

NAVY SPOILED LINDY PLANE-- COL. MITCHELL

Former Head of Army Service Starts Another Bitter Debate Over Flight Over Ocean.

Washington, June 15.—While Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's famous trans-Atlantic plane "The Spirit of St. Louis" rests in a hangar at the naval air station today, awaiting its pilot, an acrimonious controversy broke out here today over who was to blame for the defective motor which prevented Lindbergh from flying the ship to New York.

Col. William Mitchell, former stormy petrel of the Army Air Service, and admittedly one of the foremost flyers of the country, flatly charged that the faulty engine was due to "naval inefficiency."

Denies Blame
Edward P. Warner, assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aviation, denied that any blame could be attached to the Navy and asserted that the plane was re-assembled at the Anacostia field by engineers for the Wright company.

Incompetent Directors
"In command of naval air matters are incompetent directing heads, placed there by the battleship men to keep a strangle hold on air power," said Col. Mitchell. "This means incompetence all the way down. Today the Navy lies principally on hot air propaganda manufactured and spread by their Washington lobby. Since the naval vessels were sunk by airplanes in 1912 and it is the general world that battleships were useless the naval propagandists still hedged behind the cry that airplanes could not fly across the seas. They were successful in preventing service pilots from doing it."

Lindbergh Did It
"But the civilian Lindbergh, using his head, his practical knowledge of flying and his indomitable courage, flew across the sea."

"The Navy bureaucrats were quick to see the effect of Lindbergh's flight. One may imagine them running to the president and calling upon him to do something to help him before the flight but now they made a great row over him because they had to bend to the current of popular opinion."

500 CHINESE DIE AS JUNKS CAPSIZE

Boats Overloaded With Soldiers Upset—Latest News Of Civil War.

Shanghai, June 15.—Between three hundred and five hundred soldiers of Sun Chuan Fang's retreating armies are reported to have lost their lives, when commandeered junks in which they were withdrawing capsized.

Six junks are reported to have capsized, probably due to overloading. Each junk carried between 50 and 100 men.

The majority of Sun Chuan Fang's second army, including both artillery and infantry forces, has now arrived at Tsingtao and its future disposition rests upon decisions being taken in the Peking conference now in progress between Chang Tso Lin, Sun Chuan Fang and Chang Tsung Chang.

The Nationalist penetration of Shantung continues, according to Nanking dispatches. Southern Communiques announce the capture of Yenchen together with 3,000 prisoners.

The armies of Chiang Kai Shek are reported to have reached Yochien in their march upon Hankow, and an attack upon the stronghold of the extremists in the Nationalist movement is now imminent.

ON TOP OF POLE EIGHT DAYS NOW

Shipwreck Kelly to Stay There Week More—To Get Shaved Today.

Newark, N. J., June 15.—Chilled by a stiff breeze, but warmed by the prospect of success, Alvin (Shipwreck) Kelly, world's champion flagpole sitter, continued to sit in a wicker chair on the flagpole atop the St. Francis hotel here today.

Kelly has already achieved his ambition to sit there for eight days and eight nights, and now he is determined to stay right there for another week or so. His wife—a bride of a few months—is with him, but not on the flagpole. She sits on the roof just below him hoists food up to him.

A barber was to shave Kelly today, from a ladder placed against the pole. Kelly declared today that he felt the shock when a salute of 21 guns was fired in Market Square, a block away from the hotel, during the Flag Day exercises yesterday. Several plate glass windows fronting on the square were broken by the concussion. Kelly said he was almost shaken from his perch.

SEE SIGNAL LIGHT IN QUEBEC WILDS

Reports Arouse Interest As They May Be From Captains Nungesser and Coli.

Quebec, Que., June 15.—Arrangements are under way by the Quebec provincial government today to despatch a plane to the wild and desolate mountain district near St. Germaine township north of the Sagulay river where signal flares were reported Sunday evening, leading to belief in some quarters that they may have been set off by Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, the French aviators who disappeared without a trace while trying to make a non-stop flight from Paris to New York.

The district where woodsman saw the signals is about 200 miles northeast of Chicoutimi. Edouard Lavole, a civil engineer of Chicoutimi, told local officials that the flares were visible in St. Germaine township. The location he described would put them about 600 miles west of Newfoundland.

Interest in News
Quebec provincial officials were keenly interested in the news and immediately took steps to send out a plane that had previously been used to search the north shore as far as Belle Isle for traces of the missing flyers.

Avail Indians
A number of Indians who make up the population of the region where the lights were seen are on their way south. It is possible that they may have information regarding the missing flyers. The Indians are due to reach the lake St. John district or other populated districts on St. Peter's Bay about June 29.

ON 4,000 MILE TRIP IN OPEN SAILBOAT

With 50 Cents in His Pocket Man Starts From Providence To the Azores.

Providence, R. I., June 15.—Another daring Atlantic adventurer, alone like Lindbergh, started from here today on a 4,000-mile trip over the "rolling deep."

