody else but Clark Griffith.

C. B. A. A. Drubs Service Five; Jimmy Neil Hoops Nine Baskets

SUB IS AUSPICIOUS IN HIS FIRST GAME

Chicago, Feb. 7.—Ray Morehart, substitute second baseman of the Chicago White Sox, who goes to the New York Yankees in part payment for Aaron Ward, made a most unusual debut as a regular last season.

Given a chance at various times to break into the game as a sub, Morehart showed considerable ability in the field but always looked rather weak at the bat. Doubt, was expressed as to his ability to hit major league pitching.

Late last season Eddie Collins suffered a leg injury that forced him out of the lineup and it was up to Morehart to play regularly in the place of Collins.

Making his debut as a regular in a double header against Detroit, all he did at the bat was make nine hits in 10 trips to the plate.

Jimmy Neil, Boyle's successor on the silk mill basketball team, played one of the best games of his career Saturday night when Cheney Brothers were soundly trouncing the Service A. C. in Hartford by a score of 37 to 14. The lanky center tallied no less than nineteen points, finding the hoop for nine baskets from scrimmage. Practically all of Neil's shots were of the so-called "sucker" type attesting to the fact that Cheney Brothers played a fine passing game.

The Service A. C. which had been running riot through military teams in the Capitol City, was a mere work-out for the speedy local players who did not have to give their best to roll up twice as many points as the guardsmen. The locals completely baffled the home team before an audience of well over 200 by snappy passwork a strong defense and uncanny eyes for the hoop.

Tommy Faulkner, malcontent of the C. B. A. outfit, had another big night scoring five field goals and a couple of fouls. He was ably assisted by Carroll Barrett, who while not breaking into the scoring column, nevertheless played a bang-up floor game. As far as the defensive work of Wiley, Cervini and Macdonald goes, the Service A. C.'s score is sufficient praise for them.

At halftime, Manchester led 15 to 3. The summary: Cheney Brothers (34)

Four Veterans Show Way in British Golf

By JIMMY POWERS New York, Feb. 7.—Don't tell me you haven't heard of the Four Horsemen! Why every jolly old English golf fan will tell you who they are. Rather spiffy title, eh what?

The Four Horsemen are—Harry Vardon, J. H. Taylor, Ted Ray and Sandy Herd. They are the best of the best. Kid Ibanez hadn't the faintest idea what a flock of sport broomies he was nursing on his knee one night and hammered out the Apocalypse.

While our English cousins are slightly dumpy in the matter of originality of sporting nicknames like the above thrushbare title, still their fond christening brings to light the decadence of the younger golf school and the entrenchment of the old ironides which has now brought about a condition of reverence amounting almost to idolatry.

This was crystallized shortly after the beginning of the New year when the St. Andrews medals pleased the averages and standings for the season.

Give them the double o and you can readily see where the four old skates rate their bloody old nicknames and, take it from little James, those four horsemen are not in the new class by one heck of a long way.

Why those old geezers over there have licked the youngsters to a frazzle. J. H. Taylor leads the quartet of famous veterans, low in scoring and high in victories, with 73 6-10 for 23 major tournament rounds. His percentage of victories is .44, which means he won almost as many as he lost.

Ted Ray has a mark of 75 6-10 for 20 rounds, Harry Vardon has a mark of 77 6-10 for 41 rounds, while Herd has 75 6-10 for 16 rounds. They are all bunched right at the heels of Abe Mitchell and Archie Compston, the leaders. Taylor is 56 years old. Herd is 59. Vardon is close to 60 and Ray is 54.

Between them they have won 13 British open championships. Taylor, Vardon, Herd and Ray and Herd one each. And to cap it all, Sandy Herd is champion of all the pros.

FIRST WOMAN SWIMS CATALINA CHANNEL

Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 7.—Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, of Long Beach, the first woman to swim the 23-mile Catalina Channel, was recovering today from chill and exhaustion, the after-effects of her twenty-one hour battle with icy currents.

Mrs. Huddleston, a swimmer of eight months' experience, staggered to shore and collapsed at Point Vicente, on the California mainland, at 11:14 o'clock Sunday morning. Friends accompanying her in a boat reported the heroic mother swam the final twenty minutes in a semi-conscious condition. She took off from Isthmus cove, Catalina Island, at 2:32 p. m. Saturday.

Hoping to win the $15,000 second prize in the recent Wrigley Marathon, Mrs. Huddleston stayed in the race nearly nine hours but had to give up when she became nauseated from sea water.

