

NEW YORK GREETES LINDBERGH

CHAMBERLIN AND LEVINE DODGE CROWD

Wherever American Flyers Go In Germany They Are Greeted With Cheers; Honored By Air Pilots.

Baden Baden, Germany, June 13.—Although incognito, Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine are unable to escape adulation. The two American flyers who ended their trans-oceanic jump in Germany a week ago today, are here today for a rest with but little prospect of getting it. Throughout their journey from Berlin their train was greeted by hundreds gathered at the stations and the conductor was forced to give them an extra compartment to hold their floral tributes hurled on the train.

Greeted by Aviators At Karlsruhe the association of ex-air pilots presented Chamberlin and Levine with the insignia of their association and made them honorary members. Thus Chamberlin is the only former allied pilot to have the insignia of the German war pilots. On arrival at Baden Baden the two flyers were taken by storm, 3,000 ardent admirers cheering them and the mayor and members of the City Council extending an official welcome to them. The crowds carried the two flyers to their automobiles upon their shoulders.

FOUR GIRLS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Two Seriously Hurt Near Winsted When Sedan Upsets on Wet Road.

Winsted, Conn., June 13.—Four young girls, two seriously injured, are in the Litchfield hospital today after an accident last evening, that occurred just over the state line near New Boston. The injured are Esther Anderson, 17, a member of the Gilbert school class that is to graduate next Wednesday; Miss Alice Wells, 15, of Colebrook; Miss Evelyn Anderson, 14, and Miss Margaret Willis, 18. The first two are believed to have fractured skulls, while the others are less seriously injured.

Miss Esther Anderson was driving a car owned by Ralph Cooper, of Colebrook, on a road wet by a shower, and put her brakes on too hard. The car upset, rolled over three times, and landed on top with its wheels in the air and the girls pinned beneath.

IRISH REPUBLICANS GAIN AT ELECTIONS

Running Neck and Neck With Government Party—Coalition Planned.

Dublin, June 13.—Aside from the fact that the Irish constitution is safe the political position resulting from the general election will not be clear before tomorrow. Up to ten o'clock this morning the following results were known: Government candidates elected, 25; Labor, 18; Farmers, seven; Independents, seven; National League, five; De Valera Party (Republicans), 28; Sinn Fein, three; Independent Republicans, one.

Although the government party and the De Valera party are neck-and-neck, now, it seems very probable that a coalition will be formed between the government party and some of the other parties supporting the constitution to make it certain that the De Valera party's attack upon that document will not bear weight.

CLINE'S CASE BEFORE JURY; NO DECISION

Eighteen Men Hear Presentation of State's Case Against Novelist; Little Interest Displayed by Public.

By Staff Correspondent
Rockville, June 13.—The grand jury of eighteen men meeting here today to decide whether or not Leonard Cline, famous novelist shall face trial for the murder of Wilfred Irwin at Cline's country home in Mansfield on May 16 was still behind closed doors at press time. The jury went into conference at 10:40 this morning after receiving instructions from Judge Edward M. Yeomans.

Such a long session of the grand jury was unexpected. At noon the jury ordered coffee and sandwiches brought to them, and this was taken by county officials and newspapermen present to indicate that a long session was ahead of the empaneled men.

State's Attorney Noone was not allowed in the room with the grand jury since he was in no way a witness nor having been on the scene of the murder. Sergeant Harmon of the state police barracks at Stafford Springs remained throughout the entire procedure in the jury room.

Arrives at Court.
It was 9:37 when Sheriff Fred Vinton arrived in Rockville with Cline. He was accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Hammond of Coventry who rode from the Tolland county jail with him. He was admitted to the Memorial building by the west door that opens into the police court room and then up the stairs to the superior court room.

He wore a blue suit and low black shoes, a brown felt hat, turned down in the style of the Prince of Wales and wore glasses. He was clean shaven, looked as though he might have been working in the jail parlor. He sat beside the sheriff and was reading a paper while awaiting the arrival of his lawyer, former Attorney General William King of Rockville. Mr. King arrived about ten minutes before the court opened and with him was Mrs. Cline and also his sister, Elizabeth Wierzing, an attractive looking woman and a graduate of Wellesley college. Both took places beside Cline, his wife sitting to his left and his sister to the left of her.

Mrs. Cline's Appearance.
Mrs. Cline, who is an undersized woman, did not present a prosperous appearance as she sat close to her husband. She wore a rose colored felt tight fitting hat, pulled down over her forehead and with nothing but two large beads as decorations. Her long black coat covered a light blue dress and her stockings were of a steel gray. Her shoes were low and linked. Beside her husband she looked extremely small. She is of dark complexion with dark brown eyes.

She sat with head bowed and as court opened with prayer she stood bent slightly forward, with her hands crossed in front of her breast, holding a rather large leather purse. Cline's sister is an exceptionally tall woman, not stout, but more of the athletic type. She appeared in a black chic hat, a black pleated dress and wore white gloves, and at her wrist wore two plain hand bracelets. She was of light complexion, a blush on her face gave just enough color to add to her attractiveness. She stood with bowed head as the prayer was being said as did Cline.

During the reading of the law by Judge Yeomans to the eighteen men that formed the grand jury she at times held the hand of her sister-in-law and as the reading neared the end she reached across and tapped the hand of her brother.

Defines the Law.
It was noticeable that Judge Yeomans in reading his instruction to the jury went into considerable length to describe what constituted first degree murder and Cline who had listened to it all was evidently much impressed when the judge told of a case where a man might kill another and yet not be guilty of murder. He also listened with interest as the court told the jury-men that there was no time limit between the time a person might plan and execute a murder, but if such planning was done and although it might be some time after before it was brought into execution there would be shown the malice and planning and this would result in the warranting of finding of a first degree bill.

The jury was retired to the G. A. R. room across from the court room and there they sat while the witnesses for the state were called. Attorneys for Cline are not admitted to the jury room, but a man

HERO "LINDY" GETS BACK TO NEW YORK

It was from New York that he flew to fame, and it was from New York that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh received the most tumultuous homecoming welcome—Washington's official reception not excepted. Here is a scene in City Hall Square, New York, such as was enacted during the Lindbergh acclamation there, with "Lindy" himself superimposed.

Lindy Is Presented With Scroll Of City

New York, June 13.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was presented with the scroll of the city at City Hall today by Mayor James J. Walker while thousands looked on and applauded. The text of the scroll follows:
"The city of New York,
"To Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, America's Air Ambassador,
"New York to Paris,
"Non-stop flight.
"Greeting,
"On this historic spot and in this historic seat of our city government, it has been our custom to extend our municipal welcome to many of the notable people of the world. Here the chief magistrates of the City of New York have received many noted heroes of the land, the sea and air: kings and queens and princess; great soldiers, scientists and leaders of mankind; the highest dignitaries of church and state and heroes in the many fields of human endeavor have here received the hearty and cordial welcome which always marks the hospitality of the City of New York.

"Today we equal the height and dignity of all the tradition that through the years has been established here as in behalf of the millions of New York citizens, who have been thrilled and inspired by your heroic deed, I welcome you.
"Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, "Back to the city from which you set forth on your courageous non-stop flight to Paris.
"Genuine Heroism
"From this, the youngest of the

CROWDS BREAK THROUGH LINES

Police Unable to Hold Back Thousands Anxious to See Lindbergh at Battery, N. Y.

New York, June 13.—Growing in pressure every minute, the mob that choked every inch of ground space on the Battery, broke its bounds on noon today, and despite the frantic efforts of police, forced their way into the street at Battery Place.

The break occurred when one of the spectators set up the cry "there comes Lindbergh now." Two thousand persons, who had been held on the sidewalks, surged into the street. The police were swept helplessly before them, and took up a new line of defense in the street. They were unable to re-establish the old line.

FARMING OUTLOOK IS POOR THIS YEAR

Financial Markets Confronted With Perplexing Problem Because of Weather.

New York, June 13.—Signal honor is extended to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh by the financial world today in closing the New York Stock Exchange, the Curb Market and the Coffee, Sugar, Cocoa and various wholesale houses.

At the threshold of the third quarter of the business year, American business and financial markets are confronted with a number of perplexing problems, some of them the product of special circumstances which have not been encountered for a good many years.

