EVERY VETERAN OF THE SIXTIES AIDS IN TRIBUTE

Nine Drake Posts Survivors Take Part in Memorial Day Observance; Parade Is Biggest in Years.

Nine aged men, the only men from Manchester who are survivors of the army which formed Abraham Lincoln's answer to the challenge of the Confederate States in 1861, answered roll call yesterday at Cheney hall in the Memorial Day exercises here.

Last year there were 13 of the Grand Army men but taps have been sounded over the graves of four of them since that time, and yesterday's exercises were more than anything else a memorial to them.

But the memorial was not confined to those of the Civil War army who had died. Departed veterans of the two wars which have followed, the Spanish and the World War, were eulogized and their graves decorated with flowers.

One Spanish War veteran has died since last year and four of the World War veterans no longer appear to their names on the roll.

A Perfect Day
Perfect weather and a warm sun made the day an ideal one for the memorial services. Long before the parade had started the crowds began to gather and while the exercises in Cheney were going on, Main street was thickly lined with automobiles and people. There were no parking places on Main street left at 2 o'clock.

The nine Grand Army veterans had been invited to a dinner in Cheney hall at 12:30 with the members of other veteran organizations and their auxiliaries. Graves of veterans in the cemeteries had been decorated in the morning.

At 2 o'clock the exercises in Cheney hall were opened with prayer by Rev. James Stuart Neill. The general orders for Memorial Day from Commander-in-Chief John A. Logan, G. O. C., in 1888, were read by Fred Lorch, of Dilworth, Cornell Post American Legion, and Victor Bronke, commander of the post, read the general orders from Department Commander, Charles M. Shaller, of the Legion.

The High school orchestra and the Boys' Glee club joined with the audience in "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and the combined Glee clubs sang "To Thee, O Country." This was followed by "Tenting Tonight" by the Boys' Glee club.

Example to Youth
Howell Cheney, speaker for the occasion, set up the example of the Grand Army, the Spanish War veterans and the World War veterans as something for the younger generation to follow.

"They were not necessarily men who were waiting for war, or asking for it," he said, "but when the call came they were able to stand ready to answer. They were able to go because of the lives they had led."

"They were steadfast and devoted. They have been in every war of the United States and we expect that it will be the same in the future. It is a characteristic of America."

He urged his hearers to consider the example these men had set and to follow in their footsteps.

He mentioned the causes in which these heroes had fought. First, he said, there was the Civil War in which our fathers fought to abolish slavery. The Spanish War came along, a fight to save Cuba from a cruel overlord, and then our sons were called on to stem the tide of imperialism and military despotism.

Purchased by War
Liberty and peace, he said, were purchased by war, but the war does not end there. There must be war in peace, for life is a constant conflict, the fight against evil.

The speaker appealed for brotherly love, consideration of the feelings of our fellow men, and a more or less effacement of self. Here it was a challenge, he said, which had been given us, the challenge to our better natures and it is just as great a cause as any which has ever been fought on the battlefield.

During the services in Cheney hall the chime of the South Methodist church rang out with some of the old time martial airs which were familiar to the Boys in Blue when they went out in '61. An immense crowd congregated at the corner of Harvard Road and listened to the chime concert while waiting for the parade to start.

The Boys' Glee club sang "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall" and "Taps," under the direction of Miss E. Marion Doward, who played the organ accompaniment. Miss Rebecca Harris read Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and the audience joined in the singing of America. Rev. James Stuart Neill pronounced the benediction.

The Parade
Marshall William Newman had the parade started shortly after 3 o'clock. Onlookers who viewed

MEMORIAL DAY; DONNYBROOK FAIR

Kluxers, Fascists and Antis in Riots—Two Killed in New York.

New York, May 31.—This is more like the day after St. Patrick's day than day after Memorial Day. All over Greater New York men and a few women are nursing battered heads and bruises as the result of clashes and near riots during Memorial parades. But the old time patriotic bodies which formerly made up the Decoration Day processions had no part in the quarrels. The trouble arose from the presence of Fascists and Anti-Fascists and Ku Klux Klansmen and women of the Klaviana, the feminine branch of the Klan.

Two pro-Fascists were killed in the Bronx during a clash between the supporters of Mussolini and the antis. Later on five hundred Fascists enlivened the Times Square by chasing three antis through the streets.

In Queensborough, 1,400 Klansmen and women of the Klaviana ran the gauntlet of attacks, both verbal and actual, while parading. The police were powerless to prevent the attacks which went on sporadically along the four mile route of the procession. Many Klansmen had their robes torn off and many of the men and women marchers were struck by flying missiles.

PEKING IN DANGER OF BEING CAPTURED

Southerners Advancing; Foreign Troops Patrolling the Railroad Lines.

Shanghai, May 31.—With Peking again in danger of eventually falling to the southerners, it is semi-officially stated today that the American, British, French and Japanese authorities have agreed to send a brigade to patrol the Tientsin and Peking railroad area. The British are also sending an air squadron into this territory.

Many unconfirmed reports are received here stating that Chang Tso Lin is contemplating returning to Mukden, but to the reverses he has met in Honan.

Must Surrender
It becomes more apparent daily that Chang Tso Lin must surrender Haichow, thus endangering Shantung and Chihli.

Chang Tso Lin is reported as ready to withdraw his troops beyond the great wall, eventually evacuating Peking in hopes of retaining his eastern provinces. Many of Chang's troops are now reported retreating toward Hwangho.

Bloody Hunan
The fighting in Honan is perhaps the most sanguinary since the present warfare started, and it is estimated that the Nationalist casualties have reached 10,000 dead. There are some 5,000 wounded in hospitals in Hankow with additional casualties constantly streaming in.

Although many anti-British demonstrations were held yesterday in Hankow, Amoy and Chinkiang, as scheduled, there were no untoward incidents.

Looting in Peking
Peking, May 31.—Breaking the consular upon Standard Oil Company property at Chungking, soldiers employed by the military governor of Szechuan province broke into the buildings, carrying off a large quantity of loot, according to information received here today.

Two thousand Japanese troops from the Manchurian garrison have arrived at Tsingtao while 800 British reinforcements are being rushed to Tsingtao, owing to growing turbulence in northern China.

The diplomatic body in Peking is conferring daily.

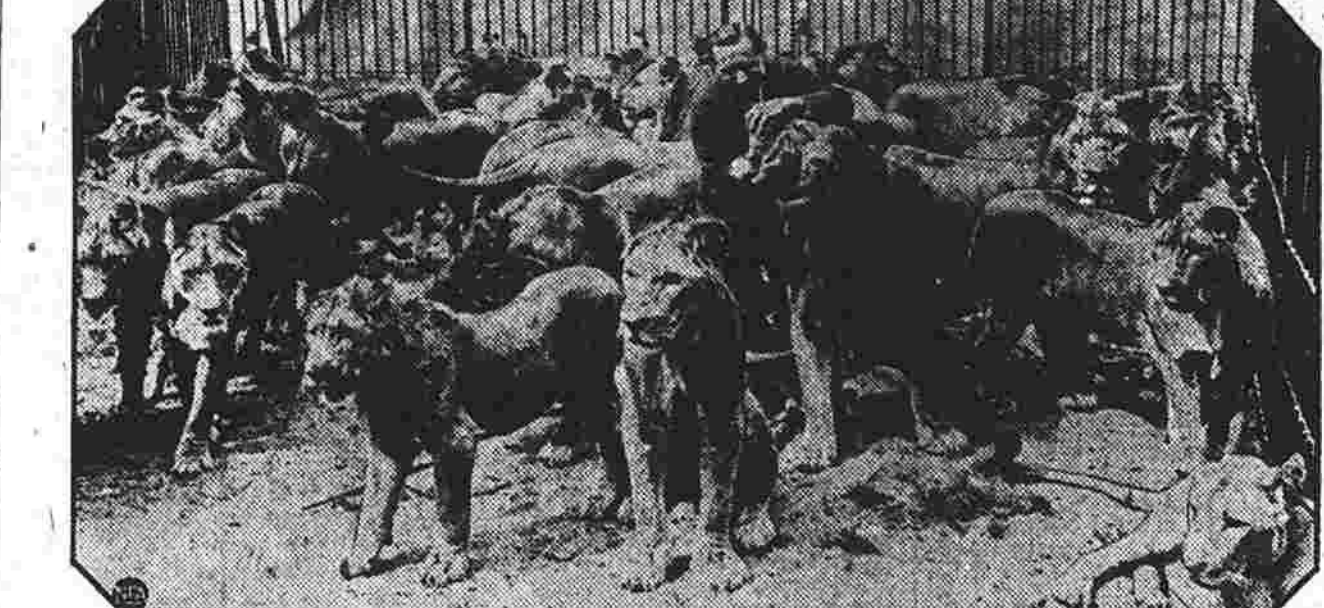

BRANTING STUDIES CASE.
Boston, Mass., May 31.—George Branting, distinguished Swedish lawyer, today delivered into the evidence of the case of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, accused of a holdup and double slaying. Following a visit to the defendants at Dedham jail, all papers in the case were placed before the visitors, Attorney William G. Thompson, counsel for the defense.

Gov. Alvan T. Fuller's official probe of the celebrated case continued today.

FIGHT POSTPONED
New York, May 31.—The fight between Ace Hudkins, Lincoln, Nebraska "wildcat" and Al Mello, of Lowell, Mass., which was to be held tonight at Queensboro Stadium in Long Island city today was postponed until tomorrow night because of unfavorable weather conditions. The boys are to go ten rounds.

