

MELLON O. K.'s $75,000 INCREASE FOR LOCAL P. O.

Raises Original Recommendation Made in Error—Is Part of a "Dovetail" Building Plan.

An increase of $75,000 in the government appropriation for a federal building here is recommended by Congress in a program presented by the Treasury and Postoffice departments on Saturday. The original recommendation was for $75,000, and was made when P. Davis Oakey was congressman from this district. The reason the sum was so low was because the government used the figures relating to the business transacted in the Manchester postoffice for estimating the right appropriation. The other postoffices in town were not considered.

This increase of $75,000 is recommended by Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon in a "dovetail" program. The list totals $100,000,000 and is so arranged that a second $12,000,000 will be necessary to complete the buildings. A total of 278 projects is included, and of these 118 are in towns and cities that have never possessed a federal building.

Among the Connecticut recommendations is an increase for the proposed New Britain postoffice from $275,000 to $300,000. The recommendation also mentions the South Norwalk-Norwalk project for which $225,000 is appropriated.

SCENT GANG BATTLE IN CWILKA'S DRUBBING

Police Skeptical On Parker Street Man's Tale of Being Beaten by Strangers.

Manchester police are taking but little stock in a holdup report concerning George Cwikla, 46, of 638 Parker street, because it was not reported until Saturday noon, although the attack is said to have taken place the night before. Furthermore, the complaint was made by Cwikla but by a friend who found him badly bruised and sporting a couple of black eyes.

Another reason why police are not delving into the matter further is because Cwikla refused to divulge the names of persons who attacked him. Policeman R. H. Wirtalla, who was assigned to the case, was unable to obtain that information, Cwikla claiming he did not know the men.

Cwikla's story is that a stranger called at his home about 8:30 Friday night and told him that a man living on Apel place wished to talk with him about buying some tobacco. Cwikla asserts that he went with the stranger and that on the way another man joined them. Then, he says, they beat him up. He says he finally broke away and ran home but did not call a doctor or even notify the police.

The next day, a friend who called at his home found Cwikla suffering and summoned a doctor. Also he told the police. Cwikla was treated for cuts and bruises about the head and body in addition to the two mourning eyes.

Police incline to the opinion that Cwikla was set upon by members of a liquor ring, prompted by rivalry. Cwikla was convicted on a liquor law violation charge about the head and body in addition to the two mourning eyes.

STAMFORD COPS PROBE A MYSTERIOUS BLAZE

Rear Door Found Open By Firemen—Suspect Former Employees—Damage of $1,500.

Stamford, Feb. 14.—Police and fire departments today are investigating a fire believed to be incendiary origin which broke out last night in the plant of the Carol Company, Inc., makers of women's cloaks, which did damage estimated at $1,500 before being placed under control. Several stores in the block and the factory itself sustained smoke and water losses.

When firemen reached the factory they discovered a rear door open by which they believed entrance was made and found the blaze had broken out in a lavatory.

The plant which is owned by Mrs. Mary McMahon of New York, was the scene of a strike several months ago and two employees were sentenced to state's prison for assault on other workers. The police are trying to connect last night's blaze with the labor troubles.

MURDERS DOCTOR WHO TREATED SON

Because His Child Dies, Frantic Father Cuts Physician's Throat.

New York, Feb. 14.—Dr. Casper S. Pendola, young Brooklyn physician, is dead, his throat severed, his alleged slayer was in prison today charged with the killing, and six young children were fatherless, all due to a parent's ignorance of the nature of anti-toxin and because of that ignorance, failure to understand that the young doctor had done his best for a dying boy.

Boy Dies
Joseph Caruso, six years old, died yesterday of diphtheria, a few hours after Dr. Pendola, who had been called to late to save the child's life, and administered anti-toxin as a last hope. A few minutes after the child's death the doctor made his second call, and Frank Caruso, Brooklyn plasterer, father of five children besides Joseph, is alleged to have accused Dr. Pendola of responsibility for the child's death and then killed the doctor by cutting his throat with a butcher knife.

Kills Doctor
The body of the doctor fell within a few feet of the couch on which the body of the dead child lay.

Caruso, announcing to his wife and his other children that he was going to a police station, fled. He was arrested a few hours later in Staten Island at the home of a brother.

Dr. Pendola, 27 years old, was married and had one child, four months old.

English Premier Declines to Commit Himself of President Coolidge's Proposal.

London, Feb. 14.—Premier Stanley Baldwin declined to commit himself definitely today, when questioned in the House of Commons as to the British government's attitude toward President Coolidge's disarmament proposals.

"The president's statement has been received and is receiving most careful consideration," said Premier Baldwin, in reply to the question put to him.

Asked whether the government would consider restricting cruiser construction in the forthcoming naval estimates, the premier stated that the whole matter is under consideration.

"The communication from President Coolidge was only received on Thursday," said the premier.

"There are many considerations which have to be borne in mind."

Questioned whether he would allow the House an opportunity to express his view in the matter, Premier Baldwin said: "I think a general expression of opinion would be in favor of embracing every favorable opportunity of considering these matters."

MILLION DOLLAR LOSS IN BANGOR, ME., FIRE

CHINESE PRESS IS ANGRY OVER ARMY LANDING

Call It Insult When British Soldiers Arrive at Shanghai—Fighting Keeps Up in Chekiang.

Shanghai, Feb. 14.—Although there were no untoward incidents the Chinese vernacular press declared that Chinese indignation is at a high pitch as the result of the landing here today of the Gloucester and Durham regiments of the British army.

These troops marched through the streets of Shanghai with fixed bayonets and the Chinese press declares this was "a totally unnecessary insult to the Chinese."

Fighting Continues
Fighting in Chekiang province is continuing and General Sun Chuan-fang still holds Chuchow, despite repeated assaults by the Cantonese. Casualties are mounting and Sun Chuan-fang is busily engaged in recruiting in Shanghai, Kiangsu and Chekiang.

Plan Big Offensive
Peking, Feb. 14.—With hundreds of thousands of troops on the move, a general spring offensive in the region of the Yangtze river is in prospect.

Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, warlord governor of Manchuria and the actual power behind the Peking government, convinced of the inability of Marshal Wu Pei-Fu to prosecute an active campaign against the Cantonese forces at Hankow, today began the movement of 50,000 of his Feng-Tien troops across the Yellow river to occupy Chenchow. This city is in Honan province, the stronghold of Wu Pei-Fu, and contains the invasion of Honan by Chang's troops which Wu last week warned Chang would be contested by Wu's troops. Chenchow is on the direct railway line between Hankow and Peking.