Rarely has the agricultural outlook at the middle of June been so uncertain as it is this year. Crop growth throughout the middle west has been greatly retarded as a result of excessive rainfall. Floods have caused heavy losses in the lower Mississippi valley and draught has caused damage over a large portion of the South Atlantic states.

Prices Rise
Grain and cotton prices have risen sharply in the last month in reflection of the late season and the uncertain crop prospect. Even with favorable weather developments in the next several weeks, it will be some time before any clear conception of probable crop yields will be possible.

Business and industrial leaders are not disturbed by the falling off in current and forward orders for basic materials of various kinds, the decline of steel mill operations and the problems of overproduction in oil, copper and other commodities. The year as a whole is quite likely to be less satisfactory than 1926 for a number of important industries, including the auto accessories, the tire manufacturers, the petroleum refiners, and, to some extent, the sugar and copper companies. But so well fortified have the leading companies in these industries become in the matter of accumulated surplus and improvement in their mills and shops, that they face the future with confidence.

10 HURT IN CRASH.
Philadelphia, Pa., June 13.—Nineteen persons were injured today when a Philadelphia-bound bus collided with a number of machines in trying to avoid a collision with a taxicab on the Delaware river bridge. The bus skidded and slid into a long line of about 75 cars, shaking up scores of persons. Six machines were damaged badly, one car bursting into flames.

John Bryan, bus driver, of this city, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

BEDLAM BREAKS LOOSE AS AVIATOR ARRIVES

SLIM HONORED BY NATIONAL AIR SOCIETY

Only Nine Others Hold Life Membership In Noted Association—Hero Presented With Medal.

Washington, June 13.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was entered today into the ranks of the immortals of aviation and science. It was the final honor conferred upon him before he left for New York to receive the acclaim of the great metropolis for his epochal flight to Paris.

The greatest figures in modern aviation attended a breakfast in the National Aeronautical Association headquarters in the National Geographical Society. This medal is reserved for the trailblazers in history and science.

President Porter H. Adams of the National Aeronautical Association told "Lindy" that he well deserved to take his place beside the nine other holders of life membership in the organization. They are Wilbur, Orville and Miss Katherine G. Orlin and Miss Katharine Wright, Samuel Pierpont Langley, Octave Chanute, John D. Montgomery, Charles M. Manley, Glenn Hammond Curtiss and Thomas A. Edison.

Among Those Present.
Among the leaders in aviation present were chiefs of the Army and Navy Air Corps, Donald Hall, designer of "The Spirit of St. Louis," Captain A. C. Read and Captain H. C. Richardson, trans-oceanic fliers; speed record holder, Glenn Martin, pioneer aircraft builder; Robert Nungesser, brother of the missing French ace; Lieutenant Russell Maughan, "dawn to dusk" flier; George K. Burgess, lighter-than-air craft designer, and Dwight Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co., whose committee recommended the "five-year air program."

Possibilities of Aviation
"By your signal achievement you have at one stroke lifted the cause of aerial navigation from the realm of doubt and uncertainty and unfolded before an astounded world the boundless possibilities of aviation," said Adams.
"The results of your epochal flight, accumulating and compounding with each passing year, will continue to bear fruit in the advancement of civilization after all here present have come to toll no more."

Makes Brief Speech
In a characteristically brief speech, Lindbergh spoke of the practicability of a California-Hawaii flight. Such a trip is feasible, he said, but he warned against attempting it by dead-reckoning the course, as he did on his New York-to-Paris trip.

"Aviation is on a sound business basis today," the young flyer said, "and it must continue to be developed along these lines. Transatlantic flying will come, but it will require sound ground organization" (Continued on Page 3)

CHOOSE DR. THATCHER AS AGGIE PRESIDENT

New York Man Picked By Trustees to Head Bay State College.

Amherst, Mass., June 13.—Dr. Roscoe W. Thatcher, director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station and the Cornell University Experiment Station at Geneva, N. Y., today was elected president of Massachusetts Agricultural college at a meeting of the trustees here.
Dr. Thatcher accepted the position, when informed of his selection by telephone.
He will succeed Edward Morgan Lewis, who resigned to become president of New Hampshire State University.
The new president was born on a farm in Maxima County, in 1872.

"Lindy" Goes Up From a Million Throats—Guns Boom, Harbor Craft Whistles Shriek, Auto Horns Honk As Hero Lands at the Battery—Nothing Comparable to Today's Scenes in History of the City—New York In Holiday Garb Goes Wild With Enthusiasm.

New York, June 13.—Aflame with color and bursting with enthusiasm, New York today roared a tumultuous welcome to Charles A. Lindbergh, who three weeks and three days ago blazed a glorious trail through the air from New York to Paris.

"Lindy!" That was the affectionate greeting roared.
From millions of throats, again and again, in thunderous volume, the huge throngs stretching from the Battery to Central Park, shouted that one word in a hysterical frenzy.

Guns Boomed
Guns boomed, harbor vessels shrieked, factory whistles blew, automobile horns honked and people cheered with admiration as Colonel Lindbergh made his triumphant entry into the city.
Nothing comparable to it has been witnessed in New York since the return of the famous Twenty-Seventh Division from the World War.

Even Admiral Dewey's reception upon his return from Manila Bay in 1899 was surpassed and certainly the welcome was as great as that accorded General John J. Pershing when he returned victoriously from the World War.

Lindy Lands
Bedlam broke loose when "Lindy" in an Army amphibian plane, descended gracefully in the gleaming waters of the harbor.
The big guns from Governors Island and Fort Wadsworth boomed their greeting; whistles and sirens on the hundreds of craft of all sorts, from majestic ocean liners to tiny tugs, that choked the harbor, were unloosed and from the green slopes of the short mountains people let forth a mighty roar—

"Lindy!" smiled shyly. He had expected a reception, but nothing quite like this. He waved to the crowds lining the decks of the flagbedecked vessels. He was soon transferred from the cockpit of the plane to the city's official headquarters at the city hall.

Bands Play
Bands aboard the boats played stirring tunes as the Macomb, with its glorious colors, steamed up the harbor through a line of several hundred vessels to Pier A at the Battery.

Airplanes droned overhead in the bright sunlight, sweet music to grand ears. He looked upward frequently, as the flyers executed fancy formations.

Fifty thousand people were amassed around Battery Park when the Macomb landed "Lindy" at the Battery. A hundred brightly mounted police horses, bearing mounted officers, pranced excitedly while their riders strove to control the swarming crowds.

More than 1,000 policemen formed a solid cordon in the two blocks between Pier A and the elevated station. From there to City Hall Park, where New York was to officially claim Colonel Lindbergh as her own, thousands of other policemen were stationed at intervals of ten feet. Half of the entire police force of sixteen thousand men were on duty somewhere along the line of march.

Escort of 10,000
Preceded by an escort of ten thousand troops, "Lindy" was taken up through lower Broadway, between dense throngs of people, to City Hall, where his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, was waiting to view the official reception of her son by the city.

At City Hall Park a huge throng assembled to witness the official welcoming in "Lindy's" honor. They occupied every available seat in three hastily constructed wooden grandstands and thousands more stood for blocks around the park.

It was a colorful assemblage. Women and girls, attired in bright colored gowns and waving flags, made up a large portion of this audience, but the men had their representation, too. Those in the grandstands had been admitted by special ticket. Mounted police experienced difficulty in keeping the crowd back of the ropes.
Ticker Tape Thrown
From the windows of nearby skyscrapers ticker tape and torn bits of paper descended upon the heads of spectators.
As "Lindy" came up from the Battery, officials on the reviewing stand entertained the spectators by introducing dignitaries.

At 12:40 p. m. the start of the parade of 10,000 troops that were escorting "Lindy" up from the Battery servern in one Broadway. Led by a band. This was the signal for a wild outburst of enthusiasm from the crowd.
Heads popped out of windows of nearby buildings and it seemed as if many of the spectators were taking a long chance on their lives. The corners of some of the buildings were so crowded with spectators that it seemed astounding that some of them did not fall off.

On Woolworth Tower
From window ledges of the Woolworth building, as high as fifty stories up, people peered down at the spectacle. The roof of the square, was thronged and lower down scores more sat in perilous perches on cornices and other vantage points.
As the parade marched by the reviewing stand, the various units were identified and received hearty cheers from the massed thousands.

