

TONG TRIAL HALTED BY SICK JUROR

Willis Hall Contracts Grip; Hopes To Continue the Case Tomorrow.

LOO HOO BREAKS DOWN

Causes Sensation When He Shrinks at Sight of Photo In Garb of Prisoner.

(Special to The Herald)

Hartford, Conn., May 6.—The trial of two New York Chinese for the murder of a Manchester Chinese again came to a temporary end today by reason of a juror's illness. The latest to succumb is Willis Hall, 57, of Marlborough, who went down under an attack of the grip. The trial will be resumed tomorrow at nine if the jurors all are well again. Hall is the third man to become ill in three days.

(Special Correspondence of The Herald)

Hartford, May 6.—Surprise after surprise developed at the murder trial of Ching Lung and Loo Hoo Wing, charged with the murder of Ong Jing Hen at the laundry on Oak street, South Manchester, on the morning of March 24, during the latter part of the trial yesterday afternoon, which was not adjourned until 5:30 in the afternoon. The crowd filled every seat and left many standing who remained until the close and even then wanted to hear what Judge Jennings, who presiding, had to say for the lawyers on both sides as regards the opening of the case this morning.

State Rests

The state rested its case as far as the presentation of evidence was concerned shortly after the resuming of the afternoon session and at 3:15 the defense put in its side.

The first surprise came when the finger print experts showed that there was a mark on the .32 caliber revolver that was used in the shooting that was the small finger of Loo Hoo Wing, who the state has been linking together with each step taken by Ching Lung. It was the finger print experts who testified that it was Loo Hoo Wing's finger that gave the big thrill that connected all and leads to what has been the state's opinion that Loo Hoo Wing was acting as an agent to see that a death was to be performed and that Ching Lung was the man picked to do the shooting, the revolver being given to him by Loo Hoo Wing. It was evident that the sudden change had an unexpected effect upon the defense.

In the hallway, when the short recess was taken and just before the defense made its side, it was apparent that Mr. Tin, who has been around the court house since the opening of the trial and has told that he comes from Detroit, was displeased. Francis Rohmayer, who has been in earnest conversation with him and Mr. Healey, the warrior that he is, also showed a change. He walked more rapidly up and down the hall and puffed with more rapidity upon his cigar. Inside in the state's attorney's office there was also much activity. There was an expectation that there might be a motion presented that would claim that Detective Hickey when he called the second time at the jail and took the prisoner prints did not warn them that anything that they might say could be used against them, but the state was claiming that the warning having been given once held true on all future attempts to get information.

Alcorn is Alcorn

There have not been the tiffs between State's Attorney Alcorn and former Attorney General Frank Healey that had been expected. Objections and exceptions have been taken, but not with a lot of argument and not once has the jury been asked to leave the box while a point of law was being presented before the judge for a ruling. The state has taken the different witnesses over the ground and at the time that the accused men boarded a taxi at City Hall on the morning of March 24, followed it to the railroad station, the securing of another taxi to drive to Manchester and Meriden, the change at Meriden to the cab that brought them to New Haven and the arrest there.

Each step has been backed up by different witnesses showing the men entering the taxi cabs, the appearance in Manchester, the dress of the men and the examination and identification in New Haven, but through it all aside from connecting Loo Hoo Wing with the general management of the carrying out of the plans there was lacking that one important thing, the fact which the state has tried to bring out—that Loo Hoo Wing did plan and plot for the killings, which would

HOSPITAL DRIVE STARTS TONIGHT AS TEAMS MEET

Circular Appeal Goes Out to Outsiders—List of Equip- ment Needed—M. J. Mori- arty a Team Captain.

Manchester people who have gone out into the world will be appealed to in the Manchester Memorial hospital drive. Chairman N. B. Richards sent out today letters of appeal to former local residents in this country and abroad, outlining the special needs of the hospital in equipment.

M. J. Moriarty, who had been approached previously to take the position of the last team captain, accepted today and with this the full number of team captains has been obtained. The workers and their captains are to meet tonight at dinner in St. Mary's church to discuss plans and arrange for the drive. About 100 workers are expected to be present.

Deficit Last Year

It was announced today that the amount needed for the coming year will be $48,787.91. This includes the expected collections of pledges already made and covering a period of four years. It also takes into account the deficit caused last year when the drive fell short by $10,000.

In the special letter to former residents there is mentioned a list of special equipment which may be subscribed for as memorials. The total of necessary equipment according to the list, will cost about $7,000.

Necessary Equipment

The special equipment, for which it is hoped that some money will be subscribed, includes endowment for a diabetic clinic and a laboratory, a children's pavilion, nurses' home, old people's home, contagious ward, an interior telephone system and physiotherapy equipment, among others.

Following is the letter to which is appended the list of necessary and special equipment.

Dear Friend:

Manchester is just now in the midst of a campaign to raise $50,000 for the anticipated deficit in the running expenses of the Manchester Memorial hospital for 1927. As you probably know, our deficit is only a small endowment and, as is true of practically every hospital in the country, the patients cannot pay what it actu-

Cantonese Recapture Yang- chow After Battle When 4,000 Are Killed, Hurt.

REDS ADVANCING

London, May 6.—Communist forces are advancing on Swatow, with the avowed intention of burning a portion of the city, according to advices to the Admiralty today. The Communist bands are now reported but seventeen miles from Swatow. The British warship Dana is protecting British interests there.

Americans Safe

Previous reports have indicated that Americans have evacuated Swatow.

General Chiang Kai Shek's forces have advanced to within 75 miles of Hankow, seat of the Communist faction of the Kuomintang, said a Central News dispatch from Shanghai today. The collapse of the Hankow government is imminent, the dispatch stated.

Thousands of the people in this camp were rescued from trees and the tops of houses.

Gray Leaves Stand His Story Unshaken

Over Sixteen Hours Testify- ing at Snyder Trial—Ad- mits He Murdered the Art Editor.

Courthouse, Long Island City, N. Y., May 6.—Henry Judd Gray, self-confessed slayer, left the witness stand at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon after having been on the witness stand for sixteen hours and twenty minutes; ten hours direct examination and six hours and twenty minutes cross-examination.

During that time he told one of the most remarkable stories ever recited at a murder trial. He not only admitted that he struck Albert Snyder, art editor, over the head and killed him while he lay asleep in his home, but he swore that he was changing his mind at the time of the murder, he estimated that he was changing his mind, and he was jointly accused with him of the murder, also took up the bludge-

Sticks to Story

Cross-examination of Gray failed to break down any of the essential points of his story. He stoutly maintained that Mrs. Snyder also struck a blow not only to Mrs. Snyder's lawyer, the Jerry Dana Wallace, but also when cross-examined by District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe. In fact, at one stage of his cross-examination he stood up dramatically in the witness box and, taking the sashweight in his two hands, demonstrated how he brought it down on Snyder's head.

Throughout his long cross-examination Gray was a polite, gentlemanly witness, saying in effect "Yes, I did it, sir, and I'll tell you all I know about it." He gave his dreadful picture of the crime from the stand late Wednesday and no subsequent questions could force him to change it. It was his story and he stuck to it.

There was no indication on Gray's part when he stepped off the stand that he was glad the ordeal was over. He walked quietly to his chair at counsel table and sat down.

Court then declared a recess until two o'clock when, it is understood, character witnesses for Gray will be put on the stand.

Courthouse, Long Island City, N. Y., May 6.—Henry Judd Gray's voice choked with emotion but he did not cease to answer questions in a relentless cross-examination he was led back to the death chamber in the pretty suburban home where he beat Albert Snyder, art editor, to death with an iron weight, with the assistance, he claims, of Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder.

Dana Wallace, the nervous, energetic attorney for Mrs. Snyder, brought him back to the scene in a desperate effort to break down his story of the crime which so strongly incriminated the woman co-defendant.

"She led me into the bedroom where Snyder lay asleep," said Gray in a shaky voice, in reply to a question.

Which hand? Well, he couldn't remember that. Yes, she went into the room with him.

"I don't recall of that," he said. "I can still see her standing there."

Yet he couldn't recall which hand?

"I Am Involved"

"Is it because the first involves her and the second involves you?"

A. I am involved already.

Q. Did you look to see if he was asleep?

A. No.

"You aimed at random?" Wallace shouted waving his glasses which he tore from his nose.

Gray's voice choked as he replied: "I could see where I was."

"Are you preparing for emotions now?" demanded the merciless Wallace.

"No, sir," came patiently and politely from Gray.

There was an arc light in front of the house, Gray explained, and he

BRASS BAND AIDS SOLONS TO ADJOURN

Music Rattles Through Cap- itol Corridors as General Assembly Slowly Passes Away Today.

Hartford, May 6.—Nothing short of a brass band could satisfy the desire of the Lower House of the legislature for noise as the 1927 General Assembly slowly passed away today. Someone moved for a five-minute adjournment at noon and when the body reassembled the band was seated on the main floor. Thereafter, under any provocation, someone called for and received various airs from "How Dry I Am" to "Hall, Hall, the Gang's All here."

There were solemn moments during the last hours. Rev. Dr. Watson L. Phillips, of New Haven, house chaplain, was given $50 in gold. He responded eloquently. John H. Hill, of Shelton, speaker of the House, received an expensive diamond ring. He, too, was eloquent after he had recovered from the surprise.

Farewell Message

Music rattled through the capitol corridors and drifted out the open windows. With noise seeming to call to his head, Gov. Trumbull sat in his private office, working on a farewell message to the Legislature. He hoped to deliver it in joint session late in the afternoon.

Business of an official sort was sandwiched between unofficial business. Arguments over this and that took place frequently. City and state bills were introduced, some being put over for another Legislature to settle. Bills were amended on the spot. Proposed amendments to existing laws were amended themselves until the bills stood exactly like the present laws.

Flowers for Women

After the luncheon recess today, Thomas R. Ball, representative from Old Lyme, presented huge bouquets of flowers to every woman member of the Legislature. With the presentation, the band played "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and the male members cheered.

A nearly pandemonium reigned in the House after the floral gifts were bestowed. A mock session was organized. Business went by the boards for a while. Samuel C. Hoyt, of New Haven, dignified attorney and noted Yale graduate, was elected speaker of the mock session. He was ready, he appointed committee, so ridiculous that members laughed till they ached.

Carnival costumes appeared on the floor. The more dignified the member the more some person tooted to adorn him. Toy horns and toy drums throbbed and every time the regular officers of the House attempted to do business a fresh outbreak swept the assembly away.

BUTLER DECLARES WEST IS FOR CAL

Chairman of Republican Na- tional Committee Reports Results of His Trip.

Washington, May 6.—William Morgan Butler, chairman of the Republican National committee, departed for Boston today, leaving behind him for President Coolidge's contemplation a pleasant picture of political conditions in the wide open spaces of the west.

No Disatisfaction

On a trip that carried him to the Pacific slopes, and through the heart of the supposedly disgruntled grain belt, Chairman Butler found little evidence of Republican dissatisfaction with the state of affairs, and, on the contrary, discovered a quite general feeling that Calvin Coolidge should be re-nominated and re-elected in 1928.

This, at any rate, is the gist of the report which the chairman rendered to his chief at a series of conferences that ended last night.

Helps Coolidge

Butler's report is expected to aid Mr. Coolidge in "making up his mind" whether to brave the third term tradition and stand for reelection next year. The fact that capital politicians believe Mr. Coolidge has already made up his mind doesn't alter the facts, nor change the picture.

The chairman gravely assured inquirers that he did not discuss either candidates or issues on the trip just ended. He was, he indicated, merely feeling the Republican pulse in a section where reports had indicated there was some feverishness. He found none. He did discover, he admitted, a lively interest in whether President Coolidge is to be a candidate next year, but he indicated he did nothing to satisfy that interest.

BOUQUETS AND BRICKBATS AS ASSEMBLY DIES

Republican Leaders Praise Legislature But Minority Head Finds Room For Im- provements.

Hartford, May 6.—Both congratulation and criticism is extended to the Legislature that adjourned today in last minute statements from leaders of both bodies. Satisfaction with the work accomplished is voiced by the Republican leaders while the minority leader, William M. Citron, of Middletown, finds much room for improvement in the Assembly's action.

"The public will be the final judge as to the failure or success of the 1927 General Assembly," said Ernest L. Averill, of Branford, House leader. "Personally I am satisfied that this has been a hard-working and conscientious Legislature which will leave behind it a record of efficiency unsurpassed."

Early Adjournment

Mr. Averill is particularly happy because of his success in bringing the session to a close a month ahead of its regular schedule. It is a personal victory for him as many times he was a lone advocate of early adjournment.

Samuel C. Shaw, of Redding, Senate leader, feels it has been a wonderfully successful session. The creation of the new finance department he considers one of the biggest steps forward toward solution of the financing problems of the state.

The Legislature might have adjourned even earlier than it did if the cities and towns did not send so much of their business to the capitol for settlement. Too many minor municipal matters are brought here, matters that could be settled better at home."

Mr. Citron's Views

Mr. Citron said:

"The working of the present Legislature has shown me that Connecticut is in the grip of a benevolent despotism. All we have heard in the present session is the worship of efficiency and the dollar. Nevertheless, the governor, by putting through his new bill for a liberal labor measure, has admitted that we are extravagant to the extent of three million dollars. No liberal legislation has been passed. Any that did get by came from the order of those higher up. The liberal labor measure was defeated. The new compensation act is really a surrender by labor to the manufacturers. Important bills to regulate public utilities were defeated. Water power legislation was defeated."

Wants a Probe

"What harm is there in investigating? Already the Electric Light, Power and Gas companies are in the grip of outside speculators. We are threatened with a repetition of the old railroad episode."

"The report of the commission on state institutions was discarded. Though they worked for several years on a scientific plan the work of the commission was discarded. Hasty ideas were accepted in place. We were told that there was no money, but we could have used the present cash balance for this work instead of other things."

"I believe the governor and the Senate chairman of the finance committee were right in the first instance in favoring a bond issue for capital expenditures. In order to make a record for adjournment ahead of time important legislation was taken up in the jam of the last few days."

"The insurance tax showed how inequitable was our system of taxation. Yet a bill for a commission to investigate taxes has died. Why, no one knows. Much of our time has been wasted with too many private acts. We cannot be too proud of our work and what we have left undone."

POLICEMAN SHOT

New Britain, May 6.—Police officials here are entirely in the dark as for reasons for a shooting affair which occurred during the night, resulting in the rounding of David M. Foty, a local patrolman, by an unknown person. Foty was operated on today and a bullet was taken from his back. His recovery is beyond doubt, hospital says.

Engineers Hope Against Hope That Levees Will Hold—More Than 1,500 More Square Miles Evac- uated In Anticipation of Break—Reports of Ty- phoid Fever In Refugee Camps.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 6.—Spreading destruction with ever-increasing fury, the flood waters of the Mississippi pounded today against the last barrier obstructing their path to the gulf.

Hoping against hope that further levee breaks might be avoided, army engineers and relief directors watching the rush of the northern Louisiana flood into the wedge of dikes at the confluence of the Mississippi and Red rivers maintained a constant vigil for the crevasse which would unleash the inland lake covering the northeast quarter of the state into the nine remaining parishes in the Atchafalaya valley between the Red river and the sea.

More than 1500 square miles in Avoyelles, Rapides and St. Landry parishes have been evacuated in anticipation of a break in the Bayou Des Glaives levee near Hamburg.

