AMERICANS SHATTER WORLD AIR RECORDS

Acosta and Chamberlain
Stay Up 51 Hours, 11 Min.
25 Sec.—French Mark
45 Hours, 11 Min. 25 Sec.

Roosevelt Field, Mineola, N. Y., April 14.—Two weary American aviators, Bert Acosta and Clarence D. Chamberlain, wrote history in the sky today when they established a new world's record for endurance flying in a Wright-Bellanca monoplane—fifty-one hours, eleven minutes and twenty-five seconds.

They came down amid the cheers of a great crowd that had assembled, at 12:42:05 this afternoon. They had taken off from Roosevelt Field at 9:30:40 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Smashed All Records
They smashed the previous world record of 45 hours, 11 minutes and 59 seconds, established by two French fliers, Drouhin and Landry, in August, 1925.

They surpassed the previous American record of 36 hours, 4 minutes and 24 seconds made by Lieutenants Kelly and McCredy at Wilbur Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, on April 17-18, 1923.

Flight Feasibility
They demonstrated, in a way, the feasibility of a non-stop flight from New York to Paris which they contemplate making in about three weeks. If they had flown in a straight line instead of circling within a radius of a dozen miles, they would have easily made the 3,600 mile flight to Paris and possible would have been able to go as far as Constantinople, 4,500 miles from New York.

Watchers at Roosevelt field cheered at 6:43 this morning as the two civilian aviators "crossed the deadline" and began hanging up a new mark for other airmen to shoot at.

The happiest man of all seemed to be G. M. Bellanca, the designer and builder of the Wright-engine monoplane that was drooping above.

The sky was clear, the sun was shining brightly and there was hardly any wind.
Among the watchers was Mrs. Chamberlain who has not taken a wink of sleep since her husband soared aloft.

Slept Little
Throughout the night the fliers caught catnaps on empty gasoline tanks, but neither had a good sleep. Now and then airplanes containing newspapermen and photographers soared up close to them and exchanged greetings through megaphones.

CARROLL COLLAPSES ON WAY TO PRISON

Still Unconscious at Hospital
In Greenville, S. C.—Worry the Cause.

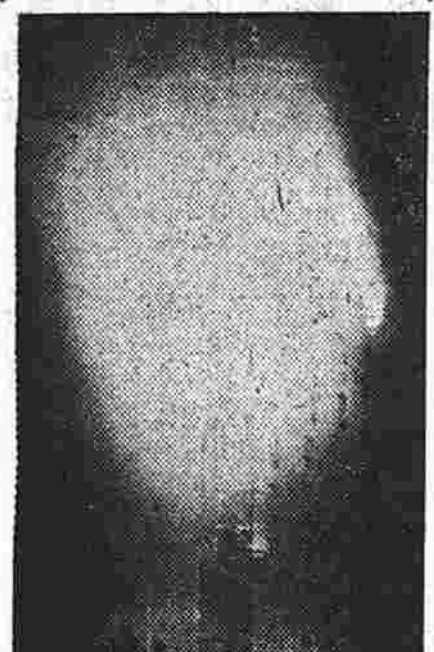

Greenville, S. C., April 14.—The condition of Earl Carroll, New York theatrical producer, was slowly improving this morning, although he was still unconscious, attending physicians said. Carroll, who suffered a nervous collapse while enroute to Atlanta to serve a term for perjury, has been in a state comatose for 24 hours. He became unconscious about o'clock yesterday morning, it was believed.

Restless During Night.
Dr. C. O. Bates, one of the attending physicians, declared that the patient was regaining muscular strength and was a little restless throughout the night. Physicians believe Carroll's collapse was brought about by overwork and nervousness following the famous "bath tub" incident and his subsequent failure to escape serving a year and a day in the Atlanta federal prison for perjury.

United States Marshal William C. Hecht said the trip to Atlanta would be made as soon as Carroll could stand it.

Wife to Visit Him.
Mrs. Carroll is speeding here from New York.
The marshal said Carroll stayed up until after two o'clock yesterday morning writing letters to friends and relatives.
"He was awfully worn-out and very depressed," Hecht said.
Carroll probably became unconscious earlier yesterday morning than was at first believed.
According to Hecht, a chief deputy reported to him at 7 o'clock yesterday morning that Carroll could not be awakened. Hecht said he believed that Carroll was tired from his night's labors, and wanted to sleep late.
Shortly thereafter, her attempts were made to awaken the prisoner and his real condition was discovered. First aid treatment was given, but when the train reached Greenville, it was deemed advisable to remove him to a hospital here.

Fire in the Clouds

New York's most spectacular fire was the midnight burning of scaffolding atop the nearly completed 38-story Hotel Netherland. Every available fireman was summoned to protect neighboring homes of the wealthy from a blizzard of sparks from the blaze. No one was injured.

Watches at Roosevelt field cheered at 6:43 this morning as the two civilian aviators "crossed the deadline" and began hanging up a new mark for other airmen to shoot at.

TOWN CLERK BILL IS AGAIN TABLED

Would Allow State Board to Appoint Deputy For License Work.

Hartford, Conn., April 14.—For the fourth time proponents of a bill which would increase the fees of town clerks for issuing fishing licenses succeeded in tabling a substitute measure offered by the fish and game committee in the Lower House of the State Legislature here today.

The substitute bill would allow the state board to appoint a deputy for town clerks who do not care for the burden imposed by caring for licenses.
An amendment offered by Representative Roberts, of Thomaston, would strike out all the provisions of the substitute bill and amend the present law by raising the town clerks' fees from twenty-five to fifty cents. The amendment was supported by Judge Epaphroditus Peck of Bristol, in a humorous account of the duties of a town clerk which enabled the House to laugh the bill off the calendar.

Bill Tabled
House Leader Ernest L. Averill moved that the bill be tabled and the amendment, which was long printed in the journal. This was ordered.

Only two reports reached the Senate today from committees. The first was a favorable report on a bill concerning duties of town clerks and the second favorable report was on a bill providing for the manner of filing real estate records.

Pursued Rights were restored to Joseph Soldnick, of Berlin, by vote of the House.
Favorable reports in the House were: extending the time for organizing the Italian Institute of Darien; and a clarifying statute concerning the appointment of legal guardians.

Unfavorable Reports.
Unfavorable reports in the House were: authorizing pensions for county employes; providing for notice to the state department of health of changes of address of physicians; reimbursing the Bartlett-Brainard Company for amounts due from the state on contract work.
A bill providing for the jurisdiction over offenses committed in New Haven harbor was recommended to the committee on cities and boroughs by the House in concurrence with the Senate today. Representative Samuel E. Hoyt, of New Haven, was in the chair during the working of business on the House calendar.

MISSING WITNESSES ARE AIDING SINCLAIR

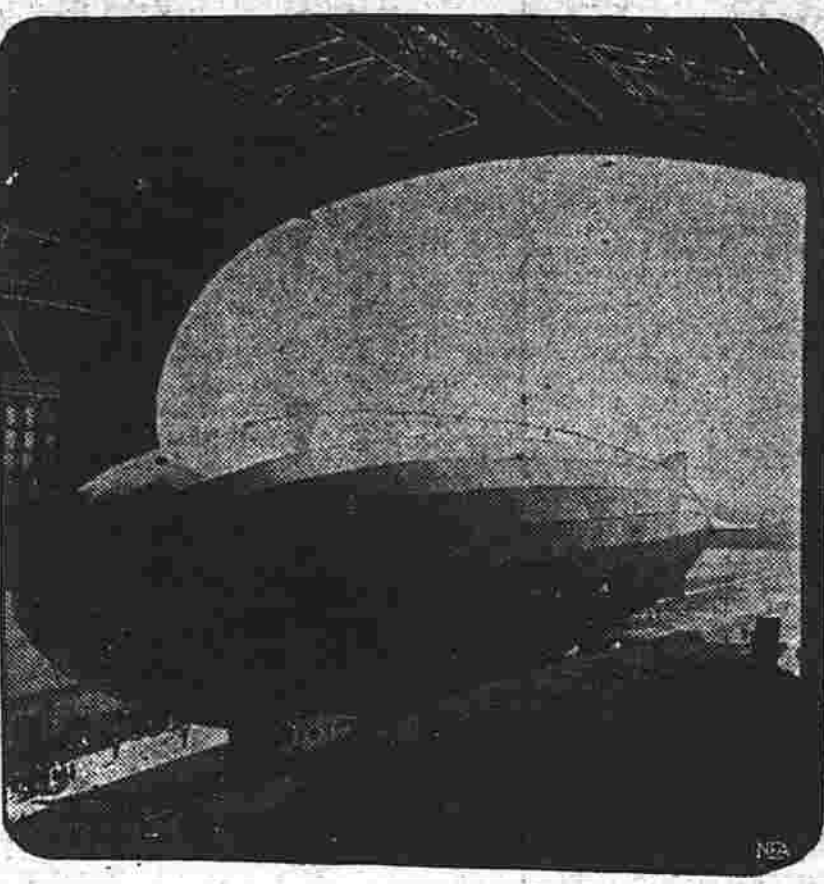

Have Been In Europe Since Oil
Scandal Probe Was Started
By Senate.

Washington, April 14.—Efforts of the government to postpone the conspiracy trial of Harry F. Sinclair and Albert Fall, growing out of the Teapot Dome lease, until next autumn, met with a temporary check here today.
The government desired a postponement because of the continued absence from the United States of two of the principal figures in the case—H. M. Bloekmer, chairman of the board of the Midwest Refining Company, and James O'Neil, former president of the Prairie Oil & Gas Company. They have been abroad for three years, leaving the country following the Senate oil investigation.

Attorneys for Sinclair strenuously opposed the government's motion for postponement, and after a lengthy argument the court gave District Attorney Peyton Gordon for the government, until three o'clock this afternoon to present more cogent reasoning for the continuance.

What Of Youth Now? Dr. Pierce's Opinion

Interview on Jazz Age By Acting Surgeon General of
U. S.—What He Says On Subject.

Editor's Note—What of the Youth of today—the jazz age? Is it, as some moralists claim, going to the bow-wows, or is it, as others claim, merely walking a step in advance of the preceding generation?
In two interviews, of which the following is the first, Dr. C. C. Pierce, acting surgeon general of the United States, states his opinion, and comments upon the trend of American life.

BY ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
(Copyright, 1927, I. N. S.)
Washington, April 14.—Flaming youth got a clean bill of health from the United States public health service today.
So did thinly-garbed flappers and old men whose shining pates grace the front rows of snappy musical reviews.
But fat women—and men, too—past the middle age, were warned to "go slow", and eat less, if they would partake much longer of the

'BOOK WAR' IS ON IN BOSTON TODAY

Dist. Attorney Returns "Elmer Gantry" to Sellers;
Vice Squad on the Job.

Boston, Mass., April 14.—A "book war" developed in Boston today as the outcome of the official banning of "Elmer Gantry," Sinclair Lewis' latest novel.

Booksellers, who had sent District Attorney William J. Foley forty-nine books and stating that in view of the Gantry incident they did not feel competent to pass judgment on what books violated the obscene book law. Today they had a letter from the district attorney telling them that hereafter they must decide what is immoral literature.
One Course Left
The only course open to the booksellers appeared to be for them in seeking official judgment to call on Police Superintendent Michael J. Crowley, who in turn would consult his vice squad. District Attorney Foley, returning the 49 books, made it plain that hereafter he will ask jail sentences for those convicted of selling immoral literature.
Two Other Books
The police vice squad had before it today two books—"An American Tragedy," by Theodore Dreiser and "Doomsday," by Warwick Deeping.
Rumblings of the Boston "book war" were heard from Providence, R. I., where the question of official banning "Elmer Gantry" was raised. President W. H. P. Farnce of Brown University frowned on the proposed banning of "Elmer Gantry," adding that the novel was "extreme and anti-tasteful" and carried its "own antidote."

