

U. S. MARINES ARE SENT TO NORTH CHINA

British and French Troops Also Rushed Toward Pe- king—New Crisis Is Im- minent.

Shanghai, June 2.—The Sixth and Tenth regiments of United States marines, commanded by General Smedley Butler, sailed for North China at eleven o'clock this morning upon the American transport Henderson. It is planned for the Henderson to proceed to Takuhar from which point the marines will be taken to Tien-Tsin upon smaller vessels. The detachment sailed under secret orders. The United States cruiser Richmond, carrying a contingent of marines, also sailed for Tien-Tsin today. Probably other warships with marines will be sent north shortly. The Fourth Regiment of Marines, the original marine unit in Shanghai, will remain here.

Other Troops
British and French forces will be sent north immediately in accordance with an international agreement whereby an international force will protect the Tien-Tsin-Peking railroad. It is reported that the United States transport Chaumont is proceeding to Tien-Tsin from Olongapo, Philippine Islands, where units of artillery were taken on board.

WASHINGTON'S VIEWS

Washington, June 2.—The United States is prepared to act with exceeding swiftness in coping with the new crisis which suddenly has arisen in China. Plans for this action were drawn up weeks ago and were based on the well-grounded belief that despite the disension in the Cantonese ranks the Nationalist movement was by no means dead and would probably be heard from in the near future. The program mapped out by this government does not call for any last ditch defense of Peking, such has been suggested in London and Tokyo, in the event local government in that part of China collapses completely. The American forces are under strict orders to remain neutral as between the various contending Chinese factions and to take no part in the fighting excepting in the defense of American citizens.

To Protect Americans
Foremost among the considerations of this government is that its Nationals shall be protected and that there must be no repetition of the Nanking affair of March 24. Being of the opinion that Americans can best be protected at Tientsin or Shanghai rather than at Peking, the government has already prepared to evacuate the legation in the latter city to a port city. Americans in North China have already been advised to withdraw to Tientsin and most of them have done so. It is also hoped that removal of the legation will eliminate a source of danger to American interests inasmuch as any violation of the legation by the Chinese would undoubtedly serve to draw the United States into the Chinese civil war.

Plans Prepared
Secretary of State Kellogg revealed today that plans for the evacuation of the legation were first considered as early as two months ago or about the time when the split in the Nationalist party took place. As reported by the International News Service at the time, he took the position that the Cantonese split was not as serious as it appeared on the surface. Accordingly the government made ready to meet the new emergencies which were expected to follow as the Nationalists moved northward.

The movement of two regiments of marines from Shanghai to Tientsin is wholly in accordance with American policy, it was explained at the State Department. The marines will be used to protect the American Nationals now concentrated in the North China city and to guard the legation when and if it is moved to the surface. According to the State Department, the marines will be followed within the week by other marines, it was indicated.

NOTED STAGE BEAUTY DRINKS POISON—DIES

Mary Lygo Once Sued Rich Chicago Man For Breach of Promise.

Los Angeles, Calif., June 2.—Mary Lygo, former Foxes beauty, died in a police hospital here today without regaining consciousness after taking poison two days ago. The actress, who sought a film career in Hollywood under the name of "Irene Fuller," broke into the newspaper headlines several years ago when she sued Gordon Thorne, wealthy Chicago broker, for $100,000 for alleged breach of promise.

College Heads Spike Suicide Wave Report

This is the second of two articles on "Modern Youth" as viewed by New England college presidents. In the first article the educators gave the view that the graduate is serious minded, hard working and trustworthy, comparing favorably with the graduate of 1917 and 1927. Denial was made that the younger generation of America was "going to the dogs."

Boston, Mass., June 2.—College presidents of New England today "spiked" the talk of a "student suicide wave."

"There is no such thing except in the press," declared President Clifton D. Gray, Bates college, Lewiston, Maine.

"Morbidity and moroseness among students are as rare as radium," President Ralph Earle, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Worcester, Mass., stated.

"The students certainly are not morbid or morose, and I do not believe that the so-called 'suicide wave' is other than an imaginary wave worked up to apply to colleges."

President Frank Palmer Spear of Northeastern University, Boston said: "We note no morbid or morose

NO TIME TO PLANT IN FLOOD DISTRICT

Waters Will Not Recede In Time to Plant Crops This Year.

New Orleans, La., June 2.—Louisiana's hope that the flood waters might recede in time for salvaging a small crop in the flooded areas, appeared to be blasted today with the approach of a second Mississippi crest which has already reached Helena, Ark., according to reports here.

The new crest will not attain the proportions of the first disastrous overflow, but will carry no threat to the lower river levees between Baton Rouge and New Orleans but will probably delay rehabilitation in the already flooded area until such a late date that will be impossible to plant new crops.

Save Pile Drivers
The saving of several thousand acres in the Bayou Black section was effected this morning when pile drivers, after two days work, succeeded in damming the Bayou, main line of the intracoastal canal with a barrier of cypress logs. The creation of the dam hastened the flooding of thousands of acres in front of it which already were doomed. Planters watched the impounded waters rising over the lands today, with their sadness lightened by the knowledge that the dam would save some of the crops of their neighbors.

Move More Victims
The damming of the Bayou will make it necessary to move some 500 persons into Houma within four or five days, and possibly 1,000 more later, according to Lieutenant C. C. Lee who surveyed the area yesterday.

Relief work in the southern section of the Sugar Bowl is still progressing rapidly, but hundreds remain to be rescued from the homes in which they have been trapped by the unexpectedly rapid rise of the waters. The fleet of fishing boats organized by Secretary Hoover is constantly busy in this work.

CONGRESS SHOULD AID FLOOD VICTIMS—McADOO

Says It Should Take Up Subject At Once As Non-Partisan Issue.

Washington, June 2.—The Federal government can and should prevent future floods in the Mississippi valley, William Gibbs McAdoo declared here today in urging Congress to handle flood relief as a non-partisan issue. The enormous destruction of property in the Mississippi valley and the widespread suffering made the problem a national one, McAdoo said, which the administration and Congress should be prompt to relieve.

"The problem of rehabilitation and the prevention of floods in the future is too great to be handled by the states affected," McAdoo added. "These floods can be prevented, it is only a question of engineering and money. We have both and the government should do the job." McAdoo, on a visit to the capital on legal business, declined to discuss politics. He said he was "too busy practicing law to be interested in politics."

STRANGEST MURDER IS STILL UNSOLVED

Only Witness Dies Today
Proclaiming She Knew
Nothing of Slaying.

Fall River, Mass., June 2.—Miss Lizzie Borden, seventy-eight year old dress and central figure in one of the strangest murder mysteries in the history of the country, died at her palatial home on French street today.

Since her father, Andrew J. Borden, millionaire and the city's wealthiest citizen, and his wife were found slain, evidently with an axe, in their home at 10:20 o'clock on the morning of August 4, 1892, the motive for the horrible crime, the weapon used or the slayer have never been found.

Was in House
Miss Borden was in the house with the doors locked but she maintained her innocence and after a memorable court trial was acquitted.

From time to time, during the long span of years since the crime, reports have been in circulation that Miss Borden wrote a "confession" which would be revealed after her death. Each time she emphatically denied the report, stating that she was entirely innocent of the death of her father and mother.

STATE'S STEEL STRIKE DECLARED OFF TODAY

Two Hundred Men Go Back to Work Pending Conference
With Contractors.

New Haven, Conn., June 2.—The structural steel workers' strike, which started yesterday and affected men in all sections of the state, has been declared off and the men will resume work on their jobs tomorrow morning. Such was the announcement made here this afternoon by M. J. Louden, business agent for Connecticut Local No. 15 under which some two hundred men are enrolled.

According to Mr. Louden the men are returning to work under the old conditions while the erecting firms have agreed to hold conferences with the union from time to time in an effort to reach a permanent agreement. The men receive $11 a day and are seeking $12 a day.