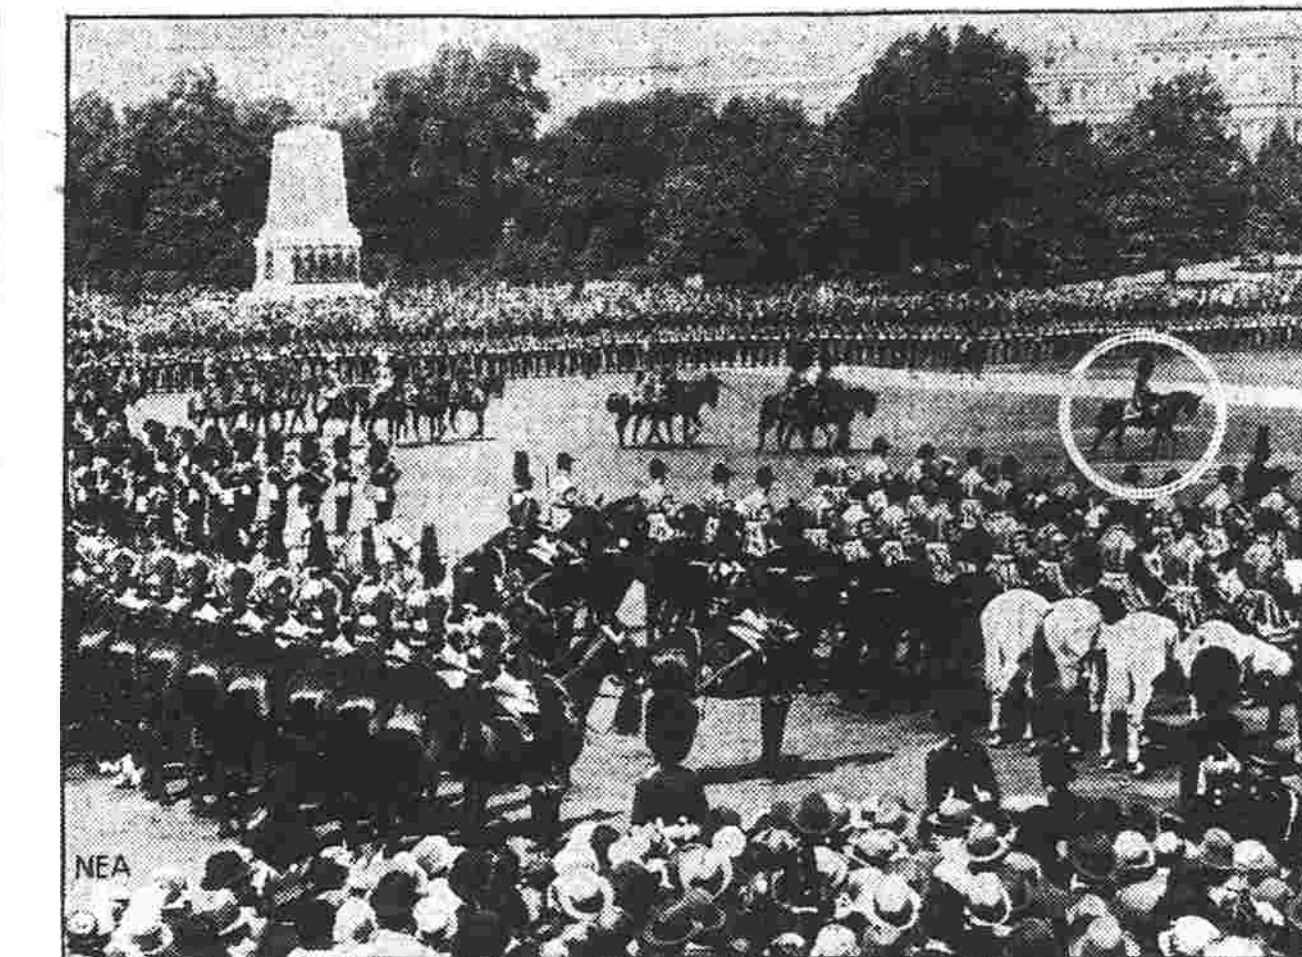

Hugo H. Martin, 40, alone with a dog and cat, sailed from Wilkesbarre pier in an open forty-foot sailboat—The Despatch—for the Azores. The lone voyager was bound for his wife and children in Las Palmas, Canary Islands.

Martin had a good stock of provisions aboard The Despatch, but carried only fifty cents in his pockets.

Drys Start Probe Of Wine Industry

Washington, June 15.—An exhaustive study of the California wine industry has been launched by the Treasury Department, it was learned today.

General Lincoln C. Andrews, dry chief, has detained H. Keith Weeks, supervisor of wine control, for the probe.

Weeks has gone to Los Angeles and other west coast points for conferences with wine manufacturers and distributors.

Reports to the treasury showed that thousands of dollars are invested in this industry and an effort to work out a solution for the legal use of the increasing volume of grape products will be made by Weeks, in co-operation with the producers.

DISARMAMENT PLAN WORKS TOO SLOWLY

Germany Criticizes It But Great Britain Says It Will Succeed In Time.

Geneva, June 15.—The League of Nations council today received a full report on the preparatory disarmament commission's work from Dr. Bens, Czechoslovakian foreign minister, and the report was immediately halted with criticism from Herr Stresemann, German foreign minister, who complained that disarmament is proceeding too slowly.

British Hopeful
"The British government is not discouraged nor pessimistic," interjected Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister. "The eventual international conference on disarmament will not be final but will be the first of a series of conferences, until the political situation in the world permits the nations to disarm to the extent suggested by the League covenant."

DAMAGE OF $35,000 BY GREENWICH FIRES

HOME FOLKS CLAIM SLIM; BYRD TO START FRIDAY

Mechanics Getting America Ready For Hop to Paris and Return—To Keep in Touch With Land With Radio All the Way Across.

New York, June 15.—With Commander Richard E. Byrd returning from Winchester, Va., tomorrow, mechanics at Roosevelt field today were putting the final touches on the POKER monoplane America for a probable take-off on the hop to Paris early Friday.

Scientific Trip
In contrast with the flights of Lindbergh and Chamberlin and Levine, the journey of the America will be primarily scientific. The most economical engine speeds from a fuel standpoint, utilization of favorable wind currents and the use of the radio are some of the things to be studied.

Different Course
Commander Byrd's course, moreover, will differ from that taken on the preceding trans-Atlantic flights. His route will be "flatter" and consequently somewhat longer, but will be nearer the steamship lanes.

Radio station WODA at Paterson, N. J., will endeavor to keep in touch with the "America" through the entire flight, furnishing government weather reports, ship bulletins and a musical program.

FATHER AND SON GET HOLY CROSS DEGREES

Worcester, Mass., June 15.—Father and son received degrees at Holy Cross college on the same day, for the second time in the history of the college today, when Joseph T. Lilly of Brookline, N. Y., received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws and his son, Robert A. Lilly, was awarded his A. M. as a graduate with the class of 1927.

Eleven honorary degrees were awarded at the commencement exercises, the first time that Holy Cross has ever so honored a woman.

Two hundred and seven students received their sheepskins from Governor Alvan T. Fuller, who also delivered the commencement address.

HERALD SCORES BEATS ON THE CLINE CASE

First in Six Different Instances With Real News—Here They Are—Check 'Em.

(Special to The Herald)
Rockville, June 15.—The Manchester Evening Herald has scored against all papers that have been following the Leonard Cline case in several ways. It was the first to announce that it would not be possible to hear the case in the June term and even if the indictment of murder in the first degree was brought in by the jury that the case would go over to September for trial.

It was the first paper to give the fact that it was the testimony of Coroner Arthur G. Bill, who was the last witness that turned the grand jury to vote for a true bill of first degree murder.

It was also the first paper that told how many votes were cast, two before twelve or more of the eighteen men had voted for this bill.

FLYING TWINS SEE GERMANY'S BIG ZEPPELIN

To Carry Passengers Between Spain and South America—Dr. Eckener Acts As Guide.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, June 15.—Ten thousand people gathered here today and cheered themselves hoarse while Clarence Chamberlin, Charles A. Levine and Dr. Hugo Eckener, zeppelin expert, met in conference to discuss plans for a trans-Atlantic air service which would make use of both airplanes and Zeppelins.

Both Chamberlin and Levine spent considerable time in the Zeppelin construction sheds, inspecting the work on what may be the first trans-Atlantic air liner. This dirigible is being built for an airship service between Spain and South America and is expected to go into commission next spring.

Over North Pole
Dr. Eckener told Chamberlin and Levine that when this dirigible is completed he intends to use it to make a flight across the North Pole, but simply as a trial flight.

"Then I intend to make several flights back and forth across the Atlantic to prove it can be done safely, before the liner goes into commission," Dr. Eckener said.

FIRMS FIGHT OVER PATENT GOLF CLUB

U. S. District Court in Hartford Looks Like a Machine Shop at Hearing.

Hartford, Conn., June 15.—The United States District court was turned into a plant for the manufacture of golf sticks today when the suit of the Horton Manufacturing Co., of Bristol, against the Union Hardware Co., of Torrington, for infringement of patent was heard before Judge Edwin S. Thomas here.

The Horton company asks for a permanent injunction to restrain the Torrington concern from using steel shafts in making golf sticks, and is suing for triple damages. The damages are not expected to reach a large amount as the Union Hardware Company has been making steel sticks only about two years.

COALITION PLANNED BY IRISH FACTIONS

Government Needs Five More Seats to Have a Majority; Nationalists to Aid.

Dublin, June 15.—A coalition party needs fifty seats in order to form a government and it has thus far secured only 45 seats, with a possibility of finally having 47 seats.

President Cosgrave's government party needs fifty seats in order to enable the present government to carry on without a coalition.

Five seats are still undetermined, but the government is expected to get two of these seats.