Colonel Lindbergh's triumphal march through lower New York was preceded by the steady march of tramping feet. Troop after troop of soldiers and battalion of battalion of sailors had started in parade long before Lindbergh landed. The escorting parade was greeted with echoing cheers as it passed through the canyon of the skyscrapers, but great as the enthusiasm was the crowd was "holding fire" for the Colonel.

The splendor of troops in parade, the glory of beautiful girls in artistic floats, and even the shyness of politicians and diplomats failed to hold the usual lure for the crowds, pushing and jammed along the parade line. Colonel Lindbergh welcome and the crowds saved their enthusiasm for the slender youth and for him alone. The thousands of others who marched in parade were just so many marchers.

Great applause broke forth when the "old 82nd famous Irish fighting regiment, marched by. This was Father P. Duffy's regiment. Then followed in order the 369th (Colored) regiment, the Fourteenth Regiment and the 107th Regiment and as each passed the throng broke into cheers.

Planes Overhead
Necks were craned a few minutes after one o'clock when a fleet of airplanes swept over City Hall. First came a group of five, quickly followed by others, most of them flying in "V" and diamond formations. They did not fly very low, due to the danger of injury to spectators in the event of an accident.

Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, who arrived by train early today, came to City Hall accompanied by Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the mayor, and friends. Before going to the mayor's office, from where she witnessed part of the parade in front of City Hall, she was taken over the uptown route of the parade. All along Fifth avenue cheers, auto horns and sirens swelled in a welcome to her.

Mother Smiles
Mrs. Lindbergh smiled and waved at the crowds. She seemed especially interested and a trifle astonished over the manner in which New York had bedecked itself to greet her son. She commented often about the decorations to Mrs. Walker. They were escorted by motorcycle policemen as they motored to City Hall.

Airplane zoomed across City Hall plaza just missing, it seemed, the towers of some of the skyscrapers.
The crowd waited impatiently for "Lindy's" appearance and when it was announced over the radio that he was within five minutes or so away, the throng almost leapt-frogged over each other in an effort to obtain a glimpse of the hero of the hour.

A terrific roar shook all Broadway as the tall-end of the parade turned into City Hall plaza with Lindbergh in its wake.
New York harbor has never witnessed such scenes as it saw today, when the hero of the air received his boisterous welcome. From the sailors, common hands, fishermen and plain landlubbers who sought to bestow their greeting from river and harbor craft.
Din Terrific.

stiff breeze, for every ship was dressed.
Scouring craft maneuvered and seamen broke all the harbor rules in their mad effort to get close to "the Colonel".

It was a stirring sight and even the youth who has received tribute from Paris, Brussels, London and Washington, it was an awe-inspiring spectacle.

From overhead there came the whine of airplane motors, and the sky-men, even as the seamen, wanted to get "close to Lindbergh," and escorting planes swooped low over the water.

New York's harbor life stood still and the "voice of the harbor," which is one of strident choruses usually, was raised in hoisterous solo today—a paean to Lindbergh.

Starts From Capital
Washington, June 13.—With a wave of his hand and a cheery grin, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh bent a speedy army pursuit plane into the air at Bolling Field at 8:45 o'clock this morning—bound for New York and another tremendous homecoming celebration.

A last minute bit of hard luck forced the youthful flyer to abandon his trans-Atlantic plane "The Spirit of St. Louis" on the field, and take an army plane for the two-hour journey.

The "St. Louis" didn't tune up right when mechanics started the motor. The trouble was a faulty cylinder, a "sweaty cylinder" they call it in the air service, and upon the advice of brother flyers at the field, Lindbergh reluctantly decided to accept a substitute plane.

Was Disappointed
It was a keen disappointment to him, for he had his heart set upon returning to New York in the same famous "bus" in which he left there three weeks ago on the flight to Paris.

With five million people waiting for you up there, you'd better not take chances on a forced landing or not getting there," they told him.

"Yeah, guess you're right," said "Lindby," and reluctantly agreed to the shift.

Substitute Plane
The substitute plane was trundled out, a shiny little Curtiss C-1 type, painted black and yellow. The fuselage bore a picture of the dome of the capitol, and the numerals "34" on each side. The under-surface of the wings bore "U. S. Army."

Lindbergh climbed in, and began to spin the motor. A small group of army flyers hung on to the sides of the cockpit, giving him suggestions as to the controls and the "moods" of the little racer. Lindbergh nodded quickly.

He shoved off in the teeth of a strong north-east wind, which had the flags above the field whiplashed stiffly in the early morning sunlight. The strength of the breeze may slow up his flying time to New York, although he was confident he would make it in two hours anyway. The distance is approximately 230 miles.

The field was muddy from last night's heavy rains, but the take-off was accomplished without mishap either to "Lindby" or the escorting planes. The trim little Curtiss taxied out, headed into the wind, and began to travel, gathering speed as the motor raced. The tail went up as she straightened to her work, and then he pulled the stick backward and soared aloft in a terrific burst of speed.

Aerial Escort
Two score planes accompanied him into the air, the staccato roaring of their motors drowning out the cheers of several thousand watchers who despite elaborate military and police precautions had gathered at the field to see the get-away.

The first group of single-seaters preceded "Lindby" into the air, and the first observation group, composed of two seaters followed him. Lindbergh bade goodbye to Washington with a flourish, and he gave experienced flyers at the field a fine thrill by his daring take-off. As his landing wheels left the ground at the end of the run, he "pulled the stick into his stomach" as they say slantly in the air service, and zoomed straight up into the sky. But the little Curtiss motor was sturdy and she never faltered. He banked over, raced into greater altitude, did a loop, and circled the field twice while the two seaters were getting off the ground in groups of three.

"Wow!" said a pair of army pilots who witnessed his breath-taking getaway.

He circled the field until his escorting planes were all up and going. Then he turned the nose of the plane, and headed toward the capitol, and roared away. In five minutes he was but a speck in the sun-shot haze of the early morning, and in ten minutes he was out of sight.

ARISES EARLY
Washington, June 13.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was up bright and early today for his leave-taking, and the capital and his triumphant entry into New York.

While deeply appreciative of the unprecedented honors that have been heaped upon him in Washington—a reception such as never before had been accorded an individual, medals and decorations, a colonelcy in the reserve corps, and gifts of all descriptions, the youthful flyer appeared anxious to be on his way.

His Washington program was strenuous, so much so, in fact, that the last engagement on his Sunday program was dispensed with. He was due to appear last night at a reception tendered by the Missouri State Society, but he did not appear, and hundreds of people were disappointed. Prior to that he had attended church in the morning with his hosts, the President and Mrs. Coolidge, placed a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's Tomb at Arlington, visited the wounded war veterans at Walter Reed hospital, inspected his plane at the naval flying field, attended flag services at the capitol, and in between times shook numerous hands. It was a rather full day.

Not At Field
Col. Lindbergh was to have gone to the Naval Flying Field at Anacostia very early this morning to inspect his plane, but either he over-slept or he received assuring word from the field that the ship was all right for he did not appear at the field. He went straight from the White House in Dupont Circle to the Mayflower Hotel to attend the breakfast given in his honor by the National Aeronautic Association at seven a. m.

Plane Tested
While the breakfast was getting under way, a score of mechanics wheeled "The Spirit of St. Louis" out of its hangar at Anacostia and began going over it, testing each part to see that it had not been damaged in the voyage from Chubbuck.

The ship was pushed onto the field and placed in a roped-off enclosure. Fifty sailors, armed with rifles with fixed bayonets, surrounded the enclosure. They permitted no one not connected with the air station to come near it.

Crowds Kept Away
Elaborate precautions were taken to keep crowds away. Fifteen hundred soldiers, with rifles surrounded Bolling Field, which is adjacent to the Naval Flying Field, and no one was admitted who did not have proper credentials.

While the mechanics were going over the St. Louis, across the way, on Bolling Field, other mechanics were trundling out some thirty Army planes which will comprise "Lindby's aerial escort" to New York. Soon the field was popping with tuning motors.

There were few people at the field because of stringent regulations. The sea-wall bordering the Anacostia river, however, was soon dotted with hundreds waiting to see the take-off. Hains Point was alive with automobiles.

MOTHER IN NEW YORK
New York, June 13.—"Everything was splendid in Washington. I had a fine time."

These were the words of Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, mother of the famous "Lindby," when she arrived at the Pennsylvania station today from Washington to join in New York's homage to her son.

