

PROTEST OF POWERS RECEIVED BY CHINA

American Policy Followed
By Other Nations—U. S.
Backing No Horse In China—The Notes.

Washington, April 11.—The note handed the Cantonese Nationalists today by the foreign powers represents a clear-cut victory for the American policy in the present turbulent state of affairs in China.

The note is understood here to present a strong protest over the Nanking outrages, with a demand for indemnity and a stern warning against future attacks of the Nanking character—but there is no ultimatum and no threat sanctions.

No First Brandishing
The American government did not consider that anything would be gained by first brandishing at this particular time. Officials here felt, rather, that coercion at this time would be calculated to further inflame anti foreign sentiment in China—perhaps with grave results to the thousands of foreigners still outside the zone dominated by the guns of the foreign warships. Also, this government wanted to make it clear to the Chinese people that the role of the United States is one of disinterested friendship for China in the struggle toward unity.

Read Interview
Officials read with interest today the interview granted international news services by Chang Tso Lin, the northern war lord, in which he expressed surprise at the American evacuation of North China, and expressed a desire for an American loan.

Neither Chang, nor any other war lord, is going to get any loan from the United States, it was stated. The American government is not backing any horse in China, and least of all Chang, who has demonstrated on several occasions that while he is supreme in his own Manchuria, he has neither the power nor the means of unifying China, and providing a stable government.

The Protest
The notes of protest which have been sent to the Nationalists are understood to make the following demands:

1. An apology in writing from Chang Kai Shek, military commander of the Nationalist forces at Nanking.

2. Reparation for personal and property damages.

3. Punishment of those guilty of the Nanking murders and attacks.

The notes also state that appropriate measures will be taken if demands are not promptly met. This statement is understood to be more strongly voiced in the British note than in the others.

NATIONALISTS BEATEN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, April 11.—Military difficulties of the Nationalists attracted greater attention here today than the delivery of the protest of the powers on the Nanking incidents.

Flags Disappearing
The revolutionary flags which have been prominent in Nanking and Shanghai are disappearing, indicating that the public may again be preparing to switch its support to the victors.

YOUNG CORBETT DEAD; ONCE BOXING CHAMP

Denver, Col., April 11.—Young Corbett, forty-six, once wearer of the featherweight boxing crown, is dead here today.

Corbett, whose real name was William Rothwell, dropped dead from heart failure in front of a downtown theater last night, not far from the old arena where he first entered the ring in 1897.

Corbett, whose home was in Denver, enjoyed a meteoric rise to glory when he knocked out "Terrible" Terry McGovern in the second round at Hartford, Conn., in 1901.

In San Francisco Jimmy Britt relieved Corbett of his title in a twenty round decision battle in 1904. The defeat wilted Corbett, and he never exhibited his famous punch with the same vigor again.

He retired in 1910.

Three weeks ago, Young Corbett fought an exhibition with "Dago Mike" Monzone, with whom he had staged a thirty-two round battle at Cripple Creek in 1897.

"He was the square shooter in the game," commented Billy Gibson, Gene Tunney's manager, in Denver today for the champion's exhibition bout here tonight.

CHANG ASKS U. S. TO BACK NORTH ARMIES

Says He Is Fighting Red Element—Surprised at Negative Action of American Government.

Peking, April 11.—"This is not the time for the powers to send protests—it would be wiser if the powers would back me indirectly and financially making it possible for me to fight the Communist elements."

Chang Tso Lin, northern war lord, made this statement today in an exclusive interview granted the International News Service.

The International News Service learns that Chang Tso Lin desires the United States to advance to the North China government a credit of $100,000,000.

Chang Tso Lin, in the course of the interview, expressed great surprise that an American evacuation in North China should have been ordered.

Negative Action
"I am puzzled by the attitude of the American government," said Chang Tso Lin, "why should it confine itself to negative action? Does withdrawal of the Americans mean they are never to return and they are to let China alone? Are all the American's past endeavors to be sacrificed? If not, why does the American government not fully support my efforts to shoulder the burden of protection of American interests."

Can't Understand It
"I don't understand why the American evacuation of North China has been ordered. Americans in Peking should feel perfectly safe, particularly now that the Communists nest in the legation quarter has been raided and the local Communist party is like a man without a head."

"My campaign in Honan is very successful. While Chang Tsung Chang's troops are pushing the Cantonese invaders back upon Pukow, our lines are solidly consolidated, justifying our previous withdrawal from Shanghai and Nanking. In the meantime I am pushing the fundamental problem of elimination of the Communists."

"The legation quarter raid, made with the assistance of the foreign nations, has produced documents in plotting to arouse internal disorders as well as to involve China in international entanglement. Documents seized in the Peking raid prove that the Murky re-consulting of the Soviet received an appointment (Continued on Page 2)

LUMBERMILL DESTROYED BY FIRE NEAR CANAAN

Damage Estimated at $40,000;
Fire Burns For Nearly Four Hours.

Canaan, Conn., April 11.—Fire only swept through the saw mill and storage sheds of Frank Bierce at Taconic or Chapinville, just west of this village, doing damage estimated over $40,000. Firemen from Lakewood reached the fire in time to save two adjoining dwelling houses, one of which had ignited when they arrived.

The fire is believed to have started in the engine room of the saw mill and spread swiftly. Seventy thousand feet of lumber, two sheds, and all equipment were destroyed. The fire burned for nearly four hours being finally extinguished just before two o'clock.

It is understood Mr. Bierce had no insurance on the property.

STATE POLICE PROBE WILLMANTIC BLAZE

One of the Tenants Said She Heard Explosions in Tenement Fire.

Willmantic, April 11.—State policemen from the Stafford Springs barracks, came here today to investigate the fire that early yesterday morning did damage of $25,000 to the Central block on Union street and endangered the lives of many tenants. Miss Maud Deming, one of the tenants who was rescued by firemen, told police that two explosions preceded the fire. Working on a theory that a still exploded in the basement the state police searched the structure and announced they found no evidence of such equipment. Their statement was vouched for by local firemen who spent most of the day working in the building.

Ships Search Ocean For Missing Sailors

Halifax, N. S., April 11.—Search of the North Atlantic for twelve seamen, missing from the burned steamships and schooners of the Gloucester, Mass., fishing schooner Commonwealth, was under way today.

A Canadian government steamer, the American cutter Tampa and steamships and schooners of the coast were on the lookout for the twelve men, who left the blazing Commonwealth in three dories off Lahave banks, sixty miles out.

Eight other men in dories were picked up by the Boston schooner Elizabeth Parker and brought into Shelburne, N. S.

They said the cause of the fire was unknown. They feared that their mates could not live in the open dories as a howling snowstorm was blowing when all hands left the side of the burning Commonwealth.

EX-PASTOR'S CASE GOES TO THE JURY

Two Daughters and Holmes' Mother Testify In His Behalf.

Boston, Mass., April 11.—Testimony in the trial of Guy Willis Holmes, unfrocked Methodist minister of New Bedford, was completed today and following arguments by counsel for the defense and the prosecutor, the case goes to the jury.

The ex-pastor's two daughters and his mother testified in his behalf today seeking to show that when he was alleged to have been in a local hotel with Miss Antoinette Fortin, New Bedford tenement waitress, he was with his parishioners in that city.

On Pastor's Knee.
George A. Jackson, rebuttal witness for the government, testified that he once saw Mrs. Pearl Sweet seated on the knee of the former pastor. Mr. Holmes claimed he was eating dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Sweet at the hour he was said to be in the hotel with Miss Fortin.

Mr. Holmes' mother testified that she spoke with her son on the night in question and that he told her he would be at the home of the sweets.

The two daughters talked with their father that night over the telephone from New Bedford to East Greenwich, R. I., where they and their mother were visiting the latter's parents. Another witness testified that Mrs. Holmes in a garage on the night he was charged with violating the true name law by registering with Miss Fortin in a Boston hotel.

Mrs. Leah B. Geldard testified that she heard Lorenz Lejole, a New Bedford youth, speak of Miss Fortin as his bride-to-be. The defense sought to show that Miss Fortin was familiar with several young men and that the charges against the ex-pastor were in the nature of "a shake down."

"GHOST" HEARD BY A REPORTER

Weird Voice Over Phone
Scares Operator in Springfield, Mass.

Springfield, Mass., April 11.—"The ghost" of the Whately-South Deerfield Telephone Line, whose moaning and crying have excited the countryside, has traveled into this city.

A local newspaperman was talking with William G. Strippe, Whately selectman, whose brother, Arthur, heard "the ghost" when a blood curdling moaning entered the conversation. Miss Ruth McNeil, telephone operator in the newspaper, was nearly overcome by fright.

Telephone company investigators have been unable for a week to find "the ghost."

It was learned today that Whately is divided between Spiritualists and others, the Spiritualists claiming the voice of "The Ghost" to be a manifestation.

Frisco Thinks Steamer Was Of Ferry Fleet Plying Be- tween Korea and Shimo No Seki—Tragedy Hap- pened at Fusan.

Tokio, Japan, April 11.—Two hundred passengers were believed drowned when the Japanese steamer Daihachi Chinali Maru sank at its pier at Fusan, according to advices received here late today.

The Daihachi was one of the regular passenger boats plying into Fusan.

Early reports flashed here did not indicate the exact nature of the disaster, or what caused the boat, within the harbor and near her pier to sink so rapidly that the passengers were trapped aboard.

DID FERRY SERVICE.
San Francisco, Calif., April 11.—The Daihachi Chinali Maru was not in the trans-Pacific service, according to officers of local Japanese steamship companies and other marine agencies.

Japanese steamer agents here expressed belief the ship was one of a regular ferry fleet operating between Shimo No Seki, on one of the islands in the Japanese archipelago, and Fusan, on the extreme tip of Korea. This passage is through the Korean straits and is said to be one of the roughest stretches of water in the Pacific ocean.

been suspended by Chief of Police Samuel G. Gordon until the Board of Police Commissioners can give them a hearing on charges brought by Police Commissioner Willard B. Rogers. The charge is that both men neglected their duties and spent excessive time in a local theater.

The suspension took effect Saturday and the men will be given a hearing at the next meeting of the police commission, the date of which has not yet been set. It is understood that Commissioner Rogers notified both patrolmen earlier the State theater Friday night while on duty. He saw one of them come from the theater, ring his box and return to see the show.

The commissioner went into the theater to question the patrolman and found the other also watching the show.

DROPS INTO RAVINE FROM UNION BRIDGE

North End Man at Memorial Hospital—Injuries as Yet Undetermined.

A north end man had a narrow escape from death this afternoon when he fell from the Union street bridge into the brook nearly thirty feet below.

According to the police Joseph Kazulski, who is about fifty years old and who lives at 34 Union street, was under the influence of liquor when he lost his balance while standing on the bridge and fell into the ravine.

