FEAR CIVIL WAR IN FREE STATE

HOLD SAILOR IN KILLING OF 2 WOMEN

Bodies Hacked To Pieces and Parts Hidden In Widely Separated Spots In New York.

New York, July 11.—As the crack detectives of New York's homicide squad made efforts today to piece together evidence in the gruesome double slaying of two women, whose bodies were hacked to pieces and the parts hidden in widely-separated spots in two boroughs, Ludwig Lee, 35, a former sailor, was subjected to a grilling interrogation. He denies complicity in the ghastly crimes, but the police have expressed themselves as confident that they have "the right man."

The Murdered Women The murdered women, Mrs. Elizabeth Brownell, 65, and Mrs. Alfred Bennett, 40, apparently slain in the cellar of a staid brownstone house in a quiet residential section of Brooklyn. The major portions of their bodies were found in three ash-cans in the cellar. Other parts were found, wrapped in blankets, scattered among the shrubbery of a nearby churchyard. A pair of legs, believed to have belonged to one of the women, were found Saturday morning in Batter Park, Manhattan. The other gruesome discoveries were made yesterday.

The Motive Police cannot reconcile themselves to the belief that robbery was the only motive for the brutal slayings. The bodies of the women had been terribly mutilated, hacked and torn into several pieces with axes and saws. The weapons with which the murders were committed were found in the basement of the home where Mrs. Brownell lived. Lee, who is a Norwegian, was employed by Mrs. Brownell as janitor. He knew Mrs. Bennett also, police declare, for it was from Mrs. Bennett that the other woman purchased recently the house in which she lived and kept boarders. He identified the pieced-together bodies of the two women.

Charged With Homicide Lee is formally charged with homicide. Two other men are held as material witnesses. Crews from the Department of Sewers were preparing to open the sewer lines of the "murder" house in the belief that additional missiles were hidden there.

30 CENTS BOODLE FOR STICK-UP MEN

Tony Heines Got Thrill of His Life at Bargain Price; Afraid to Report.

Holdup men operating on Spencer street near the Manchester-East Hartford line Thursday night, got 30 cents from Tony Heines for their trouble. After they had taken the pocketbook containing the money from their victim, they examined it and threw it back to him, driving away in disgust. According to the local man's story, which was not reported to the police, he was going toward his home on the Silver Lane road when a suspicious appearing car drew his attention. The car attempted to run his machine to the side of the road, but at that time both machines had arrived at Miller's filling station at Hillstown.

Drove Without Lights The holdup victim drove into the station, which is brightly lighted, and the other car drove away, its headlights out. The victim came out of the station and continued on his way toward the Center and the car met him again. "This time he had to stop or crash into the fence at the side of the road. He stopped.

"Stick 'em up," commanded one of the robbers, brandishing a pistol. The local man did so and the second of the pair went through his pockets, finding the pocketbook. He looked into it, saw the 30 cents and nothing more and threw it in to the owner's face. Heines lives at the "Half Way House" or "Norm" Burke place just over the line in East Hartford. He can't even remember how the highwaymen looked.

Sets Her Wings for Rome Hop

Gladys Roy, pretty Los Angeles flyer, holds record for parachute jumps at both high and low altitudes. Now she has made up her mind to fly from New York to Rome. A special Ryan monoplane, of the kind that Lindbergh used, has been selected as the machine in which she hopes to make the trip. Her co-pilot is Lieutenant Delmar L. Snyder, of Cleveland, O.

SAPIRO TO STOP HIS FORD SUIT Says Auto King's Public Apology to Jews Changes the Whole Matter.

Chicago, July 11.—Aaron Sapiro, just back from an extended business trip into Canada, practically admitted today that his million dollar libel suit against Henry Ford will be withdrawn.

Mr. Sapiro was asked this question: "What effect will Mr. Ford's public apology for the anti-semitic policy of the Dearborn Independent have upon the retrial of your suit?"

His Answer Mr. Sapiro replied: "I have no desire to cause Mr. Ford any embarrassment whatsoever and I mean that to apply from all standpoints. I have faith in Mr. Ford's sense of justice, and I believe, now that he has been informed of the scope, purpose and accomplishments of co-operative marketing, he will endorse it because he will know it is sound in principle."

Took Courage "It took a tremendous amount of courage for Mr. Ford to make his retraction. It shows that fundamentally he wants to do what is right. I think his statement removes much of the sting of the independent's policy in the past six years."

Mr. Sapiro said the negotiations for an out-of-court settlement were in charge of William Gallagher, his Detroit attorney, and as he (Sapiro) had been away for some time he does not know their present status.

Ford Ignorant "It is my sincere belief Mr. Ford did not know just what his own people were doing," said Mr. Sapiro. "That was the reason I considered it vitally important to have Mr. Ford go on the stand in my suit—just to bring out the point that he wasn't aware of the articles. His retraction accomplishes that. It demonstrates his integrity of character. He courageously repudiated things done in his own name."

STORES IN DRIVE FOR KIDDIES CAMP Will Give Percentage of Sales Toward Expense of Vacation For Poor Tots.

Seventy-six Manchester merchants are pledged to give a percentage of their total sales toward the support of the Kiwanis Kiddie camp in Hebron this week. The drive for funds will continue through Saturday. A list of the merchants co-operating to secure the $1,500 fund will be found in an advertisement elsewhere in this issue of The Herald. Manchester people who are desirous of doing something to give poor Manchester kiddies a summer vacation in the country are being urged to patronize those merchants.

The first group of twenty boys is already at the Hebron camp which is on the grounds of the Hebron Game club. There the youngsters ranging from nine to fifteen years in age go through a daily schedule of exercise, play—and most important of all—eats. Lloyd Russell of Pittsburgh and John Carik, an athlete of quite some fame from Pittsburgh are in charge. Mr. Russell was at the camp during its first season last year. Miss Elizabeth McIntosh of Ridgewood street is cooking for the children, and they have naught but praise for her good work.

Gives Them Vacation It is planned to send about 80 Manchester kiddies to the camp selected largely by Miss Jessie M. Reynolds, noted here for her welfare work. These youngsters would not have a vacation if it were not for the Kiwanis camp. Given two weeks at the camp they learn the right kind of organized play, get the right kind of exercise, and eat the very best of food. They get the right number of hours of sleep in the clear, sweet invigorating air that the high location of the camp affords.

Manchester people are welcome in their visits to the Kiwanis camp. Anyone who can spare an hour during the day will be highly repaid by a trip to Hebron. Go up Charter Oak street, Highland street, through Camp Meeting Woods to Charles Pinney's place. Turn left and then right until a sign is posted pointing to the camp.

Read the Ads. All this week merchants who are associated in this organized effort to secure the necessary money for the camp are offering special inducements to local and out of town shoppers to visit their stores so that their percentages for the fund may be as high as possible. School Consolidation Consolidation Cost Surprisingly Small

This is the fourth in a series of articles written for The Herald by Howell Cheney, chairman of the Ninth school district of Manchester, and dealing with the subject of consolidation of public schools here in a single system. Today's article deals with the cost of unification.

The studying of the problems in regard to the consolidation of schools incurred no very serious difficulty until it was attempted to get at accurate statements of the cost to the several districts of carrying their properties. Here, owing to the fact of more or less frequent changes in the treasurerships of the districts and consequent changes in the methods of accounting or lack of accounting, it has been almost impossible to get an absolutely correct statement of the average of expenses covering a period of years for each district. Up to the present date the Keeney Street, or Fifth, District has made no report, and the figures for District VIII are based on an average of three years instead of five years as is the case in the other districts.

It would further take an expert audit to determine whether payments made towards the reduction of a debt were actually made in a method to reduce the net amount of the debt or simply amounted to conversion of the debt from some form of floating indebtedness represented by notes into permanent bonds. It was not to be expected that there would be any uniformity in the methods of accounting under the present system, but even a casual examination of the problem would raise serious doubts as to the wisdom of conducting the financial affairs of the districts as they are at present run.

No Change in Total Cost It would seem obvious that the cost of maintaining our school properties under a consolidated system would be less than under the present system. It is not to be expected that there would be any uniformity in the methods of accounting under the present system, but even a casual examination of the problem would raise serious doubts as to the wisdom of conducting the financial affairs of the districts as they are at present run.

DOCTOR INVOLVED IN GRIM MURDER He With Wife and Friend Shoot Husband and Dis-member Body.

Morgan City, La., July 11.—The details of the love affair which Dr. Thomas Dreher and Mrs. Ada Leboeuf tried so hard to shield from the public were revealed today. The woman "go-between" who carried love letters from Dr. Dreher to Mrs. Leboeuf, and from her to him, is known and has been summoned to appear before the jury. District Attorney Vuilleumet announced.

He expects her testimony to weigh heavily with the jury which is to be asked to indict Dr. Dreher, Mrs. Leboeuf and James Beadle, the trapper, for first degree murder. The district attorney announced he had summoned 14 witnesses but refused to reveal their names.

Interest of the townspeople centers on James Beadle, the trapper, and they hope something will come out of the Grand Jury meeting which will reveal his part in the death of Leboeuf. Beadle has become the man of mystery in the case with his steadfast and unflinching denial of any part in the crime. This an array of statements of Dr. Dreher and Mrs. Leboeuf that he was the man who actually shot Leboeuf and ripped his body open.