At the office of Richard F. Fuller, of the Boston bookellers' committee, it was said that Mr. Fuller was "out of town" whether New York publishers of "Elmer Gantry" would make a test case in the courts of the Foley ban was problematical.

FEAR ANOTHER "TWISTER" IN PANHANDLE

Texas District Visited By Other Cyclones Today;
Dead at Rock Springs Set
At 90.

San Antonio, Texas, April 14.—Citizens living in the Texas Panhandle today feared that a death-dealing tornado, such as the one that wiped out the little village of Rock Springs, 120 miles south of here Tuesday night, might strike their own town.

Storm conditions prevailed today over the entire district, centering in the extreme southeastern part of the state. A series of disturbances of the dreaded twister type, were reported from many places. Property damage was heavy, the reports stated.

Town Wiped Out
Rock Springs was virtually wiped out the map Tuesday night when a tornado struck without warning, killing 90 persons and injuring 150. The entire population was rendered homeless. Not a building was left standing.

Hebron, Palestine, Belton, Temple and Fort Worth were some of the towns reporting storms of cyclonic proportions late yesterday. One child was killed at Fort Worth and considerable property damage was done.

Fear Wind Shift
Reports today indicated the freak storm would blow themselves out along the Gulf of Mexico, but there remained the possibility that they would shift northeastward and sweep across Louisiana, Mississippi and states east. In the meantime Panhandle citizens will keep within reach of their storm cellars.

NINETY DEAD
Rock Springs, Texas, April 14.—Rock Springs today resumed the melancholy task of burying its dead, victims of Tuesday's tornado.

Some estimates place the death list at close to ninety, when a final check-up is completed, although only forty-four bodies have been identified. A number of persons are unaccounted for and some of the injured are not expected to live.
Burial preparations were of the crudest sort, dynamite being used to blast holes in the little cemetery where the bodies were laid.

Many Funerals
Night brought a cessation to the funerals, which started late yesterday, and the tired residents, worn out from their experiences and a heavy tasks they had performed through the preceding night and day, stood in little groups on what was left of Main street.

Tears rolled down their cheeks as they viewed the scene of desolation.
The dead were buried as they were found, there being no time to prepare their bodies.
Troops from Fort Clark, under command of Major K. B. Edmund, are in charge of the town. Military rule has been established and only doctors, nurses and stretcher-bearers are permitted to enter the stricken city.

Mrs. Victoria Lederer Tells Police Her Husband Has Been Long Missing.

New York, April 14.—Mrs. Victoria Lederer today braved publicity and awaited a nationwide broadcast by the police missing persons bureau as to the whereabouts of her husband, Ward Lederer, 31, who she said is a brother-in-law of William C. Durant, automobile millionaire.

Lederer left their home in New York in 1925 and has been induced to stay away from her through the influence of his mother, Mrs. Anna D. Lederer and his sister, Mrs. Catherine Durant, Mrs. Victoria Lederer charged.
Mrs. Lederer said she was married seven years ago in Yonkers, N. Y., and for a time assisted her husband in selling Durant automobiles in Massachusetts. After a trip to California they returned to New York when Lederer disappeared, Mrs. Lederer said.

Mrs. Lederer said she searched for her husband and learned that he had been in Albuquerque, N. M., on last December 7.
"For two years I searched for my husband privately but now I am going to fight in the open," said Mrs. Lederer today. "I don't want a divorce but I want to be given some status in life. Now I am neither unmarried nor married."

COL. CARRINGTON LOSES HIS SUIT

Wife Wins Divorce and Gets Property Worth $100,000—
Reach Agreement.

Chicago, April 14.—Mrs. Anna Walsh Carrington today won a divorce decree and a property settlement estimated at $100,000 from Col. Edward C. Carrington, her millionaire book-publisher husband.

Agreement Reached.
The decree was awarded after an agreement had been reached out of court whereby infidelity charges were withdrawn by both the colonel and his pretty 42-year-old wife.
Accuse Each Other.
Col. Carrington accused Mrs. Carrington of improprieties with Campbell Carrington, his brother. She in turn alleged that the colonel was indiscreet with Miss Mae La Vine, a manicurist.

Crucial Charge
Attorney George L. Schein in a final argument for Mrs. Carrington, sought the decree solely on the ground of cruelty, citing the beating administered by the colonel March 6, 1926, in their New York apartment.
Attorney Paulus Koehn argued for a divorce for the colonel on the original grounds of desertion.

When final arguments were concluded, Mrs. Carrington was called to the witness stand where she renounced all alimony and dowry rights, informing Judge Fred Rush that a property settlement had been reached out of court.

COURTSHIP BY MAIL MADE BAD MARRIAGE

Wife Sues For Divorce—Manchester
Woman Also Asks to Be Freed.

Hartford, Conn., April 14.—A courtship by mail went to the dead letter office today when Laura Dayton Showers, of 225 Curtis street, New Britain, applied for a divorce from Clark Showers, of Marlton, Ohio, who won her through the kind of offices of a matrimonial agency. She told Judge Newell S. Jennings that Showers proposed by mail, she accepted in the same manner and they met for the first time on their wedding day in Marlton. The marriage was unhappy from the beginning. She charges intolerable cruelty. Decision was reserved.
Decision was also reserved by Judge E. C. Dickenson in two other divorce cases. In the first Jangle Mistretta of Scholco street, Manchester, was suing for divorce from Robert Davidson, of Bridgeport, on grounds of desertion. The other, on the same grounds, was brought by Hazel Booth Elphie, of New Britain, against Leon E. Elphie.

TWO GUN GIRL BANDIT FIGHTS CHICAGO COPS

Battles For Two Hours With Three Friends—Tear Bombs,
Get Them.

Chicago, April 14.—After battling fifty police officers for more than two hours, a two-gun girl bandit and her three male companions were locked up today. The girl, who gave her name as Helen Kondol, stood shoulder-to-shoulder with the men in the bomb and bullet battle that preceded their arrest.
The quartet was trailed to an apartment house after a jewelry store had been held up and robbed of $7,000 worth of gems. When police arrived the bandits barricaded themselves and opened fire. After bullets failed to dislodge the quartet, police brought tear bombs into play. The bandits were finally overcome by fumes and surrendered.

CONSERVATIVES WIN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, April 14.—Although there have been many killed and wounded during the past three days in the Nationalist raids against the Extremists, the Conservative forces today appeared to be in control, but the situation was still menacing.

Nationalist headquarters declared that the action taken against the Extremists in disarming them and in firing on them when they gave battle was necessary for the restoration of peace and order in Shanghai.

It is impossible accurately to estimate the tolls of the three days intermittent fighting between the two factions of the Nationalist party, but conservative foreign observers believe there have been at least 250 killed and probably twice that number wounded. Many of the deaths occurred when mobs attacked the headquarters of the Nationalist armies to regala the arms which had been taken from the irregulars.

Military Situation
The military situation in the north is still more or less obscure, although reports of the capture of Pengu by the northerners and their continued advance are received here.
Chiang Kai Shek's proposed parleys with the Extremists in the Nationalist ranks appear unlikely to materialize. Thus far the Extremists have not appeared in Nanking for the conferences and it now seems probable that there may be two Nationalist governments created, one by the Extremists in Hankow and one by Chiang Kai Shek in Shanghai.

JAP REQUEST LONDON

London, April 14.—Following a mass meeting of Japanese residents of Peking a request was telegraphed to the Japanese premier and war minister at Tokio requesting that reinforcements be sent immediately to strengthen the Japanese garrison in Peking, according to a Peking dispatch to the Daily News today. The Japanese request for additional troops was based upon the present state of affairs in northern China.
According to the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Express, news has reached diplomatic circles in London that Russian forces are being massed upon the Manchuria border and that, in consequence of these concentrations, Japan is mobilizing a large force to safeguard Japanese interests in that quarter.
A Tokio dispatch said it is expected that the Japanese garrison in Manchuria will be doubled temporarily.

ILL IN GERMANY.

Stamford, April 14.—Walter C. Allen, president of the Yale & Towne Co., was operated on for appendicitis in Hamburg, Germany, last Friday evening, and is now recovering from the effects, according to announcement by the company here today.
Mr. Allen went to Germany on February 17, last, to visit the company's plant at Aitona, a suburb of Hamburg. News of his illness came as a surprise.

Rockville COMMUNION SERVICE AT THE M. E. CHURCH

Special Meeting Tonight to Attract Crowd — Kelly Promoted a Chemist.

(Special to The Herald)

Rockville, April 14. It is expected that the Thursday evening service at the Rockville Methodist church will be well attended as the other churches in the neighborhood have requested all members to attend this service. This service should not be confused with the annual Fast Day service which takes place as usual on Friday morning and will be observed this year in the Union Congregational church with Rev. H. B. Sloat as preacher. The service on Thursday evening is in commemoration of the Last Supper of Christ and His disciples, the night before the crucifixion, at which He instituted the observance which has come down to us as the "Lord's Supper" or "Holy Communion."

Services at Congregational Church

To carry out the wishes of Governor Trumbull, and to continue the practice of half a century of holding union services on Good Friday morning, such a union service this year will be held in the Union Congregational church on Friday at ten o'clock. The preacher will be Rev. H. B. Sloat, associate secretary of the Connecticut Baptist Convention and an excellent speaker. Special music will be rendered by the Baptist church male quartet, and several ministers will have a part in the service. The community is urged to support this time-honored custom by a large attendance.

James Kelly Promoted

Whenever possible, the Hockanum company follows its usual policy of promoting its own men. James Kelly, who entered the employ of the Hockanum about ten years ago, has been advanced to the position of assistant chemist. He has been employed in the pattern department of the New England mill for several years. He is a graduate of the Chemical Institute of New York and the International Correspondence School of Textiles. He is a member of the American Chemical Society and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The news of Mr. Kelly's promotion will please his many friends.

Rev. George Savage Brooks Busy

The pastor of the Union Congregational church is busy helping neighboring pastors. He preached on Tuesday at East Windsor Congregational church; he spoke on Wednesday at Somers and on Friday evening at Ellington. On Friday of next week he gives a lecture at the Emmanuel Congregational church, Springfield, Mass., and on the following Wednesday, he delivers an address before the New Britain Kiwanis club.

Campaign Continues

Rev. George F. Hopewell, pastor of the First African Baptist church has announced that the campaign for $10,000 will go toward the church building, $3,500 for a new parsonage, $1,500 to clear the church debt on the present property, $2,700 for building site and the balance for church equipment.

Anthony Marcinowski

Anthony Marcinowski, aged 77 years, died very suddenly Wednesday morning at 3:30 at his home, 98 Village street. He was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He came to Rockville from Philadelphia thirty years ago and was employed in the Hockanum mills until poor health forced him to retire ten years ago. Mr. Marcinowski is survived by his wife, five sons, James, William and Benjamin of Rockville, Frank and Joseph of New York, and two daughters, Mrs. Frank Kullick and Miss Lucy Marcinowski of Rockville. Funeral services will be held Friday at 10 a. m. from the St. Joseph's church of which he was a member. Burial will be in the family plot in St. Bernard's cemetery.

WM. P. ROBERTSON DIES IN HARTFORD

William Post Robertson, a native of Columbia and head of the firm of Newton, Robertson & Co., of Hartford, died suddenly yesterday afternoon while on the way to his home at 72 Sherman street, Hartford. He was accompanied by his son, William P. Robertson, Jr., of this town, and while walking from the garage to his home, fell to the ground. He was carried to his home and medical aid summoned but Mr. Robertson was dead before doctors arrived.

