OVER MILLION GREET FLYERS ON ARRIVAL

Frisco and Oakland Residents Turn Out En Masse To Welcome Maitland and Hegenberger.

San Francisco, Calif., July 12.—One million residents of San Francisco and Oakland welcomed home today Lieutenants Lester Maitland and Albert Hegenberger, first men to fly to Hawaii.

The liner Maui, bearing the adventurous flyers, nosed through Golden Gate in the early morning haze—just two weeks to the hour from the starting time of the first nonstop jaunt to Honolulu.

Arrival of the Maui in San Francisco bay sent a dozen army planes breezing into the sky. Flying in squadron formation, the planes hovered protectively over the big flag-draped liner.

Meet Their Wives At quarantine the airmen were reunited with their wives, happy because their husbands are returning safe and proud because they carried out the hazardous venture so nobly.

Officials Meet Them In addition to the wives of the aviators, a boatload of officials—army, navy and municipal—swarmed aboard the Maui at quarantine.

Official Welcome At Civic Center the flyers will become honorary citizens of San Francisco and will make short replies to the official welcome of Mayor Rolph.

Crossing San Francisco bay on a ferry, Maitland and Hegenberger will head a military parade in Oakland starting at 6:30 o'clock.

Community Dinner in the Oakland Auditorium at 6:30 p. m. and an evening fete on the shores of Lake Merritt are other events arranged in honor of the brave army flyers.

EIGHT ITALIANS DEAD AS RESULT OF A FEUD

Chicago Sleuths Tramping Streets In Effort to Put a Stop to Murders.

Chicago, July 12.—Heavily armed detectives tramped the streets of "Little Italy" today in an effort to halt the feud that has resulted in the death of eight Italians within the last twelve days.

The heavy police guard was thrown into the district last night after the latest victims, Giovanni Blandina and Caspar Alagna, had been shot to death.

Their bullet-riddled bodies were picked up in the street several blocks apart. It is believed they had been "taken for a ride" after being picked up in the region of "death corner" where they were last seen.

TRIP UP PLAN FOR WIDENING PEARL STREET

Residents Want Sidewalks But Oppose Any Cut In Lawns; North Street Sidewalks Deferred.

Once again the Board of Selectmen's hope to widen one of the streets going east from Main street between the Center and Charter Oak street was objected to by property owners in public hearing.

While practically every property owner favored permanent sidewalks none of them was in favor of the widening of the street.

Those Present Henderson Chambers was not in favor of the construction of sidewalks and he would make no promises.

Official Welcome At Civic Center the flyers will become honorary citizens of San Francisco and will make short replies to the official welcome of Mayor Rolph.

Community Dinner in the Oakland Auditorium at 6:30 p. m. and an evening fete on the shores of Lake Merritt are other events arranged in honor of the brave army flyers.

BYRD'S CREW PREPARE TO SAIL FOR AMERICA

Reach Cherbourg Ahead of Commander—To Return On Steamer Leviathan.

Cherbourg, July 12.—Bert Acosta, Lieutenant Noville and Bert Balchen arrived here today by automobile from Cabourg and prepared to embark for home on the S. S. Leviathan.

The chauffeur lost his way from Cabourg and was unable to find Ver-Sur-Mer where Noville and Balchen had wanted to stop to thank the people who aided them when the America made a forced landing in the waters off that village.

In accordance with the wishes of the flyers, Cherbourg displayed no flags and made no attempt at a reception.

Balchen went to the United States consulate and made arrangements for papers to permit his entry into the United States.

School Consolidation What Consolidation Will Accomplish

By Howell Cheney

This is the fifth and last in a series of articles on school consolidation in Manchester prepared for The Herald by Howell Cheney, chairman of the Ninth district school committee.

The most vital question in the problem of school consolidation is, "What is to be accomplished by it?" In other words, what will be lost and what will be gained by the procedure?

The estimate which has been given of the amount of tax which it would be necessary to lay upon the town to carry the expenses that are now assumed by the districts, and the comparison of these tax rates with those which the districts are already assuming, will have answered the question as to the losses and gains in taxes.

The question to be examined in these cases would be as to whether the children in these districts have had educational advantages comparable to those in the larger districts and comparable with what children ought to have.

The advantages which may be urged in favor of consolidation are the following:

1. It is the most logical, though not necessarily the only, method whereby we may have a town high school working in close cooperation and co-ordination with all the district grammar schools.

2. A uniform curriculum and uniform allotment of educational supplies could be provided for all the districts under a consolidated plan.

3. The recreation facilities now enjoyed by the Ninth School District could be opened to all the schools and all the residents of the town on the same basis as they are now open to residents of the Ninth District.

4. Rents and real estate values in the different districts of the town have borne a very definite ratio to the character of the school accommodations which were offered in the several districts.

5. Children are not now necessarily sent to the nearest school under the district system arbitrary lines determine district boundaries.

6. We have witnessed in the past great injustices to the children of certain districts because the residents of those districts could not settle their own disputes among themselves.

7. The greatest gain, however, would result from an improvement in both the facilities for education which will be offered to all of the children of the town without regard to the districts in which they live, and in the maintenance of a uniformly higher standard of education.

8. A request for exemption from taxes has been filed by William Moore because of services under fire in the Connecticut Army.

TUESDAY, JULY 12, 1927

THE FINAL WORD

Today the final article in Howell Cheney's series advocating consolidation of the schools of the town of Manchester is printed in this newspaper. Like every one of its four predecessors it is logical and convincing. Unlike any of the previous articles, it contains little that is really new matter to those of the town's citizens who have been giving any real consideration to the school problem.

Manchester people are, for the most part, sitting uncomfortably in the present educational situation. They realize that if it were some town other than their own that maintained the kind of a school system that we have here, and if we in turn had a school system framed and conducted simply and efficiently, we should turn ready shafts of ridicule on that unfortunate neighbor—and that such other town would be the last town to which we should think of moving if we had to move at all.

They suspect, moreover, that with a school system at sixes and sevens, made up of patchwork expedients pieced together from time to time, their children cannot in all cases be getting to the full of the advantages that are enjoyed by the young folks of towns and cities that have smoother running educational machines.

They realize in some instances that the growth of certain neighborhoods is being held up by something at least approaching inadequacy in the school facilities available.

And above all they feel the uneasy consciousness that this soundly American town of Manchester, which prides itself with every good right on the quality of its citizenship and its freedom from beggary, is not standing on its own feet in the matter of providing essential educational facilities for its children.

They are privately irked to know that only through the benevolence of individual members of the community is secondary education for the boys and girls of this town possible. They know that among American communities this is a most exceptional situation. And, feeling that they are as well able as other peoples to pay their own share and shoulder their own burdens, they are not overly proud of having to confess to visitors from outside that they have allowed themselves to depend on private means and private enterprise for the kind of schools which other similar communities provide out of their public funds.

This is the one point on which Mr. Cheney's articles do not dwell. Very delicately is any reference to such an aspect of the situation avoided everywhere except in those hard-and-fast sets of figures which speak so eloquently for themselves and which he could not possibly avoid using if the facts were to be presented at all.

Aside from every consideration of policy and we can think of none that does not weigh upon the side of consolidation—there is this ever-present truth, that if this town is to take its place among American cities and towns of equal wealth and population, in the business of instructing its youth, the time has arrived for it to own its school system outright. And that is an objective that can only be achieved by merging the whole educational plant into one central control—unless we want to make confusion worse confounded.

The Herald feels justified in expressing, in behalf of the entire community, deep appreciation of the arduous labor and deep research which Mr. Cheney has had to give in the preparation of his five-part brief. It has no slightest hesitation in voicing the belief that no other person within the town's limits could have produced so compelling and convincing a document.