He was found some time later by a passerby who heard his cries for help and sounded the alarm. Police were notified and Sergeant William Barron was assigned to the case.

He took Kazulski to the Memorial hospital where it was stated this afternoon that the full extent of his injuries was undetermined. X-ray pictures were taken this afternoon to tell whether or not the man has a fractured skull and internal injuries. He is suffering from numerous cuts and bruises.

FIERCE SNOW STORM IN THE NORTH-WEST

Five Persons Killed Over Week-End—Fear Floods When Snow Melts.

Calgary, April 11.—The worst snow storm of the winter, piling up drifts five feet high over the weekend, took a toll of at least five persons killed. It was shown in reports reaching here today.

Two railway men were killed when two freight trains collided near Seven Persons, Alberta, and three persons met their deaths when their automobile was blown over an embankment into Swift Current creek, Saskatchewan. Serious floods are feared in the northwestern provinces when the snow melts.

REDS DISTRIBUTE SACCO PETITIONS

Expect to Get Million Names
In Effort to Save Lives of Two Italians.

New York, April 11.—Radical runnings reacting from the death sentences imposed upon Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti began to be heard here today.

A man who gave the name of Mario Minicich under arrest upon the technical charge of disorderly conduct, following his activity in plastering windows along Twenty-third street with posters bearing the words:

"Sacco and Vanzetti must not die."
Red Literature
The police reported that they found radical literature in Minicich's possession along with a book on how to make bombs printed in the Italian language.

A plan to call a general stoppage of work for one hour in protest against the death sentences will be carried out in every state in the nation, according to Raymond Fasio, labor editor of "The New World" and chairman of an Italian committee which will work for a pardon for the two doomed men.

Lead-ers Plan
Meanwhile members of the two Sacco-Vanzetti committees and labor leaders throughout the city are conferring to determine means of freeing the condemned men.

Some of the legal possibilities being discussed are (1) appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, (2) appeal to Governor Fuller of Massachusetts and (3) the impeachment of Judge Thayer.

Petitions will be circulated throughout the United States in a concentrated endeavor to save the two men. One million names will be the goal of a petition to be presented to Governor Fuller, of Massachusetts, asking for a stay of execution.

MAN IS FOUND DEAD IN POLICE STATION

Identified as Farm Hand—Had Been Arrested on a Charge Of Drunkenness.

New Haven, Conn., April 11.—Police here today announced that a man found dead in a cell at headquarters yesterday following his arrest for drunkenness is Richard Erwin, 47, of 22 Court street, employed as a farm hand in Woodbridge. His only known relative, police say, is a sister, Mrs. Frank Frey, of 283 Piedmont street, Waterbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lipkin, keepers of a store at 62 Olive street, are being held without bond for examination by Coroner Eli Mix, as sellers of liquor which was found on Edwin's clothes when he was arrested.

ADMITTS KISSING CAMPBELL

Chicago, April 11.—Mrs. Anna Walsh Carrington admitted on the witness stand today that she had kissed Campbell Carrington, brother of Colonel Edward C. Carrington, her millionaire husband, who is suing for divorce on charges that his comely 42-year-old wife was intimate with the wealthy New York lawyer.

"Yes, I kissed him," said Mrs. Carrington during the cross-examination by counsel for the colonel.

"We were at the summer cottage and Ned (the colonel) was lying on the couch to take a nap. Campbell was sitting on the front porch and I walked through the living room and kissed him on the top of his bald head."

FORMER LOCAL PASTOR DEAD IN WALPOLE

Mrs. F. H. Whiton has received a telegram from Walpole, Mass., announcing the death of Rev. E. Adams, who was formerly pastor of the Second Congregational church and later a missionary in Prague, Bohemia.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams had a large family of eight sons and daughters, most of whom were well educated.

One son, Edward, is now a professor at Princeton; another son is a professor at Leland Stanford University in California; a daughter is now teaching in Constantinople; another is dean of a western college.

Mrs. Whiton is one of the few local people who remembers Mr. Adams. She has kept up her acquaintance with him and renewed it in recent years in Florida.

SQUABBLES FEATURE FORD-SAPIRO TRIAL

Federal Building, Detroit, Mich. April 11.—A series of controversies which marked the activities of Aaron Sapiro in organizing Colorado potato growers, were revealed to the jury today in the million dollar Ford-Sapiro libel suit.

The Colorado story closely paralleled Sapiro's career among Idaho growers, when he finally sued for fees through a clerk. The so-called cooperative king also sued the Colorado growers for fees in the same manner after having told them he would accept whatever compensation they offered for his services.

Sapiro also clashed with Mortimer Stone, counsel for the Colorado Farm Bureau, when the latter attempted to draft organization papers for local potato cooperatives. Sapiro claimed this was his legal work and ordered Stone not to transgress.

Read first finished an inquiry into Sapiro's connection with the Idaho Potato Growers association. This organization went to the wall shortly after Sapiro sued it, through a clerk, for $2,500 in fees and collected.

Read then brought out that the Idaho farmers were unfriendly to Weyl and Zuckerman, Los Angeles commission men, whom Sapiro helped secure employment as selling agents for the cooperative.

LONELY FARM HAND BURIED BY TOWN

Complete mystery as to his antecedents accompanied Juan Olazia, friendless middle-aged tobacco farm hand, to his grave in the town plot in the East cemetery today for no one has been able to learn any facts about him except that he claimed to have originally come from Portugal.

Olazia came to Manchester last fall and got work with the Connecticut Sumatra Tobacco company. He became ill, however, and did not work all during the cold winter months, being content to live alone in one of the little homes which the company provides for its workers. One day last week Andrew J. Healey, superintendent, found Olazia seriously ill and the man was removed to the hospital where he died Friday. It developed that the man had been ill for a long time. Pulmonary embolism and gangrene were the direct causes of death.

S. A. BAND PLAYS AT PRISON AND HOSPITAL

The Salvation Army band visited Wetherfield Prison yesterday morning and gave a musical service to the inmates of the institution. The service was held at the regular church time and lasted for one hour. It was presided over by Brigadier William Halpin of New York City. After the prison service the band called on the Hartford hospital and gave a concert for the patients, who evidently greatly enjoyed it. The services at the Citadel were conducted by Mrs. Field Major Bartlett and good crowds attended the meetings.

HARTFORD RABBI TO ADDRESS KIWANIS

Rabbi Abraham J. Feldman of Hartford will be the speaker before the Manchester Kiwanis club at the Wednesday noonday meeting at the Hotel Sheridan, when it is expected he will enlighten the men on the American immigration problem of the United States. In the attendance contest, although Charlie Pickett's "Whippets" put it all over Arthur Knofla's "Real Estate Barons" at the big meeting at the Rainbow last week, Art's side leads to date with 90 per cent to $3.7 per cent for the Whippets.

Frank Conkey will furnish the attendance prize Wednesday.

HOOVER FOR KELLOGG'S JOB.

There is more than one point of satisfaction in a current report that Herbert Hoover is likely to succeed Secretary Kellogg at the head of the State Department in the not distant future. The business interests especially concerned with our Latin-American relationships would be very likely to be unfavorably disposed toward the appointment to the secretaryship of state of any person whose ideals were so abstract as to interfere with a proper protection of American property rights south of the Rio Grande or elsewhere in the world. Confirmed "anti-imperialists," of whom there are many, would be suspicious of any official, following Mr. Kellogg, who did not possess in very definite degree a sense of the rights of small states to run their own internal affairs.

In Mr. Hoover there would seem to be a happy combination of the qualities most needed in our state department conduct at this rather nervous time. He is the coolest of men. He has had so broad an experience of foreign governments and peoples, and under such trying circumstances, that diplomacy is his middle name. And at the same time he has the most complete understanding of the necessity of international trade relationships and the obligation of every nation, large and small, to respect the rights of those engaged in extra-territorial enterprises.

It would be difficult to call to mind any person in the present government of the United States, or any private citizen for that matter, possessing better all-around qualification for the headship of the state department, than Mr. Hoover at this particular time.

And if Dwight Morrow, as suggested, were to succeed him as Secretary of Commerce, an ideal arrangement would seem to have been hit upon.

INJURIOUS.

If there is one thing above all others that the educated Briton does not understand it is American mass psychology. If he had any comprehension of it he would know that it is characteristic of the people of this country, as it has probably always been characteristic of every successful young nation, that they just naturally, automatically and spontaneously react adversely to being instructed by outsiders in what they consider to be their own affairs.

Sir George Paish, economist, painted a particularly gloomy picture of world prospect during his talk at the Hartford club last night. He forecast what he called a "complete breakdown of credit," told his hearers that such a calamity had never occurred before and asserted that the way out of it was to call off all international debts and reparations and start anew on a basis of world-wide free trade.

Now this is precisely the sort of thing that is best calculated to build up, in this country, an immovably stubborn resistance to debt cancellation or even debt revision. Any arguments favorable to such action, in order to have the desired effect on the American mind, must come from Americans, for two reasons. In the first place the average citizen of the United States has, not without reason, a rooted conviction that the nation to which he belongs has demonstrated its ability to run its own affairs, since it has done so with very great success, and he resents being instructed by foreigners, English, speaking or otherwise. And in the second place he has a feeling that pressure for the forgiveness of debt comes with the least possible grace from the debtors. If he is going to forgive international debts, now or at any time in the future, he is certainly going to do it of his own volition and not because he has let himself be talked into such action by its beneficiaries.

At the risk of seeming inhospitable it is only fair to say, and it would only be fair for all American newspapers to aid in making it known, that debt-cancellation propaganda, disseminated by visiting foreigners of any debtor nationality, is not only entirely hopeless of favorable effect in this country, but that every such advocacy only serves to stiffen the resolution of the American people not to be jockeyed into an act of charity.

It is entirely conceivable that some time or other America, for the world's good or even for the good of her own prosperity, may call off the uncollected portion of the war debts. But if she does it will have to be voluntarily, of her own motion. And propagandizing here by debtor advocates can have no possible result but to delay that time.

STILL MORE WARFARE.

From the meagre and frequently cabled news dispatches that come from the Chinese theatre of war it is indicated that the practically continuous successes of the Cantonese armies south of the Yangtze river are becoming less continuous in the north. This, together with stories of ruptures in the control of the Nationalist movement, point to at least temporary failure of the Cantonese to sweep over Chill and take possession of Peking.

If there is comfort in this outlook for those who are particularly fearful of Nationalist ascendancy in all China and who have entertained hopes that the foreign powers might eventually deal with Chang Tso-Lin instead of with the Nationalist leaders, there is very little encouragement for those whose first hope is for peace. It is not to be believed that any present success on the part of the Northern forces can be converted into suppression of the Cantonese movement. The only result that promises from such success is an indefinite continuation of the civil war, further demoralization of the Chinese people and greater risk and deeper hatred for all foreigners.

