CENTURY OLD

TREE FOUND

Located at Church and Trumbull Streets in the City of New Haven.

New Haven, Conn., May 12.—Regret over the passing of the old sycamore tree at Elm and College streets after a reign over more than a century has been somewhat lessened by the discovery of a similar tree of equal age standing on the former "Grove Hall" property at Church and Trumbull streets, four blocks from the site of the tree that was leveled.

Investigations by George Dudley Seymour, noted antiquarian, indicates that the sycamore tree recently cut was not 250 years or more, as New Haven had confidently boasted but was planted in 1759. In the same year, according to records traced by Mr. Seymour, the "Grove Hall" tree was planted. Both were planted by the father of James Hillhouse, patriot, who placed the original elms that made New Haven famous. The elms followed the sycamores by twenty-five years and died long before the sycamores.

"Grove Hall" in 1759, was the Hillhouse family home. According to Mr. Seymour, one Dr. Jared Elliot came to New Haven and chided the Hillhouse family for planting sycamores when mulberry trees should have gone into the ground. Dr. Elliot thought New Haven would be a great center of silk making and that mulberry trees would furnish adequate food for the silk worms.

LANTERN MARCH EXHIBIT FEATURE

60 Rec Members to Participate Tonight—Volley Ball Game, Too.

The Lantern March is to be a novel feature of the exhibition held at the East Side Recreation Center this evening. Over sixty members of both the gym and dancing classes are to participate in this number of figure marching. Each will carry a lighted Japanese lantern which will be the only light in the gym.

Another number which will prove of special interest to the townspeople will be the volley ball game between the East and West Side men. There is considerable friendly rivalry between these two groups and it will remain to be seen which has the better team.

The tickets are on sale at both Recreation Centers. Those who have attended other exhibitions will know by experience that it is best to secure tickets in advance.

HOWITZER COMPANY DRILLING OUT-OF-DOORS

The Howitzer Company, 169th Infantry has begun its spring training schedule and is spending a part of each drill out of doors. Preparation for the coming annual encampment is in full swing.

The schedules for camp will be essentially the same as last year, the forenoon being devoted to military training and the greater part of each afternoon being open for recreation. The Natick reservation is a short distance from a number of shore resorts and bus lines afford transportation to some of the more distant places.

The Howitzer Company is in excellent condition and great interest is being shown by the men. Attendance at drill is satisfactory and the facilities afforded by the new armory are being constantly used by the men.

The pool table in the company room has been placed in excellent condition and is a source of pleasure to many members of the unit on almost every evening during the week. Athletic equipment is on hand and shower baths are available to the men at all times.

A baseball team is being formed and will compete for the regimental cup during the encampment. A few enlistments expire before the beginning of camp and it is Captain Dexter's intention to bring the company to maximum strength at once.

To effect this a number of letters and will compete for a prize to be awarded to the team bringing the most recruits. The teams will be picked at the regular drill on Friday night of this week and to start the campaign off with a bang the company will parade from the armory to the Army and Navy Club where a temporary recruiting station will be established for the evening.

Any men wishing to enlist may do so at that time.

HORSESHOE PITCHERS PLAY THREE MATCHES

STILL CHIPPING IN FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS

Contribution Boxes Today Give Best Yield Yet—One $10 Bill Pushed Through Slot.

Right in the midst of the big hospital drive, gifts to the Red Cross funders for the Mississippi flood sufferers are coming in surprisingly through the medium of the contribution boxes. It really seems that the more people give the better they like the sensation.

The contribution boxes at the two banks, the Post Offices and the J. W. Hale Company were emptied this morning by Miss Reynolds, and found to contain the largest amounts since the campaign began. A nice crisp $10 bill had been tucked through the slot in one of the boxes by some self-effacing donor. Over $140 so far, has been taken from these contribution boxes.

THURSDAY, MAY 12, 1927.

DON'T LET IT FLOP.

It is perfectly obvious, from even a casual study of the contribution lists in the Memorial hospital drive, that there are a great many persons in Manchester who have failed to sense the idea that they are not being appealed to by a wayside beggar but are being asked to pick up and carry a just share of the burden which hospital maintenance entails.

No town can run a first class hospital on the small change that its people can fling, without missing, to wayside fiddler or to casual charity. As a matter of fact no gift that we can make without feeling it—without some measure of sacrifice—is worth the making even if it be worth the receiving.

Especially ought this to be realized, with Memorial hospital in mind, by the young people of Manchester. They belong to a generation that understands and appreciates the idea of hospitalization. Some of their elders, regrettably enough, still retain some of the old-time suspicion and prejudice against hospitals—relics of a bygone day when the very word "hospital" bore a dreadful sound.

This is National Hospital day. All over the country Americans are figuring out how little but how much they can do to support the hospitals of their communities. Unless the people of Manchester approach this business of giving to their hospital in a spirit of greater realization than has been so far manifested, there is acute danger that the drive will fail—that it will fall short of the minimum of the institution's needs.

Manchester is called on to carry on the work which for nearly eight years has been one of her greatest matters of pride. If her individual citizens do not individually feel that it is up to them to carry every possible ounce of the burden—to give every possible cent to the fund—then the drive will be a flop. It cannot succeed with dollar gifts from five dollar prospects and five dollar gifts from those who could well give five times that much.

THE REDEMPTION. Manchester people possessing any musical sense whatever—whether musicians or only blessed with the inborn appreciation of music's beauty—should be sufficiently appreciative of the work being done at the South Methodist church to support with their presence such exceptional efforts as the rendition of Gounod's oratorio, "The Redemption," on Sunday evening.

It is an extremely rare thing for this great composition to be undertaken, in a place the size of Manchester, under anything like such promising auspices, with such an array of solo talent and with a chorus of such size, such capacity and such training as will mark its presentation here.

It should be realized that the community is being tendered a musical event of prime importance, substantially as a free gift. It would be ungracious, to say the least, not to manifest a fitting appreciation by giving the singers and the sponsors a capacity audience.

THAT PARIS FOLLY.

The sudden upcropping of anti-American feeling in Paris, which so unexpectedly intruded itself into the Nungesser-Coll air tragedy, may be better understood when its actual extent and the nature of its participants becomes known.

The man in the street is a curious creature. Sometimes he represents unerringly the sentiments of a nation. Sometimes he represents nothing but himself and the drinks he has been taking. Whether the Paris crowd that broke out into sudden execration of the United States, because two utterly foolhardy French aviators fell in a desperate attempt to cross the Atlantic, was a typical Paris crowd, or whether it was some relatively small group of tough eggs full of vin ordinaire, has never been made clear. In any event it was a surpassingly silly bunch.

The chances of success for Nungesser and Coll were overwhelmingly against them, at the best. As has been pointed out by a Canadian air officer experienced with the type of plane they used, the undertaking involved thirty-five hours of continuous control of the machine, without relief, by Nungesser, for his companion, a navigator, was not a pilot at all. The pilot, too, was a man afflicted with many wounds received in the great war, and so was undertaking, handicapped by serious disability, a task that would have been beyond the capacity of almost any fully robust human being.

The French people need not look outside the very circumstances of the flight for the reason of its failure, let alone being so ridiculous as to put the blame on America. And it is incredible that more than a very few Frenchmen could be such fools as to do this.

JAPAN.

There is a tendency on the part of many American newspapers to attribute to the influence of America's course in China the change of policy which has led Great Britain to abandon her plan for a military campaign for control of the Yangtze valley. There is no doubt whatever that the determination of President Coolidge to have no share in any "punitive" expedition did have a highly important bearing on the alteration of the aggressive British policy. But there is another factor in the situation which perhaps has not been sufficiently weighed. That factor is Japan.

Prime Minister Wakatsuki of that country was asked: "Is the Japanese government conscious of the gravity of the consequences which might follow from the Soviets' interfering in China? Has it made any decision on this subject?" "We have made only one," answered Wakatsuki. "It is a doctrine of peace. We intend to avoid war in the Far East. Our economic department would receive a very serious blow if there were a conflict in this part of the world. My ministry is clearly resolved on a policy of non-intervention in China."

There is no diplomat, no chancellor, too excited over the Chinese situation to grasp the significance of that utterance. It means, precisely, that Japan would preserve peace in the neighbor republic if she had to fight to do it. In other words that she would promptly ally herself with China to prevent any further extension of Occidental influence in the Orient.

Japan herself seeks the gold mine of Chinese trade. She will not only not help Great Britain to control it—she will employ force to gain it for herself.

OVER SANGUINE.

A state of Washington man, one J. A. Heape, writing to the New York Times, quotes Nicholas Murray Butler as follows: "To declare the law for enforcement, the facts being what they are, is to declare for lawlessness and for a continuous and organized assault on the foundations of our government." And then Mr. Heape goes on to insist that after Dr. Butler's declaration neither political party will dare to rest content with a declaration for law enforcement as its contribution to the prohibition situation in 1928. "Surely," he says, "this makes pussyfooting impossible." Unfortunately it does nothing of the kind. Almost every first class political observer in the country has already reached the conviction that in 1928 neither political party will do anything, with relation to liquor, but exactly and precisely pussyfoot.

SNYDER HIGH LIGHT.

At last an extraordinary circumstance has developed in the Snyder murder case. Henry Judd Gray, condemned with Ruth Snyder for the deliberate murder of the woman's husband, declares that if he had been a member of the jury that tried him he would have voted as the jury did. We can recall no parallel for this assertion on the part of a condem-

WORLDWIDE ACHIEVEMENTS

NO. 10—INDUSTRIAL CITIES. This is the tenth of a series of articles telling how American cities are meeting their problems. Succeeding articles in this series will appear on this page daily.

By DON E. MOWRY, Secretary, the American Community Advertising Association. The university or college town is usually an attractive sort of place, but all too often it has no industrial or commercial life. There seems to be a fear that getting industries would in some way destroy the charm that is the university town's distinctive feature; but this need not be the case. A case in point is Cambridge, Mass.

For years Cambridge was a typical university town. Then its citizens decided that a little industrial life would be an asset. They set out to get industries—not a hard task, as Cambridge has a favorable location. Today Cambridge is the third industrial city of Massachusetts. It has 200 factories employing 21,000 persons, with a payroll of $28,000,000 each year.

