

JUDGE DENIES MISTRIAL; CASE GOES TO JURY

Chinese Murder Trial Gets Under Way Again In Hartford—Alcorn Brilliant In Rebuttal.

Hartford, May 17.—State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn concluded his case against Ching Lung and Foo Hoo Wing at 1.15 this afternoon. His rebuttal took 35 minutes and the court adjourned immediately for a recess after which Judge Jennings was to give his charge to the jury. It was expected at the time that the case would go to the jury about three o'clock.

In his rebuttal Mr. Alcorn impressed it upon the jury that they were not passing upon a death sentence. He said that the State of Connecticut provided that death should be the punishment of whoever was found guilty of murder and whoever was an accessory to that murder. It was for the jury to decide whether or not the men were guilty and not to decide whether or not the death sentence was just.

He praised the officers who had directly caused the arrest of Ching Lung and Foo Hoo Wing, giving special credit to County Detectives Hickey and Chief of Police Gordon of Manchester. He also said that the state should thank Mrs. Frank Cervini for her rapid action. She quickly realized what had happened the morning of the murder and ran to the nearest telephone, deposited one of her own nickels and notified the Manchester police.

Ching Lung and Foo Hoo Wing were charged with the murder of a fox tries to cover up his trail by jumping from one stream to another and by doubling back, said Mr. Alcorn. So did Ching Lung try to outwit the police by traveling in different cabs, and attempting to double back. His rebuttal was brilliantly delivered.

Hartford, May 17.—Contrary to expectations State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn did not conduct the summing up of the state's case against Ching Lung and Foo Hoo Wing, charged with the murder of Oung Jing Hem in the Oak street laundry, in Manchester on the morning of April 24.

While it was expected that court would open at 9 o'clock this morning, it was not until 9:40 when the two prisoners were brought down from jail. They were left in the lower part of the hall until the jurymen came in. They arrived at 9:50 and went to the jury room. While they have wasted a week for the resuming of the trial they have not been confined to their rooms in the hotel, but some went fishing, others were allowed to go to their homes for a time but always accompanied by a deputy sheriff.

Juryman Hall did not enter the courtroom with the other eleven as they walked through but came at 10:45 accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Casey, who has been in charge of the jurymen since they were first selected. Mr. Hall was a much improved looking man, more so than the day that he was selected.

PLOT TO ASSASSINATE POLAND'S PRESIDENT.

London, May 17.—A sensational plot against President Pilsudski was unearthed when premises of the National democratic organization of Poland were raided by the police, according to a Warsaw dispatch to the Central News. This dispatch states that the plot was headed by General Haller. It alleges that laboratories for the manufacture of bombs were discovered and numerous arrests have been made, with other arrests expected.

POLICE PROBE ODD DEATH IN WILLIMANTIC

One Playwright Dead, Another Locked Up—Both Lived In Old House In Wild Section.

Willimantic, Conn., May 17.—State troopers are encamped today in an ancient farm house on Wormwood Hill, a rural community on the edge of Tolland and Windham counties, in an isolated district west of this city, in which Wilfred Irwin, New York playwright was shot and fatally wounded Sunday night. Leonard Cline, playwright and novelist, also of New York, is being held by the authorities.

Irwin died in St. Joseph's hospital here just before midnight and an autopsy was performed on his body just before dawn today by Dr. Lewis I. Mason, local medical examiner, while Coroner Arthur G. Bill stood by. The coroner would not comment on the case though he admitted that Irwin had given him an ante-mortem statement, and Cline too had done the same.

Hospital surgeons performed a blood-transfusion operation late in the evening as a last desperate hope of saving Irwin's life. Cline gave his blood in the operation. Irwin died. Cline is under treatment today in the hospital, greatly weakened by his efforts. A state trooper is guarding him.

To Start Inquest
Coroner Bill expects, he says, to start his formal inquest into the Irwin death during the afternoon. Cline, the coroner is certain, is the only person present when Irwin was shot. Therefore Cline is the only witness the coroner has for that phase of his inquiry.

A local policeman today appeared as a witness to the movements of Cline and Irwin previous to the shooting. The two men drove to the local railroad station early Sunday morning.

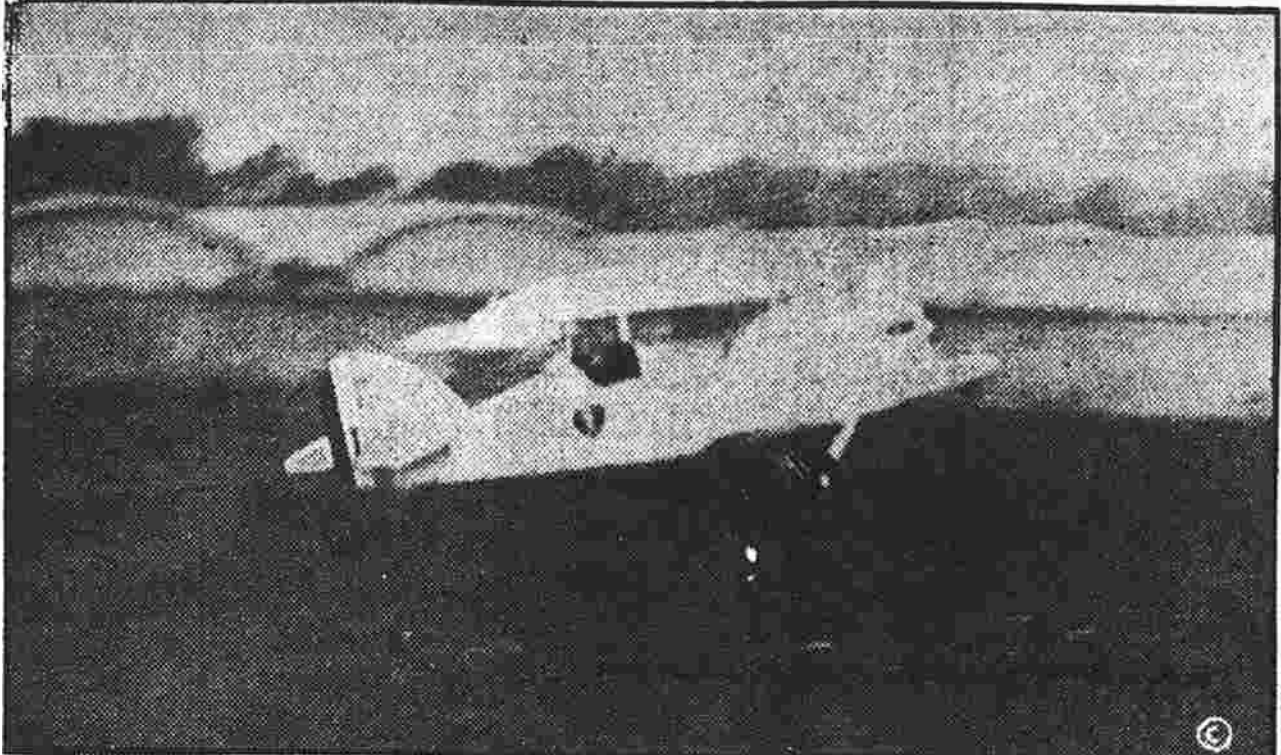

NEW DEATH RECORD FOR STATE'S AUTOS

Eighty-Five Fatalities During First Four Months; Small Towns Worst.

Hartford, May 17.—A new death record because of automobiles looms for Connecticut in 1927, according to statistics compiled by the State Motor Vehicle Department covering the first four months of the year. During that period there were eighty-five fatalities, a number equal to the total for the first four months of 1925, the worst accident year in the state's history, and thirteen above the corresponding period of 1924.

When Wheels of "White Bird" Kissed French Soil Goodbye.

This is the first picture to reach the United States of the mystery-fated Nungesser-Coll attempt to wing the Atlantic from Paris to New York under way. Here you see the French ace's proud "White Bird" Leveasseur monoplane skimming across the Le Bourget aerodrome just outside of Paris in an early morning mist. A moment later it rose gracefully, banked around a half-turn and disappeared into the unknown.

Need Narragansett As U. S. Naval Base

Admiral Sims, In Exclusive Interview, Says It Will Protect New York and New England.

Editor's Note: This is the first of two exclusive interviews with Admiral William S. Sims, world famous authority on naval affairs.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Correspondent.

Newport, R. I., May 17.—Admiral William S. Sims, commander-in-chief of the American naval forces in Europe during the war, declared in exclusive interview with International News Service today that the Army-Navy maneuvers now in progress in this region emphasize the strategic importance of Narragansett Bay for establishment of a real naval base that would protect the eastern coast of the United States in the event of a war.

"The American public says 'hold Hawaii, it protects San Francisco,'" said Admiral Sims. "But it never seems to realize that we have no Honolulu in the Atlantic to protect New York city and the great industrial east, from a possible foreign invasion."

Bay Big Enough.
"The Narragansett Bay is big enough to handle the entire American fleet," he said. "And Block Island, twenty miles out to sea, is ideally situated to make this bay almost impregnable from a defensive standpoint."

"Block Island could be utilized to keep off any enemy force, enabling us to re-condition and re-fuel a fleet of any size in the bay."

In the absence of a real naval base, what has the United States? the admiral asked. He answered his own question by saying, "Nothing."

"Instead of developing Narragansett as a naval base we have built political navy yards at nearly a dozen places—Boston, Portsmouth, N. H., New York City, League Island, Philadelphia, Norfolk, Va., Charleston, S. C., Key West and Pensacola, Fla. None of these yards is adequate to handle the entire Atlantic fleet, so as to re-provision and re-condition it with a reasonable time."

"These yards are maintained for political, not strategic reasons and the maintenance of some of them is costing the government a considerable sum of money."

"The United States could sell the navy yards at Boston and New York for enough money to build a real naval base in the Narragansett bay that would take care of the entire fleet and have a lot of money left over."

"To select as our real eastern naval base for the defense of New York city and New England any other place than this great harbor centering at Newport would be an absurdity. It is our furthestmost eastern harbor, deep enough for any of our ships and big enough for all of them."

SHOOTS WIFE, SELF AND HIS DAUGHTER

Sixty Year Old Norwalk Man Runs Amuck In His Own Home.

Norwalk, Conn., May 17.—Joseph Vuola, sixty, shot and probably fatally injured his wife, slightly injured his sixteen-year-old daughter Rose, and then shot himself, inflicting a serious wound, in the Vuola home, 84 Harbor avenue, today. The three victims are in Norwalk hospital, Vuola under arrest, and charged with assault with attempt to kill.

