SATURDAY EVENING POST

WATKINS BROTHERS Today!

LIKE a smart hat or choice jewel, The Avon, sketched at left, is far from common. It will find its way into few homes, and only in those where there is discriminating taste. For the number is limited.

In style it is reminiscent of Jacobean England. Its woods possess the mellow finish of a rare antique. The hand-carved panels, colorful hand-painted decoration of the china cabinet, the soft shading of mouldings and turnery, as well as the rich Jacquard Velour chair upholstery, and the mahogany trays for silver and linens—all are examples of exquisite workmanship.

If you are planning on a dining room suite this summer—or even for this fall—see the Avon now. Ordinarily a suite at this price is not featured as a bargain. But after you have seen it, you will agree that we are justified in advertising this group as a BARGAIN IN FINE FURNITURE.

The design and hardware are typical of puritanical simplicity. Bed, dresser, dressing table and bench as sketched, regular $302.00.

Buffet, table, china, arm chair and 5 side chairs in walnut, butt walnut and gumwood. Regular $465.00.

4 Piece Colonial Group $229

9 Piece Early American Group $219

Mahogany, crotch mahogany, maple burl and gumwood are the woods used. Dresser, bed and chest comprise the suite. Other pieces, including twin beds, in stock.

9 Piece Pennsylvania Suite $539

4 Piece Early Colonial Suite $259

OPEN FORUM

DON'T CHANGE PRESENT SCHEDULE, THIS PLEA

Editor, The Herald: I read with interest what Mr. Robert La Motte Russell said on changing the opening nights at the bank. Like him, I think it would be wise indeed to let things stand as they are. Cheney Brothers are the largest employees of labor here, but there are others. If Cheney Brothers pay on Thursday and Friday, others pay on Saturday, others pay on Monday and so on.

If the late night is to be changed to Thursday it would interfere with the half holiday and the store employees would suffer the loss of that, not to speak of the employees themselves. It is undoubtedly a great boon to storekeepers to have a half day that they really can call their own. If withdrawn it would certainly be a misfortune, to my mind. It is a great wonder to me how that there are any of the stores found open on that Thursday afternoon. It surely cannot be greed that keeps them open, to rather the odd dollars that usually go into other stores, or, perhaps, it is their great love for work. I think it is the former.

Now we all know we are not here forever. We all ought to consider one another. No one should take the advantage of another. If a regular half holiday has been established let it be that way. All honor to Manchester. She may be the only place that upholds a half holiday in the eastern states all the year through. It only goes to show the sense Manchester has in having it and the lack of sense of those who do not take it. It is their misfortune.

Business will be here after we are all gone and we can take no dollars with us. If we want to do a little other business or to go anywhere we have always that day. Minds are at rest, we know. No one acts the heavy end of things for all are off duty.

I have never seen a letter in The Herald from any employee about "closing" question. I would like to see one or two just to get their ideas in general. I am perfectly sure they are all one on the question. It will be kept the "Thursday afternoon holiday" by all means.

The public will not suffer any inconvenience. The storekeepers will not lose anything either. Most people are fair minded. I have spoken to many people about it and every one says it is right for the storekeepers to get a half holiday as well as people in factories.

Now, like Mr. Russell, just let things be as they are for a time. Things will right themselves. If insufficient business is done on a Tuesday night, why keep open at all that night. Business will spread itself all over the week. At the end of the week there will be as much cash in the register as former weeks, when every one was open on Tuesday. It is a long day indeed for anyone to stand from 7 a. m. till 9 p. m. Is it not? One day like that in a week is enough. It is hard to break a custom. Let our humanity come first and let our motto be do to others as you would have others do to us.

I have always had a great respect for Mr. Russell, and also The Manchester Herald and trust that The Herald will be a publication that will make the golden rule its motto, which I believe it does.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (1) The Universe. SKETCHES BY BESSEY SYNOPSIS BY BRACHEN. If Captain Lindbergh could fly his plane away from the world into the vast system we call the universe, and see through powerful glasses, he would behold a wonderful picture. In the center would be the sun, 93,000,000 miles from the earth. At the top is Saturn, then Jupiter, then Mars, then our world. The moon is shown just below the earth. Proof of the fact that our world is round is shown in the way a ship comes over the horizon—as if climbing a hill. Our ball—the earth—spins on its axis just as the other planets whirl through space. As the earth turns around the sun day follows night. The earth has undergone many changes. Earthquakes have torn apart its surface, volcanoes have spouted forth and buried whole cities and vast creeping mountains, called glaciers have changed hills to valleys. Ancient earth-folk feared volcanoes and worshipped fire gods they believed the flames represented. (To Be Continued)

NEARBY PANHANDLER BEGS THROUGH MAILS

Solicits Money By Letter to Keep Him on Job of Distributing Tracts.