Drive Will Succeed
Following the arrival of Chang's Chihli and Shantung troops at Anhwei, just north of the Yellow river, General Chang Sueh-Liang will be appointed commander of the Hupeh forces, when the drive to retake Hankow from the Cantonese begins.

American military observers who have recently returned from the zone predict that Chang Tso-Lin's drive for Hankow will succeed.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—One wife, one ex-wife and one would-be-wife, all clustered under the same roof which shelters the object of their affections, were some of the reasons why Valentine Day for Robert Ames, darling of the stage, was not all that Valentine Day should be.

Several days ago Ames eloped to Waukegan with Miss Muriel Oakes, New York society girl. When they returned to their hotel, Ames found Miss Helen Lambert, also of New York, in hysterics over the news of his marriage. She claimed to be his fiancée.

CHURCHMEN MOURN DR. GRANT'S DEATH

Leader of Modernists in Episcopal Church Passes Away After Operation.

New York, Feb. 14.—Churchmen throughout the nation today mourned the death of the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, one of the leading Modernists in the Protestant Episcopal church. The Rev. Grant died Sunday in the Northern Westchester hospital at Mt. Kisco, N. Y., from complications following an operation for appendicitis.

Dr. Grant's sister, Mrs. Eugene Stone of Boston, and his nephew, Dr. Eric Stone of Providence, R. I., were at the bedside when he died.

Funeral Tomorrow
Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in St. Matthew's church, Bedford Village, N. Y. After the services the body will be taken to Boston, where the Rev. Grant was born sixty-six years ago, for burial in Forest Hill cemetery.

Dr. Grant was graduated from Harvard college in 1883. From 1887 to 1893 he was rector of St. Mark's church in Fall River, Mass. In 1893 he came to New York City as rector of the staid and orthodox Church of the Ascension, a constituency of wealth and culture, where his radical and unconventional ideas involved him in a series of controversies with Bishop Manning and other prominent churchmen.

Engagement Starts War
Dr. Grant's engagement to Mrs. Rita De Acosta Lydig, a divorcee, together with his plea for more liberal divorce laws, created a storm of controversy within the church.

In 1924 the engagement was broken and Dr. Grant resigned his rectorship. His health began to decline rapidly.

Dr. Grant repudiated the doctrine of the virgin birth, declaring that the church "would be better off without a creed." His expressed doubts concerning the divinity of Christ also brought him into disfavor with Bishop Manning.

NEW YORK OFFICIALS FEAR MILK SMUGGLING

President Asked to Veto Bill Restricting Entry of Canadian Milk Into State.

Washington, Feb. 14.—President Coolidge was asked today to veto the Lenroot-Taber milk bill, which restricts the entry of Canadian milk into New York state, now before him for signature.

Dr. Louis I. Harris, health commissioner of New York, told the President he should veto the bill as a menace to the health of New York City, which would be deprived by the bill of its milk reserve in Canada.

The bill, Harris asserted, would lead to "bootlegging milk which will be far more serious to public health than the bootlegging of liquor."

In the Boston district there was a 25 per cent increase in installment buying, eight per cent increase in charge accounts while cash sales were the same as last December.

Mr. and Mrs. Ames are shown as they were photographed simultaneously in their Chicago hotel. Helen said she went to Chicago to marry Robert, and that she expects to see an attorney about it. "Amazing!" said Robert, according to news reports. "She's an old friend, but marriage—I'm amazed!" Ames is a Hartford man.

LEGION BRINGS SUIT AGAINST TOURIST AGENT

Says That Boston Firm Is Using Misleading Advertising For Trip to Paris.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 14.—In an effort to restrain the George E. Marsters, Inc., a Boston and New York tourist agency, from conducting a trans-Atlantic tour of the annual convention of the American Legion to be held at Paris, France, this summer, a bill in equity was filed with the clerk of the Suffolk Superior Court today, equally session, on behalf of the national headquarters of the Legion.

A hearing on the bill will be held Wednesday.

Past Commander Leo M. Harlow and Francis J. Good of the Massachusetts Department, and James A. Donovan, the present department judge advocate of Massachusetts, Howard P. Savage and National Judge Advocate Robert A. Adams, of Indianapolis, Ind., entered the bill.

The Legion alleges that in its advertising George E. Marsters, Inc., has unfairly and improperly withheld authorization used the emblem and the name of the Legion and that its whole advertising program is so lined out as to deceive and mislead prospective travelers.

DANGER OF DEADLOCK IN DISCUSSIONS OVER MINERS' WAGE SCALE

A local in-coming passenger train smashed with terrific force into an out-going special train. Six coaches of the local train were telescoped.

30 in Hospital.
Thirty persons were taken to the hospital and it was feared the number of dead might reach twelve. The telescoped cars carried scores of children on their way to school.

Another wreck, in which seven persons were injured, occurred at London bridge station, when an in-coming train running blind in the fog ran into the stop bumpers.

PERSON SHOUTS FIRE PANIC IS STARTED

Montreal, Feb. 14.—Police were investigating today in an effort to learn the identity of the person who started a near panic in the theater Francois last night by shouting "fire."

More than 1,800 persons were in the building, and only the prompt action of attendants in opening all exits and assuring the crowd that there was no danger averted a disaster. After firemen had examined the building the audience was re-admitted.

NORWALK YOUTHS IN 7 HOLD-UPS

Norwalk, Feb. 14.—Police today announced an amazing list of hold-ups planned by a gang of five youths arrested after the robbery of a Taylor avenue store on Saturday. The youths, all being held without bail for investigation, are Louis Vino, 20, alleged leader; Kenneth Burns, 20; George Zaker, 18; John Warren, 21, and Frank Cavallo, 19.

Vino's Confession
According to the confession, Vino admitted planning to rob the railroad stations at Stamford and Saugatuck two stores in Darien, and several chain grocery stores. The youths had specialized in holding-up the chain stores, police say, because two of the members of the gang had worked for the chain. Market bills planted by the chain store management in its Taylor avenue store here led to the capture of the bandits.

Plan Other Hold-ups.
Other hold-ups police say the youths have planned are Cluett Peabody Company and Nash Engineering Company payroll carriers. Vino, according to the police, admitted he had followed Officer Edward Williams, of the local force, for several days and carried the Rioleto theatre's daily receipts to a safe in the police station where they were kept over-night. Vino thought eventually he could hold-up Williams and take the theatre money.

Miners' Side
The miners went into conference standing for $7.50 a day, the present bituminous coal minimum wage. They will try to get as much more as possible, probably for trading purposes, at least, demanding an increase of $1.50 or so a day. Some of the union delegates are also urging a six hour, five day week. But this seems unlikely to play any important part.