Statistics of Connecticut Local, No. 15 show that only about forty per cent of the two hundred membership was affected by the strike. The other men were already being paid $12 a day, a wage limit that out-of-town contractors refused to grant. The workers are today about equally divided between New Haven and Hartford because of jobs under way in each city.

FOG DELAYS FLIGHT OF LINDY TO PARIS

METROPOLITAN HARTFORD NOT A CERTAINTY

Smaller Towns Believe They Can Run Their Own Affairs
Without Aid of Outside Help.

Hartford, June 2.—The small towns of Connecticut still retain pride in the ability to run their own affairs even though an occasional town threatens to surrender its rights to the state as a better manager. Small town pride has blocked an attempt to adopt a tentative scheme for creating a metropolitan district for the Hartford section and backers of the idea of imitating Boston are at work today seeking some means of winning rural residents over to their way of thinking.

Pursuant to instructions contained in a bill adopted by the 1927 General Assembly, thirty-five citizens of the Hartford section have met but without a plan and plan to meet again next week. The meeting, intended to be merely one of organization, split at the outset on a committee slate for consideration of various projects.

Tentative Plans
Tentative plans drawn up by a committee headed by Senator Senator Edward N. Allen, of Hartford, chairman of the Hartford district commission, were tabled by the first meeting after it was voted that each member be supplied with a copy of the plans for study at leisure. The plans include the ultimate drafting of a metropolitan district charter for consideration by the separate towns and by the Legislature, and appointment of committees to study sewage disposal, water supply, fire protection, police regulation, manufactures, and a new bridge over the Connecticut river.

Group Objects
During the first meeting reiterated statements that no attempt "to railroad through" the metropolitan project was considered, were politely heard and then disregarded. Representatives John L. Havens, of East Hartford; John W. Huling and Henry A. Wolcott, of West Hartford; Senator Alice Pattison Merrill, of Hartford, and Huntington P. Meech, former state senator, of West Hartford, strongly opposed action on the plans until the commission, individually, had opportunity to study each proposition. This little group was upheld by vote of the meeting.

The census of the meeting was that long hard study will be required for the project with careful consideration for the political and geographic entities making up the district. As an example, West Hartford has repeatedly demonstrated antagonism to annexation to Hartford, and anything at all favoring consolidation of the two towns will be looked upon with suspicion. West Hartford too, is satisfied with existing sewage disposal and water systems, and has as much pride as any other Connecticut town in its administration of local governmental affairs.

Right at the outset, commission members now feel, only those matters of obviously metropolitan import will be included in the commission's work. Though the towns have been assured each will retain its own political identity under the district plan the towns still seem suspicious. As matters now stand it seems like Hartford against the field, and the field includes East and West Hartford, Bloomfield, Windsor, Wethersfield and Newington. And towns back of this ring are watching the matter with interest.

MEXICO TO BOYCOTT GOODS MADE IN U. S.

Report Says Central American
Countries May Also Follow Suit.

Mexico City, June 2.—The United States embassy today received an inquiry from the State Department for official information regarding President Calles' decree forbidding heads of government departments from buying goods in the United States that can be purchased elsewhere.

Mexico newspapers assert that when the Mexican government is unable to buy needed supplies at home it will turn to Europe. Reports are current in some quarters that Guatemala and possibly some other Latin-American countries may follow the lead of Mexico in boycotting United States goods.

Waits More Than Two Hours At London Air Field For Weather to Clear, Then Gives Up Trip—To Start At Dawn Tomorrow—Leaves Saturday For U. S. on Board U. S. Cruiser Memphis—To Arrive at Washing- ton at Noon, June 11.

London, June 2.—English weather today accomplished what bad weather over the Atlantic ocean failed to do. It forced Captain Charles A. Lindbergh to postpone his proposed flight from London to Paris.

After waiting for more than two hours at the Kenley Aerodrome outside of London for fog and rain to clear along the London-Paris airway, Captain Lindbergh announced that he would postpone his projected flight.

The fact that the American was to fly a British plane, to which he was unaccustomed, is said to have caused the authorities at Kenley to urge him not to make the flight in the fog and rain, with dusk apt to catch him before he arrived at Paris.

To Fly Tomorrow
Lindbergh now plans to fly to Paris at dawn tomorrow.

Lindbergh's final decision came when reports reached Kenley that two London-bound planes had been forced down by the fog on the French coast. With his plans all made to sail on Saturday Lindbergh agreed that it would perhaps be foolhardy for him to strike out on an unfamiliar course over the English channel in a borrowed machine. The fact that he had no desire to risk a borrowed plane in a forced landing seemed to have considerable weight with the American in reaching his decision.

Fogs Over Channel
The fogs over the channel are the bane of all pilots flying between Paris and London, and only the most experienced pilots who are acquainted with the channel are willing to attempt a flight when the fogs are hanging low. It is no unusual thing for several planes to be forced down in a fog, and often-times planes cruise up and down the coast for several hours while striving to find their bearings in the mists.

Captain Lindbergh will not return to London to spend the night, but will sleep in the officers' quarters at the aerodrome at Kenley prepared to arise at the first peep of daylight to make his way to the weather permits.

TO ARRIVE JUNE 11
Washington, June 2.—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh will arrive in Washington at noon on Saturday, June 11, the commander of the cruiser Memphis today informed Postmaster General Nease, a member of the Cabinet committee arranging the national celebration for the flier.

Memphis, with Lindbergh and his plane aboard, will leave Cherbourg on Saturday morning. President Coolidge, it was said at the White House today, will not go to the Navy Yard to meet Lindbergh. The flier will be greeted by an official reception committee and escorted at once to the temporary White House in Dupont Circle where he will be a guest of the President.

IN LONDON
London, June 2.—Having no engagement until going to Croydon this afternoon to receive a memento from the British civilian flyers, Captain Charles A. Lindbergh slept late this morning at the American embassy, seizing the opportunity to rest from the exertions consequent upon being the best known and most popular American in Europe.

Captain Lindbergh's public engagements ended with the dinner of the American societies last night. He retired at the embassy shortly after midnight, admitting that the constant round of public appearances, speeches, handshaking, autographing interviews and elaborate feasts was beginning to tire him.

The ceremony at Croydon flying field at 2:30 this afternoon was intended to be both private and formal. The program was for Captain Lindbergh to say good bye to the flyers at three o'clock and then mediate go to the nearby aerodrome and pick up the royal air force plane which had been loaned to him for his hop off to Paris.

Disappointed Women
Captain Lindbergh's departure was intensely disappointing to a number of hostesses who have been besieging the embassy for permission to have him as their guest at private parties. Among them was Lady Astor, who had already obtained Captain Lindbergh's tentative promise to attend her dance at her home in St. James Square tonight.

During the morning Lindbergh conferred with embassy officials regarding the details of his passage on the American cruiser Memphis, which will carry both himself and his monoplane home. He approved the plans that had been made and gave instructions for taking the plane aboard the warship.

His Airplane
It is understood that "The Spirit of St. Louis" will be taken aboard the Memphis at Southampton tomorrow morning at eleven o'clock instead of today as originally planned. After picking up the plane the Memphis will proceed to Cherbourg for the aviator, who is expected to go on board Saturday morning. Captain Lindbergh was much relieved to find he was going to have the airplane at the same ship. He desired to superintend personally the reassembling of the machine at Washington in preparation for his flight to New York.

May Come Back
Lindbergh has promised to come back to Europe again. He wants to return when he can have all the time and all the privacy he desires to study European flying methods and European airplane construction at first hand.

Captain Lindbergh's second visit to Paris is entirely unofficial and private and he has no desire to make any engagements for tomorrow's last day upon European soil. But he will visit various French officials who have been so kind to him for a farewell and a last word of thanks.

Naturally the young aviator is highly elated over the prospect of the honors which await him at the hands of his fellow Americans, especially the high honor of being greeted personally by President Coolidge at Washington.

Plenty of Honors.
Honors he has had in plenty in France, Belgium and England—honors such as have never before in all history been accorded to a private citizen in peace time—but his heart is warmed at the thought of cordial welcomes which he knows will greet him at home.

