EVIDENCE ALL IN IN SNYDER CASE

(Continued from Page 1) and then the jury will retire to decide upon a verdict. Gray Cheerful In his cell today, Gray was as cheerful as a man in his predicament could be expected to be.

Prays Constantly Jail attendants said Gray prays constantly and is buoyed up with the solace of religion.

In her cell in the same jail, Mrs. Snyder, who recently told a jail matron that she had prayed for the first time in her life, is a lone, forlorn figure.

Gray Gets Sympathy It has been a strange feature of the trial that what little sympathy was extended by spectators went to Gray.

Counsel for Mrs. Snyder and Gray spent today going over the testimony and preparing their summations.

The Manchester Motor Sales has delivered new Ford cars during the past few days as follows: Coupes to Mrs. Annie Chapin of South Main street and John Yacko of Charter Oak street.

The Crawford Auto Supply has delivered an Olds laundau to Alex Swinton of Parker street, a De Luxe coupe to Walter Senkbell of Norman street and a sport roadster to Mrs. W. Sheridan of the Hotel Sheridan.

PLECTRAL ORCHESTRA GIVES FINE CONCERT

Mrs. Ada N. Merrifield's WILL-mantic and Manchester plectral orchestra gave a pleasing and varied program at their third annual concert in the Hollister street school last evening.

Mrs. Merrifield is not only a competent teacher and musician herself but is an excellent orchestral leader, and the selections by the entire orchestra which included grand opera strains, waltzes, marches and popular songs, and the solo numbers of individual players did her credit.

Mrs. Merrifield played a mandolin solo, and accompanied her advanced pupils on the piano and in the trio and quartet numbers. An outstanding number was the plectrum banjo playing by assisting artists, Messrs. Crookes and Dower of Hartford, professional entertainers.

Mrs. Merrifield received from her pupils an immense bouquet of pink roses and fern, tied with pink and white ribbons.

Chevrolet deliveries during the past few days, reported by W. B. Tinker, Jr., are light truck and coupe to The Lunt-Jilson Co., Manchester; Depot car to the Beach Estates, Bolton; coupe to W. F. Casey of Hartford; sedan to James Burns of Ellandville and comes to I. Black of Hartford and George S. Long of Hartford road.

The Pickett Motor Sales has delivered a Whippet sedan to William A. Allen of Mather street.

FRIDAY, MAY 6, 1927.

MOTHERS' DAY.

Many of the "days" set apart for sentimental observance in honor of this, that or the other institution verge perilously on the mawkish in the purpose or the manner of their celebration.

Perhaps it will never bring to the race any full appreciation of the beauty of motherhood—this naming a day once a year on which the mothers of the world are for a few hours placed on a pedestal.

We can explain this and that about the race, we can plan for its rebuilding in this aspect and that, but we know motherhood to be an unchanging, eternal state.

It is mysterious, lovely, incomparably brave. Why should we not indeed, once a year, burn incense on its altar?

Along with a considerable number of other Americans we should very much like to know just what the Department of Justice is trying to do in the matter of the Franco-German potash cartel.

Some time ago, it will be remembered, it was announced that the Department had instituted suit against the German potash trust and the French potash trust, enjoining them from projecting, through certain American distributing agencies, a monopoly in potash in this country.

France and Germany, between them, enjoy not a theoretical but a practical monopoly of the potash industry. Over here we depend on our importations of the commodity.

Following a growing business custom in Europe the industry in each of these countries is organized into what is called a trust or cartel—really a sort of pool.

How on earth the United States courts are going to reach these pooled cartels, which exist in Europe and merely sell their goods here, in any other way than possibly by preventing them from doing business here, is beyond the intelligence of anybody outside the Department of Justice.

When the suit was brought the Franco-German cartel smiled behind its hand and said, politely: "Very well, if it is illegal for us, in Europe, to agree on export prices for potash to America—if it favors of conspiracy in the eyes of the American courts, we will fix that. We, the French cartel and the German cartel, will not agree on prices. Instead we will organize a Franco-German potash selling corporation which alone shall make prices.

WASHINGTON LETTER

This is the last of a series of three articles analyzing the third term situation.

By RODNEY DUTCHER Washington, May 7.—The third term issue, which appears to be the only important stumbling block between President Coolidge and reelection, has two phases.