Against Dreher Public opinion has turned against Dreher. He is condemned for turning on Beadle, who had been a sort of a paid retainer, performing odd jobs around the house. Beadle's sullenly repeated denials have been so unflinching that although the doctor's account is accepted by police, hunting and trapping friends of the accused man are beginning to spread the report that he is a victim of circumstances.

V. PRES. O'HIGGINS IS ASSASSINATED

London Press Fears Murder Will Result in Another Civil War—Death Further Complicates Political Situation; President Cosgrave Advised to Take Stern Measures.

Advices from Dublin said that the country is in a high state of excitement and that the police everywhere are active. Fears have been expressed in London that the O'Higgins assassination may lead to new and widespread outbreaks of political violence in the Irish Free State, unless the Cosgrave government adopts a strong policy.

Press Comment The Daily News editorially admits today the possibility of disaster, stating that "in a country like Ireland the real danger is that like an episode of this kind should suddenly re-ignite the fires of civil war."

Curse of Lawlessness Asserting that "the curse of lawlessness" still clings to the Irish Free State, the Morning Post which opposed the creation of the Free State, declares there are "intricate and subterranean connections between crime and the new politics of Ireland." This paper declares that the Free State has succeeded in divorcing itself "from the criminal organization by which it was established. Whether this new and horrid crime will do that danger, but necessary work, remains to be seen."

Lacks Majority The Daily Mail, pointing out that the Cosgrave government lacks a majority in the Dail, says that "O'Higgins' violent death will further complicate the political situation." It declares that O'Higgins was a power in the government "with a firm relentless mind" and "now that he is removed, the political situation in the Free State is more than dark—it is stormy."

YOUNG VANDERBILT TO START DIVORCE

Third of Wealthy Family In Court This Year—Is Going to Reno.

New York, July 11.—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. is on his way to Reno today with the avowed intention of beginning suit for divorce against Rachel Littleton Vanderbilt. He plans to establish residence immediately. Unless his action is contested, he may obtain a decree at the end of six months.

Long Separated "We have been separated for more than two years, part of which time she has resided with my family. My parents have been, and still are, supporting her. My family is opposed to divorce, but sanctity of separation if we cannot get along together."

Young Vanderbilt met the former Rachel Littleton in 1919. She is a half-sister of Martin W. Littleton, noted New York lawyer. The pair were married a year later at St. Thomas' church, the occasion being one of the most brilliant social affairs of the season. The impending divorce of Young Vanderbilt will be the third in the family within the year. Within the last few months the Paris courts have granted decrees to Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., the former Virginia Fair, and to Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt, formerly Emily Davies.

DEATH OF O'HIGGINS POSTPONES PARLEY Free State Official Was Dele-gate At Geneva—Had Just Returned Home.

Geneva, July 11.—The plenary session of the tripartite naval conference today was postponed indefinitely owing to the assassination of Kevin O'Higgins, vice president and foreign secretary of the Irish Free State. Official announcement of the postponement said that this action was taken because O'Higgins was a member of the British delegation. Recently he spent a few days here to attend the conference.

May Break Down The Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, chief British delegate, had asked for the plenary session but it is said that he realized that if it were held today with the cruiser tonnage question still in dispute, that the parley might break down and that world opinion would hold Great Britain responsible for the failure of the conference.

Will Not Back Down Some observers are of the opinion that Great Britain will not back down in her stand but will seek delay in order to raise new issues which may make it possible to shift the blame for the failure of the conference to the United States or Japan.

The plenary session which had been scheduled for today was anticipated with a good deal of apprehension on all sides and the postponement does not alleviate the tenacity but merely delays it, for, as yet, it appears to be nothing more than a postponement. Kevin O'Higgins was the Irish delegate at the conference and had only returned to Dublin a few days ago. It is expected that steps will be taken to pay him for his services. The postponement decision was reached after Bridgeman had conferred during the night with the Japanese and had called a meeting of the British delegates and the Dominion delegates.

THINK MOTHER OF 9 KILLED BY HUSBAND

Dudley, Mass., Police Dragging Ponds In Effort to Find the Body.

Dudley, Mass., July 11.—Three ponds in this town were being dragged today by police in an effort to locate the body of Mrs. Henry Williams, 38, mother of nine children, who left her home here over a week ago. A search of the countryside for miles around by men and Boy Scouts over the week-end failed to reveal any trace of the missing woman.

Police communicated with Mrs. Williams' parents, of Greenville, Iowa, and friends in Port Jervis, N. Y., in the belief that she might have gone there but all replies have been to the negative. Today Chief of Police George Reynolds and State Detective Edward J. McCarthy were investigating stories of the Williams children, concerning threats made against the woman's life by her husband, from whom she was separated.

TO FACE BOSTON BILLY Mineola, N. Y. July 11.—Arthur Barry, confessed gem thief now serving a 25 year term, was brought here from Sing Sing prison today to "squel" upon his former pal, "Boston Billy" Williams.

No Arrests After 24 Hours Investigation By Police; Many Wild Rumors Afloat—Free State Official Shot to Death While Returning From Church Services.

Dublin, July 11.—"Willful murder by three men, unknown", was the verdict returned today by a coroner's inquest into the death of Kevin O'Higgins, vice president and minister of justice and foreign affairs for the Irish Free State. The inquest was held in the Black Rock Town Hall, near the spot where O'Higgins was assassinated yesterday. After the inquest the body was removed to the Mansion House in Dublin where it will lie in state until tomorrow night. Then it will be moved to St. Andrew's church where it will lie in state until the funeral Wednesday morning.

Personal Vengeance With the police and the government maintaining great secrecy, the theory is being advanced that the assassination was one of personal vengeance. O'Higgins was one of the firmest leaders in the Irish Free State and was credited generally with being responsible for the decision resulting in the execution of many of the rebels who fought the Free State during its early days. Many believe that friends of executed rebels had sworn vengeance upon O'Higgins and that they carried out their oath yesterday when he ventured forth unguarded to attend church.

Political Effects It is still too early to determine the political effects of the assassination, but the government has taken steps to prevent disorders. There are rumors of a possible new civil war, but such reports are discounted in responsible quarters. The body of O'Higgins lies in the banquet hall of the Mansion House, with a crucifix clasped in the hands and another six foot crucifix, draped in black, erected at the head.

President Cosgrave and Governor General Healy were among the first to view the body and pay their respects and then thousands of others stood long hours in line waiting to view the body. The postponement decision was reached after Bridgeman had conferred during the night with the Japanese and had called a meeting of the British delegates and the Dominion delegates.

Heard the Shots Mrs. O'Higgins heard the shots fired at her husband yesterday and seemed to sense tragedy for she exclaimed: "Oh, I hope they are not for poor Kevin." She collapsed when told of her husband's death.

Although police have been unable to find any trace of the assassin, they have a full description of all the men, all of whom are believed to be youths of between 20 and 25 years. The authorities believe the assassins have by this time escaped either into the mountains or by boat out to sea. Acting on the former theory, an energetic search is being conducted through the difficult regions of the Wicklow mountains.

Dublin, July 11.—No arrests have been made as the result of a twenty-four police investigation into the assassination of Vice President Kevin O'Higgins. Police investigation continues but the authorities refuse to make any statement concerning the results. There are many rumors of impending arrest, but all are confirmed from official sources.

While the assassination has led to great public excitement, there have been no disorders reported.

BIG SEARCH ON Dublin, July 11.—A country-wide search was under way through Ireland today for the assassins of Kevin O'Higgins, vice president and foreign minister of the Irish Free State, who was shot to death yesterday when walking from his home to mass at Black Rock near Dublin. The three assassins who occupied an automobile escaped. The Irish police have been stopped.

SHERIFF INVESTIGATES

EARLY HOUR CRASH

(Special to The Herald)
Wapping, July 11.—Deputy Sheriff C. Vinton Benjamin who does most of the automobile accident investigating in this village, was called from his bed early yesterday morning to investigate an accident that occurred in the hours when most residents of this section are "rattling the pillow" the hardest. He found that two cars going in the opposite directions on the Pleasant Valley road, about a mile west of the Center, had locked front wheels with a total destruction of a front wheel in each case and that one of the cars had gone off the road into the farm lot. No body was injured. Both cars were moved before daylight and even the early risers did not see the cars. A report was made to the Manchester police and one of them came to the town line by way of Buckland street, but found it was out of his territory.

Consolidation Cost Surprisingly Small

plan, as far as it related to the physical maintenance of the plant, which is all that is within the field of district management, could not materially vary whether the schools were maintained by the districts or maintained by the town. The aggregate or total of the expense should be the same in either event. The distribution of the expense might slightly vary. If our schools are to be maintained upon the same scale of expenditure and economy as at present the sum of their expenses will be practically the same whether the responsibility rests with the town or with the districts. The rate to be borne by each district may, however, be different under the present system than it would be under a town control, which would impose an exactly equal tax upon all of the districts of the town. The statement below gives an estimate of the expenses of the school districts of the Town of Manchester for the five year period ending July 14, 1926. The expenses for the Keenev Street District have been estimated, and those for the Eighth District have been increased to a five years' average from the basis of a three year report. The expenses which Cheney Brothers have assumed are taken from their books, excluding, however, the item of depreciation on the buildings. The figures for recreation in the Ninth District are the amount of the appropriations annually instead of the exact figures of expense, which, have, however, differed but very little from the appropriation. Otherwise we believe the figures are as nearly accurate as it is possible to secure them under the present system of accounting by each district.