She seemed greatly surprised to find several hundred persons waiting for her. They cheered and waved, and she flushed slightly.

Mrs. Lindbergh wore a black satin coat with white fur collar and black straw hat. She was accompanied by her uncle, John C. Lodge, acting mayor of Detroit, and Richard R. Blythe, personal representative of "Lindby."

"Yeah, Mrs. Lindbergh," the crowd cried.

She smiled and waved to them. Photographers swarmed about her and took her picture.

She had tried to evade the throng by going to the street in an elevator but the crowd was there before her. She was met at the station by Major Deegan, vice chairman of the mayor's committee.

After some delay, she was whisked away in an automobile to the apartment of Harry H. Frazee, at 270 Park avenue, New York.

Seven motorcycle policemen formed her escort.

The men who were called for to pass upon the case and who were called into the chamber this morning are: J. White Sumner, Bolton; Dr. William J. Higgins and Eugene Latimer, Coventry; John T. McKnight and Robert E. Hyde, Ellington; Llewellyn J. Storr and George H. Manson, Francis C. Luce and E. M. Pease, Stafford; Ernest F. Fuller, Somers; William Ayer, Jr., and L. Ernest Hall, Tolland; Holcomb R. Howard, Union; Dennis J. McCarthy, Augustus H. Morris, W. Thomas F. O'Laughlin, Vernon, Robert Jones and Dr. F. B. Converse, Willington.

From the stone and brick structures, across from the commons in the Town of Tolland there was brought to Rockville this morning Leonard Lindholm, a Swedish settler and the Swedish cemetery in that place.

Charles Phelps returned home from his afternoon Thursday evening to go to Storrs Saturday to get his degree. Sunday Mr. Phelps went to Lyme to take a surveyors course and will be there until July 7 when he will be home for the rest of the summer.

Louis Berry has sold 30 acres of land to Hartford parties. This is one-half of the farm but doesn't include any of the buildings.

There were eighteen members of the Ladies Benevolent society at Mrs. George Stanley's Thursday afternoon, also Miss Grace Stanley of Hartford, Mr. Stanley's sister and three ladies from Coventry. Mrs. Stanley was hostess and a snack lunch was served.

Mrs. E. M. Yeoman was a caller in Hartford Friday morning.

There were fourteen from this town who went on the Paris tour last Friday. First the party went to Mrs. Frank Collins in Belmont and saw her lovely flowers and shrubs, then to the home of Mrs. Charles Wright in town who has recently had her home redecorated and is very lovely. Then to Mrs. Benton's where more beautiful flowers and her lovely living room were seen. The house has an old fashioned stone chimney and is very pleasant and charming.

The last place visited was to Mrs. Pauline Welch's at Columbia where lunch was enjoyed. Then there were speakers in various kinds of work done during the past year and they then returned to the party went through the house, first seeing a demonstration of an electrical pump for pumping water. Then all kinds of kitchen aids were shown. There was a surprise and a room arranged like a hospital room which was very interesting. All together it was very interesting from start to finish and all voted a very pleasant day.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 13.—Coles Phillips, one of the best known commercial artists in the country, died at his home here yesterday. It was learned today.

Death was ascribed to kidney trouble. Phillips, who was born in Springfield, Ohio, is survived by his widow and four children.

PASTOR'S WIFE DIES
Willimantic, Conn., June 13.—Mrs. Anne M. Harris wife of Rev. L. L. Harris, pastor of the Liberty Hill Congregational church, died at her home during the night after a long illness. She was sixty-six years old and a native of Westfield, Mass. Mrs. Harris is survived by her husband, two sons, a daughter, nine grand children and one great-grand child beside three half-brothers.

PINEDO IN SPAIN
Barcelona, Spain, June 13.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo, flying his seaplane Santa Maria II, arrived here at five o'clock this afternoon, completing an uneventful flight from Lisbon, Portugal. The "Flying Fascist" is on the last lap of a four continent flight, begun last winter.

REDS ISSUE INVITATION.
Moscow, June 13.—The Society of Aerial and Chemical Warfare has sent an invitation to Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, American trans-Atlantic fliers, to visit Moscow.

JURY; NO DECISION

who is being tried for an indictment allowing him to be mounted on the jury, but this did not prove the case this morning as he entered with his lawyers.

His lawyers have planned that he should do this right along as a man, experienced in newspaper work, without the taking of notes can better remember what is being said by the state and from this can get the information, which imparted to the lawyers will give them a better understanding what their line of defense must be.

The witnesses called by the state were Robert T. Hurley, head of the state police department, Harris Hurlbut and Henry Heindel, state police from the Stafford barracks, who have been working on the case from the start; James Lee and J. A. McCarthy, who drove the ambulance from Willimantic and brought in the injured man after the shooting; Coroner Bill of Windham county who took the last statement from Irwin before his death; Dr. L. J. Mason of Willimantic and Messrs. Joseph and McFarland, neighbor's of Cline.

The state's side was presented by State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone. Soon after the jury retired both Mrs. Cline and her sister-in-law went to the Rockville House where Mrs. Cline, who is tired and on the verge of a breakdown, wanted an opportunity to rest, although Cline's sister seemed to be holding up well, it was also apparent that she was doing so with an effort.

There are now eight different newspaper representatives at the trial but the number of visitors, most of them women, is exceptionally small.

The Grand Jury.
The men who were called for to pass upon the case and who were called into the chamber this morning are: J. White Sumner, Bolton; Dr. William J. Higgins and Eugene Latimer, Coventry; John T. McKnight and Robert E. Hyde, Ellington; Llewellyn J. Storr and George H. Manson, Francis C. Luce and E. M. Pease, Stafford; Ernest F. Fuller, Somers; William Ayer, Jr., and L. Ernest Hall, Tolland; Holcomb R. Howard, Union; Dennis J. McCarthy, Augustus H. Morris, W. Thomas F. O'Laughlin, Vernon, Robert Jones and Dr. F. B. Converse, Willington.

From the stone and brick structures, across from the commons in the Town of Tolland there was brought to Rockville this morning Leonard Lindholm, a Swedish settler and the Swedish cemetery in that place.

Charles Phelps returned home from his afternoon Thursday evening to go to Storrs Saturday to get his degree. Sunday Mr. Phelps went to Lyme to take a surveyors course and will be there until July 7 when he will be home for the rest of the summer.

Louis Berry has sold 30 acres of land to Hartford parties. This is one-half of the farm but doesn't include any of the buildings.

There were eighteen members of the Ladies Benevolent society at Mrs. George Stanley's Thursday afternoon, also Miss Grace Stanley of Hartford, Mr. Stanley's sister and three ladies from Coventry. Mrs. Stanley was hostess and a snack lunch was served.

Mrs. E. M. Yeoman was a caller in Hartford Friday morning.

There were fourteen from this town who went on the Paris tour last Friday. First the party went to Mrs. Frank Collins in Belmont and saw her lovely flowers and shrubs, then to the home of Mrs. Charles Wright in town who has recently had her home redecorated and is very lovely. Then to Mrs. Benton's where more beautiful flowers and her lovely living room were seen. The house has an old fashioned stone chimney and is very pleasant and charming.

The last place visited was to Mrs. Pauline Welch's at Columbia where lunch was enjoyed. Then there were speakers in various kinds of work done during the past year and they then returned to the party went through the house, first seeing a demonstration of an electrical pump for pumping water. Then all kinds of kitchen aids were shown. There was a surprise and a room arranged like a hospital room which was very interesting. All together it was very interesting from start to finish and all voted a very pleasant day.

WHITEY DOES A 'LINDY'
IN LEGIONNAIRE CONTEST

Increases Vote By Nearly 3,000—Goes Over the 10,000 Mark This Week.

Clarence Anderson did a regular Lindbergh hop in the American Legion Paris trip contest of C. E. House & Son today, coming out of the contest with an increase of no less than 2,733 votes, which brings the total of the pace-maker's vote up to 10,652. This is the biggest vote received by the leader in the contest in any one week since the opening of the balloting.

Jack Pentland, persistent runner up, had received a total vote of 7,958 according to today's count.

Windsor—King George has taken a lead in cottage building at Sandringham his country estate in England, which may have far-reaching effects on the domestic architecture of the British countryside.