Yet the college atmosphere of Cambridge remains. It is still known as a university town, and that is the impression it gives most strongly to a visitor. Even Bostonians do not realize the extent of the industrial development that has taken place in Cambridge.

WASHINGTON LETTER

This is the third of three articles telling just what happens when the president of the United States goes for a ride on a railroad train. By RODNEY DUTCHER. Washington, May 11.—President Calvin Coolidge is among those who do not call Pullman porters "George."

The porter who takes care of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge during their travels is Herbert G. Williams and the president calls him "Williams." Few men are heroes to their valets, but the man whose valet is simple and whose disposition is agreeable is the greatest man in the world to his porter, and that's what Mr. Coolidge is to Williams. On the other hand, Williams is just about the world's greatest porter else he wouldn't have been assigned to serve the president on every trip since he was just a vice president. Between presidential trips Williams works on private cars for millionaires.

Easy to Wait On. "One of the easiest men to wait on you ever saw," says Williams of President Coolidge. "You can tell when he's pleased when he doesn't say anything. Never says a word except 'hello' tell you when he wants anything. He don't want no airs. He don't want no unnecessary like a lot of people. If he wants anything he wants that, but he never puts on any airs."

Williams also recommends J. P. Morgan, John D. Rockefeller and W. L. Mellon, whom he has also served. "Not that the bigger they come the nicer they are, for Williams finds the meanness of the meaneast. "Only time I ever heard him complain was when the car was too warm." Williams says, setting back to Coolidge. "He never calls for anything at night except two years ago when he asked to open a venetian blind. Yes sir, when that man goes to bed he goes to bed."

"Lots of men you got to keep a running and jumping over 'em. Most Mr. Coolidge wants is a glass of water, or me to get his valet or for a menu, because he always writes his order before he goes to the dining car. You mustn't get the impression that Williams is gossipy. He told all this in answer to questions after being assured that it was all right with his superiors. Williams is a very intelligent colored man."

"Wonderful woman!" he exclaimed when asked about Mrs. Coolidge. "Just pleasant comments and ways. I never seen her in my life without a smile on her face. Always a pleasant smile and that goes a long way when you have to wait on 'em. You never get tired as long as you live doing things for that lady. Very little she asks for. Always says thank you for the least little things."

How did Williams get this super-polishing job, and what does he think of as he sits through the days and evenings waiting to be called to his high duty? "I'll tell you how come," says Williams. "I never in my life done nothing but give service and first-class work. That's how I got a private car that knows how to do all kinds of service. You have to be refined and polite on the job and know your place. A private car porter has to go washing, ironing and cooking and everything else down to washing the baby's clothes."

"But the president wasn't any trouble even when he had a private car—not the least in the world. I use my mind in spare time thinking up things to do to be of service. For instance I might be sitting down and I might figure out some way to make his bed more soft and comfortable. Then I go try it out and see how it works. Don't make 'em wait. The main thing is to always be around when they want things done so they don't have to wait. When I think it's about time for him to want anything done I get around somewhere where he can see me. Be punctual and on time for everything—that's the big secret. I always know just when to make his bed."

Gives complete credit to Tanlac and praises it highly. All over Connecticut are customers of Stephen Vitale, 2455 West Main Street, Meriden. Those who knew him in early youth are amazed at his present exuberant health and strength, for Stephen was a fragile boy. "Since my earliest recollection, I was thin, weak and puny," he said recently. "I grew to manhood in that condition. I always had headaches, and frequent nervous spells. I was so nervous my legs were wobbly, and I could not eat. Even after I entered business I used to come to work so ill that I feared I would be unable to remain in business. The only relief I could get from my headaches was to stay in a darkened room for several days at a time. I was urged to try Tanlac and agreed to give it a three-week test. The first thing I noticed was that my appetite and digestion improved and my nerves were steadier. The headaches were not so violent either, so I kept on with Tanlac. Even then I never dreamed it was possible for me to be the robust man I am today, but you see for yourself what Tanlac has done for me. I've put on 25 lbs., attend to my business regularly and have a jolly time of it now. When I think of my former sufferings, I cannot praise Tanlac enough, and gladly recommend it to all who suffer. London.—A deceased husband is not easily forgotten by a widow of the Isle of Andaman, off the coast of Africa. A lecturer here says he found that in Andaman, when a husband dies, the wife wears his

STATE THEATER HAS 5 VAUDEVILLE ACTS

To Be Seen With Jack Holt In "Mysterious Rider" Last Three Days This Week.

To close the exceptional vaudeville show for the last three days of the week, beginning on Thursday, the State management has booked an act with nine people, Lew Wilson's entertainers, the act which closes the show. Wilson has been playing the big time houses for years and it has taken him quite some time to get his organization together.
Something new on the bill this week will be what is called a skatorial skit. Grace Ayres and Billy, the former one of the best skaters in the country, will put on a miniature skating rink. Miss Ayres is about six feet tall, and Billy is vice versa. The combination is ludicrous in the extreme and very funny.
Lew and Madeline Wilson present something unusual in their comedy offering, "Nothing in the Mouth." These two have nothing in their heads, either, but the faculty for making people laugh. They will be one of the star acts on the bill.
The other two acts have not yet been announced. The feature picture of the evening is Jack Holt's "The Mysterious Rider," pictured from Zane Grey's book of the same name.

Had Zane Grey himself picked out the hero of his story he could not have done better than the choice of Holt for the leading role. The handsome actor is a real cow-puncher, a real horseman, and an expert with the small artillery. As a matter of fact, he has been on the ranches of Wyoming and Montana for years, even though he holds a civil engineer's degree from a Virginia school.
"The Mysterious Rider" is a story that fits Holt perfectly. He is a rancher, a man who has the interests of his community at heart, but he finds that he has been defrauded. In imminent danger of being lynched by his own friends, he rides off and from then on becomes a night-prowling adventurer, continually warning his enemy that he is going to settle old scores.

"HER BIG NIGHT" IS FEATURE AT CIRCLE

Laura LaPlante Stars in Comedy of Movie Life—Two Features on Saturday.

"Her Big Night", with Laura LaPlante as the star, and an unusually large cast playing in support of her, is the feature attraction at the Circle tonight and tomorrow.
The picture is a farce comedy, produced by Universal Pictures Corporation under the direction of Melville Brown, and is said to afford the pretty, blonde comedienne the best role in her brief but brilliant career before the camera.
The story, based on Peggy Gaddis' "Doubling For Daphne," deals in a way, with the movie industry, and is concerned mainly with the somewhat embarrassing failure of a movie star to show up for a personal appearance which has been arranged for her at a theater in connection with the premier of her latest picture.

In the efforts of the star's producer and press agent to cover up her indiscreet disappearance in order to keep the matter out of the newspapers, a dozen involved comedy situations arise.
The cast supporting Miss LaPlante is an unusually large and brilliant one. Einar Hansen, one of the foremost screen stars of Europe, plays his first American part opposite the comedienne. Such facile comedians as Mack Swain, Lee Moran, Zasu Pitts, Nat Carr, William Austin and others add many deep laughs to the picture. John Roche plays the role of a super-jealous husband, and Cissy Fitzgerald as an equally suspicious wife.

"Her Big Night" is based on the magazine short story by Peggy Gaddis, published as "Doubling For Daphne."

TOUGH WORK

"My poor husband was a wonderful artist," sighed the landlady as she hacked at the pie crust. "He always said he found inspiration in my cooking."

"A sculptor, I presume," said the gloomy boarder, surveying his bent fork.

QUESTIONS ENTERTAIN DUNCAN PHYFE CLUB

Innovation Enjoyed at Monthly Meeting of Watkins Workers.

An interesting innovation in the form of entertainment was enjoyed at the May meeting of the Duncan Phyfe Club held at the club rooms in the Watkins store last evening. Slips were passed out to different members before hand asking questions which they were supposed to answer at last night's meeting and some interesting as well as amusing answers were presented.

The supper had been prepared by Chef Osano, under the direction of the supper committee, and including hot roast and gravy, mashed potatoes, boiled onions with dressing, coffee and jelly with whipped cream and cookies.

Edward Taylor, local tenor soloist, rendered a number of solos which were greatly appreciated, and joined with C. Emory Watkins in duets. W. M. Philpot of White Plains, N. Y., merchandise director of the Periodical Publishing Company of Grand Rapids, was one of the guests of the evening.

The vote to operate the schools on daylight saving time was lost.

Jap Ball Players Touring Our Land

Palo, Calif., May 12.—Quite interesting are these Japanese ball players from Waseda University.

They crown on football and like it to war, they're shocked at professionalism in an sport, but how they do love to play baseball!

Their national game—baseball! Even the tired business men have organized baseball clubs. But it is all as simon-pure as our most simon-pure exponents would have it.

The Waseda outfit, intercollegiate champions of Japan are here for a two months' tour to meet several of the leading college teams of the country.

They got their first glimpse of American football when they watched "Pop" Warner put his grid outfit through spring practice a few days ago.

Their verdict practically amounted to this: It may be the great collegiate sport here, but it is a lot of pinapples to them!

"When we fight, we use bayonets!" exclaimed Captain T. Hinuro, after watching the husky Cardinal squad in action. "Athletics to us are for play; that looks like war and war is business!"

So you can imagine what a shock the sons of Nippon received when they were informed that a lot of baseball players, tennis players, golfers and Red Granges made quite a handsome living following some sport as a business.

Football in Japan is English rugby. The open play, without so much bruising is more to the Japanese physique and temperament.

The Waseda team, after meeting Stanford, will play in other California towns against leading college teams and will then trek across the continent for games with college teams in Salt Lake, Chicago and Toronto. They will also meet Yale, Harvard, West Virginia and the Marine Corps before they start their trip back.

On the return trip they'll meet Chicago, Butler, Indiana, and the Washington Huskies. The latter series concluding their trip and allowing them to sail for home late in June, via Hawaii.

OR WAS IT?

PROUD MOTHER: Do you know only yesterday baby threw all her clothes out of the nursery window.

FATUOUS VISITOR: By jove! Rather a stroke of luck she wasn't wearin' them at the time. What!—Humorist.