TREASURY BALANCE
Washington, May 31.—Treasury balance as of May 27: $141,297,351.78.

Burglars Steal $92,000 In Jewelry From Home

Great Neck, N. Y., May 31.—Apparently spooning in a car stolen from George Owens, on an adjoining estate.

As the couple sat in the car two of the men in the party boldly entered the Livermore house, moving into the room known as the great room.

They held up Mr. and Mrs. Livermore at the point of pistols following.

Here their operations showed their familiar knowledge of the location of various portions of the house, possibly from a map, for one of them found a switch to the lights which was concealed behind a portier and boldly turned on the lights.

The hold up of Mr. and Mrs. Livermore at the point of pistols following.

It was learned, however, that the police have information as to the number of persons taking part in the robbery and data that seemed to establish that the party had been posted thoroughly by some person familiar with the great Livermore house and with the family jewels.

Woman Implicated
Not the least important clue which the police attempted to guard from public knowledge was their discovery that a woman, young and pretty, had accompanied the robbers.

This woman and one of the band sat outside the Livermore mansion.

EVANGELIST FAILS TO ATTRACT CROWD

Bangor, Me., May 31.—Fresh from successful revival campaigns in Aurora, Ill., and Tampa, Fla., Rev. Billy Sunday, evangelist, extraordinary, today admitted that the problem of filling the big auditorium here was the most difficult confronting him in years.

At the first three meetings Sunday failed to fill the hall.

CALL OUT TROOPS TO GUARD PRISON

Mob Fires on Deputies—Try To Lynch Confessed Slayer of Five.

Tampa, Fla., May 31.—National Guard troops were ordered out early today to protect the county jail here which was stormed during the night by a mob seeking B. F. Levine, alleged confessed slayer of five.

The soldiers were called out at three o'clock this morning after a dozen persons had been wounded, one probably fatally, in an exchange of shots with deputies inside the jail.

Four local companies of the National Guard patrolled the vicinity of the jail today with machine guns mounted on the four corners approaching the jail. National Guard companies from Lakeland and Bartonsville were enroute to Tampa, having been ordered out by Governor John W. Martin shortly after the state's attorney here had appealed to the executive for aid to quell the riots.

Crowds Gather
Despite assertions of Sheriff Hiers that Levine, alleged to have confessed he battered Mr. and Mrs. Herman Merrall and three of their children to death while they slept, had been spirited away to an unnamed destination, crowds began gathering before the county jail here last night.

By midnight the mob had swelled to several thousand persons, and when he suddenly applied the brakes McCarty was unable to stop in time to prevent ramming Green's machine.

When the cars collided, the front wheels of the rear machine became lodged between the bumpers on the rear of the other and it was with difficulty that the cars were separated. A wheel had to be removed from one car.

An automobile operated by Charles K. Smith of Stafford and one owned by Melvin G. Cox, of 40 Doane street, Manchester, figured in an accident in Rockville opposite the Hooknum Mills Sackery, this afternoon. No one was injured but both machines were damaged.

Cox's car was standing on the right hand side of the road when it was struck by the car driven by Smith. The accident was the result of the steering wheel locking, thus making Smith lose control of his car.

U. S. COMMERCE CHAMBER TO ASSIST SOUTH

President of National Organization Pledges His Full Resources to Flood Victims.

Washington, May 31.—Credit facilities sufficient to rehabilitate the flood areas of the south have been arranged through the cooperation of northern banking houses. Secretary of Commerce Hoover announced today.

The plans call for doubling the loaning powers of local financial corporations in the south, Hoover explained. Hoover's announcement was made following a conference with Louis Pierson of New York, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Pierson pledged the full resources of his organization in helping the south recover from the disastrous flood.

Wages remain high, business is good and there is no unemployment problem.

The family income, in fact, is one-third better from the standpoint of purchasing power than it was in 1914 (pre-war).

These statistics were made today in reports issued by experts on living conditions and by leading banks on the trend of business.

The purchasing power of the dollar, as measured by living costs for the American wage earner and other persons of moderate means, now stands higher than it has for more than two years, according to the National Industrial Conference Board.

The dollar is today worth, on the basis of present living costs, 61.1 cents as compared with the pre-war (1914) dollar, the board stated. It was lowest in July, 1920, when it stood at 58.0 cents.

The purchasing power of the dollar has been thus enhanced by the steady decline in average living costs throughout 1925 and 1926 which last April, however, were still 63.7 per cent higher than they were in 1914, just before the war," the statement asserted.

But the average weekly earnings of industrial workers, owing to higher wage rates and more steady employment, are at present more than twice as high as they were in 1914, so that, in spite of the higher living cost, the wage earner on the average draws weekly pay of about thirty-four per cent greater purchasing power than he did just before the war.

The National City Bank of New York issued a statement declaring that manufacturing is going on in great volume, distribution is apparently keeping pace, employment conditions are good, and money is abundant for business purposes.

TO BRING KING BEN INTO COURT ON BED

State's Attorney Believes Head of House of David Is Shamming Illness.

St. Joseph, Mich., May 31.—"Killing" Benjamin Purnell, leader of the House of David, in the state's suit to dissolve the colony, it was announced today. He will be questioned regarding alleged mistreatment of young girls in the colony.

His condition permitting "King" Ben will be brought into court on a stretcher to face his accusers. If he is seriously ill his deposition will be taken at his bedside in the House of David, W. J. Barnard, defense attorney said.

At the same time the state announced they will fight any move to take Purnell's deposition at his bedside instead of bringing him into court.

"Purnell is shamming sickness for public sympathy," said Prosecutor George H. Bookwalter.

"I understand Purnell is now waiting himself through a self-imposed fast, but we intend to bring him into court."

H. T. Dewhurst, long-haired cult reporter, said he knew nothing of reports that Purnell is fasting.

DELANEY MATCHED
New York, May 31.—Jack Delaney, world's light heavyweight champion, and Mike McTigue, former champion, this afternoon agreed to terms with Tex Rickard, promoter, for a championship bout at the Yankee Stadium on July 7. It was announced.

This will be the second meeting between Delaney and McTigue, the former winning on the first occasion by a knockout. Since that event, however, McTigue has staged a "come back", knocking out Paul Berlenbach and made an impressive showing against Jack Sharkey.

American Flyer Meets Prince of Wales and High Officials In London—Visits House of Commons and Meets British M. P.'s—Guest of Lord and Lady Astor—To Attend Derby Ball Tonight—May Leave for Home on Saturday.

London, May 31.—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh will leave Cherbourg, France, Saturday morning for New York aboard the United States destroyer Breck, it was officially announced today.

The Breck is expected to arrive at New York on June 14, it was said.

London, May 31.—Decorated by King George, paid high public tribute by Sir Samuel Hoare, British air minister, and greeted by the Prince of Wales, Captain Charles A. Lindbergh capped a busy day with a visit to the House of Commons this afternoon, where he was feted by British M. P.'s.

Although Lindbergh had arisen early this morning to fly his plane to Gosport for dismantling, he was still wide-eyed and full of interest when Lord and Lady Astor ushered him into the distinguished visitors' gallery of the House of Commons.

Lindbergh paid close attention to the debate on the trades union bill for a quarter of an hour and then went to the terraces of the House where he took tea with Lord and Lady Astor and was introduced to members who came trooping out of the House, abandoning the debate to meet the young flyer.

A busy social evening has been mapped out for Lindbergh tonight, ending with the Derby ball at Albert Hall.

MORE HONORS.
London, May 31.—For the second time since his arrival in Europe royal honors were conferred today upon Captain Charles A. Lindbergh in recognition of his flight across the Atlantic.

The ceremony took place at Buckingham Palace where Captain Lindbergh was the guest of the King.

Earlier in the day the intrepid young American aviator had been received at Ten Downing street by Premier Stanley Baldwin.

Previous to the ceremony at the premier's official residence Captain Lindbergh had made his final flight in Europe in his monoplane "The Spirit of St. Louis."

Captain Lindbergh had flown his famous monoplane ninety miles from the Crofton air field to Gosport, near Portsmouth, where it there to be dismantled and packed for shipment to New York.

Plans for Captain Lindbergh's return home were still in doubt and belief was expressed that the young aviator would remain in the United States liner George Washington on Thursday, finally taking advantage of President Coolidge's offer of an American cruiser to carry him to New York.

In the latter event he probably would sail in about two weeks.

This was Captain Lindbergh's busiest day in London, the outstanding feature being his visit to Buckingham Palace to be received by King George.

Files to Field.
Captain Lindbergh arose at the American embassy at 4:30 o'clock and motored to Crofton, hopping off an hour later in "The Spirit of St. Louis." He was accompanied to Gosport by two Royal Air Force fighting planes.

The trans-Atlantic flyer returned to the Crofton field as a passenger in a British bomber plane. From Crofton he was rushed back to the United States embassy where he hastily changed from his flying clothes into more appropriate dress for the meeting with the King and the premier.

At 9:30 o'clock, accompanied by an attaché of the embassy Captain Lindbergh motored to Ten Downing street where he was received by Premier Baldwin on account of his Parliamentary duties the prime minister had been unable to attend Monday's luncheon for the American aviator given by Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton at the American embassy, so he invited, Captain Lindbergh to call upon him this morning before going to Buckingham Palace.