Declaring that they are facing virtually ruinous competition from the non-union coal fields in West Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky, where lower wages are paid, the operators insisted not only upon a substantial wage reduction but upon a flexible wage scale which may be revised as conditions warrant by an arbitration board set up by the union and the operators. The board would consist of eleven members, four miners, four operators and three men to be agreed upon by the workers and owners. The board would establish a competitive wage, that is, a weighted average of the scale paid in the non-union fields. But this wage, the operators would add ten per cent for union men.

The operators today agreed upon Herman C. Perry, of Hillsboro, Illinois, as the official spokesman. This job carries with it the chairmanship of the joint wage conference.

TEST VOTE TOMORROW ON FARM RELIEF BILL

Washington, Feb. 14.—Claiming enough pledged votes in the House to insure passage of the $250,000,000 McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, farm bloc leaders today doubled their efforts to roll up an impressive majority in the hope of convincing President Coolidge that there is an overwhelming demand in the country for the measure. A test vote probably will be taken tomorrow.

The bill admittedly cannot hurdle an executive veto before the end of the 69th Congress, despite the comfortable majority which farm bloc leaders revealed in the Senate vote and claim in the House. There apparently is little demand among the farm bloc members for an extra session if the bill fails to become a law.

Opponents of the measure continued to back in their conviction that Mr. Coolidge will make short work of the bill through a veto. Backers of the bill likewise continued doggedly to cling to the hope of executive approval, pointing out that they have met all of the objections that Mr. Coolidge has raised in the past to this class of legislation.

JUNIOR PROMENADE IS BRILLIANT AFFAIR

Many Youths Attend In Formal Attire—Pretty Decorations.

In a veritable fairyland of Japanese decorations of much color and brilliancy the annual Junior Promenade took place on Saturday evening in the high school auditorium.

The grand march formed at precisely nine o'clock. A concert proceeded the grand march. The orchestra rendered "On the Road to Mandalay," "La Golindrina," and "Twilight Voices," and one encore as concert numbers.

Although the Prom was an informal dance, and while strict evening clothes were not required, at least two-thirds of the young men wore Tuxedos, while all of the young ladies were attired in evening dress.

There were thirteen dances and three extras on the dance program, which was as follows:

- 1. Fox Trot, "In a Little Garden."
2. Fox Trot, "Sunday."
3. Fox Trot, "Do, Do, Do."
4. Fox Trot, "Precious."
5. Fox Trot, "You Will, Won't You."
6. Extra, Fox Trot, "All Alone Monday."
7. Fox Trot, "Blue Skies."

U. S. INVADES JAPAN—WITH ARMY OF DOLLS

Barberton, O.—The United States is invading Japan, one million strong.

But the invaders, instead of being tanned soldiers in khaki, are dainty, wide-eyed dolls, sent to the Japanese children on a mission of good will and friendship by American churches.

On March 3 Japan will hold its annual doll festival. Nearly a million dolls, with several complete sets of costumes apiece, are en route to Tokio, sent as a result of a fellowship program started by the National Council of Churches.

Dolls Replace Diplomats Where diplomats and statesmen have failed to bring the two nations closer together, perhaps the dolls will succeed. That, at least, is the hope of the senders.

In thousands of American cities, churches, Sunday schools, sewing circles and missionary societies have been sewing dolls' clothes, making ready for the peaceful invasion. Farewell parties were held for the dolls, and they were given messages of cheer for the Japanese children who will play with them.

In Japan, dolls are handed down from generation to generation, and are brought out for display only on special occasions. Japanese children spend much more time on their dolls' wardrobes than American children do, and the doll generally has a much higher place in the social scale.

"Rose Marie," the doll that the primary department of the First Baptist church at Barberton is sending, is perhaps typical of the entire group.

She is 17 inches tall and has a most complete outfit of clothing; a traveling ensemble of beige duvetyne, with coat and bonnet lined with orchid crepe matching a lace-trimmed frock.

She has a tiny mesh bag filled with American coins, has a full set of white undies, and says "Mama"—though whether that word is the same in Japanese is something else again.

"Rose Marie" also has a blue and white gingham outfit of dress, sun bonnet and romper; a brown satin party frock; a nightgown, a bathrobe and three pairs of stockings.

Other dolls, she will reach Japan when the country is alive with cherry blossoms. It is estimated that 4,500,000 Japanese children will play with these dolls, and will learn from them a message of good will from friends across the Pacific.

BUNKER MAKES IT CRASH NUMBER 3

Famous Glass Defying Dog Sets His Boss Back Another Three Dollars.

Panes of glass mean nothing to Bunker, a German police dog owned by Holger Gustafson of Land's filling station on Main street.

First it was a rappicker who was responsible. He was prowling around the Gustafson house intent on picking up something to turn in to money. He provided up, the dog saw him from inside the house.

He did when the flying form of the dog emerged through the splintered pane the rappicker was so astounded that he couldn't move.

This time Bunker had been tied with a rope, however, and it took time to work loose. But when he had wiggled out of his collar and was ready for the task he had the cat was still unconsciously present.

All doors were closed and a window was again the only solution. Bunker crashed again and landed almost on top of the cat.

The cat was quicker-witted than the rappicker and flashed up into a nearby tree. Bunker watched her for an hour or more before he gave her up as unattainable.

This morning it was love, not war, that prompted the crash. Gustafson left the dog in the filling station and went out to a restaurant to get a bite.

He closed the door on the dog but as he walked past the window Bunker saw him. "Whether thou goest, I go," he barked and sailed through the glass, landed at his master's feet and wagged his tail. Glass never cuts Bunker.

Gustafson is out about three dollars.

AUTOS DAMAGED PROPERTY WORTH OVER 2 MILLIONS

Motor Vehicle Dep't. Bulletin Reports Statistics For 1926 In Its February Issue.

Motor vehicles damaged property to the estimated extent of $2,391,346, killed 322 people and injured 9,802 others in 24,328 accidents reported to the state motor vehicle department during the year 1926, the February bulletin of the department will show.

The estimated property damage, which was equal to the week's wages of nearly 100,000 Connecticut people, was slightly more than a quarter million dollars in excess of the estimated property damage done by motor vehicles in Connecticut in 1925.

There was a decrease in the number of fatalities, however, notwithstanding an increase of 1,755 accidents reported, the number of people killed by motor vehicles in 1925 being 354. The total of people injured by motor vehicles in the past year was greater by 1,810 than the casualties reported in 1925.

The victims in the motor vehicle fatalities included 265 adults, an increase of fifteen for the year, and sixty-seven children, a decrease of thirty-seven. The injured included 7,217 adults, an increase of 1,681, and 2,585 children, an increase of 129. Of the whole number injured, 5,970 were motor vehicle occupants, an increase of 1,695, and 3,532 an increase of 295, were pedestrians.