A unique system of panhandling has been brought to light by a prominent Manchester man who reports that he has received a number of letters from a man living in a nearby town, asking for money. Enclosed in the letters are a number of religious tracts, which cost the sender nothing. They are put out free by various tract societies in the middle west and are given to anyone who takes the trouble to write for them. The begging-letter man mentions in his communication that he has sent out 32,700 of the tracts within a period of nine months. According to his statement he sent out 3,406 letters between October 1 of last year and June 3 of this year. That he is in the business on a rather large scale is evident, when it is figured that his total expense cannot run to less than $100. Employers Capital. His 3,406 letters represent an outlay of $68.16 for stamps alone. Figuring the cost of the envelopes and paper at one cent each, his total expense would be $102.24. This is only for nine months of the year and it is possible that he spends $25 more during the other three months. Other panhandlers who employ similar methods give their requests a commercial atmosphere by offering for sale ties, coat plaster or needles. This man does not offer anything of the kind for sale, but merely distributes tracts. By comparison with the advertising expenses of some of the smaller stores in Manchester, it is seen that the mendicant is spending more than a number of them for advertising. Whether or not his return is adequate is not known, but if his advertising is bringing the usual results, he is probably well off. An excerpt from his letter reads:

What the Lord Sends. "Just a sample of what I am sending to those that I have not written to for about four months. All I have to do this with is what the good Lord leads others to give me. And in that way was able to send out 3,406 letters containing about 32,700 tracts between October 1, 1926 and June 3, 1927. "Hope to hear from you soon and may God bless you and your family is ever the wish of"—the signer.

MOTHER: Darling, you were out awfully late last night. I'm afraid I'm dreadfully old-fashioned, but I should like to know where you go. DAUGHTER: Certainly, Mummy darling. It's all right, isn't it, Mummy? MOTHER: Of course, darling. It's only that I just wanted to know—Punch.

FARRELL IS PICKED TO WIN THE OPEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Walsh Thinks Bobby Jones Will Be Out Of It This Year—Other Favorites.

By DAVIS J. WALSH I. N. S. Sports Editor

New York, June 9.—Largely inspired by the notion that a man who wins five of his last nine major championships might be about due to fumble on the two-yard line, the impression got about today among the boys in the half-column pants that Bobby Jones no longer would be champion at the end of the national open golf championship in Pittsburgh next week.

Farrell a Corner Farrell undoubtedly is what is called "hot" right now, thanks to his sensational victory over a great field in the Metropolitan open.

But it seems silly to attempt even to hunch a man like Jones out of a championship. All he has to do is to play to the speed he has been capable of in other medal tournaments of the last two or three years and most of the entries will fold up like an empty pouch.

One excellent bet is that Bobby won't be more than three strokes behind the winner and another is that the latter must average 73 strokes for the four rounds.

The hunch on Farrell in particular and an outsider in general is a reasonable good one, if only for the fact that, in a competition in which anyone of thirty or forty men might win, all hunches are good until after the tournament.

Barnes and Hutchinson have not been dangerous factors for several seasons; Sarazen and MacFarlane never have been the same since their great years in 1922 and 1923 respectively.

Yes, provided Jones obligingly flops, Oakmont looks like a great spot for the outsider, and he doesn't necessarily have to be Farrell. It could be Joe Turnesa, runner-up to Jones at Scioto last year, or Leo Diesel, who finished in a tie for second place at Inverness as far back as 1920 and hasn't been able to do anything about it since.

The Referee

What is Bob Fothergill's batting average for the period he has been in the big league?—A. K. J. Fothergill's average for five seasons is .338.

Was Tommy Burns ever heavyweight champion?—R. H. K. Yes. From 1906 to 1908.

The Manchester High school track team will close its season tomorrow afternoon when Chapman Tee of New London comes to the West Side field. Competition will start promptly at 3 o'clock.

Captain Billy Hall, who is out with an injured ankle, is not expected to be in shape to compete tomorrow. His absence was one of the main reasons why Manchester lost the league meet.

LAZZERI HITS OUT THREE HOME RUNS

'Poosh 'em Up Tony' Smashed Babe Ruth's World Series Record Yesterday.

New York, June 9.—It's the "home run triplets" of the New York Yankees instead of the home run twins from now on and the third member of the triumvirate is Anthony Michael Lazzari, the handy man of the New York infield and former home run king of the Pacific coast. Tony stole Babe Ruth's world Series stuff yesterday by walling three homers in one of the wildest games ever seen in this man's town.

Seventeen homers were made yesterday, six of them in the Yankee-Sox game. The series thus far has been a home run carnival, ten circuit clouts having been delivered in two games.

It appears as if the acquisition of Swede Carlson from the Phillies may mean a pennant for the Cubs. Carlson couldn't win for the Phils but he scented the pleasing fragrance of World's Series kate in Chicago and beat Dazzy Vance of Brooklyn, three to two, although Vance yielded only five hits.

The Speeding Boston Braves won their fourth game of their current tour, beating the Cardinals again eleven to eight. The Braves took sixth place away from the Phillies, while the Cards dropped to third.

Cincinnati, now playing ball for the first time this season, just lasted to beat the Phillies, five to four, for their fourth straight place. Fothergill's homer featured Detroit's five to three victory over the Red Sox.

