

REED DIRECTS ANOTHER JAM IN CONGRESS

Senate Facing 48 Hour Session; Democrats Join With Insurgents In Filibustering Bloc Today.

Washington, Mar. 2.—Threatening the Senate with a continuous forty-eight-hour session until the Sixty-Ninth Congress dies at noon Friday, a Democratic Insurgent Coalition battled this afternoon for adoption of a resolution extending the powers of the Reed campaign fund committee throughout the coming summer.

After an administration filibuster had blocked the transaction of any business for an hour and a quarter by forcing the reading of the journal, the Senate finally voted 56 to 25 to consider the resolution.

The filibustering bloc was led by Senators Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, and Moses, Republican of New Hampshire. Planned by Combine

This continuous forty-eight hour session of the Senate, unprecedented in the history of the Senate, was planned by a coalition of Democratic and Insurgent leaders in order to smash the administration filibuster against a resolution extending the investigating powers of the Reed campaign fund committee throughout the duration of the next Congress.

A small group of administration senators, led by Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, and Moses, Republican of New Hampshire, fought this resolution, it was said in the belief that further campaign investigations would only furnish the Democrats with political mileage for the 1928 presidential race.

The legislative functions of Congress were crippled by this filibuster, because in retaliation the Democrats and insurgents refused to permit action on any other controversial matters—with the sole exception of the Andrews prohibition reorganization bill, which was protected by a closure against all filibusters.

Jam Grows Worse

Because of the filibusters—virtually every bill having some force ready to talk it to death—the Senate was caught in the worst legislative jam in many years. Some of the important matters facing disposition were the exonerations of Senator Arthur H. Chandler, Republican of Maine; the citation of Senator Insull, Chicago utility magnate; Daniel F. Schuyler, his attorney, and Thomas W. Cunningham, Philadelphia court clerk, for contempt; action on President Coolidge's veto of the farm relief bill; the Borah resolution amending the Senate foreign relations committee power to investigate Latin-American affairs during the recess; the La Follette resolution protesting against a third term for President Coolidge and the Walsh resolution proposing an investigation of all electric power companies.

In the House, there was less confusion but its efforts at enacting legislation were futile because of the Senate deadlock.

CHALLENGES GOVERNOR TO PRODUCE EVIDENCE

Representative Hays Gives Out Latest Statement in "Battle of Beacon Hill."

Boston, Mass., March 2.—A challenge to Governor Alvan T. Fuller that he produce the evidence he claims to have against Representative Martin as "a paid lobbyist" was made today by Representative Hays. The verbal bomb thrown this afternoon by the House leader in the now famous "battle of Beacon Hill."

Governor Fuller had no comment to make, resting on his gun for the present. Senator Alvin E. Bliss, also under fire from the gubernatorial ramparts, said: "My time will come. I won't talk now."

Meanwhile, Republican party chiefs were reported trying to arrange an armistice in preparation of peace parleys, some leaders declaring the battle on the hill threatens the traditional hold of the G. O. P. on the government of the state.

ACTRESS INDICTED

New York, March 2.—An indictment charging Mae West star of "Sex", W. C. Morganster, producer, and twenty-four members of the cast with producing an indecent play, and maintaining a public nuisance was handed down today by the grand jury.

JUDGE BOWERS'S CONDITION

The report from the Manchester Memorial hospital this afternoon at 2:30 was that there was absolutely no change in Mr. Bowers's condition. It is just three weeks ago this morning since he lapsed into an unconscious state and he has neither spoken to or recognized any one since.

POOR WORKING GIRL IS UP AGAINST IT

New York, Mar. 2.—What chance has the poor little working girl against the hordes of subway mashers? This was the question of Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles revivalist, after an inspection of New York's underground railroads during the rush periods.

"Subways are the mashers' playgrounds. Girls must go through hell to get to work and home. There should be separate cars for men and women."

PLAN TERROR CAMPAIGN TO FORCE STRIKE

Wholesale Murder Plot Unearthed In Shanghai When Slayer Is Caught Redhanded; Situation Unchanged.

Shanghai, March 2.—A wholesale murder and terrorization campaign instigated by agitators aiming to enforce a general strike as soon as the Nationalist army succeeds in capturing Shanghai was uncovered here today through the arrest of an assassin, caught redhanded. The assassin had just killed a mill foreman.

Agitators' Plan

It was also revealed that the agitators planned to set up a local government by committee. The assassin confessed to the murder, telling the court he received ten dollars for the crime.

Military Situation

The military situation still brewed today. A battalion of Shanghai infantry has been detached to Sungkiang, forecasting active participation by the Fengtien troops in the defence of Shanghai.

San Retreating

London, March 2.—Sun Chuan-fang's entire army, numbering 24,000 is reported withdrawing from Sungkiang, according to a dispatch from Shanghai today, following the reported desertion of General Meng Chao-Yueh, Sun's field commander. Sun's army may be replaced by Chang Tsung-Chang's Shanghai forces who now are pouring into the Sungkiang by the thousands.

Central News Dispatch

A second line of defence for Shanghai is being organized along the Hsibin road where barricades are being erected.

WIDOWS BOO PREMIER AT SCENE OF ACCIDENT

Stage Hostile Demonstration At Mine Where 50 Men Were Buried Alive.

Evms Vale, England, March 2.—Premier and Mrs. Baldwin were subjected to an hostile demonstration this afternoon when they visited the scene of the CWM colliery disaster.

Hundreds of overwrought and grief-stricken miners and widows of victims of the disaster were gathered in groups about the pit-head, waiting in vain hopes of some news of rescue of the men still entombed, when the premier and his wife dropped up.

CLAIM DAMAGES

Washington, Mar. 2.—American oil concerns have filed a dozen claims for damages arising out of Mexico's application of the new land and petroleum laws, it was learned here today.

The department also maintained unusual secrecy concerning the note sent to the Mexican government Monday night, refusing to reveal the subject of the communication.

TEL. AND TEL. CO. FIRST IN BILLION ROW

Has Largest Capital Stock; No Individual or Family Fortunes; Army of Stock Holders Get the Benefit.

New York, March 2.—Though the first of American industrial corporations to reach the billion-dollar class, in point of actual outstanding capital stock, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company has created no great individual or family fortune like the oil, steel or other industries.

Reviewing the accomplishments of 1926 for the benefit of its vast army of stockholders, President Walter S. Gifford, in his annual report today, points out that although the telephone was one of the greatest inventions of an age of large fortunes, the inventor and the original backers never made a great fortune from it. In fact, says Gifford, there are not any telephone fortunes.

President Capital.

By the sale of an additional $142,730,300 of stock last year, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company pushed its total outstanding stock to the huge sum of $1,064,327,800. The company is therefore the first to reach the billion-dollar class, and in this respect towers over the United States Steel Corporation, General Motors Corporation and the Standard Oil.

When the Steel Corporation distributes its forty per cent stock dividend in April, it will have a total of about $720,000,000 in common stock and $350,000,000 preferred stock, a grand total of $1,070,000,000 stock in the hands of investors.

A Comparison.

General Motors Corporation at the present time has outstanding $700,000 shares of common stock, no par value, and about $10,000,000 in preferred stock. Figuring the common stock at par, General Motors total outstanding stock would aggregate $90,000,000, or within $100,000,000 of a billion.

Standard Oil of New Jersey has total outstanding common and preferred stock of $704,000,000 and Standard Oil of New York $419,000,000, all common stock.

Computed at current quotations of 15c, the market value of American Telephone & Telegraph stock is approximately $1,600,000,000. General Motors Corporation, at current quotations is rated at $1,590,000,000 and both of these valuations put into the shade the billion dollar offer made by the bankers for the Ford Motor car property.

Total Assets

Total assets of the Bell Telephone system at the end of 1926 were in excess of three and a quarter billion dollars, according to Gifford's official report.

The Bell Telephone system's net earnings in 1926 aggregated $204,870,000; an increase of twelve per cent over the previous year. American Telephone & Telegraph Company reported net earnings last year of $188,931,388 and net income of $116,990,400 equivalent to $1.74 a share on the stock, against dividend requirements of $9 a share.

New Stockholders

The company added 36,942 new names to its stockholders' lists last year, and closed the year with 399,121 stockholders, thus holding the record of the largest stockholders' list of any corporation in the world.

With the addition of 781,000 telephones in the Bell system last year, the total number of telephones interconnected with the system at the end of the year was 1,574,000, according to Gifford's illuminating report.

VANDERBILT ANXIOUS TO BE FREE OF WIFE

Instructs Lawyers to Give Her Evidence So She Will Be Able To Divorce Him.

Paris, Mar. 2.—William K. Vanderbilt, 2nd, has paved the way for his wife to divorce him, according to reports current here.

The Vanderbilts have been separated for some time and it is now reported that Vanderbilt has placed evidence and papers in the hands of a Paris attorney, which would be made available to Mrs. Vanderbilt for use in a divorce action. He is also reported to have urged the attorney to attempt to persuade Mrs. Vanderbilt to take divorce action.

Mrs. Lansdowne Weds.

Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne, widow of the heroic Commander Zachary Lansdowne, of the ill-starred dirigible Shenandoah, and John Caswell, Jr., of Boston, following their marriage in Washington. The couple's smiles are occasioned by the persistence of news photographers whom they evaded at the marriage, but who surprised them as they were about to enter the Union Depot to depart for New York and a three months' honeymoon abroad.

Radio Still In Its Infancy Says Edison In Interview

Famous Inventor Says It Does Not Compare With Phonograph Yet—Talking Movies an Ancient Invention.

Fort Myers, Fla., Mar. 2.—Past his eightieth milestone in life but still striving to turn out devices surpassing the gifts he already has given mankind, Thomas A. Edison, world famous inventor, paused in his work long enough at his winter home here today to give International News Service his views on radio, acknowledge that he chews tobacco, and predict that the talking picture never will replace the silent drama in the esteem of the theater-going public.

Edison looks upon radio in its present stage, at least, with a skeptical eye. He believes that perfection in radio will not come in the near future and frowns on the existing radio craze. "It will never be a success, he says, until distortion is eliminated and means for the extinction of static.