MACDONALD'S VISIT.

When Ramsay Macdonald arrives in this country late this week he will probably be admitted, despite the fact that an earlier-coming radical member of the British parliament was excluded. Mr. Macdonald announces that during his three weeks visit in America he intends to call on President Coolidge. We have no doubt that he will be graciously received, as befits a visiting former premier of Great Britain. But there are plenty of timorous souls in Washington, less courageous than the President, who have probably been wondering if it was not somehow possible to keep this "dangerous radical" out of the country altogether.

Because Ramsay Macdonald is pretty fairly red, as redism goes in the United States. The British Labor party is far more lurid in hue than would be the American Labor party if such a thing existed. And Macdonald, is its high priest.

It is to be presumed that while he is in this country the British exponent will make some speeches—lectures, they will probably be called. And he is reasonably certain to talk almost as roughly here as he does at home—and the Macdonald tongue can be as rough as a cat's. There will probably be a large amount of indignation at the things he will say, for they will be things we are not used to hearing—things that we do not permit ordinary agitators to say.

AUTHORITIES.

Professor Irving Fisher's declaration, after deep research into the subject, that the consumption of alcohol in the United States is not more than ten per cent of what it was prior to prohibition, does not impress Hugh J. Fox, editor of the Periscope and somewhat of a statistician himself, as being conclusive. Mr. Fox, who gets his figures from sources seemingly quite as authoritative as Prof. Fisher's, discovers that the alcohol consumption of the country in 1926 was considerably greater than it was in 1918. He says the use of spirits has been doubled, the use of wine trebled and the use of malt liquors cut down to one-third.

We do not pretend to know whether or not Mr. Fox is infallible as a figure. But we do recall that in the 1896 Bryan campaign Prof. Fisher figured it out that if the United States did not adopt bimetalism at the ratio of 16 to 1 the country would go straight to pot. We are still on the gold basis and Prof. Fisher was as wrong as Bryan.

A SIDELIGHT.

Let an erroneous impression should be drawn from announcements that the Borah-Butler prohibition debate in Boston the other day was a victory for Senator Borah, it would be borne in mind that the Roosevelt club, under whose auspices the debate was held, very definitely announced in advance that there would be no jury, no judges, no decision of any sort sanctioned by the club. The judges who did award the decision in favor of Senator Borah and the dry side of the argument were of no authority except that conferred on them by their selection by a Boston newspaper, the Herald. And it is only fair that it should be understood that the editor-in-chief of the Boston Herald, Robert Lincoln O'Brien, is a pronounced personal dry.

SIGNIFICANT.

The case of Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti would appear to be not absolutely hopeless when Governor Fuller, refusing to express an opinion concerning protests from foreign radicals and laborites, says: "The evidence in the Sacco-Vanzetti case has never been presented to me, consequently I have not formed any opinion of it."

Perhaps the Massachusetts governor did not intend this to be by any way of invitation for the presentation of the case to him, but he is not usually given to unconsidered statements, and it is hardly more than fair to assume that the road to submission of the case to him is still open.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

A WELL-LOVED "BUG"

By ARTHUR N. PACK, President, American Nature Ass'n. Who has not, when a child, caught a lightning bug and wondered why it did not burn and how it was that it made its light and where it carried its lantern. Now comes the scientist to explain all the mysteries of this little beetle, and to take away, perchance, some of the glory from this childhood favorite.

The fire-fly belongs to the family Lampyridae. This means "to shine," and surely this bug lives up to its name. It begins life as a grub either in the earth or under old rotting logs. Here it feeds upon soft-bodied insects and food of like nature. They are night prowlers, and sluggish and inactive during the day. It is probable their fitful flashes are a protective measure as well as constituting sex appeal.

Old Masters

Before the beginning of years There came to the making of man. Time, with a gift of tears; Grief, with a glass that ran; Pleasure, with pain for leaven; Summer, with flowers that fell; Remembrance, fallen from heaven; And madness, risen from hell; Strength, without hands to smite; Love, that endures for a breath; Night, the shadow of light; And life, the shadow of death.

And the high gods took in hand Fire, and the falling of tears, And a measure of sliding sand From under the feet of the years; And froth and drift of the sea, And dust of the laboring earth; And bodies of things, to be In the houses of death and of birth; And wrought with weeping and laughter, And fashioned with loathing and love, With life before and after, And death beneath and above, For a day and a night and a morrow, That his strength might endure for a span, With travail and heavy sorrow, The holy spirit of man. —Algernon Charles Swinburne: Chorus from "Atlantia in Calydon."

When Robert Lockhart, of Scotland, tried to play golf in Central Park, New York City in 1888, he was arrested on suspicion of insanity.

New York, April 11.—Not even flowers escape the influence of the rich and the socially registered in Manhattan.

Just how complete a luxury a bunch of posies may become can be appreciated only by one who has attempted shopping for them at the average Fifth Avenue florist place. The humble cactus, which once cursed upon the Arizona desert and which, upon those sands, is common as dandelions in the home town park, I find priced at anywhere from $4 to $24 per plant. Cactus, it appears, has become fashionable during the winter.

But it is at the annual flower show in New York that one realizes that flowers seem only for the rich in the eyes of the nation. The humble apartmenteer may have his wistful geranium in a window box, but lack of space prevents him from cultivation of any more sensitive plant.

Thus, checking the posies, one discovers that J. P. Morgan goes in heavily for cyclamens; the Guggenheims fancy the tulip and the amaryllis; George F. Baker, one of the five richest men, lets a few of his dimes go to the support of the acacia family, while the father of Countess Salm, as might be suspected, goes in for the more aristocratic orchid.

What chance has a poor but honest gardener? But if I could transplant to my Village garret just one sweet pea vine that climbed the old Michigan homestead, they could have their amaryllis, orchids and what-not.

There is, perhaps, no place where the contrast of riches and poverty is more apparent, and yet where there is so little consciousness of the gap.

The spines of the rich cast their shadows over the tenements that all but rub shoulders with them in many parts of New York, yet this very propinquity seems to breed a casual acceptance of circumstances. New Yorkers frequently remark this mixture of costly apartments and humble neighbors, but in a short time it becomes apparent Manhattan is such a hodge-podge of the tawdry and the elegant that one learns to look upon incongruity and contrast as the rule rather than the exception.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER Washington, April 11.—General Smedley Butler, Uncle Sam's clean-up man, whose record includes distinguished service in China, Nicaragua, Philadelphia and at a California cocktail party, is back in China again at the head of his marines.

Once more his aged parents—especially his mother—are worrying about Smedley. Life for them, one learns from a family friend, has been a long series of alternately very proud and very anxious moments over Smedley. But it's their private affair and neither of them would ever admit it.

It was in China fighting the Boxers, that Smedley was twice wounded.

Just a Nuisance General Smedley's father is Congressman Thomas S. Butler of Pennsylvania, the grand old chairman of the House Naval Affairs committee, who has the longest continuous service record in Congress—30 years of it.

"Old Man" Butler, as he is affectionately called, believes in having an adequate navy and he believes in protecting American lives abroad.

But he thinks it's a blamed nuisance to have to go tearing in every so often after American citizens who insist on staying in danger zones with full warning of what may happen. Thus, he thinks it right that Smedley should be on the job, but if he had had his way there'd have been no reason for the boy to have been sent over in his first place.

"I'm not sure why our marines are there," this scrappy 72-year-old father told NEA Service recently. "But I think they are there because some of our few thousand nationals are in danger."

"What I want to know is why in the name of heaven those nationals aren't grassed out by force!"

"Why, we haven't long ago brought 'em back and told 'em to stay here, I don't know."

Across With Borah "Old Man" Butler is the second prominent person of importance in Washington to urge that Americans in China all be moved to a place of safety. The other was Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee.

"Old Man" Butler thinks the Boxer outbreak should have taught us a lesson. "The cause of that outbreak has never been fully explained although it was supposed to have been the animosity against foreigners," he said.

"We all got into it—everybody who had an army. We used our marines and troops, killed a lot of Chinamen, lost a lot of our own people and what it was all over, the business people and the others crowded right back in."

"The armies marched together to Peking to give the Chinese an object lesson." "Those Chinamen have learned how to fight and they're armed. And there are something like four hundred million Chinamen."

"I think we ought to be relieved of such duties as are now forced upon us again. I don't see the good of this repetition of trouble for the sake of a few business houses."

Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

PAUL ADAMS
© N.E.A. Service

This is the second of a series of stories by former member of the A. E. F., going back to France as a forerunner of the "Second A. E. F." Yesterday's story told of the departure from New York.

Nowhere is wanting day more impressive than on the ocean. It's so, possibly from the utter loneliness of the ship. Land has long since merged into the horizon and the sun has dripped down behind it.

The water swishes as the vessel ploughs. Trails of steely, frothy bubbles race along the waterline. A dark cloud hangs over the port side, or maybe it's the starboard side. The white rollers may be dimly seen, far out.

A Chance to Remember
Then, suddenly, darkness has settled. As if touched by the wand of a sorcerer, the blackness envelops. A deep, thick, unpermeable gloom. It's lonely, standing there, leaning on the rail. But it's a delightful loneliness. There's so much chance for memories to play—so much of an opportunity to wonder about the ocean, the sky, and the star that comes glimmer through.

Was there ever a war? Was there ever a song about the mademoiselle from Armentieres? Must have been or there would be no Second A. E. F. Never was a moment made more fitting for deep reflection than when the twilight, then the darkness, settles on mid-ocean.

The reverie is broken!
Again comes the bugle call. . . . Soupy, Soupy. Soupy! It's dinner time. And if you're at the skipper's table you'll put on your tuxedo, if you want to—if any.

At table—that first night. Two comely young women, one with flashing black eyes, and three gentlemen. Introductions! Funnel! Two of the men were in the army. . . . both were officers, too. Between blowing on hot consommé (not slum) there were reminiscences. The officers were congenial fellows.

One was only a "shave-tail." And he swore he never had stepped a private and demanded a salute. Oh, well. The war's all over. Why argue? It was a good meal.

The Dance
Dinner being astern, as they say in sea-going parlance, the path was aloft to the salon where tea had been served in the afternoon with cinnamon toast. The orchestra was sharpening up a few test notes and, in a twinkling, burst out into a tuneful bit of highly polished jazz. The dance was on. Ankles and shapely silk stockings twinkled. (There was never anything like this on the old Anchises.) Acquaintances sprang up quickly. There's a spirit of easy good-fellowship on a boat.

What! No taps?
And no clumsy cork life preserver to drag into the cabin and sleep with all night! Times certainly have changed! The deck steward has folded back the sheets. Two pillows beckon irresistibly. A breeze floats through the port hole, opened to the stars. A healthy yawn or two. . . . a click of the light button. . . . a smile. Wars are not so bad—after eight years. Tres beans, in fact, tres beans.

