Secretary Hoover Sees Big Tent City On His Arrival; Flood Not Yet Over Officials Say.

Baton Rouge, La., May 26.—After three days devoted to perfecting organization of the reconstruction machinery in Mississippi and Arkansas, Secretary of Commerce Hoover returned to Louisiana relief headquarters today to assume direction of the refugee concentration from the rapidly disappearing parishes of Pointe Coupee and West Baton Rouge.

Boats of every description bringing hundreds of flood exiles journey to the Red Cross and National Guard camps here since the opening of the East Atchafalaya levee at McCreas last Saturday have made the state capital one of the largest concentration points in the flooded area of the lower valley.

"Oy, 'Arriet, 'Ere's Some 'Ot Swells

London, May 26.—And now they propose to take some of the enjoyment out of life for the common folk of London.

The Daily Mirror today opened a campaign to bar the public from the Mall on nights when there are courts at Buckingham Palace.

On court nights the long procession of cars bearing those who are to be presented moves very slowly through the Mall and it has long been considered the privilege of the common folk to gather in crowds and watch the "swells" ride by. During recent years however the common folk have become a bit more courageous and have not remained on the curbs, but have jumped on running-boards and peered through the limousine windows to get a better view of the debutantes and their escorts.

Some Remarks

The remarks of the crowds have not been always courteous either, for Mrs. Arriet likes to display her wit for the benefit of her neighbor Mrs. Smithers, who has accompanied her on the long journey down from Hackney Wick to see the court procession.

Last night some of the sales which American and English debutantes had to listen to were:

"Oy, 'Arriet, look 'ere. This one 'as a bathing costume on!"

"Naah—they aren't mother and doctor—wot a bit—maybe they are—they're the same ugly noses."

"Oy, look at the ugly mole on this one's cheek!"

The Daily Mir or today arouses itself to a pitch of intense indignation and declares that the crowds of hundreds gave a shocking exhibition of bad manners, and something must be done, for London crowds are getting a reputation for bad manners."

123 LIENS FILED FOR TOWN TAXES

Collector Howe Attaches Long List of Property; Totals Over $10,000.

The number of tax liens filed by the Town Tax Collector George H. Howe this year was the largest ever filed in the history of the town. The liens were filed on March 31st. At that time every property owner was notified of the tax collector's intent. Since that time some of the liens have been paid up and released.

To be exact, 123 liens were recorded and it is estimated that these liens represent more than $10,000 in taxes. That is, the town will be forced to wait for at least $10,000 of its tax money at least this year. For the first year, the property owners on which these liens are filed must pay interest at the rate of nine per cent and seven per cent each year afterwards until released.

Reasons for Liability

The reason for the increase in liens filed is hard to determine. Some property owners are absolutely careless about paying their taxes. Others are not able to pay at present for various reasons and prefer to wait.

Refugee Camps

More than 8,000 homeless were camped here when Secretary Hoover arrived this morning from Little Rock. Preparations have been made for a minimum of ten thousand refugees in the Baton Rouge area. Between 4,000 and 6,000 will be cared for in the picturesque surroundings of Old Union state house, a mile north of the state house. Army tents for about 3,000 more are spread in a city park a mile to the west.

Waters Sweeping Down

The Pointe Coupee peninsula from the McCreas break had reached the northern boundary of West Baton Rouge parish—then West Baton Rouge area. The 200-mile stretch of Central Louisiana between the Mississippi and the western edge of the fifty mile inland sea smothering some 8,000 square miles of the state still blankets the territory emerging from the vanishing sea.

Crest of Flood

The crest of the flood waters rolling southward behind the west levees of the Atchafalaya today had reached the southern end of St. Martin parish, less than fifty miles from the Gulf of Mexico. All the territory still to go under has been prepared for its fate for days. While southern Louisiana still writhes in the agonies of inundation, Arkansas and Mississippi moved forward with determined strides to the business of reclaiming their 8,000 square miles from the ten-inch yellow cake of alluvial silt blanketing the territory emerging from the vanishing sea.

From "Smile" to "Tears" In Six Steps! A New Game

Ever since the Crossword Puzzle craze started to lose its millions of followers, indoor sport promoters have been trying to invent a game that would have the same educational possibilities, and yet be different. Out in Chicago where Richard Henry Little of the Chicago Tribune leads the cultural as well as entertainment life of the stay-at-home a new game has been started which really does seem to be a possible successor to the crossword.

No name has been given the game as yet. Suggestions from interested fans will be greatly appreciated. The game itself goes like this: First pick out two words having the same number of letters but being rather opposite in meaning, antonyms making the best words for beginners to try. Start with one word and by changing one letter in it form another word.

An Example.

The idea is to transform the original word into the opposite in the least number of steps possible. For example: the problem is to go from "smile" to "tears" in the least number of changes possible. Change "smile" to "stale" by simply substituting the "i" for the "i". Only one letter can be changed at a time. From "stale" go to "stale". Then change "stale" to "stare". Then from "stare" to "stars". From "stars" change to "sears" and from "sears" to "tears", and your jump is completed in six steps. Here it is in brief form: smile—stale—stare—stars—sears—tears.

As another example—go from "alm" to "rage" in the least number of steps possible. Here is the solution: alm—all—pal—pale—page—rage. Note that all words in the intervening steps are "legitimate" English language words and that but one letter has been changed at each step.

