Innovations at C. of C. Banquet Please Guests—Rev. McLaughlin Appeals to Reason While Co-Speaker Bayliss Evokes Laughter; "Mystery Bag" Great Surprise—Stage Act and Individual Stunts.

Members and guests of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce in numbers sufficient to comfortably fill Cheney hall last night ate of sole and broiled chicken, listened to good jazz and better quartette singing, heard one wise speech and another funny one besides the abbreviated remarks of the Chamber's president and the toastmaster, did some singing on their own hook, saw the "Black Bottom" danced by a girl from the State theater—for four mortal hours and pretty nearly half of a fifth one—after then, Rev. Reidy, laden down with loot, regretting that there was not to be another hour or two of the same sort of good time.

The advance notices sent out from Chamber headquarters that the banquet was to be one of the old-fashioned kind, the truth for last night's affair was the nearest to approach that mythical stage of perfection that Manchester has seen in about ten years, old members said.

Gather Early
The men gathered early. The reception to the speakers eliminated, the festivities started an hour earlier than in other years. It was planned to end the affair an hour earlier and a working schedule had even been prepared but, as usual, in affairs of this kind, the truth is forgotten and it was around 11 o'clock before those present got around to sing "Aul Lang Syne."

When the time arrived for the doors to be opened the guests were pleased with the sight presented. The tables were set in a riot of color. Carnations of various hues stuck to the top of miniature magaphones at each place gave the impression of walking through a garden of beautiful long stemmed flowers. The stage with its magnificent velvet backdrop had been decorated with palms and ferns behind which occasional glimpses of the members of the orchestra could be obtained. The long speakers table at the side of the hall, slightly raised from the floor, was two tiers high. Along both sides of the hall, standing at attention, was a small army of pretty waitresses under the direction of Captain, otherwise, Postmaster Oliver F. Toop. These waitresses, commanded from the sales force of the town's business places, did their work as well as any trained corps of servers in the largest cities. They acted like clockwork. Each section was in charge of a lieutenant and at a signal the waitresses like one man, and out among the tables serving the various courses. These waitresses, too, added to the color scheme and the atmosphere of the banquet. Each was dressed, so it seemed in a different colored gown which offset the sombre garments of the men diners, many of whom were in formal attire.

At Speakers' Table
At the speakers' table were seated W. W. Robertson, Rev. W. P. Reidy, Rev. Robert W. McLaughlin, President Austin Cheney, of the local Chamber, Toastmaster N. B. Richards, Wallace M. Bayliss and Mayor Robert V. Treat. The banquet began with the singing of "America" by those present led by the Manchester Male Quartet. Followed the invocation by Rev. W. P. Reidy and the banquet was on.

HERE'S WHAT THEY ATE

Stay-at-homes may be interested to know just how much these "tired business men" ate at their annual get-together. A mere ten gallons of fruit cocktail "a la Volstead" as an appetizer, 55 pounds of fruit cocktail, two and a half bushels of potatoes, ten gallons of peas, 125 chickens, 500 rolls, a lot of trimmings topped off with 9 gallons of ice cream. All this was served by 30 attractive waitresses under the efficient direction of O. F. Toop.

EDISON, AT 80, DENIES FAITH IN PERSONAL GOD

Sticks to Disbelief, Says He Has Been Misread; Intends to Stop Work Just Before Funeral.

West Orange, N. J., Feb. 11.—Thomas Alva Edison, electrical wizard and the world's foremost inventor, regards the phonograph as his greatest achievement. He said so himself today in his annual dedication of views, given this time on his eightieth birthday. Edison said his views on the subject of immortality had not changed. It is still as much of a secret as the spark of life. The inventor said the word of "God" meant nothing to him, but he did believe a supreme intelligence guides the world.

As the octogenarian inventor talked with a group of newspapermen who crowded his laboratory, his old friend Henry Ford stood beside him, occasionally injecting a few words himself. Edison gave his views and opinions in the following crisp sentences:

Epigrams
"I intend to remain in the harness until death. I will not quit until a few days before the funeral."
"The world is no nearer today than it ever has been in solving the mystery of the spark of life."
"I think highly of the training camps established by the government which are proving decidedly valuable and beneficial to the citizens of the country."

He did not look for any radical change in the present distribution of electricity unless he solves the problem of "cold light."
"Experimenting has given me the greatest pleasure in life. It is great fun to pull facts out of the great unknown."

He wished to be remembered as the inventor of the phonograph.
"My belief as to immortality has undergone no change. The reading of an interview given by me on the subject was misconstrued. I proposed that, to get some reasonable data, every known fact in favor of immortality should be put in one column and every known fact against immortality put in an opposite column. Then in time we might find in summing up 56 per cent in favor and 44 per cent against. As it is now we have no data."

"God" Meaningless
"The word God has no meaning to me but I do believe that there is a supreme intelligence guiding the universe."
"Yes, I believe President Coolidge ought to be re-nominated and re-elected."
"A man is at the height of his productiveness at 45."
"Crime will diminish when it ceases to pay."

Henry Ford was asked about a cablegram printed in the morning papers quoting Queen Marie of Rumania, as saying that Ford would rebuild Bucharest, the Rumanian capital. The billionaire answered: "I am glad Queen Marie thinks I will build a new capital for her. It often makes people happy to think things."

RUTH LIKELY TO GET HIS $100,000 DEMAND

New York, Feb. 11.—It was the belief today that the final settlement of the salary controversy between Babe Ruth and the New York Yankees would see the star hitter receiving at least $100,000 for his efforts during 1927, the result of a contract given Cobb in Philadelphia, having forced the Yankees on the defensive. Ruth returned unsigned a contract for $52,000, the sum he received during the last five years, but the Yankees management has explained that the document was sent him merely to protect his reservation on the player, which would have expired February 15.

LINK LEOPOLD, THRILL KILLER, IN DEATH PLOT

Slayer of the Franks Boy May Yet Hang For Murder of Warden in Joliet Prison Delivery.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—A search for corroboration of evidence that Nathan Leopold, murderer of Bobby Franks, was the brains and instigator of the jail breaking plot that resulted in the murder of Deputy Warden Peter N. Klein at the penitentiary at Joliet a year ago, and for which six convicts are under death sentence, was taken up today by State's Attorney Hjalmar Rehn of Will County.

"All we need is a little corroboration," he said. "These convicts have told plainly that Leopold was their leader, but it is doubtful if we could convict him on their testimony alone."

Will Ask Death Penalty
"If anything to sustain their story can be found I shall ask the death penalty for Leopold."
Prison officials declare none of the convicts is of sufficient mentality to have devised the plot which enabled them to leave the penitentiary and that Leopold framed up the whole affair. According to their theory, the murder of Klein was not a part of the plot but found necessary by the convicts in their efforts to release Leopold, who was in solitary confinement. They killed Klein to get the key to his cell but were unable to find it. It is now believed Leopold cleared the way at the gate by bribing guards.

"We'll not be stopped at the gate," the convicts say Leopold told them, and they were not. They forced a captain of the guards to accompany them. Leopold, it is now believed, got himself placed in solitary for breaking prison rules in order to be close at hand for the escape.

$30,000 SHORTAGE IN MASS. TOWN'S CASH

Well-to-do Treasurer of Webster Admits and Resigns; Says Money Is Loaned.

Webster, Feb. 11.—The selectmen of this town are trying today to establish order in the financial affairs of the town, subsequently to the admission by Town Treasurer William W. Holmes that he was short $30,000 in his accounts.

The shortage was revealed when state auditors came unexpectedly to examine the town books, Holmes claims that the money has been borrowed and will be returned shortly. The shortage is covered by his bonds.

Holmes resigned immediately. The weekly payroll of the municipal employees has been held up. Holmes has been prominent in affairs of the town. He owns an extensive grain business, is trustee of two banks, owns much property and has been active in church work.

DEXTER DENIES HE MAY QUIT AS 'STEEL'S' HEAD

New York, Feb. 11.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, today flatly denied reports that he was planning to resign his position. "My resignation has never even been discussed," he said, "either by the board or by myself."

Judge Gary made it clear that no decision regarding such a resignation was ever made without consideration by the full board of the corporation.

One-Man Justice Mill In Newtown, Is Charged

Legislators Edified by Squabble of Officials Over New Court Bill—Beer Kegs and Poobahism Figure in Hearing.

Hartford, Feb. 11.—"We want a town court so that we may eliminate trials before justices of the peace who neglect until after the October election cases which should have been heard previous to Easter."

Grand Juror George E. Hayes, of Newtown, solemnly gave that as one of the many reasons why he thought a new court system should be established in his town. He was speaking before the Judiciary Committee of the Legislature yesterday afternoon.

"He's sore because I wouldn't give him the beer keg after a batch of contaminated beer was destroyed." Just as solemnly, Justice of the Peace P. H. McCarthy, whose room was attacked, gave his opinion as the reason for Juror Hayes' enmity. "He wanted the kegs for a friend of his," Justice McCarthy added.

Conflict of Charges
Charges and countercharges, arguments, rebuttals and sur-rebuttals marked the wordy battle between the two men and kept the committee and a hundred spectators at the hearing alternately amazed and in laughter for half an hour.

"Why," Justice McCarthy said, "as a grand juror, swore out (Continued on page 3.)"

KILL 'THIRD-TERM' CONGRESS SCHEME

Anti-Coolidge Resolution to Be Kept Out of Both Houses Is Probability.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The question of President Coolidge's moral right to seek another term in the White House will not be settled on the floor of either House of Congress, it appeared today.

While administration leaders in the House were taking prompt steps to block consideration of an anti-third term resolution offered by Representative Beck, Republican of Wisconsin, Democratic leaders in the Senate rejected overtures to raise the issue in that body.

It had been the hope of certain Democrats and insurgent Republicans to put Congress on record as opposing a "third term" for President Coolidge following the precedent of a resolution adopted in 1875 against a third term for President Grant.

People's Job, Says Tilson.
The Wisconsin Congressman's resolution, drafted after he had consulted many other progressives, is regarded as serving notice that the opponents of President Coolidge will try to keep the third term issue in the forefront until the election in 1928.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican leader prominently declared that the Beck resolution would not get on the House calendar.

"I certainly think that the place for that question is settled in among the people and in the Republican convention and not in Congress," he said.

Senator Caraway, Democrat of Arkansas, had drafted a similar resolution for presentation in the Senate but has deferred the proposal after conferring with colleagues, it became known today.

Rep. Treadway, Republican of Mass., showed no hesitancy in declaring that Mr. Coolidge would not be a third-term candidate but said that if he was the Republican nomination he can get it.

SCHOOL HEAD BEGS FOR HUNGRY CHILDREN IN BAY STATE TOWN

2 WAR LORDS MAY AID CANTON ARMY

Wu and Feng Show Signs of Turning on Chang Tso-Lin As Enemies.

Peking, Feb. 11.—Marshal Wu Pei-Fu, a few years ago hailed as the "strong man of China," later overthrown and overshadowed by Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the present power behind the Peking government, today suddenly loomed as the dominant figure in the tangled Chinese situation.

On Wu Pei-Fu's attitude depended whether the northern armies under Chang Tso-Lin may go to the relief of General Sun Chuan-Fang, governor of Chekiang province, who is waging a desperate battle around Hangchow to prevent the capture of Shanghai by the Cantonese troops under Marshal Chiang Kai-shek.

Sends Warning
Hitherto in the present Chinese civil strife Chang Tso-Lin and Wu Pei-Fu have been nominal allies, but today the southward advance of Chang Tso-Lin's troops set at attack the Cantonese at Hankow, was checked by a peremptory warning by Wu Pei-Fu that if the Manchurian troops entered Wu's Honan province a conflict between the two would result.

Feng May Enter
A further element of uncertainty is the activity of the "Christian General" Feng. He has been inactive for several months and has several times announced his retirement from war activities. Feng is now reported to have decided upon renewal of his activities and there are reports here that he is leading his forces into the fray, to the aid of the Cantonese.

Wu Pei-Fu's exert pressure on Chang Tso-Lin's forces and Feng comes into the fray, the Cantonese may find themselves unhampered in their advance and the efforts of Chang Tso-Lin to regain Hankow may be nullified.

HIGH RAILROAD MAN GOES MAD, DEAD IN LEAP

Edward Chambers of Santa Fe, U. S. Traffic Head In War, Attacks Nurse Then Takes Life.

San Francisco, Feb. 11.—After beating a nurse and barricading the door, Edward Chambers, 38, vice-president of the Santa Fe Railroad, leaped to his death today from his fourth floor room in St. Luke's hospital here.

Surgeons at the hospital expressed the belief that the Chicago railroad executive had had a sudden attack of insanity. He was recovering from a minor operation performed ten days ago.

Chambers awoke early this morning, according to reports to police and suddenly attacked the night nurse, Miss Florence Yates, who was sleeping in a chair beside his bed. The nurse after a struggle, broke away and ran into the corridor, screaming for help.