ESTIMATED EXPENSES OF SCHOOL DISTRICTS OF TOWN OF MANCHESTER.

| Cheney Bros. | 22,225.08 | — | 55,758.87 | — | — |
| Recreation | — | — | 105,000.00 | — | — |
| Total | $194,997.60 | $61,727.87 | $317,583.07 | $203,269.56 | $777,578.08 |
| Average per year | $38,999.52 | $12,345.57 | $63,516.62 | $40,653.92 | $156,515.63 |
| Average per year (Excluding interest) | — | — | — | — | $114,861.71 |

From the above statement it will be seen that the cost of the three items of permanent improvements, general repairs, and miscellaneous expense has been an average of $114,861.71 for the five year period. This expense pro rated on a grand list of $53,132,488 would have been supported by a tax of 2.16 mills. This is not, however, the whole cost of maintaining our school properties. There should be added to this the interest on the indebtedness together with a sufficient amount yearly to amortize or pay off the debt within a term of twenty-five years.

Our report has shown in Article II that the debts of the several districts, including the amount which it would be necessary to pay Cheney Brothers to take over their properties, would after consolidation amount to $1,727,497.64. These debts are in detail as follows: First Dist. $ 2,638.52
Second Dist. 68,850.00
Third Dist. 200.00
Fourth Dist. 19,000.00
Fifth Dist. 5,571.82
Seventh Dist. 22,000.00
Eighth Dist. 183,000.00
Ninth Dist. 1,426,237.30
(District $470,000.000)
(Cheney Brothers $956,237.30)

Including Cheney Brothers' school properties. An estimate has been made to determine the amount of the tax on a grand list of $53,132,488 that would be necessary to extinguish this debt in twenty-five years and pay a carrying charge of 4% interest. This was found to be 1.16 mills per million dollars of indebtedness to carry a debt of $1,727,497.64 would therefore cost the product of approximately one and three-quarter million dollars times 1.16 mills, or almost exactly two mills. That is, without an increase in our present grand list the town would have to tax themselves two mills on the value of the present school debt including the value of Cheney Brothers' properties, and to pay the carrying charges yearly as they accrue.

It was found above that the cost of the maintaining of the school properties was at present the sum of the three items of permanent improvements, general repairs and miscellaneous expenses, which could be met by a tax of 2.16 mills. This added to the cost of two mills for carrying and discharging the debt in twenty-five years makes a total of 4.16 mills, which would become a flat tax upon the property in all of the districts of the town. If it will be remembered that the Ninth School District is the only school district of its own school buildings and taxing itself to discharge its debt of approximately one million dollars to Cheney Brothers, would have to assume an annual tax of at least two mills, it will be seen that the average tax under consolidation would almost exactly equal the average tax under the district system if the Ninth School District were paying all of its own expenses.

Three of the districts, the Second, the Fourth and the Eighth, are already carrying a debt of approximately one million dollars. If it were they would under consolidation; the Keenev Street District is carrying the same; the Buckland and the Oakland Districts are carrying a smaller. In the District of every year the amount of taxation that they would street consolidation; the Keenev Street District is carrying the same; the Buckland and the Oakland Districts are carrying a smaller.

It must further be borne in mind by all of the Districts as well as the Ninth, that the present taxes which they are paying do not cover the cost of the building and equipment of a high school, which they are now enjoying, and this were added, all of their present school taxes would be higher.

The next article will deal with the question of what will be accomplished by the consolidation of schools.

No Relief for Ninth
The above estimates will be a surprise to many in that most discussions of the matter have assumed that a consolidation of schools and the purchase of Cheney Brothers' property would relieve the Ninth District of some burdens by passing them on to other districts. It will be seen that this is not the result, and that if any district is to assume increased burdens it is the Ninth District. The explanation for this is perfectly obvious—that it has not in the past carried all of its own school obligations but has looked to Cheney Brothers to support them. The more surprising aspects of the estimates which have been made is in the justice of the equalization of the burdens as they would seem to be most probably worked out under consolidation.

It must further be borne in mind by all of the Districts as well as the Ninth, that the present taxes which they are paying do not cover the cost of the building and equipment of a high school, which they are now enjoying, and this were added, all of their present school taxes would be higher.

The next article will deal with the question of what will be accomplished by the consolidation of schools.

Mailman Covers Route Alone; His Pal Is Dead

When Henry Simonson, carrier, No. 3 of the South Manchester post office, returned to work this morning after being laid up for a week with an injury to his foot, he missed an old friend. For six years past each morning on reaching the corner of Park and Church streets Mr. Simonson would blow his whistle and from a position near the mail box at the corner of Laurel and Church streets, would come scampering a wire-haired Irish terrier dog. All around the route he would accompany the mailman in gray as he brought messages of cheer from those afar, and the usual messages of bills and unfortunate news. At times the mailman would stop, take a comb from his pocket and straighten out the hair on his dog companion. Mr. Simonson, walking somewhat lame, reached the corner of Park and Church streets this morning on

ABOUT TOWN

The young people of the Salvation Army will conduct a meeting at 7:30 this evening in Rockville. Music will be furnished by the young people's band and the meeting will be in charge of Commandant Spohn, the new officer.

Mrs. James Duffy of Strickland street returned last evening after a two weeks' visit with her niece, Mrs. E. J. Slate, Jr., of Brighton, Mass.

Local Kiwanians will omit their usual Wednesday luncheon at the Hotel Sheridan this week and instead motor out to Ed Holl's summer place in Bolton where they will be his guests for dinner at 6:15. The men are urged to bring their bathing suits, fishing tackle or any other sports paraphernalia, and any who can find it convenient to go out early in the afternoon will find plenty of boats.

The local Salvation Army band accompanied Colonel Underwood of the New York headquarters to the First Baptist church of Hartford last night, where the colonel delivered a lecture. The band gave instrumental numbers and male chorus selections.

Henry Schaeffer of Garden street was one of the passengers injured in the crash which involved the Broad Brook bus in Rockville on Saturday. He has injuries to his back but they are not considered serious. He was the only Manchester person on the bus at the time.

Reports of corporations as of July 1, 1927, are due at the office of the secretary of state, it was given out by Town Clerk Samuel G. Turkington, this morning. The reports are filed with the secretary and a certified copy also filed. The copy must be registered in the town clerk's office.

Marriage licenses issued during the month of June show that the past month did not have as many weddings as the corresponding month of last year. There were 19 licenses issued this year while last year's total was well over the twenties.

OVER 100 GREENITES GO TO SALMON RIVER

The Manchester Community club's outing at Elm Grove, Salmon river, on Saturday appealed to more than twice as many Greenites as it had been expected would make the trip. One hundred and eleven persons went along and put in the day at the resort, which is not very well known to Manchester people but over which the club's members are now most enthusiastic.

Sixteen automobiles took the bulk of the party and none of them had any real luck but the thirteenth one to start, which encountered a blowout and missed an hour or so of the outing. There was an early contingent consisting of John Gamba and James and Jeremiah Sullivan, who left about 9 o'clock and by the time the rest of the crowd arrived, having followed an hour and a half later, had caught what the Greenites described as the banner catch of perch—"fourteen or fifteen of 'em and not a darned one under 10 inches long."

While the day was misty at times there was no real rain and the party had the pavilion at the grove under charter, as well as two power boats. Some of the picknickers hired horses and went riding. Two of these were members of the committee and they were so fascinated by the expert angler, they failed to get back in time to have their pictures taken in the group photograph which was one of the stunts of the day.

The outers pooled their issues on the matter of provender and a big picnic dinner was served in the pavilion. This part of the affair was managed by the women members of the committee, Misses Mary Boyle, Howard Griffin and Tilly Gamba, with the assistance of several young women volunteers. Canoeing, boating, tennis, horseshoe pitching and a little dancing were among the diversions.

The men members of the committee, who arranged the transportation and kindred matters, were Peter A. Baldwin, chairman, and O. C. Sherwood.

The club's present intention is to do it again. If not before the present season is over than certainly next year.

Cars owned by Dr. A. B. Moran and Frank Kneass of Lydallville were involved in an accident at the corner of North Main and North School streets at 2:45 on Saturday afternoon. The Kneass car was going west on North Main street while the doctor's machine was coming out of North School street. They met at the corner. There was slight damage to both machines. The losses are covered by insurance.

The Windsorville man had been visiting with the Kuzas family during the day and was about to leave the house to go home. According to the story told by members of the family, he tripped at the top of the stairs

Rockville DRAW JURY NAMES IN SESSION TODAY

Commissioners Meet For Annual Work—Need More Police Protection.

(Special to The Herald)

Rockville, July 11.—The jury commissioners of Tolland county were in session today with Superior Court Clerk William Reed selecting the veniremen from which list will be selected the men who are to serve as jurors during the term starting September 1927 and ending at the close of the June term next year.

