BUTTON, BUTTON, WHO'S GOT THE EASTER EGGS?

Lively Hunt For Tots at "White House" Grounds—The Prize Winners. Unlike the weather a year ago when the searchers searched for bright and smiling skies greeted some one hundred odd girls and little tots on the "White House" lawn.

The various hunters were allotted their various sections and the hunt began in earnest. Cries of delight rang out as often as the lucky searchers found the brightly colored eggs snugly tucked away in the grass.

After the chosen area had been thoroughly scoured the groups were called together by Director Washburn and after a careful check-up had been made the final count found Bernice Beebe in the larger girls group to be the winner.

DRUNK DRIVERS.

A drunkenly driven car crushes down two women returning on foot from church, killing them both. Then the same car crashes into another and the latter's five occupants are all badly hurt.

The perils of the road are ghastly, at best. It is becoming a serious question whether the automobile is proving less of a curse than a blessing to our civilization.

Into this field the drunken driver introduces himself, gratuitously, as a wholly unnecessary factor of death and disaster.

If this state needs anything at all in the way of law it is a law with teeth in it, applicable to every person, no matter who he may be or what the circumstances, who drives an automobile on the public highways when drunk.

The act itself, regardless of whether the drunken driver has the luck to escape killing somebody, should not only deprive him of his license for a very long period, it ought to constitute a felony in its own right.

SMITH'S DECLARATION.

Al Smith formally declares that his status as a member of the Catholic church can in no way affect his loyalty as an American citizen and that there is no power in the church of Rome to overstep, in America, any element of law or constitution.

This is in reply to Charles C. Marshall's open letter challenging Smith to a declaration of his views on the relations of the Catholic church to the state and "to the great masses of men whose convictions deny them the privilege of membership in that church."

It is infinitely better so. There is no sound reason why the question of church or state paramountcy, in the minds and consciences of church members, should not be discussed openly, dispassionately, fairly.

Smith's declaration will not end

the debate, by any means. It merely clears the road for a frank argument instead of whispering campaigns among both Protestants and Catholics.

MISSISSIPPI FLOODS.

We read that the Mississippi is on another rampage and, here in the East, we let it go at that. For a thousand or fifteen hundred miles along the way of that mightiest of rivers, however, men and women live in terrible anxiety, suffer enormous losses and oftentimes see the fruits of a generation of effort swept away in swirling flood as a levee breaks and the yellow tide pours out into the alluvial plains of its valley.

How many scores of millions of dollars have been lost in Mississippi river floods nobody knows. Long ago all count of the lives these floods have taken was lost track of. Just now we are all somewhat impressed by the especial viciousness of the spring flood of 1927.

Forty times as much water comes down the upper Mississippi to its point of junction with the Missouri, at high flood stage and traverses the same course at low stage of the dry season.

Into this field the drunken driver introduces himself, gratuitously, as a wholly unnecessary factor of death and disaster.

If this state needs anything at all in the way of law it is a law with teeth in it, applicable to every person, no matter who he may be or what the circumstances, who drives an automobile on the public highways when drunk.

The act itself, regardless of whether the drunken driver has the luck to escape killing somebody, should not only deprive him of his license for a very long period, it ought to constitute a felony in its own right.

It is infinitely better so. There is no sound reason why the question of church or state paramountcy, in the minds and consciences of church members, should not be discussed openly, dispassionately, fairly.

Smith's declaration will not end

preventing forest fires, but it will, if tried, show conclusively that the source of those fires lies elsewhere. Two classes of people start woods fires—peasant type farmers who persist in burning brush and grass on their farms without proper precautions and usually against the law, and motorists who spray the countryside with burning tobacco stubs, who make luncheon fires and leave them burning, and who don't give a damn.

We will wager a nickel that nobody in the Legislature will propose a measure empowering the governor to close all wooded roads to pleasure motorists.

BRIEF CELEBRITY.

Mrs. Mary Shultze lived a long, long time before she broke into print. From the time she was 27 until she was 102 she lived in New York and was not heard of by the outside world.

Now, so soon after her debut as a public character, Mrs. Shultze is dead. Her span as a celebrity was short. But such as it was she was entitled to it—it is to be hoped it added to the content of her final days.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

A WILDERNESS BANQUET TABLE

By ARTHUR N. PACK President, American Nature Ass'n.