Bum Solr! Finl, comme ca!
The promenade comes before breakfast, to guarantee an appetite. No one turns out on shipboard until the deck steward has barked his knuckles on the door trying to get some attention, not like the old days with a topkick barking: "Rise and shine, you guys!"

And breakfast
Plenty of Real Coffee
Not the "tay" those lime-juicers splashed into messcups on the Anchises and the thick, sticky porridge of those other days. But grapefruit and orange juice, browned toast, golden muffins, eggs and some crisp rashers of bacon. In that silver tankard of coffee there's enough for a squad—and it's strong enough to dissipate any fog that may have collected. Down goes a few scorching gulps and then comes that first cigarette. The smoke curls away from the ash. Boy! It's the life of Reilly!

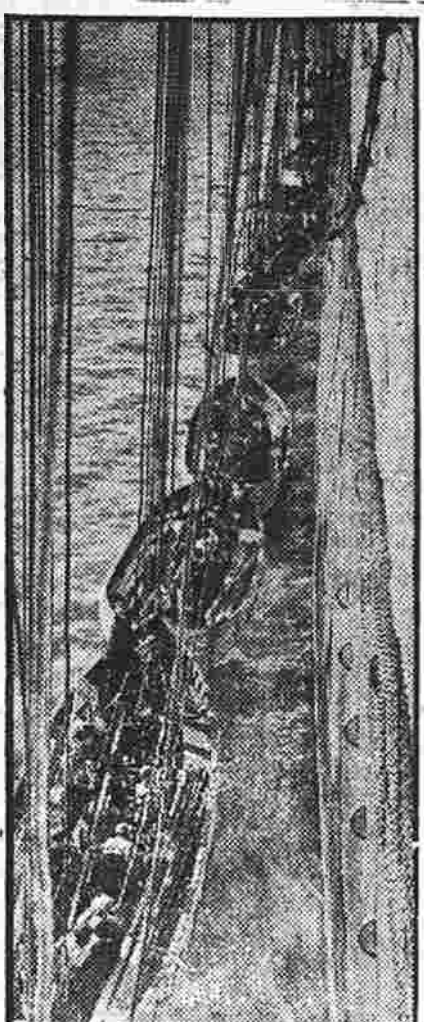

Going back!
Back to the land of "No Compré." Back to the Cafe Nationale up on the Rue De Foot Toot. Back to the 40 hommes and 8 chevaux. Back where there was mud in the rue and rats in the billet. Where's Hermance? Or maybe it was Orléance? Or Joan? Regardless, she was "Chérie." Wonder what happened to her? Probably married and clomping around in her wooden shoes with a couple of bright-eyed youngsters at her heels.

Going back!
No Tin Fish
After all the years of reminiscing and fighting the war all over with justifiable exaggerations.

Going back!
Even on top of a good breakfast, it doesn't seem hardly possible. But, as a second A. E. F'er, it is possible. The dream is coming true. And remember, when you want to smoke, you can do it in the open. No sneaking around behind a funnel or a life-boat, covering up in the fear of submarines. The tin fish ain't out there any more.

GRIPPING MYSTERY ON RIALTO'S BILL

The glamour and mystery of the historic Los Angeles Chinatown together with a cleverly worked out plot and an exceptional cast goes to make "Going Crooked" the feature attraction at the Rialto theater this afternoon and evening one of the most fascinating crook comedy dramas ever filmed. The story revolves around the activities of a gang of jewel thieves their one fatal slip, the love of a beautiful ad-ventress for the young district attorney who goes crooked to prove his love for her—and the adventures of a stolid detective who bungles the case at every turn. Thereby are thrills, suspense a real love story, plenty of comedy and a smashing climax at the end. Bessie Love and Oscar Shaw are cast in the leading roles. The co-feature stars popular "Bully" Sullivan in a picture that should gain him a legion of new admirers. It is called "The Windjammer" and relates the experiences of a timid youth who resorts to the prize rings in an effort to save a circus from bankruptcy. Other selected shorter subjects also appear on the program. The double feature bill which opens a two day's run at this playhouse tomorrow has for a headliner "Burnt Fingers" a thrilling mystery tale which starts off with a bang when Stockmar, internationally known dancer and heart breaker is found murdered. Everything points to the guilt of his dancing partner and things look black for her. She receives aid from an unexpected quarter however and after a gripping climax everything turns out for the best. Eileen Percy, George O'Hara and Edna Murphy have the leads in this suspenseful drama. The other attraction being offered on these two days is "High Hand," a western drama starring Leo Maloney which will be hard to surpass in the way of action. Other subjects to be shown include a comedy and current news events.

Father—I feel like whipping you.
Son—Don't give in to your feelings, Dad.

BUCKLAND'S PREMATURE DIVE LIFESAVER FOR WATERBURY

Manchester High finished third in the state interscholastic swimming meet held in the Wilby High pool at Waterbury Saturday afternoon with thirteen points against thirty-one for Crosby High of Waterbury and thirty for New Haven Hillhouse. Ten high schools competed, the others being Bristol, five points, Warren Harding High of Bridgeport, four points, Leavenworth High of Waterbury, four points, Central High of Bridgeport, New Haven Commercial and Southington, no score.

While Manchester has no alibi to offer, finishing third being a compliment to the school and Coach W. J. Clarke, it is nevertheless true that the S. M. H. S. mermen missed a golden opportunity to win the state championship through over-anxiousness. This occurred during the relay. Manchester was several feet ahead when it was disqualified because Leah Buckland dove before being touched. The loss of a

COVENTRY

Coventry Grange, No. 75, P. of H., had a good attendance at its last meeting, when Bolton Grange presented this Grange with the waving gavel. This gavel is traveling all over the state of Connecticut and will be taken to Vernon Grange from this Grange. Echo Grange of Mansfield Center also met with this Grange. Both granges furnished the program. Over 100 were present.

Mr. and Mrs. George Maskell and Mr. and Mrs. John E. Kingsbury and son, John Jr., have returned from their auto trip to Wellsburg, N. Y., where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McRae.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederiek Hamilton have returned to Chicago after spending the past two weeks at their summer home in town.

Robert Hamilton of Yale College spent his vacation with his parents here this week.

Miss Laura K. Kingsbury of Connecticut Agricultural College spent the week-end at her home.

Robert Adhens, James Bennett and William Cobb of Harrison, N. Y., spent the week-end at Mrs. George Bennett, Sr.'s, summer home.

Miss Ruth Taylor of Hartford spent the week-end at her home.

William Hill of Hartford spent the week-end with his parents.

Vincent Ingraham of Hartford spent the week-end at Fred Anderson's.

Miss Gertrude Anderson was home over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kingsbury and three children of Burdside were Sunday guests at Autumn View Farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Harrington have moved to Burdside where Mr. Harrington has entered the employ at Woodlawn Farm near Laurel Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Blinn of Wethersfield were Sunday guests at the latter's brother's, Fred Harlow.

Lawrence Hill and sisters, Lillie and Marlon spent the week-end at home.

The Ladies' Fragment Society will meet at the parsonage this Wednesday. Mrs. Henry T. Barnes will act as hostess. There will be a missionary hour at this meeting.

The Christian Endeavor society is rehearsing for the play they hope to present in a few weeks.

The Ready Helpers held their regular meeting Friday evening and voted to hold an entertainment and parcel post sale. The committee chosen is Mrs. J. N. Atwood, Mrs. J. E. Kingsbury and Miss Lillian Ayer.

HARTFORD'S CHAMBER

BROADCAST NOVELTY

The broadcasting program for Friday evening, April 15, at nine o'clock over the station WTIC of Hartford, Connecticut, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, presents some very attractive novelties. The program is sponsored by the eight service luncheon clubs and the Advertising club.

The feature of the program will be the appearance of the South Sea Islanders in musical pictures of Hawaii. This in itself is enough to keep the dial on the spot but the unique part of the program is the evidence of contact which these service clubs in Hartford have with the welfare work among boys and girls of the city.

Buddy Graves will tell in three minutes what he thinks of the outfit. Kenneth Shenton will provide vocal entertainment and Edward F. Ahern, Jr., will make the piano piece as Dr. George E. Tucker will give one of his characteristic talks for about four minutes, representing all of the clubs, and giving us a little idea of their very earnest, altruistic work.

Inter-spersed among this very attractive program will be an unknown warbler who must have been born on one of the Swiss Alps, judging from his musical notes.

While the program comes on Good Friday evening, it is going to be one worth while from the standpoint of every radio fan. This is the fifth in the series of broadcasting programs given by the civic and business clubs of Hartford under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. They have no suggestion of commercialism but give marked evidence of a notable spirit of cooperation which obtains in this city.

ISSUES A WARNING

AGAINST WOOD FIRES

State Forester Says High Winds and Dry Brush Make For Danger.

Hartford, Conn., April 11.—An appeal for state-wide precautionary measures to prevent forest fires was sent out today by Austin F. Hawes, state forester. At the same time Mr. Hawes put into effect stringent regulations to offset the danger caused by prevailing high winds.

Fire wardens have been instructed to refuse permits for brush burning and for camp fires during April except on rainy days or days following heavy rains.

Fire look-out stations of the department are in operation today and wardens are out on constant patrol of wooded areas. Four fires on Sunday burned considerable area before they could be extinguished. Strong winds made their spread rapid. The fires reported were: Plainfield, Clinton, East Granby and North Coventry. The last is said to have been set by a fisherman who started a small camp-fire.

Brush burning in Stafford last week resulted in the burning of two sets of farm buildings with $7,000 loss. Records show that there were fifty-eight fires in March.

GILEAD

The Grange held its regular meeting Tuesday evening. The worthy lecturer, Rev. J. W. Deeter presented an interesting program, as follows:

LUDLOW DEFEATS MANCHESTER SOCCER ELEVEN, SCORE 4 TO 3

Minus the services of four of its regular players, Manchester forced the Ludlow, Mass., Thistles to exert themselves to score a 4 to 3 victory in an exhibition soccer game at Mt. Nebo grounds yesterday before a large crowd of fans.

Poots, Wilson, Nicholson and Blaxam were not in the Manchester lineup which was, for once, composed entirely of Manchester players. Ludlow came to town with a strong team and gave a worthy exhibition. The Bay State aggregation tallied twice in the first ten minutes of play. Marshall, their center, made both goals and later tallied still another. Manchester was still trailing 3 to 0 at halftime but played much better in the second half and equalized with about twenty minutes gone. Ludlow, however, managed to drive another goal into the net.

