DO NOT SEND U. S. SOLDIERS, CHANG'S PLEA

Chinese War Lord Wants Our Moral Support But Fears Marines Will Incite Popu- lace.

(Copyright 1926 I. N. S.)
Pekin, Feb. 10.—Chang Tso Lin, war lord of North China, today appealed to the United States to give its moral support to the Peking government and not to send troops to Shanghai.
In an exclusive interview Chang Tso Lin stated he would make no reply to Secretary Kellogg's proposal for neutralization of Shanghai at present but indicated that he could not accept the suggestion.
"I cannot reply to Secretary Kellogg's Shanghai neutralization proposal for the time being, due to the delicacy of the situation," said Chang Tso Lin.
"Since northern troops command Shanghai they naturally are no menace to foreign lives and property. America should first get assurances that the southern forces will not attack Shanghai, assurances which Eugene Chen has already refused to give. Thereby proving that Shanghai is the chief Nationalist aim."
Disastrous Collision
"Should I evacuate Shanghai the foreign troops would be left to meet the southern attack alone, resulting in the disastrous collision which America is most desirous of avoiding."
"I wish to make plain that the delay in replying to Secretary Kellogg's proposal does not indicate a lack of appreciation of American sympathy."
"The United States policy of fighting Bolshevism or any similar menace to world peace is well known."
"I wish upon America first to save China with indirect help. I have sufficient troops and munitions to fight the Bolsheviks and although needing money I deem it unwise to make a foreign loan, but I seek American moral support."
Send No Troops
"America can assist by not following the British example of sending troops to Shanghai, which irritates Chinese public opinion."
"Soviet Russia is keenly interested in destroying American and other foreign trade in China as well as causing Chinese mobs against foreigners."
"If American troops are sent Chen and Borodin are likely to incite Chinese crowds with the possibility of slaughtering the innocent puppets of Russian masters who keep themselves out of danger, and thereby America would play into Russian hands."
"My responsibility is great and I am ready to sacrifice myself to save not only China but the peace of Asia and the whole world from the Russian menace. I hope for American sympathy since the American government is fighting to combat the same evil in Mexico and Nicaragua."

MEAGRE DETAILS.
Shanghai, Feb. 10.—Only meagre dispatches have been received from the war area today, but the latest available dispatches indicated that Sun Chuan Fang is still withstanding the Cantonese rush for Shanghai.
With both sides heavily reinforced, the warfare is reported to

RUTH WANTS $100,000 TO PLAY THIS SEASON

Home Run King Returns, Unsigned, Yankee Contract Offered But $52,000.
Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 10.—Babe Ruth, famous American League home run king, believes he is a better player today than he was a year ago and consequently worth more money—about $100,000 a year or so.
And because the Babe believes this, he will return unsigned a New York Yankee contract offered him for a paltry $52,000.
Arthur A. McGovern, widely-known New York trainer who is in Hollywood with the Babe, keeping him fit, is International News Service's authority for the above statements.
"Ruth is worth every cent of $100,000 as a ball player," McGovern declared today, "and if the Yankees cannot give him that entire sum I see no reason why every other team in the American League should not contribute a share to make up the $100,000 total, as he is a tremendous drawing card everywhere."
Ruth is now acting in the movies.

EXECUTED A THOUSAND IS HIMSELF HANGED

Leningrad, Feb. 10.—M. Krumin, former head hangman of the Riga prison, was today executed, together with former Chief Warden Ernst and Assistant Warden Loman.
These men were convicted of cruelty to prisoners during the Czaristic regime.
Krumin is said to have officiated at more than one thousand hangings during his career.

PLAN FRIDAY SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

Extra Time Needed as Committees Continue to Grind Out Bills—Bill to Raise Judges Salaries.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 10.—A Friday session is in prospect for the State Legislature this week as the committees continue to grind out bills with considerable speed. Each body passed a single measure today and endorsed several nominations for various small court judgeships. Governor Trumbull submitted a long list of executive nominations to state commissions to the Senate.
One bill raising salaries of high court judges was reported unfavorably to the Senate merely because a number of similar measures still are in committee. The New Haven armory bill was sent to the appropriations committee with a report favoring the erection of a new building to replace the huge fire-trap now in use.

THE HOUSE

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 10.—The House today adopted a bill allowing the Winthrop Trust Association of New Haven to hold property amounting to $500,000. The act will allow the D. K. Zentgraf, of Yale, to hold within the association a new fraternal house.
Favorable reports received in the House were as follows:
From the committee on finance: compelling municipalities to begin paying on serial bond issues not later than two years from date of issue, the present time being five years; authorizing the city of New Haven to levy a special tax in liquidation of a debt amounting to $1,700,000; allowing Bridgeport to issue construction bonds to the amount of $240,000.
From resolutions committee: extending the time of organization of the Stamford Title & Mortgage company, the Title Guaranty Co., of Hartford, and Premier Title & Mortgage Co., providing for incorporation of the Danbury Title & Mortgage Co.
From education committee: providing for continuation of state aid to small towns for educational purposes.

THE SENATE

The Senate today passed from its calendar a bill allowing the Pomfret school to increase its trustees from nine to fifteen.
The New Haven armory bill was sent to the committee on appropriations.

COOLIDGE NAMES FOUR NEW ENVOYS

Shakeup in Ministerships Leaves Vacant Posts in Sweden and Switzerland.

Washington, Feb. 10.—President Coolidge made four diplomatic appointments today, including American ministers to Canada and Ireland.
The following nominations were sent to the Senate:
Ambassador to Argentina—Robert Woods Bliss, now minister to Sweden.
Ambassador to Belgium—Hugh S. Gibson, now minister to Switzerland.
Minister to Canada—William Phillips, now ambassador to Belgium.
Minister to the Irish Free State—Frederick A. Sterling, of Texas, now counselor of the American embassy in London.
The diplomatic shake-up leaves the ministerships to Switzerland and Sweden vacant.

PHONED TO LONDON

Greenwich, Conn., Feb. 10.—Mrs. Jay Madden, of Brookside drive, has the distinction of being the first Connecticut woman to telephone from London to Connecticut.
Mrs. Madden telephoned her children, Ann, aged five, and June, aged three, last evening, her husband who is with her also talking here. The conversation was reported today as being as clear as if the Madden were talking from another part of Greenwich.

THE GUARDS GO

Great Britain's legions are fast concentrating on the war zone in China. Here is the Second Battalion of the famous Coldstream Guards passing over Westminster Bridge in London on their way to Waterloo station. Thence they entrained for Southampton to embark on the S. S. Kinfauns Castle for Shanghai.

Lady Northesk, Ex Follies Girl Denies She Plans A Divorce

London, Feb. 10.—The matrimonial bark of Lord and Lady Northesk is reported to be encountering rough weather.
Asked today concerning reports that she was contemplating divorce action, Lady Northesk said: "The report is far fetched. In fact it is almost ludicrous. I have been married for 15 years. I was formerly Jessica Brown, a Follies girl who came to London to dance at the Grafton galleries and remained to become the wife of an English peer, is living in Bayswater. This year she and Lord Northesk have failed to go to Switzerland together for the winter sports as in winters past.
Lord Northesk has been more or less in the limelight in London and has been seen frequently alone late. Some weeks ago he gained some publicity by participating in a midnight hansom cab race through the streets of London, few nights later he was arrested with a friend when they played in the streets with a lamp-post. Lord Northesk was fined for being drunk and disorderly.

THOUGHT J. T. KING WAS U. S. OFFICIAL

Telephone Girl Testifies That Conn. Politician Called Up Daugherty Daily.

New York, Feb. 10.—John T. King, late Connecticut politician, who obtained $391,000 to "arrange" for the return by the government of $7,000,000 in seized German assets, talked frequently over the long distance telephone with Harry M. Daugherty, often every day in the week, while Daugherty was attorney general of the United States. It was testified at the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial here today.
Operator Testifies
Elizabeth Miller, youthful telephone operator who worked in the attorney general's office, told from the witness stand of the numerous long distance conversations. She said King's calls were a regular thing, no matter where he happened to be.
The government is trying to show that Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, received part of the $391,000 as a bribe for passing the $7,000,000 claim.
Miss Miller testified that King sometimes telephoned Daugherty from Washington, also, at that time Daugherty would call King on long distance from New York.
Cross Examination
Under cross-examination the witness said that she didn't think of these telephone conversations between Daugherty and King until she read the testimony of the first Daugherty-Miller trial, which resulted in a jury disagreement.
"Then I recalled these conversations," she said, "and thought it peculiar because I had always thought Mr. King was an employee of the Department of Justice."
The testimony caused the first trial of excitement in the courtroom since the second trial began.

SHIP'S CASH STOLEN

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 10.—Fifty-one thousand dollars in currency disappeared from the strong box of the S. S. Columbia while the vessel was enroute from New York to Los Angeles, it was revealed today when the vessel docked at Los Angeles harbor.

DEMOCRATS SMILE OVER G. O. P. MIXUP

Leaders Pleased With Reaction Over Butler's Statement on a Third Term.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Most of the Democratic leaders in the capital were broad smiles today.
Burned and singed by the incessant warfare within their own party, the Democrats joyfully welcomed the outbreak of dissension and strife in Republican ranks over prohibition and the third term issue, and they plan to feed the fires of G. O. P. discord with plenty of oil.
"It's manna from a political heaven," said one Democrat, referring to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's speech, in which the distinguished New York Republican leader read President Coolidge out of the running in '28 on the ground another term would be his third.
Democratic Strategy
Democratic strategy is to keep hammering on "the third term issue" from now on, and to keep it constantly before the country. They take the position that they didn't start it, hence they cannot

ROCKVILLE LIGHT CO. CHANGES OWNERSHIP

Willmantic, Feb. 10.—The Warner interests, of Pine Orchard, have acquired control of the Rockville-Willmantic Lighting company and of the Fulton, N. Y., Light, Heat and Power company, according to an announcement here today.
The new owning company is known as the Eastern Gas & Electric Securities Corporation. There will be no changes of personnel in the local company, according to the announcement.
The Rockville-Willmantic company furnishes gas and electricity to the cities of Rockville and Willmantic, and electricity to Stafford Springs and surrounding villages.

WORLD COURT PLAN 'CLOSED INCIDENT'

Britain's Reprisal to Accept Reservations Killed U. S. Chance of Adherence.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The effort to put the United States into the World Court was described today as a "closed incident."
Great Britain's refusal to accept the Senate reservations, long known but just officially communicated to the State Department, coupled with President Coolidge's refusal to alter those reservations in any way, was the crowning blow that killed any chance of American adherence.
Are Satisfied
Senators of every shade of opinion apparently joined today in expressing satisfaction that the long controversy is ended. Even Senator Lenroot, Republican of Wisconsin, who led the administration's fight for adherence, said:
"That settles it, so far as we are concerned. So long as the other members of the court do not desire us to go in on the terms laid down we will stay out."
Much Rejoicing
There was much rejoicing on the part of the court's opponents. The old irreconcilables were particularly joyful.
"We ought to give three cheers for John Bull," said Senator Moses, Republican of New Hampshire.
"It is very fortunate for us," said Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, "that English statesmanship recognized the absurdity of the situation."
"We are well out of it," said Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican of California.
"Let all the earth be glad and rejoice in exceeding great joy," quoted Senator Watson, Republican of Indiana.
"Thank God," said Senator Cole Bleese, Democrat of South Carolina.

