RAILROADS ANXIOUS TO FORM A MERGER

Charles Evans Hughes Filed New Brief With Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, May 20.—Undaunted by the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission in disapproving the merger of certain southwestern railroads, L. F. Loree made another attempt today to convince the commission that the Delaware & Hudson should be permitted to lease the Buffalo & Pittsburgh.

His brief filed by Charles Evans Hughes it was set forth that grouping the Delaware & Hudson with the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, with connecting trackage over Pennsylvania lines from Buttonwood to Dubois, "will create a new and efficient transportation system, resulting in real, undoubted and substantial public gain."

RUFFLES FOR MEN IS PARIS-EDICT

of them look, for comfort, too good to be true. Manequins have been put on the streets to exhibit them, but so far the designers of the picturesque costumes have been reluctant to appear in their "convictions."

A comfortable compromise is the plus-four design, with silks and laces substituted for the woollens. These have won many converts among the males as far as sympathetic appreciation is concerned, but none has dared to adopt the proposed fashions.

The chief difficulty in putting the new male styles in practical use comes from the critical attitude of the friend wife, according to the ardent boosters of the Salon de la Mode-Macassar. The woman came to play, and return to scoff. This, the exhibitors say, is simple jealousy, and they predict that from now on men's fashion shows will become quite as important in matters of dress as those of women.

WHOLE HOPE OF WORLD'S PEACE IN U. S. ENGLAND

English Speaking Peoples In Alliance Future Need Says
London Banker.

Washington.—"The whole hope of the future peace of the world lies in England and America coming together. If the English speaking people will stand shoulder to shoulder we will not have any more wars."

This straight-forward declaration in favor of an English speaking alliance for world security, was voiced here by Alwyn Parker, C. B. C. M. G., director of Lloyds Bank, Ltd., of London, while in Washington as a member of the British commercial party now touring the United States.

Sees Turmoil Ahead
But without some such check, Parker, who spent 19 years in the British diplomatic service before joining Paris peace conference, sees turmoil ahead for Europe. The map of Europe, he says, must be remade to correct the blunders of the Versailles treaty. If it cannot be brought about through peaceful negotiation it will come through war. To quote Parker's own words:

"There is bound to come a change. The Eastern frontiers of Europe cannot stand as they are today," said Parker.

"There is no doubt that the East of Germany cannot be permanently cut off from the rest of the country. East and West Prussia must be united. It is absurd to have them separated as they are today, by the Danzig corridor given to Poland.

"The dismemberment of Austria and Hungary was carried too far. Sooner or later Rumania will have to give back some of the Transylvania territory taken from Hungary.

Boundary Problems
"It is difficult to say whether Czechoslovakia will remain apart from Austria. Jugoslavia probably will stand. There has been marked progress in the amalgamation of the Serbs, Croates and Slovenes.

"The future of Albania is a problem. I believe it eventually will be absorbed by Jugoslavia. But one cannot tell what Mussolini will do. The Versailles treaty wiped out boundaries and ignored the history of peoples who had been living under the same rule for 600 years. It is natural that with that background they will come together again.

"Commerce in Europe must flow in certain natural channels. It is an economic condition that politicians cannot alter."

BIG PRODUCTION BRINGS CRISIS IN U. S. CRUDE OIL

Largest Producers Told Curtailment of Output May Be Necessary.

New York.—Overproduction of crude oil in the United States during the past year has brought on the most serious crisis in the history of the American oil industry, in the opinion of Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Mr. Teagle made this statement to a conference of fifteen of the largest oil producers of the United States who are holding a series of meetings to formulate a joint program for the curtailment of output, particularly in the Seminole area of Oklahoma.

A plea for Federal assistance to help meet the present situation has been presented to President Coolidge's Oil Conservation Board by the members of the conference. In a joint statement issued by Mr. Teagle and W. S. Parrish, former president of the American Petroleum Institute, one remedy suggested was that "wildcatting practices be modified so as to escape some part of this scourge of flush oil in periods of overproduction."

Aid Is Sought
Aid of the Federal Oil Conservation Board was sought because any agreement looking to the shutting off of a considerable part of production in the Seminole area would have to meet with the provisions of the anti-trust laws, which are an obstacle to pooling or restricting production. The Department of Justice, according to reports received here, has thus far failed to give its approval to such an agreement.

To Submit Plan
The conference here was held with the approval of Secretary of the Interior, Hubert Work, who had suggested to Mr. Teagle the advisability of making an arrangement with other oil producers looking toward the formation of a definite plan of curtailment for submission to the Oil Conservation Board.

