PROTESTS EXECUTION

Second Italian Body Here Appeals to Fuller in the Sacco-Vanzetti Case.

The Christopher Columbus society, at its regular monthly meeting held in Tinker hall yesterday morning, voted unanimously to send a protest to Governor Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti case which has attracted world-wide interest.

This is the second Italian organization in Manchester to take such action since Judge Webster Thayer sentenced the Communists to death by electrocution on July 10 for the slaying of a South Braintree paymaster and his guard April 15, 1920.

WHOLE NEW PROGRAM AT STATE TOMORROW

"Knockout Reilly" Heads Bill For Tuesday and Wednesday — Vaudeville Starts Thursday.

The program at the State theater tomorrow will undergo a complete change and for the piece de resistance there will be offered that smashing drama of the fight ring, "Knockout Reilly," starring Richard Dix, Mary Brian and Jack Renaut. This program will continue over Wednesday and on Thursday the best vaudeville bill of the season will start a three-day engagement at the theater.

"Knockout Reilly," is the highly exciting cinema record of the flistic adventures of a young steel piddler, who almost overnight finds himself on the verge of pugilistic fame, and whose career is as suddenly blasted by a combination of circumstances that land him in prison convicted of a crime of which he is innocent.

A smashing denouement results in Dix's emerging a pugilistic champion. The thread of the story carries a strong love theme, with Mary Brian as the object of Reilly's affections. Jack Renaut is featured.

John Barrymore as the wine-bibbling hero, Francis Villon, in "The Beloved Rogue," packed the house last night. This great production, the most ambitious of Barrymore's pictures so far, will be shown for the last time tonight.

As Francis Villon, the immortal French beggar-poet, Barrymore loves 'em and leaves 'em in fifteenth century Paris; he plays pranks on the King and the Duke of Burgundy, leads his beggar band in routs and jousts, composes undying roundels in hovel while caring for inhabitants of the strange Court of Miracles jostle each other; he loves and loses Charlotte de Auxelles, and wins her at the end.

BOY SCOUTS LAUDED IN CIRCLE PICTURE

"A Regular Scout" Stars Fred Thompson and Clever Horse, Silver King.

"A Regular Scout," the picture in which Fred Thompson and his leader, Clever Horse, stars in the leading roles, comes to the Circle theater tomorrow to begin a two-day engagement. Founded on the Boy Scout movement, the picture is asserted to have done more than any other single agency to further the movement in which more than 2,500,000 boys are interested.

In "A Regular Scout" Thompson plays the role of a man bent on revenge. Through Silver King he becomes intimately associated with a troop of Scouts, and gradually his overwhelming interest in their ideal and splendid hopes affect him so that they prove responsible for his eventual redemption.

Ben Lyon's screaming farce-comedy, "The Perfect Sap," ends its engagement tonight at the Circle. This picture is filmed on the theme which never fails to please, that of the amateur detective, and as a sleuth Lyon is a wow!

Lyon makes a good team worker with Pauline Starke, his leading lady, and Virginia Lee Corbin, that ravishing blonde who has come into prominence in the films lately. Other featured players are Sam Hardy, who has never failed to please, and Tammany Young, world famous gate-crasher who has always managed to sneak into anything that appealed to him.

The picture is full of funny situations and Lyon becomes more ludicrous as the film unrolls. The smashing climax is something that comes unexpectedly and is quite a surprise.

KITE FLIERS CONTEST IN TRIO OF EVENTS

Youthful Franklins Hold Tests In Speed, Altitude and in Sending "Messengers."

Youthful Ben Franklins and embryo aviators were out in force on Saturday at Steve Pearl's "aviation field" for the honors of the air in the form of kite fliers.

Preliminary flights put several contestants out of the running, their flying craft having come to grief in distant trees, there to repose until the elements should bare their bones to the summer sun and winter snows.

Promptly at 10 a. m. the 100 yard dash was announced and twenty eager fliers line up on the starting line. At a signal from Joseph Dean the race was on. A fair breeze from the west soon filled the air with kites of all shapes and sizes. Faultless construction and handling, however, won the prize for Calvin Taggart, awarded by P. N. Cook, judge.

The next event for the highest altitude was awarded to Edgar Clarke, who succeeded in outstripping his nearest competitor in the time allowance of five minutes. Billy Ingraham took first honors in the next event, sending a "messenger" to his kite in fast time.

During the contest pictures were taken of the groups and winners. The judges expressed considerable satisfaction over the first attempt at "kitecraft" and plan to add this event to next year's program in the Community events.

LOCAL TRIPPERS AT ANNAPOLIS TODAY

Report Wonderful Time Over Sunday and See Big Pa- rade This Afternoon.

(Special to The Herald)
Annapolis, Md., April 25.—Sunday and Monday have been two wonderful days for the South Manchester High School Delegation in Washington. The big thrill is on this afternoon, at Annapolis. By the time the Herald is out, we shall be returning from the home of the Naval Academy. One thousand four hundred "middles" are to give their annual dress "P. W. E. Rade," as it is termed on the campus. It is the occasion of the annual visit of the Congressional Committee. And, of course, the boys look and act their best while their superior officers from Washington look on and make the usual complimentary comments.

The parade is held on the football field, just adjacent to Farragut Field. Previous to the parade, a courteous guide, furnished by the Superintendent of the Academy, took us over the Academy grounds and explained many points of historic interest. Bancroft Hall, one of the largest buildings in the world, the beautiful Chapel, containing the remains of John Paul Jones, the wonderful swimming pool, and many other new sites, brought out "Oh's" and "Ah's."

This year we took the trip to Annapolis by motor buses and saved much of the walking necessary when going by train. Letters of introduction, furnished by Senator McLean, were of great help in arranging our trip through the Academy grounds and buildings.

Old State House
We also visited the historical old Maryland State House erected before the Revolutionary War, where George Washington resigned his commission as Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army in 1783. The beautiful old buildings and homes of this Colonial city have been kept remarkably intact over the period of more than 150 years.

This morning we spent in the Capitol Building in Washington, sometimes called the House of Wonders. Three guides took us many sections of our party through the maze of legislative halls and offices and explained the works of historic art which are everywhere in evidence.

Our hotel is so handy, this year, to the Capitol Building that it was but a few minutes walk by way of the House-Office Building and underground tunnels. We enjoyed the Capitol trip so much that it was decided not to attempt the Navy Yard today, so instead, we came back to the hotel for an early luncheon before leaving for Annapolis. The party departed Sunday morning, about thirty-five o'clock, with Mrs. Quimby to the President's own church, the First Congregational, another group went with Miss Marie C. Nolan and Miss Alice M. Marshall and C. P. Quimby to Mount St. Sepulcher, where a third group of our friends in the Zoo with T. F. Kelly.

The Wonderful Museum

In the afternoon the wonders of the National Museum and Smithsonian Institute took our complete attention. This was probably the high light of the entire trip and historic art which has come into prominence in the films lately. Other featured players are Sam Hardy, who has never failed to please, and Tammany Young, world famous gate-crasher who has always managed to sneak into anything that appealed to him.

