NO INCREASES IF SELECTMEN CAN HELP IT!

With Lower Tax Rate Possible Board Presses For Strict Economy; Frowns On Town Planning.

When Town Treasurer George H. Waddell told the Board of Selectmen in meeting last night that there was just a possible chance that a 1 1/2 mill tax rate might suffice this year, it seemed to spur the members on to strive for even greater economy.

Nothing definite No definite action was taken in either case by the board last night, but the attitude of various members was that increases in salaries or any other town expenses would not be contemplated.

Subject of a varied nature. Nearly everything in the town's budget ranging from the street lighting to the much mooted city classification bill were touched on.

Could not estimate time Registrar Veitch told the Selectmen he felt that the office was worth more money. When asked for an itemized account of the expenses and hours that go with the office he said he could not give such a bill.

Paid Help Himself It was brought out at the meeting that Veitch had paid assistants considerable money for their help, and that he had paid workers at the polls more than the town has set aside for such duties.

Town planning cannot do more for Manchester than the present Board of Selectmen is already doing, and is liable to involve the

Rockville BIRTHDAY SUPPER FOR RELIEF CORPS

They were seated at a special table decorated for the occasion. Mrs. Mary Brigham who is 88 years of age and very active in corps work and seldom misses a meeting, was presented with a beautiful plant.

A birthday cake was divided and sent to members who were unable to attend. The corps presented a beautiful silk flag to the First African church Sunday afternoon.

Patriotic Day.

The United Congregational church will have a Patriotic Day next Sunday. A sermon preached 127 years ago by Rev. Ebenezer Kellogg, pastor of the Vernon church for 55 years, will be delivered by Rev. George Brooks. This sermon was preached on Feb. 21, 1800, at the death of the "Father of Our Country" and shows the great esteem in which he was held by his countrymen. Appropriate music has been arranged by Mrs. May Chapman Holt, the organist. The pictures and the songs were originally written for George Washington's inauguration in 1789 and was first played by a band as he crossed the bridge at Trenton, on his way to New York to take the oath of office as our first President. An anthem, "Land of Hope and Glory" and old folk songs will be rendered by the choir. In the evening, at seven o'clock, there will be a stereopticon lecture on "Lincoln, the Man of the Ages." Union church is very fortunate in securing these pictures in which Mr. George Billings interprets the life of Lincoln.

SEE CONGESTION IN AUTO TAX CHANGE

More Work For Town Collectors and No More Pay For Salaried Officials.

Stiff opposition is expected to come from Manchester when the hearing on the proposed new automobile taxation bill, outlined in The Herald last night, comes up before the Committee on Finance of the State Legislature on March 16. The measure, which is designed to bring more money into the coffers of city and town treasurers, would tax automobiles according to their weight rather than on their valuation, as they are assessed now.

The duties of the local tax collector would not be made less by the new bill and for the extra burden placed on him he would receive no more salary unless by the action of the voters.

Good For Feed Collectors.

The bill contains a clause which says that tax collectors not on a salary basis shall receive a fee of 25 cents for each automobile tax collected, but the Manchester tax collector is on a salary and would not derive any fees.

The new bill, if made a law would naturally create a rush at the tax collector's office around the first of each year since automobile owners, according to the provisions of the bill, would have to obtain a receipt for the local tax on their cars before they could apply for registration at the motor vehicle department in Hartford.

In smaller towns, where the tax collectors are not on any regular schedule of hours, obtaining tax receipts and permits would involve considerable time. A rural resident pointed out that farmers who are tax collectors might be out of town for a day or two and the applicant would have to wait until his return before getting his permit, without which he could not register his car.

Inequitable.

Automobiles worth $1,000 would be placed on a level with cars valued at $50 or less if both weighed the same, for the new bill proposes a tax on the weight of the car instead of on its value. The small car owner would be hit to some extent for with registration costing from $15 to $25 he would be required to pay a sum nearly half that to the town.

Owners of old rattler cars who usually pay taxes of 50 or 75 cents would be required to pay just as much as though their car were worth $500 on the weight basis.

As far as can be learned, the new bill is not greatly favored here, either in official circles or on the street. Town officials would not consent to be quoted on the bill, but it is understood that the attitude of some of them is not favorable.

Two judgeship resolutions were adopted by the House as follows: Levi P. M. Hickey, judge, and Stanley M. Brainard, deputy judge in the East Hartford Town Court; Pierpont B. Foster, judge, and Charles E. Clark, deputy judge of the Town Court of Hamden.

Two bills were passed from the calendar as follows: making an appropriation of $8,000 for the State Firemen's Association; and increasing the board of trustees of the Pomfret school from nine to fifteen members.

The State Senate today restored forfeited rights to John E. Prince, of Bridgeport; Nicholas Fagan, of Bridgeport; and Angelo Amato, of New Haven.

Favorable reports in the Senate today were as follows: A bill concerning appointment of deputies in the factory inspection department; providing for an examination of commercial and industrial elevators; concerning operation of public service cars over fixed routes; making an appropriation of $2000 for the repair of the grave of Col. William Ledyard at Groton.

MOTHER SAYS TANLAC IS BEST REMEDY IN WORLD

Suffering from Headaches, Stomach Trouble, High Blood Pressure, Neuritis and Nervousness, Buffalo Woman Recovers Lost Health. Thanks Tanlac

The remarkable experience of Mrs. Harriet Grimes, 1073 Grant Street, Buffalo, N. Y., is the experience of thousands of others who after years of intense suffering have found grateful relief and new strength in this wonderful tonic and remedy.

Pain took its high toll and Mrs. Grimes found herself on the verge of becoming an invalid—her body wracked with pain, unable to eat without suffering from indigestion and gas, bothered by dizzy spells that made it dangerous for her to go out on the street, too weak to do her housework. Numbness in right shoulder and limbs pained steadily for 8 months.

Mrs. Grimes says: "Long days of anguish and tormenting pain that I tried to hide with a smile, followed sleepless nights. The sight of food nauseated me. I ate very little and became so weak and run-down that I couldn't do my housework."

