

COOLIDGE NOW SETTLED DOWN FOR VACATION

Welcomed By Cowboys On Arrival—To Meet Camera Men Today—Dines On Juicy Buffalo Steak.

State Game Lodge, South Dakota, June 15.—Welcomed to Black Hills by the cowboys he was told to expect, President Coolidge this morning planned to divide his first day in this rugged summer White House between contemplation of the wonderful surrounding scenery, a buffalo steak, and the lenses of a large battery of movie and still cameras.

Arising about six o'clock, the scenery came first, next came the photographers. His engagement with them was the first official appointment of the summer season. Arrival at the game lodge last night was so late Mr. Coolidge forced to believe the light to be too bad for satisfactory pictures and compromised with today's set appointment.

To East Buffalo Steak

The buffalo steak will come later—a delectable ten-pound sirloin presented to him at Pierre by Hugh Jaynes, who once did likewise to Theodore Roosevelt. In addition, the game lodge table will be graced with seven Chinese pheasants, along with the game warden's pheasant destined for the president and the game warden knew about it.

To Take Auto Trip

During the course of the afternoon, Mr. Coolidge is expected to motor the 32 miles to Rapid City and inspect the temporary offices of the game lodge here in the High School building. Rapid City is official headquarters, and there are quartered all the office staff and newspapermen and photographers.

Town's Welcome

The town has outdone itself to welcome these illustrious guests. Last night's arrival was staged to impress the chief executive that he was actually in the west. Following an enthusiastic reception at Rapid City, the president and his entourage returned to Pierre. Here they were met by 140 cowboys, all sporting the colorful attire of the plains. A "hold-up" reminiscent of the Deadwood stage coach days, however, the use of gunpowder, was staged. Col. E. W. Stalling, advanced Secret Service man, had warned about the fire-arms. The cow punchers gave the president the "Y-I-I-p-p-e-e" and a few heavy burials circled in the autos and escorted them to the lodge.

DRIVER VISITS VICTIMS AND POLICE GET HIM

Had Fled When His Truck Struck Touring Car—Two Severely Injured.

Milford, Conn., June 15.—Michael P. Andriassio, of 322 Fairview avenue, Waterbury, stopped at the Milford hospital today to learn the condition of Mrs. Pauline Barone, 57 Trenton street, and Michael Santoro, 80 Jefferson street, also of Waterbury, who had been taken to the hospital after an automobile accident at Devon late last night. Police waiting there promptly arrested Andriassio and charged him with reckless driving and evading responsibility for an accident.

BAD WEATHER HALTS COM. BYRD'S HOP-OP

Bureau Reports Fog Over the Ocean—Plane Can Start At An Hour's Notice.

New York, June 15.—Weather conditions and friendship for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh are the two factors determining the hour when Commander Richard E. Byrd, famous North Pole flyer, will hop off in the Fokker monoplane "America" for Europe.

Unfavorable weather over the trans-Atlantic flight route for the next three days is forecast by the Weather Bureau.

It was also regarded as unlikely that Byrd would start without having an opportunity to say good-bye to "Lindy," his friend.

The plane is ready to start within an hour, and that remains to be done is filling of the fuel tanks and the packing of supplies aboard.

"PROTESTANTISM DEAD AS DODO"

"Has to Paint Itself Red to Look Interesting," Declares Rev. Dr. Guthrie.

San Francisco, Calif., June 15.—Pyrotechnics, religiously speaking, were still sputtering and sizzling, and, in some quarters, causing considerable consternation in the ranks of the Episcopal Congress in session here today.

The religious pin-wheel was first touched off by Rev. Henry Lewis, rector of St. Andrew's church, Ann Arbor, Mich., who advocated the sanctifying of unmarried unions. Now comes another startling address by Rev. William N. Gunther, rector of St. Mark's church, New York. He said, among other things:

1. Protestantism is as dead as a dodo.
2. Protestantism has to paint itself red to look interesting.
3. I do not believe in missions.
4. The New Testament is a book written by a lot of chumps who were thick in the head.

Rev. Guthrie is the rector who introduced rhythmic dancing in his church—something which incurred the wrath of Bishop Mannings.

WAR ONLY A HABIT DR. BUTLER SAYS

Treaties Are Useless Unless Supported By Public Opin- ion He Tells Club.

Paris, June 15.—"War can only be disposed of by acquiring the habit of getting along without war," declared Nicholas Murray Butler in a speech before the American Club at a luncheon here today.

"There are those in Congress who want to pass a law to outlaw war," said Butler. "Treaties are useless unless supported by public opinion."

Public Opinion First

"Public opinion first and law afterward must be the case," he said. "If you have a law first and public opinion afterward you live in an atmosphere of continual law-breaking."

This reference was generally interpreted as referring to prohibition, although it was noted that Butler consumed only mineral water during the luncheon.

"Communism as a name suggests what it is not," Butler said. "Man got away from Communism some six thousand years ago."

TRY MISS MACKAYE FOR RAYMOND DEATH

To Face Jury Today In Same Court Where Paul Kelly Was Sentenced.

Los Angeles, Calif., June 15.—Dorothy Mackaye, actress, who is alleged to have concealed facts in the death of her husband, Ray Raymond, will face a jury in Superior Judge Charles Bunnell's court this afternoon on a felony charge.

"The 'cover up' trial of Miss Mackaye will present itself as a 'second performance' in the same small courtroom of the Ray Raymond murder drama that ended in the conviction of Paul Kelly, film juvenile, for manslaughter."

The case virtually will be the same as in the Kelly trial. Kelly, now in the county jail awaiting the appellate court's action on his appeal for a new trial may be brought into court to testify for Miss Mackaye.