Chambers started to follow her. Then, seeing other nurses rush up, he returned to his room and locked the door. When doctors and attendants tried to enter, he smashed the lock with a blow from a chair. The terrified attendants then heard him tearing about the room in a frenzy, smashing everything within reach.

Finally the door was broken down. As the attendants started to enter his room, Chambers leaped from the window sill, falling four stories to a concrete surface.

One of the best known railroad men in the West, Chambers had lived at various times in San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Chicago.

He had been connected with the Santa Fe for forty-eight years, starting as a laborer.

"One of the Greatest"
Chicago, Feb. 11.—Edward W. Chambers was declared today by W. B. Storey, president of the Santa Fe, to be "one of the greatest railway traffic officials in America, perhaps the greatest."

Storey said Chambers was in good spirits when he left for California but was ill. His physicians recommended a trip West as a vacation.

"During the war," said Storey, "Chambers was federal director-general of all traffic on all of the railroads of the country. His handling of the situation was one of the outstanding executive achievements of the war."

YALE'S PREXY RAPS DIRT ON THE STAGE

Condemns at Theatre Conference Commercialized Filth in Drama.

New Haven, Feb. 11.—"Certainly if the community may insist that physical sewage be properly disposed of in ways not menacing to health, it is equally justified in protesting against the pollution of its sources of moral decency."

Such is the opinion of Dr. James Rowland Angell, president of Yale university, on the question of stage censorship. Dr. Angell expressed the opinion before three hundred people gathered in the Harkness theater here today for the opening of a national drama conference.

"People stubbornly insist on applying an ethical or social standard to art," Dr. Angell said, "but not to types of drama in particular are just now passing through stormy seas of threatened censorship because they are alleged to offend taste, or to corrupt morals, or both."

Canons of Decorum
"One must admit then any institution which touches so intimately as does the theater the life of our people, and especially our youth, must comport itself with some regard to the accepted canons of decorum. The community will not indefinitely tolerate the parade of social filth for purely mercenary motives."

"Such things may flourish for a time but they always lead to a reaction which is destructive to the finish and most enduring uses of the theater and as such may well be recognized and dealt with in the home of its friends."

Many Connecticut delegates are attending the conference. Round-table conferences are being held this afternoon on scenic design, costume design, stage lighting, royalties and theater construction and maintenance.

BANNED PLAYS GO ON, AIDED BY INJUNCTION

So-Called "Filth" Shows Draw Packed Houses as Authorities Are Hobbled.

New York, Feb. 11.—The intermission curtain rang down today on Broadway's latest stage sensation—"Purgings of the Playhouse."

Efforts of the municipal authorities to outlaw objectionable productions reached a temporary impasse when theater owners and managers obtained injunctions prohibiting the police from interfering with performances.

"The Captive," "Sex" and "The Virgin Man," the three plays which thus far have suffered the brunt of the cleansing movement, gave their performances last night as usual, despite strenuous action taken by the authorities earlier in the day to enforce their threats to padlock the box offices and arrest all members of the casts.

The authorities postponed further action until early next week, when the temporary injunctions are disposed of and the casts of the three plays being prosecuted are arraigned in court to face charges. The three theaters which are being prosecuted are doing a capacity business.

Will Take Pressure or Bait From U. S. to Prevent Side-Tracking — Britain Theoretically Favorable But Calls It Matter For Experts—France Scents Debt Coercion—Germany Only Enthusiastic Backer.

New York, Feb. 11.—The disarmament proposal of President Coolidge has been accepted with dignified coolness in Europe and it is apparent that it is likely to be side-tracked, unless the United States backs the move with some pressure or offers attractive bait.

It is unlikely that there will be any flat rejection of the proposals, but it will probably be permitted to submerge in the files of the League of Nations.

This was very apparent today from the comment coming from the organs of the various foreign governments concerned.

All the nations concerned are expected to pass the proposal on to the League of Nations for action. The line-up in the League will probably be found against the proposal. Great Britain will probably give it support, knowing full well that it is doomed to defeat. Germany will give it enthusiastic support and is likely to also endorse the proposal, feeling it cannot be finally accepted.

The difficulties will probably arise when some member of the Little Entente arises to suggest that the proposals are altogether too important to be passed upon hastily. France, Italy and other members of the Little Entente will support this stand. The proposal will probably then be referred to some committee of experts, to be forgotten.

French Government Mummified
Paris, Feb. 11.—The French government today declined to make any comment on President Coolidge's disarmament proposals until it has consulted Great Britain and Italy and the cabinet has given consideration to the matter.

The foreign office admitted that the proposals came as "a great surprise."

There seemed but little doubt that the French government would make a polite effort to side-track the proposals.

A widespread impression prevails here that President Coolidge intends to exercise pressure through the debts owed to the United States to force France to accept the proposals. How far such a measure would succeed is problematical.

French naval circles are aroused over the proposals, since they are still smarting under the decision of the Washington conference placing France on a naval equality with Italy.

British Approval Qualified.
London, Feb. 11.—Great Britain welcomes President Coolidge's disarmament proposals because it is the fixed policy of the British government to support any movement to aid disarmament, said an official statement issued today. This endorsement has some qualifications, however.

The proposal comes at a most propitious time, it was stated by the official spokesman for the government.

DAWES IS STEERER FOR HAUGEN BILL

Effects Deal Whereby Farm Relief Bill Will Likely Pass Senate Today.

Washington, Feb. 11.—While Vice-President Dawes smoothed away rumbles and revuls within a farm bloc, grown almost unmanageable by the enlistment of southern recruits, the Senate faced a final vote today on the $250,000,000 McNary-Haugen farm relief bill.

The measure will pass the Senate unless any legislative miracle intervenes, and a revised poll indicated the margin of enactment would be between fifteen and twenty votes.

Dawes Peace-Maker.

The vice-president meanwhile served as a legislative miracle maker, and a revised poll indicated the margin of enactment would be between fifteen and twenty votes.

This action of Dawes threw him into direct conflict with President Coolidge, who opposed the bill a year ago and who has been reported as ready to veto it this year if Congress enacts it.

BALKED AT DEATH OF MELLETT, SAYS THUG

Kascholk Had Weighed Offer to "Slug" Editor, But Quit At Murder, He Testifies.

Canton, Feb. 11.—Steve Kascholk, informer, resumed the stand here today at the trial of Ben Rudner, charged with having headed the hand of conspirators who caused the death of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, and was admitted to a fire of questions as defense attorneys sought to shake his story of the assassination plot.

Throughout his testimony yesterday afternoon and during a perforce adjournment just before adjournment, Kascholk refused to budge from his version that he had been offered $200 to "slug an editor," by Rudner, McDermott and Louis Mazer, the latter yet to be tried.

He reiterated that he had withdrawn from the plot when he learned that Mellett was to be dealt with more severely.

Salem, Mass., Feb. 11.—The Salvation Army ousted from the streets of Lynn by Mayor Ralph S. Bauer and which sought legal redress, today was notified that the chief executive had decided the members could resume street meetings pending action by the Legislature on a bill legalizing their street appearance.

The bill was presented to the Legislature by Rep. Fred A. Hutchinson. At the same time court proceedings in the matter were halted, pending the outcome of the action of the Legislature. The "Salities" in the Boston and Maine railroad yards, after having been put off the streets by Mayor Bauer.

PHILLIPS-AND KENEALY SCRAP OVER SHIPPAN

Stamford Mayor Accuses Senator of Gum Shoe Work For Secession Permit.

Stamford, Feb. 11.—Mayor Alfred N. Phillips, Jr., and Matthew H. Kenealey, state senator, have been indulging in correspondence over the proposition of the secession of Shippan Point from the city, according to statements issued here today. The mayor accuses the senator of "working secretly" for the secession at Hartford, and called upon him to "stop your smoke screening and shilly-shallying and come out into the open, because people in this district are getting disgusted with your actions both as senator and chairman of the Republican town and city committee."

Senator Kenealey today wrote the mayor that he would ignore the letter and any other he might write, and said: "I am not responsible for you, only to the people of this district."

HOT WHISKERS

Salford, England.—When George McWhirter tried to light a cigarette in a high wind, he set fire to his luxuriant red beard. His wife, too frightened to notice that he had extinguished the flame with his hands, turned in an alarm. It was in the docks area and six fire engines, 40 firemen and 25 policemen responded. Angered, they said he could pay a $25 fine, or permit them officially to "subdue" the whiskers with an extinguisher. McWhirter, thrifty Scotchman, took a drenching.

HERRICK'S PLANE GANT CUT FOG OF LONDON

London, Feb. 11.—Myron T. Herrick, United States ambassador to France, was thwarted by fog in an attempt to fly to London from Paris today, to confer with Ambassador Houghton on the disarmament situation in Europe. Ambassador Herrick's aeroplane was forced to make a landing at Folkestone as it could not penetrate the fog to reach London. The ambassador came to London from Folkestone by train.

PROBE OF "UNDER COVER" JUDGE IS AUTHORIZED

Cooper Case to Be Investigated By House Judiciary; May Be Impeachment.

Washington, Feb. 11.—A congressional investigation of far-reaching scope into the enforcement of an "under cover" today as the House Judiciary committee was authorized to formally consider impeachment charges preferred against Federal Judge Frank Cooper of Albany, N. Y., for his alleged co-operation with "under cover" agents in nabbing dry law violators.

After bickering with Rep. La Guardia, Republican of New York, Judge Cooper's chief accuser, and wrangling over legal phases of the matter for two days, the committee decided to make a complete inquiry as a matter of fair dealing to both sides.

Judge Cooper told the committee that his activity was limited to a general nomination to dry agents to get the "higher-ups" and to guaranteeing freedom without detection of any "under cover" men, who might be arrested by local police.

W. B. WARD IS SHOWN AS U. S. BREAD KING

Bossed Baking Industry According to Report Filed With the Senate.

Washington, Feb. 11.—William B. Ward was revealed today as the "bread king" of America in a report filed with the Senate by the Federal Trade Commission in response to the La Follette resolution.

The commission declared that Ward, on December 31, 1924, was the largest single stockholder in the Ward Baking Co., and controlled the voting stock of the General Baking Co. These three concerns, the commission said, controlled the baking industry, producing twenty per cent of the bread consumed in America.

DETOURS COSTLY HIGHWAY DEPT'S FIGURES PROVE

Shunting Traffic Around Construction Work Cost $125,538 in 1926—Requires Much Preparation.

Hartford, Feb. 11.—Detours may be the bane of the motorist's existence, but they are no more popular with the Connecticut Highway Department than with the motorists, the main reason being that it cost the department $125,538 to prepare and maintain detours during the construction season of 1926. Although the highway department engineers attempt to avoid the need of detours by keeping one side of the road open for traffic whenever possible, there are many cases when this cannot be done and it is then necessary to prepare a detour to carry traffic around the spot where the construction work is taking place.

Preparing a detour is not the simple task that it may seem to the motorist, for in most cases it is necessary for the highway department to undertake considerable repair work on detour roads before they can be opened for the increased amount of traffic. The best roads available are selected for the detours, but even these generally require preliminary repair work, filling and lighting in order to make them safe for the traffic which is to be shunted over them.

During the construction season of 1926, it was necessary for the highway department to lay out 164 miles of detour road to carry traffic around construction jobs which were impossible. In order to mark plainly the routes which were to be followed by motorists and truck drivers, it was necessary to construct, paint, and place 1,760 directional and warning signs. Detour roads required 62,452 gallons of oil. Inspectors had to be maintained to watch the condition of the detours so that immediate repair work could be ordered when necessary.

INSULL AND CROWE CITED FOR CONTEMPT

Senate Committee Calls Illinois Men and Philadelphian To Its Bar.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The Reed campaign fund committee today cited Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities magnate; Robert E. Crowe, state attorney of Cook County; Daniel F. Schuyler, Chicago attorney, and Thomas W. Cunningham, of Philadelphia, to the Senate for contempt in having refused to answer questions at the slush fund inquiry held in Chicago last summer.

The committee voted the contempt citations at a session this morning and the report, prepared by Senator Reed, chairman, set forth the statements of the witnesses, refusing to answer questions, and placed the nature of their punishment upon the Senate.

SAYS U. S. CODDLES STEEL CORPORATION

Senator Howell Declares 10 German Ships and Cargoes Are Being Held Up.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Charges that the government protects the United States Steel Corporation to enable it to obtain a fair price for its products, were made in the Senate today by Senator Howell, Republican of Nebraska.

He declared that ten German ships, loaded with steel, are being detained in New York harbor and their cargoes held back under the anti-dumping provision of the tariff act.

"The tariff protects the corporation's steel," declared Howell, "and the corporation arbitrarily sets its own price."

the same as at the Washington conference, as regards the 5-5-3 ratio.