"I tried everything for relief. Waited, worried. Then my daughter suggested Tanlac. What a wonderful daughter she is! For Tanlac saved me."

"Pain vanished. I began to sleep well and get up in the morning refreshed. I took on weight and felt stronger. Blue spots caused by high blood-pressure disappeared from my face. Again I feel young. Tanlac is the best remedy in the world."

Benefit by Mrs. Grimes' experience. Let this marvelous tonic made from roots, barks and herbs according to the famous Tanlac formula, rebuild your run-down body, drive out pain and poison, give you robust health. Results after taking the first bottle will amaze you. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today! More than 40 million bottles sold.

AUTO TAXATION.

In principle, there would appear to be almost everything to be said in favor of making a town tax receipt a requirement in obtaining registration of an automobile with the state Motor Vehicle Department, and very little against that project, which is before the present Legislature. It would seem to provide a sane, reasonable and eminently fair means of securing the payment of local taxes on automobiles, a form of property notoriously elusive in many instances.

When, however, it comes to taxing automobiles according to weight, all the reasonableness in the original proposition disappears. We fall utterly to see the justice in such a proceeding and sincerely hope that the bill in question will be thoroughly amended in this particular before it is offered to the Assembly for passage.

It would appear as if the framers of the bill had lost sight of the whole principle of town taxation which, in theory, at least, is that the property best able to bear the weight of taxation should carry the heaviest share. Town taxes are based on values, and rightly so. The tax-by-weight provision of the bill departs entirely from this principle and sets up in its place a principle that might, conceivably, be made to apply to a road toll, but to a road toll only. It is none of the town's business, considering the problem as one of value taxation, whether an individual's car is apt to take as much wear out of a state road as some other car of far greater value. What the town is concerned with is to have the owner of a car pay taxes on it in proportion to its worth, the same as he does on his house or his stock of goods.

To tax the owner of a car having an actual market value of $500 the same amount as would be charged against another car of the same weight but of an actual value of $3,500—which would be not only entirely possible, but inevitable under the bill as it stands, is too obvious a piece of injustice to go far. It would be exactly as reasonable to assess an identical head tax against every individual weighing a hundred and twenty-five pounds and another identical head tax of twice as much against every two hundred pounder, irrespective of his wealth.

It will probably be argued that this proposed system of avoidance assessment possesses the merit of simplicity. We'll grant that it does. So does a club, but that does not justify the tax payer in taking one and going on a hunt for the author of this bill, whether it be the state tax commissioner or not.

It will be too bad if a perfectly good device of collecting legitimate town taxes on automobiles is ruined by the lazy and unjust method of assessing values which has been tacked to its tail.

MCNARY-HAUGEN PLAN. The McNary-Haugen bill which is expected will pass the House this week and so go to President Coolidge, having already passed the Senate, is simplicity itself in its fundamental elements, though it may prove far from simple in administration. Its idea is this: A "revolving fund" of $250,000,000 from the treasury of the United States is placed at the disposal of a board named by the President for the purpose of "balancing" the market prices of certain specified basic agricultural products by preventing the flooding of the market with surpluses.

Whenever the board shall decide that there is a surplus in any of these commodities it shall enter the market, purchase the quantity thereof deemed to be in excess of the normal demand, and either store it against a possible future shortage or sell it abroad for what it will bring.

The loss on such transactions is not supposed to come permanently out of the revolving fund, for the temporary impairment of the fund is to be made good by an "equalization" tax imposed on the whole crop so protected, the theory being that the growers can well afford to pay such tax because of the maintenance of the market price at a profitable level through the disappearance of the ruinous competition of the surplus.

Obviously elaborate machinery will have to be set up for the collection of the tax as well as for the business of handling the surplus, but the backers of the bill hold that the gain to the agricultural interests as a whole will more than compensate for all such expenses.

How it will work out, if President Coolidge permits it to become a law, is a matter for speculation. Probably the first effect will be a sharp increase in the cost of food of all kinds—because it is an economic truism that a surplus of any one food staple tends to hold down the prices of all competing foods, while the absence of all important surpluses tends to put prices up.

Another if less immediate result is likely to be the competition of the cheap food and raw materials dumped by this country on European markets, when they return to us in the form of applied labor or of fabricated raw material. In other words, if we sell wheat in Europe for half what we sell it for in America we are helping Europe to undercut us further in the matter of wages, and if we sell cotton in Europe for a third of what we charge our own mills for it, we open our own markets to the importation of European cotton goods produced so cheaply that they can undersell our own products despite all tariff protection.

But there is this consolation, even if the President should feel that the country needed a lesson and should sign the McNary-Haugen bill: We can stand the strain of such an economic blunder for so long a time as it will be necessary to demonstrate its injuriousness; and the mistake can be undone by the simple act of repealing the law.

WILL THEY FIGHT?

While the situation in Nicaragua has been somewhat obscured of late through the greater interest in the larger and more important proceedings in China, it is evident that the spirit of the warring elements in the little South American republic is growing more and more bitter and the conflict more desperate.

There is a tendency in this country to make light of Latin-American wars—to regard them as somewhat on the comic opera order. There could be no more serious mistake. Those peoples do not make gestures; they fight with a deadly purpose that is not merely a flash of fury but a matter of long continued and tenacious desperation.

It is doubtful if there ever was a more devastating conflict in history than the many angled series of wars in which Paraguay was plunged by its dictator, Francisco Solano Lopez, during the sixties in the last century. Lopez fought Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina separately and collectively until he was killed. During his wars every male Paraguayan capable of bearing arms was forced into the fighting and Lopez's final campaign was made with an army consisting almost of boys from 11 to 15 years of age. Women were used as beasts of burden to carry ammunition and stores.

When the war broke out Paraguay had about 1,337,000 people. At its end there were left less than 28,000 men, mostly very old or crippled, 106,000 women and 86,000 children.

This is an extreme example, of course, but it is well worth remembering when one is inclined to sneer at the "opera bouffe" wars of Latin-America.