MANCHESTER DAY AT MAJESTIC IN HARTFORD

Special Arrangement Made For Showing of Vitaphone Talk- ing Pictures.

The Vitaphone talking pictures have arrived in New England. Recently installed in the new Majestic theater in Hartford, the Vitaphone talking picture have broken all records in theatrical history. They are produced by a secret process, controlled by the Western Electric Co., the Bell Telephone Co. and Warner Brothers. In order to bring this wonderful invention to all the people within reasonable limit of the Capitol city, the Majestic theater has set aside Friday, April 29, as Manchester Day and the word "Manchester," if mentioned by Majestic theater patrons on that day, will insure them a most cordial welcome to this unusual and impressive show.

One feels as if he had arrived in an enchanted land, mysterious music seemingly coming from nowhere and yet abounding everywhere. As the characters appear on the screen one is spellbound. As they act and speak, each appearing in absolutely life-like manner, now able to forsake many unnecessary gestures, as the shadow images are now endowed with speech. Notables who appear on the screen with the cast are: Vitaphone Talking Pictures this week include Hon. Will Hays, Marlon Talley, Mary Lewis, Giuseppe De Luca, Jeanne Gordon, Benjamin Gilg, George Jessel and a line of other international celebrities. The feature picture is "When a Man Loves," with John Barrymore and Dolores Costello.

Two shows are given daily, a matinee at 2:15 and an evening performance at 8:15. Reserved seats for Manchester Day may be procured locally at Kemp's Music Store, or directly from the Majestic theater, 174 Asylum street, Hartford, where the box office will be open daily from 10 a. m. till 9 p. m. Mail orders will be accepted if accompanied by check and self-addressed stamped return envelope. There are 600 good seats at 50 cents, 600 at 75 cents and 500 specially fine selected seats at $1.15, all seats being reserved.

NEEDED THE CASH SO SHE SOLD RUM

Then Mrs. Sault Found She'd Need $125 Plus to Settle With Police Court.

Through her attorney, William S. Hyde, Mary E. Sault of Hartford road in police court this morning, before Judge Johnson, pleaded guilty to keeping liquor with intent to sell.

The police had learned that liquor was being sold at the Sault home. They had known this for at least two or three weeks. Yesterday Patrolman John McGilgan and R. H. Wirtalla paid a Sunday morning call at the Sault home and found five gallons of liquor, 28 bottles of beer, a still and about 100 gallons of mash. All the liquor was brought to the police station.

Mrs. Sault admitted that she had been selling but said she needed the money. Judge Johnson imposed a fine of $125 and costs.

THREE AUTO CRASHES PRODUCE NO HURTS

But One Costs Peter Janizewski $25 and Costs For Driving Recklessly at Crossing.

Three automobile accidents occurred in Manchester Saturday, none of them of a very serious nature.

The worst collision brought together a trolley car and a moving van near Adams street about 2 o'clock. The trolley, an extra, manned by a Hartford crew, struck the van operated by M. G. Kenyon of Burnside, while the latter was crossing street, pushed it more than 20 feet along the tracks. Motorman Frank L. Dunn suffered a bruised leg but no one else was hurt. Both trolley and moving van were damaged considerably.

Another accident, the collision of two pleasure cars at Church and Chestnut streets about noon and as a result Peter Janizewski of Woodbridge street, was ordered to appear in court this morning by Sargent William Barron, who investigated the crash, to answer a charge of reckless driving. His car figured in a crash when it was operated by James H. McVeigh of 81 Oxford street. No one was injured but both cars were badly damaged.

In court this morning Judge Johnson decreed that Janizewski had not used proper care at the intersection and fined him $25 and costs, which he paid.

Automobiles operated by James W. Burke, 18 Fairview street, and Frank J. Robinson of East Haven, bumped fenders at Oak and Cottage streets at 3 o'clock.

BARRYMORE AT RIALTO

His "Don Juan" a Revelation In Portrayal of the Reckless, Torrential, Fighting Lover.

John Barrymore's stupendous melodrama of passionate beauty, "Don Juan," enjoyed its Manchester premiere last night at the Rialto theater before an enthusiastic house.

Since Barrymore played the silted, sinuous, sensuous lover in "The Jest" on the stage, his admirers wondered when he would get around to creating a similar character on the screen.

"The Jest," because of its morbid subject matter, was hardly stuff for the screen. The Warner Brothers, however, found something, not only just as good as a Barrymore vehicle but a picture that sets a new mark for screen romance.

From its first scenes in the Gothic-Moorish castle in Spain, through the colorful pageantry of Rome in the days of the Borgias, Don Juan breathes the dark mystery, the tense suspense, the incomparable fascination of the days of the gorgeous Borgias.

Barrymore, loves gaily, torrentially, fiercely; he fights with reckless abandon; he thrills in every moment of romance. His Don Juan is a masterpiece of dramatic beauty who, amid a cast that is studded with brilliant names, the name of Estelle Taylor probably stands out most luminously. This dark beauty, in a white wig, makes of Lucretia Borgia a character of memorable charm; an imperious beauty who, for some reason, is the only one that Don Juan refuses to make love to.

Mary Astor is beautiful enough as the heroine, the chaste Adriana, to justify her as the great lover's final selection, to be borne off in a whirlwind climax to Don Juan's castle in Spain.

A selected program of shorter subjects will also be shown on the same program with "Don Juan" which will be offered again today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

ROLLS UP VOTES TO NAME SMITH

New York.—Even if Abraham April, local fur dyer, has to hold up 100,000 pairs of stockings and socks to do it, he's going to see that Al Smith gets the Democratic presidential nomination. April has purchased 100,000 pairs of garters, 50,000 fancy ones for the ladies and the same number for men, and is distributing them over the country. Each garter is stamped with the slogan: "I garter vote for Al for President. By their garters ye shall know them."

By the President of the United States of America
A Proclamation

In accordance with the custom established by my predecessor, I have yearly proclaimed an American Forest Week. I do so again in belief that no other of our internal problems is of greater moment than the rehabilitation of our forests, now so hopefully begun but needing the strong support of our collective will and intelligence. Through joint arrangement Canada is observing forest week concurrently with us.

One-fourth of our soil is better suited to timber-growing than anything else. I can not escape the conviction that our industrial and agricultural stability will be strengthened by bringing into full productive use this great empire of land. Although much progress has been made in public forestry and hopeful beginnings in private forestry, we still have a vast aggregate of idle or semi-idle forest land, and another large aggregate of poor farm land that might more profitably grow timber instead of adding to the problem of agricultural over-production.

Consider what blessings the use of this land for intensive forest culture would bring to our country. Our migratory forest industries would be stabilized and made permanent. Rural industry would be greatly strengthened and vitalized. Agriculture would find in silviculture a strong ally, providing markets for farm produce and for surplus labor. Our farms themselves contain nearly a third of our woodland—an enormous potential farm asset if handled for continuous timber crops. With widespread forest culture, new wealth would spring up for the support of roads, schools, and local government, and the rural regions would enjoy a larger share of the national prosperity. For some of our surplus capital now seeking investment abroad, new outlets would be found in forest production. Our people would thereby have an assured supply of timber and would see the hills and the waste places reclothed with forests for their pleasure and inspiration.