Another Break

A second break is threatened in the Sam Bayou at Big Bend, also in Avoyelles parish, and a third in the Red river protecting wall around Echo, in Rapides parish. Twelve hundred men who have fought the flood from the tops of the big-bend dikes for more than a week redoubled their efforts today as the waters from three Mississippi crevasses north of Natchez joined with the flood from the Arkansas in Tensas and Catahoula parishes.

Further Damage

The milliken bend crevasse twenty miles north of Vicksburg is now more than 1500 feet wide. Reports from Hard Times, twenty miles south of here, said that the St. Joseph lake spillway had grown to 1200 feet. Waters rushing through these breaks upon Madison and Tensas parishes added to the avor wrought by the overflow from the Tensas and Occhita river.

Should the Red river levees hold and thus divert the entire northern Louisiana flood into the Mississippi channel again, the danger point would lie at Angolia, Louisiana, the east bank of the river, just below the Mississippi state boundary, where an old levee has been in grave danger since Saturday.

Fate in Balance

With the fate of the southern half of the state in the balance, Secretaries Hoover and Davis arrived here today to set in motion the machinery which is ultimately to restore more than 150,000 refugees in Mississippi and Louisiana to their farms and homes.

Governor Dennis Murphree arrived from Jackson last night to confer with the Cabinet officers and Major General Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers, before they boarded the steamship Control at eleven o'clock for Baton Rouge, where they will discuss relief and rehabilitation plans with former Governor John M. Parker of Louisiana, federal relay director in that state. From Baton Rouge, the party will proceed to New Orleans.

Typhoid Fever

Reports of typhoid fever in two Mississippi concentration camps were received at Red Cross headquarters here today. Although the sick list from fifteen camps carried only 262 names. The early development of the dreaded typhoid in two centers called for emphatic orders to all camp directors to take drastic steps to avoid danger of epidemic.

Returning to Mississippi and Louisiana after an absence of less than a week, Secretary Hoover received reports today of the millions of additional acres flooded in the interim, of tens of thousands added to the nomadic armies of refugees and of uncounted millions piled upon the staggering total of property loss.

Loss of $225,000,000

Property damage is now estimated at approximately $225,000,000. L. O. Crosby, relief director for Mississippi, suggested as a tentative plan for financing destitute farmers a semi-governmental plan in which a nucleus of federal funds would be heavily supplemented by advances from bankers and industrial interests throughout the stricken states. Secretary Hoover had previously urged federal aid through the Department of Agriculture, particularly in the form of emergency seed advances to cotton farmers whose crops and stocks had been swept away.

ally costs to take care of them. Therefore, we have to ask the public to make up the deficit. Part of the money asked for is to be used for new equipment or replacing obsolete equipment. Perhaps you would prefer to make a specific gift covering some one of these things.

Attached is a list of indispensable items which we have included in the general budget, and an additional list of things that are almost as necessary. Some who have made special gifts of this kind have made them as a memorial to some deceased relative or friend. Such memorials to a hospital, itself a memorial to the men and women who served their country in the Great War, seem singularly appropriate. If you feel that you can help in any way either by providing some of this special and much needed equipment, or making a contribution, large or small, to the general budget, it will be greatly appreciated by the Board of Trustees.

Kindly make returns before May 15. Checks should be made payable to Manchester Trust company, treasurer.

N. Y. PLANTING 20 MILLION TREES IN REFORESTING

State's Nurseries Have Been Increased to Give Aid to Movement.

Albany, N. Y.—Upwards of 20,000,000 trees are being planted in New York State this spring, according to estimates made by the Conservation Commission.

ABOUT TOWN

Thomas Maxwell of Walnut street is confined to his bed with influenza.

The excavation for the new building to be erected by David Chambers for Clarence Barlow just north of the Sheridan hotel is going on steadily.

Thomas G. Luther, who has been reforesting 5,000 acres on his estate in Saratoga County for several years, and who is rated as the largest individual tree planter in the world, had a crew of 40 men at work. Luther informed the commission he hoped to plant 1,500,000 trees this spring.

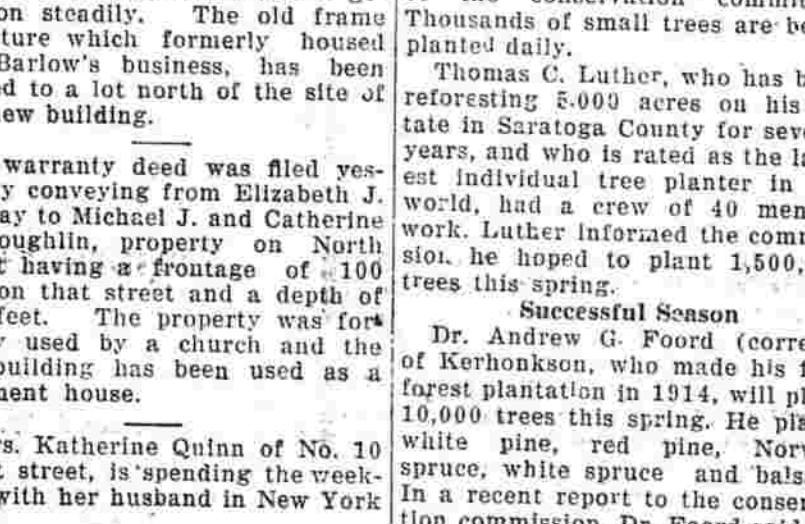

Successful Season Dr. Andrew G. Foord (corrected) of Kerhonkson, who made his first forest plantation in 1914, will plant 10,000 trees this spring. He plants white pine, red pine, Norway spruce, white spruce and balsam.

In a recent report to the conservation commission, Dr. Foord said his reforestation had been very satisfactory, particularly so with Norway spruce and red pine.

Andrew F. Amadon is in charge of the reforesting work for the commission. In discussing the work, he said: "This spring promises to be a most successful planting season. The frost was out of the ground earlier than usual, and this has been followed by cool, cloudy and wet weather which is suited to tree planting."

Miss Jessie M. Reynolds, local social worker, will have for her week-end guest at the Centennial apartment, Miss Elizabeth MacEwen of Branford, Ontario. Both enlisted on the same day and served in the Canadian Army Medical Corps.

this situation. And a plan submitted by the commission on revision and codification of school laws, the work of experts over a period of four years, was sent along to the 1927 session with the "approval of the present session.

Women Unlucky

"Women of the assembly were unlucky," according to their supporters. Their major pet projects were lost. First among the women's plans was the proposal to allow women to serve on juries. The defeat of this law was overwhelming.

Welfare projects met better success but uncertainties surrounding the state's finances for months gave the women little chance to bring new projects to the fore as concrete issues in time to secure favorable action.

Among the women Mrs. Alice Patterson, Merritt Hartford, stood out as the lone woman Senator. Her stand, in the closing week, against the new finance plan and against the decrease in insurance stock taxes was considered notable.

Mrs. Edith V. Cook of New Haven, serving her first session, was a vigorous champion of many measures, and the ability of Miss Marjory Cheney of Manchester, as a parliamentary never failed to be acknowledged by leaders among the men. The other women were faithful in attendance, and followed closely all matters concerning their constituents beside actively engaging in matters of state.

Outstanding Achievements

Outstanding achievements of the 1927 session were a nicely balanced budget with income and outgo meeting at the $42,000,000 mark; substitution of a "rule of reason" for the old maximum speed law; giving minors between 16 and 18 the right to drive automobiles; revision of laws concerning "beauty parlors"; broadening the powers of the motor vehicle commissioner regarding liability of automobile drivers as to injury to persons and damage to property; giving municipalities the right to issue upward of $20,000,000 in bonds; putting a single-headed commission over the state constabulary; placing a tax on the gross income of motion picture theaters; giving divorcing municipalities the right to pay back the full amount of their debts at any time; giving the accused the right to a trial before three judges in cases where capital punishment is being imposed; increasing salaries of all high court judges, the attorney-general, high sheriffs, and officials of about an even score of municipalities.

Many Bills Dropped

The legislative waste basket was not neglected, receiving fully one-half the presented bills dropping therein. The outstanding frank bill was a proposal to equip all pedestrians with tail-lights. From the 700 odd rejected bills a few stood out; jury service for women; increasing the pay of members of the General Assembly; providing for annual instead of biennial sessions; investigating the state's resources and its public utilities companies; providing direct representation for the town of Orange; a topographical survey of the state; a state sports permit; deer hunting with bow-and-arrow; legalizing horse racing and betting; birth control; licensing real estate agents; changing the pay system of railway employees; giving equal rights to all races in places of amusement and in restaurants; compulsory automobile insurance; increasing the fees to town clerks for handling out fishing licenses; reducing interest rates on small loans; reducing the working hours of women in industry; and reducing the state tax on towns.

STORE CHANGES IN ROCKVILLE

Going Out of Business—Hale Extends His Store—Notes.

Rockville, May 6. The Wasserman store at 20 and 24 Union street, the Fitch Block, is going out of business. This move by Mr. Wasserman has been anticipated for some time. The store was formerly known as the L. E. Hale Co. and was taken over by the present owner on December 1, 1925. While the store has been having a fair amount of business, Mr. Wasserman has felt that the business was not large enough for the large stock that he carried and the money invested. It is also rumored that the store in Stafford is also closing out.

L. E. Hale, who has conducted a specialty store on Market street for over a year finds that he is in need of more room for his growing business and has leased the store on the Boardwalk in the Wendheiser block, previously used by Mr. Wendheiser as a display room. Mr. Wendheiser will retain only a single store on the corner. Mr. Hale is located between the Chapman Shoe Store and Wendheiser Music Co.

Miss Dorothy Hale, daughter of Arthur D. Hale of Ellington, editor of the High School publication, "The Banner" and vice president of the senior class, R. H. S., has been named valedictorian for the class. She has had an average in scholarship of 90.28.

Miss Beatrice Burns, daughter of Edward Burns of 56 Prospect street has been named salutatorian.

Wives of Elks Form New Club About seventy women from Rockville, Manchester and Stafford met at the Elks' Home Wednesday afternoon and considered the forming of an Elks' Club. Mrs. Raymond Hunt, of this city president of the Elks, presided at the meeting. George H. Williams, addressed the meeting on the objects of the club and its value as a social auxiliary to the lodge. A luncheon was served and whist enjoyed. Mrs. A. M. Burke was awarded the first prize. Mrs. M. C. Weinstein, second and Mrs. Daniel B. Healy, the consolation.

Notes Miss Josephine Gregus of Talcott avenue is attending a meeting of the National League of Women Voters which is being held in New York City, Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week. Miss Gregus will be one of the speakers at the luncheon on Saturday.

LOCAL CHAMBER DELEGATES RETURN FROM CONVENTION

Impressed With Activities Of National Organization; Have Ride In New Ford Monoplane.

The fifteenth annual session of the United States Chamber of Commerce, which was held in Washington, this week, came to a close yesterday afternoon, and the Manchester representatives, Austin Cheney, as councillor, and Thomas Ferguson as delegate, started for home at New York on business and will reach Manchester this evening. Mr. Ferguson arrived here at midnight last night. The session opened Tuesday morning with President John W. O'Leary presiding. The business of the session included the adoption of the rules of the convention, the appointment of committees on resolutions, credentials, the report of the National Council, the report of the Board of Directors and the reading of the treasurer's report. Following this President O'Leary delivered the annual address. His theme was "The New Business Era." He reviewed the business situation from every angle in a cool, deliberate and practical way. The convention was of course held in the United States Chamber of Commerce building, which is one of the show places of Washington. It was erected at a cost of $3,150,000, and at the opening session President O'Leary announced that the directors the night before had decided to pay off the last dollar of the cost of the construction. This statement was loudly applauded. Every state in the union was represented at the convention and it was estimated that more than 2000 delegates would attend. There are today more than 1500 chambers of commerce organizations in the country.

Following the general session each day were luncheon meetings held at the various hotels. On Tuesday the Manchester representatives attended the Civic Development session at the Washington Hotel. At this meeting Major Henry Curran of New York was a speaker. It will be remembered that he gave the address at the annual banquet of the local Chamber a year or more ago.

Tuesday evening the delegates had an opportunity to hear President Coolidge when he addressed the joint meeting of the Pan-American Commercial Conference and the United States Chamber of Commerce in the great Washington Hotel. The program included a concert by the United States Army band, which played the anthem of the 21 American Republics with the simultaneous raising of the flags of each republic.

President O'Leary introduced President Coolidge with one sentence when he announced "The President of the United States of America." The President's address reviewed the business relationship of the United States with the other 20 republics for a period of 100 years. A Wednesday's general session of the East, the West, the South and the Mid-West were represented by four able speakers, who in turn gave a resume of the condition of business in their respective localities. All had the same theme, of particular interest to the New England delegate was the address of John S. Lawrence of Boston. He gave a wonderful comprehensive report of the business outlook which appeared very promising.

The annual dinner meeting Wednesday evening in the New Willard Hotel was the outstanding social event of the convention. The banquet hall has a seating capacity of 1500 and it was filled. In fact banqueters had to be accommodated in adjoining rooms.

It was doubtless one of the most representative assemblages of business men the country has seen in years. Seated at the head table with President O'Leary were a quartet of presidents representing four of the largest railroads in the country. Each man at the head table was introduced by Mr. O'Leary who knew them personally. It was truly a representative gathering of big business.

The Thursday session included a series of ten-minute talks on the general theme of "What's Ahead for Business?" Such subjects as agriculture, civic development, domestic distribution, finance, foreign commerce, insurance, manufacture, natural resource, production, transportation and communication were discussed by able speakers. The convention closed Thursday afternoon after the reports of the committee on resolutions.

At the close of each daily session the delegates had an opportunity to visit the various show places in Washington. As it was Mr. Ferguson's first visit to the Capitol City he lost no opportunity and made the most of his time. Such buildings as the American Red Cross headquarters, the D. A. R. and Pan-American buildings, Washington monument, Lincoln Memorial, National Museum and Congressional Library were visited in the limited time at his disposal.

A party of the delegates went out to Alexandria to inspect the old Masonic hall where Washington attended and over which lodge he presided. From there they went out to Mount Vernon to visit the beautiful home of Washington and also his tomb. Early in May is about the best time to see Mount Vernon at its best. The trees are now in full leaf and the grounds present a picture of simple beauty. The two Manchester representatives with a party of six others went out to the Bolling Field Wednesday the sashweight or the day you went to Queens Village? A. Yes. Told Mrs. Snyder that you told Mrs. Snyder about it? A. I told her about the opportunity. Wallace dropped this line of questioning. Q. Under oath here, you have told of your part of what occurred in the Snyder home March 19 and 20? A. I have told the truth about everything I remember. Q. What did you expect to gain by the death of Albert Snyder? A. That is what I would like to know. Q. You have no idea, then, why you went out there and struck a man over the head with a sashweight? A. No. Q. How were you going to perfect your future affairs? A. I didn't give it a thought. The belligerent Wallace remarked that he "thought enough to race to Syracuse and use your friends to help you cover up." Gray replied politely that no he did not. Q. You just did those things automatically? A. Yes. No, Gray replied mechanically, he hadn't given her any protection when the police called. Q. When you committed the crime you claim you were so intoxicated you didn't know what you were doing? A. Yes. Q. When did you come out of this daze? A. Not until I was in jail. Denies Statement Q. Didn't you testify you got over your intoxication between Albany and Syracuse? A. No. (Gray had made such a statement, the record shows). No, Gray hadn't thought of telephoning Mrs. Snyder to see how the war—he didn't have a chance to. No, he didn't remember exactly what time he signed the confession. Q. Now, in the Snyder home, when did you put on your glasses? A. When I put on the shirt. Yes, he left his glasses off until he reached Syracuse. Why, for a disguise? Gray didn't know. No, Gray didn't recall playing marbles with Haddon Gray's children. "Alice" Mentioned Q. Since you were married did you know a woman named Alice? A. I knew at least three by the name of Alice. He last saw one "Alice" who worked in a newspaper office in the fall of 1926. The program for the reunion will start at 7:30 with games in the gym under the direction of "Pop" Thielen, promoter of Y. ITALIAN LADIES HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET HERE

The Italian-American Ladies' Aid society entertained more than seventy-five members and friends at its banquet last evening at the School street Recreation Center. Guests for the occasion were Mrs. and Mrs. Palotti of Hartford. Mr. Palotti is brother of Secretary of State Francis A. Palotti of Hartford. Angelo Bosco who formerly resided in Manchester and has returned for an extended visit after several years at his old home in Italy, was also present.