"DARK HORSE" DEMS' CHOICE SAYS TAGGART

Indiana Leader Thinks Wool- len, of His State Needs to Be Watched — Against "Dry" Issue.

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 10.—Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland or St. Louis will get the next Democratic national convention; prohibition should not be made a national campaign issue; William Gibbs McAdoo of California and Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York will mix in another hot personal battle for the presidential nomination, but Evans Woollen of Indiana is the "dark horse" to be watched.
Taggart's Opinion
These are the opinions of Thomas Taggart, former United States Senator from Indiana and present Democratic leader of that state, as expressed to International News Service in an interview here today.
"I sincerely hope that prohibition will not be made a national political issue in the 1928 presidential campaign," Taggart said. "There are just as many Republicans as there are Democrats that want liquor. An attempt is now being made, as has been made in other campaigns, to saddle the liquor problem onto the backs of the Democrats. But I did not want to have my party win on the issue of liquor. It should not be an issue."
Smith and McAdoo
"Governor Smith of New York and W. G. McAdoo will be the dominating figures of the 1928 convention, at its start, as they were in the Madison Square Garden struggle in 1924. Their fight will run a similar course again, but more briefly. I believe that Evans Woollen of Indianapolis is the logical selection. He is relatively unknown nationally, although he is strong in Indiana."
Woollen is a former attorney, now a banker and businessman, and is first vice president of the American Central Life Insurance Company. He was federal fuel administrator for Indiana in 1917 and 1918.
Other figures seen by Taggart as being important in the 1928 convention are Senator Jim Reed of Missouri, Edwin Thomas Meredith of Iowa, former secretary of agriculture, and Governor A. C. Ritchie of Maryland.
Taggart indicated that he did not believe Governor Smith would win the nomination, but he had this to say:
"If the Democrats do nominate Smith I believe all Democrats in every section of the country—and I do not exclude the South—would vote for him. I believe he would make a good president."

ACTORS ARRESTED IN 3 "SEX" PLAYS

Producers and Managers Also Held in New York; Broadway Thrilled.

New York, Feb. 10.—Raids on three Broadway plays, in which forty-one actors, producers and managers were arrested last night, will be repeated if the theaters open their doors today, acting Mayor Joseph McKee announced.
The lack of censorship as a curb to licentious performances, it was said, spurred city officials to take the matter in their own hands and clear the stage through strict enforcement of the penal code.
Actors Arrested
Thus last night, after the curtain fell on the last act, the cast, managers and producers of "Sex" at Daly's; "The Virgin Man," at the Princess and "The Captive," at the Empire, were politely bundled into taxicabs, taken to the night court and held by Magistrate Flood in varying bail for hearings on Monday and Tuesday. All are charged with "corrupting morals of youth," and maintaining a public nuisance.
To Seek Injunction
Nathan Burkan, who appeared for "The Captive" cast, said he would seek an injunction if necessary to protect his clients. He indicated that the management of the Empire will open the theater today in defiance of the city's orders.
There were forty-one stage folk in all, and Broadway—the thousands who got wind of the raids—experienced a real thrill.
To most of the Raito folk it was a mighty funny affair. To city officials a mighty serious one. To impress this on the theatrical folk who crammed every nook and corner of the West Side Night Court, Acting Mayor McKee let it be known that policemen will be stationed today at each of the theaters raided, and arrests will be made if any attempt is made to reopen the theaters.
Among those arrested were such stars as Helen Menken, Basil Rathbone, Gail Kane and Ann Trevor.
DOG SLED TEAMS
OFF IN BIG RACE
Wolfeboro, N. H., Feb. 10.—Bark of the huskies, shouts of the drivers, crack of the whips and cheers of spectators mingled in a stirring demonstration today as ten of the leading American and Canadian dog teams started the second annual point-to-point race of the New England Sled Dog Club.
Leonard Seppala, Alaskan serum dasher, and Arthur T. Walden, of Wolfeboro, N. H., winner last year, were the favorites.
Today's run on the first of the three laps of the 133-2 mile grind took the derby snow races along the north shore line of Lake Winnepesaukee.
SMITH HEARING WEDNESDAY
Washington, Feb. 10.—Virtually agreeing not to make a preliminary report to the Senate on the seating of Senator-designate Frank L. Smith of Illinois, the Senate elections committee today decided to reopen hearings next Wednesday, if agreeable to Smith.
The committee will proceed then with the reading of testimony which revealed that an exorbitant "slush fund" was spent in Smith's primary campaign.

TWO TRAINS DERAILED BUT NO ONE HURT

Knickerbocker Express Has Narrow Escape at Canton Junction—Traffic Rerouted.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 10.—Passengers on the Knickerbocker Limited, crack Boston-to-New York flyer over the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, today were unaware that they were in wreck from being plunged into a wreck of a 24-car freight train at Canton Junction. Safety signals halted the limited as train dispatchers and flagmen worked frantically.
While the main line today was being cleared of the pile-up of freight cars and trains were being rerouted over branch lines, trains on the Old Colony division of the New Haven road were delayed when a car on a Maybrook, N. Y., to Boston freight train, derailed, jumped the tracks at Atlantic Junction. Passengers into Boston were rerouted over the East Milton branch to East Braintree.
No injuries were reported from either of the derailments.

MAY DAVENPORT DEAD; ONCE NOTED ACTRESS

One of Famous Family Dies in New York in Her Seventieth Year.

New York, Feb. 10.—Mrs. William Seymour, wife of the noted director and one of the famous Davenport family of actors, died at her home here today from the effects of a paralytic stroke. She was seventy years old.
Mrs. Seymour, who was known professionally under her maiden name of May Davenport, made her last stage appearance in 1894, when she played with her famous sister, Fanny Davenport. Her father was E. L. Davenport, a noted tragedian.
The stroke which resulted in Mrs. Seymour's death occurred while she was watching a rehearsal of "The Women of the Year," which her husband is directing. Other members of this great stage family were Edgar L. Davenport, a brother, who died some time ago, and Harry Davenport, who survives his sister.

CALLS LEAGUE PARLEY INTERNATIONAL DEBATE

U. S. Envoys to Britain, Japan, France and Italy In- structed to Make Presi- dent's Meaning to Those Nations—His Memorandum Read Before Congress.

Washington, Feb. 10.—President Coolidge today called for a showdown with the world powers on the question of further naval disarmament.
He has proposed, in the name of the United States, that the forthcoming meeting of the preparatory commission at Geneva for another disarmament conference, be transformed into something else besides an international debating society, and be made an actual disarmament conference in fact.
Formal Suggestion
At the direction of Mr. Coolidge, the American ambassadors to Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy, today presented to those governments a formal suggestion by this government that they authorize their delegates to the forthcoming Geneva conference, actually to conclude agreements for the further limitation of naval armament.
The President advised Congress today in a special message of his action. His message contained the text of the memorandum which the ambassadors are delivering to the foreign offices in London, Rome, Paris and Tokio today.
Details of Proposal
Briefly, President Coolidge has proposed that the powers that are due to convene at Geneva shortly, undertake to extend the work of the Washington arms conference by limiting those classes of ships which were left untouched by the 1921 conference. This includes naval ships of all classes of 10,000 tons and under, destroyers, cruisers, and other auxiliary craft. And to that end he proposed that the powers delegate to their representatives by limiting those classes of ships which were left untouched by the 1921 conference. This includes naval ships of all classes of 10,000 tons and under, destroyers, cruisers, and other auxiliary craft. RADIO ANNOUNCER GREET'S CHURCH HERE

KDKA Broadcasts Program Especially for Second Congregational Church Night.

Interest and attendance increases in the Second Congregational Church night and entertainments. The third in the series held last evening attracted fully 250. The general chairman were Mr. and Mrs. John McMenemy and those who gave generously of their time in preparation for the event were the church attendants living on North Main, Marble, North, Galloway, Union, Edward, North School and Buckland.

As the parishioners filed in soon after six o'clock they heard the stirring music of a hand, via radio. Later Mr. McMenemy who acted as master of ceremonies explained that it was the Westinghouse band from station KDKA of Pittsburgh.

John Williams had written asking if the band would be on the air between 8 and 9 o'clock evening, telling of the church night gathering. The broadcasting station assured Mr. Williams by a telegram on Tuesday that it would. He accordingly erected an aerial 40 feet high and installed a set of the latest home-made apparatus to keep the name of some celebrity to keep "mystic" went through the audience and asked questions. This created no end of merriment, and it is unnecessary to add that Mrs. Williams' answers were correct in every instance.

Miss Ruth McMenemy then recited the patriotic poem, "Captain Oh, My Captain" and for an encore gave a humorous reading of a cooking recipe and instructions for physical exercises, received from two radio stations at once.

Then followed a stirring address on the "Challenge of Modern Youth" by Rev. A. E. Lilley of the West Suffield Congregational church, who is taking a special course of study at the Hartford Theological Seminary on how to deal with the problems that confront the young people of the day.

Mr. Lilley prefaced his remarks with several witty stories, then launched into statistics showing the infinitesimal amount of time and money spent for religious education in this country and state at present. Where millions of dollars are spent for public school instruction, every year, cents are spent for religious education. The time devoted to religious training of the young folks is sandwiched in between the morning church service and the great American Sunday dinner; barely half an hour a week, and out of every six boys and girls in the Sunday school we are losing four.

Surveys have been made to ascertain what is the trouble with the young people of today, but Mr. Lilley optimistically believes they are no worse than were their fathers and mothers at the same age. They are more frank and open in their violation of the conventions and it will take a tremendous amount of patience to gain their confidence and win them over to a realization of the things that count. The speaker gave a number of instances of his experiences with boys and girls both as a teacher and pastor which provided his hearers with food for thought.

Rev. Frederick C. Allen, pastor of the Second Congregational church, sent broadcast an urgent invitation to all to attend and support the meetings of the Manchester Religious Mission, now going on, and which begin at the church Sunday evening when Rev. James P. Halliday introduced the Rev. Francis Wetherell, recently for 15 years a great worker in Binghamton, N. Y., is to speak and the Salvation Army band to furnish part of the music. Mr. Allen gave the list of local pastors who are to speak at the meetings.