The biggest game of the season will take place next Sunday when Manchester goes to Hartford to meet the Thistles in the replay for the first round of the Protective Cup. The two teams tied here two weeks ago, each scoring two goals.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST The Betrayal of Jesus

Then Judas came into the garden with a great multitude of men and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees—enemies of Jesus. They carried torches and were armed with swords, stones and other weapons. (Matthew XXVI : 47)

By a prearranged sign, Judas said, "Hail, Master," and kissed Jesus, betraying Him to those who sought to arrest Him. (Matthew XXVI : 48-49)

Peter drew his sword and cut off the ear of the servant of the high priest, but Jesus rebuked him, and healed the wounded man. (John XVIII : 10-11)

The enemies of Jesus then seized Him, as His disciples fled. Bound, Christ was taken first to Annas, who was the father-in-law of Caiaphas the high priest, and then to Caiaphas. (John XVIII : 12-13)

'BOYS' BRIGADE' TO FIGHT LOCAL FIRES

Lads' Fine Work at Blaze Saturday Causes Comment—Chief Coleman Approves.

Boys have been with us for such a long time, and their transition into manhood and citizenship is so unperceptive, that they are taken as a matter of course. But those who look back upon boyhood days from the heights of manhood realize that boys need guidance, education and control in a number of fields to insure the making of better men and citizens.

The real boys are hero worshipers, whether it be a baseball player, soldier, adventurer, fireman, and many other heroes that appeal to the boyish mind. That the boy likes to do the things that his particular idol does was evidenced Saturday when No. 1 company of the north end was called out on a still alarm to a brush fire of stubborn proportions covering the entire area of Hillard and Woodland streets.

Chief Coleman, together with G. H. Washburn, director of the Manchester Community Club, suggested to the boys that they be organized into a Saturday volunteer "fire brigade" to which the boys enthusiastically responded.

The "Fire Brigade" will be an "unofficial" organization co-operating only with the department on Saturday and on grass and brush fires alone. The boys will furnish their own means of transportation to and from the fires.

Saturday's Fire

These embryo firemen will be taught by the chief all the necessary measures of fire prevention, as well as to keep a sharp watch for grass and brush fires started by unthoughtful people then left to the element of a chance wind which sometimes make them destructive weapons of town property.

After the organization has been formed members who wish to join must pass his test of fire knowledge in fighting grass and brush fires before the chief in order to become a full fledged "fire brigade" member.

HOLY WEEK MEDITATIONS "Loving God With Our Minds"

"Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.—Matthew XXII:37.

By CHARLES HAVEN MYERS, D. D.
Plymouth Church of Shaker Heights, Cleveland, Ohio.

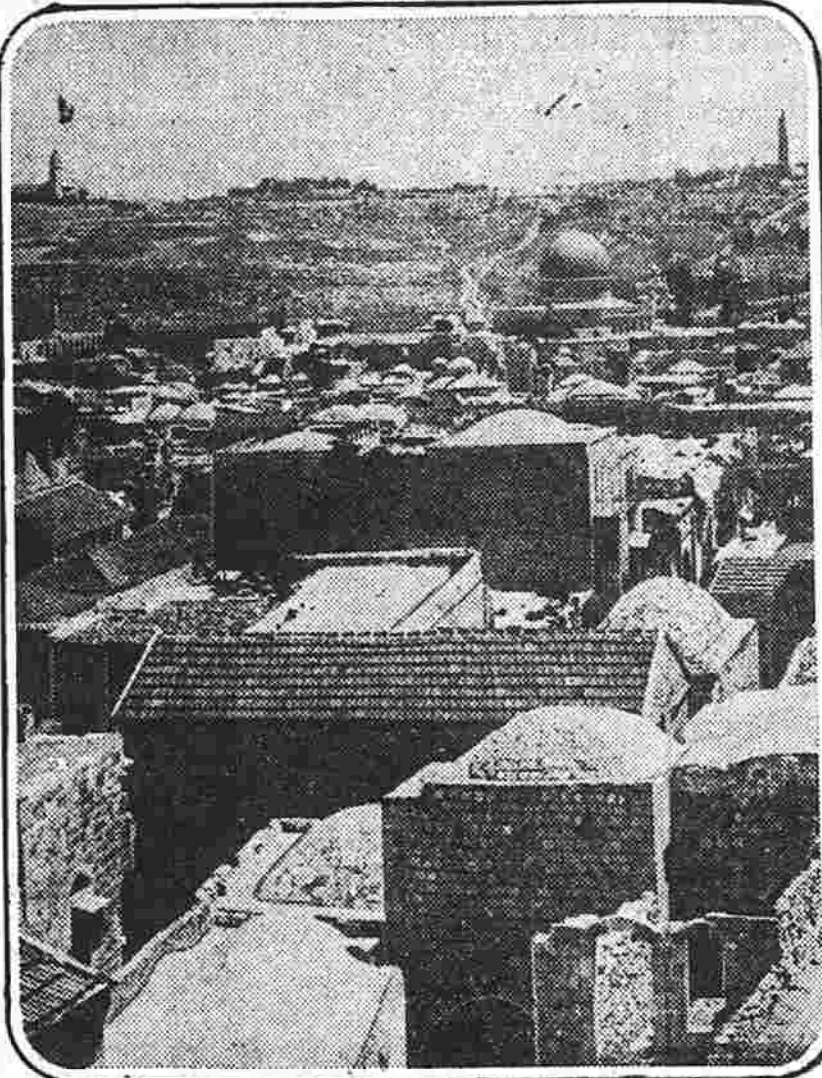

We are accustomed to thinking of love as an emotion generally expressing itself in some form of affection. But the word that Jesus here employs means a deep, reverent love—a dedication, as it were, of the whole personality. It is the same word that the Master used in asking Peter—"Do you love me?"

Worship is often expended in sentiment and emotional response. Religion may become, because of an excess of feeling, very rapid and superficial. The saving element is the consciousness that our intellectual life is an important part of religion. For we cannot maintain our spiritual integrity by breaking our life up into compartments—reserving certain thoughts for the hour of worship and certain other ideas which we are pleased to call secular. No, our minds must be completely devoted to the highest good—or God.

Loving God with our minds implies inquiring minds. If we close our minds, feeling satisfied over what we have learned, we shall soon cease to grow.

Loving God with our minds insures noble thinking. There is so much that is pitched upon a low plane—sordid, tawdry and cheap. It is a responsibility that every Christian man and woman assumes—to enrich life. "High thinking" is a part of true religion.

Loving God with our minds means to think hopefully. Otherwise we may become a prey to cynicism or sterile pessimism. The future awaits with blessing the one who realizes the gift of God—a sound mind—and uses it to glorify Him.

A view of Jerusalem with the Mount of Olives in the distance.

Loving God with our minds brings us, inevitably, into association with the noblest thinkers of all ages. The richest and best in poetry and philosophy becomes our possession. Without this employment of our mind the Bible becomes a confusing book. But with this high motive to guide us the Spirit of Truth interprets the hidden meanings. It is a part of the great command of Jesus—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with thy mind."

EXAMINATIONS HERE FOR UNCLE SAM JOBS

Harold Agard, secretary of the local board of civil service examiners at the South Manchester Post office, stated today that federal civil service examinations will be held in Manchester soon if there are sufficient applications. Mr. Agard will supply full information and application blanks to Manchester persons who desire them. Inquiry should be made at the post office.

The federal positions which are open for competitive examinations are listed as follows:

SINGERS SUCCEED IN "OLIVET TO CALVARY"

Soloists and Chorus of 50 Give Fine Rendition of "Olivet to Calvary."

Edward F. Taylor, Albert Pearson and a chorus of 50 singers gave an excellent rendition of Maunder's cantata "Olivet to Calvary," under the direction of Helge Pearson, at the Swedish Lutheran church last night. A crowd which nearly filled the church heard the cantata.

The work is written for tenor, baritone and chorus, and contains several hymns which are taken part in by the congregation. The solo parts were well taken care of by Mr. Taylor, who is a church singer with years of experience, and Albert Pearson, brother of the director, who has begun to make a name for himself in local musical circles.

It was Mr. Taylor's first work in this cantata, and it was the most ambitious that Mr. Pearson has yet essayed. Both were excellent, although Mr. Taylor's experience allowed him the better effect. His expression and enunciation left nothing to be asked for. The many recitatives called out the best of his skill. His soft tones were delicately shaded while he negotiated the high notes with the greatest of ease.

Mr. Pearson's first attempt at something as ambitious as "Olivet to Calvary" was crowned with success, though he lacks the advantage of Mr. Taylor's experience his singing shows much promise.

The chorus functioned smoothly and with credit to its director. Most of the members of the chorus had appeared in this cantata in previous years and the work was familiar to them.

The accompanists were Miss Eva Johnson at the piano and Miss E. Marion Dorward, director of the High school orchestra, at the organ.

The lesson, on "The Passion of Christ," was read by Rev. Ralph Mortinson of Hartford.

No, Mabel. Him being a Rotarian doesn't mean he's an old runder.

PARENTS MUST CONSENT TO '16 YEAR' LICENSES

Law Will Become Effective May 1 If Governor Trumbull Signs Bill.

Although the so-called "16-year-old license bill" has not yet been signed by Governor Trumbull, the state motor vehicle department has begun to receive inquiries from persons between 16 and 18 years old who want to apply for licenses, while there has not been a rush of such inquiries, there has been enough of them to cause the preparation of a printed letter which is being sent to each inquirer, reading as follows:

"The amended law which will allow a minor between sixteen and eighteen years of age to apply for a motor vehicle operator's license, provided such person's parent, guardian or guardian consent to such application, becomes effective on May 1, 1927.

"Application forms are not yet available and of course no such application will be accepted by this department until May 1st next."

The bill has been adopted by both branches of the Legislature and will become a law when signed by the governor, but not effective until the first of next month. The great majority of bills passed by the Legislature go into effect with the beginning of the state's fiscal year, July 1, but the earlier date when the amended license law is to go into operation is specifically stated in the bill.

In the meantime the motor vehicle department is having special blanks prepared for the use of such applicants. These blanks will provide a place wherein the consent of either of the parents or the guardian of the applicant must be certified.

THREE BURNED TO DEATH
Maple Plain, Minn., April 11.—Three persons were burned to death near here today when fire destroyed the home of George Thayer, owner of the Thayer Farms.

The dead:
George Thayer, 65; his wife, 60, and Davis Robertson, 45, an employe.

10-YEAR-OLD SOLDIER.

Detroit, Mich., April 11.—Funeral services for John Dorsey, 76, believed to be America's youngest veteran of the Civil War, will be held Wednesday.

Dorsey ran away from home and joined Company "E" Twenty-Seventh Regiment of Missouri when he was but ten years old and served as a drummer boy.

A Metropolitan Newspaper in a NEW ENGLAND SETTING!

THAT IS A REMARK so often expressed by visiting New York newspapermen who come to Manchester that there must be something about THE EVENING HERALD that gives strangers that impression. And there is. In every department, special efforts are made to keep up to the Metropolitan standard. Here are some simple statements of fact:

World News

The world news streaming in from the four quarters of the earth on a special I. N. S. wire, is hours and sometimes days ahead of other newspapers circulating here. Compare them daily to verify this.