American Forest Week gives a useful opportunity for taking counsel on what can and should be done to bring these neglected and waiting lands into use. It also gives an opportunity for each citizen to consider his own responsibility in the common task. It is not enough that the Federal and State governments have joined hands with the landowner in the first step toward forest rehabilitation, protection against fire. Every citizen whose thoughtless act may endanger the woods has the obligation of respecting the forest and guarding it from its worst enemy, fire.

Now, therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, do hereby designate and set aside as American Forest Week the week beginning April 24 and ending April 30, in this year of 1927; and I do earnestly urge that during that week the thought of all citizens be directed to the need of preventing forest fires and to the measures necessary for the preservation and wise use of our forests. I recommend to the governors of the several States that they likewise designate this week for special observance, and that where practicable and not in conflict with law or custom, Arbor Day be observed on some day of the same week. I urge that in each state special exercises be held in the schools and that the press and the general public give consideration to the forest needs of their respective commonwealths, to the adequacy of such legislation as may be on their statute books, and to the possible need for further enactment. And I urge that all who own forest lands give consideration to the feasibility of so using them that their benefits may continue in perpetuity.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

(Seal)

Done at the city of Washington this March 5, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and fifty-first.

TO MIX TOWN PLAN WITH DOCTOR'S FUN

Chamber of Commerce to Talk
Of Future and See New Entertainer at Dinner.

Dr. Gideon B. Searles, entertainer, has been engaged for the monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce which will be held on Friday evening at the Rainbow Inn. A roast chicken dinner will be served at 8:30 and the business and entertainment will follow.

Among the business matters which will be taken up is the proposed town plan, concerning which members of the Chamber have conferred with the Board of Selectmen. The result of these conferences will be made known to the Chamber members.

Dr. Searles, who has been booked through the Citizens entertainment bureau of Hartford, has impersonated an old time country physician. He has never appeared here before but he is said to be extremely funny.

The Smithsonian Institute has listed about 5700 plants and trees growing in Mexico.

A START ON CIGARETTES.

Though for some unaccountable reason the over-combustible cigarette seems to have almost entirely escaped the attention of the press of the county as one of the chief causes of preventable fire loss—and in our view the incendiary responsible in probably a majority of the forest fires—the Herald has learned that in two highly important quarters, at least, interest in the problem has at last been aroused.

Recently this newspaper addressed inquiries in two quarters in hope of ascertaining whether anything had been done in the way of investigating the manufacture of cigarettes with a view of discovering what processes, if any, are employed to increase the natural combustibility of this form of tobacco, and what can be done by way of reform. One of the agencies addressed was the Hartford Fire Insurance Co., as a representative of an interest more directly, if not more deeply, concerned with fire prevention than any other in the country. The other was the Bureau of Standards of the United States Department of Agriculture, which has at its command facilities for the carrying on of such investigations, and which seemed to us to be not remotely associated with the question of forest preservation.

We have received the following from James Wyper, vice-president of the Hartford Insurance Co.: "The subject is one that has had the attention of fire insurance companies for a long period and we were very much interested to learn a few days ago that a movement is on foot among cigarette manufacturers to reduce the hazard of their product by making the lower part of the cigarette much less combustible than it is now. We are not fully advised as to what the process is and of course it may never come to anything, but the interesting point is that we have at last succeeded in getting the cigarette manufacturers to give thought to the subject."

From the Bureau of Standards we are in receipt of a letter signed by L. J. Briggs, acting director, containing the following: "We have as yet made no analysis to determine what admixtures, if any, are present in cigarettes to stimulate the burning. Our experience with all the common brands of cigarettes is that they will continue burning until entirely consumed, even where no draft is present. We are at present conducting some work on the fire hazard of cigarettes and matches with a view toward recommending modifications that may decrease the hazard and when we obtain something of value to report we shall be pleased to inform you."

From these communications it will be seen that extremely important forces are at work toward the very earliest beginnings of a reform that by all good rights should have been instituted long ago. The rectification or doctoring of cigarettes to increase their combustibility—or possibly for some other purpose with the increased combustibility an accidental incident—has been going on for a long time but not so long as to convince the older cigarette smokers that there is any necessity for it. Whatever may be the purpose or the process, neither is a vital one to the tobacco trade—and it is costing, unquestionably, hundreds of millions of dollars in needless fires, particularly in the woods.

With the insurance companies and the Bureau of Standards interested, it would seem to be high time that these agencies received some assistance from the newspaper and periodical press of the country. Wide publicity in this matter would almost beyond question be followed speedily by the abandonment of the practice of nitrating cigarettes artificially.

SACCO-VANZETTI.

At the time of the murder trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti Judge Webster Thayer, in his charge to the jury, quoted Captain Harry Proctor of the Massachusetts State Police, firearms expert, since dead, as saying: "It was Sacco's pistol that passed the fatal bullet."

So far was this from being what Captain Proctor did say on the stand that the police officer later swore on his oath that he not only did not say that the bullet in question came from Sacco's pistol but that he did not mean that it did and furthermore did not believe that it did. What he did testify to, in response to a very carefully formulated question, was that the bullet, as shown in court, was "consistent" with having been forced by Sacco's pistol.

It would have been entirely possible for Capt. Proctor to truthfully say the same thing, no doubt, with reference to any one of a thousand other pistols of similar make, approximate age and condition of upkeep. And for that reason, according to his own subsequent statement, Captain Proctor had informed the district attorney that he would not swear Sacco's gun fired the fatal bullet. Whereupon the prosecution evolved the trick question that the expert could answer in the affirmative—and on that answer Judge Thayer hung his utterly untruthful declaration to the jury.

This is only one of a score of incidents on which advocates of justice base their protests against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti without a new and fair trial. The evidence of witnesses identifying the men as members of the Braintree murder party was accepted in spite of the fact that the prosecution knew in half a dozen instances at least that these witnesses had made previous identifications of entirely different persons or had asserted that they could identify nobody.

On the whole the Sacco-Vanzetti trial was probably the most unfair ever held in New England. To kill the accused men as the result of it would be unthinkable. All New England looks to Governor Fuller.

THREE-FOURTHS GONE.

Enormous virgin forests concealed for many years the timber supply problem of the United States. Fully 90 per cent of the cut of high-grade saw timber is still being taken from stored supplies in the remaining virgin forest. But our virgin forest area, originally $22 million acres, has, chiefly during the last 50 years, been reduced to 125 million acres. Of an original stand undoubtedly far exceeding 5,200 billion feet board measure, only 1,600 billion feet of virgin timber remain. On some 250 million acres of cut and burned over lands second-growth forests, occurring largely in scattered, broken, volunteer stands of relatively inferior size and quality, contain an additional 600 billion feet of saw timber.

We must have timber in the future for the maintenance of high American standards of living and continued industrial development. The shrinkage in our supply is going on at a tremendous rate. We cannot hope except in small part to meet our demands either through substitution of other materials or through imports. The maintenance of even present levels of total consumption will entail drastic reduction of per capita consumption. On the entire area of our forest land nature, largely unaided except during the last two decades, is now replacing the annual drain by new growth to the extent of only one-fourth. This growth must be increased as rapidly as possible to the full growing capacity of our forest land.