Crowds Gather
Shortly after eight o'clock crowds began to gather in the streets near Buckingham Palace, hoping to get a glimpse of the plucky flyer. The jam became so great that the policemen detailed to the streets were hard pressed to hold back the ever growing numbers and reserves had to be rushed to the scene from Scotland Yard.

When Captain Lindbergh drove up a mighty cheer went up. The youthful aviator smiled and waved his hand from side to side in acknowledgement.

The aviator was accompanied by Frederick A. Sterling, counselor of the embassy, and Lieut. Col. Kenyon A. Joyce, military attaché, during the palace visit and other ceremonies for the United States. He sailed from Southampton on the liner Leviathan just about the same time that Captain Lindbergh was going to the palace. Although the young flyer had been up since daybreak he looked fresh and alert as he entered the palace with the plaudits of the crowd behind him. He had been steadily "on the go" both on the ground and in the air, but he did not show any signs of fatigue.

Meets the King
When Captain Lindbergh entered the palace King George met him and warmly shook him by the hand. Immediately the King asked his visitor to be seated and started a friendly conversation. The King asked a number of questions about the trans-Atlantic flight which Captain Lindbergh answered freely, explaining problems of aerial navigation which he encountered after flying the "Spirit of St. Louis" out of New York. The King listened attentively while Captain Lindbergh discussed the future of aviation, especially the possibilities of regular trans-Atlantic commercial service.

The conversation lasted forty minutes at the end of which time the King pinned the Air Force Cross and a ribbon in the lapel of Captain Lindbergh's coat.

The Air Force cross has been granted to nine other Americans since the war but to no other non-Britishers.

Captain Lindbergh left Buckingham Palace at 11:20 o'clock, accompanied by Lieut. Col. Joyce, motored to St. James Palace, where the Prince of Wales greeted him and welcomed him to York House.

Captain Lindbergh's early morning movement had been conducted with secrecy. His departure was not publicly scheduled consequently he got around the streets unnoticed. It is understood that the Royal Air Force authorities at Gosport took charge of "The Spirit of St. Louis" for dismantling and the arrangements having been made through Lieut-Col. Joyce and Sir Samuel Hoare, the British air minister.

Embassy officials tried to keep Lindbergh's plans secret, professing to have no knowledge of his early morning hop to Gosport.

Length of Stay.
There is much speculation over the length of Captain Lindbergh's stay in Europe and the manner of his return home. The plans, all of which have been tentative, were constantly changed. No matter how he travels, Captain Lindbergh will sail from Cherbourg.

After completing his London visit Thursday morning, Captain Lindbergh plans to return to Paris by air. He could go out a passenger on one of the regular air line planes that operate between Crofton and Le Bourget. He could travel as a passenger with a Royal Air Force pilot or, as proposed last night, he could go in a borrowed British plane, operating it himself.

Aerial Display.
The British air authorities at Crofton are tentatively planning an impressive aerial display when Captain Lindbergh departs. It is proposed to send up a great fleet of airplanes to escort Captain Lindbergh's machine over the English channel.

Ambassador Houghton expressed deep regret that he had to leave England while Captain Lindbergh was still a guest at the United States embassy. He explained that he had already made his plans for departure and that, if he waited in London two days more, he would be six days late in arriving in New York owing to shipping delays.

Lindbergh had luncheon at Claridge's at 1:30 and at 4:30 was to go to the House of Commons as the guest of Lady Astor.

Tonight the Royal Aero club and the Society of British Aircraft Constructors will entertain the American youth at a banquet at the Savoy. Five hundred guests have been invited and Lord Thompson, former minister, will present Lindbergh with a gold cup on behalf of the Daily Mail.

Rockville WINDOW DRESSING CLASS IN ROCKVILLE Films and Lectures to Tell Merchants How—Auto Accidents.

(Special to The Herald) Rockville, May 31. The Rockville Chamber of Commerce is making plans to conduct a window dressing class to begin in the near future...

The Dennison Manufacturing company of Framingham, Mass., has assured the chamber that they will co-operate with them and send someone to the city to show how crepe paper can be used to advantage in window dressing.

The motion picture, "Putting the Win in Window" will be shown in the near future to the members of the Chamber which will be followed by a question period.

All the merchants of the city who are interested in this new class are asked to notify the committee in charge which consists of the following: Lester W. Martin, Lewis Chapman, Stephen J. Von Ew, Leroy E. Hale, Howard L. Crosby and Charles Tennstedt.

The class is open to both men and women and the attendance will determine whether similar classes will be held.

The lesson was given by a male and female bluejay, one of whose offspring had fallen out of the nest and was in danger of being stepped on or captured.

TWICE IN A DAY THIS MARE BOLTS Stage That Rare Thing a Runaway, Likes It, Does It Over, Wrecks a Wagon.

If Phillip Farr, candy merchant and grocer of Charter Oak street, isn't disgusted with the horse as a beast of burden and a helper of man, he ought to be.

Saturday morning proved to him that at least one member of the horse family is no friend of his.

Bright and early on that day Mr. Farr hitched up the faithful mare to his wagon and started out to peddle his wares.

At Highland street Mr. Farr got out of the wagon to go to the door of a prospective customer. He did not take the hitching weight out of the wagon and snatched it onto the horse's bit. He didn't think it necessary.

An automobile passed in a cloud of dust and exhaust. Mr. Farr's mare took exception to being smothered by the cloud so she took things into her own hands—her hoofs. She started down the road, the wagon careening after her like a mad thing.

Down to Spruce street he went and stopped at the home of another customer. Another automobile had to come by just at this time, and the horse took fright again.

Mr. Farr could not continue his peddling that day for he owns no saddlebags.

Four cases were disposed of on Memorial Day morning at the Manchester police court. John Pierce of the Edgewood House was charged with intoxication and fined $10 and costs.

OLD COUNTRIES. The restraint usual in the utterances of Calvin Coolidge marked his Memorial day address at Arlington cemetery. The speech was, as customarily, one into which the hearer or the reader can read his own interpretations at most of its points. But there is at least one part of it which would seem to interpret itself quite clearly.

"While pride in our country ought to be the American attitude, it should not include any spirit of arrogance or contempt toward other nations," said the President. "All peoples have points of excellence and are justly entitled to the honorable consideration of other nations. While this land was still a wilderness there were other lands supporting a high state of civilization and enlightenment. On the foundation which they had already laid down we have erected our own structure of society. Their ways may not always be our ways but their thoughts may not always be our thoughts, but in accordance with their own methods they are attempting to maintain their position in the world and discharge their obligations to humanity. We shall best fulfill our mission by extending to them all the hand of helpfulness, consideration and friendship. Our own greatness will be measured by the justice and forbearance which we manifest toward others."

Mexico and China both come within this category—with relation to both of which the Coolidge administration has successfully resisted the urge toward oppression instituted by the selfish and the intolerant. Nicaragua of course must be included and if our course there has been different from our course in Mexico and China and not so clearly admirable, it is hardly to be questioned that the President believes that his intervention there to be equally just and forbearing.

CRAZY LINDBERGH.

If Charles Lindbergh succeeds in jamming into the heads of the average Frenchman, Englishman and American—with special emphasis on the American—the fact that he actually prefers flying to becoming a millionaire, and at the same time manages to retain a modicum of recognition as a person of sanity, he will have accomplished a miracle greater than his flight across the Atlantic.

"If he don't cash in on this thing he's an idiot!" That is the well-nigh universal expression of the man in the street in this country as Lindbergh refuses even to listen to the offers of scores of individuals eager to help him to sudden fortune by capitalizing his outstanding heroism.

One wonders, almost, whether this boy will be able to do what hundreds of the world's philosophers and wise men have utterly failed to do through the ages—convince a ponderable proportion of the people that there are things better worth while than money. He has the eyes and ears of a greater number of them than any other individual on earth, just at this moment, and he is giving the finest demonstration ever given, by a person so conspicuously placed, of sheer superiority to the attractions of wealth. Perhaps here and there, among his millions of worshippers, may be one or two who will conclude that, if Lindbergh says "money isn't everything," possibly there may be something to it.

If this extraordinary lad should, indeed, be able to inaugurate among the youth of this country, the idea that achievement for achievement's sake, not for the sake of reward, is merely sane, then his greatest service to humanity would not have been in flying across the ocean.

NEW CURRENCY.

There is plain common sense in the plan to reduce the size of United States paper money, yet there are some old timers who, by reason of remembered experiences, will shudder at what is coming.

In the best place, national bank notes, which circulate alongside the coin certificates, federal reserve notes and greenbacks, are to remain the same size at present because there is a tradition that they are to be done away with altogether, by and by. We shall probably have them with us for a long, long time. In the second place it will take many years to get all the other present issues of paper money out of occasional circulation, because there are numbers of people who hoard paper money as well as coin and sometimes it remains active for decades. Even the normal replacement of worn out notes by the forthcoming issue will be a process covering an extended period. And in the meantime we shall have the new little notes and the old big notes swarming at each other in our pockets whenever we are fortunate enough to have a roll at all.

Old timers who recall the days preceding the Civil war, or even during the Civil war, when the country's small change consisted of fractional paper currency, will remember what a mess it makes to have more than one size of bills to do business with. The fractional money was not only much smaller than the major greenbacks but it was of various sizes in itself. People used to grab up the change from a dollar, perhaps consisting of six or seven wretched little bills, crumple it into a wad and thrust it into wallet or pocket "as was." Life was too short to spend it smoothing and folding and taking proper care of paper ten cent pieces.