A select number of domestic architects were informed by letter of the King's desire "to see a really practical and at the same time beautiful design." A sketch of a "type of real English cottage" was asked for and the specification given for a double cottage of which the cost should not exceed $5,000.

The ground floor was to have a living room (for kitchen and parlor), and a ladder for food. On the first floor were to be three bedrooms. There were to be an outhouse with wash-house, fuel-store and passage connecting, under cover, outhouse with main building.

Both the King and Queen accepted the design of Gerald Warren of the Strand, London, and the cottages will be erected at a cost of about $4,250—under the original estimate.

They will be of yellow stone, with roof of hand-made, sand-faced tiles of a rich dark hue. There will be iron casements throughout, with leaded lights.

Madison, Wis.—Skimmed milk, left over from butter making, may emerge into buttons, beads, poker chips, billiard balls, cigaret holders or any one of a hundred other things made from the same materials, it is demonstrated by Professor H. A. Schuette, University of Wisconsin chemist.

Recovered casein, the most abundant protein in skimmed milk, when properly compounded with certain chemicals furnishes a substitute for horn and ivory, Professor Schuette explains.

It also makes an excellent glue, he finds. It has a limited use in drug preparations, in foods for diabetes, as an ice cream filler, as a constituent of baking powders, in leather dressing and finishing, in making shoe polishes and composition cork, in textile printing and in the manufacture of oil cloth and linoleum, among other things.

CHINESE WAR PLANS.
Peking, June 13.—The future war plans of North China are being discussed here today by the three northern war lords, Marshals Chang Tso Lin, Chang Chung Chang, and Sun Chuan FANG.

According to reports the advice of General Chang Tso Lin is that the army be allowed to tire itself out by drawing the southerners on and exhausting them by advances and then striking a heavy northern blow.

He who wins the last battle wins the war," is the slogan Chang Tso Lin is reported to have urged.

The Business Girls' club or the Blue Triangle met at the parsonage last Tuesday evening and several ladies were invited into the club. They motored down to Everett A. Buckland's pasture where they enjoyed a frankfurter and steak picnic. At the business meeting they voted to give $25 to the Tennis association to be used to finish the tennis court at the parish house, and they also voted $15 to help furnish the new lodge at Camp Aya-Po, Somers, Conn. Miss Elizabeth Rogers, secretary of the Hartford County Y. W. C. A. was present.

Two stulls, having an estimated capacity of about 150 gallons of mash each, were discovered in full operation, when one of the biggest raids was conducted this past week by local and county police. The two stulls and all equipment including a quantity of mash and about forty gallons of alcohol were removed to the Town hall. Clara Mott and Frank Raffa of Hartford were arrested and held for hearing in the town court. It has been reported that the place was taken over by bootleggers about a month ago and that the stills had been in operation nearly a week. They were located in an old abandoned house in the south part of the town, not far from the East Hartford town line. Those taking part in the raid were Deputy Sheriff C. Vinton Benjamin of South Windsor, Assistant County Detective Gerald Riskey and Constables Charles J. Johnson, Fred Jones and Frank Reid.

NEW YORK JAM.

Wholly disregarded the circumstance that Manhattan is an island, with limited means of ingress and egress, and that it is, unaided, capable of getting up the most terrific jams of humanity experienced anywhere in the world, thoughtless hundreds of thousands of peopled individuals from the outside today were adding their unnecessary selves to the hopeless tangle of humanity which sought to get a sight of Charles Lindbergh on the occasion of his return to the metropolis.

Most of the metropolitan area, outside of Manhattan, had a holiday. Every little municipality within many miles of the city contributed to the congested situation by declaring it a "day off" and sending its population into town to pile itself on the mass of humanity already there and assembling.

As this is written it looks as if New York were to witness, today, the worst case of over-crowding within a restricted area, that it has ever experienced.

The capacity of New York for handling huge crowds is tremendous. But since it already has its own huge crowds, and as the outsider is entirely unnecessary in order to bring the crowds up to the handling capacity, even a sight or a possible sight of Lindbergh would seem to be hardly a commensurate reward for the buffeting, the discomfort and the actual perils which these holiday commuters courted.

SMUTTING UP THE COUNTRY.

Without especial information as to the guilt or innocence of the 43 alleged gamblers taken in a raid on a Cromwell roadhouse yesterday, and without prejudice in this particular case, the incident suggests one of the many far-reaching changes brought about by the development of the automobile system—the smutting up of the country districts of this and practically all other states in the incidental interest of better order in the cities and towns.

Time was when commercialized law breaking of all kinds was pretty well confined to the corporate limits of the more thickly settled communities. The rural districts' experience with illegalities was confined to petty thieving and such crimes of violence as belong to the race rather than to localities. Those who sought to pander to the failings of their fellow men, professionally, had their dens in the towns, always.

Now the countryside is speckled with dubious resorts. There are probably ten times as many gambling houses on outlying roads, in the United States, as there are on city streets. Vice no longer hides itself behind red curtains in segregated alleys in the slums of big towns—it takes the air in old country homes with dance halls additions in the rear and filling stations in front.

If the automobile has "brought the country to the city dweller" it has brought the worst of the city dwellers to the country, with a vengeance.

Pollicing is, with the greatest rapidity, becoming a state responsibility rather than a city responsibility. City policemen now face their major job in preventing motor accidents in traffic. Prevention of the vices that used to be the city policeman's care is rapidly becoming the function of state constabularies.

A COMMON REASON

"Write my memoirs!" exclaimed Georges Clemenceau, war premier of France. "Never! I would place too many people in a bad light."
What a simple and sufficient reason for refraining from laying one's case before the world. Yet how many of those who have done exactly what Clemenceau is doing have recognized, as he has done, the reason for their own abstinence? And if they themselves have been conscious of their charity, how often have they been accredited with it by their friends, their admirers or their enemies?

Yet the Tiger of France is probably not the first person, by many millions, who has refrained from self justification out of the more or less definite consciousness that self justification, if successful, would mean the ruin of the reputations of others.

The actions of countless men and women in this world have been misinterpreted to their disadvantage—and the misinterpretation has been permitted to go undisputed because explanation would, in the language of Clemenceau, "place somebody in a bad light."

And oftener, when defense is made, it becomes inadequate, garbled, unsatisfying, because somewhere the defendant does not tell quite all the truth—it would reflect too seriously on someone else.

But to few of the malign does the actuating impulse of their reluctance to defend themselves appear so clearly as to the old war horse who knows that he is keeping his mouth shut rather than smash idols.

TROUT VS. VOTES.

Tonight, President Coolidge leaves Washington for the Black Hills. It seems to us that it has been far too generally taken for granted, even among the President's best friends and supporters, that he is going to the Northwest because it is politically expedient to do so. We do not feel nearly so sure of the political expediency as a good many folks do. And we even suspect that the President may be fooling them all.

The Black Hills is after all a rather remote and sparse neighborhood in which to build political fences. But it's a pippin of a place to go trout fishing.

Trout fishing may seem to be a trivial thing, compared to a second elective term to the Presidency. It seemed trivial to Mr. Coolidge, a few years ago, compared to anything at all—"boy's play." But last year, in the Adirondacks, the President had his eyes open to a great, fundamental fact—that catching trout, good trout, fighting trout, in satisfying numbers and under the right conditions, is a lot more fun than signing or vetoing bills or being pestered for official jobs.

It is our belief that the lure of the Black Hills is not votes but fish. They get it worst when they get it old.

ALBANIA A TEST.

The offer of Jugo-Slavia to submit to the Council of the League of Nations that country's controversy with Albania, provided the Albanian problem be examined in its entirety, may precipitate one of the severest tests to which the permanency and effectiveness of the League have been subjected.

To "examine the Albanian problem in its entirety" would involve, of course, going closely into the Tirana treaty by which it is asserted Albania made herself a subject province of Italy; and it would be impossible to inquire into all the aspects of that curious deal without delving into the question of how far Britain, represented by Austen Chamberlain, O. K.'d the Tirana treaty before it was written.

If the League can unsnarl the Albanian tangle, and still remain a League, it will have gone a long way toward proving that there is no real necessity for those weed-like growths of diplomatic disputation that lead to wars.

IRISH ELECTIONS.

The outcome of the Irish elections, while not fully known at this writing, seems to indicate that, whatever else may eventuate, by far the larger part of the Irish people of political tendencies—and that means nearly all of them—have begun to recognize that the place for their activities is under the Free State organization.