There was an indication of reservation in the British attitude, however, when the official spokesman said that as regarded vessels outside the 5-5-3 ratio the government could not commit itself until the question had been considered by experts.

Welcomed By Germany.

Berlin, Feb. 11.—Germany ever ready to endorse any measure for disarmament that will bring other nations down to her own level of war-making ability, is prepared to approve President Coolidge's new disarmament proposals.

"President Coolidge's proposal should be welcomed by all powers sincere in their desire to limit armaments," said Admiral von Tirpitz.

"The President's clear-cut proposal shows up the League in all of its futility."

"While the League talks President Coolidge acts."

"For months the wise men of Geneva have been talking their heads off upon theoretical subjects such as how to change a French army of four million men into 365,000 men."

The views expressed by Admiral von Tirpitz were echoed in other quarters, and those hostile to the League of Nations welcomed the proposals as a severe rebuke to the League.

Deal, Geneva Thinks

Geneva, Feb. 11.—President Coolidge's new disarmament proposals are regarded here as a pre-arranged Anglo-American plan, although there is some surprise over the possibility of Great Britain having entered into such a proposal. It is generally believed here that France and Italy will reject the proposition and that Japan's attitude will be doubtful.

The preparatory commission meeting on March 21 will consider the proposition.

PORTUGAL REVOLT DECLARED BEATEN

Cost 1,200 Casualties at Oporto and Lisbon; Many Arrests Being Made.

Lisbon, Feb. 11.—The restoration of normal life in Lisbon is proceeding slowly today following collapse of the revolution yesterday.

Many business houses both in Lisbon and Oporto remained closed, the proprietors fearing further disturbances.

The government today continued its campaign of arrests against persons connected with the abortive revolt.

Efforts were being made to restore transportation and communications.

The government announced that the revolt had been completely crushed.

It is estimated that more than two hundred were killed in the fighting at Oporto and Lisbon and that nearly a thousand were wounded.

During the fighting in Lisbon the American minister, Fred M. Darling, took refuge in the home of Secretary Benton after the legislative building had been repeatedly struck by rifle fire.

No American citizen was injured, either at Oporto or Lisbon.

Strict orders have been issued against citizens carrying arms, under penalty of death.

GOVERNOR TO HOLD A LEGISLATIVE RECEPTION

Hartford, Feb. 11.—Governor Trumbull will hold a reception to the members of the general assembly at the State Library on Wednesday, February 23 from 2 to 4 p. m.

Clerks of the legislative committees have been requested to give this reception consideration in assignments hearing for that day.

GANNA DENIES

Chicago, Feb. 11.—"Invention Journalists" was the succinct denial from Ganna Walska via cable from Paris today of reports that she and her millionaire husband, Harold McCormick, had come to a parting of the ways.

an arrest for a man, arrested him, prosecuted the case, and then, acting as the court, fined the prisoner and assessed court charges for a violation of the fish and game laws.

"And he wanted to know if I was a member of the Knights of Columbus. Well, my name is McCarthy, but I'm not."

"Mr. Chairman," said the grand juror, "I had to go to another town to get a justice who would try the case of a man arrested for using a dangerous weapon."

"Did I didn't?" asked McCarthy. "Why didn't you come to me?" "I didn't," was the answer. "I did."

"Well, I'll leave it to the people in my town, if my word isn't as good as yours," was the retort.

The hearing ended with a number of the prominent citizens registering in opposition to the bill for a town court charter.

They asserted that the town's population is only 3,000, that criminal cases average only about one a week and that there is no real need for the full machinery of an established permanent court.

Juror Hayes and his opponents differed on the number of persons in the town who were for and against the measure.

Mr. Hayes was formally a policeman in Bridgeport. He now bears a scar across his forehead received in a pistol duel with a New York "thug."

TO PAY $100 EACH FOR "FUNNY" VANDALISM

Middletown, Feb. 11.—Judge S. Harris Warner today took steps to end midnight rowdiness here when he imposed fines of $100 and costs each on Francis T. and Lawrence Elliott and Carl White, local youths.

Police chased them when they had upset two brass field pieces at the Union Park Soldiers' Memorial and chipped their granite bases and curbs. They were captured easily.

SEES MANY BILLS FATED AS "SCRAP"

Too Much Legislation Proposed Says Governor at the McKinley Dinner.

Hartford, Feb. 11.—Waste-basket legislation was advocated by Governor Trumbull in his speech last night at the McKinley Association banquet here.

"Our present legislature," he said, "has a mass of legislation before it. Some of this is good and some of it is bad. But we must not overload our state and citizens with laws. Necessarily, some of the legislation which will be passed at the present session is some that will pass to the waste-basket."

Roosevelt Speaks

Inasmuch as the country basis of the future of the state and the development of its individual citizens, each citizen must be built up by preachment, by teaching, by example and by placing responsibility in him.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt of New York, principal speaker of the evening said:

"If we are to be successful as a nation our people must not behave merely because laws forbid them to do otherwise," said Col. Roosevelt. The citizenship we must strive to develop should be composed of men and women who do right when no one is looking at them.

Colonel Roosevelt was of the opinion that both a movement to regulate all phases of conduct by law, and a "cousin movement" which has as its aim the concentration of all powers in the federal or in the state government, "are wrong."

Both should be checked," he declared, "for both take responsibilities from the shoulders of the individual, and therefore tend to atrophy them."

Agast the League

Roosevelt strongly supported the course of the "clear sighted men" who have kept us out of the League of Nations.

The dinner, which was held at the Hartford club, was largely attended by prominent Republicans from all parts of the state.

The share of the United States in world crop production is reported as follows: Corn, 66.6 per cent; cotton, 59.1 per cent; tobacco, 38.3 per cent; oats, 38 per cent; wheat, 17.2 per cent; barley, 15.3 per cent; potatoes, 6.1 per cent; rye, 4.8 per cent.

President Cheney said: "I feel highly honored that I am again permitted to welcome you all to the annual banquet of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce."

majority of the interested public will then take the action which seems wise to them. In the meantime, your Chamber of Commerce is organized and available for your use as you see fit. Like any member of your physical body, the more it is used, the stronger it will become. Just as your own town and chamber governments are organized and available for your use as you see fit. Like any member of your physical body, the more it is used, the stronger it will become.

National Chamber

"I have had the privilege of attending the last two meetings of the National Chamber of Commerce as a delegate. I have been on both occasions tremendously impressed with the type of men who make up the personnel, that is, the delegates to the National Chamber of Commerce. The complete representation at these meetings cover every section of this country from Maine to California, and from Texas to Illinois. Every state in the Union has been represented at both meetings, and I might also claim that most local chambers have been represented. Unless one has had the experience of attending one of these meetings, one can scarcely appreciate the political power and prestige which such an organization has, and the effect which its deliberations must have on the minds of the legislators at Washington. Some of you may feel that the local Chamber of Commerce, your own in particular, does not accomplish some of the things which you wish it might, and some of you may feel that its existence is not worth while, but let me impress upon you that the National Chamber of Commerce is entirely made up of small units, such as your own. They have, of course, delegates from large chambers, such as New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, but on the whole, the National Chamber of Commerce is made up of towns of about the size of Manchester, and although you yourselves may not feel that you are of any influence, you are in the last measure just as much an influence as any other town in the National Chamber. Not one of them by themselves would amount to much, but as a whole they amount to a very great deal and often have a very deciding factor on legislation which is before Congress.

A Great Organization

"Therefore, if at any time you feel that your Chamber as a local organization is not moving very fast, let me remind you that it is a small part of a great organization, each part of which is functioning and progressing, and that the mother organization could not for a moment exist without the local Chambers of Commerce.

"What are your directors doing at present? You have the right to ask. They are working actively in Town Planning. Their last meeting with the Board of Selectmen was held last Monday and very little difference of opinion existed but I feel quite confident that this matter can be brought to a town meeting in the very near future.

The Post Office committee has been quite active. The Town of Manchester was included in the list of town resolutions for appropriations for public buildings, which passed by the House, but I understand that this week the bill has been entirely changed, and now provides that the sum appropriated shall be spent at the discretion of the postmaster general, and the secretary of the treasury. If it is so, Manchester's chances are rather slim.

City Classification

The Chamber, as you know, is a subscriber to the Burn's Investors Protective Service, and is willing and ready to give information of a highly reliable character to any member of the community on any security offered for sale, that is not listed on any organized stock exchange. During the past year this service has prevented the investment by people of this community of $25,885 that we know about.

This only includes those who have come in and said, 'I am going to invest this amount in this security unless you tell me it is no good.' It does not include those dozens of people who have asked information without stating that they intend to invest. In addition to this, your secretary has been carrying on an extremely useful campaign against fakes of all kinds; his articles which have appeared almost weekly in 'The Herald' have been copied and used in many places throughout the country. Just this week the town has been flooded with neckties from some Billd Bill of St. Louis. Our advice is—Don't pay for them—don't return them, put them away safely and if an accredited agent from the sender calls on you give them to him and demand a receipt. Don't pay any attention to insulting demands for the return of the ties, or any other article you receive this way, and very soon the names of all residents of Manchester, Connecticut will be scratched off the sucker lists.

Industrial Survey

At the last meeting of your directors, a committee was appointed with F. T. Blinn as chairman to gather information as to the advisability of having an industrial survey made of the town with the object in mind of inducing new industries to locate here.

"The Chamber has, I think, justified itself during the past year. The sustaining members are subscribing again in a most gratifying manner, which ought to be a fair indication that they think they are obtaining value received.

"I wish to thank all those members who have given their services for the success of this banquet, to Mr. Lupton, the general chairman and all his assistants, and to Mr. Simon and his contributors for their bags of tricks.

At the conclusion of his address, President Cheney turned over the banquet to Toastmaster N. B. Richards. Mr. Richards began in a humorous vein. He said that he had been chosen from a host of candidates for the position of toastmaster and then explained the facts in the case. A voice over the telephone one day said: 'Nate you're to be the toastmaster and before he could object of doing the assignment with numerous expressions recommendations to the executive branch, the Selectmen. The only opportunity for conflict is between the directors of the two branches, for the great body of the membership, common to both organizations, can and will decide all differences.

"The feeling on the part of some, that the Chamber of Commerce is a rival organization, and is attempting to usurp certain powers of the Board of Selectmen is hard to understand.

Purpose of Chamber

"The chamber was organized to do certain things—to cover certain ground in the line of preparation and investigation which no other organization was equipped to do. The Chamber of Commerce is not an executive body. It cannot, and should not attempt to force its opinions, but by investigation and research, secure facts and submit them for public information. The

GAS STATION DEPUTIES

South Bend, Ind.—Because of the recent great number of gasoline station holdups, St. Joseph county officials are planning to make gas attendants deputies to the sheriff. It is also hoped in this way to capture many criminals fleeing in automobiles.

State Chamber of Commerce Says Every Person Should Show Financial Responsibility.

Hartford, Feb. 11.—The Motor Vehicle committee of the State Chamber went on record today as favoring the principle that every person who registers an automobile in Connecticut should present evidence of financial responsibility before a license is granted; at the same time the committee opposed the plan of lowering the age limit at which operators' licenses may be granted from 18 to 16 years.

It was pointed out that requiring evidence of financial responsibility on registration of automobiles in other states had automatically limited the number of cars which were registered. The number of accidents therefore less because more poorly equipped and older machines did not appear on the road.

It was suggested, however, that if such a law becomes effective, premiums on automobile accident insurance will be increased because the average risk will be greater. Insurance companies generally take the neutral position on this question because they are interested in accident prevention and the evidence at the present time does not indicate that such a procedure will limit automobile accidents. In opposing the lowering of the age limit for licensing automobile operators, the State Chamber's committee was actuated more from the experiences of the individual members and their knowledge of the ability of children to operate cars than by actual statistics which would show the result of experience in other states where such a law is in force. To permit youngsters, many of whom do not understand the responsibility that they assume to drive automobiles in the present state of transportation congestion, must necessarily increase the number of accidents. The committee favored the continuation of the present 18-year age limit, because the real need seemed to be offset by the additional hazard which such procedure would incur. The personnel of the State Chamber's Motor Vehicle committee is as follows: Major H. H. Skerrett, Jr., manager Packard Motor Car company, Hartford, chairman; Clarence W. Blakelee, Blakelee & Sons, New Haven; Theodore L. Bristol, president Ansonia Water company; Henry C. Chappell, secretary F. H. & A. H. Chappell company, New London; Porter B. Chase, president Bankers Trust company, Hartford; Benedict D. Flynn, secretary Travelers Insurance company, Hartford; George R. Ford, president Hartford Fire company; Thomas Howe, attorney of Hartford; and Charles D. Rice, factory manager Underwood Typewriter company, Hartford.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
 Washington, Feb. 11.—This happened in ancient Rome:
 A group of New York plutocrats came down and threw a festive little party.
 A delegation of senators was present—Roman senators, you understand, because this was in Rome.
 The keener feature of the party was the favors. At every plate was found a lovely little silver flask. And each of these cute little favors was filled with excellent Scotch whisky.
 And after the banquet was over, somebody counted up and found that only three senators had left their favors on the table.
 And there was a great deal of talk, you may be sure. Not because so many senators had made way with their favors, contents and all, but because it was considered mighty poor taste on any gentleman's part to leave his favor on the table instead of taking it.
 No wonder everybody likes the Honorable Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House of Representatives.