The decorations were of a patriotic nature, both American and Italian flags were used, with paper flowers in red, white and blue. At each place was a tiny Maybasket favor containing nuts. The menu included fried cocktail, spaghetti Italian, meat balls, stuffed veal, French fried potatoes, casseroles of veal, served with lemon and lettuce, Italian cookies, demi tasse and ice cream. The chefs, Mrs. Anna Farr and Mrs. Agatha Garibaldi, and their willing assistants on the committee, were complimented on their excellent cooking.

A program of music and dancing followed. Joseph Delmaso favored with solos, accompanying himself in the guitar, and singing Italian duets with Mrs. Garibaldi. Little Miss Veronica Aceto danced the "Black Bottom." General dancing was opened by Mrs. Louis Pola and Natale Garrore.

BRITAIN AND U. S. JOINING TO END DOUBLE TAXES

Absurdity to Be Remedied Under Churchill's Plan As Announced.

By International News Service London.—The "double tax" absurdity, as between British citizens and American citizens and their respective governments, may shortly be remedied according to a favorable answer recently given by Winston Churchill in the House of Commons. Churchill, in reply to a question, stated that the general question of double taxation is being considered by a committee of the League of Nations at Geneva, but, if any country approached him with proposals for "some fair and reciprocal arrangement," he would not be content to wait for the result of the Geneva discussions. This answer encouraged the belief prevalent here that negotiations have already been initiated between the British and United States Treasuries on the matter. Procedure Absurd The present position is that if an American woman marries an Englishman and comes to reside in England, her income in the United States is first taxed by the American authorities, and then again by the British. The English husband of an American wife is treated in the same way, if he takes up residence in the United States. The procedure has been brought to an absurdity by the action of Ambrose Clarke, an American millionaire who keeps up a great hunting establishment at Melton Mowbray. In order to avoid paying British income tax and super-tax, having already paid the American equivalent, Clarke has removed all his possessions from his hunting lodge to a farm a few miles away. In six months' time he will restore them to the same spot, but, only living in it for six months at a time, he escaped the British dues, which, he says, if he had to pay on top of the American taxes, would prevent him living in England at all. Publicity May Help "I hope the publicity given to the Clarke case will end this ridiculous position," says Commander Burney, who has been the chief mover in the matter in the House of Commons. "Clarke comes here, sets up a large establishment, spends money freely in the neighborhood, and is precisely the type of American sportsman we want to encourage in Britain. If he had property in England by all means let him be taxed on it. But who should we ask him to pay on his American properties which have already been effectively combed out by the American authorities. "In the case of large incomes the effect of the income tax plus the super-tax is pretty much the same. It approximates 50 per cent. In each. A very wealthy man who gave his mind to it could thus contribute to pay away almost 100 per cent. of his income to the two governments.

If You Like-Movie Kisses, See Camille!

By GENE COHN

New York, May 6.—If you may believe Fred Niblo, the boys will also walk a mile to get a Camille. That artistic young director for United Artists has traveled even farther. He has leaped from the Victorians to modern Hollywood and there he found Norma Talmadge waiting to join the fast declining list of Camille-I-have-met. The various Camilles, if laid end to end—perhaps many of them should be, at that—would perhaps reach from Topsy to East Lynne.

Anyway Miss Talmadge's "Camille" has had its world premiere, with such onlookers as D. W. Griffith, Alan Dwan, Charles Chaplin, Joseph Schenck and way celebrities. And it is the consensus of opinion that, while hers may not be the story of "Camille," there is enough of "it" introduced to pack the theaters from Broadway to the Skisway trail.

All kinds of Kisses There is such a flood of closeup kissing as has not been seen on land or sea in this generation. They range from gentle pecks to rapturous embraces. They overwhelm the story and the actors and the scenery. They fairly inundate the whole thing. One expects that the director himself will appear in an epilogue for one farewell good-night smooch. It had seemed to me that enough liberties were taken with Camille by the various characters of the Dumas story, but the scenarists have taken many more. They bring Camille up to date by the simple device of having Armand go on living indefinitely after her sudden demise and showing up at the public auction of her properties. There he is able to buy his own memoirs and hence, mooning over them, to recreate his own story.

It is all done in "modern dress." And unless one was certain that Cecil de Mille had "got religion" just across the street from where "Camille" is playing, one would feel certain that he had had something to do with the drawing-rooms, costumes and such. There is more than a mere suggestion of the old Cecil de Mille in the trappings.

But, whether or not it is "Camille," Norma Talmadge was never more beautiful, and hers is a sinuous, sensuous performance.

A New Matinee Idol There is introduced to fandom a new leading man, guaranteed to smite the flappers and romantic old rals as well. His name, as I recall it, is Gilbert Roland and he makes of Armand something between a sappy mooncalf and a dying duck.

While his romantic profile is bound to fill the mail bags with fan letters he does not promise to be any great addition to cinema acting art.

My own hunch is to retitlle the picture, "Camille of Hollywood" for the picture isn't hard to take; it just happens not to be Camille.

Old Masters

Life! I know not what thou art, But know that thou and I must part; And when, or how, or where we met,

I own to me a secret yet. But this I know, when thou art fed, Where'er they lay these limbs, this head,

No clod so valueless shall be As all that then remains of me.

Life! We have been long together, Through pleasant and through cloudy weather; 'Tis hard to part when friends are dear;

Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear;— Then steal away, give little warning, Choose thine own time;

Say not good night, but in some brighter clime Bid me good morning! —Anna Letitia Barbauld: "Life."

TOO LATE

Madge—It's terrible, dear! It's awful, and I'm so sorry for you. Go ahead and cry, dearie. You'll feel better after a good cry. Ethel—I can't. I—I've been at the movies all afternoon.

SUMMER VISITORS HERE NEED NO AUTO LICENSE

New Law Reciprocates Privileges Allowed by Other States—Other Provisions.

Summer visitors to Connecticut resorts will not be required this year to be licensed as Connecticut operators or have their cars registered in Connecticut for whatever length of time their state or country gives the same right to people from Connecticut. A law went into effect May 1 which in effect repealed the old requirement that an outsider must take out a Connecticut license and registration if he operated a car in this state fifteen days or more, not necessarily consecutive.

The law, a reciprocity, also adopted by the session of the Legislature just adjourned, also disposes of the troublesome fifteen-mile limit registrations so far as people are concerned who come from states allowing reciprocal privileges to Connecticut automobilists.

The provisions of the new law are not restricted to summer visitors, but apply to all visitors in the state who are over the minimum Connecticut age requirement of 16 years. Its principal application, however, happens to be to vacationists in the state.

It contains a provision that the operator's license and registration of the motor vehicle he or she operates in Connecticut must have been issued by the same jurisdiction.

Non-residents who want to operate public service motor vehicles in Connecticut must first obtain a public service or jitney operator's license and registration from this state and they must conform to the load capacity designated by the motor vehicle department for similar Connecticut vehicles. They are also required to show a registration marker from this state as well as from the state in which the car was originally registered, and to conform to all Connecticut laws affecting equipment, marking and control of motor vehicles.

Though the world may owe every man a living, only the persistent collector gets it.

SICK JUROR AGAIN HALTS TONG TRIAL

put him on the same grounds as the actual killer. The general story told by County Detective Hickey was given in a clear, connected way, told as though it was being read from a book. In fact, those in the rear of the hall thought he was reading his statement, but he was not. He referred to no notes, but told of places, names, time and connecting incidents in a way that was only further strengthened by the positive identification of the finger print of Loo Hoo Wing.

Ching Lung on Stand True to his promise Frank Healey, attorney for Ching Lung, called his client to the stand as the court again opened. A question here and there guided him through his story which was to the effect that he invested in 1925 the sum of $600 together with Ong Jing or Sam Ong, as he is best known in Manchester, and also by the court officials and the jury, in a Chinese grocery and importing store with a place of business at 124 State street, Hartford. The other partner, he said was a Bristol laundryman named as Jung Tom. The place was conducted for about nine months and in the meantime Ching Lung had gone to Omaha, leaving the money invested in the business. In six months he came back and found that the business had not flourished, but in fact, had closed up.

Looks Over Books. He was not satisfied and spoke to Sam about it. Sam told him that the books and accounts were in Hartford and he would go over them with him. An appointment was made about six weeks before the murder and they met in Hartford. They went to the place where the books and statements were said to be in a trunk, but on opening the trunk they found it empty. Feeling that they had been stolen Ching Lung and Sam had advertised and between them they offered a reward of $50, but they never found the books. A month before the murder he went to Manchester to ask for some money and was paid $15. He told Mr. Healey that he knew Ong Jing Hem, the man that was murdered well and from him had learned that the books were in Sam's laundry in Manchester.

He often met Ong Jing Hem in Hartford, who also slept with him at times in Hartford and that at different times Sam had gone to the bedroom where both were sleeping and awakened Ong Jing Hem to go back to work with him. Sam started to tell by Ong Jing Hem that the books were at the laundry he suggested that he come and get them. Sam was generally out of town on a Wednesday and if Ching Lung would get out early on a Thursday morning he would help him get the books. On Wednesday he went to Bristol and talked with the Bristol laundryman and he agreed to come out and they would both go to Manchester. Meets Loo Hoo. He had become acquainted with Loo Hoo Wing, who he at one time met in New York and who he again met in a store on State street about ten days before and that evening asked him to accompany him to Manchester to help in getting the matter straightened out as Loo Hoo talked better. Loo Hoo agreed to do this and when they parted about 7 o'clock that night it was agreed that the first to wake up in the morning was to call the other. Loo Hoo was the first.

He came to Ching Lung's room about 6:15 and awakened him. They went to City Hall and hired a taxi to drive to the station to meet the Bristol laundryman, who they expected to be at the station early, but after seeing the train come in and nobody they knew passing through the station they had some breakfast and then decided to go to Manchester. Loo Hoo had purchased a paper in the depot and was standing reading it when Ching Lung went out and tooted the horn that attracted the driver. The driver talked with Loo Hoo and as far as he knew it was to be $5 to Manchester and back. He did not understand, he said that there was any mention of Meriden in the first bargain. The reason he hired a taxi, he said, was because he expected they might find the books in a trunk and could carry them back in the car.

Go Themselves. Jung Tom was the Bristol laundryman that was to accompany him and as long as he did not show up he decided to go right out to Manchester and get the books himself. They reached Manchester. He did not know the name of the street but Ong Jing Hem had told him that it was across from the place where the trees grew and not being sure he at first drove by it. On the way out the paper with the pictures had been looked over by Loo Hoo and he turned it over to Ching Lung to look at. It was this paper that he used in tapping on the window to tell the driver to turn around. The car stopped on Main street and as it was only a short distance down the street he decided that both would walk.

Arriving at the laundry both stood on the door steps and Ching Lung knocked. There was no reply. Loo Hoo said, "It's too cold and I am going back to the car." Ching Lung told Loo Hoo that he had come to Manchester to get the books and he would get them, so he returned again to the laundry and knocked again.

Sam at the Door. Same came to the door and swore at him for coming again. When he asked Sam where Ong Jing Hem was he was informed that he was asleep. He told Sam that he had come after the books and that he used in tapping on the window to tell the driver to turn around. He went back and woke up Ong Jing Hem who said to him, "Be still, Sam is here," and advised him not to talk loud. Sam then came rushing in and said, "What's the idea, why do you but into my business?" and swore at both and started to say a lot of different things. The argument continued for a few minutes and then Sam pulled out a gun and shot twice at Ong Jing Hem. "I pushed the revolver away and the shot went wild," Ching said, so he ran from the laundry. Getting into the car Loo Hoo Wing asked him why he was so nervous and he told Loo Hoo that Sam had just murdered Ong Jing Hem and the sign made him nervous. Loo Hoo then told the driver "Home" and they started back towards Hartford.

"Did you ever own that gun," he was asked by his attorney and replied, "No."

"Did you fire that gun off in Sam's laundry on March 24?" he was asked and answered, "No."

Cross-Examination. On cross-examination by Mr. Alcorn, Ching Lung was asked if he was a Hip Sing member and he told he was not. He admitted that he was a member of the On Leong Tong and a member of the Hartford branch, which is located on State street. When asked by Mr. Alcorn if it was not the rule that each branch keep in touch with each other all through the country when something happened, he said that he had never heard of other places he answered that it was not so.

He had been in Hartford since July, 1926, and lived at 110 State street. The On Leong Tong headquarters, he told Mr. Alcorn, about seven stores away on State street, but did not give the number. Once in a while he attended meetings. He first met Loo Hoo Wing at 24 Mott street, New York, but that was not "the New York quarters of the On Leong Tong," it was on the street of the street, but did not give the number. He lived at one time where Loo Hoo Wing worked. He had not seen him since in New York and it was by accident that he met him ten days before the murder at 128 State street and asked him when he came to Hartford. Loo Hoo said he just got in that afternoon and said he had come to look for work. "Did he say he was sent up here for any purpose," Mr. Alcorn asked him. He said that he was looking for work, that he had work to go to in about two weeks.

Make Arrangements. Again questioned by Mr. Alcorn as to the number of times he had met him in two weeks he replied twice. "First at the store and again at 128 State street" on Wednesday, March 23 when he made arrangements to have Loo Hoo come to Manchester with him. It was then that the agreement was made to call each other Loo Hoo, he continued was the first to call which was about 8 o'clock, hired a cab to take them to the station.

"Yes, you went into the station," remarked Mr. Alcorn. Ching Lung said he asked Loo Hoo Wing to ask about trains coming in from Bristol. The time table which was found in his pocket in New Haven, he said was one that he had picked up in Chantown, New York, and knew nothing about the marks on it. "Who put the marks on the time table?" Mr. Alcorn asked, to which Ching Lung replied that he did not know.

To different questions asked by Mr. Alcorn he continued his story saying that he was a friend of Ong Jing Hem.

"Ong Jing Hem told you that if you came to Manchester you could get the books?" asked Mr. Alcorn. Q. "Sam would not be in there and he would give you the books?" A. "Yes."

Q. "Why did you take Loo Hoo Wing with you?" A. "Because he could talk English and I was afraid that I could not make myself understood. I wanted to protect myself."

"You were going to see a man that you could talk to and understand were you not?" A. "Yes."

Q. "Who paid for the cost of the cab?" A. "Loo Hoo Wing, but I gave him the money."

Q. "You paid all of the fares?" A. "Loo Hoo Wing told me to pay the $8 in New Haven, but at Meriden Loo Hoo Wing paid the money, which I gave him."