E. B. Reeser, president of the Barnsdall Corporation, discussing overproduction, pointed out that the Department of Justice, through W. J. Donovan, assistant attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division, has invited the industry to submit its problems for an opinion as to whether certain remedies may be applied through cooperative efforts of oil companies.

"It is doubtful," he said, "whether new laws can be passed to relieve the situation—certainly not in time to save disaster to many in the oil industry."

Being a Writer, It's Up to the Babe to Explain

SUPREME COURT ENDS YEAR WITH 875 DECISIONS

Summer Vacation June 6 Finds Justices Closing Active Term.

Washington—When the U. S. Supreme Court lays aside its court work for the summer on June 6 it apparently will have the satisfaction of knowing that some progress has been made during the year in its fight to lessen the evils of judicial delay.

The court will not only exceed last year's record of cases decided, but the new rules and policies of the court appear to have brought a cessation in the steadily rising tide of appeals filed.

More than 875 cases will have been decided by adjournment, an increase of 25 over last year, it is estimated, while to date, the number of appeals is 75 less than at the same time last year.

The present improved situation, it is believed by court officials is a direct result of the revision act of 1925, new rules published by the court congestion and speeding up determination of issues.

Change Other Rules

Further discouragement of the use of the court for purposes of delay in enforcement of judgments of lower courts—usually delay in meeting judgments for money—is seen in two new rules to be made effective next fall. Time for filing petitions and issuance of mandates will be cut from 40 to 25 days.

Disposition of more than 800 cases in eight months is made possible by the issuance of many decisions and orders in which written opinions are avoided. About 400 cases, most of which have not been orally argued, will be left pending by the time of adjournment. The summer vacation is utilized by members of the court in completing opinions upon numerous cases which have been submitted, and in which decisions will be announced next October.

A consistent effort upon the part of the court to promptly act upon petitions for reviews, especially criminal cases, has been apparent during the present year. Many important petitions for review of important criminal cases have been decided within two weeks time.

May Enlarge Court

Despite the lessening of congestion, however, court officials expect that with the steady growth of the country the demands upon the court will be greatly increased in the next few years. Unless further restrictions upon the right to appeal to the high court are provided, the question of enlarging the court may become a matter of serious debate, court officials say.

As a further step in the revision program, it is expected that Chief Justice Taft will confer with Senator Norris, (R), of Nebraska, chairman of the Senate judiciary committee, which may lead to enactment of new laws. Chief Justice Taft has frequently criticized the court system of the country which permits cases to be dragged through many years before a final determination is made.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS by Anne Austin

THIS HAS HAPPENED BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON are arrested by T. Q. CURTIS from his big department store to come into his home for only one year as his wards, because he believes they have worthy ambitions which he wants to help them realize. Billy is anxious to be a concert violinist, is the only one that is in earnest. The others lie and envy his generosity.

Romaine's "Funny thing"—he broke that long gaze and glanced around the table—"I also saw another 'friend' of ours in Los Angeles. Guess who?" "No one in the suddenly tense circle of diners offered a hazard. "Our charming 'psychic,' old Nimir Sadh himself, in person, not a movie. He was calling himself Radnah Bey, or something like that, but he was up to his old tricks again. I didn't have time to expose him again, and what would be the use? Folks like to be stung. They eat it up!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER LIII

AS Billy stood with the yellow envelope clutched to her bosom, her eyes dilated with a luminous joy. Clay rose and came slowly toward her, his sensitive face bleak with defeat.

"You haven't answered me, Billy," he said in a low voice. "Do you—love me? Will you marry me when your year is up?" It was with difficulty that she broke the spell that Dal's message had laid upon her. But when she saw the bleak pain on his face and in his eyes, something of that feeling which had so moved her a few minutes before came back.

"I do love you, Clay, but I can't marry you." "I do love you, Clay, but I can't marry you. I don't love you in that way. I wish to God I did!" she cried. "I've asked you three times to marry me, Billy," Clay told her sadly. "And each time you have broken my heart all over again. I—I won't bother you again. Goodby."

when you said that Eddie had put himself—and one other—into your power?" "Of course!" His smile broadened to frank amusement. "And equally of course I did not use my power. I had thought of exposing Nyda if she continued to make life unpleasant for you, but I couldn't quite do it." "You're good, Dal!" Billy whispered. "Now tell me all about yourself. Oh, I've missed you, darling." "And how I've missed you!" he murmured fervently. "But there's nothing to tell, dear heart. Just business—sordid business. I'll be glad when we can get away from this cross American civilization and go home—to India."