The transition from the present sized currency to one a third smaller is not going to be accomplished without considerable minor annoyance as the new notes refuse to line up with the old ones in the folder or the pocket roll. The government expects to save two million dollars a year by the change in money dimensions. One hundred inhabitants would probably be willing to pay that two cents each per annum for the privilege of not having to undergo the innovation.

SCIENCE, which all too often concerns itself with matters of such great import that they do the average run of human beings little good, now and then does happen to stumble into the realm of the commonplace and discover something worth discovering. For instance, Mrs. Breta L. Greim, expert dietician, has just discovered that contented husbands are most easily obtained by feeding them tomatoes, corn and peas. Under no condition should husbands be fed heavy meat dishes, says Mrs. Greim.

Now this is worth knowing. Good wives have been following the wrong course since time immemorial if Mrs. Greim knows whereof she speaks. Too much emphasis has been placed on salve, soft soap, honeyed words, mince pie and beefsteak as husband food in the past, and this incorrect diet has no doubt been largely responsible for the terrible increase in divorces. By all means, bring on the tomatoes, corn and peas.

A GRACIOUS GESTURE. Splendidly tactful, beautifully conceived, was the quick determination of American sojourners in France to answer the thrilling outburst of French emotion over Aviator Lindbergh by the creation of a million franc fund to provide for the future of Mrs. Nungesser and the parents of Major Coll.

There could have been no more gracious or timely conception. Under the circumstances there can be no faintest shadow of offensiveness in the act, which at some other time or under some other conditions it might have been a delicate matter to keep free from hint of patronage.

The generous gesture, instead of being a bit gratuitous, now is but an answering pressure on the band of friendship which the French people have extended to America through its unprecedented ambassador of the air.

NEW JOB.

Considering the swarming thousands of automobiles that glittered and flitted on the roads of this state yesterday and Sunday, and the hundreds of reckless idoles committed by drivers on every highway of the commonwealth, the casualty list is unbelievably small. Any normal pessimist would have predicted that the reports would show a hundred dead, at least. It begins to look as if the specially appointed guardian angel responsible for the safety of fools and drunken men had taken over the care, also, of the careful driver who in the past has been the customary holiday victim of the speed lunatic.

NEW TAXES.

Students of taxation should watch with interest the workings of West Virginia's new $500,000 a year privilege tax on the proceeds of oil, gas and other mineral and natural resources produced within the state. The United States supreme court, in a test case, has just declared this new tax law constitutional. This is interesting legislation. Mexico has declared that the federal government is the owner of all natural resources, and the taxes levied by reason of this doctrine have been the chief bones of contention between the United States and the southern republic. How West Virginia's tax will be received remains to be seen.

LEAVE IT TO BINGHAM.

Connecticut people would be deeply disturbed by the report that Senator Bingham may have fallen into physical peril while inspecting the military front in Honan province where there has developed one of the most important battles of the Chinese civil war, if it were not for the well known capacity of the Connecticut senator to take care of himself in situations that would demoralize the ordinary citizen.

As an explorer, mountain climber and traveler in strange lands Hiram Bingham is peculiarly equipped to maintain himself in any unusual or expected dilemma. We have no fear for his safety.

New York, May 31.—This is the time of year when Broadway tucks its attractions up in mothballs and dozes off until the cool days. Theatrical attractions pull down the shades, leaving but a few very hardy musical shows and one or two dramatic attractions to face the summer. In most of these the stars get substitutes for the hot months and the travelers from way points look upon a scanty list of attractions in the cut-rate ticket stores. The movies begin to put in their ice plants and one by one the night clubs close and silently call it off for the season.

There's a tired expression all over the big street just before June hops on the calendar. Those who have basked under the moon and slept under the sun begin to take on that drawn look. The night club regulars get ready to call it a season, and some step off to Europe to whomp it up more than ever. Some actually take a rest. Already the jazz bandits gather at "musicians' corners" and inquire about summer resorts that may want musicians. In a few weeks the corner will be jammed as eager college students add their presence and the bidding for resort jazz gets under way. Those for whom the season has been a bit tough angle for "pick up" engagements in the seashore hotels or mountain camps.

More and more the street crowds reflect the atmospheres of the hinterlands. Europe-bound folk stop over to "catch New York" before sailing and newcomers wander up the warm dusty looking big street trying to figure out what the attraction of it is. Manhattan's "small town" news: A new watering trough for horses has been put up in lower Seventh avenue. H. L. Mencken is in town from Baltimore. Come again Hank! A clock that covers three stories has just been put on the tower of the New Paramount building. Paul Whiteman is going to lose up his night club as soon as his engagement with the musical oprie is over. Looks like Charlie Chaplin was going to stay here awhile. Frank Case, enterprising hotel keeper, has bought the Algonquin, where all the movie actors, literati and climbers take lunch. Cost Frank a cool million they say. Frank started out to be a writer, but changed his mind. Which might be a good example for a lot of others. There's a lot of good hotel keepers in this town writing big novels and bigger checks.

CIVIC ACHIEVEMENTS

ADVERTISING BY TOURISTS. This is another article of the series telling how American cities have met their problems in civic growth. Other articles of this series will appear on this page daily.

By DON E. MOWRY, Secretary, the American Community Advertising Association

Automobile tourists who pass through your city can do for you a great deal of good if you treat them fairly.

Utica, N. Y., has made every tourist a booster for the Utica community by its free information booths.

The object in establishing tourist information booths was to get a story about Utica to every tourist who stopped.

But Utica is not the whole story. They have approved a new booklet advertising Central New York, which includes the Finger Lakes region, Adirondacks, St. Lawrence river and the Thousand Islands, as well as Leather Stocking country around Otsego Lake and the Mohawk and Chenango valleys. This coming season they shall print 150,000 copies for distribution. A part of the campaign is the poster boards. They have what is known as the De Luxe sign, 50 feet high—beautiful examples of workmanship. I have seen three of them. One reads: "Utica, Hub of the Empire State—straight ahead, through scenic-historic Mohawk Valley." Other signs call attention to the through route for Syracuse, Rochester and west; to the direct route to Boston, Albany and New York; and to the gateway to the Adirondacks and Thousand Islands. Utica wants the tourist so Utica keeps on selling Utica with everything "round about her." Gaining the good will of one tourist means gaining one more good advertiser for your community.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, May 31.—Senator William Cabell Bruce of Maryland told the Senate last session that you could put all the personally dry senators in a taxi cab.

If a fellow were to believe all he heard in these precincts, he would admit that Bruce had exaggerated. The popular impression is that you could put all the personally dry senators on a bicycle.

Giving no more notice to such back canards who leave every senator fighting for the seat on the bicycle for the sake of the folks back home, it must nevertheless be said that some politically dry senators fully appreciate the fact that there are at this moment not more filibusters and all night sessions than perhaps the sergeant-at-arms may be ordered to break into their diversions and bring them into the chamber.

That happened one night during the Boulder Dam filibuster in the last session, to the great embarrassment of perhaps a half dozen senators who were dragged in unexpectedly.

The aforesaid situation calls to mind the case of a very illustrious politician who was called upon to help the war against Germany. A woman who had two grown sons and hadn't raised them to be soldiers was, in the gallery, and she had her eyes on this senator. She was convinced that the public interest required everyone to have his full mental faculties at such a time. She wrote a scorching letter to the unfortunate man. And then she sent a copy of the letter to every member of Congress!

One of the most eminent dry senators of the present day recently officiated at the awarding of gold tournament prizes in one of Washington's most fashionable and exclusive country clubs. Without blinking an eye, he presented with more or less appropriate remarks a silver flask, a cocktail shaker and a lemon squeezer. That is to say, he gave the winners everything necessary for a lively party—except the bottle of gin.

One of the quaintest and most elaborate rites of Washington life is that of introducing a dry congressman to a bootlegger.

JAPS LIKE GOLD TEETH

Tokio.—There is a shortage of good money in Japan. The gold still is there, but it is being transferred to the teeth of citizens as fast as they can save money and buy it. Dentists are working overtime installing glistening new teeth for those who wish to grin broadly.

There may be plenty of laughs at the dry members who drinks in private, but the gent who is opposed to prohibition as a matter of principle and yet is personally bone dry should also be mentioned. That's a big laugh, too, in most cases. Undoubtedly there are such individuals, but investigation generally proves it to be camouflage.

CHAMBER FINDS FRAUD CONTINUES

"Bigger and Better" Crooks Try to Filch Money From the Innocents' Pockets.

Prepared by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce

This series of weekly articles prepared by the Chamber of Commerce for the Manchester Herald, has now been running nearly fifteen months. For a year they were issued regularly without break each week. For the past few weeks the material received was so largely a duplication of former stories that they have been issued less regularly.

The effect of these stories has been truly amazing. They have been read and the warnings observed far beyond the expectation of the Chamber at the outset. This does not mean that the activities of those who live by their wits at the expense of the general public and tradesmen, have ceased—far from it. The past two weeks have brought to light nearly a dozen different plans for obtaining money under false pretenses. None of these schemes are new. They are just a variation on old ones which it would seem everyone should recognize. In fact, those who have been bitten all acknowledge that they had ample warning and their excuse in every case, is the personality of the solicitor.