SENSATIONALISM.

After many years in the Methodist pulpit Jesse D. Roberts, pastor of a church at Milford, yesterday preached a sermon of resignation from his pastorate, from the Methodist ministry and from Methodism. One may freely grant that when a clergyman becomes convinced that he has been associated with a great error in teaching any particular kind of religion the honorable course for him to pursue is to withdraw from his previous path. But when such a teacher, through years of growing doubt, continues his leadership up to one certain day, and then on that day explodes in an arraignment of the faith and the creed and the practices of which he has, till the very moment, been an exponent, his proceeding may be opening to criticism on the ground that it is poorly considered if not hysterical.

In his sermon of resignation Mr. Roberts criticized the entire Christian church in its attitude toward the religious life of the world and for its lapse from the faith of its founders.

It is our point that such criticism does not come too gracefully from any person who, until the day of its utterance, has permitted himself to be identified with the institution upon which he so suddenly turns. There is about it a suggestion of the very sensationalism which Mr. Roberts attacks.

One wonders if the Milford minister would not have been fairer to Methodism and fairer to himself and his congregation if he had elected to retire as quietly as possible, letting strictures on religious institutions wait until he himself had gained the perspective of the layman over a period of months if not years.

GOING UP.

Once more do events emphasize the assertions of self-made men at Rotary luncheons that never before did Success so willingly hold out her hand to the striver as now. In the throes of old days men became mayors of New York in hope of becoming governor of the state and with the dream that the governorship might lead to the Presidency of the United States.

Consider the modesty of that aspiration of, say sixty or seventy years ago. And then consider the change in this glorious twentieth century, when a mayor of New York may even become head of the American League of Baseball Clubs!

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

MOTHERHOOD ON A PEDESTAL

By ARTHUR N. PACK, President, American Nature Ass'n.

Like a rose-streaked cloud floating the turquoise-tinted tropical skies is the flight of a flock of American scarlet flamingoes (phoenicopterus ruber) and lucky the nature lover who happens upon Flamingo Land, because this bird is unique both in coloring and its home-making activities.

Hundreds build their homes together in a community, something like a co-operative apartment building. The bird scoops up mud with its feet, shaping it into a truncated conical mound, in the cup-shaped depression of which is deposited the bird's single egg. In rare instances an over-anxious mother deposits two eggs. On this eminence the mother flamingo, perched as though on a pedestal, incubates her egg.

A glimpse of Flamingo Town, when the mothers are incubating, is worth all the trouble to locate, for they are shy and retiring by nature and build their nests in marshes and swamps remote from the haunts of man. Tropical America is their home and they are found in large numbers along the coast from Yucatan to Brazil, and occasionally in southern Florida and Louisiana.

When full grown the adults are about five and one-half or six feet high, shaped mid-way between a goose and a stork, with humped backs. The flamingo is a bird of awkward build but most beautiful plumage. Its legs are amazingly long and slender, its neck as limber as a snake and curving like the letter S.

Its head is small with down-curved beak of peculiar formation. The lower mandible forms a broad bow and the upper mandible fits down over this like the lid of a box. When feeding they twist their heads upside down with their corkscrew necks in such a manner that the upper beak is lower than the lower mandible.

This they use as a scoop, pushing it through the mud and water where food is to be found. When they have secured a scooped they eject the mud and water through their mandibles, retaining the mollusks, and possibly a frog which they have secured and swallowing them.

New York, April 25.—Generations of performers, coming and going from the line of severe looking "actor's boarding houses" which branch off in every direction from Broadway, leave behind them amusing traces of their trade.

Anyone who wishes to try out his correspondence school detective training might start his career by making a tour of these places.

One glance at an ancient carpet will betray the presence of vast numbers of "hoofers." Invariably there will be many spots worn thin by the scruffing of countless pairs of shoes.

For the "hooper," as the novelty dancers are dubbed, tries out his new steps in the secrecy of his room. An audience, watching the intricate gyrations of a dancer and noting the ease with which incredibly difficult steps are executed, has little idea of the hours and months of patient practice put into a single slick step. For the essence of "hooper" popularity is novelty; he must contrive new stuff or expire. And so, about noon time, boarding house floors vibrate and creak as the dance creations go on.

The presentation of these novelties creates more attention back stage than with the audience. The audience accepts it as part of the routine, but back stage the word goes round that "Willie X" is strutting "some new stuff." Other dancers act busy their eyes to the curtain peep holes to watch and there is no greater flattery than that of being watched by ones' fellows. "Willie X," with the usual slant of the week later that all the onlookers are "stealing his stuff."

"That's the trouble with this racket," he will weep. "You spend a year getting up a step and the peeping tows steal it right out from under you."

It might be added that "Willie X" will probably be at the peephole the following night watching the capers of some other dance act and, perhaps unconsciously, making notes on a couple of steps that pleases him.

They tell a story of one landlady who entered a room at the end of a tenancy to find a circle of holes surrounding a wall decoration. It seemed she had been harboring during the winter months a team of carnival knife throwers and they had been keeping in practice tossing dinks at the wall.

Song acts seek room with a piano.

These instruments are of the most ancient vintage, sadly in need of tuning and scarred by thousands of cigars that have burned their memories in the wood.

Broken chairs attest the presence of an over-zealous acrobat or juggler.

Many of these cheaper places still gas jets and innumerable minor tragedies have been written about the discouraged youngsters from the outlands who have been found in gas-filled rooms.

Gradually these pass. The old boarding houses of the mid-Forties disappear week by week, to make room for the skyscrapers, theaters and business blocks.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, Washington, April 25.—Snatches from a congressman's mail:

"Dear Hon.: I'm kindly asking you to give me a good definition for 'money.' This is to be written in not more than 20 (twenty) words. And I would greatly appreciate an answer by April 20th which you give me in a contest. Thanking you so much, and with best wishes, I am—"

"Dear Mr.—: Will you please write to tell us the best ways of making kites and flying kites? Our class in school is having a kite flying contest and I hope to know all the methods that Uncle Sam uses to tell what way the winds are blowing."

"Dear Congressman: Some say our country is menaced with catastrophe by the REDS. I say, too. We have a hired man and he said he was Pollock, but now it appears that he is a Russian and every night we wonder what will happen next. We have told him that his service is not longer wanted and each time we tell him he looks back at us with evil eyes and says nothing at all and pretends he does not understand us. He is a poor worker and has never cut his hair or shaved himself. His dirt is so much that he sleeps out in our barn. He can talk or listen to English language when he wishes it, but at other times not. Somebody should do some detective work here. Hoping that you can lend aid.—"

"Dear Sir: I am a student of the sixth grade. As I think you are interested in school children I will ask you an advice. Will you write me a letter on the subject of Science of Civil Government?"

"The congressman bought a book on the subject for a dollar that came out of his pocket and mailed the book to this future voter."

Snatches from a correspondent's mail: "Dear Mr. Dutcher: What in the world possessed you to write an article on the government sending out recipes for whisky and home brew?"

"Up to this time, only a few people knew it. Now, everybody knows it. And you have given me a lot of work to do. No more news for you!"

