Rockville COMMON COUNCIL CURTAILS WORK Not All of Curb and Gutter Contracts Being Carried Out—Newsy Items.

(Special to The Herald) Rockville, July 14. When the board of public works of the common council decided to reject all bids that had been presented for the construction of sidewalks and curbs they did so in order that work in the outdoor works of the city might be filled by Rockville residents as far as possible, rather than having the work done by an out of town contractor who would bring to Rockville his laborers.

The streets that were to be considered in the work called for by the bids were Windermere avenue, where plain curb was to be set for about 1,500 feet; Spruce street, where curb and gutters were called for a distance of 450 feet; Hale street, which was to have curb and gutters for 510 feet; Reed street, curb and gutters for 360 feet; Cedar-Stone streets, curb and gutter for 632 feet; Grove street, curb and gutters, 1,950 feet and Mountain street, curb and gutters for 500 feet. Davis avenue was to get 1,260 lineal feet of sidewalk four feet wide.

The estimated cost for this work was to be about $9,000 and when the bids were opened it was just about the time that the Belding mills were closed, which started a retrenchment in the expenditure of the money of the city as the city meeting was coming on and to do this work and pay the money that was needed for the special work of the septic tanks and also for a survey of the general sewer condition of the city, the issuing of their funding bonds for sewer work of $56,000, on which $14,000 was paid, leaving $40,000 to be paid in a serial issue, were all up at one time.

The bonds have been sold, the rate of interest being 4 per cent and there was only one bidder, The Travelers Insurance company, was the fiscal agent. No bonus was received.

Second Band Concert The second of the season's band concerts to be given this summer was given by the Rockville City Band last night in Central Park. The band stand was erected on the west side of the park and the number that attended noticed an improvement in the concert given. There was a large number in attendance, not being confined to local residents, but attracting many from different sections of Tolland county and a large number from Manchester.

To Play in Manchester Stanley Dobosz Post, No. 14, American Legion has accepted a challenge from Dilworth-Cornell Post, No. 102 and will play ball at the West Side playgrounds, South Manchester, on Wednesday evening, July 20, 1927 at 6 p. m. This game precedes a band concert played by the Rockville band. A large delegation of rooters is expected to accompany the team.

Notes Miss Margaret McLean of Talcott avenue entertained at bridge in honor of Mrs. Albert Mason of Acworth, Ga., at her home on Tuesday evening.

The Sunday school of the First Evangelical Lutheran church will hold their annual picnic this Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in Maple Grove. All members and friends are invited to join in the picnic and to make this one of the best picnics ever. At noon a luncheon will be served and during the day there will be a program of sports for both young and old.

The Rockville Girls' club will hold their regular meeting in their rooms this evening. Mrs. A. A. MacLeod and son Douglas and niece, Miss Edith MacLeod of Plainfield were the guests of Mrs. George Herzog of Brooklyn street on Wednesday.

Sons of Veterans Auxiliary will hold a regular meeting in G. A. R. hall on Friday evening. Mrs. George W. Dowling of Union street is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Fred Hayward of Maynard, Mass., and her grandson, Grant Hayward of Los Angeles.

Alfred Rosenberg of the Star Hardware Co., attended the outing of the Connecticut Hardware Dealers association held at Double Beach on Wednesday. The two sons of Rev. Kirsch of Meriden are the guests of Rev. and Mrs. John F. Bauchmann of Ward street.

Miss Grace Bell of Union street has returned to her position at Travelers Insurance Co. after a two weeks' vacation. Rev. and Mrs. George S. Brookes and family left this morning for his summer home in Maine, having postponed his trip to officiate at the funeral of George N. Skinner.

Mrs. Lida Littlefield of Portland, Me., is spending the week as the guest of her niece, Mrs. E. H. Cobb of Rheel street. The members of Hope Chapter Sewing Circle enjoyed an outing on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Ahern of South street.

The Luther League of the First Evangelical Lutheran church will hold their annual picnic this Thursday evening, July 21 at Riverside. All planning to attend are requested to get in communication with Leslie Mann, who is chairman of the committee in charge.

Gene and Priscilla MacLeod have returned to their home in Plainfield after spending a week as the guests of Miss Anna Hall of Brooklyn street.

FIND SILK WORKER IN SPITE SABOTAGE Mill Employee Detected After Damaging Warp In Loom Run By Woman.

A series of mysterious "smashes" in a certain loom in one of Cheney Brothers was explained yesterday, it was learned today, when the alleged culprit was confronted with evidence that he had been tossing objects into the warp, causing the smashes in the silk.

According to information gained today, the alleged offender fainted when he was told that he had been found out, and had to be taken to his home in an automobile.

Woman the Victim A certain woman in this department had been called to task several times to explain smashes which had occurred on her loom. She could not explain them satisfactorily because she had been carrying out the weaving operation in a correct manner.

In some way it was suspected that a person in the department was responsible for the smashes and yesterday he was brought to the office and questioned.

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL HAS A "WILSON" DAY Five Patients of That Name Admitted, But None Is Seriously Ill. Today is Wilson day at the Memorial hospital and all of the five Wilsons admitted will have tonsils and adenoids removed. They are members of two different families, two from 72 Summer street and the other three from 49 Woodland street. Gladys and Gertrude belong to the first family while the second family representation includes Edward, Herbert and Emma Wilson.

Other admissions to the hospital today were Dorothy McCarthy of 18 Pine Hill street, an accident case; Julia Yarbun of Ellington and Mrs. Charles Lee of Rockville. Discharges included Mrs. Tony Beretta and Harry and Elmer Hulthen of Hackmatack street.

No heat prostrations were reported up to noon. Fighting Drunk Sergeant John Crockett was called to the Heights last night when a complaint reached the police station that two men were causing a disturbance. There he found Gardner and John McCarthy, the two fighting each other and every one else that tried to stop them.

Sergeant Crockett had difficulty in subduing the two but finally got the cuffs on them. Policeman Joseph Prentice came to assist the sergeant in bringing the men to the station and in the struggle Gardner twisted his own wrist and Crockett's. When they arrived at the station and were put in different cells Gardner couldn't get his "wristlets" off. McCarthy was released, and then "Doctor" Braithwaite was called.

Had to Get Up The locksmith was in bed, and asked that the "sick" man be brought to his office, but he was assured by Captain Schendel that Gardner was safe in his cell and would have to be visited there. Braithwaite soon reached the station.

He was not carrying a small black bag such as doctors drop into the police station with, but instead was straining under the load of a big chest, loaded with tools. "Your patient is downstairs," he was informed and he went to the cell room, accompanied by his own work. The lock was twisted in some way, so there was but one way out of it.

The bracelet had to be sawed. The locksmith went to work and worked hard. The cuffs are not of soft iron. The cell room was not cool. Away sawed the locksmith and after about fifteen minutes work the handcuff was sawed off. The prisoner's arm was somewhat swollen, but feeling much better when it was again free.

A perfectly good pair of handcuffs was ruined. REST PERIODS To stay fresh through the hot weather, try dropping into a chair and utterly relaxing for a five-minute rest period every hour. CALL LOCKSMITH TO AID PRISONER Handcuffs Are Removed With Saw As Police Look On—Done In Cell.

ABOUT TOWN The thunderstorm which skirted Manchester yesterday did considerable damage in Stafford and other towns in that part of the state. A Stafford trolley car was struck by lightning and cars from Stafford to Rockville were delayed for more than an hour.

Judge Alexander Arnott of Charter Oak street will leave New York on Saturday for a trip to Europe. The town scarifier is working on Hamlin street today, eliminating the high crown in the roadway and leveling the roadbed. The road has been in need of this treatment for some time.

Mrs. Nellie Bartlett of Hamlin street has gone to Westbrook for a summer vacation. On or before Sept. 1, she will meet her son, Rev. Frederick Bartlett, at Atlantic City. A party of about thirty of Cheney Brothers main office employees enjoyed an outing at East Hampton last evening. Dinner was served at the Lake View Hotel. There was a motor boat trip around the lake, dancing and out-door games.

Unusual Type of Female Panhandlers Spend Today Touring Main Street. It is rarely that a musical panhandler comes to Manchester. The town is familiar with the common, or garden variety of panhandlers who hold two or three pencils in one hand, a tin cup in the other, and stations himself at some strategic point on Main street on busy afternoons and nights.

The musical panhandler of the type who plays a fandanglo player piano by means of a crank hasn't made his appearance here in some years and the frail woman with the New York bowery voice and the zither harp has also been absent from this town for a long time.

A new variety came to Manchester today, however, a team of two people, presumably mother and daughter. The elder woman, who is represented as being blind, and wears dark glasses, plays the banjo-mandolin after a fashion while the daughter holds appealingly in her hand something that looks like a motorman's old hat.

These two do not stay in one place on Main street all day but move around to places where the picking is thought to be good. MOUSE NEARLY CALLS OUT FIRE DEPARTMENT A little mouse caused considerable trouble at the State theater yesterday and almost caused a fire alarm to be turned in.

Two women are employed as housecleaners at the State and their working period comes between 7 in the morning and noon. Yesterday the mouse was in their tasks as usual but when they opened the door of the box office to start their cleaning the mouse ran out into the lobby.

Both women screamed and made so much noise that they attracted the attention of a number of passers-by. A man who was passing became so excited that he rushed to a fire alarm box, thinking fire had broken out in the theater. Another person, thinking it a holdup, was on the point of calling out the police.

While all this was going on the principle in the little drama made his escape quietly and was seen no more. KING DAVID LODGE TO INSTALL OFFICERS FRIDAY Officers of King David lodge, No. 31, I. O. O. F., will be installed on Friday evening in Odd Fellows' hall by Earl A. Goehring and his staff of Rockville. Appointive offices will be filled by Noble Grand Beverly Wright.

A. L. BAND CONCERT NEXT WEDNESDAY Rockville Legion Team to Play Local Post Previous To Music.

The first band concert of the season, under the auspices of Dilworth-Cornell Post of the American Legion, will be held at the West Side Playgrounds, Wednesday evening, July 20th.

This is to be both a Rockville and Manchester Legion night. Festivities will open at 6 p. m. when the ball team of Stanley Dobosz, Post of Rockville faces the team of the local post. The Rockville post has a good team, having repeatedly hurled challenges at the Manchester post, and some good baseball should be shown.

The Manchester team under the leadership of "Chick" Zimmerman, who made a reputation as catcher in the A. E. F. should give a good account of itself as there are a number of good players in the post. The band concert will begin at 7:45 p. m. and continue until 10 p. m. Dancing will be enjoyed in the Recreation building to the tunes of a good four-piece orchestra.

The veterans are arranging to handle a large crowd on the grounds and are perfecting plans for the next concert to be held on one of the other town playgrounds in the near future. MORE THAN A THOUSAND BATHE AT THE "HOLLOW" Pool Crowded From Noon Till Night, For Record Attendance of Year.