Not Worth While

The radio of today is not worth while in Edison's opinion, because of the fact that it does not carry the natural sound. A voice over the radio does not ring true, he declares, and until the foreign sounds which creep over the waves in the air are conquered, radio will never take the place of the mechanical devices for the reproduction of sound and voices.

The greatest problem to be solved in the perfection of the system, he believes, is the long distance message work. The greatest trouble in the short wave, he pointed out, is the skip distance most noticeable between one and fifty meters.

Still In Infancy

"Despite the fact that the radio is far from being perfected and is still in its infancy, it is a mighty good thing for those who like it," Edison said. "It is a good thing for the young people because it is constructive and gives them something serious to think and read about. It also tends to keep the young people at home at nights, which is a mighty big thing to do in these modern times."

He chuckled as he bit off a piece of tobacco from his plug and offered it to W. H. Grogan, local radio expert and officer in charge of the Fort Myers naval reserve radio station.

Chews Tobacco

"Yes, I chew tobacco," he said. "I learned to chew when I was an operator with the Western Union many years ago. I worked in an

NAMELESS HERO FAKE, HE SAYS

Rep. Johnson Tells Congress "Jerry Tarbot" is Also Draft Dodger and Bigamist.

Washington, March 2.—"Jerry Tarbot," the so-called nameless and memory-less war veteran whose efforts to re-establish his identity have attracted nationwide attention, was denounced as "a draft dodger and a fak" today by Representative Royal Johnson, Republican of South Dakota, chairman of the House committee on veterans relief, during a hearing on a bill to amend Federal government compensation.

Johnson asserted he made his statements advisedly and upon the strength of a long investigation conducted by Department of Justice agents.

While the appearance of "hopefulness" must be kept up, actually there is little prospect of any success in the direction of disarmament for a long time to come. Nothing short of a complete change of government in both France and Italy would be calculated to make these countries more amenable to the American suggestion, it is believed here.

Expect Nothing

Nobody in Washington—and that includes the diplomatic corps as well as the administration—expects anything concrete or tangible to result from the discussions to be renewed at Geneva three weeks hence under the auspices of the League of Nations. France and Italy and the smaller continental powers that are allied with them are expected to dominate the Geneva discussion just as they dominated it last summer. The fact that the small continental powers have no navies, yet gravely vote on naval questions is humorous to the British, American and Japanese delegates, but it is nevertheless efficacious in preventing any real accomplishment.

DIRT ROAD ADVOCATES LOSE FIGHT IN HOUSE

Cops "Chicken Hearted, Yellow," Harvard Boys, Finest in World

Cambridge, Mass., Mar. 2.—Twenty-five Harvard students accused of disorderly conduct in the so-called Harvard riot case were found not guilty by Judge Arthur P. Stone in third district court this afternoon. They had not presented a defense.

Of the fourteen remaining defendants three others were found not guilty. Five were sentenced to serve ten days in the House of Correction and the remainder were fined sums varying from one dollar in the case of "Ari" French, senior class president and football hero to $25. All those found guilty appealed.

Oliver D. Ferguson of Paduchah, Ky., accused of injuring two policemen with kicks and who was beaten up, was found not guilty.

Cambridge, Mass., March 2.—"Chicken-hearted and white livered" police were contrasted to the flaming "spirit of youth, the finest thing in the world," by Judge Frederick H. Chase, attorney for the thirty-five defendants in the so-called Harvard Square riot cases in the closing arguments in third district court today.

Terling Patrolman James A. Proyer, the coward who ran," Judge Chase asserted that when his hat was knocked off "the majesty of the law was offended and he lost his hat and his head."

"The spirit of youth," declared the lawyer, "is the finest thing in the world and will not be crushed by the thirty-five students in the hands of police officers."

President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard, arrived in the courtroom as a spectator as the attorney began his impassioned plea for verdicts of not guilty against the thirty-five students and four of their friends.

"STILL HOPEFUL" FOR DISARMAMENT

President Optimistic But Diplomats Say There Is No Chance of Conference.

Washington, March 2.—President Coolidge is "still hopeful" that a way will be found to bring the five great powers around a conference table to discuss limitation of their auxiliary naval ships—but it is a forlorn hope and one that even Mr. Coolidge sees no chance of realizing this year.

Little Hope

This much was conceded today by those most intimately concerned in the efforts to extend the work of the Washington conference. While the appearance of "hopefulness" must be kept up, actually there is little prospect of any success in the direction of disarmament for a long time to come. Nothing short of a complete change of government in both France and Italy would be calculated to make these countries more amenable to the American suggestion, it is believed here.

MILLION IN BOOZE SEIZED ON VESSEL

Four Revenue Cutters Board Steamer 300 Miles From Shore—Arrest Crew.

San Francisco, Cal., March 2.—The cutter Cahokia, with the rum runner Federalship in tow, was steaming towards San Francisco harbor today after making one of the biggest liquor seizures in the history of coast guard operations. It is estimated the seized vessel is carrying a cargo of Scotch whiskey valued at $1,500,000.

The revenue cutters closed in on the Federalship yesterday, coast guardsmen boarded the vessel, seized Captain S. S. Stone and eight members of the crew under hatches and took possession of the craft for alleged violations of the United States customs laws. The vessel, according to word received here, was seized three hundred miles from shore.

COMPANY EXCITED.

Vancouver, B. C., March 2.—Consternation was rampant in the offices of the Consolidated Exporters, Inc., today when it was learned that the Federalship, carrying 11,000 cases of whiskey, had been seized by United States coast guardsmen. The vessel cleared from here for San Salvador on February 22nd.

Officers of Consolidated declared they were at a loss to explain the seizure, pointing out that all customs requirements had been met and clearances properly secured. The liquor the Federalship carried, according to R. Swanson, manager of Consolidated, was legally received here.

Takes Nearly Two Hours of Debate to Settle Question; Matter Is Finally Put Up To the State Highway Department.

Hartford, Conn., March 2.—Advocates of "dirt roads" lost their fight in the Lower House here today to obtain a share of the state's receipts from motor vehicle licenses and the gasoline tax for use by selectmen in repairing gravel roads.

The House, after nearly two hours of debate, voted to accept an amendment offered by John F. Lynch, of Orange, appropriating the sum of two million dollars for construction of gravel roads under direction of the state highway department. The amended bill was referred to the appropriations committee.

No action was taken on the original bill which was indefinitely reported from the roads, rivers and bridges committee. The order of the day for this noon.

Motion by Representative Harry Durant, favoring the "dirt roads" group, which would have sent the bill back to the committee for settlement, was lost by about a three to one vote.

Battle Opens

Ernest L. Averill, of Branford, House chairman, opened the battle with the statement that there would be no parliamentary difficulties to obstruct the moves or actions of any member. He then moved that the question be divided on House Bill Number 43, which provides that $3,000 appropriated to each town for gravel road construction, the money to be taken from the motor vehicle fees and the gasoline tax. The division of the question meant that separate action would be taken on acceptance of the committee's report, and on the acceptance or rejection of the bill itself.

Representative Warner, of Hamden, for the committee, declared that the committee had something should be done for the "back roads" but that the plan proposed is not the proper one. Dr. Higgins, of Coventry, leader of the "back roads" fight, offered a new substitute bill providing for the use of five per cent of the motor fees and gasoline tax, no towns to receive more than $2,000, and each town to appropriate an amount equal to the state grant.

Dr. Higgins' plea

Dr. Higgins made an impassioned plea on the state's behalf, pointing out difficulties which small towns are laboring because of improper transportation difficulties. Children had hard work getting to school, farmers could not bring their products to market, physicians had to travel long distances, and "it is almost impossible for members of some communities to inter-visit."

Mr. Lynch, of Orange, was opposed to any plan which would mean the state towns "should come here and fight for their inclusion in trunk line system." He offered a substitute which would appropriate $2,000,000 for state-aid or gravel roads. "This will improve present conditions and act as a temporary stop until such time as all roads can be included in the trunk line system," he said.

Sways House

Harry Durant, of Guilford, swayed the House and received applause when he moved that the whole matter be recommitted to the committee on roads, rivers and bridges. He declared it to be still the problem of his committee, that he didn't propose they "should duck it" and that "they should not come here year after year and do nothing with a problem which has now become an ugly situation."

Rev. G. B. Gilbert, of Middletown, favored Dr. Higgins' substitute. Representative Hough, of Washington, opposed Dr. Higgins. Dr. Citron, of Middletown, favored Dr. Higgins' measure. Mr. Hoyt, of New Haven, favored "clearing

One day we held a meeting and decided that we would all quit smoking and turn to the plug. I grew to like it and have never stopped. Yes, I have stomach trouble, have had it for six years. They say it comes from chewing too much tobacco, but I don't believe it, and the general electricity smilingly patted his stomach.

Will Be a Success. "I believe the experiment will prove highly successful. I am certain that voices can be reproduced to fit in just the right place with the play on the screen, but the American people do not want it and will not welcome it, which means that we are wasting our time in going on with the project."

HARTFORD LIKES SERIES OF FRAUD EXPOSURES

Executive Vice President of City Organization Attracted By Chamber Articles.

If anyone doubts that the campaign being carried on jointly by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and The Herald for the suppression of fraudulent stock and merchandise sales, is attracting attention, they should read the file of letters of commendation which have been received from Chambers of Commerce and other organizations.

The latest addition to this file comes from near home. William H. Corbin, executive vice president of the Hartford Chamber of Commerce sends the following letter, under date of February 25th:

DIRT ROAD ADVOCATES LOSE FIGHT IN HARTFORD

on a bill which would change the open season on trout from April 1 to April 15, and on a bill providing penalties for soliciting sale of tickets on highways. The House agreed with the Senate and rejected bills which would increase penalties for hold-ups and arson cases.

Miss Richardson is a brilliant violinist as well as an exceptionally gifted pianist.

DOES FIND LIST OF REVOLUTION'S DEAD

It's In Manchester History After All, and Bay Stater Will Receive Copy.