Keep it Quiet
It seems impossible for the average individual whether in private life or in business, to realize that there is a type of professional crook who goes about with a deliberate intention of getting money by unfair means, by misrepresentation without giving any equivalent in return. He is neither a beggar, a hobo, or a burglar. He is more dangerous than either. He is a good dresser, a smooth talker, a successful salesman. The amount that he takes from each person as he goes about is small, but that is part of the psychology of the game. He realizes that by the rule of averages, ninety-nine out of a hundred people will part with a dollar or four or five dollars and when they find they have been stung, they keep quiet, rather than make themselves ridiculous.

A Stocking Salesman
A man representing himself as Harry Stone, Everett, Mass., made a clean-up here in the early part of May, selling stockings at $1.00 a pair. He claimed to represent the Fashen Knitting Mills of East Boston but this company claims never to have manufactured or sold stockings and disclaimed all knowledge of any salesman named "Stone."

"Mr. Stone"
It happens that the man almost invariably sold three pair of stockings and collected $1.50 deposit, although in some cases he referred to pay the amount in full, and of course, "Mr. Stone" would not refuse. There is one thing in connection with this particular case that people should remember; never give an order to a salesman who does not have a printed order slip. Blank orders such as are commonly used by swindlers of this type can be purchased at any stationery store. The law requires that a copy of the order left with the purchaser must bear the printed name and address of the firm that the salesman represents.

In this case the Chamber has done the only thing possible, namely: broadcasted the information throughout New England asking other Chambers of Commerce to warn their townspeople and the police to be on the lookout for this man.

As a matter of fact, the samples which the man was displaying were expensive high grade stockings, which any woman who knew values would be glad to get for a dollar a pair.

Unordered Merchandise
The Better Business Bureau of St. Louis home of "Paunee Bill" Blind Tie Man, have at last aroused themselves and are broadcasting warnings against this type of legalized robbery which is being practiced by the St. Louis Knitting Mills of that city. There is no doubt but that as a result of the pernicious activity of these people during the past year that Congress will listen to the Postmaster-General, early in the next session of Congress and pass a bill penalizing shippers of unordered merchandise.

Meanwhile this method of salesmanship has spread to stockings, underwear, gift and green cards, perfumery, cigars, and many other lines of merchandise. Of course the public has it in its power to make this method of doing business unprofitable if they would refuse to either pay for or return the merchandise, and the chippers would be forced to discontinue.

Trade Coupons
Manchester professional men have been hooded during the past week with coupons from a place known in New Britain. The coupon bears a very close resemblance to a bank check, made payable to the doctor or dentist who receives it, for $100 and good for that amount when applied to the purchase of a grand piano. These trade coupons started out in denominations of a dollar, increasing later to five dollars and ten dollars, until they have finally reached $100 stage.

It is hard to understand how anyone would be gullible enough to believe that $100 checks were being distributed gratis. One thing, however, we can be sure of—if the public didn't fall for this bunk, advertisers wouldn't continue to employ this scheme.

Merchants Suffer Too
Three different games of a fraudulent nature have recently been investigated which had for their purpose the defrauding of merchants and regular advertisers.

Manchester Helps Hartford
Two years ago the Manchester Chamber called attention to Hartford police to the activities of a bunch of crooks at the aviation field during the last Aviation Meet. These men came to the parking place outside the field equipped with boards and subscription blanks for an alleged aviation magazine. They were very officious, directing automobiles to special parking places and then soliciting them for a $2.00 subscription to this magazine, which in no case was ever received.

The Hartford police acknowledged seeing the men at work, and the State Police also remember seeing them as did the officials of the Colonial Aircraft Company. Each one supposed that the men were acting under authority from one of the other departments.

As a result of this conference, Sergeant George Pransitt of the State Police was given authority to supervise any such activities in the future and as a result, what is believed to be the same band was apprehended last Saturday while working a variation of the same game, this time charging 50c admission. The man arrested had more than $200 in his pockets as a result of his activities, and what piqued Major William F. Ladd, Commanding Officer of the 43rd Division most, was that he had a supply of C. N. G. guest tags in his pockets.

Hang on Tighter
The more one investigates this matter, the more impressed one is with the necessity for keeping a tight grip on your purse strings and above all to pay no money or deposits on merchandise for future delivery. It is a fact that the money taken out of Manchester by crooks whose operations have come to the attention of the Chamber within the past two weeks would have paid the operating expenses of the Chamber of Commerce for six months and every cent of it could have been saved if the merchants and the general public had called the attention of the Chamber of these operations before, instead of after, they did business with them.

The Chamber can help you; it could save thousands of dollars every month to Manchester housewives and tradesmen if it were only given an opportunity. One thing that a spy can't stand is investigation, and he will leave town immediately such an investigation is started. All that is necessary is to let the Chamber know while these men are working, and not wait till after you have been defrauded.

COUNTRY STORE BACK AT STATE THURSDAY

Joan Crawford in "Taxi Dancer" Tonight—Novelty Entertainment and Fun Thursday.

After many weeks of absence the Country Store of the State theater comes back to Manchester on Thursday evening. Since the vaudeville season here ended last week with the State's second anniversary, the management has decided to give its patrons a bit of fun and unusual entertainment for Thursday evenings from now on. Not only will there be the country store with its loads of groceries, but there will be novelty entertainment and a good picture.

The State has scored another hit with its "Taxi Dancer," starring Joan Crawford, which is the attraction there tonight and tomorrow. Miss Crawford is supported by filmdom's rising star, Owen Moore, in a picture of which is the tale of a girl who defies the warning of a fortune teller and goes to New York to make her way in the world.

A taxi-dancer, as everybody knows, is a girl who works in a dance hall in the pay of the manager, dancing with anyone who desires. She is not allowed to refuse anybody and must not even talk to her partner, even though he may be someone she likes. Bitter disappointments, long hard working hours, small pay and the prospect of being fired at any moment make the life of the dancer a precarious existence.

On Thursday Madge Bellamy stars a three-day run at the State in "The Sewing Machine Girl." This is a highly dramatic and thoroughly modern version of the successful play by Theodore Kremer. Cummings, who worked wonders in "The Johnstown Flood" and "The Midnight Kiss," has injected many thrilling and wholly human touches into his latest story. The action is laid in New York, with Miss Bellamy in the role of a working girl who is rescued from the schemes of an over-zealous employer.

In addition to Miss Bellamy and Simpson, the cast includes such screen favorites as J. Farrell MacDonald and Arthur Housman who are funny even when they strive to be serious.

Paul Nicholson, one of the best-known character actors in the motion picture colony, supplies the menace. He is cast as Jules Morton, manager of the Diana Lingerie Company of New York.

Charming Sally Phipps and Anita Garvin have prominent parts in much of the vital action, while Harry Bailey and Ethel Wales also have roles of importance.

SUMMER VIOLIN SCHOOL CONDUCTED AT KEMP'S

Violins Furnished To Pupils Free.

The Summer Violin school, announced the early part of this week by Mr. Kemp, has started off in very fine shape. Already quite a number of pupils have signed up and every day brings new pupils into the school. The idea of the Summer Violin school, has appealed to parents who are interested in having their boy or girl take up the study of the violin. It enables them to get a violin free at the beginning to try out the pupil, so as to see if they will show inclinations of making good, conscientious pupils. The boys and girls who have joined so far, are delighted with the idea of getting instruction in the violin, at practically no cost, and are enthusiastic about the lessons, as described by the director of the school, W. B. Joyner.

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

I have been watching the results of constipation for 47 years, since I began the practice of medicine back in 1875, and though from time to time the medical profession makes some wonderfully interesting experiments and tests, the fundamentals of causes and relief in this common ailment are unchanged.

No matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. I believe in getting as close to nature as possible, hence my remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Cyprip Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate about a cent a dose. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.—adv.

Recently there has been a new wave of drastic physics. Calomel, a mercurial that salivates and loosens teeth, has been revived; salts which draw vital fluids from the body and thin the blood, causing rheumatic aches and pains; coal tar (phenolphthalein) disguised in gum or candy form, that poisons and irritates the tissue of the stomach, intestine and bowel, causing skin eruptions. In a practice of 47 years, I never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and damage to the system.

BIRDS WILL TWITTER IN VELODROME TONIGHT

At Least Several "Heavies" Will Think They Hear Them When All-Star Heavyweight Cards Gets Under Way.

The Massachusetts C. will stage an unusual amateur boxing card at the Hartford Velodrome tonight when every bout will be between middleweights, light heavies or heavyweights. Not a boxer on the card will scale below the middleweight poundage with the bulk of the boxers being light heavies and heavies.

Ed Hurley of the Massachusetts Club started three months ago to arrange this tournament and as a result he has gathered no less than thirty entries. The entrants come from Boston, Holyoke, Springfield, Chicopee, Waterbury, New Haven, Hartford and other cities and towns of New England.

There will be about a dozen bouts and the prospect is nearly three hours of spirited milling. The probable pairings for tonight's card follows: Joe Howard, Hartford; George Jasson, Boston. Jack Kelly, Waterbury; John Walker, Boston.

14th Homer Ruth's homer was his fourteenth of the season. He has almost caught up with his record-breaking year.

Al Thomas of the White Sox whitewashed the St. Louis Browns ten to nothing after Stewart, a rookie, had trimmed the Sox eleven to three in the opener.

Cleveland broke even with Detroit. The Indians won the first game nine to eight when Owen Carroll took a balloon ride in the ninth, while the Tigers won the nightcap in a romp, eleven to three.

Father Bill Doak and Jess Barnas of the Dodgers two timed the Boston Braves, five to two and six to two.