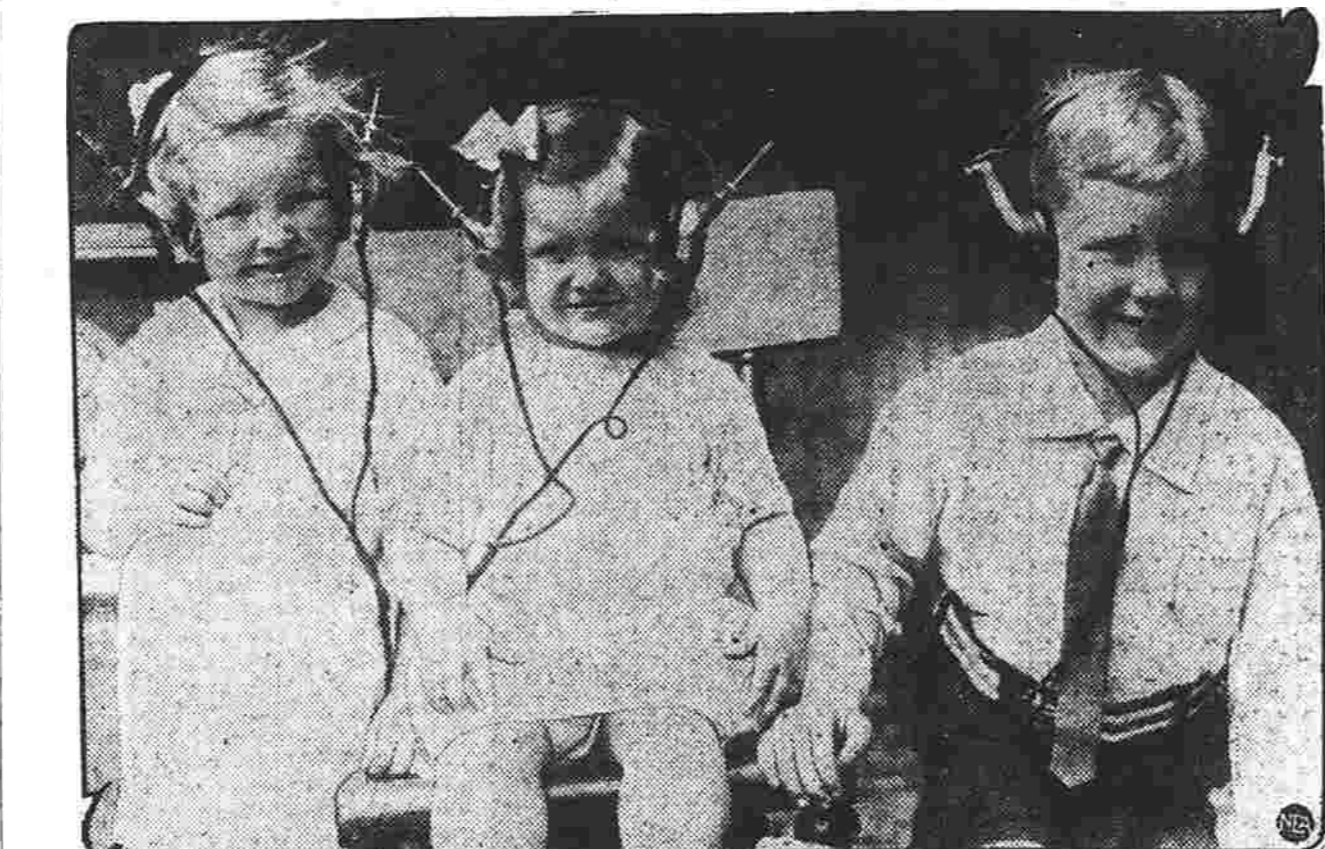

At the trial of Miss Mackaye the prosecution hopes to bring out a more detailed and thorough narrative of her asserted "affair" with Kelly and the fist fight that resulted in Raymond's death.

MAY SUBSTITUTE BUSES.

Hartford, Conn., June 15.—A petition for authority to discontinue street railway service and substitute buses on certain streets in New Britain and Berlin was filed with the Public Utilities Commission here today by the Connecticut Company, the Connecticut Railway & Lighting Co., and the New Haven railroad.

Streets affected are Whiting, Maple, South Main and Ash streets, New Britain; Swamp Road, Farmington Road and Main street, Berlin.

LISTENING IN ON PAPA

None are as interested in Commander Richard E. Byrd's proposed trans-Atlantic flight than his three charming children, Evelyn 5, Katherine 3, and Richard, 3rd, 7. You see them here listening to Papa Dick describing over the radio the preparations for his take-off for Paris from Roosevelt Field, Long Island.

CONTINUE OVATIONS FOR FLYING TWINS

Chamberlin and Levine Start Flight Today to Meet Wives at Bremen.

Frankfort-On-Main, June 15.—After a series of record-breaking demonstrations and ovations in South Germany, Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, the two American trans-Atlantic flyers, depart for the north today. They planned to fly to Bremen with a brief stop-over at Hanover. At Bremen they will meet their wives, who are due to land from the German liner Berlin on Friday morning. It will be the first greetings between the aviators and their wives since the trans-ocean flight began at Roosevelt flying field, just outside of New York City, nearly two weeks ago.

To Hop Off Sunday

Chamberlin and Levine with Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine will fly to Berlin by way of Magdeburg. According to present plans the flyers will hop off from Berlin en route to this city, one at Stuttgart, with Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the great Zeppelin plant. After an inspection of the plant they came to Frankfurt where they were guests of honor at a banquet last night. They made two stops en route to this city, one at Stuttgart, where 130,000 people turned out to give them an ovation, and another at Wuerzburg where they were officially honored by the city.

MITCHELL CONTINUES HIS ATTACKS ON NAVY

Had Nothing to Do With Byrd's Trip Over the North Pole, He Asserts.

Washington, June 15.—Colonel "Billy" Mitchell, chief of aviation in the A. E. F., who was court-martialed for the injury to the Navy and Commander in the Army and Navy, returned to the attack today on the air policies of the two services.

Following up his charges that "naval inefficiency" was responsible for the injury to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," Col. Mitchell declared in a letter to the Washington Post that "The Navy's exhibition in aviation has been one of the worst examples of official incompetence and criminal negligence that we have ever been handed by a government department."

The Navy, Mitchell asserted, had nothing to do with Commander Byrd's successful flight over the North Pole, although it attempted to claim credit for it after its accomplishments, "in the same way they have attempted to pick up Lindbergh."

"The people have not forgotten the fatal flight of the Shenandoah, either," said Col. Mitchell.

FIREMEN ESCAPE DEATH

Rochester, N. Y., June 15.—Eight firemen, including Battalion Chief, were congratulating themselves today on escaping with their lives when a fire struck in which they were answering an alarm failed to stop and barely missed plunging over a 200-foot embankment. One wheel, held by a tree stump, prevented the truck from toppling.

Messages To Mars Possible

Head of Radio Corporation Of America Explains Just How He Could Send Sig- nals to Planets.

Washington, June 15.—Inter-planetary communication is not beyond the range of possibility.

Despite the fact that this fantastic objective of science so far is confined to speculation, Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, chief broadcast engineer of the Radio Corporation of America, today gave it sufficient credence to outline the first message he would send to Mars!

Once the apparatus was set up—either a huge bank or searchlights for a light message or a beam transmitter of thousands of kilowatts power for a radio signal—the procedure would be this:

The Procedure

First would be transmitted a sequence of telegraphic dots—then a space—followed by another sequence of dots to attract attention. The signals sent from the terrestrial station should be such that if received on another planet the idea of regular control would be conveyed.

"This should be carried on for a long time, ever waiting with receiving apparatus for the answering signal," Goldsmith said.

"My first message would be based on the assumption that geometrical truths are universal and known to any one intelligent enough to get

COLLEGE MEN BOARD BATTLESHIP FLORIDA

Naval Visits From Various Universities and Schools to Study on Summer Cruise.

New Haven, Conn., June 15.—The battleship Florida stood off New Haven breakwater today while thirty-nine men composing the naval unit of the Georgia Institute of Technology came ashore, visited Yale, and took twenty-four members of the Yale naval unit out to the Florida to take a fifteen-day cruise.

The Florida weighed anchor in mid-morning and started for Annapolis where she is due June 18 to give the embryo admirals a chance to inspect the Naval Academy. From Annapolis the battleship runs to Savannah, Georgia, where the Georgians will embark.

On June 25 the Florida is due at Boston to take on the Harvard naval unit. Yale and Harvard men will then inspect the Charlestown Navy Yard and sail to Newport, being due there on June 28 for a thorough inspection of the large Navy plants there, and on June 31 the Florida will return to New Haven to leave the Yale men.

Lieutenant Commander L. C. Green is in charge of the Yale unit while Captain P. D. Berrien, U. S. N., professor of naval science at Yale, has command of the battleship.

LINDY DODGES CROWD TO FLY TO CAPITAL

M. BRIAND ILL; HAS TO LEAVE LEAGUE PARLEY

French Foreign Minister Or- dered By Doctors To Re- turn to Paris—His Eye Badly Swollen.

Geneva, May 15.—M. Briand, French foreign minister, was forced to leave the League of Nations Council meeting today on account of illness and started back to Paris on a noon train.

M. Briand is suffering from herpes, otherwise commonly known as "shingles," and he also has some fever. His physicians advised him to return to Paris, although his condition is not serious at this time.

The council today adopted a resolution inviting all governments to give close attention to the recommendations of the international economic conference.

Must Take Rest

M. Briand's physicians have ordered him to take a complete rest for a month. His affliction centers in his face and his left eye is so badly swollen that it is almost shut. Eruptions mar the rest of his face. His blood is also in bad condition. Ordinarily the disease is not considered serious but due to Briand's age, 65, it is feared that unless great care is taken more serious complications may follow.

Differences of opinion exist among the European leaders regarding what action should be taken concerning Russian propaganda.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, is understood to be insistent that the nations which are members of the League should take united action to "expose Russian propaganda," whereas the Polish and German representatives have expressed fears that action would be interpreted in Russia as an anti-Soviet bloc and would aggravate for those nations bordering on Russia.

With the League Council pre- pared for adjournment tomorrow, it now seems unlikely that any action will be taken for a general drive against Russian propaganda by the League member nations.

GERMANY WARNS REDS AGAINST PROPAGANDA

Western Powers at League Parley Tell Russia That It Will Not Stand For It.