The announcer introduced the SCC Male Quartet, Ralph Brown, Will Taylor, Edward Segar and Rev. F. C. Allen and they rendered "Kentucky Babe" and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

Mrs. Francis Wetherell favored with piano solo and responded to an encore and the program ended with an amusing one-act

Even Biggest Stars Needed Some Luck

Hollywood, Calif.—How did he "crash" the movies? That is the most common question asked about cinema players. Unlike the stories which these men and women portray on the silver sheet, their starts came about in very matter of fact ways. To a large extent, lady luck has made them what they are today.

There are five in the United States today probably five thousand Fairbanks, Gilberts, Swansons or Negris. The only difference is that they have never been given an opportunity to "show their stuff"—and probably won't.

A Long, Hard Climb
The world today thinks of Douglas Fairbanks in terms of a huge image being projected on a screen. Few remember the days when he appeared behind the footlights on Broadway. He was a prominent figure among stage folk when D. W. Griffith induced him to take a fling at the celluloid racket.

Doug's first picture for Griffith was "The Lamb," a six-reeler in which he was starred. Then followed a series of westerns. But finally Fairbanks grew a mustache—after several months of careful nursing—and became a big time star. He still has the mustache and still has a secure seat in the cinema heavens.

Norma Shearer rose from the "extra" girl ranks—a tough climb for any girl. She left her home in Montreal, Canada, with her sister, Athole, and went to New York, with high ambitions. Even weeks of tramping the well-beaten path from studio to studio failed to dampen their spirits. Finally one agent sent them to a small comedy company.

A Bathing Beauty
Fifty-four girls were on hand when the casting director arrived and only 12 were needed. Eleven girls were chosen, with Norma still standing in line. She was the twelfth one. Her sister was not chosen. That was her first job—just one of a dozen in a slap-stick comedy.

Gloria Swanson—often termed "Glorious Gloria"—did her first work before the camera in Chicago, with the old Essanay company. But her real start toward cinema fame came right here in Hollywood when she was signed as a bathing beauty by Mack Sennett. Gloria was beautiful, she could act. Those qualities, plus personality, have carried her to her present position.

John Gilbert really made his bow as an actor at the age of one year with Eddie Foy's show in Salt Lake City. Since then he has sold auto tires, written scenarios and directed along "poverty row." He was given a chance to take up acting again when he was offered a small "bit" a few years ago. He took it and success followed—likewise his mustache, a la Fairbanks.

"DO NOT SEND U. S. SOLDIERS TO CHINA" be approaching proportions of considerable magnitude and it is believed here that the present engagement will be decisive.

Tension Increases.
Tension has been increased here by the news that two British regiments have left Hong Kong for Shanghai. With the arrival of these troops it is feared there may be serious demonstrations by Cantonese sympathizers here.

The negotiations at Hankow would also appear to be endangered by the latest British troop movement, since Eugene Chen, Nationalist leader, has declared that he will make no agreements if the British move troops to Shanghai.

Kellogg's Suggestion.
The suggestion of Secretary of State Kellogg of the United States for the neutralization of Shanghai appears to have gone by the boards. Not only are the Chinese leaders unwilling to accept any such proposal, but it is actively resisted by both the British and American residents here.

TROOPS ON WAY.

London, Feb. 10.—Dispatch of two British regiments from Hong Kong to Shanghai was ordered up on recommendations from British representatives in China, according to Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer.

There has been considerable comment on the action, since the orders for the dispatch of the troops had apparently been given when Premier Baldwin was announcing to the House of Commons that no further troops would be landed at Shanghai unless the situation demanded them.

Explains to League.
The British government has forwarded a document to the League of Nations explaining its Chinese policy and setting forth its reasons for sending troops to China, but it has not asked for any intervention.

MICE START FIRE

Hull, Que., Feb. 10.—Mice gnawing at a box of matches today started a fire which drove Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Bucher and their seven young children from their home here. Three years ago a member of the family was burned to death in a similar fire.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME

Bathurst, N. B., Feb. 10.—The home of Angus McLean, president of the Bathurst Company, Ltd., was almost completely destroyed by fire today. Most of the contents of the house, including Mrs. McLean's valuable jewelry, also was destroyed.

REVOLT IS ENDED, LEGATION REPORTS

But News of Fighting in Portugal Continues to Trickle Over Border.

London, Feb. 10.—"The revolution has been completely suppressed," declared a dispatch received by the Portuguese legation here this afternoon.

NEWS FROM FRONTIER
Madrid, Feb. 10.—Disjointed news trickling across the Portuguese frontier today via Badajoz indicates the situation in Portugal still continues extremely grave.

The sanguinary fighting at Oporto appears to have subsided, but it was not clear today if the revolutionary leaders had all been arrested, despite a government announcement to that effect.

The minister of war today published a statement declaring that all persons found carrying arms would be shot.

TRAVELERS' TALKS

Travelers arriving at Vigo declared ninety were killed and two hundred were wounded in the bombardment of Oporto. The rebels with machine gun fire, inflicted heavy casualties on the cavalry regiment which was leading the government advance.

The bombardment lasted sixteen hours.

Colonel Dias, rebel leader, published a statement explaining that the rebels withdrew from Oporto because they did not wish further damage inflicted on property there.

Factory Bombarded
The arms factory at Brazo Di Biaza was attacked by the insurgents who used hand grenades freely, doing considerable damage to the building.

The Spanish government ordered three warships to Oporto to protect Spanish lives and property.

FROM PARIS

Paris, Feb. 10.—Dispatches received here state that the rebels surrendered at 8:30 last night after having sustained 44 hours of artillery and machine gun fire.

Government aeroplanes dropped three bombs, killing and injuring several.

Normal life is being resumed in Lisbon, dispatches said this afternoon.

Firemen and ambulance surgeons are searching the ruins of buildings knocked down by bombardment, for any possible bodies.

Cable and telegraph service is still irregular.

The bombardment damage is not as heavy as at first believed.

GET TOGETHER CLUB'S ANNUAL LADIES NIGHT

Will Be Held One Week From Tonight in Cheney Hall.

Thursday, February 17, is set for the annual Ladies' Night of the Get Together Club of Cheney Brothers. A roast turkey dinner prepared by Chef Osano will be served at 6:30 p. m. Following the dinner there will be an entertainment of about forty minutes and then dancing until 12 o'clock. Waddell's seven piece orchestra will furnish the music.

Tickets are now in the hands of the mill secretaries. The chairman of Ladies' Night committees are: Dinner, R. O. Cheney, Jr.; decoration, Louis N. Heebner; dance, Leonard Beadle; waiters, John Learned; music and entertainment, Edward F. Taylor; tickets, Jessie A. Irvine.

UNDERTAKERS SEE EPIDEMIC AHEAD

Say Unusually Low Death Rate This Winter Will Have to Be Paid For.

A Manchester undertaker, who declines to permit himself to be identified, foresees a serious epidemic of some kind in Connecticut in the near future, basing his prediction on a singular reason—the extraordinary dullness of his line of business throughout the state so far this winter.

"Connecticut undertakers," he says, "are far behind their usual winter activities. You don't have to go to the vital statistics to learn that the death rate for this time of the year has fallen off very greatly. It is reflected in the dullness in this business in every city and large town in the state. Traveling men in our line report that the trade is simply flat.

"But the law of averages runs not only between years but between seasons of the year, in the matter of deaths, so that it is extremely rare for any full year not to show the number of deaths mathematically due for that period.

"For that reason, members of my profession in this state expect to encounter a very heavy increase in deaths during the latter end of the winter or early spring. This may sound gloomy and 'undertakerish' but it has always happened when an unusually light death rate ran over a considerable period."

BLIND EVANGELIST FOR S. A. SERVICE

Next Saturday night in the Salvation Army citadel, will be one of the most interesting services scheduled in religious circles in Manchester for a long time. The chief attraction at that service will be Walter Williamson, the "Blind Evangelist." Mr. Williamson is a talented musician and can be called the "Blind King" from a musical standpoint, as he plays the trombone and piano at the same time. He is a talented singer and bubbles over with enthusiasm as he sings and speaks. He has been conducting evangelistic services in various parts of the country and has been starting a few days with Rev. J. A. Anderson on Spruce street.

While connected with the Swedish work he does not restrict himself and during the past nights has been attending the services held at the South Methodist church.

The Saturday night service in the citadel will commence at 8 o'clock and Evangelist Williamson will have charge.

CHILDREN'S CART RIDE ENDED BY COLLISION

Louis Schaller, 12, was giving his little sister, Lucille, 2, a ride in a toy express wagon yesterday afternoon on Center street, bound for a visit to their grandmother, when they were struck by an automobile driven by Michael Fogarty, of Summer street. Both children were bruised considerably but neither was seriously injured. It was said the accident was unavoidable on the part of the driver.

The Saturday night service in the citadel will commence at 8 o'clock and Evangelist Williamson will have charge.

MEMPHIS FIGHTS TERROR GANGS IN UNDERWORLD

Unique Criminals, Rampant In Memphis, Evade Arrest By Ingenious Schemes.

Memphis.—Herrin may have its organized gang warfare, Chicago its machine gun bandits and thrill murderers but Memphis can boast the most unique lot of unapprehended criminals who ever made their debut in underworld circles.

A naked burglar has terrorized a southwestern section of this city for many months. He greases his body and creeps through the shadows, Indian-fashion. He has thrice been fired upon by citizens and police but eludes his pursuers like a ghost.

A barefoot thief, who successfully walks about the houses he loots between midnight and daybreak without awakening its occupants, has left half a hundred looted houses in his wake during the past few months. His fingerprints are always left outside the window.

A petting party bandit. Not the usual type, a common thug. But a middle age man, who uses a shotgun and preys upon couples found parked on the roadsides in automobiles. He starts the robbery with shouting "that's my daughter," and then gets the drop on the couple.

A bicycle bandit. A callow youth, red faced and daring, has robbed three huge payrolls during the past two weeks. Under guise of a bicycle messenger, this youth clings on the fender of a payroll car and steps over on the running board, pistol in hand, and successfully escapes with the cash.

A pyromaniac who loves to hear the thrilling scream of fire sirens and see the giant engines roar, has been starting fire in homes in the eastern section of the city.

An auto bandit, suffering with a publicity complex, who robs a store or a restaurant, gives the money back to the owner or throws it into the street, drives a few blocks away and calls police headquarters and "kicks" the detectives telling them he is the lone wolf, is among these unusual criminals.

There are many others, strange in actions, but dangerous criminals, say the police.

PILE SUFFERERS

How Far Have You Gotten With Messy Ointments?

Don't be surprised that suppositories and salves haven't rid you of Piles. The most they can do is bring temporary relief. They never reach the cause—blood stagnation in the lower bowel.

Piles can be removed by an operation. Sure! But who wants to submit to the surgeon's knife when a harmless little tablet taken internally can banish the cause of Piles and bring real, lasting and honest-to-goodness relief?

Forget about an operation and stop using salves! Hem-Roid, the internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonard, should quickly rid you of Piles the same as it is doing for thousands of others or costs nothing.

