WAR IN CHINA, JOKE, ASSERTS LOCAL SAILOR

Linwood Massey, of North End, Just Back From the Orient, Explains the Situation.

The fighting in China is not so serious as it is said to be, and the Chinese do most of the fighting among themselves, according to Chief Machinist, Mate Linwood Massey, who returned on leave to his home at 54 Hudson street this morning. Mr. Massey has been in the United States Navy for 14 years and this is his first visit to Manchester for three years.

Chinese Method. "The style of the Chinese consists of making a lot of fuss, firing off a lot of guns and in about a week's fighting they will probably kill ten or eleven men. They aren't reckoned with seriously, and the foreigners over there treat the matter more as a joke than anything else."

Hold a Grudge. "Of late, however, the fighting is more serious as far as foreigners are concerned than it has been before. The Chinese, he points out, hold a grudge against the English because England is still collecting the indemnity resulting from the Boxer Rebellion. The English, he says, collect all the customs and it is because of this that the concessions of that country have been attacked several times."

Other foreign nations which hold concessions in the big Chinese cities, especially France, come in for their share of the hard feeling. America, however, is not so genuinely hated as are the others, for Americans are rather well liked in China.

That is how the situation looks to a local man who has spent considerable time in Chinese waters and in Chinese towns.

Came From Manila. Mr. Massey came home this time from Manila, leaving that city on January 1 on the U. S. S. Huron. The Huron was brought to Seattle, Wash., after battling a typhoon for nine days outside of the Philippines, and was put out of commission then. A steanship following the Huron foundered in the typhoon. Mr. Massey left Seattle four days ago, coming overland to this town full of pictures of places and people seen during his travels. He has been all over the Orient with the Navy and has photographs taken in Japan, China, India, the Philippines and Hawaii.

CLINE CASE MAY GO OVER A TERM

State In No Hurry to Try Noted Author; Noone Has Trump Card to Play.

(Special to The Herald) Rockville, June 6.—There is little likelihood of the trial of Leonard Cline being held in the June term of the superior court of this county this month. Cline, a noted author, is being held charged with murder.

Last Friday Judge Yoemans held a short calendar session and issued, at the request of State's Attorney Noone, an order to the sheriff of the county to call a grand jury to meet a week from today at which time the question as to the charge on which Cline is to be heard will be decided. The state is going to ask that it be first degree murder and if this is found to be the decision that the grand jury will bring, the date of the trial will be decided upon.

Judge Is Busy. Just at present Judge Yoemans, who is assigned to the June session of Tolland county, is helping out in Hartford and in making assignments on last Friday he was over until the last week in June. There are several important civil suits that are also to be heard and as the trial will probably string along for some time it is not expected that it will get under way this month.

"It is not unusual," State's Attorney Noone said this morning.

GIRL FOUND DEAD IN BATHING SUIT

Marks on Throat Indicate She Was Choked to Death — Is Identified.

Amesbury, Mass., June 6.—A woman walking on the sands of Salisbury Beach to day discovered the body of a girl, clad in a bathing suit and bathrobe and with marks on the neck of having apparently been choked.

Police, who removed the body to an undertaking parlor here, were puzzled. Dr. Randolph Hurd, of Newburyport, medical examiner, was ordered by District Attorney William G. Clark of Essex county to perform an autopsy.

The girl was about 20 years old. There were no marks of identification on her bathrobe or bathing suit.

MANCHESTER MILK SUPPLY GETS O. K.

Resident Dealers Sell Only Tuberculin Tested Product—High Rating.

The campaign of the State Board of Health and the American Child Health Association for pure milk finds Manchester with nearly a perfect record. New by-laws proposed by Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, chairman of the local health board, and Dr. Fred F. Bushnell, local sanitary inspector, will give Manchester a 100 per cent. pure record.

Now, before a town-by-law demands that milk dealers who are residents of Manchester or towns near here are complying voluntarily with local regulations and with the proposed new by-laws. Only large city concerns distributing milk purchased from farms long distances away are failing to abide by the regulation which will give the town absolutely perfect milk. With the adoption of the new proposal these larger concerns will be unable to sell milk in Manchester.

Tuberculin Tested Cows Only. The new regulation will force dealers to sell only milk that comes from tuberculin tested cows, whether the milk is pasteurized or raw. Local dealers, and those from Bolton, Coventry and other nearby towns, sell only milk from tuberculin tested cows. But large city distributors who have been branching out into this town and territory near here sell milk from farms as far away as Vermont. Even if they desired it they cannot assure their patrons that the milk they sell comes from tuberculin tested cows. Manchester dealers have an unusually high record in pure milk tests and the reputation is an enviable one. Dr. Moore and Dr. Bushnell are both profuse in their commendations of the local dealers. The regulations in force in Manchester are rigid, but they protect local consumers and local dealers as well.

LINDY TAKES INTEREST IN COLUMBIA HOP

Kept In Touch With Chamberlin's Flight By Radio; Climbs to Crow's Nest to Watch For Plane.

Aboard U. S. Cruiser Memphis, At Sea, June 6.—(By Radio to I. N. S.)—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh took a keen interest in the non-stop, New York-to-Germany flight of Clarence D. Chamberlin in the American airplane Columbia.

Lindbergh kept in touch with the progress of the Columbia by radio. In Crow's Nest.

On Sunday, Lindbergh climbed to the "Crow's Nest" of the cruiser, 130 feet above decks, in a gusty breeze to scan the horizon. He searched the skies in vain. Later, while he was in the cabin of the Columbia circled over the Cunard liner Mauretania, twelve miles to the starboard of the Memphis. The Mauretania at that time was in 49.33 North Longitude and 15.08 West Latitude. The Mauretania was visible to the Memphis but no one on board this ship sighted the Columbia.

Inspects Plans. Lindbergh, after a hasty inspection of the crates containing "The Spirit of St. Louis," spent a restful day. He remained in his cabin for several hours in the afternoon in conversation with B. F. Mahoney, head of the company which built his airplane, and then had tea in the officers' messroom. He asked to see the crew's pet kangaroo and played with it for several minutes.

AMERICAN TRADE ON THE INCREASE

Exports Over Five Billions During Past Fiscal Year, Officials Report.

Washington, June 6.—With American trade in every quarter of the globe increasing, indications today pointed to an all-time record for foreign sales in normal years, during 1927.

Present figures forecast exports of slightly over $5,000,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, and probably about the same for the calendar year, more than making up for the loss of $1,000,000,000 in foreign sales from 1925 to 1926.

Favorable Balance. Contrasted to the $377,000,000 favorable balance of trade December 31, exports will exceed imports by about $750,000,000 for the year ending June 30, while experts see a possible favorable balance of nearly $1,000,000,000 for the calendar year.

Exports, after a drop in the summer of 1926, began to climb late in the fall and during the first four months of 1927 exceeded the same period of last year by over $100,000,000. Officials predicted that the increase will be maintained for the rest of the year.

Situation Healthy. Both Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Commerce Hoover feel that the present business situation is healthy, without signs of depression.

Total imports for the year are estimated at $4,300,000,000. Exports so far this year have increased to 23 out of 37 principal commercial nations, the most important jump having been in Germany. Sales to Great Britain increased, indicating that nation is recovering from the coal strike. Shipments to France, Italy, Central America, Mexico and China were lighter.

PAY FOR VACCINES

Hartford, Conn., June 6.—The State Health Department has sent a letter to all physicians in the state telling of a change in the matter of supplying vaccines. Heretofore the health department has supplied the vaccines free of charge. The letter recites a general statute which prevents free distribution except in cases where patients are needy. Hereafter doctors must pay for the vaccines and collect from patients wherever they can. Local health officers are to act as collection agents and remit the state.

FLIES OVER 4000 MILES

Clarence D. Chamberlin (left) and his passenger, Charles A. Levine, and their plane "Columbia." They landed at 5:50 this morning in Eisenleben, Germany, after completing a 4,000 mile journey from New York. The elapsed time was 42 hours and 44 minutes.

NEW HAVEN BLAST KILLS ONE, 3 HURT

Explosion on Pleasure Boat Moored to Float—Injured Will Recover.

New Haven, June 6.—New Haven's first marine disaster of the season, an explosion on board a 42-foot cruiser, has resulted in one dead and three injured, the injured today being practically assured of recovery according to New Haven hospital authorities.

Mrs. Albert B. Street, of New Haven, died in the hospital late last night from her injuries. Both feet had practically been blown off. Mrs. Street lived twelve hours after the disaster.

Mr. Street and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey R. Clark, all of New Haven, are in the hospital, on the road to recovery. All are suffering from burns while Mr. Clark has a fractured leg and Mr. Clark a fractured ankle.

Moored to Float. Mr. Street's "Penquin" was moored at the New Haven Yacht club float while the four were preparing for a run across the Sound to Long Island. They had spent the night on board, anchored near the channel, and had come into the landing to take on gasoline and water.

Police say the party were cooking breakfast when the explosion occurred but survivors denied this and laid the explosion to an engine spark. Yacht club employees put out the flames before the arrival of firemen called by a regular box alarm. Nearby firemen, who heard and felt the explosion, were on the move before the alarm was turned in. The cruiser is a complete wreck from the force of the explosion which shook houses in the Morris Cove district.

Here's Chance for Manchester Youngsters To Break Into Herald's Weekly Cartoon

Clifford Knight, the artist who draws the cartoons for The Evening Herald, who has children of his own, knows they like to be noticed as much as older folks. So he has decided to do some drawing for Manchester's boys and girls and here is his scheme: Now that school is about over, mother expects some little help from her children around the house. Under the heading "WHAT I DO TO HELP DAD OR MOTHER," Mr. Knight will draw a sketch of what the youngsters especially like to do and he will also print the name and address of the boy or girl who sends in the suggestion. Now all you have to do is to write a little letter to The Herald telling what you like to do best and the artist will use the best ones received. NOW WHO WILL BE THE FIRST TO GET HIS OR HER NAME IN THE CARTOON?

Only 65 Miles From Berlin When Accident Occurs; Went 400 Miles Further Than Lindbergh When Gasoline Gives Out—Two Forced Landings—Flyers to Spend Night In Cottbus, Where They Landed—Berlin Prepared To Give Them Great Reception.

WIVES OF FLYERS MAKE STATEMENTS

Both Overjoyed When They Hear News That Husbands Landed Safely. Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Charles A. Levine exchanged congratulations today over the dramatic achievement of their husbands in making a non-stop flight of approximately 3,900 miles from Mineola, N. Y. to Eisenleben, Germany, and announced that they are "the happiest women in the world."

Mrs. Chamberlin was awakened in her room in the Biltmore to receive the news of the great flight. She admitted she was "only half asleep." "What a relief!" Mrs. Levine said. "I'm so proud of my husband, I'm going to take the first boat to Europe to see him."

My son, I am very proud of you and your brave pilot. The whole world hails your achievement. I am leaving on the next boat to join you. Love from Lee (the flyer's stepmother). (Signed) "Dad."

Mrs. Chamberlin, who before her marriage was Wilda Van De Bogert of Independence, Iowa, never lost faith in her husband's ability to pilot the Columbia across the Atlantic. She maintained a vigil of more than thirty hours' duration, however, before she consented to take "a cat nap."