Fifteen thousand nine hundred and ten of the accidents were collisions of automobiles, 3,587 were collisions of automobiles and pedestrians, and 315 were collisions of automobiles and bicycles.

Carelessness of operators caused 17,274 of the 24,328 accidents, which child pedestrians were held to have been responsible for 1,559, adult pedestrians for 1,150, motor men for 694, bicyclists for 251, teamsters for 160, gamemen or flagmen for thirteen, men with push carts for eleven, animals for 360, unidentified operators for 582 and men working on roads for twelve.

Various defects in equipment caused 794 accidents, defective highways 75, obstructed roads 63, weather conditions 69, unprotected railroad crossing 12, ignition of gasoline supply 35 and overloading 3.

Eighty-six of the accidents were caused by passengers in motor vehicles, 44 of whom jumped on or off moving vehicles, seven stole rides, eleven interfered with the operation of vehicles and twenty-four fell off.

The great majority of accidents caused by pedestrians resulted from crossing streets carelessly. Of the children hit, 868 were careless in this particular and 733 of the adults struck were similarly careless. In proportion to the traffic on the roads, there was less pedestrian carelessness sufficient to cause accidents than in 1925. A campaign of education against such carelessness has been in progress for several years and appears to be showing results.

DUMPING.

The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, passed by the Senate last Friday through a clean split in both Republican and Democratic parties along sectional lines and in direct opposition to the views of President Coolidge, is a glorified dumping measure.

Its purpose is to make certain staple farm products sufficiently scarce on the American home market at all times, despite possible overproduction, to maintain the prices of them at a point which will be satisfactory to the farmer.

In other words the government becomes a partner in a deal whereby the Connecticut housewife may run her home on the basis of two dollar Dakota wheat while the Belgian housewife is running hers on the basis of seventy-five cent Dakota wheat.

That has been the sole basis of the French contention. If the assurance of German liquidation of reparations is good enough to warrant France in signing an agreement to pay us, why is it not good enough to warrant us in letting her sign conditionally?

As a matter of fact nobody, anywhere, expects that any of these monumental obligations, reaching over two generations, will ever be discharged in full.

Not only is this plan inherently injurious to all industrial America but it is in violation of a principle to which the United States has long been committed.

There is every evidence that the House will jump with the Senate in this business and that the bill will go to President Coolidge for his approval or veto.

There isn't the slightest doubt that many of the Congressmen who have voted for this bill or contemplate voting for it are consciously passing the buck to the President.

PNEUMONIA QUARANTINE. Down in New Jersey the State Board of Health has just about arrived at the determination to treat pneumonia as a virulently communicable disease.

While there seems to be a certain hesitancy on the part of the medical profession in committing itself on the degree of communicability of pneumonia, there appears to be a very definite movement for its handling on the assumption that there is real danger in personal contact of well persons with pneumonia patients.

THAT FRENCH DEBT AGAIN.

France is receiving money enough from Germany, under the Dawes plan, to pay both her debt installments to Britain and those to the United States as established by the Berenger agreement with this government, which the French parliament has not yet ratified.

Seemingly this puts the French position with relation to her debt here in a rather sour light. There are, however, two elements to be considered before it is quite fair to accuse France of deliberate withholding.

DOLLAR GRABBERS TRY NEW SCHEMES IN TOWN

Chamber Discloses Truth About Three Concerns Operating Here.

This is one of a series of articles prepared for The Herald by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

The past week has brought to light, an unusual crop of schemes for relieving the trusting public of their hard-earned dollars. It seems that the very hardest lesson for the average person to learn, is how to take care of his own money.

The moral in connection with the Northern Mercantile Company, which was dealt with in our last week's story, is that credit should be demanded from every salesman with whom you do business. In this particular case, the Northern Mercantile Company appears to be a responsible concern, but the salesman was an imposter and had no business in using the name. He had absolutely nothing to identify himself with the concern except his word. Insist on their showing proper credentials or refuse to do business with them, as they never have anything to sell that cannot be bought at an equal price, quality considered, at some established store.

Surprising as it may seem, the old, moss-grown photograph enlargement salesman is again operating in town. His method is identical with that pursued on previous occasions. He induces the housewife to let him take a picture of some member of the family for enlargement. No cash deposit is required, but the customer does sign a contract to pay some specified amount when the picture is finished. The enlargement is submitted, and usually, before they are done the customer orders a frame for the enlargement, so that the whole transaction costs the customer in the vicinity of $12.00. The whole transaction is extremely crude and the eventual cost is entirely disproportionate to the value of the goods received.

The Chamber's advice to anyone approached on a proposition of this kind, is to turn a deaf ear. If any work of this nature is really desired, there are regularly established reliable concerns, that will undertake the work and tell you exactly what it will cost before they start.

More than 20,000 packages of "Patience Bill" neckties have been received in this immediate vicinity within the past few days. The appeal is to the sentiment, as it is claimed that "Bill" is blind. The amount, $1.00 is small, and the psychology of the single unit in place of $1.50 as was charged by the New Haven concern, is said to net the promoter a hundred per cent greater return. The promoter will stick a dollar in an envelope and send it back, while the $1.50 would necessitate making out a check or money order, which would take more time. Strange as it may seem, many people who receive these ties, object to following the Chamber's advice to lay the ties away, and hold them until some representative calls and takes them away. They feel that it is too much trouble, or they object to receiving the further communications which will ensue, or they consider it unethical.

One thing is certain, that unless some such means is generally employed this nuisance will not only continue, but increase, as it is extremely profitable as is shown by the number and variety of this kind which are being promoted. It is certainly to be hoped that the coming session of the Legislature will witness the passage of the Watson bill, which has the unqualified indorsement of the Postmaster General, to put a ban on this sort of business.

The Gentlewoman Magazine puzzle advertisement has been found to be under the direct supervision of the same men who promoted the notorious Neverman Company campaign, which the United States Department of Justice declared a fraud order against.

Peculiarly enough, advice comes to the Chamber that the Gentlewoman Magazine campaign is within the law; nevertheless it is misleading and resulting in the loss of thousands of dollars by people who read the advertisement literally. In fact, the whole scheme is so involved that it is very hard for anyone to understand all the conditions in connection with the puzzle contest. While technically, it may be legal, in reality it is 99 per cent impossible. Its sole purpose is to increase the subscription list of the Gentlewoman Magazine with the least possible expense.

"$20 to $50 a week addressing cards. Home work, no soliciting, no experience necessary."

The above advertisement is one of hundreds of a similar nature, which have been appearing in classified advertisements throughout the country. Two of these advertisements have been investigated by the Chamber and are almost identical in their methods. In this case they are absolute, and deliberate lies.