Q. "Who made the contract to get the car?" A. "Loo Hoo made the contract."

Q. "Did he mention Manchester or Meriden to him?" A. "I only heard Manchester."

The reason he took the taxi was because he did not know how heavy the books would be and he could take them back in the cab with him and the reason that he had not driven down Oak street was because he had only been there a few times but could only tell by the trees opposite. When he saw the trees, he said, he tapped on the window, motioned with the paper to the driver to turn back and as it was only a short way down Oak street walked.

used and he said that Loo Hoo Wing came up to him and asked "Any customers," and being told no had gone back to Purnell place and talked with Ching Lung. Loo Hoo Wing had told him he was cold and returned to the automobile to get warm. It was then that he went into the laundry. On further questioning by Mr. Alcorn he said that he had not made the remark that Ong Jing Hem was a Hip Sing, but he was afraid to tell of the murder. He was so afraid that he did not dare stop at Hartford, but ordered the driver to go to Meriden when Hartford was reached. It was Loo Hoo Wing that picked the "Yellow taxi in Meriden to go to New Haven. He continued by saying that he paid for the car and while he was going to New Haven he did not know where he was going to stay or do in New Haven or how long he would be there. He did not expect to go much further as there was little money left and "I had to eat."

Explains Card. He was shown the brown card with the number Mitchell 1456 on it and asked what it meant. He said that he had met a friend in Omaha who told him call that number. It was in Newark. "Did you know of the Canton restaurant in Newark on Clinton avenue," he was asked. He replied that he did not know of it. "You did not have to make any report to anybody there did you?" Mr. Alcorn asked him and he replied "No."

"When you talked with Mr. Hickey you told him that you got up at 8 o'clock in the morning on March 24 did you not?" he asked the same in New Haven did you not?" "I was in fear," he replied, "because I had seen a man killed before my eyes."

There had been little change in the cross-examination from his direct testimony as Mr. Alcorn ended.

Loo Hoo Wing on Stand. In his direct story to the court, Loo Hoo Wing said that he was now known to that his right name was Loo Hoo Wing and that he lived in Newark. He came to this country in 1916 and was entered as a "student" in May, 1916 for the Westfield school. He shaved an "arance" certificate with a birth picture and his age was given as eight years. He landed in San Francisco and worked around the ranches picking fruit, and came to New York in January, 1922, and worked in Newark. He is now married and he first met Ching Lung at No. 24 Mott street when he was working in a fruit store and when he came to Hartford met Ching Lung by accident about ten days before he was arrested, that he had also seen him on Wednesday night, March 23 and agreed to go to Manchester with him.

He was asked to go to the station and meet another man who was also to go to Manchester. He made arrangements to go to Manchester with Ching Lung and agreed on paying $5 for the trip. There was nothing said about a murder and when they got out at the station he had also seen him on Wednesday night, March 23 and agreed to go to Manchester with him.

Smooth Story. The story continued in a smooth way and at the close he told Mr. Healey that he did not know Sam, did not see the pistol owned by Sam, did not know the dead man who was killed and had never seen the revolver that the state claimed was used in the killing and had never been in trouble and never arrested. A recess was taken from 4:45 to 5:10 just as Mr. Alcorn had asked the question if in the time the two had been together in the same cell at the Hartford County Jail had they not spoken about the case with each other he was told that they had not.

Loo Hoo Wing Breaks. After the recess Mr. Alcorn continued to question Loo Hoo and after asking him if it was not part of his enterprise to see that Ching Lung went into the laundry and received a reply of no that Ching Lung had said that it was a case where he came out to get the books and he might as well stay and get them at that time that when Ching Lung came back and told him of the shooting and was so nervous that he too became nervous and did not want to be around there, just wanted to get away from the place, get away as far as possible, but did not think to stop and tell the police even though he had not done anything wrong.

those with numbers on the bottom, a picture of a man, two views being shown, one a side view and the other a full face. "It was a picture of a prisoner and Loo Hoo was the prisoner."

There was no need for Harry Dow to repeat the question. Loo Hoo was stunned. He twisted in his chair. He clenched his hands against the chair. He held them together and then in a high and excited voice started to talk in Chinese and talked louder and more excited. His hair seemed to stand away from his head and his face was sullen. As he talked he used his hands in different ways. It was not the same Loo Hoo who had sat in the chair a minute or two before, calm and collected, but almost a babbling individual, but he talked and Harry Dow listened. There was a sudden end and the head of Loo Hoo fell.

The Story. Then Harry told the story. It was his claim that the picture was taken when he was in California. The age on it was wrong. He had been unable to get work in the fruit fields and had gone to the city, to San Francisco and it was there he was arrested, pictured, held by the police and fined $10, but had never done wrong. He was only seventeen, he said, but the measurements, the age and all were there, showing that he had been arrested under the name of Edwin Soo Hoo. It was on July 8 the picture showed that he was picked up, only two years before or in 1924. That time he said he was twenty-one and in court now he said he was only eighteen. "In New Haven," Mr. Alcorn said, "you gave the age of 23 in Hartford to Mr. Hickey. You said you were 22 in San Francisco. In 1924 you said you were twenty-one and now you say you will be nineteen on the ninth day of the ninth month," snapped Mr. Alcorn. Loo Hoo continued to talk louder and louder, and it was evident that he had broken. All in the court room heard it. Every jurymen bent forward to hear it. They placed their hands behind their ears to better hear. Only Jurymen Hall, No. 2, seemed unaffected.

Loo Hoo Wing was a dejected looking person as he left the stand to return to the table. There was not that same fast walk that he had used in entering the witness box. He seemed to realize that he had not made the impression either for his lawyers, his pal or to the jury that he wished to carry away. Jeng Tom, a man much older than any of the others, told his lawyers that he ran a laundry in Bristol and that he was in business with Sam and Ching Lung for a while, that he had also invested $600. Understanding that the books were in Hartford, he had agreed to come to Hartford.

Introducing Mr. Tin. The witness was not long on the stand for the defense but he was picked up on cross examination by Mr. Alcorn who started with the question: "Was it you who came to Hartford from Bristol on the morning of March 24. He said that he left Bristol at 6 o'clock that morning. Asking him to continue he said that he had gone to Ching Lung's place, but he was out; so he went to a restaurant, had breakfast and again returned, but Ching Lung had not returned. He waited around Hartford for a while but did not see him. "When you returned to Bristol that night you were arrested?" Mr. Alcorn said, his voice rising as he asked this question.

Then suddenly turning and facing the smooth shaven fat Chinaman who had been around the court room since the opening of the trial and who was then sitting with the lawyers at the table he shouted, "What is that man's name?" The older man answered that he did not know the name, that he was a New York man.

"Why," in a raised voice, asked Mr. Alcorn, "did he come to your store two weeks ago and what did he want to see you for? Tom was slow in answering, but said he was an interpreter who had come to him and said there was a little trouble over the business that he was once connected with in Hartford and asked if he would come and be a witness which he agreed to do. "Do you belong to any tong?" in a low voice the Bristol laundryman answered "No."

While this was going on the man known around the court room as Mr. Tin flushed, his ruddy face became more so. He did not expect this sudden turn of events, nor did others. It was then 5:30 and the court was adjourned until Friday morning.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: John Jacob Astor (5) Astor had recruited many of the men of the rival Northwestern company. Hardy Scots and French couraours de bois were his force at Astoria. John Jacob Astor's serenity in the face of misfortune was illustrated when the Tonquin was raided by Indians and destroyed. Many of the crew of the ship had been killed by Indians. A survivor had crept below and set off the powder magazine, blowing up ship, Indians and all. It was a tremendous blow to Astor's venture in the west, but when the news reached him, he was on his way to a theater—he attended the play and showed no emotion. Prominent and very popular in the public life of AMERICA

C. W. NASH has never built a more popular model of Nash than this Advanced Six Sedan.

You see it everywhere, and the reason is: It offers charming style, Nash performance and luxurious comfort for five passengers at a very moderate price.

This Nash—every Nash—is in a value class all its own. The car is designed and built with care high above the average, yet it is priced no higher than the average car.

For exceptional power-smoothness and proper bearing support Nash has 7 big bearings in the Nash six-cylinder motor.

To provide extra chassis strength without excess weight, C. W. Nash tubular-trusses the frame. Nash tubular cross members actually furnish 5 times more resistance to road strain than plain cross members.

Even the 4-wheel brakes in this popular Nash are of special Nash design—with Two-Way action for permanent, care-free efficiency.

Come in and see this car. Let us show and explain to you its many other, equally important, features of extra value.

THE HOSPITAL.

There come to communities, as to individuals, times when the routine of life is broken in upon by special and grave responsibilities which must be met in a serious, responsible manner.

It is Manchester's present problem to raise, by universal contribution, fifty thousand dollars for the support of its exceptionally excellent hospital.

There is absolutely no public function—not even the maintenance of the schools—of greater relative importance than the sustaining of an adequate hospital in a town the size of this one.

Manchester Memorial hospital is everybody's hospital. It is everybody's recourse and it is everybody's responsibility.

Fifty thousand dollars is a great deal of money. It must be raised among the people as a whole—not in any one group or two or three groups.

Over the week-end Manchester folk would do well to set aside an hour for serious discussion of this problem in the family circle—to do some figuring and calculating, determining not how little but how much each household can, by a little sacrifice, manage to set aside for the hospital fund.

The money can never be raised by coins lightly flung out of the week's pocket money. It will take substantial contributions, from everybody, to meet the necessities of the case.

THE EXTRA SESSION.

There is a tendency to charge to "politics" President Coolidge's failure to call an extra session of Congress to deal with the Mississippi flood situation.

It is very generally believed now that the President will be a candidate for re-nomination. What opposition there may be to him in the Republican convention next year, if he does run, is likely to be headed by Frank E. Lowden.

Does it occur to anybody that the President is playing personal politics when he adopts a policy, in refusing to call a flood session of Congress, that will arouse the most profound resentment in at least four of those southern states?

It seems to us that the charge that Mr. Coolidge is playing politics in this matter is profoundly silly. It is open to debate however, whether his decision against calling Congress together, for fear that advantage may be taken to force through surplus-control legislation, is in all respects wise.

To permit such a period of time as seven months to pass before any attempt is made to fix upon a policy of future safety for the inhabitants of the huge affected area seems inexcusable.

It seems to us that an extra session of Congress is very urgently demanded by the circumstances. And incidentally it seems to us to be very bad politics indeed for the President not to call it.

While still under the conviction that the reorganization of the system of financial control of the state of Connecticut is a matter for much maturer deliberation than was given it, we are free to admit that the statement of Edward F. Hall, the new Commissioner of Finance and Control, is reassuring.

Senator Hall makes it very clear that there will be nothing of that kind from him. "If interference were applied," he says, "the entire personnel might be affected, and the work of the state suffer enormously."

The new commissioner is an executive of very unusual qualities who has made a remarkable success in the business world and who has earned wide reputation for a singularly rigid rectitude.

And right there is the justification for the criticism of the reorganization bill. Any one of a hundred available might have been given the place, legally, any of whom might well have made a most abominable mess of it.

Adieu the Legislature. It may bow its head and confess—"We have left undone those things that we ought to have done and we have done those things that we ought not to have done—but it cannot truthfully conclude "there is no health in us;" for it has not been such a bad Legislature after all.

Not such a bad Legislature. If we get no worse we shall be doing fairly.

Notwithstanding the acceptance of "temperament" as a corollary of the artistic quality, it is almost inevitable that a certain degree of worth-whiteness shall be accorded, in the public mind, to artists of the very first grade, no matter in what branch they may figure.

It is with something of a shock, then, that we find the world famous coloratura, suing a rich old man for a lot of money promised, according to the complaint, for the vaguest of sentimental reasons.

ALL RIGHT NOW. All that we have hitherto said about Mississippi flood control—all that anybody else has said about it—may straightway be expunged, forgotten, as if it had never been said.

New York, May 6.—Manhattan has smiled in a most friendly manner upon scores of matronly ladies, who came here when widowed or in fortune overtook them on the Main streets of the nation.

The other night I met a woman well past her mid-years who came to this town not so many years ago and, going to the manager of one of the oldest and proudest of the hotels on "the Avenue" got the opportunity of setting tables for special holiday parties.

There is the famous case of Alice Foote McDougall, who started out by serving coffee, tea and waffles. Her "coffee and waffles" had that "old home" taste.

On the other hand there are the smart shops of Park avenue. Practically all of them are operated by aristocratic women of elder appearance.

One of the most successful business women in this city charts the stars for prominent people. Her Carnegie Hall studios are so flooded with the superstitious that she has many times been forced to boost her fees to keep away the horoscopically inclined.

WASHINGTON LETTER. This is the second of three articles by Rodney Dutcher on the third term situation.

By RODNEY DUTCHER, Washington, May 6.—There is no certain method of preventing President Coolidge from becoming a candidate for a third term as it becomes more and more certain that he expects to run again.

No Concerted Movement. You may have seen certain vague assertions in print to the effect that a concerted movement is under way to smoke the president out of demand of him—whether he intends to run again or whether he doesn't.

trees and campaigned for it. To date, more than 100,000 trees have been planted. There is a considerable amount of cut-over timber land in the vicinity of Rome. This land is sandy, not suitable for farming or grazing, but admirably adapted for growing trees.

to issue public bulls to the effect that the third term is a dead duck as a horse and a donkey, reelection won't mean really a third term for Mr. Coolidge. With an occasional blast from their side like that of Norris or Butler they appear to feel they may well bide their time.

It seems most likely that the anti-third term movement will not become organized until the Seventieth Congress gets into action. The best reasons for the Coolidge policy of staying in the dugout no matter how long and frequent are the challenges to come out and fight are that to acquiesce and admit his candidacy would be to burn his bridges behind him and to raise himself as a target for all those who might dare to take a pot-shot.

Consideration that most people are willing to do for money is a wonder there are not more millionaires.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE by PAUL ADAMS

Madame Quenol, who sought refuge in a cave near LeCatelet when her home was wrecked, made bread and coffee for the Americans who took the town.

This is the 24th chapter in the story of a former doughboy who is revisiting France, as an advance guard of the "Second A. E. F."

CHAPTER XXIV
In LeCatelet, near Bony, up along the Scheidt Canal, back of the age-old moated fortress of the town, Madame Clichy operates a cafe. She has a long table near the door and three smaller tables. Also a stove with three flat-irons on it. You can get an omelette avec pommes de terre there. Three cats and a terrier dog will try to enjoy the dish with you.

Never was there four animals more persistent in their efforts to share the meal. Madame comes in from the kitchen every few moments and disperses them with a shout and a wave of her hand. They vanish under the long table, but only for an instant.

As soon as Madame goes back into the kitchen out they come, sit on their haunches and beg. The chien barks and whines softly. The cats look up in a quiet appeal.

Out of Luck

Perhaps you feel charitable as you sit at Madame Clichy's table. The Buck did. He decided to overrule Madame's admonition to pay no attention to the animals. So he took his knife in true French fashion and sliced off a hunk of du pain. This he offered to the dog. The chien sniffed and then moved away, disdainfully. In their turns, the cats were made the objects of this special beneficence also. All three sniffed and displayed their disgust with aversions of their heads.

But the moment the Buck deposited the bread on the table and began the serious work of demolishing the omelette where he had left off, back came all the cats and the purp with more whines and meows. The Buck scotched the ome-lette and then finished up on a little fromage.

In Every Village Cafes like the one Madame Clichy runs in LeCatelet France are scattered through every village in France. Every soldier who did the first A. E. F. knows them. Everyone who joins the Second A. E. F. will know them. The omelettes with the pomme des terres all wrapped up inside are always tasty too. And there are at least three cats and one dog, if not more, that would like very much to share every meal.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire owner of the Curtis department store, selects three girls from his establishment to come into his home as his wards for one year, because he wants to help them further certain worthy ambitions. Billy Wells, who wants to become a concert violinist, is the only one of the three that is genuinely ambitious. NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON lie to enjoy the old man's generosity.