While some of the noble Georgian champions of the cotton farmer were ferreting about agricultural relief, Speaker Nick, out of the speaker's chair possibly so as to hear the better—though heaven knows those crack orators from Georgia can be heard for remarkable distances—was sitting down on the aisle among the common run of congressmen.

Suddenly two rather large and quite similar brown objects appeared atop the back of the seat in front of Speaker Nick. It was soon seen that they were Speaker Nick's feet. And Speaker Nick was almost out of sight, though he could just peer over the toes of his shoes toward the rostrum.

Every so often an august senator will arise to recite a parody on some famous poem. Norris of Nebraska brought down the House last year when he described in a snappy parody on the "Midnight Ride of Paul Revere" the wild but unsuccessful taxicab ride of Vice-president Dawes to reach the Senate in time to vote for the appointment of Charles B. Warren. This year he did the same when he parodied Riley with "Once there was a Bolshevik who wouldn't say his prayers; Kellogg sent him off to bed, away up stairs," etc.

What Congress really needs is a good song-and-dance man who will sing, not recite, appropriate parodies on well-known songs. Your correspondent offers free of charge the following parody on "It's a long, long way to Tipperary" to Norris, Tom Heflin or any other Democratic or insurgent senator who will get up and sing it:
 There's a wrong guy in Nicaragua,
 There's a wrong guy we picked,
 Mister Diaz is in Managua
 While the right guy's getting

Hecked.
 Our marines hold the cities; rebels can't come nigh,
 And the wrong, wrong guy in Nicaragua

Is our Sweetie-Pie!
 And then there might be a snappy patter to follow, something like

On the back piazza is Mister Sassa,
 Our devil-dogs making him dance.

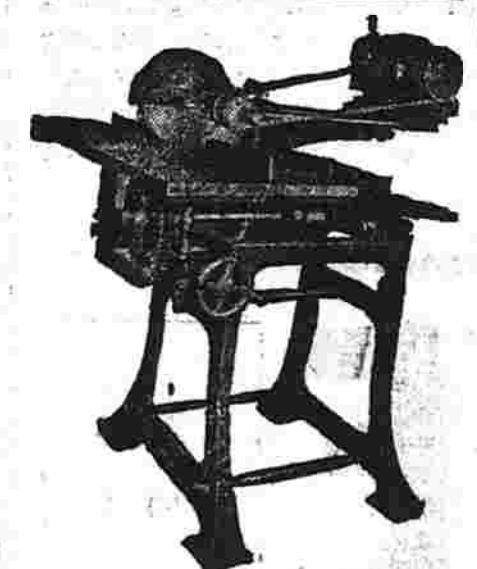

While Mister Diazza holds forth on the plaza
 And we hold up his pants!

The only animal immune to the bite of the cobra is the mongoose.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Lewis and Clark (5)

Sight of the Great Falls meant assurance that the party was on the right track, but there was a portage of a score of miles to be made—and these were heart-breaking miles, over rough country, through creek beds now dry, now raging with flood waters, with terrific heat and sudden storms beating upon them by turns.

Once the quickness and strength of Clark saved Sacajawea and her papoose from death as the current bore the bird-woman from her feet.

The Great Falls portage cost them more than a month in precious time. The men wearied. Sacajawea's pluck stirred them to new efforts.

Mile after mile they labored until they reached the fissure by which the boiling Missouri rushes through the Rockies. Stumbling along in the water, they dragged their canoes made of burned-out logs. In August, 1805, they reached the land of hostile Indian tribes and faced new dangers. (Continued.)

JACK LOCKWILL AT ROCKLAKE

Jack was unsteady and wild at first, and the sophs might have compelled him to force in runs if they'd been contented to "wait it out." Though they filed the bases with only one out, a double play stopped them from scoring. "I'll do better next inning," Jack told Steves. "I'm getting straightened out all right now. The buzzer in my head has stopped."

Jack battled in a terrible luck until the last of the eighth inning. Then, with the sacks loaded and two out, he caught the ball fairly and drove it over the top of the center fielder for a homer, putting the freshmen in the lead by one run.

PA. INAUGURATIONS

UP SINCE EARLY DAY

Harrisburgh, Pa. — Newspaper accounts of the inauguration of General Simon Snyder as governor of Pennsylvania in 1915, recently brought to light here, show the ceremony cost the state practically nothing in contrast with the $30,000 the legislature appropriated for the inaugural of Gov. John S. Fisher into office this year.

General Snyder was the first Pennsylvania governor inaugurated in Harrisburgh. Prior to this, he had been elected governor in 1808 and re-elected in 1811 and again in 1814 but previous inaugurations were held in Lancaster.

The nation having just emerged from war, General Snyder insisted that all pomp and display be dispensed with in the interest of economy. Records of the affair show the governor lived but a short distance from the courthouse and he made the journey on foot.

Administration of the oath of office, the reading of the inaugural address and the ensuing reception consumed scarcely more than an hour; this in contrast with the ceremonial ceremony which began half an hour before noon and did not end officially until the inaugural ball was over the following midnight.

But in the years intervening between the Snyder and Fisher administrations Pennsylvania has become one of the wealthiest states in the union with a population now estimated at 9,730,000.

Fixes Date of Hearing On Women Jurors Bill For St. Patrick's Day.

Hartford, Feb. 11.—The State Legislature today passed a total of five bills, all of a minor nature, and each house approved the judgeship appointments that the other House passed yesterday. A batch of bills providing for repairs to existing state armories throughout Connecticut was taken out of the legislative affairs committee's hands and sent to the appropriations committee for decision. Both bodies adjourned at noon to meet again next Tuesday at 11:15 a. m.

The House passed three bills from its calendar affecting the New Haven Anti-Tuberculosis Association and the Fairfield County Mortgage and Title Company.

Favorable reports were received in the House from committees as follows:

Judiciary—Amending the charter of the Bridgeport City Court, providing for the appointment of two judges instead of a judge and an associate judge, and appointing a second assistant prosecutor and a second assistant clerk.

Public Health and Safety—Providing that still births shall be registered in the same manner as births; allowing the State Department of Health to issue regulations governing the handling of therapeutic lead.

Banking—Changing the name of the City Loan Corporation to the City Industrial Bank of Bridgeport; amending the Meriden Savings bank charter, amending the resolution incorporating the Thomson Savings bank.

The House also voted change of reference on numerous armory bills.

The use of the hall of the House was granted to the judiciary committee for a hearing on a bill providing jury service for women, on March 17, and for a hearing on changes in the compensation act on March 23.

Senate.

The Senate today passed two bills from its calendar as follows:

Amending the charter of the Hartford club to allow it to hold real estate to an amount not over $1,000,000.

Extending the time for organizing of the Mortgage Bond and Title Company of Stamford, to January, 1929.

TWO SUPER FEATURES AT CIRCLE SATURDAY

Western and Five Reel Comedy On Bill—Regular Program Tonight.

Again the Circle comes through with a wonderful double feature bill for Saturday. Riding and shooting galore in Fred Hume's feature, "Stolen Ranch," are balanced by a super-sized comedy drama entitled "Thrill Hunters," in which William Haines plays the leading role.

Tonight ends up the double feature bill in which Elaine Hammerstein in "Ladies of Leisure" teams up with George Walsh who stars in a true-to-life Horatio Alger story, "Striving for Fortune." Walsh is immense in this offering and he gives every bit that is in him to make the picture one not to be forgotten easily.

Miss Hammerstein's work in portraying the life of a society butterfly whose daily grind consists of bridge parties, charity balls and ability and reputation. She does justice to her role and holds the interest in a firm grip from the first reel on.

She is in a class by herself when acting in a picture such as "Ladies of Leisure" but the role fits her like a glove and she glories in it. She is the typical society woman with nothing to think of but pleasure while the man of the house is at the office winning the where-withal to make her life what it is. There is a moral in the story but to tell it would spoil the picture for those fans who want to see it.

Saturday's features are real thrilling affairs. Fred Hume, an up and coming movie star, brings down the house in his five-reeler of the west, "The Stolen Ranch."

William Haines, who is the leading man in "Thrill Hunters," the companion feature for Saturday will be remembered chiefly for his work in "Drawn of Harvard," and "The main support of Lon Chaney in "Tell It to the Marines." In this picture he is the pivot around which comedy revolves. He is, in fact, the "goat," who comes through in the last scene to win the fair lady and all kinds of wealth and honors.

TRUE TO LIFE STORY ON RIALTO PROGRAM

This is the last day of the engagement of "Oh What a Night" which has proved to be just what advance reports spoke of it being: fast and laugh provoking screen fare the clear kind that the motion picture fan demands. Every laugh, grin, chuckle and roar that one picture could be expected to provoke has been crammed into the story and its cast, headed by Edna Murphy and Raymond McKee leaves nothing to be desired.

Another attraction which will close its run this evening on the same bill is "Rawhide" a western drama that for sheer thrills ranks well up towards the top. Buffalo Bill Jr. has the leading role and goes through his piece like a young dare devil. Selected shorter subjects round out the offerings.

The double feature program which will be shown at this theater for tomorrow only is headed by "The Midnight Kiss," an adaptation of Golden's successful stage play which was produced under the name of "Pigs." The younger generation comes into its own in this clever dramatic comedy which has lost nothing of its attractiveness by reason of its transfer to the screen. It's a story of conquering youth that brings home the bacon in the form of pigs and the characters are so true to life as to bring forth many memories in most of us who can remember the time when we found ourselves in similar predicaments to those occurring in this charming story. The cast is particularly well chosen and although many of the names are not well known, they at least furnish a finished portrayal of their different parts and at the same time supply the huge film fan's demand for "new faces." Janet Gaynor and Richard Walling, two of the most promising of the younger school of players head this cast. The supporting program will be made up of "Law of the North" a thrilling outdoor drama starring Fred Gilman, another chapter of the current series, a comedy and a news reel.

VAUDEVILLE AGAIN SCORES HIT AT STATE

"Carnival Capers" Heads Program—Richard Dix in "Paradise for Two."

(By Member Herald Staff)

The State theater scored another hit in its vaudeville program for the rest of the week, shown for the first time last night. Headed by the Carnival Capers, six people who sing, dance and play all kinds of instruments, the bill is one of unusual excellence.

Dover and Soltau bring on something new in their snappy dance act. Everything from the classical to the modern is included in their repertoire and a line of funny patter rounds out their act to perfection.

Two clever character actors, Goetz and Duffy, occupy second position on the bill. They are gifted performers who know just when and how to draw a laugh and their act was one long series of outbursts of merriment.

Blackface comedians of merit are O'Neill and Plunkett, who bring a little bit of color—black—to the bill. Their dialect reminds one of the old time minstrels but all their stuff is up to date and screamingly funny.

For the fourth act the State offers the Four Gaertners, a family of expert jugglers who so n to juggle anything less than themselves. They perform amazing tricks of juggling and the subjects of their work are the other members of the troupe.

All in all, a show worth seeing. Richard Dix in "Paradise for Two" rounds out an unusually good bill.

STAGE DIRT.

In banning three of the reputedly immoral plays that have been running there, and in the arrest of actors and producers under the criminal code for giving indecent shows and committing public nuisances, the New York police authorities have started something. What the finish of it will be it is going to be interesting to observe.

This newspaper has very definite ideas about stage productions. It would very much like to see indecency eradicated from play, moving picture, vaudeville and even the lecture platform. That is, it would like to see eradicated what seems to it to be indecent. And that is precisely the point.

Having heeded complaints against these three plays and having arrested and made ready to prosecute a number of persons for giving them, the police have done something that a very great many persons will applaud. But suppose that these prosecutions succeed; what will be the natural consequence? More complaints, of course, against other plays not quite so indecent perhaps but still indecent in the opinion of a somewhat smaller group than found indecency in the three already attacked.

Will the police follow up their action in this case by closing shows of grade 2 in nastiness? And, if so, how about grade 3 and so on? Certainly it will have to be a mawkish play indeed to which nobody objects in a country where there are still some people who believe that every play except Uncle Tom's Cabin and Ten Nights in a Barroom is inherently sinful.

If it were possible to determine, justly, what constitutes "indecent" the whole business of stage censorship would settle itself. But one person's idea of what is fit and what is unfit for stage portrayal is so widely different from the next person's, both being equally opposed to transgressions of their own standards of ethics, that the reformers of the stage are really split into a score of groups, all working at cross-purposes.