Mr. Robertson was quite well known in Manchester and two of his children had lived here. Mrs. Harris Minkin, a daughter, who now lives in Farmington, was a former resident of Manchester, and his son, William, Jr., lives at 104 Main street, here.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Emmanuel Congregational church, of which Mr. Robertson was a member. Rev. Dr. Charles F. Carter will officiate and burial will be in the Cedar Hill cemetery.

WHAT OF YOUTH TODAY? DR. PIERCE'S OPINION

abundant pleasures of the jazz age of today.

Sums Up Age

Dr. C. C. Pierce, acting surgeon general of the United States, summed up the jazz age today, casting into the dust of the theories which forecast doom of the race because of the wildness of youth. He declined to be frightened by the assertion that every little kiss shortens life by three minutes.

"Living has been accelerated since the World War and everybody is under a higher nervous tension," Pierce said.

"Theoretically, dissipation, dancing and playing cards all night, kissing, petting, driving automobiles, listening to voodoo jazz on the radio and in the theatre, puts a strain on the nervous system.

"We have speeded up the processes of the human body—if the heart beats faster, the blood goes faster and there is a tendency to lowered vitality."

However, there's another side of the picture, which more than counteracts all the bad effects of the age of high power living, according to Pierce.

"People More Careful

"Everone takes better care of his health than 25 years ago," Pierce said. "Better food has resulted in a gradual disappearance of communicable diseases.

"The automobile speeds up the heart and causes accidental deaths, but it gets the extra air into the air and lengthens their life through better health.

"Death, although not preventable, can be postponed. Our normal span of life is lengthening and the people are getting into such health as to enjoy life."

No Moral Breakdown

Pierce denied the moral breakdown of youth. He insisted that there was just as much petting and kissing among girls and boys 25 years ago as today and that the longer span of life of the present shows that no harm resulted to the race.

"Women are in much better health than yesterday," Pierce said. "Their clothing is sensible. Nothing helped women like the abandonment of the old corset and tight clothing. Sufficient clothing to protect the body from the weather is enough."

Pierce scolded overeating, declaring that slender people have a better chance of long and enjoyable life than the fat ones. Fat women past fifty should be flattered, according to Pierce.

Anti-fat medicines were condemned and light diet and exercise to cut off the surplus flesh recommended instead.

The much discussed "high blood pressure" among men is not increasing in Pierce's opinion. Three meals a day of heavy meat and intoxicating liquors of yesterday caused vastly more high blood pressure than all the chorus girls and short skirts of today, according to the surgeon general.

Dickens' "Christmas Carol" met with such success that the first issue was sold out on the day of publication.

THREE STARS ARE SEEN IN BIG DIVORCE DRAMA

Clara Bow, Esther Ralston and Gary Cooper Head List in State's Sunday Feature.

Three of the most capable young stars of Famous Players-Lasky appear in "Children of Divorce," opening next Sunday at the State theatre.

They are Clara Bow, Esther Ralston and Gary Cooper, all three of whom gave up their individual starring rights to appear in the film. The picture, one of Paramount's biggest, was directed by Frank Lloyd, a veteran of many years' experience. Paramount officials declare it as good as the best he has ever made.

Owen Johnson, author of "Stover at Yale" and "The Enemy Sex," wrote the story which recently appeared serially in Red Book Magazine. Hope Loring and Louis D. Lighton prepared the screen adaptation.

In addition to Miss Bow and Miss Ralston, both of whom are co-stars, the featured cast includes Cooper, Einar Hanson and Norman Trevor, Hedda Hopper, Edward Martindel, Julia Swayne Gordon, Albert Gran and Tom Ricketts also play important roles.

Director Lloyd describes his picture as a dramatic expose of the evils that result from those hasty marriages which end in divorce; evils that devolve upon the children. The characters are those found in any wealthy social set.

EAST GLASTONBURY

Fire yesterday morning destroyed the garage owned by the Wangs Park Company. Two large trucks used by the company were lost.

Fifty-eight foreign-born Evening school students in Manchester received certificates of attendance for attending the majority of the seventy-five sessions at the graduating exercises held in the High school last night. BIBLICAL PLAY AT CENTER CHURCH

Considerable interest is shown by the young people of the Cyp club in the biblical play, "He is the Son of God" to be presented Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at the Center church under the direction of the pastor's assistant, Miss Hazel Trotter. It is a four-act play by Lindwood Taft and is especially appropriate for Easter from the fact that the scenes represented are from events preceding the crucifixion, and give somewhat of an idea of how cruelly the Jews were treated in those days by the Romans who were in political power.

Six of the members of the Cyp club are in the cast, Miss Emma Strickland who was to have played the part of Esther, is ill and her place will be taken by Miss Lydia Hutchinson.

Special lighting effects and costuming will add interest to the play which will be staged in the auditorium on the new enlarged platform.

Miss Louise Dickerman the organist is arranging a very attractive program of music to be given during the service, and has secured Miss Prudence McArthur, Hartford violinist to play between the acts.

Assisting the young people at property committees will be William Parks, Raymond Carrier, Mrs. H. A. Nettleton, J. Rhey Bralhwalt and W. J. Remig.

A rehearsal will be held this evening at 8 o'clock and another at 8:30 tomorrow, with the dress rehearsal Saturday evening.

DEPARTMENT PUZZLED

Washington, April 14.—The apparent split between the right and left wings of the Cantonese Nationalist government left the State Department admittedly at sea today as to how to proceed in the adjustment of the Nanking incident.

Information has reached the department that the two wings of the Cantonese party may deliver separate replies to the American note demanding reparation and apology for American losses at Nanking.

WANTED! 15,000 Sufferers From DEAFNESS Head Noises or Nasal Catarrh

I want the names of 15,000 people who are suffering from catarrhal deafness, dullness of hearing or head noises. I have an original home treatment for these distressing conditions which I want you to try without cost or expense. I suffered for many years with catarrh, deafness and head noises, tried many different treatments.

DR. W. O. COFFEE
NOTED DEAFNESS AND CATARRH SPECIALIST

Had two surgical operations all of which failed to give permanent relief. I began experimenting on myself and finally found a treatment which completely healed my catarrh, restored my hearing and stopped the terrible head noises. I want you to try this splendid treatment entirely at my own expense.

15,000 Treatments This Month

I am proud of my treatment and so anxious to help others suffering with deafness, head noises or catarrh that I will have packed and ready for shipment 15,000 demonstration treatments which I will give away in the next 30 days absolutely free. I want to prove that my original home treatment will give relief from catarrhal deafness, head noises or nasal catarrh. The results are quick and convincing.

You feel the difference the first day. This treatment costs you nothing whatever. Simply send coupon or write and say that you are suffering with deafness or head noises or catarrh. I will gladly send the free treatment. It is the best treatment I have ever found in over 40 years' practice as an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. I want every sufferer with deafness, dullness of hearing, head noises or catarrh to try it free.

There are thousands, who are now practically stone deaf, whose hearing could no doubt have been saved had the right measures been taken in time. I have personally restored hearing in hundreds of cases, where the patients were so deaf they could hear nothing. I want to prove the value of my treatment to you entirely at my own risk and expense. I will gladly send it without cost. Just fill out and mail the coupon.

Don't Neglect Deafness or Catarrh!

Catarrhal Deafness, Head Noises, and Nasal Catarrh generally grow worse when neglected. Authorities claim that ninety per cent of all deafness is primarily caused by catarrh of the head and air passages. Others state that nasal catarrh often causes indigestion, rheumatism, catarrh of the stomach, and many other diseased conditions. If you suffer from partial deafness or nasal catarrh, do not neglect this condition.

TRY THIS FREE!

I don't ask you to send one penny for this treatment. I send it free to you prepaid without cost. I am doing this to quickly introduce my original home treatment to sufferers of catarrhal deafness, head noises or catarrh. I believe I treat more cases of deafness, head noises and catarrh than any physician in the United States. I know this treatment is the best I have ever used. Send your name and address today. State whether you have deafness or head noises or just have catarrh. This notice may not appear again so mail the coupon at once.

GOVERNOR'S PLAN.

Governor Trumbull's proposal for a centralized accounting and finance control system for the state of Connecticut becomes much less formidable in the light of his special message to the Legislature yesterday than in that of his less formally considered utterances on the subject some time ago. With a single reservation his scheme of practically combining the headship of the Board of Control, State Board of Finance and the State Commission on Institutions into a single bureau directed by an expert financial manager seems to be deserving of the heartiest approval. That reservation being that extraordinary care be taken to prevent the creation, in this centralized bureau, of a vast red-tape mill.

The governor is enthusiastic, almost more than enthusiastic, in his admiration for "modern, up-to-date methods of finance and accounting."

His method oversteps one principle of finance that is as old as barter and trade, much older than money itself—which is that you can't spend your substance and have it, too. You cannot run a business with nothing but book-keepers, no matter how clever and honest they are nor how many cute little tricks of accounting they may devise. Connecticut has roads to build and take care of, it has insane asylums and prisons to maintain, it has schools to keep up and schools to add—a great many functions to perform that require money and something more than money; they require special information and interest in the direction of each activity. One need not have a very billious imagination to conceive of the erection of a system of control and accounting in which the money and the service in connection with these functions might become—and easily—involved in a tangle of red tape which would cost, in cash and in effectiveness of operation, many times over, all that could be saved by the proposed administrative merger.

This is not intended in the very least as opposition to the governor's proposal; which in the abstract at least, and probably concretely, is absolutely sound. Rather it is the expression of an apprehension that the device which he proposes is one which, if adopted, should itself be surrounded with the utmost safeguarding against the development of a bureaucracy so meshed in technicalities as to seriously retard the operation of normal state activities which are based primarily on rough economies and the humanities.

We trust we may be pardoned for suggesting that, excellent as is Governor Trumbull's purpose, and doubtless directed as it is against certain weaknesses in our present system, before it is translated into law that law ought to be mulled over and pondered over and viewed from every possible angle before it is adopted. We should think, as a matter of fact, that the subject is one that might well be put over for another Legislature to act upon, after the fullest consideration by the people of the state in the interim.

ALIEN PROPAGANDA.

That Hartford rabbi who came to Manchester yesterday to propagandize against the American immigration laws must have felt that his seed fell on stony ground. The Kiwanians who listened to him indulged in no wild outbursts of applause and if he had hoped to create, in that particular group, even so much as a single agent for the further dissemination of his peculiar sociological doctrine he must have felt afterward that his time was wasted.

Manchester people are not of the sort to wax enthusiastic over any proposal to undo the excellent if belated work of the Sixty-eighth Congress in halting the influx of exotic and unassimilable peoples into this country. They are entirely willing to stand on the law of 1924, even if in certain isolated instances it may work to keep the bars up against relatives or friends from overseas whom they would be glad to welcome to American residence.

At the same time they are decidedly not of the sort to have their prejudices played upon by such uncandid arguments as that of Rabbi Feldman when he baldly asserted that the 1924 law discriminated against the Jews and the Irish. As a matter of fact the Irish Free State, with a population of less than four million, has this year a quota of 28,000, while all of Great Britain and North Ireland, with ten times as many people, has a quota of only six thousand more.

We would suggest to those Semitic and other agencies which are at work to undermine the immigration laws in the interests of their foreign friends that they take their wares somewhere else. There is no market for them in Manchester.

DELUSIONS.

The New London Day scolds roundly at Senator Robert J. Smith of this town, Senate chairman of the Committee of Cities and Boroughs, and Representative Lynch of Orange, House chairman, declaring that their coolness toward certain amendments to the New London charter is caused by the fact that both are unfriendly toward the whole subject of council-manager governments for cities. The Day goes on to suggest that the Republican organization in the state is somehow or other responsible for this kind of enmity, being stricken with a horrid fear that from New London the council-manager idea might spread to other cities in the state, with the result that partisan politics might fall to a discount in those cities, thus weakening the power of the Republican "machine."