The exact sailing hour of the Memphis has not yet been set. The cruiser will be given a rousing send-off when she steams from the Cherbourg harbor and will be escorted to sea by a fleet of French airplanes.

Captain Lindbergh was much interested in hearing about the Memphis. He was told that she is one of the fastest vessels in the United States Navy and a new craft with all the latest naval improvements. The Memphis could make the trip in about six and one-half days, but her speed probably will be timed to get her to the United States national capital on June 12.

Captain Lindbergh was elated and thrilled to learn that his mother had been invited from Detroit to be the guest of Mrs. Coolidge and to assist President and Mrs. Coolidge in welcoming him home.

So far as known here, Captain Lindbergh's stay in Washington will be brief. He will fly to New York but is anxious to fly to St. Louis as soon as possible to thank personally the people who sponsored his great trans-oceanic trip.

WASHINGTON RECEPTION
Washington, June 2.—Captain Charles Lindbergh will steam up the historic Potomac river with one of the most brilliant escorts ever furnished an American aviator, probably the most imposing reception ever accorded a private citizen in Washington.

The giant dirigible Los Angeles, scores of Army and Navy airplanes and hundreds of other craft will travel in the wake of the cruiser Memphis, it was indicated today.

The tortuous river route will carry him from the scene of many famous fleet reviews off the Virginia Capes through the favorite cruising ground of presidents and past beautiful Mount Vernon, the ancestral seat of George Washington.

Admiral's Suite
During the long voyage across the Atlantic Captain Lindbergh probably will occupy an admiral's suite, it was said by Navy officials. The cruiser Memphis, because it is the flagship of the European squadron, has specially fitted quarters for Admiral Burage, who will not make the trip.

A fast trip but no guarantee against seasickness was promised by Navy officials. The Memphis, one of the Navy's most modern 7,500 ton cruisers, can speed across the Atlantic at 33 knots an hour in comparative comfort for a hardened ocean voyager but with some danger of initial sickness for non-sea-sailors.

Hammond Chairman
Commissioners of the district, collaborating with four members of the Cabinet, were busy today under the chairmanship of John C. Hammond, noted engineer and philanthropist, in arranging the details of Lindbergh's welcome.

MISS MABEL POLLARD BECOMES MRS. BRENNAN

The marriage of Miss Mabel M. Pollard, director of religious education at the South Methodist church for the past year, and Rev. Harold Roy Brennan, took place in the Mt. Bellingham Methodist church of Chelsea, Mass., last night at 8 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Arthur D. Stroud of Westfield. Miss Pollard was attended by Mrs. Norman Goodwin of Wollaston, Mass., her sister, as maid of honor, while her bridesmaids were Miss Viola E. Hayward of Brockton and Miss Stella Brennan of Chelsea.

Mrs. Harold Brennan

The bride was given in marriage by her father, William J. Pollard, and the double ring ceremony was used. The bridal party walked through the aisle of the crowded church to the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin.

An informal reception was held at the church after the ceremony and immediate relatives of the couple were entertained at the home of the bride later in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Brennan left on an unannounced wedding trip and will be at home after July 1 at 289 Main street, Tilton, N. H.

Miss Pollard came to Manchester after the 1926 Southern New England conference and was connected with the South Methodist church for a year. She left here at the time of the conference in April of this year, her engagement to Rev. Brennan having been announced some time previously.

She was exceedingly popular during her stay in Manchester and was instrumental in building up the work of the young people of the South Methodist church. A suitable successor has not yet been found.

BIG SCOUT MEET DUE HERE ON SATURDAY

Inter-Troop Contests at Charter Oak Street Grounds Open To the Public.

Representatives of all local Boy Scout troops will compete in an inter-troop meet on Saturday afternoon at the Charter Oak street baseball grounds. Competition will be held in practically all the Scout accomplishments, similar to those meets in which two or more troops have taken part.

Enthusiasm among Scouts is running high just at the present time and there is considerable rivalry among the different troops. Troops 5 and 6 are especially anxious to come out ahead, for they were evenly matched at their meet last week.

Troop 6 has two men who are expected to qualify in the finals and figure in the winning column. They are Scouts Burr and Remig, the former says to be without a piece in the art of friction fire making and water boiling. Remig is an all around scout of many accomplishments.

JAPANESE GARDEN AT THE LAWN FETE

Maidens In Oriental Costume To Serve Guests Strawberry Shortcake.

One of the prettiest spots on the "White House" grounds during the Lawn Fete of the Manchester Community Club will be the Japanese Garden. Under the fine old shade trees which have been on the White property the lesser part of a century a section will be enclosed, illuminated with subdued lights and Japanese lights, and decorated with huge Jap umbrellas and Oriental effects.

Small tables will be set at intervals, and at these tables a corps of Japanese maidens will serve good things to eat, including strawberry shortcake and other tempting edibles not always on the menu in the land of the Mikado. One nook of the garden will specialize in home-made pies, cakes, spaghetti Italian style, and Boston baked beans.

The committee in charge of the Japanese Garden will consist of Miss Marion Robertson, Mrs. G. H. Washburn, Mrs. Alex. Shearer, Mrs. Clifford Keif, Mrs. James W. Foley, Mrs. Mark Holmes, Miss Helen Martiny, Mrs. Ida Hedge and the Misses Laurine Strickland, Marie Campbell, Ruth McMenemy and Viola Shearer.

Flower Booth a Feature.

Those in charge of the booth are Mrs. R. K. Anderson, chairman; Miss Mary O. Chapman, Mrs. C. R. Burr, Mrs. W. W. Ellis, Mrs. F. A. Nickerson and Mrs. C. H. Blankenburg.

Grounds Committee Active.

Additional Entertainment.

Anderson and Miss Mary McGuire is at work arranging a series of drills and dances in which a large number of children are expected to take part. This committee is not yet quite ready to report.

A meeting of all chairmen of committees is expected this evening at the Community Club, when progress all along the line will be reported.

AVIATION--FROM WRIGHT TO LUCKY LINDBERGH

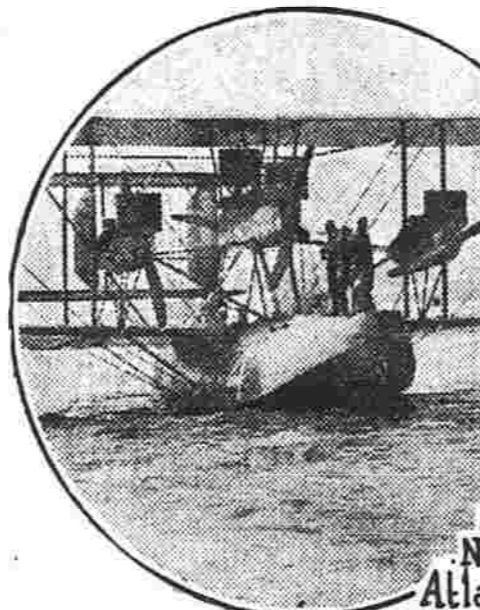

ONLY 24 YEARS AFTER FIRST AIRPLANE FLIGHT CAME NEW YORK-PARIS HOP

Dec. 17, 1903 Orville and Wilbur Wright made worlds first airplane flight

Oct. 1910 Walter Wellman failed in first attempt to cross Atlantic, flying in dirigible which came down 1000 miles out