Editor, The Evening Herald,
Dear Sir:
Please allow me to retract my statement of yesterday in regard to not finding a list of Manchester's Revolutionary War dead in the History of Manchester. This information is obtainable on pages 77 and 78 and is indexed under Part 2 Chapter 6 which is entitled "Farm and Village Life" which was partly responsible for my not having found this information sooner. I expected to find this list of Revolutionary War dead indexed the same as the Civil War and World War soldiers indexed in Chapter 9 and 16.
C. S. Warner, town accountant of Northfield, Mass., who seeks this information will receive a copy of the "History of Manchester" in a few days, the gift of Miss Mary Cheney.
Very truly yours,
SAMUEL J. TURKINGTON

MISS LEVIN TO PLAY IN HARTFORD RECITAL

Miss Ida Levin of Hartford, whose local studio is in the State Theater building, will give a piano recital at the Y. W. C. A. in Hartford, March 13 at three o'clock, to which she cordially invites her Manchester friends.
The assisting artist will be Miss Ida Yudowitch, soprano, formerly a soloist in the choir of the South Methodist church here. Her accompanist will be Mrs. M. B. Yaw, and one of her numbers will be a composition by Professor Edward F. Laubin of Hartford.
The recital is under the auspices of the Julius Harsh School of music and although a number of complimentary tickets have been issued, a general invitation is extended to music lovers.

SCHOOL DEBATERS MAKE EVEN SCORE

So. Manchester High Wins and Loses In Contest With Willimantic.

South Manchester High and Willimantic Normal school split fifty-fifty in their home-and-home debate last night. Each team won 3 to 0 on its own rostrum.
The question which was debated was: "Resolved, That our government should cancel the Allied war debts to the United States." It is the same subject which will be debated in the Triangular Debate March 16.

Manchester's affirmative team which went to Willimantic last night was composed of Robert Mercer, George Flavel, Joe McCluskey and Elinor Dwyer. The Normal school went through the efforts of Ruth Vinegrad, Alice Hayden, Elinor Sullivan, and Ruth Pretchnol. Manchester was stronger in the rebuttal but Willimantic was superior in primary presentation of the case. George H. Shafer, principal of Willimantic Normal school, was the presiding officer. The judges were Judge George E. Hinman, Willimantic, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, Willimantic and Professor Irving G. Davis, Storrs.

STATE CHAMBER ACCEPTS HOWELL CHENEY REPORT

Approves of New Compensation Bill Which Removes Bad Features of Old Law.

Hartford, March 2.—Acting for William BroSmith, Vice-President of Travelers Insurance Company, and chairman of the Compensation Committee of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, Howell Cheney yesterday outlined to the directors of the State Chamber here the various amendments which were agreed upon by a special conference held in Mr. BroSmith's office last Thursday and which grew out of a joint meeting of the Legislative and Compensation committees of the State Chamber held here on February 21.
The directors of the State Chamber voted unanimously to accept Mr. Cheney's report together with a combined report of the Legislative and Compensation committees covering earlier phases of the work and presented by Frank H. Johnston of New Britain, chairman of the Legislative Committee.

The acceptance of the reports, covering last Thursday's conference and the joint meeting of the Legislative and Compensation Committees of the State Chamber, indicates the approval of the State Chamber as to the introduction of a compensation bill which will act as a substitute for Senate Bill 132 and Senate Bill 208. Senate Bill 208 is understood to be the so-called "labor bill" regarding compensation insurance and Senate Bill 132 was perfected as a result of the joint work of the compensation committees of the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut and of the State Chamber and of other individuals.
The directors of the State Chamber were informed that the various

APT CLASS INK, LIGHT TROUSERS, DARK BATIK

There's a time and place for everything, but white trousers don't belong in art classes.
At least this is the belief of Miss Harriet D. Condon, art teacher at the South Manchester, who during her years of experience has seen many a pair of breaks badly bespattered.
William Gahrman, sophomore, had the usual luck yesterday. His spick and span day-light-colored ones were given a novelty batik effect when another student upset a bottle of India ink over them.

Interests involved had discussed the amendments to Senate Bill 132 and Senate Bill 208 fairly, frankly and in a constructive spirit in order to remove certain features which seemed to be unfair both to employers and employees.

LOCAL BOYS LOSE CLOTHES IN FIRE

Students at Hebron (Maine) Academy Burned Out of Dormitory Quarters.

Glenn Richards, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Richards of Haynes street, and Austin Beecher, son of Mrs. E. M. Beecher of Winter street, have arrived home from Hebron, Maine, the boys who are both students at Hebron Academy, a preparatory school, lost all their belongings in the fire which destroyed Sturtevant House, the principal dormitory.
The fire is believed to have been caused by defective wiring and although it broke out about ten o'clock in the forenoon, it gained such headway that the fire apparatus of the small town of Hebron was entirely inadequate to cope with it, and assistance from Lewiston or other towns was out of the question owing to the deep snow which still covers the highways in that part of Maine.

The schools registration is about two hundred, and the students whose rooms were on the second and third floors succeeded in getting nearly everything out. The local boys, however, slept on the fourth floor of the dormitory, which housed about eighty of the students.
As Sturtevant house contains the main dining hall and kitchen the school is closed for several weeks until temporary quarters can be provided. Steps will be taken at the earliest possible date to rebuild a modern, fireproof dormitory for the opening of the fall term.

SCOUT MASTERS' MEETING

R. C. Hillman, Secretary of the Scoutmasters Association of Manchester, has sent out notices to each scoutmaster and assistant to attend the meeting of the association on Thursday, March 3, at 7:30 p. m. at the School Street Recreation Center.
There are several matters of business to come up before the meeting and each scoutmaster and assistant is urged to be present.
Most of the Troops have completed their plans for the fight against the tent caterpillar over the coming week-end. Doubtless thousands of tent caterpillar clusters will be collected and destroyed. Each troop is requested to keep within their own territory as assigned by Park Superintendent Keur.

Any scout or official who wishes further information and assistance should call at Mr. Keur's office, No. 2, the Municipal building.

PROF. BAILEY TO TALK TO GET-TOGETHER CLUB

At the next meeting of the Get Together Club of Cheney Brothers at Cheney Hall on Thursday, March 10, Prof. W. B. Bailey of Hartford will be the speaker of the evening. He has chosen for his subject, "Tramps." Professor Bailey is an accomplished speaker and his talk is sure to be most interesting and full of humor.
A roast turkey dinner will be served by the Maintenance departments at 6 o'clock. The departments included in the Maintenance Club are: Machine shop, electrical department, carpenter shop, paper box shop and paint shop.
A short, snappy entertainment will be given directly after the dinner. Tickets are now in the hands of the mill secretaries.

CLASSIFICATION.

Substantially the decision of the city classification committee of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce to recommend the withdrawal of the classification measure from the Legislature ends the movement for the present.

The failure of the project is, of course, due to lack of favorable interest in the matter by two of our three representatives in the Legislature, Miss Marjorie Cheney being the only one impressed by the vote of the people in town meeting and willing to represent the will of her constituents as so expressed.

That the board of selectmen has been rather indifferent to the classification matter is somewhat beside the situation, for they could exercise no direct influence any more than anybody else.

Nevertheless it is quite possible that if it comes to a question of town charter revision, which seems to have become a pet notion of the selectmen, the voters, having been ignored in the matter of classification, may in turn fall to become responsive over the revision proposal.

It is just possible that it might have made considerably easier sledding for the advocates of town charter revision if they had been willing to interest themselves in city classification to the extent of doing what they could for it.

TAX EXEMPTIONS.

A very interesting document is the report of Tax Commissioner W. H. Blodgett on tax exempt property in Connecticut—a rather long document, to be sure, and just a little barren of conclusions aside from the obvious one that too much property is exempt, but nevertheless one that contains much valuable information and some good suggestions.

It is interesting, for instance, to note that the nine municipalities of the state have at various times and by town vote exempted from taxation property amounting to nearly a million and three quarters belonging to manufacturing corporations—quite illegally. And it is further interesting to note that the report says that for many years tax commissioners have been showing the evils which result from this illegal practice—but says not a word about any measures having been taken to correct the law breaking other than the exercise of moral suasion.

It is interesting, too, to observe that the tax commissioner has a very clear and righteous outlook on the matter of exemption from taxation of certain holdings of war service men. He points out that 21,500 ex-service men and their relatives receive exemptions on property assessed at nearly fifteen and a half millions, the total gift being some $880,000 annually, which comes out of the tax income.

Now we agree fully with the tax commissioner when he says: "It is greatly doubted if exemption from taxation is the proper means of expressing the appreciation of the state toward her able-bodied war veterans. As a class they have the ability to support the government equaled by few other classes in our body politic. As a token of gratefulness it is far from accomplishing its purpose, as it recognizes only the small percentage who own property and are presumably best fitted to look out for themselves. The number of ex-service men in the state in 1925 . . . must have equaled 75,000. . . . Less than a third are enjoying the statutory provisions."

But we rather regret, and fancy that a good many other citizens will, also, that the commissioner's criticisms of the exemption system are so mild that, though the Legislature should take the whole lot at one dose, it would probably have as much effect as a thimbleful of water.

What the tax exemption habit in this state needs is the application of a club. And clubs don't seem to be in the commissioner's line.

GRAND MARCH.

We are not absolutely sure of our ground, but sufficiently confident to bet a nickel that Manchester is the only community of its size in the United States where the one big annual hall—be it charity, Masonic, military or any other variety—still opens with a grand march.

Why a ball should not open with a grand march, just as well in 1927 as in 1872, we have not the remotest idea. As a matter of fact a grand march, provided there are dancers enough to give it substance, is a spectacle of no mean worth. It is colorful and rhythmic and gives even the inept dancer a chance to do his stuff on a plane of perfect equality with the best of them and without any great risk of either stepping on or being stepped on. In fact we can still recall grand marches in far off days which gave us our one and only opportunity of a long, long night of feeling that blessed feeling of being as good as anybody else.

Nevertheless the grand march seems, for some poor reason or another, to have been relegated to the attic of the past, along with buggies, balloon sleeves and senescent breaths.

It speaks for the faithfulness to tradition and the perfectly doggy independence of this man's town that the time honored institution of the grand march is still done homage here.

UP AGAINST IT.

