

MUSSOLINI AS CHANCELLOR IS LONDON REPORT

If True Duce Would Be Responsible Only to King; Talk of "Empire of Italy"; Report Unverified.

London, April 20.—Reports of the possibility of a proclamation creating Premier Mussolini as the first chancellor of Italy, being issued tomorrow on the anniversary of the founding of Rome, were current here today.

The reports, which are as yet unconfirmed, state that the chancellorship would be based upon the German Bismarckian pattern and that the chancellor would be responsible to the king and not to the Parliament. The cabinet at the same time would be responsible to the chancellor and might be dismissed by him at will.

Empire of Italy.

One report is that the proclamation will also create "The Empire of Italy."

Such a change would not entail a great change in the present form of government, since, under present laws, the government must have a two-thirds majority of the Chamber and the possibility of the fall of the government through a parliamentary crisis is excluded.

Another report is that a proclamation may be issued granting amnesty to many of the adversaries of Fascism who are either imprisoned or under police surveillance.

The reports state that if a chancellorship is created, Premier Mussolini will relinquish his present portfolios as minister of war, navy, air, home office and foreign office.

DANGER OF FLOODS IS NOT YET OVER

River Still Rising—25,000 Homeless Along Mississippi—Train Service Stops.

Memphis, Tenn., April 20.—Appeals for aid today emphasized the seriousness of the Mississippi river flood—the greatest in its history—which has submerged nearly 2,000,000 acres of farmlands and made 25,000 homeless.

The Red Cross and other relief organizations declared that the homeless flood sufferers, crowded in refugee camps in a dozen towns and cities in Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee, are badly in need of food and clothing.

Still Rising.

Meanwhile on the raging Mississippi continues on its path of destruction, aided by its tributaries.

The Mississippi is expected to reach its crest Saturday, the Weather Bureau here said today. Rains, however, were still falling in parts of Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas, adding to the hardships of the refugees.

No Train Service.

Uncertain train service has hampered shipment of supplies to refugee camps. Even the Southern League baseball schedule will have to undergo a revision because of the flood.

Following the break of the levee at New Madrid, the rampaging Mississippi began to sweep everything before it between the Saint Francis and Little River basins in a southwesterly direction. The waters will then empty into the Mississippi about 75 miles southwest.

Memphis today took on the appearance of a refugee camp as hundreds came from Arkansas towns and sought refuge on the fair grounds.

ASKS YALE STUDENTS TO ACT GENTLEMANLY

College Paper Says Last Year's Action of Some Gave College Black Eye.

New Haven, April 20.—Yale News today begged the students to conduct themselves like gentlemen. The plea is directed to the students in advance of Derby Day, to be celebrated at the boat races on the Housatonic on the afternoon of May 7.

"Due to the disgusting spectacle of drunkenness and ungentlemanly conduct among undergraduates, Yale was given a universal black eye and her prestige was seriously affected throughout the country," the News says of last year's Derby Day.

"This appeal is not for personal morality or support of the Eighteenth Amendment. All that is asked is that Yale men conduct themselves like gentlemen."

RUNNER DYING AFTER CONTEST

Man of Mystery Found Unconscious Along Road—In Boston Hospital.

Boston, Mass., April 20.—Suffering from paralysis of the heart, Alexander Holkkala, 31-year-old hospital orderly, man of mystery and would-be marathon runner was lying at the point of death in Commonwealth Avenue hospital today.

Holkkala ran from Hopkinton to Natick in the marathon yesterday and was found by passing motorists in a crumpled heap beside the road. The motorists brought him to Boston.

Five years ago Holkkala, broken in health, was taken from a ship in the harbor. He recovered at the United States Marine Hospital in Chelsea and subsequently became an orderly there.

Two weeks ago he decided to enter the Marathon run and began training.

Clarence De Mar, the winner of the great distance classic, was back at his printer's press today. The veteran plodder said he had lost five pounds by the grind in the heat.

De Mar begins practicing this evening for his next road race, at Buffalo, N. Y., next month.

HOLLYWOOD STAR MURDER SUSPECT

Paul Kelly Arrested After Death of Ray Raymond Another Stage Celebrity.

Los Angeles, Calif., April 20.—Paul Kelly, handsome screen actor who is under arrest here charged with suspicion of murder following the death of Ray Raymond, actor-husband of Dorothy Mackaye, prominent musical comedy and legitimate actress, was preparing his defense today.

As the first move he employed W. I. Gilbert as his attorney. Gilbert was chief counsel in the former's disappearance case and is noted as an able criminal lawyer. Self-defense is expected to be Kelly's plea.

Friends Banned.

Friends of the prominent film player, attempted to visit him in his cell but were temporarily refused permission to see him until police have questioned him further.

Miss Mackaye, who has been under a physician's care for several days, was still in a state of semi-collapse today. She admitted last night that the cause of the tragedy was her refusal to discontinue her friendship with Kelly.

Fist Fight.

Raymond died here yesterday of hemorrhage of the brain following a terrific fist fight Saturday evening with Kelly in the former's Hollywood home. Kelly said he left the house not knowing that Raymond was seriously hurt.

Miss Mackaye's five-year-old daughter is said to have been an eye witness to the struggle. The actress herself was on a shopping tour at the time of the fight.

Kelly is said to have gone to visit the Raymond home and found the husband there, after an unexpected return from San Francisco.

Wife Speaks.

Miss Mackaye said her friendship for Kelly was misinterpreted by her husband.

"Paul and I had been friends for years," she said. "We were kids together. It was a clean friendship."

When Kelly came to Raymond's home in Hollywood, according to Ethel Lee, the maid, Raymond asked him where Mrs. Raymond was.

"Mr. Kelly then knocked Mr. Raymond down three or four times," Miss Lee said. "Before Kelly left he hit Raymond another heavy blow. Mr. Raymond was bleeding after the beating."

When a physician was called Sunday afternoon, Raymond was still unconscious. His body awaited an autopsy in the morgue today.

Raymond and his wife were married seven years ago. Both were playing in a New York production at the time. He was 33 years old.

SMITH, THE JEWELER, TO MOVE HIS STORE

Willis A. Smith, well known Main street jeweler, today leased one of the stores in the State theater building, and will move there May 1. Mr. Smith's present store is in the Cheney block which has recently been leased to a Stamford real estate man.