Local News

Local news is covered daily by eight writers and the suburban news is covered by a dozen correspondents. All of these work exclusively for THE EVENING HERALD. There is more Manchester news in one issue of THE EVENING HERALD than in a week's issue of other papers circulating here and TODAY'S NEWS IS PUBLISHED TODAY.

Editorials

HERALD editorials are written in THE HERALD OFFICE within the day of publication. They deal with the topics of the moment in a spirit of justice and humanity and express at all times the convictions of the editors. It is their purpose to be intelligent, to be fair, to be unafraid.

Sports

Local sport news is always given preference on THE HERALD'S Sport Page. All sports pertaining to Manchester organizations and individuals are covered regardless of where the games are played. Sports of state, national and international importance are covered by three news services, the F. N. S., NEA and United Press. There is no better quartet of reliable sport writers than Davis J. Walsh, Henry L. Farrell, Joe Williams and Billy Evans.

Cartoons

Besides political cartoons supplied daily by NEA your local paper has employed at considerable expense a Metropolitan cartoonist to draw pictures of local interest. There is not another paper in the east in a town the size of Manchester which hires a cartoonist of this caliber to draw exclusive sketches of purely local events.

Women's Page

For women and the home THE EVENING HERALD devotes an entire page. It is under the direction of a woman who knows what interests local women. The latest fashions and timely topics concerning the house and home are daily published with the end in view of always applying them to local conditions.

Features

As to features, a perusal of THE EVENING HERALD is all that is necessary. Comic strips, serial stories, strips for children, columns dealing with the light side of life, pictures of news events as soon as they occur, photographs of celebrities in all walks of life. In short the features constitute a daily tabloid magazine.

Advertisements

There is just as much news of interest in EVENING HERALD advertisements as there is in the news sections. Daily products of the marts of the world are spread before HERALD readers by advertisers. Whatever is your question of need, the advertisements have ready answer. To advertisers THE EVENING HERALD is the perfect medium to reach prospective buyers. Its circulation takes it into nearly every house in town and the surrounding territory. Its classified department will find a lost stickpin as easily as rent the largest store.

A speaker at a recent banquet of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce said: "I understand you have a newspaper here that refused to publish the salacious details of a New York court trial. Did you write to the editor telling him you approved? I'll wager you did not." THE EVENING HERALD has an OPEN FORUM column for its readers to express opinions on local or other questions of the day. Patronize it. It is for your special benefit. Send your name and address, not for publication but as a token of good faith. Your confidence will be held.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS DECIDE 1928 CONVENTION SHOULD GO TO INDIANA

WHERE DEMOCRATS MAY FIGHT IT OUT.

The exposition and coliseum on the state fair grounds at Indianapolis, Ind., where the next national Democratic convention may be held, is pictured above.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
(Copyright, 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)
Washington.—The next Democratic national convention will be held in Indianapolis, a powerful group of Democrats who met here recently decided.

This group, incidentally, is composed of men who have the interests of the Democratic party at heart. Recalling what happened in the New York setting in 1924, they are extremely anxious to provide the most auspicious and least objectionable background for the take-off of 1928.

The consensus of opinion in favor of Indianapolis was almost unanimous when the question was brought up and the various cities bidding for the convention were considered.

New York, of course, is out of the question. The Democratic national committee selects the site and if New York obtained a half dozen votes in view of the memories of those packed galleries in Madison Square Garden three years ago, it would be lucky.

Boston Wants It, Too
Boston is trying to buy the convention, but Boston is regarded as an Al Smith town.

For similar reasons—with New York and 1924 still in mind—Chicago is considered a worse site than New York, if that is possible. Denver and San Francisco are considered too far west—and California, incidentally, has a candidate in McAdoo.

St. Louis is eliminated because Missouri has a candidate, Senator James A. Reed. The dregs add the objection that St. Louis is wet. The Reed angle is regarded as also pushing Kansas City out of the picture.

Cleveland has been seriously considered and still has a bare chance, but the Republican party is likely to hold its own convention there and, if only through tradition, the Democrats refuse to hold their own circus in the same tent. Furthermore, Ohio is also likely to produce a candidate and there are cross-currents of factionalism in the Ohio Democracy in which the party leaders don't want to mix.

Gun-Shy of Wet Cities
Cincinnati is also in Ohio. The dregs contend that Cincinnati is wet and they're certainly gun-shy of wet cities following the 1924 fiasco.

Louisville wants the convention, but the powerful group of leaders of whom we speak feels there is nothing to be gained in Kentucky.

Detroit is considered a wet city, rather out of the way and in a state which the Democrats never carry in a presidential year.

Of course, Tom Taggart has already got himself an Indiana candidate in the somewhat obscure person of Evans Woolen, but while the other Democrats take Taggart himself rather seriously they don't take Woolen seriously at all.

On the other hand, Indiana is considered a doubtful state in the heart of an important midwestern territory which the Democrats must break in 1928. It has an ideal location geographically, its railroad communications are the best and adequate hotel accommodations are promised.

A Doubtful State
The tentative agreement on Indianapolis is said to be the cold, deliberate judgment of men inside the party who want to keep away from states which are detrimentally biased for one candidate or another.

Incidentally, Taggart, of course, favors Indianapolis, although he has not been pushing it, and George Brennan, the Chicago Democratic boss, probably will favor Indianapolis if he knows the convention can't be held in Chicago.

STATE CROWD THRILLED BY "THE MUSIC MASTER"

His triumph in "The Return of Peter Grimm" is surpassed by Alec B. Francis, famous character actor, in "The Music Master," which opened a three day run at the State theater last night. Francis is the principal part of the film and the production itself is a true to life picture of New York and Vienna in the years just following 1900.

It seemed that a greater actor than the world-famous David Warfield had taken the stage star's place. Francis, who has been playing character parts for several years, has never had any vehicle which could approach "The Music Master" for sheer opportunity for acting. And he has made good in it. The other characters in the film are of the highest caliber but they are merely secondary figures when Francis is on the screen.

For years Francis has yearned to play the lead in this production. But it had gone from the stage with the Floradora Sextet and the theater following wanted something more modern, a bit more sexy. Result, "The Music Master" remained as only a memory in the minds of those who had seen the stage play. But when William Fox decided to produce the play on the screen his first move was to sign up Francis for the lead. And he has done something he will not regret.

State patrons utilized all the standing room in the theater on the picture's first appearance here last night. Handkerchiefs were used frequently for the pathos of the film is such that it brings tears to the eyes.

The story tells of a famous old musician who lives on New York's East Side, the real East Side as it was in 1900. Nothing is known of the old man but he has become the idol of all the children in the neighborhood. He ekes out a living by giving music lessons to the children but his identity is something that he keeps dark.

It seems that the old man was the leader of the famous symphony orchestra and has come to America to try to find his wife, who ran away with a younger man many years ago. He falls in his quest but on his travels he encounters a young woman who is the living image of his beautiful wife. Certain that she is his daughter, he prepares to keep his identity secret so that her happiness will not be impaired.

The climax comes with a suddenness that leaves the audience gasping. For it is not the Music Master who is to make the sacrifice, but another person, and that is where the surprise comes. Supporting Francis in the picture are Lois Moran and Neil Hamilton.

WAPPING

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Muzzey and little daughter from New Haven were the guests of Miss Betty Stoughton at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin F. Stoughton.

The Pleasant Valley club held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Wellman Burnham. Mrs. Robert Skinner was to assist Mrs. Burnham as hostess but could not be present on account of a severe attack of rheumatism and Mrs. David Burnham took her place.

Mrs. James Baskerville of East Windsor Hill was taken to the Hartford hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

A. C. Rose has his cellar for his new house at Pleasant Valley well under way.

Wapping Grange will omit their regular meeting on next Tuesday evening, April 12, as they have been invited to meet with East Hartford Grange on that evening. Every Grange in the state of Connecticut has been invited and the High Priest of Demeter is expected to be present and deliver one of his fine addresses. Each Grange is to furnish one number for the program.

Mrs. Robert Risley of South Windsor was the guest of her mother, Mrs. William Baker of Glastonbury last week.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

by Anne Austin

THIS HAS HAPPENED
 BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX, WINNIE SHELTON and seven other pretty girls—all employees in the big Curtis Store—win prizes in a second interesting contest staged by T. Q. CURTIS himself. The prize is an invitation to a formal dinner party at the Curtis mansion.

Billy is suspicious of T. Q.'s motives. "What is the old man up to?" she asks herself repeatedly. Her suspicions are heightened when CLAY CURTIS, son of the store owner, begs her not to participate in the contest. She disregards his advice, however. Clay has disinherited himself and is living with the Wells family in a poor section of the city, working in a factory during the day and writing music at night.

At the dinner, Billy sits between DAHART ROMANOFF and PRETTY WARRBURTON, a lawyer, who is in a sulky mood. Romannoff, with his fascinating personality, his Oriental good looks, wears about Billy a painful delicious spell. Billy meets during the evening RALPH MAJAN, whose father owns the automobile factory which employs her.

When the party is over, Billy tells Old T. Q. that she must hurry so the hour will not strike for her as it did for a previous Cinderella. With unaccountable goodnights, Old T. Q. asks "What if the hour didn't strike for you at all?"

The next morning, Billy receives a telegram from Curtis, asking her and her mother to be at his home at ten o'clock. At the Curtis home, Billy and her mother find Nyda Lomax and Winnie Shelton.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX

BILLY and her mother seated themselves on a divan at some distance from Nyda Lomax and Winnie Shelton.

"Good morning, girls. Er—good morning, Mrs. Wells. I presume it's Mrs. Wells?" T. Q. Curtis appeared in the doorway, bowing in a courtly fashion. "Allow me to make you acquainted with my lawyer, Mr. Warburton, Mrs. Wells."

Nyda rose, posting a little self-consciously, with one long, slim hand on her hip. "Mother had already gone to work when your telegram came this morning, Mr. Curtis. I hope it's all right for me to come alone."

"Quite all right, under the circumstances," T. Q. smiled slightly. "And your mother, I believe it is, Miss Winnie?"

"Yes, I have no mother," Winnie's small, musical voice struck a plaintive note. "Dad had already gone to work, too."

The department store owner took his own seat behind his big desk, and the lawyer, Warburton, drew a straight, high-backed chair up to the desk for himself. His face was set and cold with disapproval.

"You may recall," T. Q. Curtis began, "that, in announcing the ten winners of the second contest, I told you that I felt the need of young life about me, in my home, now that I am childless as well as wifeless. My son, Clay, has, as he calls it, disinherited himself, for reasons that appear good and sufficient to him. The fact remains that I am a lonely man, and I have a great deal more money than it is good for one man to have."

"As he passed, Billy reached for her mother's hand and held it tightly, but her eyes never left T. Q.'s stern, sad face.