Get a package of Hem-Roid today at Packard's or Murphy's Drug Store or any drugist. It is absolutely harmless and if you aren't delighted with the results you can have your money back.—adv.

IF TOO FAT DO THIS NOW

Try the method which combats the cause—the modern scientific method. No abnormal exercise or diet is required. Try Marmola Prescription Tablets. They have been used for 19 years. You see the results in slender figures wherever you look today. So many have proved them that the demand has grown to very large proportions. Watch the fat disappear, watch your vigor increase. You will be delighted.

All druggists supply Marmola at $1 a box. Each box contains a pamphlet to explain results. Get them and do what your slender friends have done. You owe that to yourself.

Is The Wringer Doomed?

Three Years Ago SAVAGE Announced the Impending Doom of the Wringer Type Washing Machine Because of these Drawbacks

1 It is a Hazard in the Home.	5 Limits the Efficiency of the Washer.
2 Increases Wear and Tear on the Washing.	6 Makes for Fuss and Fuss.
3 Increases Wear and Tear on the Operator's Nervous System.	7 Makes the Washer Unsightly.
4 Increases Need of Service.	8 Increases Ironing Worries.
	9 Increases After-Washday Work.

—NOW—

Within Three Years The Savage Washer and Dryer

has advanced from about one hundred and sixth in place in the industry to one of the half dozen leaders. Eight wringerless washers and dryers are now on the market. SAVAGE is building more wringerless washers than the Entire Present Field of wringerless machine manufacturers.

BOXING.

If the million dollar prize fights and the two million dollars worth of free advertising that goes to each of them and the altogether ridiculous idolatry that is heaped upon pugilistic champions have accomplished anything in compensation for their monopolization of money and thought that would be better directed elsewhere, it is in the impetus that they have given to boxing as an amateur sport and exercise.

If the present revival of interest in amateur stunts is due to Mr. Dempsey and Mr. Tunney and Mr. Millionbucks Tex Rickard and that crowd, then these people have gone a little way toward working their passage to the fame and fortune they have attained.

And whether the amateur boxing revival—if we can call it a revival when interest seems to be on the way to a far greater development than the sport of boxing has ever known—is due to these influences, or whether it has just happened, it is a good thing.

Possibly there may be nobler aspirations than to be able to swat your neighbor on the jaw so efficiently that he will forthwith go to sleep and merely dream that he is quarrelling, instead of continuing to quarrel in fact. But we will submit that it is better to punch somebody than it is to shoot him or to run away with him and then go about town telling lies about him.

Some folks may hold the exactly contrary opinion, but we take the liberty of sticking to the thesis that the confident, able bodied individual, who knows perfectly well how to take care of himself with his fists, is not only the last resort to the use of a weapon in case of conflict but is about the most difficult person to pick a fight with.

Really one of the best experiences in life for a boy or a young man is to take a good thumping. Never again will the fist of an enemy appear to his imagination as such a frightful thing. And the boxer, the individual who has become sufficiently habituated to seeing stars in the ring when an opponent jabs him with an uppercut, is infinitely less liable to lose either his head or his nerve in a tight pinch than one who has had no such experience.

Furthermore, the man or boy who learns how to hit, stop and get away in the ring, is by no means so liable to have to take a beating as the untutored citizen who finds himself at the mercy of whatever rowdy may elect to take a fall out of him.

For its good effect on general citizen morale as well as for its excellence as an exercise, it is gratifying to note that the Manchester Recreation Center's management has employed a professional pugilist as a boxing instructor at the Rec gym. How far the Rec managers have been influenced in this decision by the success of the weekly bouts at Cheney hall under the auspices of the Cheney Bros. Athletic association, led by Executive Secretary John Jenney, we do not know. But certainly the association has blazed the trail and if interest in boxing keeps on growing as it has during this winter, the average young Manchesterite ought to be able to take care of himself and his girl exceptionally well, and keep his head and his temper under the baggins, by the time another year rolls round.

THE LAST DODGE.

We have expressed the view that the Republican party can and will win the 1928 presidential contest no matter who its candidate and no matter what the issues—and we stick to it. Neither the panicky warnings of Nicholas Murray Butler nor the attitude of Senator Borah, who would oppose Butler's proposition to dampen the party with an attempt to make it bone dry, suggests the slightest reason for believing that the party can split as wide as the opposition will split.

There is not time in a year and a half for crystallization of the wet and dry sentiment of the country along major party lines. If there were a different story there might be to tell.

Neither farm legislation, booze or foreign affairs are going to intrude themselves into the political thought of this country between now and November of next year sufficiently to materially affect a situation already developed, whereby the Democrats' chance of victory is wiped out of existence—that bitterest of all fights, a religious war.

But 1928 is not going to be the last presidential election this country will ever see. And if in that year we do not see the mightiest battle ever fought at the polls in this country, with prohibition the one and only dominant issue, it will be because one of three things shall have happened: Either Congress will have settled the prohibitory law by repeal, the supreme court will have found a way of tactfully reversing itself—as it has more than once done before—and of voiding the 18th amendment, or we shall be in the midst of a foreign war.

Next year's election will be the last one—barring the war contingency—in which prohibition can be dodged. But it is our belief that it can be dodged just this once more—and that it will be, by both parties.

ONE HOP TO PARIS.

If Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd, North pole flier, carries into effect his reputed intention of flying from Washington to Paris in a non-stop hop next spring, it will probably be discovered that the public interest in his feat will be deeper and more genuine than that displayed in the flight from Bergen over the pole and back, nearly a year ago.

The polar flight had a sort of story-book quality about it. People cannot adjust themselves to the idea of scooting off through the air at the top of the world, finding a sort of hypothetical spot in the midst of black waters and then turning about and going back—having thus accomplished something that the whole world has been talking about. The whole business is bizarre, fantastic, and just a bit useless.

But anybody at all, so be he familiar with an ordinary map of the world, can get into mental and spiritual touch with a long, long, air jump from the American national capital to the metropolis of France.

There is nothing mysterious or eerie about the Atlantic ocean—it is merely a great sea, not, like the Arctic, a water cap fitted on the world's skull, which looks a different shape from every possible angle of approach and represents, to the popular mind, nothing but one vast shiver. The Atlantic is comprehensible. The American terrain over which the fliers must pass, and the French areas on which their shadows would fall are comprehensible, too.

Also it is comprehensible that if Byrd and his companion or companions can make that flight, others, later on, will be able to make it and will want to—but why should any more people try to fly from Bergen to the North pole?

If the flight is undertaken millions of prayers for its success will follow the fliers. And folks will know what they are praying for.

MISCHIEF.

Sometimes we agree with Senator Borah and sometimes we don't. Yesterday he said, concerning the British reply on the fifth reservation made by America to the World Court protocol, "That ends the question of the United States becoming a member of the court." We agree with that.

"I am gratified," said Borah. We agree with that, too, so far as it relates to Senator Borah's state of mind; no further.

There is no doubt that Senator Borah is gratified. He is always gratified when he has accomplished a piece of mischief.

But now that Borah and the other reservationists have succeeded in making it impossible for the United States to function as a member of the World Court the ordinary citizen would be more gratified over something else than over this wholly negative achievement.

The ordinary citizen would be probably almost as gratified as Mr. Borah is if that gentleman or somebody else would invent something better for the peace of the world than the Court which they have gone a long way toward destroying.

When is this country going to do something constructive in that line? Will it be, by any chance, after William E. Borah is dead?

SHAD.

Because more or less restrictive fishing laws—more less than more—have succeeded in redeeming from immediate annihilation the Connecticut shad fisheries the Bridgeport Telegram rolls under its tongue the imaginative morsel of the impending return to the Housatonic river of those myriads of succulent fish which are supposed to have made the lot of the aborigines and of the earlier settlers one of gastronomic delight.

We have always had our suspicions concerning those Stratford shad. Even so long ago as before the Spanish-American war there was a bar sinister on the escutcheon of many a one of them. When news of the first catch of the season was sent to Bridgeport or New Haven over the then new telephones, fish market men of the two cities hitched in their best delivery wagon horses and raced to bid for the take. No shad in the world could compare to the Stratford variety!

Until it came out one year that canny fishermen, going out in the dark of night, had inserted in the meshes of the gill nets ancient shad brought in barrels from the southern rivers—subsequently hauling the nets in broad day in the presence of scores of reputable witnesses.

Sometimes we have wondered whether the Pequonnocks ever really caught so many Stratford shad—or whether the early whites knew the difference between shad and alewives.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Feb. 10.—There is reason to believe that a none too husky general from Illinois has grabbed a great big elephant by the tail and is threatening to swing it around his head and toss it into a cement wall as one might hurl a sock full of mud.

The Illinois gent is Frank L. Smith, senator-elect, and the elephant is the animal you see in the cartoons with the letters "G. O. P." embroidered on his hide.

There is also reason to believe that despite the howling of both Republican and Democratic leaders about "the principle of the thing," the whole Smith issue is now as thoroughly wrapped up in politics as a delirium tremens patient in his bedclothing.

It is just as difficult to believe that most Republican senators are deeply concerned with the sovereign right of a state to send any sort of a person to the Senate as it is to believe that most Democrats are filled with a holy conviction that only men of honor and common decency should be allowed to sit in this self-alleged great body of statesmen.

You may recall that only as far back as the holidays, it was rather positively stated that only nine or ten senators would vote to seat the gent from Illinois who took a $125,000 campaign gift from Daddy Sam Insull while he was regulating the state's public utilities. When the vote came, Smith was supported by nearly four times that many votes.

That, it is rather to be assumed, was after the gent from Illinois had grabbed the great big elephant by the tail.

Senator Jim Watson of Indiana had held earnest converse with Smith in Chicago, urging him to keep out of Washington to avoid gumming up the works. What did Smith tell Senator Jim? It is an excellent bet that he told him he was going to raise merry Ned and that if any old elephants got in the road they had better look out for the Illinois bearcat.

Watson may have been reminded of Smith's threat to harp upon large sums of Coolidge campaign money contributed by tariff beneficiaries. Smith may even have promised to open up the whole question of campaign contributions and to try to make all hands prove that any such contribution was ever given by anyone who didn't expect to get something or other in return.

The second big twist which Smith undoubtedly administered is a threat to maintain his position as a senator-elect in the next Congress. It is not incumbent upon him to resign merely because he is refused admission. The state of Illinois is officially behind him to the last ditch. And if Smith stays home next winter, unable to get in and refusing to get completely out, the thin Republican majority of one senator will be lost.

Smith's chances of being seated and kept in by the Seventieth Congress are even slimmer than his chances with the Sixty-ninth.

It may be that the regular Republicans feel that if they can show the hardest possible fight for him, they can convince him that he should be good fellow enough to listen to reason and not be stubborn enough to nullify the party's control of Congress.