It might conceivably be inflated to such proportions as to cause Mr. Coolidge to refuse renomination. Hardly anyone questions at this time that Mr. Coolidge can have renomination if he wants it.

But assuming that Mr. Coolidge were renominated, question would still remain as to how much of an issue might be made of the third term in the 1929 election campaign.

Politicians, including the members of Congress, will do most of the wrestling with the first phase. The American people will decide the second phase, with a wealth of aid from the same politicians.

One of the best axioms of politics is that no one knows what the future holds. And there is more or less uncertainty among many political minds as to the amount of excitement that can be stirred up over the third term.

Looks Easy; But There is nothing to indicate anything other than a quiescent and complacent frame of mind on the part of the electorate at this time.

There is nothing to indicate that President Coolidge has lost any of his popularity with the mass of the voters except perhaps in agricultural sections and nothing to indicate the anti-third term politicians will be able to drive them into a frenzy over keeping the same president more than eight years.

And still that proves nothing about the future. There will be plenty of the customary political hypocrisy as the issue takes shape. Many politicians of all political shades will blaze with righteous indignations that the bulwarks of our republican government are threatened by one who would disregard the sacred Washingtonian precept.

On the other hand the most ardent third term defenders will also include those who would jump on either side of the fence that political expediency suggested. But this does not mean that there isn't a minority of honest men who will take a stand on either side in accordance with conscientious convictions.

If politicians and statesmen were knights errant given to expressing their desires and convictions fearlessly and without regard to consequences, one might expect to see a letter like this: "Dear Mr. President: The time has come when you must advise the country of your intentions.

Otherwise we will become hysterical or bolshevik. Some of us have ambitions of our own. (Signed) Davies, Longworth, Borah, Butler, Norris, Hoover, Lowden, Hughes."

It would Express It And the list might be greatly lengthened. A notable list, but these men do not control state machines; they do not control that Republican south which comes to conventions and does its work there and no more. And it is un-

CIVIC ACHIEVEMENTS

GOOD WILL'S VALUE This is the sixth of a series of articles telling how American cities are meeting their problems.

By DON E. MOWRY Secretary, the American Community Advertising Association What is good will—in other words, friendship—worth to a city?

It can be made a thing of great value. If you don't believe it, consider the case of Asheville, N. C.

The people of Asheville decided to send ambassadors outside of the state to acquaint the rest of the country with "The Land of the Sky."

Six railroad coaches made up the special train that toured New England, Canada and other localities. The men that rode on these cars openly stated that they were not out to impress strangers with the claims which they might present, but rather to learn the other fellow's angle, exchange points of view and build up good will on a permanent basis.

They succeeded. Everywhere they were entertained hospitably. They found that good will eliminates boundaries.

Asheville and the surrounding territory have discovered that that trip paid. The friendship that it built up has been reflected in increased business from the territories visited.

Mirrors, old clothes, revamped shoes and pocket combs. Of such is the lower Bowery.

Something like three homes were built in Manhattan proper within the past year, I am told. Impossible, you say! Even Cactus Ridge, Wyo., can beat that! So it can.

Come to Manhattan some day and understand! Homes are long since out of style, even for the rich. Within the year Vanderbilts and Astors have given up mansions on the "avenue." Giant apartments rise everywhere, with rentals as great as the cost of a home. And homes gradually disappear.

The week's prize hard-luck story belongs to a prominent Broadway cafe man who had been rather hard hit in the purse. He decided to start a cafe in Florida on a "shoe-string," and did. He had exactly $65 when he set up in Palm Beach. His place flourished. Soon he had $11,000 in the bank. And just then came the Florida bank crash. He came back to Broadway the other day with exactly $65, prepared to start another cafe on a "shoe-string."

On the other hand—Jack Smith sailed for London the other day. Not an uncommon name until you add "the whispering haritone," and then the radio fans sit up. A year ago he had an income of less than a hundred per week. He went to England and "caught on," as they say on Broadway. When he came back he had a valet, a private secretary, a business manager and an income that will run him to a hundred thousand a year.

One down! One up! That's the way it goes on the "main racket."