In opening his new store Mr. Smith desires to start with a brand new stock. He, therefore, will dispose of his old stock in the present store. An auction sale will start Saturday and continue through the following week until all goods are sold.

Mr. Smith has been connected with the present store for the past 25 years. He was employed by the late Calvin Tiffany who first started the jewelry business there. Twelve or thirteen years ago Mr. Smith took over the proprietorship.

NEW HAVEN R. R. ELECTS BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Stockholders Hold Annual Meeting—Transfers Unused Right of Way to Westchester Line.

New Haven, Conn., April 20.—With only the usual amount of perfunctory opposition stockholders of the New Haven railroad, meeting here at noon today, elected a board of directors, accepted the annual report of the board, and accepted two special recommendations of the directorate.

Directors elected today are Edward Milligan, Hartford; Francis T. Maxwell, Rockville; John T. Pratt, Howard Elliott, J. Horace Harding, and Robert C. Hutchins, of New York; James L. Richards and Joseph B. Russell, of Boston; Harris Whittemore, Naugatuck; Frank W. Matteson, Providence; Charles F. Choate, Jr., Southboro, Mass.; Benjamin Campbell, Edward J. Pearson, Edward G. Buckland and Arthur T. Hadley of New Haven and Walter B. Lasher, of Bridgeport.

Plan Extension.

Indications of the extension of the New York, Westchester & Boston railroad line from Harrison avenue, Harrison, N. Y., to Westchester avenue, Port Chester, N. Y., were apparent in the vote of stockholders to transfer this unused right of way, now opened by the New Haven, to the "Westchester" line. The transfer includes also "the double-track line of railroad and appurtenances" to be erected by this company.

Any accurate estimate of the transfer is for 25 years with the right of renewal for another 25 years.

Stockholders also authorized the directors to issue further securities under their first and refunding mortgage plan of December 9, 1920, as the directors may deem fit. The issue is limited to $5,000,000 by the vote today. The directors also were given the right to change the rate of interest of any of the New Haven's issue according to conditions.

VATICAN IS PLEASED

WITH SMITH'S LETTER

Rome, April 20.—The statement of Governor Alfred E. Smith relative to his Catholicism and its possible effect upon his ability to fulfill the duties of President of the United States, has been received with great satisfaction at the Vatican, it was learned today.

The Vatican did not deem it fitting to make an official comment, said a high official of the Vatican informed the International News Service that the reply had been brought to the attention of the Pope and had gained his approval.

"You can say that the Pope welcomes Governor Smith's clear statement," said the Vatican official. "It can be pointed out that being a Catholic can not in any way hinder anybody having responsibility and power. On the contrary, the character of Catholicism contributes to the loyalty and sincerity of ideas, which is fundamental for those on whose shoulders have been placed the burden of government."

"On the other hand, it is well known that the Vatican makes a strict rule of never meddling in internal politics of single states, especially the United States where all presidents have always granted the fullest freedom to the Catholic church."

MARCUS LOEW THEATRE PLANNED FOR STAMFORD

To Seat 3,000—Property Bought For $150,000—To be One of Chain.

Stamford, Conn., April 20.—Erection of a new theatre to seat 3,000 people on Greyrock place with a lobby on the north side of Main street was announced here today. The Stamford Playhouse, Inc., bought the property from Simeon Weissman for about $150,000, and after erecting the theatre will lease it to the Marcus Loew interests.

The main street frontage contains a three-story brick business building numbered 544-566, and one of its stores will be converted into the theatre lobby. The theatre itself is to be devoted to pictures and vaudeville, and will be added to a chain operating in New Canaan, Harrison, Mamaroneck and Riverhead, N. Y.

Irwin Wheeler, of New Canaan, who handled the deal, is president of the Stamford Playhouse, Inc., while Charles E. Casey, of Stamford, is secretary and Myron Salzberger, of New York, is treasurer.

ON TRIAL AS SISTER SLAYERS

On trial in New York state, both charged with complicity in slaying their husbands are Mrs. Ruth Snyder (above) and Mrs. Lucy Early. This heretofore unpublished photo of Mrs. Snyder, accused with Henry Judd Gray of fatally beating her husband, Albert, was taken months before murder's shadow dimmed her beauty. Mrs. Early and William Wegley were indicted for poisoning David Early at Newburg. The photo at the left shows Mrs. Early as she appeared in court.

ILLINOIS STORMS CAUSE 25 DEATHS

Chicago, April 20.—Between 20 and 25 dead, more than 100 critically injured and property damage estimated in millions, was the toll today of a series of tornadoes that swept south central Illinois late yesterday.

An accurate check on the list of dead and injured is impossible until lines of communication, torn down by the death-dealing winds, are restored.

The greatest loss of life was in the Springfield district in the central part of the state. Buffalo Hart reported eight dead and a score injured and six were killed at Loomis.

At Lincoln, Ill., two schoolboys were killed in the wreckage of a school building. Miss Anna Kellar, a teacher, was killed at Carrollton, Ill., when her schoolhouse was crushed by the winds. Twenty-five pupils were buried in the debris, five of them critically injured.

Other Casualties.

Two farmers near Carrollton died when their homes were blown down upon them. At Cornland, four persons were reported killed.

Many of the towns were practically blown away by the winds. Little damage was done in Chicago. Relief expeditions were rushed to the stricken area from here and Springfield.

CHIANG EXECUTING MANY EXTREMISTS

Shanghai, April 20.—While reports come of a drive against Chiang Kai Shek by the Hankow branch of the Nationalist movement, there is every indication here that Chiang intends to proceed ruthlessly in the extermination of the Extremists within his ranks.

Secret executions are proceeding nightly at the Lunghwa headquarters and prior to daybreak today there were six alleged Extremists executed, which it is said brings the total of executions of alleged radicals to more than a hundred, including some of the leading officers of the general labor and other unions, who were declared to be back of the recent strike.

Active Warfare.

There is active war on one front today, with the possibility of civil war among the Nationalists on another front and continual internal strife in the ranks of both branches of the Nationalist movement.

Chiang Kai Shek's forces are still reported engaging with the northern troops in the vicinity of Pukow.

Hankow Reports.