The latest threat of Smith's friends, however, is to carry the case to the Supreme Court.

And if you want a third suggestion for Smith's means to twist the elephant's tail, you may remember that Illinois Republicans have 60 votes in the next national convention and that just now Illinois Republicans seem considerably het up over the treatment "now" being handed here to the boy from home.

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 10.—In matters gastronomic, famous folk of the music world are most particular.

Several of them are excellent cooks and pride themselves on certain dishes for which they are as well known among their friends as for their talents.

Challapin can swing a mean saucapan and Rachmaninoff not infrequently serves a fancy list of Russian dishes.

Caruso, made at least one New York cafe famous by appearing there several times a week and loudly praising its Italian menu.

On the east side are a number of little Hungarian and Rumanian places where Kubelik, Tsaya and many others may be seen from time to time and where the cooking is pleasing to the taste of a gourmet.

And, quite recently, Andre Pola, the violinist, opened a little cafe in Greenwich Village so that there might be one last stand for musicians in a land that fast is going to the hot-dogs.

Here, within a week or so, I noticed such great folk as Levine, McCormack, Kreisler and Rachmaninoff.

Pola, in explaining his venture, recalls that Rossini, the composer, turned restaurateur in Paris a century ago.

they seldom accustom themselves to the cooking of the average American cafe. On four they encounter a most monotonous menu, and, returning to New York, run avidly to their favorite resorts.

No more well-fed group of people can be found anywhere than those who gather just outside the door of Carnegie hall or Aeolian just before concert time. They patronize eating places little known to the average New Yorker and seek carefully to keep these places secret lest the crowds discover them and they meet the inevitable fate of a prosperous resort.

For many years society leaders, wishing to add success to their afternoon frolics, would invite prominent musicians and then, quite sweetly, would ask that they play something. The artist could scarce refuse, but the feeling grew that some quite wealthy persons were getting for nothing services that ordinarily are extremely valuable.

Recently the artists "got next." One of them, called upon to play, accommodated the hostess and upon the first of the month sent a bill for $300.

The story goes around concerning a patroness of one of the symphony orchestras, who, having received a bill or two under such circumstances, decided to try some new tactics.

She went back stage and beamed upon a stout young man who was sitting picking the strings of a violin.

She immediately invited him to a dinner party, adding: "And do bring your instrument with you." It happened that the young man was a cymbalist and merely chanced to be trying a fellow musician's fiddle.

He took his cymbals along. And the rest is a matter for the individual imagination.

When do I see thee most, beloved one? When in the light the spirits of mine eyes Before thy face, their altar, solemnize The worship of that Love through thee made known? Or when in the dusk hours (we two alone) Close-kissed and eloquent of still replies Thy twilight-hidden glimmering visage lies, And my soul only sees thy soul its own?

O love, my love! If I no more should see Thyself, nor on the earth the shadow of thee, Nor image of thine eyes in any spring— How then should sound upon life's darkening slope The ground-whirl of the perished leaves of hope. The wind of death's imperishable wing? —Dante Gabriel Rossetti: From "The House of Life."

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n. Scientists have traced through the rock formations of the earth its history. Knowledge has been gleaned of the geologic eras and of the different forms of animal and vegetable life which existed.

As climatic conditions changed, so has the life of our world. Change seems to be the law of life. But there is one little creature that has scampered its way down the ages and is with us in very much the same form that it possessed in those far-away days in the Carboniferous Age of the Paleozoic Era. The despised cockroach, which some times startles us as it pokes one of its antennae from some crack of our cupboards, possesses a family tree far more ancient, if not honorable, than almost any other living thing.

Along with deposits of the Carboniferous Age, fossil remains of this insect are found, absolute proof of its antiquity. No man (or woman) was there to be bothered by him or to bother him. There were no flies, wasps or butterflies. There are several species of this insect in various parts of the world, but these have been carried as stowaways in ships to the four quarters of the earth. So one can not say as to whether the inhabitants of the dark cracks and crannies of his kitchen are Crotona Bugs, Oriental cockroaches, Australian cockroaches or our own native species, Periplaneta americana. The Oriental cockroach is smaller than the American variety, and in England, where cockroaches were unknown until about three hundred years ago, they are known as the black beetle.

SPECIAL VAUDEVILLE BILL FOR THE STATE

Eight Acts Offered Tonight; Richard Dix in "Paradise for Two."

What could be sweeter? Eight acts of vaudeville and a first run feature. Tonight's bill at the State theater contains just such items and is one of the long series of Bargain Night programs which have been presented at this entertainment center for the balance of the winter.

First of all, Carnival Capers hold the center of the stage with six people. In this offering the troupe shows versatility in dancing, singing and instrumental music.

No need to say anything about the rest of the vaudeville show for it will be up to the usual standard of excellence demanded by the State in its bookings.

To come to the picture, Richard Dix for instant is no mean actor; for fans still remember his work in "The Quarterback" which enjoyed a run of three days here some time ago.

"Paradise for Two," at the State for the last three days of the week in combination with five acts of vaudeville, is Richard Dix's newest picture.

"Paradise for Two" bids fair to be as great a hit as his previous pictures. He is riding high on a well-deserved wave of popularity.

The value to be cared for by depreciation is the cost of the property, if acquired by purchase after February 28, 1913.

Depreciation of a home or property used for pleasure or convenience, such as an automobile can not be claimed.

Depreciation due to changes in the social or business conditions of a neighborhood, or changes of street grade, or fluctuations of market values, can not be claimed.

When in the course of years the owner of property has claimed its cost as depreciation, no further claim will be allowed.

Depreciation does not apply to inventories or stocks in hand. The potential earning capacity of an individual, his inventive genius, or his literary ability may not be made the basis of an allowance for depreciation.

"I say, you're not still engaged to that Smith girl, are you?" "No, I'm not."

"I woke up this morning and could not believe that my uncle had died and left me a thousand pounds."

New York.—Carrying coals to Newcastle was just as logical as the action of the vessel John Hamlen, which limped into port after spilling 100 tons of salt through a hole in its keel.

Girl (to night club escort): Good heavens, there's father, and I promised him I wouldn't come here again. What shall I do?

Lady: I want to buy some oysters. Dealer: Large or small ones, lady. Lady: Well, they're for a man with a size fifteen collar.—Ideas (London).

2ND DIV. ASSOCIATION TO ERECT A MEMORIAL

The Second American Division which fought so gallantly in the late war was made up of the only American Marines who fought in France, the 5th and 6th Regiments, with the 9th and 23rd Infantry, 2nd Engineers, 12th, 15th, and 17th Field Artilleries, 4th and 5th Machine Gun Battalions and 1st Field Signal Battalion.

This Division was decorated by the French and was cited on numerous occasions. The 9th Infantry was decorated on two occasions, for its action at Soisson, July 18th, 1918, and Champagne, October 10th, 1918.

On two different occasions, at Soisson and at St. Mihiel, the Second Division gained its two day objective in one day and its speed and dash naturally brought forth many prisoners and much captured war material.

Experts who followed the war at the front and had the opportunity to study various war units expressed their opinions that the Second American Division was the greatest Division of any army in France.

The personnel was made up of boys of all walks of life, from all sections of the country. Among the Marines were Eddie Collins, ball player, Gene Tunney, fighter, and hundreds of college students.

Since the Armistice, the Second Division Association has been organized and for the past seven years the history has been under compilation. It is expected of the press shortly.

The Association is also going to erect a memorial to its boys who did not return from over there.

Although the Association felt that the cost of the Memorial should be carried by its members, it has found that the personnel is so scattered that any public subscriptions would be greatly appreciated.

Howard Stanley had the misfortune to break a bone in his right wrist Monday afternoon while loading tier at the station.

Mr. and Mrs. William Palmer and Mrs. Kittle Mittens motored to Hartford Sunday afternoon to visit Mr. Palmer's son Lewis of Manchester, who underwent a very serious operation in the Hartford hospital last Friday.

Mrs. Fred Bishop is improved so that she sits up most of the day. Miss Annie Matherson is also much better.

William, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George Merritt has bronchitis. Dr. Higgins of Coventry is attending him.

Mrs. Annie Bailey Hewitt daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey who underwent a serious operation in a New Haven hospital three weeks ago is doing well and left the hospital Tuesday.

Chest Colds Need Direct Treatment

It is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist the direct double action of Vicks. Rubbed on the chest, it acts 2 ways at once:

(1) Direct to air passages with its healing vapors released by body heat; (2) Direct, like a poultice, it "draws out" the soreness.

"Let's Visit Garber Brothers before we make a final selection" they said

—and in every instance they were glad they came here

SO they came down to Garber Brothers... and unlike the rushing big business atmosphere, they found a different kind of a store... while tremendously big and busy, it had an atmosphere all its own—more of that quiet, refined atmosphere that you find at home.

They were shown through the entire establishment. How interesting it all was! They looked at the furniture carefully and thoughtfully. We want our customers to give the selection of furniture very careful thought... that's why we never hurry them. Furniture is all too important to select it haphazardly. We want our customers to know everything about it... so we also explain every detail.

They were quite impressed with the large display. It is more like an exposition and it gave them wide and diversified range to choose from. Not merely good looking furniture, if you please, but furniture of built-in beauty, sound quality and construction.

... and the prices surprised them. Here they've been to so many "sales" and they saw so many so-called discount reductions of 20, 30, 40 and 50%... and then to come down to Garber Brothers, who NEVER have "sales" and to find that their EVERYDAY prices were lower than so-called "sale" prices.

In every instance they had good reason to be pleased that they came to Garber Brothers. They wanted good furniture for their home and they found it here.

QUANTITY, QUALITY, VARIETY AND ECONOMY... all in their favor.

A visit to Garber Brothers places you under no obligation, not the slightest. So please, do not hesitate to come in.

JOHN H. YEOMANS OF ANDOVER vs. JOHN LAWRENCE OF LAKELAND, FLORIDA
 Superior Court, Tolland County, January 24, 1927.

NOTICE OF PENDENCY OF ACTION

Notice is hereby given of the pendency of the above entitled action, brought to Court by said John Lawrence of Lakeland, Florida, and for the County of Tolland, by writ dated the 20th day of December, 1925 and return to said Court on the first Tuesday of January, 1927, where in said John H. Yeomans of the Town of Andover in said State of Connecticut, the land involved in the above action is bounded and described as follows:

Commencing at a point on the Bear Swamp Road, at the foot of the hill west of the Rogers House, so-called; thence running easterly along stone wall by the land of William Cunningham, thence easterly by land of C. L. Backus, thence northerly by land of A. H. Helmer to the place of beginning, containing thirty (30) acres, more or less.

The defendant is supposed to be the owner of record of said property. In pursuance of an order of said Court, dated January 24, 1927, notice of the pendency of the above entitled action is herein ordered published once a week for two weeks in the "Manchester Herald," a newspaper printed in South Manchester, Connecticut, commencing on or before the 4th day of February, 1927.