"I have been existing about for weeks for a plan by which I could bring happiness to at least a few members of the only family I have left—my store family. It has struck me, during the years that I have been an employer, that girls have a much harder time of it than young men. It circumstances, force them to go to work early, any high ambitions they may have are sacrificed to the immediate necessity of making a living. It was to learn your ambitions that I decided upon the questionnaire contest. The second contest told me what you would do with money, opportunity, if they came to you. Last night, unknown to you, the third contest was held. There is no necessity for my going into details as to how I chose the three of you—Nyda Lomax, Winnie Shelton, Billy Wells—he told the names of with one forefinger tapping the other—for the rules of choosing must be my secret. You were chosen. And I hope that you will be glad, when you hear the proposition I have prepared to put before you.

"I should like to make you three girls my wards for the period of one year."

Nyda and Winnie stirred in their seats and smiled self-consciously.

"I don't intend to keep you in suspense long," T. Q. grinned at them. "As briefly as possible, this is what I should like very much to do: I choose the three of you—Nyda Lomax, Winnie Shelton, Billy Wells—into my home exactly as if you were my daughters. During the year that you will be my foster daughters—if you accept my offer—each of you will be trained for the work for which you have expressed a high ambition."

For the first time in her life Billy Wells felt as if her sturdy heart was about to fail her. Her hand tightened about her mother's until Mrs. Wells winced with pain.

"Miss Shelton," T. Q. resumed after a slight pause. "Oh, please call me Winnie, I'm going to be your daughter!" Winnie's musical, eager voice pleaded. "Oh, I could just die, I'm so happy!"

"Foster daughter, or ward," T. Q. corrected her, but Billy saw that he was pleased. "Well, Winnie, you have indicated on the questionnaire that your highest ambition is to fit yourself to be an expert private secretary to a big business man. Is that right?"

A ludicrously blank expression

her long, slim hands under her chin. "I never dreamed I'd be so lucky!"

"Now, little Spitfire," T. Q. turned toward Billy, with the air of a man who has saved the best for the last. "I told you I'd do the firing for the Curtis Store, and I'm giving you notice right now. You're fired, young lady, and ordered to devote your time to your violin for the period of one year. How about it?"

Tears blurred her eyes as she nodded at him dumbly, her lips trembling so that she could not have spoken to save her life.

"For the first time I find you at a loss for words," T. Q. jeered at her. "Billy, I have heard you play. I believe you have genius. I hear that my son believes you are destined to be the greatest American violinist. And he should know, for he has heard the best musicians alive today. Now, little girl, you're going to have your chance. First—how do you like this?" And he stooped for something concealed behind his desk.

When he straightened, he held a violin in his hands. The beautiful, gracious thing that he held clumsily drew the girl out of her chair. T. Q. put the instrument in her hands, smiled triumphantly as she laid it reverently against her cheek, her fingers trailing across the dark, gleaming surface as if she needed the assurance of every nerve in them that the wonderful thing actually existed.

"Professor Navratil made a trip to Kansas City especially to buy it for me," T. Q. explained, his own voice shaking a little with excitement.

"Now, girls, I do not want you to decide without taking time for thought. Mr. Warburton here has prepared an agreement, at my dictation, which he will now read to you, and which you will sign at this hour tomorrow, after consultation with your parents. It is a simple agreement, to accept. Please read the agreement, Mr. Warburton."

While the lawyer read the heavily phrased, legal document, Billy sat huddled in her chair. Vaguely she heard clauses that sounded queer—something about not being married during the year, something else about "good conduct," an astonishing jumble of words in which the incredible sum of five hundred dollars a month as personal income for each girl was mentioned, and emphasized, with restrictions that seemed absurdly simple—but what did it all matter? She held in her arms such a violin as she had dreamed of, but had never dared hope to own.

"Now, girls," said T. Q., "I am going to let you leave without further discussion. Your parents need have no fear of your entire safety while under my roof. I have arranged with Mrs. Lucia Meadows, widow of a former governor of this state, to live here with you, and to act as your chaperon and as hostess of your home. I hope all three of you will decide to accept my offer. I shall do my utmost to make you happy. Good morning."

Mrs. Meadows' Billy stumbled to her feet. If Mrs. Meadows was to make her home here, then her nephew, Dal Romanoff—Nyda, her eyes boring levelly into Billy's, said slowly, "I wonder how long the shell's going to be in town. Look at her blush, Winnie. Well, I give you fair warning, girls. All's fair in love and war."

Clay depends Billy's joy with his dark forebodings as to her future as a Q's ward. Read tomorrow's chapter.

This is to be no little item about bouncing mamas. If concerns bouncers for mamas. In case you are too genteel to know just what a bouncer is, he is generally a man of stalwart proportions hired to haunt dance halls and evening cafes and gentlemen, forcibly if needs be, whose department leaves much to be desired.

Bouncers for mamas of school children are asked for by Mabel Dougherty, a young "school marm" of Sandy Creek school, N. Y. Miss Mabel was badly beaten up by the mamas of a young hopeful whom the school teacher had chided. Seriously, no human beings are so unruly, so unfeeling, so dangerous as emotionally blinded parents. It is only the exceptional parent who surveys his or her offspring with unprejudiced eyes, and it is, therefore, only the exceptional parent, who is a good parent, for nothing so harms a kid as parents who think said kid all ways right, because it's "theirs."

There, I feel better. Thank you so much!

Today's Best Story!
 Here's today's best short story as found in the news. Mal Ling Wong, pretty daughter of a rich silk merchant of Peking, fell in love with a white youth at an American missionary school. But Mal Ling Wong's parents had arranged marriage for her with an elderly government official, whose face was as yellow as the river mud. Pretty Mal Ling was carried to her wedding in a palanquin. When they opened the crimson silk curtains to carry out the little bride, they found her unconscious, her face a lake of blood. She had slashed her cheeks with a dagger. Her beauty gone, the elderly bridegroom did not want her, but the rest of the tale is not finished. According to the story book, the white lover will be ready with open arms. But in real life—well, that's the end of the story when we know what will happen.

Mary and Careers.
 A "career" is just the only thing in the world that makes life worth living for women. Mary Garden said this just before she sailed for her summer on the Riviera. "A career is something that makes life a woman through life," she said. "With a career, a woman can get a firm stand in the world and let all the gales of love or sorrow blow that will. I am convinced for all time of the efficacy of expression for women through work."

Mary may not demand any reassurance from me as to her viewpoint. But I can't resist underscoring it. I am sure, too, that Mary no more excludes "home-making" from the "career" list, any more than do I. All women who make real jobs of their home jobs have their "career" as surely as the Mary Gardens who sing and the me's who write pieces for the papers.

Lady Plumbers.
 With cooking and cleaning classes for men cropping up in every city, it is not amazing to hear that women how to handle household plumbing, how to mend furniture, how to wield a saw and hammer, are also taking enrollment. It's not especially funny nor at all amazing. For just the feat of the same old job—why not, and what of it?

What about the woman's club?
 Where is it going? What is it doing?
 The parent club planned in the beginning with the culture idea, the betterment and education of its members has done the natural and normal thing. Women have discovered that one of the best things that can happen to anybody is to do something for someone else.

The original club idea has therefore grown branches that bear every possible kind of fruit—child welfare, the education of illiterates, social service, tax systems, pure milk and lovelier towns! Every form of benevolent political, social and civic activity is to their credit. But the original culture club is still going strong. There are many clubs that get together to read plays and books, discuss current events, and listen to lectures on topics of the day. Self-improvement is its definite aim.

Sinclair Lewis took a rap at the literary club in "Main Street" that rather hit it in the solar plexus. You remember that the club of Gopher Prairie dispatched the English poets neatly and absolutely in half an hour.

But it did not annihilate the club. It was like a dose of stiff medicine. Clubs sat up and took notice. They shook themselves and got to work. They saw that if they were really going in for improvement they would have to do it intelligently or be the butt of all the Joe Millers.

But the cultural club is still under the fire of criticism. It still bears the stigma more or less of time waster. Why this should be I cannot say. Women who give all their time to household duties and have no time nor opportunity at home to keep themselves abreast of the times certainly have the right for an hour or two a week to hear intelligent discussions on up-to-date questions, reviews of worthwhile books, and get authentic information about people and affairs.

The leisured woman who has opportunity and time and money to get first-hand information may perhaps lay herself open to criticism for not having her membership in what may be called a utility club, provided she does no other useful work.

But the average woman is a busy woman giving much of her time to others. Why should she not be allowed a few hours a week to improve herself?

BODILY BEAUTY'S UPS AND DOWNS Another Exercise Entailing That Beneficial Spine Stretching.

Posed by Davenie Watson and Kathryn Appar, of New Wayburn's studio.

That beauty has its ups and downs is demonstrated by the exercises I am going to advise today. It combines a number of highly effective muscular movements, with the spine-stretching that I recommend so highly.

Stand upright, knees together, and arms stretched as high in the air as possible. Then bend the knees until you are sitting on your heels, at the same time lowering your arms until they are at right angles with your body. Then up and at it again.

This is more strenuous than it looks, and is apt to cause rather acute discomfort unless you begin with five or six bendings and work up gradually to greater speed and endurance.

As you raise your arms, try to raise your body as high as you can from the hips, and make yourself as tall as possible.

This exercise is more interesting if you do it with music. When you finish, it is well to rest by lying flat on the floor. Then follow with previous exercises which may be done in a reclining position.

TOO MANY CARBOHYDRATES WILL MAKE YOUR WEIGHT RISE

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
 Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The average American has a sweet tooth. This, with his special desire for meat, is the major idiosyncrasy of his diet.

The rise of cereal grains, including rice, wheat, rye, maize and barley, is one of the major developments of modern civilization. The proteins of beans and peas are not

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study. Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.

NEW MANAGERS IN RACE THIS SEASON!

Where will these eight new managers land their respective teams this season? There exists little reason for some to expect a berth in the first division. Others are more optimistic. A few face doubly hard tasks because of a good finish by their clubs last season.

BASEBALL SEASON OPENS TOMORROW

Expect All Parks to Be Jammed For Opening Games; Where They Play.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH (INS Sports Editor) New York, April 11.—Professional pessimists, who like to think that the sleep of Troy was a "carry" in order to make the thing look good, will be trampled under foot in the rush toward the turnstiles tomorrow by a quarter million souls, faithful always to their annual tryst with the game that is as much a part of America as Barthold's Liberty and the corner cigar store.

In New York Here in New York, Ty Cobb, a central figure in a mid-winter scandal that came to nothing, will be shown in the uniform of the Philadelphia Athletics at the first game since he entered the major league twenty-two years ago. With him will be Eddie Collins, returning to the scene of his early fame, and Zach Wheat, almost a hallowed figure now.