It seemed like hours to her before Winnie excused herself and slipped from the room. Dal did not stroll to Billy's side, but stood instead at Constance Bradley's chair. Billy waited for a few more minutes, then with a flashing smile that hid the ache in her heart, she murmured to T. Q. that she was ready to play for him. She went to the music room across the hall to get her violin, but as she was reaching for the case, a slight noise, as of a stuck drawer being tugged at, came faintly to her from the library adjoining. The first thought in her mind, filled as it was with memories of the recent robbery, was that a thief was plundering T. Q.'s desk. Without giving herself time to think of possible injury to herself, she flung open the door between the music room and the library. Winnie Shelton was seated at T. Q.'s desk, a blue-backed, legal-looking document in her hands, when the noise of the opening door caused her to spring to her feet. When she saw that it was Billy who was regarding her with surprised, questioning eyes from the doorway, Winnie's lovely little face, which had been chalky white under the strong light of the desk lamp, became suffused with angry color. "So you're here, Billy!" she cried, with passionate rage. "You drove poor Nyda from the house, and now you're after me, aren't you? But—I'll fix you! I swear I'll ruin you if you tell T. Q. Just try it!"

As she raged, she thrust the legal document into the drawer from which she had taken it, and Billy had the odd conviction that her fingers drew back from contact with that document as if it had burned them. Even then she did not suspect what that document was, nor why Winnie's face had been so ghastly pale as she read it. (To Be Continued)

ETHEL

THE WOMAN'S DAY BY ALLENE SUMNER

After they were married and the wedding cake had been eaten down to the last crumb, Mrs. B. P. Bronson, told the bridegroom, B. P. Bronson, that he had 31 children. He had not known it before. B. P. complained and got a divorce. It means, of course, that B. P. did not literally take her "for better or worse," and it means that he was napping when he got fooled. But the very trickery means, also, that he is probably as well off without as with the late Mrs. B. P. Bronson. Father Buys Bread Father is still the breadwinner. Put that in your pipe and smoke it, you feminists, pro and anti, who contend that the sex roles are being reversed and that woman is becoming the family bread-winner whilst father becomes the home fire igniter. The National Home Study Council has just completed a survey of 400 families in two industrial cities. The survey proved that 95 per cent of these families relied on the earnings of papa rather than mamma. Deprived of father's earnings, only 10 of these families were able to struggle along at all without charity. There is no news in these facts. The feminists, the women bread-winners, do not dwell to much event in the industrial classes. Women who work outside the home are generally those who need to do it least. And those whose families need their economic help are the very women who could never dream of earning money "outside the home."

Good Nature and Good Health

THE SODA HABIT AS A CURE-ALL FOR STOMACH ACHES By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine. When the tired business man leaves the quick lunch counter on a busy day and returns to his office, he sometimes begins to complain of stomach ache an hour or so later. He may belch either air or the gastric juice from the stomach, he may feel distended, and sometimes he complains of pain in the region of the stomach and of dizziness. Usually a friend in the office recommends to him that he get some soda at the nearest drug counter, and that this will give him relief. Sometimes it does and thereupon soda becomes to him a panacea for all disorders of the stomach regardless of their cause. Not infrequently the symptoms complained of are simply the result of eating too rapidly and swallowing a great deal of air in the process. Digestion of food in the stomach does not proceed without the presence of a certain amount of acid. If sodium bicarbonate is used in large amounts it either stops digestion entirely or forces the membranes of the stomach to give off even more acid in an attempt to neutralize the alkaline soda. Besides, much of the soda may be taken up by the blood and given off

Home Page Editorials Cafeterias Are Cheaper Than Alimony By Olive Roberts Burton Her husband finally applied for a divorce on the grounds of neglect, or failure to cook him decent meals, or something of the sort. What had really happened was that his wife had catered to the children and their needs at table and papa hadn't gotten his corn beef and cabbage, or whatever it was he craved, every day. Mama had learned that as many children have malnutrition (under nourishment) from eating improper food, badly cooked food, or over-seasoned food, as from not getting enough food. So she took to making things they could digest easily. Dessert turned into a festival of custard or tapioca instead of pie. Also she had eggs and fish and chicken and a variety of vegetables, simply cooked and dressed. Papa wanted everything doused with pepper and doused with horseradish, mustard, or strong sauces. He liked hot soggy breads and pan-cakes. It came to this—here was a mother without help and a little growing family. She hadn't time or strength to cook two sets of meals, so she did the best she could, and had character enough to place the children's health first. Along comes her husband soon and evenings acting like the biggest baby of them all and yelling because he isn't humored. Instead of co-operating and helping his tired-out wife, he assumes the role of martyr and chases off to the judge. When will some man learn that raising a family isn't all the mother's responsibility? The father may provide, but even then, he usually has the easiest end. At any rate his selfishness should not interfere with his children's welfare. It might as well, if I may venture a suggestion, to visit the cafeteria around the corner than pay alimony.