Hankow reports that General Feng Yuh Siang has been named to succeed Chiang and is preparing to throw his forces into the field. The military ruler of Honan, General Feng, is reported to have been ordered to move his troops against Nanking.

At present Feng's armies of some 80,000 men are cut off from Hankow by Chang Tso Lin's forces.

The sentiment against the Extremist faction in Hankow has been growing here of late and a mass meeting of anti-Communists held today, attended by thousands of all classes, has passed resolutions demanding that Chiang Kai Shek arrest and punish the Communist leaders of Hankow.

R. Knickerbocker, Moscow correspondent of the International News Service who was to fill in for Weyer during his trip to America.

Knickerbocker and Weyer were in conversation until three o'clock this morning, when Weyer, apparently in good spirits, explained that he desired to write some letters and Knickerbocker went to his own compartment.

On the arrival of the train at Bremen at six a. m., the conductor found Weyer's body in the compartment with a bullet through the temple. The conductor stated that Weyer had mailed many letters when the train stopped at Hanover.

Weyer left the following note: "Official explanation—nervous breakdown—seven years without vacation—5-20 a. m."

FUR COAT STOLEN

TREASURY BALANCE

Washington, April 20.—Treasury balance as of April 18: $308,891,872.

COOLIDGE TO BE NOMINEE SAYS DEPEW

Ex-Senator in 93rd Year Says He Will Win If Smith Is Opponent—Interesting Interview.

New York, April 20.—Chauncey M. Depew, who celebrates his ninety-third year of youthful thoughts next Saturday, today predicted that Calvin Coolidge would be unanimously renominated by the Republican party for president in 1928.

"And if Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, opposes Coolidge the latter will be re-elected," America's grand old man and former Republican senator asserted in his annual birthday interview with the press.

Smith's Letter.

Depew said that Governor Smith's reply to Charles C. Marshall on his attitude toward the Roman Catholic church and the United States Constitution had strengthened Smith's prestige enormously and had put him in a far more favorable position for the Democratic presidential nomination than he was in 1924.

The aged ex-senator, despite his usual exhibition of agile thinking, appeared weak. He was suffering from an attack of bronchitis and his voice was husky. For the first time in thirty-five years, he will not attend the annual public birthday banquet in his honor which was scheduled by friends.

"The Governor," Depew said, "has been a fine governor and has reason to be proud of a remarkable career but if it is Coolidge against Smith next year I have no doubt that Coolidge will be elected," said Depew. "However, the enemies of Smith have concentrated on the religious question and it has given him the opportunity of his lifetime which he has seized happily. He has become known to every American in shop, factory, field and office and he will go into the 1928 Democratic convention infinitely ahead of his position in 1924."

ON PROHIBITION

"Do you think there is any chance of overthrowing prohibition?" Depew was asked.

"I don't think so," he answered.

"However, a wet presidential candidate will come much closer to being elected than a few years ago."

Depew bespoke a gallant attitude toward the "modern woman" and "restless youth." He said that the modern woman had seized her opportunities and in general had purified politics since the suffrage had been awarded her.

Woman President.

"I think there will be a woman president of the United States some day," he said.

Depew said that the youth of today was not much different from the time of his boyhood.

He termed "the good old times" a fallacy and declared that the inventions of the last few years such as television and transcontinental telephony and radio were making people happier.

The Senator was asked if he were interested in the Snyder-Gray murder trial.

Not Interested.

"I am not interested in the eccentricities of life," he declared.

He gave his rules of happiness which included work, serenity, moderation and pleasant surroundings. He said he was still shooting at par—100 yards—and had been to work every day during the past year.

"The only trouble with a boy in his nineties," the Senator concluded with a touch of pathos in his voice, "is that his associates are gone and there is nobody to play with, and a person of 93 wants to play like anybody else."

I. N. S. CORRESPONDENT KILLS SELF ON TRAIN

Bremen, Germany, April 20.—As the result of a nervous breakdown, S. Dunbar Weyer, for the past six years manager of the International News Service Bureau in Berlin, shot and killed himself in a compartment on the Berlin-Bremen express early today.

Weyer was on his way to Bremen to embark for the United States. He was accompanied by H. R. Knickerbocker, Moscow correspondent of the International News Service who was to fill in for Weyer during his trip to America.

Knickerbocker and Weyer were in conversation until three o'clock this morning, when Weyer, apparently in good spirits, explained that he desired to write some letters and Knickerbocker went to his own compartment.

On the arrival of the train at Bremen at six a. m., the conductor found Weyer's body in the compartment with a bullet through the temple. The conductor stated that Weyer had mailed many letters when the train stopped at Hanover.

Weyer left the following note: "Official explanation—nervous breakdown—seven years without vacation—5-20 a. m."

PICK SECOND JUROR AS TRIAL DRAGS ON

99 Talesmen Examined In Snyder Case Up Until 12:30—Court Tries Again To Speed Up Selection.

New York, April 20.—Pola Negri, famous and beautiful Polish film star, who is enroute for Europe upon the liner Aquitania, is to be married to Prince Serge Mdivani at her chateau near Paris on or about May 14, according to Broadway gossip today. The Prince also is a passenger upon the Aquitania. He is a brother of David Mdivani, husband of Mae Murray.

Woman In Black.

Court House, Long Island City, N. Y., April 20.—Ninety-one talesmen had been questioned at the trial of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, for the brutal sash-weight murder of the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, up until 12:30 o'clock this afternoon, when the jury box was filled for the ninth time, and only two had been accepted for jury duty. They were William E. Young, a publicity man, who will act as foreman, and Charles B. Meissner, a landscape gardener.

Justice Townsend Souder, presiding, attempted to speed up selection of the jury by allowing the attorneys fewer challenges for cause.

Mrs. Snyder, attired as usual in widow's black, maintained her air of interest and helped her lawyers in the work of jury selection.

Gray, however, regarded the proceedings apathetically.

Meissner the second jurymen chosen is a middle-aged, gray-haired man, gentle in his demeanor and wears spectacles. He said he understood that under the law a woman who has been guilty of a crime, should be punished just as if she were a man. He declared he had no pre-conceived opinions regarding the guilt or innocence of the defendants. He felt he could give the defendants a fair and impartial trial. However, if convinced the crime was manslaughter, he would return a verdict of degree murder, he said. He would dismiss from consideration any alleged statement or confession if the court so instructed him, he stated.