Berlin, June 15.—The German government today officially informed M. Tchitcherin, Russian foreign minister, that the western powers assembled at Geneva have taken a stand against Bolshevik propaganda and entertain "grave misgivings" over the execution of political prisoners in Russia.

OLD WEED PROPERTY SOLD FOR $250,000

Three Acres of Land Were Bought In Revolutionary Days For About $500.

Greenwich, Conn., June 15.—The old Weed homestead on the Boston Post Road, which in revolutionary days was bought by Isaac Weed for one hundred pounds sterling, was sold today by Miss Emily Stuart Weed for a price said to be in excess of $250,000.

Elmer Laskin, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., bought the property and will erect a group of apartments to be known as "Weed Terrace." The property contains three acres of land, fronting 210 feet on the Post Road. Miss Weed inherited the property from her father, the late Jacob P. Weed. A portion of the homestead was erected just after Isaac Weed bought the property.

Slips Out of Theatre and Starts For Washington at Three O'Clock This Morning—Gets "Spirit of St. Louis" and Flies It Back to Mitchel Field, Arriving at 7:45—With- out Taking Any Sleep He Starts Out For Today's Re- ception in Brooklyn—May Leave New York Tonight.

New York, June 15.—Dressed in evening clothes, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at Mitchel field at 7:47 o'clock this morning from Washington in his beloved "Spirit of St. Louis." He had unexpectedly departed for Washington at 2:59 this morning (daylight time) in a fast Army pursuit plane to get his own trans-Atlantic monoplane.

Lindbergh circled Mitchel field several times before he descended. As he slipped out of the cockpit he wore a broad grin and seemed to have greatly enjoyed his spectacular and unexpected flight to the capital.

He made the trip to Washington in one hour and fifty-nine minutes and came back in two hours and thirty-seven minutes, apparently having spent some time cruising about.

"Lindy" had had no sleep but he was as fresh as a daisy when he landed.

Slips From Theater

Lindbergh's departure for Washington came suddenly. At 1:30 this morning he slipped away from Roxey's theater, which he had appeared in the audience sat content in the belief that he was still sitting in the front row. He was in evening clothes.

He and a personal friend and adviser, Richard R. Byrd, slipped out of a side exit and soon were speeding by automobile to the flying fields of Long Island. A telephone call to the duty officer at Mitchel Field warned him "Lindy" was en route.

A swift Army pursuit plane was waiting for him. Only a few reporters were at the field. "Lindy" smiled and remarked: "I almost gave you fellows the slip that time."

Hastily donning a leather jacket he jumped into the plane.

"So long," he cried, "I'll be back by eight o'clock."

Flies in Moonlight

In less than a minute the famous New York-to-Paris flyer was off into the bright moonlight, picking up speed as he flew into the air.

Soon only the faint drumming of the motor was heard. "Lindy" winged his way to get the other half of "We."

On the spectacular flight to Washington, Lindbergh had with him as escort Captain Sinclair Stevens. "Lindy" was flying a Curtiss Army pursuit ship, the one he used Monday to fly from Bolling Field, Washington.

Had No Lights

There were no lights on Lindbergh's plane as it soared into the night but Captain Street's airship carried navigator lights so he led the way. Lindbergh was guided by the lights.

"Lindy" took his time coming back. He had been thought at Mitchel Field he might land around 7:30 or before, and when he did not arrive at that time army officials began to think he had changed his plans and had landed elsewhere.

But at 7:45 the famous "Spirit of St. Louis" was sighted swooping gracefully toward the field, with Lindbergh at the controls and following in the wake of the Curtiss Army pursuit ship, the one he used Monday to fly from Bolling Field, Washington.

Before the famous "Lindy" as if jubilant over his stunt, broke out of formation and went into a series of fancy formations. "The Spirit of St. Louis" made a pretty picture as its silver sides glinted in the bright morning sunlight. It looped and dived, sidebank and turned over on its back with the expert fingers controlling its movements.

Some of the observers started to run toward the plane but it suddenly zoomed up with an increased roar and sailed straight up into the sky.

"Lindy" was having a great time. Away from the roar of the crowds he was enjoying himself.

A few minutes later he came down gracefully to a perfect landing.

But "Lindy" didn't stay down. As his plane came down lightly on its landing wheels, the motors began to roar again and up he rose, and soon he was at high altitude and he started another series of ecstatic stunts. He turned over lastly as if he was enjoying the sheer luxury of the reunion with "We."

"I sure had a grand time," he exclaimed when he finally came to earth.

Lindbergh said "The Spirit of St. Louis" had functioned perfectly on route from Washington and

LINDY MAY LEAVE N. Y. THIS EVENING

New York, June 15.—The possibility that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh might hop off for St. Louis tonight instead of tomorrow as planned, was seen in the action of the reception committee in changing the time of the Raymond Orteig breakfast at which "Lindy" will receive the $25,000 Orteig prize for the New York to Paris hop. The function, originally scheduled for tomorrow morning, has been changed to a six o'clock tea this evening. The only official responsibility Lindbergh has left after that is a dinner to be given him at 7 p. m., by the aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

does not require overhauling or attention of any kind. It is ready for Lindbergh's take-off tomorrow morning for St. Louis.

Guest of Brooklyn

The exuberant young flyer was escorted to the quarters of Col. Benjamin D. Foulois, commanding officer of Mitchel Field, for breakfast before leaving for New York by automobile. He hadn't had any sleep. His friend, Byrd, sought to dissuade him from this and have him go to New York at once as Lindbergh is to be the guest of Brooklyn this morning but the flyer won his point.

Byrd said "Lindy" made up his mind suddenly to make the trip as they sat in Roy's theater. He had been looking for his plane.

"Say, there's a grand moon up tonight," Lindy remarked. "Let's get out of here and go to the field."

Earlier in the night he had attended a Ziegfeld performance and also went with Mayor James J. Walker to the Polo Grounds to see his friend, Ace Hudkins, of Lincoln, Neb., lose a hard-fought battle to Sergeant Sammy Baker of Mitchel Field.

The flyer's mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, is en route to St. Louis by train in a private car. "Lindy" will meet her in St. Louis following the only mode of travel which seems to satisfy Lindbergh—by air. "Lindy" was wildly cheered. His car was preceded by 35 motorcycle policemen. At one point along the way, the parade was halted for a moment to allow Donald Hall, of Brooklyn, the designer of "The Spirit of St. Louis," an opportunity to present Lindbergh with an illuminated scroll which Hall had prepared for the occasion.

ARRIVES AT CAPITAL

Washington, June 15.—Racing over the eastern seaboard in a dramatic flight joining the night and the dawn, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh dropped into the blinding headlights of the naval air station at Anacostia at 3:43 o'clock this morning to re-establish the celebrated "We" partnership for the first time on American shores.

Alone in a swift Army pursuit plane and still wearing the formal evening clothes of his last New York event, the sleepless eagle swooped down out of the red-tinted skies one hour and fifty-nine minutes after his take-off from Mitchel field.

Starts Back Again

Smiling and aglow with the spirit of his spectacular coup, he leaped from his plane, greeted officers of the Naval flying field, quickly tuned up "The Spirit of St. Louis" and was off again for New York at 4:10 a. m.—twenty-seven minutes after his arrival. The sleeping captain knew nothing of his coming or his going. Between his arrival and departure there had been hardly sufficient time to turn over, but in the dramatic interval the blackest night which precedes the dawn had been tuned to a dull grey by the rising rim of red on the eastern horizon.

Used Army Plane

He arrived in a drab green Army craft which was barely visible by the black and white glare served with one hundred feet of the glaring beacon lights of the landing field; and when he took off, the lights meanwhile having been extinguished, the glistering lines of the silvered St. Louis were as quickly lost in the dull sheen of this morning light.

Less than fifty persons were on the field to witness the reunion of the daring lone eagle and his famous craft.

Get Telephone Tip

Advised by telephone of Lindy's departure from New York, naval officers at Anacostia had barely time to rout out snoring sailors from their bunks to provide a ground crew. A dozen taxicabs rushed to the airport.