Globe Hollow was a Mecca for many more than a thousand people yesterday afternoon and evening. From noontime until 8 o'clock at night the pond was crowded and it was estimated that there were more than 1,000 there in the afternoon alone.

The early morning hours brought an unusually large attendance to the pool. The evening, despite the cooling breezes, saw almost 500 there. It was the biggest crowd at Globe Hollow on any day of this summer but the large crowd was handled and watched over in an efficient manner by the pool attendants.

ASK IT NOW
The case in favor of school consolidation in Manchester, as presented in the five able articles written by Howell Cheney and printed in this newspaper, has been in the possession of the people of the town, in its entirety, for forty-eight hours. There has been time for digestion of its facts and its arguments.
It is too much to hope that Mr. Cheney's presentation of the case will not be disputed, either as to facts or deductions from facts, by some Manchester citizens. If there had been unanimity on the subject it would not have been necessary for Mr. Cheney to undertake the labor of preparing the argument; it would not have been necessary for the Herald to print it. That there was opposition to school consolidation has been a known fact. That it will continue in some measure in spite of the blaze of light thrown on the situation by the author of the articles, is to be taken for granted.

This is a matter which, being of the utmost importance to the present and future welfare of the community, ought to be completely threshed out. There could not possibly be a better time for such proceeding than right now, when the subject has had such a thought-provoking introduction.
It is therefore suggested that any and every person who is opposed to school consolidation and who has, or believes he has, some valid reason for his opposition, and every person who believes that Mr. Cheney's articles fail to meet all arguments against consolidation, take advantage of the same medium that he used and put their criticisms, either of the Cheney articles or of the principle of consolidation, in writing for publication in the Herald.

The Herald will give whatever amount of space, within reason, may be necessary for the full exposition of the views of all such persons. Its only conditions being that the letters shall be as dignified and courteous as printed matter should always be, and that the writer in each instance shall sign his contribution and append his address.

If any such letter shall be of a genuinely inquiring character, seeking further illumination on some already discussed point or bringing up some new aspect on which information is sought, it will be treated respectfully and cordially and the information supplied, if possible.
It is difficult to see how any opponent of consolidation, or anyone who still feels unsettled on the question, in justice to himself and to his citizenship can fail to take advantage of this occasion to help dispose of this greatest of all Manchester problems.

NO THANKS TO REIDS
It Sacco and Vanzetti are found, at the end of the close inquiry into their case now being made, to have been improperly convicted, small thanks will be done to the radicals of this country and of the world at large who from the beginning have assumed such a bellicose and threatening attitude toward the affair.
An enormous amount of stump speechifying has been done in foreign countries, with relation to this case, by people who never had the faintest idea of what they were talking about. Any number of the remonstrances addressed to all sorts of authorities in this country, from President Coolidge to the mayor of Boston, show clearly enough that the signers did not even know what crime the men had been charged with. They knew only that they were radicals and jumped at the conclusion that they had been convicted and sentenced to death under some utterly non-existent law making radicalism in America a capital offense.
The wild and woolly howling for the liberation of Sacco and Vanzetti which has echoed over two continents, from gatherings of radicals, is not only a thousand miles removed from having had any influence in their behalf, it has made extremely difficult the efforts of those better informed people who have insisted on retrial of the case on the ground of sheer abstract justice.

Because many first class newspaper men and many first class lawyers have persistently adhered to the belief that Sacco and Vanzetti were improperly tried, and because many conservative citizens have held the same view and asserted it, these convicts are now being given the benefit of an honest investigation. The reeds had nothing whatever to do with bringing it about. They made it much harder to bring about.

COMPLICATION
Very much is it to be hoped that Captain Courtney will not elect to hop off on his westerly flight to America at a time that will bring him to New York on the day when Byrd and his party and Clarence Chamberlin are due to arrive at the same port by steamship. That would create a complication such as nobody at all would want to have arise.

New York is all set to shout its head off over the home-coming American conquerors of the Atlantic skies. It is anxious that there should be no undue contrast between its reception of these gallant fliers and that given to Lindbergh. And that means that the big town will have its hands full.
Yet every drop of sporting blood in the United States would cry out against the slightest falling short in New York's manner of receiving Courtney if he succeeds in what Lindbergh and Byrd both have declared to be a greater achievement than theirs—the westward passage. And New York would be mortified to death if, in paying tribute to the Americans, it failed in hospitality to the Englishman.

SLEEPLESS "HERO"
A new "hero" comes before the curtain for the plaudits of the race. The man who sat on a flagstaff for a week or more gives place to the San Antonio insomnia expert who claims the world's record of 150 hours of voluntarily going without sleep. So far, however, we have heard of no vaudeville impresario or movie producer offering him his million.

In somnolent Texas Brother O'Mallia may have done quite a stunt. But in those parts of the world where the vaudeville managers and the film czars swarm it is scarcely to be wondered at that his achievement has fallen flat. Imagine one, have he ever so good a press agent, succeeding in stirring up even a flicker of excitement in the Roaring Forties by proclaiming that he kept awake for six and a fraction days.

Why, there are rooming house landlords on the middle west side of New York who haven't really and truly been to sleep for thirty years. They couldn't go to sleep in the 24-hour bedlam in which they live, if they would; and if they should they could not survive as landlords, for the way in which their roomers would "lam." The phenomenon of sleeplessness is no phenomenon where eternal vigilance is the price of solvency.

THE WORM ISSUE
Just as we suspected, that bird Flynn, who demanded in the name of the Isaak Walton League that President Coolidge give up using worms as trout bait, is on occasion a worm fisherman himself. This is given out by Fred B. Shaw, a one-time international fly casting champion, who has come to the defense of the President. Mr. Shaw tried to tell the country the facts in the case over the radio, but after his address had been arranged for it was canceled by the broadcasting station as "political."

Shaw is a member of the Isaak Walton League and one of its active figures. He makes the serious charge that the criticism of the President's choice of baits was originated with a view to injuring him politically. Referring to Flynn's horror of anything but artificial flies as trout lures, and his contempt for the angler who uses the crawler, the veteran says: "That is funny, coming from Flynn. He has caught trout with worms—as what angler has not? And now he stands as an angel of God with a flaming sword, in outspoken detestation of worms as trout bait."
This thing is getting good. It may even yet come to be a highly important issue in the next election.

MAKE IT FIT
It is suggested that those persons who have been demanding weather hot enough to make the corn grow be rounded up and a representative of their number, perhaps drawn by lot, be compelled to sit on the trophy sun at the Center, without benefit of umbrella or parasol, for the entire period of one of these scorching days.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington, July 14.—The servants of the people, functioning in Washington and elsewhere as parts of the federal government assume far more dignity than the ordinary servants, and it is very hard to find a humility among them.
Their success in persuading the multitude to take them seriously, as no doubt they should be taken, is probably responsible for the failure of the ordinary citizen to attach to them the sort of nicknames with which he tags others prominent in the public eye.
Certainly the hard-working officials down here are entitled to at least as much affection as the lady murderesses of Chicago, among whom there has been a long procession of "wolf women," "tiger women," "hyena women" and so on. New York has never been slow to nickname its Rhinelanders and its Brownings and the spirit of the entire country was demonstrated when it made Lindbergh its own "Lindy." Washington alone has lagged behind in this great popular sport.
As a matter of fact, the great men of the land as found in high office are not such awesome creatures as to be robbed of their measure of popular esteem. Probably every one of them realizes the vote-getting value of a good nickname, but how is he to nickname himself?
To fill this demand, your correspondent presents a few suggestions as follows:
Chief Justice William Howard "Tuffy" Taft.
Senator Earl B. "Pineapples" Mayfield.
Senator William E. "Lone Wolf" Borah.

IOWA COMPLETES BEAUTY PROGRAM AT STATE CAPITOL
Des Moines, Ia.—The last bit of landscape improvement contemplated by the original plans for beautifying Iowa's capitol grounds, has been completed after a lapse of nearly 14 years and the expenditure of $10,000,000.
With the planting of several groups of dwarf pine and evergreen trees this spring the vision of the sponsors of the so-called capitol extension, which in the beginning split the state into warring factions, has been realized.
However, the dominant instinct of an agrarian populace, always ready to acquire land, prevailed, and the capitol and other state buildings now occupy a tract of land which in many parts of the country would be regarded as a sizeable farm. Nearly 100 acres are embraced in the present grounds, the greater portion of which was acquired by purchase and condemnation beginning in 1913.
The capitol building, which although newly tithy, is old, is still regarded by some of the outstanding examples of statehouse architecture, originally was set down in a tract of a few acres, overlooking railroad yards, scrap dumps, dust heaps and some of the worst of the city's slums.

Old Master's
Moan, moan, ye dying gales!
The saddest of your tales
Is not so sad as life;
Nor have ye'er began
A theme so wild as man,
Or with such sorrow life.
Fall, fall, thou withered leaf!
Autumn sears not like grief,
Nor kills such lovely flowers;
More terrible the storm,
More mournful the deform,
When dark misfortune lowers.
—Henry Neale, Moan, Moan, Ye Dying Gales.

New York, July 14.—Strike times in mid-Manhattan bring an ominous note into the scramble of the day.
Just now, along 27th Street the brooding sense of something about to happen cannot be downed by the rush of traffic through the blocks, or the hustle of people along the sidewalks.
A policeman idles at every doorway. Upon stairways sit uniformed officers. Their clubs dangle just a little too carelessly; there is menace in their nonchalance.

A big fur strike is on and this is the heart of a district where the odor of pelts and dried skins hangs heavily upon the air. Shop after shop has windows piled with hides. Men pass in the street and glare. It has been a mean strike. There have been many arrests and, just under the surface, feeling runs high.

The rest of the city goes by, unconscious of this little sector of war. The number of police attract but slight attention. They have been seen in other quarters at other strikes. Strikers shift about wearily and stop to chat with pickets. In a second a police club is poking summarily at various backs, and the "move on" notice is given. A couple of girls stop to gossip and are also moved on.
At cross streets the tens of thousands go by. A few curious ones, attracted by the newspaper stories, stop and peer. A little war can get lost in New York. Two gangs can fight it out to the last man and attract the attention of only four corners. A few blocks away there will be not so much as a raffle.

These are the things that suddenly step out to remind you of the city's size.
Phil Baker, who tickles the accordion in the great open spaces of vaudeville, has a gag fresh from the "cluck and suit" belt.
Mr. Fettebaum had been reported by the belt to be enjoying a fine business year. The news went round that he had purchased a fine apartment and fitted it out lavishly.
Mrs. Minsk went snooping around to investigate.
"Hmpf," she reported. "He ain't so rich. I saw both his daughters playing on the same piano."