Eight New Managers Eight new managers will make their bow. Bill Carrigan, famous as Fenway park itself, coming back to Boston and the town where he won world's championship. Other new ones are Bill O'Farrell with the Cardinals; Dan Howley with the Browns; Donie Bush with Pittsburgh; Ray Schalk with the White Sox; George Moriarty with the Tigers; Studly McInnis with the Phillies and Jack McCallister with the Indians. It is a matter of record that a new manager never kept an addit away from an opening game.

In fact, granted favorable weather, it would surprise no one if the teams played to capacity, or thereabout, in each of the eight favored cities. The Phillies generally are picked to go nowhere rapidly; yet with Howley and Eddie Roush, new Giants, as the headliners, no customer will suffer from loneliness at the Baker stadium.

The Pirates and Reds, pre-season favorites, will be another "natural" for the Cincinnati opening.

NEW SWIMMING CLASSES AT REC. LATE IN APRIL

The last swimming lessons of the present series will be given on Tuesday and Thursday evenings of this week at the School street Rec. Over a hundred women and girls have been receiving instructions weekly and many more have signified their intentions of joining the next series which begins the week of April 25.

Pirates, Reds, Cards And Giants In National, Athletics, Yanks, Indians And Senators In The American Is Evan's Dope On Baseball Finish

Detroit, However, Is Dark Horse and May Shatter Predictions About A's.

BY BILLY EVANS

It strikes me that trying to dope the American League race is a far more difficult task than the National.

It wouldn't surprise me if, at various times during the summer, the standing of the American League showed some decidedly unusual complications, due to unexpected strength from certain quarters.

This despite the fact that every National League manager with whom I have talked, considers the Philadelphia Athletics as the hot choice in the American League, the one best bet of the majors.

It is hard to get a big league manager to definitely commit himself on the race in his own league, yet he will discuss the strength and weakness of the rival organization without the slightest hesitation.

"The Athletics are in now," was the way I heard John McGraw greet "Kid" Gleason. "I don't see how any team has a chance to beat your club. It is too strong in every department of play."

Five other National League managers expressed a similar opinion to me when I put the query to whom they liked in the American League.

Clarke Skeptical About One-Bound Dribble

Local Basketball Authority Sees Abundance of "Traveling" Next Season; Says Change Has Merits As Well As Faults; Likes Other Alterations in Code.

By The Sports Editor.

Skepticism exists in the mind of Wilfred J. Clarke, basketball coach at Manchester High school, regarding the benefits to be derived from the drastic changes inflicted on the basketball rules by the joint rules committee in its annual session in New York Saturday.

Previously, the number of bounds in the dribble had been unlimited, and the chief fault was that it encouraged individual play, thus marring teamwork, and also that it slowed up the game.

Under the existing rules, a player in such a case, simply dribbles quickly up to the basket where his efforts are usually awarded with an easy try for two points.

"The biggest trouble the coaches are going to have in teaching the dribble change," commented Coach Clarke, "is in keeping the players from 'traveling.' Of course, every time a player bounds the ball more than once, it is going to be a technical foul—an outside ball for the other side, and by the way, there will probably be an over-abundance of such plays next season.

Those are three most important things to dwell on when you start doping Cleveland's chances to finish second or better.

Dan Howley, in his first-year as manager of the St. Louis Browns, is looking into the future. I do not rate the Browns a strong pennant contender, neither does Dan, but it is a club that will make trouble. Howley is now building for the future.

Robins, Phillies and Braves Fail to Impress as Pennant Possibilities.

By BILLY EVANS

Five National League clubs, to my way of thinking, are entitled to be ranked as 1927 pennant contenders. The other three must go into the also-ran class.

In order to get the proposition more definitely before fandom, I am going to immediately eliminate three clubs—Boston, Brooklyn and Philadelphia—from serious consideration.

While I cannot figure Boston as a pennant contender by the widest stretch of imagination, still I can see where the Braves have enough strength to be troublesome.

Brooklyn will get pretty good pitching and should offer a fairly good defense, but I fear the stability of the infield will be the cause of much worry for Manager Wilbert Robinson.

Another angle that enters strongly into the Cardinal situation is that of manager. The club will be piloted by Catcher Bob O'Farrell, a great receiver, making his debut as leader.

Of the other National League contenders, the Pittsburgh club impresses me most. It seems to have no weakness and is well supplied as to reserves. It is a much better club than it showed last season. Disposition then robbed it of much of its strength.

Chicago is the mystery club. It didn't look like a first division team to me last spring, yet it finished fourth, with a percentage of .532. It was the dark horse of the race, a contender most of the way and by its showing added much interest.

Conran Calls Canade His Easiest Opponent

"Of course I will take Canade on. Why, I consider him the easiest of all the South End bowlers. I am willing to start a series of twenty games with him Saturday of this week, foul line or not. It makes no difference to me. Only if it is to be a foul line match, a competent neutral person must be in charge."

That is the reply gained from an interview Saturday night with Tommy Conran, as to whether or not he is willing to accept the bowling challenge hurled at him a few days ago by Joe Canade, one of the leading bowlers in the senior C. B. A. A. league.

Conran said L. C. Clifford, manager of the local branch of the Southern New England Telephone Company would suit him as a foul line judge.

The Average Code. Have you ever stopped to consider the signal code of the average driver? It is a very simple code and not difficult to acquire. It follows:

To indicate a right turn—stick out your hand. To indicate a left turn—stick out your hand.

To indicate that you are about to stop—stick out your hand. To indicate that you are about to back—stick out your hand.

To emphasize your conversation with your fellow passenger—stick out your hand. To flick the ashes off your cigar—stick out your hand.

This is the generally accepted code. Under the circumstances it is remarkable that accidents are not more frequent.

NOW YOU Ask One SOME ANCIENT HISTORY

If you studied your ancient history when you were in high school today's set of questions won't bother you much. The answers are on another page in case you need 'em:

1—What name is applied to the writing system of the ancient Assyrians and Babylonians?

2—Name the nations in whose religions the following Gods and Goddesses figured: Isis, Astarte, Zeus, Zoroaster?

3—Who was the father of Alexander the Great?

4—What historic event took place in the bay of Salamis, on the coast of Greece?

5—After the murder of Julius Caesar, what three men ruled Rome as "the triumvirate"?

6—Of what Roman emperor is it said that "he found Rome brick and left it marble"?

7—What emperor made Christianity the state religion of Rome?

8—When the Teutonic "barbarians" began to overrun the Roman outposts about 400 A. D., where did the first outbreaks occur?

9—When was the city of Rome taken by these invaders?

10—Who led this marauding army in that expedition?

THE TINYMITES STORY BY REAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(Read the Story. Then Color the Picture)

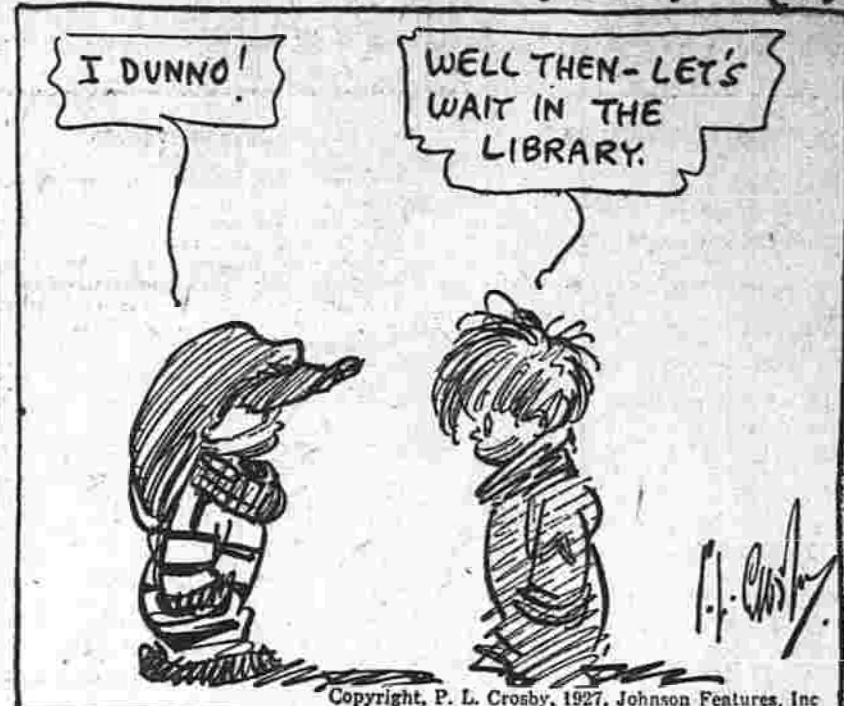

The rooster crowed on, merrily, then walked away. Quite proud was he. The Tinies watched him strut along 'til he was out of sight. Then Scowly shouted, "Catch him quick, 'cause he has dropped his fiddle stick." And, as he shouted, he began to run with all his might. The others followed right behind. Their plan, of course, was very kind. They shortly caught the rooster and then told him of his loss. Said Clowly, "Here's your fiddle stick." "If I had lost this thing," said he, "my master would be cross."

The bird then thanked the Tinymites and told them of some dandy sights that they could see if they would go on down the winding lane. "You'll find a baker man who makes the finest brand of tasty cakes," said he. And then the Tinymites were on their way again. They shortly came upon a shop and Coppy said, "Here's where we stop. I think I smell some tempting food. Let's go inside and see." But, first they rapped upon the door and in about a minute more, a man appeared and said, "Hello! Come in and eat with me." The Tinies did, and oh, such food. They ate so much 'twas almost rude. This baker was the man who makes the dandy pat-a-cakes. "Go right ahead," said he, "and eat. 'Twill cost you naught. This is my treat." Poor Clowly shortly shouted, "Oh, my poor old tummy aches."

The man then said, "My work is play, and I bake cakes the live long day. I've always been a baker since a very tiny tike. It's fun to bake such cakes as these. You know they are the kinds that please. It's fun to do things when you know they're things that people like." (The Tinymites meet little Bobby Shafteo in the next story.)

15 YEAR OLD BOY
CHURCH ORGANIST

Collins Driggs to Play For Services at North Methodist.

Manchester has a boy who is believed to be the youngest church organist in Connecticut. He is Collins Driggs, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Driggs of Wells street and has been appointed organist of the North Methodist Episcopal church.

The boy, who is a student at the local High school, has been playing the piano for about five years and has put in one year of study on the organ under Alfred Driggs of East Hartford, well known church organist. He began his study under Mrs. Harry Trotter of Hill street. He has been connected with the South Methodist church orchestra, the High school orchestra, and has paid for his lessons by playing with his own jazz orchestra at night. The organ at the North Methodist church has been distinguished by the fact that many prominent musicians have played on it. Among them was the late Royal Talcott of Talcottville, who, although he lived six miles from the church, walked to Manchester every Sunday for many years without missing one service.