Minnesota's Official Delegation Calls on Hero—Gives Up Plan to Hop to Capital For His Plane—His Program For Today.

New York, June 15.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's "home folks" from Minnesota claimed him today, and "Lindy" gladly gave up the idea of flying to Washington to bring back his beloved "Spirit of St. Louis."

There was a happy reunion when Minnesota's official delegation called this morning at the Park avenue apartment where the flyer and his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh are staying. The delegation arrived in an automobile, bearing the legend, "Little Falls, Lindbergh's Home Town." They had driven in this car from Little Falls, Minn., to Washington, and thence to New York.

The Delegation
The delegation included A. L. Grime, of Little Falls, said to be the youngest mayor of Minnesota, who attended high school with "Lindy"; Dr. C. H. Lonsley, who did dental work for the flyer and Kenneth Martin, another schoolmate.

"Lindy's" meeting with the "home folks" was briefer than he wanted it to be, because he had to spend some time working on his book, the contract for which was signed last night with G. P. Putnam's Sons, publishers. Also, he had to get ready to attend a luncheon early this afternoon at the Hotel Astor as a guest of the Merchants' Association and the Chamber of Commerce of New York.

Mrs. Lindbergh was making arrangements to leave at 7:30 tonight on a special section of a Pennsylvania train for St. Louis. This section has been named "Spirit of St. Louis" in honor of Lindbergh's plane. She will be accompanied by thirty persons, all residents of St. Louis. Reception is being planned for "Lindy" in St. Louis, after the New York welcome is over.

ANXIOUS TO FLY

New York, June 15.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will not be himself until "We" are together again. Upon awakening today, the first thing he did was to take a look at the sky. He found it cloudless, and the sun shining brightly.

Had No Time
The report spread that Lindbergh planned to dash by motor to Mitchell Field this morning and from there fly to Washington. It is two hours to Washington by air and as long back. And he is scheduled to attend a luncheon at 12:30 this afternoon given by the Mercantile Association and the Chamber of Commerce.

If he does not fly this morning, he may make the trip this afternoon. He will not, however, fly at all if it means the breaking of any engagements.

Day His Own
His day is to be his own, except for the early afternoon luncheon. Tonight he appears at the boxing bouts at the Polo Grounds, where he will see his old friend, Ace Hudkins, Lincoln, Neb., "Wildcat" in action. He will also attend part of a Ziegfeld theater performance at midnight which will attend the Nungesser-Coli benefit performance at the Roxy theater.

His mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, will bid New York farewell at five o'clock this afternoon. She will take a train for St. Louis, accompanied by members of that city's reception for Lindbergh committee. St. Louis plans a great reception for Lindbergh upon his arrival there after his hop off from New York Friday in the "Spirit of St. Louis."

Guest of Honor
Colonel Lindbergh was the guest of honor last night at a banquet at the Hotel Commodore attended by 3,700 of New York's most prominent personalities. Lindy described his hop from New York to Paris, told about the tremendous receptions he had received and, swinging to his favorite subject—commercial aviation—predicted a glowing future for America in the air, but warned that the necessary steps must be taken to assure the nation this supremacy.

An essential need just now, Lindbergh said, was the establishment of more and greater airports closer to the centers of population. Trans-Atlantic air travel is still years distant, he said. A commercial

MONUMENTS

In a rather highly localized speech, better calculated to stir the pride of the industrial midwest than to attract very wide attention throughout the country, President Coolidge yesterday, at Hammond, Ind., nevertheless pointed to an elementary fact about America which it has not occurred to many other persons to enlarge upon.

"The estimation which we, as a nation, set upon the patriotic efforts of those who have served in time of war," said Mr. Coolidge, "is revealed not only in the untold treasure which we have lavished upon them and their dependents, but also in the highest possible honors which have been constantly conferred on them by their fellow citizens."

"As a people we stand in respectful reverence before the things that men do. It is but a passing fancy that we bestow upon wealth and power, compared with that which we pour out upon courage, patriotism, holiness, character. We dedicate no monuments to merely financial and economic success, while our country is filled with memorials to those who have done service for their fellow men."

True enough. There are moments built to riches, but they are built by the owners of the riches themselves, and they do not stir the pulse. Strangers do not come hundreds of miles to lay wreaths on the doorstep of the Singer building. They lay them on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

ANOTHER ADVENTURER.

While millions of eyes were on Lindbergh, Viking of the skies, hardly a handful of Americans had time to note the departure of Hugo Hohana from Providence on a venture no less perilous than the boy air king's, and which would be no less romantic were it not that it is as old as Lindbergh's achievement was new.

With few to observe and almost as few to care, this forty year old sailor set forth in a tiny, refurbished old schooner to sail alone the 4,000 miles of ocean lying between his port of departure and the Canary Islands.

Apparently Hohana is not even a navigator, for he carried no sextant, no chronometer and so does not plan to "shoot the sun" to guide his course. With a compass and a dollar watch and the North star as his sole navigating equipment, he plans to sail as did the adventurers of a thousand years ago, by dead reckoning.

His crew consists of a puppy and a kitten. He has food and fishing tackle. He knows whereabouts, from Nantucket, the Canaries lie, and he is on his way.

Over there are his wife and his three children. He hasn't seen them for five years. They don't know he is sailing. But he firmly expects to walk in upon them, one of these days.

Let it be hoped that in this day of newer things the exploit of Hugo Hohana will not be altogether forgotten by the newspapers and the press associations. Twenty years ago half the world would have been watching for reports of him. We shall be lucky now if we ever hear whether he reaches Grand Canaria. Or whether his little vessel shall have joined the long, long list of the ships that never reached port.

CONTRACT INDIGESTION

That illness should attack Will Rogers—particularly an illness diagnosed as nervous indigestion—is one of those almost incredible contradictions that we are called on to face every now and then. If temperament has anything to do with health, as so many besides Christian Scientists assert, or if health has anything to do with temperament, then the bubbling and lucid philosopher from the West would have seemed about as near immune from physical ills as anybody on earth. To learn that he is the victim of a malady usually associated with overworked bookkeepers and congenital hypochondriacs is a real shock.

But after all, there may be a clue. When a spontaneously funny man undertakes to be funny on contract and per specifications the result is sometimes disastrous. Never was there anybody funnier than the late Bill Nye so long as he was funny only when the spirit moved him. But when he agreed to be funny at the rate of so many thousand words a week at so much cash per thousand, that was the end of him.

The doctors tell Will Rogers he must have a long rest. At the end of it let us hope that he emerges not only with all his physical and temperamental alertness restored, but contract-free. And stays so.

CONTRAST.

Thirty Negro laborers marooned in a section house on the embankment of a Mississippi valley railroad, with the water creeping higher about them every moment, and with no imaginable way of escaping, were hailed by the crew of a power boat which was towing a scow load of provisions toward a trapped community miles away. "Can't take you aboard unless I throw overboard this stuff for the starving folks at The Bogue," shouted the captain. "What do you say? I can come back for you tomorrow, maybe."

For three days the Negroes had been stranded in that hut, jammed together, with scarcely anything to eat. Their situation was ghastly. "No sub, Captain sub; you best jest travel right along with that grub. Us kin wait." So shouted one of the trapped men; and not a voice was raised in remonstrance.

All over the vast submerged areas Negroes performed acts of quiet heroism which matched the bravest and most enterprising achievements of their white neighbors. And writers on the ground have given due recognition to their patience, their courage and their orderly behavior.