The shooting occurred before daybreak, Vuola, according to his children, jumped from bed and shouted he intended to shoot his wife. She fled into an adjoining room where her daughters Rose and Rachel, 19, were sleeping and covered at the foot of their bed.

Rose jumped out to protect her mother as her father entered, and he shot her in the left shoulder. Then he shot his wife in the left breast and in the back, and turned the gun on himself, the bullet entering beneath his chin and passing to the left temple. Two other daughters, Eleanor and Janet, were not harmed.

Police sent the three victims to the hospital and they found in Vuola's coat a pistol and a handkerchief with twenty bullets. They found that Vuola had fired five shots, one going astray and entering the ceiling. Police believe that jealousy caused the shooting, basing their belief on what they learned from the Vuola children.

DYNAMITE FOUND IN PLYMOUTH P. O.

Officials Think Someone Plotted to Blow Up Building—Home of Vanzetti.

Plymouth, Mass., May 17.—Post-office inspectors and police agencies today were investigating what was believed to be an attempt to blow up the local postoffice. A stick of dynamite was found in a waste paper basket, the contents of which would have been emptied into a furnace this morning.

Plymouth is the scene of the landing of the Pilgrims and the home of Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted and sentenced to die with Nicola Sacco for the slaying of a South Braintree paymaster and his guard.

Notified by Fisherman.
Jacob Snyder, a fisherman, who went to the post office after hours to get his mail noticed the dynamite in the waste basket. It was wrapped in regular brown paper coated with paraffin. "Low freezing, sixty per cent high explosive" was written on the paper.

Fingerprint experts today examined the paper and dynamite which was turned over to police.

Dynamite Package.
Chief Postoffice Inspector Park D. Colvin was particularly interested in the matter as a few days ago a rabid Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizer, according to an attached letter, sent a parcel post package of dynamite to Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, who is going over the famous case.

TILT BETWEEN AVIATORS MAY STOP HOP OFF

If Agreement Is Not Reached Columbia Will Not Make the Flight to Paris As Planned.

Mitchel Field, N. Y., May 17.—The Bellanca plane "Columbia" may be definitely out of the race to Paris because of new dissension which rose to alarming proportions today.

G. W. Nutt, attorney for Lloyd Bertaud who with Clarence W. Chamberlin was to fly the Bellanca plane in the epochal air race, has advised his client not to sign the new contract offered by Charles A. Levine, president of the Columbia Aircraft Corporation. The document was expected to adjust all former difficulties.

Today it appeared likely that court action would be resorted to to straighten out the differences between their backers and the fliers.

"Trick Clause."
Because of what he calls a "trick" clause inserted in the flight contract, Nutt is said to be ready to seek damages from Levine and was reported ready to ask an injunction to restrain the plane from leaving.

A conference of flying men and officials was to be held today at the office of Rodman Wainmaker. When it became apparent to Bertaud's friends that the flight was threatened, a group of them hastened to offer Levine $25,000 for the Bellanca plane, and announced they were prepared to back the airman. The offer was turned down by Levine.

The unfavorable weather threw another damper on the other contemplated hop-off. Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, the "Flying Fool" was prevented from starting from Roosevelt Field.

Not only were Bertaud and Chamberlin at odds with Levine, their backers, and G. Bellanca, designer of the ship, but they were in disagreement with each other.

A matter of carrying radio equipment split the fliers. Levine ordered the radio equipment taken off the Bellanca and Chamberlin, but opposed by Bertaud. The radio was taken off.

Bertaud would not make a statement concerning the matter, but observers reported him to be "angry and extremely wrought up."

It was learned that the verbal contract, supposed to clear up the matters of insurance provisions for the fliers' wives, division of awards and other money earned, had not been put in writing, as had been expected after Sunday's conference.

There was a feeling today that Commander Byrd who is to fly the America with Bert Gossett, would beat his competitors in the art because his plane would be able to breathe the head winds.

Acosta piloted Commander Byrd's Fokker plane on a 25-minute test flight this morning, and the first of a series of such flights designed to test the weight-carrying capacity of the plane.

Norwich, last year, had an average rate of 42.5 mills for the town at large while in one of the city districts, where a 26 mill town tax and a 24 mill district tax was in effect, the maximum reached fifty mills. The rate for the town and city are not expected to vary appreciably this year. Voluntown had an average rate of forty mills.

Southington has 32.6 mills and Putnam 32.2 mills while Waterbury is rated at 31.9 mills.

The per capita tax rate is highest in Darlen. Next in order are Waterbury, Greenwald, Westbrook, Norfolk, Farnham and Stamford.

Norwich stands 61st on the per capita tax list of the state and according to Arthur F. Potter, statistician for the State Tax Department, is really one of the lowest taxed towns in the state.

FLOOD THREATENS OVER 600 PERSONS AS LEVEE BREAKS

"ENEMY" OFF NEW ENGLAND COAST TODAY

Over 100 Warships "Somewhere at Sea" Waiting For Chance to Land 75,000 Troops.

Baton Rouge, La., May 17.—Great loss of life was feared today when the levee at Melville, 45 miles north of here, crumbled while most of the town was asleep, sending a wall of water 30 feet high and 500 feet wide rushing in upon more than 600 people.

John A. Parker, relief director for Louisiana, said that while most of the women and children had left the town, there were at least 600 who had refused to leave and it was unlikely that all of these had escaped the sudden rush of the pent-up waters.

Relief headquarters here had no direct word from Melville, regarding loss of life, if any. A wireless boat was dispatched there at once to ascertain the casualties.

Other Breaks.
Baton Rouge, La., May 17.—While flood waters released by the disintegration of the fifty-mile Bayou Des Glaisses levees swept southward through St. Landry parish today, new armies labored under emergency orders on the east bank of the Mississippi in a desperate attempt to hold the levees at Plaquemine Point, eighteen miles south of Baton Rouge.

The waters have broken through the Plaquemine Point barriers eight times during the last three days, two breakings having been finally sealed early today after almost 24 hours work.

A crevasse in this section of the main channel levee would flood portions of East Baton Rouge, Ascension and Livingston parishes, and spill through the Bayou Maichau and the Amite river into Lake Murepas and thence to Lake Pontchartrain, at the back door of New Orleans.

The vast arrear of Lake Ponchartraine, according to river engineers, would easily absorb the volume of water which would be released through such an opening, so that even the development in the critical flood situation throughout the southern end of Louisiana, would not menace the Crescent City.

300 Marooned.
New Orleans, La., May 17.—Three hundred men and women, some with children in arms, were rescued by coast guardsmen today from limbs of trees and roof tops to which they were driven by the flood waters from the Bayou Des Glaisses swept over their refuge on Reeds Hill.

Pierre Gastrand, an alligator hunter, brought word to Opelousas that the plight of the refugees at Reeds Hill was desperate and a fleet of forty steam boats manned with coast guardsmen set out at once for the spot.

Reeds Hill is a highland behind Morrow, in St. Landry parish and for generations has been the refuge for descendants of the Acadians who settled this country.

MRS. SNYDER RESTLESS IN SING SING PRISON
Did Not Sleep Much Last Night—Gray Bears Up Much Better.

Ossining, N. Y., May 17.—Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder did not rest well during her first night in Sing Sing prison's death house. She was nervous and restless and the nearness of the fatal electric chair depressed her.

Mrs. Snyder has cried a good deal in her cell and her nerves have been on edge.

Gray has borne up with more fortitude than was expected of him, once he became an inmate of "murderers' row." Fourteen other condemned men are in the wing which contains Gray's cell. His neighbor in the cell next is Charles J. Doran, of Albany, N. Y., who is under sentence to die in the electric chair in the week of June 13 for murder.

Memorial Services

Kiowa Council, Degree of Pochontas will hold their annual memorial services in Red Men's hall on Friday evening of this week. The speaker of the evening will be Rev. George S. Brooks. Mrs. Mary Champsagne, past great pochontas, will have charge of the service. James Kelley will act as Powhatan and Mrs. James Kelley, mother of the council, will take the part of Prophets and Mrs. Bertha Schlafer will be Weneona. Mrs. Anna Seigfried will have charge of draping the charter.

Girls' Club Membership Drive
The Rockville Girls' club has launched a membership drive which they feel will be of interest to girls within the city and in the outlying districts.

The natural question for anyone to ask is what the club offer?

Just get caught in the storm some day when downtown without an umbrella, and then the cheery, well-furnished, centrally located club room will be appreciated.

If interested in classes, the club offers anything from cooking and dietetics to a study class which, among other things, has discussed such questions as the feminist movement, the conditions in Mexico and what has governed them and the meaning and history of the terms socialism and capitalism.

If interested in a social program, the club's parties, dances, whists, bridge games, impromptu entertainments will find you an enthusiastic supporter.

If interested in physical well-being, the club can aid you, for within a few weeks a well rounded sports program is to be started. It is a program that will be successful and there is no reason why it should not, the activities will continue through the summer and fall and go on into the winter.

The health that will be the result of a program to girls who engage in outdoor recreations throughout the year?

Best of all, and embraced in whatever activity may take place at the rooms, are the results. For out of the classes, the discussion groups, the dances, the socials, the hikes and all the other things, there will emerge a more interesting group of interested girls with a group of friendly girls who will find already in the club. And it is agreed that any organization which can give a broader vision and a fuller life, crowned by the jewel of friendship, must, indeed, be worth while.

Pastor Over Radio
Rev. George S. Brooks, pastor of the Union Congregational church, will again be heard over the radio from Station WJYC on Monday evening, June 13, from 7:15 to 7:30.

Rev. Brooks has been requested to give his talk "Three Men in a Pew." This was the title of one of Mr. Brooks' Sunday evening sermons which met with such a big success. It is humorous, educational and religious, a story of everyday life.

John Doyle Again Leads
Monday night's count of the "On-to-Paris" campaign shows the following:

John Doyle, 4701; William Pfunder, 4400; H. Krause, 4245; E. Elliott, 2859; P. Teabo, 1440; H. Dimock, 70; J. McNally, 417; M. Weber, 165; G. McLennan, 13; Peterson, 97; F. Pejsnik, 39; Frank Cyrilvic, 34; I. Bowers, 22; William Bartlett, 12.