When she learned he had landed in Germany she made public the following statement: "Much credit is due our friend, Mr. Giuseppe Bellanca, who designed and built the plane and Mr. Charles A. Levine, the owner of the Columbia, who had the courage to back the flight and accompany Clarence on this epoch-making trip. I am also deeply grateful to the thousands of people who have cheered the boys on."

Mrs. Levine, who collapsed when she saw her husband take off with Chamberlin from Roosevelt Field without saying her good-byes on the perilous adventure, has remained at her home in Belle Harbor with her two children, waiting for every scrap of news. She has slept very little since her husband's departure. A dozen friends and relatives were with Mrs. Levine this morning when Samuel I. Hartman, attorney for Levine, answered one of a succession of telephone calls. Mrs. Levine jumped to her feet and stood beside Hartman. She had been almost frantic with anxiety as at that time the flyers were long overdue at Berlin.

6:30 a. m.	Made forced landing at Cottbus, Silesia, breaking propeller.

Chamberlin landed in clover, according to Rames, for his plane was found almost buried in a clover field. "It was after five o'clock in the morning when I saw the airplane a third near my home," said Dietrich. "I got up and looked out to see what had caused the noise outside."

Sees Airplane. "There in the clover field, almost buried, I saw the great airplane, and I ran out to it. "As soon as they saw me coming, Chamberlin ran towards me, but he couldn't speak German. He was almost crying and he shouted, 'Nix Basage,' which I suppose he intended to indicate that his load was gone. I guessed his trouble and I asked 'benzin-benzol?' He understood and he answered, 'Yes, yes, benzol.' "I hurried away and got my bicycle and rushed into the village and told them to rush gasoline out, that the great American plane had come down in the clover field and needed benzol. They brought one hundred litres of benzol and as soon as it was in the tanks we helped to wheel the plane out to an even place and they took off for Berlin again."

Eisenleben, the town where Chamberlin made his landing, was the birthplace of Martin Luther. LANDS IN SAXONY Berlin, June 6.—Clarence Chamberlin, accompanied by Charles A. Levine, landed at Eisenleben, Saxony, today after completing a non-stop trans-Atlantic flight from New York and establishing a new world long-distance record, in his Bellanca monoplane, Columbia. After landing at Eisenleben at 5:50 this morning when his gasoline supply gave out, Chamberlin refilled his tanks and hopped off again for Berlin, determined to fly to his scheduled destination. He was expected here momentarily. The distance covered from New York to Eisenleben was approximately 4,000 miles, some 400 miles further than the former record, made by Captain Charles A. Lindbergh in his historic flight from New York to Paris. The elapsed time was 42 hours and 44 minutes.

HAS BAD LUCK Berlin, June 6.—Having spanned the Atlantic and broken all long-distance flight records, ill fortune pursued Clarence Chamberlin and his Bellanca plane today when he attempted to fly from Eisenleben to Berlin, his ultimate goal. The broken propeller forced Chamberlin to the ground at Cottbus, some 65 miles from Berlin. As soon as word of Chamberlin's forced landing was received here, an emergency plane was sent out with spare parts to repair the propeller, if possible and if not possible to bring Chamberlin and his

GOLF IS DANGEROUS STATISTICS PROVE

Even Bottles Figure In Accidents—Lightning and Insect Bites In List.

Hartford, June 6.—Golf is the third most dangerous sport as far as accident frequency is concerned, according to figures compiled today by the Travelers Insurance Company. Sums paid by the company for accident claims represented the largest amount paid for claims of sports or recreational casualties. Only baseball and accidents under the classification "in country or woods" exceeded golf mishaps. The most prevalent accident on golf links appeared to be slipping or falling on uneven ground. Other golf accidents included being struck by lightning, insect bites, collisions with inanimate objects, poisoning from shrubs, injuries from splinters and from being struck by a golf ball and foreign particles in the eye. The "19th hole" even figured in hazards as twelve persons were "cut on sharp instruments," the victims explaining that the instruments were "bottles."

WHEN HE LANDED Berlin, June 6.—While Clarence Chamberlin hopped across the Atlantic in the most modern vehicle, the airplane, he finally had to resort to an ancient form of locomotion—the bicycle—for aid. This is the story told today by Rames Dietrich, a mechanic, who lives in Eisenleben and was the first to discover Chamberlin when he was forced down there for lack of fuel.

C. A. LEVINE WAS BORN ON ST. PATRICK'S DAY

North Adams, Mass., June 6.—Charles A. Levine, trans-Atlantic flyer, was born here on St. Patrick's Day in 1897.

While the Bellanca's flight lacked some of the spectacular and dramatic features of the Lindbergh dash, it is nevertheless regarded by air experts as even more significant.

Chamberlin is considered certain here that Chamberlin, and probably Levine, his backer and passenger, will be accorded some outstanding recognition by the government.

ABOUT TOWN

An 8 1-2 pound son, Charles Andrews, was born Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Clemson, Jr., of 108 Oakland street.

The Women's Home League of the Salvation Army will hold a needwork sale in the vacant store in the Riatio Theater building tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Srdrick J. Straughan and Miss Hazelina Straughan of East Center street, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ward of Southfield, Mass., motored yesterday to East Northfield, Mass., to attend a sacred concert given by the students of Northfield schools at Northfield Seminary.

Manchester members of the League of Women Voters are much interested in the exhibition of "Titan's Palace," an elaborate work of miniature architecture to be shown at Sage & Allen's, Hartford, June 12 to 25.

The success of Lindbergh and Chamberlin coming atop of the failure of Nungesser and Goll and Coste and Rignot has forced France to realize there is something wrong with her aviation.

D. A. R. STILL KEEP STAFF OF OFFICERS

The annual meeting of Orford Parish Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held at the Center Congregational church parish house Saturday afternoon, was largely attended.

The officers of last year were all re-elected and are as follows: vice-regent, Miss Alice Dexter; vice-regent, Mrs. William E. Alvord; secretary, Mrs. Thomas J. Lewis; treasurer, Miss Mary Benton; registrar, Mrs. Herbert J. Cheney.

The chapter voted to buy five cubic feet of foundation under their memorial chair in the new Constitution Hall to be built in Washington.

The local D. A. R. is also planning to mark the graves of the real Revolutionary daughters, Miss Harriet Hollister and Mrs. Mary Pitkin in the East cemetery and Mrs. Lydia Couch in Mystic.

A history of the society is being compiled by Miss Ella Stanley, the historian. She has presented a collection of Manchester historical matter to the society.

TREES FALL, LEAGUE BALL GAME STOPPED

Rain and Wind Threaten Serious Damage But Do No Real Harm.

A large maple tree in front of the old Philip Larson saloon on Charter Oak street fell across the street during the thunderstorm yesterday afternoon, obstructing the highway.

This was only one of the number of incidents reported. Limbs were blown off trees in different sections of Manchester, some narrowly missing passing automobiles on the highways.

The thunderstorm did nothing worse than to cause the postponement of the second game of the double header which the Hartford Senators and the Providence Grays were playing at the McKee street stadium.

The chapter voted to buy five cubic feet of foundation under their memorial chair in the new Constitution Hall to be built in Washington.

STATE FIRE CHIEFS HERE ON THURSDAY

New Haven Fire Marshal Principal Speaker—See Bon Ami Made.

The Connecticut Fire Chiefs' Club will hold its semi-annual meeting in Manchester on Thursday, June 9 at 11 o'clock, a. m., D. S. T., in the hall at the Manchester Fire Department headquarters.

During the meeting beside the routine business there will be a general discussion on matters pertaining to fire fighting and a talk by Fire Marshal M. J. Fleming of New Haven on the subject, "Duties of a Fire Marshal."

Immediately after the meeting the club will be the guests of the district to a roast, held at the factory of the Orford Soap Co. for an inspection during the afternoon.

The speakers for the union services in the South Methodist church during July will be as follows: July 10, Rev. E. A. Legg, Connecticut Humane Society.

GIRL AUTOIST HITS CAR IN RAINSTORM

Miss Dielenschneider, New Britain, Crashes Into New Britain Machine.

Driving rain obscured her vision, Miss Mary Dielenschneider of 17 Bissell street told police yesterday after her Dodge roadster had skidded into a Dodge sedan driven by D. W. Selye of Park Drive, New Britain, opposite 333 Main street.

The crash occurred at 4:20 in the middle of a thunderstorm. Miss Dielenschneider's roadster, the top down, was proceeding south on Main street while the other Dodge was going in the opposite direction.

Neither car was damaged to any great extent, the roadster losing a bumper and having a rear fender smashed. The sedan lost a fender and one tire, which was blown out by the impact.

Municipal Policeman Rudolph Wirtalla investigated. Miss Dielenschneider has been driving her car only a short time.

ROBERT TERRILL LOSES LIFE AS BOAT CAPSIZES

Robert Terrill, of Ansonia, Conn., a brother of M. Clark Terrill, died yesterday afternoon when a sloop in which he and two other men were sailing capsized off Sand's Point near Port Washington, N. Y.

Mr. Terrill and a New York man lost their lives, the third being rescued. BUCKETEERS SENTENCED. New York, June 6.—Edward M. Fuller and William F. McGee today were committed to Sing Sing prison by Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr.

They will serve from 15 months to four years for operating a bucket truck, the offense for which they were sentenced, June 19, 1925, after three jury trials had misfired. Two resulted in disagreements and one in a mistrial.

HURT CELEBRATING. Iola, Kansas, June 6.—While performing stunts in his airplane in celebrating the safe arrival in Germany of Clarence D. Chamberlin, O. E. Barber, veteran aviator of this city, today crashed into a house, Barber and a passenger escaped unhurt.

Everybody is going to the Lawn Fete this week. Opens Thursday, 6:00 tickets sold already. Col's Band, Beethoven Glee Club. Hear them.—Adv.

ABOUT TOWN

Miss Betty Viola Matotte of Church street was married Saturday afternoon at 2:30 at the Center Congregational church parsonage by Rev. Watson Woodruff to Wesley Benson, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Benson, of 26 Orchard street.

The bride was attired in a dress of blue silk crepe and carried a bouquet of bridal roses, while the bridesmaid wore old rose silk crepe and carried a bouquet of sweet-peas.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Benson left on a wedding trip which will include a tour of the Long Island coast. On their return they will make their home with the groom's parents at 26 Orchard street.

FIRST GAS STATION HEARINGS CALLED

Notice Given of Applications For Three New Stations; Hearings June 20.

In accordance with a new state law three hearings on petitions for gasoline station permits will be held in the Municipal building here on Monday night, June 20, at 8 o'clock, daylight saving time.

The petitioners are as follows: Clarence R. Martin, at 353 Spencer street; Patrick Moriarty, at 424 Center street; Evald Erickson, at Middle Turnpike East (land owned by Aaron Cook).

All persons interested in the granting of these permits are warned today by a legal notice in another column of The Herald to be present at the hearing. If there is no objection to the granting of the permits and the Selectmen find no objections themselves they will then approve the granting of the permits and forward the application to the Motor Vehicle department.

STORM CAUSES THREE AUTO CRASHES HERE

Severe Downpour Makes Driving Dangerous—No One Injured.

Three accidents, attributed directly to the severe thunderstorm, occurred in Manchester or in the surrounding district yesterday afternoon. All were said to have been caused by skidding on the slippery roads.