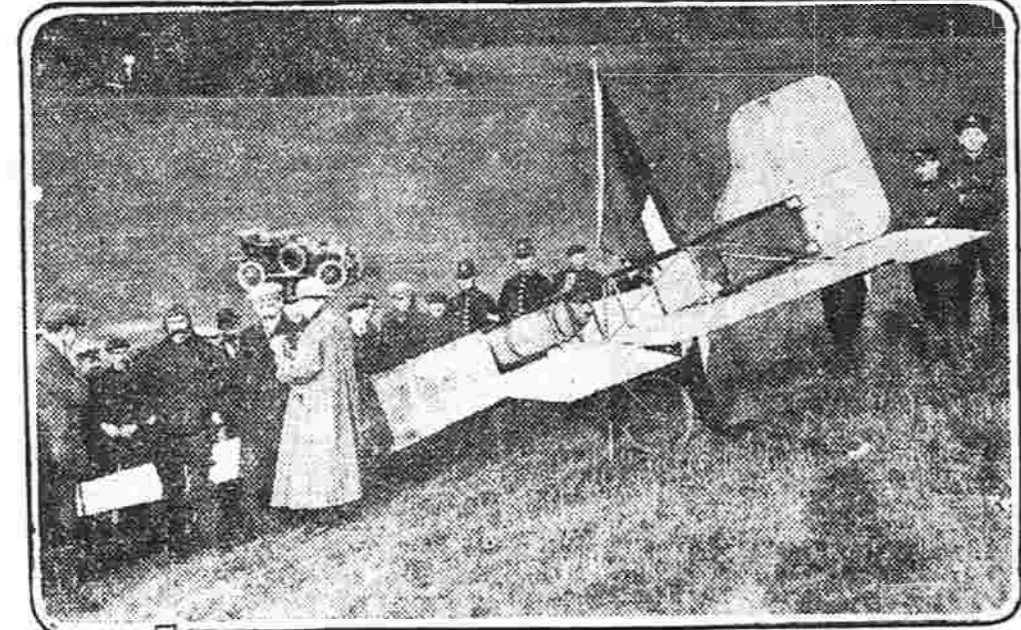

May 1919 U.S. navy seaplane NC-4 crossed Atlantic via the Azores

July 1910--British dirigible R-34 crossed from England to New York and returned

May 21-22, 1927 Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh made non-stop flight from New York to Paris

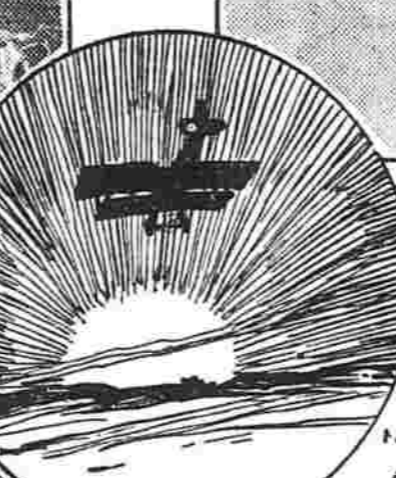

July 25, 1909 Louis Blériot flew over English Channel

June 1919 Capt. John Alcock of England made a non stop transatlantic flight

March 31, 1926 Lieut. John C. Macready broke altitude record with mark of 39,586 feet

April--September, 1925 U.S. army planes flew around the world

June 24, 1924 Lieut. Russell Maughan flew from New York to San Francisco between dawn & dusk.

May, 1926--Lieut. Com. Richard E. Byrd, U.S.N., and Roald Amundsen flew over the North Pole within a few days of each other

A queer contrivance of wood and varnished silk, carrying a cumbersome gasoline engine and attended by the shaking of many gray-bearded heads in which there nestled a secure conviction that "it wouldn't work," slid along the ground and then flattered through the air for a few hundred feet one day 24 years ago.

Orville and Wilbur Wright, bicycle makers and mechanics, had made the world's first airplane flight.

This was the start of man's conquest of the air--the region that had been closed to him from the dawn of time.

Two Decades of Progress
Twenty-four years have passed since that day. And now a sandy-haired young captain in the Missouri national guard has made a non-stop flight from New York to Paris, covering 3500 miles in a little over 33 hours of continuous flight.

The outlandish machine that the Wright brothers took aloft has undergone several improvements. All over Europe and America men began to experiment with airplanes after that first flight of the Wright brothers. There were many, many fatalities--no aviator was ever sure, when he went up for a ten-minute ride, that he would come down alive--but the development of the airplane went on without a letup.

By 1908 the Wrights and others had flown distances as great as a score of miles; the London Daily Mail offered 1000 pounds to the aviator who should first fly over the English Channel.

This feat, a mere commonplace nowadays, was first accomplished in July, 1909, by the Frenchman, Louis Blériot. His odd-looking monoplane flew from Calais to Dover in 23 minutes, and the press of the world hailed his stunt with wild acclaim. It proved a huge spur to further achievement.

Doubted Aviation's Future
There were not lacking, however, "level-headed" men who agreed that aviation would never be anything more than a costly and dangerous toy. Dr. Simon Newcomb, a noted astronomer, wrote in 1909:

"With the metals we actually have, there is a limit to the weight of an engine with a given driving power, and it may be fairly assumed that this limit is nearly reached in the motors now in use. . . . I disclaim any positive prediction that men will never fly from place to place at will. The claim I make is that they will not do this until some epoch-making discovery is made of which we now have no conception."

American newspaper, showing airplanes buzzing around a flaming taper, scorching their wings and falling. It called attention to this fact that more than 200 aviators had been killed, and asked gravely, "Is the game worth the candle?"

Despite these croaks, aviation went on. In the fall of 1910 came the first attempt to cross the Atlantic. Walter Wellman, in a non-rigid dirigible which carried a car made like a boat, took off from Atlantic City, N. J., with a crew of five men to fly to France. Adverse winds forced the ship down 1000 miles out, and Wellman and his men were rescued.

War Boom Aviation
The World War, while it interrupted almost all "stunt" flights, nevertheless was a boon to aviation in that constant military use of planes provided many refinements and made flying much commoner and much safer. After the war the game went on with renewed impetus.

In 1919 the Atlantic ocean surrendered completely to flyers. First to cross was the U. S. navy seaplane, the NC-4, which flew from Newfoundland to the Azores and thence via Portugal to England. This achievement was soon eclipsed by a heroic non-stop flight from Newfoundland to Ireland by Captain John Alcock of England, accompanied by Lieutenant Arthur Brown, an American. They made the 1980 miles in a little over 16 hours and narrowly escaped disaster when, landing in Ireland, they came down in a bog and their plane was wrecked. Alcock was killed less than a year later when he crashed while flying in France.

The plaudits for this flight had hardly died away when the giant British dirigible, R-34 flew from England to New York, waited in New York for a few days and then flew back. Thirty men made the trip.

From then on records fell rapidly. Lieutenant Russell Maughan of the U. S. army "beat the sun" in a famous dawn-to-dusk flight from New York to San Francisco in 1924, leaving New York just at daybreak and arriving in San Francisco just before dark.

Breaks Altitude Record
Two years later Lieutenant John C. Macready got farther away from the earth than any other man that ever lived by attaining an altitude of 39,586 feet at Dayton, O. This record, incidentally, was later eclipsed by French army flyers.

In 1925 the globe was girdled by air for the first time. Four U. S. army planes took off from San Diego to make the flight; one plane was wrecked in Alaska, and another was forced down in mid-Atlantic, but two planes made the entire trip, and the plane that came down in the ocean was repaired and resumed the flight in New England. The trip took from April to September.

A year ago came another epic feat when Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N., flew a big Fokker monoplane from Spitzbergen to the North Pole, being the first man to fly a plane over the hub of the earth. He was followed a few days later by Roald Amundsen in a dirigible. Amundsen, instead of flying back to Spitzbergen, flew to Alaska, going completely across the top of the world.

And then came Lindbergh's flight--the most spectacular, and probably the most dangerous, of them all.

What Will Be the Next
What the next stunt will be can only be guessed. Already there is talk of a trans-Pacific flight. Lindbergh himself forecasts commercial airplane flights across the Atlantic in the near future. Henry Ford hints that he may build giant planes to carry 100 passengers on such trips. A German firm is building a big dirigible for regular service to South America. At Akron, O., two dirigibles larger than any ever built are under construction for the government. Byrd, hero of the polar flight, plans to duplicate Lindbergh's feat.

One thing is certain: Those who predicted, a decade and a half ago, that "aviation would never be practical" must be trying now to forget that they ever said it!