Meantime there would seem to be no reason why the vaudeville profession should not, while this furore is on, seize an opportunity to add to its own total of earnings. It is infinitely easier to draw a line here than on the dramatic stage, because the smut that is permitted to creep into vaudeville acts can be spotted, weighed, measured and appraised—it is so stark and barren of excuse. Thousands of people keep away from vaudeville because they are aware that now and then an act appears which, in default of any cleverness, depends on low suggestiveness and dirty "wisecracks" to get a hand from a small fraction of the audience.

If the vaudeville theatres as a whole would stamp this practice out of existence they would simply add substantially to the number of their regular patrons without losing so much as a dime a year in patronage of the other sort—because not even the worst of the morons really go to vaudeville shows to see or hear dirt; they merely giggle when it is thrown in gratuitously.

The "legitimate" theatre has a great problem to face in the matter of indecency. The vaudeville stage has no problem of the sort that it couldn't settle in an hour if it would set itself to the job.

THEY WANT TO KNOW.

There are a great many Republicans in the United States who would not be in the least displeased with the situation created by Nicholas Murray Butler's attack on a "third term" for Calvin Coolidge if it were to result in the President's giving his country and his party a reasonably accurate clue, if not an out and out assertion, as to where he stands in this matter of renomination.

There is a more or less pompous tradition that a President of the United States must not come out and say frankly, "I think I can be of further service to the nation in this job and I should like to have the chance to prove it." This strikes a good many naturally frank persons as sheer flub-dub. The Presidency of the United States is not a sort of mystic priesthood around which it is necessary to wrap an artificial glamor of god-like dignity. There is not the slightest reason why an incumbent who wants to be re-elected should not permit the fact to be known, or why he should hide a determination not to run again.

President Coolidge has a great many admirable qualities. Not the most admirable of them, however, is his habit of secrecy—it is nothing less.

The Republican leaders who have twice honored the President nationally, having the campaign of 1928 to prepare for, naturally feel that they have some rights to information enough on the Presidential attitude to be able to steer by. They feel that the President, by persisting in his silence, is keeping control of the situation for rather too long a period—that it is possible, if he continues in this course, that he may possibly stage an eleventh hour withdrawal from the field and leave the whole party organization up in the air instead of with its plans for such a contingency well on the way to completion.

EDISON.

Thomas A. Edison, eighty years old today, has a new biographer, George S. Bryan, who declares that it is all wrong to call Edison a scientist—that he is an inventor and nothing else and never gave an hour's thought to abstract science in his life. Mr. Bryan should have the thanks of the world for assuring it of something it has long suspected. Now if he will go so far as to explode this superstition—for which the inventor himself was originally responsible—that Edison sleeps but three hours a day, our cup of happiness will be full. We have always believed and believe now that Mr. Edison invented those hours as well as the phonograph and some other things. And made them about two and a half times as long as other folks' hours.

However, he's a wonderful old man. Everybody says so.

BACK TO VERMONT.

President Coolidge is said to be far more likely to spend the coming summer's vacation in Vermont than either in South Dakota, which is making strenuous efforts to get the "summer White House" or any of the other western states that are seeking that honor; and more likely to make his vacation home on the old home farm in Plymouth than anywhere else in Vermont. It is whispered in Washington that the President didn't have as good a time either at Swampscott or in the Adirondacks as he knows how to have in the quiet little hamlet in the Vermont hills.

This might well be true, not only of President Coolidge but of any other person who is little impressed by the ostentation which spoils most of the recognized summer resorts. A "camp" in the Adirondacks containing pretty much every doddad invented to make city apartment life supportable and dolled up with half a million dollars worth of works of art, is likely to get more or less on the nerves of any man who retains a sense of the fitness of things—especially when the "modern improvements" provide against everything but the one really important nuisance of black flies.

Up in Plymouth the President can be reasonably sure that he will not be eaten by insects nor yet have to sleep, as at Swampscott, under the sub-consciousness that bootleggers are operating under his window.

And besides, he has acquired a taste for fishing—and there is more fun to the square inch in the tubby little, near-black brook trout of Vermont's mountain streams, small though they be, than in the bigger but far less numerous fish of the Adirondack lakes. That was all that was needed to make Plymouth the ideal "summer White House"—something to do. And up there, now that he has found his way to the habit, Cousin Cal can go fishing in a just and natural way, with no need to boss him around, and with fish enough in nearby streams to keep him hopping all summer.

SAME CASE.

There comes from Paris the news that the tourist business has gone on the blink—and that is a serious matter for the Parisians. Hotels with two-thirds of their rooms empty; restaurants where a few months ago one had to fight for a table now willing to give a guest one for himself, one for his hat and one for his coat; Montmartre resorts closing their doors—such it is said is the result of a marked defection of American and British travelers to Italy, Switzerland and elsewhere.

The rise in the value of the franc has something to do with it, since the hotel keepers and others who put up the franc-price of their wares as the franc went down have failed to restore the balance now that the franc is accreting in value. But it is highly probable that the anti-foreign demonstrations of those past months are responsible for more of the tourist shortage than is the rising cost of living.

The Parisians who made things unpleasant for English-speaking visitors last year are evidently going to pay for their fun this year.

It does not pay to unpatriarize your country among foreigners—whether it be the Parisians throwing away American trade by abusing American citizens or the United States throwing away Latin trade by bullying Latin states. We fail to see much difference in the economic results.

Old Master's

The splendors of the firmament of time may be eclipsed, but are extinguished not; Like stars to their appointed height they climb; And death is a low mist which cannot blot the brightness it may veil. When a lofty thought Lifts a young heart above its mortal lair, And love and life contend in it, for what Shall be its earthly doom, the dead live there And move like winds of light on dark and stormy air. —Shelley: From "Adonais."

The fiddler crab is so called because the mate has one brightly colored claw of immense size, which when he runs, he waves as if he were playing a violin.

NEW YORK

New York.—Somewhere just upstairs is death!

From the inside of an open stairway a wind-whipped streamer of crepe slaps a black end out into the typical Manhattan sidewalk throng as it bustles along Eighth avenue.

There is not even a door on which to place the crepe. It cannot be hung outside the doorway because of the signs. There is a printer's sign and a poolroom sign and a coffee shop sign one above the other. So the crepe had to be placed just above the first step of the stairway.

Overhead there is a huge electric sign of print shop and poolroom. On one side of the open stairway is a bar-rail restaurant, on the other a dingy coffee shop. On the second floor are the huge windows of the print shop. And on the two top floors are transient rooms.

There are no curtains at the window. None is needed. The dust and dirt of the street have coated them so heavily they no longer are transparent.

And dirt and curtains make little difference. The rooms are transient. No one stays long. One gets a room for 50 cents, perhaps. Those whose heels have been completely run down by the city and whose shoe soles are gone drift in here out of the night.

One such has died. But who cared enough to make the gesture of crepe upon the open stairway?

They are building a subway just outside the doorway. The neck of a giant crane swings over and seems to peer into one of the upper windows as though to solve the death mystery.

Workers at noon hour sit in the doorway and the wind flicks the crepe in their faces. They shove it away without noticing. Hundreds, thousands, now tens of thousands pass and none notices.

Mid-Manhattan cannot stop to notice such things.

Yet somebody knew, or else there would be no crepe; nothing but the Potter's field.

Yet I remember last summer, when the windows of these barren rooms opened and one could see inside, that two old ladies seemed to share one of the dismal, barren rooms.

I remember going to the office window and staring across the street at the muddled bed and bare walls and marveling at the suggestion of complete desolation and loneliness. Rather, said I, would I be alone upon a desert than caught thus mid-millions! I remember one afternoon seeing a scraggly geranium placed in the window to catch dust and dirt.

I wondered what the two old women were doing here. I wonder now if they have lived there all this time through the summer and into the winter—alone, caught by age and poverty in a mid-town, dingy room. Two old women who looked from the distance like kindly grandmas putting about.

Somehow I have the notion that one of them is alone in that room now facing the rest of the winter. Alone now amid millions. And nobody will know. Not even I.

FARRELL SAYS GIANTS LOOK STRONGEST IN THE NATIONAL

McGraw's Club Has Been Strengthened More Than Others; Page, Hornsby, Roush, Le Bourveau, Grimes, Devormer.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
New York, Feb. 11. (United Press).—New York, more than any other team in the National League, has been strengthened for the 1927 pennant race. The weaknesses which caused the surprising collapse of the team last year have been corrected and it is quite likely that the club will start the season as a favorite for the pennant.

As long as there are teams in the league like the champion St. Louis Cardinals, the Cincinnati Reds, the Pittsburgh Pirates and even the Chicago Cubs, those who like the chances of the Giants will not offer odds on none of those teams have plugged up the weak places like John McGraw has.

The Giants will present at least four new faces next season—Rogers Hornsby on second base, Eddie Roush and Bevo La Bourveau in the outfield, Burleigh Grimes in the box and Al Devormer behind the plate.

With the exception of Hornsby and Roush the names of the newcomers are not enough to strike fear or panic on the rival clubs. It may even be said that McGraw didn't strengthen second base, when he traded Frankie Frisch for Hornsby.

On the assumption, however, that Hornsby will not be affected by a weak back and the mental hazard of a business troubles, the team should be stronger around second base than it was last year.

Frisch had a bad season last year. He was not in the best of health and he had some difficulties with McGraw. A change of scenery almost imperative.

Under ordinary circumstances Hornsby ought to hit better than Frisch, as a fielder there is little difference but in the middle of double plays Hornsby is a much better player.

Grimes is no youngster but he is not an old man by any means. He didn't earn his high salary in Brooklyn with the management. Grimes has the reputation of being hard to handle and players find it difficult to get along with him because of an ungovernable temper.

Grimes is much like Carl Mays, of the Reds. When his team falters behind him he hasn't the control to disguise his disgust and players do not add to team morale. McGraw, however, always has liked him for this reason. He likes a hard loser and Grimes is one of the poorest losers in baseball.

Le Bourveau comes back to the major leagues with a great reputation earned in the American Association and McGraw seems to be confident that he will be able to hold a regular berth. Then he has Harper, an experienced player to use in the event that Pep Young is not able to play.

Young has been in very poor health for several years and only recently it was reported from San Antonio that he never would be able to play again. He wrote later to the club, however, insisting that this report had been exaggerated and that he would be ready to play in a few days.

Devormer hasn't a great reputation. He didn't make good in the American League but he may have improved. At any rate, McGraw was desperate for a catcher and Devormer at least has more experience than the youngster McGraw had in 1926.

The Cincinnati Reds, runners up last year, no doubt, will stand on the same team that surprised the experts. Jack Hendricks admits, like any other manager, that he could improve the team but improvements are hard to make and he is satisfied with the squad he has.

There are many critics who thought the Pittsburgh Pirates were the strongest team in the National League last year. It was only internal dissension that caused them to blow up, they ought to play better this season under Donie Bush, a new manager. It's a dead cinch that they'll have to hustle and do what they are told to do with Bush on the job.

Those who rated the Pirates as first last year and many others thought that the St. Louis Cardinals won a fluke victory but they didn't show signs of inferiority when they went through the world's series with a disorganized outfield and lousy pitching.

It is hard to tell what effect the absence of Hornsby and Bill Killifer will have on the team. Bob O'Farrell, who succeeded Hornsby as manager of the club, is certainly a grand player but he has yet to prove himself as a manager. The difficulty that Sam Breadon had in reaching terms with a number of his star players is not good for team spirit but the Cardinals are not the first championship club to go through the same experience.

TILDEN 1928 'PRO', RICHARDS PREDICTS

Can't Keep That Boy Out of 4 Times as Much Money, Says Vincent.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, Feb. 11.—Having thrown a few rocks at the glass houses with range, Vincent Richards varied his program today by violently hurling a bouquet of sweet peas point blank at the American Davis cup team, which he said couldn't and wouldn't lose the international trophy in 1927. Inadvertently however, one of the posies was bound in Morocco or something and it just happened that that was the one that struck William T. Tilden a light haymaker full on the profile.

Upon being revived, it was discovered that William had been charged with confiding to friends that, win, lose or draw in the Davis cup series and national singles, he would turn professional at the end of the 1927 season. The result, Richards declared, would be a national open championship in New York the following season.

No Mastering Love
It is generally understood that Richards doesn't love William for himself alone but this didn't stop the young man from paying his rival a tribute as the man who would write travel insurance against a Davis cup migration to France this season.

"With Tilden in there, the cup will stay in America," was Richards' unqualified statement. "Backed up by Bill Johnston and Dick Williams the is perfectly capable of keeping the cup in America. The French caught all of us on the down grade in the last championships but that won't happen again this year, particularly in the Davis cup series. Tilden and Williams can give the French doubles team every time out of the year. It is the rather formal problems of the tennis even in the singles. Tilden and Johnston can almost guarantee to do at least that much.