When, unknown to him, the girls learn that T. Q. intends to adopt one of them when the year is up, Winnie and Nyda turn the house into a place of intrigue and draw Billy into the contest against her will. Billy is infatuated with DAL ROMAIN, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, the hostess. She fears he is playing both her and Winnie Shelton and when the two leave town over the same week-end, her suspicions are heightened.

In spite of this infatuation, Billy tenderly remembers A. A. CURTIS, son of her benefactor, who has disinterested himself and is boarding with Mrs. Wells in a poor part of town, working in a factory by day and writing at night. Billy loses interest in her violin and finally has a breakdown. She and CONSTANCE BRADLEY, a charming, wealthy girl, decide to go to a lake resort for a month.

The night before they leave Billy secretly meets Romaine in the summerhouse at midnight. He unveils his doubts at her. Returning to the house, Billy sees EDDIE HANNING, Nyda's chauffeur-sweetheart of department store days, stealing from Nyda's window and leaving by the fire-escape. When Billy rushes to Nyda's room to see if any harm has befallen the girl, Nyda is furious at her and tells her she is lying when she says a man was in her room. Billy goes into her room and stumbles over Mrs. Meadows, who is sleeping through the keyhole of Nyda's door. During the month that Billy and Constance spend at the resort, Billy hopes she has banished Romaine from her heart.

Billy took the dress in her hands almost reverently.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLII

Billy and Constance returned to Colfax on a train arriving at five o'clock and the two girls parted affectionately at the station. Constance driving away in the Bradley sedan with her mother, and T. Q. taking charge of Billy and her luggage in the Curtis limousine.

"Dinner for twelve at the house, then the young people want to whisk away to the Country Club. The big Saturday night dance, you know. But you mustn't overdo, Billikin."

Mrs. Meadows seemed delighted to have her back again, and even Nyda and Winnie were faintly friendly, when they came to her room before dinner.

"I haven't a thing to wear," Billy mourned, looking at the sleek waveness of their dresses with envious eyes.

"That dress what came from that Madame Dubois, or whatever you call her, would be nice for to-night." Winnie, the colored maid, contributed eagerly.

Billy's profound amazement passed unnoticed, for Nyda and Winnie were wholly engrossed with the dress which Viola had so proudly displayed. She had ordered no dress from Madame Dubois.

"It's stunning," Billy. Winnie cried, her voice a little shrill with envy. "But you'd better try it on. It may have to be altered."

Billy took the dress into her own hands almost reverently. It was a beauty—and these particular shades of yellow and green had always filled her with covetous delight.

"Got a label on the neck?" Viola crowded. "I say, Madame Dubois, Exclusive Models—The Daffodil. That's what you are now, Miss Billy, a Daffodil. An' that name ain't no lie, neither, is it, Miss Winnie?"

"It's lovely," Winnie conceded. When Nyda and Winnie had gone to their rooms to add last-minute touches of make-up, Viola drew a tiny envelope from her apron pocket and handed it over, with a rich chuckle.

"This here note was pinned on the dress when it came, Miss Billy."

Inside the small envelope was a card, covered with the minute printing which was Dal Romaine's entirely distinctive handwriting:

"This is your dress, Mignon. It was created especially for you. And it's from me to you, with love, Dal."

The "spell" rushed back upon her, recaptured her, shook every nerve in her exquisitely clad little body. She understood. This was his answer to her charge, her bitter, unjust charge, only half uttered but understood by him, that he had "lured" her into Madame Dubois' shop and caused her to spend more money than she could afford, so that he might profit at her expense.

The party included Ralph Truman, Bruce Kruger, Gil Warburton, son of Presley Warburton; Carl Boswell, in whom Nyda seemed to be interested, and Peter Conroy, who, like Carl, did not quite belong to the Kruger-Bradley-Truman set, but who had been invited because Winnie so evidently liked him; and, besides the three girls of the house, Constance Bradley and Kathleen Kruger, a vivacious little red-headed flapper, who had recently announced her engagement to Gil Warburton. At ten o'clock the young people piled into cars which hurried them away to the Country Club.

Billy was dancing with Ralph Truman, who had treated her all evening as if nothing unpleasant had ever occurred to mar their friendship, when she was startled by an explosive "Damn!" from the lips which had just been smiling at her with comradely affection.

"What's the matter?" she demanded, as his arm tightened about her.

Then she looked toward the door of the club ballroom and saw the cause of his annoyance. Dal Romaine stood there, a slight smile on his thin, perfectly cut lips, his teeth gleaming as white as his polished shirt front, his Tuxedo fitting his trim figure with exquisite precision.

Ralph swung Billy to the opposite end of the room, dancing there in a small area for several minutes, while he talked of a dozen inconsequential things. When the music stopped, Billy excused herself to Ralph and hurried away, as if bent on some important mission, but she had only one need—to see Dal and to speak with him alone.

The music started again while she was still hunting for him. Bruce Kruger swept her into a dance, but she scarcely knew whose arms were around her. She was glad of their support, however, when she came abruptly upon Dal Romaine, dancing with Nyda Lomax. Nyda, who was as tall as Dal, in her three-inch heels, was dancing far closer than good taste permitted, her face almost touching the man's dark cheek.

"Let's dance over to the balcony, Bruce," Billy pleaded.

"Feeling faint, old dear?" Bruce asked, smilingly. When they reached the open window by the balcony. "Wait here, Billy. I'll get you a glass of iced punch. Don't revile and whirl away with some other chap while I'm gone."

"I'll wait for you on the balcony," she told him, stepping through the open French window as she did so.

How foolish she was to be nauseated with jealousy, just because Dal Romaine danced with Nyda Lomax! What if he did look at Nyda as if he adored her? He could not help paying whimsical, knightly deference to women. He had teased her often about her jealousy, though she had never stooped to the ignominy of putting that jealousy into words. Of course he flirted!

As she reasoned with herself, her eyes brooded upon the moonlit scene below her. A couple, walking arm in arm, crossed the field of her vision. With a tightening of her whole body, she realized that it was Dal and Nyda, their heads bent so close that Dal's breath must be playing upon Nyda's cheek. Before she could realize the pain that the sight caused her, a man leaped from the shadows of a high box hedge, and buried himself upon Romaine. She had time to note that the attacker wore the semi-military coat and glistening Cordovan puttees of a chauffeur before her recognition of him was confirmed by Nyda's shrill scream:

"Eddie! Eddie, for God's sake—"

Billy's instinct was to throw herself over the balustrade of the balcony, regardless of possibly injury to herself, and rush to the defense of the man she loved. But her defense was not needed. Before she could move or cry out, Romaine, as if by magic, since he was at least thirty pounds lighter than the chauffeur, had thrown his attacker over his shoulder.

"Jiu Jitsu, by golly!" Bruce Kruger's voice behind her exclaimed with sincere admiration. "Wonder where he learned that?"

Billy did not answer. Her eyes were straining toward the group below. Dal stood over the fallen man, spoke to him, apparently, with quietness and without gestures. Banning flung a threatening arm about, but as Romaine talked, he grew quieter. Then Nyda stooped beside him, helped him to his feet. The chauffeur limped on down the driveway, after a minute or two of feeble threatening, the words of which Billy could not hear, and Nyda and Dal returned to the club house.

A few minutes later Dal, with a smile of untroubled poise, "out in" on Bruce Kruger, who was dancing with Billy. She was still pale with fright, but the conventional contact of his arms in the dance made her cravily happy.

"I saw what happened—from the balcony," she whispered, as soon as they had swung away from Bruce.

"Forget all about it, Mignon, my darling," his voice caressed her, but his eyes commanded her. "Remember will not bother me again. He put himself in my power tonight—and someone else, too," he added so softly that she hardly caught the strange, frightening words. But his lips closed in a thin, cruel line, and his narrowed eyes glinted in a way that made her shiver.

(To Be Continued)

Romaine apparently knows something about Nyda's tell, and Billy's efforts to get it out of him are in vain.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUMNER

A young lady authoress of London town, Miss Mollie Painter-Downes, aged 21, has announced her engagement to a young lad aged 23. The young lady author is "The Shoreless Sea" and "The Chase" announces that the ideal ages for marriage are 21 for the girl and 23 for the boy. There is something amusing in the typical "humanness" of this remark, the old human tendency to decide that the best thing is our own thing; the best way, our own way.

"Pressure" There's a new book called "Pressure" by Margaret Culkins Banning which will fit the cases of about as many human beings as any modern novel has for a long time. It's the story of pressure of one kind or another put upon us, diverting us from the lives we want to lead and should lead. There's the pressure of "getting on" making young married couples live artificial, worthless social lives in order to "get on." The pressure of business, demanding trickery and violation of conscience if one "gets on"—the constant compromising that life demands. Read it. You'll like Annette, especially.

The Holy Estate "It is difficult for a normal man or woman to be greatly discontented, let alone greatly unhappy, in the first month of marriage. Marriage under any circumstances is, to begin with, too much of an adventure to permit of immediate tedium, of many immediate questions, of too serious irritations. Almost anyone is safe for at least eight weeks since it takes that long to discover the limitations of even the best of us."

Bridge-Playing Males I wish that once and for all this question of how much time women spend playing bridge would be settled. Here's a real figuring job for a statistician. What inspires my desire is the morning paper. First, an interview with a Mrs. who has just completed a law course. Answering the question of whether she believes a woman can carry on a profession outside her home and still be a good mother, she says "I certainly will take care of my own home and my children, but I don't intend to take for granted." In the next column a politician assails "bridge-playing women" who pay more attention to trumps than to good government. An editorial writer takes a crack at "bridge-playing women."

Golf-Playing Males I am inclined to think that the waste of time by women who play bridge is much exaggerated. Most of his arms in the dance made her cravily happy. "I saw what happened—from the balcony," she whispered, as soon as they had swung away from Bruce.

Know Nothing Wives know nothing of the fierce competition which their husbands meet. They assume, if they ever think about it that husbands merely go to work, go out at lunch and come home at night and will continue to do so forever, amen. What husbands do in that interim is of no interest to them until, perhaps, a financial task comes. Wives, then, are sure that he must lack gumption, be inferior to "other women's husbands." They themselves, the wives, don't know what it means to worry about holding the job—unless a few of the silliest ones worry about that myth "The Woman Downtown." Fifty-fifty split with them? I'm no so sure. On a strict impartial business basis there's no reason in the world, there's no reason in the terms of partnership. Their husbands could live as well much more cheaply without them. All right, I now sign off for your arguments at me and with me!

By HENRI BENDEL Two rules and only two must be followed by the bride choosing the most important costume of her life. First, she should consider her type—for the bridal gown must be becoming. Second, she must give heed to the kind of wedding it will be, formal or informal. For of course a formal high noon wedding takes quite a different attire from a delightful home affair in a garden setting beside white lilacs.

Traditional White Satin White satin, I think, will always be the first choice of materials for wedding gowns. Maybe it is because of the rich tradition that enhances the material that her mother's mother chose, or maybe it is just the average girl love satin. White satin just naturally looks like a wedding dress to the average girl. In my own creations I consider the individual. The tall, lithe girl has her grace best set off by a sea-fitted gown similar to the one shown today, of white satin embroidered elaborately with pearls, with a touch of green in the cooler of the flowers. Simple elegance has this gown, with its long sleeves flaring over her hands like old-fashioned mitts, its length broken by the introduction of tulle drop skirt and tulle for the V front.

It has a long train hanging from the shoulders, heavily embroidered as is the dress. The veil is lovely simplicity itself, fitted to the head with an embroidered banding and falling in gentle folds.

SLEEPING SICKNESS ONE RIDDLE THAT IS UNSOLVED

BY DR MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

About 1918 numerous cases began to appear in the United States of a condition promptly christened by the newspaper "American sleeping sickness." It became necessary for physicians to explain the difference between this condition and the African sleeping sickness, of which much is definitely known.

The American condition was characterized by a progressive stupor or lethargy in some instances, although in others there was excitement and babbling. The disease occurred most commonly in the winter months, rarely in children, and affected both sexes.

It had various forms, all of them, however, affecting the nervous system, bringing about difficulties in motion, peculiarities of conduct and paralysis. Apparently early epidemics had followed influenza, as the one of 1918 followed the influenza epidemic which spread across the world in 1915, 1916 and 1917.

The disease is quite certainly communicable from one person to another, but its cause is unknown. Its spread has caused much alarm, since the condition cannot be con-burden, or it may have been to do another dramatic effect to her already colorful life, but the thing is, would that part of the congregation that left Angelus Temple have thought of leaving if Mrs. McPherson had been born that way?

Of course they wouldn't! The biblical quotation they use on which to base their action about women's heads being covered was an old Jewish custom that referred to veils, shawls and other head covering in the church. Many creeds and denominations still cling to that.

But if it means that thirty-inch hair instead of five-inch hair is necessary to cover woman's head, then a good many women I know are out of luck, for to them, God gave only that much.

INDIANA BANKS WORRY AS LAND VALUES TUMBLE

Financial Men Watching Mortgages With Much Care to Make Loans Safe.

Indianapolis—Indiana bankers are scrutinizing land mortgages with extreme care this spring, following the closing, sale or consolidation of more than 18 institutions since the first of the year, largely the result of depreciation in farm land values.

Twelve of the banks were closed outright. In almost every instance it was the same story—farm loans greatly in excess of actual cash value. One institution consolidated with its competitor before the crash came, and the others were purchased by the strong banks in the communities to avoid the inevitable.

In the fact of these failures, Luther F. Symons, state bank examiner, is optimistic.

Expect More Failures
Symons admits the end is not yet. In fact, he rather expects additional failures among some of the state's financial institutions. He says it is a weeding out process, and banks organized several years ago that should never have been brought into existence will be eliminated.

The bank examiner believes there is a definite ratio that should be maintained between population and the number of institutions in a given community.

Although he refused to set a rule of thumb, Symons pointed out the ratio between banks and population in the east averages one institution to every 10,000 inhabitants. In this state, the examiner said, the ratio is 1 to 2,500.

A large number of the smaller banks in Indiana were organized in the period of prosperity during and after the war, Symons said. These institutions made money while farm crop prices were high and land values inflated.

But farm land values have dropped a great deal in the last few years. In the last two or three seasons the Indiana farmers have had poor crops. In addition, crop prices dropped.

The result, according to Symons, was inevitable. Farmers sought to have their loans extended. Their lands no longer bore a high cash value and additional extensions and additions to already over-mortgaged farms was impossible.

End Is Not Yet
The weaker institutions began to totter. One by one they began closing their doors—and the end is not yet, Symons says.

But the weeding out process is a healthy situation, Symons believes. To date the losses to stockholders have been comparatively small. To a great extent the institutions are being liquidated with a deficit for stockholders only.

The condition resulting—leaving the field open to the stronger institutions—will be beneficial to everyone concerned, Symons thinks.

The bank examiner is not the only one in the state offices that feels the same way. David H. Jennings, state securities commissioner, has expressed himself quite frankly to the writer in discussing the banking situation.

"Symons is absolutely right in his belief," Jennings said. "There are too many small, weak banks in this state today. We would be much better off if these little institutions were closed."