The statement is clear and specific that $20 to $50 is to be made by addressing cards, or addressing envelopes. As a matter of fact, not one penny is paid for addressing cards or envelopes. In the case of the envelopes, one simply addresses them as a means to mailing out circulars for the sale of merchandise. You purchase samples of merchandise from the company, and if you sell any merchandise from the sample as a result of the circulars which you mail in the envelopes which you address, you get a commission.

In the case of the cards, it is necessary to send a dollar for instructions and equipment. A printed circular and ten 1 cent government postal cards are the equipment received. In return for the dollar. The instructions were, to buy newspapers and clip all personal items, mail a card to the address of the person mentioned, stating that on receipt of 25 cents this newspaper clipping would be mailed to them. You are not paid for addressing cards, you are paid for personally conducting a newspaper clipping bureau of your own, which not one person in a hundred is qualified to undertake and not one in a thousand would care to undertake if they were qualified. Such advertisements are frauds and misrepresentations pure and simple and the class of people that they appeal to are the very ones who can least afford to spare the dollar which is demanded.

This scheme is only one step removed from the old story which is told of fakirs who advertised "a genuine steel engraving of George Washington for 50 cents" and upon receipt of the 50 cents, mailed the duplicate a 2 cent postage stamp, with Washington's picture on it.

The Chamber renews its offer to investigate and submit the facts in regard to any project of this kind which is called to its attention.

My life is cold, and dark, and dreary; It rains, and the wind is never weary; My thoughts still cling to the mouldering past, But hopes of youth fall thick in the blast, And the days are dark and dreary.

STATE THEATER GIVES LITTLE POLICE PUPPY

Holder of Lucky Coupon Gets Six-Weeks-Old Pedigreed Dog—Rin Tin Tin's Mate Coming Here.

Someone in Manchester is going to be the lucky master of a genuine thoroughbred German police dog during the next few days. It was announced at the State theater that a six-weeks-old puppy, of pedigree parents, will be given to the holder of the lucky coupon which will be given out during the showing of the famous dog actor, Rin Tin Tin, in "White London Sleeps" at the State on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

It is the nicest little police dog ever seen in Manchester and it is only six weeks old so it doesn't know anybody as its master yet. It will be displayed at the State lobby this week so that everybody can see the kind of a pet it can be.

Further than that, the management announced today that Rin Tin Tin's mate, only little less renowned than the dog actor himself will be here for those three days with his master, in person.

Rin Tin Tin, as everybody knows is the greatest animal actor on the screen today, other statements to the contrary. Contracts which his master holds bind him to work for the next ten years, if he lives that long, and it is conceded that this dog is the hardest working animal in the world at the present time.

That means an added series of attractions with the big picture of London life, Rin Tin Tin's mate, and the chance of winning a pedigree dog.

GOV. TRUMBULL GETS MANCHESTER HISTORY

Mathias Sless a member of the Manchester Centennial History committee, and one of the authors of the volume, "History of Manchester, Connecticut," has received a letter of thanks from His Excellency Governor John H. Trumbull for the copy which was presented to him.

A copy of the letter follows: Dear Sir, Thank you very much for your letter of the 9th and also copy of the "History of Manchester, Connecticut."

In hastily glancing through the volume, it would appear to contain a vast fund of historical information. I regret exceedingly that I will not have the time to read it during the legislative session but hope to have the opportunity as soon as these duties let up somewhat.

Very sincerely yours, John H. Trumbull.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 50c and 60c.

DELANEY'S SPEED AND RIGHT HAND SHOULD STOP JIM

So Figures Joe Williams In Citing Cases of Flowers, Berlenbach and Gorman.

By JOE WILLIAMS

New York, Feb. 14.—Jack Delaney has the fastest right hand—and the fastest fighting mind—in the back-busting business today.

Into his routine of fighting are woven all the turbulent trickeries, savage subtleties and animal artifices that made Kid McCoy what he was back in the olden days—the craftiest man in the craft.

You are asked to make a mental note of this in pondering the consequences of a contender for the heavyweight championship—this against Mr. James Maloney of Boston here Friday night.

Delaney figures to have two chances of winning from Mr. James Maloney. Arrayed in the order of their seriousness they are as follows: One is to outsmart him. The other is to outkick him. Or, as an alternative, both.

Delaney's general procedure is to make a swift analysis of the man in front of him, detect a weakness in his armor and then make the most of it.

That's how he knocked out Paul Berlenbach, Tiger Flowers and, more lately, Bud Gorman, the latter a heavyweight of full-blown dimensions and at least average ability.

Admittedly it required no parlor magic to congeal the Teutonic carcass of Berlenbach; he was wide open for a right hand and got it.

With Flowers it was different, and I think the story of how Delaney maneuvered into position to knock out the Negro middleweight is one of the classics of ring strategy.

Flowers, a southpaw, respecting the power of Delaney's right hand, fought with his gloved fist held high against his jaw. Flowers is a body puncher. The section of Delaney's body that seemed to offer the best target for Flowers was the left side in the kidney region.

Flowers began taking stiff shots at this target. The blows did Delaney no good physically. But in another way they won the fight for him. Delaney noted every time Flowers landed a stiff wallop with his right, the left, moved by the impact of the blow, would bounce back, exposing the jaw by about six inches.

At the end of the first round of his first fight with Flowers Delaney sat in silence in his corner while Pete Reilly, his manager, put him on the toaster.

"Say, move around more out there. Don't let that guy hit you so much with his right hand. That'll weaken you."

Delaney answered: "Don't worry,

Pete. The next time he hits me there I'll knock him out."

The bell rang. Delaney purposely exposed his left side to Flowers' attack. Delaney took a hard stiff right, watched the gloved left hand that had been protecting Flowers' jaw move out of position and then sent over the one punch he had been waiting for—a crashing right-hander that knocked the Dixie parson out.

The march of Lewis and Clark across the Bitter-root mountains is one of the great epics of American courage and determination.

There were moments of grim suspense when the men hung by their shrunken fingers to the sides of precipitous cliffs.

Through all the awful hardships of that mountain march Sacajawea carried on, sharing each new peril, cheering with her silent bravery.

The valley beyond was part of their reward. Here were the Nez Perce Indians, whom Sacajawea met with her papoose held high above her head as a token of peace.

DISCUSSING TUNNEY'S OPPONENTS

Editor's Note: The Herald has just secured a series of eighteen authentic articles through the NEA service dealing with the ability of the various contenders for the heavy-weight boxing crown now worn by Gene Tunney. Owing to the proximity of the DeLaney-Maloney fight, six of these articles, which tell about the prospects of DeLaney and Maloney, will be published in The Herald this week before the fight. Two of the articles, one about each fighter, appear tonight. The stories are well worth reading.