Up to Association.
"As for 1928, that will be the tennis association problem, not mine. Tilden will be an out and out professional by that time. Even if he didn't tell friends about his plans in that direction, I would know without asking what he means to do.

"Click-Clank" Fyle will be the promoter of the 1928 "open," Richards said.

COP TAKES HOWARD AND CANADIANS WIN

Ratelle, Montreal Policeman, Saves Day For Dominion In Final Bout; Batalino Wins; Canada 3, Connecticut 2.

By Staff Correspondent
Jimmy Conley, of Canada won from Ray Strong, state amateur bantamweight champion on a foul in the second round.

Bat Batalino, amateur state featherweight champion, of Canada, in the second round.
Harry Smith, of Canada easily won from Ray Hogan, Terryville slugger, 147 pounds.

Ed Elie, of Springfield, knocked out Charley Methot, of Canada in the second round, 160 pounds.
Jean Ratelle, Canada, 138 pounds, decisively outpointed Joe Howard, of Hartford, 162 pounds.

Canada 3, Connecticut 2.
That is the result of last night's international boxing matches at Foot Guard hall in Hartford before a capacity crowd, which included many Manchester fans. Long before the first bout started, ticket sale was started. It was the best show of the season in Hartford. Eleven bouts were staged resulting in six decision affairs, three knockouts and two defeats by fouling.

But Wins Easily
While the score stands 3 to 2 in Canada's favor, Connecticut, in reality, scored but one victory but that was a mighty sweet one. Bat Batalino gave Teddy Delullo a beautiful lacing before the boy from across the border crumpled. The Canadian was floored twice in the first for long counts and it was soon apparent that the undefeated Bat was to again emerge the winner. Hartford fans, however, do not fully appreciate Bat. They would have rather seen any other Connecticut man win than he.

Ed Elie, who scored the only other Connecticut victory, hails from Springfield. It was his first fight but he has trained for a long time under Myer Cohen. Ray Hogan surely met his match in Harry Smith. The Canadian broke through Hogan's defense like water through a sieve Hogan was groggy throughout the battle but gamely stuck to the finish. Ray Strong would probably have lost the decision to Jimmy Conley but he did not intentionally foul his opponent. However, after he had been warned and hit low again, it was no more than right to disqualify him. It was plain that Strong was much grieved over his mistakes. In the final and deciding bout, Jean Ratelle, the Montreal policeman, gave Joe Howard a nice lacing but had an eight pound advantage. Howard fought gamely all the way and came back strong after being floored three in the opener.

CHARGE FAKING IN ROSY-GRAHAM PACT

"Secret Contract" Must Be Explained by Tex Rickard and the Rest.

New York, Feb. 11.—Tex Rickard, Jess McMahon, his matchmaker, and Charley Phil Rosenberg and Bushey Graham, principals in the recent synthetic bantamweight championship match, will be called on the carpet at the boxing commission today to answer charges that they were parties to a violation of the boxing code by drafting two sets of contracts for the match. It is alleged by Bill Parr, Graham's manager, that his boxer got only five per cent of the purse instead of the challenger's 12 1-2 per cent called for in the official contract.

Gene Tunney has to do five feats a day on his vaudeville tour. . . . It is more acute than the average fighter does in a year.

Henry Ford turned down a billion-dollar offer for his business. . . . Probably he feels Tex Rickard will come along pretty soon and offer him more.

Whether Mary K. Browne is a better player now than Helen Willis, as the experts are saying, we don't know. . . . But she is a better business player.

Mr. Walter Hagen expresses a desire to go to Africa to hunt big game. . . . Causing us to suspect that he has a new pair of dice.

It would be much better, so Mr. O'Goofy says, if some people would use their heads instead of their brains.

Former Holy Cross Star To Get Another Tryout

Sometimes they are plucked for the majors before they are ready. Which probably is the case with Arnold John Stutz, recently drafted by the Brooklyn Superbas. It will be his fourth big league trial.

Stutz, it will be recalled, was a 21-year-old phenom with the New York Giants in the spring of 1919. With Holy Cross he attracted the attention of all of the major league scouts. As frequently is the case, the Giants put out the biggest bonus and Stutz became a member of McGraw's champions.

But McGraw is a manager who desires immediate delivery. Stutz was not yet ripe for the big show, as a brief trial in the spring of 1920 convinced McGraw that the Holy Cross youngster was several years away.

When the waiver signal was sent out on the collegian, the Red Sox claimed him, but the American Leaguers reached the same decision as McGraw, not ready, so the idol of Holy Cross was dropped to the minors.

Stutz was placed with Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast League. He played in 101 games in 1920. The following season he finished with an average of .310 for 153 games and stole 52 bases. He was again recommended as big league material.

The Cubs paid the price for Stutz. He had three years of it in the National League but his light hitting again relegated him to the minors.

Another trip to Los Angeles for John Arnold—two more years and now he returns to the Brooklyn Superbas via draft. Stutz has drawn high praise from Manager Krus, who says:

"He's the equal of Tris Speaker as an outfielder, I can say no more."

There is a growing belief that the book called "The Man Nobody Knows" was inspired by Mike McTigue.

Jack Dempsey has formally launched his new comeback. . . . It is said he is sparring with a mysterious mosquito and punching the bag with a poisonous punch.

Just the same, we do not intend to take Mr. Dempsey's comeback seriously until we learn that he has out-sprinted a battalion of process servers in a 10-mile road work test.

Walter Johnson is the author of a lengthy baseball article in which he expresses the semi-official belief that a fellow like Speaker will strengthen the Washington outfield. . . . The dern old jester!

FITCHBURG WILL NOT DEFEND NATIONAL TITLE THIS SEASON

Billy Evans Says

National Interscholastic Champions, Who Play Here March 4, Abandon Trip to Chicago as "Over-Emphasis" in Athletics.

DISSATISFIED FANS.
Every major league club owner has designs on the pennant in his league. Yet, the winning of a championship, the world series in particular, is baseball's greatest troublemaker.

The first reaction is felt among the fans, after the magnate has vainly tried to satisfy 200,000 who have applied for tickets, when his ball park will seat, say only 40,000.

There never was a world series played that didn't leave a trail of discontent and dissatisfaction among the fans of the city winning the right to play in the baseball classic.

Already echoes of last season are proving that the experience of President Samuel Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals is no exception to the rule.

Salary Grievances.
The second cause for grievance centers among the players.

When it comes to signing up after playing on a team that has won a world championship, the athletes, in some cases, get an exaggerated opinion of their worth.

Either that condition exists or else the magnate is inclined to be tight with the cash on hand. Ball players no matter how much they are getting, will always refer to the magnates as misers.

It is only natural, that a player after he has helped win a pennant and a world series, should be of the opinion that his services are worth more money. He then proceeds to star loose from the magnate as much as he possibly can before signing.

Big Money Series.
The first series in which real big money was taken in at the New York Giants and the Boston Red Sox.

In that series, 250,000 people paid $500,000 to see the two clubs battle for eight games, the Red Sox finally winning on the now famous Snodgrass muff of a fly ball.

Jimmy McAleer, the man who gave me my start in baseball, was president of the Boston Red Sox that season. As I recall it, the annual payroll of the club that year was $90,000, mighty big in those days, but a mere nothing now.

Jimmy once told me that after winning the 1912 series it cost him close to $200,000 to sign the boys up for 1913.

Woe of Cardinals.
Since that time the receipts of the world series have constantly increased and also the salaries.

With the training season about a month away the St. Louis Cardinals have only signed about half of the regular players.

In a year that has been free from holdout, talk, it is learned that five of the Cards, Alexander, Rhem, Haines, Bell and Thevenou, are far from signed.

These five stars are the backbone of the club and must be satisfied in some manner if the Cardinals are to repeat.

Amant says Sam Breadon, Cardinal president, is of the belief that winning a world series makes trouble for the magnate.

Algerian natives strengthen and fatten the humps on their camels by feeding them the stones of dates.

(Special to The Herald)
Fitchburg, Mass., Feb. 11.—When the schoolboy basketball teams from all sections of the country gather in Chicago next month for the national interscholastic championship tournament, Fitchburg High, winner of last year's meeting will not be represented, it was stated today.

The crusade against "over-emphasis" in athletics has reached this city, famed for its athletic teams and the stars which it has contributed to college teams.

The athletic council, which has direct control of the athletic policy of the school has voted against participation in the national tourney this year. The council is composed of members of the faculty, school committee, coaching staff and several citizens of unofficial capacity.

The action of the Fitchburg authorities in declining an invitation to send the local team to the tourney has a far-reaching effect on high school sports in the opinion of many. It is given an added significance when it is revealed that the athletic council considered the position of sports in the school and college of today.

It is the contention of the athletic council that to allow the team to go to Chicago would seriously disrupt the school work of the boys. In supporting this action Principal Woodbury, also a member of the athletic council, declares that, "education is the fundamental reason the high school was established for and not basketball."

School heads and athletic coaches throughout this state are awaiting with interest the effect the Fitchburg decision will have upon other schools as regards long trips by high school teams. Many ventures so far as to predict that this initial step by the Fitchburg officials will be so far-reaching as to start a general movement in the country in opposition to long trips. Should such be the result, tournaments such as that conducted in Chicago would eventually lack a representation of the entire country.

Who led the American League in batting last season, and what was his average? Where did Babe Ruth finish?—E. H. Heinke manages to lead with an average of .377 in 1926 games. Babe Ruth was second with a mark of .372 in 152 games.

What pitcher lost the most games in the American League last season? Who won the most games?—W. L. Gaston, right-handed pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, lost the most games, 18. George Uhle of Cleveland won the most, 27.

Your Income Tax

Business property kept in repair may be the subject of a depreciation allowance. The allowance for depreciation is intended to cover the estimated lessening in value of the original property, due to the wear and tear, decay, etc., which in time will require the abandonment or replacement of the property, in spite of ordinary current repairs. The cost of incidental repairs, which neither materially add to the value of the property nor appreciably prolong its life, may be deducted as a business expense, provided the plant or property account is not increased by the amount of such expenditures.

If, however, the repairs are of such kind as to make good the depreciation, for example, a new floor or a new roof, the cost is not deductible. The amount expended by a taxpayer for improvements, replacements, or renewals of a permanent nature is a capital expenditure, and may not be deducted from his gross income for such taxable year. The amount so expended should be charged directly to the property account or to a depreciation reserve account, according to how depreciation charges are treated in the taxpayer's books of account. A pro rata portion thereof may be deducted as depreciation each year of the life of such improvements.

Deductions for depreciation must be made as a separate item of the return, and must be explained by showing separately each class of property, its cost (fair market value as of March 1, 1913, if acquired prior to that date), depreciation charged off for the taxable year, and total depreciation charged off for all taxable years.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE Death strikes GARRETT FOLSOM while bathing at Ocean Town, N. J. After being perfunctorily examined by a doctor, the body is brought to the Hotel Majanusa, where an inquiry is started.

Carmelita came forward, looking so beautiful that many present gave an involuntary gasp of admiration.

THE coroner glared at her, but as she, of course, had a right to engage a private detective if she chose, he made no response to her irritating speech. "I would like to hear from those who were in conversation with Mr. Folsom just before he went into the ocean," said Hubbard. "Mr. Neville, you were in his party?"

"villain and shall see to it that justice is done." "You will hold those papers and letters subject to the investigation of the police, madam. We will send our detectives to examine them shortly." "You may, sir. No one will be more glad than I if you can find any hint of a way to look for light on the matter."

Good Nature and Good Health

DANGER AWAITS WOMAN WHO DIETS TOO FAST By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. The health of American women undoubtedly is suffering from the craze for "dieting," and women undoubtedly are dieting to an extreme to reduce their weight and size within the bounds of what they consider the current mode.

Poor Sports

Home Page Editorials By Olive Roberts Barton Are women short sports? Mrs. Mollie Mallory, former national tennis champion, says they are. She says more than that. "Women are nasty, jealous creatures," is her ultimatum. "Their natures are bound to come out. They will not or cannot mask their feelings and so tennis is not suited to the feminine temperament."

COMMITTEE PLANS BIGGEST AUTO SHOW

National Guardsmen and Dealers Combine to Give the Best One Yet.

Manchester's Own Automobile Show, the second to be staged in this Silk Town will be featured this year at the State Armory on Main street for three nights, March 10, 11 and 12, and the committee in charge, composed of three representatives of the Manchester automobile sales agencies and three representatives of the Manchester units of the Connecticut National Guard units are holding frequent meetings to plan for putting over the biggest and best automobile show ever held in this Silk Town.

Local Show Throughout This year, however, the exhibition is to be an entirely local one. Captain Herbert H. Bissell, representing the National Guard units has been selected as manager of the show. The three representatives of the local automobile agencies are: Harding A. Stephen, of the Dodge Agency; George Betts, of the Manchester-Hudson-Essex Agency; and James Stevenson of the Oakland and Pontiac Sales Agency.