Fire Apparatus Tested
The Rockville Fire Department apparatus underwent a test Saturday afternoon. The engines and pumps worked smoothly both under the minimum and maximum pressures, the pressure reaching as high as 150 pounds. The new high speed pump is capable of pumping raised sufficient pressure to shoot a stream of water 350 feet. Chief Milne was satisfied that the apparatus is efficient. At the demonstration on Fox Hill, one forceful stream of 40 feet grade required 1000 feet of hose, a few feet short of the summit of Fox Hill, where a 250 line of water was thrown.

Fire Department to Run Benefit
The Rockville Fire Department will run "The Fire Brigade" as a benefit on Wednesday and Thursday, June 22 and 23. This is the biggest fire picture ever shown in the country and has packed houses in all the large cities. The committee in charge of the showing consists of Assistant Fire Chief William Conroy; George Krebs, William Pfunder, Ernest Redden and George Heros.

Daniel Jones
Word was received in this city Sunday of the death of Daniel Jones who died in the Waterbury hospital, being there only a few days with blood poisoning. He was aged 55 years, born in Wales, England, September 18, 1872. He was employed for thirty-five years as conductor for the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. Co. He was employed about ten years on the run between Hartford and Rockville where he made a host of friends who will regret to hear of his death. During the latter year he had lived in Hartford.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Harris of Shamoken, Pa., and two children, Ida E. Jones and John W. Harris; four brothers, John and Reese of Shamoken and William and George of Illinois. Short services were held Monday at the Clark undertaking rooms in Waterbury. The body will be taken to the home of his mother in Shamoken where burial will take place on Friday.

JENNEY TO RESIGN AS A. A. SECRETARY

Popular Cheney Executive Finds Two Tasks Too Burdensome.

John L. Jenney, of 16 Summit street, executive secretary of Cheney Brothers' Athletic Association for five years, will abandon that work shortly to assume a more responsible position, it was learned today.

"More responsibility has been placed upon Mr. Jenney because of the transfer of considerable work from the New York office of the firm," said U. J. Lupien, head of the service department today in discussing the matter. "We are sorry to have Mr. Jenney leave his present field of work but realize it would be impossible for any man to swing both jobs. His new work is not only of much more value to Cheney Brothers, but also more beneficial to him."

At present Mr. Jenney is handling the immense amount of work required in the Athletic Association in addition to his own work as office manager in the Ribbon Mill.

He requires much work on his own time which he donates because of his untrusting interest in the athletic work. As Mr. Lupien said today, Mr. Jenney has put the Athletic Association on its feet and has done a mighty fine job. While he has worked hard in the interest of all sports at the mills, his chief accomplishment has been the introduction of amateur boxing here.

Mr. Lupien said today that as yet no successor has been found to take over the direction of athletic activities at the mills but that one would be selected soon. It will be a part-time job done in connection with other work as was the case with Mr. Jenney until the addition burden came.

The funeral of Mrs. William Dougan was held at the home this afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial was in the East cemetery. Rev. Joseph Cooper was assisted by Rev. William Davis in the service. Bearers were Maurice, Paul and Knight Ferris, Robert Gordon, Harold Howe and Archie Dougan.

One of the largest Italian funerals ever seen in Manchester was that of the late Andrew Cervini of 10 Cottage street which was held at St. James' church this morning. A solemn requiem mass was celebrated with Rev. James P. Timmins as celebrant, Father Casey as deacon and Rev. William P. Rely, rector of St. James's, as sub deacon.

The offertory Mrs. John Sullivan sang "O Salutaris" and at the conclusion "When Evening Comes." Father Timmins officiated at the service in St. James' cemetery, where the body was interred.

Three fraternal organizations were represented at the funeral. The bearers were Frank Passocco and Joseph Chiofalo of the Manchester lodge of Moose, Sam Amadeo and Joseph Scagliotti of the Christopher Columbus society, and Joseph Peretto and Joseph Gaudino of the Norman street Italian club.

The funeral procession contained a large number of automobiles and many floral pieces had been contributed by friends and relatives of the late Mr. Cervini.

BEETHOVEN GLEE ELECTS ITS OFFICERS
Herbert Johnson New President of Local Young Men's Singing Chorus.

With the exception of the office of treasurer, held by Elmer Swanson, an entire new cabinet of officers was elected at the annual meeting of the Beethoven Glee club last night in the Swedish Lutheran church. Herbert Johnson was chosen president for the coming year.

The club was organized two years ago under the direction of Helge E. Pearson and will celebrate the anniversary with a concert in High school hall on May 26. In 1925 there were only ten voices in the club and now there are more than 40, the average age of the members being 22 years.

None of the members had any previous vocal training before joining the club but through the efforts of Director Pearson, the combination was won for itself an enviable reputation in this state and Massachusetts.

Following are the officers: President, Herbert Johnson; vice president, Raymond Nelson; secretary, Carl Gustafson; treasurer, Elmer Swanson; financial secretary, Albert Pearson; business manager, Ernest Kjelsson; assistant business managers, Fred Johnson, Ernest Benson; librarians, Robert Olson, Robert Burr; trustees, Edwin Johnson, Victor Johnson; membership committee, Helge Pearson, Hilding Bolin, Carl Birath; music committee, Helge Pearson, Robert Olson, Eva Nyquist; social committee chairman, Sherwood Anderson; director, Helge E. Pearson.

CONFESSES MURDER
Albany, N. Y., May 17.—William Haupt, 38, Howes cave cement worker, has confessed to killing Edward Wilkerson, 50, because the latter had been too friendly with Mrs. Haupt, authorities of Schoharie county announced today.

Wilkerson's body was found on the highway with a fractured skull and a bullet through the brain. Wilkerson, a railroad worker, had been boarding at the Haupt home for the past few months. Haupt and his wife were separated two weeks ago, authorities said.

CREDITORS MAY TAKE OVER RIALTO THEATER

A small slip of paper on the entrance door of the Rialto theater announced that the house will be closed for the summer season. It is a closed for good as far as the present management is concerned. It is a well known fact that since the opening of the Rialto more than a year ago after the building had been revamped both inside and outside and brought up-to-date in every respect, the management has been losing money.

With the big State theater furnishing vaudeville and pictures of the big grade and the attractive Circle as competitors, there was little hope of a third theater manager.

The local creditors of the Rialto which include the contractors who remodeled the building are seriously considering taking over the building, assuming the mortgages, and then by making some changes in the building turn it into another source of usefulness. It has been figured out that the front part could be used for stores and offices and the rear for garage purposes. However, just what will become of this project has not yet been determined.

The present owners, however, believe that the theater can be made to pay and are of a belief that a better sale of the property can be made in August when the season opens than at the present time.

The building is in first class condition and in all probability will not be allowed to stand idle for a great length of time.

For some time the theater has been in the hands of a receiver, John F. Sullivan, former manager of the place when it was the Park and former owner of the Circle theater on Oak street.

Mr. Sullivan has been operating it since he was appointed. The last show for the summer was on Sunday evening.

RECENT commercial investigations show that almost 70% of the day's important work in offices, stores, etc., falls into four short, before-luncheon hours. Likewise, 80% of the day's important classes in nearly every school and college in America fall, too, into the same period.

Thus breakfasts of well-balanced, complete food—food that "stands by" you through the morning—are being urged widely today by experts.

Quaker Oats, containing the excellent food balance of protein, carbohydrates, minerals, vitamins "B" and the essential laxative "bulk" of oats is ideal food for that purpose.

No other cereal grown compares in food balance. Delicious and enticing, Quaker Oats corrects the mistake of inadequate breakfast eating.

BEST GOVERNMENT.

Government of autocratic fiat could conceivably be the best government on earth. Up to yet, however, it never has been as good government as the best resulting from some form of democratic decision. Signor Mussolini quite evidently hopes to break the record. He hopes to accomplish what no Pharaoh, no sultan, no Hohenzollern and no czar ever did accomplish. He hopes to establish a perfect economic and social machine by putting into effect the decisions of his own mind. Consciously or unconsciously, of course, those decisions are merely the crystallization of the desires, opinions and decisions of a group. The decisions of autocrats from the beginning of time have been such. History holds no record of any absolute monarch who was not influenced by some other person or persons, Autocratic government is, therefore, government by a very small group. Perhaps that is why it has never fully succeeded.

Signor Mussolini has ordered all workers in Italy to accept a ten per cent reduction in wages, and all traders to make a corresponding reduction in prices. This would be good business for Italy if it would work because it followed the theory the worker would buy his commodities at the same rate of reduction as he had taken in his wages, and the purchasing power of his week's pay would not be affected; while at the same time Italian goods would be in just that much better position to compete in the markets of the world, business would boom and there would be employment for everybody, without sacrifice.

There are holes in the theory, however. One of them lies in the fact that Italy has little iron and no coal of her own and has to buy still other raw materials abroad. Mussolini cannot order the prices reduced on these things. So that even if the cost of fabrication in Italy is cut ten per cent the cost of the fabricated articles will not have been reduced in the same degree because only part of the cost of the finished article is created by the labor used. Obviously labor receives less than a set-off when all its pay is reduced and only the labor part of what it buys is reduced.

There is another hole in the theory. That one lies in the fact that while it is a perfectly simple matter to enforce the wage cut it is altogether another matter to enforce the corresponding reduction in fabricated prices. Here we have in interest the very persons who are the real framers of the Mussolini theories of economics—the business men of Italy. They are the backbone of Fascism. And, naturally, they are not in business either for their health or with a sole idea to making of Signor Mussolini this world's greatest autocrat and the first successful one. They would rather make a little money.

So that what is likely to happen in Italy—as it would happen anywhere under similar circumstances—is that the workers will get their cut of ten per cent and that general commodities will get a cut of maybe one per cent and the worker will have to get along with just so much less in the way of food or clothes or housing or savings, as the case may be.