She entered the Marathon in the hope of winning enough money to pay for the education of her eleven-year-old son, her friends revealed.

SETBACK TOURNAMENT

In last week's play of Cheney Brothers setback tournament Farr and Olson scored highest with 156 points. Pintello and Marchetti were second with 145 tallies. All four players received chickens as prizes.

Those who have scored 500 points or more, are: Shorts 545 Muldoon 545 J. Ritchie 535 Durfee 522 Purine 522 Rowell 519 Postillo 509 Marchetti 508 Mimich 508 Welman 500 Breen 500

The fifth sitting of the third tournament will be held at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, Feb. 10 at the School street. See.

'Pop' Fuller, Famous Tennis Coach, Has New Wonders Under Training

By THOMAS R. CURRAN.

Berkeley, Cal., Feb. 7.—W. C. "Pop" Fuller, the man who coached and developed such tennis wonders as Helen Wills, Helen Jacobs, Cranston Holman, Bud Chandler and Tom Stowe, hasn't yet begun to fight.

Not content to ride the crest with such pupils as Helen Wills, considered the world's greatest tennis feminine amateur; Helen Jacobs, twice national junior singles champion and at present Pacific Coast and California state senior champion; Holman, national junior champion in 1924, and Chandler, intercollegiate champion, "Pop" reviewed today in an exclusive interview that he still has a couple of trump cards in his hand.

"I am working now with several youngsters that seem to me to be promising material as any I've ever had," Fuller explained. "I have one little miss, Edith Tough, 14 years old, who is showing just as much talent for her age as Helen Wills or Helen Jacobs did. She has shown such splendid determination in mastering the game that I'm sure she'll be champion if she keeps it up."

"I also have several boys who have all the earmarks of great talent. Samuel Lee and Bill Olney had shown such splendid determination in mastering the game that I'm sure they'll be champion if they keep it up."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE Death strikes GARRETT FOLSON...

"Of course, I must report, Maddy," he was saying to his wife.

GROUP of people sat on the deck of the hotel and watched the kaleidoscope crowd already assembling on the boardwalk and the beach.

"Of course I must report, Maddy," he was saying to his wife. "I stood next to Mr. Folsom. I had been talking with him. As I had never seen or heard of the man before, my evidence can be of no help, but I must offer it."

"I wish you wouldn't," Madeline Barron said thoughtfully. "I see your point of view, of course, and it is logical in a way. But, as you say, it can be of no help, and it would get you a most unpleasant notoriety. Why, they may even think you knew the dead man, and they will call on you for testimony at the inquest and—and all sorts of horrid things!"

"Bless your heart, child, what a fearsome picture you draw! I can't feel, though, that I shall be greatly inconvenienced, except that it may cut into my time a little. But duty is duty, and I certainly was next the man—"

"I, too, advise you to keep out of it, Ned." It was Croydon Sears who spoke, who, with his son, Robin, and Angelica Fair, completed the party.

"I don't think it is your duty," Sears went on. "You know nothing of the man; you have no personal interest in the affair, and since you can be of no possible help, why mix in?"

"That's all right, dad," Robin Sears said. "But these notices ask any guest of the hotel who knows anything about the matter—"

"There you are," returned his father. "Barron doesn't know anything about the matter. Hello, here's Tite Riggs. Let him advise us. Come here, Tite, sit down and give us some words of wisdom. Ned, here, thinks he ought to announce to a waiting world that he stood next Mr. Folsom, who was, they say, killed while in bathing."

"I saw you talking to him," said Riggs, sitting down near them. "I assumed from that that you knew him."

"Well, I didn't," said Barron, shortly. "And I wasn't talking to him; he was talking to me."

"A distinction with a difference?" "Very much of a difference. I don't believe addressed by strange men, especially those who have a roiled conviction that ocean bathing constitutes an introduction. It's too absurd! Because you stand next to another man at the rope, or bump into him by reason of a buffeting wave, does that mean sudden friendship?"

"No," Madeline said, decidedly. "And Ned is foolish to give the matter a thought—"

"Oh, I know my duty, even though it is not in line with my inclinations. You agree, don't you, Tite, that I am bound to tell the management—after these notices we all received this morning—that I stood next to this victim of a tragic death? Even though I was annoyed at his unconventionality, my duty as a good citizen is plain. And, too, if only to clear myself from possible suspicion—"

"Clear yourself!" his wife exclaimed. "On the contrary, you will put yourself in a position to be suspected!"