CONNECTICUT MUST ASSESS STATE INCOME

Yale Expert Tells Legislators More Money Is Needed; Plan Tax on Movies, Chain Stores and Others.

Hartford, Conn., April 20.—Connecticut will be forced to assess a state income tax against its residents if the present pay-as-you-go policy of its officials is carried out much longer. Such is the opinion of Professor F. R. Fairchild, of Yale University, one of the world's greatest experts on taxation.

Professor Fairchild's views have been laid before the legislative committee on finance, which is meeting privately last evening, receiving the professor's ideas as to the future of the state's condition. Another thing facing the state, according to Professor Fairchild, is a complete revision of the property tax to bring about equalization of the percent tax budget.

Tax on Bill Boards.

The meeting of the finance committee with Professor Fairchild developed that the committee is considering taxation on bill boards, on the movies and on chain stores, and an increase in the tax on the towns. As a direct result of the meeting last evening the Legislative finance committee is holding an executive session this afternoon from which will be reported a tax on theater admission tickets. It is understood this bill is to call for a tax of four per cent on each admission ticket. The average price of theater tickets in the state is twenty-five cents, the committee has learned, and hence the tax on such ticket would be one cent.

Admission Taxes.

According to members of the committee the theater admission tax would be small enough for the theater owners themselves to meet and there is no necessity for it being passed on to the public.

The finance board dinner was attended by every member of the joint Legislative committee, by Professor Fairchild, and by Carlos Holcomb, former deputy state tax commissioner. William H. Blodgett, state tax commissioner, did not attend the dinner.

DAYLIGHT SAVING SHIFT ON SUNDAY

Protestant Churches to Con- form in Morning, Catholic Not Till Evening.

Manchester goes back on Daylight Saving Time on Sunday morning. The clocks in the town will be shifted ahead one hour, because—legally—there is no Daylight Saving time in Connecticut. Public clocks will not be changed.

Notice has been passed around Cheney Brothers' plant advising the workers that the firm will operate on the new time beginning on Monday. Clocks in the plant are not changed as a rule and will display Eastern Standard Time.

All Factories to Conform.

Other manufacturers here will adjust themselves to the Daylight Saving time in their plants. Schools will open an hour earlier. Protestant churches here will begin their services on the coming Sunday an hour earlier but the Roman Catholic churches will not change their time until Sunday evening.

Trains and trolley-cars in this section will conform to the arrangement, announcements from railway offices say. Schedules will begin and end an hour earlier but all clocks and watches on the trains and in stations and trolley cars will remain unchanged.

This arrangement means that the first trolley out of Manchester for Hartford in the morning will start at 5:30, Daylight Saving time, and the last car from Hartford will reach Manchester at 1 o'clock in morning. Schedules on the lines are simply pushed ahead one hour.

SUES FOR HEART BALM

BITING DOG BRINGS OWNER INTO COURT

L. T. Wood Pays Dollar Fine When Complaints Are Registered With Prosecutor.

A somewhat unusual case was disposed of by Judge Johnson in the police court this morning when Leland T. Wood was brought into court for harboring a dog, accustomed to go out on the highway and growl, snap, bite and otherwise annoy persons lawfully using said highway, written notice of such custom having been previously given to said Wood by the prosecuting attorney of the town court of Manchester. Complaints had reached the prosecuting attorney about the dog annoying different people.

George Tedford was bitten by the dog last week. He was passing Mr. Wood's home on Spruce street when the dog attacked him and bit a piece out of his trousers, so Mr. Tedford testified. Dogwarden Fred Krahn had received several complaints about the dog and had notified the prosecuting attorney, Richard Allen, mail carrier, complained to the prosecuting attorney about the dog. He said the animal had attacked him on several occasions but was unable to specify the day and date.

Prosecuting Attorney Hathaway said he had notified Mr. Wood by letter five or six weeks ago. Since that time the dog has been kept under restraint, until last Saturday, just at the time Tedford was passing the house the door was open and the dog ran out. Chief of Police Samuel G. Gordon said he had received complaints from at least two persons about the dog's behavior.

Judge Johnson remarked that it was the first case of its character that had been brought before him and he reminded Mr. Wood that keeping such a dog would require extreme care or it would get him into further trouble. He

CHORAL CONCERT THURSDAY NIGHT

Boston Symphony Ensemble To Assist Local Club in Second Appearance.

The concert to be given on Thursday night in the High school hall by the Men's Choral club, assisted by the Boston Symphony Ensemble of 15 well known artists, promises to be of an interesting nature. The choral numbers to be given have already been described and it is sufficient to note that the director and chorus are satisfied that the work of the club on this occasion will show every further evidence of excellent progress and that a delightful and well rendered program will be heard.

An innovation will be introduced at this time which will undoubtedly be appreciated and will produce a finished performance. Mrs. Burton Yaw, well known Hartford pianist has been secured as the accompanist for the club numbers, enabling Mr. Sessions to give his attention more particularly to the essentials required for the production of outstanding details such as attack, release, shading and general expression.

The work of the Symphony ensemble shown by its programs is of an interesting nature, and departs from the accustomed orchestral programs. Sparkling numbers and dainty instrumental themes are outstanding in all details, and Julius Theodore, the leader, along with Mr. Sessions are agreed that the numbers chosen will evoke the highest commendation.

The first number, "Peer Gynt Suite" in four movements by Grieg is the opening number. Grieg in this suite alone has placed his name upon the roll of those composers whose work will always be outstanding. Their second group contains "Pavane" by Godard, and "Invitation to the Dance" by Weber-Berlioz. In the Godard number, the true Spanish sentiment which is expected in a Barcarolle is outstanding and the theme seems to haunt one with a few sunny smiles and a grove in a pretty manner. The second number, as its title implies, is truly an invitation to a dance such as would charm even the fairy people into giving of their best.

Another number by the orchestra is "The Wheel of Omphale" by Saint Saens, of a contrasting type also excellent in its theme. In addition the ensemble will accompany the club in two numbers, "Finale" from "The Gondoliers" by Sullivan and "Aida" to our Native Land from "Aida" by Verdi.