One occurred on Main street and was a crash in which cars owned by D. W. Selye of New Britain, figured. Slippery roads and driving rain were to blame for this crash, the drivers said.

An Essex coach turned turtle on Lake street late in the afternoon, and a wheel was smashed. A new wheel brought to the damaged car and it was driven home under its own power. Another smash occurred on Center street when a car turned over. Neither of these latter two accidents had been reported to the police last night.

EMBLEM CLUB INSTALLS OFFICIALS WEDNESDAY

The Emblem club, the ladies' auxiliary of the Elks, will hold an installation of officers in the Elks' Home in Rockville Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock. All members of the club and all who are to receive their cards are asked to attend the installation. Those who desire further information are asked to telephone Mrs. John Chartier, 2264.

BANDITS STEAL GEMS. Chicago, June 6.—Three bandits today held up David Neison, Jr., and his son in their jewelry store, escaping with diamonds valued at $15,000.

IS FORCED TO GROUND BY BROKEN PROPELLER

Companion Charles Levine to Berlin where a great welcome awaits them.

Chamberlin's great flight, which ran like clockwork over the dangerous Atlantic route, has been dogged by misfortune since he entered the German borders.

Heavy fogs during the night apparently caused the pilot to get off his course and lack of fuel forced him to make a landing at Eisleben, 110 miles from Berlin.

Propeller Breaks. Having refueled Chamberlin took off at 9:35 from Eisleben to continue his flight to Berlin, but when nearly half way to his goal he suffered propeller trouble and was forced to make another emergency landing.

Cottbus, where Chamberlin made his second forced landing, is in Silesia and is a town of considerable size.

The fliers, who left Roosevelt Field, New York, at 6:06 on Friday morning, apparently had lost their way in a heavy fog after passing Dortmund at 11 o'clock last night, and were considerably south of their direct route to Berlin when they were held down. Their plane was undamaged, and they suffered no injuries.

Circuitous Route. Chamberlin was taking a circuitous route from Eisleben to Berlin, apparently planning on flying over Frankfurt. He had 100 litres of gasoline taken on at Eisleben, sufficient to last him only a little more than two hours. His plane was sighted over Cottbus at approximately 11 a. m., an hour and a half after he left Eisleben.

Word that he had been forced down at Cottbus brought great disappointment here, where huge crowds still awaiting Chamberlin's coming were beginning to fear his safety when he had failed to appear at 11:30.

As soon as word of his misfortune at Cottbus had been received Lufthansa officials sent out a relief plane and were prepared to offer all their facilities to Chamberlin to continue his flight in a borrowed plane if he desired.

His Flight. Chamberlin flew his Bellanca from New York up the New England coast on Saturday, then up through Nova Scotia and across Newfoundland, finally getting out to sea along the course followed by Lindbergh not so many days ago.

He was sighted yesterday afternoon by the liner Mauretania, and circled around the ship in mid-Atlantic, flying low, before resuming his journey.

Picking up the southern coast of England, Chamberlin pointed the Columbia up the English channel, and finally turned inland, toward Berlin. He was plainly sighted at Dortmund, where he again flew very low, and observers stated that the flyer leaned from the plane, shouting a question about the direction to Berlin.

Asked Directions. This the observers signalled to him, they said, and Chamberlin sped away in the direction they indicated. At this time the fog settled, however, and no more word was received for hours. Through the heavy atmosphere Chamberlin flew on and on, judging his direction as best he could without being able to sight any landmarks.

Germany," Hartman announced. Mrs. Levine threw her arms around Judge Algernon I. Nova, a relative she held her to prevent her from falling.

She laid her head on his shoulder and wept. She regained her composure, and then relatives began to shake her hands and kiss her.

"I don't know what to say," Mrs. Levine said. "I can't express myself. My thought is to thank God for his guidance. I am so proud!"

Mrs. Levine said that unless instructed by her husband to make a change in her plans, she will sail for Europe tomorrow on the Berengaria. It is understood she will be accompanied by her daughter, Eloyse, nine years old; Isaac Levine, New Haven lawyer; and Mrs. Olton Nova, her parents and attorney Hartman. The Levine's nine-month-old baby is considered too young to make the trip.

CONNECTICUT JUDGES MAKE APPOINTMENTS

Hartford, June 6.—Appointments by judges of the state courts were made here today when the state bench held its annual meeting. Offices filled were as follows: State's attorneys appointed for two years from July first: New Haven County: Samuel E. Hoyt of New Haven; Lawrence L. Lewis, of Waterbury.

Rockville OPEN SIDEWALK BIDS TONIGHT $9,000 In Construction To Be Awarded—Rev. Hopewell Still Among Missing.

(Special to The Herald) Rockville, June 6.—Five bids have been submitted for the construction of walks and curbs to be laid in this city, which will be opened at the meeting of the Public Works committee this evening.

There has been appropriated $9,000 for this work and when bids are opened tonight, it within the amount estimated, will be awarded. Have, At Least, a Seal In business communications between the City of Rockville and the Town of Manchester, it is noticeable that the Town of Manchester has no seal on its stationery, something that the City of Rockville has long had.

In the city court this morning, the young man has figured in more than one case that has had the attention of the court and while he showed signs of having been drinking it was two hours after the accident and could not be charged with operating under the influence of liquor. Judge Fisk in passing judgment first gave the young man an opportunity to turn his license over to Clerk Chapman, that it might be returned to the state, but Satryb did not care to do this. After this was refused the fine was imposed and the clerk directed to write to the motor vehicle commissioner concerning the record of the young man and set forth not only this incident of today but to tell of a fire sometime ago when he admitted burning his car to get a new one, which resulted in five other cars being burned up and for which he served at that time a term of six months in Tolland jail.

Plans are being completed for the picnic at the Maple Grove, Franklin street on Sunday, June 12 by the Polish National Benefit society, Tad. Kosciusko. It is expected that there will be a large number of residents of Rockville as well as from surrounding territory present. Admission to the grounds will be free and during the afternoon there will be music, sports and refreshments.

Rev. George Savage Brookes, pastor of the Union Congregational church will speak from Station WTC at Hartford on Monday evening, June 13 at which time he will give the talk, "Three Men in a Pew." Rev. Brookes has given this talk on various occasions and is giving it over the radio by request. The talk is humorous, educational and religious; a story of every day life.

Farewell Party Thomas E. Pascoe, former teacher in the Rockville High school and now associated with the Travelers insurance company, was given a farewell party Friday evening. Pascoe is leaving for Buffalo this week to act as an engineer for Travelers.

The Pythian social club will hold their next regular meeting Thursday evening, June 9 instead of last Thursday night. This change is due to the carnival being held on that meeting night.

The Rockville Chamber of Commerce will hold its June meeting on Tuesday evening in their rooms in the Wendheiser block and all members are requested to be present. There will be reports from committees and details of the window dressing class to be conducted by the Chamber will be announced.

The Luther League of the First Evangelical Lutheran church will hold a lawn party on Tuesday evening, June 13. The Past Chiefs of the Pythian Sisters will meet at the home of Mrs. Harriette Nutland on Grand street for their next meeting which will be held on Monday evening, June 6 at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Henry Frey has gone to Canada where she will make her future home with her daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Templeton. A big delegation from Manchester, Rockville and Stafford members of the Rockville Lodge of Elks will attend the dedication exercises of Willimantic Lodge next Thursday evening at which time their beautiful new home will be formally opened. Prominent Elks from throughout New England will be present.

Joseph and Francis Jelinek, who figured in an automobile accident on May 23, have been discharged from the Rockville City hospital. The selectmen have appointed Roger J. Murphy as tree warden of Vernon to succeed Martin E. Pierson, recently resigned.

Miss Mary Wendheiser, a member of the Rockville High school senior class, was awarded a bronze medal by The New York Times, sponsor of the National Oratorical Contest. Miss Wendheiser finished second in the state contest which was held at the Weaver High school, Hartford, April 30. Prior to this she received $50 as winner of the Tolland County contest.

Word has been received in town that the last survivor of the "Charge of the Light Brigade," the "Gallant Six Hundred" at the Battle of Balaclava, Troop Sergeant Major Edwin Hughes died at Blackpole, England, on Wednesday June 1 at the age of 96 years.

Mrs. Carroll Churchill and two children from Berna, Ky., are visiting her parents, Rev. and Mrs. C. Franzen of Hamlin street.

COMPLETE PAVEMENT JOB ON CENTER STREET

Balf Company Winding Up Work on Highway Today; Start on Main Street.

The Edward Balf company of Hartford started on the last part of the new Center street highway this morning, beginning asphalt surfacing on the road at the point where the crossover switch in front of the Connecticut company car barns was removed some time ago.

This spot has been the only one between the Center and Adams street left unfinished when the rest of the road was completed last fall. Because of incision as to what would be the ultimate fate of the car barns, the matter of moving the switch was not taken up until this spring, when all the rails leading to the car barns were removed.

The stretch has been concreted for some time and has not been open to travel until automobiles using the south side of the street at that point. The Hartford contractors expected to finish up the area this afternoon.

This same contracting company started repair work on the Main street pavement, digging up asphalt to the street level some time ago. Other points in the pavement which need repairing will be taken care of as the gang progresses south.

3RD DISTRICT DECISION ON SCHOOL THIS MONTH

Soon to Be Reached When Special Committee Make Report On Planning.

Whether or not there will be a new school building in the Third District will be decided by a committee which will report back to the district at a meeting some time this month. At the annual meeting of the district last week it was voted to give this committee power to bring in prospectus for a new building to be acted upon by the voters.

The Porter street school has been overcrowded for some time now and the matter of a new school or consolidation became something that had to be decided at once. The annual meeting did not look favorably on consolidation with the North District, with the result that that matter was tabled.

A new section was added to the main school building some time ago but even with the added desk room so afforded the school is overcrowded still. The increase in the school population late in the year has led to the number of new families which have moved into the various subdivisions in the district.

The old school building is of wood and has been the only one in that district for many years. One of the committee appointed to consider a new building are George H. Wilcox, Lawrence W. Case, Fred Pitkin, Harold Alvord and A. N. Potter. No date has been decided upon yet for the special meeting to which the committee will report.

DR. MAY NEW HEAD OF MEDICAL ASS'N

Doctors in Annual Meeting Decide to Limit Free Antitoxin Treatments.

Dr. George W. May, of 186 East Center street, president of the Manchester Medical Association at the sixteenth annual meeting of that organization held at Hillside Inn Saturday night. He succeeds Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, head of the Health Department here.

Dr. G. A. E. Lundberg was named vice-president and Dr. Howard Boyd secretary and treasurer. Dr. Noah A. Burr was placed on the committee which names the emergency duty, taking the place of Dr. Le Verne Holmes, who relinquished that duty.

Ten members of the association attended the meeting. Dr. E. B. Allen, former member of Cheney Brothers Medical Association and now connected with Bloomington Hospital in White Plains, N. Y., was a visitor. Dr. Millard Knowlton, of Hartford spoke on the distribution of diphtheria anti-toxin which hitherto has been given to patients without charge. In the future only such patients as are unable to pay for the serum will receive it free.

MANCHESTER GOLF TEAM ELIMINATED

Farmington Triumphs 9 to 4; J. P. Cheney's 79 Is Second Lowest Score; Reed's Score Is 76.