PERHAPS IT'S POSSIBLE A great many things once deemed impossible have come to pass—air, for instance, aviation. Nowadays it is a courageous individual who

GOING AHEAD WITH ACHIEVEMENTS

ANNUAL ACHIEVEMENT WEEK IS GOOD CITY ADVERTISEMENT

By DON E. MOWRY Secretary, American Community Advertising Association

It is good business for cities to take an annual inventory of their accomplishments and to advertise those accomplishments to the taxpayers and residents. There is perhaps no better method of increasing civic pride.

Toledo, O., put over an internal advertising campaign of this sort in an unusual manner. Suggested by the newspapers, the directors of the Chamber of Commerce resolved to organize and finance a suitable and appropriate educational campaign to be known as Achievement Week, to be followed up by a Forward Toledo Movement, in an effort to make the undertaking an outstanding community enterprise of lasting benefit and permanent value to the city.

The newspapers composed a general committee to handle the project under the leadership of the Chamber of Commerce. By newspaper publicity, by public meetings, by exhibitions of products in show windows and by other similar methods, approved by the committee, the entire city was informed and instructed concerning the steps taken in material progress.

There were also demonstrated prospects the city holds for the near future in matters of industries, transportation, banking and merchandising. The people of Toledo became acquainted with Toledo and what Toledo really is and has to offer. It was not a boosting campaign, but a campaign to sell the city to itself.

Editor's Note: This article concludes the Don E. Mowry series on Civic Achievements.

It is worthy of note that Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the United Committee of Law Enforcement, made the flat declaration in New Jersey, Sunday, that if President Coolidge were so disposed he could make the United States bone dry in thirty days.

Having seen aviation pass from the phase of "Darius Green and his Flying Machine" to Lindbergh et al., we hesitate to be quite as emphatic as Mr. Howard when we express the belief that it would be impossible for Mr. Coolidge to dry up the United States in thirty days. We do not mind saying, however, that we don't believe he could do it that quick. We don't believe he could do it at all. But we are open to conviction. And so, it is to be imagined, are a good many other Americans. If the fact can be demonstrated it would be an extremely interesting thing to see.

No doubt Mr. Howard has a program all ready in case the President should send for him and ask his advice as to how the drying up should be accomplished in a month. And if he would only make that program public now he would be doing the nation an inestimable service.

There are a great many persons who do not believe in Prohibition at all, who regard it as essentially wrong in principle, yet who would very, very much like to see the country made bone-dry in thirty days. And they would delight in being told authoritatively how the thing can be accomplished.

The army is not big enough to shoot within thirty days all the people in the United States who break the Volstead law; the navy could not help because it cannot travel inland and bombard the seaports possibly might not prevent some selling of hooch among the ruins; the jails are too small and too few to hold all the liquor law breakers; there are not anywhere near courts enough to register the cases that might be brought, let alone trying them. If all the mail carriers and all the treasury office clerks and all the other servants of the government were armed with axes and dynamite and set to breaking down doors and blowing up stills, they couldn't complete the job in a month.

Grant that the President is commander-in-chief of the army and navy and boss of the whole works, and grant that he might want to employ the whole works in the drying-up process, it really seems to us that the physical difficulties in the way of mopping up in a month would be insurmountable.

But Mr. Howard must have some scheme that has never yet occurred to anybody else. He really ought to tell Mr. Coolidge what it is. Then, perhaps, Mr. Coolidge would tell the rest of us. No prohibitionist ever will.

JERUSALEM

Jerusalem, the central point, in historic interest, of the Christian as well as the Jewish religion, has had added one more to an incredibly long list of vicissitudes. The origin of the holy city itself is lost in the obscurity of antiquity. It has existed so long that nobody has ever been able to trace back to the time when some sort of a capital did not exist on its site. It is not even known what race of people first established a community there but at the period of its first dawning upon history it was Egyptian. That it was founded because of the millitary strength of its position is probable.

In one of those fade-outs which mark the earlier traditions of the human race the Egyptians disappeared and at the time of the Israelite conquest it was in the hands of another people, the native Jebusites.

From that time on Jerusalem was the center of so many wars, so many political and religious movements and changes that it is a serious student of the subject indeed who can retain any adequate mental picture of the unrolling centuries. It is extremely doubtful if any still existing city in the world ever experienced a tithe of the conflicts and major tragedies that have come to the holy city of Palestine.

It is not merely the vast antiquity of the region and the town itself that makes this so, but the fact that it lay at the very center of things in a corner of the world where civilization for many hundreds of years seethed in a flux of warlike peoples.

Yet amid all its tortured history there is slight mention of the phenomenon of earthquake. If such phenomenon ever did visit Jerusalem before—and it seems more than likely that it did—it is improbable that it was a disturbance of major importance, else we should most likely have inherited definite reference to it. So that the present quake, evidently a bad one, seems to be a comparatively new infliction upon a city which has suffered more agonies of one kind and another than any other spot on earth.

It is extremely unfortunate that it should come at a time when Zionism is fighting a hard and only partially successful battle for the restoration of the Holy Land as a real nation of the Jewish peoples.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—You may have read in the newspapers that workmen engaged in repairing the temporary White House were selling nails from the torn-out sections to the souvenir hunters.

Well, President Coolidge heard it, too, and there hasn't been a nail sold since.

Prior to this profitable enterprise of the workmen, all good citizens of the United States and their wives and children were allowed to enter the White House grounds, and, at some slight distance, to gaze respectfully upon the operation of putting a new roof on the White House and otherwise improving its safety and comfort.

But President Coolidge picked up the morning paper and read about the nail selling and his method of stopping this commerce was to buy all ordinary citizens from the grounds although he himself was then still living at the temporary White House on Dupont Circle.

The sequence of cause and effect has just come to light. It appears that only a handful of nails was sold, but now the workmen are deprived of the opportunity to make a few quarters and first-time visitors to Washington are denied a closeup of the White House and its situation.

The business of keeping American citizens off their government's property is nothing new. It's done every day in many instances. One of the most extreme examples was the conduct of Admiral John D. McDonald, commander of the Pearl Harbor naval base at Honolulu, in barring photographers, newspapermen and everyone else from a glimpse of the plans of Pilot of Grace as it prepared for a flight to San Francisco.

McDonald is known as one of the most hard-boiled officers in the navy and his military characteristics have not diminished with the approach of his retirement. All officers and men entering the gates are searched for liquor or dope and the violator of any rule may expect scant sympathy from the command.

The navy has issued a standing general order permitting photographers to make pictures of subjects "which show to the public the work of the navy," but an effective censorship on anything the navy doesn't want the public to see is provided for in the order. This censorship is especially imposed when photographers seek pictures of wrecks of any airplanes—which have been frequent as to permit Col. Billy Mitchell to devise the motto "Join the Naval Aviation and see the next world!" It is explained that it isn't a good thing to have the public see pictures of such wrecks.

Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur is an advocate of some forms of censorship.

With the arrival of the first ship in fifteen years, inhabitants of an island in the Bering Strait, between Siberia and Alaska, learned for the first time that Russia is no longer a monarch.

NEW YORK

New York, July 12.—New Yorkers, if any, upon making western trips, if ever, invariably write home their disappointment at discovering that cowboys ride up to the station in Ford's and things, rather than on horseback.

In just the same fashion, westerners coming to New York seem to expect chorines to come riding along in limousines, whereas most of them arrive by subway or foot, and cannot be distinguished from any of the thousands of flash madams that mill through the main rackets by day and night. In fact the chorine is likely to appear far more modest in apparel than her stenographic sister.

Any hint that personalities of stage and screen are to be seen in any public place at a given time results in a mob rush resembling a small edition of a Lindbergh greeting.

If a star of first significance is to put in an appearance, high powered arc lights are hoisted on trucks and trained on the theater entrance that the curious may have a peep. The other night, saw eight mounted police and at least two dozen policemen barely able to keep traffic open as the crowds battled to look at half a dozen movie stars going to a premier.