Yet in yesterday's news dispatches there was a short item telling how two Negroes, accused of the murder of a white man, had been seized by a Mississippi mob—living, be it remembered, in the same state as the thirty Negroes who let the food scow go on to The Bogue—and with fiendish cruelty burned at the stake.

Is it any wonder that there are thousands of people in the North who not only gravely question which race—the black or the white—is proving itself the superior race in the South, but who are almost at the point where they will conclude that the question is a question no longer.

Never yet, among all the crimes with which the Southern blacks are accused, have they ever been charged with burning a human being alive.

JEROME K. JEROME

Jerome K. Jerome—Jerum K. Jerum as they pronounce it in his homeland—has joined the ranks of the great departed. Somewhat less in the eye of the American public than he was a quarter of a century ago, the author of "Three Men in a Boat," and the widely known play "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" was still an outstanding figure in a literary field toward which America has contributed surprisingly little and in which several English writers of the past century have demonstrated a singular gift. Jerome K. Jerome was fitted with the power to find a funny side to the vacancy by the curve of a zero mark. And like all such persons he had infinite capacity for appreciating the tragedies as well as the humor of hum-drum.

Jerome was one of a very considerable number of English writers whose achievements ought to make us a good deal more careful, on this side of the water, about assuming that the British sense of humor is less lively than our own. With his passing goes some of the sunshine.

TEAM CAPTAINS.

There may be no significance to the fact that three captains of major sports at Harvard university will not get their degrees because they failed to pass satisfactory examinations, but even the most enthusiastic for college athletics will perhaps grant that the coincidence is striking. Clement Coady, football; William Ellison, hockey, and Isidore Zarakov, baseball, are the uncrowned kings who have fallen by the wayside in what some old fashioned people believe to be the principal activity of university life. Still, it makes no great difference to a professional athlete whether he is a bachelor of arts or not—and possibly the future of none of these young men will be affected by the fact that, outside their physical specialties, they didn't learn much in their four years at the great Cambridge college.

NOW THE ZEPPELINS

Inevitably, the apostles of the Zeppelins could not sit long under the strain of heavier-than-air successes in transoceanic flight. So Dr.

Hugo Eckener is planning to fly from Berlin to Berlin via Yokohama, New York and way stations, in twelve and a half days. He only plans a couple of stops. Notwithstanding that during the war Germany spent a very considerable part of her resources on Zeppelins that accomplished next to nothing and that were wrecked by the dozens, they persist over there in believing that the big bags can do things. However, the bookmakers will probably be willing to give Dr. Eckener pretty fair odds that his ship won't go around the world either in twelve days or twelve months.

New York, June 15.—They predict in Manhattan that the day of the "millionaire waiters" and nationally famed chefs will be done when the present quota of famous food handlers has passed on.

The pessimists certainly seem to have something to wall about. In the newest eating places little seems to remain of that pride of cuisine that made Delmonico, Sherry and such names known about the world. One or two who have attempted to appeal only to the aristocratic palates have found the public unresponsive.

A few of the famous hotels still pride themselves on their dining rooms, but Broadway has been taken over almost completely by Chinese chow-mien parlors, arm-chair quick lunches, drug-store counters and other quick-and-lazy, such as would bring tears to the eyes of the gourmets of old.

The average supper clubs have made no pretense at food, catering chiefly to the eyes, ears and feet.

Outside the dining salons of those few flag-bearers of an old tradition, the best food to be found in New York is in little foreign cafes of the East Side and lower waterfront belt. Here people actually go for the purpose of eating, a consideration practically unknown to the uptown belt.

Meanwhile those veteran artists of gastronomy and table etiquette take on the flavor of grandees. They are bowed to and enshrined, and go about their affairs after the fashion of efficient business chiefs.

Thus Oscar of the Waldorf, one of the most famed, has a secretary to attend to all his affairs. If one wishes to get Oscar on the phone, the voice you will first hear is that of Martin Laffey, who relieves the chef of business details. Speaking of cafes, I walked past what once was Almonico's, only to find that it was now occupied by one of those places where you turn in your cigar coupons for an alarm clock, a safety razor or a lamp shade.

Continuing up Fifth Avenue, you may note that packers have left nothing but broken stone crumbs of what was once the aristocratic and beautiful Vanderbilt mansion. And everywhere you go it seems that the colorful and picturesque places are passing in favor of those standardized 20-story apartments and, in a few years, it may be that there will be no more chummy blocks about parks and squares.

A THOUGHT

Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are.—Revelation 1:19.

Look then into thine heart and write.—Longfellow.

BY DON E. MOWRY

Secretary, the American Community Advertising Association

Nearly every American city now has a number of foreign-born residents. The problem of making these residents into good Americans and making them realize the benefits and importance of citizenship is a task which too many cities neglect.

Canton, O., has solved this problem in an admirable manner. Four times a year, when classes take out their final citizenship papers in the county courts, Canton arranges elaborate programs in which the new citizens play a prominent part. Without these programs the granting of citizenship would be a dull affair.

Last April there were 1500 attending this affair. They staged a Pageant of Nations, including tableaux showing colonial history, signing of the Declaration of Independence and early days in Canton. Then there were native folk dances, staged by the foreign-born. Emphasis was placed on American manners and language. The affair closed with songs, a talk and the presentation of certificates. Night schools in Canton have 2000 pupils and the important department is the Americanization division. Classes are conducted in various sections of the city. For the women, burdened with home work and with children, the instructors conduct classes in the homes. The fee to become a member of any of the classes is but two dollars for a full term of three months. Hundreds of foreign-born men and women, many of them gray-haired, are members of the beginners' class, the English class or the citizenship class, and Canton is Americanizing its whole foreign-born population.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, June 15.—The ordinary gent who mutters and groans as he shells out $300 to have his roof reshingled was inclined to sniff suspiciously when $300,000 was appropriated to "fix the roof" of the White House.

There was much wagging of heads. Anyone who has seen the tons of steel, brick, tile and timber at the White House portals, the great cranes on the lawn and other evidence of extensive operations, will realize how superfluous was all that worry.

The wooden truss support on which the second floor depended so long—because supporting columns had been pulled out to enlarge the rooms—is being replaced by a structure of steel which will be doing business long after our great-grandchildren have become presidents.

The contractor can hardly be making any exorbitant profit. He was required to erect a temporary protecting roof as he took off the old one—which has made it appear to tourists as if the White House supported a full-fledged roof garden. A temporary floor had to be built over the second story, also for purposes of protection.

The contractor had to take out $750,000 insurance, covering possible damage to everything in sight, at the same time guaranteeing to keep the White House as slightly as possible during operations. And the roof is only part of the job. For instance, the contractor had to install seven new bathtubs, seven new showers, and 16 new lavatories as well as considerable new marble work.

The weakness of the roof and the full extent of the peril to the president and his family are said to have been fully revealed only since it was torn apart, but the danger was really known all along.

Chairman William M. Butler of the Republican National Committee had the fright of his life one evening as he sat gabbling with Mr. Coolidge. There was a sudden grinding roar overhead as if an earthquake had arrived and Butler leaped from his chair like a man who sat on a tack. "That's nothing—just the roof settling," said Mr. Coolidge, taking another puff at his cigar.

Work would have begun on the White House long before if the president had not been so reluctant to transfer his domicile. It is one of his characteristics that he detests prolonged changes of scenery which vary his accustomed routine and remove him from all the conveniences of efficiency and comfort such as he enjoys at the White House. He likes to have buttocks to push and his staff close by.