The Manchester Country Club golf team was eliminated by the Farmington team Saturday afternoon on the Farmington Country Club course in the state cup competition. The score was 9 to 4. Low score for the match went to Reed, of Farmington, with 76 while John P. Cheney, Sr., of Manchester, had a 79.

The results of the match, which was played under the Nassau system of scoring, follow: Geoghegan defeated Reed 3 to 0; J. P. Cheney Sr., defeated Dodge 3 to 0; J. P. Cheney Jr., lost to Armstrong 1 to 0; William Foulds Jr., lost to Barker 3 to 0; John Hyde lost to Regan 3 to 0 and Ben Cheney beat Caulkins 1 to 0.

CLINE CASE MAY GO OVER A TERM

"not to try a case of murder in the term in which the indictment is brought in." Thus he gave the first of his official information that the case might not be heard this term, but would go over until September.

May Have Trump Card While Judge Yoeman's may not be able to finish the cases that will start on June 28, he will also preside at the September term of the court in this county. There seems to be no hurry on the part of the state in getting the trial rushed through this term as there is much more in the way of an investigation that the state police department wishes to make. Superintendent of State Police Robert P. Hurley has given considerable time in a personal investigation and while the story as to the state's side has not as yet been learned there was that about the state's attorney that would lead one to believe that he has a trump card up his sleeve that has not yet been shown that will be sufficient to convince the grand jury that the case is one where the bill returned should be of first degree murder.

When Attorney General William King of Willimantic, attorney for Leonard Cline, engaged the services of John Buckley, United States district attorney, he secured an able assistant and at the same time a man who not only is well known as an able lawyer, but is also a man well known in Tolland county, his residence being in Union.

His services will be especially helpful in the selection of a jury as Mr. King, who is a resident of Windham county and an able trial lawyer, does not stand in the same position as Mr. Buckley in his knowledge of men in his own county.

The so-called "professional jury" bill which was enacted at the session of the 1925 Legislature, but killed at the session that just closed, will save much for the county in the calling of men for jury duty. There will be the usual number of challenges allowed by the state, represented by State's Attorney Thomas F. Noons of this city and the lawyers for the defense, twenty-five in each case. This with the number that do not believe in capital punishment and have set an opinion, will make it possible for the court to excuse. The large expense that was incurred because of previous jury duty in either the civil or criminal side of the Superior Court within a five year period will not be possible. Nor will it be possible for a man to be excused by the court without a challenge being used up, as would have been the case six months ago.

CORONER'S FINDING

Danielson, Conn., June 6.—A formal coroner's finding holding Leonard Cline, of New York, criminally responsible for the death of Wilfred Irwin, also of New York, on May 16, last, was filed here today by Coroner Arthur G. Bill and transmitted to Willimantic where Irwin died.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill, who issued the finding, declared that since Cline already has been prosecuted for the death of Irwin, there is no need of reporting the case to any prosecuting officer in Mansfield where the shooting took place that caused Irwin's death.

The detailed finding follows: "The undersigned coroner within and for the County of Windham having received notice on the 18th day of May, 1927, that Wilfred Pryor Irwin, 38 years old, of Brooklyn, N. Y., temporarily residing in the Town of Mansfield, County of Tolland, in the State of Connecticut, had been dangerously shot and was then lying in St. Joseph's hospital in the City of Willimantic, interviewed said Irwin and obtained from him an ante-mortem statement as to who had caused his injuries and the said Wilfred Pryor Irwin had died at said hospital on said 16th day of May about 11:30 p. m. I ordered an autopsy to be made upon his body by Louis Irving Mason, M. D., medical examiner for the Town of Windham.

"On the 17th and 18th days of May and the 3rd day of June I held an inquest as to the cause and manner of said death. From the testimony taken in said inquest, the report of said autopsy, and an examination of the premises where Irwin was shot, I find that he died at St. Joseph's hospital in the City of Willimantic on the 16th day of May from a gunshot wound in the abdomen.

"I further find that said wound was inflicted and the death of said Irwin was caused by the criminal act of Leonard Cline, of said Mansfield.

"The said Leonard Cline was given an opportunity to testify at said inquest but under the advice of counsel refused to do so. I delivered the body of said deceased to his widow and brother.

"I file with this finding a copy of the testimony taken at said inquest and report of said autopsy, said Leonard Cline having already been prosecuted for causing the death of said Irwin. I find it unnecessary to communicate the import of this finding to any prosecuting officer of the Town of Mansfield.

(Signed) "Arthur G. Bill, coroner for Windham County."

EXPERT INSTRUCTOR FOR C. N. G. CAMP ATHLETES

Games to Have Advantage of Special Direction; Officers of Regiment Meet.

It is planned to have a special athletic instructor at Camp Trumbull, Niantic, next month to supervise program of sports at the annual encampment of the 169th Infantry, C. N. G. Although arrangements have not been completed, Colonel D. Gordon Hunter says he has practically obtained a well-known man for the work. He was formerly in the Russian Army. He is well versed in athletics and has been in this country many years.

In previous years, it has been the custom to assign some C. N. G. officer to the duty but this has not proved thoroughly successful. The athletic officer does not have sufficient time for the work. Two years ago, Company G, of Manchester, won second place in the baseball league that was formed but last summer the game did not prove a success.

This year it is hoped to do better in baseball and there will also be boxing, wrestling and swimming events. The morning is devoted to military drilling but the afternoons are set aside for recreation.

The annual fifteen-days encampment this year will be from July 10 until July 25. The two Manchester units, Company G, and the Howitzer Company, are now conducting recruiting drives in order that they may reach the required strength for peace-time encampment. More than a dozen young men have enlisted and others are expected to be before the end of the month.

Saturday night, a meeting of the commissioned officers of the 169th Infantry was held at the Heublein in Hartford, with close to 100 per cent attendance. All six Manchester officers, Captain Herbert H. Bissell and Adam E. Dexter, Lieutenants Edgar M. Thompson and Walter Tedford, were present.

Colonel Hunter read the encampment program for the encampment, it will be about the same as last year. A few minor changes have been made but there will be the customary bivouacs and sham battle.

POLICE COURT

Six cases were before the Manchester town court this morning. Judge Johnson was on the bench and Prosecuting Attorney Charles R. Hathaway represented the state. James W. Hall of East Hartford through his attorney, William S. Hyde entered a plea of guilty to the charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Hall was arrested by Traffic Officer R. H. Wirtalla on Saturday afternoon at the North End. He was in company with another man and the officer saw they were intoxicated and that Hall was in no condition to drive a car. He advised them to have the car taken to a garage and find some other way of getting home. He later found the man driving the car and immediately placed him under arrest. Judge Johnson found him guilty and imposed a fine of $125 and costs.

Thomas Morrison paid a fine of $15 and costs for intoxication. He had been before the local court on several occasions and Alexander Crockett paid a fine of $10 and costs for intoxication. Henry Anderson was found guilty of driving without a license and was fined $10 and costs.

Joseph Wrobelaki, who was before the court, charged with intoxication had his case continued until Wednesday morning at the request of his attorney, William S. Hyde who represented him.

Leonard C. Curado of 4 Deans-street, Atlantic, Mass., was arrested by Traffic Officer R. H. Wirtalla, Saturday afternoon for speeding. Mr. Curado will be given a hearing next Saturday morning, he is a school teacher and the officer ordered him to appear at that time.

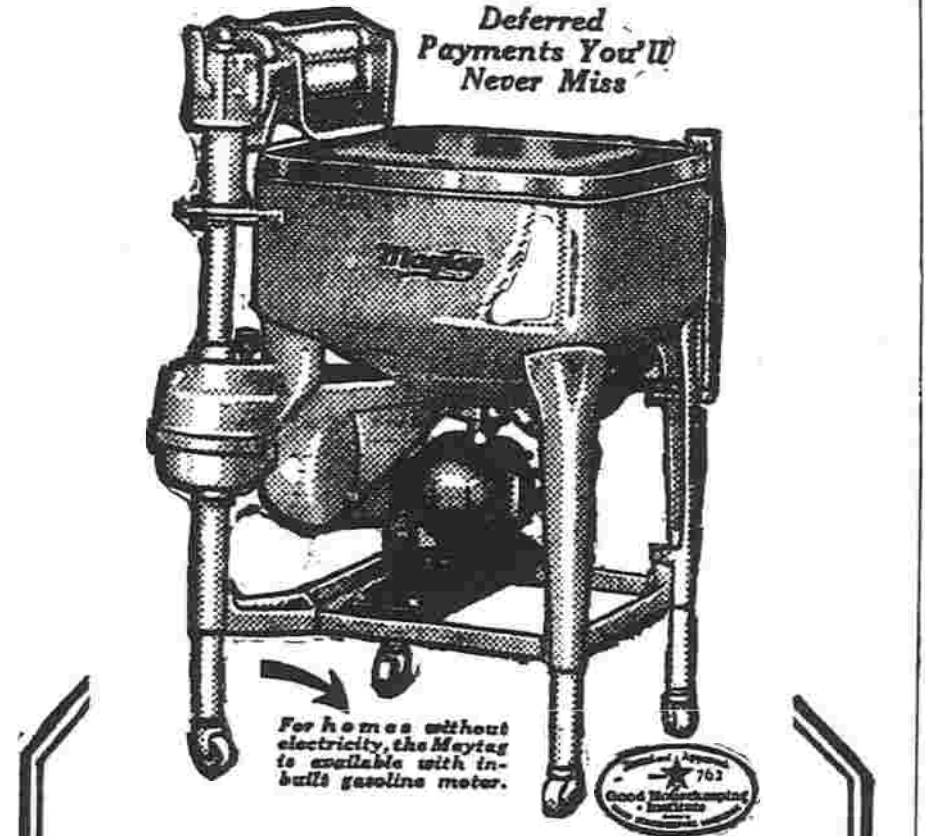

KIWANIS GOING TO HARTFORD

A fair sized delegation of the members of the Manchester Kiwanis club will go to Hartford tonight to attend a joint meeting with Hartford, New Britain and Waterbury clubs. The session will be held at Hotel Bond at 8:30 and the members have the privilege of inviting their wives. The speaker will be R. K. Atkinson, a member of the New York Kiwanis club. He is director of educational work for The Federated Boys Club International, representing 270 boys' clubs. He was formerly connected with the Russell Sage Foundation. His subject will be "The Builders."

ATLANTIC FLIGHTS.

Another American plane has crossed the Atlantic in a single flight, outdistancing the epochal voyage of Charles Lindbergh but in not the slightest degree dimming the luster of that achievement.

The popular imagination reacts by leaping to the conclusion that the great question is now definitely settled—that trans-Atlantic air transportation on a standardized commercial basis is no longer a matter of indefinite future but a substantial certainty of the immediate tomorrow.

One swallow does not make a summer, however; nor for that matter do two swallows, appearing within a couple of weeks of each other. It is still to be remembered that both the Lindbergh and the Chamberlin flights were made with the most meticulous deference to weather conditions at the most favorable of all times of the year in the Atlantic area.

At all events, there is a new Balkan crisis. And since no crisis in the Balkans is ever free from the most terrific potentialities, it is possible that Belgrade and Scutari may become of more importance in the news of the next few months than even the most outstanding aerial landing fields.