Extreme Republicans cut a sorry figure in the returns. Only three of the last-ditchers have so far appeared to be winners of seats and Mary MacSwiney failed of reelection from Cork.

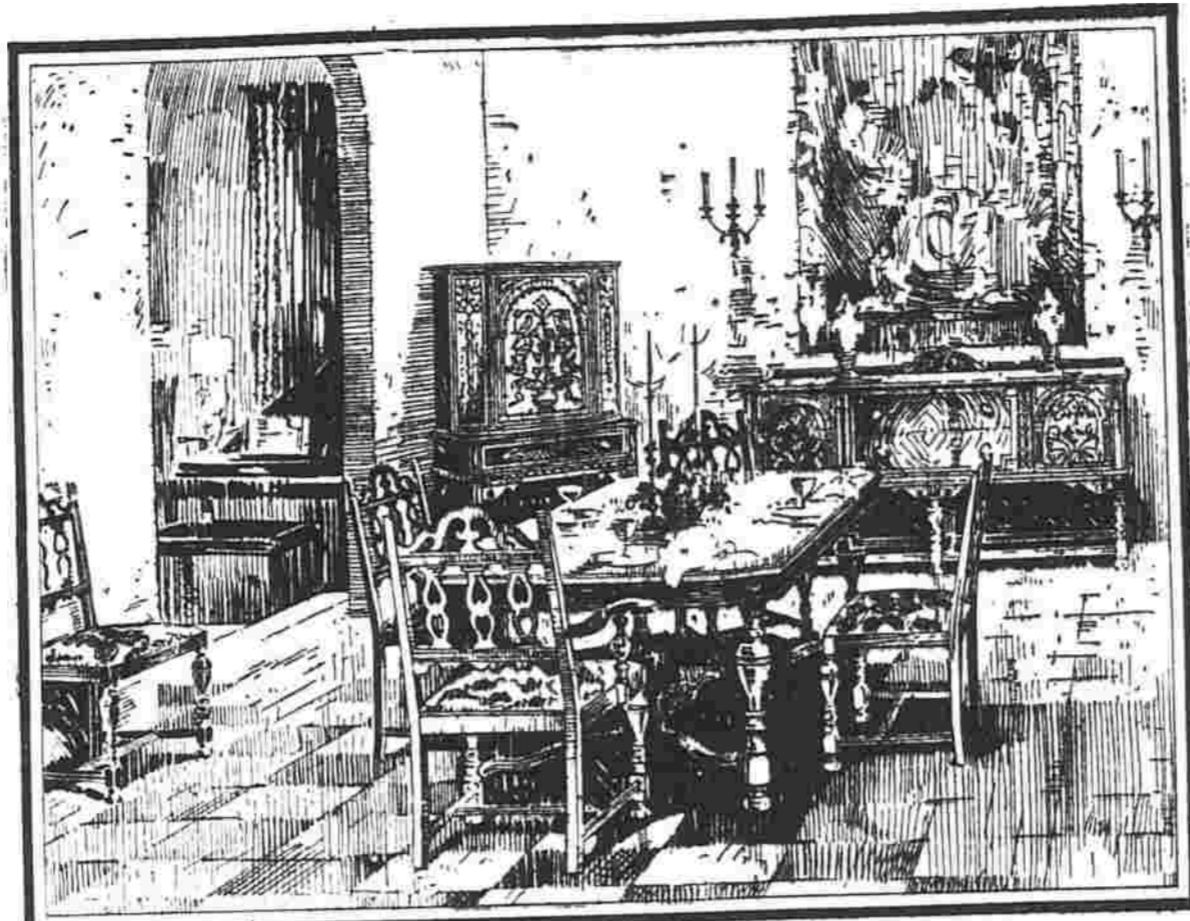

It is true that there appears to be some likelihood of a successful combination against the Cosgrave government. But the most significant aspect of the polling is that, though there may be storm times ahead, they are likely to be directed at political parties and not at the peace or existence of the Free State.

DOMINIC ACHIEVEMENTS

By DON E. MOWRY
Secretary, the American Community Advertising Association

The carrying out of one civic benefit invariably has led to the hatching of many more projects, and the ultimate achievement is in an expansive program of public improvements. The difficulty in most cities, usually, is setting the start.

The plant grew and is now one of the leading wood-working concerns in the community. The next project that they put over was the securing of nearly 300 acres of land which was given to the Southern Pacific railroad lines in order to get the railroad to establish terminals, shops and tie treating plants at Eugene.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, June 13.—The Hon. Senor Dr. Don Alejandro Napoleon Caesar Chamorro, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States from the Diaz government in Nicaragua, has been welcomed in some respects in the strenuous diplomatic social life here with a cold shower.

The Hon. Senor Dr. Don Alejandro Napoleon Caesar Chamorro, envoy, etc.—which is his official title—is invited to all the big parties at the Cuban embassy and the Panamanian legation. He is invited to all the functions thrown by the secretary of state and the Pan-American Union.

But when Chamorro's own racial brethren, the other Latin-American diplomats, have their balls and receptions, Chamorro generally has to stay home. All this, mind you, is not because Chamorro is personally offensive.

The trouble simply is that most of the people south of the Rio Grande haven't yet recognized the Diaz government of Managua. The fact might be inserted here that Alexander Napoleon Caesar Chamorro—who, bearing in mind four great conquerors, certainly should be able to sweep all before him—has undertaken to be known in this country as Caesar, or Caesar, rather than Chamorro.

The State Department has co-operated wholeheartedly with him in this earnest endeavor. The Chamorro name is in rather bad repute. When Chamorros were swapping the Nicaraguan presidency within the family, there were 15 Chamorros in high government positions. It was Gen. Emiliano Chamorro who felt so keenly the disgrace of letting the presidency get inside the clan as to stage the famous 1925 coup d'etat which returned him to power.

Then down to Greenwich Village where a new subway is taking toll of block after block of old buildings. . . . And I stopped to watch the wreckers tearing down the old "hell hole" where Eugene O'Neill, the playwright, used to come in the days before he became famous and there mingle with the bums, the sailors and such, getting material which since has been whipped into masterpieces of the American stage.

Taking the subway back to Broadway, whom should I see but Patsy Arbuckle, come back to Broadway and hurrying to a rehearsal of a farce in which he soon will appear. . . . He's been directing it out in Hollywood under an assumed name since that tragic San Francisco party some years back. He seems bubbling over with glee at the idea of personally facing the public again.

Also, there was Jack Sharkey strolling about with his wife and both looking most prosperous, what with the $50,000 he got for making James Maloney see stars. . . . A well-tailored young man is this Sharkey. . . . A combination of purple golf socks with sweater to match, turned out to be Joe Turnesa, the young Italian golf expert, who thinks nothing of mixing a green tie with his already brilliant outfit. . . .

RECORD CROWD AT LAWN FETE FINAL NIGHT

3,100 People Fill Grounds On Closing Evening; Largest in Five Years—Colt's Band Enjoyed.

When Colt's Armory Band of Hartford, played "The Star Spangled Banner" at 10:30 Saturday evening on the "White House" grounds it figuratively rang down the curtain on the most largely attended Lawn Fete assembly of any night in the five years which the Manchester Community Club has been giving these annual out-door entertainments.

While the national air was being played the large crowd remained almost perfectly still, and in its setting on the illuminated grounds under the fine old trees the scene was inspiring and impressive.

3,100 Jam Enclosure A marvellous June evening, the Saturday night week-end spirit of relaxation, Colt's Band, and the numerous other Lawn Fete attractions combined to bring to the happy-enclosed grounds a record-breaking attendance. A continuous flow of automobiles brought visitors to the scene, cars coming from points all over Hartford county, demonstrating the fact that the Lawn Fete has grown to be more than local in its appeal to the public. In steady stream the visitors passed through the main entrance, until the ticket-takers' total showed the high mark of 3,100 people on the grounds.

Bright sunshine all day had undone the work of the heavy thunder shower of the previous night, and the lawn was entirely dry under foot. Three perfect nights for the Lawn Fete, with a heavy rain sandwiched harmlessly in the night-season between dates, comprised the miracle-weather which favored the Lawn Fete.