The representatives of the local National Guard units are: Captain William Dexter, of the Howitzer company; Lieutenant Russell B. Hathaway, of the Howitzer company; and Lieutenant Thomas J. Smith, of Company G; all of the 68th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard.

Profits to Companies The profits to this show are to be given to both local National Guard units, to assist in building up their respective companies, and to the local dealers being satisfied with the opportunity to show their wares under auspices of local people rather than pay the money to some outside concern to run a show that would rebound no further to their financial or material benefit than a program that would add something to the funds of the local National Guard units and incidentally bring the same, if not better, results as last year's show, to their own standing.

Three Nights Show As the dates above indicate, the exhibition is to extend over three nights and the local dealers promise to put their best wares on exhibition. Space will be allotted also to local firms who carry automobile accessories and the show will open at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and continue until midnight.

Music, entertainment and other features will enliven the exhibition and Captain Bissell is busy right now lining up a program that will be of interest and amusement to all who attend.

Last year's show went over big in spite of the weather. It is planned to put this year's show over even "bigger," and if Manchester workers are what Manchester expects, this year's automobile show will prove a mark at which future generations may shoot.

Automobile Exhibitors To date 15 local automobile dealers have been lined up to exhibit at the big exposition and they are as follows:

The Manchester Hudson-Essex, George L. Betts; the Pontiac-Oakland Agency, James Stevenson; The Dodge Agency, Harding A. Stephen; Madden Brothers, The Nash Agency; The Studebaker Agency, Frank Conkey; The Picket Motor Sales, Willis Knight and Overland; The Paige and Jewett Agency; Henry Schaller; The South Manchester Garage, Mr. Gustafson; Crawford Auto Supply, Oldsmobile cars; W. R. Tinker, Jr., Chevrolet and Hupmobile sales; The Manchester Motor Sales company, Ford cars and Smith Garage, carrying the Chrysler and Buick agencies.

Added to these will be numerous dealers in accessories so the Armory floor and the available rooms adjacent will be loaded with products representing the last word in the automobile

WAPPING

The Pleasant Valley club will hold a public whist this (Friday) evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Skinner.

Mrs. George A. Frink and son Harry Frink, have both been sick at their homes with an attack of the grip.

Edgar J. Stoughton has recently purchased a new Whipper car. A. C. Rosa who has been a patient at the Hartford hospital for several days returned to his home at Pleasant Valley on Monday evening.

Howard Burser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Burger is confined to his home here with swollen tonsils. The recent damp weather was certainly welcomed by the tobacco growers. All the tobacco was taken down and stripped, ready for sorting. Through Pleasant Valley, several sales are reported and for good prices.

Ralph Collins and John W. Graham are on the committee of arrangements for a dance to be given this evening at the Center school hall.

HAM FOR COOLIDGE Washington—Sausage has almost disappeared from the White House breakfast menu. Hot sausage and steaming wheat cakes were making the president a trifle flabby, physicians decided, so ham has been substituted for sausage on the menu on most days.

More than one billion dollars was spent on roads in the United States during 1926.

HEALS THE DEAF New York—George Abbott, 19, handed out cards, stating that he was deaf and dumb and asking alms. But Detective Capt. Torrey was suspicious. Accordingly the detective bought a firecracker and placed it beneath the youth's chair as he was being questioned in police headquarters. George leaped from the chair with a yell. Then he admitted he was a faker.

REBELS ARE HANGED Belgrade—An Albanian correspondent of the newspaper Vreme's report that 30 persons had been hanged publicly there for participation in the latest Albanian revolt. Twelve hundred have been arrested and some of them are expected to be sentenced to death.

LILLIAN GISH SCORES IN "SCARLET LETTER"

Big Production Being Brought To State Sunday, Monday, Tuesday—No Price Increase.

Nathaniel Hawthorne must have unconsciously written "The Scarlet Letter" especially for Lillian Gish. No other moving picture actress could have done such justice to the theme of this film which comes to the State on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Miss Gish's work is real art. She injects such an atmosphere into this picture that it seems she is the real Hester Prynne.

Powerful Role Miss Gish plays the role of the ill-fated "Hester Prynne," one of the most tragic and still most powerful figures in literature. Lars Hanson, the famous Swedish green star, makes his American debut as "Arthur Dimmesdale," her clergyman lover. An interesting member of the cast is Henry B. Walthall, who played her lover in "Birth of a Nation," when he achieved fame as "The Little Colonel," and who is playing with her for the first time since in this new production.

Karl Dane, of "Big Parade" fame, William H. Tooker, Marcelle Corday, the famous French stage star, Jules Cowles, Joyce Coad, Mary Hawes, James A. Marcus and other players of note appear.

Tonight and tomorrow the State will continue its presentation of Richard Dix in "Paradise for Two" with five supreme acts of the best vaudeville ever seen here.

There will be no increase of prices during the showing of "The Scarlet Letter."

For the first time in 35 years the number of pensioners on the government rolls declined below the half million mark during October, 1926.

INTELLIGENCE TESTS BIBLE QUIZ

Students of the Bible who are familiar with the life of Elisha should have no difficulty answering the first question. The correct answers to the questions appear on another page: 1—What incident in Biblical history is illustrated in the accompanying picture? 2—How was King Herod killed? 3—How many days was Saul blind before he was baptized? 4—Who was the king that made Esther queen? 5—Who reproved Jehoshaphat? 6—Who cared for Jesus' mother after His crucifixion? 7—Why did Michal despise David? 8—Were Elizabeth and Virgin Mary related? 9—Who planned the death of John the Baptist? 10—Who was the father of Ephraim? A wife may be unhappy when her husband is drunk, but a husband is always unhappy.

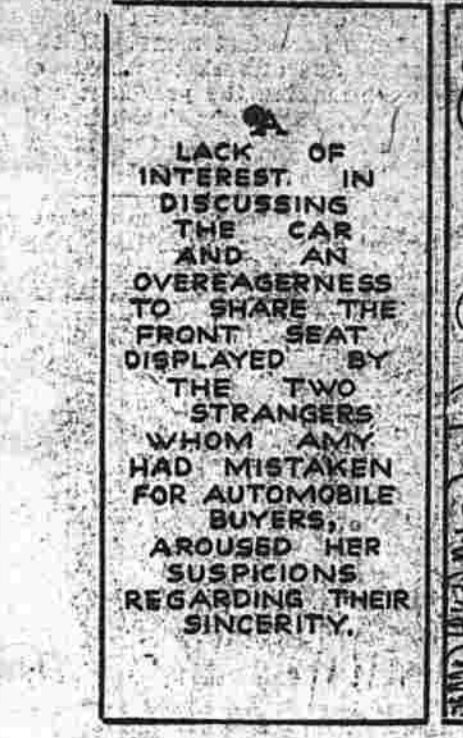

SENSE and NONSENSE

Most investments look good until you try to borrow some money on them. The average politician's idea of relieving the farmer is to have more pickpockets at County Fairs. "Two halves make a hole," said the man, as he joined a life-saver mint together. "Do you take lodgers?" "Yes. What lodge do you belong to?" TRUE LOVE NEEDS NO VALENTINE His wife loves him yet she don't care if he goes around with other women. You see, he owns a merry-go-round. TRUTHS THAT WASHINGTON DIDN'T SAY Many a bad husband beats a good wife. Don't be impatient—even the flagpole has to wait its turn. Opportunities still lie on every hand—so do a lot of people. To get rid of a crowd—take up a collection. Even the tea kettle in hot water up to its neck continues to sing. Honestly, like honest women in street cars, stands up longest. Yesterday's preparation accounts for today's luck. Few people are really important—many act that way. A humbug "bite" is slow to heal. Bankers know a lot of "birds" by their notes. Revenge promises much but gets little. Many have a "kick" coming who never get it. Many a fellow whom you think is square is a rounder. A lie is legless but it travels fast. Girls will be girls—so will a lot of old women. Pearls worn by others are always imitations. Face powder never tastes as good as it smells. A smile has more than its face value. No beaten paths lead to success.

TRUTHS THAT WASHINGTON DIDN'T SAY

THE HIKERS We moved in last November, And distinctly I remember 'Twas the steam heat that she she wanted And she said She was crazy in addition For a dining room in mission And the den was simply perfect, Being red. Now she's weary of the mission Dining room. It's her ambition To serve ham and eggs in one with paneled walls; And she wanted a bedroom pink, And a wider kitchen sink, And some blue and yellow paper in the halls. Every autumn, every spring, Just like birds we're on the wing. For a change in decorations We go hiking; And I'll gamble when she dies That her mansion in the skies Won't be furnished just exactly To her liking.

THE TINYMITES BY HAL COCHRAN

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

The alligator traveled slow, but the Tinies on to go. 'Twas kept very funny as they all tore down the beach. The Tinies all were scared to death. The running made them short of breath, but even so, they managed to keep safely out of reach. Said Scouty, "Say, what shall we do?" In just a moment I'll be through. I cannot keep this pace up for I'm growing very weak." But not a Tiny answered him. They held their breath to keep in trim, or maybe not another one had strength enough to speak. Wee Clowny dashed up to the lead by putting on a bit more speed. He leaped for the beach line where he thought the sand was sound. And then he found how wrong he was. The race was harder now, because the sand was rather mushy and much softer than the ground. Course Clowny saw that he was wrong. His little feet would drag along, and now the alligator seemed much closer than before. And so he hurried back again, up near a clump of trees and then he panted to the others, "Gee, I just can't run much more." "Hurrah!" said Cobby, full of glee. "I'll save you all, just follow me." And in a moment he had reached a palm tree, near at hand. "We'll shimmy up this tree," he said. "I guess we're far enough ahead." And then the bunch all scrambled up the trunk to beat the band. As soon as they had left the ground, a cocoon or two was found and Clowny pulled one loose and said, "I hope my aim is right." He hurled it down, and heard a smack. It hit the alligator's back, and then the lanky creeping thing just crept right out of sight. (The Tinymites have fun with an orestch in the next story).

life. Another thing is that much truth is expressed through humor. Then humor is a powerful force in overcoming evil. Finally, humor relieves the strain in life.

"Every man has a right to expect these things—that he will be agreeable, that he will render service, and that he will possess joy. Now the art of life is to find your place in life; the paradox of life to increase your place by diminishing it; the secret of life is never to make the blunder of taking yourself too seriously for a Kipling says: 'There are others.'"

Humorist Introduced.

Wallace M. Bayliss, the humorist, was the other speaker. His subject, as announced, was "Advice to the Lovelorn," but before the speaker concluded he had touched on a score of subjects and toward the end his address assumed a serious tone. In this regard he said that the average business man did not take enough interest in his community or family life to sit down once in a while to write his opinion to the editor of his local newspaper or to his Congressman. "They are both, he said, 'anxious to please the public.'"

Praises Herald.

"I understand that your daily newspaper here, refused to publish the salacious details of the 'Peaches-Browning' case. Did any of you write to the editor to thank him from keeping those details from being read by your sons and daughters in your homes? Not one, I wager. If only 20 of you men would write to your Congressman complaining of this or that he would say: 'If 20 men are interested enough to write from Manchester the whole town is wrought up about it and I must do something' for Congressmen and editors know that even if 20 write letters the feeling is widespread. They know this because so few so very few, ever think of writing their opinion."

Recited Verse.

Mr. Bayliss had the diners chuckling from the beginning of his discourse. He started with reciting some of his own verse, doggerel on comic subjects. Then he began to read alleged advice to the lovelorn, questions and answers that started a tidal wave of merriment. As an example:

Some Advice.

"Dear Editor: I am engaged to a widow. A few days after our engagement I discovered that she had a wooden leg. Shall I break it off?" The answer: "No. When you are married and your wife gets rheumatism you will only have one leg to rub."

The speaker then took up characteristics of the various nationalities. Speaking of the Scotch he said he knew a Scotsman who was from Aberdeen and who was how-legged. "That was nothing unusual" remarked Bayliss, "all of the Scotsmen of Aberdeen are how-legged from climbing up lamp-posts to light their pipes."

Of the Irish he said that a youth just over, wishing to reach a certain street in Waterbury, asked the conductor what car it was he was riding on. "A trolley car, you fool," said the conductor. "Oh," answered the Irish lad, "I thought it was a music box because I see there is a Harp on each end."

Switching from the ridiculous to the serious, Mr. Bayliss then launched into a straight from the shoulder talk to business men. He even took a stab at the fight between the Modernists and the Fundamentalists. Here is how he explained their differences:

One says 'There ain't no hell' and the other says 'The hell there ain't'.

He said that the business man should let the theologian and one of them gave her impression of "Black Bottom." The fellows sang some pretty tunes, and one of them acted as sort of master of ceremonies. His youthfulness made the "master" part of that title appropriate. The sketch received generous applause.