FLOOD LESSON. Ever watch the rain drops running down an unwashed window pane? They trickle around and over the dirt. Soon the glass is streaked because some of the dirt managed to hang on. Now turn to the map of the United States and imagine that to be a window pane with all the tributaries of the Mississippi river, rushing into it and in turn rushing to the sea. That is a pretty picture. Great industries, cities and towns by these river banks, beautiful parks and playgrounds for children. Nature seems to provide everything. At the headwaters of the streams were forests. In the winter heavy rain and snow comes. In the spring the warm sun releases the rain and snow in floods because man has cut down the forests on the spots where Nature put them. Two hundred million dollars are washed away by steady erosion every year because we have no forests where forests ought to be. Then comes a flood year costing many lives and millions of dollars more in ruined crops and demolished homes. Stealing of soil by erosion occurs where run-off waters are not obstructed by forest growth. Silt, sand, and every other kind of soil are swept from their natural positions and spirited away by the foaming waters as they surge down the steep slopes. The carrying power of a stream is increased 64 times when its rate of flow is doubled. If the flow of a river is speeded up ten times, this raging torrent will be able to carry one million times as much foreign material as it did when it was flowing at a normal rate of speed causing irrepressible damage and destruction of life and property. The great part forests play in the development of our country according to Charles Lathrop Peek, president of the American Tree Association, is seen in the fact that from the streams of the national forests over 700 western cities and towns, with an aggregate population of nearly 2,500,000, obtain their domestic water supply. The forests include 1,266 irrigation projects and 325 water-power plants, in addition to many other power and irrigation companies which depend on the government timberlands for water conservation and the regulation of rain water run-off and stream flow. The Mississippi river sweeping ruin on its way to the ocean gave America a terrible Forest Week lesson. This lesson is one of the fourteen in the million and a half Forestry Primers the American Tree Association has just given to the schools of America to arouse the coming generation to the importance of reforestation. We must plant snow-holding and rain-retarding trees at the headwaters of our rivers and streams as a result of this lesson. In this lesson we must have a counterpart in the floods of the Yellow river which the Chinese call the River of Sorrow. We must have forests at the headwaters of streams to help hold back the water for a time. Watch the snow in your own yard hold longer under a tree and you get the idea. Just look at the window pane the next time it rains and you will get a lesson in what Nature is doing all the time because man cuts the trees and puts no new ones in their places.

NO. 14—CITY-OWNED COLLEGE Senior College, including salaries of teachers, expenses of athletics and other needs. They housed the college with the Senior high school, using the high school's athletic and laboratory equipments. The plan worked. The initial enrollment was 94, and additional enrollments made the total 98. The college opened with a larger number of students than any other Junior college in the state with the exception of the Junior College at Beaumont. The Tyler college is unique in that it has been self-sustaining from the start. It has not been a burden either upon its sponsors or upon the community. The boys and girls of Tyler are now kept at home until they are old enough for a college away from home. Those who cannot attend colleges away from home get a better education right in Tyler.

WOMEN'S ACHIEVEMENTS

This is the 14th in a series of articles telling how American cities are solving their problems. Succeeding articles will appear on this page daily.

By DON E. MOWRY. Secretary, the American Community Advertising Association.

Tyler, Texas, found that many high school graduates did not go to college because they could not afford it or because they were too young. A Junior College was the solution. A fund was raised to provide immediate needs. An underwriting of $15,000 a year for two years served as a guarantee. They estimated that 100 students would care for all of the expenses of this Junior

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER. Washington, May 17.—In complete charge of relief in the Mississippi valley is Henry M. Baker, national director of disaster relief for the American Red Cross. At relief headquarters in Memphis, Baker is directing movement of flood refugees to safe territory, housing them in tent cities and seeing that they receive food, clothing and medical care.

This is by far the biggest job Baker or the Red Cross ever tackled, but Baker has had more experience at this sort of thing than any other American. Since he joined the Red Cross force he has personally directed relief operations in more than 140 stricken communities and administered total relief funds of $10,000,000. He has held that post since 1922. He was educated in Australia, worked his way through a university and did post-graduate work in social economy at the University of Missouri and the St. Louis School of Social Economy, entering Red Cross work in the old southwestern division in 1919. He is 44 years old.

The annual Mississippi floods are the big river problem of the United States. Baker remarked in private conversation shortly before this year's floods began. "With knowledge of this fact and through co-operation with the government and the weather bureau, we are able to save any number of lives by warning people in sections about to be flooded. Weather bureau all along the river telephone to the St. Louis bureau as the river rises each day. The St. Louis bureau is then able to draw its deductions about the floodings along the lower Mississippi.

The Red Cross then wires the danger zones so that people can get out of the bottom lands. We are able to give 48 hours notice on possible floods. This system of co-operation has been working for five years. Soon after Baker spoke, the Red Cross was doing this very same thing and preparing to cope with its major peacetime job. "Red Cross officials watch the newspapers for storm news," he explained. "Suppose they get word that a hurricane is coming up from the Caribbean sea to hit the Texas coast tomorrow afternoon. Immediately it wires its chapters to mobilize canteens, doctors, nurses and various facilities.

In 1921 word of a possible hurricane was flashed to the Texas coast. The word "mobilize" was wired to Red Cross headquarters in each town and to the commander of the Eighth army corps area at San Antonio. Supplies, including rolling kitchens and first aid materials, were prepared for removal to storm areas within a 100-mile radius of each town. "The hurricane failed to arrive. But a flood struck San Antonio next day and the preparations for hurricane aid were used for flood relief. The flood was due to an unpredicted cloudburst 50 to 100 miles away which caused a wall of water to sweep over the town. Weather Bureau helps. "The weather man can warn of hurricanes, tidal waves, floods and pestilences. There is no means yet to predict earthquakes, but we can chart earthquake zones and discover the first rumblings, which indicate approaching disturbances. Tornadoes are also unpredictable, but on town can telephone another. If Red Cross Chapter A spots an approaching cyclone which swerves off going in the direction of the next town, it can notify Chapter B in the path of the tornado. Chapter B likewise notifies Chapter C and the word goes on down the line so people can take to their cellars. "If we had been prepared as we are now, the toll of lives and property loss taken by the Johnstown flood and the Galveston hurricane could have been cut at least 50 per cent. The 'sea wall' built in Johnstown after the flood has withstood every onslaught since then. The same is true of the Pueblo flood of 1924, which cost 100 lives, $20,000,000 in property damage, $50,000 in relief funds and homes of hundreds of families. Today it is physically impossible for Pueblo to have a flood, and property values there have jumped immensely.

I look for the day when we will have a complete international system of co-operation that will help reduce the disaster hazard in all countries where the Red Cross operates."

THE CAREER OF BRIAND. Aristide Briand, Minister for Foreign Affairs in the present French cabinet, the other day celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his entry into Parliament. It has been a long and a notable career. More than that, it has been the kind of career that in some respects we like to think is more typical of America than of caste-bound Europe. Like so many of America's great men, Briand had none of the advantages of wealth or position at birth. His people were poor. He came from Brittany, a section which has not had much influence in the politics of the republic. He started out as a struggling lawyer. He was a Socialist at a time when that party was not strong in France. He was not then and never has been a bookman or a student. But he had grit. He had the flair for big affairs. He had a silver tongue. He had the ability to capture the imagination of big assemblies. He knew how to talk to the people. He understood their wants, their aspirations, their pathetic dreams. So his career has been crowned with astounding successes.

As an advocate, he won some thumping victories in the courts. As an officer of the government, he showed he knew how to use the strong hand when firmness was required. As a war minister, he made implacable war. As a peace minister, he has led his countrymen into something like a reconciliation with Germany. As a politician he has broken all records. He has been Prime Minister ten times. He has held sixteen cabinet portfolios. Out of his twenty-five years in Parliament, he has held cabinet posts over twelve years. And always and ever he has remained the same old Aristide with his baggy trousers, his funny drooping, unkempt mustache, his absence of "side," his easy accessibility, his very real democracy.

This little man who wrote the Locarno pact with Germany will stand high in the annals of his country and of Europe.

TRYING AGAIN. Helen Willis is on her way to Europe, intending to win the international tennis honors which an attack of appendicitis deprived her of last year. Gertrude Ederle, it will be remembered, failed in her first attempt to conquer the English Channel. There is a never-say-die spirit exemplified in these American heroines which speaks well for the young womanhood of the country and gives the lie to the reputed evils of a jazz-mad age.

A SMALL REQUEST. Ten years ago the United States government was calling upon the people of this country to contribute to the first Liberty Loan. In the five Liberty Loan drives we gave over 21 billions of dollars. Since March 1 of this year there have been in the United States thirty-two disasters requiring relief from the Red Cross. In comparison to but one Liberty Loan drive, the sums asked for relief work at home are small indeed. There can be no reason for holding back, for failure to give.

VACATION COURSES AT TRADE SCHOOL

Chance to Learn and Enjoy Summer at Same Time Offered Here.

An opportunity for Manchester boys to learn as well as play during the summer vacation period has been arranged by Director A. A. Warren at the local State Trade School. Beginning Monday, July 11, a six weeks' course in textile work will be offered, closing Friday, August 19. Enrollment will be open to grammar school boys who have completed the seventh grade and high school students.

Instruction will be given in all of the allied branches of textile manufacture such as winding, doubling, twisting, quilling, warping and weaving but any group wishing to study any one line of that work may do so. It was explained. If the enrollment is sufficiently large, two large groups will be formed, one to attend the morning session from 8 until 12, and the other in the afternoon from 1 until 5. Harry Kitching, Mrs. Alice Volquardsen and Miss Florence Lamberg are the instructors who will be in charge.

This is the first time in the history of the school that a course of this kind has been offered. Back in 1919, a summer course calling for 48 hours of study a week was attempted but later discarded. It required full-day attendance throughout the school vacation.

The proposed course differ greatly inasmuch as it calls for only half-day schooling for six weeks, thus leaving ample time for vacation.

As Mr. Warren said today: "The new course permits boys to enjoy nearly one-half of their regular vacation and still receive valuable education as it does not begin until nearly three weeks after school closes in June and closes with about the same margin before school convenes again in September."

"The increased enrollment in the co-operative textile courses is evidence of growing interest in this line of study and for this reason a summer course is offered. Enrollment may be made any time after school closes until July 11, the day the summer course starts."

POLICE COURT

Theodore Dauplaise was before the Manchester town court this morning on the charge of theft of $10 from Abner Wiseberg of the Riato theater. Dauplaise was represented in court by Attorney John F. Foley, who asked for a continuance of the case until next Tuesday. Deputy Judge Thomas Ferguson who was on the bench granted the request. A bond of $100 was furnished for his appearance at that time.

The cross-walk lines on Main street at Forest street, were repainted today.

ABOUT TOWN

St. Margaret's Circle No. 280 Daughters of Isabella, will meet Thursday night at 8 o'clock in K of C. hall. Whist will be played following the business session. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served. Miss Julia Hogan heads the committee on arrangements, and the members are urged to bring their friends to the whist.