The Giants took a fourteen to ten slugfest from the Phillies but in the nightcap Clarkson, New York rookie, lost a one to nothing duel to the veteran Clarence Mitchell.

The St. Louis Cardinals advanced to within half a game of second place by beating the Reds twice, six to three and three to one.

INDIAN TOMB IN PANAMA Panama City—Far into the mountains of Panama, where it is believed no white man has gone before, two American explorers have discovered an ancient Indian temple. George Williams and Wallace Bain, returning here after months of work in the jungles, brought solid gold trinkets, told of finding copper armor and battle-axes.

WALTER JOHNSON IN COMEBACK PITCHES ALMOST PERFECT GAME

Ace of Washington Team Allows Only Three Hits and Blankets White Sox Team 3 to 0.

New York, May 31.—Millions of baseball fans throughout the country are rejoicing today at the brilliant comeback of Walter Johnson, the greatest pitcher of them all. The mound ace of the Washington team, who has been laid up since March with a broken ankle bone, made his season's debut against the Red Sox yesterday in the first game of a double header and turned in an almost perfect performance. He did not walk a batter, allowed only three hits and blanketed the Sox three to nothing.

His 20th Season "The big train" was starting his twentieth season in the majors and he had the same blinding speed which made him famous a generation ago. The Senators, their pennant hopes revived, pounded out a thirteen to five victory in the nightcap.

Pittsburgh's great winning streak of eleven games was shattered when the Bucs lost to the Cubs, seven to six, Jimmy Cooney of the Cubs making an unassisted triple play. The Pirates came back like an echo however, and won the second game six to five. Both games went ten innings and Hack Wilson hit his ninth homer, tying Cy Williams for National League honors.

Not Sleepy Philadelphia can no longer be called the sleepy city for 40,000 fans got out of bed on a holiday morning and saw the Athletics beat the Yankees nine to eight as Lefty Grove fanned eleven men. Although the Yanks won the afternoon game, six to five, on Babe Ruth's homer in the eleventh, Connie Mack protested the game because a Philadelphia player was not allowed to score from first base after Grabowski had caught a foul fly and fallen into the A's dugout.

Ruth's homer was his fourteenth of the season. He has almost caught up with his record-breaking year. Al Thomas of the White Sox whitewashed the St. Louis Browns ten to nothing after Stewart, a rookie, had trimmed the Sox eleven to three in the opener.

WALKS 17 BATTERS YET WINS 11 TO 10

Philanthropic Bryan Generous to Meriden Inslicos; C. B. A. Gets 16 Hits; Linnell Is Hero.

"King" Bryan, Hartford pitcher, who worked for Cheney Brothers against the Meriden Inslicos Saturday afternoon at the West Side field, issued 17 base on balls and yet was returned the winning pitcher. The score was: Manchester 11, Meriden 10.

Bryan's mates pounded the ball hard collecting 16 hits, four of which went for extra bases. Jack Linnell led the attack with a triple, two doubles and a single in the first of the ninth. Linnell was the first hitter for Manchester and he smote Krober's first offering far into deep right-center for a three-bagger. The fielder returning the ball to third, threw it with the tying run.

Bryan then drew a base on balls and went to third on Waller's double. Hunt was out on an infield roller, the runners holding their bases. Bobby Boyce won the game when he scored Bryan with a sacrifice fly to right field.

Bryan, while he had very poor control, nevertheless had a great deal of stuff on the ball and at times he looked impressive. He will be given another chance. Waller, incidentally, had his hands both full and empty in being on the receiving end of Bryan's deliveries.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: P. T. Barnum (17)

He supplied thousands of dollars to a clock company on condition that it move to his suburb and gave notes for thousands more.

The clock company went into bankruptcy in 1855. Barnum, involved for more than $500,000, went with it. His failure was made a topic for pointing out the lesson of "ill-gotten gains." But he had friends, too. Offers of gifts and benefits, however, he refused. Day after day creditors dragged him to court.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: P. T. Barnum (17)

Barnum, who had humbugged thousands of the gullible, was himself fooled. One of the most trustful men, he invested in scores of wildcat enterprises that drained his resources. He was tremendously eager to make Bridgeport, Conn., an industrial center, and he put a fortune into a 224-acre model suburb with workers' homes.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia" Better than Soda Here after, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly. For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips" Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE by PAUL ADAMS NEA Service

This is the 44th chapter in the story of an ex-doughboy who is revisiting France as a correspondent of The Herald.

CHAPTER XLIV
Belgium, or "Belgique," as the French call it, knew American soldiers. The 37th Division from Ohio and the 91st, from the states of the far west and the Pacific coast, served under King Albert and did several large jobs in workmanlike fashion.

The Buckeyes crashed through Cryshautem and Wanneghem-lede and crossed the Scheldt on a foot-bridge at Eyme. These Ohioans also knew Heurne and Heuvel, Syngham and Asper. The 91st captured Spital-Boschen and also the ancient city of Audenarde.

Customs Officers Now
And it must have seemed odd to the members of these divisions after their service in the Argonne, to follow the trend in Flanders Fields. There were no customs officers to search packs at Mouscron-Moescroen, as there are today, but, regardless of this courtesy, the task of locating an estaminet was difficult. The signs, "In De Viasboot" and "In Den Olifant" were hard to interpret in the beginning. And while umbrellas were sold in Courtrai by Hillaeh-Pottle-Pottle the supply sergeant doubtless refused all applications.

The traces of the war in Belgium are gone. Brick houses have been built out of the ruins of the old. Every peasant and every villager hitches his dog under his cart and lets the animal do the work.

Every Thursday there's a market in the main square of Audenarde and wooden shoes may be purchased there at very reasonable prices. The old stone bridge at Eyme has been replaced by an iron structure. Gaston DeGryse runs a hotel in Courtrai and has an American cash register. Denterghem and Wouterghem and Worteghem and Anseghem are sleeping in the spring sunlight.

In Flanders Fields
But many of the peasants remember the Americans. They saw

When members of the "Second A. E. F." go to Heurne, Belgium, they'll find Madame Vanderclayn and Camille Ronssa and his wife anxious to tell about the time they watched the village and clear across the Scheldt.

The O. D. troopers from Ohio and Oregon jog through in their pursuit of the fleeing Germans. The boys advanced some in Belgium—so fast that the forward units got clear past all lines of communication. Why wouldn't the Belgians remember?

At Waerenghem is the American Flanders Field cemetery. John Blaine of Lima, Ohio, is the caretaker. There are 367 graves. And several of the crosses that stand row on row hold names familiar to Blaine—familiar to him because he knew them back around the old home town. They'll be known to Ohio legionnaires, too, who will come this way this fall.

FIND ROMAN RELICS

Berlin—While excavating for a building in southern Bavaria, workmen came upon traces of ancient Roman settlements. Bronze swords, hair ornaments and flint weapons were found that date back to the last ice age. Nearby were discovered Roman coins, some bearing the bust of Emperor Marcus Aurelius.

PROPER INFLATION IS POINT TO REMEMBER

Firestone Dealer Tells How To Get More Mileage Out of Your Tires.

"Tire mileage, life and service depend on several factors," according to Dave Housen local Firestone dealer.

"These factors include the tire, driver, car, roads, and last but not least on using tires large enough for the heaviest load placed on them at any time and keeping them inflated to the correct pressure.

"Nearly every day some one will say to us, 'Why do some people get 25,000 miles from their tires when the best I ever get is around 10,000 miles? How do you account for that?'"

"The trouble is not with the tires, but with the way they are overloaded or underinflated. Nothing—man, beast or mechanical device—can stand up under great abuse. The remedy is to provide tires large enough for the maximum load that may be placed on them and to keep them properly inflated.

"Reasonable care and regular inspection of tires for minor injuries and checking of the air pressure will enable the motorist to get the most in mileage and useful service."

Keep Eliminative System Active

Good Health Requires Good Elimination.

ONE can't feel well when there is a retention of poisonous waste in the blood. This is called a toxic condition, and is apt to make one tired, dull and languid. Other symptoms are sometimes toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Many people have learned the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, when the kidneys seem functionally inactive. Everywhere one finds enthusiastic Doan's users. Ask your neighbor!

Jungle Breathe

THIS HAS HAPPENED

To the queer little South American town of PORTO VERDE, in the heart of the Amazonian jungle, comes a young American, LINCOLN NUNNALLY, a chemist.

Nunally registers at the ramshackle hotel and steps out on the balcony. A beautiful young girl drives past in a chariot, accompanied by a negro woman and a small child. To the American's amazement, she waves to him, then drives on. He sees two sinister-looking men watch the girl, exchange mysterious signals, then follow her.

Another surprise is in store for him. In the barber shop, the barber, a strange, dark-skinned Oriental, speaks to him. He asks him what he is doing in Porto Verde. To his amazement, VILAK says he has sent for him, that he and his cousin, who was the young girl's fiancé, had seen from the balcony, owned the Porto Verde Development Co., and were in need of some assistance in getting at the root of a mystery that had already cost several lives and threatened their own.

The barber business, VILAK explains, serves to conceal his real activities. In the midst of his explanations, word reaches him that another man, one of his cousin's foremen, has been murdered.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER III

The travelers rounded a tangled bend, then saw a crowd clustered about a lofty parasol pine.