Entertainment

Proceeding the speeches a vaudeville sketch presented by the State theater management kept the merriment at the high pace it started with. "Carnival Capers" was the name of the act and there were six entertainers, three fellows and three girls. The fellows played ukuleles, guitars, and home made dishpan instruments while the girls danced. Acrobatic dancing was the special forte of the girls and one of them gave her impression of "Black Bottom." The fellows sang some pretty tunes, and one of them acted as sort of master of ceremonies. His youthfulness made the "master" part of that title appropriate. The sketch received generous applause.

Quartet Pleases

Throughout the dinner the Manchester quartet rendered delightful music, and also led in the ensemble singing. The quartet's music was thoroughly enjoyed. Several "negro spirituals" were on their program and these seemed to please the diners most.

Edward F. Taylor, tenor of the quartet, started things during the dinner when he announced a singing contest. He reeled off the names of several songs assigned them to tables and then asked the groups to sing their songs all at the same time. He awarded a prize but nobody agreed with his decision.

Orchestra Music

Al Behrend's Paramount orchestra played the martial music while the diners were gathering and locating their tables. This orchestra also played for the singing and entertained with lively numbers throughout the evening.

The Herald, accused oftentimes, and praised as many times more as a "wet" proponent, tried to live up to its reputation by employing a private liquor valet. President Cheney, however, saved the group at the Herald's table from losing its enviable reputation when he announced that the newspapermen were really only drinking cold tea for their own amusement.

Those Drinks

Just after the fruit cocktail was served "Pete" Happenay all togged out in a white coat and apron came into the hall carrying a tray with two suspicious looking bottles. He went to the newspapermen, and thereon came glances, both of envy and of scorn. On came the bottles, all shapes and varieties, but the newspapermen remained in the best of condition proving that President Cheney guessed pretty nearly right, only the "cold tea" was merely water and burned sugar.

During the evening Frank Cheney, Jr., came to the Herald table and served notice that he was acting as E. L. G. Hohenthal's deputy while Manchester's one prohibitionist was in Europe. John Bissell switched a bottle of the amber colored fluid, but one small convinced John that the steal wasn't worth much. Before the evening was over the bottle found its way to the head table and reposed between the plates of Father Reidy and Rev. McLaughlin.

The Waitresses

Just to prove that the Cheney mills cannot lay claim to having all the pretty girls in Manchester, a group of 30 girl employees of Main street merchants served the food. It is reported that some of them asked "How many yards of soup did you say you wanted?" Still another served an extra large portion of broiled chicken to Mel Stacy and said "That's a perfect fit, my dear."

The quill pens presented by the Carlyle Johnson Company found their way to the girls and during the evening the young ladies stuck the feathers in their hair and looked for all the world like a tribe of pretty Indian maidens.

Table Decorations

For table decorations the committee made use of some of the souvenirs. The Herald's megaphones were placed in front of each plate, the napkins were placed in the mouth of the megaphone, and then the quill pens and carnations were placed in the napkin, making a very pretty effect. A pretty red apple from the Cowles fruit farm added to the table decorations.

The Herald's megaphones were used to good advantage by the quartet, and by the song leaders. When the different tables were singing in the contest they belloved through the 'phones making plenty of noise.

Bag O' Tricks

Scott Simon's bag of tricks was placed under each chair and before the dinner was over the bags had been opened and all kinds of souvenirs poured forth. About 75 individual souvenirs were in each bag, ranging from a gas toaster to matches and pencils. There were too many to list, but all were either fun-makers or useful gifts. The W. G. Glenney Company gave a 9 by 12 Neponset rug to the person holding the lucky ticket. Charles Stave with ticket number 23 took the prize.

Horace B. Cheney, Jim McCay, Phil Cheney and John Bissell couldn't resist the temptation to play setback when somebody produced a pack of cards. They played right through all the courses until the entertainment and speaking was started. Of course H. B. Cheney was a setback shark, was the winner.

Watchful Waiting

Arthur Hultman was standing up looking around the hall most of the evening. Everybody thought he was waiting for somebody to show up, but it was learned afterward he was merely watching to give the signal to the waitresses when all were through their courses.

Oliver P. Toop seemed to be doing a lot of waving to somebody at the other end of the hall. He, too, was watching the waitresses to develop later, but it might be added that Oliver and Arthur were not the only ones who were watching the waitresses.

Apple a Day

Evidently Manchester was in a healthy condition last night because most of the doctors were there. They were at a big table right near the door. Evidently they wanted to be near the doors in case the diners took to throwing the apples at them to keep 'em away.

Because of the early start the business men got on the chicken the dinner and speaking was ended by 10:45. The rest of the evening was spent, without a doubt, at home showing friend wife the "bag of tricks."

Theater Tickets

Chairman Scott H. Simon of the Chamber of Commerce novelty committee advises that each guest at the Chamber of Commerce banquet will find in his bag of souvenirs a ticket to the State Theater. As each ticket is in a small envelope, there is possibility that it may be overlooked. Chairman Simon intended to have an announcement to this effect made at the banquet, but inadvertently the matter was overlooked.

BOOSEY RESIDENTS SEEK NAME CHANGE FOR TOWN

Boosey, Eng. (United Press).
—Change in usage of names has started a campaign on the part of some citizens of Boosey to alter its name.
Those, however, who are opposed to changing the name of the town point out that under former usage the designation had no connection with John Barleycorn, but is old-English for catfish. Several attempts have been made to present the matter formally to the local government body, but each has been unsuccessful.
Opponents of the change to another name point to other towns bearing similar names.
The town of Beer in the West country did not derive its name from the beverage, but is an old form of "beer" meaning wood, they contend. Hence Conybeer means "the man whose wood is full of rabbits."

CANCER INCREASE WORRIES MEDICS; HUNT NEW CURES

Fear of the Disease Is Greater Danger Than the Trouble Itself.

London.—Cancer is definitely on the increase, but it can be cured.
There is only one disease worse than cancer, and that is the fear of cancer. Knowledge will bring freedom from that fear.

With these remarks Sir Berkeley
Moylham, president of the Royal College of Surgeons, and one of England's greatest cancer experts, opened the first of a series of public lectures on the fundamental causes and treatment of cancer.

The series are noteworthy for the fact that this is the first time in the history of the English medical profession that the public has been taken into its confidence.

"If the law of averages holds good," continued Sir Berkeley,
"one hundred people in this hall today will die of cancer." A statement which caused little nervous ripples of laughter to run round the lecture hall.

"The truth is," continued Sir Berkeley, "that in this country alone one person of every seven dies before the age of thirty of cancer; fifty thousand people die yearly in England and Wales, and it has been estimated that 500,000 lives are annually lost in the civilized countries of the world from this disease.

"Cancerous bones, dating from 3,500 years before Christ, have been taken from tombs near the Pyramids; cancer was described more than twenty centuries ago by Hippocrates, the Father of Medicine, and it has never since ceased taking its daily toll of lives. It is the Captain of the Men of Death, the King of Terror to the world.

"If the medical profession can help the public to learn that it is not cancer, but ignorance with regard to cancer, that is in part responsible for their horror of it; and if we can assure the public that cancer, under certain conditions, is capable of complete removal, shall we not be able to diminish or even banish fear?"

"Cancer mortality is increasing despite the fact that more people than ever are being cured of the disease. It may surprise many to hear that cancer can be cured; that the patient can be relieved forever from the disease. It is true.

"The operations practiced today are more frequent, of greater extend, and of greater safety, and are attended by a larger measure of permanent relief from the disease than was the case twenty years ago.

"Unhappily, it is not infrequent for delay to be encouraged by the wasteful trial of other methods.
The 'cancer cure' is still a curse in the land, and the most potent obstacle to its eradication is shown by people who should know better.

"It is said that if we 'talk cancer' we shall make people 'think cancer.' We hope that is true, for cancer is an unforgiving enemy, and once he has settled on his victim he never for one minute ceases to grow. The sooner you confront your foe the better for you and the worse for him.

"Ignorance is a part of fear, but fear does not contribute to the incidence of cancer. Fear should be the fear of delay, the fear lest a simple disease should become cancerous.

"There does not appear to be any hereditary predisposition to cancer, but we can say that it is not caused by any special foods or absence of special foods. The finest advice we can give you is: 'Don't delay; don't conceal; be medically examined if you have the least suspicion that anything is wrong with you.'"

A champion sneak thief in Germany recently demonstrated his clim to the title by sneaking into prison two hours after his release and stealing his picture from the rogue's gallery.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

SHOW INCREASE

State Department Says Carelessness Was Cause of Most of Them.

Failure of motor vehicle operators to grant right of way to other vehicles as required by the rules of the road, was responsible for 3,644 accidents in Connecticut during the year 1926, it is shown by a tabulation completed at the state motor vehicle department.
This was an increase of 179 accidents in the state attributed to that cause, over the record for 1925.

A year ago, the department's records showed an improvement in this situation, revealing that there had been about one hundred less accidents from that cause in 1925.

than there had been in 1924.

There were 6,240 accidents in Connecticut last year attributed to inattention of motor vehicle operators, this being an increase of 314 accidents charged up to that cause out of a total of 17,274 for which operators were blamed. Three hundred and ninety-three operators got into accidents because they were intoxicated, 745 because they operated too fast for conditions, 128 cut in, 40 passed a standing trolley, 18 passed on curves, 19 passed on a hill, 38 passed on the wrong side of a vehicle, two tried to beat a railroad train, 85 cut corners, 18 passed at intersections, 52 improperly parked, 4 operated too slowly for conditions, 529 followed vehicles too closely, 452 failed to signal, 105 failed to set brakes, 20 cranked their cars in gear, 87 became confused, 2,339
skidded, 906 cut in carelessly, 429 were inexperienced and 1,009 operated on the wrong side of the road.

In the general movement in India to abandon centuries-old custom of hoarding gold, an Arab recently converted his savings into $350,000 worth of government securities.

Top-Notch Banker, Broke Beats Way Back As Baker

Borger, Tex.—Two years ago
Asa E. Ramsey was worth half a million.

Six months ago he was flat broke.
Today, beating back, he is accumulating a new fortune.

Ramsey, 53, former governor of the Tenth District Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, now is proprietor of a modest bakery here.

Until early this year his life story was like that of many other successful financiers.

Began at the Bottom
From a lowly position in a Sulphur Springs, Tex., bank, he climbed steadily until he became cashier of the National Bank of Commerce, Paris Valley, Okla.; president of the Stratton Trust Company, Purcell, Okla.; cashier of the First National Bank, Muskogee, Okla.;
president of the Oklahoma Bankers' Association, and vice president of the Drovers National Bank, Kansas City, Mo.

Then he became governor of the federal reserve bank, and one of the west's financial leaders.

Then he resigned to become president of a leading bank of Tulsa, Okla. The bank's capital was increased and apparently there was a bright future before it; then abruptly, it fell into difficulties.

It became necessary to produce half a million dollars, overnight, to save the bank.

Without hesitating, Ramsey put up his private fortune. He saved the bank; but he left himself virtually penniless.

That was early this year, Borger,
a typical western boom town, had just come into being here in the Texas Panhandle, where an oil boom of huge proportions was on.
Borger was reputed the country's wickedest city—but also the city where fortunes might easily be made. Ramsey came to Borger, where 10,000 people were making a city out of a lonely prairie waste.

Many were making fortunes in Borger. But to do so one had to have either capital or luck. Ramsey had neither. So he set to work at the bottom.

In a little shack, less than 20 feet frontage on a dusty business street, he started his bakery. He did most of the work himself, and Mrs. Ramsey put on an apron and helped him.

Business improved. Soon Mrs.
Ramsey did not need to help, as there was enough money to hire workers. Now Ramsey, too, has ceased manual labor and confines himself to directing the enterprise.

Sales Are Mounting
The shop's sales total about $400
a day, and are rising steadily.

Ramsey's return to financial stability, incidentally, has been accompanied by a taming process for the town of Borger. No longer is this the country's wickedest town.

Large, gambling and fighting have largely ceased; Borger is notable only for its prosperity.

Ramsey was offered the post of mayor, but was too busy to accept.
He has, however, let his associates elect him president of the Chamber of Commerce.

His friends see him well on the

H. S. PLAYS TONIGHT AGAINST "OLD WILLIE"

Coach Clarke to Take His Hoopsters to Do Battle With Windham High.

Coach W. J. Clarke will take his South Manchester High school basketball team to Willimantic tonight to battle with the Windham High in the first of the annual two-game series. The game will be played at the state armory in Willimantic.
Only the High school first team will make the trip as the second team is not scheduled to play.
Coach Clarke expects a victory but not until after a hard battle. The boys will go to Willimantic in touring the state.

Manchester's next home game will be on Friday evening of next week with the undefeated Bristol High school here. Bristol leads the central Connecticut inter-scholastic league and Manchester is second.

Victory for the local school will go a long way toward giving Manchester the pennant.

Others go upstream for the summer and down to the river mouth for the winter.