Under the general statutes the number of men who must be over 25 years of age, of sound mind and standing in character in their community, are selected by the selectmen at their meeting and are to be returned to the clerk of the Superior court of the county in which they reside. In Tolland county, Tolland is allowed 36; Andover, 18; Bolton, 18; Columbia, 18; Coventry, 18; Ellington, 27; Hebron, 33; Mansfield, 48; Somers, 30; Stafford, 57; Union, 18; Vernon, 90; Willington, 30. The selectmen must send the names of this number and when the jury commission meets it eliminates from the list just half of this number. There are 956 names that the commission had to consider and from which they will cut the number to 478. These men are selected then become the veniremen on whom services can be made when called either for criminal or civil duty.

It is this work that the committee is now doing and it will take practically all day to complete, after which the clerk will make up a list of names as received and from this list names placed in a box will be drawn the different names who are to be called upon to serve as jurors.

New Law Helps

The new law which was passed in the closing hours of the last Legislature and which was responsible for the court-excusing over 100 of the 378 men that were examined before a jury was selected in the Chinese murder case in Hartford, will help out in making a selection of men for jury duty in coming trials. There is no doubt held in the minds of the lawyers who are familiar with the case that he will change his election from a trial by the court to one by jury if the law which was in force until July 1 was in force then, which prohibits any man who has served in the criminal or civil side of the superior court of the county within a period of five years from again serving until after the five year term, will not have to be considered in this case.

This will put the case up to the court to excuse only those men there has been a set opinion formed or because of personal feelings toward capital punishment and will allow but twenty-five challenges by the state and the same number by the defense. It will shorten up the time that has been used in the last year in selecting a jury.

Finishing Painting

When the Sykes Memorial school was built the work of painting the side walls was done, the hall woodwork in the rooms and the auditorium being fully painted but the side walls and some of the other parts were not painted in either the basement, the first or second floors.

Fred Arn has had a gang of painters at work in the school since it closed and at present is painting the walls in the auditorium and rooms. Three coats of paint are being applied to the walls.

Sings Over Radio

Mrs. Elna Hansen Johnson of Vernon, secretary of the L. F. Fitzgerald Sales and Service station who is one of the leading artists of this place has been engaged to sing from Station WBEZ, Springfield, tonight. She will be on the air from 10 o'clock to 10:30, tonight, singing the time and will be heard in six song numbers. She will be assisted by Billy Sweet of Manchester, a vocalist and will be accompanied at the piano by Miss Matilda Paley of South Manchester. Mrs. Johnston has been heard from this station on several other occasions, being allotted a half hour for her program.

Vernon Needs Protection

Captain Tobin did not miss his talk at all this morning when he told Judge Fisk in the police court that Vernon was in need of more police protection as the constables that were nominated and who lived after their election refused to qualify, or if they do, would not do anything in the way of duty and it required sending men from Rockville on many occasions when they were needed in Rockville. The remarks came as a result of a charge of breach of the peace and assault being lodged against Clifford Madden who was defended by Judge William S. Hyde of Manchester. Madden's case was nolleed on the payment of costs.

The state police cannot give the time that is required to the proper police and there were rather hard expressions made after court concerning one or two places in that section of Vernon.

Carnival Moved

The carnival which was engaged by the Rockville lodge of Elks during their week's carnival and occupied the Burke lot on Windsor avenue, pulled out of Hartford Saturday night and Sunday morning and are to open a week's engagement in Danbury.

After the closing of the Elks' carnival on Monday night it was planned to have the carnival remain for another week, but there was a general objection and the club with a large golf links, withdrew their support and tered enough courage to "say it with a kiss." The train pulled out of the station at 8:25. At Hartford and Middletown stops were made to pick up other Niantic via the shore route through Saybrook at 11:20 and the second one which bore Company G and the Howitzer Company, came to a halt at the Niantic Depot at exactly 11:52. In three minutes, the troops had detrained and were marching through the streets of this pretty shore resort to the reservation headed by the regimental band under the direction of Warrant Officer Tassilo.

Quick Work

Once in the camp, orders began to fly in bunches and in a short time the baggage had been delivered and the tents were pegged down. Company G of the Howitzer Company had no trouble in that respect by three sandwiches apiece which they munched shortly before leaving the train. The Howitzer Company, however, served dinner. A detail in charge of Lieutenant Walter Tedford came to the camp Saturday night so as to have everything in readiness to give the boys a meal when they arrived. This consisted of veal chops, boiled potatoes, peas, bread, butter and peaches. For supper, the Howitzer Company ate hamburg steak, fried potatoes, bread, butter and canned pears while Company G set down to an appetizing meal of beef steak, onions, boiled potatoes, bread, butter, coffee and canned peaches. Everyone seemed more than satisfied with the food which was prepared under the directions of Mess Sergeants Andrew Reggents and Lewis E. Hennequin.

One of the most noticeable improvements in the camp are the mess halls. There are ten new ones, five of which are being used by the 169th regiment. One of the new ones is assigned to the Howitzer Company. Cement floors have been laid in the halls, the buildings have been closed in and screened windows with blinds provided. Sleeping quarters have been partitioned off in the rear of the halls and electric lights installed. This makes a vast improvement over a year ago. With the sleeping quarters for the mess sergeants and his helpers located in the messhalls, it will not be necessary to disturb the other men in the camp when waking them each morning at 4 o'clock.

Colonel's Remarks

At officers mess at 1:30 this afternoon, Colonel D. Gordon Hunter greeted the officers and outlined the program for the encampment. He said that it didn't seem a year since they were last assembled here and that it seemed mighty good to be together once more. Colonel Hunter called attention to the fact that there never has been a time when everything has been as well prepared for camp as was the case this year. "It makes the task easier for us to get off on the right foot," he commented, "and now that you all know your objectives, organize yourselves. We are back at the military game once more. Forget the tendency to be careless and see that discipline is enforced. Be especially careful of personal appearance. I believe we have one of the best camps in the United States and it is up to you men to do your share that we may achieve success. In speaking about suitable located, Colonel Hunter paid a warm tribute to the untiring efforts of Colonel Harry B. Bissell, of Manchester, chief of staff, 43rd Division, and U. S. P. and O. officer" and to the splendid work they have done in making the camp a possibility.

Colonel Bissell responded and said the conditions were made possible by the fact that "we have a good man at the head of every department." Caterer Max Walker, of Hartford, arranged the menus for the officers. He is well known about the state and has catered at many of the leading social functions. He served the splendid dinner at the golden anniversary of the A. O. H. Company E. of Hartford, and also catered for Charles Cheney and through the efforts of Ward Cheney that he was engaged to cater at the Yale Prom four years ago, an event that was attended by about 2,000 persons. The piece de resistance of the dinner yesterday afternoon was roast chicken.

Mrs. Bennett, the other slain woman, was the mother of four grown children.

FIND ANOTHER HEAD

New York, June 11.—Fear that two other women may have met a fate similar to that of Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Brownall and Mrs. Alfred Bennett, who were murdered and their bodies hauled to pieces in the cellar of a Brooklyn home, arose this afternoon when two pieces of evidence were presented to police investigating the heinous crimes. One was a statement of Mrs. Mary DeMartino of Brooklyn, who reported to the police that her 18-year-old daughter, Evelyn, had not been seen or heard from since she went to visit Mrs. Bennett, one of the murdered women, on June 30, last.

The other was the discovery of the head of a woman, about thirty years of age, in the yards of the B. M. T. subway in Brooklyn, some distance from the scene of the crime. Mrs. Bennett's head has not been recovered, but she was a woman 45 years of age, and the discovery of the younger woman's head led police to believe that another brutal murder and dismemberment had occurred.

SON DEAD IN FIRE, HIS MOTHER DYING

Middletown Youth Was Blind; Rest of the Family Escape Injury.

Middletown, Conn., July 11.—William Steffman, Jr., 21, is dead and his mother in a critical condition as a result of burns they received when their home in Middletown was destroyed by fire Sunday morning. Young Steffman, who had been blind for the last year, died in Middletown today almost exactly twenty-four hours after he had been taken from his home by other members of the family.

There were nine persons in the Steffman household, all in bed, when the fire broke out from an unknown cause. Mr. and Mrs. Steffman, six children, and an aunt had difficulty in getting out, and Mrs. Steffman received her burns trying to save her son. Other members of the family also aided, but only mother and son were injured.

VICE-PRES. O'HIGGINS IS ASSASSINATED

ping all motor cars that might lead to clues. Dublin Excited Dublin is in a fever of excitement today. Special arrangements were made to guard the other ministers of the Irish Free State government. Fears were felt that the assassins planned wholesale murders and that they might strike again at any moment.

An official account of the assassination in the morning papers revealed the circumstances of the crime. The motor car which they occupied had been stolen in Dublin on Saturday night.

Two of the men acted as "look outs" while the other three did the actual shooting.

After he had been shot O'Higgins ran across the roadway and fell upon the sidewalk. The three men who had shot him down turned away assuming that he was dead. O'Higgins raised his hand slightly and the three men returned and fired another shot in his body to make sure of death. Then they re-entered their stolen automobile and sped away. Later the car abandoned and the police recovered it.