But, back to the Bowery; sidewalks racks filled with all sorts of knickknacks such as would have held you for hours as a youngster . . . knives, jew's-harps, tops, apples, hundreds of inviting articles. A downstairs barber shop with a crudely lettered sign: "Haircuts 15 cents; shaves 5 cents." . . . A bum tries to mooch a nickel for a shave. . . . Missions jutting the street to the waterfront and the ugliest of tenements jutting off on the side streets. . . . Second-hand furniture piled high on the sidewalk. . . . Every sort of ware upon the sidewalk. . . .

thinkable that they could get together behind such a petition, although there can be no doubt that it expresses their general sentiment.

A Republican conscientiously opposed to the principal of a third term, elective or otherwise, is rather a quandary. He hasn't much hope of seeing Mr. Coolidge beaten for the nomination unless he can scare him out of it and he can't turn against Mr. Coolidge as a candidate for a third term unless he is willing to cut loose from his party.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

PAUL ADAMS
N.E.A. Service

This is the 25th chapter in the story of a former doughboy who is revisiting France as an advance guard of the "Second A. E. F."

CHAPTER XXV

Sure, the mademoiselles still promenade avec somebody aujourd'hui or demain, pootate.

Ten years haven't changed that custom. Your doughboy French is still good for something. Maybe they ride out also on their bicycles. Ah! Tres jaunty! Tres jaunty! Ness-pai?

It's apres le guerre, alright. The guerre is fini. But the voulez-vous and the comment-to-helley-vous still ring out in the buvettes and the estaminets. Sannysfairy-ann sound just the same. So does donnez-moi. And when it's cold it's very pas chaud and if it's hot it is very pas froid.

You fermez la porte, silver plate, when you are inside, and you domandez what you want. The petty garcons run around. The grandperes are bien and drink to your votre sante. Madames talk about quelque-choses even if you don't compree. All the beds are high and tres bon pour or for somebody else—in-meme-chose—compree vous? You can buy eau or the vin rudy—the French soldats called that Pinar—recolletez-voi that? And

It's all very bon pour the estomac. Oh, oui, all very bon pour la estomac.

Of course, there's a lot of par bon chef de gares around the chemin de fer's but there's no merchant APO boys or MPs swinging along trying to put a crimp in the party. Chickens are pouilles and fish are poissons but you don't have to climb up a ladder into a billet over the stall where the cheval is quartered.

Ca soir is liable to be nice, if the moon comes up, and if it don't it may be par bon weather. But you don't have to turn in at nout heures, anyway. With beaucoup francs and a lot of sous you can allez around and cherchez whatever vous voulez. The du pain is good and the cafe au lait is bon and the 40 hommes and 8 chevaux don't look so bad standing on the sidings.

France is just about the memo chose. Pas beaucoup difference, pootate, demain, apres-midi. But you won't hear many new verses of Hinky-Dinky-Parley-You. Nor will you hear anyone chanting Le Madelon. That thrilling chanson served its purpose and went out with the guerre.

And applesauce is "compot des pommes."

May 7, 1917—Government plans to send nine regiments of engineers to France in immediate future.

GLORIA'S BEST FILM AT CIRCLE TOMORROW

Miss Swanson Opens Two-Day Run in "Love of Sunya," Two Features Showing Today.

Gloria Swanson's "The Love of Sunya," is called her masterpiece. So, as is the case with masterpieces, it will be shown at the Circle theater for two days, beginning tomorrow.

Gloria rises to great emotional heights with the material supplied by this strong story. At moments she has the audience in tears and then, with her great flair for comedy, moves them to laughter. Briefly, "The Love of Sunya" is the story of a Yogi who goes out into the world to right a wrong he committed in his incarnation of centuries ago and the struggle of a girl to decide between love, ambition and duty.

After years of search, the Yogi finds in Sunya who is played by Miss Swanson, the incarnation of the girl he wronged. In recompense, the Yogi offers to draw aside the veil of the future and within a crystal shows Sunya what would happen if she followed her ambition to become an opera singer. If she married Robert Goring, the millionaire, or if she remained at home in an attempt to support her family.

Faced with the danger of losing her lover, Paul Judson, Sunya seizes the opportunity. It is hard to say which of Miss Swanson's characterizations is the greatest, for in each of them she displays her full talents as an incomparable actress. Not to forget the hundreds of women who follow the styles set by Miss Swanson. It must be recorded here that she wears numerous dazzling creations in several of the characterizations.