CHAPTER XXIX

That Crown Prince must have nursed a very retiring disposition during the war—for everywhere in the battle regions the peasants will point out a tunnel under a hill or some underground masonry from where he directed operations.

He was down at least 50 feet at Mont Sec, in the St. Mihiel sector. He used a tunnel 200 feet below the surface at LeNorthomme near Verdun. At Montfaucon he plunged down into a well some 50 feet deep and watched the battle lines through a periscope that is now at West Point. A valiant leader, surely.

But the best story about the Crown Prince comes from Stenay, up along the Meuse river, a fair-sized town captured by the 90th Division of Oklahoma and Texas troops just before the armistice was signed. The tale is vouched for by three natives, who claim they were eye-witnesses.

While the Crown Prince was in Stenay he paid court to a French girl. And it is said, he did a very good job of wooing. When the American soldiers arrived the girl was pointed out. So, in a larking mood, a squad of the Texas plamen took the girl and bobbed her hair completely.

Bobbed hair was quite the go, then, in the States. But not in France. Particularly in the style which the Texans applied. They did a real, honest-to-Texas job of shearing.

She Wasn't Popular

It was sort of a mean trick, too. For the young woman's stunning in Stenay society was badly dislocated. She didn't remain long in town. Just a few days later she disappeared.

POLICE COURT
Leon Dupont of School street was before the Manchester police court this morning charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. His wife and daughter were the principal witnesses in the case and both testified that the man was drunk and started trouble at the home last night.

He was arrested by Sergeant John Crockett. He was found guilty of both charges and a fine of $10 and costs was imposed for intoxication, and a jail sentence of ten days for breach of the peace. Dupont has been in court on two previous occasions for similar charges. He gave notice of an appeal from the decision of the court and a real estate bond of $200 was furnished by John Lentz.

Girl Scout News

Mrs. C. I. Balch entertained the Girl Scout council at her home May 10. At this meeting the council voted to assume the responsibility of a camp for the scouts.

Girl Scout Camp

There is a nice log cabin on the edge of a small lake about four miles from the center on the Hills-town road. This is the place the council have chosen for the Girl Scout camp this summer.

The council will equip the cabin with cots and dishes so the girls can have either day or night outings.

The captains or lieutenants will chaperone the scouts on such outings.

The scouts are looking forward to many a happy day at their camp. The formal opening of the camp is Saturday, June 4. At this time the council will entertain all the scouts.

The scouts are releasing for their play which they will give at their May Review, May 23 at the Circle theater. Tickets are twenty-five cents.

Troop 6

Captain Lord received a bouquet of lily of the valley in the form of the troop crest from her scouts while she was confined to her home with tonsillitis.

The following girls have passed the second class requirements: Margaret Bushnell, health; Ella Peckham, first aid; Ellen Reg, first aid and table setting; Stella Silverstein, compass; Marjory Kelley, history of flag.

TOM MIX'S DAUGHTER IN PICTURE AT RIALTO

A production from the story of a famous author, and a special western play featuring the daughter of a popular star, are the attractions at the Rialto today and tomorrow, along with other screen features which include comedies, kilograms and pictorials. The program is being offered at popular prices of ten and twenty cents, the matinees being 10 cents to all ages, 7 and 9 p. m.

Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," created another great seller in "The Pearl of Orr's Island," a book that has been read by millions. This story has now been adapted for the screen under the title, "The Pearl of Love." Here is a beautiful story of New England, full of life and adventure, with the sea as its locale.

Ruth Mix, daughter of the famous Tom Mix, is featured in the added attraction along with her famous horse, "Man," the horse with the human brain, in a western play that is different. "Tex," the story being written especially for the varied accomplishments of Miss Mix. In this picture Miss Mix goes through all of the hair-raising stunts that have won her scores of prizes at the western rodeos.

And, incidentally, "Man," the wonder horse, is given ample opportunity to display his wares.

Confidence is wisdom lost, but it is often sadly misplaced.

A girl isn't necessarily timid because she jumps at a conclusion.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: P. T. Barnum (2)

When Barnum was 12 years old he had acquired in his own right a sheep, a calf and a small sum of money. At about this age he made his first trip to New York, helping a neighbor to take a drove of cattle to market. The trip by stage then took four days, by boat from eight hours to several days, depending on the wind.

Barnum's grandfather, Phineas Taylor, was noted as a practical joker. One of his jokes was at the young man's expense.

The grandfather had decided to young P. T. a tract known as "Ivy Island," and boasted that the boy was the "richest in town."

Young Barnum's chagrin was heartfelt when at 12 years old he had his first look at "Ivy Island." It proved to be merely a bog, full of snakes and hornets. The boy's impression of the ways of the world here probably received a severe jolt. The young man proved a sharp bargainer when clerking in his father's store.

"ONE DAY'S PAY FOR THE HOSPITAL"

HEBRON

Lucius W. Robinson was leader of the Christian Endeavor society meeting held Sunday evening at the Center Christian Endeavor rooms.

Mrs. Anna Potocek has bought the Sarah Holbrook property on Godfrey Hill. This place was owned by Mrs. Grover Clark of Springfield, Mass.

The Misses Marjorie, Gladys and Harriet Hough of Hartford spent the week-end at the home of their mother, Mrs. Gertrude Hough. Miss Mildred Hough, a student of the Williamsville State Normal school, was also home for the week-end.

The Rev. C. H. Reimers of Durham held a service at the old Methodist church in Hopevale on Sunday.

Mrs. Alphonso Wright has recovered from her recent attack of pneumonia and has been discharged from St. Joseph's hospital, Williamsville. She has returned home.

The Young People's society of the Seventh Day Adventists in Hopevale observed Mothers' Day at the last regular meeting of the society. The observance was also made to include the fathers. There was an interesting program with several tributes to fathers and mothers. The day was observed at the Congregational churches of the town in an appropriate manner and some visitors were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holcomb and family of Hartford were at the Stone house for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keefe and Aleck White spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Helen White in observance of Mothers' Day.

A. A. Hills and William T. Jones were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ethan Jones of South Manchester on Sunday.

Joseph Danforth, James Morrell, Daniel Morrell, Edmund Zacher, A. L. Wightman, Frank Hills, William Sloan and Horace Endsforth have been spending a few days at the Standby Clubhouse, Mr. Endsforth, who has taken pictures of scenes and people in the vicinity of the clubhouse with his moving picture camera gave a real treat to the members of the club and a few friends at the home of Mrs. Nellie Skinner, one evening recently.

Peter Smith of New London visited N. C. Johnson's family recently. His little girl remained with them for a longer visit.

Warren Knowles and Donald Coates accompanied Elder C. P. Lillis on his preaching tour to New London and Norwich on his last trip.

Mrs. Catherine Goodrich was the guest of friends in Hopevale recently.

Miss Gladys Broome has returned to Hartford after spending the week-end at her home in Hopevale. She is employed at the Aetna Insurance Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Smith and family of Norwich, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Smith and children, and Miss Florence Smith, who was at home for the week-end from the Seymour school in West Hartford, all attended a dinner party on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Smith, 100 Grove Street.

Marlborough Center afterwards, using the new road from about the location of the line between Marlborough and Hebron. The appearance of the road in its partly finished state is said to be very interesting.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dorrance of East Hampton is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Paul Jones. Miss Ellen Jones of the Williamsville Normal school spent the week end at her home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lord, who is in her hundredth year, and whose illness was mentioned in this column recently, has recovered from her indisposition and is able to take her place as usual about the house at her boarding place with Mrs. Gertrude Hough. She was confined to her bed for several days.

Red Cross collections for the flood sufferers from Hebron Center and vicinity have reached $4276. Gilead, always generous, contributes $41, making a total of more than $53.00 from the town. This is nearly the entire amount called for from the three towns of Hebron, Andover and Columbia.

The Hebron Farmers' Exchange met at Gilead last recently in an evening banquet. About fifty members were present.

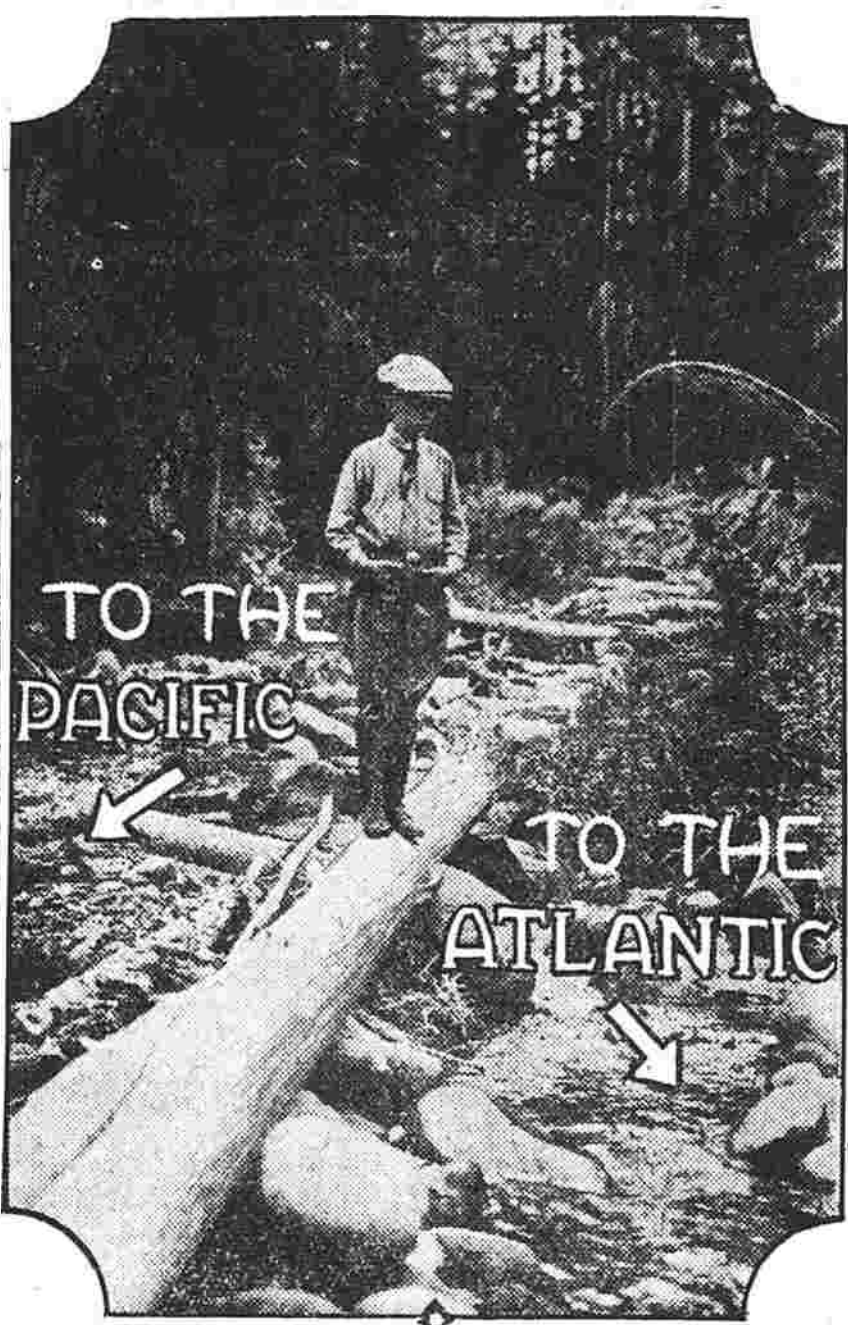

Earl Cross and Arthur Schroeder of Waterbury spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Ina Pratt.