It is not the elementary fact of combinations of individuals to enforce higher wage scales that puts so many Americans out of sympathy with trades unionism, but the biting, gouging and hitting-below-the-belt tactics in which so many of the unions indulge.

A great deal of artificial cast stone is being used in apartment house, school and similar construction in New York City. From the very nature of things such a commodity can be produced more cheaply outside the city than within its limits. But the New York building trades unions, by refusing to allow their members to work on structures where outside cast stone is used, have added millions of dollars to the cost of such construction—adding, of course, to the price of rents, to taxes and to the whole burden of living.

Now the United States government has stepped into the situation, the federal district attorney, at order of Attorney-General Sargent, praying out an injunction restraining five unions, the Westchester County Building Trades Council and 16 union officials from preventing the use of the rightfully cheaper material.

This is a highly important matter, for it involves a principle on which depends much more than this single fight.

VACCINATION.

Presumably Rev. C. R. Reimers of Durham fancied that he was saying something entirely original when he excitedly described small-pox vaccine as a "filthy, dirty poison." As a matter of fact several generations of anti-vaccinationists have hit upon the same highly flavored description of the same thing, and the words of the Durham clergyman come as the mere echo of bygone volleying.

Perhaps if the earnest advocate of "medical liberty" had seen a ship's fore-castle or a city tenement filled with human beings stricken with the good old fashioned confluent type of smallpox, which the people of forty-odd years ago were at liberty to contract as they pleased, he might have come to the conclusion that the raging disease itself may be several times as "filthy and dirty" as its preventive.

The anti-vaccinationists of this day have no fear at all of small-pox—only of vaccine. That is solely and absolutely because the vaccine has robbed the smallpox of its terrors. Let them have their way; let the immunization of the people be destroyed by the destruction of whatever it believes that that terribly malignant and repugnant scourge would not once again assert itself in all its hideous fatality.

We never hear a crusader against vaccination use those well worn adjectives "filthy" and "dirty" in connection with his favorite subject but we wish he might have the high privilege of spending twenty-four hours in a nest of smallpox infection in some out of the way corner of the world where the palliation of vaccine had never gotten in its work. If he lived he would change his tune along with his complexion.

KERENSKY.

Scarcely a whisper of publicity has attended the coming to this country of Alexander F. Kerensky, head of the first revolutionary government in Russia subsequent to the overthrow of the Czar's government. Yet Kerensky by all rights should be, and except for the intervention of the vilest of treachery would be, regarded as one of the foremost political figures of the world in all time.

One of the easiest of things is to imagine Russia as it would be today, had the purpose of that magnificent first revolution been carried out. No nation anywhere ever had a more perfect opportunity for the expression of a pure and intelligent democracy—nor more capable leadership. One of the most intriguing as well as one of the darkest pages of history will be, when it comes to be read in the perspective of time, the defeat of the Kerensky democracy by the treason of the bolshevists.

NERVE.

As a result of his fraudulent deal with Albert B. Fall in the matter of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve Edward L. Doheny is said to be out nearly twenty-two million dollars. That is a pretty serious burning even for the calloused fingers of Mr. Doheny. But one of the most bizarre propositions ever advanced since the monkey offered to pilot Noah's ark is the suggestion that the Doheny oil company would seek a Congressional appropriation to reimburse it for the losses which the Supreme Court has ruled it must bear. If there are limits to effrontery they are unknown to the officials of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company.

CAL'S HAT.

Anyhow, even if Cal hasn't got a pinto, lariat and chaps to go with his new five gallon hat, he can wear it when he is riding his cast iron electric Bucephalus. And we can't see much more incongruity between steed and headpiece, in such case, than there is between the huge sombrero on top of a Texas cowboy and the midget broncho under him.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Mar. 2.—The Congress will go down into history as the "Fighting Sixty-ninth," but it appears to have pulled through without having to call out the Great Mace.

The Great Mace is the symbol of authority in the House of Representatives which is supposed to paralyze the arm of a congressman as he hauls off to sock a comrade in the jaw, to shut his mouth when the speaker can't, and to convert him from a raving madman on his feet to a meek person sitting quietly in his seat.

It is some four feet high, a bundle of twined ebony rods symbolical of united states, bound by criss-crossed silver bands and surmounted by a silver eagle with spread wings perched on a silver globe. Whenever the House is in session it is supposed to be in session in the speaker's desk.

It Always Works

And whenever there is pronounced disorder on the floor which threatens to increase, the tall and husky A. C. Jordan, assistant sergeant at arms, makes a move for it, although these occasions are rare indeed in these days when there is no bar, downstairs in the House restaurant. Most congressmen prefer to fight in committee rooms, where there is no Great Mace.

It was nearly eight years ago, soon after Jordan was placed in charge of the weapon, that the Great Mace was last used. Even then, the mace wasn't actually carried down the aisle. A member was making a disturbance, Jordan picked up the mace and prepared to go into action—and that was all that was necessary.

Of course Jordan is a big fellow, obviously possessed of strength despite his years, and that fact may explain something.

"Years ago," he says, "there were numerous fights and even an occasional shot was fired. The mace was frequently used. When a member is to be arrested, which is unheard of in these prohibition days, he is tapped with the mace—not bludgeoned, you understand, but just tapped."

Jordan recalled that "Sockless Jerry" Simpson of Kansas was once making a speech on the floor which the speaker apparently couldn't stop. Jordan's predecessor grabbed the mace and went after Simpson to make him sit down.

"Take that damned bird away!" yelled "Sockless Jerry," but it worked.

Tom Blanton of Texas has caused Jordan more trouble than anyone else. Blanton and Hardy of Texas started for each other one time about five years ago and Jordan, without bothering about the Great Mace, rushed in between them.

"Hey!" shouted Jordan. "You fellows sit down and behave yourselves!"

They did.

On another occasion, Jordan had to exert his influence on Blanton and a member from Ohio.

But the mace-keeper has a high regard for Blanton, nevertheless.

A Roman Heritage

The mace is a heritage from the Romans, descending from the fasces, bundles of rods, held similar miraculous powers to restore order among the rabble when order was desired. The Romans brought the fasces to Britain and they were handed down until adopted by the first Parliaments. Today the fasces are still the symbol of authority in the House of Commons.

The House of Representatives was modeled after the House of Commons and thus the present mace. The British burned the Capitol and the mace as well in 1814, and a mace of painted wood was used until 1842, when the present mace was constructed.

WATKINS BROTHERS, INC.

FLORIDA BRANCH — THE WATKINS-LIMBACHER CO. — ST. PETERSBURG.

NEW YORK

New York, March 1.—Now let me give you the other side of the picture!

The evils of New York stage, night life and what-not are broadcast throughout the nation. The pursuit of ideals gets little attention. And yet this pursuit is as feverish and beautiful as the other is sordid and unpleasant.

It is a midwinter night. . . Mild for midwinter. . . A suggestion of rain that has caught the late dirt of the city and casts a gray, inky tone over the twilight. . . In front of Carnegie Hall the street is black with people. . . There are more clamoring humans here than may be found in front of all the three sex shows combined.

A slender, tired, half-sick genius is to conduct an orchestra. . . Toscanini, perhaps the greatest conductor of his time. . . He has been ill and will soon go back to Italy. . . Little time is left to observe him. . . And there will be the Beethoven Ninth.

Three mounted police try to keep the streets clear. . . I am like the day of a world's great opening. . . Some of the people have stood in line since early morning. . . The house is sold out, but they wait hopefully and finally, with anger growing out of disappointment.

A lane has to be cleared to let ticket holders pass, and the suspicious crowd demands to see tickets before it will let them by. . . Again upon a Sunday afternoon the scene is repeated. . . The rich have paid up to $50 to get a seat. . . In the street are the faces of all Europe. . . The bright, flashing eyes, that tell of emotion and the quest of the beautiful.

There are more seeking beauty in this crowd than packs all the night clubs put in one. . . More than fills all the sex shows in town.

You can get in New York just what you are looking for. . . Diagonally across town a young violinist is getting his first hearing in Town Hall and his heart is filled with pride. . . His head spins with excitement and a happy fear grips him. . . Just across the street from are Greenwich Village place where tourists go to get their shocks a group of young artists, playwrights, writers sit around rough board tables and slip their wine far into the night. . . Their eyes are upon the stars. . . Perhaps they are confused and terribly young. . . What of it? Ideas are being born as the shockeries go on nightly just across the way.

An elevated turns sharply and affords a peep into a tenement. . . A Russian girl is struggling with her piano. . . Over on the East Side a crowded Hungarian restaurant shouts its praise as Moscovitz plays the cymbal. . . This, then, is New York. . . Take its vice and evil or seek a trail of beauty and art and diversion that seems never to end. . . Wicked? . . . Yes! . . . Good? . . . Yes! . . . Vulgarly in its theaters? . . . Yes!

But down Broadway a Hampden, trenched in his own theater, draws his crowd just the same. . . Struggling for art and time. . . And in another street Winthrop Ames goes ahead with the best revivals Gilbert and Sullivan have ever had on this continent, filling his theater in spite of the pictures of naked ladies in the theaters just around the corner. GILBERT SWAN.

TOLLAND

Mrs. Samuel Simpson and Mrs. Marion Baker have returned from a trip to New York and Westery, R. I.

The paper given by William Ayers, Jr., at the Study club Monday evening was very interesting. He mentioned was Thomas Edison and he has had with "Famous People" and he showed many things he has kept which were connected in some way with his dealings with these different people. The first one he mentioned was Thomas Edison and he also spoke at some length concerning Hetty Green. Mrs. Emma Crandall gave the current events.

Mrs. Ladd and her son Raymond visited her sister, Mrs. Walter McCray of Springfield recently.

The all-day sewing meeting of the Missionary society will be held on Thursday with Mrs. William Ayers, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. William Porter of Hartford visited Mrs. Porter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Senk on Sunday.

Miss Meta Hanson, teacher at Grant's Hill, spent the week-end in Torrington.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bolles are the parents of a son born at the Rockville City hospital last week.

George and Henry Crandall of East Hartford are spending their vacation with their aunt, Mrs. Emma Crandall.

A meeting of the men of the village, who are interested in better fire protection, was held Saturday evening at the home of William Ayers, Sr.