The Rules.

No rules have yet been made for the game, but to date simplified spelling, proper names, and abbreviations are barred. Just to give our readers a few steps to try let them work out the following:

pride to shame
new to old poor to rich sinister to saintly
Hades to Earth
birth to death

Readers who become enthusiastic about this new game are urged to send in either their solutions of the above puzzles or suggestions for new ones for other readers to try. If the rain of the last few days continues, this new game ought to keep most of the shut-in from getting weary.

Concord, N. H., May 26.—Would that we could bring back into the life of today the respect for productive industry that the fathers had. I am disturbed as I see each summer hundreds of our young people who, in place of productive work in homes and gardens, fields and shops, choose to be amusement vendors or body servants for idle men. They prefer to be caddies on golf fields and serve in summer hotels. The birds of the air were building their nests. The animals of the woods and fields were making ready their homes that their life work

Show Red Propagandists In Many Countries—Action On Break Today.

London, May 26.—The British government today issued a White Paper containing sixteen documents seized in Soviet House, which the foreign office stated illustrate the "hostile activities of the Soviet government and the Third International against Great Britain."

The White Paper was the first shot fired in the campaign for ratification of the Cabinet decision for a rupture with Russia, which is being fought out in the House of Commons today.

Included in the white paper was a list of "illegal addresses for communication with the Communist parties in America, Mexico, South America, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, which were found in the possession of Anton Miller, who resisted the police when they sought to take possession of his dispatch box."

Among other documents published in the White Paper was a letter from M. Jusevich, secretary of the Revolutionary League Workers-International Committee, addressed to Comrade Bixby of the Workers Party of the United States. New York, acknowledging Bixby's letter accepting "Mandate as a member of the International Committee of Propaganda and Action of Revolutionary Workers." HOW LINDBERGH CHEATED DEATH TWICE BEFORE

Tells How He Made Parachute Leap When His Airplane Was Lost In Fog In the West.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Flying the Atlantic Ocean alone was not the first sensational exploit of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh. Time after time this boy-wonder of the air has cheated death. Twice, while flying the night air mail, he had to make parachute jumps when his plane, lost in a dense fog, ran out of gasoline. Lindbergh made detailed reports of these amazing episodes. Below is his own narrative of what happened to him in the night skies over Illinois on September 16 of last year. Tomorrow will be published an equally vivid story told by Lindbergh of a second hair-raising escape.

By CHARLES A. LINDBERGH
I took off from Lambert-St. Louis field at 4:25 p. m., September 16, and after an uneventful trip arrived at Springfield, Ill., at 5:10 p. m., and Peoria, Ill., at 5:55 p. m. Off the Peoria field at 6:10 p. m. There was a light ground haze, but the sky was practically clear with but scattered cumulus clouds. Darkness was encountered about 25 miles northeast of Peoria, and I took up a compass course, checking on the lights of the towns below until a low fog rolled in under me a few miles northeast of Marseilles and the Illinois river.

Flare Falls Him

The fog extended from the ground up to about 600 feet, and, as I was unable to see ahead, I turned back and looked for a flare and land. The flare did not function and I again headed for Maywood (Chicago's air mail port) hoping to find a break in the fog over the field. Examination disclosed that the cause of the flare failure was the short length of the release lever and that the flare might still be pulled by pulling out the release cable.

Glare of Towns

I continued on a compass course of 50 degrees until 7:15 p. m., when I saw a dull glow on the top of the fog, indicating a town below. There were several of these light patches on the fog, visible only when looking away from the moon, and I knew them to be towns bordering Maywood.

REGULAR DEMONSTRATION

Paris, May 26.—The French welcome for Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, first to succeed in a New York-to-Paris flight, was gradually developed until today it has taken on the aspects of a pro-American demonstration.

Captain Lindbergh Hopes That Regular Air Service Between France and U. S. Will Follow His Successful Hop—Thousands Throng Street On Holiday to Pay Homage to American As He Is Given Official Welcome At the Paris City Hall.

Paris, May 26.—A regular air-service between France and the United States was the hope expressed by Captain Charles A. Lindbergh today in a speech at the City Hall, where he had been given an official welcome.

"I am unable to express my appreciation of the honors you have conferred upon me and my country," said Lindbergh in replying to the official speeches of welcome.

"I have one desire and that is that my flight may be the forerunner of a regular air service between France and the United States and an understanding such as has never existed before.

"That is my hope today. My greatest desire, I am sure, would have been the greatest desire of Captains Nungesser and Gollé."

Lindbergh's speech, while delivered in his usual boyish manner, made a great impression on his listeners as he had all his utterances, for in his confused embarrassed speeches he gives the impression of great sincerity.

Throng In Streets

Throng, with their hats doffered, lined the curbing of the Champs Elysee, as Captain Lindbergh, accompanied by Ambassador Herrick and Pierre Godin, president of the Municipal Council, rode in an open automobile to the City Hall where Lindbergh was given the freedom of the city.

Great Applause

As the procession neared the City Hall, which was affluer with many flags, the enthusiasm of the French could no longer be restrained and there was prolonged applause.

The awe with which Lindbergh was received today may have been partially due to the fact that many of those who came to see him pass by for Assommoir day, who are given to more silent respect than the usual boulevardiers.