There are still several cases of mumps and chicken pox about the town. The latest cases of mumps reported are Helen Rathbun, John Horton and the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Porter. The children of Claude W. Jones have just recovered from chicken pox. Alberta Hilding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hilding is ill with the disease.

A copy of the Port Gibson Re-tellie, (Mississippi) was received recently. It gives a harrowing picture of flood conditions as reported from further down the river. While Port Gibson is not endangered, its location being on high ground, four main highways leading from it are reported as under three or four feet of water. Refugees from down the river are pouring into the city. Grand Gulf, a nearby settlement, once a thriving town, and the oldest settlement in Claiborne county, has completely passed out of existence, the houses having all been swept away. This place has, of recent years, been entirely occupied by Negroes. Of interest was the statement that Memorial Day has already been observed at Port Gibson, the custom there being to observe the day on May 1, in honor of a Civil War battle fought in the place. Six Confederate veterans of the eight surviving in the county were present, and Zude Moore, a lone survivor of the Union forces was invited to sit during the exercises with those he had opposed in the war.

At Last A Movie Actress Who Has "Pull" But Won't Use It

By DAN THOMAS

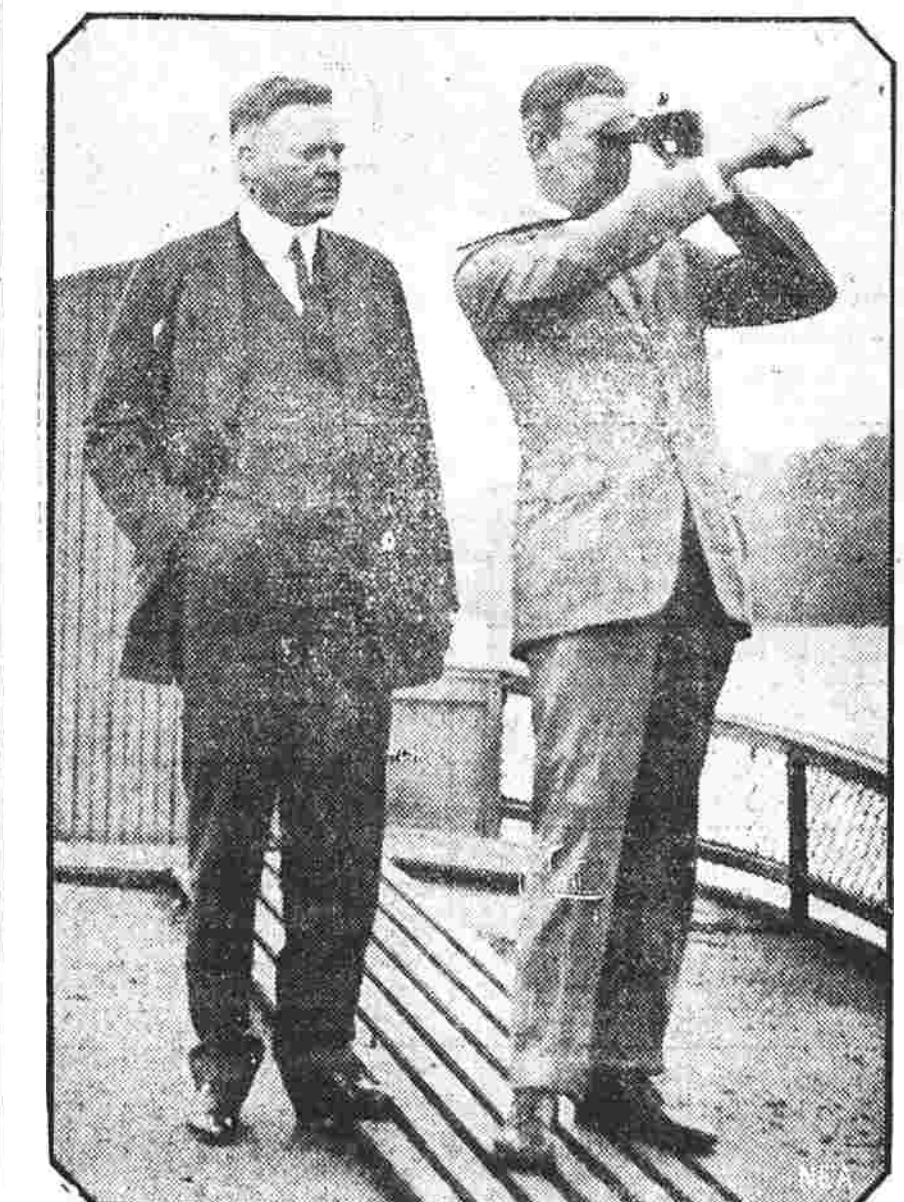

Hollywood, Calif., May 12.—In this moving picture capital where every other person you see is trying to gain, through "pull," the prizes that he (or she) can win on merit, it is comforting to meet one individual who has all kinds of "pull" in reserve but who refuses to use it.

Martha Sleeper

This individual is none other than Miss Martha Sleeper, who is slowly working her way to prominence in the Hal Roach comedies.

A Serious Moment With Hoover

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis are shown here in a moment of serious study of flood conditions in the Mississippi valley near Natchez. The two are watching rescue craft at work on an unbroken stretch of water clear to the horizon.

U. S. INDUSTRIES DOUBLE OUTPUT PER WORK HOUR

Hoover Says Progress Is Due to Application of Science of Business.

Washington.—American industries have doubled their per-work-hour output since 1900, while measured by the physical volume of production a gain of 170 per cent has been attained.

This remarkable achievement, which brought production in 1926 to a value of nearly $70,000,000,000, has been accomplished in the face of a 15 per cent decrease in working time and but a 50 per cent increase in population during the period.

Facts to back up these assertions have been compiled by Dana Durand of the Commerce Department statistical division, and the U. S. Bureau of the Census.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover attributes American progress, which has brought the producers of this country into the front rank of world industry and placed United States in a position to successfully compete with the cheaper labor abroad, to the application of science to business and to the ingenuity of American workmen and experts.

Century of Science
"A century of science has given us powerful tools of production and distribution—steam, steel, oil, electricity and what not," Hoover said.

"And I believe that we are gradually adjusting the industrial system to these instincts of industrial freedom and equality of opportunity, and that the friction is becoming steadily less."

"Certainly there is looming up in America a new relationship in the whole setting of industry. It is departing widely from the conceptions of the old world. We are making progress in our own way in the fundamental relations of industry to commerce to its employees, to the public and to the government."

In discussing the situation Durand said that the increase in the output of industries is materially greater than is generally supposed.

"The output of these branches has much more than doubled since 1900 as against an increase of only 50 per cent in population and a still smaller increase in the number of persons working in these particular branches of industry."

Agriculture, it was pointed out, shows much less increase in output.

The demand for food in this country increases no faster than the population.

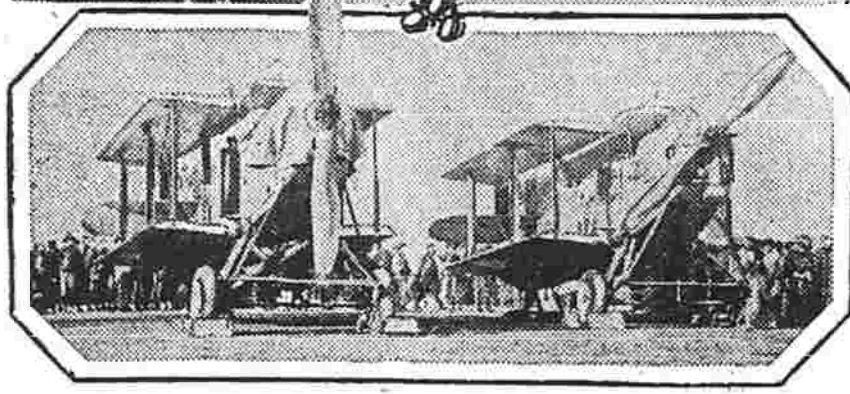

Short skirts, Durand showed, the demand for rayon and silk, and Europe's reduced buying power have gone far to check any increase in the demand for cotton, the principal non-food product of the farm.

Durand said that the greatest increase in output has been seen in the mining industry, now five times that of a quarter century ago.

"As regards the gain in output per worker there is no great difference between agriculture, manufacturing and transportation," Durand said. "A greater gain in this respect in the case of mining is not attributable to any exceptional advance in the efficiency of the industry, but rather to more generous contributions in the form of new rich oil fields."

Durand said that the automobile industry is a particularly striking illustration of the progress in efficiency. Per thousand workers the number of automobiles produced at the present time is eight or ten times greater than a quarter century ago.

Fight With Planes—and Spears

Every form of weapon—from spears such as were used in the armies of Caesar, to twentieth century airplanes—is being used now on the battlefields of China. Above is shown a group of newly enlisted privates of the army of Marshal Chang Tso-lin, the northern war lord. The giant planes below are British machines landed at Shanghai to be used against Chiang Kai-shek's southern forces in protection of foreign lives and property. The wings of the planes have not been attached, the shipment just having arrived.