The hawthorn, known too as the thorn apple, is one wilderness shrub that may truly be said to spread a feast for birds and animals of the forest.

Deer, rabbits, partridge and pheasants are regular visitors to this banquet table during the fall and winter months, and occasionally even a fox or coyote will come in for a meal of the small, tart, red fruit.

Even humans do not scorn the thorn apples. Country lads prize them as a tidbit with but one drawback, the white grub that so often lingers in the meaty flesh.

It is these thorns that the Indian tribesmen are said to have first used as barbs on their primitive stone fishhooks, blinding them on so that they operated after the fashion of a modern spring hook.

DAILEY ALMANAC

THE POOR ANGLER.

Very few real sportsmen will enter an objection to the passage of a proposed measure empowering the governor to suspend the open fishing season in a forest-fire emergency such as has existed this spring through lack of rainfall.

We cheerfully hazard the prediction that, if the present drought continues, and the law is passed and the trout fishermen are forbidden to engage in their beloved sport, there will be no effect whatever on the number of forest fires.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER Washington, April 18.—Here's a new way to regard what is going on in China, with special reference to the Russian influence.

One of the commonly accepted theories is that Moscow has high hopes of molding the nationalist movement into a communist government as soon as it comes to control the country.

A high army officer who has been in China says the Moscow government is trying to do anything of the sort.

Russia, he explains, has two foreign policies and, whichever one or the other is applied to a given nation depends on the circumstances.

It Can't Be Done Russia isn't trying to communize China, according to this authority, because she couldn't do it.

Hence, according to this novel view, Russia is pushing her other foreign policy for all it is worth.

There are no American military observers with the Chinese armies, but there are a half dozen Chinese West Pointers scattered over the country, some of them in uniform.

Another was dangerously ill of appendicitis and sorely desired to get to the Rockefeller hospital in Peking, but was prevented by the military situation.

The West Point camaraderie helped at least one other Chinese graduate. A very ragged Oriental showed up at the American military barracks in Tientsin one night and asked to see the commanding officer.

One learns that General Chang Tsung-Chang probably is China's champion drinker although his generalship has not lately been noteworthy.

Chang's good right arm worked like a semaphore. The waiters weren't fast enough for him, so he kept a teapot of cognac at his elbow for his special use.

Anger is a short madness.—Horace.

Can present realized when he had had enough and stopped, but one of Chang's Chinese associates went right under the table.

The remaining American held his own, but he isn't sure yet whether Chang ever actually became drunk.

"Sometimes I thought he was and sometimes I thought he wasn't," the officer explains. "But I can speak for myself."

New York, April 18.—There are two persons who, perhaps, are the best known to that portion of New York's population dubbed cabaret cookies.

Every bank clerk, counter jumper, bookkeeper and shoe salesman in town visualizes himself as Jimmy Walker.

Just like Cinderella, only heavier, Texas popped into her new night club on the stroke of midnight.

The new hangout is at 117 West 48th street. The last one was closed at the request of the government.

Here's a trick we are passing on to you from Patriman Charles V. McAdam, who is stationed in the Roarin' Forties and very frequently has to handle an evening of drunks.

And so they were married. She is eighty-one. He is eighty-three.

Her name is Mrs. Jane Frances Swallow and she is an authoress. His name is George W. Dodge, president of the First National Bank of Shingletown, Pa.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE by PAUL ADAMS NEA. Service

Above: the river bank and bridge at Chateau Thierry as it looked in 1918, just after the Americans had repelled the German advance. Below: the same scene as it looks today.

This is the eighth chapter in the story of a former doughboy who is going back to France as an advance guard of the Second A. E. F.

Chateau Thierry! The first pause in the tour of memories! And what a tremendous change has taken place since the last German advance toward Paris was stopped here by American troops in May, 1918!

Very Peaceful Now. Down the narrow main street of the city that leads to the famous bridge over the Marne the cobbles resound with the clatter of wooden shoes. The butcher is selling some pigs ears to a barter with her hands rolled in her blue apron. A wax figure in a clothes shop displays the latest suit of Parisian cut. A mailman goes by on his bicycle. It does not seem possible that Major James G. Taylor of Pennsylvania led the Seventh Machine Gun Battalion through the ruins here on May 31, 1918, and took positions along the southern bank of the river! It is unbelievable that under the terrific fire of enemy artillery this quiet street was held against the advance of the Germans! Then the Germans, repulsed all along the line, launch a mass attack on the bridge. It is pitch dark. Singing in the belief of superiority they drive on. But the withering machine gun fire of the American troops cuts them down. The bridge, at the order of General Marchand, is blown up. John T. P. Bissell, a lieutenant, is cut-

TIPSTER SHEETS CROOKS 'COME-ON' Many 'Newspapers' Now Published Mainly as 'Window Dressing.'