His Last Words

General Sir John Gird, head of the Irish Civic Guard, had the last interview with O'Higgins before his death. O'Higgins' last words to O'Duffy were:

"I am dying. Good-bye. We have done good work in the past. I hope it is continued on the same lines in the future."

"I forgive my murderers." O'Higgins then directed that a message be sent to his wife.

The adjutant general of the Irish Republican army issued a statement today declaring that the army council and general headquarters have no knowledge of the O'Higgins assassination and repudiate any intimations that the Republican organization may have been responsible.

"We feel certain that the responsibility which traced home will not involve any of our volunteers," said the statement.

MESSAGE OF CONDOLENCE

Belfast, July 11.—The governor of Northern Ireland sent a message of condolence today to Gov. Healy of the Irish Free State, upon the death of Kevin O'Higgins.

Offering his sympathies, the northern governor described the assassination of O'Higgins as "dastardly murder."

CONTINUE SEARCH FOR LAKE VICTIM

(Special to The Herald)

Rockville, July 11.—The search for the missing body of the boy who was drowned on July 4 still goes on at Sandy Beach, Crystal Lake, but without results. The fact that the pond is exceptionally high, no water being drawn from it by the Stafford mills, as they are getting a sufficient supply from streams and ponds to the north of them, leaves the large lake like a mill pond. The S. P. and O. officer and the water is exceptionally cold, much more so than in deep sea and that the bottom of the lake is also rough.

The water has been made muddy by the dragging of the lake that has been carried on for a week, making it hard to see. The diver was all ready to quit last night, but has agreed to continue the work for today at least. The cost is high, but by cottage owners at the lake and many persons interested and in sympathy with the parents and relatives of the two who lost their life and through fraternal and other organization offerings.

It is planned to conduct a benefit of some kind at the lake this week to raise further funds in the work.

HOLD BIGAMIST

Sullivan of Leominster, and after staying with her five years deserted her and several children. Then in 1919 he married Mrs. Elizabeth Dolan Mitchell, of Hartford, a divorcee and mother of a local policeman who was suspended from the force.

CONSOLIDATION

If the case of "Consolidation vs. District Management" were being tried before any jury of average intelligence, and particularly if the jury were of more than average intelligence, it seems inconceivable that the jury would not bring in a verdict for the plaintiff without leaving their seats, on the strength of the smashing argument in favor of Consolidation submitted to the people of Manchester by Howell Cheney in today's Herald.

We anticipate that in the Eighth district especially there will be a good many flabbergasted people when they learn that the whole cost to them of school property maintenance INCLUDING PROVISION FOR THE PURCHASE OF THE CHENEY-OWNED PROPERTIES AND EQUAL OWNERSHIP IN THE HIGH SCHOOL PLANT will be slightly less than the tax rate in their district for the past five years, when they enjoyed high school facilities only by courtesy of the Ninth district.

Yet this fact is demonstrated conclusively in Mr. Cheney's article. In the face of the demonstration it is not possible to believe that in the Eighth district, at least, there will any longer be serious opposition to the plan to have the town of Manchester take over, at a bargain price, the properties it has been borrowing for years; to combine the physical features of the schools as long ago it combined the educational features, and to proceed in its school affairs, in the future, as a modern, self-respecting and self-supporting community should.

Today's article by Mr. Cheney is by far the most lucid, most convincing and most able presentation of the crux of the consolidation idea that has ever been produced. To miss it would be to miss a vital chapter of town history in the making.

IRISH ASSASSINATION.

The fat is in the fire in Ireland. It is hardly possible that the assassination of Kevin Christopher O'Higgin, vice-President of the Irish Free State, can fail to bring a renewal of the violence and distress over political differences there which had seemed to be at last fairly well over and done with.

It may be entirely true, and probably is, that the assassination cannot be laid at the doors of the Republican party organization. In fact it would seem incredible that any genuine Irish patriot of whatever views could have countenanced the deed, for its reaction against the republican element is inevitable.

But it is one thing for the extremists to disavow the murder of the vice-president and another to convince the Free Staters that the gunmen who did the killing were not persons in affiliation with the republican movement.

Aside from the utterly distressing character of the crime, its political consequences are almost sure to be deplorable.

A NEW TRIAL

Thousands upon thousands of eyes will be upon the new trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, opening today at Boston. It is not called a trial but that is what it will be, in effect. The committee of three which was appointed by Governor Fuller to investigate the case is evidently planning to listen to whatever evidence is presented by W. G. Thompson, chief counsel for the condemned men. It will not be hampered by those tricky applications of the "laws of evidence" which operate in hundreds of cases to keep out testimony vital to the cause on trial and as often to admit evidence which has no business to be accepted.

In other words this new trial can be and undoubtedly will be conducted like any other business-like investigation in which the purpose is to find out the exact truth, not to determine which side shall be winner in a game of law in which the rules are made as purposely confusing as possible.

American courts are declared by many authorities to be the most hide-bound and tradition-ridden in the world. This is an extraordinary condition to exist in a country which in so many other ways leads the progress of the nations. And it is just as extraordinary that of the American states the one to be most dunder-headed of all in its judicial system should be Massachusetts, whose people pride themselves on being two or three jumps ahead of the rest of the sisterhood in all that is modern and intellectual.

TERRIBLE EXAMPLE

There is a man in New Bedford whom somebody is going to put in a book, unless the fiction authors are asleep to their opportunities. He is W. H. Langshaw and he is a rich mill owner. He came to this country from England when he was five years old. At ten years he became a bobbin boy. Now he is one of the big guns of the textile business.

"I do not believe in charities or philanthropies," he says. "They tend to begger." This is bitterly opposed to the laws against enforced school attendance. He thinks children should be "permitted" to go to work instead of to classes. "Only a small percentage can use education," he declares. "America's fault," says this novel sociologist, "is that she wants to educate every boy and girl, never taking into account that it would be better for most of them when they get to the proper age to be allowed to work and make their way in the world."

Meaning, the inference is clear, to become bobbin boys or the equivalent, to eventually own mills and get rich by filling them full of other children, also destined to become bobbin boys and mill owners, and to hug to one's breast every dollar of one's gains.

Nobody ever heard of W. H. Langshaw, outside of New Bedford or the textile trades, until he made a belated trip to England and began talking to newspaper reporters over there. He is an individual of no consequence whatever save for being perhaps the only person in New Bedford with effrontery enough to express his perfectly medieval view of civilization—and one, we are convinced, of an extremely small number to hold such views.

He is, of course, a densely ignorant man. His life has done him no good at all. He says himself that wealth does not bring happiness. The passing years have brought him no illumination. He is the perfect example of lack of education and of a childhood cramped and darkened and made mean by juvenile labor.

We could wish it might be arranged that W. H. Langshaw of New Bedford should go about the country lecturing on his theory of child labor and the abandonment of enforced education. He would provide in himself the terrible example of a materially successful person who has no more idea of what real success is than a ground mole.

LEVINE

It may be that the people of this country add to a considerable extent those of Europe have a wrong slant at Charles Levine, capitalist aviator who flew with Chamberlin to Germany; it may be that he is merely an impulsive, generous, rather blunderous sort of person far more than the usual amount of courage but who is sincerely interested in flying in a sportsmanlike and altruistic way. If he is such a person he is assuredly out of luck because it has been his misfortune to make a very different impression on a great many persons who have never seen him.

Levine made the exact opposite of a hit when he sprung his spectacular surprise on jumping into the Bellanca-Wright plane with Chamberlin, leaving his wife without so much as a flung word and imperiling not only his own life but that of Chamberlin by forcing on that pilot a companion of extremely limited air experience. It was an exasperating thing to do and in the worst of bad taste to say nothing of bad judgment.

Since then Levine has been spotlighting all over the place and now he has committed the egregious blunder of bidding away from a French flight of the Atlantic, to the westward, the pilot who was to have made it, grabbing Maurice Drouhin for his own westward passage in his Bellanca. It does not undo the blunder that Levine now offers to fly in a French plane, because this offer was the result of hind-sight.

Lindbergh, Chamberlin and the Byrd party have so conducted themselves as to aid mightily in re-es-

DOMESTIC ACHIEVEMENTS

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS PRECEDE MANY INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENTS

By DON E. MOWRY Secretary, American Community Advertising Association

The usual procedure in American cities is to let municipal improvements follow industrial growth. In many instances, industrial and business expansion would come more rapidly if the order were reversed.

Tampa, Fla., is a city which illustrates this admirably. Municipal improvements completed or under construction during 1926 in Tampa entailed an expenditure of $9,185,000 and plans have already been made by the city engineering department for a $2,000,000 paving program. Six new bridges now span the Hillsborough river within the city limits. Two of these bridges are already open for use. The others are nearing completion.

Ten miles of sewers have been laid and sixty miles of street paved. A municipal auditorium has been completed at a cost of $300,000 and the municipal hospital on Day island, costing $1,250,000, was completed in April.

Hillsborough county has expended nearly $5,000,000 during the past year on bridge and highway construction, most of which is closely adjacent to Tampa, but outside the city limits, which embrace 25 square miles.

Tampa is growing and must keep ahead of her growth.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER Washington.—Some of the highest ranking naval captains who were passed over recently when the navy selected 11 new admirals are probably wondering why they lost out.