The New York police, in my opinion, are the best natured in the world. They have become so accustomed to handling vast numbers of people that they are able to do their work and still smile.

Probably no greater task of policing ever fell to the hands of a department than the recent Lindbergh welcome to New York. Something like 3,000,000 people had to be kept on the sidewalks. There were very few breaks in the lines and yet the crowds, on the whole, were kept in good humor. A great deal of a crowd's humor depends on the attitude of the officers. Let the police grow surly and they will find the crowd ready to start something. On one of the Jersey flying fields some police officials lost their tempers and within a few moments all sense of order was gone. Men with official permits, photographers and reporters were being beaten about in every direction. I have seen few New York patrolmen who couldn't smile while they were holding back their crowd quota.

Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE

This is chapter 70 of the series of articles written by an ex-soldier who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Herald.

CHAPTER LXXIX
It was just possible, after all the causes have been reviewed, that a heavy downpour of rain won the war.

Nine years ago, on the night of July 17, the 1st and 2nd American Divisions, the Moroccans and a division of French were concentrated in the Forest of Retz near Villers-Cotterets. They were to go over the top on the morning of July 18 at 4:35 o'clock in the great counter-offensive suggested by General Pershing, ordered by Marshal Foch and executed by General Mangin, the attacker, who directed operations from an observatory in the top of a tree three kilometers from Villers-Cotterets.

Foch's Aggressive
It was a surprise attack. The Germans had fallen down in their thrust across the Marne and had been beaten by General Gouraud's "Elastic Defense" in the Champagne. Von Hutier and the German high command were taking their breath preparatory to rushing up more shock divisions. But Foch took the initiative. The order went out on July 15.

That night the 1st and 2nd Divisions rode in French trucks. Orders were received in the afternoon to move up—and that night—the night of the 17th of July—it rained. German airplanes, which on the night of the 16th had made it necessary to march through the fields instead of on the roads that stretched out like ribbons in the moonlight—detected nothing.

Three divisions of troops and all the materials of war went along through the heavy thunderstorm and the downpour—and the German airmen were unaware that 67,000 soldiers, 5000 animals and 3,000 vehicles were concentrating for the great drive on Soissons which was the first of the series of German defeats that brought the war to a close.

Beat Richthofen to It
The First Division was in position in plenty of time. So were the Moroccans. But the 2nd failed to arrive. The barrage was due to cut the night at 4:35. The attack could not be halted. Finally, just before the zero hour, the 9th and 23rd Infantry appeared. The last 100 yards through the woods was done on the run, the line was formed, the barrage shrieked and the drive was on.

So—
It rained the night of the 17th of July on the Soissons plain. The next day it was clear and Baron Richthofen's "Circus" of airplanes appeared and drove every allied plane from the sky. Had that night been clear Mr. Richthofen might have been on the job. Well—he wasn't—so that's that. But, who knows, maybe that heavy downpour of rain won the war.

TOMORROW: Le Retour Amalant.

GRIZZLY BEAR RUNS 40 MILES AN HOUR

Vancouver, B. C., July 12.—Grizzly bear may be the most awkward of animals, but an impromptu scientific test has shown he isn't the slowest.

W. E. Watson and Harold Curran were driving through the mountains near Nelson, B. C., when a young grizzly ambled into the road ahead of their car. Speeding up, the motorists honked their horn.

Frightened, the bear shot ahead. For two miles he raced ahead of the automobile, the speedometer registering forty miles an hour when the panting brute swerved off the highway.

GOVERNOR NAMED IN KLAN SCANDAL

Grand Dragon Serving Time For Murder Produces Jackson's Check.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 12.—The name of Governor Ed Jackson was brought into the D. C. Stephenson scandal today through the submission for publication of a check dated Sept. 12, 1923, for $2,500 purported to have been given to the governor by the former Klan Grand Dragon.

The purported check, made public by Lloyd O. Hill, attorney for Stephenson, has been in the lawyer's possession for some time. It was regarded by Hill as first definite proof that "Steve" at last is going to "tell all." Stephenson is trying to get out of the state prison where he is serving a life term for the Madge Oberholzer murder.

Attached to the purported check was a little slip bearing these words: "This check is the first one-fourth of the $10,000 given Jackson personally for primary expenses."

May Be Forgery
Although there is possibility that the signature may be a clever forgery, the name of Ed Jackson appears on the back of the check, indicating it had been cashed. The name is written in some handwriting strikingly similar to that of the governor, while Stephenson's alleged signature appears authentic to those who knew the former Klan head.

Stamps on the alleged canceled check are those of the Union Trust Company and Indiana National bank of Indianapolis and the Federal Reserve National bank of Cleveland, Ohio. The alleged check was drawn on the "First National bank of Columbus, Ohio.

Corruption Charges
During the first investigation of political corruption charges, last fall made by Thomas H. Adams

Vincennes publisher, Floyd O. Christian, of Noblesville, said that when he was with Stephenson as attorney in the jail at Noblesville, the former grand dragon showed him a check for $2,500, bearing identical writing to the alleged document reported today.

Stephenson, then fighting for freedom on charges of murdering Madge Oberholzer of Indianapolis, was sorting out incriminating papers against prominent state politicians, according to Christian.

I. H. Hull and his wife, both of Anderson, told newspapermen at that time they had photographed a check for $2,500, bearing the same writing, along with other Stephensonian data, at the request of the former Klan dragon.

Marion county prosecutors were conferring today to determine future steps in the probe of alleged political intrigue.

SCREAMING COMEDY AT THE STATE NOW

"Is Zat So" Playing Today and Tomorrow—Country Store On Thursday.

Country Store days at the State theater have become the most popular shows of the week days this summer and the programs during these shows have been getting better and better as the days become warmer. The Country Store will be back again this week stronger than ever and the entertainment program will contain a number of different surprises.

The feature picture for today and tomorrow is the famous stage play, "Is Zat So?" which stars George O'Brien and Edmund Lowe.

These two, playing the roles of a prize fighter and his manager, the former by O'Brien and the latter by Lowe, are in the screen version of a play that sent blasé Broadway audiences into roars of laughter.

This is one picture that is sure to please every taste. There is virile action for the men folks in the fight scenes, tender love interest in a double barreled love story for the ladies and interesting episodes for the children in which the wonder child, Philippe De Lacy, has an important part. And above all there is plenty of fun for everyone.

Kathryn Perry, Doris Lloyd, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Cyril Chadwick, Richard Mattland, Dione Ellis and Jack Herrick are some of the other members of the splendid cast. The picture was directed by Alfred Green and adds another big hit to his long list of successes.

The Kiddie Revue rehearsals are being held daily under the direction of Manager Sanson and the first act has been completed.

An Old Saw

Competition is the life of trade, they say. That is probably true of most businesses.

But not of this one.

Suppose there were two telephone companies competing against each other in rendering service to this community. Then you would either have to have two separate telephones in your home and place of business, with the consequent bother, confusion, and expense; or make your choice of one company, and be able to communicate only with the limited circle of friends and business houses who had made the same selection.

One comprehensive telephone service, such as you now enjoy, serves you and your fellow-citizens best. Whether you wish to talk with your neighbor across the street, with a friend in another part of town, the grocer, the newspaper, the milkman—anyone at all—your calls go through smoothly and quickly most of the time.

Your telephone is a great convenience. Do you ever stop to think how great?

The real value of your telephone service should not be measured by what it costs, but by what it does for you.

prices. The boys get plenty to eat, however, and in no instance has there been the least fault found. Manchester mothers may well rest assured that their sons are receiving all they want to eat and if the boys are not quite as plump when they return from camp a week from next Sunday, it will be because of extensive exercise rather than a shortage of food.

Manchester's economical housewives may be interested to glimpse over a few of the prices at which the foodstuffs are bought. New potatoes sell for 50 cents a peck, bread for eight cents a pound, fresh beef 17 cents per pound, ham 24 cents per pound, milk 10 cents a can, butter 43 cents a pound, flour four cents a pound, and lemons 30 cents a dozen.