"Nonsense, Maddy, you're over-excited about this thing. Tell her, Tite, that I've no choice in the matter."

"I think so," Riggs said, slowly, looking at Madeline with an apologetic air. "It seems to me it would be better in every way for Ned to go at once to the management and make his report."

"And be subpoenaed as a material witness—"

"Good heavens, Maddy," cried her husband, "I didn't know you even knew there was such a thing as a material witness or a subpoena. Where did you learn such terms?"

Madeline thought. She was most anxious to remember those who were nearby, as every other possible suspect helped to fend off thought of her husband. She knew that Ned never knew the dead man, and had no possible personal interest in him, but she knew, too, how, in the stories she had read, an innocent man was frequently put in most unpleasant situations.

"Mr. Sears was not far off," said Madeline Barron, at last. "But nearer still, I remember now, were Mr. and Mrs. Tracy. Yes, they were very close to Mr. Folsom, and doubtless could help you somewhat in the circumstances."

"There's not much to tell," said Miss Folsom, her lips set in a grim line. "Nobody, except the man who stabbed him, was paying any particular attention to him. Why would they? In the ocean, each individual is looking out for himself or for some one in his care. Few are watching their neighbors. So, as somebody certainly did kill my brother, with a knife or a dagger, that person came into the water prepared and, of course, centered his whole energy on accomplishing his fiendish plan unobserved."

"That's why I care little for the evidence or testimony of those who chanced to be near the unfortunate victim of this tragedy. Yet, as there is always a chance that an observer might have seen some suspicious circumstance, some indicative move on the part of some one else, I am asking those who were nearest for any information they can give."

Miss Folsom's voice was low, her manner quiet and calm, and the whole she made a favorable impression on those who heard her. Except for two of them.

Tite Riggs, watching closely, saw a hint of the iron hand under the velvet glove, and felt sure that the lady was politely placing his in her power because she deemed it policy and not because she was entirely sincere in her statements.

And Robin Sears noted searchingly the unconscious movements of Anastasia Folsom, and ascribed her involuntary facial expressions or instinctive gestures to an unacknowledged suspicion or doubt of something or somebody unmentioned.

(To Be Continued) New leads are brought out at the hearing. Read about it in the next chapter.

themselves on Madeline, she seemed to regard her as the one to be addressed.

"I am Miss Folsom," she said, "and I am the sister of the man who was murdered down here yesterday. I have been told that, so far as is known, Mr. Barron was the last one to talk to my brother before he collapsed, and so—"

Immediately Madeline Barron was on the defensive.

"Miss Folsom," she said, rising, to emphasize her words, "you have been misinformed. My husband spoke to Mr. Folsom shortly before Mr. Folsom fell down into the water. But others spoke to him after that. I know, because I stood at the other side of Mr. Barron, and I had opportunity of observing."

"I am glad to learn, Mrs. Barron, that you were observant. Your testimony may be of value. As clearly as I can find out, you and Mr. Barron were on one side of my brother, and two ladies, known to me, were at his other side. Now, you tell me, please, who, since you were not talking, was also near him? Not necessarily on the rope, but nearby in the water?"

Madeline thought. She was most anxious to remember those who were nearby, as every other possible suspect helped to fend off thought of her husband. She knew that Ned never knew the dead man, and had no possible personal interest in him, but she knew, too, how, in the stories she had read, an innocent man was frequently put in most unpleasant situations.

"Mr. Sears was not far off," said Madeline Barron, at last. "But nearer still, I remember now, were Mr. and Mrs. Tracy. Yes, they were very close to Mr. Folsom, and doubtless could help you somewhat in the circumstances."

"There's not much to tell," said Miss Folsom, her lips set in a grim line. "Nobody, except the man who stabbed him, was paying any particular attention to him. Why would they? In the ocean, each individual is looking out for himself or for some one in his care. Few are watching their neighbors. So, as somebody certainly did kill my brother, with a knife or a dagger, that person came into the water prepared and, of course, centered his whole energy on accomplishing his fiendish plan unobserved."

"That's why I care little for the evidence or testimony of those who chanced to be near the unfortunate victim of this tragedy. Yet, as there is always a chance that an observer might have seen some suspicious circumstance, some indicative move on the part of some one else, I am asking those who were nearest for any information they can give."

Miss Folsom's voice was low, her manner quiet and calm, and the whole she made a favorable impression on those who heard her. Except for two of them.

Tite Riggs, watching closely, saw a hint of the iron hand under the velvet glove, and felt sure that the lady was politely placing his in her power because she deemed it policy and not because she was entirely sincere in her statements.