The members of the Girl Reserve of the Center Congregational church have finished their elementary book and have presented it to Prof. Meyers of the Hartford School of Religious Education.

Firestone Dealers

Have Purchased 100% More GUM-DIPPED TIRES

[This Year Compared With Same Period Last Year]
THE demand from car owners for Gum-Dipped Tires has given Firestone Dealers a large increase in volume enabling them to sell these tires to you at the lowest prices in history.
On the cars of motorists everywhere, these wonderful tires are delivering unheard-of long mileage with greater safety and comfort.
The Firestone Balloon Tread, scientifically designed three years ago, and unchanged today, follows the contour of the tire carcass with no excess rubber at the edges to cause "shoulder breaks". Narrow rider strips permit the tread to yield to depressions and cling to the road, preventing skidding. This tough, pliable tread has the wear-resisting qualities for thousands of extra miles.
Such a tread must be placed on a carcass with the qualifications to withstand the terrific flexing that this design permits. The Firestone carcass is made of cords dipped in a rubber solution which not only saturates and insulates every fiber of every cord, but unifies sidewalls with carcass, avoiding separation under the extreme flexing.
Many Firestone Dealers are prepared to offer you a liberal allowance for your old tires, on a new set of Gum-Dipped Tires to start the motoring season.
To meet a demand for a low price tire and tube,
Firestone designed and manufactures, for Firestone Dealers only, Oldfield Tires and Tubes, which carry the Standard Manufacturers' Guarantee.

"Acid?"
Excess Uric Acid Gives Rise to Many Unpleasant Troubles.
AUTHORITIES agree that an excess of uric acid is primarily due to faulty kidney action. Retention of this toxic material often makes its presence felt by sore, painful joints, a tired, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backache and headache. That the kidneys are not functioning right is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Thou-

TOLLAND
The Tolland Fire department was called to their headquarters at seven o'clock last Thursday evening and fire drill gone through with by the members. The drill which was one of the several which will be practiced in the near future was a part of the program or campaign of education taken on by the members, having for the purpose the idea of making the young men better prepared for an emergency.
The scene of the town hall by Chief Wochomurka and Captain
Macham and the discipline and execution of the hose and pipe men in getting a stream on the roof of the building was excellently por-formed. A second call was "put in" and the entire force repeated the "tryout" at the Community House.
After roll call at headquarters the company was excused with many congratulations.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: P. T. Barnum (6)

Barnum, after several months as a drummer, managed to collect some of the debts at Bethel and started a grocery store. Stories were brought to him about a negress, 161 years old, who was then being exhibited in Philadelphia as the former slave of George Washington's father and who had attended upon the birth of the father of his country.

Barnum was intensely interested and went to Philadelphia to see the woman, known as Joice Heath. He was favorably impressed.

A bill of sale, supposedly signed by Washington's father, being exhibited, Barnum bought the negress for $1000 and sold his store.

The exhibition in New York was a success. Advertised as the "woman who first put clothes on the unconscious infant, George Washington," the curiosity drew crowds. Barnum took her on tour. By controversy over her genuineness, and other means, Barnum kept up a constant line of publicity that brought the crowds. ©1927 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. (To Be Continued)

EXPLAINS DIFFERENCE IN QUARANTINES

Miss Reynolds Tells What Must Be Done to Insure Safety After Illness.

Miss Jessie Reynolds, social welfare nurse said today that there is considerable misunderstanding in town regarding the difference between quarantines in cases of diphtheria and scarlet fever. Many seem to think that they can leave a house that has been post-ed for scarlet fever as soon as the tag is taken down, but this is not so, Miss Reynolds asserts. In cases of diphtheria, cultures are taken from every member of the family and the quarantine is not lifted until two consecutive cultures have been taken from those ill. The patient is located in a room isolated from the rest of the family. However, in the cases of scarlet fever, those confined are not allowed to mix with other persons until two weeks after the tag has been taken down. Human Lives Too Cheap, Says This Crime Expert Anti-capital punishment theories are discussed in the light of the Snyder-Gray case in this article by Dr. George W. Kirchwey, head of the department of criminology, New York School of Social Work. Dr. Kirchwey is a lawyer, an ex-warden of Sing Sing prison, a former president of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology, and a noted leader of opponents of the death penalty.

By GEORGE W. KIRCHWEY, L.L.D.
Written for The Herald and NEA Service

I do not think Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray should be electrocuted. I do not think anyone should be electrocuted.

There are two questions here—one as to the infliction of the death penalty by society in any case; the other as to its application to Mrs. Snyder and her accomplice in the recent murder of the woman's husband.

As to the first question, I can only say that capital punishment is a barbarous survival of primitive vindictiveness which should not be tolerated for a moment in a humane civilization unless it is demonstrably necessary to check the crime of murder.

But the fact is that there isn't a shred of trustworthy evidence to show that the death penalty has any deterrent effect whatever. Abolish capital punishment in a given state and there is no increase in the homicide rate. Restore capital punishment, and there is no diminution in the homicide rate. This has been shown over and over again in the experience of American states and European countries. In America, Human Life is Too Cheap.

Our homicide rate in the United States is enormous and steadily though slowly increasing. This is not due to the fact that we have too few official homicides, but because in America human life is cheap.

Deliberate killing is an insignificant fraction of the appalling toll character, twists of personality, which should be known.

The case is an incomprehensible one. The very atrocity of the murder, committed by people of that kind, suggests this need for a fuller understanding. No motive proven or suggested is sufficient to account for it. That the murderers were sane in the legal sense does not carry us far enough. So were Leopold and Loeb, the Chicago sensation of three years ago.

There is soul-sickness as well as sickness of mind; emotional defects, psychopathic conditions, nervous instability—I don't know what all—which, in a given case, knock the ordinary legal concept of responsibility into a cocked hat. One cannot help wishing that the counsel for Gray and Mrs. Snyder, before embarking on their desperate attack in Judge Scudder's court, had consulted with Clarence Darrow or with Mrs. Glueck and Healy and White, the eminent experts for the defense in the Leopold-Loeb case.

It is fitting that both got the same verdict. I should have regretted it had sex discrimination favored Mrs. Snyder. In matters where principles are involved it is most unfortunate it seems to me to be more lenient with women than men. Women and men, before the law at least, should be equals.

GILBERT IN "SHOW" BETTER THAN EVER

Star of New Role in Circus Picture at Circle—Lionel Barrymore and Renee Adoree In Cast.

Strange, creepy things that float in mid-air; grotesque illusions of modern magic—these form the background—and in a way a strange comparison for the mysterious story that is unfolded in their shadow in "The Show," at the Circle tonight and tomorrow.

It is a mystery story set in a surrounding of baffling mystery—in the very midst of delusion, as it were. For it is a story told in the interior of a strange "Palace of Illusions" where deceptions, floating heads, ghosts, and all the other tricks of the stage magician are used as a setting for a startling story.

John Gilbert and Renee Adoree, that remarkable duo of "The Big Parade," play together again in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature—laid this time in Budapest rather than France. It is a strange romance of a strange underworld, told in a setting of uncanny mystery.

It thrills, astounds and mystifies—and a remarkable human interest story in the end overbalances its thrills. It is a story never to be forgotten—not because of the strangeness of its settings, strange as these are—but because of the wonderful romance that underlies them.

Gilbert, as a swashbuckling gangster, "barker" in the Budapest side-show, romps through a remarkable role, and in the dramatic climax reaches an intensity of emotional acting that surpasses anything he has ever given the screen. Renee Adoree is adorable as the Salome dancer of the show—with a woman's soul disclosed under the tinsel through a remarkable series of adventure.

Lionel Barrymore plays "The Greek," a sinister gangster, and does a remarkable piece of characterization, and Edward Connelly, Andy MacLennan, Gertrude Short and others are adequately cast. The settings are astounding.

Love can neither be bought nor sold.

What we, as a people, need is a deeper sense of the sacredness of human life, and the state might help in this wholesome process by ceasing to set the community the horrible example of deliberate, official killing. It is a dangerous lesson to inculcate—that those who deserve to die may properly be put to death.

As to Mrs. Snyder and Gray, they both are obviously in the unhappy category of those who "deserve" this fate. The crime itself was one of peculiar atrocity and both the participants fully admitted their guilt. All the rest of their testimony was only an appeal to the sympathy of the jury and, in my opinion, not a persuasive one. The verdict of the jury was inevitable. But still we shrink from the result.

IT PAYS TO BE HEALTHY!

Spanish Lad is to Become King Some Day Because He's Robust, While Elder Brothers Are Invalids.

Because Prince Alfonso (above), eldest son of the King of Spain, is an invalid, he must forfeit his right of succession to the throne. Fourteen-year-old Prince Juan (right), the king's third son, has been chosen as Spain's next ruler.

By MILTON BRONNER
London.—Because 14-year-old Prince Juan of Spain happens to be healthy while his two elder brothers are invalids, he is to be Spain's next king, according to reports from that country of rigid censorship and much secrecy.

King Alfonso, himself the victim of physical weakness and General Rivera, Spain's military dictator, are the ones said to have reached this decision. Prince Juan himself doubtless had nothing to say about it.

Prince Alfonso, 20, and Prince Jaime, 18, are the brothers who must step aside in favor of Juan.

A Thorny Question
The question of the succession to the throne of Spain has been a constant source of worry not only to the royal family but to all believers in monarchy in that country.

Prince Alfonso, himself a posthumous child of a sickly father, is of weak constitution. His recent mild attack of pleurisy caused widespread anxiety to the Spanish ruling classes. Although he is only 41 now, nobody in Spain imagines he will live a long life.

Prince Alfonso is supposed to have a very serious spinal complaint. Prince Jaime has from childhood been afflicted among other things with deafness. The leading specialists of Europe have been consulted, but without avail.

When He Is 17
When Prince Juan is 17 it will be officially announced he is to be heir-apparent to the throne, according to present plans. Princes Alfonso and Jaime will abdicate their prior rights.

The only question which remains to be decided is how this shall be made part of the fundamental law of the land.

Under the constitution it would be necessary for the cortes to pass a bill about the matter, which would be approved by the king. But at present the constitution has been set aside and the Cortes has been dissolved.

Dictator Rivera is urging upon the king that the heir-apparent of Juan will not need anything more than a royal decree signed by the king himself as head of the state and head of the royal house.