A big Broadway funeral parlor still shows a sign reading: "Welcome Lindy." Roof gardens begin to draw a crowd, and all the back-yard gardeners are preparing to show their wares. Walter Winchell, columnist, has discovered that the pretty girl in the halitosis ads whose "best friend wouldn't tell her" is none other than Edith Nasa, who came out of Virginia to play in the "Scandals." Outside the ads she has no troubles such as are widely advertised. . . . Week-end excursions to Montreal threaten to depopulate this large city. And they tell of the Scotchman who had the hard luck to get a haircut just before an Indian massacre in the west. The only night-club revue to draw a crowd is one that sneezed at the censors and kept its girls undraped. . . . The big buyers from Kokozula must have their fling. . . . GILBERT SWAN.

The Semi-Annual Sale of WHITTALL RUGS

ONCE again we are pleased to announce this much anticipated event. It gives you the opportunity of securing the county's finest wilton rugs at prices as low as you expect to pay for inferior weaves. The patterns and colorings are of the most popular—reduced in price because we can never match them again—or because they have become slightly soiled from floor and window displays.
Due to the limited number of rugs available ALL SALES MUST BE FINAL. No exchanges, credits or cancellations.

CONGRESS MAY AGAIN WAR OVER ARMY AVIATION
Coming Session May Be Scene of Heated Dispute On Military Flying.
Washington—Congress at the coming session may again be the scene of a heated and intensive debate over the value of aviation in military services, in the opinion of many war and navy department officials.
This opinion is based on the scores of requests for aeronautical information which have been pouring into the departments in the last few weeks. By far the greater number of these requests have come from senators and congressmen. That the information sought is intended for use in Congressional debates and also, perhaps, as political fodder in the 1928 campaign is the inference drawn from the language of many of the requests.
Interest in aviation has been revived to an unexpected extent by the recent achievements of Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Maitland, Hegenberger and Byrd and, in the view of the service officials, the military knowledge gained from these flights will play an important part in the anticipated parliamentary discussions.

Air Mitchell Case
There are other indications, however, that the recently renewed public attack by Brig. Gen. William Mitchell will also be aired at the first opportunity. Coupled with the latest Mitchell charges may come the drive of the United States Air Force Association for a unified defense department under one secretary, but with undersecretaries for the army, the navy, and the air forces. General Mitchell and Eddie Rickenbacker are the principal advisers to this organization. Several congressmen have already announced their intentions of introducing bills providing for the establishment of a department of defense.
In the meantime the army and the navy are proceeding with their plans for developing aviation on an extensive scale, but with the thought continually uppermost of keeping the air activities subordinate to the regular work of the two services.
$22,000,000 Available
The War Department has approximately $22,000,000 available for aeronautical expansion in the present fiscal year. The navy has close to $15,000,000. The Army Air Corps program calls for the expenditure of $12,000,000 for the purchase of 590 planes of various types as well as spare engines and extra parts. Research and experimental work will be allotted $2, 200,000; in addition to air corps funds and technical construction $1,062,000, and lighter-than-air equipment $475,000, including $200,000 for the purchase of helium.

The navy is expected to buy 273 airplanes with its funds. This department has, however, set aside $245,000 for equipment for the naval reserve, and this money will go toward buying eight training planes to be used exclusively by naval air reservists.
Both branches are planning substantial increases in flying personnel, the army air corps having been authorized to increase its enrollment to 1,100 officers and 10,000 enlisted men.

KEITH CO. TO FOLLOW USUAL VACATION PLAN

Editor of The Herald:

There has been considerable rumor and misinformation talked around concerning the policy which the Keith Furniture Company has followed in recent years of closing the store for a two weeks vacation. It is not at all clear why anyone should be interested in discrediting the business practice of this kind, which is so strictly our own concern, except from what gratification there is in the "I told you so" attitude. However, we should like to take occasion to refute any existing opinions to the effect that our vacation plan has proved disastrous and is being continued only through obstinacy on our part, and against good business judgment.

For four consecutive years, we have closed our store annually for two weeks in August, and it has always been closed tight. No business has been done except as some salesman or other has made a special trip to accommodate a friend in some small matter. We have not even had a telephone operator on duty.

In three of the four years, we have done more business in the month of August than we ever did in a full month previously, and our business in July and September has also been correspondingly high which would seem to show that not only have we not suffered ourselves by vacation closing, but we have evidently been able to take care of our trade. We had one dull period out of the four years we have followed this plan, but it was due to conditions rather than to our schedule, and it did not affect our policy in any way.

We are free to admit that some sales are lost when we are closed for two weeks, but there are so few disadvantages and so little loss of business, that we feel very strongly against returning to the old plan of spreading vacations throughout the summer and leaving things upset for the entire period. As a matter of fact, we always force business to the limit in advance of our closing by means of our Summer Clearance Sale, and we feel that this gives every opportunity to anyone who wants to buy furniture to do so before we close. We are not in the habit of making much noise about sales, but we do have a perfectly legitimate reason for our Clearance Sales at this time, and try to make them move all the goods we can before the vacation time comes. We shall close again this year, and have no reason to expect any different experience than before. If it ever seems desirable to change this practice, we shall have no hesitation in doing so, as we are not wedded to it by perverseness or anything else—but so far we are satisfied.

Yours very truly,
The G. E. Keith Furniture Company
Warren I. Keith.

WILLIAM STASKAVICH

The funeral of William Staskavich of Windsorville who died at the memorial hospital Monday was held in that place this morning. The unfortunate man while visiting friends here Sunday evening at 56 Union street, tripped and fell down stairs, fracturing his skull. He was immediately taken to the hospital and died at 4:30 a. m. Monday. He leaves his wife and three children. Earlier accounts of the accident erroneously stated he was visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Kuzas of 55 Union street, who formerly lived at this address but for some time have been living at 395 North Main street.

NEW INSECT PEST THREATENS POTATOES

Local Farmers Report Heavy Damage By Lice That Resist All Known Sprays.

Farmers in the vicinity of Manchester report the sudden appearance of a new enemy of the potato, whose ravages within a week have been so serious that the crop, which a few days ago was particularly promising, now gives promise of being badly curtailed if not practically destroyed.

The pest is a yellowish plant louse which in great numbers attacks the vines and which so far has defied all efforts of the potato growers to eradicate it. A few days are sufficient for the armies of insects to turn the most promising field of potatoes into tattered wreckage. Farmers have very little hope that the destruction of the tubers and some say they will be lucky if the potatoes grow to be big enough to be worth digging at all. Charles Magh, whose farm is in the Avery street section over the line in South Windsor, said today that he had sprayed his potatoes three times, apparently with no effect, as none of the protective sprays seem to injure this new form of lice.

COOL IN THEATER

The hot weather is not noticed in the State Theater here, said Manager Jack Sanson today, because of the perfect operation of the big typhoon fans which were installed last year. Two big 18 foot fans and two smaller ones keep a fine cool breeze stirring at all times in the theater. In fact, the fans had to be stopped last night because of complaints from patrons about the cool air in the theater.

"Open All Night"

This is the sign you see frequently on white-front restaurants. Occasionally you find it on a drug store. Some other businesses carry it, but not many.

It is not displayed on any telephone building—but it might well be.

For no telephone central office in this country ever shuts up shop. All day, all night, Sundays, holidays, the ceaseless task of rendering telephone service goes on. No matter what the day or hour when you lift your receiver from the hook, your call is taken care of. An adequate number of operators, careful scheduling of their working hours, special arrangements for special days—all provided so that you may never, at any time, be without the convenience of telephone service.

Convenience—yes, and more! Your telephone is your best protection in the dark hours of the night.

The real value of your telephone service should not be measured by what it costs, but by what it does for you.

AKRON TO BUILD DIRIGIBLE FOR N. Y.-PARIS TRIP

Round Trip Without Stop Planned For New Ship Ready Soon.

Akron.—A dirigible is to be constructed here soon which will be able to fly from New York to Paris and return without stopping, according to President P. W. Litchfield, of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, head of the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation. The big airship will be able to make the round-trip carrying a crew of forty-five and a full load, according to predictions. Under test conditions, with a small crew and a maximum fuel load, such a dirigible should be able to fly across the Pacific and back, local airship designers declare.

Pointing out that trans-ocean flights, such as recently have been made three times by dirigible airship, Litchfield cited six outstanding dirigible flights as "milestones in the development of lighter-than-air-traffic navigation," as follows:

Big Flights
1917—The L-59 flew from Jambol, Belgium to German East Africa and back on a 4,225 mile non-stop flight, occupying a little less than four days.

1922—The British R-34 flew over the Atlantic to Mitchell Field, L. I., refueled and returned.

1923—The Dixmude made a four day flight over the Mediterranean and North Africa.

1924—The Shenandoah made a trip of 8,000 miles around the rim of the American continent.

1924—The Los Angeles made a 5,100 mile trip from Central Europe to Lakehurst, N. J.

1926—The semi-rigid Norge made the epochal four-leg trip from Rome, Italy to Point Barrow, Alaska, stopping at Pulham, Eng; Oslo, Norway; Spitzbergen, then over the North Pole covering a distance approximately 7,000 miles.

"With this background, we are ready to consider what difficulties and dangers the airship has to face and to inquire what steps have been made to alleviate them," Litchfield declared.

The first, of course, is weather. Snow and ice have little effect. The doped cover of the Zeppelin type sheds water and snow blows off the airship in flight. Danger from lightning is practically non-existent. The greatest danger is from storms but storms travel in easily observable paths and with a concentric motion which will enable pilots to hold that hazard at a minimum. Having adequate information in regard to the storm's course, the airship pilot will not run away, but would steer for, and utilize the drift."

Work Starts Soon
Work on the "super-Zeppelin" is expected to start here within two months. The Goodyear-Zeppelin design has already been accepted by the United States Navy, to take the place of the ill-fated Shenandoah, which broke in two near Caldwell, Ohio, two years ago. The new airship will have a gas capacity of 6,500,000 cubic feet as compared with the 2,400,000 carried by the Los Angeles.

The super-dirigible will be 7150 feet long, 134 feet wide and 145 feet in height. With its six 650-horse power motor, it will have a speed of approximately 80 miles per hour and a cruising range, with a maximum load of 8,000 miles.

According to the plans, the ship will be able to ascend five miles with greater rapidity than most airplanes. Its motors and cabins will be inclosed in a triplex hull and it will be armed with machine guns and light artillery. Specifications call for the carrying of six airplanes as an auxiliary, it was said.

FLYERS TAKING REST ON THE WAY ACROSS

Aboard U. S. S. Leviathan, July 14—in a secluded corner of the sundeck of this vessel, Commander Richard E. Byrd continued today to take full advantage of his ocean trip, gaining the rest he knows he will need to stand the ordeal of America's reception.

The trans-Atlantic aviator, who is returning home with his three companions, George Noville, Bert Acosta and Bert Balchen, is not in seclusion but is glad of the opportunity to free himself from social duties. He has made every effort to make the return trip one of rest and calm pleasure.

The flyers take brisk walks on the deck. Commander Byrd has spent many hours with his favorite books.