JACK DELANEY
New York, Feb. 14.—"Bright Eyes" they call him this handsome debonair young man whose rapturously like and skillful ring maneuvers have made him light-heavyweight champion of the world. Few know him outside the ring. He scores the 1000 kilowatt lights of Broadway in the summer. He buries himself in Canada in a little cabin with his wife (and believe me she's not hard to look at either). Canada is his native land. In the winter he leases a modest apartment in Bridgeport, Conn., and his friends are mostly local factory workers he rubbed shoulders with before he donned his first pair of silken trunks.

He is neither a highbrow like the big Noun and Pronoun Man, Mr. Tunney, nor a lowbrow in the deep-end-dose. Of the six gentlemen of the boxing gentry who aspire to the heavy-weight title, he appears to have the highest intelligence quotient, is the least assuming, expresses the most respect for rival contenders, and is the likeliest prospect to ethrone the reigning heavy-weight king.

Jack Delaney of Ovilla Chappeldaine was born March 19, 1900, at St. Francis, Canada. When he was just learning to shoot his first deer and manipulate snowshoes and skills without missing a trick, he was a pompous dour, he moved to Chicago. He went to school there until another family move came, this time to Holyoke, Mass., and later to Bridgeport.

He had to quit high school and go to work, so he took up tool-making, and if you think he can't operate a lathe ask some of the factory hands who hang out at the Acorn club in Bridgeport, Conn.

"Amateur boxing caught his eye. 'I needed some money,' so he slipped into the pro ranks under the tutelage of Pat Kelly, and soon punched his way to the top. Can he sock? He drapes 'em over the lamp with such swift dispatch that Mr. Kelly usually exclaims to the spectators in wisecrack to stricken rivals in the height of madcap elation, advising them secure positions as cigar clerks, 'now that you know the ropes, etc.'

Paul Berlenbach, Mike McEligue and Tiger Flowers are three of the headliners who tucked the canvas under their arms and slumbered away following contact with his knuckles. "What is the biggest thrill you ever got out of boxing? Was it the night of the Berlenbach fight when the referee held up your arm and proclaimed you champion of the world?"

"No," he says, "I'll never forget my first fight in 1918 in Bridgeport. I was a green kid of 19. My whole future in this game was before me. My nerves were keyed up to the breaking point. It was a feeling I have never since experienced.

"I was to go for four rounds with a lad named Steve August in a preliminary at the Acorn club in Bridgeport, and the home town. I was knocked down three times. I knocked him down four times. I won the decision and a purse of $4.

"My manager took $3. I gave $1 to the towel boy. The fight cost me 75 cents. money I had to pay for liniment—but I'll never forget the thrill of winning that first little fight, never as long as I live."

JIM MALONEY

New York, Feb. 14.—Step right up, lads, and meet the Bustin' Bostonian—the second John L. Sullivan—Mr. James Maloney of the land of the raffish bean and dear old Harvard, recent scene of a land office business in postage stamps for soiled football correspondence. Jimmy is 23 years old and he's Irish (silence). He's a bona fide Mick and home town actually is Maloney (obscure). Fans of late have become suspicious when these Celtic cognomens are bandied about especially in this elimination tournament with Jack Delaney, nee Chappeldaine, and Jack Sharkey, nee Cukochsky, horning in with phoney monickers. Jimmy was born April 23, 1903 in Boston. He weighs over 200 pounds and he is six feet tall. His reach is 72 inches and his chest measures 41 normal and 44 expanded.

His mass of fighting bone, flesh and muscle is perfectly distributed and he has a surprising long list of victories, but they were mostly "round-healers." Suddenly a new challenger, Jack Sharkey, started to sputter and flame. The two were matched and Maloney won. It was a lousy fight, as the boys will tell you in their native patois. Both fighters were inexperienced, wild and excited.

They fought twice more after this. One ended in a foul and the other, billed as "New England's battle of a century," saw Maloney getting pummed from pillar to post by a Lithuanian sailor who had mastered a lightning left that succeeded in finding the Maloney chin every time it was cocked and fired. Maloney's stock took a sudden drop and he announced his retirement from the ring. Last fall he started a comeback under the new management of Dan Carroll. It has been successful so far. He is now listed among the first six heavyweights.

"Jack Delaney gave me the inspiration to come back," Maloney reveals. "He hit me the hardest I've ever been hit in my life and the fact that I was able to stagger to my feet and go on taught me a lesson."

"I was just a kid 17 years old. I had run away from home and joined the army and was in Kansas City shortly after Dempsey flattened Willard and was on his barnstorming tour. A three-round bout was arranged. He knocked me down with that paralyzing left hook of his at the start of the first. He knocked me down in the second. He knocked me down in the third. Dempsey at his best couldn't keep me on the floor—watch and see, none of these tramps are going to either!"

He had just quit high school and go to work, so he took up tool-making, and if you think he can't operate a lathe ask some of the factory hands who hang out at the Acorn club in Bridgeport, Conn.

"Amateur boxing caught his eye. 'I needed some money,' so he slipped into the pro ranks under the tutelage of Pat Kelly, and soon punched his way to the top. Can he sock? This Remarkable Racing Picture Proves It's Possible to Win by a Nose.

Here is what the oldest followers of thorough-bred horse racing in New Orleans say is the most remarkable finish of a horse race ever witnessed in the history of horse racing in the Crescent City. It shows the finish of the first race on Saturday, Jan. 29, at the Fair Grounds course. The first four horses crossed the finish line nose and tail close. The stewards debated several minutes before hanging up the numbers.

The decision was given to Venus, a "field horse," which finished next to the rail and paid handsome odds. Hidalgo, the outside horse, was placed second. Porto de Oro, next to Hidalgo, was given third place, while Talladego, the horse second from the rail was given fourth place. Ice, No. 5, crossed the line fifth, a length and a half behind the fourth.

Pros Play For Love Of Game Too!—Hagen

Walter Hagen sees little reason for all the fuss that annually is made in discriminating between the amateur and professional in sports. "The professional must like the sport in which he excels just as much as the amateur or he never would reach a high state of proficiency," says Hagen.

"No athlete can hope for and realize sustained success unless he has the love of the game at heart. To do anything exceptionally well, one must like his task. "The only real difference between the amateur and pro is that one is compensated for his work while the other does it for the sunshine, fresh air and thrill of victory. "One pays to play, the other plays for pay.