Miss Helen Meacham spent part of her vacation in New Britain with her sister, Miss Florence Meacham who is a teacher at the high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carpenter were week-end visitors at the home of William Ayers, Jr.

The regular C. E. meeting was held Sunday evening at the church. Howard Lewis and Mrs. Ann Graham of Hartford visited friends here Sunday.

FINANCIER DIES
Baltimore, Md., Mar. 2.—R. Brent Keyser, Baltimore financier, and former president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, died at his home here early today after a heart attack. He was sixty-seven years old.

His widow, who is a direct descendant of James McHenry, secretary of war in the cabinet of George Washington, and a daughter survive.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

GRANDMOTHER'S MEDICINES
BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n. It today we employed the same medicines our grandmothers used, at least half of the doctors would be put out of business.

Instead of going to the drug store for a prescription our grandparents took a walk in the woods and gathered some roots and herbs.

It was a regular custom in the spring to gather the spicy sassafras roots and make a delicious tea which thinned the blood, usually thick and sluggish after the long winter. The blood-root was most valuable at blossoming time; the root yields a red-juice that looks like blood and was used by the Indians for painting their faces, though it usually affects a white person in the same way as poison ivy.

The roots were washed, dried, and used for whooping cough, lung troubles and affections of the liver. At the present day Sanguinaria, a concentrated preparation made from the blood root, is an efficient drug.

A little red in the year comes the tick-in-the-pulpit, whose small turnip-shaped root is very aromatic and biting; the Indians cooled this and found it a nourishing and appetizing food, but the fresh root always gives the best medicinal results. This was often mashed and mixed with vinegar and a sirup made by adding molasses or honey; it was then used for coughs and colds, or when powdered for colic.

The leaves of the Lungwort, incorrectly called cowslip, were the part medicinally employed; and an infusion of them was mucilaginous and healing, frequently used in lung troubles and hemorrhage.

Boysen and Joe-Pye-weed are of the same family and have similar properties; an infusion being made of the leaves. The Joe-Pye-weed got its peculiar name from Joe Pye, an old Indian doctor, who used the herb to cure the common epidemic of early times, "fever and ague."

Most of the above-mentioned plants can be grown in the garden and cultivated for their beauty as well as for medicinal purposes.

Word has been received of the death in Rutland, Mass., of Arthur Dodge, eldest son of the late Rev. George S. Dodge, a pastor of the Hebron Congregational church from 1872 to 1877. Mr. Dodge was aged 52. He leaves a wife and children. The Rev. Mr. Dodge, his father, was killed some years ago, being run over by an automobile.

My, How The Town's Grown!
FEW of us remember the town crier who shouted through the village streets: "Come one. Come all! Town hall tonight!" He was the pioneer of advertising. But the average town has grown—grown so rapidly that the poor town crier gave up as hopeless any idea of keeping pace with swift moving conditions. Today the store that has anything to sell—merchandise or service—uses the newspaper to get its message across. We shall be pleased to send one of our representatives who will give you an idea or two on successful advertising.

HEBRON

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey of Andover spent a day recently at the home of their daughter Mrs. Walter C. Hewitt.

The Rev. T. D. Martin preached a memorial sermon on the life of George Washington on Sunday at the morning service at St. Peter's church. The sermon had been prepared for the previous Sunday but there was no service at that time owing to the storm. Mr. Martin in his sermon laid stress on the religious life and activities of Washington. It was thought best to postpone until next summer the appeal to the people of the parish for contributions to help build the Cathedral at Washington, D. C.

A service will be held at St. Peter's church in the sacristy on Ash Wednesday, at 3 p. m. There will be an afternoon service on Wednesday each week through Lent, the place to be announced later.

The last party given by the American Legion and the Library association brought out four tables of whist players in spite of the rainy evening.

The first union meeting of the newly organized "Tri-County Christian Endeavor Union" took place Sunday evening at the Congregational church at Hebron Center. The church was filled to capacity with members from those Endeavor societies belonging to the union, Hebron, Gilead, Westchester, Marlborough, and Salem. Visitors were also present from Willimantic. Features of the program were: a male quartet the singers being the Rev. Mr. Canney of Westchester, William O. Seyms of Hebron, William Adams of Colchester and Edward Norton of Westchester. In open forum such questions were discussed as "How Can the Church Build up Our Rural Communities?" "Helping the Foreigner in Our Midst." "How retain the young people in our Rural Communities?" "Re-creating the Social Life of the Rural Community." Mrs. John Deeter, wife of the pastor, gave a reading entitled "From a Far Country." A short business meeting was held and a social hour was enjoyed in which all partook of refreshments of sandwiches, coffee, etc. It is planned to have one of these union meetings the last week of each month in turn in the towns belonging to the union. The next meeting will be in Colchester, March 27th.

I will go back to the great sweet mother—
 Mother and lover of men, the Sea.

I will go down to her, I and non other,
 Close with her, kiss her and mix her with me;

Cling to her, strive with aer, hold her fast,
 O fair white mother in days long past.

Born without sister, born without brother,
 Set free my soul as thy soul is free.

O Fair green-girdled mother of mine,
 Sea, that art clothed with the sun and the rain,

Thy hard sweet kisses are strong like wine,
 Thy large embraces are keen like pain.

Save me and hide me with all thy waves,
 Find me one grave of thy thousand graves.

Those pure cold populous graves of thine,
 Wrought without hand in a world without stain.

I shall sleep, and move with the moving ships,
 Change as the winds change, veer in the tide;

My lips will feast on the foam of thy lips,
 I shall rise with thy rising, with these seas and islands;

Sleep, and not know if she be, if she were,
 Filled full with life to the eyes and hair.

As a rose is fulfilled to the rose-leaf tips,
 With a splendid summer and perfume and pride.

—Algernon Charles Swinburne: From "The Triumph of Time."

England will never be able to produce more than half the quantity of wheat required for home consumption, authorities say.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST The Birth of John

Throughout the Old Testament the coming of Christ is prophesied. This picture story of "The Life of Christ" begins with the birth of John the Baptist, the forerunner of the Savior. "There was in the days of Herod . . . a certain priest named Zacharias . . . and his wife . . . Elisabeth. And they had no child." (Luke 1: 5, 7)

One day when Zacharias went into the temple to burn incense, "there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord . . . and Zacharias was troubled and fear fell upon him." (Luke 1: 9, 11, 12)

"And the angel said unto him, Fear not, Zacharias, for thy prayer is heard; and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son; and thou shalt call his name John." (Luke 1: 13)

THE INFANT JOHN THE BAPTIST: "And they called him Zacharias after the name of his father. And his mother answered and said, Notso; but he shall be called John . . . And his father asked for a writing table, and wrote, saying, His name is John." (Luke 1: 59, 63)

STATE SHOWS 8 ACTS TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Extends Bargain Night Program to Matinee Show—Gold Given Away Tonight.

State theater patrons who attend the matinee will enjoy the same bargain night program on Thursday afternoon that is shown on Thursday evening. For the bargain day this week the management has secured eight acts of superior vaudeville and will present them with a stirring epic of the Northwest Mounted Police, "The Flaming Forest," starring Antonio Moreno and Renee Adoree. This program is scheduled for both Thursday afternoon and night.

Tonight is Gold Night again and $50 more will be given out in $5 and $2.50 gold pieces. The program for this evening is the usual combination of two features, "Moana," a south sea romance and a thrilling railroad drama, "The Runaway Express," starring Jack Daugherty, Tom O'Brien and Blanche Mahafey.

"Moana" is a true life love story from the South Sea Islands, those delightful spots in the blue Pacific where the natives depend on their grass crop for their clothing. The actors in the spectacle are all South Sea Islanders in their native dress and the love affair they depict is as natural as though the actors were out in their own villages.

"The Runaway Express," the companion feature to "Moana," stars Jack Daugherty.

In this stirring tale, which was adapted to the screen from Frank Spotman's "The Nerve of Policy," Director Edward Sedgwick has captured and immortalized on the screen, all the romance and heroism of the railroad.

"The Flaming Forest," which is a part of the Bargain Night show, starts at 2:30 p. m. and evening will be shown with eight acts of vaudeville on that day with five acts for the rest of the week.

The story, which is interpreted by one of the largest and most important casts of the year, is packed with suspense from the opening scene until the final fade-out but at the same time there is a sufficiency of comedy to relieve the many tense and dramatic situations.

"GROW HEALTHY CHICKS" CAMPAIGN IS POPULAR

Already owners of over 60,000 chicks have enrolled in the Hartford County "Grow Healthy Chick" campaign that is being handled by County Agent Southwick of the Extension Service.

In that last year will enroll in this campaign to grow clean chicks in clean houses on clean ground.

According to Mr. Southwick, one of the poultrymen's biggest difficulties is growing healthy young stock to replace the flock each year. Losses and disease cause the poultrymen of Hartford County thousands of dollars every season. The "Grow Healthy Chick" campaign is a method, started for the first time in 1926 by the Extension Service and Farm Bureau, for helping poultrymen reduce such losses and increase their profits.

The Extension Service of the Connecticut Agricultural College has issued a bulletin "Grow Healthy Chicks" that is used as the basis of this campaign. The program recommended is an 8-point program of clean brooder houses, clean litter, clean feed, clean management and clean laying houses. This bulletin describes in detail the methods to follow in this disease and trouble prevention campaign.

The Hartford County Farm Bureau expects to send a monthly circular to everyone who enrolls in this "Grow Healthy Chick" campaign. Enrollment simply means signing one's intention of following this Grow Healthy Chick program. These monthly circulars will be prepared by the Extension Poultry Specialist, Roy E. Jones, and will furnish timely suggestions on the details of growing healthy stock throughout the season. Anyone wishing to enroll is welcome and should communicate with County Agent Ben Southwick, 308 Church street, Hartford.

JACK LOCKWILL'S SPEEDBOAT

by Gilbert Patten

Jack caught the weapon as it fell. Turning it in his hand, he offered it to Winthrop, guard first. The Grand Vizier made a grand bow. "I'm compelled to admit defeat," he confessed. "It's my opinion, Lockwill, that you may easily become a master of the nearly defunct art of swordsmanship." That was the gesture of a thoroughbred, but in his heart Mark Winthrop felt more than a little humiliated.