Welcome Addresses

Lindbergh, Ambassador Herrick and M. Doumer, president of the Senate, were seated in huge Seventeenth Century chairs, while addresses of welcome were made. Under ordinary circumstances only members of the government are permitted to occupy these ancient chairs.

LINDBERGH CARDS IN PARIS SALOON

Paris, May 26.—Paris' most famous bar which is the rendezvous of numerous American tourists, today distributed post-cards with the necessary stamps attached bearing pictures of Captain Lindbergh. The picture was printed beneath crossed French and American flags. On the left hand side of the card are the words:

"I guess I will go."

On the right hand side of the card are the words:

"Boys, I have arrived."

Unfortunately for the bar in question there is no chance of Lindbergh visiting the place owing to his abetement habits.

max today, for it is ascension Day and thousands of workers who have heretofore been unable to greet Lindbergh are having a holiday and are preparing to line the Champs Elysee and the Rue De Rivoli to see his triumphal procession to the City Hall where he will be given the keys of the city.

Escorted by President

Lindbergh will ride through the streets in an open carriage, escorted by the President of the Municipal Council and Ambassador Herrick, with a troop of French cavalry, brilliant in dress uniforms, clattering along as an escort. Five hundred invitations have been issued for the City Hall reception but there has been a demand for hundreds more and the police anticipate huge crowds.

Too Meek Cabinet

At noon Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, will entertain Lindbergh with an official luncheon, at which it is expected the majority of the Cabinet will be present.

Perhaps the most gracious act Lindbergh has accomplished and which has won for him even greater admiration has been his gift of 150,000 francs for a fund for the families of French aviators who have lost their lives in the promotion of the science of flying. The 150,000 francs was awarded to Lindbergh by the Aero Club of France, having been donated by Mme. Deutsche De La Meurthe for the purchase of a cup. Lindbergh promptly turned the money back, stating that he greatly appreciated the honor extended him but that it was his desire that the money be paid into the fund for the relief of those who have given their sons and husbands to the science of aviation.

Is Punctual

Punctuality is inscribed heavily in the lexicon of this youth, for at 10:10 this morning the appointed hour he arrived at the home of Marshal Foch to pay his respects. Lindbergh was warmly greeted by Foch and the entire Foch family.

Marshal Foch wore his American distinguished services medal in honor of the occasion.

"I congratulate you for having shown what a young man can accomplish when he organizes well what he sets out to do," said Marshal Foch.

Meet Joffre Too

After an interesting conversation with Marshal Foch, Lindbergh then went to call on "Papa" Joffre and again he was greeted not only by the field marshal but by the entire Family Joffre.

"I never can forget my visit to the United States in 1917," said "Papa" Joffre, "and to have it returned by you touches me profoundly. The entire French nation is happy and proud over your success."

After his call at the Joffre home
Lindbergh expressed a desire to visit Versailles alone. Honoring his request the correspondents and others accompanying Lindbergh remained in Paris while he motored to Versailles with Farnely Herrick.

 The large number of property trappers occurred for some of the tax liens. Some real estate operators buy property with the idea of selling it at an advance in price in a short time. Every one of these operators is an out of town man, practically a stranger here.

S. W. V. AUXILIARY TO ATTEND SERVICES

Meet Sunday Morning to Go to Memorial at St. James's Church.
 The Mary Bushnell Cheney auxiliary, U. S. W. V., will meet at the corner of Park and Main streets Sunday morning to attend the morning services at 10:30 at St. James's church with the members of Ward Cheney Camp.
 Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, services for the sailor-soldier dead and those who died in Philippines will be held at Gould's bridge on South Main street. This service will be under the direction of State Chaplain Jennie Sheridan, a member of the local auxiliary, who will be assisted by members of her auxiliary and members of Ward Cheney Camp.
 On Memorial Day, the members of Mary Bushnell Cheney Auxiliary will attend the service at Cheney hall and participate in the parade to the monument in the Center park. After the services at the monument, the auxiliary will serve a luncheon to all United States War Veterans and members of the auxiliary at the State Armory with the Grand Army veterans as their guests.
 Since the auxiliary was organized in 1920 it was customary to serve a dinner to the Grand Army after the parade. Last year this was not possible because of their moving to the Armory and their quarters there not being finished. This year other plans have been made to serve the Grand Army a dinner in Cheney hall at noon, Memorial Day.

Bennett, principal of the school, directed the pageant, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Tynan, Miss Mary Sweeney, Miss Elizabeth Krapowicz and Miss Ruth Munson. The other four eighth grade teachers also helped make the affair a success. They are the Misses Evelyn Reed, Edith Eaton, Hilvie Johnson and Elizabeth Clark. LINDBERGH—ALOFT IN THE FOG WITH HIS OWN PLANE DRIVING CRAZILY AT HIM was 800 to 900 feet high, according to my altimeter. The sky above was clear with the exception of scattered clouds, and the moon and stars were shining brightly. After circling around for 35 minutes I headed west to be sure of clearing Lake Michigan, and in an attempt to pick up one of the lights on the Transcontinental.

Lindbergh, flying the night air mail, became lost in dense fogs. His "ship" ran out of gasoline. Lindbergh leaped. His parachute opened nicely. Then, through the gloom, he saw the pilotless plane driving crazily toward him.