"Amateur standing is fine to have if you really want it and can afford the luxury—just like a big country place and a costly town house and a flock of automobiles. "Take the case of Suzanne Lenglen in tennis. I saw Suzanne play at Wimbledon, in England, while she still was the world's greatest player. She never got a cent for playing. But believe me, I never got to see her play without putting up the price of a ticket. Suzanne wasn't making a cent out of her playing, but somebody was. There at Wimbledon they have the finest tennis plant in the world—and they built it out of the money people paid to see Suzanne Lenglen play. "You heard a lot of that bunk about Red Grange, too, when he became a professional football player. He was a youngster who could use a little money honestly earned for his start in life. It was his privilege, his own business, when he decided to capitalize his fame. "Look at that magnificent stadium at the University of Illinois. Before he turned professional they told you there that he practically built it with his playing. Why shouldn't he get a share out of an asset that was his own? His university had: "The professional isn't always thinking about the game. He's more than he is about the game. More times than he is about the game. The professional has to love the game to be any good at it. "I remember I was seated at the ringside when Johnny Dundee was fighting little Criqui—the French champion. The boys were fighting viciously. I turned to a chap beside me. We had just been discussing this professional-amateur thing, and remarked: "Still there are a lot of people who will argue the professional lacks spirit and sportsmanship. "Criqui, fighting a losing battle from the start, his war-shattered jaw, re-injured in the early rounds, continued to battle, courageously, always hoping to put over a knockout. "Professionals have fighting spirit, will to win, love of the game and sportsmanship just the same as the amateur. "It is simply a case of where golf is played for one and a livelihood for the other."

A cynic's outline of history: Blarney, bushwah, bunk, hoakum, hoopery. "Instead of spreading to his head as was feared, Mr. Dempsey's blood poisoning got no further than the headlines. "More than five hundred Harvard men have reported for crew practice. It might help to appease the Princeton wrath if about 463 of them fell and failed to come up. "On second thought, this sacrifice might be fruitless. Some high-minded Princetonian would be sure to complain against contaminating the fish. "The contention is made that Sunday baseball has lessened crime in Washington. Still some of the games we've seen there might be properly catalogued as crimes. "An expert writes there is a scarcity of good bantamweights in the prize fight trade. But as we see it there are entirely too many bantamweights in the trade, and some of them weigh as much as 200 pounds. "Don't let anybody tell you yesterday wasn't an epochal day. It was. No athletic organization withdrew from the A. A. U. "The secret of John D.'s great financial success is out at last. He has never played cards. "The cables reveal that the Prince of Wales fell down attending the motion-picture theaters in the place of a youngster who could use a little money honestly earned for his start in life. It was his privilege, his own business, when he decided to capitalize his fame. SIX MANCHESTER BOYS PLAY IN MERIDEN TILT

Plainfield came back into true form at amateur races Saturday night when it won a belated victory over the Meriden Endees in the state armory in Meriden before a crowd of 500 persons. The final score was 31 to 29. Plainfield plays the Purple Collegians of Worcester, Mass. Wednesday night at Plainfield. The ex-collegians are one of the two teams to defeat Plainfield on the latter's home court this season.

Six Manchester boys took part in the game at Meriden and it remained for one of these to come through with the most important basket. All of them, however, played well. Meriden led most of the way only to have the visitors rally in the closing minutes of play and snatch away the bacon. A basket by "Hap" Madden tied the score at 29 all and Leo Desinger won the game with two foul tries. Madden was high scorer for Plainfield and Bissell for Meriden. The summary:

BRENNAN'S BOXING CLASS IS POPULAR

Many Join His Classes to Learn Fine Points of Pugilistic Art. Now that Manchester athletes are becoming more and more interested in the boxing game, much favorable comment has been heard at the north end regarding the new gymnastic classes at the Manchester Community Club. William Brennan, whose name has figured in Manchester sports for years, has been engaged as instructor. "It is expected that many more boxing students will enroll in Brennan's class as there are many promising young boxers at the north end who, with a little more training in the fine points of the game, should be able to step out and make names for themselves. "Those who wish to join the class should get in touch with Director G. H. Washburn or Bill Brennan.

Coach Thanks Fortune-Teller For Keeping Grid Star In School

Washington, Pa., Feb. 14.—Those football coaches who are about to lose prominent prospects for next year's varsity eleven should consult the stars as a means of saving them. The voices of a prophesist in Washington, Pa., saved Washington and Jefferson, its most promising freshman of the past season. Don't transfer to another, said this prophesist, and her words kept Earl T. Wilson, fullback of the 1926 freshman outfit for W. and J. next season.

Wilson, who lives at Sharon, Pa., had decided to transfer his allegiance from W. and J. to Miami University in Ohio. The almost-epoch-making happened to stop in a seance at a local theater to see if the prophesist—billed at said theater to be able to read the stars—could read the stars for him. "You are thinking of going to another school," she told him. "Don't do it. You will be making a big mistake."

Somehow, it impressed Wilson and he decided to stay. Perhaps, because he may be possessed of gambling spirit and eager to learn whether the prophesist knew her stars or not.

HIGH SCHOOL SWIMMERS WIN OVER BRISTOL AND MERIDEN

Manchester High school started off its first swimming team to a victory Saturday afternoon over Meriden and Bristol at the School street Rec. Manchester swamped the visitors and won first place in every event. Meriden finished second and Bristol trailed behind. McKay and Buckland of the local team split honors in the 40-yard freestyle and backstroke events, the former winning the freestyle and the other the backstroke. In these races winners of each heat were qualified and no swimmer from either of the two schools reached the Snails.

Wesley Warnock ran up against stiff opposition in the diving and won from Baer of Meriden only because he executed some difficult stunts, for which he received extra points. As it was, Baer trailed him by only a few points. In the relay Manchester took a lead in the first lap and this was added to from time to time and McKay, local anchor man, was a half-lap ahead of his nearest competitor at the finish. The summary:

40-yard dash: Won by McKay, Manchester; second, Buckland, Manchester; time 21 5-10. 40-yard backstroke: Won by Buckland, Manchester; second, McKay, Manchester; time, 28 3-5. Fancy diving: Won by Warnock, Manchester; second, Baer, Meriden; third, Markley, Manchester. Relay race: Won by Manchester, McKay, Treat, Warnock, Buckland; second, Meriden; third, Bristol.

WORLD DEAF MUTE CHAMPS WIN 36-26

New York Silent Separates Conquer Connecticut Mutes Easily In Annual Battle. The Meriden Silent Five bit off more than it could chew Saturday night and were defeated 36 to 26 by the New York Silent Separates, deaf mute champions of the world. The game was played in the American School for the Deaf at West Hartford.