Prepared by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce DO YOU BELIEVE EVERYTHING YOU SEE IN PRINT?

H. J. Kenner, General Manager of the Better Business Bureau of New York City has the following to say about tipster sheets: 'The head of a department in a big university's school of Business and Finance picked up an eight page weekly from his desk. There is a lot of good material in this sheet, isn't there?' he asked. The man he was talking to thought it was a joke. It wasn't, though the paper was the 'come-on' sheet of a notorious financial crook. 'But,' the professor protested, 'it has sound financial articles and this and that and the other leading stocks,' and there is a statement by So-and-So—nobody would call him a crook—and look at these advertisements of reputable houses.' 'Of course,' said the other, 'that's his window-dressing.' 'Perhaps it was a little joke on the professor, but it is no joking matter,' said the other. 'That's his window-dressing.' 'Perhaps it was a little joke on the professor, but it is no joking matter,' said the other. 'That's his window-dressing.'

STATE CELEBRATING ITS FESTIVAL WEEK

Unusual Programs Feature Special Seven Days of Entertainment—Moose Minstrel Here.

This is to be Festival Week at the State theater and an attractive series of programs has been arranged to be presented from today until Saturday.

Then on Wednesday evening two features will be seen. They are 'The Ice Flood' and 'Quarantined Lovers,' the former with Kenneth Harlan and Viola Dana in the leading roles and the latter starring Robert Agnew. Both of these pictures will be seen only on Wednesday night.

Old Master's

Breathless, we flung us on the windy hill, Laughed in the sun, and kissed the lovely grass. You said, 'Through glory and ecstasy we pass; Wind, sun and earth remain, the birds sing still, When we are old, are old...' 'And when we die All's over that is ours; and life burns on Through other lovers, other lips,' said I.

'THREE HOURS' OPENS AT CIRCLE TOMORROW

Corinne Griffith Has Leading Role With Hobart Bosworth and John Bowers.

Can a woman 'railroaded' to the lowest depths of society and ostracized by her friends 'come back'? That is the problem gone into in the gripping picture of married life, 'Three Hours,' starring Corinne Griffith, Hobart Bosworth and John Bowers, which starts a two-day engagement at the Circle theater tomorrow.

'Three Hours' which is a film adaptation of May Edginton's story was directed by James Flood, and deals with a young wife, who through circumstantial evidence and the ire of an insanely jealous husband, is banished from her home and forced into poverty through her husband's unrelenting influence.

Denied the privilege of seeing her child, she finally is allowed to return to her former home on the child's birthday, there to find that the child was dead and that the invitation was but another means of the husband to vent his spite on his former wife.

The last showing of 'The War Horse,' Buck Jones' best starring vehicle, will take place at the Circle tonight. This feature played to an unusually large audience last night and is a good story in every sense of the word.

NEW CAMERA IS A SUCCESS AT 300 MILES

New York.—Distant objects invisible to the human eye now can be photographed by a camera perfected by the United States Army Air Service. The secret lies in the special film, which is sensitive to light rays that do not register on the eye. It is pointed out that in time of war, a plane equipped with this camera could take perfect pictures of enemy positions while the plane itself would be far out of range and sight of anti-aircraft batteries. An enemy fleet could be photographed 300 miles off shore. The device may be used against the rum fleet for the position and name of each ship could be caught in a single picture taking in 300 square miles. It also has been suggested for forest patrol fliers for the exact location of fires.

Darrow's Philosophy of Life

A Remarkable Interview With the Great Criminal Lawyer on Why We Are Good and Bad.

Today is the seventeenth birthday of Clarence Darrow, famous criminal lawyer and, whether you agree with his views or not, admittedly one of America's outstanding men. During his 70 years he has had unusual opportunities to see the good and the bad in life. He has given NEA Service a remarkable interview on human life. He gives views as to why some folks are bad and others good.