MOST PARTICULAR "PARTICULAR."

Aside from the gravity of the situation produced by London's phenomenal week of fog, one is impelled to speculate on the feelings of those probably numerous American tourists of limited means whose schedule has caused their "seven days for seeing London" to come squarely into conflict with that period of impenetrable mist. To save a scanty supply of dollars, for the especial purpose of trailing Dickens from Gad's Hill to Soho and beyond, and then have to sit in a damp London inn for the whole of the mortal time, to see nothing of the great metropolis but the nearest gas light during the whole of one's stay, must be a most discouraging experience. Yet there are probably scores of budgeted tourists who have done just that thing. They can have, however, one consolation—they have witnessed the most particular "London particular" of all time.

GENTLEMAN FROM TEXAS.

It appears that, in the Blanton-Bloom go in a Congressional committee room on Tuesday, the chivalrous Mr. Blanton of Texas, who stands for all that is sweet and pure and lovely in life, including extreme dryness and active Kluxism besides a militant antipathy to Sabbath breaking, slugged Representative Sol Bloom while the latter was wearing eyeglasses. This would appear to remove the Texas Democrat from any chance of being accepted into membership by any gang of thugs in the country—if he has the aspirations which his actions would indicate. Even gangdom frowns on the practice of punching an individual handicapped with glasses without at least giving him opportunity to take them off.

LET'S SAY WE DID IT.

One of the first things done by German Nationalists after gaining a place in the cabinet under pledge to be good and work for peace, is to begin anew the agitation to get the confession of war guilt out of the treaty of Versailles.

There has been so much turmoil over this matter that we have long wondered whether America couldn't perform an heroic service and end this eternal wrangling, by announcing to the world that it was really she who started the war. A confession that it was actually American soldiers disguised in Austrian uniforms who bombarded Belgrade and Yankees wearing German field grey who smashed into Belgium might possibly serve to mollify the much maligned German Nationalists. And it wouldn't hurt us a bit in European estimation. Nothing could do that.

Your Income Tax

Bad debts may be deducted from gross income in computing net income only for the year in which they are ascertained to be worthless and charged off the books of the taxpayer. The taxpayer should attach to his return a statement showing the propriety of any deduction claimed for bad debts. Where the surrounding circumstances show that a debt is worthless and uncollectible, and that legal action, in all probability, would not avail, proof of these facts is sufficient of their worthlessness.

Unpaid loans made to relatives or friends with little or no expectation of their return are not deductible, but are regarded as gifts. If a debt is forgiven, it can not be claimed.

A valid debt proved to be worthless is not always a proper deduction. For example, unpaid amounts representing wages, salaries or rent or similar items or taxable income are not allowed as deductions unless included in the creditor's return for the year or in a previous year. The fact that expected income was not received does not decrease the amount of taxable income.

Partial deductions are allowed with respect to specific debts only on account of bad debts, or on account of a part of such bad debts previously charged off and allowed for income tax purposes, must be included in gross income for the year in which received.

Old Master's

NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 17.—In one of the largest and best known department stores in Manhattan no playing cards can be purchased. It seems the founder, now dead, promised his mother, who belonged to the Victorian era, that he would never handle them. However, I noted a number of cocktail shakers on display.

Speaking of prohibition; an amusing story has been going the rounds of Broadway concerning an incident in one of the several dozen speakeasies in the Times Square belt.

A couple of young men who had been doing quite a lot of serious drinking suddenly took out a set of dice and began to roll them. The proprietress, rushing from behind the bar, came over to them and whispered: "Say, you better stop gambling! The place is full of police."

Which further reminds me that one of the very smart New York weeklies now prints in each number the recipe for making some trick cocktail and is selling many copies thereby.

Europeans, visiting our shores, and unable to comprehend the nature of the drinking situation are most naive.

A visitor of more than average prominence was called upon by a newspaperman of our acquaintance the other day.

The new arrival produced a bottle of gin and the reporter's eyes brightened.

"Oh, the real stuff. Sneaked it in, I suppose?" suggested the newspaperman.

"No, indeed, I got it from the bell-boy!"

"You really should be careful," the reporter admonished.

"Oh," proudly boasted the naive one, "this must be good. See, it has a Gordon label."

The last word in movie theaters, soon to open off Broadway, will have college student ushers. Football hero types will be given the preference, according to a notice I saw pasted up on a bulletin board of New York University.

"They must be blonde, with straight noses," says the notice, giving the impression that the movie ushers of tomorrow may be asked to compete with the film heroes.

And, by way of final admonition to those who must keep up in the absolutely latest dance steps: Drop the black bottom and go in for the new simplified tango!

They're doing it absolutely everywhere, my dear. Such a vogue has become that one of the very popular tea dancing resorts is now sold out three times a week to tango clubs.

And I understand that two bankers and at least one Russian prince—yes, they're very common in New York, very common, indeed—have been seen at the Tuesday afternoon gathering at the Anderson galleries.

Which would seem to make it unanimous. GILBERT SWAN.

THAT DEPENDS

"How old are you?" inquired the visitor of his host's little son. "That is a difficult question," answered the young man, removing his spectacles and wiping them reflectively. "The latest personal survey available shows my psychological age to be 12, my moral age 4, my anatomical age 7, and my physiological age 66. I suppose, however, you refer to my chronological age, which is 8. That is so old-fashioned that I seldom think of it any more."—Hygeia.

The Relief Pitcher

WASHINGTON LETTER

This is the first of three articles by Rodney Dutcher, Washington correspondent for NEA Service and The Herald about Theodore F. Shuey, one of the capital's most interesting figures. As Senate reporter, Shuey has heard every speech delivered in the Senate in the last 59 years.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Feb. 17.—Way back in the reconstruction period, Vice President Charles G. Dawes, had been president of the Senate, would have frothed at the mouth, thrown a public fit and expired. Those were the days when senators started out on speeches which sometimes lasted four days.