Gather ye rosebuds while ye may
Old Time is still a-flying:
And this same flower that smiles

The sooner will his race be run,
And nearer he's to setting.

That age is best which is the first
When youth and blood are warm-

But being spent, the worse, and worst,
Times still succeed the former.

Then be not coy, but use your time,
And while ye may, go merrily:
For having lost but once your prime,
You may forever tarry.

Tinting Tips

(Copyright 1927)

Here's the secret of giving lingerie, stockings, etc., the most gorgeous tints. All tints are really colors. So use real dyes. Get an envelope of the actual dye powder at any drugstore, for fifteen cents. Do your own diluting, which saves money and gives you the exact shade you want.

Diamond dyes do perfectly beautiful tinting—in cold water. A dip, and it's done. And true dyes don't look weak, however delicate a tone you use; nor does it wash out unevenly. When you want the tint to be permanent, just use boiling water instead of cold!

Regular dyeing of all dress materials, drapes, etc., just as easy. Ask druggist for color cards and suggestions. Or, a wealth of ideas in full colors, in new book Color Craft free and postpaid; write DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N30, Burlington, Vermont.

KIDNAPED! BY A FREIGHT TRAIN

TAGALONG MCGOOSEY, brother of the well-known Free-Kles, turned up missing on May 12, and has not been seen since by his parents.

Unbeknownst to them, he started out to find little Bobby Bacon, who is also lost. Tag planned to reap the reward Bobby's father offered for his son's recovery.

And, just as he located Bobby in a freight car, and climbed aboard to get him, fate stepped in—

And the freight car started to move—taking Tagalong and Bobby—Where?

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE by PAUL ADAMS NEA Service

Crumpled stiffly over a table in a far corner, still seated on two chairs and a wooden bench, were four American soldiers.

STORY OF "THE LAST PASS" COMES TO LIGHT YEARS AFTER WAR

This chapter, the 33rd in a series of articles by an ex-doughboy who is revisiting France, is one of the most extraordinary war stories on record and heretofore has been unpublished.

CHAPTER XXXIII

They tell a weird story of the war at Fere-en-Tardenois. Investigators for the Graves Registration Service of the U. S. Army were called to a ruined French village in the Champagne sector just a year, eight years after the Armistice had been signed. Villagers, poking around in a shattered home, had discovered some American soldiers in a cellar.

The debris was cleared away. With flashlights, the investigators crawled through a hole in the masonry and entered the dark, musty room. Nothing has been disturbed since the day a huge German "G I Can" had exploded. Crumpled stiffly over a table in a far corner, still seated on two chairs and a wooden bench, were the American soldiers. They had been killed by the concussion of the high explosive shell.

On the floor were their packs. Their rusted rifles were stacked. In the mess of the dark, musty room, the investigators searched for the cause of the explosion. One showed a "2." The other a "2." —a natural.

Just beyond this successful pass was a little pile of moldy paper francs, almost disintegrated, the "works" that had been the object of that pass.

The investigators removed the remains of the four American soldiers. Their graves are now in the American cemetery. And in the casket of the O. D. clad skeleton whose withered hand was stretched over the table in that cellar where the tragedy occurred in the pile of "beau coup francs" and the two dice, reading "7."

They tell a weird story of the war at Fere-en-Tardenois, France, where an American cemetery is located. It is the story of "The Last Pass."

FINE FISHING FILM FOR CHAMBER MEETING

Joint Gathering With Get Together Club to See Motion Picture of Unusual Beauty.

"Fish Tales" is the name of the film that will be shown at the joint Chamber of Commerce-Get-Together Club meeting in Cheney Hall, Thursday evening, May 19. This film was one of the features at both the New York, and the Boston Sportsman Shows this last winter. Since the shows closed it has been in constant demand by fish and game clubs throughout the east.

It was only by a stroke of luck that it was secured for this night as it is being shown in New York City the night previous and in Waterbury the night following. The film shows first in an ost graphic and interesting manner, how split bamboo fishing rods are made at the factory of The Montague City Rod Company, the largest makers of split bamboo fishing rods in the world.

Some exhibitions of how an expert fisherman, with the finest equipment in the world can cast a fly, are also shown. This shows the strike, the rush, all stages of the dexterous angling and playing of the big twenty-five pound fish on the light rod in the hands of a master and the final fight at close quarters when he is finally netted or gaffed. All this action against the background of the beautiful Newfoundland mountain stream scenery organizations are urged to bring their wives and friends. A special invitation is extended to all members of the Manchester Fish and Game Club. The meeting is at 7:45, Thursday evening, in the upper Cheney Hall.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Here after, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips" twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

From the ranks of his big department store, the CURTIS family BILLY WELLS, NYDA LO-MAX and WINNIE SHELTON to come into his home as wards for one year, because he wants to help them further ambitions each has expressed. Billy, anxious to be a concert violinist, is really serious. The others to be held his generosity.

Billy became infatuated with DAL ROMANE, nephew of the hostess, MRS. MEADOWS. She is deeply troubled when she learns he is "playing" both her and Winnie Shelton.

Despite her infatuation, Billy tenderly remembers CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor, who has disinherited him and a living with Billy's mother in a poor part of town, working in a factory by day and writing a symphony at night.

Unknown to T. Q., the girls learn he intends to adopt one of them when the year is up, and Nyda and Winnie turn the matter into a place of intrigue.

T. Q. begins to question the wisdom of his philanthropy when he observes that Billy loses interest in her violin and that Nyda does not, after all, want to fulfill her expressed ambition—that of becoming a kindergarten teacher.

One night Billy goes to the library to get a book on Nyda, who is sick. While there she breaks her bed and while stooping to collect them, she steals a diamond necklace to the garden to meet Ed. As she is returning to the house, she sees EDDIE BANNING, Nyda's former sweetheart, sneaking out of Nyda's room and leaving by the fire escape. Billy is met by Sawyers, the butler, in the hall the next morning. T. Q. calls her into his library and tells her his wife has been robbed and that SAU-YERS has placed suspicion upon her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER I

WHEN Nyda appeared in the doorway of the library her ravaged face more than supported her contention that she had been suffering from a violent headache since the evening before. T. Q. Curtis was visibly shocked by her appearance.

"I hope you will forgive me for having routed you from your bed, my dear." He went to her and took her hand with awkward tenderness. "You look like a very sick girl. I'm sorry."

As briefly as possible he told them the story of the robbery. He did not mention Billy's name until he had gravely put his question to each of the other two women.

"Mrs. Meadows, have you any information of any kind whatever that would have any bearing on this distressing occurrence?" he asked.

"I have not," Mrs. Meadows answered smoothly, without indignation. "I was in my room all evening, writing letters and reading. I saw nothing, heard nothing whatever, I am sorry I cannot help, Mr. Curtis."

"Nyda," T. Q. turned to the sick girl.

"Mr. Curtis, I didn't have anything to do with the robbery!" Nyda cried, holding her head between her long, slim hands. "I did hear someone moving about in the halls after Billy left my room just before twelve, but I was too ill to care who it was or to think anything about it."

"Why, Nyda, I thought you were much better when I took your book to you?" Billy protested.

"My head," Nyda's face was a study of pain and astonishment. "I don't know what you're talking about, Billy."

"You must be mad with a headache if you've forgotten that you sent me for your room just before twelve, but I was too ill to care who it was or to think anything about it."

... (Text continues with the plot of the story) ...

"You're going home and act as if nothing has happened," he commanded her.

"I did not send you for a book," Nyda contradicted her flatly. "I was far too sick with a headache to study last night, and you know it."

Billy's brain at first refused to take in the extent of Nyda's treachery. She stared with wide, blank eyes first at Nyda, then at T. Q. Curtis, who refused to meet her eyes. Then, when the full horror of her situation rushed upon her, she sprang toward Nyda as if she intended to strike her. T. Q. seized her upraised hand.

"Billy, my dear child, Nyda has accused you of nothing more serious than a misstatement of fact. I think it quite possible that Nyda's head is aching so frantically that she cannot remember last night's events distinctly."

"His eyes opened wider than was their wont and gazed into the eyes of the frantic girl warily. All of the fight went out of Billy suddenly. She understood what T. Q. was trying to tell her—that no one but him and Sawyers knew that there was a shred of evidence against her.

"That is all for the time being," T. Q. said wistfully, as he released his hold upon her arm. "I hope you all understand that there is no one under suspicion, and that the necessity for subjecting you to questioning has embarrassed and pained me a very great deal. If you will pardon me now, I shall question the servants."

Billy left the room first, Nyda and Mrs. Meadows following more slowly, the arm of the older woman half supporting the sick girl, who turned at the door to smile a wan, forgiving smile at the old man slumped dejectedly in the chair behind his desk.

Billy ran to her own room and locked the door. She flung herself down upon her bed and burst into a storm of weeping. She wept first with sheer, murderous rage against Nyda, then with grief that T. Q. Curtis should be capable of robbing her, and finally her tears were the tears of self-pity. She was trapped, horribly wronged, desolate. By making her out a liar, Nyda had, with fiendish cleverness, locked and barred the door of the trap.

At last, in utter desperation, she switched the phone from the little bedside table and called the Truman automobile factory, asking, in a shaken, unrecognizable voice, for Ralph Truman.

"Oh, Ralph, this is Billy—Billy Wells," she gasped when Ralph Truman's voice came briskly over the wire. "Don't interrupt me for a minute, please, Ralph. I'm in a terrible trouble. No, I can't explain. But will you do this for me—will you send for Clay, tell him to meet me somewhere—oh, I don't know where," she moaned.

"There, there, Billy, darling! Get a grip on yourself!" Ralph's voice came comforting. "Of course I'll send for Clay. I'll tell you—suppose you meet him here, at the factory. Everyone is at work now, and will be till twelve, and the library will be deserted. Nice quiet place to talk—and vice, if that's the way you feel."

"Thanks, Ralph. I'll be there as soon as possible."

Flinging on a hat and coat, she ran from the house, without encountering anyone but Sawyers.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

No matter how often and intensely certain things are said, nothing but personal experience can make these things believed. Which wise crack springs from the closing of one of the most fascinating books I have read in a long time—Wardwick Deeping's "Doomsday." We have all been told since our infancy that "wealth alone cannot make a happy marriage. We have read hundreds of stories, seen hundreds of operas, listened to dozens of operas, revolving about this theme. Newspapers again and again feature the smash-up of some tyrist's marriage to a rich old codger, and the smash-up is often of the tyrist's parents rather than that of the rich old codger.