And Robin Sears noted searchingly the unconscious movements of Anastasia Folsom, and ascribed her involuntary facial expressions or instinctive gestures to an unacknowledged suspicion or doubt of something or somebody unmentioned.

(To Be Continued) New leads are brought out at the hearing. Read about it in the next chapter.

METAL CLOTH, VOGUE OF THE MOMENT

By HENRI BENDEL New York, Feb. 7.—The vogue of the moment in Paris is the evening gown of metal cloth. It is the ideal mid-season choice since it evening should have glamour as well as charm, and Paris means they shall.

I am showing photographs today of three of these new type of evening gowns with quite a new and different feeling about them, showing these brocades of silver and gold and heavy metal cloths rule the world of fashion today. They admit of no trimming or of very careful trimmings, since they are so highly decorative in themselves.

Typical of the triumph of line is the very simple model of line in the slightly draped front. The material is gold and turquoise blue metal cloth with an indistinct weave and a very yellow luster. The neckline is a V both front and back, that of the back being much lower with a hand across the shoulders for the very obvious reason of keeping the neckline as it should be. A straight band of the cloth is drawn about the hips and caught at each side of the front with rhinestone buckles.

Must be Discreet-Mixing. The combination of beads and metal cloth must be a discreet one, but it is admirably handled in the cloth of gold gown with scalloped tiers of gold beads forming six rows of fringe and a narrow sash with fringed ends.

Less rich and heavy in appearance than either of these, and consequently more appropriate for the small woman is the combination of brown chiffon and gold brocade. This frock has a paneled back and a long sash which ties in front. Insets of chiffon at the sides and front that tones in beautifully with suggests neither winter nor spring and somehow conveys the idea of the heights of the season. Some seasons ago designers had to woo women swayed from brocades and gorgeous fabrics, and teach them to like simpler fabrics and less ostentatious effects, now they have to win women back to them.

Paris Receives Graciously. Paris received the glittering gown more graciously than the Americans. With good reason. Continental women represent an old civilization and a more sophisticated the gold soften the lines and give the fashionable uneven length so becoming in evening attire. With the gold frock, the colorful cloak of velvet, lined with cloth of gold is an excellent choice. Often a scarf of colored tulle or chiffon softens the neckline of such a frock so that it is more flattering to the woman who is not of a decided coloring and finds elaborate materials hard to live up to.

Jewelry worn with the metal frock should be limited to a pearl necklace or possibly a few jeweled circlets about the wrist. In foot-wear most women prefer the sandal of gold or silver or of brocade, but many wear plain satin slippers of some color that is emphasized in the brocade.

type. They can wear, and prefer to wear more sophisticated type of gown than the American women, who are much more youthful in type and in tastes, and consequently find chiffons and lighter fabrics easier to wear.

However, what Paris decrees, eventually carries, and the metal cloth gown is crowding diagnostic materials for honors. Certainly it is highly appropriate that gowns for

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

If the doting swain of this year, 1927, knows his onions he will call the nearest telegraph office this Valentine day and order 'em to send "Valentine No. 8 to Miss So and So."

Then said doting swain can go about his day's toil or play, knowing that the wonders of enterprising commercial vision have done his duty for him so far as his sweetie and his valentine to her are concerned.

For the telegraph office will turn to its new booklet of Valentine messages for mother, sister, aunt, wife and sweetheart, and pick out "No. 8" for Miss Tilly Toothsome of Belle City, Neb.

It may read— "Dear Valentine, the mail's too slow. I choose this way to let you know I love you."

Or, it may chant the glories and wonders of the swiftness of the wires, like this— "True love is swift and files on swallow's wings. Swift be the messenger who my love's message brings."

And the telegraph offices will pile yellow gold into their tills as doting swains come in pell-mell to order "No. 3" or "No. 6" or "what have you," with all the efficient speed of phoning for a ton of coal or a plumber to fix the kitchen sink.

The telegraph companies, knowing the deluge of comment that will be made about "canned love messages," take up arms. Vanned Billet Doux They remind the carpers that the doting swain of yester-year was just as little spontaneous in his rhapsodies. They declare that he consulted "Complete Letter Writers" and laboriously copied tender little raptures to send his love as products of his own surcharged and tumultuous breast.

I doubt that he did. What he really did was send his way to the nearest "general store" and moon over the confections of lace paper, rosy with hearts and cupid's and red roses, which were the old-fashioned valentines.