And this signed by none other than Gertrude, the most beautiful of all the congressional secretaries!

But most of Gertrude's friends take it more philosophically. Always glad to be called upon by "their" constituents.

Since publication of the very peculiar fact that, through various government documents mailed by congressmen to their constituents on request, the government was supplying the people of the land with instructions for making whisky, beer, wines and other alcoholic beverages, the requests for further information have been so numerous that some congressmen believe Uncle Sam might stop singing "How Dry I Am" for a moment and ask "How dry am I?"

One dry congressman from upstate New York, received in a single morning's mail 50 letters asking for Congressman Ed Hull's speech on the manufacture of whisky, the Agricultural Year Book for 1904 telling how to make wines or Congressman Celler's version of George Washington's recipe. Similar reports are heard all through the Senate and House office buildings.

Congressman Hull's secretary came in one morning to find more than a hundred such requests. In a fortnight she has numbered nearly 2000, and they came from every state in the country. Nearly ten thousand had been sent out in the weeks following Hull's speech.

All right-thinking men and women, however, will be glad to hear that Congressman Hull's supply of these speeches is about exhausted and while Hull is glad to take care of his own constituents, he won't supply printed for constituents of other congressmen. He is not impressed by the sly tactics of certain dry congressmen in sending people not connected with their offices to Hull's offices for copies requested by their constituents.

Telling the public how to make whisky wasn't Hull's object, anyway. He was one of the country's biggest distillers, but he favors enforcement of the laws. He made that speech to beat the Andrews medicinal liquor bill which called for an $80,000,000 corporation to make 3,000,000 gallons of whisky.

Hull said that if his distillery were running he could make that much whisky in three months for $200,000 or so and shut down. He thought a poor man should be able to buy medicinal liquor for a sick wife at 75 cents a pint instead of $2 a pint plus a $3 prescription charge or instead of bad hooch for $2 or $3. Whisky could be made for 35 or 40 cents a gallon, said Hull, and in his speech to the House he told just how whisky was made.

This speech knocked out the Andrews bill and helped put through a new bill with Hull's ideas in it, but the second bill lost out in the Senate during the filibuster.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Andrew Jackson (7)

Once again in that war with the Creeks the soldiers tempted Jackson's bravery. Most of the men's terms had expired and they demanded they be allowed to go back home. Jackson trained the artillery on them and ordered them to their quarters. But daily his force dwindled as men deserted. 425 Finally, early in 1814, the long-awaited supplies arrived, with more soldiers. Jackson led his men at once into battle. At Horseshoe Bend, on the Tallapoosa river, the Creeks made their last stand against Jackson's indomitable attack. 425 After the Creeks had been subdued, Jackson was made a major-general and placed in command at Mobile. The British were then at Pensacola, capital of Florida, which, though it was Spanish territory, Jackson asked for permission to attack. Without waiting for orders from Washington, Jackson stormed the town with 3000 men. (To Be Continued)

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

by Anne Austin

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Because he believes they have worthy ambitions, Billy has decided to further, T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire department store owner, chooses three girls from his establishment to come into his home as his wards for one year. BILLY WELLS, who wants to become a concert violinist, is the only one of the three who is sincere. NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHILTON enjoy Curtis' generosity under false pretenses. Billy overhears old Curtis say he is going to adopt one of the girls as his daughter when the year is up and in order not to have unfair advantage of the girls, he tells them. She is unwillingly drawn into the battle which Nyda and Winnie wage for the old man's affection.

The story of this, together with an infatuation for DAL ROMAINE, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, the chaperone, is causing her to lose interest in her violin. In spite of her obsession with the romantic Dal, she remembers tenderly CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor. Clay has disinherited himself and is boarding with Mrs. Wells in a poor section of the town, working in the Truman factory in daytime and writing music at night.

Winnie Shilton offers to do old Curtis' secretarial work in the evenings, so Billy, who often is asked to play for the old man, will not get the upper hand. Old T. Q. Nyda and obtains two private pupils for her. Remembering Billy to allow him to accompany her on a shopping tour. He directs her to the exclusive shop of Madame Dubois, where she makes purchases to the amount of three hundred and ten dollars. As they leave the shop, she is surprised to hear the girl mention to Romaine his previous visit there with Winnie Shilton. When they ride toward the country, they see Nyda Lomax with her head on EDDIE BANNING'S shoulder. Eddie was Nyda's chauffeur-attaché in her department store days.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXI

"TELL me about you and Nyda and Winnie before you came to live at Mr. Curtis' house," Dal Romaine suggested, as the roadster sped away from Colfax. "What sort of girls were they? Were the three you friends, or enemies, as you now seem to be?"

"Nyda and Winnie were friends, or rather, as close friends as two such pretty girls can be," Billy answered. "Nyda was our store vamp, but she had no real harm in her. She was engaged to Eddie Banning, the chauffeur, but broke with just now, and she thought she was doing very well indeed to get him. He makes sixty a week, and has his room, meals and uniforms as well as fat tips from his millionaire employer's guests. And I think Nyda was really in love with him."

"What sort of chap—Banning?" Dal asked casually, his eyes on the road.

"Oh, a roughneck, I suppose you'd say, not too chivalrous toward women, not even toward Nyda. But he suited Nyda—then, before she was thrown into luxury and a society for which she was not fitted. None of us was fitted for the life we've been thrown into—"

"Except you," Dal told her softly. "Thank you, but it's not true, just the same," Billy contradicted him.

"Tell me about Winnie," he smiled indulgently, as if she were a stubborn child.

"Winnie," and Billy's voice hardened slightly, "was the prettiest girl in the store, and the men spoiled her. She could always get any man she wanted, and no girl's best beau was safe if Winnie wanted him. If T. Q. hadn't taken her up, she would probably have married Clyde Stewart, or someone like him, and glad of the chance. Now—well, she's playing for bigger stakes, and if she has to go back to the store—of course she'll never be a private secretary; she hasn't that sort of brains—her whole life will be spoiled. So will Nyda's. I don't know what's holding her to Eddie

His arms went about her then, holding her close.

Banning, for it's plain that she hates him now. And I don't believe either Nyda or Winnie will land a husband among the society men we've been thrown with as T. Q.'s wards. After all, we are Cinderella girls, shopgirls playing at society, and the agreement we signed prohibits us from marrying within the year. Of course a contract like that would not be binding in court, and if Winnie could grab off Ralph Truman or Bruce Kruger or—"

"Oh, I'm afflicted with a conscience," she caught her lower lip between her teeth to keep it from trembling in the wave of feeling that swept over her. "I'll live up to my contract. Not that I expect to be besieged with offers of marriage," and she flashed that impudent grin at him again.

"I'll be hard to live up to that contract than you think," he said meaningfully, his eyes narrowing in brooding seriousness upon her.

"I forgot to tell you," Dal's voice was casual again. "I have a friend, a chap I know in India, who owns a small country place out here. I phoned him that we would take potluck with him today. I thought you'd like that better than an inn or a roadhouse with its inevitable fried chicken dinner. Kennedy will have his native food for us, and you must be introduced to Indian food. You're going to eat a lot of it before you're many years older."