GASOLINE NOW 11c
A welcome announcement is the fact that gasoline may now cost only 11c. It is estimated that this reduction would effect a saving of millions of dollars for the American Motorists. This amazing reduction is brought about by a mysterious little device that is easily installed on any car in a few minutes' time. E. Oliver, 1535 W. Winnebago St., Milwaukee, Wis., is so proud of this invention that for a limited time he is offering the device free to auto owners who will help introduce it. He also needs men everywhere and offers profits of $75 to $150 a week to men who will handle local business. Write him at once for his free sample offer and money making proposition--adv.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: P. T. Barnum (19)

Barnum's white whales died. He got two more and they died. Then he ordered pipes laid from the Museum to New York Bay so sea water could be pumped to the tanks daily. This, too, failed, and Barnum then advertised the great "Behemoth of the Scriptures," a hippopotamus. The great showman was now beginning to recover his fortunes.

Barnum added three more dwarfs to his collection--Commodore Nutt and Lavinia and Minnie Warren. General Tom Thumb fell in love with Lavinia.

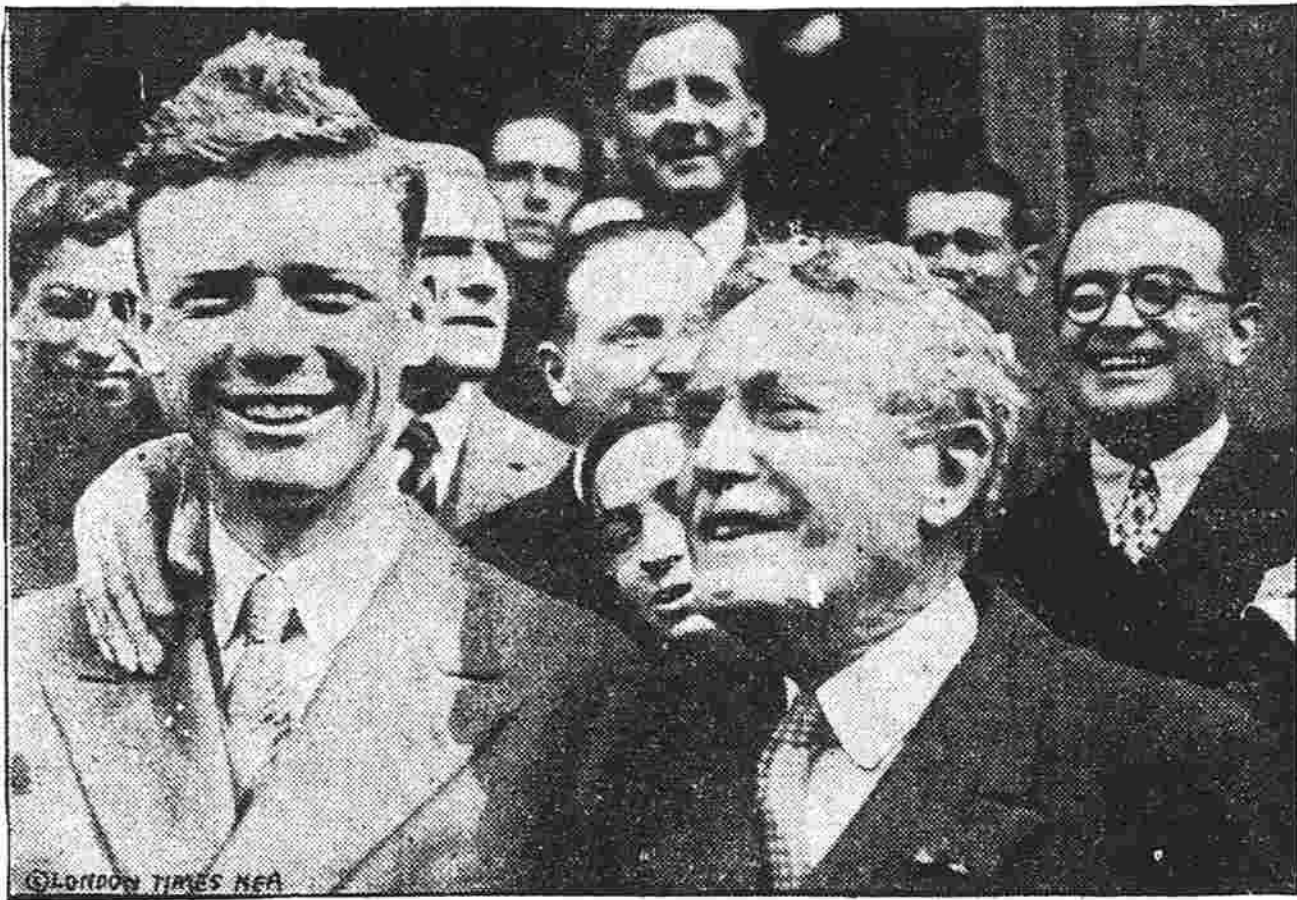

Commodore Nutt also succumbed to the charms of Lavinia, but after a swift courtship, General Thumb won her hand. Barnum spread yards of copy in the newspapers.

On their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Thumb visited President Lincoln at the White House where he gave a reception for the dwarfs. Thumb, through Barnum's sagacious exploitation and his own wisdom and saving had accumulated a fortune. Now he spent thousands of dollars on jewels for Lavinia and yachts for himself.

44 STATE OPERATORS LOSE THEIR LICENSES

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out today at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are forty-four names on the list. One case was appealed. Two were Connecticut operators convicted in other states. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

DISCOVERED AT LAST—a scientific solution to the MOTH-PEST PROBLEM

YOU NEED NO LONGER FEAR THAT MOTHS WILL RUIN

YOUR LIVING ROOM SUITE

The MOTHGUARD

—an innovation in construction that checks the MOTH HAZARD... A scientific improvement for the sanitation and protection of upholstered furniture.

The MOTHGUARD Sanitary Construction is a perforated pocket sewn into the seat of the piece, opened and closed by means of a genuine Hookless Fastener, for the purpose of inserting the MOTHGUARD Chemical.

Zip! It is open. Insert chemical. Zip! It is closed and permanently protected.

Used exclusively in Hartford by Garber Brothers on every Living Room Suite at no extra cost to you.

The MOTHGUARD sanitary construction is a patented invention for the protection and preservation of upholstered furniture.

This invention opens the way for a new and effective process of fumigating and sterilizing the interior stuffings in upholstered furniture.

The MOTHGUARD sanitary construction functions on the following principle: When an occupant sits and rises, the expansion and compression of the spring structure in the base of the chair forces air currents through the interior. These air currents passing the MOTHGUARD Chemical, generate a non-injurious gas that automatically sterilizes and fumigates the inside stuffings, thus keeping the pieces in a healthy and sanitary condition.

The MOTHGUARD is absolutely out of sight when the furniture is in use. It works automatically and is easily accessible.

It checks the moth hazard... it prolongs the life of the furniture... and it is built into every Garber Brothers Living Room Suite... See this new scientific improvement before you select any other living room suite.

Democratic Women Opposed to Wet Candidates

In her keynote speech, Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson of Maryland, chairman, announced the following:

"The National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League aspires to be the danger signal to the Democratic party and hopes, before it is too late, that our leaders will stop, look and listen. The country demands certain qualifications and certain standards for its presidential candidates. We realize that a number of the outstanding possibilities mentioned would fall of election, if nominated, because of certain disqualifications. Corrupt control of political affairs can only exist as long as the women consent to it. Women have the number and the power to thwart the aspirations of any disqualified candidate if they will only make proper use of the ballot. Women in the home have been a power for great good and we believe that with that same influence in politics, much good will be accomplished."

"Many of us feel that certain men of power in leadership have been and are now at work seeking to foist upon the Democratic party candidates who are avowed nullificationists."

"The Democratic party cannot afford to go back, it must go forward. If we are to have law enforcement we must elect to office those who believe in the law. We must not forget that the passing of the Eighteenth Amendment was the greatest effort for human advancement ever attempted in history and we should be proud that it was passed during a Democratic administration."