Mess Sergeant Praised

In both Company G and the Howitzer Company, many words of praise were voiced in favor of Mess Sergeant Lewis E. Hennequin and Andrew Reggets, who, in a large way, are responsible for the splendid meals. In Company G this year, there is a civilian cook, William Mann, of Williamsville, who is best gifted in pastry line. He is well known to Manchester men, having served as cook under Colonel Harry B. Bissell when the latter was captain of Company G in the 102nd Infantry during the World War. Mann's work was so efficient that Colonel Bissell states, that his ability was soon discovered and he was "swiped" by headquarters. His addition is a most welcome one in the ranks of the G boys.

Company G's two cooks are Privates Joe Downing and Albert Gustafson. Their work speaks for itself. A detail of three kitchen police change daily and there are two men on permanent duty for the two weeks. Privates Richard Edgar and Maurice Waddell. In the Howitzer Company, Mess Sergeant Reggets has two efficient cooks in Privates Samuel Stevenson and Edward Copeland. They are also assisted by kitchen police who change daily. Private William Burke is on permanent duty and one more will be appointed.

Menus

The menus served the Manchester boys in camp yesterday were as follows: Company G: Breakfast—battered toast, boiled eggs, coffee, canned pears; dinner—beef a la mode, boiled potatoes, coffee; supper—baked ham, potato salad, tea; Howitzer Company: Breakfast—scrambled eggs and bacon, cornflakes, fresh milk, coffee; dinner—roast beef, string beans, sliced peaches, tea; supper, baked ham, mashed potatoes, coffee, apple pie. The men are served at the tables in the messhall by the kitchen police and "second helpings" are never refused. The only time the Manchester soldiers will have to eat out of their messkits will be when they leave the camp and bivouac for the night. It is understood that the Manchester companies are the only ones in camp who eat from real dishes. These were purchased out of the company funds.

For most of the members of Company G and the Howitzer Company, camp life is not new. However, there are 36 rookies who have never been here before and they are getting more of a "kick" out of the army life than the seasoned members. As they will get a few unexpected "kicks" and bumps when the initiation ceremonies start, especially if they are anything like last year. Yesterday morning the entire regiment went through calisthenics under the direction of Captain Christopher Scafe, the new athletic director, following which Colonel D. Gordon Hunter and Lieutenant Colonel Orville A. Pettay gave short talks urging the men to everything possible to make this encampment the most successful yet by obeying instructions to the minute detail and conducting themselves in the proper manner.

Drilling

Later Company G took part in the close order and extended order drilling while the Howitzer men divided in two groups went to the pistol range for practice while the other went to the field for instruction in 37 m. m. and for qualification in marksmanship. The new members of both companies joined with the rest of the "Rookie Brigade" for instruction in the fundamentals of drilling under Lieutenant J. H. Liebke and Lieutenant E. A. Morrison.

The latter was "Top Kick" in Company G when it was first organized with a platoon of Williamite men and a platoon of Manchester men.

The new rookies in the Manchester companies are as follows: Company G—Privates John Anello, Edward Burns, Lawrence Cranick, John Fox, William Frederick, William Finkbein, Louis Glode, Herbert and William Hampton, Raymond Holland, Harry Madden, Joseph Mader, Daniel McCarty, Otto Miller, Charles Pellet, Edward Quinn, Walter Rankin, Fred Robinson, Joseph Suess, Thomas Weir and Tude Vince; Howitzer Company—Leonard Finn, Burton Hagenson, William Laboc, Clarence La Chaille, Clifford Madach, Fred Minicucci, Michael Rubacha, Walter Schultz, Bernard Sullivan, George Stamer, John Swanson, William Taft, Donald Taylor, Harold Toppliff, Frank Vitullo.

Quish Instructor

First Lieutenant Thomas J. Quish of Company G has been assigned in charge of instructing the automatic riflemen each morning in Company A's messhall. There are 56 men in the school and Lieutenant Quish is assisted in his work by a regular army officer, Sergeant Joseph Beal, D. E. M. L. Last year Lieutenant Quish had charge of the recruit company. His appointment as automatic riflemen instructor will last the entire first week of camp.

Recreation

Yesterday afternoon was devoted as usual to recreational pleasures. Some played ball while others went swimming. Meanwhile, arrangements went forward rapidly for the formation of a regimental baseball league. At night there was the regular motion picture show on the camp ground augmented by a band concert program by the regimental band. There was no dancing in the messhall last night but tonight it is expected that a large crowd will go to Mago Point which is located close to the reservation. Worthy Hills' well-known radio broadcast in orchestra from Hartford which played at Pine Grove last year is running the dances at Mago Point and the crowds are going there in preference of Pine Grove.

Notes

At 4 o'clock this afternoon, the Howitzer Company relieved Company L of Bristol and will do guard duty for the next 24 hours. Lieutenant Thorpe of Meriden and Lieutenant Tedford of Manchester are in charge.

Private Guido Giorgetti of Company G has been promoted to corporal.

Supply Sergeant Victor E. Duke says the Howitzer Company hasn't got anything on Company G in the radio line, for he too has one already installed with a loud speaker and a battery for the battery. He returns and other entertainment.

Private Michael Rubacha spent considerable time yesterday looking for the "key to the campground."

There are ten Manchester men in the Quartermaster Detachment which is located here for six weeks. They are Sergeants Alfred Blatter and Ullysses Lippincott, Corporal Walter Blatter and Privates Joseph Wiley, Peter Klecha, Nick Angelo, Albert Cole, Lester Bronkie, Ralph Ingram and Frank Cordner, Wiley Cordner and Bronkie are here for two weeks and the others for six. Incidentally this just about criples the Aces baseball team in Manchester.

Another Manchester man here is William Mahoney who is serving his fourth year as company clerk for Company E of Hartford.

Chaplain Richard H. McLaughlin, who is in charge of entertainment has made arrangements to provide unusually good programs. The highlight will be two appearances of actors from Clements Entertainment Bureau in Hartford. On Saturday night they will present a high class program, the feature of which will be the 1927 Revue, the classiest and most costly act staged by this company. It will be shown free of charge. The other date for the vaudeville program is July 23.

Captain McLaughlin also announced the following list of feature motion pictures to be shown on the field: "The Runaway Express," "The Ice Flood," "Prisoners of The Storm," "The Midnight Kid," "Fast and Furious," "The Texas Struck," "The Buckaroo Kid," "Michael Strogoff," "Down the Stretch," "The Mystery Club," "The Whole Town's Talking," "The Claw," "Held by the Law," "The Sensation Seekers," "Oh Baby," "Spangles," "Wild Horse Stampede," "Hard Flats." Comedies are also included.

The regimental baseball league got underway yesterday afternoon with a game between the Quartermaster Detachment and First Battalion Headquarters which was won by the latter. The score was 5 to 1. Company G will play this afternoon.

Thirty horses, 16 saddle and 14 draught, arrived in camp yesterday afternoon. Twenty-five are from the 169th Regiment for the fortnight. The rest are 1,687 men, and 63 officers present.

MORAL: DON'T STEAL AN ALARM CLOCK

Detroit, Mich.—Into a department store walked two men. They looked like customers, but they didn't buy anything—merely looked around. They paused at many a counter, fingering, looking, passing on.

Finally they turned to walk out the door. Just then the shrill clatter of an alarm clock came from a pocket of one of the men. He blushed, tried to muffle the sound. A detective approached; the man broke into a run. He was cornered and arrested for stealing the clock. For thirty days he will need no clock—only a calendar.

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Fast upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.—Adv.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE BARBETTA, an American girl owning considerable property near the little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil. Several mysterious deaths have occurred but so far she has escaped harm, due to the shrewdness of her cousin and brother, VILAK, a curious mixture of American and Oriental blood and a student of criminology.