With such a program as is being submitted all that is required to complete success is, that the appreciation of the public be shown by an overflowing attendance. The club in all its work has kept prominently before it the idea of putting on a program of music both choral and instrumental as would be both pleasing and educating.

An invitation has been extended to the members of the High school orchestra to be present at the concert as the guests of the club. Those who have not already secured tickets may do so at Watkins Brothers. The symphony ensemble contains the following instruments: first violin, second violin, viola, cello, double bass, flute, oboe, clarinet, French horn, trumpet and piano.

Following is the program:

PICK BARONS TO WIN KIWANIS' CONTEST

Are Six Points Ahead With Robbins Promising to Attend in Brookline.

The Kiwanis attendance contest between Charlie Pickett's "Whip-pets" and the "Real Estate Barons" headed by Arthur Knofia, closed today but the decision as to the winners depends upon two absent members, one representing each side. The absentees today were only two out of a possible 61—Austin Cheney and Charlie Robbins. Both men were out of town but each promised to attend a Kiwanis meeting sometime during this week. If Charlie Robbins who is in Boston and who has promised to attend the meeting at Brookline, does so, it means the Barons will win. This would give them 100 per cent attendance this week. Up to then they were six points ahead.

It has been a very successful contest and has been the means of bringing the attendance up to a point never attained heretofore by the Manchester Kiwanis club. While the Real Estate Barons were slightly in the lead, it has been so close that it was anybody's race until today. Harold Turkington was the lucky man today and won the attendance prize donated by Dr. E. G. Dolan.

Rev. George E. Gilbert was the speaker today. He comes from Middletown and is known as "the barber parson." He took for his subject Old New England and what it stood for. He preceded his remarks by complimenting the Kiwanians on the work they were aiming to do, helping mankind and especially the underprivileged children. He knew of no better work in which any body of men could engage. Mr. Gilbert illustrated that kept his audience in good spirits and at the same time drove home some facts that set his hearers to thinking. He is engaged in the effort to build up the little churches in the rural districts. He says New England has changed and farm life has changed. He induces the small boys and girls to go to church and Sunday school by giving them something good to eat, or providing a good ball ground for them to play a game after the services. He says it is remarkable the financial support that he receives in his work of trying to bring back the old New England spirit.

The losers in the attendance contest are to furnish and serve a dinner, the details in regard to which will appear at a later date.

BALT COMPANY COMPLETING WORK ON CENTER STREET
The Edward Balt company of Hartford, who had the contract for the construction of the new highway on Center street is completing the work with the building of a stretch of about 150 yards at Adams street. The workmen did a temporary job on Center street at the point where the trolley tracks lead from the street to the car barns. It is understood that the Connecticut company is undecided whether or not to remove the tracks. The matter is now under consideration by the officials of the Connecticut company in New Haven and it is expected they will arrive at a decision shortly.

EUROPE CALLS MANCHESTER A CITY
The Herald is in receipt of a page from the central European edition of The New York Herald published in Paris, in which Manchester, Conn. is twice referred to as a city in an article regarding the Chinese Tong War and the slaying of King Ong, local laundryman on March 24. It is perhaps needless to explain that the paper is sent here by E. L. G. Hohenthal, who is now traveling in Europe. Mr. Hohenthal was a member of the city classification committee and has always been much interested in the subject.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Andrew Jackson (3)

Jackson was admitted to the bar before he was 20 years old. In 1788 he was appointed public prosecutor for the region now comprising the state of Tennessee. He met Rachel Donelson, daughter of one of the pioneers who founded the settlement of Nashville. In 1791 they were married.

The marriage caused gossip. The bride had a husband living, though both Jackson and she believed a divorce petition had been granted.

Two years after their marriage it was discovered that the divorce had just been legalized. They were married again.

Whispered slanders about his marriage found Andrew Jackson a fighting man. Skillful as a duelist, he became implacable when he stood to resent an insult upon his marriage. Failing to arrange a duel demanded with Governor Sevier, Jackson rode furiously into a group, trampling the governor under foot. (To Be Continued)

THE WIDER TAMMANY.

Why should any Republican fear the candidacy of Al Smith for the Presidency next year? He and the group that is backing him are parochial politicians. They know New York, inside out and upside down—but they know nothing of the country.

If absolute proof of their limitations were at all lacking it would be supplied by the determination of the Tammany leaders in the metropolis to nationalize the Society of Tammany or Columbian order—to issue charters to state councils and city and town wigwags of the organization. If, they argue among themselves, we can organize the great city of New York so completely as we have done, why can we not, with our genius for organization, extend the same kind of work and the same influence throughout the nation? We can; let's go.

And so they are preparing to establish Tammany wigwags throughout the country—all in the name of the original Columbian Order which set up business 137 years ago as a patriotic society, intended even then for establishment throughout the United States but which never got very far. An order with a ritual of loyalty to the Union, but with the far more intimate purpose of getting the political gravy for its membership.

This would not be so bad an idea, so far as probability of success goes, if it were not for a fact which these New York schemers cannot get through their heads—that the very name of Tammany is ineradicably associated, in the minds of nine out of ten persons outside of New York, with everything unrespectably bad in politics—with rapacity, graft, police protection of criminals, with Tweed and Croker and Murphy and Devery. They do not realize, these New York cockneys, that their Tammany is the heaviest liability the Democratic party has had to contend with since secession days. They do not realize that the instant the tentacles of Fourteenth street start feeling their way outside of New York state and into the boundaries of other commonwealths half, at least, of the old line Democrats of those outside communities will stampede, whitefaced, out of the party, preferring infinitely to cast their lot with former political rivals whom they know to be respectable rather than allow themselves to become subjects to the ogre of Tammany.

No possible contribution could be made to the certainty of Republican victory in 1928 equal to the open establishment of branches of the Society of Tammany in those states where Democrats habitually blush at the very mention of the name.

UNIFIED COMMAND.

It is gratifying to learn that President Coolidge is stoutly opposed to all proposals for the creation of a unified command of the foreign forces in China. Though this opposition is slightly qualified by the suggestion that at some future time a situation might arise that would demand unity of military command, such a contingency remains for the present at least largely academic. The President steps on the whole idea when he lets it be known that he sees no present need for such a course.