The day for the Regatta was drawing near, and still Jack hadn't learned who sent him his speed boat. Both his mother and "Brick" Judge wrote that they knew nothing about it.

Day after day, Jack went out in the boat and tuned up the motor. He found that the "Mystery" could fly. He was notified one day that the Commodore wished to see him in the boat house.

"There's a question about your boat, Lockwill," Commodore Hope told him. "You admit you don't know from whom it came. At the last meeting of the Regatta Committee this point was considered, and the committee has decided the makers of the boat may be working an advertising dodge. That's bad stuff. So unless you can satisfy the committee in the matter I'm afraid you'll be barred from the race."

VALENTINO'S WIFE IN CIRCLE FEATURE

Plays Leading Role in "When Love Grows Cold" Tomorrow, Friday—One Other Feature.

The late Rudolph Valentino's last wife, Natacha Rambova, comes to the Circle theater in her first picture, "One Hour of Love" for a two-day run starting tomorrow. And as if this were not enough for the program, the management has also arranged for the presentation of "Remember," a powerful drama of a woman who loved and lost.

That scintillating funny farce, "Redheads Preferred," starring Raymond Hitchcock and a few other notable screen stars, will be seen for the last time tonight.

It is said that nearly every Titian blonde in Manchester has seen this picture, which is really one of the year's funniest.

The vivid personality of Mrs. Valentino, known far and wide as the beautiful Natacha Rambova, wife of the noted Sheik of the screen, shines forth like a flaming beacon in "When Love Grows Cold" here tomorrow. In scene after scene, the matchless pulchritude of the star, her extraordinary facility as an actress, and the gorgeous outlay of costumes, which range from head-dress to boots, Mrs. Valentino provides a truly sensational optical appeal to women all over the world.

The story has its interest from the viewpoint of the sterner sex as well. It is a domestic drama of stirring intensity. As the loyal wife who first helps her mate to accumulate wealth and then saves him from the consequences of his recklessness, the star is superb, according to the verdict of many of the foremost critics in this country.

Unusual in plot, rare with scenes and dramatic situations, shot through with the red drama of war and climaxed by one of the foremost dramatic moments ever devised for stage or screen, is the pictured story which comes to the Circle theater tomorrow bearing the title of "Remember." Dorothy Phillips and Charlie McCallie, both screen players of perennial popularity, are the featured members of the cast.

RIN-TIN-TIN FEATURED AT STATE, HARTFORD

The new policy inaugurated at the State theater, Hartford, has met with instantaneous triumph, but this new inauguration consists of giving five of the biggest and best acts that can be procured together with the feature picture and other attractions. The feature picture for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week is Rin-Tin-Tin in his most wonderful production, "Hills of Kentucky," adapted from the tale "The Untamed Heart." It provides an ideal vehicle.

The vaudeville part of the program is headed by Violet McKee and Charles O'Connor with Royce Slaters, Sidney Franklin, Henry Slate, America's fastest Charleston dancer, in a bit of musical comedy that has success written all over it. There are Murray and Allen who will keep their audiences in one continual roar of laughter, in their great comedy act entitled "Three Thousand Years Ago." Here is a duo who are new to the people of Hartford and will meet with instantaneous approval. Brown and Lavelle present a skit offering entitled "Don't Handle the Goods" that is interwoven with appropriate music written by Paul Gerard Smith. There are Buckridge and Casey and Company in a delightful, pleasing and very fast moving act of melody and steps.

The other headline attraction that concludes this remarkable program is Eva Fay, who has proven the most talked about act in Hartford. Miss Eva Fay has an almost uncanny method of reading everybody's life and it is enjoyable as it is mystifying and bewildering to understand how it is all done.

"VARIETY" COMING TO RIALTO THEATER

It takes more than a flood to make a torrent—at least the kind of a torrent last night's audience at the Rialto saw. The torrent is there—a gigantic crush of water that tears up a village by its foundations and spreads devastation in a mighty thrill but that is not the real torrent in Vicente Blasco Ibanez' story "Ibanez' Torrent." The real one is the meltdoom of human emotions which is unleashed in this gigantic film which will be shown for the last time this evening. The picture tells a powerful story in a new way—one that will leave you gasping at

'With Malice Towards None'

The following article, specially prepared by Miss Harriet D. Condon, art teacher at the South Manchester High school, deals with the famous original portrait of Abraham Lincoln, by Douglas Volk. The portrait is on exhibition this week and next at the School Street Recreation Center and large crowds are viewing it daily.

By MISS HARRIET D. CONDON
S. M. H. S. Art Teacher

The picture is the original portrait as made by Douglas Volk. It is painted in oils. Douglas Volk is one of the foremost portrait artists in America. During the World War he, together with several other artists, was commissioned by the United States Congress to make portraits of the World War leaders, and as a result of this commission, Volk brought back from Europe three great paintings. One of General John J. Pershing, one of David Lloyd George of England, and one of King Albert of Belgium. These three portraits now hang in the National Gallery in Washington.

"With Malice Towards None" is the title of the picture. It has come to us from no less an exhibition than the National Academy of Design in New York City, and the Corcoran Gallery in Washington from which walls it was removed to make a tour of the United States. Volk stated that it was his desire that the picture be shown to every school child in the United States.

Douglas Volk, the painter, was born in 1856, the son of Leonard W. Volk, who made the famous life mask of President Lincoln. America has only two perfect life masks of her Presidents. Condon's General George Washington, and Leonard Volk's Abraham Lincoln. Leonard W. Volk had the good fortune of being a cousin of Stephen A. Douglas, and it was through him that Mr. Volk was able to reach the great President and persuade him to sit for the mask, which we know so well. This mask is now in the National Museum, and is the model for every sculptured portrait in existence. It was used by Augustus St. Gaudens, by Barnard and by Borglum, the three men who produced the greatest likenesses of Lincoln in existence. The mask was made in 1860, and while President Lincoln was posing in the studio, a little round faced child of four was looking on with eager eyes. The president taking the child in his arms, asked him his name, and he replied Douglas. This child was no other than the Douglas whose work is here. He has attained distinction as a painter, is a National Academician, and a portrait painter of international fame. Long years of study of his father's bust and life mask, as well as that of other and varied material, have made him an authority, so far as art and the personality of Lincoln are concerned. Yet he himself says, "The subject baffles me. No American face contains so much of our history and pioneer struggle."

Robert T. Lincoln, the son of the great President, gave his entire and unqualified approval to this picture, saying it is one of the truest interpretations yet rendered of his father, comparable only with the St. Gaudens statue.

The picture is an opportunity of studying Lincoln from a new angle. It is a new picture. Nothing like it has ever been shown, and nothing like it has ever been made before. It shows Lincoln not from the angle of greatness but from the view point of why he was great, and why he will live as America's ideal—those underlying principles of kindness, warmth, faith and strength of character. The expression, pose and harmony are worthy of the subject, and do the distinguished author honor.

FITCHBURG WON THIRTY GAMES WITHOUT A DEFEAT LAST YEAR

Subdued All Schedule Contests and Three Tournaments; Nearly Same Team This Season; Plays S. M. H. S. Here Friday.

Rolling up a total of nearly a thousand points against less than half that many of its opponents, Fitchburg, Mass., high school basketball team, winners of the United States interschool championship at Chicago, scored thirty consecutive victories last season. That same team with about twenty more victories attached to its record and but three defeats, will appear in Manchester Friday night. Coach Clarke's speedy S. M. H. S. hoopers are to essay to make the record of the national champions. The game will be fought at the School street gym and seating space will be at a premium.

The Fitchburg quintet has lost but two players through graduation and were guards. The center and two star forwards are with the team this season. One of the latter is Captain Laurie Myllkangas, who led the team through the thick of the fray to the coveted honors at Chicago.

Notes Of The Training Camps

Sarasota, Fla., March 2.—Rogers Hornsby will bat in the clean up position in the Giants' lineup this season, it was indicated when the slugger was assigned to the fourth position in yesterday's game before the regulars and the scrubs. The regulars won, six to three, but Bill Terry, first baseman, is expected to report today.

Clearwater, Fla., March 2.—A wire from Pitcher Bob McGraw accepting the Brooklyn club's terms leaves Willie Cook the team's only holdout, and Willie is a novel member of the species. He didn't pitch last season and before signing this year, he insists on demonstrating to Manager Robinson that he retains his old-time skill.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2.—An extra long workout was scheduled for the Yankees today to make up for the brevity of yesterday's session, curtailed by rain. The workout was featured by the slugging Lou Gehrig, who slammed the ball to all corners of the lot.

Lakeland, Fla., March 2.—All members of the Cleveland Indians were on hand to start training here today with the exception of Luke and Joe Sewell, and Pitcher Sherrod Smith.

Shreveport, La., March 2.—Manager Ray Schalk of the White Sox was in high spirits today because another hitter had presented himself. He is Ike Doone, last season starwalloper of the Pacific Coast League. Doone hit .380 last year.

Tampa, Fla., March 2.—Tris Speaker was in a Senators' uniform today. The big Texan looked to be in fine shape.

Muddy Ruel, the Nats' holdout catcher, was due in camp today for a talk with Clark Griffith about the cut in salary which the Washington philanthropist wished on Ruel and a lot of other Nats this year.

San Antonio, Texas, March 2.—Running and throwing have featured the training stunts of the Tigers to date. Fielding and batting will come later. Shea, the catcher from Sacramento, appears to be a find.

Tarpon Springs, Fla., March 2.—The apparent return to old time form of George Sisler, who in recent seasons, has given only mediocre contributions with his bat, is the talk of the Browns.

Avon Park, Fla., March 2.—Interest at the training camp of the Cardinals is enlivened with the arrival of Frankie Frisch, former Giant, who will exert at the station left vacant by Hornsby.

Paso Robles, Calif., March 2.—Manager Bush of the Pirates today put Meadows, Yde, Morrison, Aldridge and a number of rookie pitchers through their paces. The rest of his squad has not yet arrived.