Fifty cents would buy one in a box, with a standard neatly pasted on its rear so that it could be propped upon the parlor mantle.

MRS. ADA M. MERRIFIELD Teacher of Mandolin, Cello-Banjo, Ukulele, Banjo-Mandolin, Ensemble Playing for Advanced Pupils. Agent for Gibson Instruments. Odd Fellows' Block At the Center Room 8

If your big sister got such glory as this, you dragged in all the other kids to gaze in awe upon its ransour, and wonder if you would ever so kindly flame in a swain that he would send you such splendence.

Golden Arrows They had "Valentine boxes" in school in those days, too. Some kid lugged in a big fat box and teacher let you use "drawing period" to cover it with red paper and paste gold arrows and cupid on it.

Then a slit was cut in the top and it reposed on the school organ or old black walnut square piano for a day or so before THE DAY. And you dropped into it the valentines for "the bunch" and maybe a boy you sort of liked.

Teacher put the names of every kid in the grade in a box and you drew a name and had to put in a valentine for that one, too. That was so all the kids would get one. But, of course, it didn't harm the evidence of your own popularity, for the trick was to accumulate as many more than the one as you could.

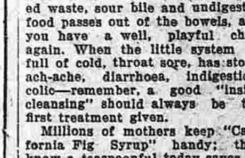

When Dotage Comes Of course the "valentine box" has left our school rooms, along with spell-downs, surprise parties on teacher, charades and tableaux, and teacher's 15 minutes of reading aloud every afternoon.

Of course they "fostered jealousy and dissatisfaction" and of course they "had little bearing upon education," and equally of course, it's a sign of dotage to throw a rosy veil over a long-ago days, and believe that even a modern age with canned love messages has little to offer compared with then.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! See if tongue is coated, breath hot or stomach sour

"California Fig Syrup" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Fig Syrup," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without gripping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless, "truly laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, congested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, sold by "California Fig Syrup Company," adv.

Good Nature and Good Health

This is the first of a series of four articles by Dr. Morris Fishbein, nationally known medical authority, on the effects of tobacco upon the smoker. This article discusses the effect of tobacco on the digestive tract; the second will treat its nervous and mental effects.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine At least once each year some medical periodical is likely to devote a number of pages to a consideration of the effects of tobacco smoking by specialists in various fields.

The Practitioner, published in England, presents at this time a consideration of the subject by specialists in diseases of the digestive tract, of the nervous system and of the effects of drugs.

By Olive Roberts Barton The automobile has been the shuttle that has made the village and small town part of the wool and warp of the world's affairs.

But there is still another reason! Let us consider the experience of a certain young matron who had always lived on the right side of the right street in a large city and had known what was considered the "right people."

When her baby was a year old it was necessary for them to move to a small town.

In living by hand! Why, most of them did their own cooking even! She was aghast.

"The girl said to me some months later, 'I find less provincialism in small town life than I do now in the city. Why is it?'"

"Provincialism knows no place," I answered. "It thrives on artificiality."

"Well," she answered thoughtfully, "it's a good thing the world is learning how the other half lives. This haysed complex of the big city is silly. And then she added, 'Do you know the movies aren't helping any, are they?'"

"No," I said, "they are not."

"Hang on," said Scouty Tynmite, "Cause if we do, we'll be all right. I hope this airship doesn't drop and drag up in the sea. I don't know where we're going now, but, surely, you will all allow that this is better than our boat. It seems that way to me."

What Scouty meant, by what he said was that they'd surely get ahead much faster on the airplane than on any drifting ship. With little pleasure out at sea, he knew they all desired to be upon the dry land rather than a lonesome water strip.

The rope that they were clinging to swung back and forth. It thrilled them, too. Imagine flying through space not knowing whither bound. The Tynites figured that, of course, the big balloon that, of their source of after while arriving at some safe spot on the ground.

"Ah, this is luck," wee Clowney said, "I see dry land, far, far ahead."

I guess that's where we're heading for. I wish they'd make more speed. My arms are sore as they can be from hanging to this rope. Oh, gee, a real good rest and then some food is what I think I need."

The airship kept on going fast, right toward the land until at last, they heard the engine stop its hum. The ship began to glide. "Hurrah," said Coppy, "I'll be glad to land, although the trip we've had is probably the finest trip that we have ever tried."

Just then, however, something creaked, and, in a moment, Scouty shrieked, "The rope that we are hanging to is breaking. Here we go." And then the rope snapped right in two. The next thing that the Tynites knew they fell and landed smack upon the water down below.