By the Court, WILLIS H. REE, Clerk of the Superior Court for Tolland County.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Lewis and Clark (4)

For hundreds of miles from the lands of the Dakota Minnetarees the explorers poled and towed their way. It was their good fortune to meet no Indians, but the country was full of grizzly bears and rattlesnakes. Often the bears even swam out to attack the boats of the explorers.

One day Lewis was charged by buffaloes and escaped a grizzly by leaping into the river. He awoke next morning with a rattler coiled at his head.

The expedition came upon a river pouring into the Missouri which they called the Milk, because of its whiteness.

Lewis, scouting by himself one day in advance of the party, came upon the Great Falls, and only then was sure that Sacajawea's advice at every fork had been right—the party had held to the Missouri. The explorers gave a cheer when they saw the cascades. (Continued.)

JACK LOCKWILL AT ROCKLAKE

by Gilbert Patten

Still as a dead man Jack lay stretched on the ground. A shudder of horror ran through the instantly silenced crowd. The umpire bent over the prostrate boy and called for water. Before a fellow with the water pail could reach the spot, Betty Darling was there. Dropping the pail, she lifted Jack's head into her lap. His face was ghastly pale. "He's dead!" she gasped.

Betty bathed Jack's face and temples with the cool water. Then she saw the Bad Egg in the crowd around Jack. Pointing at him she cried: "You did it intentionally, Tom McNally! If you've killed him, you're a murderer!"

Jack's eyelids fluttered and he drew a breath. Then he opened his eyes and saw her. "I'm not half dead, Betty," he said weakly. Soon, with assistance, he was able to get upon his feet. "We'll have to put somebody into his place," said Bevins.

"Not much, you won't," said Jack, and the crowd cheered as he trotted weakly to first. McNally held the freshmen scores. "Let me pitch, captain," urged Jack. "Trustworthy can't hold them. Maybe you can." Bevins hesitated. He knew Jack was right about Tom's treachery. "All right, Lockwill," he agreed. "Show us what you can do."

Here You Are Insomniacs! Real Sweet Dreams From Purring Lullaby Machine

Paris.—Ever sleeplessly kick the covers around the bed at night and wish you hadn't eaten that con-founded chicken salad before turning in?
 Candy that started your tooth hammering—that third cup of coffee—business worries—bills and rent—the youngster squalling—how many times have you wakenfully dreamed of chasing these sources of chronic and occasional insomnia into the netherworld of King Morpheus?
 The more mornings you've dragged your weary self from a sleepless couch, the greater should be the gratification of learning that a Parisian scientist has perfected a device which induces natural sleep.

Knock-out Drops
 No morphine, this! No illuminating gas nor horse-shoe-liming boxing gloves! Just press the button, he briefly patient and the next thing you'll know the sun gasping in the window will be astonished to see you leave a shoe at the alarm clock.

These scientists say that the physiological explanation of why sleep is not always at instant command is that the hemisphere of your cerebrum (or, if you prefer, the two sides of your brain) don't approach repose in unison.

Here's the left side all sold on the proposition of catching much-needed shut-eye and here's the right fumbling away with some other idea. Then just as the right side takes up the tune of sleep, the impatient left, through with waiting, goes off uncontrollably on some other mental jaunt. And so through the long night.

"What is needed," concluded Professor Gullahumon after prolonged study of the problem, "is a means of bringing the two hemispheres under a common soporific influence."

That the old expedient of counting sheep was all right theoretically Professor Gullahumon could not deny. But in practice it was wrong because the counting entailed a conscious mental effort which by itself often defeated its own purpose. That made it easy—provide the two sides of the old bear something to which their thoughts can be devoted without voluntary exertion.

This is the theory. Through the ears and the eyes, as a consequence of their being the most effective channels to the brain, Ha! Something to occupy the vision, something for the ears to hear and the brain will snap into the line which leads to sleep.

So the professor fashioned an extremely simple device; for the eyes, a mask containing on the inside a quiet vibrator and a subdued electric lamp—for the ears, the monotonous hum of buzzer. Also a pear-shaped handle with a button in the end, a cough—good night!

To Snore—Press a button. Press the button. The light lights, the vibrator vibrates, the buzzer buzzes. Through tired eyelids to tired eyes comes the faint glow of the bulb, the soothing vibrations, that lulling buzz. And, so sleep drops limply away from the button, the light goes out, the vibrations cease, the buzzing stops.

So cheer up, insomniacs and indiscreet epicureans. Other scientists have tested Professor Gullahumon's morpheus, as he calls it, and have found that it turns—the sleeping trick.

NUMBER THREE?

Alfred Henry Stanley used to tend mules in the car barns at Detroit. That was 25 years ago. Now, as Lord Ashfield, he is head of the London omnibus and subway systems, which haul upwards of two billion passengers a year. The peer returned to Detroit recently to see again the scenes of his youth. These pictures of Lord Ashfield and his beautiful daughter, the Honorable Miriam Stanley, were made there.

SOMEBODY HAD TO DIE FIRST! Congress Has Cloakroom For "Co-Eds"

It's all their own! This exclusive floor of the House, Mrs. Edith Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of Calif

Washington.—Somebody had to die before the girls in Congress got a cloakroom. But somebody did die, and now the congressional "co-eds" have a place to hang their hats, powder their noses and take a snooze between word battles on the floor.

Ever since "Aunt Alice" Robertson from Oklahoma came to Washington and got sleepy between debates, the agitation for a woman's cloakroom has been one of the things in the congressional ether.

But where, oh where, would it be? They searched high and they searched low, and it was not until a congressional committee chairman died and his widow yielded to vacancy his private office in the House wing of the capitol that something could be done about it.

Our Changing Times The cloakrooms for senators and congressmen long have been historic and allegedly important sections of the capitol. But they were exclusively for male use. The cloakroom served as a retiring room where a tired representative might go for a few minutes' relaxation on a couch, or perhaps gain temporary relief from arduous speechmaking by cracking or listening to a joke or two.

Necessity for similar quarters for women began to become apparent when Congress found more than one woman in its midst. There was no place for them to retire and rest for brief periods unless they trotted way to their offices or went home. And, of course, there will be four women in the next Congress when Mrs. Langley of Kentucky joins Mrs. Kahn of California, Mrs. Rogers of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Norton of New Jersey.

Aunt Alice Robertson, who used to hold the distinction of being the only congresswoman, was really responsible for the arrangement of the cloakroom for her successors. She waited until her term was over and then she went to see William Tyler Page, now clerk of the House.

"Often I've felt on the floor that I'd give anything if I could go and lie down for five minutes," she

PAPER FROM PEAT

Madison, Wis.—Extensive plans are under way to market a paper manufactured from peat found in the swamp lands of Wisconsin. Organization is getting under way, and the commodity probably will be offered in quantities in spring. Wall board and wrapping paper have been made and experiments are being made on print paper.

HUGO HOME FALLS

Paris.—The old chateau where Victor Hugo used to court Adele Foucher, and where they spent the first years of their married life, recently collapsed. It now lies a mass of wrecked masonry and rafters. The chateau was built in the 13th century and many romantic figures of French history have visited the place.

BIG FIVE BANKS OF BRITAIN SEE RICH YEAR AHEAD

Industrial Peace At Last Gives Promise of Trade Regaining Lost Ground.

London.—Despite the terrible commercial and industrial blows suffered by Great Britain in 1926, the "Big Five" of the British banks enjoyed a good year and they are looking forward to a bumper year in 1927.

Reginald McKenna in his review of the proceedings of the Midland Bank for the 1926 looks forward to the present year being one of industrial peace with every hope of regaining the ground lost during 1926.

From the figures published, the Midland Bank is now easily the biggest bank of the world. Its total assets now stand at $2,152,700,000 having risen over $95,000,000 during the past year.

A striking feature in the yearly report of the Midland Bank is the rise in deposits to $1,832,246,515, an increase of $88,704,840 on the previous year.

Balances of Foreigners British bankers attribute this rise to additional balances left by foreigners at the Midland Bank, as a result of the still growing importance of London as the monetary center of the world.

Page scratched his head and went to Longworth. Longworth scratched his head, too. Where, oh where, could a congresswoman's cloakroom be established? There simply wasn't room anywhere— not without disturbing the men.

Then the committee chairman died. His office became available. Speaker Longworth decided that this was the room for the women and Page got some cleaners and painters busy and arranged a dandy little place where the three congresswomen now reign supreme.

It's theirs alone. Only the women's solons and a woman attendant are in the room. Wives and daughters of especially provided for them have congressmen may enter, but only by invitation. A desk, some colonial furniture, and places to hang coats and hats comprise the furniture.

"If we get more more women here we may have to enlarge it," Page admits. "But I guess it will do for a while."

TAX REVOLTS IN RUSSIA

Riga.—Reports of serious revolts in many parts of Russia have been confirmed by Kallin, president of the executive committee of the Communist Party of Moscow. He said local governments have been adding such heavy burdens of special taxes to the state taxes that serious unrest has been caused among the peasantry. Martial law has been declared in several of the provinces.

DIVA DENIES REPORT OF MARITAL STRIFE

Paris, Feb. 10.—Ganna Walska was far too busy today to discuss New York reports that she and her husband, Harold McCormick, are involved in marital strife. When an attempt was made to see Ganna Walska to inquire about the reports of a possible divorce, the diva sent word through her secretary that she was "too busy to see anyone" and "had nothing to say."

Intimates of Ganna Walska are inclined to doubt that a divorce is pending, although they admit that Harold McCormick and his wife spend but little time together.

WANTS A WIFE.

San Antonio, Tex.—A wife will be worth a fortune to Private Robert F. Gordon, of Troop A, Eighth Cavalry, here. An uncle in Reno, Nev., died recently leaving a provision in his will that a $200,000 ranch and 5,000 head of cattle will be left to Gordon provided he marries within a month. Gordon says he will "start looking around."

NATIVES DIE IN REVOLT

Sydney, Australia.—Three miners were murdered several months ago in the Buolo district. When word reached here, a government punitive expedition was sent to punish those responsible for the murders. This action incited an open revolt of 500 natives, eight of whom were killed in the skirmish that occurred.

HEN KIDNAPS PUPS.

Kingston, N. C.—A white Wyandotte hen on a farm near here is mothering seven rat terrier puppies, and making a good job of it. The mother dog made a home close by the hen's nest. The hen fought her and finally chased her away, then started mothering the pups. They follow her about all day and are said to be astonishingly developed for their age.

RADIO BOGEY MAN LIVES IN CHICAGO

Chicago—This is the "radioest" town in America. Habitual Chicagoans, not otherwise engaged in killing each other with machine guns, have installed either radio receiving sets or broadcasting stations, so it would appear from the multitudinous howls upon the air each night. There are 28 major stations within Chicago's heart. They cover practically the entire range of wave bands. But that isn't the half of it. Besides the 28 major stations within the city there are some 15 minor stations of the semi-amateur class located in what is known as the metropolitan area. The total number of Chicago stations then is 43.