VILAK rubbed the towel vigorously against the old man's face, then hurried outside. Nunally followed asthmatically behind. They half walked, half ran down the road, along a small stream which drained into the river on which lay the town. Around them were low hills whose slopes in a few places were bright with coffee plants, but everywhere else were dark with the black greenness of the jungle. They hurried over a small bridge spanning the stream. As they crossed, they heard someone running behind them. VILAK turned. He pressed his companion's arm. "Take a good look when this man passes," he whispered. "You're having a privilege. He's the American I mentioned to you. Doesn't come to town very often. In this place of picturesque and bizarre individuals, he's by far the most interesting to me."

Nunally did not wait until the runner had caught up with them, but turned swiftly, to see the newcomer dashing behind. He was a man originally of commanding height and herculean shoulders, but whose body, as though by fever or other tropical disease, had wasted until it was a shell of its former self. He was clad in grimy white linen but in strange contrast to his tropical garments was wearing around his thin emaciated neck, a stiff, unusually high collar. He made no response to the genial salutation VILAK offered, but taking a new grip on the straw basket in his hand, darted past, and disappeared round a bend. But not before Nunally had glimpsed a curious mark on his pale white forehead, a series of three small triangles tattooed in thin black lines.

The old man stopped to rest for a moment and gazed after the other with a strong inclination to shudder. But resolved to imitate his companion's coolness, he repressed the impulse, took a cigaret and reached in his pocket for a match he could not find. "He looks . . . er . . . fantastic. Quite fantastic. What's the matter with him? Is he white? Or is he some . . . er . . . queer sort of . . . er . . . half-breed?"

"He's white, white, you occidental egotist," VILAK returned, "white as the lilies of Sharon. You'll probably be interested to know that his name is Gaylord Prentiss."

"Er . . . Prentiss, the archeologist who explored for the Museum of . . . er . . . Natural History . . . er . . . Natural History and left a few years ago . . . er . . . under a cloud after he had been concerned . . . er . . . concerned in some . . . er . . . scandal?"

"None other, my dear Nanny."

The old man had found the matches in the lining of his coat. "What's the . . . er . . . matter with him? How did he get that . . . er . . . mark on his forehead?"

"Ask him, mon cher, ask him . . . several have . . . er . . . And been possibly knocked down for their pains. Can you run again for a little? We ought to hurry."

"In a . . . er . . . minute." The old man breathed heavily. "Horrible looking . . . er . . . horrible. What is he doing . . . er . . . here . . . here?"

"That's one of the things I'm interested in finding out. The natives believe he's the center of all the apparently diabolical things which have been happening. Elise has tried to talk to him and failed miserably. She took an interest in ingly about the somber tress; swollen brooks murmured in doleful accents as they ended in the myriad tiny lakes and ponds which sparkled everywhere.

The travelers rounded a tangled bend, then saw a crowd clustered about a lofty parasol pine a hundred yards ahead, a motley group made up of negro laborers in muddy but brilliant, native or torn overalls, a few breech-clotted Indians wearing huge straw hats, and two or three gaping children staring curiously from behind the trees. Above them all towered one of the huge blue and red-uniformed negroes who form a part of the police force of Brazil.

Briskly VILAK elbowed his way through the onlookers who, with their characteristic apathy, let him pass without resistance. He stepped forward. The excited Joao had held the parasol for a part of the police force of Brazil.

Briskly VILAK elbowed his way through the onlookers who, with their characteristic apathy, let him pass without resistance. He stepped forward. The excited Joao had held the parasol for a part of the police force of Brazil.

Near his outstretched feet, hand-cuffed to the gendarme and staring sulkily at the ground, stood a heavy man of the English colonial type who supervises the gangs that work the mines of Kimberly or tap the rubber trees of the Congo. His face was hard, like the faces of most of those who command in the primitive places of the world, like Prentiss, he had tattoo marks. But these were on his arm and about them there was nothing extraordinary. They seemed merely the tattooing such as is to be found on every sailor; a ship, a howling monkey and a skull and cross-bones. VILAK instantly recognized him as "Lincey" Potts, Barbeta's long-time enemy and fellow-worker on the fazenda. Not far away was a heavy wooden club.

VILAK touched the arm of the huge negro gendarme. "The doc- tor," he called for him." He asked in quick Portuguese.

The gendarme grinned amiably and thrust out his hands in expostulation: "D'us; sim I the Almighty God? I cannot all do."

"Pedro! Go to the fazenda of Senorita Marberry and fetch the doctor quick!" VILAK snapped to the bystanders he had joined then turned to Nunally, who had joined him. "I should have known better than to depend on these chaps. I could cure myself for dawdling the way we did coming out here. 'Lift up the dead,'" the old man observed. VILAK took the right wrist and felt the pulse. "Twenty," he said in perplexity, "and getting weaker all the time." He looked toward a young peon whose face bore the sign of more intelligence than his fellows.

"How long has he been this way, amigos?" he asked.

The native took a thoughtful puff of his cigar. "Half an hour, three quarters, maybe he is three way, I think. Et is ver' strange how a hit on the head have do these. He set the road and took a laborer row lane which led up the higher ground above the stream. Their path grew constantly wilder and more dismal. Great vines hung down from a dark canopy of foliage overhead and like huge black serpents knotted themselves strang-

The WOMAN'S DAY

Women are growing tired of bridge, and are turning from the bridge table to the sewing machine. We have this on the word of a lady whose title proclaims her executive secretary of the Needlework and Textile Guild of Chicago. The lady says that within three months 300 women have joined the guild and are making needlework because they have tired of bridge. One often wonders why women WILL play and work so intensively. The bridge rage and craze has been a good example of the way we do things. Bridge is a pleasant form of recreation, the interest in which has been sustained over a period of many years if women would treat it as one occasional form of many-formed recreation. But they had to go at it just as they went at mah jong, bal masques, charity bazaars and all the games and jobs that have had their little day.

The Holy Estate

Definitions are dull things, but occasionally needed. Sometimes we forget "what it's all about." Which may justify a relapse of some opinions of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise on the holy estate of matrimony. "The ends of marriage are comradeship, the home and the child," says the rabbi. "There never have been and never will be any real substitutes for marriage. All those suggested have been for the satisfaction of the 'I' and not for the 'we' in the marriage relation." The marriage failure continues the rabbi, are the human misfits who fall out of marriage as well as in it because of their limitations of mind and spirit.

As Bad as Cotton

I have been informed that no young girl who pretends to be the least bit chic will be caught wearing these things these days. No silk, the garments which shied her nethers from the cauld could blast must be chiffon, the chiffon the better. The point seems to be that whereas thread silk hock can last a couple of weeks if judiciously treated even the heaviest chiffons can't well be expected to last more than a week, and if there's one special privilege that a $20-a-week typist demands it's the right to at least one new pair of silk stockings a week!

Frank Families

A German father recently claimed that he held the world's record for largest family. He claimed that he had had 87 children—69 by the first wife, 18 by the second. Eugenicists and doctors have tried in vain to get the accurate data on this. They can't believe it and are inclined to think that somebody fished, if they did not lie. A certain doctor of the University of Munich has done much investigation of as to how many children a woman can have. "Generally," he writes, "they turn out to be the hallucination products of hysterical women who want to make themselves interesting through accounts of many and multiple births." Thank goodness today's woman has something to interest her and about which to boast besides freak biological processes! And she's a more normal human being for her wider range of interests, the anti-feminists to the contrary notwithstanding.

Betty Ann

Another thing that gets the chin whiskers of my pet angora, since no day would be complete without my daily peeve. That thing is the modern wholesale naming of girl babies with a first name tied to an Ann without an e. In the last month, a half-dozen friends have become matters to girl infants. The six names are Peggy Ann, Shirley Ann, Janet Ann, Patty Ann, Dorothy Ann and Betty Ann. Have you ever noted how first names go in cycles? You can almost tell a woman's age by her name. If she's a Rose or Pansy or Ivy or Fern or Daisy or Violet she was born back in Gibson girl era of 1900. There was the "quaint name" era of a few years back when Faiths and Charlies and Prudences and Priscillas and Hopes and Marthas were hoisted onto the world. But no such era has ever quite gotten my goat like the "Betty Ann" one. Cute and cunning while they're babies, but even out-cunningness gets stale in overdoes.

Two Ways of Dressing Well

One way is to buy new clothes more often. The other way is to keep the clothes you have always looking at their best by having them carefully and thoroughly dry cleaned when they begin to look shabby. And the difference in cost will settle the problem of other things like shoes and neckties.

Cleaning and dyeing promptly and perfectly done. Your clothes are called for and delivered. They are taken care of as your individual clothes...not huddled together in a "suburban bundle."

GOWNS FOR GIRL GRADUATES

Diploma Time

For commencement: a "different" model, dignified and chic, of beige lace, given a touch of color by a turquoise set belt buckle (left) and a much be-tucked frock of white georgette.

Modesty is the first rule. Long sleeves, an informal neckline, skirt over the knee cap and with enough fullness to permit sitting at ease.

Simplicity comes as the second rule for the graduation dress. It must capitalize the shy, sweet qualities that are inherent in the girl not yet out in the world.

No Sophistication.

The graduation gown may have in-souciant grace that enhances a young girl's beauty. But the least sophisticated touch spoils it.

Modesty is the first rule. Long sleeves, an informal neckline, skirt over the knee cap and with enough fullness to permit sitting at ease.

Simplicity comes as the second rule for the graduation dress. It must capitalize the shy, sweet qualities that are inherent in the girl not yet out in the world.