Americans very generally, white ready enough to agree that the United States ought to take every step necessary to extend protection to American life and property in China, would be quick to balk at the idea of placing our men and our ships under the command of any foreign general or admiral, to be used in the furtherance of a policy created wholly outside of America and to which the American government has declared its steadfast opposition.

Yet if a unified command were established that is precisely what would transpire, since the highest ranking of our military officers in that region is junior to several foreigners. And our troops and ships and sailors could be led into the very midst of an out-and-out war on the Chinese people, by a foreign commander, without volition on their own part and without this country's exerting a voice in the matter—a situation impossible to countenance.

If President Coolidge ever agrees to unification of military command in China, it is a fair guess that it will be after there has arrived on the ground some American military leader who will stand no risk of being outranked by any foreigner, and who would thus himself be the commander. In such a contingency as that, however, we should probably hear nothing further about a unified command.

MICE AND ELEPHANTS.

So skeptical are most people concerning the old story about elephants being afraid of mice that one of the biggest newspapers in New York, in its news story on the stampede of three young pachyderms in Newark which resulted in the killing of a woman, utterly dodged the explanation of the elephants' keeper that a mouse started the stampede. This in face of the detail that a cat had just been hunting in a rubbish pile in the alley where the elephants became panic stricken, and the facts that none of the animals was especially vicious and that there was no other known cause for their terror.

The New York city editor would have been the better, on just this one occasion at least, for a little closer familiarity with the menagerie and its traditions. For there is not the slightest doubt that to many elephants even if, possibly, not to all, a mouse is a terrible creature. No one knows why this is so; but so it is. And that is the reason why, so often, you see little long-haired terrier dogs lying or nosing about in the hay strewn about the elephants' station in a traveling menagerie. The terriers are maintained by the circus folks to kill the mice that so frequently come to the menagerie tent in the hay.

It is one of the most ludicrous, most incomprehensible freaks of the animal world that a two-ton elephant should be frightened into hysterics by the sight of a half-ounce mouse, but that does not affect its verity. The reason, as Lord Dunsyre said, is one of those things that no fellow can find out.

JURY HOKUM.

How fifty men of average intelligence could be examined for their capacity as jurors in a murder trial, as was the case in the first day of the Snyder case, without a single one being accepted, may be better understood when the procedure is considered.

A talesman admits that he has formed a definite opinion. "But," inquires the court, "can you not dismiss from your mind this opinion and form a new opinion solely on the evidence?" The talesman believes that he could do that.

"But you have an opinion, haven't you?" objects counsel for the defense. Yes, the talesman has an opinion. "And nothing has happened yet to make you change that opinion?" pursues the lawyer. No, nothing has happened to make him change his opinion. "And you would require evidence opposed to that opinion before you could change it?" continues defense counsel. The talesman, naturally seeing this question as a mere paraphrase of the judge's earlier question, and also being honest, confidently answers, "Yes."

Defense counsel shakes his head as though in hopeless despair over the density of such a juror; the judge sadly dismisses the talesman. And the grind goes on.

With ninety peremptory challenges to be used up between the two defendants and the state in the Snyder case—thirty each—for the dismissal of such talesmen as can withstand quizzing like this, it is rather to be wondered at that juries in such cases are obtained in less than a month.

It is all legalistic hokum; professional rubbish; manufactured by lawyers for lawyers. And the public pays—in court inefficiency and a long crime list.

OUR KIND.

The expansion of the Gammons-Holman Company, as evidenced by its forthcoming removal to the Bigelow mill, is in direct line with the most hopeful aspirations of the ideal Connecticut industrial town. The high standing of this state as a manufacturing community has been achieved very largely indeed through the evolving and production of special-class commodities of extreme excellence—and it is in that direction that our continued success is likely to lie. Connecticut should worry who builds the flippers so long as we can build the machinery and the devices where-with to build them—and the same idea is applicable to a hundred quantity production lines.

A dozen little manufacturing concerns of sound merit, planted here to grow in the fertile soil of Connecticut skill and ingenuity—and Manchester could well afford to waft an uninterested kiss to all bigger outfits which seek change of location—often for some unpromising reason.

A GOOD MAN GOES.

In the departure from Manchester of Rev. John E. Duxbury, for a number of years pastor of the North Methodist church, the town loses a clergyman of a singularly appealing type and a citizen of the first class.

Mr. Duxbury belongs to an order of Christian ministers whom Sinclair Lewis left out of "Elmer Gantry"—modest, earnest men who with love in their hearts do their work in the world by no means unsuccessfully and leave it the better for their having labored in it.

It has been the fortune of the Herald on one or two occasions to cross swords with Rev. Mr. Duxbury with his opinion and ours differed. We found him a brave fighter—and a fair one; and one in whose heart the combat left no rancor.

Wherever this good man, good preacher and good citizen goes from here, he will take with him the well wishes of this newspaper to a man and a gentleman.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

A HAWK THAT ISN'T A HAWK

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n. This bird is a young nighthawk, perched contentedly in the oak home he has ever known, the gravel roof of the main office building of a large automobile plant in a well-known Michigan city.

In reality the nighthawk is not a hawk at all. He lacks both the curved bill and the talons of that group of birds, and he feeds entirely on insects.

The nighthawk has a cousin with which he is frequently confused. That is the whippoorwill, that lyric songster that sets the heart of the June woodlands pulsing with his poignant throbbing music. The nighthawk may be most easily distinguished from this relative, however, by the broad bands of white across his wings, and by the fact that he is no musician.

His only song is a nasal "Peent!" uttered repeatedly as he swoops through the air at dusk, hunting his evening meal.

Nighthawk's nest on naturally half-barned tracts. They have learned, however, that the gravel roofs of city buildings offer them protection, so some have changed their nesting habits and have become city dwellers. They build no nest, laying their eggs on the bare gravel, where their barred plumage hides them effectively.

They catch their food on the wing, as do the swallows, and when a band of them is seen swooping over city roofs they are feeding on mosquitoes, June beetles and other quarry.

GILBERT SWAN.

New York, April 20.—Steadily the gay belt moves northward, carrying theaters, cabarets, eating places and all the spawn of Broadway as it goes. At intersecting streets it overflows and casts them to east and west, but just now chiefly to west.

Eighty avenues in the upper Forties, once a collection of shabby places with tattered stores and uninviting rooming houses, is alive with wrecking crews as the new stems of the rialto stretch out to erase the old, like green vines covering the deadclimbers of yesterday.