There is one doubtful captain, high up among the leading 30 from whom admirals are chosen, who knows very well why he will have to retire on a captain's retirement pension rather than an admiral's.

This officer has achieved a brilliant and spotless career up to the recent occasion when he was named a flotilla which anchored off the capital of a South American republic wherein our country maintains an embassy and an ambassador.

The ambassador is a political appointee supposed to have been honored in recognition of valiant service for his party which service was not fully appreciated by the voters of his state. At any rate, he has put on some very lively parties at the embassy which have always been appreciated by naval officers and our captain, on the occasion in question, was invited to one as a guest of honor.

For the captain, at least, the function grew more and more successful. The ambassador had carefully left his copy of the Volstead act back home in the States, and an excellent time was being had by all, including the ambassador and the ambassador's wife.

Then, in a moment of hilarious bonhomie, the captain overstepped himself. The exact details may not be quite clear to him but it appears that he gave the ambassador's wife a playful spank.

The lady herself, it is understood took this in good part. But the ambassador, who observed the incident, did not.

The ambassador reported the captain to his government. Whashington and the unfortunate officer was raked over the coals unmercifully by his superiors.

It was the only stain, if it can be called that, on the captain's record, but when the admiral was picked the other day, our hero was one of the most conspicuous of those left unpromoted.

That was a costly spank, for under the naval promotion system all captains who are not made admirals within a certain time are forced to retire and make way for others. An admiral's retirement pay is $8000 a year and a captain's retirement pay is but $4500.

The navy seems to have got over its fit of pique over the fact that President Coolidge failed to stand on the bridge for hours and salute every one of the 100 men of war as they passed in review near the presidential yacht Mayflower off Hampton Roads. For a time the navy was miffed at the reported fact that Mr. Coolidge dressed in a

DAILY ALMANAC

Feast day of St. Pius I, pope and martyr of the second century. Anniversary of the birth of John Quincy Adams and George W. Norris.

Winsted, Conn.—A telephone operator trying to put through a call was alarmed to find the line open and the sound of labored breathing coming over the wire. The owner of the house was reached and hurried home to find his dog lying close to the instrument, which he had knocked from a table.

Worcester, Mass.—Nearly dead from suffocation, a woodchuck was found with his head tightly jammed into a tin can. After holes were cut to give the animal air, the can was removed from its head. After lingering awhile to show its gratitude, it wandered away.

It was the only stain, if it can be called that, on the captain's record, but when the admiral was picked the other day, our hero was one of the most conspicuous of those left unpromoted.

That was a costly spank, for under the naval promotion system all captains who are not made admirals within a certain time are forced to retire and make way for others. An admiral's retirement pay is $8000 a year and a captain's retirement pay is but $4500.

The navy seems to have got over its fit of pique over the fact that President Coolidge failed to stand on the bridge for hours and salute every one of the 100 men of war as they passed in review near the presidential yacht Mayflower off Hampton Roads. For a time the navy was miffed at the reported fact that Mr. Coolidge dressed in a sack suit instead of his full dress commander-in-chief uniform, stood on the bridge for 20 minutes and then parked himself behind a lifeboat where he could not see the great armada pass his yacht.

That phenomenon is easily explained by the fact that it is impossible to thrill Calvin Coolidge. The review of the fleet is always a supreme challenge to any thrill-prone man, but Mr. Coolidge stood the test.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE by PAUL ADAMS

This is chapter 78 of the series of articles written by an ex-soldier who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Herald.

CHAPTER LXXVIII

Hey, you! Soldier! Member that Dubbin? Just what it was no one ever rightly knew. But it was a kind of grease that came in little round boxes and two boxes to a pack was regulation. Its purpose (very much alleged) was to waterproof the hob-nailed hikers. It came about as close to that purpose as the driver of a horse-drawn hack does in picking up a fare at a railroad station in a small town nowadays.

But, boy! How those Sears-Roebuck officers used to yell about it! On Saturday inspections! Standing at attention, the poor private shivered.

"What! No dubbin on those shoes?" This from the officers.

"Sir, I-I-I-I!" the soldier would stammer.

"Take the fellow's name, sergeant. Give him plenty." And he'd draw about two weeks on K. P.

Dubbin! Of all the products that were foisted on an ex-obsessed government that was supreme. To its credit it may be said that it would keep out a light mist—a very light mist. But as for the mud and slush of France—well—it was about as practical as so much pulverized sugar. It may have been justified for its moral effect. And it may have been vindicated in the shine it produced for those joke inspections. But, after that, nothing.

Dubbin! Two boxes to a pack. Get your supply from the supply sergeant. Rub it in hard. Brush up a polish. And stand there, you bum, while some second lieutenant—whose boots have been polished with real polish by two or three orderlies—picks that flax in your toilette.

Dubbin! Dubbin! Who's got the Dubbin! Usually there was only one box for a squad.

No one ever took it seriously except the officers.

But it was Dubbin, nevertheless. And it was quite probable that many an infantryman, having just completed a job of bayonetting a machine-gun nest of the enemy, was severely reprimanded because he had forgotten to Dubbin his shoes.

Dubbin! It would be a real pleasure to know just who it was that must have sold those millions of boxes that gigantic hoax to a war-enthusiastic government at a handsome profit. Doubtless he has six valets now who keeps his boots always ready for inspection.

TOMORROW: Did Rain Win the War?

"IS ZAT SO" PLAYS STATE ON TUESDAY

George O'Brien Featured In Two-Day Run — Country Store on Thursday.

A prizefighter and his manager in society! What an opportunity for comical situations and thrills. And it has been worked out to perfection in "Is Zat So," which comes to the State theater with George O'Brien as the featured player on Tuesday for an engagement of two days.

The prizefighter was described as "just plain dumb" by his manager. But in spite of the least bit of intelligence in him he would not have been a prizefighter. When the brains were being handed out he was on the end of the line and if he had just one more brain he would have been half-witted.

In spite of the fact that he was dumb he managed to get around a beautiful girl and marry her in the last reel. And in addition to that he won the championship of the world. There was something to the brown over brain argument after all.

"Is Zat So" is pictured from the stage play of the same name which had a big run on Broadway a year ago. It is one of the real funny plays and there is a laugh in every foot of film.

The feature at the State tonight is "Lost at the Front," said to be funnier than "Rookies." The inimitable Charlie Murray as the Irish cop who joins the Russian army is better than ever. He is ably seconded by George Sidney, another master of comedy and both of them make something out of a war picture.

Thursday evening brings back the Country Store with its surprises and array of presents. The presents are good and the surprises will be better. Everybody has an opportunity to participate in the distribution of the presents.

The Kiddie Revue, scheduled for later this month, is working into shape in fine style. Manager Sanson has been holding rehearsals every morning for the past few weeks and is confident that this revue will be one of the best that the town has ever seen. Most of the stars of last year's show are in the cast this time and have profited considerably by last year's experience.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS DECORATION DAY Memorial lodge No. 33 Knights of Pythias held its annual decoration services yesterday afternoon. About forty members, augmented by members of Memorial Temple, Pythian Sisters, attended. After a short service in the lodge room, the members traveled in autos to the East cemetery, where impressive ritualistic services were conducted by past chancellors of the lodge.

During the service members were delegated to decorate the graves of deceased brothers in different parts of the cemetery with scarlet ramblers, the symbolic color of the order. Emblematic markers were also placed on each grave.

Adjourning to Wapping cemetery

the service was repeated and concluded in Buckland cemetery at the grave of deceased brother, George Ferguson. These services have become a big event in Memorial lodge, recalling to the mind of the members, "That not even the silence of the grave can shroud their memories with oblivion."

New York, July 11.—The home builder who struggles to meet his payments on a modest residence is always staggered at the price Manhattan exacts for mere apartments in its high rent belts. The peak price has just been reached at Fifth avenue and 77th street, where there rises an apartment house in which a 20-room suite sold the other day for something like $900,000. Down payment of $22,500 a room was paid and a mortgage taken. Up to this time the record had been held by an apartment taken by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, 2d, for which was paid about $200,000.

The most colorful figure wandering in the push-cart crowded streets of the east side is an ice tea vendor. He carries, strapped to one shoulder, a huge brass samovar that reaches almost to the ground. Its tip is decorated with tiny flags of all nations and bound about it are festoons of artificial flowers. As he walks, the metal glistens in the sun like gold. He goes about on hot afternoons, setting his patronizing, push cart dealers. He pours out his beverage with a skillful tilt of his back and straightens up again when the drink is poured. So expert is he at the pouring process that he never touches the samovar with his hands. Crowds of youngsters gather about him, watching this trick and hoping some day to see him spill a few drops. But he never does.

This is the season for street shrines in the foreign colonies of Manhattan.

First one saint and then another is feted on the crowded sidewalks. Walking down Houston street the other day I found St. Colagero awaiting donations for some worthy cause.

The saint of the poor man is Colagero, and his shrine is in a district where need cries from almost every window. It is the custom for a shrine to be carried about the streets, even as in Europe. Sometimes a band proceeds it, and troops of children parade, dressed in gay costumes. The drab background of New York seems to fade as these pageants pass and there comes to take its place the air of some medieval city of the old world.

For several blocks the street hangs with pennants, and along the curb appears dealers in holiday candies and toys, bright candles and tinsel.