MANCHESTER DELEGATE AT GIRLS' CONFERENCE

Local churches are well represented at the Older Girls' conference which opens in Rocky Hill this evening, under auspices of the County Y. W. C. A. and the Hartford Council of Religious Education. This will be the eighth annual conference and the headquarters will be at the Rocky Hill Congregational church, with banquet at that church, and the Methodist at 6-15. Music will be furnished by the Black Cat and the Night Hawk orchestras. Evening worship, at 7:45 will be in charge of the Farmington girls. Miss Abbie Graham of New York will be the speaker. A pageant will be given by the girls of Rocky Hill, entitled "Her Choice." The Bristol girls will lead the worship Saturday morning at 9:30. At 12:15 a picnic lunch will be enjoyed and the closing service, the ceremonial of beauty will take place at 2:30.

Center church organizations will be represented as follows: Dorothy Willis, Mary Wilcox, Cyp club; Genevieve Eddy, Edna England, Genevieve Reserves, Alleen Peterson, Sunday school, Mrs. George H. Wilcox will chaperone the girls. From the North Methodist church Florence Tyler, Dorothy Fortune and Florence McNally will be the delegates. Dorothy Grant will accompany the following girls from her class in the Second Congregational church school: Jane Grant, Helen Huebler, Frances Strickland, Anna Pitkin and Dorothy Stiggins.

NORTH CHURCH PEOPLE DINE, HEAR REPORTS

Teachers and officers of the Second Congregational church enjoyed a supper of creamed chicken, toast, peas, rolls, coffee and gingerbread with whipped cream, last night. The meal was prepared under the direction of Mrs. Frank V. Williams and Miss Charlotte Foster.

Reports were given by the teachers who visited the Sunday school of the Central Baptist church at Hartford last Sunday, Miss Mabel Wetherell and Mrs. Francis Wetherell; Miss Flora Threlkoff who went to the Center church and Miss Faith Fallow and Evelyn Jones the South Methodist churches of this town. The teachers took notes of the general work and the particular departments in which they were interested at each school visited. Many helpful suggestions were the result.

Superintendent Walton introduced a novel feature in the shape of a box, labeled "The Grumblers' Paradise." Each teacher or officer was supposed to deposit therein his or her "pet grumble." A lively discussion followed.

The pastor, Rev. Frederick C. Allen, has been in Hartford several times this week, attending the exhibit of hand work at the School of Religious Pedagogy, and getting helpful ideas for the church vacation school which is to open at the Second Congregational church July 5, and is to be supervised by this church and the North Methodist.

CIRCLE THEATER SHOWS
DOUBLE BILL TOMORROW

"Blazing Days" and "Ain't Love Funny" on Program; "Millionaires" Ends Run Tonight.

Alberta Vaughn, now recognized as one of the leading comedienne in the films, has the leading role in "Ain't Love Funny," which, with "Blazing Days," will be shown in the Circle theater's continuous program tomorrow afternoon and evening.

When a young girl turns patriot to the point where she becomes engaged to an entire regiment of soldiers, things are bound to happen! This is the entertaining situation in "Ain't Love Funny." There are some delightful moments when the little patriot pledges herself secretly to each soldier whom she brands her very own hero. While they are abroad she writes to them faithfully, but her day of reckoning comes when all the boys return to her and demand an immediate marriage. How Helena outwits all her fiancés and finally marries her real sweetheart forms one of the most amusing climaxes ever screamed.

Cast in the role of Sam Perry, a bread-and-butter salesman, who, in common with his kind, carries a vindictive hatred of sheep and everything that pertains to the "woolies," including the "nesters" as the sheepherders were derisively known. Fred Humes in "Blazing Days" portrays an excellent characterization of his conviction to an enemy cause through the magic touch of romance and love. "Millionaires," the comedy drama starring Louise Fazenda, which opened at the Circle yesterday, will be seen this evening for the last time.

MINTZ ANNOUNCES
BIG REMOVAL SALE

If everything works out according to schedule, M. Mintz is planning to move his north end store into the end store of the remodeled Cowles Hotel block on or about the first of June. Mr. Mintz bought the property a short while ago and immediately began making plans for the renovation of the block. These plans are now being carried out by Contractor Jack Hayes and soon there will be four desirable stores facing the square where before there was an insignificant and a little store under it, of little business value. All this has been torn out and in its place are four stores. The front of the block has been brought out to the building line and all entrances are on a level with the sidewalk. The exterior of the building is being refinished in stucco.

Many old time north end residents admit that it is the biggest improvement that has been made in that section of the town in many years.

Mr. Mintz is planning to occupy the store next to the A.P. When the store is complete it will be one of the most attractive on the Square. In connection with the moving of the store Mintz is inaugurating a big removal sale which will start Saturday. Everything that customers move for him in this big sale will help when it comes time to move to the new store.

CRIME BOARD SEES
BAD FARM FUTURE

New York.—An intensely pessimistic picture of the rural community has been drawn by the New York State Crime Commission. It is one of disillusionment and distrust in the promise of farm life, and ends up in the most disheartening prediction for the farmer—that of fast decay and abandonment of American rural areas.

This grim outlook is foreshadowed on the strength of an investigation of two counties in New York state and the investigator's report of conditions he found there.

"Country is 'doomed'!" "He has observed a community breakdown," the report reads, referring to the investigator's experiences, "due largely to a drift toward amusements away from the village, but mainly because the boys and girls as they grow up move away from the home community."

"He was very pessimistic on this generation, the rural areas would be utterly depopulated. Farms would be abandoned and we would have forests springing up again."

STRENUOUS
"What makes you so tired?" "I dreamed all night that I was waiting in line to get tickets for a football game."

TOLLAND

The Fire Laddies of Tolland had had rather a busy week as several of the committees have been in session at the home of William Ayers, Jr., planning the further development of the fire department. Tuesday evening the officers under Chief Wochomurka and Assistant Chief Ayers inaugurated a plan relative to fire drills, etc., so as to actually get down to the fire fighting duties of the organization. In this work they will be directly assisted by Captain Meacham and Lieutenant Ladd. Tuesday evening the entertainment committee under the able direction of Rev. William C. Darby and Director James E. Rhodes perfected plans for the edification of the members and their friends during the summer months and Thursday evening a rehearsal which was an informal one was held to prepare the plans and ideas suggested so that they could be properly submitted to the members of the department which will be held tonight (Friday evening), in the Town Hall.

Wednesday evening a meeting of the Federated church committee met at the home of Rev. William C. Darby. It was voted to place twelve more Bibles in the church and other important business transacted.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Steele who have been spending the winter in Hampton, Fla., returned to their home Wednesday.

In spite of the threatening weather a large number were present to enjoy the delicious dinner provided by the hostess, Mrs. Ayers, and social time with the members while engaged in missionary activities.

Miss Elizabeth and Miss Marjorie Stoughton attended the Suffield school prom over the week end.

Miss Etta Wilson is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Homan and helping Mrs. Emma Skinner, while Mrs. Homan can only get about on crutches since breaking her ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Griswold of Hartford, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Collins, the first of the week.

Mrs. Erwin F. Stoughton spent a few days at Black Point this week. The South Windsor school board held their monthly meeting at the Wapping school hall last Monday evening. They voted to open and close the schools on daylight saving time for the remainder of the Spring term beginning next Monday morning.

The Hartford East Association of Congregational churches which held their meeting with the Clantonbury church last Wednesday, was well attended. The pastor and five delegates from this town represented the Congregational Branch of the Federated Church here. Next year the meeting will be held with the church at South Windsor on May 2, 1928.

The Christian Endeavor society will hold their meeting next Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock, standard time. The subject will be "How to become a Leader" the reference is found in 2nd Timothy 2:1-7, and the leader will be Mrs. Truman H. Woodward.

TRIPLE FEATURE BILL AT RIALTO TOMORROW

Two Regular Pictures and Beginning of Fine New Serial; "It" to Be Shown.

"So's Your Old Man." Paramount screaming farce, with W. C. Fields and Alice Joyce, will be shown at the Rialto for the last time tonight, at 7 and 9 o'clock. This rollicking tale of a small town character who finally wins a princess is brimful of good, clean comedy, and those who visit the Rialto are assured of a splendid evening of entertainment. On the same bill are being shown such added attractions as "The Scorchers," a two reel Fox comedy and late news. Tonight's prices are 10 and 20 cents.

For the continuous show tomorrow the Rialto offers a special triple bill, which includes two big features and the beginning of a new and fascinating serial. Kenneth McDonald in "The Speed Demon" heads the program; this production is followed by a feature of no less merit, "The Voice of the Mountain." Popular Herbert Rawlinson appears in the first episode of a real serial thriller, "Trooper 77." And as though these attractions were not sufficient a two reel comedy and Kinogram is added to the bill.

The prices for tomorrow are matinee 10 cents to all, and 10 and 20 cents in the evening.

Clara Bow in "It," Eleanor Glynn's famous story is the attraction for Sunday evening. Antonio Moreno appears opposite Miss Bow in this production.

Is Aimee's hair bobbed? Here are two views of the Evangelist's new haircut. Judge for yourself.

BY DAN THOMAS

Los Angeles, Calif., May 5.—Los Angeles religious circles face a new problem—how long is bobbed hair?

Since Aimee Semple McPherson, noted evangelist, appeared in her pulpit recently with her long tittan locks "clipped," the Angelus Temple members have been in a turmoil.

Fully a thousand followers, led by Gladwin Nichols, have deserted their leader and organized a new church with the resigned orchestra leader as its head. Nichols resigned after being reproached by Mrs. McPherson for losing interest in his work.

Immediately Aimee's name was again blazoned in newspaper headlines—for the first time in several months. Nichols and the Angelus Temple leader carried on their battle through the press. And despite the loss of many members to the new church, Aimee's nightly congregations started to swell just as they did when she was being accused of almost everything in the papers.

"I could not put my heart in my work when confronted by such a display of worldliness," said Nichols. "I was so astounded that I could scarcely carry on for the remainder of the evening when Sister McPherson first appeared with her tresses shorn. Bobbed hair and other displays of worldliness have no place in a pulpit."

Denies It's Bobbed "My hair is not bobbed," almost shouts Mrs. McPherson, whenever the subject is mentioned. "I merely had it clipped because it was coming out so fast and I didn't know what else to do. Why, I would never think of having my hair cut short as long as I am leader of the Angelus Temple. It still is twelve inches long.

"I sincerely hope that the new church started by Mr. Nichols is a great success," declares Mrs. McPherson. "There is plenty of room for more churches in this city and the withdrawal of some of our members will not in any way affect the work we are carrying forward.

"Brotherly Love" "I do think, however, that they are making a poor start. Wouldn't it be better to start teaching brotherly love instead of knocking a church that has already been in existence for four years and has withstood the most severe criticism ever directed toward an institution or its leader?"

Some of the dissension started several weeks ago because of a reported split between Mrs. McPherson and her mother, "Ma" Kennedy. Both vigorously denied that they had had any disagreement. But Aimee no longer lives with her mother. She has taken a home at the beach and is living alone.

1927 TOURISTS HOPE OF FRENCH BUSINESS MEN

Steamship Companies Are Travel Agents Worrying Over High Costs.

Paris—Will the tourist tide flow Europeward this year as profitably as it did in 1926? This question is anxiously being asked in Paris by all those commercially interested in the periodic invasions of American travellers.

Steamship companies and travel agents are extremely worried over the mounting cost of travelling in France, which kept pace with the fall of the franc last summer and now refuses to scale downward in accordance with the franc's remarkable recovery in the last three months.

But the hotel men, big restaurant owners and those merchants who count heavily on tourist business apparently are not as yet aware of the danger threatening them. Their unwillingness to reduce prices is blamed for the scarcity of regular winter visitors in Paris.

Ships Return Loaded Ships leaving French ports for New York this month are all full or nearly full, breaking all records for westbound traffic on the Atlantic in January. Advance bookings for passages from New York to Europe in February and March are said to be far below what they were at this time last year.

The travel agencies declare that many of their old clients who generally spend three winter months here are returning home after three weeks because of doubled living expenses. These grave warnings, combined with a loud wall of distress from fifty Montmartre cabaret owners who have just closed their doors so far have gone unheeded by the hotel men.

Three leading de luxe hotels, the Ritz, Maurice and Crillon, still quote a minimum rate of 300 francs for a single room and 400 francs or $16 for a double room. These rates were established last summer, when they amounted respectively to about $7.50 and $10 at the rate of exchange then.

The managements of these hotels admit that they are not crowded at this time and, in fact, have not as many stopping over on their way to or from the Riviera as they had in January last year. Yet they do not see any lesson for them in closing of Montmartre cabarets where the summer price of 200 francs a bottle for champagne never was lowered.

Travel Agent Gloomy The steamship companies and travel agents gloomily admit that several Mediterranean cruises which brought highly satisfactory returns last winter bid far to be flops this winter. The Riviera season is alarmingly slow in getting under way. January visitors being far under the number seen there in the same month last year.

This slump in the winter "trade" is regarded as a bad omen for the business that may be expected to follow in the Spring and Summer. A big travel agency in Paris dealing almost exclusively with South Americans acknowledges the prospect of its worst winter season in years.

After the senatorial elections just held, Premier Poincare still retains a voting majority for carrying out his financial policy, which brought the franc down from 50-for-a-dollar to 25 and has maintained it there for weeks.

Prices, however, linger stubbornly on the lofty level to which they were boosted last summer during the height of the tourist season. An official of the American Express company predicted that "fewer of the student tourists who travel third class will come next summer, but we will see more of the best class of American traveller.

BRIDGE JOINS FAST BEACH SPEEDWAYS

St. Augustine, Fla.—The three fastest beach speedways in the world have been joined by the new million-dollar bridge spanning Matanzas bay between here and Anastasia Island.

The new connected route extends from Atlantic beach opposite Jacksonville to Inlet terrace, 18 miles south of Daytona beach, a distance of almost 125 miles.

Cars now may race at top speed nearly all the way on beach sands smooth and hard as a billiard table and averaging 500 feet wide at low tide.

The 40 miles from Atlantic beach opposite Jacksonville to Vilano beach, opposite St. Augustine, can be made in as many minutes. The mainland is reached by the Vilano bridge and then the Matanzas bridge offers entrance to Anastasia Island, one of the speediest stretches in the world.

The beach highway is wide enough to admit 43 cars abreast and is a straight line for 18 miles to Matanzas inlet. A bridge joins the route to Flagler beach and Ormond-Daytona beach, where high speed records have been made.

CAST MAKING HIT AT STATE, HARTFORD

It has taken less than one week for the musical comedy company with which W. A. Ellis is presenting a series of weekly offerings at the State theater in Hartford, to establish itself definitely in the affections of the theater-going public. Opening on Monday with "The Gingham Girl," the company has played to large audiences of patrons at every performance, and it is significant that each day finds a larger number of patrons in the house than were present on previous days.

Jimmy Sargent, as Johnny Cousins, the hero of the play, projects a remarkable personality across the footlights and keeps his audience in a constant uproar of mirth. Ada Howard, as Mary Thompson, Johnny's sweetheart, wins her audience the moment she steps on the stage, and it would be difficult to say whether she pleases more with her acting or with her singing; in each she is flawless. It would be difficult to single out any particular member of the company for especial praise. Every principal is thoroughly capable, and the chorus is unusual in its beauty and in the precision with which the girls and boys have been trained.

The Fox super-feature film, "Ankles Preferred," in which Madge Bellamy is starred, is being shown in addition to the stage offering, and proves to be entertainment of the finest quality. Next week Mr. Ellis will present "The musical comedy, "A Stubborn Q-derella," on the stage and the picture will be Belle Bennett's masterpiece of dramatic acting. "Mother."