This is by way of a delusion of grandeur in conjunction with the suspicion of enemy conspiracy, which, in individuals, excites the interest of the alienist as indicating paranoia. We know no reason why a newspaper should be exempt from the same suspicion under similar circumstances.

If this were the general idea in New London—that the Republicans of the state are plotting disaster to its so-called council-manager government with a view to discrediting the whole enterprise of modern civic management, the entire community would fall under suspicion as to its sanity. But quite obviously no such general idea exists there. The group in that city which seeks further bolstering of its experimental charter, and which is ready to accuse the Manchester senator of bias because he does not see things their way, is a very small one and itself has long lain under the suspicion of having axes to grind.

What this group is trying to do, obviously, is to fasten permanently on the people of its community a charter which, so far from being a typical council-manager document in anything but name, is perhaps the wildest hodge-podge of contradictions and compromises that any American community ever tried to do business under. It is still possible for the people of that city to get rid of this instrument—and such action is reported to be imminent. But it would not be possible if the adherents of the charter—who were its framers—could get the support of the Legislature in eliminating the factor of a referendum. And because they cannot get that support they seek to pin a tail on the whole Republican party of the state.

If the people of New London, in righteous disgust over the slumgullion charter that was wished on them, do get the spunk to chuck it overboard by way of the referendum, and if they then go into the next Legislature with a bona fide council-manager charter that means something and is capable of interpretation, nobody up this way is going to interfere with their getting it—that much is certain. But according to our understanding of the situation there is no reason in the world why Senator Smith, Representative Lynch or anybody else should do anything to further complicate the mess in New London by riveting a costly and ridiculous form of government on the people of the Whaling Town.

DOPE.

Senator Willis of Ohio is not our complete ideal of a political prophet. He told President Coolidge a lot of things the other day that we do not believe are so. But he told him some other things that were surely right; that was because any little boy could have done it. He predicted, for instance, that Smith and Donahy will be the Democratic candidates for President and Vice-President in 1928 and that Coolidge, as head of the Republican ticket will overwhelm them. It begins to look as if the senator were very much to the good in these particular forecasts. But when he says that Coolidge and Dawes—in the words of ancient slang, it is to laugh. Can anybody lacking even one per cent of the Willis stodgeiness imagine the present Washington team teaming up again next year?

Again, Willis' pick of the southern states that will flop to the Republican ticket as against Smith is a very bad pick indeed. Willis gives Coolidge, next year, only Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri. Tennessee, yes. Kentucky, for Smith if the Frankfort and Louisville distillery interests prevail; for Coolidge if the back counties win—not otherwise. Missouri, German and Jim Reed controlled, wet as a beer vat and for Smith.

North Carolina, anti-Smith, certain sure. Georgia anti-Smith almost as certainly. Florida Republican next year in any conceivable event, certainly as against Smith. Surely almost anybody could tell the President a better story than Willis, anxious to please as the Ohioan always is.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

A QUIVERING FAMILY

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President. American Nature Ass'n. Everyone has heard of the quivering aspen. It has appeared frequently as an important tree character in western stories, and poets have immortalized it by calling it a shivering lady with a silvery dress.

Those who have not heard of it in either of these connections may recall it as the roadside tree that was forever turning its leaves over, flashing them white in the light—summer breeze, and causing horses to take fright and shy violently, in the old days when horses were driven on the roads. The leaves of the aspen trees are hung on long slender stems, and the faintest wind is sufficient to set them trembling in a dainty leaf dance. In autumn the leaves turn from silvery-green to gold, adding immeasurably to the beauty of the fall woods.

If you do not recall the aspen tree you may know it as the poplar, for it goes by that name over much of its range.

Man has found but few uses for it, owing to the softness of the wood, but in the wilderness it plays an important role on the menu of many creatures.

Rabbits and deer feed on the buds and tender twigs during the winter months and grouse fly up among the branches and gather the sticky buds when deep snow covers all other food.

More than any other animal, however, the beaver depends on the aspen for his winter diet. He slaks sections of it in his pond and lives all winter long on the tender bark.

Oh, Yes, He's Willing All Right, But—

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, April 14.—The president's church will have room for Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge and nearly everyone else this Easter Sunday.

For 60 years, according to the Rev. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, the First Congregational church has been swamped by Easter crowds. It has been positively "battled" in its attempts to hold Easter services.

Since Calvin Coolidge became president and continued to attend, the problem has been more acute than ever. Thousands of applications for seats are received each year from persons outside the city. This year threatened to bring the worst jam yet, but the Daughters of the America Revolution saved the day. Their Congress was to meet here the week after Easter and they had engaged the local Auditorium.

Either because they were inspired by divine grace or because some mortal person put a bee in their ear, the Daughters turned over the Auditorium to the First Church for Easter Sunday.

The Auditorium is the capital's largest hall and the Rev. Dr. Pierce was able to promise that the public could be accommodated and that everyone was invited.

The problem, when in Washington, has always attended the Sunday morning services of the church. In recent months services have been held in a theater, as the District of Columbia authorities condemned the old church. A campaign for a new church is under way.

Announcement that Spain had purchased for an embassy the magnificent sixteenth street residence which Mrs. John B. Henderson had offered to Congress for the vice president's wife. A sad blow to the lovely ladies of the Congressional Club.

The Congressional Club has had a bad case of growing pains, for its members augment after every election. It had expanded beyond its present clubhouse and has been casting its eyes around for new quarters, most longingly of all at Mrs. Henderson's wonderful, unused mansion alongside the Mexican embassy.

Ever since Congress had turned down Mrs. Henderson's splendid offer, the most exciting topic of conversation when the lovely ladies got together was speculation over whether Mrs. Henderson, the club's honorary president, would do the noble thing and donate the place to the organization.

One of these days, the buddies of young Dave Bruce expect him to check out of the consular service. Young Dave is, first, the son of Senator William Cabell Bruce of Maryland and, second and vastly more important, the son-in-law of W. Mellon, the supposedly third richest man in the United States.

Some of the other boys suspect that he entered the consular service just to show Miss Ailsa Mellon that he was able to get somewhere. He was a young lawyer, and the Bruce family are not exactly paupers. But Andy Mellican is said to look down upon an ordinary millionaire with the supreme disdain with which a senator regards a mere congressman and Miss Ailsa was just about the best and most sought after prize for a young man with matrimonial intentions that could be found in this hemisphere. Since that never-to-be-forgotten wedding young Mr. Bruce has been on leave of absence most of the time from his vice-consular post at Rome. There isn't much future in the consular service for a son-in-law of Mr. Mellon, but there is a whale of a big future for such a fortunate person outside.

New York, April 14.—Broadway's upheavals are short-lived.

Already the wags are asking: "Whatever became of that censorship racket?" Already most of them have forgotten why Earl Carroll was sentenced to the federal prison. In the letter column of an afternoon newspaper, in fact, this question was asked and answered. There are probably not ten persons who mill in the Broadway theater throngs who could give you the name of the "bath-tub girl" in the case and she, poor child, her hour of heavy publicity over, hobs up in musical shows from time to time.

Who can remember the names of almost any of the spectacular scandal centers who played their brief vaudeville engagements, only to disappear as into the ether?

Meanwhile, Broadway settles down to look at the latest play and finds a new topic readily at the end of its tongue. Where once "The Captive" packed the doors a new show goes on and the country becomes safe for the vendors of violets, since these were the sinister symbols of "captive." A couple of representatives of another show will spend their few days in the workhouse and sally forth again to stage new efforts.

Next season, maybe, some new violation of the decencies will crop up to create a three-week sensation.

For Broadway is the best of patients. It recovers quickly from any malady. Padlock its night clubs and they will bloom again under some other name a few blocks away. Texas Guinan, many times closed, reopens "bigger and grander" than ever, and meanwhile here nemesis, Mons. Buckner, retires from office. Only financial troubles can cause sudden death, and this is a more than ordinarily infectious ailment.

On the other hand old established reputations become tradition and cling to the street, becoming in time part myth, part fact. Each teller elaborates on some anecdote until the latest version becomes a veritable Homeric product.

Such names as John Drew, Sothorn, Marlowe, Mantell, Joe Jefferson, Maud Adams and Viola Allen recur like echoes of old and popular tunes. David Warfield slips through the streets like a wraith returned to haunt the scenes of yesterday's victories, disappearing finally into the doorway of the Lamb's Club for his pinochle game. And in the pool room of the Player's Club there gathers nightly a host of veterans whose names marched bravely along the display signs in the foyer, chattering far into the night of other times and other plays.

"Invariably the telephone rings just about the time a person gets nicely set in the bathtub," explains a note from the McAlpin hotel, stating why it set about installing phones in bathrooms throughout the hostelry. We'd noticed that ourselves.

Speaking of phones, the New York Telephone company found the influence of the films too insidious upon the public. The movies have a way of showing phoners using those trick French receivers. So many requests for these ritzy appearances have come in that they expect soon to install them upon request. GILBERT SWAN.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

by PAUL ADAMS
© N.E.A. Service

Previous installments of this story of an "ex-buck private" going back to France as a fore-runner of the "Second A. E. F." told of the trip across the Atlantic today as compared with those of war days.

CHAPTER V

Paris-bound! — Zowie! Paris-bound!

The click of the wheels of those first-class compartment coaches is little short of musical. On the sidings you see those French box-cars — "Chevaux 8 — Hommes 40." Maybe you fought for breath with about sixty other sweating or freezing soldiers in one of those self-same story-book freight cars. Perhaps you came down through England to Romsey and hiked up that chalk cliff in Le Havre, with the perspiration trickling down back of your ears. Or perhaps you came in through St. Nazaire or Bordeaux or Brest. Regardless, you knew the "40 hommes and 8 chevaux," and intimately, too. They haven't changed a bit. Just as nice and roomy and commodious as ever. But how comfy an upholstered seat feels!

The beautiful American memorial designed for a huge rock, jutting 60 feet out of the water at St. Nazaire. It is the work of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and commemorates the landing of the first American troops in France on June 26, 1917.

No uniforms greet the eye. The "Assises" with their independent swagger air have left the scene. The blue of the Pollu is gone. Here and there you spot a villager with an army blouse. There are no interesting gangs of "P. O.'s" (Prisonier de Guerre, if you've forgotten). But all along the "chemin de fer" the scenes are strikingly familiar. The stone houses, the fields, the peasants working, the high-wheeled carts. Surely, things haven't changed so very much. There's a youngster clattering along a cobbled street of a town in his wooden shoes and smock, way to the eprie to get some fromage. There's a white-bonneted old lady gossiping at the village well with a neighbor. It hardly seems possible that a few years ago this land was the scene of the world's most sanguinary conflict.

The train clicks on. It's like a dream—a dream that's coming true. You kick yourself to see if you're awake—if it's all real. Then you look out the window at the fitting landscape. And two signs meet your eyes: "CHOCOLAT MENIERE." "HEINZ—57 VARIETIES."

Ah! There's the evidence. Now you know you're in France.

The conductor comes through for the tickets, his satchel bouncing at his hip. These conductors used to have a very difficult time

Woman Suffrage Fails In Aims, Says Leader

BY MARIAN HALE

New York—The equal suffrage for which this country's womanhood battled so spiritedly and at times so violently for a generation and more—

The equal suffrage that, when achieved, would right the country's wrongs and make America a political paradise—

Was it a dream-bubble that has burst these seven years after victory's roselate dawn?

I asked Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, of New York's "four hundred," one of the pioneers of the suffrage fight, for four years president of the Woman's National Republican Club, delegate to the Cleveland Republican convention that nominated Calvin Coolidge, and member of the Republican National Committee.