"Those who are the loudest in the condemnation of prohibition, and who are the biggest factors in the cry to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment are among the foreign-born element in the great cities of our country. We might say to them, if they are not willing to abide by our laws, boats are still running to Europe. We ask you, who believe in law enforcement and to observe our laws, if you are willing to remain passive, while the politicians cater to this element in our country."

"In the last election the wets won but six Senators out of thirty-five. They won but five governors out of thirty-five. But two of these, as a matter of fact, were out-spoken in their wetness: The governor of New York and the governor of Maryland. There is but one wet legislature in the United States—that of Maryland."

"There are but three actually wet states, New York, Maryland and Wisconsin. Pennsylvania, which is so proudly claimed by the wets, has a dry governor, a dry majority in its delegation in Congress, a dry majority of state officers and a dry legislature. Massachusetts claimed by the wets because it elected a wet Senator, is otherwise quite dry. Its governor is dry. It had eleven dry Representatives in Congress and three wets. The legislature is dry. All the state officers are dry."

"In Illinois, the wet and dry issue was clearly drawn in the recent senatorial election. The dries won handsomely. Two dry Representatives at large were chosen over wet opponents by majorities over 300,000. The congressional delegation, the governor, legislature, state officers are dry."

"Ohio went carefully down her ticket, picked out the dry Democrats and elected them. There is little wet territory outside of a strip 100 miles wide running from Boston to Baltimore. Now to suppose that it is possible to choose a representative of this small fringe and elect him President of that sweep of America that extends from Seranton to San Diego, from Grand Rapids to the Rio Grande, and which is shown to be politically bone dry by the returns of one election after another, is nothing less than preposterous. We as Democratic women are trying to arouse our party to this fact."

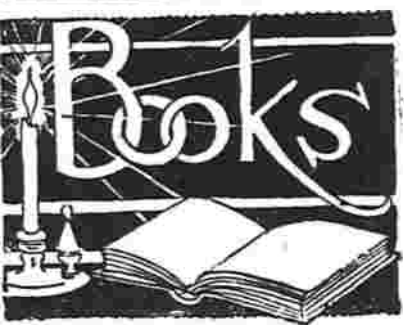

"It took fifty years to write the Eighteenth Amendment into the Constitution, and it will never be written out. The power of the liquor oligarchy is broken. After a century of deliberation and reflection, by self-imposed denial, we are freeing ourselves from the tyranny of centuries of the degradation and demoralization of drink, a sight the like of which has never been witnessed in the history of civilization."

"Our task ahead is to dig in—hold steady; and be not panic-stricken by the wet propaganda which is everywhere apparent, but to use our heads and not headlines."

"We should make every effort to elect delegates to the next National convention, but if we, who are inexperienced, are defeated in this course through political trickery, we should remember there is only one sure cure for nullification and that is a conscientious use of the ballot."

"The country expects much from the Democratic party and when our men fail to do their duty because of fear to risk their political futures, the voters turn to the women for definite action and results and we must not fail them."

BOOK OF THE WEEK

Our selection as the most worth while bit of fiction of the week is "The Street of Malcontent" (Doran), the first collection of short stories from the Pen of Cyril Hume...

MR. MAN-ON-THE-STREET. glancing fearfully about him since the great war, has framed a thousand times the despairing question: "What are we coming to?"

He has seen women getting steadily more emancipated; the "younger generation" going to tar-nation; and science, brought directly home by infernal inventions for wartime usage...

All this leads up to the consideration of several daring and thought-compelling volumes. Among the most daring is Anthony Ludovici's "Man: An Indictment" (Dutton)...

How was it, he asks, that woman came to challenge the age-old supremacy of man? How did she put over her emancipation program?

Then, slanting the situation in an opposite direction, Charlotte Haldane offers "Man's World" (Doran), as shrewd, wise and satiric, a commentary as one could wish.

The number of children to be brought into the world is scientifically regulated; it has become possible to determine sex of the offspring; motherhood has become a vocation which can be practiced only by a minority...

The outbreak of an epidemic is the greatest possible scandal, and more boys are brought into the world than girls.

Getting down to earth there is Henshaw Ward's "Exploring the Universe" (Bobbs-Merrill). Ward is perhaps the best of the science popularizers...

Thus, in his present book, while penetrating astronomy, geology, the circulatory system and what-not, Ward supplies many wise and philosophic parenthetical remarks.

Harvard University is the most heavily endowed educational institution in America. It has $70,000,000.

NEW TURBINE TO SAVE MUCH FUEL IN POWER MAKING

Hartford Electric Installs First Mercury Boiler Finding It Successful After Three Years Of Testing.

That the future holds possibilities of a large saving in fuel in the generation of electricity is evidenced in the figures concerning a new mercury boiler and turbine purchased by the Hartford Electric Light Company after three years of testing in one of its generating stations.

The mercury boiler, invented by W. L. R. Emmet of the General Electric Company, burns about 13 per cent more fuel than the steam boiler, but produces about 52 per cent more power than the latter.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE by PAUL ADAMS

This is Chapter 48 in the series written by a former doughboy who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Herald.

CHAPTER XLVIII

Down the Avenue de l'Opera early in the afternoon of St-Careme (Mid-Lent) a column of French cavalry clattered along on the pavement. The red tips of the shiny helmets, the blue capes, the burnished spurs and silvered scabbards were destined as a dash of color—an inspirational spectacle—in the gigantic parade of the queens. The presence of the detachment brought to mind the story of the single occasion on which the Allies attempted to use cavalry in the war.

Cavalry was successfully used only in advance guard work. This patrol headed a French advance into Alsatian territory.

This story was told by W. Harold Kinsley, then a sergeant in the Second Division (Regulars), now a newspaper editor in Torrance, California. And it was told by Shipley Thomas, captain of the 26th U. S. Infantry, First Division, in his volume, "The History of the A. E. F."

Offered Good Chance
"By noon of the first day this was July 18, 1918, the Allies had advanced across that great plateau, half the distance to Soissons. Apparently the German defenses had been caught unawares and the Allied infantry had broken through. Everywhere the line was advancing swiftly, and meeting practically no resistance. It was just possible that the break through had been complete. If so, the entire German garrison of this sector had been captured or killed. The total tally of prisoners seemed to warrant this assumption.

"If this were the case then here was the great opportunity for cavalry to go in and roll up the flanks. Therefore General Mangin decided to send in his army reserves, two regiments of Goulassiers, the elite of the French cavalry.

"This was the situation late in the afternoon of the first day of the attack. While the artillery was moving forward at a gallop there came moving majestically out of the Forest of Retz two columns of splendid cavalry.

Cut Them Down
"It was one of the most inspiring sights of the war. On they came, at a slow trot, their blue steel helmets flashing in the sun. Like a triumphal parade, each man in a new blue uniform, with buttons, bit and spurs burnished bright, rode proudly across the wheat-covered plateau as though in review before the whole world. Through the artillery, through the infantry supports they went and, as they passed the rear-most line of the infantry, the column lined in his saddle and shouted the command.

"Every trooper drew his sabre as the column spread out fanwise into line of battle. Raising his sabre, the column signalled the charge. On they went toward the Allied infantry outpost line.

"And then, of a sudden, there sounded the sickening tattoo of hundreds of German machine guns. The charging cavalry was literally cut to pieces. The handful still mounted tried vainly to reform, but it was evident that until every machine gun was taken, could cavalry hope to go through. This was to be an infantry battle.

And it was the infantry that killed the machine gunners—few prisoners were taken—and captured Berzy-le-Sec and Missy-aux-Bois in July, 1918.

Jungle Breath

© 1927 by NEA Service

THIS HAS HAPPENED To the quiet little South American town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, a town fringed by dark, forbidding jungle, comes an elderly American, LINGCOLN MURNALLY, a famous chemist.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER V THE chemist gazed at Vilak in bewilderment. "But . . . er . . . Tony said Potts did it and Potts admits it himself. How can there be any doubt . . . er . . . doubt when facts are as clear as that?"