STATE THEATER CROWDS TO TEST MASLAND RUG

Watkins Brothers Place New Floor Covering in Playhouse For Test.

Every person who visits the State Theater during the next week or ten days will walk over a new rug that has been placed in the lobby of the theater. Watkins Brothers are using this method to test the durability of Masland Rugs, a popular priced floor covering which they are featuring in a special sale this week and next week. The manufacturers urged the local store to test the rug on the sidewalk in front of their store but Watkins have tried this method before and found that it was a hard job to keep the rug on the sidewalk during windy days, so, through the cooperation of Manager Sanson of the State the rug was placed in the State Theater lobby. The outside lobby, directly in back of the ticket booth, was selected for the rug because not only those who enter the theater but those who enter the lobby to look over the posters of coming attractions will also walk over the rug. In the outside lobby, too, the rug will be subject to the wet feet of those who are just entering the theater from wet sidewalks. In other words the beautiful wool rug will be used at a "door mat" for the next week.

Watkins Brothers figure that in a week's time the rug will be subjected to more wear than if it had been in a home for ten years. Following the demonstration half the rug will be cleaned and the whole rug displayed in one of their windows to show how it looked before and after cleaning. An announcement of this unique test appears in Watkins Brothers' advertisement in tonight's Herald.

Billy Evans Says

Bobby Jones to Write
Bobby Jones, greatest of golfers, has finally turned writer on the subject. For about five years he has been a much-sought-after individual but he has always turned down the many chances to capitalize his amateur prestige as a writer of golf.

Jones is doing a series of magazine articles and is also doing a series for newspaper publication. It seems the United States Golf Association permits amateur golfers to write provided they do the actual writing themselves and do not specialize in instructive features of the game.

In other words, Jones can write of his career and its high spots but cannot go strongly into the technique of the game.

The decision of Jones to write, coming at a time when the U. S. G. A. has just barred Mary Browne because of her playing tennis for pay, raises another point in the old question—what is an amateur in sports?

So far as I know, no one has ever come forth with a definition that satisfactorily explains the real amateur. It is difficult to erase the money angle that enters into all forms of sports, even if it is only for expenses.

Series Should Interest
I am mighty glad that Bobby Jones has decided to take his pen in hand, maybe it's a pencil, probably he uses a typewriter. Regardless of how he turns out his copy, Jones should have a good story to tell.

I know of no golfer, with the possible exception of Walter Hagen, who has had a more colorful career. As to deeds, Jones has accomplished every great feat possible, won practically every honor to which golfers aspire.

Bobby Jones is the Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, and "Red" Grange of golf. He has every shot in his kit and plays them all perfectly.

Walter Hagen's remark that Bobby Jones was five strokes ahead of the field any time he started, was a remarkable compliment to his play from one of the greatest.

While Mary K. Browne will probably survive the adverse decision by the U. S. G. A., since that body controls only a limited number of the big tournaments, the ruling was undoubtedly a great disappointment.

No doubt the disappointment largely hinges about the inconsistency of the golf powers in reaching their various rulings.

It is assigning to say that because a man or woman is a professional in one branch of sports, that he should be so branded in all others.

It is my belief that the powers-that-be in golf are of the opinion that when Miss Browne became a tennis professional that to a certain extent her prowess as an amateur golfer gained for her much publicity and helped her over the tennis venture.

Perhaps that is true to a certain extent. Possibly on that line of reasoning it could be proved that Miss Browne's leap to the pro ranks of tennis was not conducive to the best interests of amateur golf. However, that seems far-fetched.

Drive the car that established 10 world records—5000 miles in less than 5000 minutes!

The COMMANDER
A STUDEBAKER BIG SIX

Only by owning a Commander can you avoid taking Commander dust on hills and highways

FROM one Coast to the other, The Commander is smashing records of speed, records of hill climbing, records of sales! 5000 Miles in Less Than 5000 Minutes

In a recent sensational test at Culver City, California, under the auspices of the American Automobile Association, Harry Hartz and three other noted pilots drove The Commander—a strictly stock, fully-equipped enclosed car—5000 miles in 4909 minutes, total elapsed time, establishing ten new world records.

This is better than mile-a-minute speed for 81 consecutive hours and 49 minutes—the fastest speed for the farthest distance ever attained by any stock car!

The Commander Out-Climbs All Other Cars

In another public contest, five automobile dealers in Batavia, N. Y., challenged Studebaker's repeated statement that The Commander will out-perform any car selling within a thousand dollars of its price. The scene of the contest was a long hill near Batavia with an average grade of 10%.

The Commander won every test made—creeping test, standing start and flying start. Then, to cap the climax, The Commander carried seventeen men, weighing 2794 pounds, to the top in high gear, the speedometer reading 35 miles at the start and 22 miles at the finish.

What These Records Mean to You

You probably will never need mile-a-minute speed for 5000 miles—you may never want to enter a hill-climbing contest. But these remarkable records are further proof of what we have demonstrated time and again on Studebaker's 800-acre Proving Ground—that The Commander in every phase of every-day driving will out-perform and out-live any other car, six or eight, selling for less than $2500.

The best evidence for you of the thrilling performance of The Commander is what the car will do in your own hands. Get behind the wheel of a Commander as our guest—without strings or obligation. Learn for yourself why the Studebaker Big Six now far out-sells the combined totals of all other cars in the world of equal or greater rated horsepower. Phone us now and take command of The Commander today!

Harry Hartz wired us, after setting 10 new world records in The Commander

"Based on my experience driving my personal Studebaker Commander and in making the recent record run at Culver City Speedway with a Studebaker Commander strictly stock model, it is my opinion that it will maintain any given speed, up to 65 miles per hour, longer, more smoothly, and at less expense per hour traveled for gasoline, oil and repairs, than any other stock automobile now being built in the United States."

Commander Sedan, $1585; Commander Victoria, $1575; (broadcloth upholstery, $1645); Commander Coupe, $1545; (with rumble seat, $1645) . . . All prices f. o. b. factory, including front and rear bumpers, mudbers all around, and four-wheel brakes. Other Studebaker and Erskine models range in price from $945 to $2245.

COLLEEN MOORE LIFTS "EXTRA" GIRL TO LONG-TERM CONTRACT

By DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif. — Gretchen Young worked as an "extra" girl in Colleen Moore's last picture. Colleen decided that she was a good trooper—which in Hollywood means that a girl can act, will try anything and never complain.

John McCormick, Colleen's husband and production manager for First National, was duly advised of the young girl's possibilities. And—

Gretchen Young is still thanking Miss Moore for securing her a long-term contract. But Colleen assures me she had nothing to do with it.

"All I did was to mention her to John," she declares. "He came on the set a few times and watched her work and then looked at some of her shots on the screen and signed her to a contract. Anyone else on the lot would have done as much as I did."

Miss Young is modest, almost to the point of shyness. She has tremendously large eyes that photograph beautifully. And, although still in her teens, she has a foundation of several years "extra" work. She also is an exceptionally brilliant girl.

"My experience around picture lots has been almost equal to a college education," Gretchen told on the sets and have listened to the advice directors gave them. That advice given to them, has me. "In fact, I believe it is more valuable in this game. I have had opportunities to watch many stars proven very valuable to me, also."

"I have noticed, too, the manner in which stars accept criticism from their directors. The ones who immediately become temperamental usually are the ones who have 'clicked' in one picture. The really big stars welcome criticism if it is of a constructive nature. Most of them are so anxious to do just as their directors want that they live almost in fear of them."

"Seeing real stars working like extra girls is one of the finest experiences a person may have. It has shown me just what to do in case I am ever in that class. My frequent talks with important layers between scenes have been invaluable, too. They have told me many things that have improved my playing considerably."

EARL COMBS RATED BEST LEAD-OFF MAN

By BILLY EVANS

Yankees' First Hitter Is Radical Departure From Old School of Baseball.

Has the value of a good lead-off man lost much of its kick in these days of slam-bang baseball? When I broke into the American League 22 years ago a good lead-off man was of prime importance.

In those days playing for one run was a common practice, since the pitchers held a decided edge, therefore the value of a good lead-off man was far more apparent than at present.

In the old days lead-off men, as a rule, were not hard hitters. Their position of honor came more as the result of being hard to pitch to, fleetness of foot and the ability to lay down bunts and then beat 'em out.

Despite the fact that slam-bang baseball has lessened the worth of the lead-off man, I am still of the opinion that such a player is of vital importance.

To my way of thinking, there is no better lead-off man in the majors than Earl Combs, brilliant center fielder of the New York Yankees.

It is an interesting and peculiar fact that Combs, whom I rate the best lead-off man in the American, if not the majors, is a member of the hardest hitting club in baseball. In the old days, lead-off men as a rule were short of stature. The hope is that small men are much harder to pitch to, and it is quite correct, therefore a little man, if fast usually got the lead-off spot.

In this respect Earl Combs is a radical departure from the thought of the old school managers. Combs is six feet tall. However, he has a peculiar crouch style at the bat that probably lowers his sights about six inches, making him a hard man to pitch to.

Aside from being hard to pitch to, Combs has a keen eye, seldom offers at a bad ball, hence gets many passes to first base. Fleet of foot, the rival infield must hurry every ball to get him at first. He is adept at bunting and skilled in dragging the ball past the pitcher.

In other words, Combs has all the stuff needed for a lead-off man. In addition, he is a .300 hitter, which adds much to the troubles of the opposing pitcher when Earl steps to the plate.

The fact that Combs gets on often is a very important factor in the success of the New York club, since such sluggers as Ruth, Gehrig, Meusel and Lazzeri follow in the lineup. With him on, the Yankees profit well when some slugger comes through with an extra base walk.

While you don't hear so much about Earl Combs, since he is a member of a colorful club, noted for its slugging which isn't a part of his repertoire, he is one of the Yankees' most valuable assets.

THE INSIDE OF BASEBALL BY BILLY EVANS

- 1. What is the proper distance between the home plate and the backstop? 2. What is the proper ruling should the distance be less than regulation? 3. Can a pitcher be shifted to some other position and then be recalled as pitcher? 4. What happens when the umpire calls a balk? 5. When a fielder throws his glove at a batted or thrown ball, must it come into contact with same for a penalty to be inflicted?