Good spirits characterized the crowd during the entire evening. Pools of laughter from the successful ones at the various booths rang out constantly, vying with the exhortations of the rival booth announcers proclaiming the merits of their attractions. Utmost good nature prevailed, as well as the best of order and all present, young and old, appeared to enjoy to the limit their evening of out-door entertainment.

Colt's Band, with its excellent music, keyed up the spirits of the gathering. The young folks fell eagerly upon the various games, and for nearly three hours every one of the seventeen booths had congested groups before it awaiting a turn at the sports. The booths did excellent business the entire evening, and those in charge of them beamed satisfaction.

Arnold College Students An enjoyable feature of the entertainment was provided by a group of eight students from Arnold College, New Haven. The "gym" team, under Captain Billy Covell, of Norwich, was here through Samuel J. Massey, who formerly attended the college.

Manchester had two students at the college during the term just closed. They are Miss Burdick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Burdick, of 22 Wadsworth street, who graduated from the college Saturday, and James Dowd, of the South End, who is in his second year. Mr. and Mrs. Burdick attended the graduation exercises in New Haven Saturday.

The students of the "gym" team are clean-cut, many young fellows, and their act consisted of the following: exhibition drill, parallel bars, tumbling, work on the "horse", and a spectacular tiger-leaping act.

Strong Public Appeal The large attendance Saturday evening demonstrated again the fact that the Lawn Fete is unique in many respects. Contrary to the understanding of many, the sole object is not a commercial one. The intention, as announced by the club is to provide entertainment for as large a number of people as possible at a nominal cost. Hence the low admission fee of one dime at the Lawn Fete.

Most local organizations find it necessary to charge 35 cents, fifty cents, and sometimes one dollar at their entertainments in order to make them financial successes. No entertainment venture can live long unless it is conducted at a profit. Hence, when a public organization like the Community Club provides canvass-enclosed grounds electrically lighted, an open-air stage, and such attractions as Colt's Band and the Beethoven Glee Club, and does it on a ten-cent admission fee, makes a profit while doing it, and gives 3,000 people a night's benefit of such entertainment there must be some careful planning to carry out a program of this kind.

The response of the public is the best measure for gauging the success of the planning, an officer of the club pointed out during the Lawn Fete, Saturday evening. The fact that the public comes in generous numbers each year, and keeps coming, speaks for itself, he pointed out, adding: "Judging by the crowd at the Lawn Fete tonight, the public is unanimous about it."

The following is the executive committee which had charge of the 1927 Lawn Fete: R. K. Anderson, Wm. Foulds, Jr., C. B. Loomis, W. A. Strickland, Scott Stinson.

- George Kuhney, John Spillane, Edw. Murphy, George Borst, Mark Holmes, Wm. Brennan, Joel Nichols, George Graziadio, Robert Reid, Joseph Wright, G. H. WHITE ELEPHANT COMING WITH CIRCUS

Sacred Animal Making Only American Tour With Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Shows.

Hailed as the "greatest feature of all time," Pawah, the world-famed sacred white elephant of Burma is to be presented in the menagerie of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows when the big circus exhibits at Hartford, Wednesday, June 22.

Pawah is the first of his kind to be found in more than three hundred years and the only genuine sacred white elephant ever brought to America. He is accompanied by his supreme keeper, Dr. S. D. Po Min, and attended by a retinue of fourteen native Burmese. The present is Pawah's only season in America, the Ringling Brothers believe under bond to return him to Burma at the close of the tour.

Pawah is of those rare elephants that the Buddhists of today and centuries past have worshipped in the belief that in their huge bulk reside the souls of Buddhas. And certainly he is as different from those elephants with which the public is familiar as day is from night. His eyes are milk white, set with sparkling pupils. His skin is soft and pliable. His body is white as a snowflake. To quote the French authority, M. Dussard, he is "as gentle as a kitten and as beautiful as a Greek statue."

This rarest of beasts was found eight years ago in the jungles of Lower Burma, midway between Mandalay and Bhamo. Last summer he was brought to England under the protection of the British government and in the fact of threats from the Buddhist priests who protested that his departure from Burma would bring dire calamities. More than two million people saw Pawah when he was presented under the auspices of the London Zoological Society. The bringing of the white elephant to America is in furtherance of the Ringling policy of constant enlargement. The arctic portion of this season's circus introduces five rings in place of the usual three. The Big Show personnel numbers more than sixteen hundred people, and nine hundred horses. A hundred double-length railway cars are required to transport its ten thousand and more, plus a special Pullman for Pawah and his attendants.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE by PAUL ADAMS NEA Service

Chateau Thierry is entirely rebuilt now. It is so modern that it bears little resemblance to its appearance even before the war. This is Chapter 55 in a series of articles written by a former doughboy who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Herald.

CHAPTER LV

In France one may hear many strange stories. For instance: McCabe, an investigator for the Graves Registration Service, tells of the discovery of two dried and bony figures in a weird attitude in the thickets of Bouresches Woods, near Vaux and Chateau Thierry. One was a former U. S. Marine who had been bayoneted by a German. The other was the German. The Marine had collapsed on a tree in such a manner that he remained propped in an arch. His skeleton hands clutched the throat of his dead adversary. Even with his death wound he had killed. The bodies were not found until two years after the tragedy. And—Julius Pechenard is the uniformed guard on the roof of the

A new Bebe Daniels, who is a regular tomboy and wears a moustache, is the Bebe Daniels starring in "The Seniorita" which is the feature attraction at the State theater tomorrow and Wednesday. Bebe in this picture is like nothing anybody has ever seen of her before, and according to advance notices she makes a great success of it. A swashbuckling, swaggering dandy of South America. Alcot a Valentino in the feminine gender. She swaggers through the picture like one of the Four Horsemen, but between times she manages to fall in love with the handsome hero, who is none other than James Hall. A feud, numerous duels and considerable love interest make the picture one of the most interesting of Bebe's career. The biggest and best present will be offered to patrons of the

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (4) Rocky Freaks

Edward Williams of the Warnock Hotel, who stopped a runaway automobile on Main street some time ago, is getting to be Johnny-on-the-spot in such affairs. He had a similar experience yesterday afternoon on Middle Turnpike when a Buick touring car, jacked at the side of the road, started off after children playing in it had released the brakes.

The elements, battering and wearing the rocks for millions of years, have tortured them into fantastic shapes. One of the unusual phenomena of Nature is the pot-hole. The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

If you would succeed in business, women, keep your mind on your work the way men do. Now everybody laugh loudly and long! This recipe for success comes from a so-called successful woman herself.

Help has arrived for our shaven necks, which have ever been the one argument against bobbed hair, so far as I am concerned. Help has arrived in the way of jeweled dog collars...

Home, Sweet Home The American home is at its best today, says Mrs. Alice Winter, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

ETHEL Artistically Speaking

"DRAWING MATERIALS"

He thought he had spoken softly, but Etel's senses were acute to the breaking point, nevertheless heard. "It isn't the head hunters," she answered dreamily.

"That's odd," Vilak murmured. "That's a button of the velvet jacket of Detto Ciccone." "If it is Detto I'll be happy. He'll have taken Tinky just to get some money from me and what's money if I can get Tinky back?"

prints of these other horses seem to follow all along now." The road dropped again and was bordered on both sides by dense swamp grass. Gray ant hills which the white termite ants, the scavengers of the jungle, had piled up until they were high as a man's head showed here and there against the green background like the fantastic dwellings of gnomes of some Eastern fairy tale.

Good Nature and Good Health

STUDY AT HOME FOR CHILDREN A HEALTH PROBLEM By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. A British periodical concerned with education in the public schools emphasized recently the fact that excessive mind and urges that the hours assigned to home work should be materially diminished.

Home Page Editorials TRUNDLE YOUR OWN BABY

By Olive Roberts Barton. This land of ours is queer! What is perfectly good form in one place may be looked on with such horror a hundred miles away, that one knows not where she's "at," regarding the amenities, is she is compelled to occasionally change location. Madam Grundy has a different set of rules for each section.

NOW YOU ASK ONE

ON AMERICAN INVENTION

The first five of today's questions relate to American inventions and inventors. Answers to all questions will be found on another page:

- 1-What two men of the same last name were leaders in the invention of army and munitions used in the World War?
2-With what invention is Samuel F. B. Morse credited?
3-What prominent inventor is identified with the early development of the talking machine and moving pictures?
4-What machines in general use today were long manufactured under the Seldon patents?
5-Who invented the sewing machine?
6-What is the approximate speed of light?
7-What is a "light year"?
8-What explorer sought the fountain of youth in Florida?
9-What name is given to a flying machine designed to rise from the ground vertically?
10-What is the body of an airplane called?