Although the Meriden team managed to keep within ten points of its opponents, the boys from the metropolitan were far superior. They gave a wonderful exhibition of all-around team-play and possessed an uncanny eye for the basket from all angles. The New York team is in the class with the New Haven Atlas, having lost several one-point decisions to the New England champions. Kelly and Harris were best for Meriden and Cohen, Wozel and Shertrench for the winners. Retrese Rockwell handled the game well. The summary:

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE Death strikes GARRETT FOLSOM while bathing at Ocean Town, N. J. After being perfunctorily examined by a doctor, the body is brought to the Hotel Majanica, where an inquiry is started.

Robbin Sears adored his father, and he knew every expression of that well-loved face, every telltale motion or gesture of that familiar personality, and he saw that for some reason or another his dad was very much upset.

ROBIN SEARS adored his father, and he knew every expression of that well-loved face, every telltale motion or gesture of that familiar personality, and he saw that for some reason or another his dad was very much upset.

What the dickens ails him? Young Robin put the question to himself. "Surely he isn't going to get mixed up in that auction business, if that nice Meeker person was right there with him all the time."

Coroner Hubbard proceeded with his questioning, and though he called on everybody he could hear of or learn of who might be of any use, he discovered practically nothing of importance. Nothing that would offer a direction in which to look for the murderer of Garrett Folsom.

He had no wish to adjourn the inquest, for he thought it more than doubtful if any further evidence ever came to light. He was sure that the murderer had laid his plans too carefully to leave any clue that a detective might take hold upon.

So he turned the case over to the jury, and they made short work of their decision. Their verdict was that Garrett Folsom was wilfully murdered by an unknown hand, and that the weapon used was probably the antique dagger that had been found in the ocean after the crime had been committed.

No one was surprised at this verdict, for no one had expected anything different. Anastasia Folsom seemed in no way disturbed or disappointed, and her first remark, as the audience filed out, was to the effect that now they could get at the real work.

"First," she said, turning to the detective, Jenson, "first I shall arrange for my brother's funeral."

But, dear lady, I am not a detective. "Without doubt, Miss Folsom, what more could they do?" "What more?" she fairly snorted. "Why, they haven't done anything yet! And I know why. Because somebody has headed them off. Has advised them to drop the matter."

"You are making definite accusation!" he asked, calmly. "Or do you merely mean that, looking at their work superficially, it seems that way to you?" "Oh, well, put it that way, if you like," she said, after a glance of close scrutiny. "I'm not libeling anybody, if that's what you mean. But I propose to do the work that it seems to me the police have left undone. To make the investigation that they certainly have not made. And, I hope, to attain results that they assuredly have made no effort to attain. So, Mr. Pelham, I am saying all this to you because I want to enlist, if not your help, at least your understanding of my position and of my purpose."

"I do understand, Miss Folsom, and I assure you that you may count on me to do all I can to assist you. And I make bold to ask that you keep your work and its results as quiet as you can, and avoid all unnecessary publicity."

BABY SHOULD BE TALKING BEFORE AGE OF TWO

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN A newly-born infant avoids light. The pupils of its eyes are contracted in a light room, and the eyes will close if a bright light is brought before them.

It is unusually sharp for the early months of life so that the slightest noise awakens some babies. The baby apparently begins to recognize the direction of sound by the end of the second month, and by the end of the third month will turn its head to the direction from which the sound comes.

An investigator named Kussmaul found that even a newly-born infant can recognize the difference in taste between sweet, sour, and bitter substances, and will frequently raise considerable objection to the slightest variation in the taste of its food.

Nobody has yet been able to tell when the infant develops its sense of smell, although the experiments thus far available seem to indicate that some of the sense is present even in the newly-born. Certainly, the ability to detect slight differences in odors does not come until later in life.

SETTING THE TABLE IS A TRUE ART

By SISTER MARY The first requisite for a well set table is perfect cleanliness of all linen, silver and dishes and a precise respect in their placement on the table.

Place covers from twenty-five to thirty inches apart, leaving an even space between the service plate or room for the dinner plate when a service plate is not used.

Knives are placed to the right of the service plate, cutting edges toward the left and the end of the handle one inch from the edge of the table.

Salad With Meat If there is no maid in attendance and the hostess must serve her salad with the meat course, in this event the salad plate is placed just at the right of the water glass, opposite the bread and butter plate.

When the fruit course is finished the fruit plate is removed and the cereal dish is placed on the service plate. If a "meat" course follows, the service plate is removed with the cereal and fresh plates are placed before the person who is to serve.

Stacking Cups The coffee pot is placed to the right of the "pouffer," the sugar and cream in front of her plate and the cups and saucers are piled at her left.

'Twas great to see the ostrich run and Clowny had a heap of fun. They traveled down the sandy beach at quite a rapid pace. "Hey, hurry up," wee Clowny cried to all the others who had tried to keep up with the ostrich. But they dropped out of the race. So Clowny loudly shouted "Whoa!" I guess the ostrich didn't know just what that meant, or else he simply didn't want to stop. When 'bout a mile of beach was crossed, said Clowny, "I will soon be lost. I've got to get down on the ground. Here's where I take a flop." He quickly jumped up from the seat and balanced on his little feet. Then he waited for a chance to leap down to the ground. Just then the ostrich stopped dead still and Clowny almost took a spill. Before he had a chance to jump the big bird looked around. Real quickly Clowny got a thrill. The ostrich grabbed him in his bill and swung him outward in the air. Then placed him on the sand. 'Course Clowny had no chance to mind. In fact, he thought the ostrich kind, but how the bird had learned such tricks he couldn't understand. The other Tynies came in sight, quite pleased that Clowny was all right. Then for a ride upon the bird they all began to beg. But Clowny said, "I think it best that, for a time, we let him rest." And then they heard ol' Scouty yell, "I've found an ostrich egg." They all began to shout, "Oh, gee let's open it so we can see what's on the inside of the thing. Perhaps we'll have a meal." Then Scouty gave the egg a poke, just hard enough so that it broke. A little ostrich peeked right out and then began to squeal.

(The Tynmites meet a Balloon man in the next story.)

NO COAL BOOST BY MANCHESTER FIRMS Dealers Here Do Not Intend To Follow Raise in Rates At Hartford.

Coal prices have just been boosted from 25 to 75 cents a ton in Hartford, owing to a shift in freight classification by the Interstate Commerce commission which deprives the Capitol City of the advantage, previously enjoyed, of a freight differential on coal coming in by railroad which was established to meet the rates on waterborne coal.

Hartford is one of several Connecticut points which are compelled by the Interstate Commerce Commission to pay a considerably higher rate on coal freights, and there has been a vigorous protest to the I. C. C. by manufacturers and others as a result.