Forks were first used in Italy in the sixteenth century. Queen Elizabeth was the first English sovereign to use one and it was considered a great affection. Religious leaders even preached against their use, saying that fingers were given us to eat with.

Fleet Sixteen

Speed and accuracy of stroke explain the sensational play by which Betty Nuthall, 16-year-old English girl, won her way into the finals of the women's single at the Wimbledon tennis matches. Mollie Mallory, the American, was one of the tournament stars who succumbed to Betty's racket prowess.

COUNTRY STORE AT THE STATE TONIGHT

Presents, Fun and Feature Picture—"See You in Jail" Tomorrow.

All out for the Country Store and the entertainment in a theater that is 20 degrees cooler on the inside. The coolest place in town tonight, outside of a swimming pool will be the State theater, for the typhoo-hans have been turned out for the season and have made the place an ideal spot for cooling off. The Country Store comes in conjunction with "The Love Thrill," starring Laura LaPlante and Tom Moore, two of the most popular artists on the screen.

"The Love Thrill" is a comedy in which the main situation is the attempt of a beautiful young insurance agent trying to sell a policy to a millionaire. She poses as the widow of the millionaire's pal but the pal suddenly turns up alive and complications arise. From then on the plot becomes tangled up and the pretty insurance agent gets into the affair deeper and deeper, telling more and more lies as she is forced to cover herself up. The whole thing ends, however, when she becomes the wife of the pal just as the police are about to step in and arrest her as an adventurer.

Jack Mulhall appears as the proverbial "in again, out again" Finnegan, in his latest starring vehicle, "See You in Jail," which comes to the State theater for a two-day run beginning tomorrow. A farce comedy chock full of adventures and thrills is the product of this star at the present time and Jack does more things in this picture than he has ever done in any other. Thus, "See You in Jail" in Los Angeles, and the downtown streets, Pershing Square, and the tank of cells in the City Jail, all have their parts to play.

Jack Mulhall is featured with Alice Day opposite him. The production is by Ray Rockett for First National Pictures, with Joseph Henabery as director. This combination, together with a marvelous cast, renders "See You in Jail" one of the outstanding comedy successes of the season. And folks who have never seen the famed city by the Sunset Sea will welcome this chance to discover what it really looks like.

Dates for the Kiddie Revue which will be shown the latter part of this month, will be announced in a few days. The children are rehearsing faithfully and Manager Sanson expects a much bigger and better show than last year.

The French believe that a child will grow up "good" if given the right names. Among the "good" names are Albert, Alphonse, Pierre, Gustave, Charles, Paul, Henri, Louis, Jeanne, Agathe, Marie, Berthe, Claire, Anne and Therese.

An Ex-Buck PRIVATE goes back to FRANCE by PAUL ADAMS NEA Service

The names of many American soldiers are scratched on the walls of this old hunting lodge on the edge of Belleau Wood. Signs warn that the ruin may collapse at any moment.

This is chapter 81 of the series of articles written by an ex-soldier who is revisiting France as a correspondent for The Herald.

CHAPTER LXXXI

The farms of the A. E. F. There was Les Mares Farm, above Soissons, known to the Second Division as "The Bloody Anzle."

There was the Ferme de Navarin in the Champagne where General Gouraud and the 2nd, 34th and 42nd American Divisions showed the Germans the fine points of "The Elastic Defense." There was Tronsol Farm, known to the 51st Division, Serieux Farm and Chaudron Farm, between which the 35th Division had a line, and many other farms, including the Madeleine Farm near Romagne which was the keypoint of the German defensive system taken by the 3rd and 75th Divisions.

Time's Changes The American soldiers who come back to France with the Legion in September will find these farms changed somewhat during the past nine years. With the exception perhaps of Navarin Farm, which was so badly churned by shellfire that it can never be cultivated again.

But the buildings of the others have been rebuilt and the fields are under cultivation. Every spring, during the ploughing period, dozens of unexploded shells which have worked to the surface are uncovered. These are piled along the roads that once were jump-off lines, the grain soon waves in the wind and everything is as peaceful as if there never had been a war.

Up at "The Bloody Angle" Marguerite Jary, eight years old, plays along the road and in the orchard with her dog, "Finot." She has a ready smile and engaging, and she knows nothing about the battle that raged there in 1918.

That Rusty Barbed Wire Back of the barn on the Ferme de la Madeleine, Marie Therese and Madeleine Champenois, with their kid brother, Jean, play for hours with their rope swings while a herd of cows grazes in the luxuriant lot nearby.

In the yards of every farm in the A. E. F. are rusted corrugated-iron abris used as chicken coops, sheep sheds and shelters for farm implements. Marketing the boundaries of fields are fences strung wholly with rusted barbed wire. But the shell holes have been ploughed and dragged away. The fox holes have been filled. And few who come back will never quite be able to reconcile the peaceful landscapes with the scenes as they knew them in 1918.

TULSA HAS HOPE FOR BIG FUTURE AS RIVER PORT

Drainage Plan To Make Rivers of Southwest a Commercial Factor.

Tulsa, Oklahoma.—Steamboats and barges plying up and down the Arkansas river, and other rivers in the southwest; and Tulsa as a great inland river port are foreseen by Tom C. Harrill, chairman of the Oklahoma state drainage and irrigation commission.

This picture, Harrill points out, is a possible outgrowth of changes to be wrought by proposed flood control measures, which will likely be effected on rivers that feed the Missouri and Mississippi rivers as an initial step in controlling the Mississippi valley situation.

Among the first steps to be proposed will be a deepening of the channels of the Arkansas, Verdigris, Grand, Smoky Hill, Red and other rivers in the southwest.

Feature of Conference This development, it is indicated, will be the feature of the flood control conference in Tulsa, July 14 and 15. Delegates to the congress are expected from all of the states vitally affected. Those states are: New Mexico, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, Colorado and Oklahoma.

Definite plans and estimates of actual cost for control of high waters through the southwest will be among the most important items considered at the meeting.

"Few people realize what a definite program for flood control means," Harrill stated. "Prevention of floods, of course is the main object of such a program. To prevent floods it will be necessary to build huge reservoirs and to deepen river channels," he said. "The old reservoirs will provide recreation centers for people throughout the river valleys. Fishing, boating and swimming will be possible in the artificial lakes, and their water store may be made to change old haphazard methods of cultivation to beautiful terraced farms by means of irrigation.

To Deepen Channels "Deepened river channels will make possible navigation of the streams. Barges, towed by river tugs will be able to move oil and farm products from Oklahoma to seaports on the gulf coast and to eastern points. A big reduction in freight rates would accompany the perfection of a system of river transportation."

Harrill estimated that there are approximately 750,000 acres of bottom lands in Oklahoma alone, that are flooded by water every few years.

Harrill has just returned from Washington, where he discussed flood control with government officials and engineers in the war department. "The government engineers say that control of the Mississippi cannot be accomplished without control first of the Arkansas rivers," Harrill reported. "They estimated

EXPECT TWO PLANES TO CROSS ATLANTIC

Levine's Machine and Courtney's to Start Flight At the Same Time.

Le Bourget, Paris, July 14.—"The Columbia may accompany Captain Courtney on his flight across the Atlantic," Charles A. Levine said here today. "If we can arrange it, we may fly with Courtney from Ireland to Newfoundland," said Levine. "I made no other proposition to Courtney and never entertained a thought of going as his passenger. Courtney can't hop off for at least two weeks and we will be ready then. I have decided to change almost all of our instruments. We are not competing with Courtney as he is not making a non-stop flight."

Work of verifying the Columbia's motor is almost completed and it has been found in such good condition that it may not be replaced. Marcel Drouhin, who will pilot the plane, is working with T. Harold (Doc) Kinkaid, American expert, on the Columbia. "I have flown 40,000 miles and never have had a machine that flew so easily," said Drouhin. "I have no doubt I could pilot her to China."

Levine inspected the air-union Pullman plane which is to be put into the London-Marseilles sleeper night service. "I wonder if I could get one of those berths in the Columbia before we hop off," he inquired. "It would be interesting in view of our hopes of developing a trans-Atlantic service."

At the Cross-Roads of the World

NEW YORK is a doorway through which passes the big parade of life. A billionaire Babbitt, a chorus girl, a leader of society and one of national affairs, a prince of the underworld, a sailor, a bootlegger, a movie star, an immigrant. There is a beggar who once might have squatted at the gates of Bagdad. There is a merchant prince, a dancing girl, a ragged poet with his script, a homeless urchin, a bandit chief.

All these are seen in Bagdad-On-the-Subway. It is a colorful procession, and a never-ending one.

There is one man who never is content only to watch the thrilling pageant of life in Gotham. He must be a part of it. Day and night he follows the parade; and he follows each smaller stream of humanity that breaks off into the fascinating by-ways.

Gilbert Swan is this man, eager student of the metropolis. He is a writer for NEA Service, largest of all combined news and feature organizations. Every day, in The Herald, he mirrors some phase of life in our greatest city. His letter, "In New York," is the very essence of the dizzy, kaleidoscopic whirl. It is full of lights and shadows—the heartless, searching glare of the Great White Way, flickering flares of tenement row, smoke-drifted, rose-colored artificiality of the night clubs.

GILBERT SWAN

Getting a Glimpse of Gotham

Gilbert Swan lives the life of which he writes, and loves the life he lives. His is not the hectic, futile existence of the "typical New Yorker" but a life of real romance, thrills and heart-throbs. Knowing both the dark by-ways and gay places, he finds humor and happiness in the Bowery as well as sorrow and despair on Broadway.

Get a glimpse of Gotham with Gilbert Swan. See, through the pen of a genius, a cross-section of humanity through the eyes of a cosmopolitan.

Go with him every day on his ramblings over the sidewalks of New York.

With him you will tour the "Roaring Forties," or perhaps Harlem, greatest negro city in the world. Next day you may dodge off into one of the foreign quarters and listen to tinkling balalaikas or cook your own bamboo sprouts over a gas plate in a Japanese restaurant.

You will hear the Voice of the City as O. Henry heard it, its laughter and its song, its murmur of contentment and its sigh of sorrow.

Fascinating, thrilling, heart-gripping—that is Gilbert Swan's "In New York" as it is brought to you by NEA Service. Remember that no other paper in Manchester may obtain it. It is exclusive to the

FATHER "TIM" DEMPSEY SETTLES MANY TROUBLES IN ST. LOUIS

He Has Settled Gang Wars in Worst Parish of City and Brought Peace in Forty-Six Labor Disputes—Homes for Homeless His Pet Hobbies.

St. Louis, Mo.—This city's greatest arbiter of troubles arising between the laboring class and the corporation heads is Father "Tim" Dempsey, as he is familiarly known.

Catholic, Protestant, Jew and infidel alike come to him to have their difficulties straightened out. He has been called upon to arbitrate forty-six serious labor disputes in St. Louis, and in every instance his mediation was satisfactory to all parties concerned.