Mrs. Chas. H. Sabin

She's Disappointed

She replied that the results of woman suffrage so far had been a "keen disappointment."

Not for many years, she forecast, will women occupy any considerable number of political positions of importance.

"Suffrage needs a big publicity campaign," she said. "It needs something to make it popular with both men and women.

"Of course it is the lack of interest among women that is the disillusioning thing for suffragists.

"Women slaved for suffrage—marched, spoke indoors and from street corners, canvassed districts, distributed literature, defied the police, got up thousands of educational meetings, and so on. But only 40 per cent of the eligible feminine voters participated in the 1920 election, and scarcely any more last time.

Farm Women in Lead

"Farm women, curiously, seem more interested in the vote than their city sisters. They vote in large proportions, and vote with intelligence. Easier work on the farm, more civic clubs, and the radio have contributed to this."

But if Mrs. Sabin is disappointed over women's showing as voters, she by no means has given up hope.

"Winning the right to vote was worth the effort," she said.

Vital, human issues some day will catch women's fancy and arouse them to forceful exercise of the right, she believes. Taxes, budgets, and deficits never will stir the feminine imagination as some simple, human issue will, she thinks.

An Expert Analysis

Mrs. Sabin, former Governor Nellie Ross of Wyoming, and other feminine leaders who talked over suffrage here recently analyzed the situation about like this:

"Something must be done to interest girls in politics during the gap between their high school years and voting age. Many girls develop civic interest in school, only to lose it before they can go to the polls.

"Two classes of women do not vote who should: young married women and professional women. Both may be too busy to ally themselves with party machinery. But they at least can walk to the corner and cast their ballots.

Starting at Bottom

"Women going into politics should go in determined to begin at the bottom, work up, and not expect special privilege. They must win their party laurels as persons, not women."

Of the future, Mrs. Sabin said: "After all, a political sense is the result of long study. It is almost inherited, you might say. Men always have had more or less political knowledge. Women must get their bearings.

"Meanwhile, those who do not vote have no right to kick about how the government is run."

Old Master's

I met a traveler from an antique land
Who said: Two vast and trunkless legs of stone
Stand in the desert. Near them, on the sand
Half sunk, a shattered visage lies, whose frown
And wrinkled lip and sneer of cold command
Tell that its sculptor well those passions read
Which yet survive, stamped on these lifeless things,
The hand that mocked them and the heart that fed;
And on the pedestal these words appear:
"My name is Ozymandias, king of Kings;
Look on my works, ye Mighty, and despair!"
Nothing beside remains. Round the decay
Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare,
The lone and level sands stretch far away.

MILTON SILLS HEADS STATE BARGAIN BILL

"Sea Tiger" on Program With 8 Vaudeville Acts Tonight; Picture Remains Rest of Week.

Eight superb vaudeville acts, headed by the famous Broadway Limited, with "The Sea Tiger," in which Milton Sills is featured, form the program for State theater patrons this evening as the usual Bargain Night bill.

The Broadway Limited is a sketch of a different type. Highly entertaining and humorous, the action all takes place on board a train headed for the bright light section. There are several people in the cast, most of whom have been connected with this act for several years, and all are artists in the comedy line.

Added to this headliner are seven other acts, all circuit teams, including musical turns, dancing teams, singers and stunt men and women. All together it will be one of the best balanced bills that has been presented to the State audience for some time.

For Friday and Saturday the feature picture will be shown with the best five acts of the eight which are on the program tonight.

"The Sea Tiger," which features Milton Sills, is the feature picture for these three days.

Sills plays the role of a slow witted but powerful Spanish fisherman, who is torn between his love for his younger and weaker brother, Larry Kent, and Mary Astor, a fisherman's daughter, whom both the brothers love.

Against the stormy background of the sea the tale unfolds itself with peculiar beauty.

The tiny fishing craft dip their sails against the horizon as the course of true love runs anything but smooth. Alice White, as a rattle brained little Spanish theatrical trouper, causes most of the trouble.

Mary Astor, as the heroine, is as beautiful as ever, and, furthermore, she at last has a chance at a role which gives her an opportunity to display fire and anger, as well as touches of humor. The story abounds in good laughs interspersed in the drama, this lighter touch being a welcome addition to Sills' repertoire.

HOLY WEEK MEDITATIONS
"The Joyfulness Of Life"

"These things have I spoken unto you that my joy may be in you and that your joy may be made full."—John XV:11.

By CHARLES HAVEN MYERS, D. D.
Plymouth Church of Shaker Heights, Cleveland, Ohio

One cannot fail to be impressed with the joyfulness of Jesus. "Be of good cheer," was ever on His lips. The crowds that listened to Him were filled with joy as the words broke in God-like music on the Galilean air.

All through His ministry He gives evidence of finding the joyfulness of life—flowers and the exuberant gladness of nature and the laughter of babes were His associations. He also knew the joy of things regained that had been lost, as in the stories of the lost sheep, the lost coin and the lost son. He was ever conscious of the joy of fellowship with the Infinite, while around Him beat the passions and conflicts of finite men.

What a lesson for our Lenten season we find in our study of the joy of Jesus.

But we must be careful to distinguish between joy and pleasure. Pleasure is fleeting; joy is abiding. Pleasure is superficial; joy is the deep swell of the ocean; pleasure is the temporary satisfaction of the senses; joy is the play upon our spirits of Goodness, Beauty and Truth. Indeed it is what the French call it—"a jewel"—hidden deep in the heart of every man and woman who has found the way of living.

We should find joy in work as well as in rest—that is if our work is that which is the true and full expression of our self. There should be joy in our achievement if it is that which contributes to the happiness and welfare of others. There certainly will be joy in the conflicts of life knowing that hard pathways, steep climbs, heavy loads and stormy weather are all compliments to our worth.

Anything less than this would bring us to indolence and gross selfishness. We can even find joy amid much that is ugly and mean. All of us have been conscious of shedding tears of joy, knowing that the experience of the moment, some personal victory, was too joyous for laughter.

Perhaps our greatest joy is the consciousness of an Infinite Presence. It is a great awakening, like the opening of the eyes upon a sunny, spring morning, when it first dawns upon our minds that God is in the world, hoping, dreaming, struggling and suffering with us. It is then that we pursue our tasks with a new joy. "Our Joy is made full."

Brownlee, Mrs. W. M. Brownlee, to Mrs. Fred H. Norton, for retiring commissioner, is much credit due. It is through her efforts that the Girl Scouts of Manchester now have a chartered council of their own, six registered troops and two Brownie Packs. She has given her time faithfully and willingly for the past four years. The Girl Scouts wish to thank Mrs. Norton for all she has done for them during her term of service.

Beginning April 14, Bessie Forbes will act as assistant to Miss Ferguson, Brown Owl of Brownie Pack No. 1. Miss Ruth

THE LIFE OF CHRIST The Crucifixion

SYNOPSIS ARRANGED BY DR. WM. E. GILROY, D. D. SKETCHES BY KROESEN

With Simon of Cyrene carrying the cross, Jesus was taken to Calvary and there crucified between two thieves, while His mother and friends stood by. Jeering Him, the crowd said, "He saved others, let Him save himself if He be Christ." (Luke XXIII : 26-39).

The soldiers cast lots for His garments. Above Him was the inscription, "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews." (John XIX : 19-24)

One of the crucified thieves repented of his sins, and Jesus promised him eternal life. (Luke XXIII : 40-43)

As the terrible suffering of Jesus on the cross was ended by death, darkness came over all the earth for three hours and a great earthquake rent the veil of the temple. (Luke XXIII : 44-46)

Four Women Face Death Penalty

Charged with murdering their husbands or their sweethearts these four women face possible death sentences if found guilty. Mrs. Snyder is charged with aiding her lover in the brutal murder of her husband while he slept in their New York apartment. Mrs. Heilman and Mrs. Alma Olson of Chicago are charged with murdering their husbands, and Miss Stokes, also of Chicago, with the murder of her sweetheart, James J. Glennon.

HEBRON

William C. Robinson was leader of the Christian Endeavor meeting at the center Sunday evening. The Gilead Endeavorers were invited to be present and a good number responded. After the regular hour a special conference took place, the topic being how to improve the work of the Sunday school. This was led by the Rev. John Deeter, pastor of the Hebron and Gilead churches. A vigorous discussion took place. It was brought out that an average of 65 pupils, including children and adults attend the Sunday school at the center. The Gilead Sunday school numbering somewhat less. About 25 pupils all children, are enrolled at St. Peter's Sunday school, but there is a large class of people in the town who never attend any religious gathering.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Raymond of Raymond Manor entertained as their guests on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Raymond and children of New Britain, also Mrs. Lulu Lord of South Manchester. They also entertained recently Mr. and Mrs. William Hawthorne of New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mainwaring and daughters, Carol and Shirley also Charles Chappel and daughter Grace, all of New Haven were Sunday visitors at the home of Mrs. Etta Rathbone and Mrs. H. B. Rathbone.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fries of Norwich, former residents of Amston called on friends in town on Sunday.

The officers were as follows: President, Mrs. Marietta G. Horton, vice president, Edmund H. Horton, treasurer, William C. Robinson; secretary, Miss Clarissa Pendleton; collector, Mrs. Marietta G. Horton; board of managers, William O. Seyms, H. Clinton Porter. The two other members of the board, elected last year, are Mrs. W. O. Seyms and Edmund Horton. About $100 was spent on improvements in the cemetery by the association during the past year. This includes straightening about fifty gravestones, filling in sunken graves, mowing three times. A vote was taken to charge one dollar for filling sunken graves, and to double the fee charged for the general care of cemetery lots. The increase in charges has been necessary as the finances of the association are insufficient to meet these demands.

EGG HUNT SATURDAY AT "WHITE HOUSE"

Girls 2 to 10 Years Can Win Prizes at Community Club Grounds.

The second annual Easter Egg hunt will be held on the "White House" grounds Saturday morning, April 15, at 10:30 a. m.

The custom started last year by Director Washburn seems to have firmly fixed itself in the youngsters' minds as an annual event, in that many of the mothers have called, asking that the club repeat the hunt this year again.

Director Washburn states that this year the "White House" grounds will be divided into two sections, one for tots from two to five and one section for children six to ten. The egg hunt this year will be confined to girls only inasmuch as on Saturday, April 23, the boys are having a kite-flying contest limited to boys.

As were the rules last year, no youngsters may help the other or two work together putting the eggs found in one basket to count as one. Youngsters of the ages mentioned must stay in their allotted section in order to get a prize.

Director Washburn states that mothers accompany the smaller tots and that everybody is welcome, whether from north or south. It has also been suggested that each searcher bring with her a small box to put the eggs in after they have been found. The eggs will not be hard to find, providing the searchers have sharp eyes.

Should weather conditions interfere a date will be announced later.

The egg hunt bids fair to become a yearly custom, after the manner of the famous egg-rolling contests for the children in Washington, D. C., as in Manchester, a hunt on the "White House" grounds.

BRUSH FIRE SCARES NORTH HAVEN FOLKS

Men Save Dwellings In Path of Flames—Big Park Is Threatened.

North Haven, Conn., April 14.—Several acres of brush wood on the Hartford turnpike were swept by fire of unknown origin today, the fire being extinguished by North Haven's fire department at a time when it threatened to destroy dwelling houses in its path. Many pine trees in the path of the blaze were destroyed, and for a time the fire seemed likely to spread to Wharton Brook Park, two miles away.

Henry G. Bellows, local fire warden, in charge of fire fighting, called for fire apparatus as the flames raced toward the home of A. Bergimini where Mrs. Bergimini was alone with several children. The flames swept around the house for some distance to the north before they were stopped. Officials were not certain whether the fire was started from a trolley passenger or from a railroad train.