HOW LINDBERGH CHEATED DEATH

Engine Quits
After flying west for fifteen minutes and seeing no break I turned southwest hoping to strike the edge of the fog south of the Illinois river. My engine quit at 8:20 p. m. and I cut in the reserve. It was at that time only 1500 feet high, and as the engine did not pick up as soon as I expected I shoved the flashlight in my belt and was about to release the parachute flare and jump when the engine finally took hold again. A second trial showed the main tank to be dry, and accordingly a maximum of twenty minutes' flying time left.

There were no openings in the fog and I decided to leave the ship as soon as the reserve tank was exhausted. I tried to get the mail open with the idea of throwing out the mail sacks and then jumping, but was unable to open the front buckle. I knew that the risk of fire with no gasoline in the tanks was very slight, and began to climb for altitude, when I saw a light on the ground for several seconds.

First Lights
This was the first light I had seen for nearly two hours, and as almost enough gasoline for fifteen minutes flying remained in the reserve, I glided down to 1200 feet and pulled out the flare release cable as nearly as I could, judge over the spot where the light had appeared. This time the flare functioned but only to illuminate the top of a solid bank of fog, into which it soon disappeared without showing any trace of the ground.

Seven minutes' gasoline remained in the gravity tank. Seeing the glow of a town through the fog I turned towards the open country and nosed the plane up. At 5000 feet the engine sputtered and died. I stepped up on the cowling and out over the right side of the cockpit, pulling the rip cord after about a 100-foot fall. The parachute, an Irving seal service type, functioned perfectly; I was falling head downward when the risers jerked me into an upright position and the chute opened. This time I saved the rip cord.

At the right, Charles A. Lindbergh as he looked while an Army Air Service cadet at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas.

Plane Hovers Near
I pulled the flashlight from my belt and was playing it down towards the top of the fog when I heard the plane's engine pick up. When I jumped it had practically stopped dead and I had neglected to cut the switches. Apparently when the ship nosed down an additional supply of gasoline drained to the carburetor. Soon she came into sight, about a quarter of an inch into sight about a quarter mile away headed in the general direction of my parachute.
I put my flashlight in a pocket of my flying suit preparatory to slipping the parachute out of the way, if necessary. The plane was making a left spiral of about a mile diameter, and passed approximately 200 yards away from my chute, leaving me on the outside of the circle. I was undecided as to whether the plane or I was descending the more rapidly and I decided to leave the ship as rapidly as I could. She passed completely out of sight, but reappeared again in a few seconds, its rate of descent being about the same as that of my parachute. I counted five spirals, each one a little further away than the last, before reaching the top of the fog bank.

Loses Flashlight
When I settled into the fog I knew that the ground was within 1000 feet and reached for the flashlight, but found it to be missing. I could see neither earth nor stars and had no idea what kind of territory was below. I crossed my legs to keep from straddling a branch or wire, guarded my face with my hands and waited.
Presently I saw the outline of the ground and a moment later was down in a cornfield. The corn was about 17 feet high and the chute was lying on top of the cornstalks. I hurriedly packed it and started down a corn row. The ground visibility was about 100 yards, and a few minutes I came to a stubble field and some wagon tracks which I followed to a farmyard a quarter mile away.

Wouldn't Believe Him
After reaching the farm yard I noticed auto headlights playing over the roadside. Thinking that someone might have located the wreck of the plane I walked over to the car. The occupants asked whether I had heard an airplane crash and it required some time to explain to them that I had been piloting the plane, and yet was searching for it myself. I had to display the parachute as evidence before they were thoroughly convinced. The farmer was sure, as were most others in a 3-mile radius, that the ship had just missed his house and crashed nearby. In fact he could locate within a few rods the spot where he heard it hit the ground, and we spent an unsuccessful quarter hour hunting for the wreck in that vicinity before going to the farmhouse to arrange for a searching party and telephone St. Louis and Chicago.

I had just put in the long distance calls when the phone rang and we were notified that the plane had been found in a cornfield over two miles away. It took several minutes to reach the site of the crash, due to the necessity of slow driving through the fog, and a small crowd had already assembled when we arrived.
The plane was wound up in a ball-shaped mass. It had narrowly missed one farmhouse and had hooked its left wing in a grain shock a quarter mile beyond. The ship had landed on the left wing and wheel and skidded along the ground for 80 yards, going through one fence before coming to rest in the edge of a cornfield about 100 yards short of a barn. The mail pit was laid open and one sack of mail was on the ground. The mail, however, was unharmed.
The sheriff from Ottawa arrived, and we took the mail to the Ottawa Post Office to be entrained at 3:30 a. m. for Chicago.

"Mother, Mother, the churn is gone!" cried the milkmaid all aflutter.
"Well, Charleston with the milk awhile, and it will soon be butter."

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: P. T. Barnum (14)

Barnum was traveling with Tom Thumb in Ohio when he came across the woolly horse. The horse was a small animal with hairless legs, neck and tail, but with a body covered with curly wool. He bought the horse, shipped it to his Bridgeport home in strict secrecy and started to work up the most daring publicity stunt of his career.

Col. Fremont, the explorer, was then lost in the Rockies. After weeks of dispatches conjecturing as to his fate he was reported safe.

Now came Barnum's inspiration. Dispatches to the New York papers told of Fremont's capturing a strange wool-covered beast.