LINDY DODGES CROWD TO FLY TO CAPITAL

Lindbergh was accompanied to Washington by Army Lieutenant "Billy" Street, who landed at 3:49 a. m., five minutes before the full-dressed pilot wheeled his craft into the field lights.

"The Spirit of St. Louis" headed a string of four craft. Commander Homer C. Wick of the Anacostia station took off a few seconds after Lindbergh.

Although he flew from Mitchell field to Anacostia in almost record time, Lindbergh omitted his wonted stunt flying as he took off in his own plane for the first flight since his triumphant return to America.

Heading into the gentle north-west wind, he taxied the St. Louis less than 100 yards, nosed her up towards a thrilling angle to an altitude of about 1,200 feet and then away into a northeasterly course for New York.

THINK "BOSTON BILLY"

SHOT HUB POLICEMAN

Talk With His Pal In New York Leads To This Belief Captain Says.

Greenwich, Conn., June 16.—"Boston Billy" Williams, one of the men supposed to be involved with Arthur Barry in numerous robberies on Long Island in Westchester county and here, is now believed to have been one of the gang who shot Policeman Joseph McCormick here on May 17, last, and escaped.

Captain Patrick J. Flanagan, of the local police department, announced today his belief in Williams' part in the shooting. Captain Flanagan spent the day on Long Island yesterday and talked with Barry. The captain today declared Barry admitted part in the robberies here in the last two years and netted his gang $125,000 worth of jewelry.

Today all over the district people noticed a peculiar taste in the water, which came from the new pipes. The Water company made this temporary connection so as to flush the new pipe which tastes the water. When the final connection is made a noticeable increase in the pressure will result.

NEAR FREEZING POINT

According to William H. Cowles, Manchester's biggest fruit grower, and well known garden authority, there was no frost in this vicinity last night although the mercury was down to a spot where it flirted with the freezing point.

In some quarters, temperature as low as 39 degrees was reported. However, this was mostly in the lowlands. Nevertheless, the temperature at this time of the year is a striking contrast to what it was two summers ago when many persons were being overcome with the heat and the mills were forced to shut down.

THINK "BOSTON BILLY"

SHOT HUB POLICEMAN

Talk With His Pal In New York Leads To This Belief Captain Says.

Greenwich, Conn., June 16.—"Boston Billy" Williams, one of the men supposed to be involved with Arthur Barry in numerous robberies on Long Island in Westchester county and here, is now believed to have been one of the gang who shot Policeman Joseph McCormick here on May 17, last, and escaped.

Captain Patrick J. Flanagan, of the local police department, announced today his belief in Williams' part in the shooting. Captain Flanagan spent the day on Long Island yesterday and talked with Barry. The captain today declared Barry admitted part in the robberies here in the last two years and netted his gang $125,000 worth of jewelry.

Robberies Barry is said to have committed are Percy Rockefeller home, October 25, 1926, $50,000 worth of jewelry; Duan Armstrong home, September 26, 1926, $35,000 worth of jewelry; and Lester Hamilton home, November 2, 1924, $40,000 worth of jewelry.

ABOUT TOWN

Florence Warner of South Manchester has been granted a divorce from Arthur Warner, whose present whereabouts are unknown.

Judge Marvin in the Superior Court, Mrs. Warner was deserted by her husband ten years ago. She is given custody of a ten year old son.

The regular weekly meeting of Kings David Lodge of Odd Fellows will be held tomorrow evening, at which time officers for the coming year will be nominated. The lodge will observe Memorial Sunday, June 26, by attending the North Methodist church in a body.

Edward J. Murphy has completely renovated the interior of his drug store on Depot Square. New cases have been installed giving nearly twice the floor space. The floor has been covered with a new pattern linoleum and additional chairs and tables for the soft drink and ice cream patrons are being added. Mr. Murphy says that the improvements are in keeping with the general improvement around the square.

JOIN WATER MAINS

The contractors today completed the job of laying the 12-inch water main for the Manchester Water company, from a point on Lydall street near the Coleman farm to Depot Square. A 4-inch main connecting the old 8-inch main with the new 12-inch main was laid today.

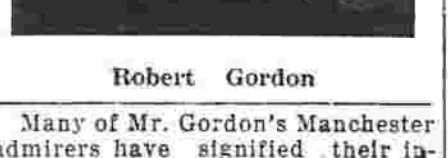

This is only a temporary connection. The company will connect the 8-inch with the 12-inch main in full Sunday.

Today all over the district people noticed a peculiar taste in the water, which came from the new pipes. The Water company made this temporary connection so as to flush the new pipe which tastes the water. When the final connection is made a noticeable increase in the pressure will result.

COOPER 2 STROKES AHEAD OF HAGEN

Oakmont Country Club, Pa., June 16.—Light Horse Harry Cooper ceased to be the dark horse of the national open golf championship today when he shot a 38-36—74 in the third round for a total of 224 and a two stroke lead over Walter Hagen, the nominal leader at the moment. Cooper has been threatening to walk back to Los Angeles if he doesn't finish in the first five but at the end of the third round today it seemed that he might have an excellent chance of finishing in the first one.

Cooper's card follows: Out—554 543 444—33 In—445 345 434—36—74—224

The garrulous guest from the coast would have given par an awful kicking if he hadn't been seized with a lot of putt-paralysis. It is considered very hard to miss a two-foot putt but he did it at the second and to take a buzzard five. After that he paced the situation all the way to the shore eighth where he pitched off the tee into a trap and took a four. However, he got the stroke back at the ninth by getting home with a long, beautiful second and taking the regulation two putts.

While Harry was chasing his putts around the holes, Bobby Jones was off to the first nine with a 38 and the biggest gallery of the tournament in his wake. He was a bit worse than par, having birdies at the fourth and the seventh and buzzards at the third, sixth and eighth.

His card for nine holes: Jones: Out—545 444 435—33. Gene Sarazen, runner-up in the overnight totals, reported with, four strokes behind Cooper and two behind Hagen.

Hartford, Conn., June 16.—Robert T. Hurley, superintendent of state police since 1921, has been appointed Commissioner of Police by Governor John H. Trumbull under the new order created by the 1927 General Assembly.

The white-headed police commission on July 1 will succeed the old commission of three members, and a new superintendent of state police will be appointed by the commissioner. This is expected to be Captain Frank M. Nichols, although the commissioner has made no announcement.

Present members of the commission are Frederick M. Salmon, state controller, Robbette S. Stockell, commissioner of motor vehicles, and Col. Ernest L. Isbell, of New Haven, who is president of the board.

Commissioner Hurley has been with the state police for twenty-three years. Prior to that he was a constable in Manchester. He served in various state police grades and reorganization of the department in 1921. He is married and lives in Hartford.

DISMISSES DIVORCE SUIT

Hartford, Conn., June 16.—Judge E. M. Yeomans of the Superior Court today dismissed the divorce suit of Harold Stevens, New Britain, against Eunice House Stevens, of Wallingford. The judge found that Stevens had neglected his wife and failed to provide a home and support for their children. Stevens' own testimony led to this conclusion on the judge's part.

After Stevens had testified the judge declared he would not hear the case further nor require the defense to put on witnesses. Stevens had charged his wife was guilty of misconduct in Wallingford with Leonard Marshall Huse. Stevens further claimed he was father of only one of his wife's two children. Huse was present and ready to defend the charge that he was co-respondent in the case but was not required to take the stand.

Rockville

BELDING SILK MILLS STOPPED

Machinery Being Shipped Out—New Switch Ready; Notes of Interest.

(Special to The Herald)

Rockville, June 16.—All manufacturing has stopped in the Belding-Hemway mills in this place and much finished stock as there is in the mill is being shipped out. Machinery is being dismantled and will be sent to Putnam and while there will be no silk in the mills on July 1 there may be some of the machinery that will not be done and crated in time to take out of the plant, but just at present the mill is only employing such persons as are needed in the shipping and crating of the machinery.