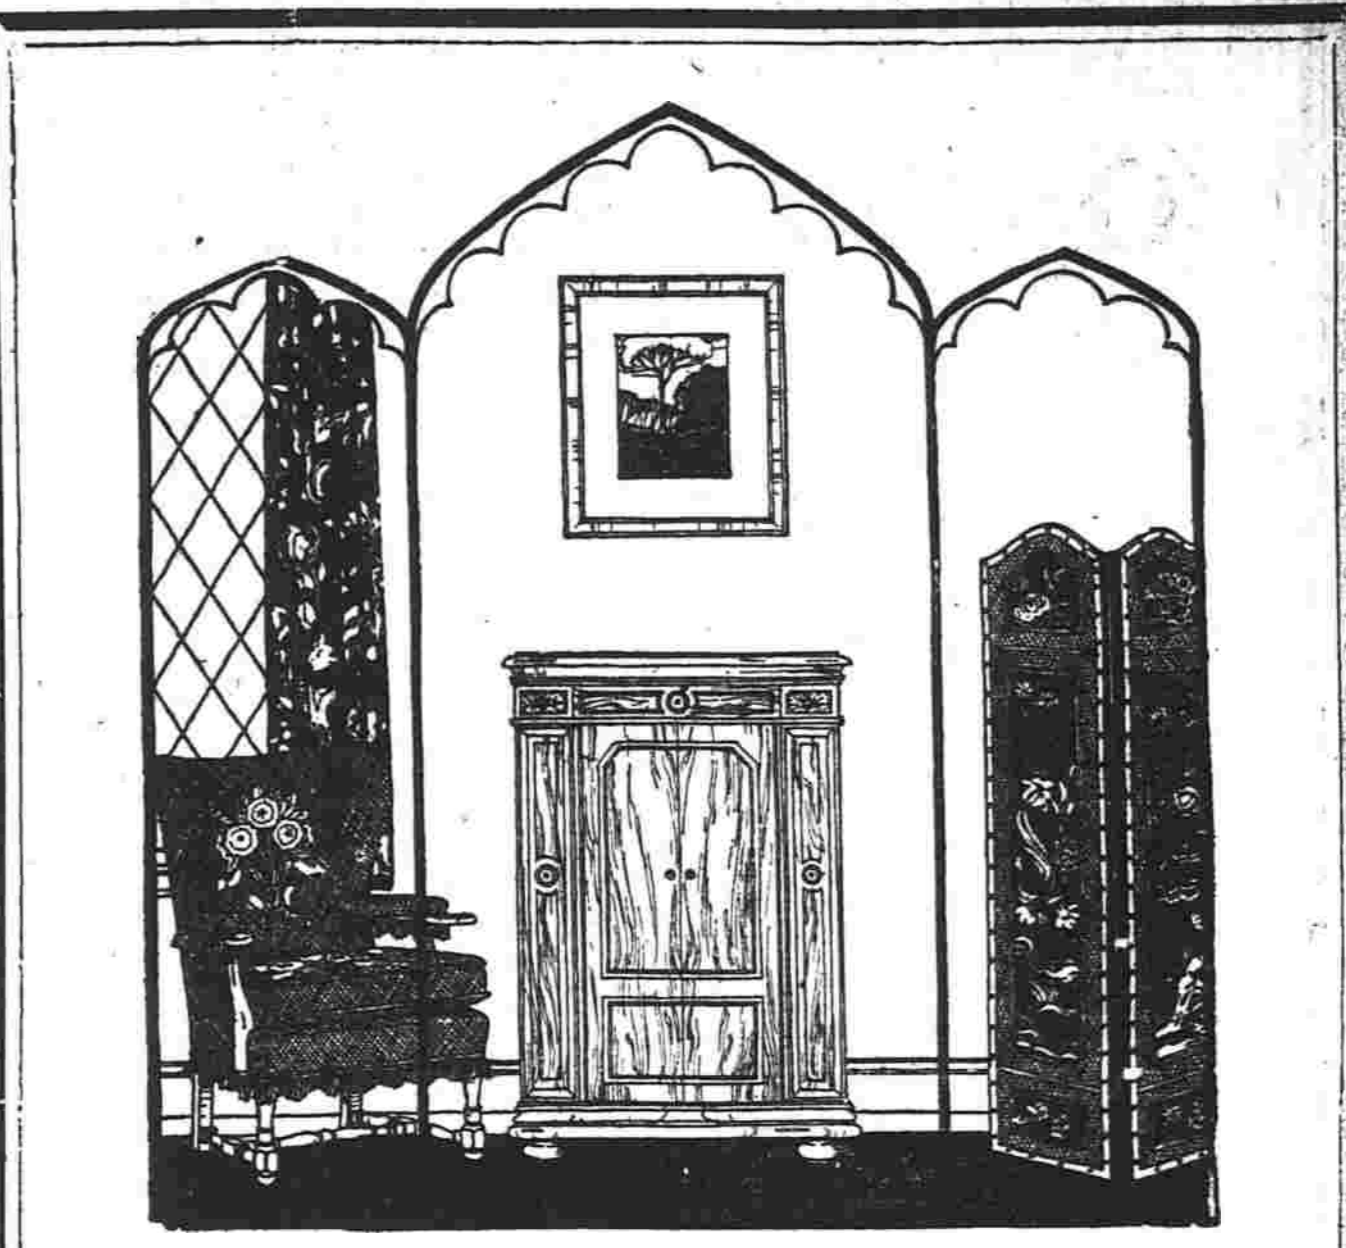

Thus, summer vacations are something of a bugbear for him, although necessary from a physical standpoint and highly advisable from a political standpoint. The president considered it rather a nuisance when he vacationed at Swampscott and had to keep his executive offices in Lynn. Apparently this situation will be more than duplicated in the Black Hills this summer. "Tools ain't handy," Mr. Coolidge is quoted as having explained in an informal moment.

Chairman Butler beat the president to it by getting in a week's vacation in the Canadian woods and refusing to let his office know where he could be reached. This was Butler's first fishing and roughing trip for five or six years. He was accompanied by an old friend from Boston and a guide or two.

Jungle Breath

THIS HAS HAPPENED LINCOLN RUSSELL, elderly American chemist, is summoned to the little jungle-bordered town of Porto Verde in west central Brazil, by his young friend VILAK who is concerned for the safety of his beautiful cousin, ELISE MARRBERRY, owner of a coffee plantation and other property near Porto Verde.

He aided the foreman to arise and began brushing off his clothes. "Terribly sorry," he murmured apologetically. "I don't know what the devil made me so awkward."

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of VILAK's cousin, ELISE MARRBERRY, who was found dead in her room. VILAK believes GAYLORD PRENTISS, a restless and forbidding man, known to be an enemy of ELISE, may be involved some way in the deaths.