BALKAN FUSE.

Over in the Balkans occurred, on Saturday night, an incident that possibly may have more important effects than the flight of Chamberlin and Levine across the Atlantic.

That corner of the world has been in a state of suppressed turmoil ever since it became known that a treaty had been entered into between Italy and Albania by which, according to the Jugo-Slavs, Albania was fated to become a mere Italian province.

At all events, there is a new Balkan crisis. And since no crisis in the Balkans is ever free from the most terrific potentialities, it is possible that Belgrade and Scutari may become of more importance in the news of the next few months than even the most outstanding aerial landing fields.

QUEER WAR CLAIMS.

The German-American Mixed Claims Commission, which for a number of years has been working out the problem of American war claims against Germany has nearly completed its job.

Another claimant wanted compensation from the Germans for the money he had to pay for additional clerical help employed during Liberty loan drives.

FLOOD CREDITS.

In default of any possibility of congressional action when Congress is not in session Mr. Hoover's labors for the creation of extensive credits to enable the Mississippi flood sufferers to rehabilitate themselves are, of course, worthy of the highest commendation.

DETROIT'S SNIFFER.

Forty thousand cases of Canadian whiskey were smuggled into Detroit alone during the week of May 21, it is admitted by General Andrews' branch of the Treasury Department in announcing that fifty more men had been added to the border patrol in that region.

But the fact remains, nevertheless, that credit extended means debt to be borne, somehow or other, by those who are accommodated. The more money loaned to the flood sufferers the greater the obligations which those people must discharge, at some time in the future, and the greater the amount of interest added to their annual outlay.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By ROSEMARY BUTCHER

Washington, June 6.—Now that most of the summer is over, competitors of gold-sellers in your country's capital are trying to explain some of the substance moves in the recent rest-cations and promotions in the prohibition laws.

Andrews' ally, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, was opposed to Hayes. There was every reason to believe that if Andrews were to have Hayes' shovel down his throat he might promptly quit in disgust.

It is almost generally conceded that Andrews has done a far more workmanlike job of prohibition enforcement than any of his predecessors among prohibition enforcers.

Was Hayes Master Mind? But the league goes farther than that. It insists, without any public basis to this effect, that Hayes is actually a better enforcer than Andrews.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

This is Chapter 49 in the series written by a former doughboy who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Herald.

CHAPTER XLIX
The scene is laid in the cafe of the Hotel de Metz, Ste. Menchoud, France. Time—Recently. The principal characters—Monsieur Emile Denoufou, former principal Chef de Gare of the Chemine de Fer de l'Est who directed the operation of the trains that carried five huge four-inch American naval guns to the fronts in 1918—and Monsieur Jean Grossetat, patron of the hotel.
Emile, now retired, has requested a glass of wine. He called for an unusual Spanish vintage, an aperitif, for it was near lunch-time. Jean brought the bottle, covered with dust and cobwebs, from his cellar. He drew the cork with a healthy pop. Taking accurate aim, he poured the amber-colored wine, of the consistency of a light oil, into the glass.
Emile picked up the glass and sniffed. He wrinkled his brows. It was apparent that something displeased him. He brought his fist down on the table. In deep tones, filled with high anger, he assailed Jean.
Jean, a young man with a mustache, remonstrated. Evidently he was "arguing back." He sniffed the wine. Then he picked up the

He sniffed that, too. He sniffed it with short quick sniffs. He sniffed it with long, deep sniffs. He handed the cork to Emile.
Emile sniffed. Three gentlemen at an adjoining table, attracted by the argument, came over. Each one sniffed the wine. Then each one sniffed the cork. All five were talking between sniffs. Emile took a couple more sniffs of the wine and the cork. He continued his aggressive remarks and gestures. Jean, the patron, sniffed some more, also. But, it could be judged from the tone of his voice, that he was weakening.
Finally, after everyone had sniffed around or two more, Jean subsided. Emile, with a broad grin of satisfaction, was victorious. He had decided that the cork in the bottle was not a good cork and that the smell of the cork could be detected in the wine. Jean had contended that he was wrong.
The argument that followed, with all the sniffing, requiring just an hour—from 10:30 to 11:30 a. m. When it was concluded Emile drunk the well-sniffed wine. And Jean put the well-sniffed cork back in the bottle and put the bottle on the shelf.
Moral—Watch your corks.

TOMORROW: In Belgium.

WAPPING

X-ray pictures taken at the Hartford hospital revealed that Mrs. Dwyer of this town has a compound fracture of both legs, and also that the eight months old baby's foot was crushed. This was caused when the automobile in which they were riding plunged down an embankment into a creek after going through the guard rail of a bridge in Stanley Quarter, Park, New Britain, at 11:30 o'clock last Monday night. There were four other occupants in the car. William Dwyer, (the woman's husband), Guy J. Mudgett, the driver, Mary Ogan and Arthur Sweeney, all of Wapping, who were badly shaken up but were not seriously injured.
Ralph Pulford, son of Mrs. Margaret Pulford of Foster street was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital last Wednesday afternoon. He had his tonsils and adenoids removed on Thursday morning and will return to his home on Saturday morning.
The Friendly Indians or the Junior Y. M. C. A. Boys, held their meeting on Friday afternoon instead of Thursday. They start next week in company with three other teams to play a series of baseball games in the newly formed Midget Twilight League.
Miss Mary Dzen, who has been very ill at her home, with the bronchial pneumonia, is improving.
The Sunday School Board meeting was held at the parsonage last Thursday evening at which was planned the regular June social which will be held on June 24. Rev. Truman H. Woodward's class is to furnish the games and Mrs. Henry S. Nevers' class and Alford Stones class will furnish the refreshments.
Arthur Sharp of this place has recently purchased a Hupmobile touring car.
Mrs. J. Edward Collins who has been seriously ill for the past week, is much improved.
Robert Daly of East Windsor Hill has purchased a new Studebaker touring car.

"CAPTAIN SALVATION" AN EPIC OF THE SEA

Smashing Tale of Clipper Ships and Iron Men at State Tomorrow and Wednesday; Colleen Moore Tonight.

"Captain Salvation,"—sage of the seven seas, one of literature's most beautiful love stories, set in a terrific setting of struggle, elemental emotion and a maelstrom of human motives, is a paradox in pictures. The new Cosmopolitan screen drama, playing at the State theater tomorrow and Wednesday, is one of the most astounding contributions to the screen drama in years.
A love romance is told in a volcano of human emotions; with the characters that represent the brutal, fearless, the godless; the man who sailed the old clipper ships and looked death and worse in the face with a grin. It is realistic to the point of almost terror at times and is a gigantic drama of the adventure and lure of the sea. But these are only the backgrounds to the central theme, the love of a boy and girl enmeshed in a plot such as few authors have ever dreamed.
Einar Hanson, a descendant of a long line of Vikings, is the star of the piece and he is a sailor from top to toe, both by heredity and in actuality. His father is the skipper of a Swedish vessel and his brother is sailing the high seas in a captain's uniform. His grandfather, great grandfather and all his ancestors as far back as he can remember, were sailors.
Supporting Hanson in "Captain Salvation" are Pauline Starke, Marceline Day, George Fawcett, Sam DeGrasse, Flora Finch and others. The picture was directed by John Robertson.
Colleen Moore in her laughable satire on the butter and egg men of Broadway, holds the State scene again today and tonight in "Orchids and Ermine," the story of a telephone girl who wanted nice things.
It is one of Colleen's funniest pictures and the State audience last night roared over the clever situations and the humor in the subtleties. Miss Moore is at her best in this sort of thing and she certainly makes "Orchids and Ermine" one of her best productions so far.
Jack Mulhall shines as the bashful millionaire from Tulsa, Oklahoma, and Sam Hardy as his valet is a scream. The latter has read a book entitled "How to Get Long With Women" and he has learned about women from that.

Battalino to Make Pro Debut Tonight

TO-NIGHT AT HARTFORD Star Boat Bobby Brown vs. Harry Ebbetts—10 rounds. Semi-final Steve Smith vs. Sammy O'ferman—10 rounds.

The first open-air professional boxing show of the season in Hartford is set for tonight at the Velodrome, this opening outdoor "show" of 1927 furnishing two interesting incidents: The admittance of all ladies free and the professional debut of the sensational amateur featherweight, Battalino.

Baseball magnates long have set aside Ladies' Days when the charge is eliminated for the fair sex, but Homer Rainault, who is promoting the pro shows at the Velodrome is the first, as far as known, to admit ladies without charge to boxing shows.

The star bout tonight will find Harry Ebbetts, the Brooklyn Terror, pitted against Bobby Brown of Lowell, who recently defeated the clever veteran, Paul Doyle.

Ebbetts is a hard hitter as forty-three knockouts in fifty-three bouts will testify; Harry carries a real punch which is why he is one of the best box office magnets in New York.

In the semi-final, Steve Smith of Bridgeport will clash with Sammy O'ferman of the Pacific Coast, a boy who is campaigning now with success in Eastern rings. This is down for ten rounds.

Battalino will make his first step as a professional against Otto Goldberg of New York, who has met a number of well-known boys. Sid Terris chief among them. This bout, which will go on just before the semi-final, will be four rounds—this distance being prescribed under Connecticut boxing laws for an amateur making his first trip as a pro.

Two ten-round preliminaries will open the show. In one, Natty Marie of Staten Island, will meet Johnny (Kid) Blair of Utica, and in the other "Spud" Murphy, of Springfield, will battle "Irish" Tommy Jarrett of New Haven.

A new ring and new lighting system have been installed at the Velodrome.

Behind Bars Seven Years Now Is A Useful Citizen

Zieng Sun Wan, who spent five years in a death cell, was released, and is now a health candy manufacturer.

Washington.—Saved from the gallows by some of the most prominent men in Washington, D. C., Zieng Sun Wan, after an imprisonment of eight years, five of which were spent in a death cell, has become a useful citizen.

Wan was the central figure in one of Washington's most famous murder cases since the assassination of Lincoln. He was a school mate at St. Johns University, in Shanghai, of Eugene Chen, T. B. Soong, present southern government minister of finance, and many other now important Chinese.

He came to America in 1919 and after a couple of years at Ohio Northern University, studied finance at Columbia. He was an intimate friend of the head of the Chinese educational mission, T. T. Wong, and the other members, C. T. Shie and B. S. Wu.

Police detectives held Wan incommunicado and under three degrees for ten sleepless days and nights, at the end of which Wan signed the confession they wrote for him, apparently without reading it. In those ten days, he says, his weight dropped from 155 pounds to 109. For seven years and eight months he was a prisoner. He was convicted at the first trial on the basis of the so-called confession.

Then his friends began to come to his aid. John D. Davis, Hugh O'Donnell, of the New York Times; Dr. William C. Dennis, former legal adviser to the Chinese government and Tacoma-Victoria adviser to General Pershing; Senator Stanley of Kentucky; Father O'Callahan, and such prominent lawyers as Wilton J. Lambert, Dennis McKinney and Charles Fahy pushed and carried his case right up to the supreme court. The highest court granted him a writ of certiorari and a new trial. There were two more trials ending in disagreement, jurors standing 10 to 2 and 9 to 3 for acquittal. Finally the government gave up and the supreme court's part in the case stands today as one of the most important documents of jurisprudence involving the third degree.