Vilak has been trying to persuade Elise to leave Porto Verde, but she is determined to stay. He is letting her stay behind with his friend, LINCOLN NUNNALLY, who is an elderly American chemist, to solve the mystery. She finally agrees, but her departure is prevented by threat of floods. Messengers side through the country, warning the natives. Vilak suggests they go to the house of GAYLOR PRENTISS, a recluse, a forbidding man and an enemy of Elise's, whom she suspects of knowledge of the conspiracy against her. She agrees to it in their duty.

Vilak learns the flood warning is a ruse to get Prentiss out of the house and for the second time. The party is besieged by an armed force in a storm. Vilak disperses Prentiss' house. Vilak disperses the enemy by dynamiting the house and causing the flood. When the water recedes they discover Prentiss is gone.

The next day, TINKY, Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew, is kidnapped for the second time. A native reports Prentiss has been seen with a baby. Vilak makes preparations for a long journey in pursuit. With native trackers they take up the trail. Calamity strikes them. Two of their friends are fever victims. Prentiss' friends are fever victims. Prentiss' friends are fever victims.

After several days they emerge from the jungle and come upon a dying white man whom they had known in Porto Verde.

Now begin the story CHAPTER XXXVIII WITH the aid of his two companions, who had come running up, Vilak, as he had done on the occasion of Barbetta's death, began to raise and lower the skeleton man's arms in an attempt to bring air and thus oxygen to the paralyzed body. He had scarcely begun when a sudden dullness in the other's eyes told him that a further effort would be useless. Ciceroe was dead.

"Must have been lying there a day at least, poor devil," Vilak murmured. A few hundred yards away, behind a low rock which had prevented his beholding it before, he came upon what at first appeared to be another body but on closer inspection proved to be a skeleton clad in fragments of blue trousers and orange peasant blouse. A great straw sombrero, gaily decorated, lay near the shining skull. A glance at a few grimy papers in the trousers' pockets confirmed what Vilak already knew: this was the skeleton of Detto's friend and constant companion, Pasquale Bronze.

"Undoubtedly was stricken at the same time as Ciceroe," Vilak muttered. "Only Detto had more resistance and lasted longer. Barbetta and ante had made quick work of him, poor wretch." A mile farther on they pitched their camp. A hot spring steamed noisily nearby. Vilak shot a small brownish animal much resembling an opossum. They ate, then he took out a notebook and began studying a small calendar at the back.

"If my theory's correct, we ought to reach our journey's end quickly, very quickly. And have news of Tinky." He glanced at his cousin, who was listlessly laying down rows of cards on the sand before a crackling fire. Her red lips grew taut; then she put her arms around his gaunt neck and with her head against his breast, began to weep silently, bitterly. He spoke to her soothingly. After some moments she mastered her grief. Mechanically, dully, she played a few hands of Canfield, which Vilak permitted her to win, then lay down on a heap of grass to sleep. When they stopped for a hasty lunch next day, they were only three or four miles from the mountain. Half a mile farther on, a high crumbling cylinder of stone, capped at the top like a mushroom, probably an ancient watch tower overlooked the road. As they neared it, they saw on the ground beneath a solitary carracho watching a white-clad form crawling slowly toward the mountain. Vilak broke into a run.

It was Limey Fotts. His hard, brutal face and the front of his grimy linen were covered with dirt of the road; his hair hung tangled and unkempt over his forehead. The movements of his hulking body came in quick wooden jerks, like the movements of an automaton; his eyes were gleaming with the same feverish intensity which had marked the eyes of Tony Barbetta and Detto Ciceroe.

He stared stupidly at Vilak. "Ulo," he muttered drunkenly. "Ulo." "What yer doin' here?" "What you are . . . come here . . . like me . . . Dam fool . . . They'll get yer . . . Get . . ." He toppled and fell to the road, dead.

Once more the travelers heaped up a few stones, then hastened on. They passed another hot spring, then reached the foot of the mountain. The path became a road, which led gradually up its steep red side. They passed another mushroom-

Vilak grunted. "Very much like those I've seen in Ecuador. Somehow don't look quite right, though, even at this distance. Looks as if something's been done to them fairly recently."

They resumed their march. They passed a third hot spring, then a small geyser spouting vigorously a few feet into the air. The road turned again and began going through a deep ravine. The travelers could see tiny puffs of smoke issuing out of a crevice in the slope far above them. They walked in the ravine a few moments. Vilak halted.

"Don't like the looks of this at all," he muttered to the old man. "That smoke, slight as it is, is this geyser, and these hot springs are obvious signs of subterranean activity. In an old volcano-region like this, it's pretty apt to mean sulphur-dioxide and a few other pleasant, poisonous gases. There's not a leaf or a blade of grass here. Everything's been killed off. Looks as if things had tried to grow but were destroyed before they had a chance. Doesn't it look that way to you?"

The chemist nodded eagerly. Vilak scraped his finger nail thoughtfully along the rock wall which rose redly on both sides of the ravine. "This ravine's a natural channel, and there are any gases coming out anywhere above us, it would be nothing for someone from the city we've just seen and who's watching up on the mountains, to shift a couple of stones and let the gases drift down here whenever he felt like it. Make the city absolutely immune from attack. Might very well be that which has given the mountain its sinister reputation, particularly since the nice thing about some of these gases is that you can't either see or smell them."

"Frankly, I'm quite sceptical about this spot. If we weren't probably as near one end as the other, I'd be strongly inclined to turn back and try to find some other way."

He began quickly walking forward again, the end of his long, thin nose protruding as he carefully sniffed the air. He had been walking for perhaps three or four minutes when he felt his nostrils tingled as though they had been touched with some invisible acid.

"Run!" he shouted to his companions, and turning swiftly to see that they had heeded, began darting toward the end of the ravine, now only two or three hundred yards away.

The stinging in his nostrils increased in its fiery intensity. With a reeling brain, he turned again, to see Elise fall stonily to the road. He turned back, reached her, stooped, and with ever-weakening muscles, caught her up. He started on again. Dimly, as though in a dense equatorial mist, he saw Nunnally, who was now ten or twelve feet ahead of him, stagger and crumple in a heap.

As Vilak reached the spot, he drowsily tried to raise the body of his cousin to his shoulders that his arms might be free to drag the old man to safety. But his neck encircling his leaden brain seemed to grow thicker, blacker; his burden slipped from his arms. He stretched out his hands heavily, like a blind man groping in the darkness, then, with a gasp against the canyon wall, and dropped to the red ground.

What unseen force is at work against Vilak and his friends? In the next chapter there is a strange awakening.

Although she hasn't taken a step in forty-seven years, Miss Roxie McCormick of Kansas City, has made her financially independent. At an early age she was stricken with paralysis and has since lived mostly in a wheel chair. It seems incredible when she tells her story that she should be able to mix, bake and market more than 1200 cakes a year. She buys materials wholesale and uses the freshest of eggs and best of butter. Two of her most successful cake recipes are given below:

Large Angel Food Cake
Two cups sugar, measured before sifting. Two scant cups flour, that sifted after sifting; two full cups egg whites, 1 1/2 teaspoons cream of tartar, 1/2 teaspoon salt and flavor to taste. Beat egg whites until light. Add salt and cream of tartar and beat until whites are stiff enough to stick to sides of pan. Add sugar and stir well. Fold in flour, a teaspoonful at a time. Bake in aluminum roaster 50 to 60 minutes in very slow oven. Remove cake from oven as soon as done.

Icing for Angel Food
Mix one cup sugar, tablespoon white syrup and 1/2 cup boiling water and boil until it barely starts to thicken. Pour over stiffly beaten white of one egg and beat until slightly cool, then set in pan of boiling water on stove and beat until it thickens and sticks to pan around sides. Flavor.