It is also the custom that all who can afford it shall leave contributions on the shrine. Dollar bills are pinned to the raiment of the figure and within a few days hundreds of dollars are fluttering in the wind. Those who cannot afford dollars, leave dimes, quarters and half dollars at his feet.

The legend of Houston street has it that one day, centuries ago, Colagero went to the door of a rich man of Palermo. The saint was turned away, yet he gave him blessing to the rich man.

"Why do you bless me?" asked the rich man. "Who needs more the blessing of the Lord," answered the saint, "since you are so rich of lands and so poor of heart!"

Jungle Breath

by Ben Lucien Burman

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARRBERRY, an American girl owning considerable property in the little town of PORTO VERDE, in the west central Brazil. Several deaths have occurred, but so far she has escaped harm, due to the shrewdness of her cousin and protector, VILAK, a curious mixture of American and Indian blood and a student of criminology.

Vilak has been trying to persuade Elise to leave Porto Verde, made Elise stay behind with his little brother, NUNNALLY, an elderly American chemist, to solve the mystery. She finally agrees, but her departure is prevented by threat of floods. Messengers ride through the country, warning the natives. Vilak suggests they go to the house of GAYLORD PRENTISS, a recluse and a forbidding man and an enemy of Elise's, whom she suspects of a knowledge of the conspiracy against her. Nevertheless, she agrees it is their duty to warn him.

Vilak learns the flood warning is a ruse to get Elise out of the house and so informs him. The party is besieged by a force in a stone tower next to Prentiss' house. Vilak disperses the enemy by dynamiting a dam and causing a real flood. When the water recedes they discover Prentiss is gone.

The next day, TINKY, Elise's two-year-old orphan nephew, is kidnapped for the second time. A kidnaper reports Prentiss has seen with a boy. The trail leads into the jungle and Vilak makes preparations for a hunt. The trail is followed by native trackers, who take up the trail. Calamity overtakes them. Two of their white friends are hurt and two of their natives are hurt and two of their white friends are hurt. Treachery exists in their ranks. Vilak and Nunnally are in the river which is infested with the fierce flesh-eating piranhas. Vilak successfully dashes out and saves one of their natives who had been squinting at the hunters.

the other back to the camp. At daylight they renewed their efforts until Vilak decided that they could afford to look no longer. They pushed on. The next day the jungle began to lessen perceptibly. The trees became fewer and smaller, the tracks they were following became a narrow but well-beaten path. Soon the jungle was behind them, and they were on a wide rocky plateau covered here and there with dwarfed palm-trees with leaves like knives, or patches of spiny cactus and thickets of thistles and thorns.

They pitched camp on a wide red rock which formed part of a low bluff rising from the plain, delighted to be in the open once more. Two days later the mountains were much nearer. With a little straining of their eyes they could now distinguish the different peaks and ranges, all of the same brilliant red which had characterized the rock about Porto Verde.

Some were short and jagged, resembling great red icicles; others were long and rolling like huge dunes of vermilion sand. Over the highest, cone-shaped and looking rather like the upper half of an enormous pear, drifted a thin black cloud.

"Looks like an extinct volcano," said Vilak, pointing to it.

Another day and a half brought them to the foothills. The trail dropped sharply into a long mountain-girded valley which led like a highway built by giants to the great red heap in the distance. It was practically treeless, except for a few bare outcroppings of rock, being almost entirely covered by continuous matted stretches of cactus and the other thorny plants which occurred on the plateau. Swarms of purple butterflies drifted lazily over the tops of the green vegetation. Here, too, carranchos wheeled lazily over the valley.

"This is obviously the devil valley Bagarundi warned us of," Vilak grunted as he stood on a high rock and looked down on the wide vista spread before him. "And that extinct volcano is undoubtedly the red mountain god. These mountains are a curse to the Indians, whose civilization was undoubtedly an Oriental one, possibly Egyptian."

"Certainly that's where these fire legends came from, for the Incas had the most elaborate fire-worship ritual the world has ever known."

"Incidentally, if we kept on going west this way, we ought to be getting out of the jungle onto the uplands pretty quickly and probably see some Inca ruins. We're heading straight for the Andes plateau, and they weren't confined to that area by any means. They were too vigorous and too colonizing a people. They were spreading out tremendously when the Spanish came and put a sudden end to their empire."

Another week they traveled through the gloomy, unbroken forest. Then they lost their last native adherent. They had seen a jaguar lurking in the underbrush and they were about to pitch their camp. Vilak and the Indian guide had just started to stalk it to prevent the animal from springing upon them while they slept.

They separated to approach it from two sides; Vilak killed it with a well-placed bullet. Striding back to the camp, he feigned Elise and the old man. The guide did not return. Vilak and the others began to beat the bush.

The setting sun swiftly put an end to the search. Long into the night, they sat by the fire shouting and shooting their rifles to guide

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

"WHAT DOES HE DO?" the old man repeated.

"Nothing except to cut his finger so that the blood would draw the pinthorns and make them attack us. If you know anything about their characteristics you know that blood makes them perfectly mad. If they had a few minutes longer they'd have come in swarms and torn us to pieces."

He dragged the prisoner roughly back to the camp, kept him under strict guard, then at dawn when the expedition started on its way again slackened his bonds so that his feet were free and put him at the head of the train, where the wasps and fire ants were apt to be most irritating and the dangers from the jararaca and deadly coral snake greatest.

The murmuring among the men increased. When the cook was preparing supper the other albino shuffled forward to Vilak, and announced that he and his fellows would go no farther. It was certain death for all of them if they proceeded, he mumbled.

To their astonishment, Vilak quietly replied that he and his friends were at liberty to depart any time they liked; further, that their departure would delight him.

At dawn the expedition split, the five mutineers sullenly going back in the direction from which they had come, while the three whites and the silent Indian guide, who after some vacillation had refused to join in the rebels' councils, tramped on toward the west.

Day after day they went on un-interruptedly through the tangled, grim, towering trees, always with the feeling that they were being watched, followed. Soon the increasing density of the underbrush made traveling extremely difficult for the remaining miles, which, on the point of exhaustion, were now more breathing skeletons through the ravages of tiny winged and crawling parasites.

Reluctantly Vilak decided to

It was Detto Cicerone. He lay as dead, though there was no outward sign of a wound or bruise on his small body.

abandon them, shift as many of their burdens as possible onto human shoulders, and for the rest, live on the country. Two days after they had so decided they came upon a tribe of dwarfed, black Indians, almost pygmies, who lived in the branches of trees or in mere windbreaks which they hastily constructed wherever they might be.

The chief, whose favor Vilak won by a gift of jewelry, said in answer to the other's question that he had heard from a neighboring chief how long strange men had passed that way not long before. But he could only say what he had heard from the lips of others; none in his own tribe had seen.

"Where your white men go?" he grunted in thick Guarany.

Vilak pointed toward the setting sun. "Old Indian tell me, white man, no good there. What there?"

The old chief shuddered, closed his ferret-like eyes, and did not answer.

As the sun disappeared, and the cool damp night enveloped the jungle, the chief took two pieces of wood, and rubbing them together while his followers murmured a dismal ceremonial chant, kindled a fire.

The newcomers sat around it to eat their food and a large sort of squirrel. Their hunger satisfied, the women danced, then the chief folded his legs under him, and like Bagarundi, began to tell the heroic legends of his race.

"More proof that there is a pronounced Oriental influence all through the Indians," Vilak said to Nunnally as they sat by the fire.

"Even a tribe in such a low state of development as this one. This chief, too, told the story about the man who walked through the fire and became a god. These legends probably got the Oriental traces in their culture indirectly through the Incas, whose civilization was undoubtedly an Oriental one, possibly Egyptian.

"Certainly that's where these fire legends came from, for the Incas had the most elaborate fire-worship ritual the world has ever known."

"Incidentally, if we kept on going west this way, we ought to be getting out of the jungle onto the uplands pretty quickly and probably see some Inca ruins. We're heading straight for the Andes plateau, and they weren't confined to that area by any means. They were too vigorous and too colonizing a people. The WOMAN'S DAY

BY ALLENE SUMNER

The woman shopper was working feverishly, keeping one eye out for a sale. She directed her friends to "help me look over this rack for imperfections. See if you can find any ripped seams, any missing threads, any imperfections in the weave." She lowered her voice—"If you should accidentally catch your ring somewhere and make a snag in the goods, my feelings wouldn't be dreadfully hurt."

"What's the big idea?" asked her friend, beginning to rummage the pile of jewel-colored summer prints, "looking for a masquerade costume so you can go as Miss Reg Bag?"

The Idea

"No, if you must know, I'm working to beat the high cost of living. Don't you work that old trick finding damaged goods and getting a knock-off price? Why, Min, I've saved $135 this year just that way. The better the store, the more they'll give you, so it pays to keep a charge account at the best store. They'll throw off more if you have a charge. They want to keep satisfied customers."

In Action

A saleslady hove into view with a pleasant "Can I show you something?" My good woman was ready for her. "I've found a perfectly sweet little jade crepe here, but I'm not awfully sure of the size. Is this a 38?" Reassured, she started for the fitting room, all according to her carefully worked-out plan. Suddenly she dived at the dress as it hung over the salesgirl's arms. "Don't tell me that's a drawn thread in the sleeve! Please see if you have another in that size!"