The Latest War Film Reveals Two New Stars Of Merit

Hollywood, Calif.—War... Again that seemingly endless line of gray coated Germans is bearing down on Paris for the benefit of the silver screen.

I don't know what Hollywood film producers would be doing now if there hadn't been a World War. Many of the best pictures we have had during the last two years have been based on that great massacre.

Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor in "Seventh Heaven."

Now we have "Seventh Heaven." The credit for it goes indirectly to William Fox, who also produced "What Price Glory." Never have I seen such enthusiasm as that which greeted "Seventh Heaven" on its world premier at the Carthay Circle Theater here.

It was—and for a growing girl, too. Charles has been in the movie racket only one year; Janet Gaynor a little more than two years. Yet both were supreme.

YOUTHFUL CRIMES ARE ON DECREASE STATISTICS SHOW

Indapolis, Ind.—Figures compiled by the Indiana Board of Charities reveal that crime among youths under 20 is decreasing. Of persons committed to the six Indiana penal institutions in 1925, 24 per cent were under 20 years.

There is little indication to confirm the popular opinion that crime is increasing among those of the school age," said John A. Brown, board secretary.

CHANGE IN LEADERS IS WORRYING DRYS

Seymour Lowman, of New York Mentioned as Successor to General Andrews.

Washington, May 20.—Resentment, dissatisfaction and uncertainty swept through the Federal prohibition army today with the report that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has under consideration drastic changes in the interests of harmony.

Two years of friction between General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary, and Major Roy A. Haynes, the present acting commissioner, threaten to culminate in the retirement of both.

Despite the reiteration of the often repeated statement at Andrews' office that he "has no thought of resigning" it was stated on good authority that the dry czar has informed Secretary Mellon that he is willing to turn the job over to a successor at any time.

DARROW TO ADDRESS NEGRO CONVENTION

Indianapolis.—Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago criminal attorney, will be the main speaker at the annual conference here of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The most impressive event of the conference will be the awarding of the Spingarn medal. This honor is bestowed annually to the American negro judged the most distinguished in any field of achievement.

Among those who have been awarded the Spingarn medal in past are Roland Hayes, negro singer; James Weldon Johnson, former United States consul in Nicaragua; and Dr. George W. Carver of Tuskegee Institute who is the adapter of the peanut to industrial use.

The meetings will be held daily at the Bethel church, with night mass meetings at Caleb Mills Hall and a Sunday afternoon session at Cadie Tabernacle.

ON A HARMONICA

Eminent Pianist: Of course I take my own piano with me wherever I go. Phillistine! Haw, Makes you wish you'd learned to play the flute, what?—Passing Show.

Billy Evans Says

LATERAL PASS Major Frank Cavanaugh, often referred to as football's greatest one-man coach, doesn't like some of the recent changes made by the rules committee, particularly the one having to do with the lateral pass.

Few coaches in football boast the colorful career that has been Major Cavanaugh's portion. A star as a player at Dartmouth, it was he who first put the Hanover institution on the map in the role of coach.

After a highly successful career at Dartmouth, extending over something like 10 years, he resigned to take over football at the then unknown Boston College.

It has always been Cavanaugh's fate as a coach to be a builder. First it was at Dartmouth then at Boston College, and now he is to take over the reins at Fordham.

Defeated teams often accuse Major Cavanaugh's pupils of playing rough football. That is not true. I have seen teams coached by him play many games. They have played what is known as hard football, but always clean.

It is the belief of Major Cavanaugh that the lateral pass is but a forerunner of an attempt to supplant intercollegiate football as now played with rugby.

The lateral pass is a much used play in rugby. In certain quarters a strong attempt will be made to popularize the play, since there is no particular danger attached to its use.

Major Cavanaugh tells me that he knows there is a concerted effort on foot to introduce certain elements of the rugby game into our football by a change here and there in the rules.

While I like the English game of rugby, intercollegiate football is still plenty good enough for me and I cannot see where any great improvement in our game is possible.