S. T. S. SURPRISES BEATING WATERBURY

Coach Ralph Kingsley's Trade school basketball team flashed a complete reversal of form last night in Waterbury when it nosed out a 24 to 20 winner over the Continuation school which had defeated it here 29 to 17.

Waterbury led 13 to 10 in the first half but Manchester staged a strong rally in the second half, both offensively and defensively. While holding the home team to three field goals, the Trade school bagged six baskets, three by Beers, two by Maloney and one by Kinne.

The next game for the local team will be played Friday afternoon when New Britain Trade comes to town.

DISCUSSING TUNNEY'S OPPONENTS

PSYCHOLOGICAL VICTORY.

New York, March 2.—Old Kid Psychology beat Harry Willis, a gent who is generally given credit for that nifty little trick.

"I had Willis beaten eight hours before the bout," Sharkey reveals for the first time, telling how he set out to get the giant Negro's goat, gaining thereby "his greatest triumph."

"Willis, like John L. Sullivan and other fighters, always tried to impress his opponents about his greatness in the ring. In the language of the racket—he tried to bull the other fellow.

"He'd scowl and scowl and growl and snarl and look hordobled as possible. Dempsey and Tunney didn't like the way he shaped up. They kept out of range of his gorilla-like arms.

"I waited patiently in the crowd-room of the boxing commission the day of the fight. Willis opened the door. I jumped in front of him so suddenly as to startle him. I grabbed his hand, squeezed it and pumped it up and down while he gaped at me.

"I wish you lots of luck to-night, Harry—you'll need it, I say.

"He didn't know what to say or do.

"When he climbed on the scales I walked around him and kept staring him right in the eyes all the time. I kept looking at his heart. I could detect the beat by watching his excited body muscles.

"I know I had him nervous. If it had been any other time, Harry would have blustered in and cried: 'Where is this sailor boy I'm to flatten tonight, etc.'

"As we stood in the center of the ring for instructions I bowed my head."

"Rub that vaseline off, Sharkey," he growled.

"I jammed my head right up under his nose, making his skull bump back and I hollered, 'Rub it off yourself!'"

"Now I wasn't sure I could do that, you know, but anyway one second later I let drive a fierce right hand sock for the jaw. Every ounce of energy in my body was behind that blow. It drove Willis half way across the ring into a neutral corner. Willis, his eyes glassy, knees and body trembling, instinctively dropped his head and covered up.

"But right then and there that terrific punch and its landing and that conversation and all gave me the biggest thrill I've ever experienced in my life. I knew I would win. I did."

Asked if he had anything more to say before he concluded his interview, Sharkey buttoned up his big raccoon coat and these words rattled out on the dignified but frosty Bostonian air: "You can say that I think Tunney, Maloney, Berlenbach, Paulino and the rest are a lot of lucky stiffs and tramps. I can beat anyone of them as easily as I smeared Willis." Oh my yes, I assure you he was sober. You just don't know our Mr. Sharkey, that's all.

HOPPE DEFEATS JAP

Washington, March 2.—Willie Hoppe was off to a running start today in the world's 15.2 ballkine billiard tournament, after defeating K. Matsuyama, the midget Japanese, 400 to 388 in the first block. The Jap meets Welker Cochran today, and Felix Grange, the European titleholder, meets Edward Foremans, the Belgian.

HORNSBY AND MCGRAW AGREE TO SURPRISE OF EXPERTS

Reports From Southern Camp Indicate That Former Is Now a Very Different Man Than His Reputation Led One to Think.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

New York, March 2.—It seems that all is beatitude so far between John McGraw and Rogers Hornsby in the camp of the New York Giants at Sarasota, Fla., much to the irritation of those who averred it simply could not be. They saw in Hornsby a gent who might be expected to annoint our Mr. McGraw with a punch on the nose at a moment's notice, or none at all, and naturally they resent very deeply the implied rebuke to their good intentions.

Veteran's Opinion
I received a convincing report on the situation from a veteran observer whose exerts on emotion compels him to cheer an athlete every ten years, whether he needs it or not, and this is what he says: "Your man (Hornsby) looks Okky to me. Has entered into training with Giants as if delighted with change and opportunity, which of course won't hurt him any. Takes a hand in everything going on and watches and advises youngsters. He is confident the Giants will win flag. Made fast running play on ground ball today and, at bat is meeting ball nicely and is timing better than on arrival here.

Not Lame
"Seems to be rid of lameness at base of spine, which bothered him last year. Says he is all over that trouble. Goes about his work with zest. His spirits excellent and, so far as I can judge, he is in as good physical form as he ever was. Agile on feet but not extending himself."

One can go behind this man's judgment about as readily as one can go behind one's heel. If he says Hornsby is swarming about the premises in an excess of zeal to help everybody, then it is certain that Hornsby isn't doing another thing. It is the same Hornsby, who as manager of a world's championship club last year, blankly informed his men that they were to do their own thinking, regardless of the consequences. These, of course, might very well have been fruitful.

I noted that our man haranged the athletes in the clubhouse the first day in camp, telling them of the importance of their mission and all that sort of thing. Yes, the evidence would seem to indicate that a more serious Hornsby is about to be visited upon us.

Four Brothers Are Polo Stars At Miami Beach
Miami Beach, Fla., March 2.—Four sons of Harvey S. Firestone, the tire manufacturer, form a polo team here.

The Firestone brothers—Russell, Leonard, Harvey, Jr., and Raymond—are to make their first appearance as a complete Firestone team under the colors of the Chagrin Valley Hunt Club of Cleveland.

Harvey and Russell learned their polo at Princeton; Raymond and Leonard at Miami Beach.

The Firestones use bronchos trained on the plains as mounts. The bronchos were once used to rope cattle and, says the youngest Firestone, learn quickly the steps essential to polo.

Their play as individuals here has caused favorable comment from followers of the sport.

SPRINGFIELD Y FIVE HERE ON THURSDAY

The Rec Five will play the Springfield Y basketball team at the Rec on Thursday evening at 8:30. Last Saturday evening Springfield defeated the locals by 57 to 27.

The Rec volleyball team will go to Kingston, R. I., to play on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. The Rec team has won four out of six matches so far.

Neither did Walter Randall Cox, the Goshen (N. Y.) veteran gain that honor, as he had in two of the years the Syracuse driving genius failed.

SMALL CROWD SEES WAPPING WIN 36-30

Kofsky Co-ops Give Villagers Tough Battle But Can't Shoot as Well; Elmo Mantelli Quits Team.

Before a very small audience Wapping won a basketball encounter from the Kofsky Co-ops of Hartford last night at Wapping by a 36 to 30 score. The visitors pressed hard and the verdict was in doubt until the final three minutes of play although Wapping led all the way.

Ability to guide the ball through the hoop from difficult angles, enabled Wapping to win. The Hartford team had many more shots at the hoop but lacked the skill to score. Fully half of Wapping field goals were spectacular. Boyce, Boyle, Pospisil and Mistretta sunk a couple of this type apiece. At half time, Wapping led 22 to 14.

Because of financial disagreement with the management, Elmo Mantelli, who has captained the team, announced after the game that he was through for the season. Manager Belcher has one more game booked, that with Poquonock at Wapping two weeks from last night, and in all probability that game will be played. Manager Belcher was forced to forfeit the Y. M. C. A. championship because of his inability to get the team together to play for that honor next Friday night at Hartford, he announced.

Mikoleit was the bright light of the Woodlands and gathered a total of 16 points. Segal also scored heavy, obtaining 13 points. Coleman, fast center of the Bagles, was the main point getter for the losers.

In the second game the undefeated Warriors succeeded in gaining an easy victory over the Panthers, the score being 28-6. Reid featured several times by dropping in some beautiful long shots.

THISTLES TO USHER SPRING SOCCER SEASON IN MANCHESTER

PRICES WILL NOT GO UP—JENNEY

Rumors Being Circulated About Amateur Boxing Bouts Untrue; Reserved Seats Popular.

In effort to clear up a misunderstanding and to spike a rumor that the prices for admission to the amateur boxing bouts at Cheney hall are to be increased, Promoter, John L. Jenney, executive secretary of Cheney Brothers' Athletic Association, which is sponsoring the shows, today gave out the following for publication.

"Cheney Brothers, through the columns of The Herald wish to spike a rumor that has started within the past two days to the effect that the prices were to be increased at the amateur boxing bouts. Such an idea has never been considered by the directors of the association, who feel that such a move would mean the death of a sport that has become so exceedingly popular this winter in Manchester.

"While on the subject of cost of admission to the amateur boxing bouts, it may be well to discuss the reserve seat question. At first the majority of the directors were decidedly adverse to selling reserve seats but the pressure for such a privilege came not from the outside but rather from inside the association itself.

"These were members who did not care to go to Cheney hall at 7:15 and wait a full hour to see the bouts. As soon as the decision was reached to sell reserve seats, many of the business men Main street, as well as the members of the association, took advantage of the opportunity.

"Cheney hall is so small that the ring and boxes are clearly seen from any seat in the hall. The only advantage of a reserve seat is that it assures seating room. The placing of reserve seats on sale was not done from a financial standpoint but because of demands from the fans themselves.

"There are 575 seats in Cheney hall of which 225 are reserved each tournament. To show the demand for reserve seats, it might be well to mention that the stage, ringside and first row in the gallery have already been sold for the tournament next Wednesday.

"Ugly rumors are bound to arise when a venture is proving a big success and if there are any other points which any of the fans desire cleared up, I will gladly do so if they will call me by telephone or see me personally."

UNDER THE SPELL OF HIS EYES SHE WAS HIS ADORING SLAVE

IN the heart of Billy Wells stirred a great ambition---to be a concert violinist. In her dreams she often saw herself playing to acclaiming crowds in wonderful music halls---playing beautiful things as only a great artist can play them.

But Billy was a department store clerk and the only support of her mother, so she sometimes thought her chances of realizing her ambition were slim.

"If I were rich," she used to say to herself, "I could do it. If only I had the money to pay for a great teacher and a good violin, nothing could stop me."

And then Billy Wells got her chance. A sudden stroke of luck that gave her a year in a generous millionaire's home; a year with everything that money could buy--beautiful clothes, a great teacher, a costly violin. She resolved to spend her days in study and practice.