"Am I?" Billy laughed shakily.

"Yes," his voice was very low. "India has marked you for her own, just as she marked me—before I was born."

"You give me the shivers," Billy protested. They said little more until the house, a low, rambling log cabin, came into view. A curl of blue smoke from the squat rock chimney promised warmth and hospitality. The raucous squawk of Romaine's horn brought a tiny bronze man, eight and odd, to the door of the cabin. At sight of Romaine, the East Indian salaamed three times, bumping his greasy black head on the rough boards of the porch. His dirty white robe flapping about his skinny legs in the March wind.

Romaine spoke rapidly in a foreign tongue, and was answered in the same language. Then the East Indian shuffled to the car, and after salaaming low before Billy, opened the door and stood back deferentially as she alighted.

Sukha Singh says that Kennedy is out in his car. He darkly suspected misfortune, but I'm sure old Ken will turn up any minute. If he isn't here within half an hour, we'll have luncheon anyway. Ken probably has had a little car trouble. His old bus is a hundred years old, more or less, and he rarely takes it out without having to be hauled in."

His speech of explanation carried them into a big living room, furnished with an incongruous mixture of cheap American-made furniture and East Indian—rugs, brasses, pottery and garishly colored printed muslin. She stared about her in amazement, as she walked slowly to the fire blazing on the wide, deep hearth.

"A bit of India to give you a taste for it," Dal Romaine told her softly, as he lifted her shuffling coat from her shoulders.

The East Indian servant shuffled out of the room, after a few rapid sentences and another series of salaams, closing the door after him. Billy stooped to warm her hands at the fire, while Dal Romaine leaned against the mantel, one brown hand stroking a cobra candlestick made of brass, its intricate carving painted with vivid green and red. Her gaze had not left him, and now it widened, became fixed in an unwinning stare, as the mysterious power of his black eyes, narrowed and burning, had its way with her.

Slowly his hand that was stroking the coiled cobra of the candlestick lifted, slipped along the mantelpiece, dropped to his side, clenched into a hard, brown fist. His whole body seemed to grow as rigid as a bronze statue. Only the eyes escaped, rigidly. As she stared at him, spellbound, the lids lifted their long black fringes until the full size of the sooty black irises was revealed. Even the drooping lid of the right eye gave up its secret. When the irises were fully revealed, their dull blackness seemed to turn to glittering, polished jet.

Their bodies were less than three feet apart. Entirely without her own volition, Billy took a jerky, mechanical step forward, raised her arms slowly as if they were controlled by marionette strings. He stood quiet still, knowing that he did not have to raise a finger, drawing her, compelling her, by the hypnotism of his wide, unwinning eyes.

When her shaking hands touched his shoulders, she threw herself upon his breast, her eyes released by contact with him. His arms went about her then, holding her close. It was then that she broke into a wild sob of relief and terror, but her fingers dug deeper into the smooth cloth of his coat, as if she were afraid that she would die if she loosened her hold.

"I want you to—kiss me," she panted, in a low, sob-shaken voice that was like nothing that had ever issued from her lips before. "I shall die if you don't kiss me."

Dal Romaine tells Billy the weird, startling, repulsive story of his life—and acts the part of a possessor upon her.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

Henry Ford, in his infinite wisdom, urges that wives be paid wages and share 50-50 in all their husband's profits. He insists that the wife's work is every whit as arduous, responsible, fatiguing and indispensable as the husband's. Even Hank Fords, it seems, talk nonsense at times, when they attempt to generalize big questions like this. We agree to a certain point. Many wives do deserve a 50-50 split with their husband's incomes. Many wives do not. Many wives do not work averagely hard and many husbands work more than averagely hard, and the vice versa.

Bit Confusing
It is a bit confusing, however, to hear a wife who has always prated about the inane of housework and the usual routine of the average wife, who deprecates its utility, its dullness, its utter lack of mental stimulation, who mouths the old, old saying, that "anyone can manage a house," and who regards the husband as the one who is considered the best houseworker, to shout for 50-50 wages for wives when the rest of them begin shouting.

The point is that she and all women like her accept all and any causes that smack at all of the new, the sensational, the "advanced"—not that there is anything especially "new" in the wages-for-wives argument, nor even the furor about the dullness of housework.

How About It?
Now, how about it? There is nothing in the world which makes me see red sooner than the lordly male who assumes that his wife has a soft snap, that she should be grateful for her "keep" and a few dollars which he will occasionally dole out with a beneficent gesture. This husband generally has "a soft snap" job himself, and learns when his wife is ill or dies that it costs him several hundred dollars a month to hire her work done. No general housekeeper, will wash, iron, nurse ill children, or even look after well ones. He may have to hire laundress, a cleaning woman, cook, nurse, governess, and seamstress. If the wife of such a husband isn't entitled to half his earnings, I don't know who is!

Other Ones
But—consider other wives—wives with one or no children. Wives who live, as most everyone does nowadays, in modern homes or flats with every possible convenience. The average city wife boasts that she refuses to "do a lick of work" afternoons. Her afternoons are her own for shopping, matinee, driving, calling, bridge-playing, beauty parlor dates, reading, or napping. These wives—all wives, in fact—have little conception of what it means to get and keep a job.

TUNISIANS TURN TO TIPPLING TEA
Tunis.—A mania for tea-drinking has become a social menace that physicians are trying to combat. Tunisians are rapidly becoming lazy and losing their sleep and appetites because of the habit, medical authorities claim. One doctor says he found cases of nervousness and eye disorders known to have resulted from the constant consumption of the tea. Last year Tunis used 1,100,000 kilos of tea compared to almost none before the war. Natives are said to be spending their entire incomes and even pawning their possessions to get it.

EXPRESSION IS ESSENCE OF BEAUTY, SA YS COFFIN

Celebrated Artist to Write Beauty Series for The Herald Starting Today.

HASKELL COFFIN'S CHOICE

This is Haskell Coffin's conception in oil of Miss Myrta Roach, of Omaha, Neb., who got his vote in a beauty contest.

Haskell Coffin, premier portrayer of the American girl, here begins exclusively for NEA Service and The Herald a series of six articles on beauty. In them, he will pick feminine prettiness to pieces and assay the parts with the artist's expert eye.

By HASKELL COFFIN.
I have been asked to define beauty, dissect it and analyze its ingredients, its dimensions and to cite illustrations of just what it looks like when realized.

But, is there such a thing as perfect beauty? I think not. It's so much a matter of personal preference that I doubt if it can be found in any one type—unless it is the Venus de Milo, and the Milo is only a work of art—imagination.

Each person has his own particular ideas about beauty—what appeals to him and what does not. Preferences in coloring, formation, size and expression differ with each individual. I, for instance, like small, dainty women. Perhaps that is because I am married to one—Frances Starr.

Yet there are some general definitions that any person desiring to be measured by beauty standards must fulfill.

Beauty Is Compound.
First, beauty is no single thing. It is a compound of two ingredients, generally speaking, in about the proportion of 50-50; 50 per cent structure and 50 per cent expression. Not just features, but the whole carriage, the expression of hands, carriage of the head, enter into it.