Father Tim's parish is in that part of the city which has a rather unsavory reputation and is often termed the East Side of St. Louis. It is a region where foreign population predominates. Children are numerous, 3,000 of school age living in crowded tenement houses in an area five blocks square.

In his hotel room, nourishing food and clean comfortable rooms are provided at low cost. Some forget to pay, but on the other hand an

Father Dempsey, the good shepherd of many stray sheep in the East Side of St. Louis.

Runs Bums' Hotel
"The scum of the city gathers here from all sections when there is any devilry to do," says Father Tim. Gangs are organized in the neighborhood and one of the fiercest of gang wars raged near the priest's residence for a long time. These gangsters often come to the genial priest with murder in their hearts. He gives them kindly council. Often their grievances are imaginary and he is able to prevent violence. Many a dying gang victim, who has never had a thought of religion before, has called Father Tim to smooth out the agony of his soul in the last moments of his life.

Soon after Father Dempsey was assigned to the parish he saw the need for an institution to take care of its human hotsam. So many human wrecks without home ties of any kind came to him, and in 1904 he organized a hotel for homeless working men. During the years that have elapsed since then more than 100,000 men, of every race and creed, have been housed here. He has no social service workers and attends to each case himself.

old forgotten account is often paid when the men get steady work. Hundreds and hundreds are cared for at the hotel's expense every year. No disturbance has ever been reported from there and convicts who have been paroled to Father Tim have never in one instance gone back to crime.

Hundreds of men have been cured of foying dispositions through his influence and have settled down to lives of usefulness. He does not force any religious influence upon them.

He has a private cemetery in which 181 men have been buried, thus being saved from burial in the Potters Field.

Helps Women, Too
About fifteen years ago he opened a day nursery for poor working women, caring for an average of 153 children daily. His hotel for working girls and women is another hobby. There are accommodations for 150 persons and very seldom is there a vacancy.

Then there is the convalescent home, where women leaving the hospitals are cared for until they are able to return to work. The rates are low, and they are nothing if the patient is too poor to pay.

The "White Cross Crusade," another activity, collects waste paper and other such refuse. The proceeds from the sale of this waste is used to help undernourished children and to supply their parents with clothes, furniture and fuel gratis, or at a very nominal cost.

Father Tim has never seen a baseball game, or attended a picture show and does not own an automobile.

He has been raised to the dignity of a Monsignor in the church, but to the people of St. Louis he will always be plain "Father Tim."

PICK MAIL PILOT FOR HOP TO ROME

James DeWitt Hill to Accompany Bertaud On the Hearst Flight.

New York, July 14.—James DeWitt Hill, pilot on the air mail route between New York and Cleveland for the last three years, has been selected as the companion of Lloyd Bertaud in the giant monoplane, "Old Glory" on her flight to Rome and return, it was announced today.

Hill, whose record tells of more than 5,000 hours in the air, was chosen, backers of the flight said, because he has shown himself a veteran of the skies who has never deserted his plane in time of distress. "J. D." as he is familiarly called, has faced death eight times in the air, when ice, or sleet, or snow have forced his plane to earth, but not once has he abandoned his ship for the safety of a parachute.

The New York to Rome flight is sponsored by William Randolph Hearst.

OUR SOLDIER BOYS BIVOUAC TONIGHT

Sleep In Pup Tents At Pleasure Beach—Praise For Local Men.

By Staff Correspondent
Camp Trumbull, Niantic, July 14—Manchester's soldier boys will sleep in their pup-tents tonight at Pleasure Beach where the 2nd Battalion will bivouac for the night returning to camp about noon tomorrow after working out field problems under Major Clarence C. Scarborough. The Howitzer Company in command of First Lieutenant Russell B. Hathaway is attached to the battalion for the bivouac. Barring unexpected heavy and continual rain, the troops were expected to leave camp about 3:30 this afternoon.

The hike to the site where camp will be made is between five and six miles. It is located on the property of Colonel Ellery C. Allen, formerly on the governor's staff, and now chief field deputy of the Internal Revenue Department for the state of Connecticut. Last year, the 169th Infantry also bivouacked on Colonel Allen's land, but this year the site will be about a half a mile from the former one which was directly on the shore. The new location is on higher ground.

Band Leads
The soldiers were to be escorted to the bridge in Niantic by the regimental band under the direction of Bandmaster William B. Tasillo. Immediately upon reaching the camp location, the various units will prepare camp as quickly as possible. Each desires to be the first to finish the task of getting the pup tents staked out as neatly and quickly as possible. Following this supper will be served. This is prepared in camp at the various company kitchens and brought to the scene of the bivouac by the respective kitchen forces. Hot coffee is included. Afterwards, there is a period of recreation following which the men crawl into their tiny tents for the night. It affords a picturesque sight to see the soldiers entering the tents, some of which barely cover them. If he be extra lengthy, often times his feet protrude from the end of the tent.

The 1st Battalion and Regimental Headquarters went on bivouac last night and returned to camp shortly before noon today. They were a tired group but the morale was high. Major Joseph R. Morrison was in command.

Hot in Camp
Yesterday was an extremely warm day, the first real hot one of the 15-day encampment which is already in full swing. Company G was one of the units which left the camp and took part in company problems in territory a few miles from the camp. Despite the hot weather, the men stood the test well. Not a single "casualty" was reported at the medical department due to the heat.

The Howitzer Company, that is, the greater part of them, were on guard duty all day long, having commenced the previous afternoon at 4 p. m. The patrolling of the camp during the night was devoid of excitement. Commander of the Guard, Lieutenant Walter Tedford said that not a single person was detained in the guard house. Throughout the long hours of the night, the Manchester boys paced back and forth over their respective posts and saw to it that no undesirable entered the camp. The sentinels made a picturesque sight as they passed to and fro silhouetted against the Niantic river in the moonlight.

Yesterday afternoon, Company G won a baseball game from Company I of New Britain by forfeit. The teams played two innings at the end of which the Hardware City threw in the towel, so to speak. The score was 12 to 0. Manchester tallied four runs in the first inning and eight in the next. Had the umpire, your correspondent, been a bit more square to the City athletes, the score would probably have been bigger. Manchester's lineup was Mantelli, cf; McCavanaugh, ss; Edgar, p; Von Deck, c; Frey, 1b; Crockett, 2b; Schibel, if; McCollum, rf; Holland, 3b; Gioretti, lf. Those who made two hits were Mantelli, Edgar and Frey. The opposing team failed to hit safely once and only one man reached first, he by a walk.

Company F of Hartford faced Company E also of Hartford by a score of 7 to 2. It is possible Companies G and F will play next although the schedule is still incomplete.

Boxing Bout
Last night after the baseball games, swimming and supper, the chief attraction was the first of a series of boxing bouts staged by Captain Christopher Schaife, athletic director. Another series of bouts will take place Monday with the finals a few nights later. No Manchester boys participated in the four bouts last night but some are expected to box Wednesday night.

Here are the results of the four bouts: Private Mancell of Company M and Private Parletto of Company I fought to a draw; Private Kudla of Company D, Meriden, defeated Private Reed of Company F, Hartford in three rounds; Private Sid of Company J won on a technical knockout from Private Mazza of Company J in two rounds; and Private Lord of Company M and Private Hale of Company D fought to a draw. The last bout was the best of the four and was jammed with action. Both boxers were on the verge of a knockout but managed to weather the storm. Major Samuel A. Butler timed the bouts which were refereed by Captain Schaife. Two hundred soldiers watched the card and later in the evening many more saw the motion picture, "The Runaway Express," which was augmented by a comedy. These evening programs are proving very popular with the boys and many words of praise have been voiced for Captain Richard H. McLaughlin, chaplain, who has charge of the entertainment. Track and field and aquatic meets are also on the program which Captain Schaife has planned for next week.

Yesterday's weather left its imprint on the soldier boys far more than the preceding two put together. Already they have coats of tan that will daily become more and more brown until when they return home a week from Sunday, there will be a decided change. The outdoor life here is doing the men a world of good. It is such a drastic change for many of them who have been cooped up in the mills or in offices.

Notes
Private John Swanson, Howitzer rookie, furnished quite a bit of entertainment for the members of his company the other night when he was sent after a spur. Swanson did not know the difference between a spur and a collapsible eight-quart water pail which was handed to him. The rookie tied it about his foot and went to several of the other companies searching for one for the other foot. It was some time before he discovered his mistake.

According to reports Frankie Klein and Bobby McCormick, mascots of Company G and the Howitzer Company respectively, are having a great time together. Sergeant Hynes says every time they want Mascot Klein, a detail has to be sent to the beach to find him. Apparently the same holds good for Bobby. Both youngsters are very popular, not only with their own companies but others as well. Both are well fed and cared for.

Captain Irving E. Patridge, Jr., the colonel's adjutant, remarked to the writer after Howitzer Company had put on formal guard mounting Tuesday afternoon: "That's the best exhibition of guard mounting that has been given in camp so far this year. The Howitzer Company is a mighty fine unit."

"Manchester surely has the right spirit in National Guard work judging from the two splendid companies it has here in camp," remarked a high-up officer yesterday. Manchester is the only town in the state to send a reporter to camp with the 169th, he pointed out. Hartford has two here, E. W. Erdman for the Hartford Courant and Dan Bidwell, well-known war correspondent, for the Hartford Times. Incidentally, Mr. Bidwell is well known in Manchester.

While "Muggins," Captain Harry Schwolsky's happy-go-lucky chunky black bulldog is the most conspicuous mascot in camp and the idol of everyone, there is another mascot about which the direct opposite might be said. This is a little black skunk which Lieutenant Donald Hagstrom of Company M of Hartford owns. The skunk is kept in a little cage and it is needless to say the skunk hasn't many outside admirers. The men in Company M, however, know Mascot Skunk's possibilities and therefore are not afraid to carry him about in their blouse.

Sergeant Carl Pries who motor-ed to Manchester the other night, lost his bearings a la Byrd in the heavy fog on the return trip and it was with difficulty that he found his way to Niantic and the camp-ground.

Frank L. Pinney visited the camp today and called on Warrant Officer William B. Tasillo, conductor of the regimental band. It was the first time Mr. Pinney had ever seen Camp Trumbull and he said he was very much impressed. He dined with the officers.

FIND RUNAWAY GIRL WITH WINSTED FAMILY
"I Did It to Avoid Being Forced to Wed Man I Don't Love," She Says.

Winsted, Conn., July 14.—Eleanor Laham, young Boston girl who fled from her home to avoid being forced to marry "the man I do not love," was located here today by Boston, Torrington and Winsted police, and taken back home. Miss Laham was in the home of Thomas A. Coury, eating a midnight supper when the police found her, having traced her here from Torrington where Coury found her.