Family Saw Him Failing Now Rejoice in His Health

Meriden tailor tells trying experience. Health shattered, he tried Tanlac. Now robust and strong, praises this natural tonic body builder.

Bernardo De Filio is a respected tailor living at 180 1/2 West Main St., Meriden, Conn. For three years his health was broken, growing gradually worse till he almost despaired of getting better. He says in part, "I grew thin, pale and nervous, was wasting away. I couldn't do the lightest work but wanted to be moving around all the time; couldn't sit still. Weakness and fainting spells made matters worse, and I couldn't force myself to eat normally. What little I could take caused keen discomfort. Finally I decided to try Tanlac, and I can truthfully say it made me a new man all over. I've gained 20 lbs. in weight and enjoy better health than ever before in my life. It restored my appetite and my nerves, so that I can almost thread a needle in the dark. I have abundant energy and my color which was a sickly grey, now denotes perfect health. I recommend Tanlac as the greatest restorative I've ever known."

SCHOOLBOY SWIMMERS ENGAGE IN INITIAL AQUATIC CONTEST

Meet Middletown in Rec Tank on Saturday; McKay Captain and Coach.

For the first time in the history of the South Manchester High school there is a swimming team to represent the local school in that form of sports.

The first meet for the team is scheduled for Saturday with the Middletown High school swimming team.

The Middletown swimmers have all had more or less experience as members of the same team before.

When the first meet is held in the Rec tank this Saturday it is hoped that there will be a large attendance on hand to watch the local boys do their stuff.

SIXTY MILLION FANS SEE GAMES Organized Baseball Leagues Attracted Huge Gates Last Season.

New York, Feb. 10.—Minor league baseball, with 29 different leagues furnishing amusement to fans in 200 different cities throughout the United States and Canada, has during the past few years grown into a tremendous business.

A survey of facts and figures compiled by Mike Sexton, president of the National Association, gives the baseball fan a little insight into the great growth of minor league ball.

Many fans there are who barely consider leagues other than that of which their particular city is a member.

In the 1926 season an approximate total of 30,000,000 fans paid to witness minor league games.

Government figures show that the United States lost $1,500,000 in baseball revenue the first year it removed the war tax on 75-cent admission tickets.

Putting the average pay of the minor league player at $300 a month, and that's very conservative, minor league players are annually paid $1,800,000 in salaries.

SPLENDID BOXING CARD IN HARTFORD

Lajoie Holds Unique Honor In Major Batting Records

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Larry Lajoie, who ended his major league career as a member of the Cleveland club, is the only right-handed batsman in the history of the American League to lead that league in batting for two or more years in succession.

Lajoie topped the Ban Johnson circuit in 1903-04-05. He previously had led the league in 1901 with the fat average of .405.

Stavnitsky Helps Plainfield Beat Steam Rollers 24 to 15

Plainfield, Conn., Feb. 10.—Another capacity house, estimated at 800, watched the Plainfield Professionals send the Steam Rollers back to Providence on the short end of a 24 to 15 verdict here last night.

The locals led at halftime 11 to 5, but it was a hard fought game with both teams giving a fine exhibition.

George Stavnitsky was high scorer for Plainfield with five floor goals and one "gift" shot for a total of eleven points.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE... Death strikes GARRETT FOLSOM while swimming at Ocean Town...

CHAPTER XVI... "THEN," said the coroner, "our next step is to find out who did buy this particular weapon..."

"Yes, I understand. Well, doubtless, the proprietors can give us the information we want. Jeppson, you'd better go there yourself, and now, and learn all you can of the matter."

The detective went off at once, and the coroner, with a sigh, returned to his investigation.

"I am in rather a strange predicament," he said, frankly. "Never before have I had to conduct an inquiry with so little evidence to work upon..."

Her testimony was, of course, only to the effect that she had been summoned to Ocean Town by the telegram announcing her brother's death...

She answered readily the coroner's questions as to her brother's business and habits of life, but nothing she could tell had any bearing on the subject of his death...

There was something about Anastasia Folsom that made her hearers respect her, though none of them would have cared to make any effort to become better acquainted with her...

Hubbard was naturally a little verbose and stilted in diction, but in this case he was more so, by reason of his own uncertainty how to proceed...

However, it was the only thing to be done, and Miss Folsom, as the nearest relative of the dead man, was called next.

"You have been with Mr. Folsom some time?" Hubbard asked, a bit pertinaciously.

"Four years, sir," replied Ross. "He was a good master?" "In every way, sir. He was kind always, though to please him everything had to be in strict accordance with his orders."

"Now, Ross, do you know of anybody who could have any reason to wish for Mr. Folsom's death?"

"You saw or heard nothing of the commotion caused by Mr. Folsom's death while you were in the water or on the beach?"

"Oh no. I was told Mr. Folsom was—was hurt at about half-past twelve o'clock. At that time I was in his room, or just going there."

"Yes, at the back of the house. Mr. Folsom's rooms are on the ocean front."

"Yes, now, Ross, think carefully. Do you know of anybody who could have any reason or any intent to wish for Mr. Folsom's death?"

"No, sir. Not anybody."

"Who will benefit by his decease?" "Benefit, sir?" "Yes, financially, I mean."

"I'm sure I don't know, sir."

"Don't ask those questions of Ross, Mr. Hubbard," interrupted Miss Folsom with asperity. "I will tell you my brother's business affairs. Though I don't see what they have to do with the inquiry into his death."

"They might have a great deal to do with it, Miss Folsom. Who, then, will receive the bulk of Mr. Folsom's fortune?"

"That I can tell you in a general way. The will of my brother leaves some minor bequests, but the main part of his estate is divided approximately into thirds, one of which will be my portion, another will go to a nephew of mine and the other to Mr. Roger Neville, my brother's friend and business associate."

customed to receiving advices from his audience as to how to proceed, but Miss Folsom's suggestion was sensible and he showed no resentment.

"Tell us, then, Ross," he said, "what Mr. Folsom did the morning that he met his death. Tell the story of the day."

"He rose early, as he always does, sir. I mean about eight o'clock, earlier than most men on holiday. He went downstairs and breakfasted in the dining room. Mr. Folsom was never one to have meals in his room. Then he came back to his rooms about, maybe, ten o'clock, and told me to get out his bathing suit and the bag of toilet things that he always carried with him to the bath house."

"I did this, and very soon he picked up the bag and started off. He turned back to tell me that I could go for a moment while he was gone, but to be back by one o'clock, as he would return about that time."

"And you went in the ocean, then?" "Yes, sir, for a short time. I didn't stay in long because I wanted to be sure to be back in Mr. Folsom's rooms by one o'clock."

"And were you?" "Oh yes, some time before one. By half-past twelve or thereabouts."

"You saw or heard nothing of the commotion caused by Mr. Folsom's death while you were in the water or on the beach?"

"Oh no. I was told Mr. Folsom was—was hurt at about half-past twelve o'clock. At that time I was in his room, or just going there."

"Yes, at the back of the house. Mr. Folsom's rooms are on the ocean front."

This And That In Feminine Lore

Have you taken advantage of the offer the Weldon Beauty Parlor in the Park building is making all this week in celebration of their seventh anniversary—a Lemon Rinse or Golden Gilt with every shampoo?

At least two of Europe's queens that we know of has had their hair bobbed. Queen Marie just before her visit to this country last fall, had her tresses shorn, and permanently waved in Paris before sailing for America. Queen Elizabeth of Belgium shocked the women of her own court when she appeared a year or so ago with her hair shingled. One of her ladies-in-waiting went so far as to tell her royal mistress that a bobbed head was insufficiently dignified for a queen, but Elizabeth liked her shingle and keeps it to.

An easy and a good dessert, or to serve at a party is the following. Make your usual sponge cake in a square or oblong pan, cut into squares and slice through the middle. Place a square of vanilla ice cream between the layers of cake and top all with hot chocolate sauce.

Professor Irving Gardland, English efficiency expert, declares "Little old maids" are the best office workers. He says the modern flapper is scarcely fifty per cent efficient, for the reason that she thinks so much about her clothing, her beau and her makeup. The bachelor maid once settled in spinsterhood is not bothered about these details, according to Professor Gardland. She has passed the days when clothing is the most important question and in most cases has trained herself to think of other things than men, dress and pleasures after working hours. This quite naturally increases her usefulness to her employer, he says.

Try placing a tablespoon of honey into the breakfast grapefruit for a different and delightful flavor. We read every day of the gay clothes being worn by men who winter in the south, one of the most popular styles at Palm Beach being tan and white striped flannel trousers with tan coats.

"Economy is not a matter of price—it is a matter of value." IF THEY STAND If boiled potatoes must stand after cooking, cover the top of the pan with several folds of cheesecloth and let it stand on a warm part of the stove. This allows the moisture to escape, but it protects the vegetable from the cold air.

CRISP VEGETABLES All fresh vegetables should be perfectly crisp before they are put into boiling water to cook. If they have become wilted, they should first be restored in cold water. SCRAPE CARROTS Carrots and parsnips should always be scraped, never pared before they are cooked.

Sister Mary Suggests Games For "Different" Valentine Day Parties

BY SISTER MARY... If you are tired of bridge and hearts for your Valentine party amusement and at the same time want a "progressive" party, here is one with a lot of variety to it.

The party is planned for boys and girls, but will work out successfully for all girls. In place of numbers mark each table with a symbol at St. Valentine—cut-out cupid, heart, quiver full of darts, true lovers' knot, roses, violets and forget-me-nots. Then instead of tally cards each guest draws one of the cupid, hearts, and so forth, four of each kind being provided. Two men and two girls will have cupid, and so on through the list. Then the players go to the table marked with their insignia to start the game.

Each table is arranged for a different game. Jack-Straws The cupid table is supplied with the game of Jack-straws. When the straws are dropped in their pile a tiny cupid is placed, standing, on top. The game is played as usual but when cupid is overthrown the player who does it is counted out.

Throwing Hoops The table marked with the quiver of darts, or just a golden arrow, is arranged for the old-fashioned game of throwing hoops—with a difference. A gilded arrow is securely fastened to a small gilded block. Each player is given a handful of small red celluloid rings and the two who throw the most rings over the arrow progress and receive their hearts.

At the table adorned with the blue ribbon lovers' knot, each player receives six or seven inches of half-inch blue ribbon. All players are blind folded. The two who tie their knots first progress. The stiffer the ribbon the more difficult is the feat.

The rose table is supplied with a basket full of rose leaves cut from rose-pink crepe paper. Each petal has a letter printed on it in gilt. Each player gathers a small handful of petals and begins to form the words Saint Valentine. Unused letters may be put back in the basket. The player helping himself to more petals. The players who complete their words first progress.