The freak was advertised as part elephant, deer, horse, camel, buffalo and sheep. The newspapers announced the animal had been shipped and would be shown in New York before being sent to London. Pictures showed Fremont chasing the queer horse in the mountains. Crowds fought to get into the Museum to see it. ©1927 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. (To Be Continued)

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

PAUL ADAMS
REA Service

French citizens came in large numbers to place flowers on the graves of American soldiers who fell around Bouresches and Belleau.

This is the 41st chapter in the story of an ex-doughboy who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Herald.

CHAPTER XLII

"Sur la route a Triot." Frederic Blaudin and Jules Gadelorge, members of the gendarmes of Montdidier, will, with dignified gestures, give those directions to a stranger. And the directions will lead to a wayside tomb—the grave of an American—H. H. Houston Woodward. It is the lone grave on the road to Triot; the objective of a sacred pilgrimage to be made this year by Woodward's parents when the legion's Second A. E. F. comes to France.

On the stone that marks the grave is this inscription: "In Honor of an American Boy Who fell Here Fighting for France." April 1, 1918, H. H. Houston Woodward, Corporal Pilot Spad No. 94 Lafayette Flying Corps. Woodward's parents made a request about this grave. They asked that the remains of their son be allowed to lie without a change. The permission was granted. And every year, since 1919, this grave has been the object of their visit to France.

At either side of the grave are two marble seats. Peasants rest there—on their way from Montdidier to Triot. Almost every day some children leave flowers as they pass. And they place their floral tributes in two vases—one a shell casing of a French 75, the other a shell casing of a German 77. The grave of H. H. Houston Woodward is on the right, just two kilometers from Montdidier. The gendarmes of Montdidier know the exact location. They give the information gladly. Also they will tell of the reverence that everyone holds for the spot. The corporal pilot of Spad No. 94 of the Lafayette Flying Corps has their respect.

The grave of H. H. Houston Woodward is on the right—"Sur la route a Triot."

TOMORROW: Captor and Captive Meet Again.

FINAL VAUDEVILLE AT STATE THIS WEEK

Six Acts on Anniversary Program With Madge Bellamy In "Ankles Preferred."

The final vaudeville bill of the season, and the best of the bunch, is being shown at the State theater these last three days of the week as a part of the second anniversary celebration which that theater is carrying on this week.

Billy Gilbert, said to be the funniest comic actor on the vaudeville stage today, heads the bill with his company, Thomas and Fredericks, a team of song and dance artists, occupy the second position on the bill, the company comprising three persons.

With these two acts are the Mabel Staters, a troupe of tight-wire artists who also do tumbling and balancing on the wire and on several other things. Henry Regia and company put on a sketch, "Outside the Circus," a sketch with a whirlwind finish.

Moran and Werber put on a turn with a lot of action. They do not tell the audience what is going to happen beforehand, and keep their act for surprise. The sixth act on the bill is also a surprise, for nobody knows what it is.

Madge Bellamy—that beautiful creature of "Summer Bachelors," "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl" and "Sandy" fame—heads the excellent cast, playing the part of a young miss who is blessed with a pair of ankles too pretty for her own good. Her ankles get her into all types of complications, affording opportunity for some brisk and hilarious scenes.

Playing opposite Miss Bellamy is Lawrence Gray, hero of many screen successes. He plays the chap with the flivver who comes in ahead of the man in the limousine in the race for the heart of the heroine.

J. Farrell MacDonald, remembered for his unforgettable performance as Corporal Casey in "The Iron Horse" appears in "Ankles Preferred" in a somewhat different role, that of a proprietor of a gown shop. Such a part affords MacDonald an excellent chance to display his quick-witted and distinctly individual ability.

TELEVISION AIR TAXIS, FOOD IN PILLS BY 1950

Prof. Low In Forecast Of 20 Years Hence Sees Wondrous Changes.

London.—Having accurately predicted the advent of the trans-Atlantic telephone, Professor A. M. Low, the famous English scientist and inventor, has turned his thoughts to what the world and its inhabitants will look like and be doing twenty years hence. His conclusions are contained in an article in the London Daily Mail, in which he forecasts that in 1950 the television screen will project world events before our eyes; that an automobile does not absorb in the form of pills, according to Professor Low, artificial sunlight will pour strength into us as we sit; an aeroplane at the door will excite no more comment than an automobile does now; and we shall have to wear ear shields against the terrific noises.

Labor Saving Ideas Labor saving ideas in the world of 1950 will be represented by the absence of dust-collecting corners, stoves, and chimneys, and the delivery of food from a community kitchen, if our means are not anxious to know what happened in foreign countries as he is today to read the local news, because he will have been to them, thanks to facilities for cheap, swift, and comfortable travel.

"If Jones, a wealthy he will unquestionably make use of television and his room will be heated electrically by a system which will bring such luxuries within the reach of all. "The man of the future will probably enjoy electrical treatment during his sleep, and artificial light, both health-giving and pleasant will be so cheap that houses will be built without restriction toward a vain endeavor to locate the sun."

Advance For Women "The next twenty years will undoubtedly see a great advance in the position of women. With the gradual evasion of physical disabilities, I do not believe that women will trouble to stay at home. I think that electrical cooking, cleaning, and heating will remove the drudgery from domestic existence, and I believe that children will be educated on the quantity production scale after a psychological study of their natural tendencies.