According to Coury Miss Laham was at the home of friends of his in Torrington and when he heard her story he offered her an asylum at his home here. The girl accepted. Meanwhile Abraham Laham, the girl's father, who has been on her trail with Boston police, reached Torrington about the time she was starting for Winsted. Picking up a Torrington police official the party came here, enlisted the aid of Captain White, and went directly to the Coury home.

"I left home to avoid being forced to marry a man I do not love," the girl explained to the party. A few minutes later she was homeward bound.

WANT A GAME
The West Ends of Williamantic are without a game for this coming Sunday, July 17, due to a cancellation by the disbanded Ashland A. A. of Jewett City. Any fast club in the state desiring a good attraction may set in touch with Manager Sam Heller by calling Williamantic 594-13 immediately. Game is to be played either at home or away.

T. R.'s Son Sleeps Beneath Flowers Where He Fell 9 Years Ago Today

Paris, July 14.—A simple, lonely grave overlooking a winery, held at the little village of Chamery, northeast of Chateau Thierry, was blanketed with fresh flowers today in memory of Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt.

It was nine years ago today that young Roosevelt, American World War flyer, was shot down and killed. His body still rests where German airmen buried it. The enemy announced Roosevelt's death by dropping a note within the Allied lines.

No road has been built to the grave, but hardly a day passes that American visitors do not trudge across the fields to stand beside it, soared the shadow of our night."

OLD TIMERS BATTER WAY TO WIN OVER CHENEY A. A.

Total of 12 Hits Too Much For Couple of Cheney Pitchers—Burkhardt Hits For the Circuit.

They did it. The Old Timers turned the trick last night, defeating Cheney Brothers by the overwhelming score of 11 to 3 at the West Side diamond.

The game was unusual in that the All Stars scored in every inn. One run in all but the sixth when they ran wild and forced five over the place.

Wiley, the Willy Cheney pitcher, became wild and was allowed to hold down right field for the remainder of the game while Boyce walked five men and had struck out only two.

It Hasn't Been Done Yet

Dempsey Is Confident He Can Overcome Kid Precedent and Whip Sharkey and Tunney; Corbett, John L., Jeffries, Fitzsimmons and Willard Failed in Comebacks.

By JIMMY POWERS

New York, July 13.—Kid Precedent is against Jack Dempsey. His attempt to win the championship by knocking out Tunney has dynamited the celebrated chin of the following heavyweights, in trying to stage comebacks after losing their titles.

There was old John L. Sullivan. Good old John L. He never fought after his defeat by Corbett in that soggy ring flooded with river sand at New Orleans. He boxed in a few exhibitions, it's true, but he never again engaged in actual ring combat.

Then there were Corbett and Fitzsimmons. They never met after their title bout at Carson City. Gentleman Jim failed—failed gloriously but nevertheless failed—in his attempt to win the championship from Jeffries who had taken it from freckled Bob.

Following his defeat by Jeffries at Coney Island, Fitz knocked out Jim Thorne, Jim Daly, Ed Dunkhorst, Gus Rublin and Tom Sharkey in a row, but when the 40-year-old attempted to recapture the throne from the bollermaker in Frisco, Ruby Robert met the same fate as at Coney Island.

And poor Jim Jeffries. Eight years out of boxing, he bursted what was left of his hulk back into the ring at Reno and was massacred by the Galveston Black who had mounted the heavyweight throne.

Think of Jack Johnson. Lil' John Artha did not obtain another title after he was bumped off by Willard because he was what was quietly known as in Dutch with the authorities. He took mighty good care to stay off the front page for quite a long while.

And Jess Willard. The big Kansas cowboy never got over that terrible lacing Dempsey gave him in the Massacre of Maunee Bay. He knocked out Floyd Johnson and then quit to Firpo. Those who know Willard best say that dread of having again to face the annihilating attack of the dreaded Dempsey more than anything else induced Big Jess to surrender to the charges of the Wild Bull.

he is likely to be even a greater betting favorite against Tunney this year than he was last.

But unless there is something slightly putrid in Denmark, Dempsey living on the fat of the land with only four fights in six years and one in the last three—will NOT get past this stalwart young sailor who is right at the peak of physical and ring powers with a fighting blade whetted to razor sharpness from frequent competition.

That's the big reason. And in the background is the smirking, whiskered pan of Kid Precedent. The combination looks too tough.

BILLY EVANS

Yanks Get Rough. Treat 'em rough when they get fresh!

That seems to be the slogan of the New York Americans. Any time an American League rival threatens the lead of the Yankees, the crew of Miller Huggins administrators a severe spanking.

On Decoration Day of this year, the Philadelphia Athletics were within hailing distance of the Yankees, only a couple of games away. In the so-called first crucial series, New York proceeded to win four out of five.

Late in June, the Chicago White Sox went into New York for a four-game series, with just a single game separating them from the champions, Ruth and Co. proceeded to trim the Sox three out of four and started them on the toboggan.

On July Fourth, Washington, after winning 10 straight and jumping into second place, invaded Gotham, confident of cutting down the Yankees' lead.

New York won both holiday games by the lopsided score of 12-1 and 21-1. Two such overwhelming defeats won't help the Washington morale any.

There is a getting away from the fact that the Yankees believe in treating all rivals rough and usually do that very thing.

Some Unusual Dues. The Fourth of July games in the major league, by the way, produced several rather extraordinary situations.

It is unusual when a team wins both games of a double-header; they almost invariably split them. Yet all four holiday bills in the National League went that way.

Pittsburgh increased its lead by winning two from the world champions, St. Louis, while Chicago tightened its hold on second place by twice defeating the Reds. New York continued in the first division by a double victory over Brooklyn and Boston twice won from Philadelphia.

In the American League, Cleveland, playing its best of the year, scored twice over Chicago, while New York annihilated the Washington club in both games, making 33 runs to two for the Senators. Incidentally, two losing streaks and one winning run, were brought to a close.

The Athletics trimmed Boston after losing seven in a row. Then Boston reversed conditions and beat Philadelphia to break a protracted losing streak of games. Washington was beaten in a double-header after capturing 19 straight.

All of which proves it is best to take nothing for granted in baseball since the athletes just naturally refuse to run true to form.

It is more or less an accepted truth in baseball that the team out in front on July Fourth has the best chance to win the pennant. Statistics strongly bear out such a belief.

That would make it Pittsburgh in the National New York in the American. Both clubs favored at the start of the season.

The Yankees, with a lead of practically a dozen games, look to be in. Yet you never can tell. Last season the Yanks frittered away about as commanding a lead in the last half of the season and were hard pressed to win.

The Yankees have made the most of their home stay this year by winning 29 out of 37 games. They have profited immensely in their games against the tail-end Red Sox, and in the pinch they have knocked off the opposition.

It takes a good ball club—even a great club—to do things New York has done this year. That is why the Yanks are away out in front in the American League race.

YORK vs. WHITE

By DOC REID. Thirteen years ago today, Charlie White the Chicago Hebrew light-weight star battered the tough Stanley Yoakum of Texas into submission in nineteen rounds at Denver, Colo. The battle is said to have been one of the most furiously fought affairs ever witnessed in the mile high city.

Both contestants were leading contenders for titular honors in the lightweight class until the Texan was eliminated by White. The latter had three chances at the coveted title in later events with Willie Ritchie, Freddy Welch and Benny Leonard during the reign of each. White is now owner of a physical culture school in Chicago and is prospering.

NON-PROFANE GOLF. London (United Press).—A golf club for non-swearers has been formed at Barnsley.

At the official opening of the club house, Joseph Jones, the chairman, said that although the idea was revolutionary and pronounced by many golfers as an Utopian idealism he hoped that the members could prove that profanity is not the handmaid of a good player.

DEFORREST PICKS DEMPSEY AFTER HE WATCHES WORKOUT

Famous Trainer Says Ex-Champ Is Ready Now to Beat Sharkey—His Reasons.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

I. N. S. Sports Editor.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., July 14.—No less an authority, as authorities run in this unauthoritative day, than Professor James DeForrest, the celebrated cheroot nibbler, has gone out on a limb for Jack Dempsey.

You can take it or leave it, but the professor insists on laying it on the line for the man he trained eight years ago to beat Jess Willard and become the world's heavyweight champion at Toledo, Ohio.

The professor admits Dempsey has gone back further than rubber tugged and moustached ball players, but he is positive he is still good enough to whip a rapid conversationalist.

"Dempsey is a good counter hitter with his right hand," experts the professor, "and a good right hand counter counts with a left jabber like Jack Sharkey."

That's the principal reason the professor is out with a boost for his old pupil. On top of that, he figures Dempsey is in good shape and ready to fight a hard fight if he has to.

Ordinarily you can take these bias-biasing of the old timers, who sit around the fight camps and watch the boys do their stuff, with a spoonful of okra soup. In most instances the old timers are just talking to charm their acoustics. I have an idea, however, that the professor is leveling when he strings with Dempsey.

The professor is not entirely alone in his opinion either. Jack Renault, the synthetic Canadian mounted horseman, who stoops to heavyweight fighting from time to time, has stepped out with a cheer and vote of confidence for the Hollywood businessman.

Renault offers the pliant theory that Sharkey, being deficient in the matter of backing away from punches, will stumble and founder all over himself getting away from Dempsey's initial rushes.

Having exchanged a series of authentic punches in the ring with Sharkey himself, it may be conceded that Renault knows what he is talking about.

Can't Back Up "Funny thing about Sharkey," he says, "the fellow can't back up. That's one of the little tricks of the game he hasn't learned. He can force a fight fine, but when he has to back away from an attack, he is lost."

Dempsey was both good and bad yesterday. He had the assembled tourists in the foothills groaning and cheering.

The cheering came when he pinned Chief Metoquah, one of those Indian heavyweights you find in bargain basements, on the ropes with an old-time Dempsey attack.

For a brief interval, Dempsey looked suspiciously like the man that used to be; he was slugging and hitting with great power and seemingly repelling in his crusty labors.

But after that one round he was shot. Against Allentown Joe Gans, a little fellow with speed, Dempsey looked bad and was bad. The hip-oh that he was a tired gent came when he grabbed Gans after a minute or so of pouncing and went into a clinch for the very apparent idea of resting.

The boys attempted to number this one off on the theory that the day was not and it was unmistakably that. Nevertheless he did not look good for a man who was one short week away from a stiff fight.

A man in perfect condition would have looked better, heat or no heat. The workout did not show Dempsey in an altogether favorable light. For one thing, he came out of the ring with a bloody beak. A left hand sponsored by one Larry Gaines, brought the claret to the champion's remounted horn.

Angry Dempsey The incident seemed to annoy the great man and he insisted on boxing another round with Gaines despite the fact that two other hired hands stood hard by waiting to crawl through the ropes.

The expert thought that the great man wanted to take a sound crack at the audacious Gaines by way of showing the cash customers—it was a public workout—that the thing should never have happened.