Both expression and structure can be analyzed further. But neither makes for beauty alone. A with positively ugly women who know how to capitalize expression and be "knock-outs." In choosing models to paint, I prefer beauty of expression above perfection of features.

For, while the structure of features is an act of Providence often generously bestowed, often harshly withheld, I prefer beauty of expression that a person can cultivate. Expression is the sum total of a woman's character, her disposition, her temperament.

She Got the Vote.
As a judge once in a beauty contest, the girl who got my vote was not as perfectly formed as the others but her expression had an infinite sweetness and appeal that brought one's eyes back to her pleasantly.

In turn we asked each "beauty," "What is your ambition?" One and all would be movie queens, Broadway stars, artists, public successes. All, that is, except my choice. She hesitated a second and then said quietly:

"I would like to get married and have five children."

Her facial expression reflected that genuine feminine sweetness that most men, even modern ones, value. It gave a quality of real beauty to her.

Beauty in general should have a naturalness about it. That is one reason I do not like bobbed hair. Long hair has a natural grace that the standardized bob often lacks. The carmine lips, the enamel-like powdered faces and the tightly marcelled coiffures of many women today harden and give them an artificiality that can never be akin to beauty.

Worse, perhaps, is the young girl who uses purple, orange or crimson rouge and lip-stick. For youth has its own bloom, a delicate one, that is utterly lost under make-up. The charm of woman is in her completeness and harmony, grace and simplicity—and a painted mask is not this, nor a part of her. Use it very lightly if you would be distinguished—make-up is an art few understand, for it must appear natural.

Who "could paint the lily or gild refined gold," as Shakespeare has said?

In the next article, Haskell Coffin dissects the beautiful face.

LAXATIVES BAD FOR YOU IF TAKEN TOO OFTEN

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The modern physician is rather intolerant of attempts to control disturbances of the stomach and intestines by the regular use of patented laxatives and cathartics.

Many a person has developed a cathartic habit by attempting to control temporary attacks of slow action of the bowels by the ready-made preparations that may be had through the drug stores.

A person who suffers with irregularity, should add to his diet a larger quantity than normal of fluids in the form of water or of buttermilk. Tea should be avoided because it contains tannic acid, which may by its astringent action, counteract the good effect of the larger quantity of liquids. The fluids should be taken not only at meals but in the intervals.

The diet in such cases should contain as large an amount of fat as the patient can take without much disturbance. The amount of vegetables that contain quantities of fibrous tissue should be increased. Such vegetables include spinach, peas, cauliflower, cabbage, asparagus, onions, celery and tomatoes.

Careless drivers who smash fire plugs cost the city of Philadelphia $2000 a year.

Child Theatres

By Olive Roberts Burton

There is at least one specialist in child movies in the United States.

I was interested in reading about the real interest, intelligence, and tact but not least, heart, he puts to his business. His name is Charles W. Dimick, of Boston.

One of my hobbies is clean and instructive shows for children. I believe it is coming steadily. Indeed it has already arrived. There is a movement for the child theater that has already found expression in several of our big cities.

But the Lancaster Theater, Boston, is not a child's theater. What Mr. Dimick has done could be done in almost any regular moving-picture house, particularly in rural, suburban or neighborhood communities.

Almost any mother will agree with me that it is very nearly an impossible task these days to keep children away from the movies. If they are not allowed to go they are dubbed "queer" or "goody" among their playmates. And mothers have grown to know that unusual discipline that calls undue attention to a child has the same effect as unusual clothes. It makes him sensitive, unhappy and self-conscious.

Besides, why should we have to

C.B.A.A. And S.M.H.S. Furnish Fun For Fans

Keep "Pot-a-Boiling" Year Around; Amateur Boxing At Stadium Feature of Summer's Program.

By the Sports Editor
Manchester sport fans would be practically broke on athletic activities were it not for Cheney Brothers' A. A. and the high school teams. These provide ample entertainment almost the whole year round while others contribute far less frequently and as a consequence do not gain as much limelight or recognition. Both the high school and C. B. A. deserve credit for their indefatigable efforts. That the fans appreciate their work is shown by heavy attendances.

The Hardest Task

Perhaps of the two Cheney Brothers deserve more credit for their row has been the harder to hoe with but little compensation. As revealed before, amateur boxing is no gold mine and the only sport run on a paying basis was basketball. Others proved a serious handicap for the association to meet with its none-to-pleasant income. With the exception of high school basketball games, the amateur boxing tournaments at Cheney Hall have been the only athletic activity that has attracted wide attention.

Popular Decision

So, quite naturally, the decision of Promoter Jack Jenney and the board of directors recently to continue the popular sport out-of-doors was welcome news. Considerable work and expense will be involved in this transfer. This includes widening the McKee street stadium, installing a ring and numerous other smaller jobs. The first out-door tournament will be held a week from next Wednesday night, May 4. Prior to this time, the boxing is conducted in the gymnasium. The ring will be located midway between the grandstand front and home plate on the baseball field. Seats will be located so that persons sitting in either the grandstand or the bleachers will command a splendid view.

1,500 Seating Capacity

Each bleacher has a seating capacity of about 400 while the grandstand will accommodate over 600. A portion of the grandstand will be restricted for reserved seats. So, all in all, the stadium seats will be sufficiently near the action for 1,500 fans to watch them. Electric lights will be installed in the stands, ring, ticket office and dressing rooms.

A meeting of the C. B. A. A. directors will be held tonight at 5 o'clock in the machine shop to further perfect plans. It is expected that they will okay the present admission fee of 75 cents and 50 cents.

DEPENDABLE

Used Car dealers are just as particular and careful in their efforts to offer real values in dependable used cars as banks are to render a dependable service to their customers. Keenness of present day business competition demands it.

Wise buyers of used cars know that now, with early-season prices prevailing, dealers are offering bigger and better values than ever before.

You will find a wide selection of late models and makes listed daily under Classification 4.

Why not select YOUR car early in the season before the demand exceeds the supply-in fact, why not make your selection TODAY?

I REPEAT, AMY, THE FUTURE OF THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY BUILDING STORIES TO SAY IN THE LITTLE SATCHEL. IF OUR SECRET SELF-STARTER WORKS, OUR COMPRESSED AIR CAR WILL CROWD EVERY COMPETITOR OFF THE ROAD. WE WON'T BE ABLE TO TURN THEM OUT FAST ENOUGH THINK OF A CAR THAT COSTS $100, AND RUNS ON ITS REPUTATION.

WHY DON'T WE GOT WHEN YOU FASTENED THOSE WIRES THE PLUGS IT SEEMED TO WIND UP SOMETHING!! I HOPE THAT BELLHOP DIDN'T BREAK ANY OF THE MECHANISM INSIDE THE SATCHEL WHEN HE INSISTED ON TAKING IT SO YOU'D HAVE TO HAND HIM A TIP.