Some of those employed in the parent plant here have secured work in Rockville, some have gone to South Manchester, others to Hartford and a few, but only a few, have gone to the mill in Putnam. There is no hum of the spindle or the winding of the spooling machine, but the fine water supply, as it goes bounding down the rocks, unimpeded by the necessity of furnishing power to the plant sounds louder as it goes on unharmed.

Switch About Ready

The new switch that the Connecticut Company has been installing in Windsor avenue is about completed and should be ready for use before the end of the week. This will be the crossing point for the west and east bound cars into Rockville and will allow more time for the west bound cars to make their trip. Instead of finding it necessary to pull into the short tracks that are left on the Somers road. The wire being strung and the guard rail for the switch was being laid today and will be finished tonight.

No Theater This Fall

In connection with the sale of the Prescott block it was mentioned that the new owners might build a new theater in the rear of the building. There is ample doubt for this as the property not only has a good frontage on Park street but there could be made an entrance through what is now the lobby of the theater. It would require but a small section off of the lobby from the section of the building now occupied by the Bissell Insurance agency and this would provide the required number of feet that the state insists upon must be given when an arcade is necessary to reach a building for theater purposes in the rear. The land runs back to the town's Memorial building and would provide ample space for a new theater.

However, this is not likely to be done this year. Under the bond for the road which was given in a week ago it would not give them this right to start work until after July 1 and as they do not take possession until September 1 it would be too late in the season to get underway. The best season for moving pictures is in the winter time and the fall. If there is going to be a theater erected it will hardly be started this year.

Instruction to Truck Drivers

State Police Officer George Driscoll of the Stafford barracks was in Rockville this morning distributing to the truck drivers road instructions as prepared by Superintendent Robert T. Hurley of the state police department. The instructions which appear under the caption:

"To Owners and Operators of Commercial Motor Vehicles" goes on to state that each year there are more vehicles being operated over the highway of the state. The heavy summer traffic has started. The police problem of moving heavy traffic, the instructions read, safely and expeditiously is becoming increasingly difficult. The operators of commercial vehicles can be of great assistance in enabling the police officers to perform their duties efficiently. Within the past two years there has been a very noticeable improvement shown by the drivers of this class of motor vehicle in observing the rights of others to the use of the highway. The state department appreciates this co-operation and wishes to again draw attention to the following important rules:

1. Drive upon the extreme right side of the highway wherever road conditions permit.
2. In all other instances make full use of your mirror equipment and turn to the right to permit vehicles coming from the rear to pass safely and without unnecessary delay.
3. When it is necessary to stop, park the truck off the traveled portion of the highway.
4. Use special care in night traveling and make certain that all lights, front and rear, are working properly.

The instructions are signed by Robert T. Hurley.

Expenses Use Up Estate

The estate of Mrs. Katherine Franhams, who died in New York state, near Troy, fourteen months ago, leaves nothing for the heirs to share in. In a bill of expenses sent to the local heirs of the woman there has been made up a statement that takes every cent of the estate and leaves to the heirs additional bills to be paid. It is not satisfactory to those concerned and legal action as to the amount charged by the lawyer who handled the case in Troy may follow.

A number of people in the western part of the town have been much annoyed of late by night prowlers who come around the houses and in some cases have entered and taken small sums of money. No clue to the identity of the thieves has been found as yet. William Peit was visited and had the glass windshields removed from his car and stolen.

Two girls, members of the graduating class of Wapping grammar school, played into hard luck yesterday while their classmates were having a wonderful time at a class party in Manchester. The two were a little late in leaving and got left behind. Undismayed, they pooled their small fortunes and boarded a bus which they thought would take them near the Green. They brought up in Rockville with their money all gone. Hours later, footsore and weary, they were nearly home when their gay classmates, returning from the party, overtook them and gave them a lift. Thus was completed what was (for all) but (to) the end of a perfect day.

(By decision of a specially appointed committee of the Congregational church the Congregational parsonage was ordered put into the hands of a real estate agent Monday evening. It was felt that federation had done away with the need of maintaining two parsonages and that in the end the best economy would be realized by disposing of one building and investing the proceeds.

On Thursday evening at the Town hall in South Windsor will be the graduation exercises of the Union school and Rev. William Malcolm will deliver the address.

CIVIC ACHIEVEMENTS

By DON E. MOWRY Secretary, the American Community Advertising Association

What about the high school graduates after they get their diplomas? Many cities have thought about it but have done little or nothing.

Davenport, Ia., has solved the problem of helping her next generation in an admirable manner. Davenport found that many high school graduates could not go to college and were compelled to work.

The long run, made effective in the various national capitals from the very weight of the delegates' authoritative utterances.

Possibly there may be serious conflicts, both in America and in other countries, between politicians and business leaders over determinations reached at Stockholm; but these people are going over there to find out how to make the whole world richer and so enrich every part of it.

The United States Chamber of Commerce is not a political party, but if it concludes to accept Stockholm conclusions as valid in the betterment of America's world trade, it is likely to prove an economic party of unparalleled influence in shaping the country's economic-political policies.

Much more than casual interest will be taken in the new small claims court, to be established at Hartford, by those many persons who feel that one of the essentials of progress in civilization is the debanking of the existing court system.

Provision for small claims divisions of the city courts of Hartford and Stamford was made in an act passed by the last session of the Legislature, and though something similar is in vogue at a few other points in the country the enterprise is in the nature of an experiment.

as a result, to offer graduates who could not go to college jobs in keeping with the training resulting from a high school education. Now, when a high school graduate receives a diploma, he or she also receives a letter that a position in one of Davenport's business organizations is ready on Monday morning.

The parents are very appreciative. The sacrifices they had made have been proved worth while. Davenport retains many of her young people who develop into productive citizens.

fact of caste—and if there is anything on earth that America should keep her skirts clear of it is an aristocracy founded on the science of war.

What that kind of an aristocracy, in Germany and Austria, did to the world the world knows. America is no proper soil for the sowing of the seeds of a plant of the same genus.

QUEBEC RUMORS If by any miraculous chance the vague reports coming out of northern Quebec, of flares seen at night in remote forest regions, of lumber-jack rumors about rescued aviators, should indeed be forerunners of the development that Nungesser and Goll are still alive, and if those intrepid aviators should after all come out of the wilderness safe and well, America and particularly New York might well set themselves the mark of excelling the frenzied welcome extended to Colonel Lindbergh.

New York, June 16.—The "Theater-district" idea appears to have excited the churches, as well as the movies, the theaters, the apartment houses and the office buildings of Manhattan.

Each attraction, they say, are more or less in these days of intense competition. In a metropolitan church must be metropolitan. This is certainly the case of a church in the mid-forties where the social halls are rented out to theater managers for rehearsals.

OPEN FORUM

"TWO PAN HANDLERS UNSEARCHED"

Editor, The Herald:— A word of explanation in regard to the "Pan Handler" or an article which appeared in The Herald last Thursday.

The writer did not sign his name to the article, nor did he mention the name of the so-called "Pan Handler". The result is, that a number of persons are accusing two different persons of being the "Pan Handler". One party is A. E. Fish, who lives in an adjoining town (Bolton) and sends tracts by mail to Manchester citizens, and the other party is Fred E. Coleman who lives in Bolton (although his mail address is Andover) and distributes tracts in Manchester, so we both get the credit of being the dangerous and rich "Pan Handler".

The first party mentioned is myself and I have published and distributed between three and four hundred thousand tracts in the last 10 or 12 years. Yet, I have never asked any man for a penny and these tracts have cost some money, more than half of which has come out of my own pocket, therefore, I can not honestly be called a "Pan Handler".

The other party became interested in the distribution of tracts largely through my influence, so if any one has any cussing to do about it give it to me. I am used to it and can easily stand it.

The other party, Fred E. Coleman, is a man about 49 years old, and has always lived on the Manchester line. At the age of 18 years he had what was then called infantile paralysis and since that time has never had enough strength in his legs to carry his body without a cane and now has to use two canes. For a good many years he worked for John Risley, doing work that required little walking. When John Risley died, Mr. Coleman lost a good friend. Since that time he took to mean carders and tried to earn an honest living, however, many of his boarders took advantage of him and failed to pay their bills, so he went broke.