Out of Place

One frock I will not make for graduation is the "party" frock. Dresses without sleeves and with décolleté neckline are absolute out of place on the school platform at graduation time.

For a third rule, I always design a graduation frock so it may be used as a little dinner dress after graduation. Future use is ever a consideration.

One type of simple dress which I have found a favorite is fashioned of white crepe Roma, taking tiered ovals, inserts or tucks in neckline effect as its unusual trimming. Its neckline is much the same line as a necklace makes. The skirt has front, back and side fan-shaped inserts of tiny knife pleating and the tight cuffs ending in the graceful sleeves end in a tucked insert.

This frock is especially suited to the girl who is inclined to be plump. For it is slightly bloused and then caught tight at the hipline with a tucked belt that ends in a girlish bow.

Touch of Color

Of utterly different design is the exquisite beige thread run lace frock, pictured today. Eight little ruffles of the lace form the graceful skirt. Its smart scarf collar gives it unique chic and a neckline extremely becoming to youth. For

HINTS ON ETIQUET

1. Does a graduation invitation necessitate sending a present?
 2. Who opens a conversation when two people are introduced?
 3. When must a woman rise to acknowledge an introduction?
- The Answers
1. No. But a card should be sent.
 2. Either.
 3. When she is introduced to an older person or a woman her age.
- PORCH PRIVACY
- If your neighbors look into your screened porch too searchingly, a thing of light paint over the screening will insure privacy.
- TIRED EYES
- To rest eyes after a weary day, bathe them in as hot water as you can stand, then cold. Repeat and then lie down with a cold compact on them.
- MIRROR USES
- A big mirror placed in a dull corner will brighten up the room and enlarge it.

INDUSTRIAL POISONS AFFECTING THE NERVOUS SYSTEM BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

One of the most common industrial poisons is carbon disulphide, used in the manufacture of thin rubber articles, artificial silk and in the preparation of cellulose.

When this substance is taken into the body, it seems to have a particular effect on the nerve tissues, so that the patients become paralyzed, sometimes show symptoms of insanity, and sometimes blindness due to its action on the optic nerve.

It will be remembered that wood alcohol seems also to have a special affinity for the optic nerve, and that it also produces blindness.

Illuminating gas contains another important poison, carbon monoxide, which is responsible for sudden death when it is inhaled from the exhaust of motor cars in a closed garage. In 1882 an investigator announced that he had discovered changes in the brain following poisoning with carbon monoxide and recently numerous instances have been described in which such poisonings have resulted in serious disturbances of the brain.

In addition to mental disturbances, this poison may also result in blindness and in producing changes of great seriousness in the blood.

Home Page Editorials Lindbergh's Triumph

By Olive Roberts Burton

Dr. William A. White, head of St. Elizabeth's, and world famous psychiatrist, gave his opinion of Lindbergh's successful flight thus: "Probably his childhood was not bound up with prohibitions such as confront most children. His mother and father were not always consulting their lad not to do this or that or he would get into trouble."

"Such prohibitions cause timidity in the adult. The lack of prohibitions, or impediments, kept him from the usual restraints that beset the ordinary mortal and gave opportunity for intense development of courage, willingness to sacrifice and even to die."

What a sermon it is to mothers who have drawn iron circles around their children and fenced them in with "don'ts."

I am not urging the other extreme of self-will, self-indulgence, and all the rest of the unpleasant from the usual restraints that beset the ordinary mortal and gave opportunity for intense development of courage, willingness to sacrifice and even to die."

Rules of a home should be sensible and reasonable. They should be few, clearly understood, and obeyed. The circle should be large enough to give the child a chance to grow and develop character within it.

He has to move—a growing child,

HOLMES SETS DOWN BRISTOL NINE 5-0

Allows Three Hits; Manchester High Fields and Hits Well; Commerford Best For Losers; Meriden Next.

Jerry Holmes' brilliant work on the mound in the game at Bristol Saturday afternoon was revelation to backers of the local high school team, for if he can turn in one or two more similar performances before the season ends, Manchester's chances of completing a highly successful season are very good.

AMERICAN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP MENACED BY BRITISH TEAM

Best and Biggest Squad Ever Sent Here Will Play This Week at Worcester, Massachusetts.

New York, May 31.—Just how much or how little American golf may be entitled to fear from the English invasion of the open championship, several weeks hence, may be determined over the ensuing week end at Worcester, Mass. The British versus American professional team match for the Ryder Cup will be the occasion in question and while team matches are not always a fool-proof barometer of championship ability, Duncan, Boomer, Ray, Havers, Compton, et al., will have been with us long enough at the juncture to give a fair indication of whether their intentions at Oakmont will be strictly honorable.

home because of illness, is the exception in question. The others probably present the best that British golf can muster. And yet Anthony Spaulding, London golf critic, hasn't hesitated to say that the team is a bust and can't hope to win.

SENSE and NONSENSE

'The street car service is rotten. Always overcrowded.' 'Yes, but father, you got a seat didn't you?' 'Yes, but your poor mother had to stand all the way. Six months of matrimony will often make a snapping turtle out of a turtle dove. Life is good, but who knows that death may not be better? The patient saleswoman brought out the seventeenth hat. The customer seemed impressed, but her dotting husband spoke up with decision: 'That hat does not become you, my angel.' The saleswoman produced another. 'And that certainly is not worthy of you, my angel.' 'I fear we cannot suit, your angel,' said the saleswoman, finally. 'We have nothing in the way of a halo. A hug is a roundabout way of expressing affection. When a man is so stingy as to borrow a newspaper when he is able to buy, he will talk through his nose to save wearing out his teeth. Bill Clerk: 'Just one kiss, dear, would keep me happy for a week.' His Best Girl: 'Wait a minute and I'll fix you up for life. A revival was raging in a Virginia colored church. The fruits had been considerable. One obdurate soul, however, resisted the efforts of the elder. Called to account for his recalcitrancy, he replied: 'Yo' see how it is, Elder, I see got a problem. I don't see how I see gwine get mah shirt on ovah my wings when I gits to Glory.' 'Dat ain't yo' problem,' retorted the exhorter promptly. 'Yo' problem is how is yo' gwine get yo' hat on ovah yo' horns.' David: 'Look here, this is unbearable. Yesterday I found a white hair in the soup, and today a black one!' The waitress: 'I'm not surprised, sir; we've changed cooks.' Static: Something that keeps your guest from knowing what a fine radio set you've got. Gladys: Engaged to five girls at once? How do you explain such conduct? Charles: I don't know. I suppose Cupid must have shot me with a machine gun. Religion only seems to make a chronic liar more so. Clerk: 'Haven't I seen you somewhere before?' New Customer, who believes in shopping around: 'Perhaps, I've been to a lot of other places.' Nowadays, when a man marries, he doesn't give his name to the girl. She just borrows it for a little while.

NOW YOU Ask One

HERE IS VARIETY Your knowledge of music, history, geography, English and science is tested in this set of questions. The answers will be found on another page. 1-Who wrote the musical composition 'Poet and Peasant'? 2-The eagle on the American seal holds a streamer saying 'E Pluribus Unum.' What does this mean? 3-What part of the earth's surface is covered by land? 4-What is the longest word in the English language? 5-Who spread out his coat that a mouse might cross a mud puddle? 6-What is the average normal temperature of the human body? 7-How much is the president of the United States allowed for travel and entertainment? 8-What state of the union has the longest ocean coastline? 9-What is the largest lake on the American continent? 10-What nickname was given to Robert Fulton's steamboat, the Clermont? Virtue pays! The 'S' is crooked, but look what a straight and narrow path does for it: $ Of all diseases none is so greatly enjoyed by some as rheumatism. 'A girl can't help it when she's pretty, and she never tries.' But a lot of them who aren't try to help it, and make things considerably worse. A new clerk dictating a few days ago, was in doubt as to the use of a certain phrase, so he said to the stenographer: Do you retire a loan? and the wistful eyed one interrupted sleepily. 'No, I sleep with mama.'

THE TINYMITES

The Tinymites stood on the shore, and Copsy said, 'Say, let's explore. There must be something funny on this island we can see. I'd really like to take a swim. I'm tired and feeling out of trim. Is anybody really game to promptly follow me?' 'Sure! We'll all go,' was Copsy's reply. 'Come on, let's hurry right inside our funny little bathing suits before the sun fades out.' So all the bunch were soon all set, and with a splash they all got wet by jumping in the water with a happy flip and shout. When they had played a little while, brave Copsy's face broke in a smile. 'Hey, gaze right down the shore,' said he. 'I see a little boat. Let's get the thing and have some fun.' So all the bunch were on the run, and when they reached it Spouty said, 'I hope the thing will float.' 'Twas just a foot or two on land, but every Tiny lent a hand, and soon they had it safely launched upon the winding stream. The whole bunch clamored for a seat, for rowing promised quite a treat. And then they all were startled when they heard poor Clowny scream. In climbing he'd been real rash, and fell back in the stream, kersplish! Of course it kinda scared him 'cause the water seemed quite cold. Then Copsy shouted, 'Hey, don't weep. The water's only one foot deep. Walk over to the boat again and you can catch a hold.' Then Clowny made just one good try, and clamored in with quite a sigh. 'Oh, gee,' said he, 'I'm soaking wet. This isn't any fun.' But Spouty cheered him up a bit, by saying, 'Don't fret. You can sit right out here in the sun and soon your clothes will be all dry.' (The Tinymites have a thrilling ride in the next story.)