THIS TELLS IT

- 1. The regulation distance is 90 feet. 2. Baserunners are entitled to advance one base, should a pitched ball come into contact with the stand. 3. A player can be shifted back and forth to any position provided he is continued in the lineup. 4. The ball becomes dead. There can be no action other than permitting all baserunners to advance one base. 5. There is no penalty unless the glove actually comes into contact with the ball.

LIMIT FINGER BOWLS

London.—When the King and Queen of Great Britain dine at the homes of friends the royal couple fire the only ones provided with finger bowls. The custom dates back to the time of King George II, when the guests passed their hands over their finger bowls when they drank to "the King," signifying that they drank to the Stuart "king over the water," and not to George. He decreed that no guests other than the king and queen might have finger bowls.

BATTALINO WINS WHEN VENTURA BREAKS RULES

Bat Battalino was declared the winner on a technical knockout over Paul Ventura, of Lawrence, Mass., in what was supposed to be the feature of a ten-bout card staged at the Hartford Velodrome by the Massachusetts A. C. Referee Frank Portell disqualified the Bay State boxer in the second round when he dropped back to the floor without being hit after being floored. Both opponents seemed to realize after he started to regain his feet that he should have taken a count and evidently forgot that it is against the rules to go down without being hit. Ventura gave the national featherweight champion a fairly good go but the Hartford boxer was easily the better man.

The best bout of the evening was the go between Mickey Roberts, Hartford, and Buster Nadeau, Holyoke, in which the Capitol City lad won after a stirring battle. Nadeau, full of good boxing and hard hitting. The results of the other bouts were as follows: Eddie Reed, Hartford, beat Al Lawrence, Hartford. Vincent La Bella, Middletown, was given an unearned decision over Angelo Tardugno, Lawrence, Mass.

Gerald Emard, Holyoke, beat Ray Strong, Hartford, in four rounds. Joe Kody, New Britain, won from Stanley Stocky, Hartford. Johnny Clinch, New Britain, knocked out Red O'Brien, Lowell, Mass. in the first round. Al Pellister, Holyoke, beat Art Pallowitz, East Hartford. Paul Tera, Hartford, defeated Vic Morley, Hartford. Ray Hall, Hartford, knocked out Joe Stegansky, Lawrence, Mass. in the second round after taking a count of nine himself in the first.

REPORT SHOWS BIG SAVINGS BY BRITISH FIRMS

Numerous Industries Have Effectuated Economies With Co-operative Plan.

London.—Large savings in numerous industries are announced in the report of "co-operative industrial industrial research" by associations of manufacturers.

The British Government started this movement in 1918 by giving 1,000,000 pounds for research and investigation. In the preface to the report, Lord Balfour, president of the department says though the policy has had its successes and its failures, yet the successes have greatly predominated.

The Launderers' Research Association, to take one instance turned its attention to the use of softened water. As a result, 50 laundries immediately installed water softening plants. The average saving to the firms is reckoned at $20,000 yearly and it is estimated that British customers are saved $500,000 yearly, while the life of linen is increased by quite 25 per cent.

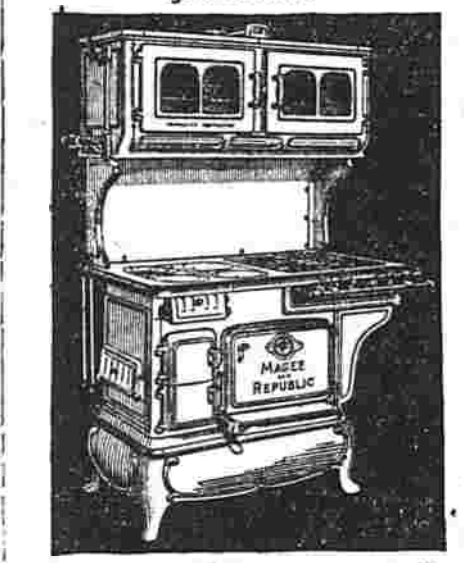

The Boot and Shoe Trades Research Association went into the problem of why patent leather cracks. As a result of the investigations it has been reported that the percentage of cracked shoes has diminished from 25 per cent to practically nil. One feature of this inquiry showed the importance of the minute measurement of feet when fitting shoes.

One of the investigations carried out by the British Electrical and Allied Industries' association had reference to the temperature an electric cable can stand.

Other Big Savings

It was found that British Standard Cables could be safely loaded up to 11,000 volts, under most conditions of laying and working. Engineers were thus enabled to utilize existing cables to greater advantage and to effect large economies in future extensions.

As a result the Association estimates that the supply industry world would, at once, get an improved supply to existing cables which might be assessed at $20,000,000 and that a saving would be effected of $1,500,000 in the purchase of cables.

Altogether the investigations carried out by the Electrical Research Association have an estimated value of $5,500,000 yearly.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

by Anne Austin

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire department store owner, takes three girls from his establishment into his home as his wards for one year because he wants to help them further ambitions each has expressed. BILLY WELLS, ambitious to be a concert violinist, is the only one of the three that is sincere. The other two, NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON—lie to enjoy T. Q.'s generosity. Billy is infatuated with DAL ROMANINE, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, the hostess and is deeply grieved to learn he is "playing" both her and Winnie Shelton. The girl learns, unknown to T. Q., that he intends to adopt one of them within the year. Nyda and Winnie institute a series of intrigues to gain his affection. Billy, on the other hand, is content, and under the maddening spell of her infatuation, neglects her violin. T. Q. is a kindergartener in his home for Nyda, who has entrusted to him the care of her children under her care, he is deeply hurt. He decides the girls need a change and sends them to Europe for a time. They return after four months and find the old life of secret struggle and intrigue. Billy's interest in her music revives slightly. T. Q. talks with Billy about his son, CLAY, who has declined to accept a poor part of town, working in a factory by day and in a saloon at night. On their return, they find the whole town in an uproar over a Hindu fortune teller, RALPH TRUMAN and Dal Romaine offer to take Billy and Nyda to him. Ralph is dubious of the man and says he believes he has an accomplice who is a "hacker" of society in the town. Billy goes first to the Hindu's private room.

Nyda and Winnie had their heads bent over a newspaper.

knuckles to keep from crying out at him to hurry. "A dark, thin figure, with the eyes of a mystic. He too is clairvoyant. His soul is the mate of your soul, the halves of two spheres whirling through the centuries to come together now for the fulfillment of a great mission."

"And—what mission?" Billy begged him in a low, shaken voice. The Hindu's eyes brooded, heavy-lidded, over the crystal. Then at last he raised his head and dropped his hands with a gesture of finality. "The vision fades. It will not come again—now."

He rose from the table, stood immovably tall in his rich, dark robes, then offered his hand to her, with a suddenly human and quite understandable smile on his bronzed, handsome face. He was a man, after all, and he was looking at her as many men had looked before.

She did not wait even to murmur her thanks for the "reading," but ran, like a frightened child.

"Scared the wits out of you, didn't he?" Ralph Truman laughed. Dal Romaine crossed to her quickly, took her arm with a reassuring pressure of his electric brown fingers, and led her to a chair beside his own.

"Don't try to talk, dear," he whispered. "You may tell me all about it on the way home."

"No," she shook her head. "I can't tell anyone—ever."

The brown boy beckoned Nyda with a bony finger, and protesting her unwillingness, she followed him into the presence of Namir Sadh.

Ralph and Dal and Billy were almost silent as they waited, but the eight people who were also waiting talked among themselves, some of them loudly asserting their incredulity, while others told, in awed voices, of miraculous revelations.

Ralph Truman smothered a chortle of amusement, then became suddenly grave as he leaned forward to whisper to Dal and Billy.

"I'm convinced this bird has an accomplice who has a centre into the very highest circles of society in Colfax. He's only been here two months, but I'll bet he's cleaned up a fortune. It's like this all the time—from early morning till late at night. The old boy won't give me a reading any more. He knows I'm wise to his graft, and he's psychic enough to dope it out that I'll have him run out of town if I can get the goods on him and his accomplice, and by George—"

Nyda's dramatic entrance interrupted his threat. She had flung open the door and now she stood leaning against it, her full bosom rising and falling with spasms of fear.

"The dirty liar!" she panted in a loud, harsh voice. "Let's get out of here!" Ralph Truman sprang to his feet and took Nyda's arm and led her forcibly from the room.

"What did he tell you, Nyda?" Ralph demanded, when the four of them were in his car, homeward bound. "You can help to run him out of town if you'll tell us frankly what he said to you—"

"I won't tell!" Nyda cried, then began to sob wildly.

"Then I suppose there was just enough truth in what he told you to make you scared to death of him," Ralph flung out at her grimly.

"That's why we can't get anything on him. If I knew what he really said to you, I'd have a clue as to where he got his information. Will you tell, Billy?"

"No," she set her lips stubbornly. Dal's hand tightened on hers.

"Well, how about you, Romaine? Are you with me? You haven't told this cheap faker rope you in, have you?"

Dal Romaine's white teeth flashed in a smile, but Billy, watching him, saw that his eyes were somber, brooding. "I'm afraid I can't speak with authority on this particular clairvoyant, Truman, but it happens that I have had experience with mystics in the east—in India, to be exact—and I have seen far stranger things than you, with your practical, middle-western mind, could possibly dream of. I have been a student of the occult for many years, you know. But as for Namir Sadh—"

"No," she interrupted. "I'll bet he's cleaned up a fortune. It's like this all the time—from early morning till late at night. The old boy won't give me a reading any more. He knows I'm wise to his graft, and he's psychic enough to dope it out that I'll have him run out of town if I can get the goods on him and his accomplice, and by George—"

"I thought Nyda would have to see Eddie Banning tonight," Billy told her, as she crept, shivering not with cold but with fear for all of them, into her bed.

"The next day Dal Romaine took Winnie Shelton to call upon the crystal gazer, and when Billy saw her at dinner that evening she realized, with a fresh surge of jealousy and hatred, that Winnie had not been frightened at all, but had been made bubblingly happy by the "revelations" of Namir Sadh. And no one knew better than Billy that the only prediction which could bring that look of luminous joy into Winnie's shallow blue eyes was a prophecy that she was to marry a man whose description fitted Dal Romaine.