Sunshine Cake
(To utilize yolks of eggs)
Yolks six eggs well beaten. Add one cup sugar and beat well. Add 1/2 cup hot water. Beat after adding each ingredient and then beat well together. Add 1 1/2 cups flour and two teaspoons baking powder. Bake in two layers and put layers together with lemon filling of 1/2 cup hot water and juice of a half of one lemon. After this mixture is cooked, spread thickly. Cover top layer with white icing. This will be a jelly roll if baked in a flat pan.

Many people have the idea that it still takes the greater part of the day, certainly seven or eight hours to have a permanent wave. This is not the case, in fact it doesn't require more than two hours now for the expert waver to finish the whole head. In the early days boxes were used to set the hair causing it to dry out and break off. Then gas heated irons were applied to the tubes which made it a very lengthy and laborious process. Now the process is so simplified and improved that no one need have the least hesitation about having a wave for fear it will injure the hair.

Many of the newer models in bathing suits have capes of matching material, and the other accessories are as important on the

The WOMAN'S DAY

Under the title of "Mother's Ambition Set Kathleen's Pace," my morning paper tells the story of a girl selected by her school to represent an heroine of modern day life in a great National American Fourth contest.
The girl's story was simple. Her mother was left alone with six children and not a penny. The mother thought her problem out and took stock. She reasoned that one child, at least, must be made an initial sacrifice if the remaining five had any education. She chose the oldest boy, then in the seventh grade, for the sacrifice explaining the problem to his satisfaction and assuring him that as the plan worked out he could get his educational opportunity later on.
John went to work. Kathleen, the next oldest, remained in school, worked four hours a day at housework and help a little at home.
Kathleen is now through high school, valedictorian of her class as well as faculty selection for the modern heroine contest, and it's now her turn to work and keep the oncoming younger ones in school. She'll see that the one next to her gets through, and when that one is through, she, in turn, will get the next one through, and so on until the chain is completed.
A Courageous Woman
I tell the little story not so much in honor to Kathleen as to a courageous and intelligent woman who, in face of what many women would call disaster and unsurmountable obstacles, rationally made her plan with her children's co-operation, and stuck to it.

There is something more here, too. There is evidence of a mother who has created a real family—a family which is a unit and not a haphazard collection of individuals, each pulling and hauling for self, and feeling no responsibility to the family as a whole nor to the other individual members of that family.
In the olden days older brother and sisters very naturally and just as a matter of course, sacrificed and worked for the needs of the younger ones.
But in this day of each for self and the devil take the hindmost, it is very unusual to find brothers and sisters working and saving and sacrificing for other brothers and sisters.
The day's slogan is an individual slogan of "Get Ahead" and even stronger and sweeter and of even greater plain, commonsensical, practical dollars and cents worth will grow out of a family fostered in the spirit of "each for all" than out of our average family, creed, spoken or unspoken, of "each for self."

HOUSE FLY CAN'T BITE BUT IT CAN CARRY DEADLY GERMS
BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine
The fly is borne in manure and filth; it eats anything; it flies from the cess-pool and the garbage can to the hospital and the morgue and thence perhaps into the home. It is a dangerous pest, for it may carry typhoid fever, dysentery, or other diseases. It has no business in a healthful home.
The common house-fly cannot bite because its mouth parts are constructed for liquids only. It deposits its eggs in filth, or on any decaying matter, but preferably where there is a certain amount of sunlight.
The stable-fly is a biting fly and will invade the home in rainy weather. People sometimes confuse the two types of flies. From eight to twelve days are required for the development of the fly from egg to adult.
Simple measures for the control of flies can be adopted by any one. They include the screening of all doors and windows, the proper disposal of all refuse so that it may not form a place of breeding, the use of sticky flypapers, of poison papers and of fly-traps, and general cleanliness in the home. The fly-watter, that deadly little piece of

SIX SPITTERS ARE LEFT IN BOTH MAJOR LEAGUES

Coveleskie Fades, Others Fast Going Back—Walsh and Faber Head List.

The spitball will soon be but a memory in the major leagues. Five years more will probably spell the death knell of the most delivery.

Two years prior to my debut, the veteran Jack Chesbro of the New York Americans, with the spitball as his one best bet, had won 41 games.

For seven or eight years Walsh and his spitball delivery were the sensation of the majors. The possession of uncanon control, and the ability to pitch over every ten ball at the knee, the height where the spitball is hardest to hit.

There is a waste of time on the part of most pitchers who use the spitball delivery. When you recall that practically every pitcher a score of years back went through the preliminary motions whether using it or not, it is easy to figure how it slowed up the action.

I believe I am conservative when I say that it lengthened the ordinary game 20 minutes. It was this delay that was the inspiration for one of the many baseball classics pulled by the late Tim Lincecum, one of the greatest of umpires.

President Johnson of the American League, annoyed at the way the spitball had slowed up the game, wrote the members of the umpire staff his suggestions as to how the evil might be lessened.

Hurst, in replying, after placing all the blame on the excessive use of the spitball as well as the faking of the delivery, added a postscript which reads: "If you are really in earnest about shortening the games, Ban, why not try seven innings?"

Only six spitball pitchers remain in the major leagues. The oldest is Jack Quinn, 42, the youngest, Burleigh Grimes, 34. Few pitchers are able to stand the pace in the majors at the 40 mark, so it is fairly safe to say that in five years the spitball delivery will be but a memory.

Three of the fading six are American League—Faber of Chicago, Quinn of the Athletics and Shocker of New York. The three National Leagueers are Burleigh Grimes of the Giants, Clarence Mitchell of Philadelphia and Bill Doak of the Brooklyn team.

Stanley Coveleskie, one of the most famous of the spitball pitchers, was recently given his unconditional release by Washington. In 1920 Coveleskie won three world series games for Cleveland.

Gehrig and Ruth ARE TIED WITH 29. By LES CONKLIN, I. N. S. Correspondent. New York, July 12.—Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth are again tied for major league home-run honors, both having uncorked twenty-nine to date.

If this pair of sluggers of the New York Yankees keep up this lick they will have an impressive total at the end of the season. By putting on a trifle more of the old fifty-nine homer in a season, Gehrig tied Ruth in the seventh inning of yesterday's game against Detroit when he singled one into the right field stand. It was the first homer Gehrig had hit since the Fourth of July. It helped the Yankees defeat the Tigers eight to five. The Yankees home run hitting in their six-game series with Detroit when they showed the Detroit fans one reason why the New York club is leading the league. During the series Ruth hit three homers, Lazzeri two and Gehrig, Dugan, Meusel and Collins one apiece.

OWLS TRIM SPARROWS IN JUVENILE LEAGUE. Orgy of Hits Produced 22 Runs in First Game of Loop.

In the first game of the juvenile amateur league at the West Side diamond yesterday the Sparrows lost to the Owls by the score of 22 to 15. The game was a free-swinging affair and the Owls turned in a total of 16 hits. There were all kinds of extra base hits on both sides, including two home runs.

Benson and Smith worked on the mound for the losers but they could not hold the Owls down. Neubauer and C. Johnson of the Owls each turned in four hits.

Pays $365 For $2 Ticket Filly Sets New Record Price for Illinois Pari-Mutuels by Victory at Homewood.

Here's the kind of a filly you search for in the race entries every day and seldom find. She is Blue Blood, the chestnut owned by L. C. Everett, who was spurred to victory at Homewood recently by Jockey L. Hardy under the staggering odds of $365.10 for every straight $2 ticket.

It set a new price record for Illinois pari-mutuels. Happy indeed was J. Hardy, owner Everett, as he had wagered the modest sum of $20 on the filly. The photograph shows a close-up of Blue Blood, and Everett congratulating Jockey Hardy on his million-dollar ride of the winner.

2 WORLD CHAMPS ON CHICAGO BILL. Mushy Callahan to Fight Sammy Baker—La Barba vs. Pal Moore.

Chicago, July 12.—Two world champions and a liberal sprinkling of "outstanding contenders" form the pugilistic magnet that is expected to attract an army of cash customers to the American Legion's benefit show tonight at White Sox park.