Those were the days when the memory of Theodore F. Shuey, dean of the Senate's official reporters, who has been "in Congress" longer than any other man. Shuey is 82 years old and this is his 59th year of date-taking in the upper house. He came to the Senate in 1868, to the same Congress which had impeached President Andrew Johnson.

Tribute From Senate The only time he has since been flustered enough to stop taking his shorthand notes was the other day when he was called upon to pay him public tribute on the occasion of his birthday. For a time Shuey was all broken up over this; he hadn't wanted any publicity before his 60th year was up. But he got over that blow and finally talked with your correspondent.

The Senate has changed since those days of Allen G. Thurman, Thomas F. Bayard and other of Shuey's long-departed heroes. "Four-day speeches were common," the veteran reporter recalls. "Sometimes they ran all night. They fought out big political questions in those reconstruction days. There were many Republicans and only a bare handful of Democrats to defend the interests of the south. It was all very bitter."

"There's less oratory and more business now. They go right to the results and omit flowers. They used to waste a great deal of time."

Shuey remembers a four-day speech by Garrett Davis of Kentucky, but he can't remember the subject. He recalls, however, that when John A. Logan of Illinois spoke for four days, stopping only for recesses, he was talking about the Fitzhugh Porter case. There was nothing to stop the Garretts and Logans of the period.

Saved from Themselves. But as the two big parties became more evenly divided late in the seventies, unanimous consent were resorted to to save senators from regrets.

Shuey regrets most of all the passing of the great party leaders. There hasn't been one for the last 20 years, he says. Penrose, who ruled the Senate, was the last of the type.

"Never used to have any of these blocs," he says. "Not in the days of George F. Edmunds of Vermont, who was chairman of the Judiciary Committee. I notice we're getting more and more into the bloc form of government; there isn't the political integrity, the fealty to party that we had."

"There isn't the bitter partisanship, of course, and perhaps that's a good thing, but I've noticed that the men who remained loyal to their party always gained most in the end."

Shuey's is the one job many people wouldn't want. There are, indeed, few who could sit all afternoon listening to the senators spout.

"Two things have always appealed to me here," he says, "although I've had many tempting offers to leave."

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE. THE ARMORED ARMADILLO. A DEFENSELESS ANIMAL. By ARTHUR N. PACK. President, American Nature Ass'n. The Armored Armadillo is perhaps one of the most peculiar in appearance of all the wild creatures; but on the other hand his costume is not without purpose. The Armadillo seen in the southern part of our country is commonly called nine-banded. This is because in the middle of the shell covering the front and rear parts there are about nine rings, aligned one to another, by means of which the animal can bend and turn his body, even rolling himself together in a position of complete protection. This protection is extremely necessary, because the Armadillo is not equipped for fighting. He has no front teeth and his claws are fitted only for digging in the earth. But his coat of armor covers him entirely and is made up of horny plates, developed in the skin. In spite of this careful provision made by Mother Nature the Armadillo is nevertheless pitifully helpless when pursued by the most relentless of hunters—the souvenir collector. It is to satisfy the demands of these collectors that the Negro and Mexican hunters trap the Armadillo and make

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Lewis and Clark (10)

On the Missoula plains, on the return journey, the Lewis and Clark party divided. Clark, with part of the company, guided by Sacajawea, went down the Jefferson river and explore the Yellowstone. Lewis was to proceed toward the Great Falls of the Missouri river, then to the source of Maria's river.

Clark proceeded without mishap. But he missed the wonders of the Yellowstone Park, passing within a few miles of the phenomena.

John Colter, a member of Clark's party, who set off alone, was the first white man to behold the Yellowstone's marvels.

Colter, a Kentuckian, left Clark's party and took the trail up the Yellowstone, determined to follow it to its source. He trapped and hunted his food along the way. Meanwhile Lewis, having crossed the Great Divide, ran into a party of hostile Blackfeet, out to increase the glory of their tribe.

HUNGER STRIKE ENDS
Portland, Me., Feb. 17.—Benjamin H. Turner, the young Lowell, convicted of slaying James D. Halton, took a new lease on life today, his hunger strike of 123 hours over. Turner consented to take food when Judge Joseph E. F. Connolly, his senior counsel, said he could not make an appeal on exceptions to the law court on the very conviction if Turner continued to refuse food.

SEEK NEW SUSPECT
Boston, Mass., Feb. 17.—A new suspect in the slaying of 19-year-old Maybelle Matheson was sought today by police, who declined to state the nature of the new evidence unearthed.

JACK LOCKWILL'S SPEEDBOAT

by Gilbert Patten

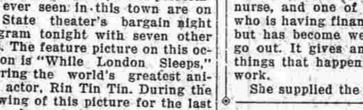

After he had received a sound thrashing in his fight with Jack Lockwill, "the Bad Egg" as Tom McNally was often called by the boys of Rocklake Academy, brooded over schemes of vengeance. One day Tom saw "Slants" Magovern, the freshman baseball pitcher, standing on the gymnasium steps while the team was at practice. The Bad Egg asked Slants what was the trouble.

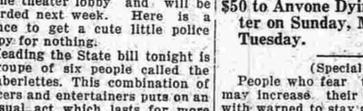

"Let's bury the hatchet, Tom," he said, "and let bygones be bygones." McNally put his hands behind him. "I'll shake hands with you!" he shouted, "and I'm going to get even with you sometime."

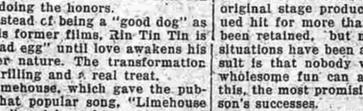

"That goes for me, too," said Magovern. "I'm sorry you feel that way," said Jack, turning away, already late for practice. A middle-aged stranger in black came up the steps. "Wasn't that young Jack Lockwill, boys?" he asked. "Sure it was," answered McNally, "and he's a rotter who's going to be run out of this school." "I regret to hear that," said the stranger.

COULD GET BREATH BUT WAS SHORT OF PANTS

"Well, this is Siamonds, I ain't got no pants."