For many days Ralph Truman did not come to the Curtis house. Dal himself seemed to be extraordinarily busy and preoccupied, and Billy was surprised to find how relieved she was that he did not press her to confide the details of Namir Sadh's "readings" to her.

One Saturday late in October, Viola, the girls' personal maid, brought her a note, which the girl said, had been delivered by messenger. Before she opened it, even before she saw the tiny, printed characters on the envelope, Billy knew, by the sick plunge of her heart, that it was from Dal, and that it brought bad news.

"Aligton, beloved: I am called away. I cannot even see you before I leave. I do not know when I shall be back, nor can I tell you where I shall be, for the business that calls me away will take me to a number of cities. I shall write, of course, and you must not worry, dear heart. I beg of you to trust me, to hold me fast in your heart, and to hold your own. For the sake of Nyda, a fierce exultation, do not let anything come between us while I am gone. I cannot say I am more now, except—I love you, and leaving you like this is almost worse than death. Dal."

The next morning when she went down to the late Sunday breakfast, heavy-eyed with lack of sleep, she found Nyda and Winnie at the table, the brunet and blond heads bent over a newspaper, uttering excited exclamations of astonishment and incredulity, and, on the part of Nyda, a fierce exultation.

"Who's eloped or got a divorce?" Billy demanded. "Namir Sadh has been exposed and driven out of town!" Nyda exulted. "It's all here, about how they got the goods on him and his accomplice—"

(To Be Continued)

Sadh's accomplice is not named, Billy catches Winnie in a lie—and is deeply worried.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

BY ALLENE SUMNER

All because a woman "blabbed," the million-dollar Ford-Sapiro trial was called a mis-trial and will have to be done all over again. Mrs. Cora Hoffman, jurywoman, "cooked the goose" when she talked about the trial before the verdict was rendered. What a nice thing Mrs. Hoffman has done for other women! Can't you hear the male chorus begin— "What can you expect, anyway, with women on the jury? Nothing will make a woman keep her mouth shut and they might have known it when they gave 'em the right to serve on juries for other women!"

One wonders, however, how much to do there would have been if a man had talked! Women, being fairly new at this jury game, are watched and rebuked for the very things that cause males little censure.

Child Slayers
Mrs. Christine Stoble, who slew her own child and that child's child, is said to be the only mother who ever killed her child and grandchild together. She is almost the only mother who ever slew her own child, although history contains names of many fathers who have slain their children. One does not need this evidence of the greater intensity of the maternal rather than the paternal emotion.

Age of Anesthetics
I wait every day for the advertisement of a new restaurant which will guarantee not only to cook and serve our food, but will also feed us. Attractive minipops will raise the food-laden spoon or fork to our mouth, anxiously watch us chew and swallow and prefer the next bite. This is only the next step in this "Age of Anesthetics," to borrow my judge friend's phrase. The world of commerce, in its wild frenzy for the "something new" that will make us buy, gives us this convenience and luxury until we grow soft and flabby.

The Outburst Cause
What inspires this particular outburst is the avalanche of "vacation tour" literature, guaranteeing to give utterly carefree, painless, automatic vacations. "Vacations Without Cars," "Vacations Without the Ticket," "Do the Rest." And as a result, because people are too sheerly lazy to ask train schedules of a ticket agent and do their own registering at a hotel desk, they will live themselves up with "vacations without cars," nervous, uncongenial people also out for "a carefree" vacation, and kid themselves that they are having a good time, while seeing things in goose-step time with a herd using a mob mind. May "without cars" be the future, happiness, do not let anything come between us while I am gone. I cannot say I am more now, except—I love you, and leaving you like this is almost worse than death. A HOME AND CAREER URGES SCULPTRESS

Rome—Italy, where woman's place is still in the home, has one feminist whom conservatives well might view with alarm.

For she states revolutionary doctrines about woman's life and business in the same matter-of-fact tone with which she might discuss the weather or any other accepted fact.

Moreover, she practices what she preaches. She is Antonette Paoli Pogliani, famous sculptress whose recent exhibition in Paris received tremendous praise and who is being urged to exhibit in America.

"Women owe it to themselves to have a home, children and a career," she says.

Old stuff to America, perhaps. But to Italy, the sunny land where women are expected to excel in only one art, domesticity, it sounds new, with a post-war air of too much freedom about it.

To Madame Pogliani there is nothing unusual about her life. When she first exhibited under the initial A, instead of her name, Antonette, her imposing work, with its masculine virility, was considered the creation of an able man. Her sex gave Italy its first jolt.

DON'T TAKE DRUGS IF YOUR HEAD ACHES; FIND OUT THE CAUSE

By DR. MORRIS FISHEBIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In a recent textbook on the diagnosis of disease, at least twelve large pages were occupied with the discussion of causes of headache. The causes are apparently direct, such as those due to the absorption of poisons due to changes in the circulation and those due to conditions in the tissues immediately surrounding the brain, or reflex causes related to disturbances far removed in the body from the brain itself.

Among the most constant causes of headache are difficulties of vision, particularly eyestrain. In headache from eyestrain, the pain may develop slowly or rapidly, and may occur in any part of the head. When one eye is more affected than the other, the distribution of the pain may be related to that fact.

Among the most frequent causes of headache resulting from eyestrain is a stigmatism of farsightedness, but weakness of the eye muscles may result in difficulties of accommodation and subsequent headache. A competent specialist in diseases of the eye may determine and by the prescribing of proper glasses overcome the symptom.

Sometimes the headache resulting from eyestrain is a reflex headache and is associated with symptoms elsewhere in the body, also brought about by the difficulty with the eyes. The patient may be nauseated; overtired, mentally or physically, or continually disturbed.

It is obviously not a wise policy to attempt to relieve such headache by the giving of sedative or narcotic drugs. Recently, aspirin has become the mainstay of a large number of people who purchase a headache cure rather than attempt to find out the cause of the headache and to remove it.

In many instances proper personal hygiene, including a simple and a well balanced diet, proper regulation of the bowels and a proper relationship of outdoor exercise and rest, will do much to completely eliminate headaches, particularly if it has been determined that the headaches do not result from an ocular defect.

It's the Land of the Free—IF You're Very Brave!

By Olive Roberts Burton

A woman much in the limelight, but whose very soul cried for a chance to get out of the limelight, said wearily to her secretary as she left the telephone. "Mark that down, please, Miss Slater. Tea at the Trymall studio on the 15th at five o'clock."

Oh, For Rest
The secretary knew that her employer was tired—that for days and weeks she had accepted invitations after work hours to do things she was physically and mentally not able to do. That a quiet ride home, and security of her apartment an hour before dinner, and an evening in which she might play according to her own ideas, was the heaven longed for. So she ventured, "Why do you go? You don't like the set that goes to the Trymalls—you've said over and over, and why should you put yourself out? I'm not going to put it down in your engagement book at all."

"I have to go," said the woman with a little shrug. "You see—they'll think I'm stuck up."

What's Wrong?
There you have it! I've heard more people say that than I can remember in the last few years. What's wrong? One didn't use to hear it? Or maybe my ears were bad in the old days. But at any rate it is true of the present. And every line of business are daily doing things to please other people because someone is going to think they're "stuck up."

Recently a mother reproved her daughter for slang. She revamped a sentence the girl had used, in good Queen Mary English. The girl laughed. "If I talked that way the crowd would drop me," she said. "They'd think I was stuck up."

A Garden Wall
Another woman wanted to wall her garden and plant some high shrubbery. "I long for outdoor privacy more than anything in the world," she said. "A place to walk and read, and even to have my meals—under the sky. All my life I've looked forward to the time I could have it. But now I can't! If I did my neighbors would think I am stuck up and putting on airs."

There is something wrong with the picture. Are we losing courage? Why should we continuously make concessions to what others think when we are not harming any one? The land of the free? Yes, if one can be very, very brave!

NEW BOBS
New bobs concentrate on the neckline for individuality. Outlines rounded, swirled, pointed and carelessly irregular mark the latest coiffures.

DOUBLE-BREADED COATS

MERIDEN TRADE RAISES WHITE FLAG IN GAME WITH MECHANICS

Our Trade School Leads Meriden Trade 18 to 4 In Sixth When Home Team Says, "That's Enough," Connelly and Kopinsky Hit Hard.

Chalk up No. 2 for the Trade School boys. Yesterday afternoon they added another game to an unfinished run of twelve consecutive victories, made last season by swamping Meriden Trade on its own ball field. It was the second win for the mechanics this season. Rockville High was defeated 9 to 4 in the first game a couple of weeks ago. The next game for Coach John E. Echnman's cohorts will be tomorrow afternoon when Springfield Vocational plays at Mt. Nebo grounds at 3:15.

Yesterday's victory was even more one-sided than the score indicates. There was such a wide difference between the ability of the two teams that the game was called off at the end of the sixth inning by mutual agreement. Manchester was scoring practically all the way and it was useless to continue insofar as Meriden's chances of winning were concerned.

Jimmy Adams pitched five of the six innings and had the Silver City batters eating out of his hand. None grew fat on what he fed them. Sammy Thurz pitched the sixth inning. Meriden made but five hits, four of which were singles. Jack Connelly, local short stop, had a field day at bat slaming out four hits in five trips to the plate. Two of the bingles went for an extra base. Kopinsky, also socked the ball hard, crashing out a double and a triple. Manchester made twelve bingles.

Twilight Game This Evening Over North

Tonight at 6:15, the Community Club and the Bon Ami baseball nines will clash in a twilight baseball game at the Community playgrounds. A spirited tussle is expected to take place as no love exists between the players on the two teams.

Manager Babe Oakes states that Manlon, a newcomer who pitched good ball in the church league in Hartford last year, will probably start for the Community club with Farrand being held in reserve. The Community lineup will be picked from the following players: Mantell, McLaughlin brothers, Edgar, Farrand, St. John, Walcott, Hunt, F. Brennan, W. Brennan, Keeney, Brownell, Manlon and Warnock.