The Circle is showing this afternoon and tonight two good features, Alberta Vaughn in "Ain't Love Funny," and Fred Humes in "Blazing Days." The first is a story of a girl who got herself engaged to a whole regiment of soldiers. Humes, in the second feature, is starred as a principal in the famous war of the sheepmen and cattle ranchers of the west.

Criticize yourself today and others tomorrow.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: John Jacob Astor (6)

During the War of 1812 the British Northwestern company sent a ship, escorted by British war vessels, to seize Astoria. Astor appealed to the government for aid, but the young government had weightier matters than a far-flung fort on the Columbia river to think about. Astor wrote to his men to do their best to defend the place.

Meantime, at Astoria, to keep the Indians friendly, Duncan McDougal, the leader, took a chieftain's daughter as a bride.

In October, 1813, the Northwesterns arrived at Astoria to await the British ships. The younger men wanted to fight.

The powerful McDougal, however, himself a former Northwestern man, surrendered, accepting $40,000 for a stock of fur estimated to be worth more than twice that much. When the British ships came to Astoria in December, the American flag was hauled down. It was a blow to Astor's pride.

SKETCHES BY BESSEY SYNOPSIS BY BRAUCHER

©1927 BY N.E.A. SERVICE, INC. (To Be Continued)

Station M-O-T-H-E-R!

She is a modern mother who sits here, old ears clamped 'neath the headphones, listening with joy and interest to that voice "out there." Maybe that voice belongs to her own son or daughter. Thousands of the world's great men and women whose fame leads them before the microphone see to it that mother has her radio and knows when to tune in for the voice she knows and loves above all others.

One of the greatest divines in this country recently traveled 3000 miles to see that the right radio was installed in his parents' humble home, so that they could hear his sermons every Sunday.

Hundreds of great concert singers who, seem to sing to vast audiences are really singing for the old mother sitting beside her radio at home.

So we say that this is a modern mother in the picture, a mother who is in this day of the wonders of science, can live fully and abundantly within the walls of her own home.

Years ago the mother of children grown was a lonely, pathetic creature. Her job seemed done: She knew no life apart from her children. She had gloried in being needed.

Then came the finished job. Empty days and nights of waiting. And wondering while she waited what it was she awaited, and knowing that it could never come again—waiting for the old days of busy usefulness and joy.

Today's mother is not the pathetic woman that yesterday's mother was. It is not only the radio that has made the difference. Nor is it the auto which takes her down new roads, new highways bordered with blossoming trees and flower-filled garden.

Nor is it merely the new books, the magazines, the papers, that fill her home in this age of reading for all.

It is a truth within the hearts of today's mothers—a truth that they see and recognize today more than did mothers of any preceding age.

And that is the truth that children are raised not for self but for themselves—that children are raised not for mothers but for their own lives.

And, like the old paradox of "he who loses his life shall find it," so have mothers learned that a child who feels no fetters will give of love and duty infinitely more than the child of yore whose parents stifled his life.

So, the modern mother who does not ask her children to make her life for her when they have grown beyond the home nest, the mother willing to take some of the world's offerings other than children alone finds that she has her children's love and interest and aid as no mothers ever had these things before.

But we grow negligent at times. The bustling, complex world takes our minutes. We forget sometimes the biggest thing in life—a mother. Radios and autos and books and fine foods and clothes never make up to any mother for just one line, one tender kiss, one smile from her child.

Even is she neither demands nor asks it, give to her freely! You will not have her always!

AMERICA'S FIRST TRULY FINE SMALL CAR

The most welcomed car
in recent years

WHEREVER PEOPLE GATHER,
you hear a constant current of comment and praise about the little Marmon 8. It's nation-wide in scope.

There have always been quite a number of people who intuitively avoided the commonplace—people who selected the finer things without consideration of price.

Just such people as these have continuously rejected the automobiles that are built in hordes, and have chosen the large Marmon 75 and other fine makes.

These same people, it would seem, were on tip-toe to greet the new type of transportation as presented in the little Marmon Eight.

If you aren't to be left out of the conversation these days, you should really know how it rides and drives.