When a man does the best he can and then can't, it is time for other able bodied men to help so the town of Bolton concluded that it was time to help and they are helping.

Mr. Coleman has plenty to eat, a place to sleep and clothes to wear and he does not need to Pan handle for these. Not being able to work and desiring to do something with the time that could be used profitably, he gradually began sending out tracts that he received from publishers free, but found that quantities of envelopes and postage stamps cost money. Consequently, he put the case before those whom he sent tracts to—honestly—that he can get the tracts free and he is willing to write the letters and send out the tracts if those who are interested will contribute to buy stamps and envelopes to continue the work.

During these seven months he has received, on an average, about $8.00 to $12.00 per month in stamps, stamped envelopes and money. These have come from Alaska, Canada, the United States, and a very little from Manchester. With this money, as his books show, he has sent out 3038 sealed letters in seven months with 29,000 tracts, so if you know the regular price of postage stamps, envelopes, paper, and lead pencils and are willing to figure these up, you can make an approximate estimate as to just about how rich he is at this time. He has not spent a penny of this money on himself.

If the Red Cross solicits funds with which to supply food, clothing and shelter to supply the physical needs of mankind, we do not call them Pan Handlers, and if this man is soliciting funds to supply food for the soul of man, which he honestly believes they need, let us not call him a Pan Handler.

I would suggest that if you are fortunate enough to have your name in the telephone directory and receive some of this literature, read it, and I am sure it won't hurt you and it may do your soul good. After reading it, if you think it is good dope, pass it along to some one else. If you think it is dangerous, or if it is too deep reading for your brain, or if you are honestly afraid to face the truth, then consign it to the waste basket, and then the office boy may find it and get saved to life eternal. This much I can assure you—you will have to face the truth some day.

This man is trying to spread the gospel of Jesus Christ. How much better this old world would be if it knew, worshiped, served and obeyed Him (Jesus Christ) who is its designer, creator, upholder and only Saviour for time and eternity.

As a publisher of some of this literature which he sends out, I wish to publicly thank him for giving it out and may God bless and direct him in his work.
Yours respectfully,
A. E. FISH.

REUTHER CAN THROW FAST BALL AGAIN

Stomach Operation Improves Yankee Southpaw's Pitching Ability Fifty Per Cent.

By BILLY EVANS

A star southpaw is a necessary asset to every major league club that has pennant hopes. It is baseball precedent that right-handed pitching alone will not win championships.

It is just possible that the rejuvenated "Dutch" Reuther of 1927 may prove a most important cog in the chances of the Yankees machine to repeat as American League champs.

I feel that I am conservative in saying that Reuther is at least 50 per cent faster than last year. As a matter of fact, his increased speed has been the sole topic of conversation among the clubs that have opposed the Yankees.

CANADIAN STABLE LOSES 7 OUT OF 8

Eddie Reed Is Only Nutmeg Stater To Lose on Interesting Card Somewhat Marred By Poor Officialing.

The eight-man stable of Canadian bowlers, most of whom were credited with being a champion of some sort, failed to live up to advance expectations at the Hartford Velodrome last night before several thousand fans.

Barney O'Donnell, Canada, out-boxed Eddie Reed, Hartford, 118, for the only victory scored by the Dominion stable.

Vincet La Bella, Middletown, earned a close decision over Art Gagne, Canada, in three fast rounds in the 118 pound class.

For, at intervening spaces were placed the illustrious names of Gene Sarazen at 148, Tom Armour at 149, Harry Cooper at 150, Harry Hampton at 151 and Bill McIlhenn and Leo Diegel at 152.

Three punches were all Joe Howard, Hartford, took to knock out supposed to be the fittest boxer of the evening.

PLAYS BASEBALL SO HE CAN BUY A FARM

"Lizzie" Lisenbee, Washington Rookie, Plans Nice Big Dairy Farm In Sunny South.

By BILLY EVANS

"Make this baby hit something tough, 'Liz'!" "Bear down on this one, 'Liz'!"

On the contrary, it is the Washington club of the American League slipping the rookie pitcher, Horace Lisenbee, some advice.

Lisenbee is a right-handed hurler of none too husky proportions, who has won his first three games in the role of relief and starting pitcher.

The Washington scouts, after looking over Lisenbee for several weeks, decided he was a good prospect and a fancy figure was paid the Memphis club.

This accident happened near the close of last season. When Lisenbee reported at Tampa, Fla., for spring training, doubt was expressed as to his recovery from the accident of last fall.

Lisenbee took a course in agriculture at a southern college and is one of the intelligent farmers. His education has definitely taught him there is little money in cotton or truck farming.

Hagen Is All Set To Rush Into Lead

By DAVID J. WALSH

Oakmont, Pa., June 16.—For the first time since he relinquished the title in 1920 to Ted Ray never to regain it in the intervening years, Walter Hagen today was ready to go into the final rounds of the national open championship with the fighting change that only a fighting golfer needs.

But whoever the winner may be, the 1927 tournament must go down in the books as the most unusual of all the classics.

For, at intervening spaces were placed the illustrious names of Gene Sarazen at 148, Tom Armour at 149, Harry Cooper at 150, Harry Hampton at 151 and Bill McIlhenn and Leo Diegel at 152.

It has been a tournament of form-backflips and perhaps we haven't seen anything yet. The third and fourth rounds always produce the inevitable blowup that comes to every man who essays to play 72 holes of golf and they will be played today.

On the contrary, it is the Washington club of the American League slipping the rookie pitcher, Horace Lisenbee, some advice.

Lisenbee is a right-handed hurler of none too husky proportions, who has won his first three games in the role of relief and starting pitcher.

The Washington scouts, after looking over Lisenbee for several weeks, decided he was a good prospect and a fancy figure was paid the Memphis club.

This accident happened near the close of last season. When Lisenbee reported at Tampa, Fla., for spring training, doubt was expressed as to his recovery from the accident of last fall.

Lisenbee took a course in agriculture at a southern college and is one of the intelligent farmers. His education has definitely taught him there is little money in cotton or truck farming.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Posing at times as a barber, at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, a curious man called Vilak has come to the queer little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELLISE MARI BERRY, solve a strange mystery.

Ellise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave Vilak, learning that LINCOLN NUNALLY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his, is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRENTISS, a mysterious and forbidding man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to win Prentiss but is ordered to stay away. Ellise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prentiss is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers, who are on horseback, and finally his companions come upon the child, unharmed and being cared for by a gang of railroad laborers in the charge of one CARLOS D'ALBERTA.

Vilak tells Ellise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He and Nunally go to Ellise's house and see her with some news. Before they come away Vilak, through seemingly accidental fall, manages to get hold of a ring which he says he snatched from the finger of D'Alberta's half-breed foreman.

They reached the edge of a small clearing and looked from behind the shelter of a tree.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER XVII
"INCIDENTALLY I might add" Vilak said, "that the way things look now the usefulness of my esteemed relative, Mr. Riggs, the barber, is about over. Are you coming down to the shop with me?"

The old man nodded. Vilak sent the servants back with the cart. They turned into the highway. As they did so they saw an Indian staggering through the brush, obviously in the last stages of intoxication. He was constantly lifting to his mouth a tin cup which he refilled from a sort of crude canteen at his belt. As he walked he continually muttered an incomprehensible jargon. Nunally recognized him as one of the Indians with the tiled teeth who worked in the railroad gang. He zigzagged up the road in the direction of Vilak's house and Ellise's fazenda. Vilak looked after him a moment. "That fellow is just fit for getting into trouble," he said. He continued thoughtfully down the road.

They rode to the shop, then returned to Vilak's modest house hidden behind the grove of mango trees. Vilak took some dusty, dog-eared notebooks out of a suitcase which he had transformed into a sort of traveling desk and began to study them, smoking with quick feverish puffs, his eyes again slanted, his whole face again touched with a Chinese pallor. The old man busied himself with a great dull volume which he found lying on a table, a book describing the chemical resources of Brazil.