He gives his whole philosophy of life—and it is a very unusual philosophy. Without endorsing his views, The Herald prints them, because they give insight into the mind of this remarkable man.

By ROY J. GIBBONS
(Copyright, 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)
Chicago, April 18.—This thing called life.

It amuses Clarence Darrow, famous criminal attorney.

Existence is pretty flat and futile, he says. Life has only one purpose, the pursuit of pleasure and the avoidance of pain.

It isn't half so good a riddle as Socrates and the other ancients tried to make it.

Aside from being a celebrated lawyer and the man who saved Loeb and Leopold from the gallows after those two pampered sons of rich men killed little Bobby Franks "for a thrill," Darrow is perhaps the foremost agnostic of the present time.

Clarence Darrow

Cruel and Destructive

Life is cruel, combative and destructive, he says.

"Man has those generous impulses—but those who are too altruistic die young. Man kills to feed his stomach and to procure fur for the backs of his women. In time he dies to feed other forms of life. As Fabre, the French naturalist, said: 'He is in turn a guest and a dish.'"

"But a man may be called short-sighted if he neglects the future and considers only the nearly pleasure."

"The drunkard has fun today and a terrible head tomorrow. He squanders all his pleasure in the present with never a thought for tomorrow."

The Wise

"Wise folks, whether they know it or not, are simply preserving their chances for some pleasure in the future. They conform more or less to custom and so keep out of jail. They obey the laws of nature and so keep well. They work and so are able to buy food and warmth."

"The so-called bad individual is not bad at all. He simply is short-sighted. He has no regard for the future. He does not conform sufficiently, and is put into jail. He will not work and so he cannot buy the pleasures of food and warmth. He therefore experiences pain."

"But whether he is good or bad he is guided by another purpose than this one: The pursuit of pleasure and the avoidance of pain."

The Happy People

Born optimists in asylums and out are the only really happy persons, Darrow believes.

"Happiness in its true sense is a state of mind," he says. "It comes largely of good nerves and a well-adjusted physical condition. It is the gift of birth. Those born with it attain happiness with difficulty if at all."

"They may make money, achieve fame and do whatever their instincts lead them to do in the pursuit of what they may think is happiness."

"But making money and seeking fame are only expressions of the various instincts possessed by different people."

"Money making is a sign of the times just now. The signs of the different ages and will change constantly just as they have always changed."

The Fatalistic View

"The man who pursues happiness chases the rainbow. The future, however, lures most of us ever on."

Ministers with their talk of heaven, which is the pleasure, and hell, which is the punishment, deal in the same kind of futures.

"Humans ought to resign themselves. Nothing really matters. Nothing can be changed. Why worry? Worry is useless. The end is simply the end and nothing else."

"Just to know that we are here only to grasp a fleeting bit of happiness and escape pain should be sufficient to make men realize the futility of strife and promote friendship."

"The virtues of honesty, ambition, truthfulness, morality and the others mean nothing, in themselves. They are simply the tools which make the attainment of pleasure and the avoidance of pain a little easier."

The Sympathetic Man

"Sympathy and imagination for example are synonymous. The sympathetic man may pass the beggar and intends to ignore his plea. But after he has passed something grips him. He returns. You hear the clink of his coin in the beggar's cup."

"Why does he do this? Why does he come back? Because he is good? No! Because his imagination pictured the beggar's plight. The picture annoyed his nervous system. He came back to drop his coin because he couldn't help himself. It was painful to him to be annoyed. By giving the coin he stopped the pain and the result was pleasant."

"The wise man is good because he has sense enough to realize that if he is otherwise he will have pain instead of pleasure."

"Other so-called good men, seeing the acts of the good man, invest him with a nobility of soul which he does not possess."

"The so-called bad man is bad because he does not care about the future or hasn't enough sense to care about it. He is locked up in jail or starves or freezes and perhaps doesn't mind that either. He lies and cheats and does other things that keep pleasure away."

His Own Sympathy

"But after all, the good man is only a provident man and sometimes a coward. And the so-called bad man is merely senseless or wasteful and he is often courageous."

"Speaking of his own sympathy for criminals and murderers, he says:

"I'm not sympathetic because I want to be. It's because I have a sensitive nervous system and can't help myself. If I could have it removed by operation I would."

ty sets which he had come across in the last six years in his work among school children. He suggested the possibility that iron in the drinking water might account for this excellency. Mrs. E. T. Smith gave a roll-call showing the amounts collected for the dental clinic by collectors appointed.