Why we sell the DUNLOP TIRE

FOR 39 YEARS Dunlop has been building the world's supreme tire. Dunlops wear longer because Dunlop knows how to build better at each vital point.

Take the hidden carcass beneath the tread. Dunlop owns its own cotton mills for no other purpose than to spin the best long-fibre cotton into the famous cable-twist cord that goes into this carcass.

The extra strength in these cords means an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

The extra "stretch" enables the carcass to give under severe blows, and to come back into its original position without internal injury.

The Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known—wears slowly and smoothly, making sure that you get out of your Dunlops, all the extra mileage that added care and longer experience have built into them. We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car.

Maltop Malts

Highest Quality

"MALTOP MALTS" are worth going a long, long way for.

For seven years "MALTOP MALTS" have been steadily increasing their circle of malt boosters. Other brands have come and gone—new names, new labels, new claims.

"MALTOP MALTS" have nothing new to offer. The same original high grade malt made from the best matured winter barley, concentrated to a rich, creamy pure malt.

Made in five varieties, "MALTOP" offers a brand for every taste—light, dark, porter style, hop-flavored and medium.

Why experiment with new, unknown brands that have just "dropped in." Better to tie up with a malt that has been giving complete beverage satisfaction for seven years. A tried and proven malt—"MALTOP."

And if you are fussy about getting a fresh, mellow "ace-high" hop, with the genuine tang, you will naturally want the famous "MALTOP HOPS."

COMMUNITY CLUB PLANS LAWN FETE

This Year's Event Will Run Three Nights; Dates Chosen June 9, 10, 11.

Tentative plans were formed last evening at the Community club for their annual lawn fete to be held this year on June 9, 10 and 11. The committee in charge of the general organization and early preliminary work is headed by R. K. Anderson, chairman; Mark Holmes, Charles B. Loomis and G. H. Washburn. Chairman Anderson stated last night that an executive committee would be announced shortly who would consider general plans for the lawn fete, also the setting up of the booths on the "White House" grounds, as well as selecting all other committees.

Mr. Anderson also said that he hoped to be able to have an unusual treat in the entertainment line for the audience. He said the acts in mind would be of a high class and considerable in variety as well. The tickets for the lawn fete will be in the hands of the ticket committee in a few days and work will start in earnest to make this fete the biggest and best yet.

As this will be the fifth year of Community club lawn fetes, the club plans to eclipse all previous records. It will be noted that the Community club has decided to conduct the lawn fete three nights instead of two, as formerly. Past records, the club reports, show that attendance of 3,000 nightly featured these events. To attract and entertain such a large number is no small task, and an army of eighty-five committee workers will be required, each worker with his task assigned. Committees will be announced next week.

MYSTERY LIGHTS ON U. S. BORDER IN RUM RUNNING

Motorists Often Observe Twinkling Stars Across St. Lawrence River.

Watertown, N. Y.—Twinkling little lights far across the St. Lawrence river and upper reaches of Lake Ontario may mean nothing to the average honest farmer who resides in that section of New York state, but they mean hundreds of thousands of dollars and sometimes hold a year in Federal penitentiary in the balance for certain sharp eyes.

Yes, even a life or two hinges at times on how those lights flicker.

Motorists along the Morristown-Ogdensburg highway have repeatedly seen mysterious lights darting out from the Canadian shore on dark nights. They have now learned that these lights are but part of a secret code adopted by bootlegging bands under direct control of "Mape," mysterious as are his signal lights, and reputed to be worth a fortune of seven figures.

Flying Squadron Watchful.

It became known, however, that United States customs border patrolmen and members of the "flying squadron" of State Troopers from the Malone barracks are devising ways and means of combating this newest kink in rum-running across the Canadian border.

"There is something to it, but just what we haven't found out yet."

That was the trite reply that escaped the lips of a tight-mouthed Federal Agent here. Further than that he refused to talk, but listened intently, even encouragingly, to a correspondent when he sought to find out just what steps Uncle Sam's border sleuths were taking to break up this nefarious conspiracy against the Nation's laws.

"Do the officers higher up know about these lights?" was one question propounded.

Silence followed until another question was launched at the carefully schooled agent.

"Have there ever been any arrests in connection with signaling with lights across the border?"

Something To It

At that the silence broke and the simple admission that there was "something to it" ended the conversation.

But river men, who for the past few weeks have watched with increasing interest the elaborate system of flickering lights, are more talkative. It isn't up to them to halt the smuggling and they to a man seem more interested in "what it says" than in impending arrests.

"There is no doubt in my mind, and I think my fellow river men will bear me out, that some powerful liquor ring probably Mape's gang, is cooking up something," one river captain, well advanced in years and rich in river history said.

"Every night for the past few weeks I have seen the same kind of flickering lights over along the Canadian shore. The lights seem to be pretty strong, too, for it's easy to pick their white rays out even on the American shore."

How It Works.

"The way I figure this thing out is that border jumpers work their stock into safe caches all along the Canadian shore of the St. Lawrence river. Anyway, between Ogdensburg and Morristown we know they are at it."

"When the right signal is flashed across the river, the Canadian shore, heavily muffled so that the exhausts give their enemies little inkling of where they are headed. They probably have several skiffs trailing along loaded to the gunwales with liquor or perhaps aliens. When they are near the American shore the skiffs are cut loose and paddled ashore, where waiting hands grab up the contraband, stow it away in cars and guide it on its race toward downstate cities."

That signaling by means of lights flashing across the border has been prevalent on a small scale is admitted by many prominent Ogdensburg officials.

Of course I went to Hollywood, Said Angelina Cross. They didn't offer me a party But that's the movies' loss.

Manchester Garden club members will have their May meeting with the president, Miss Mary Chapman of Forest street, Monday evening at 7:30 instead of 8. No regular speaker has been engaged for this meeting, but a discussion of such absorbing matters as a spring flower show and other topics will interest the members.

LYNN TAX RATE CUT $5 DRAWS MANY QUERIES

Fearless Mayor Insists On Savings In Every Department.

Lynn, Mass.—The tax rate of Lynn was cut $5 this year. Though the proverbial five-spot may not represent much when placed alone a neat pile accumulated when every $1,000 worth of property in the city was assessed for that amount. At least so the city fathers of other municipalities believe.

As a consequence the ability of the city of Lynn to cut its tax rate $5 draw queries of "How" from all over New England. The tax question has been of extreme importance in this section this year because of the industrial situation. The answer to the queries received in Lynn contained but few words. They were in effect, "Mayor Bauer." In other words, to their chief executive, Ralph S. Bauer, do the people of Lynn attribute their reduction in taxes.

How It Was Done A few of the methods used by Mayor Bauer in reducing the municipal expenditures follow. The appropriation for the assessing department was cut $3,647 by having the police do the listing of polls.

The securing of an additional load per team per day in refuse and garbage disposal and other economies cut expenses $24,000 a year in the disposal of refuse and garbage. Thirteen thousand dollars was cut from the cost of street cleaning by carrying on the permanent payroll from January to May, 179 men who had previously been retained through the winter although they worked only during snowstorms.

By increasing stable expense $3,000 the city could use its own teams instead of hiring them at $10 a day. The street department cut $5,000 from the cost of maintenance of streets and sidewalks, and $5,000 from upkeep of equipment.

The city stone crushers had been furnishing stone at $2.50 a ton. When it was found crushed stone could be bought in open market for $1.70 a ton the stone crusher was shut down and the saving amounted to $8,867.88.

Saving On Oil About one fifth of the oil formerly used in street oiling was found sufficient for this purpose, and along with a reduction in the cost per gallon, a saving of $10,000 was effected. A revision of the lists of those receiving aid from the Poor Department and the requirement that everyone receiving aid make a new application saved the city $29,500. Eighty thousand dollars was cut from school expense.

The water board saved $10,000 by requiring land owners to pay the entire cost of extensions of mains over private ways and $5,000 in the supply item.

A general inspection by the Mayor after a heavy storm showed that a patrol of the reservoir grounds which was supposed to be made was not made, although pay therefore was being received, the untrodden snow exposing the failure to perform.

By combining all the coal contracts for the several city departments into one, $4 a ton was saved on coal. The same principle was applied to the purchase of gasoline for city owned cars.

BEETHOVEN CLUB REHEARSING OFTEN

Holds Practice For Coming Concert Twice a Week; Uses Few Accompaniments.

An advance sale of over four hundred tickets forecasts a successful concert for the Beethoven Glee Club of the Swedish Lutheran church. The club will celebrate its second year of existence Thursday evening, May 26, when the second annual concert will be held at the High school hall.

The club has been rehearsing twice a week since February on the program. A feature of the club's singing is that all numbers are memorized. Unaccompanied singing is also featured this year, the club doing only three numbers with instrument.

Assisting the club will be the Copley string quartet of Boston, which is made up of women artists. Georges Laurent, solo fustler of the Boston Symphony will also be a feature of the program. Nicholas Slonimsky, pianist and composer, will accompany Mr. Laurent. Mr. Slonimsky is the conductor of the Boston Chamber orchestra.

The Beethoven Glee club numbers forty voices and is directed by Helge Pearson, musical director of the Swedish Lutheran church. Edward Taylor who has sung with the club several times will be the tenor soloist. Miss Eva Johnson will accompany the chorus and soloists.

GARDENING BOOKS AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Timely List of Works on Flowering and Vegetable Raising That Are Available.

This is the time of year when much attention is turned to gardening. Nearly everyone, who has land available is getting it ready for raising vegetables. Often the amateur gardener finds it quite a problem to do successfully.

And it is with this in mind that Miss Jessamine M. Smith, head librarian at the South End Library, has secured a list of garden books written by authors of repute. Thirty-four books are included in the list which can be secured by library patrons. They include books by such authorities on gardening as Mrs. Francis King and Hugh Findlay. Several dealing with flowers are also included. The list: Little garden for little money, K. L. Brewster.

Gardening with brains H. T. Findlay. Of interest to the general reader as well as to the gardener. Garden making and keeping, Hugh Findlay.

1001 Garden questions answered, A. C. Holtes. Beginner's Garden, and Little Garden, Mrs. L. (Y) King.

TO PUT POTTED PLANTS ON VETERANS' GRAVE

Use of Wildflowers Will Be Abandoned This Memorial Day—Arrangements.

Potted plants instead of wildflowers will be the decorations on the graves of veterans in Manchester cemeteries on Memorial day, it was decided at the meeting of the committee in charge last night.

A committee consisting of Arthur Keating, Michael McDonnell and Stephen Beebe was appointed to confer with the auxiliaries of the various veteran associations in regard to a dinner after the exercises.

The High school orchestra will play at Cheney hall. The Salvation Army and the Center Flute bands are two organizations which will play in the parade and at the Center park.

At Cheney hall Rev. James Stuart Neill will deliver prayer and Rev. Marvin S. Stocking will pronounce the benediction. The address will be given by Howell Cheney and the prayer at the monument in the Center park will be given by Rev. Frederick C. Allen.

The man who is always hunting trouble never has need to borrow any.

ABOUT TOWN

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Lutheran Concordia church decided yesterday to hold a strawberry festival some time in the latter part of June. It was also decided to entertain the members of the Warburg Orphan band of New Jersey, which will give a concert in Cheney Hall on June 7 for the benefit of the Orphans and Old People's home in Southington. Mrs. H. O. Weber, wife of the pastor of the church was present at the meeting yesterday, having returned home from New York where she recently underwent a serious operation.

A treat to those who enjoyed music of fretted instruments, will be the third annual concert this evening at the Harding school by Mrs. A. N. Merrill's advanced pupils here and in Williamtown.

Considerable regret seemed apparent in this last meeting of the Episcureans due to the fact that the good fellowship shown and the appetizing food which featured the dinners would be missing in the summer months to come.

When the fall season rolls around again each Episcurean and many others will again join in hospitality and good times.

FINAL DINNER GIVEN BY EPICUREAN CLUB

The Epicurean club held its last get-together of the season at the "White House" last evening when some thirty-six members gathered for supper at 6:30. The menu consisted of fruit cocktails, baked ham, escalloped potatoes, peas and carrots, apple pie and ice cream. The committee in charge was headed by Miss Esther Anderson as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Vera Gorman, Miss Ruth Benedict, second, A. E. Lettner, Mr. and Mrs. William Knotha, Miss Katherine McGuire and Corwin Grant.

After the supper the members turned to cards, bridge and whist both seemingly to have equally enthusiastic followers. The prizes for bridge were awarded first, Miss Ruth Benedict; second, A. E. Lettner. For whist first, Mrs. G. H. Washburn; second, Fritz Schooner.

OPEN AIR SCHOOL Go to Top With 100 Per Cent Of Depositors.

During the period in which the School Savings System has been in operation in Manchester, the school children have saved nearly $25,000, according to Miss Vera Gorman, who has charge of the accounts at the Savings Bank of Manchester. She said today that during the month of March the children have saved an average of $545.72 while in April the weekly average was $530.59.

The School Savings System which is promoted by the Educational Thrift Service, was started in the United States in the year 1912. In January, 1924, in the North District it was not put into operation until January of this year, another system having been used previously. During this time exactly $24,089.51 had been saved by the children, netting them an interest of $910.58. Miss Gorman said today. The week ending April 19, the returns for which have just been made, reveal that for the first time since the system was inaugurated, the Open Air School has topped the Open Air School in the percentage of accounts open. Both have 100 per cent. There are only twenty-five accounts in the Open Air School but all of them have savings accounts. Their teacher is Miss Emma Borowski.

Following is the list of deposits made by the schools during the week ending April 15:

GIRL FRIENDS SHOWER MISS MARGARET FRASER

The Misses Gertrude Knotha and Evelyn Burrell gave a surprise miscellaneous shower at Miss Knotha's last evening in honor of Miss Margaret Fraser of 160 Cooper Hill street. About twenty-five friends were present.

ABOUT TOWN

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Lutheran Concordia church decided yesterday to hold a strawberry festival some time in the latter part of June. It was also decided to entertain the members of the Warburg Orphan band of New Jersey, which will give a concert in Cheney Hall on June 7 for the benefit of the Orphans and Old People's home in Southington. Mrs. H. O. Weber, wife of the pastor of the church was present at the meeting yesterday, having returned home from New York where she recently underwent a serious operation.

A treat to those who enjoyed music of fretted instruments, will be the third annual concert this evening at the Harding school by Mrs. A. N. Merrill's advanced pupils here and in Williamtown.

Considerable regret seemed apparent in this last meeting of the Episcureans due to the fact that the good fellowship shown and the appetizing food which featured the dinners would be missing in the summer months to come.

When the fall season rolls around again each Episcurean and many others will again join in hospitality and good times.

FINAL DINNER GIVEN BY EPICUREAN CLUB

The Epicurean club held its last get-together of the season at the "White House" last evening when some thirty-six members gathered for supper at 6:30. The menu consisted of fruit cocktails, baked ham, escalloped potatoes, peas and carrots, apple pie and ice cream. The committee in charge was headed by Miss Esther Anderson as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Vera Gorman, Miss Ruth Benedict, second, A. E. Lettner, Mr. and Mrs. William Knotha, Miss Katherine McGuire and Corwin Grant.

After the supper the members turned to cards, bridge and whist both seemingly to have equally enthusiastic followers. The prizes for bridge were awarded first, Miss Ruth Benedict; second, A. E. Lettner. For whist first, Mrs. G. H. Washburn; second, Fritz Schooner.

OPEN AIR SCHOOL Go to Top With 100 Per Cent Of Depositors.

During the period in which the School Savings System has been in operation in Manchester, the school children have saved nearly $25,000, according to Miss Vera Gorman, who has charge of the accounts at the Savings Bank of Manchester. She said today that during the month of March the children have saved an average of $545.72 while in April the weekly average was $530.59.