Nobody Believed It.

But with all the shouting aloud of this supposed truth, few girls exist who have not said—at least to themselves—"I'll risk the happiness." Most all girls have pet ambitions a bit more perhaps than the mere desire to live in ease and softness with economic security about them. Many girls want to dance, to sing, to play the piano, to paint, to write, to do social philanthropy. They have neither money nor leisure. The treadmill of the job which is often just a job for bread-and-butter only, but which does not really make life worth living, gets them. They sigh for a way out—a way of leisure for what they consider the ends of living. Whether they will or will not admit it, "a man with money" sometimes seems the only open sesame. "Doomsday" is the only book, the only sermon, the only newspaper account, the only anything I have ever read which truly convinced me that moneyed but loveless marriages do not work.

Girl of "Cinder Town"

Mary Viner lives in "Cinder Town," Sussex, a tenant allotment devised by one of the "gentrified." Mary waits on her aged father, and mother, rebellious at the dinginess and drudgeries of life all the while. Her sister Clare "got out," went to town, married a rich man, lives in ease and luxury and beauty. Mary is figuring her own house with the dog at his heels. He was full of a sacred and tender exultation. "Doomsday" had a new meaning; it was her house; her feet would go to and fro across the old, undulating floors. He could see himself coming in from his labor and calling her "Mary—Mary."

Mary's Ideas

But Mary knew she would not live in "the funny Doomsday house"; become "a kitchen drudge." She was angry at him for not seeming to suspect what fair places of earth she was capable of gracing, what she would be sacrificing if she did the thing he took for granted.

"To hundreds of sensitive women that old Sussex homestead would have put forth many appeals. They would have understood its sadness, its permanence, its happy and green isolation. It had beauty, and permanence, but much of modernity asks for neither."

Runs Away

Mary ran away. To her sister. And into the arms of a rich husband. Well, sufficient to say, it didn't work. There was a honeymoon at Monte Carlo, Rome, Venice, Paris. There were grand dinners, bal masques, wonderful clothes and jewels, pink marble boudoirs and writing rooms. But it didn't work, and the vividness with which the chapters on Mary's marriage to Fred make one so completely convinced that "it doesn't work" is a masterpiece.

ANDOVER

The play "Johnny's New Suit" was presented in the town hall Friday night by the Rebecca's of Manchester, under the auspices of the local Christian Endeavor Society. A large crowd attended and was very much pleased with the performance. Another feature of the evening's program which was exceptionally well liked was the rendition of a number of solos by Mr. Swanson, also of Manchester. The sketch "Memories," recalling to mind many once-popular songs and ditties was well presented, as was also a monologue recited by a member of the visiting order. After the program tea cream was served, and dancing enjoyed.

Mrs. Charles Wright spent Friday night in Hartford the guest of Mrs. A. H. Newton.

Mrs. Janet Smith spent the past week visiting relatives in Meriden and Hartford.

Week-end guests at A. E. Frink's were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Platt of Happing, and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Frink and son.

Miss Esther Jones returned home from New York Saturday. Her brother William accompanied her and plans to spend the week at the home of his mother, Mrs. Ellen Jones.

Norman Warner and family of Gilead spent Sunday evening at the home of Lewis Phelps.

At the business meeting Sunday evening after the Christian Endeavor service it was voted to accept the invitation to go to Coventry and take charge of the Christian Endeavor meeting May 29.

Charles Phelps was home for the week-end from Yale College.

Mrs. Ward Talbot was a caller in Manchester Monday afternoon.

John Phelps is out of school sick.

Good Nature and Good Health

HOW YOUR SENSE OF SMELL CAN BE DEVELOPED TO AID YOU MOST

By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The sense of determining odors is far better developed in the lower animals than it is in man. Higher civilization makes man less and less dependent on his sense of smell, but it may be of great value to the human being who gives it a fair chance to be of service.

There are some occupations, particularly those having to do with tasting, in which the sense of smell is highly cultivated. It is generally recognized that the sense of taste is largely dependent on the sense of smell for its full enjoyment.

In the nose are found little nerve cells which apparently receive the odor and relay it to the brain. In the nasal cavity of man there is only about one square inch of such cells, which is a small amount as contrasted with that of many of the lower animals. In the same way, the organs for registering smell in the brain of man are much smaller proportionately than those of the animal.

In a recent consideration of the sense of the sense of smell to the physician, Dr. William J. Mayo points out that a surgeon with an especially trained sense of smell will recognize many abnormal conditions, while walking through a hospital ward. Before the advent of modern laboratory technique physicians were able to recognize typhoid fever by a particular odor, for the membrane in diphtheria had an odor which was peculiar to it. During the most recent epidemic of influenza many physicians pointed out that persons suffering with this disease had a perceptibility with a delicate odor.

Some poisons, particularly cyanide, have an odor which is distinctive. In the case of the cyanide, the odor is that of almonds.

Man has but five fundamental senses. He seldom uses these to the maximum of their possible development. More and more he has come to depend on prologation of these senses by the use of magnifying instruments, such as the microscope for entering objects of small size so that they may be more readily seen, or radio tubes which raise sounds of small dimensions into terrific blasts, such as may be heard by any ear.

Have Your House In Order
By Olive Roberts Burton

Those who know Mr. John Hays Hammond and the adventurous and colorful life he has led as explorer, prospector and founder of colonies in South Africa will appreciate a remark he made recently with a flash of that amazing smile of his that holds the listener captive. Said he: "I suppose I've been some day being run over by a slow old funeral hearse. After a thousand hairbreadth escapes that's just about what will happen to me!"

Mr. Hammond's words of Africa, jungles and escapes had brought to my mind events of the previous evening when I was guest at a dinner party.

Following the dinner we went to the circus. There had been some wild animal acts that caused great excitement.

The trainer in a cage with eighteen of the most dreadful lions and tigers I ever hope to behold, had put them through a course of reluctant, snarling maneuvers that made one's blood run cold. When the last cat had been prodded into the runway and carted off in his car, the sigh of relief that went over the audience was distinctly audible.

"That trainer is bound to get it someday!" I declared nervously to my hostess. She patted my hand, Constipation!

How to Keep Bowels Regular

DR. W. B. CALDWELL
AT THE AGE OF 83

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated men, women, children, and particularly old folks, had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, high nervousness, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purgative" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

MALONEY PICKED AS FAVORITE FOR BOUT ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Little Interest Shown In New York But Boston Is Buying a Whole Lot of Tickets.

By DAVIS J. WALSH New York, May 17.—Although most of the invisible money being chanced on the outcome probably could be concealed very effectively behind an English monocle, there were unmistakable signs today that New York intended to make Jimmy Maloney a favorite over Jack Sharkey for their heavyweight meeting on Thursday night.

Maloney is the probable favorite only because the average addict dislikes James' fighting less than he does that of Sharkey. The man who wins possibly will be the man who goes on to a championship fight with Tunney but somehow the customers have been gazing with idle abstraction at the far horizon.

Even a artificial respiration hasn't altogether succeeded in reviving at the tumults, which is something that Sharkey's ability to talk a great contest and George Rickard's decision to give himself a dinner last night have failed to do.

Public's Interest As a matter of fantastic fact, the public's interest is not with this couple of earnest young men, who can fight, but with a rather elderly ex-champion who doesn't know whether he can or not. Maybe the announcement that Jack Dempsey's comeback will be against the Sharkey-Maloney winner will produce the desired effect for apparently you must get Dempsey's name in there if you want to get the customer in, too.

The Maloney-Delaney fight, which turned out a million dollars worth of advertising and a million moments of boredom, also has had a psychological effect on the boys for Thursday's fight. The boys will want to be shown this time and the proposition of matching one man with only a fair punch against another, with virtually none is not a particularly attractive one.

Still, the winner will be able to say with perfect truth that he has beaten every good man available up to and including the moment and, if the last thing you give consideration, then it may be presumed that he just isn't due.

Much of this depends on the identity of the winner, however, if it is Maloney, the boys will go for him with a reasonable degree of enthusiasm. They suspect he can punch; the evidence is more or less circumstantial but even a suspected punch is esteemed over bland innocence.

That seems to be Sharkey's greatest liability and yet, with all of his indecisiveness in hitting, there probably haven't been five better heavyweights in the last ten years. In fact, the writer would pick him as the best of the bunch, though less interesting opponent for Tunney than Maloney would be. Whether he proves to be a more dangerous opponent for Maloney than any the latter has met this year remains to be seen, for things equal to the same thing are not always equal to each other—at least not in boxing.

Can a baserunner after overrunning first base, turn to his right or left in returning?

If a fielder blocks a runner without having the ball in his possession, about to make a play, what happens?

What happens if the pitcher gets on the rubber without having the ball in his possession?

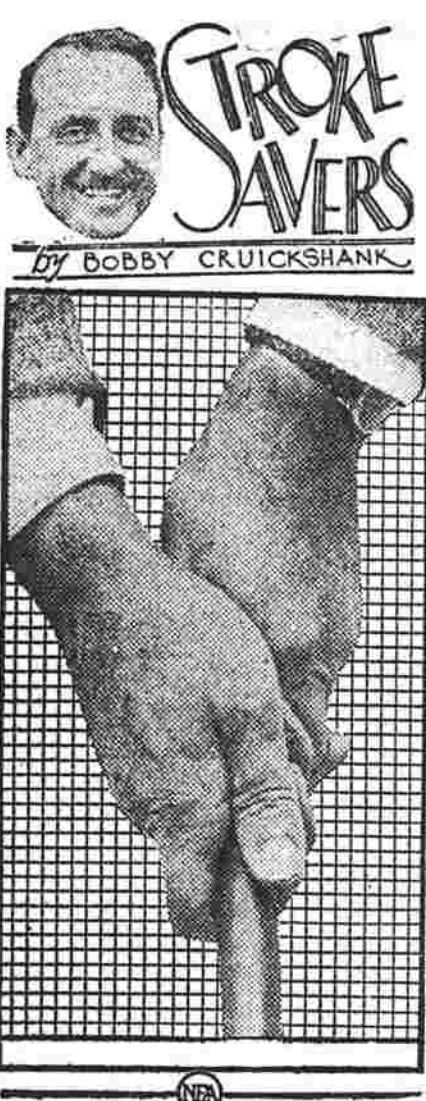

When a balk is called, what are the rights of a baserunner? Can a runner score from third?