Monte Carlo Has Nothing On Gold Field Gambling

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the third story of the series by Betty Briggs, flapper reporter, who joined the Nevada gold rush for NEA Service and The Evening Herald.

By BETTY BRIGGS

Tonopah, Nev., April 9—"Hey there, change this $100 bill for me quick!"

It was in Tonopah's ritziest gambling den that I heard the roughneck demand change for his $100. I almost turned around and walked out, for I was clutching my mere five spot and wondering whether I should or should not lose it.

But I couldn't stay there and do nothing. I was conspicuous enough as it was. Getting into the gold camp gambling houses is no easy job for a girl.

The First Hole
A "senior friend," as the dance hall girls call the men, had told me how to go upstairs through a bootlegging joint, down some rickety backstairs, and into a basement. Here I came up against a heavy wooden door with an eye-high knot hole for a window.

I found the bell behind the board and rang it. An eye, a sinister eye, appeared at the knot hole. I murmured the name of "a leading citizen," and the door swung open.

The room was ablaze with light. There were dozens of tables for both black-jack and roulette. Chips and piles of silver dollars towered on each table.

The Horseshoe Diamond Pins
Men in neat business suits, in the checks of the professional gambler with horseshoe diamond stick pins, unshaven men in gold-digging duds, were silently playing in a room blue with smoke.

I bought chips for roulette, 20 of them. It seemed a long time until I had 40. I wondered why girls worked on papers for a living.

Again and again I won, growing bolder each time I stacked my chips on the green or red numbers.

Every time that little ball dropped into a groove there was more money in one poor working girl's pocket. Then Lady Luck turned fickle jade, and I was left with one chip. I bought another stack, and in a minute they were gone, too. I began counting the miles back to "Frisco," and decided it was time to leave "gambling hell," where broad and short is the way to destruction.

Restaurants are Gambling Dens
I wandered into another hall, though, thinking I could not just look on. It was a wild place, the walls covered with nude art. Two bartenders were busy selling whiskey with lime rinds.

Then I went into a meek-looking restaurant where "21" was played, with the sky the limit for bets. I tried my luck in drawing cards which would add to the magic number, but had no luck at all, at all. So, having lost $5, I decided to give up my gambling career.

Portable Cottages
Weepah in the heart of the gold strike, continues to grow.

Thirty portable cottages have been shipped for those who have money enough to rent them, a moving picture house is being built, and there is a Weepah Club built of rough unpainted boards. Hundreds of letters from the country over asking for jobs of all sorts are used as wall paper on the club walls.

There is a new beauty parlor specialist and a chili queen. She is a beautiful grass widow, the first one since Nevada passed its three-month residence law. She wears a snappy riding habit and bright colored blouses and is quite the camp belle.

I spent a night in one of these gold rush de luxe outfits with a girl from Arizona, who bought it with savings from her $200 a month job, which she gave up to come out here.

The Cows Are Missing
It is a specially fitted camping car with a bed folded over the seat tops, lights snapped on just as in a

Pullman berth, an alarm clock fitted to a holder in the steering wheel, and special pistol pockets in the sides of the car.

But how the wind howled that night and how I shivered and how the sand beat against the windows! We cooked breakfast over a gasoline stove; and now I sighed for real cream! I have seen nothing but the canned kind since leaving "Frisco. Cows do not thrive on these rocks. We washed our dishes in about a spoonful of water, remembering that it cost 5 cents a gallon.

MYSTERIOUS FIRE

Willimantic, Conn., April 14.—County officials are today investigating another mysterious fire which last evening destroyed a large barn on the old Leander Richardson place, Chestnut Hill, Columbia, doing damage estimated at about $7,000. Abraham Miller owns the property. Parked close to the barn was a new automobile, owned by James Choquet, which was destroyed in the blaze. The origin of the fire is entirely unknown.

The Babylonians were the first to use the arch in building.

PICTURE SEASON NOW IN FULL SWING HERE

Taking Snapshots Is Becoming Popular National Pastime, Says Kemp's

"Get your Kodak out" seems to be a universal slogan at this time of the year. With beautiful spring weather here, and the increasing number of automobiles out for a tour, people are getting out their cameras, and taking pictures. Pictures are lasting remembrances of happy days, and good times together.

It is not probable that anyone goes automobile driving, or hiking, without a Kodak, as there is always something which one likes to remember for years to come, and only a photograph will do. On the auto tour, there are beautiful lakes, groves, and many scenes of nature, not to speak of pictures of the "crowd," which folks like to take, as in years to come, they are lasting remembrances of the happy days of yore. The spring and summer seasons are the best times for pictures. Vacations, either by automobile tour, or at the seashore, mountains or down on the farm, present splendid chances for good photos.

Kodak dealers everywhere are co-operating with the people to make it convenient to get films developed properly and promptly. Kemp's Music House, local Kodak dealer, has had a film deposit box made and it is placed at the store entrance, every evening and all day Sunday. This makes it convenient for people to drop in their rolls of films without going into the store, and get it promptly developed and printed. It is only necessary for one to write his name on the roll of film and drop the film in the box. All films dropped in the box up to 5:30 p. m. can be had the next day, all developed and printed. This is a novel idea, and is bound to prove favorable to folks taking pictures.

BALD HEAD CLUB

Mountain laurel, the state flower, will be in full bloom at the lake by June 25.

FORMER RESIDENT ACCUSED OF ARSON

Leo Grichtman, Recently a Druggist Here, Arrested For Hartford Fire.

Leo Grichtman, a former Manchester druggist, was arrested by Hartford police last night, charged with two other men, with arson, following investigation of a fire last Wednesday night in the United Drug store on Main street, Hartford of which Grichtman, with Bertram J. Kelly, is part owner. The fire damage was estimated at $3,500.

Implicated with Grichtman are Frank J. Bowlen, a clerk in the drug store, and Merrill Haines, alleged to be the person who actually started the fire. All three were arrested by Detective Sergeant Nicholas R. Galluccio and Acting Detective Sergeant Charles F. Daley. Bowlen and Haines are said to have given the police signed statements of their part in the fire.

Had Money Troubles
Grichtman, a graduate druggist, was connected with the J. H. Quinn Drug company here for about a year and left to take over the United Drug store with Kelly last summer. While in Manchester he is said to have made attempts to borrow money. It was because of financial difficulties, the two defendants say, that he planned the fire to collect enough insurance to pay his debts.

According to the Hartford police Haines and Bowlen closed the store at 10:45 last Tuesday evening and went to Bowlen's room. They returned about 3 o'clock in the morning and Bowlen watched the street while Haines entered the store, using Grichtman's key. Haines lighted a cigarette, laid it alongside a match which was close to some rolls of paper, and left the store. He and Bowlen then went to their respective homes.

Cigarette a Fuse
The cigarette, acting as a fuse, ignited the match and soon the store was in flames. Damage amounting to $2,500 was done to the contents of the store and $1,000 to the building.

An investigation resulted in the arrests of Bowlen and Haines.

Both broke down and named Grichtman as the planner of the scheme. Grichtman denied the charge and all three were held in default of $10,000 bail. The United Drug company was raided by federal agents some months ago and Kelly, Grichtman's partner, was heavily fined for violation of the liquor law. A federal seal was placed on the store's stock of prescription liquor but some time ago it was reported by Grichtman to the police that this stock had been stolen.

HOSPITAL TRUSTEES HEAR MONTH REPORT

During the month of March, ninety patients were admitted to the Memorial hospital, 38 operations were made, there were fifteen births and five deaths, it was revealed yesterday at the regular monthly meeting of the hospital board of trustees which is composed of Miss Mary Cheney, Mrs. Albert Crowell, Rev. P. J. O. Cornell, Phillip Cheney, Horace Cheney, William H. Hyde, Rev. William P. Reidy, W. W. Robertson, C. R. Burr and F. A. VerPlanck. The meeting was held in the hospital at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Routine business and a discussion of the budget for the next fiscal year occupied the greater part of the committee's time. The report of Miss Jessie Reynolds, social service worker, for the month of March, showed 374 visits. She made 38 visits to patients in the hospital, 78 to private homes, 157 for the Red Cross and 101 for the board of health. Ninety-six cultures were taken.

HATCHET MURDER

Worcester, Mass., April 14.—Apparently slain with a hatchet, the body of James Bobbitt, known as Joseph Babbitt, 63, was discovered today in a blood-spattered room in the attic of a two and one-half story dwelling house in the Quinsigamond district.

The motive of the murder and the time were a complete mystery. No weapon was found and two families living below told police they did not hear any disturbance during the night.

DAUGHTERS OF MILLS by Anne Austin

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire owner of the big Curtis department store, selects by means of an intriguing contest three girls from his establishment to be his wards for one year.

"I was just going," he told her shortly.

CHAPTER XXII

THE three girls took up their residence in the Cluny mansion on Thursday. Sunday afternoon Billy was driven to the shabby little Wells cottage in the Cluny vicinity busy since Thursday that I've hardly had time to think of my violin, and I did want a visit just with you, honey."

It was a transformed little Billy Wells who flung open the door of the living room. Her sturdy slenderness was wrapped about in a luxurious moleskin coat, her bright chestnut curls just showing beneath a saucy, expensive tam of taupe-colored suede.

"And what's my baby going to have?" Mrs. Wells' voice and tear-misted eyes yearned over the girl nestled in her arms.

"From rags to riches!" she laughed at Clay's and her mother's amazement.

"Oh, there's the car!" she gasped in relief when at last there came a low, discreet honk of the horn—the wide, coach-like, dressing table, chest of drawers, desk and chairs in painted wood—soft, dull green, sort of a milky jade, with a dim pattern of roses in a faded pink and silk lace panels, and a big, dull-green velvet rug. Oh, yes, I want a chaise longue, too, with a fan-shaped back of cane, painted to match the furniture, and upholstered in the green silk of the draperies, with green and rose cushions."

"It's real pretty," Mrs. Wells said, taking the coat from Billy's shoulders.

"Oh, don't crab, mother," Billy lifted the suede tam from her head and fung it at Clay with an impudent smile.

"Well, I don't either, so there's nothing to quarrel about," Billy kissed her mother's mutinous lips, and laughed at her.

"Very much," he said briefly. Then, as her bright, eager face clouded, he added, with his boyish frank smile, "Go ahead, Billy. Get all you can this year. Don't let it turn your head. Did you bring your violin? Say, I've written a song I want you to try out—"

"This is an awful place, mother. I wish you could come and live with me at the Curtis house. You ought to see my room. Of course Nyda and Winnie beat me to the best rooms, but I like mine almost as well as theirs. It's bigger than our living room and dining room put together, and it has a whole row of French windows opening out on a darling little balcony. Of course it's full of heavy, horrid, old-fashioned furniture now, but T. Q. is going to redecorate our rooms to suit our own tastes."

"I was just going," he told her shortly, and before she could protest, he had slammed out of the room.

"Clay has atrocious manners," Billy bit her lips to keep them from trembling. "I've been so frantically busy since Thursday that I've hardly had time to think of my violin, and I did want a visit just with you, honey."

mother's face between her hands and shook it affectionately. "I didn't know you'd mind so much, or I'd have done without the dress. It was only that Nyda and Winnie were going to spring their new clothes today. You know I told you I have to be back for tea. We're going to have—guests. It's really our first party since we went there to live—"

"Some of those nice men you met at the dinner?" Mrs. Wells probed eagerly.

"Yes, Ralph Truman and Bruce Kruger and—Mrs. Meadows' nephew." She could not bring herself to pronounce Dalhart Romaine's name. The very thought of Romaine made her shiver, flushed her face with the fever which had burned in her blood since the first time she had seen him.

Suddenly she was in a very agony of impatience to be gone. She rose and walked restlessly about the room, fished for the cheap lace curtains to peer out into the street, to see the Curtis car drive up. She hardly heard a word her mother said—something about how hard Clay was working now, about how badly he slept, how nervous he was. Oh, why didn't the car come?