For here is a small car, —that on the open road will show a real clean, honest 70, and that has an almost elastic quality of slicing through traffic. —that in good taste, comfort, and precision manufacture is all that Marmon has stood for during twenty-five years of fine car building.

Campus Comment

Coach Robert Zuppke at the University of Illinois has two heavy disappointments.

Both hinge on the new lateral pass ruling. The first conclusion is that Zuppke's is that weak eleven will be humiliated.

Zuppke's first hunch came from watching his teams use the lateral pass.

When the first team was playing a strong team, they were very careful and seldom used it.

"That is the way it will be next fall," he claims. "Weak teams will suffer, but the lateral pass will be used much in closely contested games."

Zuppke was officiating in one of the practice games when the play came up that caused his second conclusion.

A back, while running, fumbled. The back claimed he was preparing to pass.

"But what are the officials to do next fall?" the Illinois mentor asks. "How are they going to tell when a pass is intended and when a fumble is a fumble?"

"That will make their work more complicated. A rule like that is not much of an asset to the game."

Most southern schools held their spring football practice many weeks ago, but the eastern, far western and western schools are just completing the stunt or are now engaged in it.

As a result, football has eked into ink many times during the last few weeks.

SOME BIBLE QUESTIONS

The answers to today's list of questions can all be found in the Bible. They can also be found on another page of this paper, in case your Bible isn't handy.

- 1—What scene is Biblical history does this sketch portray?
- 2—Give chapter and verse for this quotation: "And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed?"
- 3—How old was Adam at his death?
- 4—Where is the giving of the ten commandments described?
- 5—How did Elijah reward the widow of Zarephath for the hospitality she gave him?
- 6—Who was Benhadad?
- 7—Who were the three friends of Job who came to mourn with him in his affliction?
- 8—Where did Paul and Barnabas encounter the false prophet Barjesus?
- 9—Which New Testament chapter is known as the "love chapter"?
- 10—Give chapter and verse for this quotation: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

There are only two kinds of liars in a smashup: both drivers.

Patient—"Doc, I can't sleep at night. What shall I do?"
 Doctor—"Just imagine you're a night man in a garage and somebody's blowing for you to open the door."

Gladys (romantically) — "I think the poets are right, George. It's only in the great open spaces that we find ourselves."
 George—"Well, we're 20 miles from anywhere, the sun's going down, and I've lost the map—so now's your chance."

Statistics reveal that for every girl who leaps from a speeding automobile at midnight, fifteen others ought to but don't.

SENSE and NONSENSE

If there were only one car nosed in at the curb in the entire square we verily believe that a United States mail truck would deliberately double park right behind it.

A remarkable puzzle to us has always been why a motorist who isn't going any place has to drive 50 miles an hour to get there.

Most of the speeding is done by those to whom time means the least.

THE TINYMITES

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

Old Daffydoe was mighty good. He did most everything he could to make the Tines feel at home. They liked him very much. "Now this is Daffyland," said he, "and there are lots of things to see. Just do whatever you want to here. There's nothing you can't touch.

"I'll show you that my cave's all right 'cause that is where you'll sleep tonight." And then he led the way within. The Tines followed him. They tramped a dark and narrow lane, and then the light streamed in again. They'd reached old Daffydoe's cave home. It sure looked quite in trim.

Then, after looking 'round a while their new friend said, "I'll make you smile. We'll all go back outdoors to see my famous pet. I haven't seen the thing all day, but I'll sure come 'round this way. It always does it in-act-time, and I ain't eaten yet."

So, when they reached the clear outside, with one loud whoop the old man cried. "Ah, ha! I told you it would come. Look 'sunder, in those trees." The Tines gazed to left and right, and then they saw a single zebra. It was a striped zebra and with two heads, if you please.

"My goodness," shouted Clowny doo. "That fellow can feel twice as proud as any other zebra." Then he told them all just why. "He has two heads, you plainly see and thus it really seems to me that he has one advantage: he can hold them both up high."

"Ho, ho, ha, ha," laughed Daffydoe. "I guess perhaps that's very true. Now would you like to ride him? It will be a lot of fun." Wee Copsy answered, "I don't know! It seems that he is mixed up so, that when I said giddap he wouldn't know which way to run."

(The Tinesites go berry hunting in the next story.)