I'VE HAD A HUNCH ALL ALONG THERE'D BE SOME HITCH IN IT... BUILDING THINGS ON AIR IS BAD BUSINESS, WHETHER IT'S A CASTLE OR A CAR... HERE'S A VALVE ON THE COMPRESSED AIR CYLINDER OPEN... MAYBE THAT'S THE TROUBLE... I'LL CLOSE IT AND SEE.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Not the sweet peas will NOT be as large as the picture on the catalogue cover. Poetic justice is served these days when a head barber has to listen while cutting a lady's hair. Report says the illegal hooch industry gives employment to one million persons—not including, of course, the undertakers. Some are so at home anywhere they make others feel like company. "I do not like static," said a man "as I can hear plenty of funny noises when I listen to same one who disagrees with me." Considering his proclivities, "Jack" Dempsey is well named. If he is killing time, you can't tell whether he is a dishonest workman or the foreman. Better to be loved and bossed than never to be loved at all.

NOW YOU Ask One

A LITTLE HISTORY Today's list of questions deals with history—American and otherwise. You'll find the answers on another page. 1—Who was king of France at the time of the French Revolution? 2—What famous general came to power in France after the revolution? 3—In what year was the battle of Waterloo fought? 4—From what country, and in what year, did the United States acquire Florida? 5—What famous general was killed at the battle of Chancellorsville? 6—In what year was the Franco-Prussian war declared? 7—Who was Queen Liliuokalani? 8—In what year did the San Francisco earthquake take place? 9—Who was Aguirre? 10—What historic event occurred in 1914 at Sarajevo?

Don't trust to luck anything that you can do yourself. First Sheikh: I told her she could either pet or walk home. Second Ditto: What did she say? First Same: She said she would be darned if she would. Second Ditto: Would what? First Also: Walk. Speeding Problem—When a traffic cop overhauls you and asks you where you're going, tell him you were hurrying to buy tickets to the policemen's ball before they are sold out. This plan works anywhere, at all hours of the day or night.

Constable—"I'm going to take you to the Y. M. C. A." Motorist—"What'd ye mean, the Y. M. C. A.?" Constable—"You Motorists Come Across!"

They looked all through the books, and then, jumped up and started out again. "Oh, can I go along with you?" the scholar begged the bunch. And Scouty said, "Well, as a rule, we'd tell you yes, but, off to school you'd better go, or you'll get spanked. Now there's a happy bunch." The lad said, "Well, I guess you're right. I wish I was a Tinymite. I'll bet you have a heap of fun just playing all day long. Some day when all my work is done, I too, am going to have some fun. But now I'll hurry off to school, so I'll not get in wrong." The wee lad scampered o'er the hill and for a moment all was still. Then C'wry said, "Oh, look ahead! What's in that great big tree?" Almost as quickly as he spoke, the bunch all reached a great big oak, and when they looked up in the leaves, the whole bunch said, "Oh, gee!" A little baby, swung with ease, Just like the acorns on the t-ees. Said Copy, "Why, that's Rock-a-bye. And soon it's going to fall. I'll stand here right below the tree and all the rest of you join me. Then when the baby tumbles it will not be hurt at all." Just then the wind began to blow. It rocked the baby to and fro. Wee C'wry said, "Now get all set to catch the little child. I think it has begun to slip, and soon will have a downward trip. Say, if the baby's mom knew this, 'twould surely make her wild." And then the little tot fell down, but never landed on the ground. The band of Tintles caught it and 'twas safe as it could be. The child woke up and said, "A-goo!" And thus the Tintles promptly knew that it would rather be with them than way up in the tree. (The Tinymites find Mother Goose's home in the next story.)

JACK LOCKWILL'S HIDDEN ENEMY

by Gilbert Patten

As it was not the custom for Jack and Willie to lock their room when absent from it, any person could have entered and released or stolen the pet monkey while both were away. When they made inquiries, they were told by "Crossfire," a sophomore who roomed in Hampton House, that a rough-looking stranger, a rather old boy who carried a bundle, had asked the way to their room.

"I thought," said Crossfire jokingly, "that the old scarecrow was delivering your laundry, so I instructed him how to get to your room without further questioning."

When they learned nothing more by further inquiry and search, Jack and Willie posted a notice of a reward for the recovery of the missing monkey.

the monkey, Jack and Willie declared Lockwill, "because Imp was stolen while that was happening." "Then who did do it?" cried Willie, perplexed. "An unknown enemy," said Jack; "and maybe he's the fellow who fired at me from the woods." (To Be Continued)

THE LOWLY HAYBURNER HOLDS UP THE TROLLEY

The wheels of progress on the Manchester Green trolley line were held up Saturday for some time by the lowly horse.

A load of hay going in the direction of the Center came to grief when one of the wheels of the wagon caught in the groove of the tracks just east of Pitkin street. The wagon tipped over and trolley traffic was held up until it could be removed from the tracks.

FERGUSONS TO ATTEND NEWSPAPER CONVENTION

Country Editors to Join With Herald's Scribes at Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

Thomas Ferguson, managing editor and Ronald H. Ferguson, city editor of The Herald, left at noon today for New York City where they will attend the newspaper men's convention for the next four days. The Associated Press, International News Service, United Press, and American Newspaper Publishers' Association all hold their annual gatherings together this year at the Waldorf-Astoria. This evening Thomas Ferguson will attend the annual banquet of the International News Service and Hearst newspapers at the Friars club. Ronald Ferguson will attend the United Press Association's 20th anniversary dinner tonight in the Hotel Biltmore. This dinner will be addressed by President Calvin Coolidge and Irvin S. Cobb. President Coolidge's address will be broadcast through WTIC at 9 o'clock tonight. Ronald Ferguson is the Manchester member of the United Press associations.

Tomorrow the local newspapermen will attend a luncheon of our visiting men given by the Hamilton-Delisser agency of New York City. The luncheon will be held at the Williams club. Tomorrow afternoon the convention will be in full swing and tomorrow night the newspapermen will attend one of the New York theaters in a body. The local men are attending the big gathering to get a line on the latest news services, and feature material available to newspapers. They will also inspect some of the new mechanical devices being introduced into newspaper offices.

ROCKVILLE LEGION TO INITIATE LOCAL MEN

Officers of Neighbor Post to Preside at Big Meeting Here Tonight.

Stanley Dobosz post, No. 14, of Rockville, will conduct the initiation ceremonies at the regular meeting of the Dilworth-Cornell Post, American Legion, at the state armory at 8:15 tonight.

A year ago the local legion post functioned for the Rockville post and the success of that meeting prompted Commander Bronke to reciprocate. It was found that greater co-operation between the two posts has resulted as a consequence of that meeting a year ago. The officers of the visiting post will occupy all chairs and the local officers can sit back.

Thirty visiting legionaires have promised to attend. These in addition to the regular post and the large class of initiates that has resulted from the month's drive for membership are expected to produce the largest meeting of the year.

The refreshments will be served by the Auxiliary. Commander Bronke gives out the news that the membership drive has been successful. Just how many new members have been secured will not be known until after the meeting tonight. The five teams have worked hard to win the prize (a dinner at the expense of the losers) and each captain claims the victory.

Last year the Rockville Post turned out 100 per cent strong when Manchester visited there. This year it is hoped that this courtesy will be returned.

After serving a 50-day term in the county jail, a Los Angeles man found that he had been sentenced to the city jail and had to serve the sentence again in the proper place of confinement.