Two hours later they were on their way back to the fazenda. They had passed the barrier of mango trees, and were just riding into the open highway when a cry, suddenly cut short, rose from the thick jungle back of Vilak's house. Short though it was, the cry was undoubtedly that of a human being. Vilak wheeled his horse, dashed back the way he had just come, and dismounting at his door, began running along a path which led which lacked an arm and thus gave him no hold. The stiletto struck him full in the wrist, weakening his grip for an instant. But it was for this instant that the wiry Italian had hoped. Wriggling away from his attacker, he struck at him again, but ineffectively this time, and darted for the shelter of the woods.

Vilak took quick aim and fired. But the darkness beyond the range of the fire made accurate shooting impossible. The bullet crashed to the lower hanging branches of the trees, and whether it had found its mark or no he could not tell. Pasquale, who had seen the chemist bursting suddenly through the bushes, evidently believing they were attacked in force, had fled ignominiously, without lifting a hand to aid his comrade.

"God, what cruelty!" Vilak murmured as he whipped out a knife and with his bleeding hand cut the Indian free. He took out a small first aid kit and put some salve on the aborigine's burned sole, then looked at his own arm. The blood was coursing faster.

"You're wounded, er... badly," the old man panted in alarm. "It's my fault, too, er... my fault. If I hadn't cried out he wouldn't have seen... er... seen us. I'm a doddering... old fool... yes... old fool."

Vilak coolly whipped his brilliant necktie from his collar. "It wasn't your fault any more than it was my carelessness. Don't pay any attention to me. I'll make a tourniquet and stop it in a hurry. You look after that poor devil there. Put some more of that salve on his feet."

He knotted the necktie quickly round his arm and with a lead pencil tightened it so that it cut deeply into his flesh. The flow of blood perceptible ebbed. Then he took out a sealed tube of iodine and, breaking it open, spilled the contents over the wound. "May not be necessary," he said. "But I don't want to take chances of infection. I haven't too great an admiration for the Indian's personal habits. This poor devil is fortunate in that he does not need any disinfectants at least. The fire's perfect for that."

With his good hand he heided the old man in applying the salve to the seared places of the other's foot. The laborer caused his arm to bleed again. He wrapped it tightly with a bandage. Satisfied that it would bleed no longer, he stooped once more and began lifting up handfuls of mud and putting them on the burned feet. "The best thing to burn, by far," he said, "is the nervous old man who was guttily eying his wound began following suit. "It'll fix him in no time. Make a regular cast, if you can. It's lucky we arrived when we did. I believe they would have actually burned his feet out."

"It's nasty... er... nothing but gashly. It almost makes me... er... makes me..."

"Faint? You're not used to the cruelty of your fellow men as I am. Here. Have one of my strong cigars. It'll straighten you out. No joking, by far."

The Indian who, with his whole body a quiver, had been watching like a wounded dog, suddenly became rigid. His eyes closed, the throbbing of a vivid purple vein showing in his copper black cheek ceased.

"Nunally passed. 'Is he going to die?'"

"Like poor... er... Tony... er... Tony did yesterday?"

(... To Be Continued)

Vilak has about his wound to Ellise, who is making plans for leaving Porto Verde by boat. But these plans are upset.

This And That In Feminine Lore

Miss Ethel M. Fish, experienced teacher, who for years has made a study of the individual needs of pupils under her instruction, will tutor children during vacation in primary, intermediate and grammar school subjects. A member of the Mass. Association of Educational Methods, she is well qualified to instruct pupils how to study to obtain the best results. She may be reached at 217 North Elm street. Tel. 337.

To determine how young women get their ideas, and their educational potentialities is the job Dr. Koffka, eminent German student of the human mind will have at Smith College soon. This proposed experiment in the application of psychology to educational problems is to be financed by the alumnae. Dr. Koffka will not have to teach, or lecture or publish any pamphlets. He will not determine whether blondes or brunettes learn the more in mathematics or philosophy, or what girls should study to succeed in careers or happy marriages or both. He will penetrate the mystery of processes of learning. Smith will provide whatever his research work requires and await with deep interest the results he achieves.

Vacation time to many women means travel time and for that purpose travel coats are essential. If the vacation trip is in warm weather, by train or automobile, the smartest coats this season are of silk hat crepe, crepe Roma or Elizabethan crepe, in blues, black or browns. While the steamer coat of tweed or homespun or camel's hair is always good, this season there is a demand for something different, perhaps in line with the trend to more feminine clothes and wraps.

Crab Meat Loaf.

To one can of diced crabmeat add one cup diced celery, one half green pepper and two hard boiled eggs, salt and pepper. Take one quarter package of Knox gelatine, add one eighth cup cold water and one cup boiling water. When the gelatine is partly set add the above ingredients and place in an oblong pan having the uncut hard-boiled eggs in the center of the mold and place in the refrigerator until set.

While certain vegetables seem to be better than others with certain meats or poultry, a good rule is to plan for one starchy and one green vegetable and if possible a fruit or vegetable salad.

When cooking green vegetables, such as spinach, peas and asparagus, it is believed that the color is retained better if the cover is left off the kettle.

The new ruffled curtains for chambers are ever so attractive. The color in many of them just appeals to the eye. They are blue, green, orange and dainty rosebud patterns. Materials are the plain or dotted marquisettes, than which there is nothing more dainty for window draperies.

Never Let Your Child See Fear On Your Face

By Olive Roberts Barton

One of the first of the ten commandments of child training is, "Thou shalt not teach him fear." A baby is born into this world without knowing what fear means. It is not there and it will not be until it is put there.

And when we think that back of most failure, back of much ill health and unhappiness is fear in one of its forms, does it not seem preposterous that we make so little effort to prevent it? We play a child with vaccines and serums and all sorts of preventative treatment to keep his body healthy—yet we are criminally careless about allowing things to happen that make a souli-sick coward of him for fear.

You ask how he can be frightened when he does not know what it means. The development of a little child's mind must necessarily be difficult of analysis at the beginning.

His first knowledge is gained by instinct, a lot of it is gained by pure mimicry, and his own sensation of any gesture he copies. Then comes a psychological word called "apperception" which translated means "to see through to." He interprets any new knowledge gained in terms of what he already knows.

He hears a crash! He screams with fear. He sees a big dog! He runs hysterically to his mother. Why did he not scream or run when he was a year or two old? Because before that time he had not observed consternation on someone's face when there was a loud noise. Because there had been no suggestion before that from other children or his parents of danger coming from a dog.

If you do not want your child to be a coward, never punish him by shutting him in a dark closet; absolutely never, never hold over his head the rag man, the policeman, a witch, or a bugaboo of any sort. Never tell him a story that has in it the elements of grotesqueness or disaster, maliciousness or crime.

Never let a child see fear on your face. Show him that fire will burn and teach him ordinary caution. But not through fear. And never let him hear you say, "I'm afraid!" as we are apt to do when we are actually afraid of nothing at all. The child's subconscious mind may forget.

Subconscious minds are not to be fooled with. They have a direct bearing on mental and physical health. We should watch what we put there.

Patou, one of the big French dressmakers, is using patent leather belts on the sheerest of organdie and lace frocks.

Artificial bouquets are undergoing a change. Instead of one large single flower as they were, now one should select tiny bunches of small, quaint flowers arranged in tight little buttonholes, outlined with tiny ruffles of lace like an old-fashioned sentimental valentine.

Canned or fresh asparagus may be used for the dish below which is ideal either for company or the entire family, when the recipe may be halved.

Two bunches asparagus, 1-2 cups sifted dried crab crumbs, 2-3 cup hot milk, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 4 eggs.