Wan went free last May, weighing 175 pounds. He had been in a dark, narrow cell all those years, but he had exercised and, by persuading the guards to bring him raw vegetables to eat, had built himself up and saved himself from threatening tuberculosis.

Becomes Candy Merchant Wan spent several months orientating himself while friends took care of him. It was in the kitchen of an American foster-mother who had become interested in his case that Wan got the idea for his business. He made some candy and sold it. He made some more, and sold that, too. His business grew. Wan now has a store of his own.

Back in Shanghai is Wan's mother, whom he hasn't seen for ten years. Within a year, he is going back to see her, but first he had to establish himself as a merchant so he could return here under the immigration laws.

Wan's mother never knew her son's proximity to the noose. After the first trial he wrote her that he had been acquitted. Every two weeks he wrote her during those eight years, giving the street address of the jail. After it was all over, he wrote and told her the whole story.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: P. T. Barnum (22)

Housed in the Royal Zoological Gardens in London stood Jumbo, an African elephant more than eleven feet high. The giant was the apple of P. T. Barnum's eye, but such a prize seemed hopeless. However Barnum sent an agent to try to buy him. He was delighted when a price of $10,000 was suggested.

When the sale was announced in the London newspapers a storm of indignation swept England. Even Queen Victoria objected.

After an involved legal battle, the purchase was declared valid and Jumbo was crated to be brought to America.

Down at the pier in New York harbor where Barnum 30 years before had greeted Jenny Lind, the veteran showman went to meet Jumbo. Jumbo was followed by an enthusiastic parade along Broadway to Madison Square Garden. Barnum protested while Jumbo was given whisky and ale, but it revealed in the sight of the elephant tippler.

BANKS BAR FRIDAY AS OPEN EVENING

Would Throw Bulk of Work On Day That Is Legal Holiday; Explains Position.

The position of Manchester banks, which have become involved as innocent bystanders in the controversy over business evenings following the change in the Cheney Bros. paydays, was made clear today by R. LaMotte Russell, president of the Manchester Trust Co., as one of entire willingness to subscribe to any feasible plan to further the convenience of the merchants and the public. That it is not feasible to shift the one business evening of the week from Tuesday to Friday, however, was definitely established.

To pile up an entire evening's rush business on top of the Saturday morning transactions, all necessarily to be cleaned up before the bank force was enabled to quit for the latter day, would be to eliminate the Saturday half holiday entirely, Mr. Russell said, and the bank officials do not feel that they would be doing justice either to their employees or to the efficient operation of the bank's mechanism by such an innovation. The only alternative to this would be the employment of a large extra force for the Friday night and Saturday morning peak, a course objectionable not only on the ground of unwarranted expense but again of questionable efficiency.

Only Legal Day
There is a general belief that it would be possible for the banks to dispense with the Saturday half holiday and substitute a half day off at some other point in the week—Thursday, perhaps, when the stores are closed. This simply cannot be done because it is forbidden by law. Saturday afternoon is a legal bank holiday, and such banks as do business after twelve o'clock on that day do so by special legislative enactment applicable only in particular cases. So that the substitution of some other half holiday for that on Saturday is simply out of the question altogether.

If it does become evident that the public would be better served by a business evening later in the week than Tuesday, Mr. Russell said, the banks would have no particular objection to making it Thursday, for the clean-up after it could then be taken care of on Friday as it is now taken care of on Wednesday.

This would already accommodate more than half of the employees of the Cheney mills with immediate banking facilities on their pay checks and it is understood that eventually a still larger number of the mill workers are to receive their pay on that day.

Not Majority Employers
There is another point which has escaped general attention in the business evening discussion, and that is that while the Cheney Bros. concern is much the largest employer in Manchester its total payroll is much less than half of the total of all the payrolls, and other employers pay off at various times through the week. So that the convenience of the silk mill workers, though of great importance, is not the only convenience to be considered, simply because it is not the greatest factor in the situation.

Just Wait and See
"I really believe," said Mr. Russell "that if everybody would just wait until the Hewitts gets worn off this change in paydays before trying to do anything at all to adjust it, they would soon discover that there was no need to do anything at all about it. I think we could go along as we have done, without any dislocation of business or habits. Like every new mechanism the system needs to get worn down to its bearings; then it will run smoothly, without friction. However, if it does prove that we will be serving the community better by changing our open evening to Thursday we will be willing to do so. But we won't keep open on Friday because we simply cannot."

HEBRON

Miss Caroline Kellogg has recovered from her recent severe illness sufficiently to be able to return to her home.

School in Hopevale closed last week. The teacher, Warren Knowles, returned to Peacedale, R. I., where he will spend the summer. He was accompanied by Donald Coates who will spend some time as his guest there.

The Jager school has an attendance record for the month of May of 96.1 per cent. Clara Porter and Anna Michalik have a perfect attendance record for the month. Clara Porter has been perfect in attendance for the year so far.

Mrs. Fred Wilson of South Manchester was a visitor to this town on Thursday. Mrs. Wilson was formerly Miss Ida Green and spent her childhood here.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. P. Lillie who have lived for the last few years at Burroughs Hill have moved to Willimantic. Mr. Lillie will have charge of the Seventh Day Adventist church there and will also have several other churches under his charge.

Mrs. Edward Smith entertained the Young Women's Club at her home on Thursday in the afternoon. The subject taken up for discussion was birds.

An epidemic of whooping cough is reported to have appeared in Hopevale, several families being affected.

Mrs. William O. Seymis has been confined to her bed for the last few days by an attack of rheumatism. Mrs. F. R. Smith and daughter, the Misses Kittie and May Smith, also Miss Mabel Meyers, all of Stafford Springs, were guests of Mrs. T. D. Martin at her 1750 house.

Professor Dow and County Agent E. E. Tucker of Storrs Agricultural College made a visit of inspection recently on the fruit and poultry farm of Edwin T. and Edward A. Smith.

Miss Florence A. Smith of the Seymour school, West Hartford, in company with several supervisor friends spent the week-end at Graton Long Point, as the guest of her friend Miss Sayres.

Carlton B. Jones has returned from a trip to East Dover, Vermont, where he went to take Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Clinton on business connected with their farm in that place. The party was some several days. Mr. and Mrs. Clinton make their home with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Porter in Columbia.

Miss Anna Stanek has returned from New Jersey to spend a two weeks' vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Stanek. Mr. Stanek is still suffering from the impairment of vision which resulted from his recent injury to his eye and has to have assistance in driving his car.

WAPPING

Miss Betty Bracey of Hartford was the guest of Mrs. Homer Lane, on Adams at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Adams on Friday of last week.

The Federated Workers met at the home of Mrs. Homer Lane, on Friday afternoon, about a dozen ladies attending. Mrs. Albert E. Stiles of Pleasant Valley was the assistant hostess.

The choir of the Federated church held their rehearsal at the church on Friday evening this week.

About thirty-five of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Burnham gave them a surprise party at their new home at Manchester Green Saturday evening. Whist was played and the highest scores were taken by Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Willis of Manchester. Mrs. John W. Watson and Frank W. Congdon received the consolation prizes. Miss Elizabeth Stoughton in behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Burnham's friends, presented them with two gifts, an end table and a smokers stand. A buffet lunch was served.

Jungle Breath

© 1927 by NEA Service

THIS HAS HAPPENED

LINCOLN NUNALLY, elderly American chemist, mysteriously summoned to his quiet little jungle-bordered town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, encounters an old friend, VILAK, who tells him it was he who had sent for him.

Vilak's cousin, ELISE MARRBERY, an American girl who owns a coffee plantation and other land near Porto Verde and has received mysterious warnings to get out of the country. Vilak is alarmed, because several deaths already have occurred and the superstitious natives think some supernatural force is at work.

The day Nunnally arrives another man is killed, TONY BARRBETTA, one of Elise MARRBERY's foremen. He had been hit with a club in the hands of LARRY PUTTS, another foreman. Before he died a strange paralysis took hold of him, and he died.

Nunnally that he is certain Linzey Putts, though he may have struck the victim, was not the murderer.

That evening Vilak induces Nunnally to come to the house of GAYLORD PRENTISS, a retired and forbidding man, known to be no enemy of Elise. Vilak believes Prentiss is somehow involved in the mysterious deaths.

Before going to Prentiss' place, Vilak and Nunnally call on Elise MARRBERY. After a few minutes, Vilak demands of Elise what took place in her house that afternoon and she tells him all the rifles on her place have been stolen, and she, her chauffeur, and her driver, must leave the country.

CHAPTER VIII

VILAK made a quick tour of the building, then closely examined the door. "Good lock, all right," he murmured. "Open it, please."

The little German obeyed, opening a white stone interior, filled with electric wire, storage batteries, detonators, the delicate, more expensive parts of machinery which might prove too much of a temptation to the natives if left in the ordinary warehouses. The floor was bare except for the few drifting leaves inescapable in this region of superabundant vegetation.

But a tiny scrap of green, which to the old man seemed just another leaf, caught Vilak's eye. He picked it up and when the German's attention was concentrated elsewhere put it carefully in his pocket. They strolled outside again.

In a few moments they had left the puffing Schwartz, and were once more inside Elise's brilliant living room.

"Did you go to see Prentiss yesterday as you intended?" Vilak asked as he leaned over and caught a brilliant flash of light, mysteriously close to a spider web in the corner. He tangled the insect's legs in the web an instant.

Elise watched him wonderingly. "What are you doing that cruel thing for?" she protested.

"I'm being kind, not cruel," he retorted. "I am trying to show it the error of his ways and by demonstrating that such are dangerous for it, save it from crawling to an unhappy end. But it won't learn. Watch."

He lifted it from the web and set it on the floor. In a moment it was again crawling toward the web, in another the spider had swooped down and before Vilak could prevent, slain it. "A cruel law, nature's law, the jungle law, or whatever you want to call it. And the closer we are as men to it so the more cruel are we. Spider kills fly, frog kills spider, little snake kills frog, big snake kills little snake, man kills man, or another little man. Did you go to see Prentiss?"

She nodded. "After all, we are the only Americans here, and I felt like a beast for not trying to do something for him. As far as I am concerned he can have the land he's on for good. I won't dispute it."

Most were the dregs of their races, with cruel eyes and vicious, degenerate faces.

"Did you see him?"

"Yes . . . and no." She was silent a moment. "I shan't try again . . . alone."

Vilak granted. "Humph . . . what happened?"

"He came running out of his house, opened the gate, and set that enormous mastiff of his on me. If I hadn't been a fairly good tree climber it wouldn't have been very . . . pleasant."

Vilak took out his cigar case and smoked thoughtfully. Nunnally and Elise talked quietly. The old man was enchanted by her charm and intelligence. He added his persuasions to those of her cousin that she leave Porto Verde as quickly as possible, either to return to the United States or to take up her residence in some civilized part of Brazil. She only shook her head smilingly. The talk drifted to their plans for the night and then to Prentiss again. Elise, after hearing that the two men intended visiting his fazenda, remarked quietly that she would go with them.

Vilak heard. His faint, odd-shaped head jerked toward "Nunnally" he mumbled. "Afraid I'll have to contradict it."

"I'm afraid that I'll have to contradict you in turn, esteemed cousin. I'm going."

"Haven't you had enough happen to you when you went out there in the daytime? You want more trouble?"