Why had she bought this green dress? It was horrid. She wanted to appear before Dal Romaine in raiment so dazzling and glorious that his drooping black eyes could see nothing else but her in all the world. She had hungered and thirsted for a sight of her lover, her deep love had driven her to ceaseless activity during the day and to wide-eyed, restless tossing at night. And all she had had from him was the orchid she wore on her coat. She set the price at above everything that her new life had brought her until she found that he had sent a white orchid to Nyda and a lavender-and-purple one to Winnie.

"Oh, there's the car!" she gasped in relief when at last there came a low, discreet honk of the horn—the wide, coach-like, dressing table, chest of drawers, desk and chairs in painted wood—soft, dull green, sort of a milky jade, with a dim pattern of roses in a faded pink and silk lace panels, and a big, dull-green velvet rug. Oh, yes, I want a chaise longue, too, with a fan-shaped back of cane, painted to match the furniture, and upholstered in the green silk of the draperies, with green and rose cushions."

"It sounds very sweet," her mother admitted in a slightly constrained voice. "I guess your own little room here, with its white enameled bed and oak dress, will look pretty awful to you when you—"

"When you come home," Billy protested.

"When the year's up I'm going to have so much money saved up that we can go straight to New York and get me all dated up for a concert tour. Then I can earn pretty things for myself—and for you."

"You didn't have to dress up to come to see your mother," Mrs. Wells protested. "I was so anxious to hear what he thought of your playing—"

"Why, mother!" Billy took her

News-papers reporters and photographers pounce upon the "daughters of Mills" girls, who suddenly find themselves figures of importance in the news.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

One reason for the wave of student suicides is because of "man's lost trust in his girl," according to one savant, who attempts to say why. He writes: "The modern boy realizes that the girl back home is probably in the arms of his rival, and that, if he writes of his school failures or other troubles, she will probably tell him to get busy and make good or not bother her."

That Slow Club

There are 29 chapters of the Slow Club, a total membership of 9,000 members, and a waiting list of 25,000. The members pledge themselves not to pet, drink, smoke or partake of any customary diversions of modern youth, but to spend their recreational hours in the pursuit of literature, drama, art and debate. I don't want to seem cynical, but I wonder just how many of the 9000 don't slip, at least, of forbidden pleasures after school hours. Sounds to me like a grand get-together meeting and a chance to make dates, etc. and I hope 'tis so. The general idea is very good, but too much emphasis on the intellectual delights and the sins of other joys will make as the leoparded young people as the very thing they are fighting to counteract.

Babies and Law

It takes a new nation, a new form of government, to iron out into simplicity some of the complexities of a nation's laws. In the Soviet, for instance, there is no illegitimacy for a nameless child. The very fact that the child has been born makes it legitimate. The mother merely registers the birth and gives the name of the child's father. If he is her husband or another woman's husband, he remains in the sight of the law the father until he can prove that he is not. It seems eminently simpler and fairer than our "civilized" system of labeling children legitimate and illegitimate, and our chivalrous method of making the woman prove that a man is her child's father rather than making him prove that he is not.

Peaches Again

Peaches Browning will not get that nice job as hostess at a certain night club, as was heralded. No reason was assigned. The management just changed its mind. I should like to see the man who is the one who protested is more disappointed than anyone else because he—or she—won't see Peaches in the club. Most people enjoy protest so that they can enjoy the thing at which they protested with no conscience twinges.

Family Fights

Even royal families have their quarrels with their in-laws; Story has it—take it with a pinch of salt, and then proceed to enjoy it—that Pa, the King of England, and Ma, the Queen of England, and Buddy, the Prince of Wales, do not like Sis Mary's husband. Sis Mary is the former Princess Mary of England, now the wife of Lord Lascelles. They do not like him because Mary wears the kind of clothes, snappy ones, that her husband likes, and not the kind, trumpy ones, that the Queen likes, and because—more so—he will not make father the leathery royal exchequer. What's the use of being royal if you can't even escape family fights?

Wanted, a Wife

A Paris poet inserts a modest ad in the Paris papers. He asks for some bright, ambitious, capable girl to marry him and support him so that he can be well-fed, well-housed, well-clothed and write immortal verse. He hints that the wage-earning wife will be well repaid in future years, and that he is famous and she will be known as his wife. And what every woman knows will happen is that the illustrious husband will give her a friendly pat on the shoulder and admonish her to run along and be a good girl, he can get along by himself now, and he would very much like to have a romance with that rich society dame who can get him somewhere. No, I'm not cynical—just far-seeing!

Men's Modes

When Mr. Mode steps forth on Easter morning he will wear the smart cutaway coat, striped trousers, top coat, white or gray gloves and spats, wing or turned down collar, black shoes and incidentally a cane. For the afternoon there is a wider choice of costume. Preferable is the dark gray cord or black two-button notched lapel jacket, light gray plain or striped trousers and derby.

If Sports Black

Not all best dressers will be found in town on Easter. Good weather may call many to the golf links or motoring. All-tweed outfits offer one choice; another is double-breasted serge, preferably dark blue with striped white or gray trousers. Patch pockets on the jackets and soft collared shirts sportily both costumes with which either black or two-toned shoes and either snap brim felt hats or tweed caps may be worn.

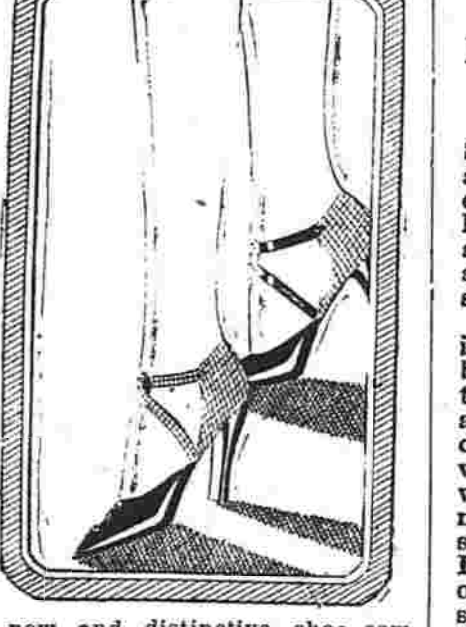

Hosiery

Color if you want it and sobriety if you like that—anything you want—that's the note in men's hose. Well-dressed men seem to be turning away from the loud color combinations of the past two years and favoring quiet tones in their hose. The most popular idea for this season is the paneled effect, which breaks up the monotony of plain vertical, stripes and does away with horizontals. Gray and light blue in checks are favored for golf hose, very nice ones selling around $1.50.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Mrs. Robinson's appointment book is kept filled up for every hour these days when every woman is anxious to have her hair dressed becomingly for the new Easter costume. The Lily Beauty shop is upstairs in the House & Hale building.

The first rhubarb is in the market and the tender skin need not be peeled. When cooked with it on it has a pretty pink color. As the season advances the skin grows tough and should be removed before cooking. There are lots of ways to prepare it for the table besides sauce and in pie. Rhubarb betty with stale bread crumbs, baked and served with cream makes a delicious dessert, or combined with tapioca of the minute variety, say four tablespoons of the cereal to three cups cut rhubarb and nearly a cup of sugar as rhubarb needs to be well sweetened.

The Easter cards, novelties for the children, baskets of eggs and candy boxes are so tempting, every one just wants to buy and buy. Each succeeding season brings out new and clever favors and novelties for the hostess who entertains at this time, or gives a party for the little ones.

Emma Roberts, noted mezzo contralto, loves to cook as well as sing. One of her favorite dishes is fried chicken, cooked as they used to cook it at her home in Kentucky, by splitting up a frying size chicken, sprinkling it with salt and allowing it to stand for two hours in the refrigerator. Each piece is then dipped separately in flour and fried in very deep, hot fat and cooked until the four broths well on both sides. The chicken is then allowed to cook slowly with top on frying pan until well done, perhaps twenty minutes or so.

It's an even toss-up which type of costume wins the more votes this spring—there seem to be just as many spring coats as tailored suits. Black and white is a leader, but as the weather grows warmer the pastel shades will appear in greater numbers. Two-toned is the note of spring—blues have contrasting bandings and grays and tans are blended with deeper hues. The two-toned idea is also accomplished by using the dull and shiny side of satins. There is as much diversity to costumes as to hats apparently.

An example of how "blue" the smart dresser is this season was noticed in the new outfit of a prominent society woman. Her soft woolen coat was of marine blue, decorated with contrasting blue leather insets. Smart blue pumps, blue hat and purse completed the costume.

A stunning leghorn novelty hat had snuffing of several shades of red and black straw cut into its crown and a band of the same cuts under the floppy brim which was edged with red. This was shown on a model wearing a frock of red and white figured crepe. A tailored black bengaline hat with peaked crown and turned up brim, let one part of the latter suddenly drop on the right side over a cluster of gleaming white flowers, with leaves of gleaming black instead of green—a very stunning model.

"What a Wonderful Help" Says Hartford Matron

Mrs. Couture tells how four years of suffering wrecked her health. Now sound and strong thanks Tanlac

Mrs. Evelyn Couture, 99 Hudson St., Hartford, Conn., is widely known and respected in fraternal circles. Her enthusiasm and tireless vitality enable her to take prominent part in many varied activities. But she has not always enjoyed the sparkling health she has today. "For four years I was a martyr to indigestion," she said recently. "It became so bad that I could not even take milk or coffee without suffering afterwards. Violent headaches and dizzy spells were so frequent that life was a constant misery and matters went from bad to worse. Finally my nerves gave way and normal restful sleep was out of the question. Then I went to pieces and almost despaired of ever being well again. Nothing seemed to do me any lasting good. Then a good neighbor, Mrs. Yorkell, told me of her experience and how Tanlac had helped her. So I tried it on her recommendation. What a wonderful help it was! The very first bottle helped noticeably, so I persevered felt my old sound health returned. Since then I've enjoyed splendid health and recommend Tanlac gladly to all my friends. Profit from Mrs. Couture's experience. Tanlac is nature's own remedy, made from roots, bark and herbs. Your druggist has it. Over 52,000,000 bottles sold.

VITAMIN A IS A MYSTERIOUS BUT ESSENTIAL PART OF DIET

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

After a food has been analyzed into its fundamental chemical constituents, there still remain to be determined those mysterious ingredients now called "vitamins," because they are apparently necessary to life and to suitable body growth. The only manner in which their presence may be determined is by actual test on growing animals. For this reason, there have developed nutrition laboratories in which the effects of the vitamins are studied on white rats and on other animals. Not one of the vitamins has as yet been isolated in a chemically pure state, although the investigators are busy at work on the subject. Vitamin A is also called fat soluble vitamin, because it was first discovered in butter fat, then the fat of egg yolk, and finally in the fat of cod liver oil. It is, of course, available in milk and in such leafy vegetables as spinach, water-cress, lettuce, celery leaves and the tops of turnips, beets and radishes. This vitamin is also abundant in liver, kidneys and sweetbreads, but not

Belief In People!

By Olive Roberts Burton

I was astonished at the casual manner in which the woman locked the door of her hotel room as she went out, without once glancing at the bag that held her jewel case. She had not even bothered to close the bag, much less lock it.

"You are not going to leave them like that!" I protested.

"I am almost tempting fate now. I have left those jewels unprotected just as a reformed drunkard sets a full bottle of whisky in front of him to see how long he can do without it. It's the same for me. I have got back my belief in people, thank heaven!"

for, but after a while I found that if I didn't count my change or get a receipt for the finest purchase, I was worried to death. I took to depositing my bank balance and resending my monthly statements from the stores. I bagged over prices and got the idea everyone was cheating me. I actually got so that I trusted no one. I had the feeling that the whole world would rob me if it could.