STATE OFFERS EIGHT VAUDEVILLE NUMBERS
Rin Tin Tin in Feature—Special Bargain Night Bill This Evening.
The highest paid pair of performers ever seen in this town are on the State theater's bargain night program tonight with seven other acts. The feature picture on this occasion is "White London Sleeps," starring the world's greatest animal actor, Rin Tin Tin. During the showing of this picture for the last three days of the week Rin Tin Tin's mate will be at the State to greet the fans.

STATE THEATER OFFERS "McFADDEN'S FLATS"
$50 to Anyone Dying of Laughter on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.
People who fear that laughter may increase their girth is here with warned to stay away from the State theater when "McFadden's Flats" opens there on Sunday.
For this latest First National picture, filmed by the producing body of Asher, Small & Rogers, is one of the greatest laugh hits ever thrown upon the screen. Not only have all the comic situations that made the original stage production a continuing hit for more than thirty years been retained, but new and novel situations have been added. The result is that nobody who cares for wholesome fun can afford to miss this, the most promising of the season's successes.

COMEDIANS TEAMED
Two of the reasons for the complete success of this picture are Charlie Murray and Chester Conklin, who have been teamed up for the first time in this production. Charlie, always exuberantly funny, finds greater opportunities than ever in his association with the gifted Conklin.

IN BANKRUPTCY
New Haven, Feb. 17.—Elsie Hinman Denny, of Southbury, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in United States District Court today, with liabilities of $14,618 and assets of $1,204. Schedules say that all the liabilities are New York court judgments rendered against Elsie H. Dula, now known as Elsie Hinman Denny.

COLLEGIATE IS ONE OF CIRCLE'S FEATURES

Stars Bewitching Alberta Vaughn—Cullen Landis in "Obey the Law."

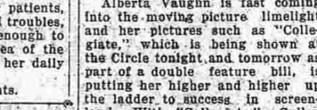

Alberta Vaughn is fast coming into the moving picture limelight and her pictures such as "Collegiate," which is being shown at the Circle tonight, and tomorrow as part of a double feature bill, is putting her higher and higher up the ladder to success in screenland. With "Collegiate," Cullen Landis appears in a drama of cockery in high places, "Obey the Law." Landis is usually a clever actor who can go through a picture and make something out of it besides a lot of hard work. He is an entertainer of high caliber and his pictures show the result of sincere application, without which no picture, however big and pretentious, is complete.

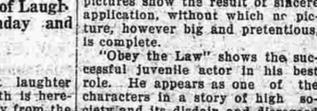

"Obey the Law" shows the successful juvenile actor in his best role. He appears as one of the characters in a story of high society and its disdain and disregard for the law. How the force of the law is brought vividly to those who openly defy it makes a film worth seeing.

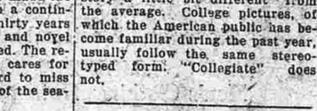

PLUMBING FIXTURES
Price alone should never govern either the selection of the fixtures or the plumber to do the work. Assurance of good material and workmanship is certain only when there is no false economy in buying plumbing and when good judgment selects the men to install it.

Question . . . . .

What is the difference between a so-called discount price and Garber Brothers' Everyday Price?

Answer . . . . .

A discount price represents a reduction from a higher price . . . while Garber Brothers' Everyday Price represents the lowest possible level at which good furniture can be sold.

A DISCOUNT price tells you that the original price was too high—it does not tell you that the reduced price is the lowest possible.

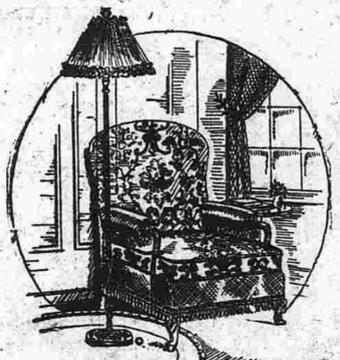

But Garber Brothers, instead of selling at high prices during some months of the year and at so-called discount reductions at other months . . . sell at the lowest possible prices to all every month of the year.

And in February, the month of "sales" everywhere except at Garber Brothers . . . scores of people come here for their furniture needs. There are no discounts to confuse them and therefore there are no disappointments.

Prices which are influenced by Economic conditions under which we operate, such as low rental overhead, low operating and selling expenses, manufacturing facilities, lack of show windows and unnecessary frills.

DISCUSSING TUNNEY'S OPPONENTS

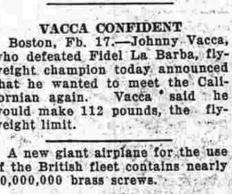

MALONEY SAYS SPEED WILL DEFEAT DELANEY
New York, Feb. 17.—Speed, speed, speed—that will beat Jack Delaney and Gene Tunney. There's the whole situation in a nutshell, according to the expert diagnosis of James Patrick Maloney, who figures when the charge of the six heavyweights is finished in the current elimination series, he alone will be left to toss gloves Tunneyward.

How did Tunney beat Dempsey? James asks and then hurries to answer his own question—"by beating him to the punch. Every time Dempsey started a left, Tunney winged over a lightning right and jarred him off balance. He out-speeded him—he put on his roller-skates when occasion demanded it and zipped away from him. Speed did it—and I have that advantage over Gene."

Mr. Maloney, it seems, has it all figured out but he's not talking rinky dink when it comes to celebrity. He can MOVE. For a big bologna he's pleased, that's all. Here is how he shapes up otherwise. He is 23; Gene is 27. He is six feet tall; Gene is also six feet above sea level. He weighs 200 pounds; Gene weighs 186. He has a reach of 72 inches; Gene lacks that by one-half inch. His chest is 41-44 and Gene's is ditto. Maloney would have, it seems, about 15 pounds advantage and all of that fighting bone and muscle is distributed so well that even Bernarr Macfadden stays away from the Garden the nights he fights.

In boxing skill, Maloney, always rated high, has acquired judgment of pace which is invaluable. His natural shiftness and timing of punches—all of which he owes to handball, he says—will not make him much of an underdog, if any. "I am revealing this for the first time," says Maloney, "and I think I owe every bit of success I've had when I come back to it. I learned when to BOX—and when to FIGHT."