One of the newest and largest theaters of the Chanins occupies a location which a few years ago would have been considered impossible. The theater belt now stretches beyond the Fifties and slowly passes Columbus Circle.

Walter Hampden, deciding to have his own New York theater, built well beyond the Circle and Broadway commented that perhaps he could get away with it as a private producer of the old classics but no commercial theater could make the grade. Whereupon another appeared a block or so up and has been operated successfully through the season by the Theater Guild.

There are still many who remember when the heart of the theater life was south of Times Square. Those theaters that lie in that belt are looked upon for the most part as the old timers and several of them now get plays only when upper Broadway is overcrowded.

The wisenheimers no longer smile. They are now ready to predict that the day may not be far off when the Circle and not the square will be the center of the rialto's activities.

Earl Carroll was largely responsible for this up-to-town movement. The candidate for Atlanta prize did not go so far, being "the man who moved Broadway seven blocks."

The limit had been placed around 43rd and 44th street and anyone who went beyond was laughed at. People would not go so far, said the theater folk. But Carroll put a theater around 50th Street and within a couple of years a lane of lights had grown to meet his new enterprise. Today the new Roxy theater, latest of super-show places has its entrance at 51st, and is not considered out of the way.

Old timers, away from Broadway for many years, look in vain for the old haunts. The cafes at which they feasted are no more. Delmonico's, Sherry's—the whole parade—surrender to skyscrapers, arm chair lunch counters and rising apartments. The haunts where once was the capital of the big street grow overburdened with cheap stores, cheap restaurants and theaters with more past tradition than present attractiveness.

The newer theaters are not the theaters of the every body. They squat wide and flat instead of slender and tall. Few now rise higher than a second balcony. Peanuts, ice cream and candy between acts are now known only to the East Side and the Bronx. There the folk still go to theaters for a "good time" taking the entire family, drinking pop and nibbling of all the cheap dainties offered by the peanut butchers.

DAILY ALMANAC

Feast day of St. Marcellinus. "Bacon's rebellion," first armed opposition in America to British authority, began, 1676.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, April 20.—One hears that Governor Al Smith is gaining strength within the Democratic party and that he is more likely to be nominated than anyone else.

An attempt has been begun to identify him to the public with at least one national issue, the hydro-electric power issue, and it is not unlikely that Governor Al's scope will be similarly broadened as the time draws nigh for the party to deposit in someone's hands the little red apple which last turned to a decayed raspberry in the hands of the estimable John W. Davis.

Not Yet Certain

In these days prior to convening of the next Congress one man's hazy conjecture is as good as another's, but it is hard to believe that Smith's nomination is as nearly certain as many insistent persons would have us all believe. The swing to Smith may be in progress, but various obstacles remain. And there are those who will stick as many more obstacles into his path as they can.

Millions of Democrats would almost rather take poison than a candidate from New York. Some of this feeling doubtless is traceable to a stupid hatred of New York and all its works. Bitter memories of the last national convention intensified the sentiment. But there is much more to it than that.

"The Democrats," says an important southern politician, "haven't had an electoral vote from New York in any presidential election since 1892, except in 1912, when the Republican party was split."

"The same is true of New Jersey, where the Democrats couldn't even win for Wilson in 1916.

"We haven't had an electoral vote from Illinois since 1892 and that was the only time since the Civil War.

"We haven't had one from Rhode Island since 1912.

"Never in the history of the party have we had an electoral vote from Massachusetts, except in 1912.

"The Wet Territory. "And those states represent the Al Smith strength of 1924 and the backbone of it for 1928. It's the wet section of the Democratic party, which is three-fourths dry."

This politician, it might be interpolated, is personally quite wet. He admits that the Democratic party simply doesn't dare bet.

"These eastern Democrats never voted for us even when we nominated their man. Judge Alton B. Parker was their candidate and he couldn't even run as well as Bryan. We nominated the east's man in 1924 and he ran worse than Bryan ran in any of his three campaigns. "Bryan won a progressive vote, but we don't get it when we nominate an imitation Republican. Wilson got it and Bryan got it and even McAdoo could get it. Either Smith or McAdoo could poll upwards of 3,000,000 votes better than another nonentity.

"If these New York, Illinois, Massachusetts and New Jersey politicians had ever helped elect a Democrat where it counted most, we might be more willing to give them another chance. But neither Parker, Cox, or Davis ran as well in the east as Bryan. Each in succession, was beaten more badly and if we nominate another fellow whom nobody has anything against and nobody has anything for, there'll be a couple more million Republican votes. The Two Leaders. "We're not afraid of losing with either Smith or McAdoo. If McAdoo wins he will have a better than fighting chance to win with the vote of the south and west, discrediting the northeast. If Smith is nominated, we might well win with a combination of southern, western and northeastern states and will lose some of the doubtful states. "But we've got to be shown that Mr. Smith can do better for us than Mr. McAdoo." Speaking of the progressive vote, however, it should be added that some of the late Senator LaFollette's best friends here are confident that Smith, if nominated, would inherit virtually every vote that was cast for the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket in 1924.

THE MISSISSIPPI FLOODS FROM THE AIR!

Airplane Photo, Copyright, 1927, NEA Service. This remarkable picture of the flooded city of Trumann, Ark., shows a modern American town transformed into an ancient Venice by the waters swollen from its banks. The only dry spot of land in the city grade crossing. Hundreds of refugees from the surrounding inundated territory have rushed to Trumann and added to the confusion. Business was suspended almost entirely and boats were selling and renting at a premium. The houses show the depth of the flood, scores of people being marooned on the second floors of their homes.

Airplane Photo, Copyright, 1927, NEA Service. The flying cameraman gets a good picture at Marked Tree, Ark., where the strength and fury of the flood waters is illustrated by the pile of timbers strewn along the bank of a wooden highway. Water-covered highways and railroads have isolated the community. Part of a house can be seen floating near the timbers piled up near the wooden highway. For mile after mile the NEA cameraman flew over such scenes as this, risking life with no place to land the plane in event of a breakdown.