"That's not the question." She brushed back a few wisps of hair that had strayed over her dark olive forehead. "It's merely that I've made up my mind about a few things here I've been weak and foolish before. In the past when you have gone out on your dangerous expeditions here I've done nothing except sit on my veranda and lazily read a novel. I'm not going to do it any longer. I can't with a clear conscience. I'm responsible for bringing you down here. The Victorian period is over. That's the one thing that you, with all your wisdom, can't seem to understand. A woman's as good as a man, as had as a man, as brave as a man."

Vilak put a pellet of betel on his tongue and rose to go. "The harem doors now open wide, the foolish wives to foolish freedom stride," he quoted.

"Talk away, if sarcasm makes you feel more superior. But with all due respect to you it won't change my intention in the slightest. I'm going . . . must you insist on chewing that dreadful betel?"

"Sorry, I must. And with equal regret I must also announce that you shall not come with us. Seriously," he said with finality as he neared the door. "I'm not in the slightest doubting your courage or questioning your intelligence, for which I have the highest admiration. I simply have a very strong conviction—fundamentally it may be based on prejudice, I admit—that whenever women except as a motive, trouble quickly follows. "I can't take you with me. Try to understand! And knowing your disposition I might add that if you attempt to follow, you'll be endangering all of us, mostly yourself. I'll be compelled to send you back just as you throw rocks at your dog who insists on following you down the road. Not because you don't love your dog, and wouldn't like to have him along, but because you know the chances are that he'll be killed by an automobile. Now please be sensible."

He pressed her hand gently, strolled to the door and returned with a bundle, part of which he gave to the old man, part of which he put on the floor at his feet. There are boots and gloves for you, Nanny," he said. "Get into them. And put your raincoat on now. I know you'll tell me it's hot but put it on anyway."

He helped the old man into his saddle, leaped in himself, and, waving a half-closed, half-crowded goodby to his cousin who stood peering after them, a delicate silhouette against the barred door, set off to the road again.

They retraced their route until they neared the bridge which crossed the river. A red glow showed a few hundred yards down the railroad track. "Queer," said Vilak. "Never saw that before. Let's have a look at it."

They stopped their horses nearer and through the brush saw five or six torches burning brightly, by the light of which some twenty or thirty men were hurrying about pitching a tent. They were the customary motley of black, Indian, and half-breed, with an occasional surly individual who appeared to be white. They were clad in the nondescript clothing of the typical Brazilian laborer, here a once brilliant purple shirt hanging out over vivid green breeches, there a tattered strip of cloth which had been manufactured as an American suit of underwear.

Most were the dregs of their races, with cruel eyes and vicious, degenerate faces. The teeth of some of the Indians had been filed into sharp points. "Must be section hands," Vilak remarked. "Those in the States aren't the gentle creatures in the world but they can't hold a candle to the ones they get down here. The cream of the country. Wonder if the railroad scrap them up on account of the flood. Think I'll find out."

They dismounted, stepped through the brush and reached the open. In a little depression of the land a bright fire was burning. Nunnally looked at it. His wrinkled face became "becoming" utterly to be desired are they, made of ostrich feathers in the loveliest of pastel shades or black, white or a striking combination of both.

The first one I saw held me speechless for it was of the most immaculate snowiness, worn with a black satin coat that buttoned clear up to the throat and had interesting side flares and suggested Jenny in its chic.

The boa was very long and worn with studied carelessness around the throat, tight, with one end hanging down its wearer's back and the other long end brought around and slung nonchalantly over her arm.

New Rodier Fabric

She wore a black satiny turban with soft draping. Her gloves were white lace kid with flaring cuffs. Another smart get-up was a mid-summer coat of the new Rodier fabric that looks like basket weave linen with hat of same material. The white coat with smart seven-eighths length and just quite of a flare to prove itself quite new and chic, had deep cuffs and tiny collar of black satin heavily embroidered in white wool.

The Herricks were going to give "Charlot," as everyone here calls Lindbergh, a peep at Montmartre and the way the whole crowd collected was a marvel. Aunt Louise decided we were foolish not to take advantage of our trip to see something worth while, after the crowd began to disperse.

Paris Lulu Belle

So we went to see Josephine Baker strut her stuff midnighly in a cafe after she gets through with the Polles Bergere. She has a lovely, graceful, seal-skin brown body and she danced in a blue

WHEN FASHIONABLE PARIS TURNED OUT FOR LINDY

A Flutter of Feather Boas Greeted Him, Germaine Records.

Dear Cousin: I suppose America like France, is simply rocked with the news of Lindbergh's achievement. And I suppose every daily paper is showing pictures of him here or there and telling how madly we are rushing around over here just to get a glimpse of him. Imagine, my dear I was at the field when he landed!

The One Ambition

Aunt says news of what he is doing and what is being done for him will be more than stale by the time it reaches you through my letter. But she suggests that I describe to you some of the amazingly lovely costumes in which French women are gowning themselves—hoping against hope that they will be among the lucky few who meet and personally greet "Lucky Lindy."

brock, flaring tulle skirt, light bodice with slippers matching. She is termed the "Parisian Lulu Belle." She is an American colored girl who has completely captivated Paris.

There were hundreds of distinguished costumes at this cafe. One that deserved an exclamation of delight was an evening dress of a soft citron-green with patterns of sprays of flowers done on it in gold spangles. It was topped by the sweetest evening coat I think I've ever seen—the same shade of green as the dress but of the softest, gleaming stain. It had novelty quilting bordering it and running up the front and making a flared collar that stood up like an Elizabethan ruff around its wearer's sleek, dark head.

Boas of Corduroy

The border was just too intricate and lovely for words. For it had six or eight rows of cording to give it smart finish at the edges and then it had accordion-pleated inserts quilted so that in addition to the quilted pattern, these little pleated bits between the quilting stood out like little puffs. As dainty as fair garb and fully as entrancing!

Summer furs are interesting. But it just doesn't seem right to me to fix oneself out in fur when so many ornaments, silks and laces are at hand for hot days.

Selfish

I hope my next epistle tells you that I've succeeded in actually meeting your countryman. I doubt it. They are just keeping that young man altogether too much to themselves to suit Paris. Give me a line when you feel like it. Or any other time!

With love and kisses,
GERMAINE.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Brides are hard-hearted and stingy. Old maids always want a little more heat" in their apartments. Old people are the most generous with tips. These observations come from one Harry Miles, who, after years of experience as an apartment house janitor, has just written a novel about his tenants. The book is called "Oh, Janitor." He explains bridal stinginess on the grounds that brides, not being accustomed to apartment house living, do not know enough to tip. Old people, however having "been around" some, remember the janitor. And here's a poignant observation—

"Persons of small incomes live beyond their means. The less income one has, the more inclined he is to be a snob."

Two Wives

A passing strange wedding ceremony occurred in Chicago a few days ago when wife number one acted as bridesmaid for wife number two. Neither was there hair-pulling nor the "dirty looks." Stranger still, perhaps, is the attitude of wife number one who, though learning that her husband was a bigamist, forgave him, divorced him, and helped him straighten out his tangle of self-made woes by marrying the girl whom he had duped into believing he was a single man. Maybe this was nobility of character. Then again, maybe it was a desire to get rid of a noxious pest once and for all.

Speaking of weddings, here's a novel suit. Joseph Hassatt of Mount Vernon, N. Y., recently sued somebody or other for $30,000 who hit him with a car. Joe based his suit on the story that because of injuries sustained he lost his memory, and that because he lost his memory, he forgot that he was to meet a certain girl at the church on a certain date and marry his blushing bride, and that because he did not do so, the humiliated girl now refuses to marry him at all. And who can blame him, even if all the wisecracking husbands will chortle something to the effect that he doesn't know what he was spared?

The Clear Track

Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of the New York-to-Paris flier, explains much of her son's attitude towards the perils of life. On the day that Charlie hopped off she went to her chemistry class room in the Detroit High school where she teaches, asking the principal to see that no reports of her son's progress were given her, as she wanted to be able to have her mind on her job. The ability both to desire a clear track for the job in hand and to be able to get it, is often hereditary and is perhaps the biggest trait a child can be given.

"Cook This!"

The latest. If you're dieting, you take your diet vands right along with you to your hostess's luncheon, tea or dinner party. Which means, I think, the death kneel of entertaining, for what's the use? It has been bad enough for the last few years for a hostess to plan her luncheon for days, to sigh with relief and pleasure at her perfect luncheon menu of creamed mushroom soup, sweetbread salad, hot buttered rolls and a parfait with little cakes, only to have her guests sit down, look dismayed, nibble the saltines that go with the soup, and say as each viand is passed, "I'm sorry, but I'm dieting."

Rude Pigs!

That, say I, is bad enough, but when they begin bringing their special concoctions and ordering the hostess to cook them, that, say I, is too rude to be overlooked. If you're dieting, live in private, and keep your troubles to yourself. You're no more interesting than a woman who tells all about her operations, as you try to regale a gathering with a detailed account of the demi-ounces you have lost. A nice little old lady whom I know gave a tea party the other day. It was a red letter day in her life. For a week she toiled in her hot kitchen, making little fruit and nut cakes, that improve with age, little cookies, meringues and macaroons.

Come the day. One solid hour's conversation of nothing but, "My, who in the world could eat rich things like this? My, they look delicious but I wouldn't dare! Can't I please have just a tiny unbuttered cracker?"

I tarried when the other guests had gone. The little old lady was in tears. She figured that just two of her hard-made delicacies had been eaten. "Rude pigs!" said at their retreating forms. "Why don't they stay home if they feel that way?"

Utterly becoming is the new long box of white ostrich feathers.

There is adventure ahead of Nunnally and Vilak. The night is filled with a thousand unseen dangers.

MEDICAL ETHICS TROUBLE—SOME PROBLEM FOR AVERAGE MAN

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

To the public as a whole, the question of medical ethics seems a good bit of a mystery. The average man believes that medical ethics were developed primarily for the physician, and with little regard for the patient. It is this average man believes that there should be a code of conduct—a set of principles which should govern the actions of the medical profession at large—he is often at a loss to know how to tell an ethical or unscientific doctor from an unethical and ignorant one.

In many cases, public judgment is based on the kind of a car the doctor drives, the church he attends, his wife's social position, his whiskers, or the protuberance of his abdomen. Frequently a forty-eight inch waist measure is taken as the equivalent of a forty-eight caliber brain. The fact remains, however, that a man may score high on all these points and still not be able to tell whether a sinking pain in the pit of the abdomen is due to an inflamed gall bladder or a gastric ulcer.

The recognized principles of ethics for the medical profession emphasize first of all the duties of the physician to his patient. These duties include service as an ideal, patience and delicacy as highly desirable, full assumptions of responsibility once a case has been undertaken.

Solicitation of patients is considered as unprofessional and unethical, but the customs of the community in which the physician lives should govern his actions. If it has been the custom to publish a business card in the local newspaper, there is no reason why he may not do so.

Results, after all, govern a physician's standing in his community. Fortunately, the men who are great in medicine are also likely to be great in heart and mind and spirit.

Planning Vacation Campings

By Olive Roberts Burton

Vacation for the child means just the opposite usually for the mother.