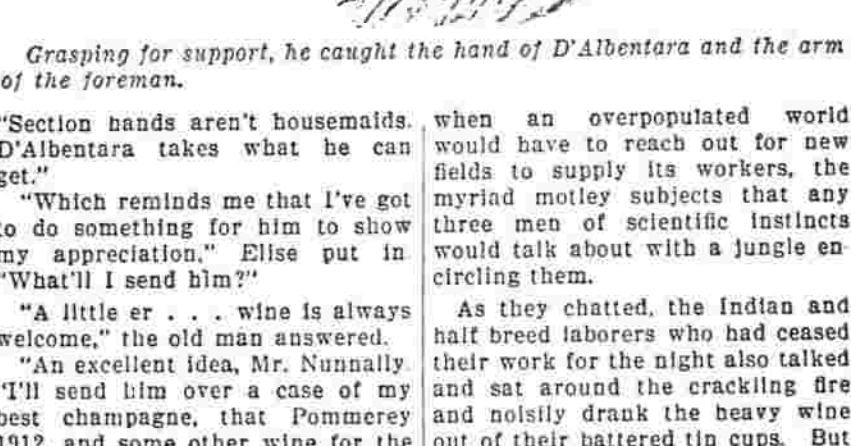

The half breed's shining eyes glared angrily. "You are a dwarfed, knotted fingers seemed to start to the knife at his belt, then he smiled and gave an affable grunt. "Tagos does not mind," D'Albentara murmured as VILAK still sought to repair the damage he had wrought.

"BAD news!" Anxiety was evident in ELISE's voice. The old man, too, who had been bent over in his saddle so absorbed that the passer-by he must have seemed asleep, looked up with a start.

"One or two of them look as if they might be getting a tiny bit tipsy," VILAK declared to the engineer, as they shook hands. "I hope Senhorita Marberry's wine isn't good to have any bad effects."

"I hate to be a kill-joy just when you are so happy," said VILAK. "But if you want to keep on being happy you'll get Tinky away from here as quickly as you can. Take the boat that leaves here next week."

"The old man looked bewildered. "But why should you want to do such a thing? You almost ruined your suit."

"Section hands aren't housemaids," D'Albentara takes what he can get. "Which reminds me that I've got to do something for him to show my appreciation," ELISE put in. "What'll I send him?"

"Er... nothing. Where did you get the finger of the Indian foreman. I saw it and wanted to study it at my leisure. I pulled him down and felt sharply on his arm so that the pain I was causing him would allow me to wrench the ring away without being noticed."

Life's Niceties HINTS ON ETIQUET. 1. What is the correct hour to give a Sunday morning breakfast to friends? 2. How does one send out invitations? Is the hour specified?

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

If you want to find out whether your friends, relatives and acquaintances are really intelligent, just passing bright, or plain mortals, listen to them talk, and reflect upon it. A certain renowned psychologist who has been passing the time away by dodging around corners, listening to people talk, says that the highest type of person talks of ideas; the next highest talks of material things; and the lowest, talks of personalities.

The Baby's Name Speaking of names and ologies, they tell us now that the unborn child really names himself or herself. They say that when little Percy, grown into a big Percy, rebukes his parents for foisting such a name on him, he has only himself to blame as his own self, tiny and unborn though it was, dictated the name.

It amused me much to hear a husband talk in this wise the other morning: "Well, I had breakfast down town this morning. Wife was very gay. I enjoyed it. I never feel like that at home, and just nibble around, by the time I've had a little air."

Connected more or less with the above idea is a recent magazine article called "Mother" by Virginia Terhune Van der Water. In which she makes a study of the other generation. In years, she clearly analyzes the mother legend of the then and the now, that she proves herself a modern in mind if not body.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE by PAUL ADAMS. This is Chapter 57 of the series of articles written by a correspondent. The author hangs all the trouble on the fact that mothers who were raised in the old-fashioned mother tradition, which glorified a woman for performing a natural biological function and living the life she chose to live, the life of motherhood, can hardly be expected to get the point of view of today's generation which says that all this mother business is sentimental bunk.

There is a possibility that the scheduled baseball game between Manchester High and Middletown High to be played in that city will be cancelled. The teams were supposed to play yesterday but rain interfered. The Middletown manager doubts whether it will be able to play either today or tomorrow and school closes Friday in that city. However, Faculty Manager Edson M. Bailey was endeavoring last night to make some kind of arrangements so that the game might be played. Manchester High is not sure of second place in the league, it is understood, unless it takes a defeat on Middletown in the season's final. Manchester has won 11 games and lost three but the defeats have all been league affairs.

The Aces baseball club will hold a business meeting at the West Side Rec Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. It is important that all members of the club attend this meeting.

A woman's handicap golf tournament was slated to be held over the Country Club course this afternoon.

The Trade School baseball game with New Britain yesterday was postponed because of rain. Bridgeport Trade plays at Mt. Nebo Friday. The local nine is having a very successful year under the coaching of John Echmalian. Only one defeat has been suffered in two seasons and that required eleven innings and Springfield Vocational to do the trick. Next week Friday, the locals go to Springfield for a return engagement.

"Hook" Brennan, left-handed infielder on the Bon Ami baseball nine, is having a good season, both in batting and in fielding. Hook is the only left-handed player in town playing third base. While his fielding has been satisfactory, his hitting has been much more noticeable. There is seldom a game goes by that the box score doesn't show two hits for him. And baseball is not Brennan's best sport by a million miles. The north end lad is far more to home when racing through a broken field on the gridiron.

The Community club is making efforts to secure another pitcher. At present Vin Farrand is the only one on the staff and it is possible that Russ Fisher of Hartford may be drafted into use.

Tommy Sipples, one of the best ball players Manchester ever turned out, is hitting hard and fielding well for the Elmwood New Departures and East Hampton, the latter being in the Middlesex County League. Last year, Sipples played several games in Manchester, but so far has yet to make his 1927 debut before local fandom.

Tennis seems to be attracting more attention this summer than in several seasons here. The various courts are kept in use most of the time and often there is a large waiting list. The court in the rear of the High school, which is the most centrally located, is often in use early in the morning and late at night. Many school teachers are taking advantage of tennis as a means of keeping in the pointer from registering too high when they step on the scales to be weighed.

The Community Club was unable to hold its practice session last night because of the rainy weather but it will be held tonight at Hickey's Grove at 6 o'clock instead. Manager Wilfred Bulla announced this morning that he had completed arrangements for the Rockville independents to play at the West Side playgrounds Friday night. The independents consist of the same players that held the Bristol New Departures to an extra inning game last Saturday under the name of the Polish Americans.

LINDY TO GET PASS
New York, June 15.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will be presented with a special gold pass to all National League games at St. Louis next Saturday when the Cardinals raise their world championship pennant.

The flyer has promised to attend the game between the Giants and the Cardinals on that afternoon, which has been set aside as Hornsby day.

Frank C. dwell, manager of the local track has just returned from New York where he attended the Sunday races. He discovered two capable young pace-followers in Rene Boogman of Holland and Roy Johnson of Australia and they will be seen soon in a race at the local track.

A group of professional and amateur riders will compete in the sprint race supporting the 35-mile motor-paced race.
Bill Tashilo, whose hand blades encouragement to the riders as they go down the home stretch, has brought the new song, "Lindbergh, America's Eagle of the Air," back from New York and it will be played at the race tomorrow night for the first time in Hartford.