At the violet table each player is given a pencil and paper and told to make as many different words as possible from the letters in the word "violet." The two who have the most words progress to the next table.

Rhyming The forget-me-not table gives the guests an opportunity to express themselves in "true Valentine fashion. The "makings" along with paste, for valentines are given the contestants, but they must compose their own verse. The two persons finishing first progress.

The hostess can ring a bell as the signal for progression, allowing not more than ten minutes for play between signals. If supper partners are to be chosen it's fun to stretch a curtain across a wide double-doorway, having the bottom of the curtain twelve or fourteen inches from the floor. The girls stand behind the curtain with only their feet and ankles showing. Each pair of feet is numbered. Cut the numbers from a big calendar, paste them on cardboard, and stand them in front of the curtain. Then each man chooses the feet he prefers, with their number, and matches his number when the girls appear from back of the curtain.

Prizes can be given to the man and girl who have progressed the oftensest, while those who have moved the fewest number of times can be "consoled."

Good Nature and Good Health

YOU NEEDN'T LIGHT YOUR PIPE TO ENJOY IT This is the last of a series of four articles by Dr. Morris Fishbein, one of America's foremost medical authorities, on the effects of the tobacco habit. This concluding article discusses the psychological effects of smoking. BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine All investigators of the effects of tobacco smoking are convinced that the psychological side is most important in estimating its effects. The story is told of a physician who found it simply impossible to be without his cigar. One day he took a long drive to the country and on the way home, practically frozen, lighted a cigar. He at once began to feel more comfortable. He continued the drive of 70 miles, smoking the same cigar, and found on his arrival only one-half inch of the cigar had burned, and that he had derived complete satisfaction from witnessing the clouds arising from his breath. Smoke Clouds Have Effect Whether or not the story is true, the fact remains that all observers are convinced that the flame of the cigar, the smoke rings, the feel of

The pharmacologist Dixon also recognizes the subtle effects of smoking, emphasizing particularly the rhythm, which resembles to some extent that which gives pleasure to dancing, singing, or chewing gum. The person who smokes is occupied with matches the handling of the cigar or pipe, or the filling of the pipe and the care of the ash. It is these considerations which have caused the majority of scientific writers to recognize the part played by tobacco in relation to the stress of modern life. Incidentally, may the writer of this series disclaim all prejudice by saying that he has not at any time ever smoked tobacco in any form, such as cigars, cigarettes or a pipe.

A member of a woman's club got up and read an excellent paper on mothers' pension law that would provide for destitute women with families to care for. "It seems to me," was the reply, "that that would not only be a very humane law, but economically wise. The children are the future of the country. Are we not, in our great fear of establishing a precedent, that tends to the dole system or paternalism, going to the other extreme and neglecting the needy?"

for them by night; mothers who had no choice between a family and a plea in the working world but who had to shoulder the responsibility of both. She told of dead husbands, sick husbands, drunken husbands and imprisoned husbands. She told of legitimate and illegitimate children whose parents were deserted young mothers to work and care for their off-spring. "Ladies," she finished, "if you could see some of the things I see, you would instantly recognize what our country's greatest problem is. It isn't the feminist problem of where woman's work is. It is the fact that thousands of women are overworked and discouraged trying to be both mother and father to their children and barely succeeding in keeping them alive."

The chairman forgot parliamentary rules and entered into the debate without ceremony. "But we have homes," she said, "homes for orphans and destitute children." "That is no answer to the problem," the speaker insisted quietly. "It is begging the question. Women want the children and have a right to them. And children have a right to their mothers, not half-dead, over-worked, sick mothers, either."

The chairman saw daylight. "I see what you mean," she cried. "A mother's pension law that would provide for destitute women with families to care for."

"It seems to me," was the reply, "that that would not only be a very humane law, but economically wise. The children are the future of the country. Are we not, in our great fear of establishing a precedent, that tends to the dole system or paternalism, going to the other extreme and neglecting the needy?"

Mrs. Augusta Tucker is very ill at her home, 35 North School street. Mrs. Tucker has reached the age of 84.

A daughter was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Roger Williams of Tolland Turnpike.

Miss Jessamine M. Smith, librarian at the South Manchester Public Library, stated today that the library will remain closed all day Saturday in observance of Lincoln's birthday.

The Manchester Pipe band, which gave a concert from Station WTRC at Hartford some time ago, has been asked to broadcast again some time in the near future from that place. Members of the band have been receiving comments from different parts of New England on the fine program which was given during the broadcast.

GEORGE L. FORBES

George L. Forbes, 73 years of age, passed away early this morning at his home on Spencer street after a long illness from heart trouble. Mr. Forbes, who was a farmer, had lived all his life in the old Forbes homestead where he was born. The farm is just over the Manchester line in East Hartford. Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, Leon A., of East Hartford, and one grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Rev. James W. Lord, pastor of St. John's Episcopal church will officiate and interment will be in the West cemetery, Manchester.

LONG WEDDED, DIE WITHIN FEW HOURS

Parents of Mrs. J. F. Bowen Pass Away in Different Towns on Same Day.

Fate took another strange turn yesterday when it claimed the life of both the mother and step-father of Mrs. J. Frank Bowen of Manchester Green within a space of seven hours. The mother died here in the morning and the father in New London in the afternoon. Neither knew of the other's critical condition.

They had been separated since the Christmas holidays when they came here to visit at their daughter's home on 570 Woodbridge street. Mrs. Fred A. Manchester, the mother, became ill and was unable to return to New London.

Expected Wife To Follow
Mr. Manchester, however, returned to his home at 12 Colt street, that city, expecting that his wife would be able to join him there soon. Her condition, however, failed to improve. Then Mr. Manchester also fell ill. This week the condition of each became serious but neither knew of the other's plight.

Mrs. Manchester passed away at her daughter's home yesterday morning, and seven hours later the news of the husband's death in New London was received.

Mr. Manchester was for thirty years a member of the New London police department. He had been in indifferent health for about a year.

Two Daughters Here
Mrs. Manchester is survived by two daughters by a first marriage, Mrs. Bowen and Mrs. Madeline Welsh, both of this town. Mrs. Welsh was formerly a nurse at Memorial hospital.

A double funeral will be held in New London.

EMOND SUICIDE MAY HAVE HALTED DIVORCE

Attorney Non-Committal on Case Death Prevented "Bothering With."

Efforts today to settle one way or the other rumors regarding a divorce action said to have involved William P. Emond, who yesterday committed suicide by asphyxiation, were blocked by Attorney Charles R. Hathaway, who refused to deny or confirm reports that such action had been contemplated.

Yesterday, however, when informed of the suicide by a Herald reporter, Attorney Hathaway remarked: "Well, that's one divorce case I won't have to bother with." It is common talk that domestic troubles had existed between the man and his wife for some time but it was said the divorce proceedings had been dropped.

The body of Emond was today shipped to Lowell, Mass., where the funeral will be held.

Arthur Lacante of 256 Windsor street and Rosa Mariconi of 56 Irving street underwent tonsillitis operations at Memorial hospital yesterday.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

All the representatives of the various school organizations and clubs should be at the meeting scheduled for tomorrow afternoon in room 16 for the purpose of completing plans for the senior class carnival. This will be an important meeting. The carnival which is scheduled for February 21 will be the first of its kind ever held in the high school. It will be in the form of a huge one-night bazaar. There will be many novel booths, side shows, etc. Le Cercle Français will run a French cante which will be a little bit of Paris. Everything will be done in the French style, and French will be the language in use.

The band held its regular weekly rehearsal this afternoon in room 2. Many new numbers were tried and several of these will be ready for rendition at the big Bristol High basketball game next week.

If the members of Le Cercle Français really want club pins they should see Geraldine Dodwell — or Miss Nolan immediately. It was proposed a short time ago that the club members obtain club pins, but nothing further has been done about it. Practically all the other clubs are planning on having pins, and if the French club wants them, the members should make arrangements to get them now.

All material for "Somanhis Events" should be in at the very latest by tomorrow morning. This is necessary in order to have all the copy go to the printer immediately so that the issue may be out on time. This will be the Freshman issue.

Work is being started by several of the students on speeches for the Constitutional Oratorical Contest which will be held next month. The winner here will take part in the county contest. This contest is held annually in high schools over the country. Its purpose is to stimulate interest in the study of the constitution.

The Freshman basketball team is practicing several nights each week. The Frosh have covered themselves with glory this year, sinking every opponent in sight. Some of the scores turned in by the Freshmen look more like golf scores than basketball scores.

School will close tomorrow morning at 11:30 o'clock, the teachers going to a convention in Hartford. Everything is now in readiness for Saturday night. The occasion of the Junior Prom is considered the biggest social event on the High school calendar. St. Yaffe's orchestra will furnish music for the occasion. A larger attendance than in any previous year is expected. The decorations will be Japanese and will be put up on Saturday morning by the decorating committee.

ACTRESS GETS $50,000

Pittsburgh, Feb. 10.—John W. Hubbard, millionaire Pittsburgh manufacturer, today through counsel paid Miss Anne Caldwell, New York actress, $50,000 she was awarded by a jury in Federal Court here some time ago, when she sued Hubbard for $500,000 as heart balm. Earl Reed, attorney for Miss Caldwell, revealed here.

GYMNASTICS CLASS FOR NORTH END

Classes For Business Men, Women and Girls at the Community Club.

Director Washburn of the Manchester Community club announced today that gymnastic classes are forming for the business men, women, boys and girls. Each class will be limited to thirty members owing to the club's limited floor space; however, should the classes prove sufficiently popular several nights during the week will be devoted to them.

William Brennan, former north ender and well known around Manchester athletic circles, is in charge of the classes. Mr. Brennan said last evening that the light exercises used in his classes would be very beneficial to the business man who is tied up to his desk all day and whose waist line shows signs of growing abnormal; it also takes away that tired feeling during the spring months. For the ladies Mr. Brennan said that no matter what fashion might portend for them, whether it be the athletic, medium or slight figure, his classes will be arranged according to the desires of the members. Registrations may be made by calling the club and stating the class desired. The telephone number is 1594.

The North End Athletic club members were taken over for conditioning last night by Mr. Brennan last night, who expects that some promising boxing material will develop. The members exercised for a long period with considerable satisfaction and much commendation in favor of Instructor Brennan's system.

PYTHIAS ANNIVERSARY HERE WELL ATTENDED

One of the largest attended meetings in the history of Memorial Lodge, No. 38, Knights of Pythias, took place in its lodge room last night. Over one hundred members were present. Visitors also attended from Hartford, East Hartford, Thompsonville, Rockville and Lebanon lodges. The rank of Knight was conferred on a class of 13 candidates, the work being performed by an entirely new rank team, headed by Don C. Hattin. At the close of the initiation a supper was served by the refreshment committee. Addresses by the visitors brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.