How It Happened

Now I can't swear to it, but I am rather sure that the prongs of the lady's ring had something to do with that "drawn thread." And I

Water and sun rob the skin of its natural oil. Try the simple precaution of covering the exposed surfaces with cold creams before venturing out-of-doors. There are freckle creams and sun creams galore for sensitive skins. Or if you wish, your own cold cream will suffice.

Rub in the cream with a lavish hand, over face, hands, neck, arms, shoulders and limbs. It will shed water like a duck's back and protect the skin in a marvelous manner. No uncomfortable blisters can come to a skin well protected with cream. Nor can tan break through with such vehemence. For exercise on land, dust the body with talcum powder before starting out.

Play in the water or on the beach or courts if you will, hours on end. But after every form of exercise take a cleansing bath and apply more cold cream to keep the skin soft and pliable. Dust with talcum before dressing to protect the skin from exposure to wind and water, too. A good lip salve used before venturing out will protect them and keep the soft curve that means beauty. Before retiring, rub a little of the salve into the lips, if they are inclined to burn.

Eyes Suffer Most

Your eyes have the hardest time of all your features in summer time. For the water makes them smart, the sun's glare tries their strength and the dust and heat from sports strain them. The eyes should be washed before and after swimming, or other forms of sports, in warm water slightly disinfected, in warm water with boric acid. Eye shades or hats should be worn for their protection whenever feasible. Hands are more expressive than

Good Nature and Good Health

THESE FIRST AID APPLIANCES SHOULD BE IN EVERY HOME

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

When serious illness develops in the ordinary home, particularly in small apartments, the telephone wires to the corner drug store are kept busy, and messengers beat a path to the door bringing, piece by piece, the things that are necessary for the care of a patient in reasonable comfort.

As everyone knows, things purchased hastily in emergency are not always the best that can be had or the cheapest. Since a certain amount of sickness occurs in every family sooner or later, the foresighted person will have available, in relationship to the family medicine chest, the necessary apparatus.

Fountain syringes can now be had made of rubber or of metal or of porcelain. All are satisfactory. Rubber requires care and attention when not in use. It will spring a leak or be found unworthy at the time when it is needed. A two-quart enamel or aluminum can is durable. These are now made so that they can be used for the double purpose of application of heat or for syringes. A rubber sheet saves the household linen in times of illness. In emergency, a piece of toilet

MEN, IT WOULD APPEAR, ARE BETTER SPORTS

Olive Roberts Barton

There was a pungent smell of good strong coffee, griddles blistering hot on which wheat cakes were browning, bacon and freshly opened melons.

Along the counter, their feet parked comfortably on the brass rail, sat a row of men—nice looking, strong American workmen of various occupations. It was about half past six o'clock on a cool spring morning.

At the table beside us sat four women. It seemed that no place else was open and they were still representing the fact that they had had an arm torn off a few days before. One was slowly going blind, and the end of his leg, which was only a few inches ahead. There were other tragedies equally hopeless among them.

Yet all those men were saying not a word about their troubles to each other. Either they don't talk about their troubles, or men are better sports. Which is it?

VERSATILE D'AMICO NOW PUBLIC SPEAKER

Lifeguard Tells Pennsylvania Rotary Club About the Art Of Rescue.

Always versatile, Frank D'Amico, noted lifeguard, has added another accomplishment to his long list. A letter received today by Herbert Flavell of this town tells of a speech Frank made before the Rotary Club of Bedford Springs, Penn. The letter states that Mr. D'Amico has been engaged to make a second appearance before that club in the near future, talking on life saving methods.

Frank says he is making a big thing out of the swimming pool of the Bedford Springs hotel, of which he is in charge. He left here early in the summer to assume the directorship of the swimming activities there and will stay until the end of the season.

In the winter he expects to return to Ormond Beach, Fla., where he has been lifeguard for several seasons.

Young Robert Sherwood Gets Foot Caught in Wheel, Hurts His Elbow.

A passenger on the handlebars of a playmate's bicycle, Robert Sherwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Sherwood of 550 Middle Turnpike, caught his foot in the front wheel and was thrown to the ground when the bicycle fell. The mishap occurred on Saturday near the Manchester Green school.

The rider of the bicycle was not hurt but young Sherwood complained of an injury to his elbow. It was thought that the member had been fractured and an X-ray photograph was taken at the Memorial hospital to determine the extent to which the arm was injured.

POLICE COURT

As a result of an accident that occurred on Highland street on the night of July 5, Frank Marin of Highland Park was before the Manchester town court this morning charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and reckless driving. Marin crashed into a car driven by Robert Hinds, in which were riding Elsie Chambers and Teresa Frachey, and they received injuries about the body and head. Both Mr. Hinds and the two girls were witnesses at the trial this morning. Marin admitted that he had been drinking but claimed he was competent to drive the car and said he wasn't to blame for the accident.

Deputy Judge Thomas Ferguson, who was on the bench found him guilty under the charge of driving while under the influence of liquor and imposed a fine of $125 and costs. He suspended judgment on the reckless driving charge.

John Meleady of Buckland was before the court charged with assault on Joseph Malatton, a neighbor, who claimed Meleady struck him on the face and mouth, knocking out one of his teeth and discolored his left eye. On the other hand Meleady claimed Malatton struck him with a clothespole. Meleady was found guilty and a fine of $15 and costs was imposed.

The case of Francis J. Furphy who was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor was continued until tomorrow morning on request of Attorney John Foley, who represented Furphy.

HOSPITAL NOTES

There were no admissions to the Memorial hospital today but three persons were discharged. They are Mrs. Richard D'Amico and son of 5 Irving street and Thomas Hummel of 42 Birch Mountain road.

Principal Thomas Bentley of the Eighth district schools is taking a normal course at the Yale summer school, New Haven.

The Misses Helen O'Connell and Rosemary Pallier spent the weekend in New Haven as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Ely.

Hose Company No. 1 of the north end fire department will hold its annual meeting with reports and election of officers at the fire headquarters, Main and Hilliard street this evening. The firemen will have a drill at seven o'clock. Plans will be made for the annual outing.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dwire of Windsorville announce the marriage of their daughter, Leah, to Stuart H. Carlson, of 58 Ridge street. The ceremony took place on June 29. The young people will make their home in Manchester for the present.

Mrs. Julia Sheridan of Park street, regent of St. Margaret's Circle Daughters of Isabella, who will represent the circle at the National convention at Fort Wayne, Ind., expects to be absent from town ten days. A special train with the New England delegates left New York Saturday; considerable time was allowed for sightseeing yesterday at Niagara Falls. The convention at Fort Wayne extends from the 13th through the 16th. The return trip will be by Great Lakes steamer to Buffalo where the party will en-train for Albany. At that point they will take the Hudson river steamer for New York city.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Hilda Anne Callis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis W. Callis of East Center street, and Clayton T. Allison, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Allison of Wadsworth street, which will take place at St. Mary's Episcopal church, Saturday, July 16 at 2:30 p. m.

OVER FIFTY ATTEND FAMILY REUNION

Big Party at Home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rieg of Middle Turnpike East.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rieg of Middle Turnpike East entertained a large party of the relatives of both their home yesterday. The reunion was attended by more than fifty guests from Warren, Ware, Gilbertville and Fliskdale, Mass.; Mansfield Depot, Stafford Springs, Crystal Lake, Rockville, Bolton, Irvington, N. J., and New York City, and was in honor of Mrs. Rieg's uncle and aunt who are here from Portersville, Cal. Mr. and Mrs. Pily W. Braman. The latter is a native of California but Mr. Braman had not been in the East for nineteen years. Tables for a bountiful dinner were set on the porch, Mr. Braman assisting with the artistic decorations. A surprise feature was a handkerchief shower arranged to fall on the guests of honor, each attendant at the reunion contributing a memory handkerchief. In the afternoon the scene of the festivities shifted from the Rieg home to Coventry lake where many guests enjoyed the bathing and boating. An amusing incident occurred when Mrs. Rieg's aunt from Gilbertville, Mass., started a collection to provide a bathing cape for her niece as she believed it incomplete without this accessory. Mrs. Rieg took the joke at her expense good naturedly, explaining that she had been able to buy the bathing suit at a local store without having to have it made specially and hoped she would be successful in finding a cape of ample size.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen N. Hayes, at 39 Westminster road, today announced the marriage of their daughter, Doris Louise, to James H. Rogers, of 27 Russell street, Manchester. The marriage took place July 2, at Columbia. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will make their home with the bride's parents.

RUBINOW TO STUDY MIDDLE WEST STORES

William Rubinow, of Rubinow's Garment Fashion Center, will leave tomorrow on a tour through the middle west. He expects to visit some of the group stores he is affiliated with to study ways and methods of the larger trading centers and bring what improvements he considers, adaptable to Manchester. Although Mr. Rubinow has provided Manchester with a store that is a model for arrangement, display, natural lighting and ventilation, he believes that "nothing is good and is always on the lookout for new ways and methods."

Jacob E. Rubinow, his oldest son, a junior in South Manchester High school, will accompany him on the trip. The Manchester Public Library will be closed Tuesday and Thursday afternoons during July and August.