The School Savings System which is promoted by the Educational Thrift Service, was started in the United States in the year 1912. In January, 1924, in the North District it was not put into operation until January of this year, another system having been used previously. During this time exactly $24,089.51 had been saved by the children, netting them an interest of $910.58. Miss Gorman said today. The week ending April 19, the returns for which have just been made, reveal that for the first time since the system was inaugurated, the Open Air School has topped the Open Air School in the percentage of accounts open. Both have 100 per cent. There are only twenty-five accounts in the Open Air School but all of them have savings accounts. Their teacher is Miss Emma Borowski.

Following is the list of deposits made by the schools during the week ending April 15:

FLO

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Brides usually find that there's nothing closer than distant relatives.

SENSE and NONSENSE

Mother: "Where shall we hide Willie's present until his birthday?"

Father: "I think the bathroom would be the safest place."

"Well, how is your son getting on with his medical studies?"

"Very well, thank you," replied the proud mother; "he can already cure very small children."

Is anything sweeter than a just stumble into a good time? At most society functions you will find the women out in force, and the men by force. Women of America, are you going to support the cotton growers of the south or the silk worms of Asia? Have you faith in the attractiveness of your "underpinning" regardless of what it is wrapped in? Do you doubt the loyalty of American men to shapeliness whether cased in silk or cotton? Then let your hostess show your patriotism. In no way could you show more of it.

NOW YOU Ask One WHO WROTE THESE?

The first part of today's test will test your knowledge of literature a bit. The rest are different. You'll find the answers on another page.

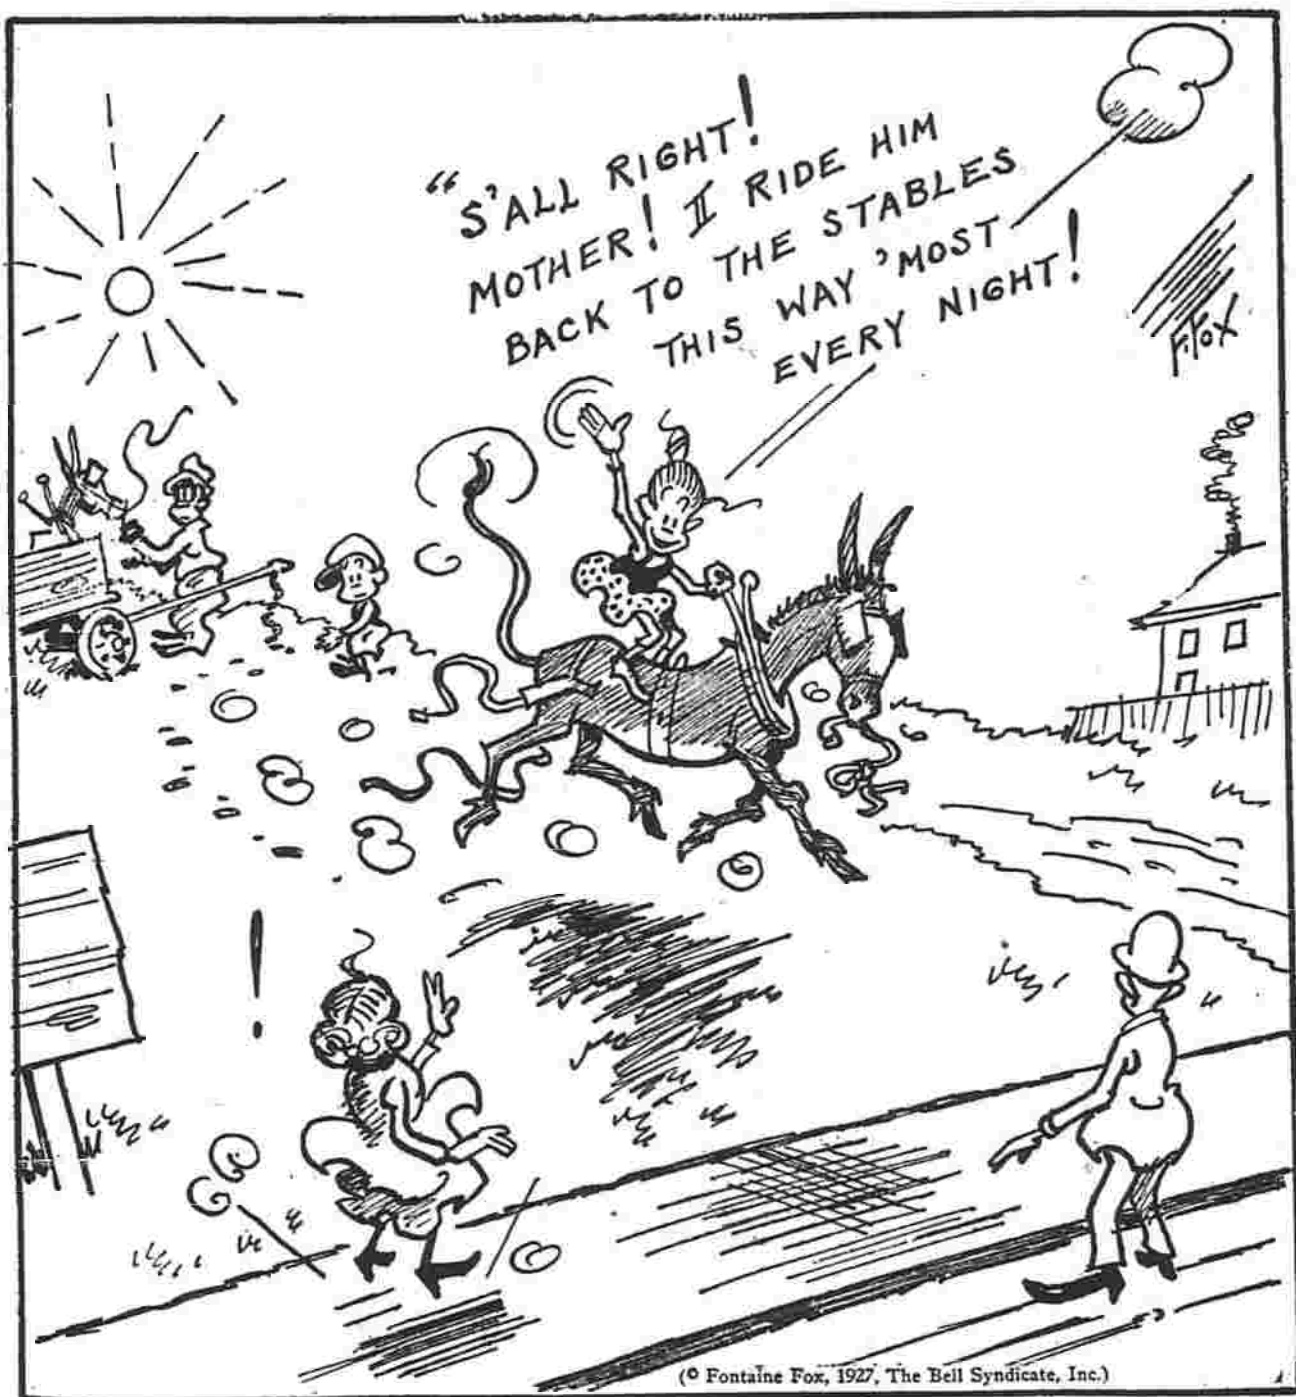

- 1-From what poems, by whom, are the following lines taken? (a) "Before the beginning of years There came to the making of man..." (b) "Full fathom five thy father lies..." (c) "As the marsh-hen secretly builds on the watery sod, Behold I will build me a nest on the greatness of God..." (d) "I think that I shall never see Poem lovely as a tree..." (e) "The year's at the spring, The day's at the morn..." 2-Which state has the larger area, Ohio or Tennessee? 3-Where is the Island of Mindanao? 4-Who is the reigning monarch of Holland? 5-Who was Edwin M. Stanton? 6-In the old Greek mythology, the waters of what river gave forgetfulness to the souls of men after death? 7-Who played the leading role in the movie, "Sparrows"? 8-What famous movie comedian never cracks a smile? She: "If wishes came true what would be your first?" He: "I would wish-ah, if only I dared tell you." She: "Koon, go on. What do you think I brought up wishing for?" Asked how much her new silk stockings were worth, a lovelorn suitor replied: "Well, they are pretty high. You can't touch these for love nor money." The chances that we take in this life are not to be compared with the chances some take with the next.

THE DEAREST ONE ON EARTH

By Pete P. Duffy

(Dedicated to Mothers' Day, Sunday, May 8th) Boy, did you ever put your arms Around your dear old mother? The one who cherished you through life

Far more than any other, And tell her that you love her And are grateful for the tears She shed for you and prayers she breathed For you through childhood years?

Yes, well she knows you love her, You assure her that you do; It will cost you little effort; Does she keep her love from you? She has been your loving vigil From the dawn's light of birth, Where will you find her equal? She the dearest one on earth.

Consider, boy, the troubles That have brought her silver hair;

Note the mother-light a-shining In the eyes now dimmed by care, Each look from your dear mother Bears the tidings to you, boy, Of a loving heart's pulsations. Now of tears, and now of joy, She implants a kiss upon you, And her blessings with you go As you face the daily battle Of your life--your row to hoe, You may search the wide world over, boy, And you will find a dearth Of love such as your mother's. She's the dearest one on earth.

Dick--But why are you going to that poky old place for your vacation?

Jack--Well, I have only a week and I want it to seem like a month.

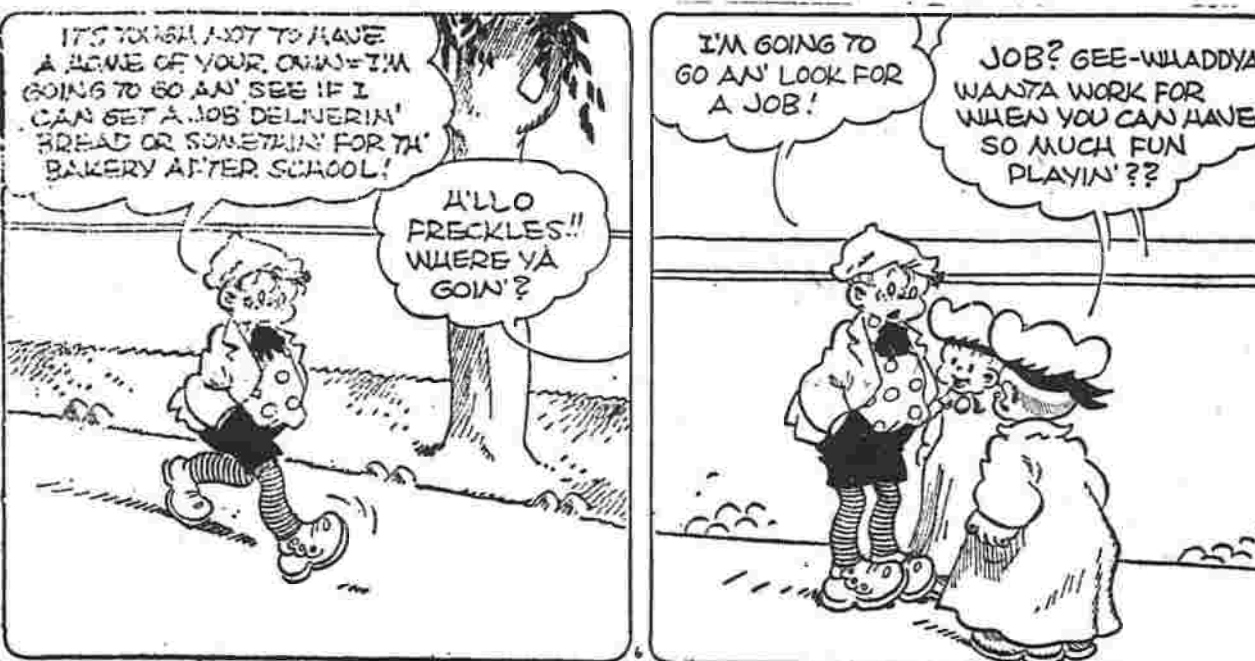

Fairy Story--once upon a time there was a young man who said, "When I get a hundred dollars a week I'll be satisfied." And when he did he was...

Recipe for success: Begin at the bottom and wake up.

The more a man knows the less he's sure about.

Gossip is like yeast--a little goes a long way.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN--PICTURES BY KNICK

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

The cave the Tynmites had found apparently went underground for quite a distance. It was black as black could be inside. They peaked into the entrance-way. The others then heard Scouty say, "I wonder if the floor goes down, 'cause if it does, we'll slide." They could not see because 'twas dark. Then suddenly, someone said, "Hark! I think someone is coming. I can hear some footsteps near. Let's hide behind that nearby tree where we can watch until we see just who it is, and then there'll be no cause for any fear." And so they scampered to the tree, and there they waited patiently. A man's voice started singing in a merry sort of way. Said he, "I'm happy as can be. A man of smiles and laughs. That's me! Why worry 'bout tomorrow, when we've always got today?" Then Clowny whispered, "That sounds good. I'd like to meet him. Wish we could, 'cause when he sounds so happy it just makes me feel real brave." The voice and all the bunch were filled with cheer. Before them stood a man, right in the doorway of the cave. "Hello there, someone! Who's about?" The Tynies heard the old man shout. And Scouty jumped out from the tree and said, "Just Tynmites. We came here with a flying goose who on this island turned us loose. We don't know where we are, but we would like to see the sights." "Well, say, that's fine," the old man cried. "Just come and sit down by my side. I'm Daffydoe, the frier who rules in Daffyland." The Tynies did as told to do, and then the old man sat down too. Said he, "I've walked a lot today. I'm much too tired to stand."

(The Tynmites make friends with Daffydoe in the next story.)

JACK LOCKWILL'S HIDDEN ENEMY

by Gilbert Patten

Tom McNally found Lockwill tied to the post with the flames menacing him. Though blinded and choked by the smoke, Tom quickly comprehended the situation. Snatching out his pocket-knife, he slashed the rope and set Jack free. Then he half-carried the exhausted boy toward the door. At the door, as if coming in herself, Delia met them and helped the rescuer get Jack out.

Although his lungs were smarting from the effect of the smoke, the open air soon revived Jack. Dynamite came up and nuzzled him affectionately.

"How did you know where to find me," asked Jack, coughing. When they told him how Dynamite had led them there, he put his arm around the pony's neck.

Jack rode back to town, seated between Betty and Delia in the automobile. Willie followed, on Dynamite, McNally and the girls were filled with indignation as they listened to Jack's story of how he had been decoyed to the abandoned farm and trapped there. "That dreadful man Cowli ought to be sent to jail!" exclaimed Betty. "Let me catch the other ruffian!" said Jack. (To Be Continued)

SOUTH END FIREMEN HAD A BUSY APRIL

Answered 24 Alarms, Most of Them in Early Part of the Month.

The South Manchester fire department had a busy time of it during the month of April, according to the monthly report issued to The Herald today by Chief Albert Foy. In his report he states that there were 24 alarms, two turned in from boxes and the rest "stills." This is a few less than the total for April of last year, when a record was established. Until the middle of April this year, the fires had been so numerous that it was thought the total would be greater than it was last year. Toward the end of the month, however, the fires fell off and there were very few during the last two weeks. Most of the alarms were turned in because of grass and brush fires. These were usually extinguished without much trouble and little damage was done in any instance.

What a splendid thing it would be if people who lost their tempers were unable to find them again.