SURPRISES TONIGHT AT STATE THEATER

Laschaway's Band and Country Store on Program—"My Official Wife" Feature.

The great Laschaway and his coterie of jazz hounds are all ready for their first public appearance on any stage this evening. They will be heard in a concert as part of the Country Store. Laschaway, who comes from Holton, and is the widely known Charleston Champion who made a reputation for himself here a year or two ago and is quite well known.

On the same program will be the gripping drama of Russian love, starring Irene Rich and Conway Tearle. The title of the picture is "My Official Wife." The heroine of the story finds that after many years the man she hates the most is the same man with whom she has fallen in love.

Peculiar situations and tight places which seem never possible of solution are abundant in the story. Miss Rich is ever the emotional actress and her work is ably supplemented by that of Mr. Tearle. The former is the countess who is mistreated by a group of Russian noblemen who think she is a peasant. The latter appears as one of this group of irresponsible young men.

Scenes are laid on the snow-covered plains of Russia and the settings are exquisite. Good photography gives to the film scenery enough for a travalgue picture.

Thomas Meighan, the screen's most popular male actor, is the attraction at the State tomorrow and Saturday in "Blind Alleys," a story of New York's East Side. The second feature on the same program is "The Sunset Derby" starring William Collier, Jr., and Mary Astor.

The story tells of a Captain Daniel Kooby of the Merchant Marine, who has arrived in New York with his bride. He is struck by an automobile at one of the busy corners and taken to a hospital. Maria, his wife, looks for him but is captured by a band of crooks. Dan, on the other hand, is picked up by a girl and brought to a boarding house, where he lives with her. The climax comes when Dan's wife finds the two in their boarding house and is about to leave for Cuba. Dan follows her and they explain everything.

In "The Sunset Derby," William Collier is given a difficult role, that of a coward without any backbone. How he comes to life through the love of a girl and wins the race is the plot of the film.

TIPS The check girl gave him service and With right hand out stood pat. Of course he knew she craved a tip That's why he tipped his hat.

About all some girls seem to learn at finishing schools is that they are better than their old friends back home.

"Wilkins informs me that he is going to marry the lady with whom he has been boarding." "Why? Is he tired of paying board?" "No. He's tired of being asked to pay board."

THE FOOL I had a friend the world called a fool. A man who had faith in the Golden Rule. Who smiled when things did not go right And refused to lose faith in friendship's might. Playing the game according to rule: And the world dubbed him a fool.

How they laughed at this fool as he went his way, Finding new pleasure in each new day. Getting a smile from the simplest things. Acting as if he were a king. Playing the game according to rule: But the world called him a fool.

Little they knew of the things he'd seen. The planting of seed that soon blossomed green. Things he had found in the hearts of men. Wonderful friends he found now and then. Playing the game, according to rule: And the world called him a fool.

But was he a fool, oh friends of mine. Or just a branch from a heavenly line. The kind of a man you can depend upon. Who knows he is right and will carry on: God bless such a man, whatever his guise. If he be a fool, may he never grow wise.

Face powder has put more men down and out than gun powder.

"Does it pay to raise accredited chickens?" "If they are sold, yes. If they are stolen, no."

"Believe me, sir," said the dealer. "that dog's the best bred animal in the world. Why, he won't even 'ave 'is dinner without his collar on!"

Too short for a bathing suit—must be a dress.

Conductor (ringing bell): Never again, lady. I did it once and I have regretted it ever since.

THE ANYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN - PICTURES BY KNICK

(Read the Story, Then Color the Picture)

The old King said, "Well, Scouty, lad, this deep sea floor is not so bad. I think you'll have a lot of fun. At least, I hope you do." Wee Scouty smiled and said, "You bet. Of course this water's kinda wet, but I am very tickled and I'll be real brave like you."

The king picked up a shining shell and Scouty shouted, "Gee, that's swell. It'd like to have a lot of those to carry back to shore." Just then the queer shell opened wide. A funny thing swam right outside. "Oh, my, we must have scared it. That's too bad," exclaimed King Roar.

Then Scouty turned around to see just where the funny thing could be. He watched it wiggle round a bit, then swim with all its might. And, in the meantime, old King Roar decided he would leave once more. When Scouty turned to talk to him, he'd passed right out of sight.

Along the bottom Scouty went. A lot of thrilling time was spent in looking over queer shaped shells, and very pretty stones. He saw some white stuff just ahead. "It's bet that's ivory," Scouty said. But when he reached it, he just laughed. 'Twas only old fish bones.

When for an hour he'd looked about, he suddenly felt tired out. "I must sit down," said he. "I wish that I was back on dock." His legs grew tired. He couldn't stand, but didn't dare sit in the sand, so he was very tickled when he found a mossy rock.

He hadn't been there very long, when something near at hand went wrong. He saw a sudden swish or two, then quickly seemed to know, a big swordfish was charging him. My goodness, how that fish could swim! So Scouty jumped to run away, as fast as he could go.

(Scouty battles with the swordfish in the next story.)