A man is also known by the company he works for.

Boring Young Man (to pretty girl): You know, I'm funny like that—I always throw myself into any job I undertake.
Pretty Girl (sweetly): How splendid! Why don't you dig a well?

A man is not without honor save in his own kitchen.

Mother—Here's a letter from our boy at last.
Father—Has he got a job yet?
Mother—Yes, he's washing dishes in a restaurant.
Father—That's good. He told us he was gonna clean up a million.

SENSE and NONSENSE

"The new girl tries mighty hard to look young, don't she?" asked Yvonne of the rapid fire restaurant.
"Eh-yah!" replied Heloise, the head waitress. "And about all she retains of her youth is her girlish giggle."

Custom Miller's wife died a few months ago and he immediately began to talk about how lonesome he was. So a Wednesday night he sat Carrie Onn couldn't he see her home from prayer-meeting. When they got to her gate he kind of leaned up agin the post and says, "Carrie," says he, "will you take my wife's place?" she says, "Oh no," says she, "I'd be sorry to hurt your feelings," she says, "but I wouldn't marry you, not by no means," says she. He studied for a minnit and then he says, "Well," says he, "if you won't, you won't," he says, "But do you know anybody you could recommend that you think would?" says he.

Modern woman's fondest wish is to be weighed and found wanting!

TIME—It is the one thing that you cannot lay away for keeps. You must use it immediately or lose it instantly.

"What can I do which will prevent me from topping all my golf drives?"
"Turn the ball upside down."

Adam and Eve Began It
"Your skirt, my dear madam," said Adam.
"Is far too disgracefully short," "I do not care, Adam," said madam.
"This model is what they call sport."

That rough dance known as the Charleston was not popular very long. It took too much work to make it a success.

It takes half a life to learn how to live the other half and then we don't practice what we know.
"Two heads are better than one," especially if they happen to be at a necking party.

Being dead from the neck up is better than being dead all over.
"Who don't you advertise?"
Town Storekeeper: "No, sirree! I did once and it pretty near ruined me."

"How was that?"
"Whichever people came in and bought dern near all the stuff I had, and I was put to the trouble of orderin' more."

A boarding house lady says: "I never let my husband eat with the boarders. His appetite sets 'em a terrible example."

Running for office is another incurable disease.

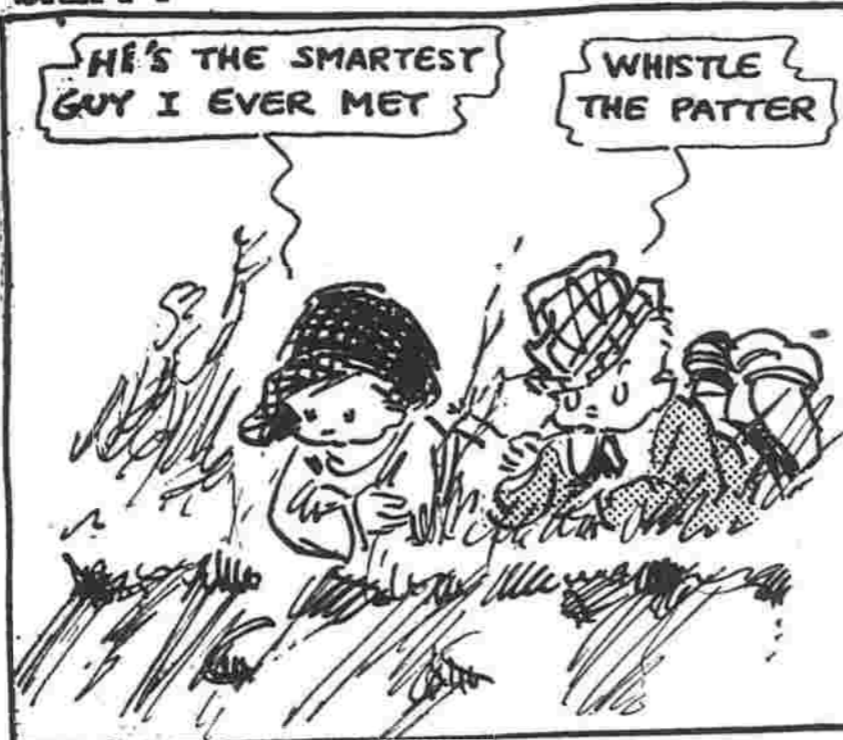

Newly Sprung
Oh, my love she wears a red, red coat.

That one can see a mile; Oh, my love she wears a red, red coat.

That's newly come in style. Newark, Ohio, Advocate.

Oh, my love wearth red, red lips. To brighten up her smile; But when she kisses me, gee whiz. I tote the kiss a mile!

THE TNYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)
The swordfish with which Scouty fought, a dandy lesson has been taught. As soon as it had lost its nose, it quickly swam away. Wee Scouty felt he'd almost shout, cause, frankly, he was all tired out. It pleased him when the swordfish left, for fights were far from play.
He sat down on a rock again, to rest his weary bones, and then he very shortly fell asleep and snoozed an hour or two. He dreamed that he was up on shore, and with the Tnymites once more. It wasn't long, however, till he found it wasn't true.
Some little fish brushed by his nose, and others tried to reach his eye. The helmet that he wore, of course, kept them away from that. He woke up with a strutting cry, and saw the school of fish swim by, and ere he stopped to think, he said, "I wonder where I'm at." And, when he tried to rub his eyes, of course it made him realize that he was on the steamship floor and far away from land. The glass upon the helmet face was something he could not erase. That's why he couldn't reach his eyes and rub them with his hand.
Just then he saw some growth of green, the prettiest of things he'd seen. It looked just like a downy bed and tempted him a lot. "I guess I'll rest there," Scouty said.
"Would be a treat to my old head, I sure can take my own sweet time, for time is all I've got." So, in the mass of green he went, of course with very good intent. He still was very weary from the fight that he had fought. But once inside, he seemed in wrong. For it was seaweed, good and strong. And ere poor Scouty knew it, he was very tightly caught.
(Coppy goes to Scouty's rescue in the next story.)

FIRST GRADUATION OF ST. JAMES SCHOOL

Exercises to Be Held Next Sunday Afternoon in St. James Church.

The first graduating exercises of St. James' school will be held in St. James' church Sunday afternoon, June 19 at 3:30 and at that time the address to the class will be delivered by Rev. J. McGurk, "who," as Rev. James Timmins said in the announcement at the mass yesterday morning, "was here before the children were born." In further commenting upon the graduation Father Timmins said, "It seems only yesterday when the men of this parish started the excavation for the new school, yet the time has gone by almost as a day and on Sunday the first class will be graduated."

The graduates will receive communion in a body at the children's mass, which will be held at 8:30 next Sunday. This Wednesday night there will be an entertainment by members of the graduating class held in the school hall. Admission will be by tickets which will be distributed by the children who are to graduate.

At the church next Sunday afternoon the two center aisles will be reserved for the graduating class and the north and south section will be open to the public. There are twenty-four to be graduated and it is expected that all will enter the South Manchester High school.

SEIDELS CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seidel of 37 Flower street celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their home Saturday evening. Guests were present from Stafford Springs, Rockville, South Bend, Ind., and this town. Some of the guests present were at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Seidel 25 years ago. They were married in Rockville by the Rev. Hartwick.

Mr. and Mrs. Seidel received many lovely gifts from their friends. Saturday evening the radio was telling of Lindbergh's big time in Washington and "Bob" remarked that he guessed that this was his big day, too. Bob Seidel is one of the old-time conductors on the local lines of the Connecticut Company and is known by a host of people who will be pleased to learn of this event.

During the evening vocal solos were rendered by Mr. Seidel, accompanied by his daughter, Mildred. Mr. and Mrs. Seidel were also presented with a bunch of 25 American beauty roses. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Rehearsals for the children's day exercises at Center church will be changed slightly from announcements in the church calendar. Children who are to graduate from the kindergarten department will rehearse at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon and the junior girls will rehearse Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 instead of Tuesday.