The Life Of Jack Sharkey

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

U. P. SPORTS EDITOR

New York, July 14. (United Press).—Boxers in the Navy do not have to bother much about training. They don't get time. Training has to be done out of working hours and the working hours are long. The work makes them hard but it makes them hungry also and there never was a gorb, a marine or a doughboy who would admit that he ever got enough chow.

When Jack Sharkey was fighting his way through to the championship of the United States Navy, he used to eat plenty and when he got out of the service he went into intensive eating and grew into the poundage of about 215.

Johnny Buckley, who is still his manager, saw in him when he left the Navy, a great prospect and he took him over.

"If you lay off the feed bag a little I think I can do something with you," Buckley told him, and as Sharkey was in need of funds, he took the tip without any argument.

"Without much exaggeration," Buckley said, "that fellow could eat more than Babe Ruth and the Babe is supposed to hold several records. He would eat steak for dessert and what he could do to a couple of pies was murder."

Buckley put him in a gymnasium placed him on a light diet which Sharkey complained was starvation, and went out to get some work for him.

"I asked him if he had any choice about opponents and he told me to get any fight that would get me some money," Buckley said. "He said he didn't know much about any of the fighters and that he didn't care. His logic was that if he didn't have the makings of a fighter he should find it out quickly and if he couldn't be a fighter he'd have to look for some other kind of work."

Buckley was confident that he was a fighter because he had all the physical requirements and with them a confidence that was as cocky as any fighter ever had shown, but Buckley didn't want to overmatch him.

In 1924 Buckley matched him with Billy Muldoon, Pat Haze, Dan Lucas and Eddie Record and he won the fights by knockouts, the longest being seven rounds against Record. Those names don't sound much now and they didn't then, but they were good enough to give him the experience that he needed.

He also won decisions in 1924 from Floyd Johnson, Homer Smith and Al Roberts and engaged in no-decision bouts against Young Jack Johnson and Charley Weinert and three years ago they were good tests for a youngster.

His record in 1924 wasn't all gold, however, as he later lost a 10-round decision in a return match with Record and was also beaten in 10 rounds by Jim Maloney after he had been floored five times.

When he began to get a little money in 1924 he decided to buy an automobile and he went shopping. He came back without a car but had a wife. He fell in love with a pretty Irish stenographer in one of the automobile sales agencies and about five days later he fought Romero Rojas, a tough South American, and was knocked out in the ninth round.

"That's a fine wedding present for the wife," Sharkey moaned, but he wasn't discouraged and he told Buckley that he had learned a good lesson.

Sharkey was asked later if there was any fluke, lucky punch or something like that in the victory of Rojas.

"No," he replied. "Just a good sock on the whiskers. I'll watch my whiskers after this."

The loss of Rojas set Sharkey back as far as his big money market value was concerned, but he kept on going and in 1925 won decision from Jack De Mave, Sully Montgomery, Jack Renault, George Cook, Johnny Risko, Jimmy Maloney and King Solomon. He lost 10-round decisions, however, to Charley Weinert and Bud Gorman.

Although he did not show any killing punch—or didn't use it if he had it, he was showing such promise that William Muldoon, senior member of the New York Boxing Commission, braved the opinion that he was destined to be the next champion.

There were many human fish but few superhuman fish such as Ed ward Keatinge, young New York swimming instructor, who swam away with the 24-mile American Legion water marathon in Lake George, N. Y.—from Hague to Lake George. There were 100 starters, 6 finishers.

Even A Fight Fan Knows When He Has Had Enough

NEWS ITEM. FIGHT CROWDS ARE GETTING SMALLER. WHAT YOU GRABBING ABOUT?—AIN'T THIS A GOOD FIGHT? SURE! BUT THIS IS THE FIRST REAL BATTLE I'VE SEEN IN FOURTEEN CHANCES!— THAT BRINGS THE PRICE TO ABOUT $140, WHICH IS A LOT OF DOUGH! YEAH—I SEEN EMMA LAST NIGHT. AND I CAME WAY OUT HERE IN THE RAIN TO SEE THIS! I SEE THE NEXT TIME I SEE A COUPLE OF CROWDS IT WILL BE AT THE CIRCUS! YEAH? THAT'S MY SEAT! WOW! THAT FIGHT WAS THE FUNNIEST THING I EVER SAW! WHEE! SURE! BUT YOU CAN SEE VAUDEVILLE FOR SIX BITS! FOR A WHILE THERE THE CUSTOMERS WERE DOING ALL THE FIGHTING. I READ THAT HE TELEGRAPHED HIS PUNCHES! WHERE DID YOU GET THE FUNNY IDEA THAT 'KID' CLOUT IS A LONG-RANGE FIGHTER? THE MOST RABID RINGSIDERS ARE FINALLY DECIDING THAT THEY'VE HAD PLENTY YET NOTHING AT ALL FOR THE MAZOMA THEY'VE SPENT.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS At Cleveland—Johnny Risko, Cleveland light heavyweight, was awarded the decision over Jack Demave of New York, ten rounds. Jimmy Mahoney of Chicago, out-painted George La Rocca of New York, ten rounds. At Little Rock, Ark.—Billy Peterson, Michigan middleweight, knocked out Robert Kuhn, of Shreveport, La., in the first round of a scheduled ten round bout. At New York—Paulino Uzcudun, Basque heavyweight, knocked out Harry Willis in fourth round; Alf Brun, Brooklyn, defeated Carlo Catterone of the Argentine, knock-

VOIGHT IS RATED ONE OF THE BEST IN AMATEUR GOLF

Man Who Quit Because Of Lack of Money Expected To Resume Tournament Play.

Washington, July 13.—George Voight, who forgot golf for seven years because he couldn't stand the financial pressure of the game, may give the nation's capital its second big title of the year in that pastime.

Tommy Armour, who is pro at the Congressional Club, handed this city its first big title when he won the national open at Oakmont, and Voight is likely to be just as generous to his old home town, by copying the national amateur meet in August.

He may do it, too. There are hundreds of Washington golfers who think that his successes of the past few months entitle him to ranking among the favorites.

Voight, contrary to the general belief, did not start playing golf as a caddy. Nor has he been swinging clubs ever since.

He was a caddy before the World War, but he had to quit caddying and forget all about golf in 1914 to earn a livelihood in a government office here. He wanted to play golf, but how could he? He couldn't afford the green fees at a private club and municipal courses were unheard-of at that time.

George played his first game in 1922 when the municipal links opened at East Potomac. He played nine holes every afternoon, after work, and he played many, many holes on Sundays.

The result was that he was soon shooting par golf and those par figures won for him the District Municipal Links championship for two years.

When he became a member of a private club, he began playing in the club tournaments and for two years was a leader in local competition.

More and more did he practice. He spent his vacations on the links and then came this past winter of successes along Florida and South Atlantic courses.

Voight hasn't lost an amateur meet this season. He has cleaned up everything, even capturing low medal honors in all but one of the eight meets he won.

That indicates one thing, something that Bobby Jones is famous for, and that is consistency in play. But there's another thing that makes him more a menace to Bobby Jones, George Von Elm, Watts, Gunn, Roland MacKenzie and others in August, and that is love for match play.

Voight is in his glory in match play. He developed, you know, from the crop of public link golfers who learn under difficulties, and it is because of this greatness in match play that Washington golfers are banking on Voight giving the nation's capital its second big title this year.

out in second round; Felix Sport- alla, of Spain, won decision over Walter Hogan, Ossining, six rounds; Marvin Schechter of Boston and Paul Sydesky of Syracuse drew six rounds; Ernie Schaaf of Elizabeth and Benny Touchstone of California, drew.

CUBS RETAIN LEAD IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

By LES CONKLIN, I. N. S. Correspondent. New York, July 14.—Chicago's alert Cubs today retain their hold on first place in the National League by a margin of twelve points even though they split a double-header with the Boston Braves, losing the first six to three and winning the second four to one. The second place Pittsburgh club, meanwhile, was dropping an eleven inning game to Brooklyn, two to one. Partridge scored the winning run when his hard-hit single to center bounded through Cuyler's legs and rolled to the fence.

The third-place Cardinals kept in the race by winning a hard-fought 12-inning contest from the Phillies, nine to seven. Oporcer's single helping to break up the game. It was the fourth straight victory of St. Louis over Philadelphia.

New York Giants, in fourth place, dropped a farcial engagement to the tail-end Reds, eleven to three, the pitching and fielding of the Giants being terrible. The Reds got nineteen hits and New York made five juicy errors.

The American League race became more one-sided as the second place Washington Senators dropped a double header to Detroit, seven to three and eighteen to nine, while the league-leading Yankees romped to a five to three win over Cleveland.

Ruth, incidentally, clouted four hits which were a big factor in the New York victory. In Chicago, the White Sox lost to the Athletics, seven to five. It was "Eddie Collins' Day, and the former White Sox manager was presented with an automobile. Collins responded by getting two hits and batting .500.

St. Louis beat the lowly Red Sox, fourteen to three, in a loose exhibition. Sister of the Browns got four hits, making eight hits in a row for him. The Browns haven't lost a game all season to Boston.

Text includes: "WHEN it comes to best sellers, Camel leads them all, because by the greatest number of smokers it is considered the best cigarette." "The closer the search for quality, the greater the preference for Camels. For Camel, made of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos, is supremely blended to a mellowness, mildness and individuality of taste that is beyond matching or imitation." "If you don't yet know its satisfying smoothness, just try this overwhelming favorite among cigarettes." "Have a CAMEL!"

BREAK INTO HOME

OF CHICAGO JUDGE

Joliet, Ill., July 14.—Three men broke into the home here today of Judge Frederick A. Hill, who imposed separate sentences upon the three desperado convicted murderers sentenced to hang tomorrow for the murder of Deputy Warden Peter M. Klein.

The men, believed by authorities to have been prompted in their raid by Walter Stalesky, Charles Duchowski, and Robert Torrez, who have been ordered to the gallows, were routed by the jurist's son, John Hill.

Mrs. Hill denied that threats and intimidations have been received by Judge Hill in connection with the sentencing of the convicts. The judge is reported away from Joliet.

The Lowest Rates For Herald Want Ads are given on orders for SIX DAYS and that is the right order to give to secure the most satisfactory results.

Advertising is cumulative in its effect and an ad that is published for SIX consecutive days has greater result, producing power than one published for one, two, or three days and then repeated after a lapse of two or three days. This is a fixed and proved rule in advertising and you can depend upon it.

REMEMBER

that when you get results before the six times are up you can stop your ad, by mail or telephone if you wish, and you will be charged ONLY for the actual number of times the ad appeared in the paper, charging at the rate earned.

GREZEL INJURED

WHEN CAR SKIDS

Hits Pole on East Center Street When He Turns to Avoid Crash With Auto.

A badly bruised chest and several minor body injuries are the only results Alfred Grezel, Manchester plumber, feels today after a collision with a pole on East Center street at 10 o'clock last night.