Baserunner overrules second on a steal after beating the throw and is retired, is he credited with a stolen base?

THIS TELLS IT 1. Yes, provided he makes no effort to advance toward second.

2. The baserunner is entitled to the base, which he was prevented from reaching by the obstruction of the fielder.

3. The pitcher commits a balk. 4. Baserunners are entitled to advance one base. The runner on third positively scores.

You hear a lot about the "V" grip meaning when the two hands are together there will be a "V" pointing up over the right shoulder. That's all very well and true, but there is a tendency of most golfers to emphasize this too highly. As a result, the left hand, turned over too far, interferes with the wrist action at the top of the swing.

Have Ruth's Eyes Failed?

Belief Exists That Footlights Have Been No Tonic For Home Run King's Eyes As He Fails to Hit Stride.

New York, May 17.—Babe Ruth so far this season has been the big disappointment of the Yankees as to his batting.

That is a rather unusual statement when you figure that the Bambino is the greatest slugger of all time, feared by every pitcher in the American League.

In the first east versus east clash in the American League the Yankees have been winning without the batting help of George Herman Ruth, thus proving the club doesn't always go as Ruth does.

Prone to strike out a lot, because he is a free swinger, Ruth has been easier than usual this spring to get right of via the strike-out route. Lack of a timely hit on his part has kept the Yankees from winning several ball games that would now have them fairly well in front had they been placed on the right side of the ledger.

Why the slow start on the part of Ruth, who physically appears to be in great condition? It may be simply one of those years in which Ruth is slow to hit his stride. His spring play has varied greatly during his major league career. Some seasons he has started whanging the ball on the nose from opening day, in others he hasn't got going until about the middle of May.

In many quarters, the belief exists that Ruth's eyes are not as keen as they were when he bumped the old apple for 59 home runs and a major league record that should stand for some time. No doubt the eyes are the real barometer of Ruth's batting power. He still takes the same terrific cut at the ball, his swing has lost none of the home-run snap, but unquestionably there isn't the perfect coordination that once existed between mind and muscle. The eye isn't timing the ball as well.

What We Think In Sports

They're making a lot of unnecessary racket over in Hartford about the return go between Bat Battalino, the newly crowned national amateur featherweight champion and Paul Ventura, from Lawrence, Mass., which takes place tonight in the Velodrome. Ventura may have gotten past that first round jinx in his recent bout with Battalino before he was disqualified for a violation of the rules, but there was no comparison between the respective ability of the two boxers. Battalino is easily the better man and should win by a clean knockout to-night. It wouldn't be much of a surprise if the key punch is let flying in the first round, too.

The high school baseball team is making a fine record this season and is worthy of better support than it is receiving, both from the student body and the public at large. Small crowds have watched the home games so far this season and school officials are hopeful there will be a change for the better. In other words, the baseball team is not fully appreciated.

While it is true that taken as a team the high school baseball nine is playing good ball, there is one fault that detracts from the appearance of some of the players. And that is the habit of throwing the bat down in disgust after striking out. It gets the batter nothing and makes onlookers laugh. The much better way would be to take matters as they come and not become temperamental.

Jack Jenney, the popular sports promoter at Cheney Brothers, who is soon to give up that line of work, will be sadly missed among the sport followers. His untiring efforts in promoting all kinds of sports at the mills have earned him many friends, and his pleasing personality, many more. It will be hard to choose an equal live wire to replace him.

Red Sheridan deserves lots of praise for his brilliant work in the track meet Saturday between Manchester High and Meriden High at Meriden, for it was largely through his efforts that Manchester was able to squeeze through a 50 to 49 winner. After competing in the 100 yard dash in which he finished second and the 220 yard dash in which he broke the tape first, Sheridan was called upon by Coach Pete Wigren to run in the 440 yard dash, an event in which he had never participated before. Coach Wigren, however, was in desperate need of his very best runners for this event as it meant everything to Manchester. But Sheridan justified the responsibility which the coach placed on his shoulders by placing first to win the meet when Cheney game second.

Battalino Faces Ventura Tonight Bat Battalino, sensational Hartford amateur featherweight and now national A. U. champion predicts a first-round knockout over Paul Ventura of Lawrence when they meet on the Massachusetts A. C. card at the Hartford Velodrome tonight.

Bill Taylor, Hartford welterweight, will be entered against the man in his class providing his injured hand improves sufficiently by next Wednesday. Dave Hayes, his trainer, has informed Promoter Jenney, Harry Jolly, manager of the Brightwood Club of Springfield is also submitting a list of entries, several of which have not previously shown their wares because of the scarcity of suitable opposition.

Table with columns: AB, R, H, PO, A, E. Rows for Athletics vs Browns and Philadelphia vs St. Louis.

Ventura, insisted he can beat Battalino, asked for another chance. Ventura made by far the best showing of any of the boys who have engaged the national champion in this city. The Battalino-Ventura bout will be the feature of a card which will include some dozen bouts bringing into action teams from Lawrence, Lowell and Holyoke and a score of the leading Connecticut amateurs.

There is every indication that the amateur game is in for a banner season in Hartford. Last Wednesday fans from all sections of the state were on hand, despite the rainy weather, the gate showing 5,000 in attendance.

SOCCER TITLE FALLS TO FALL RIVER

A free ball and a stirring moment of suspense in the hammer-and-tongs soccer match at Detroit, which ended in the Fall River, Mass., eleven winning the national championship, for the third consecutive year by defeating the Holy Carburators 7 to 0. The Holy's goal keeper, on hands and knees at the right, strives vainly to get to the ball while his team mate at the left wards off an on-coming Fall Riverite, determined upon scoring.

SENSE and NONSENSE

The Hostile Attitude Company pays no dividends to its stockholders. Many a man gets a reputation for being good-natured because he is too timid to stand up for his rights. The Two Streets Intention Street is a broad highway, And those who follow, so they say, Go down and up and up and down, Trying to get to Nowhere Town. Nowhere Town is a station fair, On a railway that's always in the air. None of its trains are scheduled through, Stop-over tickets will always do. Attention Street is narrow quite, And its dwellers work with all their might And finally get to Somewhere City. The worst thing about a competitor is that he won't let us sleep in the daytime.

NOW YOU Ask One

PICK THE RIGHT ONES

The first part of today's Intelligence test is a bit different. The rest is like it used to be. You'll find the answers on another page. 1—One answer to each of these questions is right. Cross out the wrong answers: 4—Frankfort is the capital of Wyoming, Kentucky, Delaware, Mississippi. Stonewall Jackson was killed at Gettysburg, Lookout Mountain, Bull Run, Chancellorsville. The north pole was discovered by Nansen, Scott, Peary, Stefansson. "Jurgen" was written by Dreiser, Cabell, Hergeshimer, Lewis. In the French Revolution the French beheaded King Charles II, Henry VIII, Louis XVI, James I. 2—In the treatment of what disease is insulin valuable? 3—Who was Tacitus? 4—What is the largest American city to operate under the city manager form of government? 5—In which island of the Dutch East Indies is the city of Batavia? 6—Is Pike's Peak the tallest mountain in Colorado? 7—Who is Dr. Clarence True Wilson? 8—What woman is a justice of the supreme court in what state? 9—Who wrote the music for the light opera, "Iolanthe"? 10—What was the fastest time ever made by a sailing ship in crossing the Atlantic? About all that is necessary for a divorce nowadays is a wedding. "The doctor will see you inside," said the nurse to the patient as she helped him on the operating table. An optimist is a man who jumps every time he hears a cork pop. Many a man is willing to try and climb a tree in his motor car when he meets a woman driver who wants to use the road.

THE TINYMITES STORY BY MAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

The pony race was full of thrills and Daffydoe expected spills, but all the Tinies hung on tight and no one took a flop. First one would take the lead, and then the other'd slip ahead again. Then Scouty loudly shouted, "Say, I wonder when we'll stop." "Oh, what's the diff?" someone replied. "I really like this sort of ride. We don't know where we're going, but we're sure on our way. Why I could sit and ride like this, as long as nothing goes amiss, and really think it wonderful throughout the live-long day." Just then they heard a sound behind and quickly turned around to find that Daffydoe was on a horse and keeping right close by. "Say, this is great," the old man said. "I see a big fence just ahead. The bunch of us can jump it clear if we will only try." The ponies headed for this fence, and kept the Tinies in suspense.

They wondered if they'd make it, or go tumbling to the ground. And then they sailed up in the air, and Daffy shouted, "Have a care! Just hang on to your ponies, and they'll take it with a bound." "The ponies made the jump real quick and all the Tinies thought it slick," said Clowny. "Oh, I see a stream. I'd like to take a dip." Of course he didn't know that he would soon be where he wished to be. But anyhow, real shortly, something made his pony slip. The little pony gave one snort, threw up his feet and stopped real short. Poor Clowny went assailing, like a kite, or wind-blown hat. Before the others stopped to think, they saw him hit the stream—kerplink! He landed in a shallow place and there the poor lad sat. (The Tinies have a Hippo ride in the next story.)

SKIDDING CAR HITS TWO OTHER AUTOS

Three automobiles figured in an odd automobile accident on Main street last night. One man was slightly injured and considerable damage was done to the cars. Two of the three machines were parked on Main street in front of Magnell's Drug store. One was a Buick sedan owned by Carl Wetherell of 15 Spring street and the other, a Dodge truck owned by Garonne's Market.

A Chevrolet roadster operated by Carlo Graizzo, of 96 School street came down School into Main, turned north and was about to be driven into a parking space side of the Buick. The roadway was very slippery and the car skidded into the Buick knocking it up onto the sidewalk and into the Dodge.

Graizzo was the only person injured. He suffered a few slight cuts about the face when the steering wheel broke.

COLLEGE GIRLS VISIT WATKINS BROTHERS

Twenty-eight girls from the Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs, with their instructor, Miss W. B. Keyes, visited the Watkins

Brothers store yesterday afternoon to study home furnishings. Every week ten the classes in Home Economics make these trips in connection with their studies. Miss Helen Strong, decorator at Watkins Brothers conducted the class through the store and assisted them in selecting a number of cretonne samples with which they plan to decorate a tea house at Storrs.

The selecting of these samples was one of the problems given to them before they started out on their visit to the local store. Stribling and Loughran, the two best looking guys in the ring, fought the worst looking fight we ever saw.