The quiet peace with which she has been able to go about her duties from eight-thirty until four will no longer be hers and for three months more or less she faces miniature pandemonium with the added anxiety of dangers of the street.

The ideal way, of course, would be to find some quiet spot in the country and let the children run loose. But it costs more than a little, even to go to "some quiet spot." Even so there is usually part of the summer at least to be spent at home.

There are two answers.

Mother will either have to be a martyr or a general. They say every mother has to have sixteen sides. We shall make it seventeen, taking it for granted that the role of martyr is not to her liking.

A general then she is, and a general must plan a campaign. A general planning a campaign must be very, very wise and most mothers are this. They know that children must be busy! They know that to be moving almost every waking minute. A greater mother has discovered that—Mother Nature. The child simply has to be given some-

GARDEN CLUB SHOW IS FREE TO PUBLIC

Display of Spring Flowers to Be On Exhibit Tomorrow Afternoon and Evening.

The hours for the spring flower show of the Garden Club of Manchester, which will be held at the parlors of the Center Congregational church tomorrow, have been fixed at from 3 to 9:30 o'clock in the afternoon and evening. The public is cordially invited and there will be no admission fee. The show is given in line with the club's purpose of fostering interest in floriculture and the expense of the exhibit will be met by the membership.

The judges will begin passing on the merits of the various exhibits at 1 o'clock, before which time it is essential that all showings shall be in place, and it is expected that the awards will have been made before the doors are open to the public.

THE TINYMITES

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

The Tynmites followed Old King Roar along the beach a block or more and then they reached a monstrous oak. Said he, "My shack's up there. We'll have to shimmy up the tree. Come on now, Tynmites, follow me. It really isn't hard to do, if you will all take care." So, up they scrambled, one by one. It really was a heap of fun. It didn't take them long to reach the shack where they were bound. Then Scouty stopped and said, "I fear that all of us are not up here. I've looked around for Cloway and he's no where to be found." King Roar then said, "I think you're wrong. Just listen to that snoring sound. Then gaze upon that yonder hump. I think your friend's asleep." Said Coppy, "Goodness me, you're right. He may as well sleep there all night. He surely will be safe there, if his balance he can keep." Then all the rest crawled in the Admission 10 Cents.

ABOUT TOWN
 The Beethoven Glee Club of the Swedish Lutheran church will rehearse at the church tonight at 8 o'clock.
 Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Anderson, and son, Russell, and daughter, Dorothy, of Edgerton street, spent the week-end at the Nyquist Cottage at Walnut Beach, Milford.
 Mrs. Mary Behnfield of Russell street with her daughter, Emma, who recently left town to spend the summer at her cottage at Watch Hill, R. I., reports that great improvements have been made on the Fort road property since the syndicate has taken over the land formerly under the control of the government. A number of Manchester people spend their vacations at Watch Hill every year.

The members of Sunset Rebekah Lodge, No. 29, will meet at the Center street entrance of the East cemetery tonight at 7 o'clock, sharp, for the purpose of decorating the graves of the deceased members, and holding a memorial service at the grave of Sister Leonora Bidwell, the first noble grand of the lodge. Following this service, the Rebekahs will hold their regular meeting in Odd Fellows Hall.

The Ladies' Sewing Circle of the Highland Park Community Club will go on their annual outing Wednesday. They will spend the day at Mrs. Fitch Barber's cottage at Bolton Lake. All those expecting to go should meet at Nichols store at 10 a. m. sharp.

Dror Olson, who will be graduated from Upsala college, East Orange, N. J., the last of this month, was a week-end visitor at the home of Rev. and Mrs. P. J. O. Cornell of Church street. Mr. Olson will assist Rev. Cornell during the summer months.

The French and German clubs at the High school have went to Crystal Lake this afternoon where a picnic was held. Miss Marie C. Nelson, Miss Florence E. Kelley and Miss Minnie B. Rook were in charge. More than fifty school children went on the trip.

Miss Millicent Fox of Oakland street entertained a number of Hartford young women at her home on Friday evening. The party was given in honor of two of the young ladies, who will be graduated this month from the Culver-Kindergarten training school in Hartford. A very enjoyable evening was spent. The hostess had her home beautifully decorated for the occasion and served dainty refreshments.

The regular monthly meeting of the Lake View Parents Association will be held at the South Main street school tonight at 8 o'clock. U. J. Luppian will give an interesting talk on "Sportsmanship."

Watkins Brothers are installing new draperies in the women's room of the South Methodist church. The draperies are in old gold and will harmonize with the subdued decorating scheme of the room. This place is furnished in early American style, its chairs having rush seats and being of old fashioned type. The room also houses the early Italian carved cabinet which contains the communion service.

Rev. Joseph Cooper of the South Methodist church left for Danielson today to attend the Norwich District Union Ministerial conference, an annual affair.

The annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 in the Center Congregational church. Contributions of flowers are requested for the Memorial hospital for invalids who are confined to their homes.

UNEXPLAINED GAS FIRE FAILS TO DAMAGE CAR

Tank Is Filled, Then "Poof!" There's Flame A-Plenty; No Cigarette to Blame.

Fire at 10 o'clock last night for a few moments threatened Campbell's Filling Station but was quickly put out by Delphis St. John, an employee, with a fire extinguisher.

Hartford motorist stopped at the station to get some gas. St. John filled the tank and started back toward the station when flames burst out from the automobile. No one but the driver of the car and St. John was present. Due to the heavy rain, the car was wet and St. John was able to put out the fire before it did any damage. It is not known how the fire started. Neither man was smoking.

HOSPITAL NOTES

The census at Memorial hospital is the lowest in many months, indicating that there are comparatively few persons seriously ill in Manchester. The hospital has a 50-bed quota but has only 28 patients in its wards.

Admissions Sunday were Mrs. Veronica Allen of Broad Brook and Howard Fish, of 47 Elm street. The latter has ear trouble.

There were four discharges yesterday, as follows: Mrs. Bernard Le Pine and infant son, Bernard, Jr., of 195 Eldridge street; Mrs. Mary Pasqualini, of Wapping, who had been in the hospital since May 28; Philip Keith, four-years-old, of 31 Cambridge street, who had had six tonsils removed and Miss Agnes Rankin, of 62 Russell street, who has recovered after a major operation performed a month ago.

As the result of a fall of a few feet from the veranda steps at his home on 205 Union street, yesterday, Charles Lachat, aged 50, was removed to the hospital with a badly fractured left leg.

ENVOY LEAVES MEXICO.

Mexico City, June 6.—United States Ambassador James P. Sheffield was given a great farewell last night by members of the American and British colony when he left for the United States. Many Mexicans also came to say goodbye. Ambassador Sheffield insists that his trip to the United States is merely a vacation, but the reports of his resignation persist.

TROOP THREE WINS BOY SCOUT CONTEST

Lads Stick to Test Stunts In Heavy Rain; Boy Breaks Arm on Field.

Troop 3 unexpectedly came through to win the annual Boy Scout inter-troop meet which was held at the Charter Oak street grounds on Saturday afternoon. This troop, which was given stout opposition by Troops 5 and 6, led these two by five points in the final count. Troops 5 and 6 tied for second place with 32 points each and Troop 5 won the toss for the place. A large crowd of interested persons attended the exhibition and although rain interfered later in the day the Scouts continued their stunts until the schedule had been completed. Competition was keen and the outcome was in doubt until the last event. Troop 3 won this and the meet, having 37 points at the end. Troop 7, the other competitor, finished with four points.

Burr Boss Fire Maker
 As it was expected, Francis Burr of Troop 6 won the friction-fire and water-holing events with ease. He was overthrown in the semaphore and Morse event, with Russell Remig, both considered almost certain winners. The Hartford judges had difficulty in awarding the prizes for the various events, for the competition was unusually close.

Roy Johnson, a member of Troop 5, suffered what is thought to be a fracture of the arm when he fell while running around the field with a number of other scouts. He was taken to the offices of two doctors, neither of whom could be found, and later went to the hospital to arrange for X-rays.

After the meet the members of Troop 6, sixteen in number, went to their log cabin at Highland Park with Scoutmaster Ray Mercer. They stayed overnight at the cabin, returning yesterday.

MARY C. SHEA

Mrs. Mary C. Shea, of Avery street, South Windsor, died at her home early yesterday after a long illness. She is survived by five sons, two daughters, two brothers and two sisters. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning with services at the home and St. Bridget's church. Burial will be in St. Bridget's cemetery.

EPWORTH ANNIVERSARY NOTED BY LOCAL BODY

Pageant Given at S. M. E. Church Marks 38th Year of Religious Society.

The 38th anniversary of the organization of the Epworth League was observed last night in the South Methodist church when a pageant was given by the local branch of that society. It was entitled "The World Has Gone After Him," and was staged under the direction of Miss Pauline Beebe and Miss Ethel Brookings.

Rev. Joseph Cooper gave a short address on "The Aim and Origin of the Epworth League" and the scripture reading was given by Myron Burr. The pageant, an allegory, showed the dream of an Epworth League, taking him through the Nativity, and going, to some extent, into other religions besides Christianity.

Following is the cast:
 Bob, a Leaguer, Robert Wilson; Dot, his sister, Miss Ethyle Little; The Three Kings, Arthur Krob, Eric Crawshaw, Roberts Burr; the Greeks Who Would See Jesus: Philip and Gordon Maxwell; Two Greeks, Robert Mercer, David Hutchinson; Andrew, Thomas Corder.

In Moslem lands: Two Moslems at prayer, Roberts Burr, Arthur Krob; a young student of Persia, Eric Crawshaw; traveler on the road, Raymond Mercer; Muezzin, Rev. Joseph Cooper; Mr. Kramer, Robert Mercer, Mrs. Kramer, Florence Wilson; Oriental girl, Alice Harrison.

Mrs. C. S. Nyquist and son, Evan, of Linden street spend the week-end at their cottage at Walnut beach, Milford.

SALVATIONISTS' BAND HAS BIG NORWICH DAY

Delights Patients of Two Hospitals, Plays For All-City Union Service.

The Salvation Army band visited Norwich yesterday, where a full day's program had been scheduled. They left by bus from the citadel at 8 o'clock, arriving in Norwich-Town where they held an open-air service, afterwards taking part in the regular church service held in the Congregational church. After the church service the band visited the State Hospital where they gave a concert for the inmates for about three-quarters of an hour. The officials had permitted such inmates as were able to listen from the grandstand in the ballgrounds and the band has never played to a more attentive audience.

After the visit to the State hospital the band went to Uncasville on the Thames where another concert was given for the patients of the tuberculosis hospital. There are a great number of patients, many of whom are unable to leave their beds. It was a treat for them to lay and listen to the band play and sing. Some patients from Manchester were highly pleased to see the band boys and have a little personal visit with them. At 3:00 a concert was given in Union Square where the band was welcomed by Mayor Waters of Norwich. Here a large crowd gathered.

The day's meetings were concluded by a united service in the Central Baptist church, when all the churches of the city joined for a big mass meeting. Major Bates of Hartford was the special speaker at this service. Commandant Abbott, the local officer, accompanied the band, and was the speaker in the morning at Trinity Methodist church, when he gave an address on the work of the Salvation Army.

The rank team of Memorial Lodge, No. 38, K. of P., will go to East Hartford tomorrow night to confer two ranks on East Hartford lodge members.