Boat Hit by Rum Chaser; 2 Killed

James Lee and his 12-year-old daughter, Mildred of Detroit, out for a pleasure ride, met death in this launch when it was struck by a United States customs border patrol speedboat. Congressman Robert Clancy is in the river and urging the carelessness of rum chasers in the river and urging that the federal district attorney refuse to de-wrecked launch is pictured above.

"Women will cease to expect the suggestion of protection and will despise the weakness that is implied by any remnant of chivalry. "I believe that within twenty years the language of all nations will have partially blended as the direct result of inter-marriage and trans-European conversations."

Next, in 33 nation-wide hill-climbing contests, The Commander demonstrated its thrilling power over some of the steepest hills in the country. 17 1/4 miles per gallon! And now—in 61 tests held all over the United States, The Commander delivered an average of 17 1/4 miles per gallon of gasoline! In every instance the carburetor was drained and connected to an accurately measured one-gallon container. Each test was carefully checked by motor club officials or newspaper representatives. And remember, this average of 17 1/4 miles per gallon was made by a Big Six equaling in rated horsepower by only seven other American cars—and they cost from $4,000 to $10,000! No wonder the Studebaker Big Six outells the combined total of all other cars in the world of equal or greater rated horsepower. There is a sound basis for the statement that The Commander is "the greatest post-war achievement in automotive engineering." The astounding feat of covering 5000 continuous miles in less than 5000 consecutive minutes merely dramatized the thrilling performance, the freedom from repair expense, the peace of mind and economy which all owners of this plus-powered car enjoy. Drive The Commander yourself! Get behind the wheel, step on the throttle and step out in front—try it in traffic for flexible handling—or level out the steepest hills. Eye Can't Travel Beyond Borders of Miller Brothers' 110,000 Acre Ranch in Oklahoma—Their Story.

Joe Miller and His Young Bride

The Miller White House

Zack Miller George Miller

Marland, Okla.—Three American kings live on an empire within an empire here in north central Oklahoma—an empire that stretches east, west, north and south over the limitless Oklahoma prairies as far as the eye can reach.

The three kings are Joseph, Zack and George Miller. Their empire is the famous 101 Ranch—110,000 acres of the best land on the continent.

From their home—the "White House," as they call it—they can see nothing that they do not own. Clear to the horizon and beyond rolls their domain, the largest diversified farm and ranch in the United States. It is so large that a city of a million people could be placed within its borders with room to spare. And it is one farm that's not expected to ask relief from Washington.

On a Huge Scale. With such a vast domain to rule over it is quite natural that the Miller brothers should do things on a big scale. They do. A city man, visiting the ranch, is quite apt to have his breath taken away at the scope of their operations and the calm matter-of-fact way they go about them.

For instance, they may decide on a Tuesday to start drilling a couple of new oil wells on Wednesday. This may not sound like much unless you happen to know that the average cost of sinking a well is about $100,000. If it goes very deep it may run up to $200,000. But the Millers don't haggle over figures. They make up their minds and go ahead.

Old timers hereabouts, who can remember the "good old days" when cattle were driven up from Texas along the old Chisholm Trail through Oklahoma and into Kansas for the eastern market, are more or less flabbergasted over the tradition-shattering cattle movement that has just been engineered by the Miller brothers.

A Record-Breaking Herd. The old timers remember that 1,500 "heads" made a sizeable herd of steers. It's pretty hard for them to reconcile this with the fact that the Millers have just shipped 35,000 from Florida—bought them with all the merchandise of a man flipping a dime with another to see who pays for the drinks—gone about shipping them as though a movement of 700 freight cars, with all its attendant worries and ramifications, were an everyday job.

But it was just another little deal for the Millers. Someone got the White House on the telephone one night and asked for Zack, who is in charge of live stock. Zack was told there were 31,500 head of cattle in Florida that could be bought at a good price.

The price sounded right. Zack sold his two brothers. It took them just two minutes to decide to buy. Zack left immediately for Florida to engage the freight cars and get the herd started west. George got busy and sent out scores of letters to bankers and others who might be interested in buying cattle. Then he went to Memphis, Tenn., to meet the shipment, dispose of those cattle that had been sold, and route the remainder down to the ranch.

A small profit on each head and a quick turnover," Joe Miller said. "That's the way we do it. It doesn't tie our money up. The deal should be completed in three or four weeks."

Three brothers never lived who were more dissimilar in appearance and character than the Miller brothers. Joe, the oldest—he's nearing 60—is the farmer. He also travels with and heads up the Wild West show that is another of the many activities of the Millers.

Mammoth Fruit Orchards. Joe, is, and looks like, a man of the soil. His face is weather-beaten, hardened and tanned by the wind and sun. His hobby is fruit trees. He has 50,000 walnut trees, 12,000 apple trees, 50,000 grape vines and other fruits in proportion. He has one experimental plot where 850 varieties of fruit are grown. He conducts grafting operations on a scale almost comparable to that of the late Luther Burbank. Zack, the portly, is the typical plainsman—blunt, hearty. The normal number of steers for him to look after as head of the livestock department is about 15,000. Fifteen thousand Duroc hogs are raised every year; there are 200 brood mares, hundred of saddle and draft horses, a large herd of buffalo, thousands of chickens. They have their own slaughter house and packing plant, they tan their own leather—or did before the tannery burned down—they even raised the cotton that makes the tenting for their Wild West show.