Then she met Dal Romaine---and ambition fled. All her thoughts were occupied by him. Her mother was forgotten, and her precious violin, and the man she had loved. Under the spell of his glowing eyes she could not study, she could not work, she was his adoring slave.

In her grasp was the opportunity of a lifetime to realize her long-cherished ambition, but she wasted it. And then Billy learned at last that money could be a curse as well as a blessing, that riches could kill great aspirations as well as further them. When she found this out and then learned what was in the scheming heart of the handsome Dal Romaine, she fled from it all. She ran away where no one could find her, where, all alone she could fight her own battle and reclaim her great ambition and face the world once more with smiling lips and a proud heart.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE GARRETT FOLSOM is stabbed to death while swimming at Ocean Town, N. J.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIII THEN my father had a good reason for not mentioning the third, Robin Sears said promptly.

"Now, Robin," Angel Fair said, her eyes full of understanding, but her lips setting themselves in a firm line, "don't take it that way. I mean, we all know and appreciate your resentment and your indignation, but they won't get us anywhere. Let's hear all Mr. Riggs can tell us, and then go to work on this new evidence."

"Atta girl!" he said. "You're right," said Robin, his eyes suddenly opened. "That's Dad's attitude—high and mighty, scornful, above-suspicion gesture. All right, Riggs, just how far is this suspicion voiced and by whom?"

"The police don't voice it audibly, but it's like a distant rumble of thunder and all that sort of thing. They are gathering a little more evidence and then they propose to come out in the open and declare their beliefs."

"That my father killed Mr. Folsom?" "It may come to that."

"And the motive?" "They expect to get that later. You see, if they get circumstantial evidence pretty firmly established, they go ahead."

Robin thought a moment. "Then I have two things to do—I mean right now. I must hunt that green bather that Dad said can prove he was not near Folsom, and I must interview the auction man. Which will you do, Angel?"

"I'll go along the beach," she said, at once, "and see if I see our verdant friend. You get dressed and take up the auction end of it, and we'll meet at luncheon."

"Right," said Robin. "Good hunting." The girl swung off down the beach, a shining figure in her bright colored garb, and Robin turned to Riggs. "I don't get it," he said, simply, "but Angel's right. It's no time to stand around and say, 'How dare you, sir!' It's time for action."

At last a sixth sense seemed to apprise her that she was being followed.

"Why not go straight to your father and put it to him?" "Well, you see," Robin smiled, "Angel hasn't spoken to him as she did to me, and he's still in the high-hat stage. He'd say, 'My son, we Seares don't commit murder,' and let it go at that. No, I know my Dad, and I've pretty well sounded him out on this thing, and for the moment, anyway, I've got to do a little sleuthing on my own. Take me back on the force, will you?"

His sunny smile was a little crooked at the corners, for, after all, Robin was only twenty-six, and to have the honor of the whole Seares line on his shoulders was a responsibility.

"Glad to," said Riggs. "Now, I do think that you're the one to go to see Barchester; that's the auctioneer."

"What an impressive name." "Very. Shall I go with you?" "I'm not afraid of the beetle, but I think whatever transpires between us should be before a witness. So come along."

Meantime, Angelica, not at all averse to her part of the game, hiked merrily along, noting with darting eyes the suit of every man she passed. Though a striking figure in her bright colored garb, her gay beach cape was voluminous and, blown by the breeze, gave her more the effect of a sea nymph returning to her native element than a mortal in search of a man.

Moreover, as there were many thousand bathing suits more conspicuous than hers and some less so, she was not so noticeable as might appear.

At last a sixth sense seemed to apprise her that she was being followed.

She turned, quickly and suddenly, and found she was right, but the follower was Ross, the valet of the murdered man, and the servant of his nephew.

Angel had seen him at the inquest, and once or twice since had seen him talking to Tite Riggs on the boardwalk.

She looked at him with questioning eyes but a calm absence of fear or even indignation.

"Well?" she said. "Pardon me, Miss Fair. I may have been presumptuous, but I follow, because—" "Yes, because?" she spoke evenly and looked straight at him. He met her gaze squarely.

"I will tell you, ma'am. Because I saw some men looking after you, and you were alone, and I feared there might be a possibility of their speaking to you."

servant, he seemed to show at most a fatherly care for the perhaps imprudent girl who had wandered so far alone.

"You are right, Ross—your name is Ross, isn't it? And it was because of my eagerness to accomplish a certain purpose that I have come farther than I meant to. I wonder if you can help me," she said, suddenly, for the man was in his bathing suit. "Have you seen in bathing a man in a green suit?"

"A green suit?" and the puzzled face broke into a smile. "No, miss. Is that what you are looking for?"

"Yes, I am. Have you seen one on anybody? Not today—but, well, any time. I say, Ross, walk along the beach with me, toward home. I want to talk with you."

Garrett Folsom's valet was too well trained and too experienced to be surprised at anything his attendant said, and he was so closely connected with the tragedy of the hour, he might tell her something about it.

But the man was not communicative. Respectfully he answered her questions, carefully he guarded her footsteps, but outside that, he was the wooden-faced, obsequious servant that Garrett Folsom had trained him to be.

"Where were you at the time your master was killed?" she asked, at last, more because she could think of nothing else to say about it, than anything.

"In his apartment, waiting for him, Miss Fair," he replied, and a tone of sadness in his voice made her think that, after all, this wooden man had loved the man he had attended.

"You were fond of Mr. Folsom?" she asked, gently. "As fond as a man may be of his master who employs him."

"Dumbbell!" she remarked to herself. But aloud, she said: "Ross, who killed Mr. Folsom?"

"I don't know, Miss Fair. There were many who had motive, there were many thousands who had opportunity, but from them all I can make no selection. I supposed, though, the detectives would do so, before this."

"Have you any reason to think it was Mr. Seares?" "Mr. Seares?" "Yes, Mr. Croydson Seares."

"No, Miss Fair, I've no reason to think so."

"Do you know Mr. Seares?" "I have seen him, of course, but I don't know him—not as I may say I know Mr. Neville, or the more intimate friends of my late master."

"I suppose, naturally, you knew only the men who came to Mr. Folsom's home, not his business friends?" "Yes, Miss Fair."

"Then, she turned on him, "then, Mr. Seares must have been at his home. Was he?"

Ross looked surprised at her excitement.

"Why, yes—I think he was."

(To Be Continued)

The net is closing in on Croydson Seares. In the next chapter he calls for help.

No Dates for "Flaskers" Councils of the University of Detroit have agreed to refuse dates to all escorts with hip-flasks. It will be interesting to see which means more in a swain's life—wine or women, gin or girls, whiskey or stives. It will be more interesting still to see whether in this day of several thousand "women spares" with dates fewer and more far between than they once were for girls, the girls will stick to their resolution.

SOME ANCIENT HISTORY

Today's set of questions will find out just how well you remember the ancient history you studied when you were in high school.

- 1-In the valleys of what two rivers did civilization first flower in what we now call the "near east"?
2-Who were the Pharaohs?
3-Who was king in Babylon when the Babylonian empire was overthrown by the Persians?
4-What Syrian monarch formed an alliance with King Solomon of Israel?
5-Who was the Persian king who led an army across the Hellespont in an unsuccessful attempt to subjugate Greece?
6-Who was the Spartan commander who led such a heroic defense against the Persian invaders at Thermopylae?
7-Between what two nations were the Punic wars waged?
8-What Carthaginian general inflicted numerous defeats on the Roman armies and made a name for himself as one of the greatest generals in military history?
9-Who conquered what is now France for the Roman empire?
10-What was the famous "Pax Romana"?

THE TINYMITES

(Read the Story. Then Color the Picture)

The tynmites were very glad to meet fair Jack and Jill. Each lad began to ask them questions 'bout the water that they spilled. Said Clowny, "Gee, I wish you'd tell about your trip up to the well. I know that we'd enjoy it, and would very much be thrilled." So Jack and Jill sat on the ground, and all the Tynies gathered 'round. Then Jack told how they'd both been sent up to the well one day. "I had a big pail in my hand," said he, "of course you understand, that as we climbed up to the well, we both began to play. "Well, when we came near to the top, I slipped and took a sudden flop." Right here, the Tynies broke right in and filled the air with laughter. Then Jack continued, "Down I fell, and tumbled down the hill pell mell. The next thing that I knew, my friends, poor Jill came tumbling after. "But, anyway, we walked to town." Said Coppy, "How about the crowns that people say you busted? We would like to hear of that." Fair Jack just laughed, and then he sighed, and to the Tynytes replied, "The crown that they refer to was the crown upon my hat." Just then some voices loud and clear broke through the air and seem right near. Both Jack and Jill jumped up and said, "Here, comes that Shoe House bunch." Of course, by this, the Tynies knew that all the kids lived in a shoe. And then they found the little tribe was running home to lunch. Wee Coppy said, "We're hungry, too. Can we run right along with you?" And someone answered, "Sure you can. Our mom won't throw a fit. We're glad to have you join our bunch. And she will gladly give you lunch. She has so many children now, that she won't mind a bit." (The Tynies meet the Old Lady in the Shoe).

The attendance of delegates at this conference ranged from 500 to 700 and brought encouraging reports of the progress of prohibition from 41 out of 48 states. At the banquet 48 members of Congress briefly expressed their enthusiastic loyalty to the Eighteenth Amendment.

CHENEY OWNED SCHOOLS TO GET TAX EXEMPTION

Senate Bill Merely Corrects Error Made Previously; Always Have Been Exempt.

A bill was introduced in the Senate of the General Assembly yesterday granting tax exemption on school buildings owned by Cheney Brothers in this town. The bill is nothing new since these school buildings and all others used for public educational institutions have always been exempt.

The purpose of the measure is to correct an error made in the revision of tax exemption law which has already been passed. At the hearing yesterday Judge Raymond A. Johnson, Senator Robert J. Smith, Tax Commissioner W. H. Blodgett, Representative Miss Marjory Cheney, C. Herman Cheney and Attorney Joseph Berry appeared and explained the reason for the bill. There was no opposition.