Mrs. Loren M. Lord has returned from Cromwell where she was called several days ago on account of the illness of her son-in-law, Harry K. Viner, of the Nathaniel White school. Mr. Viner is recovering.

TOLLAND

The regular Grange meeting will be held Tuesday evening. There will be a surprise program and it is hoped that every member will be present as it will be of interest to everyone.

The illness which were used to trim the church on Sunday were sent to the people who are ill and the shut-ins of the community.

Miss Alice E. Hall of Storrs college spent the Easter vacation with her parents.

James Rhodes has been confined to his home because of illness. A night letter was sent from the members of the Tolland Study club last Monday night to Mr. and Mrs. John H. Steele who have been spending the winter in Hampton, Florida, congratulating them on their fiftieth wedding anniversary Tuesday, April 12.

A special service was held at the home of Mrs. Emma Crandall of the Grant's Hill district. Good Friday afternoon for the members of the Home Department who live in that district.

Mrs. Nettie Darby, mother of Rev. W. C. Darby, who has been ill is very much improved.

The teachers in the towns of Ellington, Somers and Tolland are planning a concert to be given some time in May. The plan is to give an operetta, selected by Mrs. Lisk, music supervisor of the three towns. The concert will be given in each town and the money made in each town will be divided among the schools of that town for the music fund.

The teachers of Tolland attended an institute at Longview school last week and plans were discussed regarding speaking and spelling contests, physical education and field day, citizenship teaching and graduation.

The schools of the town were closed on Good Friday.

Rev. W. C. Darby leaves Tuesday to attend the New England Southern conference held at New Bedford.

HORNBSBY CONSIDERED SECOND RICHEST PLAYER IN BASEBALL

Giants' New Star Made Big Profit In Disposing of His Stocks In Cardinals; New Rule Expected.

By HENRY L. FARRELL, C. P. Sports Editor. New York, April 18.—Rogers Hornsby gave his fellow players in the major leagues a good illustration of the possibilities for a smart young business man when he held his ground and secured $115,000 for the stock owned in the St. Louis club.

Hornsby, it is estimated cleared more than $50,000 on the stock transaction and while he is no longer listed as a manager he is content as a mental laborer for the New York Giants at $40,000 a year.

There may have been other cases in which active players owned stock in the clubs for which they played. It was generally believed that Tris Speaker, for one, bought stock in the Cleveland club.

Expect New Deal: Hornsby gave the first to draw such prompt attention and it probably will be the last case because it is quite certain that the major leagues will adopt a new rule making it some kind of a misdemeanor for an active player to get title to any stock.

It is a popular pastime to take slaps at the motives of life club owners and when the occasion arises to credit the stories heard that the game itself isn't honest. Professional baseball represents more invested capital than any other organized form of athletic amusement, no doubt has some faults but it must be said to the credit of the men in charge of the game that serious efforts have been made to prevent any kind of syndicate baseball.

It has been said that the New York Yankees cracked a financial whip over the Boston Red Sox, that the New York Giants had a piece of the Boston Braves and that Ban Johnson, at one time, held stock in American League clubs although he was the president of the league and in the heights of his glory was in a position to make radical rulings about anything concerning any of the clubs.

Cards Under Obligations: It may be said even now that the financial manipulation of the deal for Hornsby's stock put the St. Louis club under obligation to other clubs and that is to make up the difference between the price that Hornsby demanded and that which the St. Louis club was to pay but the public isn't interested particularly in that.

It is doubtful that the public was overly concerned at all about the Hornsby case expecting that large part of it who wanted to see Hornsby get every cent he wanted. There are men in the National League, familiar with the operation of the stock market, who could have arranged the transfer for the Hornsby stock to a dummy owner. Hornsby may have known how to do that himself but there are no reasons to doubt that Hornsby's sale was a real sale and not a transfer to his wife, his uncle or any second cousins.

DIAMOND DUST

By LES CONKLIN. New York, April 18.—Add famous last words to the pasted rule that goes through. That's what any American league pitcher knows—walking the Babe in order to make Henry Louis Gehrig the goat is like jumping out of the frying pan into the fire. Two Red Sox pitchers tried it yesterday, and on each occasion Gehrig practically ruined the strategy by clouting a home run. With two homers and a double, Gehrig drove in four runs and the ball game. The Yanks won the ball game, fourteen to two, making it five in a row. They have a two-game edge on the field.