George, the youngest, is the "effie-d" brother. He is always immaculate, always "on the go," always on hand at big sporting events, no matter where they are held. George's duties include supervising oil operations. They have oil leases nearly everywhere in the state. It would be almost impossible for any new fields to come in without including some of their holdings.

As it is, they are getting a production of about 10,000 barrels a day now. They have their own refinery and make their own gasoline and sell it to passing motorists at their own filling station!

Joe Miller has been made a white chief in the tribe of Ponca Indians. Recently he and his 23-year-old bride, after the church wedding, were remarried according to the Ponca tribal rites to make everything O. K. with their redskin brethren.

AFTER HER HOME, A WOMAN'S CAREER SHOULD COME FIRST

So States Mother Who Was Also Public Personage.

Harrisburg, Pa.—"One-thing-at-a-time" is the motto behind the successful life of Mrs. E. S. H. McCauley, secretary of the Welfare Department of Pennsylvania, under Governor John S. Fisher.

"Careers and home-making just naturally conflict," says this charming, gray-haired matron whose understanding smile and steady eyes tell you she knows what it is all about.

"It is natural for women to want a home, with husband and children, and a career. It is all right for them to have both. But to do a good all-around job, women must take life in its sequence—one thing at a time."

"Get your training, your college education and some business experience before marriage, if you want it," she advises.

"But when you get married, concentrate on making that all-important step a success. When your children are grown you have time enough to take a fling at business or a profession. While they are still young, woman's place is in the home."

Chose Own Medicine Mrs. McCauley is the kind of doctor who takes her own medicine. For her life story shows she did just what she advocates.

She had just graduated, 20 odd years ago, from the Rochester Training School for Nurses when she met Dr. McCauley. Like most girls she had been dreaming of launching into a brilliant career.

But she chose marriage, and having chosen, gave up all thoughts of working at her profession outside of home. When her daughter, who graduates from Swarthmore this June, was born, she concentrated on her.

Her life for the past 20 years has been to maintain an ideal home and to identify herself with the civic and educational life of her town.

Most girls, if they were honest, would admit that when they marry they do not regret giving up their careers. Mrs. McCauley asserts, "I think the average girl doubts her ability to swing both jobs. But because it is the thing to try and because girls fear falling into ruts if they stay home, they bravely start out in their difficult double role."

Some times she makes failures of both marriage and careers as a result. Of course Mrs. McCauley sees no reason why the home-maker and mother should fall into ruts. She hasn't. For 20 years she has given time and talent to her community. She helped found and maintain a kindergarten in her home town, Beaver, Pa., that proved so good the Board of Education finally incorporated it.

School President She served as school director for years and is now president of the Beaver Board. She has also served for years as trustee of the Silbury Rock Normal School, has been identified with the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters, was chairman of the Women's Republican Committee campaigning for Governor Fisher in Western Pennsylvania and is active in the W. C. T. U.

She is also a member now of the executive committee of the Republican State Committee. She is the only woman ever to be president of the Pennsylvania State School Director's Association.

all her years at home she never felt resentment because she was kept from her career, never dreamed of the day when she would be free from family cares to pursue her life.

She is also a member now of the executive committee of the Republican State Committee. She is the only woman ever to be president of the Pennsylvania State School Director's Association.

"Clubs, politics, educational movements all can give women the outside-interests and intellectual stimulus they need while they are devoting most of their energies to their families," she asserts. "There is no excuse for a woman to grow dull nowadays. Both the woman and her family are benefitted by her outside associations."

Local Sport Chatter

"It's news to me," was the reply of Manager Jack Jenney when asked regarding the report in an out-of-town paper this morning to the effect that Collinsville had been admitted to the state league in place of Cheney Brothers because the latter did not wish to play Sunday ball. Jenney had not received any such information and said he could not understand the matter.

Today's fair weather was accepted with much pleasure, especially by the High school baseball team and the Country Club golf players, for both have events scheduled for this afternoon. At the Country Club, a mixed two-ball foursome will be played while at the stadium, West Hartford High will appear.

MOTOR-PACED RACE HEADS BIKE PROGRAM

Hartford, May 26.—An international motor-paced race headlines the program for the bike meet at the Hartford Velodrome track next Sunday afternoon. Manager Frank Cadwell has arranged this novel event to top off the card which will bring a record field of amateurs and professionals into competition.

In the international race, those outstanding Italian motor-paced stars, Vincent Madonna and Dan Piobioni will be pitted against Victor Hopkins, American champion, and Larry Gaffney, one of the fast-coming young American riders.

Champion Declares Sharkey Will Be His Next Opponent—Starts Training Today

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
I. N. S. Sports Editor.

New York, May 26.—Jack Dempsey has been "relegated" to the ranks of the old timers through Sharkey's rise to sudden prominence. Gene Tunney declared in a statement to the writer today, hard upon his scheduled departure for a season of early training at Speculator, N. Y. He further intimated that, in his opinion, the champion of Maloney by Sharkey had rendered Dempsey's proposed return to the ring a matter of comparative unimportance.

"It really doesn't make so much difference to boxing now whether Dempsey returns or not," the champion declared. "If he decides to retire, we will have one of the most eligible of challengers contending for the title and the game will not be the worse for Dempsey remaining in California."