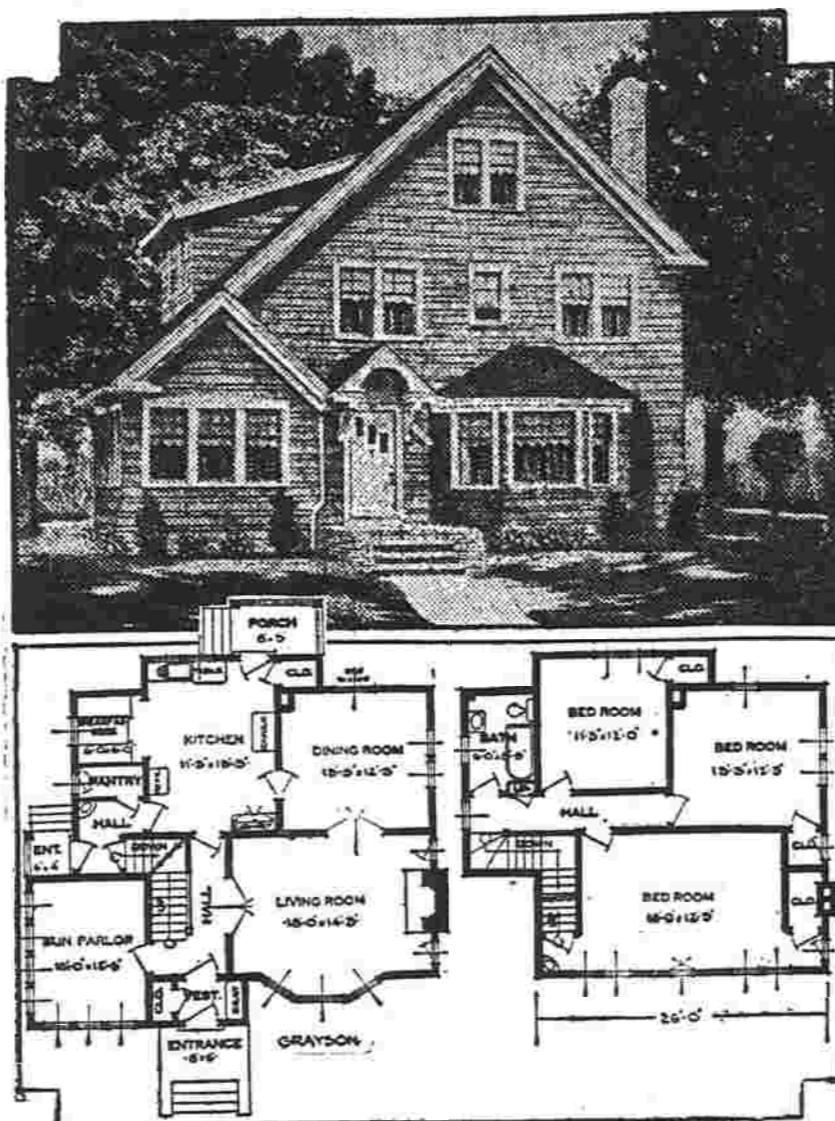

"A good scientist like yourself ought to know better than to let a suit and a trifle of makeup fool you." as I told you, rightly thinks family feuds are preposterous in this supposedly enlightened century, so she went out to his house to extend the olive branch, and do anything for him that she could. He saw her coming, banged all the shutters and doors so that the house was sealed, and though she knocked repeatedly for twenty minutes, made no sign of being inside. The next day she was walking along the road and he almost rode her down with his horse.

replied amiably. "After all, I've faced enough . . . er . . . perils in a laboratory not to fear a man merely because he has a . . . er . . . singular forehead. Moreover . . . er . . . insurance statistics give me ten more years to live, and I detest statistics. I should greatly enjoy proving them wrong. At what hour do we . . . er . . . start?"

"Elise wanted to have you stay at the fazenda, but I won't permit it, for a day or two at least. It's probably cruel to you, but I'll see more of you closer at hand. Charming girl, Elise. But too determined to be comfortable. I think you'll like her. I should say we ought to get there about eight, stay an hour or two and start from there for our visit to Prentiss. I'll call for you about seven-thirty. We'll ride out of course."

Nannally meets the beautiful Elise Marberry, and a fresh mystery is encountered. Read the next chapter.

The Woman's Day

They tell me that short-sleeved and sleeveless dresses aren't going to be sold this summer. The reason seems to be that if they're on the market, "working girls" will wear them, and if they haven't better sense, the manufacturers will keep them from such folly and, incidentally, sell more cloth. Which makes me fume and bubble like a Vesuvius.

For Women Only!

"I suppose it is because so many people think offices inhuman efficiency incubators that they are always laying down rules about how women in them should act and what they should wear and how they should have long sleeves and not bob their hair and do without rouge. I cannot in any other way explain to myself this impertinent interference with the lives of office women. Why should anyone take it upon himself to give advice about such a matter?"

An Hot Dialogue

"It isn't dignified or in good taste," one of the editors said to me. "I don't like the idea of little thin, light dresses in an office."

Just One More

Now one more quoted paragraph from Helen: "These people seem to expect women who work to become suddenly inhuman. The long day is the best time most girls have to look pretty. Then why shouldn't they look just as seductive and dangerous to men as they know how, during these important hours. If they should not do it at their work, then no woman should do it at an evening dinner."

PALPITATIONS OF THE HEART AND NERVOUS HEARTS This is the second of three health talks on heart disease.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. A celebrated French specialist in heart disease said that when a patient seeks advice for palpitations of the heart only the physician may infer that the reaction is a nervous one and that the patient does not have an actual disease of the tissues of the heart.

are due to some nervous reaction. This may involve a study of all the circumstances of the patient's life to reveal whether the symptoms tend to come on in association with any particular event of the daily routine. Sometimes the cardiac neurosis is merely a part of a general neurosis. During the great war soldiers suffered not infrequently with these nervous manifestations related to the heart.

By Olive Roberts Burton Phillip Curtis throws up his hands in a recent article called "Morality's New Threat."

Mr. Curtis tells us to cheer up—the worst is yet to come. The great menace it appears, is more supervening. It is the young generation—youthsters still in socks and slippers, the lolly-pop, the clean-throated, adenoidal, tooth-banded army of kids.

A boy of mine walked into his father's library and suspiciously wanted to him shake a silver shaker filled with cracked ice. He demanded to know what was in it. His father hesitated, but deciding that the boy would soon have to meet the world, sheepishly but bravely answered, "There's a little lemon juice, a little orange juice and a little er—a little bit, a very little bit of—a gin!"

The warm hand-clasp, the true heart beat— 'Tis these that make our lives worth while; They take the sorrow from defeat, And cheer us on the last long mile. With friends we drink life's golden wine, And find its joys are most complete, And human love becomes divine, At Good Cheer House on Friendship Street.

Good-Bye June! June has brought A lot of things, Including many Wedding rings.

Now, we're at a dinner party, and the diners, hale and hearty, spoons in hand, have started scooping, in the tuneful game of soup-ing.

Are you fond of music splendid? Then just keep your ears extended. Hark, the soup notes are sounding on the dinner air surrounding.