RAIN KEEPS TEN BIG TEAMS IDLE
By LES CONKLIN.
I. N. S. Correspondent.
New York, June 15.—With ten straight victories to their credit, the Chicago Cubs figure to compile the greatest winning streak of the season at the expense of the lowly Phillies, who begin a series with the Braves today. The Cubs are only one game behind the Pirates, but Hack Wilson's thirteenth homer featured Chicago's four to three victory over the Giants yesterday. Having failed to trade themselves into a pennant, the Giants are now picking on the umpires. They claim that Pick's single, which drove in the winning run in the eleventh, was fouled by a city block, and kicked loud and long at previous decisions in the series. The New Yorkers have dropped eight of their last ten games.
Jackie May of the Reds held the Braves to four hits and blanked them one to nothing. Henry Wertz pitched well for the losers but was in what is technically known as a tough spot.
Grover Alexander's relief pitching insured the Cardinals six to four victory over the Phillies. Cy Williams walloped his eleventh homer. The Cards swept the Reds. The other ten clubs were idle. The White Sox and Athletics begin a battle for second place today in Philadelphia.
Walter Beall, the original wild man, has been sent to St. Paul by the Yankees on option and Connie Mack has shipped Dudley Branon, the millionaire first baseman, to Portland of the Pacific League on option.

Take Nothing For Granted Evans Tells Ball Players

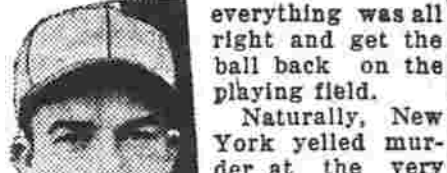

By BILLY EVANS
"Take nothing for granted in baseball" is a long standing proverb of the national pastime. There never was a truer one.

On Decoration Day at Philadelphia, in a game between the Yankees and the Athletics, a most unusual play came up that proves fact is often stranger than fiction.
New York won the game, 6-5, in 11 innings. Philadelphia protested the game over the disputed play, claiming had the umpires rendered a ruling favorable to the Athletics, the contest would have been won by that team in regulation time.
While my information is merely gleaned from the wire dispatches, which may not be just as the umpires on the ground saw it, I can well realize the many angles involved and sympathize with the officials called upon to render a final decision.

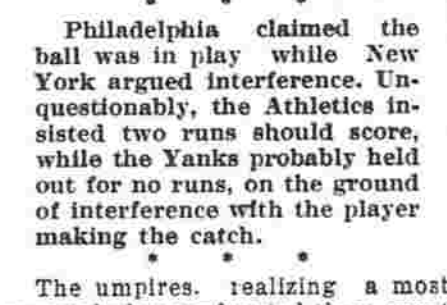

Sportsmanship, fair play, must often be the basis for a decision that has as many angles as the Philadelphia play, which I will describe as I know it from press reports.
With Cobb on first base and Collins on second, Simmons, of the Athletics, a towering fly that carried into foul territory between third and home.
A high wind was blowing, which it seemed would ultimately drive the ball into the stands. Catcher Grabowski of the New York club finally caught the ball just to the side of the Philadelphia dugout.

When he came into contact with the railing placed there to protect players from falling into the dugout, his momentum carried him over the railing and down perhaps ten concrete steps, into the tunnel leading into the players' dressing room.
Fearing that he was hurt, several of the Philadelphia players on the bench rushed down the steps to render first aid if necessary. In the interest of a humane cause these players unknowingly complicated the entire situation.

Since baserunners can advance on a foul fly that is caught, Collins and Cobb, within their rights, dashed for the plate the moment Grabowski caught the ball and did an Annette Kellermann down the dugout steps.
Collins scored from second and Cobb from first before Grabowski could convince his well-wishers that everything was all right and get the ball back on the playing field.

Naturally, New York yelled murder at the very idea of permitting two runs to score while Grabowski was in the Athletic dugout and his only means of coming out shut off by curious players who feared he had been killed by the fall.
A long dispute resulted in which both sides presented many and varied arguments.
Philadelphia's strongest contention was the ball was in play and therefore the runners had a right to go the limit at their peril, that both Cobb and Collins should score.
No doubt New York argued that the Athletic players who impeded Grabowski from returning at once to the playing field, even though they were not aiding him in a desire to help rather than hinder, had technically interfered with him.
Philadelphia claimed the ball was in play while New York argued interference. Unquestionably, the Athletics insisted two runs should score, while the Yanks probably held out for no runs, on the ground of interference with the player making the catch.

The umpires, realizing a most unusual play confronted them, went into a conference and reached a decision which it seems to me was eminently fair but which has been protested.
It is a rule that on all balls thrown into the players' bench, or a fair hit ball that might in some way bound into the bench, all runners shall be entitled to two bases.
I am inclined to think the umpires gave thought to this rule, when they permitted Collins to advance two bases and score from second while Cobb was sent from first to third.

The player in making the catch had been thrown into restricted two-base territory and according to reports was prevented from making an immediate return to the playing field by the opposing players.
Of course, the Athletics insisted the ball was in play and failed to agree with the umpires in what it seems was a fair play ruling.
Umpires have never made a ground rule covering such a contingency because such a happening seemed impossible, but it is safe to assume it will be covered after an official ruling is given on the protest.

OAK S WIN JUNIOR LEAGUE PENNANT

Decisively Trounce Polish A. C., 14-0; Billy Copeland Hits a Homer; So Does Palmer.
The final chapter of the Junior League in the Minor Division was written Monday night on the North End playgrounds when the Oaks decisively defeated the Polish A. C. The score was 14 to 0.
In a order that there might be no doubt as to the final score and their ability to weld the bat, each member of the Oaks contributed at least one hit. Hickey, Bells, Gode, Kelley and Spencer made two. Copeland and Palmer walloped home runs. Palmer, who has been out of the Oaks' lineup for the past six weeks with a broken ankle, returned and showed his team mates that his batting eye was still good.
The score by innings: 0-0 531 x-14
Oaks.....000 050 531 x-14
Kusek worked hard to turn the tide in their favor but the Oaks were not to be denied.
Director G. H. Washburn, stated this morning that the league had adopted an embryo ball player who will later represent his community on the larger teams. Mr. Washburn stressed the points of moral, good sportsmanship, and organization which were the objective points of the league. The boys were enthused over the possibility of a basketball league in the fall, when the subject was touched on briefly by Director Washburn.
Mr. Washburn also informed the Herald that a Midget League would be launched in a day or two for boys under sixteen years of age. Fox teams have signified their entry in this league, Buckland, Wapping, Manchester Green and the Black Eagles. At a meeting of the managers, Donahue, Woodward, Cowles and Bycholski, rules and regulations were drawn up and a schedule submitted to each team captain. Any team of boys whose average age is not more than fifteen may join the league by phoning G. H. Washburn, Tel. 1594, or notifying any of the above managers.

VACCA DEFEATED
Los Angeles, June 15.—The "New-boy" Brown, local contender for Fidel La Barba's flyweight crown, was awarded the decision over Johnny Vacca, of Boston, after ten rounds of fast and furious milling before a capacity house at the Olympic here last night. Vacca weighed 116 and Brown-tipped the Fairbanks at 114, the fight being at catchweights.

HAMPTON AND JOHNSTON LEAD FIELD IN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Turn In 73 Card—Cooper and Sarazen With a 74; Bobby Jones and Ted Ray Are Next.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 15.—Harry Hampton and Jimmy Johnston today were leading in the field in the national open golf championship with 73's and Harry Cooper and Gene Sarazen were chasing this pair home with 74. Bill Mehlhorn, Meet French and Larry Nabholz finished in triangular tie for the next place with 75's. Then followed Bobby Jones and Ted Ray, old but far from inept, with a pair of 78's. Jones thought his badly, but as a matter of fact, he was a near hero.

All Have Chance
All these gentry naturally still have a chance for the title but there are more and several. Unfortunately the national open golf tournament is not decided in one round. There are three more and perform any man who beats eighty is a man who entertains fond dreams this morning.