PLAINFIELD TEAM MEETS 27-20 LOSS

Purple Collegians Win For Second Time; To Represent Jewett City In Annual Series.

(Special to The Herald) Plainfield, Feb. 17.—Trailing 19 to 6 in the first half, Plainfield came back strong and forced the crack Purple Collegians of Worcester, Mass., to exert themselves to win 27 to 20. Close to 400 fans witnessed the game.

Plainfield seemed to show the lack of practice. Teamwork was half on the part of Plainfield and the visitors profited thereof. Ben-ton and Madden were good on the defense while Stavitsky and Desinger were the high scorers for Plainfield. Brusco and Bernott started for the Purple Collegians.

The Purple Collegians will play for Jewett City against Plainfield in the annual series which gets underway in a few weeks. Last night's summary:

FEATURE RACE Boston, Mass., Feb. 17.—Word went forth today that Williams and Bowdoin in a one-mile relay race will be one of the features of the American Legion indoor meet here Feb. 22.

When you've tried everything you can think of and nothing seems to even relieve those piercing, agonizing pains, just go to North End Pharmacy, South Manchester Agents, Magnell Drug Co., or some other good druggist and get a bottle of Allenruh Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2, which comes in capsule form.

Take these little, dark green capsules as directed and in about 24 hours you should be able to notice that they have considerably reduced, if not almost banished, those persistent, nerve racking pains that have caused you many sleepless nights.

While this particular formula was compounded for the purpose of conquering painful Gouty conditions and what is known as Rheumatoid Arthritis—a knotty, painful swelling of the joints—it has proven wonderfully successful in most forms of Neuritis and Sciatic Nerve Pains.

You needn't be afraid of its containing dope of any kind—it doesn't. Such things are only makeshifts and at best can bring only partial relief.

Be sure you've got Neuritis and then get Allenruh Special Formula No. 2. North End Pharmacy, South Manchester Agents, Magnell Drug Co., can supply you.—adv.

YOUNG IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Swimming enthusiasts of Chicago paid tribute today to George Young, Toronto youth, winner of the $25,000 Catalina swim, by comparing him to Perry McGillivray, one of the greatest of swimmers.

Young appeared here last night in an exhibition in the Chicago Athletic Association pool, swimming 400 yards in 4:50 after swimming faster at the finish than the start.

Young uses the American six-beat crawl with a free, powerful arm movement. His style is almost identical with that of McGillivray.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE Death strikes GARRETT FOLSOM while bathing at Ocean Town, N. J. It is thought at first he is a stroke victim, but investigation shows he has been stabbed to death beneath the water.

Dan Pelton joined his aunt for luncheon and they sat in the public dining room.

ANASTASIA FOLSOM, eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command. At the inquest it is learned that the death weapon was a pocket-knife, and that it had been bought on the boardwalk.

Folsom family the better I like them! Poor dear Mr. Folsom was such a darling, and Miss Folsom is truly magnificent. And now, you, Mr. Pelton! You're the son of another sister!

"Yes, my parents died years ago, and my aunt and uncle have looked after me."

"Fortunate boy! Except, of course, this terrible tragedy. But we won't talk of it, shall we? For you must have some relaxation from the nerve strain and sorrow of the occasion."

"That's just it, Mrs. Barnaby." "Oh, call me Duchess, they all do."

"Glad to. Suits you, too. How well Mrs. Valdon is looking."

"Carmelita. Yes, she's in great form this summer. You're staying?"

"As long as you will be kind to me."

"Why, you little rascal! I do believe you're a flirt!"

Pelton was a flirt; so much so, that he said frivolous things without thinking, and always without meaning. It was second nature to him to compliment women, and young or old, he used the same jargon.

But he suddenly became aware that a sort of council was about to convene. Anastasia, intent on her own pursuit, had found Tite Riggs in his usual corner of the deck, and she pounced upon him, dragging the rest of her flock with her.

"Now, we must talk," she decreed. "We are secluded here, and I have gathered the ones I want about me. Who is this young man, may I ask?"

Anastasia had a way with her that often robbed of rudeness remarks that would have been inoffensive in another. She looked benignly, as she spoke, on Robin Sears, who had only a moment before paused to speak to Riggs, whom he knew.

"This is Mr. Sears," she was told, and as Robin was about to pass on, Miss Folsom laid a detaining hand on his shoulder.

"Please stay," she said, a little peremptorily. "You are the son of the Mr. Sears who bought daggers at the auction last Thursday night?"

"Yes, Miss Folsom; does that interest you?" Robin responded. One of Anastasia Folsom's characteristics, and perhaps one of her besetting sins, was a quickness to take offense.

She did so in this instance, and retorted, sharply: "Very much. Will you be good enough to grant me a short interview?"

"Of course he will," Tite Riggs answered for him, and a little bewildered, Robin sat down.

With a gesture that seemed to fling the rest of her crowd into nearby seats, Miss Folsom, sitting directly in front of Robin, began a fire of questions.

Again suspicion seems to fall on Croydon Sears, Robin's father. Read the next chapter.

This And That In Feminine Lore

For the perfect Permanent or Marcel, or any of these requires a well-groomed appearance. Visit the Lily Beauty Shop, upstairs in the House & Hale building. Mrs. Robinson gives the attention that brings splendid results.

If you make your own orange marmalade, which furnishes the pleasant touch to an otherwise prosaic breakfast, you can make it as bitter or mild as you prefer. Carrots scraped and put through the food chopper and simmered in just enough water to prevent burning will make a satisfactory stretchers of the oranges and neutralise their acidity if that is desired.

The between-meal habit of a smack of nourishment of some kind is receiving attention from large industrial and business circles. The glass of milk, bar of chocolate or ice cream sandwich in the middle of the forenoon and afternoon is believed by advocates of the plan to add materially to the efficiency of the laborer, the mechanic, stenographer or 'phone girl, just as the milk ration is being recommended during school hours to add to the children's vitality and high spirits.

If you are planning to entertain on Washington's birthday, this week's "A & P News" contains a number of suggestions for a patriotic party.