The Athletics, now hitting on all nine cylinders, swamped the Senators thirteen to three. Ty Cobb got four hits and Sammy Gray did a good deal of pitching. Detroit finally completed a nine-inning game and made a good job of it, downing the Indians five to one. Gibson, the winning twirler, made four hits.

For the second time this season the White Sox put on a sensational ninth inning rally, scoring nine runs and beating the Browns, twelve to five. The Browns made eight (count 'em eight) errors.

In the National League the Pirates coasted into first place by trouncing the Cubs, eight to three, while the Giants were idle. Charley Root held the Pirates to one hit in six innings but couldn't stand the pace.

Grover Alexander, the Cardinal ace who was soundly beaten in his first start of the season, won a two to one decision from Pete Donohue, of the Reds. Frank Frisch kept up his hitting streak with three safe hits.

The astounding Braves routed Brooklyn again, seven to two. A triple by Fournier, Brooklyn cast off, gave the Braves enough runs to win. The Robins celebrated their fifth straight defeat by making five errors.

Cardinals' Hitting Counts In Big Leagues. By DAVIS J. WALSH, I. N. S. Sports Editor. New York, April 18.—Deep thinking, it seems, still is to run a disconcerting second to deep hitting in the Major Leagues, in spite of the alleged decrease in the agility of the official ball. At least, I should so judge by the returns from the first week of the 1927 season, at hand today.

Golfing Grandma Still Qualifies In Big Ones

Tip the old chapeau, boys and girls of the younger generation, to a golfing grandma!

Here is a broad-shouldered, well-muscled, gray-headed old woman who is establishing a record on the links few can ever hope to equal. Her name is Mrs. Caleb Fox. Away back in the Mauve decade when golf was nothing if not a nuisance, she entered her first national tournament. That was in 1910, in the National at Midlothian, 1907, she was seven strokes above low score. In 1908 at Chevy Chase she was six strokes higher and lost one down to the ultimate winner, the then Miss Kate Harley.

This winter she knocked off two national tournaments, Florida meets and qualified again in the 1927 Belleair tournament. Beat that for stymieing time! She won the Philadelphia championship five times in 1907, 1908, 1910, 1911 and 1917. In the National at Midlothian, 1907, she was seven strokes above low score. In 1908 at Chevy Chase she was six strokes higher and lost one down to the ultimate winner, the then Miss Kate Harley.

The next year Mrs. Fox herself won it. This winter her game has been better than it has been for ten years. Among her victims were Mrs. S. C. Croughan, rated among the leaders of Ohio golf and holder of the Cleveland district title.

Playing all but five minutes of the game with but two players because it had no substitutes to replace an injured man, Manchester was eliminated by the Hartford Thistles 5 to 2 yesterday afternoon in the first round of the Protective Cup competition at Charter Oak park in Hartford. A large gathering of soccer fans watched the contest which was cleanly played and replete with brilliant play.

Hartford tallied three goals during the first half, two by Bowes and one by Kelly and Manchester remained scoreless, but in the second half, the Silk Town athletes displayed a much better brand of ball and kept the Thistles at bay most of the period.

Plainfield will close its basketball season tomorrow night when it stacks up against the world champion Celtics. This is the most important and colorful attraction ever brought to Plainfield and a record-breaking crowd is expected.

LOOKS LIKE ANOTHER MIGHTY GOOD BOXING CARD WEDNESDAY

Local Sport Chatter. Wednesday night's amateur boxing tournament at Cheney Hall will be the next to last indoor affair this season.

Wednesdays' amateur boxing tournament at Cheney Hall will be the next to last indoor affair this season, says Promoter Jenney. There will be one more on May 4 but after that it is the plan of Cheney Brothers Athletic Association to stage the boxing tournaments out of doors.

This bit of interesting news tends to prove that Manchester amateur boxing enthusiasts are not going to lose their favorite sport as long as they back it up in the present manner. At the conclusion of the summer outdoor tournaments which will be conducted at two-week intervals, the tournaments will again be staged in Cheney hall in the fall.

Although it is generally conceded that it is going to be a mighty night performer and then some stop Bat Battalino, Hartford's crack featherweight, in his attempt to smatch the national title, there are, nevertheless, several close followers of the boxing game, who feel that Battalino will find plenty of opposition up in Boston.