If the cash customers turn out in sufficient numbers it will mean that practically every disabled veteran in Chicago hospitals, able to travel, will receive a free trip to the legion convention in Paris this fall.

"Mushy" Callahan, the world's junior welterweight champion, and Sergeant Sammy Baker, of New York, will appear in the ten round wind-up. This will be a championship fight, with Callahan's title at stake, provided the sergeant can make the 140-pound weight at three o'clock this afternoon.

Sammy was only a few ounces over the limit when he finished a strenuous workout late yesterday and his manager, Steve Webber, says it will be a cinch for him to scale 140 this afternoon.

"Mushy's" title and is determined to have it. The Kosher Callahan, however, promises to bust the sergeant to the rank of buck private during the process of this ambitious undertaking. Both fighters can make the birds sing with either hand, and a lively time is expected by all.

Stanley Loayza, lightweight champion of South America, and champion of Pocatello, Idaho, will clash in the ten round semi-windup. This bout is attracting almost as much interest as the main event. The Spaniard has impressed many with his solid punching. His backers are predicting a knockout victory over the Idaho cowboy.

Fidel La Barba, flyweight champion, and Pal Moore, veteran Chicago bantamweight, will appear in a third 10-rounder. They will weigh 118. Ignacio Fernandez, a Filipino bantam who stopped Abe Goldstein recently, and Joey Lucas of Detroit, will complete the card.

WALSH GIVES JACK DEMPSEY THE ONCE OVER AT HIS CAMP

Billy Evans Says

Thevenow's Bad Luck. This has been a tough season so far for Tommy Thevenow of the St. Louis Cardinals, batting and fielding hero of the 1926 world series.

Due to a salary difference, he was late in reporting. It was feared this might affect his play. On the contrary, he stepped right into the picture in the spring training games and hogged the spotlight from a batting standpoint.

While not a great batter, Thevenow has always been regarded as dangerous in a pinch in the world series. He accounted for the runs in the spring training games and in the final game, driving in two runs, enabled the Cardinals to take the title by the score of 3 to 2.

Thevenow's great work in the exhibition games in the south this spring made it seem that the late start wasn't going to affect his batting in the least.

Then came the unexpected, a batting slump just as soon as the season opened. In his first 40 games this year, he drove across the plate exactly two runs.

Batting slumps are impossible of explanation. They just happen and the player emerges from them as quickly as he started to slip.

Salaries Depend on Hits. It is a rather unusual fact, but often when a player is in a batting slump he appears to be hitting the ball well but always right at some walking fielder.

It is not how you hit them, but where you hit them, is Joe Sewell's logical and original argument relative to the making of base hits.

Every fan has been at a ball game where some player would hit several times into the warning line hands of a fielder, while some other player would pop two or three fly balls that would be just out of the reach of every fielder trying for them.

However, as the club owners gauge salaries largely on the base hit column, ball players are not particular what kind of hits they get, just so long as they go safe.

Surprised in Change in Ex-Champ—Thinks He Is Training to Go the Full Route on July 21.

By DAVIS J. WALSH, I. N. S. Sports Editor.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 12.—In face of the fact that there is not his fight will go the limit, it was evident today that Jack Dempsey is being pointed for fifteen rounds with Jack Sharkey, and no less, on the night of July 21. The average man, having been tossed into a foot race with Nurnal, would give everything he had in the first 300 yards in the perfectly legitimate belief that whatever happened after that would be in the lap of destiny.

But Dempsey, ordinarily one of those all or nothing birds if ever there was one, apparently is not to gamble this time. He, it seems is to do something he never figured to do when he was great. He is to go in there imbued with the idea that the winner of his fight may have to be determined by the vote of a referee and two judges, instead of by a left and right to the goatee.

Change in Style. It all sounds like a lot of bread crumbs to me but the evidence of Dempsey's present style goes as nothing more than a waist-high fast one, right through the middle. The Dempsey shift is gone, because a man who stands on the balls of his left foot cannot shift anymore than a cornerstone of a skyscraper.

So has the Dempsey weave gone, because no longer does he glide forward on his man on the balls of his feet. With a flat left foot, he naturally leans back and that means something out of his right corner, too. A modern and equally somnolent Mr. Van Winkle, having gone to sleep at Atlantic City in 1921, might wake up at White Sulphur Springs today in some doubt as to whether the man he saw in the training ring here wasn't a colossal masquerader.

He would recognize the beetling, foreshadowing scowl, the rough, waxy shock of hair, the tell-tale spread of the knees that marks the litter and that left hook to the body and jaw. The latter still is a great punch not what it was six years ago, naturally, but a weapon that very well might end everything like a home run over the fence.

It was just good enough yesterday that I even saw it landing on Sharkey's jaw and had a mental photograph of the hit, the writer suddenly dawned and trying to alter that embarrassing circumstance to the best of his ability. Dempsey is impressive as he lashes out with his left and no mistake. He is impressive, in the proper and self-evident matter of physical condition. This, a big factor in the Tunney fight, is of secondary importance here. A man who knows nothing of a fighter's condition, which very well might be accurate description of the writer, couldn't miff the fact that Dempsey is a well-trained gent.

In fact, he looks great. But so would any other man who had spent the last three months in the open, indulging in the proper amount of physical exercise and watching his diet. Even a consumptive begins to look like a matinee idol after he has spent a large portion of his time in the Arizona desert.

All For Dempsey. They are talking Dempsey down here and, frankly, it isn't a bad bunch. That pitiful exhibition against Tunney can't be laughed off with a calico and there is no reason to suspect that the young man should be a great deal better for having added another year to his life. It is the general understanding that a man doesn't get better as he grows older, and darling, Jack is growing that way with every tick of the clock.

Yet I can't stifle the thought that Dempsey has a real chance, the chance of any natural gambler who shoots the works on a single roll. However, I would think better of that chance if he was being sent to the post with just that notion and not that of a man who expects to come out with a four and then two to one after a man "comes out" and that is about what Dempsey is entitled to, if they persist in making a marathon runner out of natural born sprinter.

FIND SNAKES IN TONIC. Washington.—Treasury Department officials who were appealed to by customs officials have decided that bottles of grain alcohol received from Chapman the official or unofficial title of feaster-wight champion. Some several months ago, Chapman was all set to take the feather title away from one "Kid" Kaplan.

KNOW HIS DOGS

Medicine Lake, Minn.—To court came A. E. Knutson and a dog he had bought. He said the beast was deaf, and wanted his money back.

The judge asked in interpreters, "Did the dog speak in Greek, French, Scandinavian and Yiddish. The dog gave no sign. Knutson got his money back.

WOMAN, 70, IS A SOLDIER

Paris.—Mme. Sautet and her husband, poor shopkeepers, sent 50 many packages to soldiers during the war that they have been given a medal of the Legion of Honor.

They, too, are the only "first-class soldiers" in the entire French army, of which Mme. Sautet is godmother.

Red Chapman Can't Be Champ When Foes Walk Out on Him.

New York, July 12.—They say lightning never strikes the same spot twice, but you couldn't prove it by "Red" Chapman in a million and two years.

For the second time in the past few months, Chapman has had an opponent walk out on him just on the eve of a bout that might have given Chapman the official or unofficial title of feaster-wight champion.

Some several months ago, Chapman was all set to take the feather title away from one "Kid" Kaplan.

ANNOUNCE SCHEDULE FOR GIRLS' TOURNEY

Babe Ruth Was Big Inspiration To Joe Dundee

Baltimore, Md., July 12.—Babe Ruth's career was the inspiration that sent Joe Dundee to the welterweight championship of the world. Like the Big Bambino, Dundee calls St. Mary's Industrial School here his alma mater. He spent six months there.