Horizontal stripes are favored not only for sport frocks of knitted material, but also for coats. The stripes are wider at the hem and work up to very narrow ones at the top of the coat where they come together and the upper part is plain; a style for a coat just one would soon weary of.

For evening an idea of a decade ago is being revived—that of wearing bows of illusion in the same manner as shoulder flowers. The tendency now is to have the bow or flower contrast with the color of the gown instead of matching it as perfectly as it has all winter.

Below is the Chocolate Waffle recipe given me by this column by Miss Thompson, the young lady who is at the Manchester Electric company's main street store all this week, making and serving waffles made on the Corona form. These she says are ideal with whipped cream for afternoon bridges.

- Chocolate Waffles 1 cup sugar, 1 1/2 cups pastry flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk. Melt the butter and add two squares of bitter chocolate. Mix and stir dry ingredients and add to this one cup of sweet milk and the beaten egg yolk. Beat thoroughly.

WOBBLY PARENTS

The Explanation of Unruly and Perplexed Children.

New York, Feb. 16.—Are you a wobbly parent? If so, don't wonder why you have unruly children, says Henry W. Thurston, prominent educator, that can deal with a grown person upon whose behavior he can depend is fortunate.

The place to convince the baby he has not a wobbler for a parent is in the cradle, Thurston says.

"Most babies cry," he points out, "because, without realizing they do so, parents encourage them to."

"After a baby has cried two or three minutes on the first night he is left alone, his mother goes to him and stays until he goes to sleep.

"The next night he doesn't go in three minutes, but waits five. Perhaps father does duty the third night. He can't stand it, so he goes in and keeps the baby company until he sleeps.

"The next night they agree the baby must go to sleep by himself. They stick it out fifteen minutes, then both soothe him.

Crying Best Policy "Small wonder the baby thinks to himself—'Just what sort of parents did I draw? Sometimes they come in five, sometimes ten, and sometimes 15 minutes.' His conclusion is that his salvation lies in crying until they come."

"Wobbly parents," he concludes, "can work a good healthy baby up to 20, 30 and 40 minutes of crying before he falls asleep from physical exhaustion."

and fold in the stiffly whipped egg whites. Bake two minutes on the waffle iron and serve with whipped cream or ice cream.

The married couple or individual who never in the course of their lives build a house, whether it be a humble cottage or a pretentious mansion, miss a great deal. I admit that many have the longing to buy or build homes of their own and yet are never financially so that they can realize their dreams. It is increasingly difficult for the average workingman to accumulate enough for a home. If he and his wife do not save systematically in the early years of their married life, the chances are that they will not be able to do so as the children grow older and the demands on the family income become greater.

Unquestionably, the great help of the small home builder today is the reliable building and loan association, for he can gradually pay off the debt on his home regularly every month just as he would pay for a rented house.

The house plans we show on the home page from time to time are practical and within the reach of the average home builder. We will give one of these days a physician's home which is ideal for the purpose.

The plan is equally good for any family, the doctor's office addition might be the family closed-in porch, or any home having the porch on one side might have the small addition on the opposite side for the needs of a physician. However, in Manchester and in most towns and cities of its size, physicians prefer to have their offices in the business district in professional or other buildings and the office is seldom a part of the doctor's home.

If you contemplate sometime building a home, save these plans that appeal to you. You will enjoy studying them and comparing one with another, or adding the good features of some plans to an ideal home you may have in mind.

Miss Thompson gave me another recipe for use in this column, which seems to me will be particularly good for breakfast—bran waffles. She has also promised to furnish me for Saturday's Herald the Gingerbread waffle recipe, which you will also want to clip for your files.

- Bran Waffles 1 cup flour, 1 cup prepared bran, 1/2 cup sugar, 4 tablespoons shortening, 1 egg, 1 cup sour milk, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, Cream shortening and sugar lightly. Beat the egg. Mix the dry ingredients, add bran to the creamed shortening and the milk. Serve plain with butter or maple syrup.

The WOMAN'S DAY

ALLEN SUMNER

"Does He Have a Thousand-dollar Bill, Susie Girl, Susie Girl?" This is the companion song to "Can She Bake a Cherry Pie, Billy Boy, Billy Boy?" which will soon be sung in the interesting state of Kansas, if the legislature and the governor approve a certain bill now before the senate.

No couple will be given a marriage license, according to this bill, unless they can prove that they have at least $1000 either on deposit in a bank or in a good investment.

And I, for one, am not so sure that the bill is so very dumb! Most of us have observed that the kids who get married with their velvet rugs and spinet desks paid for and with a few figures in the bank book, stay married considerably longer than the ones who borrow $3 for the license and "buy on time."

When debt comes in to the door, love flies out the window—very often, not always.

Spring Flowers, Tra, Lal! You, yum. Spring has come for "us girls" at the department store flower counters. Not real flowers but nosegays for the coat collar and the dress shoulder give almost as big a thrill, especially if you besprinkle your floweret with perfume to match. What if it be wilted, still, pin spring on your coat!

Marvel and Java Mrs. Harding, former First Lady of the Land, is characterized as the First Lady by the recently resigned housekeeper of the White House who is scandalizing Washington with her memoirs. The lady author tells of the massess and haidresser who came to the White House every day of the week and spent at least an hour beautifying the president's wife.

She tells, too, of the same First Lady's life, because the White House coffee canister emptied to quickly. "You should get sixty cups to the pound," she informed Mrs. Jaffray, the housekeeper.

The stories are told merely to give Mrs. Jones a chance to say, "well, I guess any woman could look well-groomed and well-dressed if she had that attention every day, and it's these people who don't make the coffee who can tell you how it should be done!"

"The demands of society become irrational when one marries. Society demands that home-making, especially for the young married woman of average means, be a full-time job. Having conceded that women have brains and should therefore be educated, it now says that this training, together with the expense of it, be forgotten, or at least sublimated in an endless round of homely household tasks. If for economic reasons, or for the sake of intellectual satisfaction, the married woman attempts to keep up her professional interests, she finds herself the slave of two masters, for the vocational world, in its turn, demands full time or none.