"Mike" Zwicker, former captain of the St. M. H. S. basketball team and now a student at Springfield College, says he believes the change in the basketball rules whereby the dribble will practically be eliminated, will improve the game in general. He cites the advantages to be gained from improved teamwork and adds, somewhat shyly, that the curtailing of the dribble to one bound, will help the smaller players. Well, Mike certainly ought to know whereof he speaks, especially in regard to the little fellows.

The Manchester Community club went through another baseball practice session yesterday afternoon at Hickey's Grove. A large number of candidates were on hand and it looks as though a successful season is in store for the north end outfit.

Baseball fans in the south end are wondering if Red Vendrillo is going to organize a team this season. So far, Red hasn't been heard from in this respect and it begins to look as though the south end is going to be without a representative team unless the St. Mary's organize.

The Celtic soccer eleven found little difficulty in trouncing New Britain yesterday at the stadium 6 to 1. A small crowd saw the one-sided contest. The Manchester goals were scored by Frank Hewitt, 3, Jack McKone 2, and Johnny McCavanagh 1.

Next Sunday the Celtics and Cheney Brothers will meet for the championship of the Manchester District Soccer League. At present the two teams are tied with two victories and no defeats, each having played one tie game.

There isn't a boy, but wants to grow
Manly and true of heart;
And every boy would like to know
The message you impart.
He doesn't desire to slack or shirk,
And haven't you heard him plead;
He'll follow the man at play or work
If only the man will lead.

Where are the men to lead today,
Lending an hour or two,
Teaching the boy the game to play
Just as a man should do?
Village and slum are calling
"Come."
Here are the boys, indeed!
Who can tell what they would become
If only the man will lead?

THE TINYMITES

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

The Hot Cross Bun man went away and all the bunch began to play. They found a monstrous hanging swing, that dropped down from a tree. "Oh, look," said Clowzy "let's all swing. I'll show you how to work that thing. I'll give you all a ride, and then, you do the same for me."

The Tines thought that plan was fine and soon they formed a happy line, and each took turns at swinging high, and sailing through the air. When Clowzy stood up on the seat, which Clowzy thought quite indiscreet, wee Clowzy yelled, "You'd best sit down. You'll fall right out of there."

When all the rest of them had tried the wondrous swing, and had their ride they laughed to watch old Clowzy as he jumped upon the board. "Now, go ahead," he cried aloud, and he was pushed by all the crowd. 'Twould really almost scare you if you knew how high he soared.

And then, with very clever bound, the rider jumped down to the ground. "I think we'd best find shelter," he exclaimed to all the rest. "It feels just like it's going to rain." And so they all looked round in vain. They knew that they would all get soaked, the way that they were dressed.

Said Clowzy, "What's that over there? A bumbershoot! Well, I declare. Say, if there's room for all of us, that sure will bring me joy." The black umbrella looked so big, the Tines almost danced a jig. And when they peeked beneath the thing they found a little boy.

"Here, you can have this bumbershoot," the wee lad said. "I'm going to scoot. I've asked the rain to go away, but it has done no good." And as he disappeared from sight, the rain came down with all its might, and all the Tines huddled up as closely as they could.

(The Tinymites have some tea in the next story.)

JACK LOCKWILL'S HIDDEN ENEMY

by Gilbert Patten

Willie Darling, who was a passenger on the motorboat, was much excited when Jack was pulled aboard. "Some son of a gun fired at you from those woods, Jack!" cried Willie. "Oh, no!" replied Jack. "I don't believe that. Maybe a hunter who didn't see us out here fired at a bird." "This isn't the hunting season," returned his roommate. "You were the bird he fired at."

Jack and Willie were on the float when the crew swung the shell up to it. The stroke-oar, Mark Winthrop, known as "the Grand Vizier," was serious.

"If you've got an enemy who's taking pot shots at you, don't play around us on the lake, Lockwill," said Winthrop. "I don't fancy stopping a bullet."

The thought that maybe somebody had fired at him wasn't pleasant for Jack. Dressing quickly, he started, with Darling, along the shore toward the woods from which the shot had come. They met Willie's sister, Betty, and her chum, Della Wayne, who had been gathering ferns and wild flowers at the edge of the woods. "We saw Tom McNally going that way," said Della.