British Did Well
In other words, not many British and plenty of Americans still are in the chase, although man for man the invaders did well. For instance, Fred Robson, of England, dropped out but Chick Evans, the American amateur who formerly held both open and amateur titles, might well have done likewise. He had an 83.
George Duncan, stylist of the invading brigade, was almost equally impudent. He had an 84 so did Bert Jolly, another Englishman who was not.
When one considers that Aubrey Palmer, also an Englishman, and John Golden, one of the hot choices, had 33's; Willie McFarlane an 82 and Johnny Farrell and Joe Turnesa a pair of 81's, one can get an idea of how the young man did not score yesterday. If further evidence was needed, the 84 of C. A. Whitcombe, of England, might seem to complete the indictment.
Everybody Bad
In other words, everybody was bad and, of course, everybody still has a chance today. There are three more rounds and virtually none of them can be as bad as the first.
Approximately a score of 295 will win the championship. Who will get it? Obviously, the man who guarantee to shoot the next three rounds under 75. Jones could, he has the 75 and the temperament gained by his victories in 1923 and 1926, when he won both the American and British titles.
Behind him, then, is precedent. Behind him, too, is the ability to make the shots when it is a good shot counts. It has been this kind of play that made Robert T. Jones the greatest golfer of the age and a little more of it will make him a man who has achieved what has been popularly regarded as the impossible. Only Johnny McDermott has been able to win in two successive years; then he was all washed up, absolutely over and done with. Jones not only has won the title twice but he has taken all

CRACKERJACK CARD IN THE VELODROME

Canadian Eight-Man Amateur Team Shows Wares In Hartford This Evening.

With renewed vigor gained through an additional 24-hours rest, the stable of eight amateur boxing champions from across the Canadian border, will exhibit their wares, weather permitting, before an extra large gathering of fans at the Hartford Velodrome tonight. There will be eight international and four inter-city bouts on the program and any Manchester fan who saw the five-man Canadian team that came to Hartford several months ago, will not miss tonight's gala attraction which bids fair to be the most colorful amateur fight card ever held in Connecticut. One of the Canadian boxers has won thirty-four consecutive bouts without a single defeat.

These boxers make up the Canadian team: 112 pounds, Barney O'Connell; 118 pounds, Art Gagne; 130 pounds, Art Gloutney; 147 pounds, Harry Chevallier; 147 pounds, Paul St. Germaine; 150 pounds, George Ashe; 160 pounds, Stan Holseth; 165 pounds, Bill Torpin.

O'Connell, who is flyweight champion of the Dominion, is one of the outstanding members of the team from across the border. He has scored sixty-four consecutive wins as an amateur and never has been defeated.
O'Connell will meet Eddie Reed and the local boy, who is state champion, is evidently in for a rough voyage, though Eddie is confident he can give a good account of himself against the Canadian. Eddie laid off the last card in order to be in shape for tonight's hard test.

Vincent LaBella, the fast-stepping Middletown bantam, will go against Gagne, who has a long string of victories including several knockouts, and Barney Youssam will go against Art Gloutney, lightweight of the Canadian team.
"Pinkey" Kaufman will be bracketed with Harry Chevallier, who holds a decision over Harry Schuch, the Canadian welterweight who beat Ray Hogan here last winter; and Ray Hall is in the same division with Paul St. Germaine, the only one of the visiting team not champion either of Quebec or all Canada.

Jack Kelly of Waterbury, state middleweight titleholder, will meet Stan Holseth, who some time ago defeated Gene Ratel the Canadian, who here last winter defeated Joe Howard; while Joe Howard will mix with Bill Torpin.
Paul Terzo of Hartford will take on George Ashe, the 150-pounder.

OTHERS OF VALUE AND THE ONLY THING LEFT FOR HIM IS THE DUBIOUS HONOR OF MAKING HIS TRIUMPHS ALTOGETHER OFFICIAL BY WINNING THE PRESENT TOURNAMENT.

There are plenty of good golfers to say him nay. The only question that remains is whether they will be able to, or whether a man like Jones will take "no" for an answer. I seem to remember when he wouldn't.

LUCKY NUMBER WINS DIAMOND AT STATE. To Be Given Away At Country Store Tomorrow Night; Bebe Daniels Here Today.

Somebody will get a diamond ring tomorrow night with a lucky number on a coupon. Who it is nobody knows, and nobody will know until the number is drawn off.

The feature picture is "Stage Madness," starring the emotional actress, Virginia Vall and Lou Tellegen. Other good supporters are in the remainder of the cast, most of them well known to theater-goers here.

"Stage Madness" is the story of a dancer who won the heart of the multitude but lost her own. The dancer, used to the bright lights, finds that married life pulls on her. Her baby doesn't make the situation any better and she yearns for the stage and her dancing partner, who, by the way, is played by Lou Tellegen.

Her impoverished husband, who is an artist, fails to hold her interest, and in the end goes back to the plaudits of the crowd. She becomes the greatest dancer in the world and loses track of her husband. How she becomes reconciled to her family life forms the main part of the story.

Bebe Daniels, one of the most beautiful stars in the movies at the present time, is more beautiful than ever in her characterization of Francisco Hernandez in "The Senorita," which is the attraction at the State theater today. Miss Daniels is called upon to play a difficult role and she makes good in every way.

The picture resembles those of Douglas Fairbanks in that there are

Jack Lockwill's Police Dog

Jack was startled, and his blood ran cold for a moment. Then, his eyes, adapting themselves to the dim light, he saw that the thing was a big white owl, perched on a low beam. Relieved, he laughed. "I guess Mandy's talk about ghosts has got me jumpy," he admitted, leading Dynamite into a stall. "She's just a silly, frightened wench." "Whoop! whoop!" shouted the owl.

by Gilbert Patten

After they had dined, Jack's mother showed him through the spacious rooms of the big house. Part of the house, unfurnished and bare, still remained locked up. "Why is it called Ivor's Loss?" he asked. "It was built by John Ivor," she explained, "and he died here, alone, after his young wife left him." "That night Jack was awakened by a dog, howling dimly in the distance." (To Be Continued)

Miss E. Marion Dorward has been selected by Ralph L. Baldwin, supervisor of music in the Hartford High schools, and superintendent of his Institute of Music Pedagogy in Northampton, Mass. to fill a position on the faculty of that school. The school is one where music supervisors receive summer training. Miss Dorward has been supervisor of music in the Ninth District schools here for the past three years. She organized the High School orchestra upon her coming here. This organization has since built up a reputation through public appearances in town and by its radio broadcasting. She also organized both a boys' and girls' glee club in the local high school. Last year the boys' club were the winners of the Central Connecticut interscholastic glee club championship.

Mary C. Keeny Tent, Daughters of Union Veterans will have its regular business meeting at the state armory tomorrow evening. The entertainment committee will be in charge of the program in observation of Flag Day, just passed.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank those who have sympathized with us in our bereavement in the death of our beloved husband and brother, also the Sons of Italy and the Christopher Columbus society. Also those who have contributed flowers.

SATISFACTION

There is a heap o' satisfaction in knowing a bountiful, tasty dinner is awaiting you at the end of a hard day's work. Meats, ice chilled, fresh and full of flavor. Vegetables crisp and tender as the minute they left the garden. Milk sweet and nourishing. These are but a few of the good things you can enjoy when you have ice regularly in your home. You will be repaid many times the small cost of the ice in fresher, better foods.