Airplane Photo, Copyright, 1927, NEA Service. The thin wall of earth shown in the remarkable airplane view above keeps two rivers, the St. Francis and the Little, and the thousands of acres of backwater from flowing down and inundating Marked Tree, Ark., where hundreds of refugees have concentrated. Recently a gun battle occurred at the lock when men from flooded towns tried to dynamite the levee and thus dry up their towns at the expense of Marked Tree.

"Miss Nyda won't lemme in," the colored girl called in a frightened voice...

"All right, Viola. I'll go to Miss Lomax's room as soon as I'm out of my bath..."

"It's me—Billy," she called softly through the keyhole...

"I've got loads to tell you, too," with a jerk. "What did you spill the beans to us for?"

"Fair play, if you understand the word, Nyda," Billy told her coldly.

"I started to tell T. Q. that I'd eavesdropped intentionally, but I knew he'd call off the whole proposition—this year he's given us, and everything..."

"What do you say, Nyda?" Billy sat down on the edge of Nyda's bed and searched the blue eyes.

"I suppose I get no mercy for having told you, when I might have kept silent?" Billy was coolly scornful.

"Very sweet, but I bet we'd find it turning bitter if we tried to swallow it..."

"I haven't seen him since I heard his plans!" Billy sprang from the bed and glared at them.

"I'm afraid we haven't time for a rhapsody on Dal Romaine," she cut in sharply.

Nyda ripped open the snaps of her one-piece Chanel-red velvet dress and drew it over her head...

"I'm glad you're here, Winnie," Billy answered quietly, though her blue eyes were blazing with scorn.

"I've got something to tell you both. It may make you feel better, Nyda," she added, her voice softening...

MILK IS SPLENDID FOOD BUT IT'S NOT PERFECT

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

About one-fifth of the food budget of the average American family is used for milk and milk products.

Campaigns to increase milk consumption have had their effect. They have been warranted because children are better nourished if an abundance of good milk is included in their daily diet.

However, even milk is not an absolutely perfect food, and must be supplemented with other materials because there is a deficiency in some of the vitamins.

As has been pointed out in previous articles in this series, a proper diet contains proteins, carbohydrates, fats, mineral salts, and the various vitamins.

Home Page Editorials Clouds And Chaos

By Olive Roberts Burton

A woman said recently, "There seems to be a confusion in the minds of young people in college. They have difficulty in adjusting religion and science. If I had the time I should devote my life to adjusting these two. They can be reconciled, you know."

I agreed with her. But I did not say that it would take more than human delving and the concentrated effort of all the world's laboratories and all the world's scientists, to bring about an adjustment compatible to the human mind.

There has always been a stopping point. There likely always will be a stopping point, as long as man has only five special senses and eyes that cannot see beyond the spectrum.

We have turned into a nation of investigators. That is as it should be. It is the only real way to progress. The interrogation point is the coat of arms of civilization.

One time I read a weather specialist's article on clouds. I learned that clouds were chaos—that air currents greatly varying temperatures, dust particles and electric vagaries, were responsible for the formation and action of the cloud element.

NOW YOU Ask One

ABOUT THE STAGE.

If you follow present day drama, either at first hand or in the magazines, today's list of questions ought not to be hard for you. The answers are printed on another page:

1—What famous American actress is this?
 2—In what way did Miss Ann Nichols, playwright, earn a large fortune during the last four or five years?
 3—Who wrote "The Great God Brown"?
 4—What Shakespearean play was given some months ago in modern costumes?
 5—What actress starred for a long time in the play "Rain"?
 6—What husband and wife have acted for many years in Shakespearean plays?
 7—What prominent actress is the daughter of what equally prominent poet?
 8—Who wrote and acted in "It's a Wonderful Life"?
 9—What producer stages musical revues under the title, "The Scandals"?
 10—Collaboration in the authorship of what play made Laurence Stallings famous?

"Are you insured against theft, fire, storm and accident?"
 "God only knows—I've just finished reading the insurance policy."

If religions and science quarrel, it is because we have neither religion enough nor science enough.

The only way some people will ever get ahead will be to lead their own funeral procession.

Customer: Do you really think sardines are healthy?
 Grocer: Well, madam, I never heard one complain.

Harry: Do you think we could live on ten thousand a year?
 Gladys: Yes, but who is going to give it to us?

SENSE and NONSENSE

She was only a millionaire's daughter but—oh, my goodness, isn't that enough?

"Doctor, you have saved my life. I owe you a debt that I can never pay."
"Fifty dollars will square it. Time payments if you like."

The Better Choice
 Mary wed a little lamb,
 His past was white as snow;
 He'd never drunk a single dram—
 At least, they told her so.
 But when their honeymoon was done
 He took an awful flop;
 The few wild oats he'd sowed for fun
 Returned a bumper crop!
 On Broadway's long electric lane
 He gambled all night through;
 Poor Mary's tears were shed in vain.

As everybody knew,
 So, girls, take heed to Mary's fate,
 And if you must be wed,
 Why, better to try to captivate
 An old Black Sheep instead!

The New Michigan football stadium is going to be shaped like a horseshoe—because one will be lucky to get a seat!
 Father (reading a letter from his son at college, to mother)—"John says he's got a beautiful lamp from boxing."
 Mother—"I just knew he'd win something in his athletics."

George—"And do you really like the ring?"
 Gladys—"Yes, it is beautiful. You've given me my favorite setting which is more than any of the others ever did."
 George—"It's the one I always use."

Don't throw your mouth into high gear until you are sure that your brain is turning over.

You wouldn't hear youngsters sighing for a thrill if they still had to use a buck saw on stove wood.

Cleanliness, in an industrial city, is a luxury.

THE TINYMITES

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

The Tynmites liked the tea real well and then they all sat down to tell Miss Polly about the wondrous things they'd seen around the land. Said Scouty, "We have traveled near, and also far away from here. We think the folks of Mother Goose are really very grand."
 Fair Polly smiled to hear them talk. Said she, "Why, do you always walk to get from one place to the next? I'd think that you'd get tired." Then up spoke Copy, "Goodness me, you bet we often do," said he. "But then, so many new things come, we always seem inspired."
 "There are a lot of things that you will never think are hard to do, if you are interested, as you're saying on your way. We find a lot of hills to climb, but always take our own sweet time. Whenever we get very tired, we stop and loaf a day." Then Polly said, "I'm glad you