The fact that a prominent London magazine has seen fit to discuss the possibilities of a change, makes it evident there is an undercurrent in this country that is in favor of the shift.

Not Popular With Coaches Just how strongly the coaches will go in for the lateral pass is a question. No doubt the men responsible for the rule will insist the new idea be played up as much as possible in their respective colleges.

I have talked with perhaps a dozen prominent coaches and only three of them think the lateral pass has any extraordinary possibilities as a ground gainer.

In all probability it will take considerable time to put the idea over, even if it becomes apparent that the play, worked from various formations, has great ground gaining possibilities.

It took a long while to have so radical a departure as the forward pass meat with favor. At first it was frowned upon by many of the old school coaches as pure "bunk."

On the success attained by the lateral pass, depends the chances of certain other rugby elements being written into the intercollegiate football code.

INSIDE BASEBALL BY BILLY EVANS

1. When is a batter automatically out on strikes?

2. What is the proper ruling when a batter interferes with catcher as runner is attempting theft of second?

3. Catcher, with no runners on, interferes with batsman about to strike at pitched ball?

4. Batter steps from one box to the other while the pitcher is in the act of delivering the ball?

5. What are the rights of a baserunner to advance on an infield fly?

THIS TELLS IT 1. If first base is occupied and less than two are out, the batsman is automatically out on the third strike whether it is caught or not.

2. The batsman is entitled to first as a result of catcher's interference, regardless of what batsman does.

3. The batsman is out. 4. As on any other fly ball that is caught or muffed.

London.—One of the most unusual businesses in the world, that of selling the correct time to watchmakers, still is carried on here by the daughter of the man who founded it in 1831.

WORE ALL HIS LOOT

Albany, N. Y.—There was something incongruous in the appearance of the thin-faced but heavy-bodied negro Patrolman Waldo Church found lurking in the doorway of a clothing shop. He investigated, discovered that the suspect was wearing three pairs of trousers, one top coat, three raincoats, twenty caps and nineteen belts.

CAT COATS CHEAP

Leningrad.—Midnight alley symphonies seldom are heard here now. Raiding parties spurred by the State Clothing Syndicate's offer of 50 cents a cat fur, have made the city's feline population almost extinct.

43rd Division Holds Open House In Hartford Tomorrow Afternoon.

Hartford, May 20.—The 43rd Division Air Service, Connecticut National Guard, which includes the 118th Observation Squadron, the 118th Photo Section, and the 118th Medical Detachment, will hold open house for the people of the state at its quarters, Brainard Field, Hartford, tomorrow afternoon.

AGENTS IN CONFERENCE. Hartford, May 20.—County agents of the state are in conference here today with James M. Whittlesey, state commissioner on domestic animals, for discussion of the new act law for eradication of tuberculosis.

NOT NUNGESESSER WING. New London, Conn., May 20.—An Army plane that was lost en route from New York to Boston months ago is believed to have yielded its first trace today in an airplane wing picked up by a Coast Guard vessel in Fort Bond bay, near Montauk, Long Island, and brought here for examination.

THE GREAT WAR TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

(By United Press) May 20, 1917 Former President Roosevelt, following the refusal of the administration to permit the dispatch of volunteers to Europe, formally dismisses the four divisions of volunteers which had been enrolled under his command.

ONE KILLED EVERY DAY FIRST 3 MONTHS OF '27

Increase of 17 Over Same Period Year Ago—Traffic Growing Worse.

A person was killed by an automobile in Connecticut almost every day during the first three months of this year, it is disclosed by statistics for the first quarter made public by the State Motor Vehicle Department. There were eighty-five fatalities during January, February and March, an increase of seventeen over the corresponding period of last year, but exactly the same number as the total for the first quarter of 1925.

There were 3,998 motor vehicle accidents reported to the Connecticut department in the first three months of this year, more than 83 per cent. of the total reported in Massachusetts, a state with a registration of 476,536, as against Connecticut's registration of 187,142. Connecticut had more than half as many fatal accidents as Massachusetts in that period. It is, of course, crossed by a great many cars passing between New York and Boston and Providence.

Traffic is becoming more complicated daily in the state as the number of cars increases. There are 26,000 more cars registered in Connecticut today than there were a year ago.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

SENSE and NONSENSE

If you would get there with both feet you must use your head.

There's only one person in the universe who can make you happy—create success—and make a worthwhile individual out of you—that's you!