In order not to avoid the schedule of Cheney Brothers because several of the players play on both teams, Manager Oakes has cancelled his scheduled game for the Community club which was to have been played in Glastonbury Saturday.

Sunday the Windsor Locks Advertisers play at Hickey's Grove and the next few home games will be as follows: Thursday, May 19, Parkville Crescents; Sunday, May 22, Economy nine of Waterbury; Thursday, May 26, J. B. Williams of Glastonbury and Sunday, May 29, American Legion of Southport.

COLLIE BATTLES BULL

Albert Lea, Minn.—Seeing his master attacked by an enraged bull a Scotch collie seized the animal's tail, hung on so tenaciously that the bull turned and vent his fury on the dog. After a fifteen minute struggle in which the bull was driven off, the collie, badly wounded, crawled to where his master lay unconscious.

Favorites Galore In Kentucky Derby

By DAVIS J. WALSH

Louisville, Ky., May 12.—Bostonian, winner of the Preakness, his stable companion, Whiskery, which ran third; J. N. Camden's Hydromel, the still hopeful Scapa Flow; W. J. Salmon's Black Panther; the Bradley pair, Boo and Be-whithus; and that overnight contender, Rolled Stocking of the Parish barn, were the stand-out candidates today, forty-eight hours before the running of the great Kentucky Derby. Of course, every eligible at the moment in a dark horse but gentlemen are known to like those both light of head and chair and those designated as dark like table linen. They will get the pat at the one-way windows—always in but seldom out.

Their rise to prominence has served to create the usual division between the sections, emphasized to a greater degree in the Derby than in any other race. Hydromel, Rolled Stockings and the Bradley pair, Bostonian and Whiskery; Black Panther and Scapa Flow are from the east.

It would be an apt commentary on the customary attempt to beat the game at the track if none of the admitted contenders paid off after the race. But the fact of the matter is that form is served much more rigidly in the Derby than in the Preakness, the only corresponding race of the early season when form is mostly a byword.

rolled Stocking, for example, has one good and one bad race this year. But the good one was no later than Saturday last, so the boys are thoroughly convinced. Neither Boo nor Be-whithus has been under colors in some time. If the outs weren't owned by E. R. Bradley, they probably would attract as much attention as a man with a head.

Bostonian's only start as a three-year-old, barring an indifferent performance at Jamaica was at Pimlico on Monday. True, he won the Preakness impressively and without post-mortems but, outside of that, you have to go back to his two-year-old campaign to get a line on his racing.

MANY RUNS MADE BY LOCAL NINES

Both Trade and High School Teams Tally 18 Times On 34 Bingles and Numerous Errors.

Manchester's schoolboy baseball teams, the High and the Trade, pounded their way to big-score victories yesterday afternoon out of town. Each recorded as much as 34 hits and 36 runs. Not so bad, eh?

This afternoon, Manchester High and Bulkeley High of New London are playing at the stadium and tomorrow afternoon the mechanics entertain Springfield Vocational at Mt. Nebo. Saturday afternoon, Windham High comes to town to cross bats with Manchester High.

HUNG UP HIS WIFE Chicago.—Being hung upon the wall like an overcoat was too much for Eleanor Benefield, so she sought a divorce. Her husband, she said, had a playful habit of tying her arms over a coat hanger and then holding her to an iron hook where he would let her hang until he decided to let her down. Eleanor got the divorce.

Every married woman thinks that all her husband's bachelor friends envy him.*

TO CONFIRM NINETEEN
AT SERVICE SUNDAY
Rev. P. J. O. Cornell to be Assisted by Rev. Ralph Mortinson—List of Children.
A class of 19 children will be confirmed at the Swedish Lutheran church next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. P. J. O. Cornell, who will be assisted by Rev. Ralph Mortinson, of the Hartford Theological Seminary. The service will be in both English and Swedish, the local pastor speaking in Swedish and Rev. Mortinson in English. As some of the children are being confirmed in English both languages are used.
In the evening holy communion will be administered at 7 o'clock. Rev. Mortinson will also assist at this service. This will be his last visit to Manchester before leaving for Vermont where he will substitute for the summer.
The following children will be confirmed: Leonard Bjorkman, Ralph Swanson, Elmore Thoren, Earl Johnson, Herbert Bengtson, Leonard Johnson, Vonnard Nilson, Bert Johnson, Roy Johnson, Clifford Anderson, Eva Modin, Alfred Benson, Clarence Johnson, Austin Johnson, Russell Anderson, Victor Johnson, Gudrun Anderson, Marion Modin, Henry Skog.
The graduating class of Manchester Green school has chosen as its officers: president, Bill Beckham; vice president, Virginia Straughan; secretary, Lucy Waddell; treasurer, Oreste Fracchia. Class rings and pins are expected at an early date.
Assembly exercises were resumed last Friday, the removal of the temporary partition which has divided the hall into classrooms, making this possible.
The ten dollar prize won by the school on its banking record, and the money earned by the sale of seeds have helped to swell the school fund.
Lucy Waddell and George Rich were winners of prizes in the recent essay contests.
With the exception of two weeks the school has ranked one hundred per cent in banking since the school year opened in September.

And so are skirts;
The tulips flaunt the gaudiest of colors;
And so do shirts.

SENSE and NONSENSE

May life's cloudless sunshine lighten
All your ways,
And contentment bless and brighten
All your future days.

Here's to the wife tender and true,
May she be happy—never blue;
Part of man, and better part
Made to love and keep his heart.

Here's to the journey of life together—may you never miss the train of bliss and be happy forever.

"Huh," said her husband, "out on the farm here that would be the alarm clock for getting up 'stead of the signal to go to bed."

WHAT WE HAVE TO DO
Of the world's land, United States possesses 6 per cent.
Of the world's population, our people make up 7 per cent.
Of the world's wheat, we grow 27 per cent.
Of the world's coal, we dig 40 per cent.
Of the world's telephones, we use 63 per cent.
Of the world's corn, we grow 75 per cent.
Of the world's motion pictures, we produce more than 80 per cent.

MARY'S LAMB

Mary had a little lamb,
So many years ago,
How it went along to school
Most children seem to know.
Now though Mary and her lamb,
Eternal rest have found,
Henry Ford will soon rebuild
Their school upon the ground.

Where the teacher turned 'em out
Upon the Red Stone Hill,
Stirling, Massachusetts, now
Will be remembered still.
As where Mary and her lamb
Were both turned out of school,
Because the children laughed and played,
Which was against the rule.

THE TINYMITES

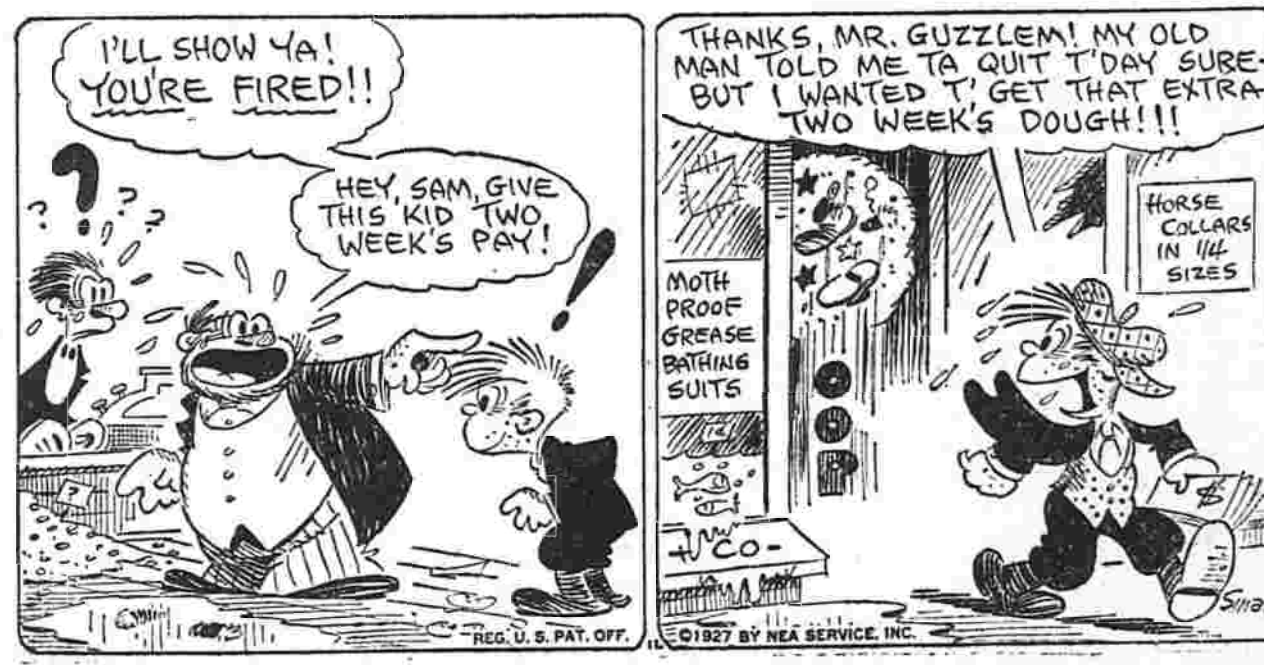

The hippopotamus waddled 'round and very soon the Tinies found that it was really friendly, and they patted it a bit. Said Coppy, "Oh, I want a ride. I wonder, now, if I would slide right off its back. But still, it seems a dandy place to sit."
The others helped him climb aboard and very soon they simply roared. The hippopotamus walked so queer, poor Coppy almost fell. However, he hung on a while, and then, when through, began to smile. Said he, "I guess I'm pretty good. Just try it. Gee, it's swell."
So several others also rode. The hippo seemed to like the load. He led them to a wondrous stream, and Scouty said, "Let's swim." Old Daffydoe came up just then and said, "I have a plan again. We'll build a diving dock and see if you're in diving trim."
They gathered wood from all around and piled it high upon the ground. Then Daffy brought some

The Tide Turns Toward Ties

FOR quite some little time now we have noticed that popular favor is beginning to turn toward the lighter oxford or tie type of shoe.

Quite the best idea that we have seen in this style is the new Grover turn oxford pictured above. The artistic cut-out at the instep gives it a lightness of appearance which is still further carried out by the turn construction. It may be had in Black Kid.