In Defense! I stole the above quote from a current magazine just to show my gentle readers that other women, too, say the same thing that I so often say in this column, only to reap reproachings and revellings from the married sisterhood. They insist that I am casting mud at their noble profession, that I forgot that washing dishes and scrubbing floors are not all that a wife and mother does, and that her intelligence is used in the influence which she wields upon her home's occupants. Which is all probably true—only I fail to see how wage-earning wives lose any of this power of influence, simply because they pay for their washed dishes rather than do it themselves.

Good Nature and Good Health

MILK IS IN A CLASS BY ITSELF AS A FOOD

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Milk is said to be a perfect food. By this is meant that it contains all the essential elements, which if taken in sufficiently large amounts, allow normal growth and symmetrical development.

Health and even the maintenance of life itself may depend on the presence of certain indispensable constituents of diet.

The adequacy of a food or of a diet depends on its contents: 1. Enough of the right sort of material to build up and repair the tissues of the body. The chief body-building substance is called protein. Milk, cheese, meat, fish and eggs furnish the most valuable forms of protein.

2. A variety of mineral substances which are needed in the growth, maintenance and functioning of the parts of the body, such as the skeleton, lungs, brain, thyroid gland and muscles, and the blood and other body fluids.

3. An adequate amount of certain substances whose nature is not fully known but whose presence in the diet has been demonstrated to be necessary for health and growth in the lower animals and in man. These substances, known as vitamins or accessory diet factors, are indispensable elements in food, although sometimes they are present only in minute amounts.

4. Enough material to furnish the energy required by the body. Fat, starch and sugar are the chief energy foods, and these are transformed in the body into energy for its activities and into body heat. A large part of the protein in food is used, even during the growth period, for energy processes.

5. Only substances that are not poisonous to the average individual and that will allow normal digestive processes.

In addition, to be properly digested and of the utmost nutritive value, food should be of pleasing taste and of a consistency and appearance similar to other foods in customary use.

Clean milk fulfills all these requirements better than any other single article of food.

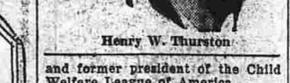

LETTUCE GREENS Boil a quantity of lettuce, strain and chop. Chill on ice and marinate with a rich French dressing. Serve in a mold on a lettuce leaf with Russian dressing. This is one of the most healthful of salads.

SENSE and NONSENSE

It's a good thing to save money, but it's a better one to pay it on debts if you owe them.
Nothing less than a national crisis would cause women to wear cotton stockings after Paris had said silk ones were the fashion.

No matter how high up you get, you are never above suspicion.

INDOOR SPORTS
"I'm very fond of indoor sports," Nan said and oh, her eyes were brighter far than any star. That shines up in the skies!

"And all I ask," Nan babbled on, The while my dreams were smash, "Is that they have a lot of pep And also lots of cash."

It was 11:45 p. m. and the conversation in the parlor was lagging. "A penny for your thoughts," she remarked.

"Why, I was just thinking of going home," said he. "Give him a dollar, Mary," her father called from the top of the stairs. "It's a bargain."

The parson and the judge were discussing their respective bowers. Each vied with the other in pointing out what each could do.

"After all," said the parson, "you can only send a man to jail, but I can consign him to hell."

"Yes," replied the judge, "but when I send him to jail he goes."

ACCELERATOR POME
I overheard two women talk; "It's just too bad!" said one, "Each time I go to take a walk; The way these stockings run."

Jack had a large bump on his forehead. "Did you get that riding on your kiddie car?" I asked.

"No," answered the child, "When I fell off."

THE TINYMITES

The small balloons the Tynites held rose quickly. That's why Copsy yelled, "For goodness sake, hang on real tight. The ground is 'way below. We can't be hung up in the air. There's nothing here to bring a scare, so let's just keep on floating 'till we find out where we'll go. How queer it seemed to float on high, among the clouds up in the sky. A bit of breeze was blowing and the Tynites picked up speed. They all went swinging to and fro. First very fast, then very slow. 'till finally Copsy's red balloon was blown up in the lead. And then they started dropping down. Said Copsy, "We are o'er a town. I plainly see some buildings and a steeple an da farm. I wish the wind would get real strong, so we'd rise up where we belong. I fear if we drop lower, we will surely come to harm." The trip, by now, was getting tough for they had dropped down

IN TIME OF FEW FIRES DEPARTMENT PREPARES

Though South End Has Only 3 Alarms This Year It Plans Hydrants, etc.

Chief Albert C. Foy of the South Manchester Fire Department said today that plans were under way for improving the fire protection of the South end. Several new hydrants and fire alarm boxes are to be installed early this spring. Chief Foy said they will not be assigned to any one territory but will be distributed about town where most needed.

The months of January and February have been very dull insofar as fire alarms are concerned. There have been but three alarms this year and those have all been "stills." Chief Foy reports that many other towns and city fire departments about the state are also more or less idle.

At present about the only activity at the fire houses is the annual inspection of the La France fire apparatus by its manufacturers. The South Manchester Fire Department owns four La France engines and it will take a day to inspect each one thoroughly. Then the pumps will be tested as to capacity. This will require another day, a total of five days.

Orford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution has plans under way for what promises to be an unusually delightful entertainment for Washington's birthday, an anniversary which it is their custom to celebrate annually. It will be given in the afternoon at the Center Congregational parish hall, and as each of the members has the privilege of inviting two guests, the gathering will be large.

Miss Lella Church of Rockville, who is no stranger to Manchester audiences, will present "Three Hundred Years of Style" in a series of tableaux, readings and ballads. Miss Church, who is an author of plays and pageants, prepared the manuscript and directed the pageant for Sabra Trumbull Chapter, D. A. R., of Rockville last month and it was well received.

The illustrated scenes begin three hundred years ago with a tableau of Priscilla Alden, while the descriptions of women's dress from the early ages to the present time are given by readings, interspersed by old songs and other numbers, the whole program being very pleasing.