"How about your marrying Marie?" "Oh, that's postponed for a year anyway." "Why?" "She married someone else."

Workmen were making repairs on the wires in a schoolhouse one Saturday, when a small boy wandered in.

"What you doin'?" "Installing an electric switch," one of the workmen said. The boy then volunteered: "I don't care. We've moved away, and I don't go to this school any more."

Saving for a rainy day is all right, but let's not forget fun and fair weather.

"How old are you, my little man?" "Eight." "And what are you going to be?" "Nine."

The Difference. The pessimist whines, "There's no cream on my milk. And I'll simply have to throw it away." While the optimist hollers, in tones of great glee, "There's some milk in my bottle of water today."

My own publicity stunt: I will give $83,000 to the first man or woman to swim the Atlantic.

The drunken gentleman fell into a watering trough, and when the policeman tried to help him he majestically declared: "Offser, I kin save m'self; you save the wimmin n children."

"George," said the engaged girl, "I want to ask you a few questions." "Yes?" George murmured. "Tell me, if you had never met me would you have loved me just the same?"

Rich folks worries 'bout trouble, 'po' folks worry 'bout wealth. I don't worry 'bout nothin'; All I want's my health.

"People talk too much nonsense," N. Y. Telegram. Very well; but why drag in that last word?

"A burglar got into my house about 3 o'clock this morning when I was on my way home from the club," said Brown. "Did he get anything?" asked Jones.

"I should say he did get something!" replied Brown. "The poor beggar is in the hospital. My wife thought it was me."

"Ah is lookin' for a woman what don't know any more than Ah does, mahself!" "Man, Ah congratulates yo' on a life ob single bliss."

Sum fellers live and learn and others just liv.

NOW YOU Ask One FIND THE RIGHT WORD.

Today's list of questions isn't so hard as it looks. The answers are printed on another page.

1—Check the correct word in each of these sentences:

(a) Columbus discovered America in 1386-1492-1620.

(b) Roger Williams founded the city of Salem-Newport-Hartford-Providence.

(c) Minneapolis is noted for its manufacture of autos-shoes-flour-cotton goods-steel rails.

(d) The poem "Israel" was written by Pope-Tennyson-Poe-Whitman-Arnold.

(e) Abraham Lincoln held an important series of debates with Stephen A. Douglas-Lew. Cass-Franklin Pierce-Jefferson Davis.

2—What famous Confederate general became a college president after the Civil War?

3—A great deal is said nowadays about New York's "tabloid" newspapers. Name one of them.

4—What have Adolph Ochs, William Randolph Hearst and Robert P. Scripps in common?

5—What is the "Golden Gate"?

"Why doesn't Mrs. Santa Claus have any children?" "Because there ain't no Santa Claus."

A city man who had hired out to a farm for harvest was called for breakfast at 4 o'clock in the morning. He came downstairs, but left the house and started down the road.

"Hey, there!" shouted the farmer. "Ain't you going to eat your breakfast before you go to the field?" "I'm not going to the field," the man called back. "I'm going to look for a place to stay all night."

The future will have in store for you just what you put into store for the future—just that, and no more.

THE TINYMITES STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture) The camel hemmed and hawed a bit, but all the bunch hung on to it. Then Daffydoe came running up and said, "That catch was fine. No courage do you Tinies lack, and now I'll let you ride his back." And Daffydoe began to pull right strong on the line. As Mister Camel came up near he seemed to show some signs of fear, but Daffy gently patted him until he seemed at ease. Some weeds and grass to him were passed for him to munch, and then at last he seemed to be quite satisfied, and dropped down on his knees. "He's very smart," old Daffy sighed. "He knows you Tinies wish to ride. I think there's room for all of you, so start to climb aboard." The camel's back was fairly high and every time someone would try to climb right up and get in place, old Daffy simply roared. "Just take it easy, now," he cried. "Don't slip and fall down from his side. I'll give you all a gentle boost until you're safe and sound. So, up they traveled, one by one. Of course it was a lot of fun. And, when they all were seated it seemed far, far from the ground. "All right," said Daffy, "here we go." The camel started moving slow, and all the Tinies tipped around and jostled in the air. Said Scouty, "If he starts to race, I'm sure that I will lose my place. To ride a running camel is a trick that's really rare." Then Daffy let the camel go, and soon the pace that started slow began to pick up rapidly, and gave the bunch a thrill. The camel tore with all his might and Clowzy shouted, "Hang on tight, for everything will be all right as long as we don't spill." (The Tinymites have some more fun in the next story.)