Tunney made his statements quite casually and with apparent unconcern for the fact that they dealt with a man who, at this time last year, was regarded as the greatest heavyweight champion the world had known, or something. It seemed possible that Dempsey's reputed statement, since denied, that Sharkey would knock out Tunney may have ranked in the champion's mind.

However, he was willing to admit that a Dempsey comeback would leave no doubt as to the identity of the best challenger available.

A Great Hitter.
"Jack is a great hitter and a great hitter always has a chance," Tunney added. "Dempsey will be dangerous every moment he is in the ring. But Sharkey will be in young and fast and a smart fighter. That's a great combination to tie to."

Tunney will take only Eddie Bagan, former intercollegiate heavyweight champion while at Yale; Frank Muskie, of St. Paul; and Lou Fink, his trainer, with him when he leaves town tomorrow. It may be a week before he settles down to boxing, he said. In fact, he indicated that he would box only occasionally.

"Just to keep my eye in," he explained. But when he settles down to the serious grind of championship preparation it will be boxing, boxing, boxing all the way. He doesn't hesitate to say that he plans to match speed with speed against Sharkey, the champion thus sharing the common impression that it will be the 24-year-old and not the 32-year-old Jack who will be the ultimate contender.

It is too early to make even tentative plans for such a fight," Tunney said in parting. "But, in meeting a man like Sharkey, you must outspeed him or you are lost. That would be the only course open to me."

Two knockouts and two fine boxing exhibitions featured the amateur boxing program at Cheney Hall last night offered by Cheney Brothers' Athletic Association.

Only two Providence boxers took part in the program and each was defeated. The other two bantamweights put up one of the best exhibitions that has graced a C. B. A. card since the inauguration of amateur boxing here several months ago. Morrison was the winner but he was given strong opposition. He won by a two-fisted attack, using short, snappy, rapid punches which, while not as hard as those landed by his aggressive opponent, were nevertheless sufficient to pile up points in his favor. It was a bout remarkably free of any unsportsmanlike conduct and was sprinkled with numerous lively exchanges which went over big with the fans. Both boxers were applauded vigorously as they left the ring.

Pepe Has Pep
Another good battle was furnished by Charlie Pepe of Springfield and Tony Capro of Providence. The Bay State boxer carried all three rounds but at times was given plenty to worry about. He won mainly through a consistent body attack, landing time and again with hard kidney punches which wore down the Rhode Island lad. Both men were on the verge of hearing the birds twitter once or twice but Pepe had much more pep at the finish. Capro hit harder but not so often. Both were aggressive, but in this respect, Pepe was the more so.

Dowd Wins Easily
Al Dowd, promising Manchester featherweight, scored the first of the two keyouts when he stamped the quietus on a chap named Tony Castro from Hartford. The Hartford boy did not appear to know much about the game but he had plenty of grit during the two minutes and twenty seconds he lasted. He landed a few wild swings at the outset but as soon as Dowd quit slugging with him and resorted to boxing, it was not long before the Manchester boy scored several hard body blows that caused Castro to wilt despite his six pound advantage in weight.

The other knockout came in what was supposed to be the star bout of the card—between Mareno Pagoni, of Springfield and Tony Regeno of Providence. Regeno was no match for the hard-hitting and crafty Bay Stater and it was apparent that it was only a matter of time. After surviving the first round, Regeno was floored for a count of six in the second and knocked out a moment later with a pretty right-cross that carried plenty of dynamite. Regeno had to be lifted and carried to his corner but he revived quickly.

McCavanaugh's Debut
Harry McCavanaugh, local fly-weight, made his debut and showed much promise. He was matched against Bobby Elliott of Springfield and displayed considerable willingness to mix it up. Due to the fact that it was his first bout, McCavanaugh did not show much science but that will come with faithful training. He gave Elliott a good go, good enough, in fact, so that the judges ruled the bout a draw. Elliott's manager, however, could not see the decision as fair and refused to let the bout go in extra rounds. McCavanaugh was therefore ruled the winner by default. The majority seemed to think Elliott was the rightful winner.

Vic Morley of Hartford, won many more admirers by out-slugging Stanley Saez, of Springfield.

When a person agrees with us we admit he is a sensible fellow. Many a man who is in the public eye is just about as irritating as a cinder. "Yes," said the oculist, "he had a curious affliction; everything he looked at he saw double." "Poor fellow. I suppose he found it hard to get a job?" "Not at all. The gas company snapped him up, and now he's reading meters." "Worry is the interest people pay on trouble before it comes due." "An ideal wife is one who will live anywhere with her husband—even within his income." "What a pity! He kissed her on the cheek. It was a harmless frolic. He's been laid up a week. They say with painter's colic." "The number of square people, not the number of square miles, makes a country great." "Alas! She who writes shorthand must read it." "Mamma—Johnnie, I wish you would be a good little boy. Johnnie—I'll be good for a nickel." "Mamma—The idea! Why can't you be good like your father—good for nothing!" "One can forgive people their virtues if their vices are sufficiently attractive." "A smile feeds the heart, while a frown starves the soul." "Newed—Our minister is so good that he won't even perform a marriage ceremony." "Friend—What's that got to do with being good?" "Newed—He says his conscience won't permit him to participate in games of chance." "I see your husband is back from his fishing trip. Did he bring in a good string?" "No, a long yarn."