Put stale bread into a slow oven to dry thoroughly. Roll and sift crumbs. Wash and scrape asparagus and steam fifteen minutes. Cool and cut the tender part into half-inch pieces. Add milk to crumbs, adding enough milk to make moist. The crumbs may absorb more or less than 2-3 cup of milk. Season with salt, pepper and butter. Beat eggs until very light and add with prepared asparagus to moist crumbs. Fold lightly but thoroughly and turn into a well buttered mold. Cover and steam forty-five minutes. Serve with a rich cream sauce or mock Hollandaise.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Troop Three

Bessie Forbes and Genevieve Eddy have passed the second class test, making six second class Girl Scouts in the troop. The following proficiency badges have been won by members of the troop: first aide, Grace Giglio, Genevieve Eddy, Bessie Forbes; homemaker, Naomi Foster, Grace Giglio; bugler, Bessie Forbes. Members of the troop are attending the home nurse course given by Miss Ogden at the Manchester Memorial hospital and are planning on winning other badges during the summer.

Four members of the troop were with the Bugle and Drum Corps in the Memorial Day parade. Four members attended the picnic given by the Council at the new camp. Two of them assisted in staging an impromptu first aid stunt, which was not as much appreciated as it would have been if the bugle had not blown mess call. The other two endeavored to improve their complexions by walking home in the rain.

The outdoor supper to be given by Patrol Two for Patrol One has been postponed, but will be held some time soon. The menu which has been suggested is: hot dogs and angels on horseback, with some more for dessert. All the present members of the troop, the Manchester Girl Scout lieutenants who were formerly members of the troop, and the troop committee will be the guests of Captain Norton at a special meeting of the troop Friday evening, June 17.

All news for the summer should be sent to Mrs. Brownell.

The Girl Scouts have a summer service bureau which Mrs. John Hood has charge of. Mothers will be able now to obtain a nursing girl on short notice to care for their youngsters during the summer months. By calling Mrs. Hood, telephone number 169-3, one can obtain the name of a perfectly competent scout.

The Girl Scouts are going to Vernon tonight to entertain the girls of the County Home.

The Woman's Day

We have one set of cardinal virtues for the home woman, and another set for the business woman, according to the discovery of somebody or other who takes her pen in hand. She says that those for the home woman are—Beauty, purity, modesty, mercy, gentleness, fidelity and unselfishness.

Those for the business woman are—

Punctuality, industry, accuracy, confidence, neatness, speed and optimism.

Not Sure

Maybe so, but I am about convinced that the woman who is a living example of the last set, does not get any further in business than in her social life. She may be so successful that she is able to pay for the home woman's virtues. I believe it is Helen Woodward who says in her book called "Through Many Windows," which is the story of her own business career, that she left business college all primed with these cardinal virtues but learned about the first day she held a job that punctuality and industry and accuracy and neatness and speed had very little to do with anything.

What Does?

Denying that these things do count, one might pertinently inquire "what does?" I am not going into that now—which may just be an alibi for not confessing that I don't know—but I do want to talk about what many people believe to be the substitute—feminine charm, sex appeal, charm, call it what you will. I believe that this equipment in the business world is much over-estimated. Sometimes I wonder if it isn't a detriment.

Her Story

One of the prettiest women I ever saw is almost a real professional success. But not quite. It is no secret to her that her friends admire her near-success to her charm and beauty. She herself attributes her lack of total success to the same thing. "The tradition of business men falling for attractive employees and pushing them forward is so well known," says she, "that employers are so self-conscious on the subject and are afraid of even giving an even and fair break to a passably attractive woman for fear they will be accused of having fallen victim to her charms."

Which, I suppose, is encouragement to such of us who were not born to knock 'em for a loop by our Helen of Troy physiognomy and Cleopatra tigger!

Good Nature and Good Health

ALCOHOL AS A MEDICINE.

Editor's Note—The liquor controversy in Indiana where the governor and the attorney general broke the laws of their state to secure alcoholic medicine "to save the lives of members of their families," has aroused the whole country.

Extreme drags say alcohol has no medicinal value. What do the best medicinal authorities say, after scientific study?

Dr. Fishbein will reveal the impartial opinion of the greatest medicinal scientists in four articles, the first of which is given herewith.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

The great difficulty in arriving at any estimate of the actual value of alcohol in the practice of medicine is the fact that scientific opinions seem to be conditioned invariably by sociologic, economic or personal side-lights.

In 1925, Dr. Roger I. Lee attempted to evaluate alcohol from the strictly pharmacologic and therapeutic points of view. In other words, he was concerned wholly with the effects of alcohol on the various parts of the body and its use in the treatment of disease.

Before the advent of modern sci-ing the patient more comfortable." Dr. Lee pictured the elderly patient convalescent from some mild respiratory infection, depressed and miserable in mind and body, without appetite, with a sense of prostration and weakness. "In such cases," he says, "the use of alcohol in some agreeable form eases the anxieties of the patient's body and encourages him to take nourishment and helps in the establishment of his recovery.

When Alcohol is Prescribed.

He points out that there are occasional cases in the early stages of pulmonary tuberculosis when the fever, the distress of the body and the consciousness of the disease make life appear drab, and that the judicious administering of alcohol in small amounts seems to alter the outlook on life and to make enduring the rigors of the necessary treatment.

The patient with chronic heart disease, the person who is passing into senility with its inevitable discomforts is also benefited by small doses of alcohol, since it apparently enables him to eat more and to sleep better, as well as to give him freedom from body miseries.

In his conclusions Dr. Lee says that the benefit of alcohol is probably never directly life saving, that it should not be employed as a routine treatment and should be used only in individual cases in which the indications for its use are clear.

THE ANYMITES STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) Wee Copsy said, "I guess you're right. I must swim back to land ere night, but first I'd like to look around and see what I can see. There must be some strange fish down here. It sorta fills me up with fear. But if, we walk together we'll be safe as we can be." Then Scouty shouted, "Let's move fast. I don't know how long this will last. King Roar may turn up suddenly and send us out of here." So off they went, along the sand and Copsy swam it very grand. "Course no one then it scared him when saw a deer fish swim too near. They picked up shells of every size that seemed to sparkle in their eyes. "I'd like to take some up to shore," said Copsy, with a grin. "Oh, what's the use?" we Scouty cried. "As soon as you'd get them inside, they'd promptly lose their luster and you'd likely throw them in." out. Said he, "I guess I'll turn about and swim up where the others are. What news I'll have to bring?" "All right," said Scouty, "tell the bunch I'll be back soon. I have a hunch that I'll be ordered out of here when next I see the king." But, just as Copsy started out, he heard his old friend Scouty shout, "Look out! A monstrous octopus is coming after you. You'd better swim to beat the band or in it's clutches you will land." Then Copsy turned and looked real quick, and found that it was true. "My goodness, what will happen now? He surely must be saved somehow," said Scouty, as the octopus came very, very near. Then Scouty grabbed the octopus, which started in to make a fuss, and as they battled Copsy swam away, quite filled with fear. (Scouty is captured by the octopus in the next story.)

NO DIPHTHERIA CASES FOUND IN MANCHESTER

Book Agents Story Discredited By Health Officer—Told to Sell Book on Medicine.

A woman book agent selling a volume on medical subjects is known to have told at least one family in Manchester that there are 20 cases of diphtheria here, Dr. D. C. Y. Moore, local health officer told The Herald today. This report is positively unfounded, and the truth is that there are no cases of diphtheria in Manchester.

Dr. Moore said that a local woman had questioned the story which was told to her by the book agent and immediately called his office to learn the truth. He believes the agent is telling the story in order to help the sale of her book on medicine. He urges Manchester people to discredit the story if they hear it because the town is in an unusually healthy condition at the present. Bernice, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Field of Summer street had her first birthday party yesterday afternoon, given in her honor by her mother and grandmother to twelve little ones and their mothers. There was music and refreshments suitable for the little ones as well as the grownups, including a birthday cake with one candle. Bernice was remembered with a number of dainty gifts.

DOUGLAS, Jr., TO WED

Los Angeles, Calif., June 15.—Possibility of an alliance between two of the foremost families in motion pictures was seen today in the reported engagement of Helene Costello and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Miss Costello, daughter of the noted Maurice Costello, first idol of the screen, is in New York. "I can't deny it," young Fairbanks said today when asked about the reported engagement. "Perhaps you had better ask Miss Costello. She is a wonderful girl and I admire her tremendously."

Friends declare that Helene confided in them that she and "Junior" were to be married.