"If I went away on a visit I had the car stripped and the garage double-locked. I put half the things in the house in safe deposit and still worried about them every minute while I was gone.

"I worried about the fur coat I wore and the rings on my hands. I actually became afraid to go out. But luckily I woke up one time to realize what was happening.

DAVIS CUP TO LEAVE AMERICA IF OUR PLAYERS DON'T IMPROVE

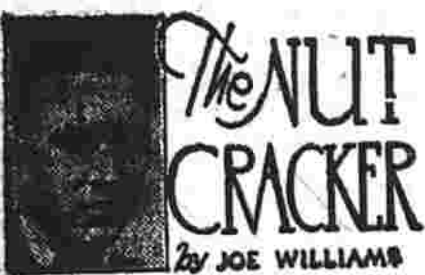

Tilden Shows Poor Form, Johnston No Better and Williams an In and Out-er.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

(I. N. S. Sports Editor) New York, April 14.—William T. Tilden, the modern Diogenes with a lantern for a jaw, is all washed up and ready for the sexton, according to pained observers who have watched our Will leaping heavily from court to court in the south. One of them claimed today that "Will wouldn't ever reach the finals at Wimbledon, provided he was sufficiently ill advised as to go through with his trip abroad; another predicted that the young man's entire come-back program was out like an ex-window.

Dubious Reports These are dubious reports, indeed, and their most interesting feature is that one is not compelled to believe them. After observing our Will fixedly over a period of years, the writer finds that great satisfaction may be derived from taking nothing for granted about him. However, if one cares to accept the reports at face value, one also must accept the fact that the Davis Cup really is going on a long journey this time and that probably a Frenchman will hold our national championship in singles for the second successive year. Unless Tilden returns as the old dominant personality, the downfall of the American dynasty in lawn tennis is inevitable.

Richards has turned square; Johnson no longer can give you one hundred per cent at will; Williams is an in and out-er, and the others are just young fellows trying to get along.

Hagen says nine out of ten cases of ailing are unnecessary. . . . Worse than that. They're absolutely useless.

Big League Baseball Managers And When They Got Their Jobs

Table listing National and American league managers and their start dates for various seasons from 1902 to 1927.

GIMME SOME PEANUTS AND LET'S GO!!

Latzo Has Worthy Foe In Al Mello

More trouble for Pete Latzo, welterweight champion. The latest menace is Al Mello, of Lowell, Mass. This young man can punch. For confirmation of that statement wire knockout Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Washington.

Mello, with one punch, a stinging left hook that floored Roberts for the count of five and started him on the way to ruin, won for him the fame that had suddenly been thrust upon Roberts as the result of his one-round knockout of Joe Dundee.

Mello's quick disposal of the highly touted Roberts came as a complete surprise to even his most ardent New England supporters. He is now in line for a chance at the welter crown. His decisive victory over the coast phenom has put him in the running for one of the big open air attractions this summer.

The rise to fame of Al Mello has been rapid but not undeserved. As an amateur he showed great promise. He represented the United States in the Olympic games at Paris, winning the national amateur welterweight championship. Having gained all the glory possible as an amateur, he decided to turn professional late in 1924.

He has suffered only two reverses, losing on a foul to Frankie Quill and dropping a decision to George Kidzee, another local boy with a reputation largely confined to Massachusetts. Since losing to Quill on a foul, he has stopped that person in four rounds.

Fighting as a professional only a little over a year, the former amateur contender for the welterweight crown, now grading the rather dizzy head of Pete Latzo. In his last two or three appearances, Latzo has been cutted around rather severely.

That Mello is a capable performer and not a fluke contender is shown by his victories over the veteran trial horse, Jimmy Jones and the capable Jack Zivic, who bothers them all at his weight. All Mello is the correct name. He is a Portuguese-American and was born at Lowell, Mass., January 21, 1908.

Secrets of 16 Years Successful Pitching

BY GROVER ALEXANDER, Veteran Pitcher of World's Champions. LEARN ON HANDLOTS. I am one who believes the farm life and the small town is the place to grow the big league stars. Of course, there is the exception to all rules and big cities have given us many wonderful ball players.

Take my case. As a boy I worked hard. There is no play to putting in 10 hours daily on the farm at $1.25 per day, when the burning sun is 100 and up.

That was my life before I took up baseball as my profession. What did it do for me? Why, it took the case out of luxury.

When I got into baseball, I appreciated the life. I wasn't ducking my regular turn to pitch. I have heard many pitchers complain it was too hot at 90 to pitch a ball game. A ball game played inside of two hours.

I have felt like telling them what I had to do for my dollar and a quarter, and 10 hours of it daily, with the temperature over 100 in the sun.

Hard work is what the youngster of today needs. He gets in baseball and he sees the difference. And he grows to prefer baseball, too. He gets to it seriously. I know I did.

Baseball is no place for a tenderfoot. Take some of the old-timers. Did they get to specialists when they cracked a finger or twisted an ankle? They remained in the game. They weren't going to let the next fellow take their job away from them.

Seniors Will Win Inter-class Honors

The seniors are morally certain to win the annual high school track and field meet, the final leg of which will be held this afternoon at the West Side playground because of their victory in the second lap yesterday when they added nineteen more points to an already comfortable lead.

The 220 yard dash was won by the seniors, Red Sheridan finishing first in a fairly spilt race. His time was 25.2. Louis Cheney, sophomore and Austin Chambers, junior, finished next.

Butch Kittel won the discus throw. This junior hurled it 95 feet and two inches. Bab LaCoss, senior, and Spencer, sophomore, were next. The contest was fairly close.

Joe McCluskey, won the mile run for the sophomores with a time of 5.9 3-5. Ted Chambers, seniors, and Cliff Hayes, sophomores, finished second and third respectively. Ten started in the race and most of them finished.

The broad jump honors went to Billy Hall of the seniors at 17 feet and a half inch. Ted Chambers, seniors, was second and Billy Johnson, sophomore, third.

The point scoring for the events Monday and yesterday totals: seniors, 38; juniors, 18; sophomores, 16 and the freshmen have yet to tally.

American League Results

Table showing American League game results for Yankees, Philadelphia Athletics, and Boston Red Sox.

Bostonites Play Sensationally and Baffle Home Team; Morley and Kiley Lead Attack; Celtics Next Tuesday.

By Staff Correspondent. Flashing a beautiful exhibition of passwork and long range field goals, the Boston Whirlwinds scored a clean cut basketball victory over the Plainfield Pros that night in Plainfield while a crowd of nearly eight hundred rabid fans looked on. The score was 33 to 23 and from the class the Whirlwinds displayed last night it seemed almost unbelievable that the same two teams fought to a 33 to 23 tie in a thrilling triple-overtime period struggle the week previous.

Plainfield was at loss how to cope with the attack of the invaders from the Bay State and as a consequence the Whirlwinds jumped into a 14 to 3 lead early in the first half. A desperate rally by Plainfield brought the score to 17-teams resumed play, the Whirlwinds again increased their lead. Boston played basketball throughout the contest, which was rough at times, and did not once resort to stalling.

The Whirlwinds' offense was pretty to watch. It formed quickly and there was practically no dribbling. Short and crummy passes were used in a criss-cross formation at the middle of the floor and then often the ball was fed to Martin inside the foul line who cleverly faked several passes to men cutting in fast before he found one open.

Kiley, formerly of the Washington team in the American league, and Morley led the assault for Boston, while the other three were held in check by the Manchester players, Madden Stavitsky, Benson and Norris.

Next week Tuesday the world champion New York Celtics will play in Plainfield. Reserved tickets have been placed on sale.

THEY SAY BATTALINO HAS REAL OPPONENT

Hartford, April 14.—Andy Callahan, New England featherweight champion, will be accompanied by two other leading Massachusetts amateurs when he comes here Friday night to meet Bat Battalino, Connecticut champion, in the 12th round of the Massachusetts A. C. show at Foot Guard hall.

Callahan is expected to give Battalino the stiffest test of his career. Connecticut fans, after seeing Bat tip over all opponents, most of them in jig time, do not believe any of the feathers in the amateur class can beat him. But Callahan is unquestionably the best boy he has met and should make things interesting for the local youth.

This will be Battalino's last appearance before he leaves for Europe, April 25-26, in quest of the national title. If Battalino lugs back the national championship, he plans to turn pro when he will be lost for all time to the amateur ranks in which he has campaigned with such success.

He Knows His Baseball

Twenty-two years a major league umpire—that is the record of Billy Evans, sports writer for The Herald who is starting now on still another season with the American League. During the baseball season he not only will continue to write for Manchester sports fans, but is starting an entirely new feature called "The Inside of Baseball." There are questions and answers every day, full of vital facts about the game from its origin to its present high state of development.

MODERN BUSINESS

Modern writers delight in criticizing the big business man. So today's questions are designed to see how much you know about the leaders in our industrial and commercial world. The answers are on another page.

- 1-Who is the head of the U. S. Steel Corporation? 2-What New York banking firm is generally spoken of with the prefix, "The House of...?" 3-What is the estimated wealth of Henry Ford? 4-Who is Pittsburgh's most famous banker? 5-What brothers are now formulating plans for a great railway merger? 6-What citizen of Memphis, Tenn., started Wall Street a few years ago with his manipulation of Piggy-Wiggle stock? 7-What United States senator made his fortune through early investments with Henry Ford? 8-Who is president of the General Motors Corporation? 9-In what line of business was the late Marshall Field active? 10-Who is president of the Pennsylvania railroad?

Remember when— Women blushed. Only tough girls painted. Autos stopped to let horses go past. Things you could tell children that would shock or surprise them. A wife worries almost as much as her husband about the wrinkles coming on her face as her husband does about the vanishing of the hair on his dome.

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture) The Tinies joined the milking maid, and on their way they gayly played. She led them to an open field where stood a bossy cow. The cow glanced up and saw the crowd, and then she quickly moored real loud. Wee Clowzy stopped and eyed her, with a frown upon his brow. "Oh, she won't hurt you," said the maid. "You really needn't feel afraid." Then Clowzy came up closer, but he traveled rather slow. This made the maiden laugh in glee. "You just don't understand," said she. "That moo is just the only way a cow can say 'hello!'" The stool was put upon the ground and shortly all the Tinies found that milking was a simple thing, when anyone knew how. So Scouty showed he had some pluck. He sat right down and tried his luck. The others watched, and Copy said, "My, she's a friendly cow." FINE PRESENTATION OF CANTATA IS SURE Choir and Director Put Considerable Time Into Rehearsals.
 The lenten cantata, "Seven Last Words of Christ," by Dubois, which is to be given at the South Methodist Church, on Good Friday night at 8 o'clock, should be well presented. The church choir and their assisting friends, have put considerable amount of time into rehearsals, and the ultimate result is sure to be very satisfactory to all concerned.
 Archibald Sessions, as director in this work, has required from each member of the chorus and soloists, their very best. Therefore he is satisfied that from the director's requirements everything possible has been done to interest and appeal to the audience.
 The theme is well known and has already been published, therefore it is not necessary to again deal with that phase. The soloists are Miss Eleanor Willard, soprano; T. Watson Woodford, tenor; and Robert J. Gordon, baritone. Their work surely will give the whole hearted devotional interpretation required, and which each in their individual parts are fully capable of doing. Archibald Sessions, director, will accompany at the organ and this important end of the work will be well handled.
GOSPEL HALL SERVICES.
 Special meetings for ministering the truth of God and preaching the gospel will be conducted Good Friday and Saturday in Odd Fellows hall at 10:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. Out of town speakers will be present. The meetings are being held under the auspices of the Gospel hall and a hearty invitation is extended to the public.