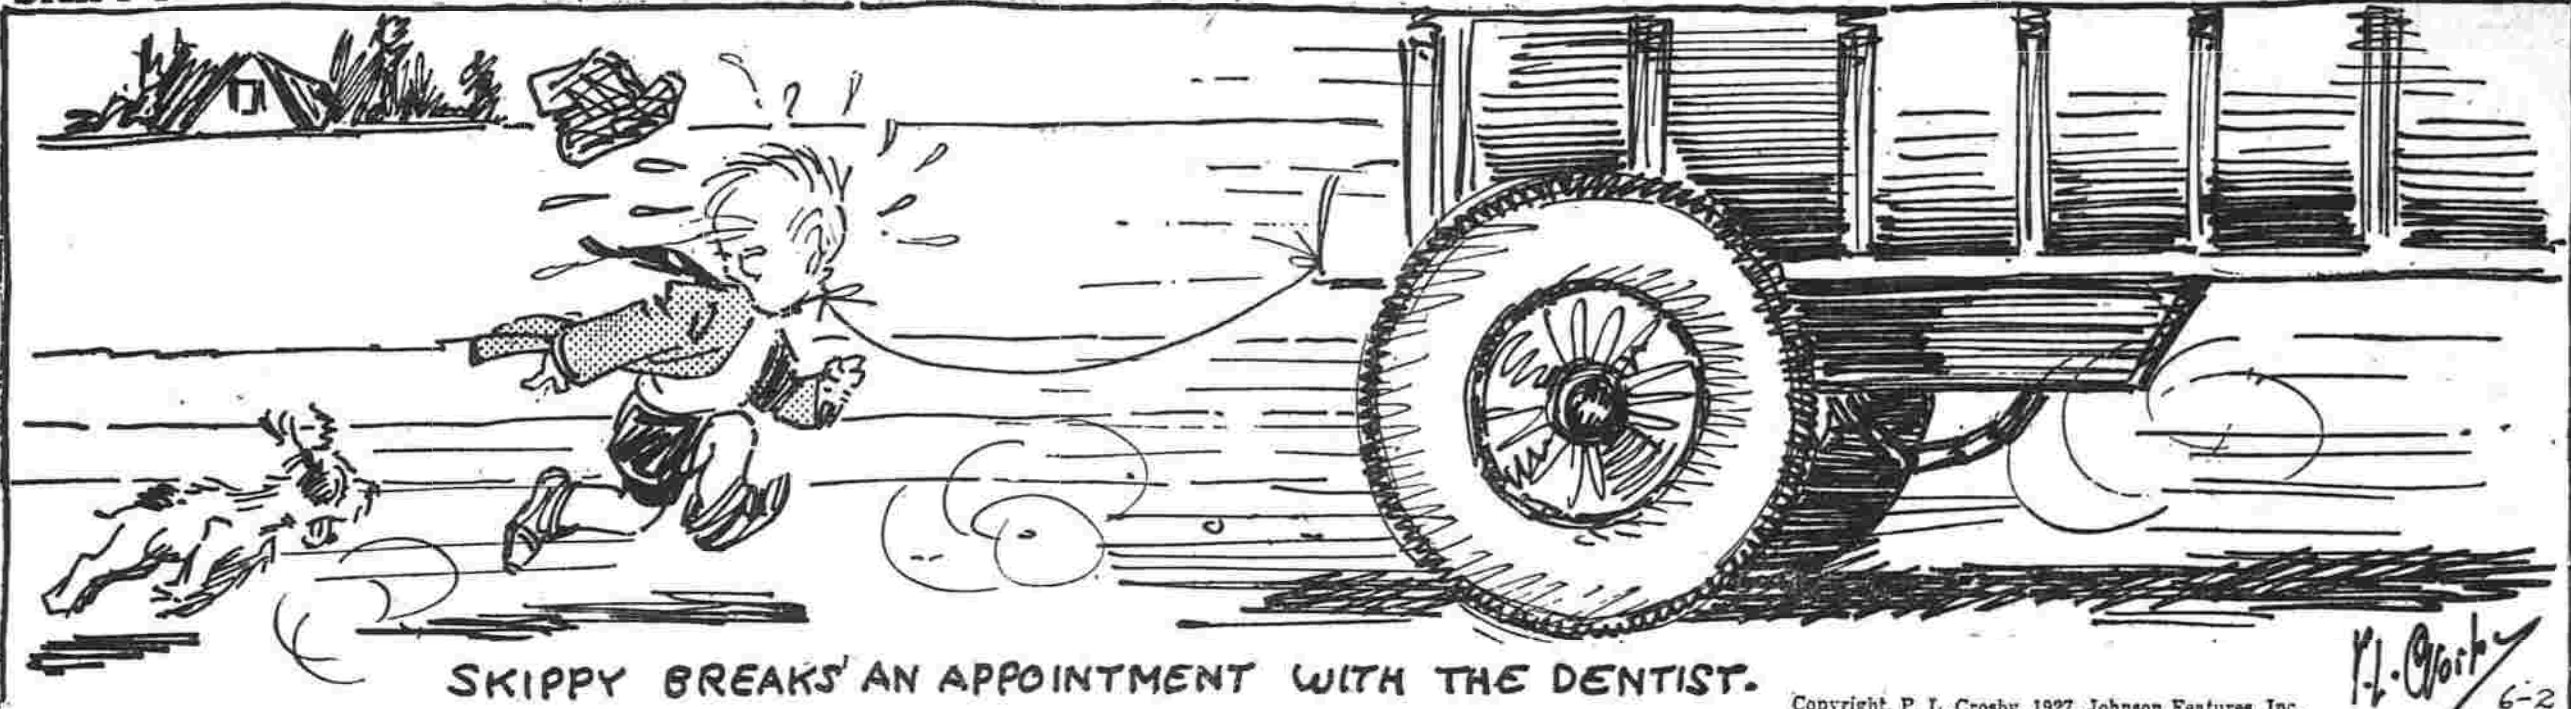

Hear the dipping and the dripping and the music of the sipping! Where is melody that's finer, than by soup and spoon, and diner!

Oh, the music of the soup dish! There is soup in every group dish just enough for the duration of a wondrous orchestration.

Hear the weird notes and the tuneful, that are played with every spoonful! Every player has a tone style that is very much his own style!

Each one differs from the other; no note sounds just like another. Thus it is, the whole collection makes a wonderful selection.

MOSTLY ABOUT U. S.

- Seven out of the ten questions today are concerned with U. S. geography and economics. The answers to these questions will be found on another page: 1-What city of the U. S. is called "The Zenith City of the Unsalted Sea"? 2-What does S. P. C. A. stand for? 3-What is the longest canal in the United States? 4-What does "Svo" mean after a book description? 5-Who was the first president to live in the White House? 6-What state has the greatest railroad mileage? 7-What state's farm lands and farm buildings have the highest valuation? 8-What are the boundaries of Alabama? 9-What is the source of the Mississippi river? 10-Where will the 1928 Olympic games be held?

Parting Greetings

"Vy for you're in a hurry?" Said David to his son. "Dot you take two steps at once? Up de stairs instead of you?"

We're getting pretty hardened but it is really true, as the fashion authorities assure us, that bathing suits are to be shorter this year we intend to look away.

THE ANYMITES

The fish that pulled the Tintex boat, up to the top would often float. They all looked fully eight feet long, and strong as they could be. "Why those are porpoise," Copy said. "Just now I saw a big one's head. Oh, see, but I would hate to save the thing jump out at me." "Aw, they won't bother us. Don't fret," said one. "They're having fun, I'll bet. We've surely traveled very swift and also mighty far. This little stream winds in and out and leads to some nice place, no doubt. The shoreline looks real strange to me. I wonder where we are." They moved along for 'bout an hour. "I think we're going to have a shower," said Carpy, as he gazed upon the dark skies overhead. "It should really start to pour, I think I'll try to swim ashore." Then Clowny laughed, "That's hard to do, though very easy said." "Why, goodness, those aren't clouds of rain," snapped Scouty.

JACK LOCKWILL IN THE AIR

by Gilbert Patten

Jack was sure the fellow was armed, and that he would hesitate at no desperate act. The boy knew he was in great peril, but he didn't lose his nerve. The aviator was peering out of the window, looking upward as if watching the menacing storm. Jack could hear a rumbling sound that was growing louder. Rising, he crept swiftly toward the man's back.

At that moment, the man spoke. "Come here and look at this," he said in evident disturbance. "It's another plane! I believe it's going to land close by!"

Now the boy perceived that the rumbling noise was the sound of an airplane motor. From the window, he saw a silvery white plane descending.

With lightning flaring, thunder crashing, and the storm on the verge of breaking, the white plane made a perfect landing and stopped near the wrecked one. Two persons sprang out and came running toward the hut. Amazed, Jack saw that Willie Darling was one of the two. Uttering a snarl, the impostor dropped the parachute, whipped out a heavy revolver, took aim and fired. (To Be Continued.)