The feats of Babe Ruth, as discussed by other boys there, were the spark needed to fire the young Italian. He loved to fight. So with Babe as his inspiration he set forth to realize a dream which came true when he defeated Pete Latzo for the welter crown.

TODAY IN FISTIANA

WARD vs. BYRNE. July 12, 1931. Ninety-six years ago today, more than eighteen thousand persons gathered in a field at Willycutt near Manchester, Eng., to witness the greatest fistie encounter of the age when Jim Ward, heavyweight champion of England clashed with Simon Byrne, the Irish titleholder, in a fight to the finish with bare knuckles under London prize ring rules.

Ward retained his title by finishing Byrne in the thirty-third round the battle lasting one hour and twenty-seven minutes. It was a bitter struggle and Ward was presented with a belt emblematic of the title by admiring sportsmen. Immediately after this affair however, he retired from the game.

"Yes, he does," said the lady missionary.

"Then," said Willie, "I'll be 'round next Sunday. I bin lookin' fer that guy over a month."

THE TINYMITES

While walking round to see the sights in Tiny Town the Tinymites met many funny little folks and found them very nice. Said one queer man, "Say, I've a hunch you Tinymites would like some lunch. We're glad to have you join us in a dandy bowl of rice."

in store. And then the wee train stopped real still and everyone hopped out. Their interest then was very keen. Of all the queer things ever seen, the Tinymites all saw them now by looking round about. The houses were all upside down, and so were all things in this town. Each house was balanced on its roof and seemed about to fall. The Princess then heard Clowdy shout, "How do the folks get in and out?"

As Darling struggled to rise, a small, dark girl came running from the woods. Crying something in a foreign language, she sprang at the bear. "Now I catch-a-you, you bad-a, bad-a Garabaldi!" exclaimed the girl. The bear wore a heavy brass-studded collar, which she seized with both hands.

ABOUT TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings, who were married last month, have returned from their wedding trip, which was made by automobile in Canada. They are staying for a few days at the home of Mrs. Jennings' mother, Mrs. Mary McEvitt of Walnut street until they can arrange their new home in Hartford where they are to live.

Giuseppe Mazzini lodge, Sons of Italy, and the Eleonora Duse lodge of Italian women will unite in an outing at the Maple Grove, Rockville, on Sunday. A chicken and spaghetti dinner will be served. A dance will be held at 8 o'clock and during the afternoon there will be a program of games and sports. About 150 are expected.

Mrs. William Cotter of Pine street is confined to her home as a result of an automobile accident on Park street several days ago. She was pushing a baby carriage up Park street and an automobile, in trying to avert a collision with another car, dashed up onto the sidewalk and struck her from the rear, causing a badly injured leg. The grip on the baby carriage prevented her from being thrown to the ground, but she is still confined to her home under the care of a doctor and nurse.

Harry White of Bank street, who is taking a two weeks' vacation is spending part of the time at his home on Bank street and is also taking short motor trips to different shore resorts from time to time.

Linne lodge No. 72, K. of P., will meet in Orange hall on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

George W. Smith, who recently retired from business and also disposed of his Main street business block, will have delivered to him tomorrow the latest model Stearns-Eight closed car.

Henry W. McCann of Short street is visiting with relatives in Brooklyn, N. Y. He expects to be absent two weeks.

Cheney Brothers Girls' Athletic club will hold their outing at Pleasant View, R. I., according to present plans and are planning to make the trip by automobile busses.

Carl Senkbell of Norman street and Walter Hennequin of Cottage street, both employed by Watkins Brothers are on their vacation, traveling by automobile to different shore resorts along the Connecticut coast.

George Smith, postman No. 1 of the South Manchester postoffice is indisposed and his route is being covered by substitute carrier and clerk, Thomas Donnelly.

Rev. Watson Woodruff of the Center Congregational church will lead the mid-week prayer service at the South Methodist church on Thursday evening. These two churches are holding union services during the months of July and August. This month the services are being held in the South church. On Sunday the preacher will be Rev. Eric I. Lindh, former pastor of the Center church.

ORANGEMEN CELEBRATE IN SUPPER TONIGHT

Washington, L. O. L., No. 117, will be host tonight at a supper and entertainment in Orange hall in celebration of the Twelfth of July. Their guests will be the Daughters of Liberty, L. L. O. A., and any Orangemen in town not members of Washington lodge.

The program will begin with a supper at seven o'clock in the new banquet hall. An entertainment will follow featuring appropriate historical scenes in the Orange Institution.

GAS STATION BANDITS TRIED HOLD-UP HERE

Men in Chrysler Roadster Were Seen Here Early In Day—Arrested in Hartford.

When Tony Helms of the Half Way House, just over the Manchester line, in the town of East Hartford, was held up near the gasoline station of Clarence Martin, which is located just east of the town lines on Spencer street, it was not amateurs that did the trick, but real "bad eggs," now being sought for their actions throughout the county. One of the men has figured in the shooting of a policeman.

The car, which was a sport model Chrysler and was the car later found by the Hartford police which caused the arrest and later on the confession of three of the men that they had been robbing gasoline stations and drug stores for some time past.

Tony's holdup was just a part of a plan, it now appears, that did not go through. When Tony first stopped in front of the Miller station, there were several present and the pursuers kept on, pulling in at Martin's station. That their lights were not noticed was due to the fact that they had pulled into the drive in front of the Martin station and when they saw the car approaching again, they pulled out of the station drive, right across the road and held up the car that Tony was driving.

It now appears that it was the station that they intended to visit, but Tony's actions had driven them away from their real intent. The car was seen in Manchester earlier in the day and the men who were arrested later on were known to a man living in Manchester.

The newly elected officers of Memorial Lodge, No. 38, Knights of Pythias will be installed tomorrow evening by District Deputy Nelson Smith and staff of Elm Lodge No. 83 of East Hartford. All members are urged to attend. At the close of the installation light refreshments will be served.

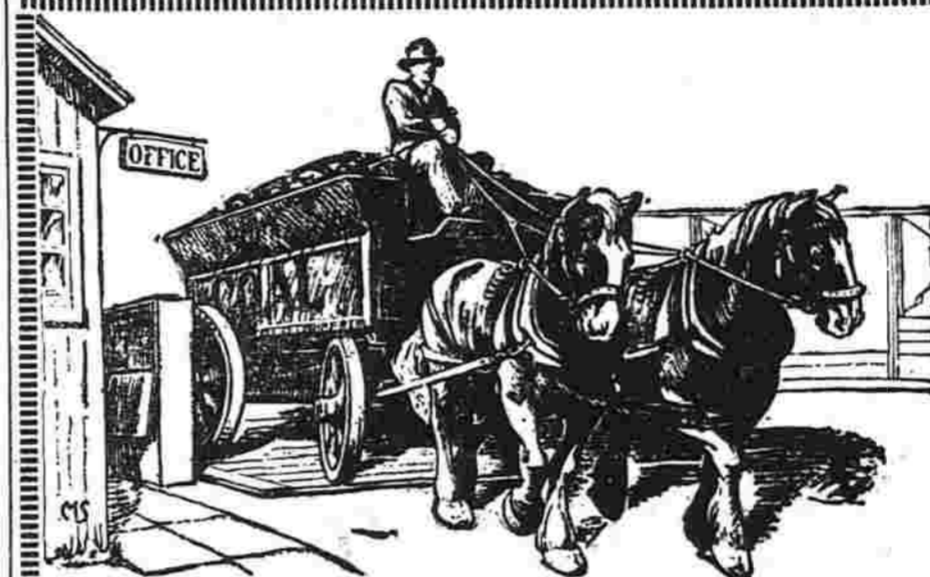

Mrs. Robert Donnelly, together with her son Robert, and daughter Mary, spent a few days visiting with relatives in New York and on their return brought back to Manchester another daughter, Helen, who has been in Long Island for the past two weeks.