Grezel's car crashed into a pole nearly opposite the home of Dr. George Lundberg when the brakes locked his wheels and the automobile skidded up the grass knoll in the middle of the street.

Upon the first examination it was thought that Mr. Grezel was suffering from broken bones and internal injuries from the crash, but a more complete examination today revealed a less serious, but nevertheless painful condition.

Going West

Grezel was driving west along the south driveway on East Center street. There was a car ahead of him, which he tried to pass. Just as he did so he saw a car coming towards him with lights on. He applied the brakes and pulled the car over to the right and onto the grass plot in his endeavor not to strike the other car.

The wheels locked. The road was dry and his car skidded up the bank. The left front part near the door, struck a trolley pole in the center of the road, snapped it off from the base and for ten feet up, letting the top of the pole drop down into the part that was broken off and only resulting in a guy wire being broken on the trolley pole.

The contact with the pole badly damaged the side of Grezel's sedan and much glass was strewn along the road. He was taken care of by Dr. Lundberg, who accompanied Grezel to his home and who gave first aid.

Manchester merchants, in accordance with their established custom, will observe Thursday, July 21, as Merchants' day, when practically all the retail stores will be closed for the day. This will afford opportunity for all-day outings to the lake or shore resorts by the entire force of business houses that so desire.

The schedule of holiday opening and closing by the merchants at present in force is as follows:

All Day—New Years, Memorial Day, July 4th, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Merchants Day (3rd Thursday in July).

One-half day: Good Friday.

Thursday afternoons: Close throughout the year (with the exception of December which will be decided at a conference of members each November).

Also: On any week in which a holiday occurs on Friday or Saturday, the stores shall keep open Thursday afternoon.

Wednesday, Thanksgiving Eve, close at 6 o'clock.

When a holiday occurs on Saturday, keep open Friday night.

NEW ENGLAND IN CLAIM TO HONOR AS AVIATION AID

SECTION PLAYS IMPORTANT PART in Developing the Airplane Industry.

Boston.—When President John S. Lawrence of the New England Council, an organization devoted to the industrial and civic betterment of New England, stated, "Lindbergh and Chamberlain have written a message across the skies to industrial New England," few realized the part that this section is playing in the airplane industry.

A review of the New England contribution to this mode of transportation which has again received added impetus by the flights of Mailand and Byrd disclosed that eleven firms in this section made parts or material for the Lindbergh plane.

The conquest of the air has aroused New Englanders to the possibilities that the future holds and the slogan of manufacturers here is "to spare no effort to insure that New England industry shall lead in developing this new form of transportation."

The special flights of the intrepid American aviators have stirred New England communities to a livelier interest in the development of flyer fields. Also, the erection of a factory for the manufacture of airplanes is under way at Laurel Beach, Conn.

A new landing field for planes has just been opened at North Grafton, Mass., near Worcester. Plans for a landing field at Concord, N. H., have been completed with provision for hangars to accommodate a large group of planes. In Manchester, N. H., a movement is under way to have a field built there.

At Portland, Me., a point 400 miles nearer Europe than New York public sentiment is crystallizing in favor of a municipal field. Bridgeport, Conn., is also contemplating the building of an airport.

Denver Starts NEW DRIVE ON LOAN SHARKS

State Law Upheld by Supreme Court Is Death to Usurers.

Denver.—The death knell of the "loan shark" in Colorado is believed to have been sounded in a decision handed down by the Colorado supreme court here recently. The decision upheld a provision in the state's money lenders law which makes void any note when illegal rates of interest have been charged.

The legal rate of interest under the law on loans of $300 or less is 1 per cent per month.

The purpose of the money lenders law, enacted in 1919, the decision says, is to prevent charging of excessive rates of interest on small loans.

Statewide Action

This decision is expected to bring statewide action against the illegal money lender. The enforcement of the money lenders act is said to have been lax in Colorado because of lack of funds to regulate the work.

The case which evoked the decision was that of Bert Rice and Bessie Rice of Denver against the Franklin Loan and Finance Co., of Denver, for the charging of excessive interest rates on a small loan. Loan companies have denied recent complaints that they not only charge excessive rates of interest, but also practice numerous methods of circumventing the law in a manner that increases the interest burden of the small borrower.

Stiff Penalties

According to the money lenders law, no loan for which a greater rate of interest shall be charged than is allowed in the act, shall be valid in this state.

Violation of provisions of the act referring to the legal rate of interest shall be a misdemeanor punishable by $200 fine or six months imprisonment.

$40,000 PRIZES FOR AIR DERBY AT SYRACUSE

Army, Navy, Marine and Civilian Pilots in Big State Fair Meet.

Syracuse, N. Y.—If present plans materialize Syracuse is to be the scene of one of the greatest air meets ever held in the United States, with army, navy, marine and civilian pilots competing for some $40,000 in prizes.

The meet, under the plans now being considered, would be held at the new Syracuse airport during the week of the New York State Fair this fall.

A feature of the meet will be the appearance of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his famous trans-Atlantic plane "The Spirit of St. Louis," providing the necessary arrangements can be made to bring "Lindy" to this city.

The meet will be arranged to take place on the day of Lindbergh's arrival. Planes from every section of the United States and some foreign countries will be invited.

Work Is Started

The air meet or derby, as it is called by the Syracuse Chapter, National Aeronautical Association was proposed by Bruce King, a member of the local chapter, who is keenly interested in the development of aviation. The plan was first introduced at the opening official meeting of the local flying society and met with instant approval to the chapter members.

Work is now being prepared for the derby will be started immediately.

The prizes, raised through subscription and otherwise, would be given for speed and reliability of the planes entered.

J. Willard A. Brown, who for nine months during the World War was in charge of the naval air forces, proposed that the derby be held in conjunction with a convention of former army, navy and marine pilots. Mr. Brown pointed out that many of the visitors to the convention would fly here and compete in the derby.

Mr. Brown was named chairman of the arrangements committee. Bruce King, P. Z. Briggs, Paul A. Just, Edward O. Nevin, Mr. Hannam, Mr. Hood, Robert J. Hogan, Jr., and Grant W. Ernst. The chapter will hold bi-weekly dinner meetings throughout the year.

In connection with the derby it was announced that the co-operation of J. Dan Ackerman, head of Commerce had been promised. The derby would continue for four days, possibly during the first four days of the State Fair when many planes would be shipped here to be exhibited on the fair grounds.

WHAT DOES IT COST TO RUN YOUR AUTO?

7-1-2 Cents For Every Mile You Drive.

By ISRAEL KLEIN

Have you ever figured what that car of yours really costs you? If not, hold tight for the shock.

It's nine and a half cents a mile. You may take this figure as your own, for it is the calculation of an average motorist, doing average driving, in an average automobile for an average length of time and mileage.

The motorist in this case is Commander A. C. Stott of the U. S. navy, stationed in Washington, D. C. Commander Stott reveals his interesting figure in the American Motorist, official publication of the American Automobile Association. Here's how he comes to this conclusion:

Logged Every Item

The initial cost of his car, including freight, tax and extras, was $1791.50. He ran it for four years and nine months, over a distance of 48,372 miles, in and around the city of Washington, on three long trips over mountain and prairie, and two across the country.

"Every inch of this I drove myself," he reports, "and every drop of gas and oil, every tire and repair and upkeep, and every item change and repair has been entered in the 'engine room log,' a tiny note book."

Starting with his initial cost of $1791.50, Commander Stott added the insurance on the car for the time he had it and the regular storage charges. Toting these and subtracting the value he got for the car when he traded it for a new one, he got $2,514.71 which he set down as his fixed charges on the car.

Fuel Costs Little

The officer's running charges, including gasoline and oil, and amounted to $731.15 for the entire 57 months.

Repair charges included shop work from year to year, battery repair, purchase of a new battery and repainting of the car at the end of the third year, and totaled $434.83.

Lastly, Commander Stott ran up a total of $814.50 for tire charges, including new tires and tubes, and tire repair work.

First Cost High

These four items totaled $4,574.79, which the car cost him in the four years and nine months, he divided the figure of nine and a half cents a mile.

This figure he further divided, so that he discovered that his fixed charges took 5.2 cents a mile; running charges 1.5 cents; repairs 1.5 cents and tire charges 1.3 cents a mile.

Gasoline and oil, for which we pay most consistently, turned out to take only about one-seventh of the total cost of the car, while it was the initial cost, contrary to general belief, that ate up more of the total than any other item.

"You lunatic!" cried Jack wrathfully, twisting the weapon from the hands of the astonished stranger.

"Oh, much-a brave, much-a handsome!" exclaimed Bambi, gazing admiringly at Jack.

"Take-a him, Garabaldi!" screamed the girl, setting the bear free.

Responding to whistles and calls from Bambi, the bear halted at the edge of the woods, through which the frightened man could be heard crashing in flight.

ABOUT TOWN

Edward Hunter of Church street is spending the week with friends at Pleasant View.

Dr. LeVerne Holmes, E. A. Lydall and Whitman Bowers of Waterbury will leave Saturday morning for a motor trip through the White mountains. It is their plan to spend the greater part of the next week in hiking through the woods and touring places of interest in the mountains.

John C. Palmer of Main street has entered the Hartford hospital where he will undergo an operation.

Mrs. Kirk White of Chester, this state, and Florida, formerly a resident of Manchester, has been visiting friends and renewing acquaintances here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Mahoney of Washington street have returned from a week's vacation at Block Island.

The Sunday school of the Concordia Lutheran church will have its annual picnic Saturday at Crystal Lake. The children will be conveyed in private automobiles, leaving the church at one o'clock.

Ten of the members of the Manchester Girl Scout council were entertained by Mrs. George H. Wilcox yesterday at her summer home at Point O' Woods, and had a thoroughly enjoyable time, bathing, boating and enjoying the clam chowder and other good things provided by the hostess. The trip to the shore was made by automobile.

Helen Davidson Lodge, Daughters of Scotia, will meet in Tinker ball tomorrow evening at 7:45. Final preparations will be made for the supper to be given by the lodge on July 22, in honor of the grand officers who are to make their official visit at that time. Arrangements will be in charge of Mrs. Margaret Sutherland and her associates on the entertainment committee.

REAL ESTATE DEALS

Quit claim deeds registered with Town Clerk Samuel J. Turkington today were the following: Manchester Trust Company, guardian of the estate of Beatrice C. Bidwell, to Alexander and Alexandria Litwinicyk, property on which a mortgage of $2,800 was placed; Jean B. Miller to Joseph and Marie Trevino, property mortgage $2,500. Warrantee deeds included an exchange of property between Mrs. Elsie W. Brownell and Holger Bach. Mrs. Brownell has sold to Mr. Bach property on Main street including a building. The property is 104 by 139 feet and has a mortgage of $5,000. In return, Mr. Bach has sold to Mrs. Brownell property on Cone street in the Marvin Green section, mortgaged for $6,000.
